NAVY CALLS OFF COURTMARTIAL OF BUTLER

Too Many Men, Says Woman In Talk Here

They're Kind of Necessary Evils, but World Could Do With Half as Many, Vows Open Forum Speaker

There are too many men in the world today!

Dr. Lorrine Pruette, consulting psychologist and member of the staff of the psychological clinic of New York, startled a Wichita Falls audience with that flat assertion Sunday afternoon in her address at the Memorial auditorium.

Dr. Lorine Pruette, consulting turer of the open forum season, vigorously attacked man for his masculinity. She heralded the "Decline of the Male" to be his ascension to a higher plane of civilization.

Well, What Isn't?

Dr. Pruette's assertion that the world is over populated with the male species, answered her own question, "What is the matter with the world?" Declaring that man is too expensive to allow him to exist, and crediting him with practically all the ills of mankind, in that there were more blind, deaf, mute, mentally defective, insane, and criminal men in the world by a larger percentage than there are similarly afflicted women, the speaker offered as a remedy "It might be we women would get along more comfortably and less expensively if we had less men." Citing statistics that there are only 55 women to 610 men imprisoned for crime, a comparison of one billion dollars spent annually by the United States to the six billion dollars cost of crime annually, it was pointed out that fewer men would result in a proportionate increase of funds available for the education of children. Naming war as America's biggest industry, with 75 per cent of the country's revenue to 1920 being spent for armament and conflict, Dr. Pruette attributed to man the cause of this occupation. "We have to have battleships," she said, "while our children go uneducated and unnourished."

'He-Man' Vanishing

Although at no time definitely refuting the necessity of the male in the make-up of civilization, mention was made of recent scientific discoveries that a certain form of sea life isolates the male to unexistence except in time of depression, when the male is allowed to come into being again, and apparently to bring "prosperity" again to that particular form of sea existence. A suggestion of population ratio among humans, with 100 women to 50 men, was offered by the speaker, who, however, suggested no means by which this arrangement could be affected. "The only thing I see to do with these men is to feminize them," she said, declaring that then possibly men could be improved, civilized and persuaded to give up war. Slowly, she said, men are already engaged

Fashionable Night Club Looted by Bandit Gang

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 8. (AP)—Six roughly dressed masked men walked into the fashionable Belvidere night club near here early today, covered employes and guests with shot guns, and took all the money from the cash register, estimated at about $2,000.

Nothing was taken from guests.

The robbers escaped in an automobile, the license number of which was obtained.

Rites Said for Victim Of Automobile Crash

HENDERSON, Texas, Feb. 8. (UP)—Funeral services were held today for Buford McAlester, young Rugby Farmer, who was killed yesterday when an automobile struck him as he repaired a punctured tire on a highway near here, the tire had been punctured by bandits who robbed him and his brother of $7.

WORLD'S LONGEST BRIDGE—4½ MILES

THE James river bridge spanning the James river is four and one-half miles long. This gargantuan bridge connecting Newport News and Norfolk, Virginia, is the longest highway bridge in the world. It cost six million dollars, directly linking the Atlantic Coastal highway with this structure. A contingent of 65 army motor trucks, as they cross, appear to be mere spots. The bridge spans almost the identical place in which the Monitor and the Merrimac staged their historic battle. The Classified Want Ad section of The Daily Times-Record News is a very good medium to use in buying trucks and all kinds of automobile equipment. LAKE WICHITA RUNS 2.5 FEET OVER SPILLWAY

Creek Overflows Banks for Fourth Time in Nine Months

2.61 INCHES OF RAIN

Lake Kemp and Diversion Expected to Climb After Rains

Swollen by 2.61 inches of rain Saturday night and Sunday, Lake Wichita spilled a flood of water into Holliday creek Sunday, sending the stream out of its banks to inundate roads and once more convert Weeks park and the grounds of the Country Club Estates into lakes of water.

It was the fourth time within nine months that Holliday creek had spread out from its banks to cover the streets and roads, and threaten damage to residence property.

Temperature Drops

Simultaneously, temperatures here dived 17 degrees from a maximum of 59 during the 24 hours ending at 5 o'clock Sunday. The mercury slowly climbed up from its 42 degree minimum late in the afternoon and was stationary at 44 shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday night, indicating that the colder weather would not reach the freezing point during the night.

The rains and the falling temperatures were general all over Southern Oklahoma and most of Texas, although the precipitation here was heavier than that registered over the area generally.

The torrential downpour Saturday night sent Lake Wichita up two feet and eight inches. The overflow rushed in a flood 2½ feet deep over the spillway and into the creek, and at once the flood waters followed their usual course to cut off the Lake road, bury Weeks park and the Country club grounds and cover a large area to the south and east with water, backing up in the low sections off the Henrietta road. The water was still slowly rising Sunday night.

The Little Wichita river in Clay county caught its share of the floods and left its banks at intervals. During the night, the road near the Henrietta bridge was covered, but the water receded slightly Sunday. Conditions were comparable to the floods of last spring and fall, although observers believed the flood maximum of those occasions has not yet been reached.

Lakes Rise Slowly

At Diversion lake, water trickled over the spillway after a half-foot rise that followed a rainfall of 1.52

Poet Plans to Be Shot From Mouth of Cannon

MILAN, Feb. 8. (US)—Gabriele d'Annunzio, Italy's poet-patriot, threatens to have himself blown from a cannon as soon as the mausoleum that is to hold whatever remains would remain is completed.

The mausoleum is now being erected at Il Vittoriale, the poet's princely estate on Lake Garde.

D'Annunzio has his own Mac-Cabre comment on the future suicide by cannon. He tells his followers:

"When I have disappeared in a storm of fire and smoke you must search thoroughly, and you will find my right ear, for there is not a more perfect organ in the world and it cannot perish."

Adams to Address Tyler C-C in Annual Banquet

TYLER, Texas, Feb. 8. (UP)—Nathan Adams, president of the First National bank of Dallas, vice president of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce and director of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled to be the principal speaker here Monday night at the 38th annual banquet of the Tyler Chamber of Commerce.

ROTARIAN MEET

SAN BENITO, Feb. 8. (UP)—Chesley R. Perry, international secretary of Rotary, will be the guest here soon at an inter-city meeting of valley clubs. Date for the meeting had not been set today.

Weds Step-Sister, Sues His Own Father

A tangled set of relationships in which a Kansas City man is his own father's son-in-law was brought to light when Andrew Jean Stormfeltz (inset) sued his father, Luther Stormfeltz, asking $310,454 inherited from his grandfather and managed for him by the elder Stormfeltz. The young man married Ruth Davis, his step-sister and the daughter of his father's second wife—thereby making his own father his father-in-law and making his step-mother his mother-in-law. The son's wife is shown in the large photo above.

ARGUMENT DUE IN DEATH CASE

Thompson Trial to End in Vernon Today

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 8.—Arguments in the Emmett Thompson murder case are expected to start Monday morning. Judge W. N. Stokes prepared his charge Friday afternoon and Saturday morning defense filed more than 100 exceptions to it. It was rewritten and submitted to the defense Saturday afternoon.

Each side will be allowed four hours to present their summary of the evidence. The state announces that Senator Clint Small of Wellington will open its argument, District Attorney John Myers of Vernon will be the state's second speaker and Fred Weeks of Wichita Falls will close for the side.

The defense speakers are R. E. Underwood of Amarillo, first; W. S. Lewright of Pampa, second; E. A. Simpson of Amarillo, third and Cecil Storey of Vernon.

This case has been in progress for two weeks and every day the courtroom has been packed. Carl Hefner and Emmett Thompson were jointly indicted for the deaths of Homer Crabtree near LeFors in Gray county on Nov. 5, 1930. Hefner was tried at Pampa and given 99 years. The Thompson case was transferred to Vernon on a change of venue.

Grand-nephew of Swedish King Born in New York

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 8. (US)—A child, who would have been in direct line for a kingship, had his grandfather not renounced the throne of Sweden to marry the girl he loved, was born here today.

The child is the son of Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte and is a grand-nephew of the present King of Sweden. He was born at the home of Countess Bernadotte's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville. He will be named Count Folke of Wisborg after his father.

New Quake Recorded At Napier

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 8. (US)—A violent earthquake today rocked the Hawke bay section of North island, bringing fresh terror to the homeless populace of that section, so badly hit by last week's shocks.

More than 1,000 were estimated killed, 2,000 injured, and 15,000 made homeless by the previous quakes which began on Tuesday.

Today's shock had its apparent epicenter in Napier, the coastal town, where approximately 500 were killed in last week's tremblors. Napier's business section is already a tangled mass of ruins.

Hastings, the inland town virtually wiped out by Tuesday's quake did not escape today's heaving of the earth. Other towns reporting the quake are Wairo and Gisborne.

Tremendous waves that accompanied today's quake, heaving out of the ocean and dashing high along the entire coast line, added to the terror of the helpless inhabitants.

While earliest reports declared they had not reached the sweeping force of a tidal wave, added property damage to the extent of thousands of dollars is reported to beach front properties.

During today's tremor, an airplane being used in rescue service crashed at Napier. Its three occupants were reported killed.

The new quake tore down lines of communication, hastily erected by relief squads, making impossible an exact determination of the fresh damage and casualties.

Former Dallas Mayor Dies in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 8. (AP)—Ben E. Cabell, 72, mayor of Dallas from 1900 to 1904, died this morning at the Fort Sam Houston hospital here and funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon from the home of a son, Ben E. Cabell Jr., in Dallas. The body was taken to Dallas tonight.

Cabell had lived with his son, Lieutenant C. P. Cabell of Brooks field, for three years. Surviving also is another son, Earl E. Cabell of Pine Bluff, Ark., and two brothers, Col. L. B. Cabell, U. S. A. retired, and L. R. Cabell, both of Dallas.

Cabell was born Nov. 18, 1858.

AGREEMENT ON EAST TEXAS OIL WRANGLE NEAR

Heads of Standard Companies Confer With Estes On Conservation

COMMITTEE PLANNED

Majors, Independents, Land Owners and Buyers to Be Represented

TYLER, Texas, Feb. 8. (AP)—Settlement of the bitter controversy over oil proration in the newly discovered East Texas fields, which has raged for the last month, appeared in sight today after a three-hour conference between W. S. Farish, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey; John R. Suman, vice president of the Humble, and Carl Estes, Tyler editor and leader of the forces opposing proration at the present time.

The meeting was arranged at the instance of Suman and the three oil executives arrived in Tyler from Houston Sunday morning, on a special train.

Visit Van Field

After an inspection of the Van field and their properties there, the oil officials and the Tyler editor went into conference regarding the proration controversy.

Following a lengthy discussion, the following tentative settlement was outlined:

A committee composed of 20 men, including five members representing land and royalty owners, five representing independent operators in the field, five from major companies operating there and five from oil purchasers in the new fields, would be named to draft a proration agreement.

The party, after concluding the conference, proceeded to Arp, Joinerville, Kilgore and Longview for inspection of operations in the new fields.

Texans Confer

Estes left the party at Arp and went immediately to Henderson to confer with Judge Charles L. Brachfield, president of the East Texas Lease, Royalty and Producers association, which was organized Thursday at Longview.

Judge Brachfield ratified the tentative agreement reached earlier in the day and said the personnel of five members from his association would be announced this week.

The committee named would meet in Tyler prior to March 1 in executive session, where final recommendations to the Texas Railroad commission will be drafted.

Penn Opposed

During the conference, Estes made plain his attitude that East Texas were opposed to proration as outlined by R. R. Penn, chairman of the Texas Central Proration committee but would co-operate in a program of orderly development when the confines of the new field had finally been established.

About 30 officials of the Humble and Standard companies accompanied Teagle, Farish and Suman on the tour of inspection which ended tonight at Longview.

U. S. Scouting Fleet Arrives in Panama

BALBOA, C. Z., Feb. 8. (UP)—The Panama canal and the harbor assumed a war-like aspect today with the arrival of the first detachments of the scouting fleet from the Atlantic for the gigantic maneuvers off Panama which will display the naval strength of the United States.

The first detachment from the Atlantic, arriving from Guantanamo, Cuba, steamed through the canal. The battleship Texas, flagship of Admiral Jehu V. Chase, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, headed the warships as they moved majestically through the harbor and slowly steamed into the Pacific.

They were greeted by 30 naval airplanes stationed at the canal, which flew in formation above the big grey battleships and dipped in salute over the visitors.

Oklahoma G. O. P. Leader Injured in Car Crash

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 8. (UP)—Fred C. Clarke, Oklahoma Republican chairman, today was recovering from severe cuts and bruises received near here late yesterday when his automobile overturned and burned.

Clarke was driving here from Oklahoma City when he attempted to pass one car and met another coming in the opposite direction. He swerved into the roadside ditch where his car turned over and caught fire. Clarke sustained only deep cuts and bruises. He crawled from under his machine before being burned.

Naval Building Plans Dropped by Leaders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Plans for passage this session of the administration's $74,000,000 naval construction program have been abandoned.

This decision has been reached by house leaders in the interests of economy and to obviate any possibility of a special session.

An effort will be made, however, to bring to a house vote the senate bill to authorize $30,000,000 for modernization of the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho.

Plane Leads Rescue Of 20 Men Trapped On Lake Erie's Floe

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 8. (AP)—An airplane, swinging low out of leaden skies, brought a message of life today to 19 fishermen and a 9-year-old boy who for almost 36 hours faced freezing death by exposure, hunger or drowning on a drifting ice floe in the choppy, wind-swept waters of Lake Erie.

Early tonight, the boy and four of the men had found warmth, shelter and food on shore, thanks to the heroic rescue efforts of coast guard seamen. The others, their ebbing vitality and deadened hopes revived by the knowledge that help was near, kept up their icy vigil while a small boat (a larger one could not be used) struggled through miles of thick slush ice and open water to bring more of the marooned men to shore.

Trip Takes Five Hours

Five hours were required for a single trip on which only five persons could be carried to safety and a long night of battle with cold and ice faced the rescuers before they could rest in the satisfaction of a heroic job well done.

The drifting fishermen were located by the plane, chartered by the Buffalo Courier-Express, five miles out, from shore and about 18

RESCUERS STUCK

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 8. (AP)—The coast guard boat bringing in the last three of the 20 fishermen marooned on an ice floe in Lake Erie was reported at 11 o'clock tonight to be stuck in an ice jam three miles off shore.

Lieut. Commander Martin W. Rasmussen, expressed the belief his men were in no danger but he took the precaution of despatching a crew to the scene.

holes south of Buffalo. All morning the plane had searched in vain for sight of the stranded men. Their floating island of ice was surrounded by a strip of water a mile wide.

Plane Drops Notes

Then the pitiful crew was found. The plane swept low over the ice floe, dropping notes. Pike poles in eager hands spelled frantic words on the surface of the ice. The plane turned and again swept low over the floe. From it dropped a huge can, a parachute attached to it opened and the can, filled with steaming hot coffee, settled near the men.

The plane sped back to shore and the fishermen settled down to wait through the long cold hours before all could be brought to safety.

Storm Traps Men

The rescue boat was forced to struggle through two miles of ice slush and then across a mile and

Election Order Ends Spanish Dictatorship

MADRID, Feb. 8. (AP)—After more than seven years of dictatorship constitutional guarantees were restored to Spanish subjects today by a royal proclamation which calls for parliamentary elections in March.

The guarantees and parliamentary elections were suspended by the dictatorship of the late Miguel Primo de Rivera Sept. 23, 1923. Despite the dictator's frequent promises to return Spain to a constitutional government, this was not done until today.

Escaped Desperado Rearrested in England

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 8. (AP)—John Mullins, one of two desperate prisoners who made a daring escape from Dartmoor prison Friday night, was arrested on the streets here today. A posse of officers, led by bloodhounds, was continuing the search across the moors for his companion, John Michael Gasken.

Mullins, who with the other convict slipped away from a prison line and scaled the 32-foot wall with a rope ladder, was seized here by a policeman who recognized him.

Husband Charged in Shooting of Girl-Wife

DALLAS, Feb. 8. (UP)—Mrs. Leda Tucker, 18, an expectant mother, tonight hovered near death in a hospital here while her husband was at liberty under bond of $5,000 charged with assault to murder. The girl wife was shot in the abdomen early yesterday by her husband. Both of them contended Tucker shot her when he mistook her for a "robber" while he was drunk.

NOISE FOR BILL

Murray Expects to See Repetition of Riot At Bristow

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 8. (AP)—Governor Murray would not be surprised to see repetitions of the demonstration at Bristow yesterday endorsing his policies and criticising those who oppose administration measures designed to give relief to residents in drouth stricken areas of the state.

Shortly after nearly 200 farmers gathered late yesterday and passed several resolutions expressing confidence in the governor, as well as endorsing him for the presidency of the United States, the chief executive declared he had "expected something like this would happen when the senate killed the salary tax bill." He indicated other meetings of this kind may be held.

RITES SAID FOR MRS. SMITH

Last Tributes Paid Woman Pioneer

Funeral services for Mrs. Rena Smith, 68, one of the first settlers of the Wichita valley, were held Sunday afternoon from the First Methodist church, with Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor, and Dr. C. M. Simpson, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church and former pastor of the First church, officiating. Burial was in Riverside under the direction of the Hines mortuary.

Settled in Texas 60 Years Ago

Mrs. Smith, a native of Tennessee, settled with her family almost 60 years ago in Jack county, where she married Mr. Smith 51 years ago. On a visit to Burkburnett she and Mr. Smith became impressed with the possibilities of the Wichita valley and soon moved to a tract of land on which is now situated suburban residential sections of Wichita Falls. A portion of the land was what is now Floral Heights. At the beginning of the 20th century, the home at 1700 Bluff was purchased and the family has resided there since. At that time Bluff street was situated on the outskirts of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Smith's death occurred Saturday morning. She was actively

Otto Kahn's Son Weds Night Club Singer

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Feb. 8. (AP)—John Deans, justice of the peace here, said today he had married Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of Otto Kahn, the banker, and Hannah Williams, actress, in the Kahn mansion at Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., January 26.

He said witnesses to the marriage were Mrs. Addie C. Kahn, mother of the young composer, and C. Bertram Kahn.

Mob Violence Feared In Carthage Slaying

MARSHALL, Texas, Feb. 8. (UP)—Willie Bynum, 17, was being held in jail here today as a precaution against possible mob violence at Carthage, near here, from where he was spirited away yesterday when threats were heard of lynching him for the murder of J. R. Kirby, 70, during a robbery.

RANGER NAMED

DEL RIO, Texas, Feb. 8. (UP)—Ranger Captain Light Townsend today announced appointment to the ranger force here of Alfred Allee, 30, filling one vacancy caused by the resignations of Ranger Sergeants J. T. Laughlin and R. Y. Secrest.

FIERY MARINE CHIEF ISSUED HOT REPRIMAND

Secretary Adams Dismisses Order for Military Trial Of Officer

SPEECH CONDEMNED

Butler Thought His Talk Was to Be 'Held In Confidence'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—The navy department today called off the courtmartial of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler and issued a formal reprimand instead.

This action was taken by Secretary Adams after receipt of a letter from the outspoken marine officer explaining his remarks about Premier Mussolini in a recent speech at Philadelphia.

Butler said he understood his speech was to be confidential. He added he regretted the incident "and the fact that my indiscreet remarks have caused embarrassment to the government."

He was understood to have referred to Mussolini as a hit-and-run driver in the speech. The United States apologized to Mussolini.

Speech Condemned

Replying to this letter, Secretary Adams condemned the speech but added in view of Butler's letter "expressing regret" and his "long record of brilliant service" the courtmartial would be abandoned.

Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, navy judge advocate general, said Secretary Adams' letter automatically relieved Butler of arrest. When the charges were filed, Butler was ordered to place himself under arrest at the Quantico, Va., marine barracks, of which he is commandant.

Secretary Stimson, when advised by Secretary Adams of the navy's action, said it was "satisfactory" to the state department.

Stimson told Adams the state department had considered the incident closed when Mussolini accepted his formal apology.

Trial Set Feb. 16

The courtmartial was to have opened in Philadelphia Feb. 16. The specific charges against the general had not been made public although counsel for Butler, when formally presented with the charges, described them as "severe."

The general was alleged to have referred to Mussolini as a hit-and-run driver in recounting an auto-

Thompson Scores Aides For Laziness in Campaign

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Having several times broken precedents in his present campaign for renomination, Mayor Thompson shattered another time-honored political custom today.

Whereas candidates usually try to keep their organization leaders in good humor, the mayor denounced his aids as being "lazy."

As a whole, their accomplishments in obtaining 240,000 pledge cards "is a joke," he said. Several labor unions alone have given him almost as many.

Editor and Journalist Take Quarrel to Duel

PARIS, Feb. 8. (AP)—Dueling, which was thought to have been eradicated in France since the armistice, was revived today when Horace de Carbuccia, managing editor of a weekly publication, met Henri Danjou, a journalist, with pistols on the field of honor.

Neither was injured. De Carbuccia firing in the air while Danjou's bullet missed his adversary. They were not reconciled after the duel.

Report Gives Promise Of Increased Building

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. (AP)—Promising indications of renewed activity for the building and allied industries were furnished by results last month, F. W. Dodge corporation reports in its compilation of January building contracts.

Three of the 13 Dodge territories showed gains over both January of last year and over December. Three additional territories showed gains over December and one additional district showed a gain over January, 1930.

'Time Will Tell,' Says Cannon's Accuser After Charges Are Dropped

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 8. (AP)—Dr. Costen J. Harrell, of Richmond, one of the four elders of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, who brought charges against Bishop Cannon gave out for publication a statement regarding dismissal of the charges. The statement read:

"My co-signers and myself filed charges against Bishop Cannon after very careful investigation. We did this for the cause of righteousness and for the church. We were sure at that time that we were right.

"After we heard the evidence in Washington this week, including some very astonishing admissions by Bishop Cannon, we were doubly sure that we were right. The committee did not vote with us, but time will doubtless reveal their blunder."

Doctor Harrell returned to Richmond yesterday before the hearing was completed. He said he left to attend a funeral here.

CANNON PREPARES TO RE-ENTER WORK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—Cleared of charges brought against him by four ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, Bishop James Cannon Jr. prepared today to resume his church duties as soon as his health permits.

Council Expected to Call Second Bond Election at Meet Tonight

A second election to determine if Wichita Falls shall issue $1,000,000 in bonds for the improvement of its water system probably will be called at the meeting of the city council Monday night, according to an unofficial canvass made Sunday by The Record News.

While city officials said the matter had not been discussed by members of the council, it was expected that the election would be called for the earliest possible date. Such a call would be made in accordance with the ruling of Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Saturday which held the election of Jan. 20 invalid, and instructed the city council to resubmit the issue to the voters.

A number of supporters of the bond issue told The Record News they would prefer a second election, rather than any possible appeal from Judge Martin's decision. A prolonged court fight would keep the issuance of the bonds in doubt for weeks, it was pointed out, whereas a second election can be held within a comparatively short time. Such an election, bond supporters pointed out, would be more satisfactory to both proponents and opponents of the issue.

Friends of the issue expressed the belief that a second election will result in an even larger majority for the water improvements. Only 250 ballots out of more than 3,000 were questioned in the court contest, it was pointed out. The city council has pledged that there will be no increase in the tax rate if the bonds are voted.

WOMAN SEES MAN'S DECLINE

He's to Blame for Everything, Says Speaker

in this transformation. As proof, Dr. Pruette cited the "he-man" of the open spaces of yesterday and compared him with the moderately meek male of the present time.

Strength, shooting ability, thirst, roughness, noisiness; absolute control of the family's money, smoking, drinking and swearing; and the doing of outside work, were considered by the speaker to be the qualifications by which a "he-man" was formerly determined. A man's strength is hampered by modern civilization, with its confinement to apartment houses and cities, Dr. Pruette explained, and his abilities as a male are now being infringed upon by women, who have, she cited, won shooting contests in which men engaged, and having taken the accomplishments of smoking, drinking and swearing as their own.

The proof that man is being feminized is born in the statistics of cosmeticians, who state that every year man is more and more becoming a user of cosmetics, it was shown by the speaker, and woman's ascension to the realms formerly occupied by man alone is demonstrated by the complete invasion of the barber shops by women and their present seige upon railway smoking cars. No longer, it was asserted, does the man have a monopoly of the rights until recently attributed solely to the male. Women are now being relieved of household drudgery and have taken the reins of family finance and are more and more gaining control of business, Dr. Pruette said, giving figures that 41 per cent of the nation's wealth is controlled by women.

Men More Generous

Men are becoming more generous, it was pointed out, although women haven't completely escaped from their age-old feeling of being poor, and as yet have not become fully accustomed to their new found wealth.

Psychologists, Dr. Pruette said, have recognized three basic emotions, anger, fear and love. Each, it was explained, have definite feminine or masculine characteristics, anger being primarily masculine, love instinctively feminine. Until recently, Dr. Pruette declared, fear was almost entirely recognized as feminine, but now contains both characteristics. With this explanation of emotions, the speaker intimated the fusing of masculine and feminine traits in civilization's progress, until the time arrives when one's individuality will be the sole differentation of persons, regardless of sex.

Dr. Pruette's discourse upon her subject appeared to be strictly an attack upon the male until the discussion period arrived and she was subjected to questions, her answers to which giving a more comprehensive meaning to her foregoing lecture. In answer to a question from the floor, the speaker explained that the male's decline was in reality the retrogression of his masculinity, which, in truth, she said, was his ascension to feminity and a more enlightened existence. Describing when a boy and girl of school age were shy, especially the boy, who considered it a disgrace to be seen with the girl, the speaker forecast a time when boys and girls play together, go to school together and finally working together, possibly marrying and having a home entirely different from that of the old order, which, Dr. Pruette said, is showing signs of decay.

"We can look forward to a future," she said, "when we understand each other and pay no attention to sex differences."

Mrs. W. W. Silk introduced the speaker. Satisfaction of an excellent attendance in spite of bad weather was expressed by Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, Open Forum director.

The lecture Sunday is to be the last for more than a month, until March 22, when Jose Kelly, commissioner to the United States from Mexico of commerce, industry and labor, appears to speak on the subject, "The United States and Mexico: Team Work for Good."

inches, Hal Powell, superintendent at the irrigation headquarters, said the lake was still rising.

The gauge at Lake Kemp was stationary at 1137.2 Sunday afternoon, with a rise anticipated Monday. The area about the lake received an inch rain. Conditions there were reported normal.

Officials of the Fort Worth and Denver road said rains similar to the one here fell all the way from Childress to Dallas, and the Katy reported like precipitations as far north as Elk City, Okla. The amount of the Oklahoma rains tapered off to the north and no downfall was registered beyond Elk City.

Roads everywhere were muddy and slick, but D. M. Puckett, state highway engineer, said all were passable Sunday night. Meanwhile farmers rejoiced at the general downpour as greatly beneficial to grain fields and ranges.

RAINS GENERAL OVER OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 8. (AP)—Virtually every section of Oklahoma received relief from a winter drouth by soaking rains which began last night and continued in a steady drizzle today.

Monday's forecast predicted cloudy and unsettled weather generally throughout the state.

More than an inch of rainfall was reported over the week-end in various sections of the state from Blackwell on the north, Ardmore on the south, Enid on the northwest, and such eastern points as Okmulgee, Miami, Tulsa, Muskogee and Bartlesville.

Seymour Prisoner to Be Tried in Wichita Court

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Feb. 8.—Crede Vanover, alias James Williams, pleaded guilty to forgery charges in district court here Friday, and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Vanover, a partner of Thomas Ribble recently sentenced on the same charge, was taken to Wichita Falls about 2 o'clock by Pat Allen, a Wichita officer. He will be tried there on a similar charge.

Nathan Lynch Stores, Inc., Sold to Stovall Sales Co. for $29,036

The Stovall Bankrupt Sales company purchased the Nathan Lynch stores from the U. S. bankruptcy court Saturday, it was announced Sunday.

The stock was sold to the highest bidder by the trustee, H. C. McGregor, and the more than $100,000 in assets brought $29,036 in the sale. The stock, declared all of standard merchandise, brought less than 30 cents on the dollar at the sale.

According to announcement from the Stovall company, one of the largest sales operators in the nation, the Lynch stock will be closed out within a few days. Sales will be announced in the newspapers, it was said.

The Stovall company was represented in the purchase by R. W. Stovall.

VERNON DRIVE STARTS TODAY

Chamber Commerce Seeks New Members

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 8.—The annual membership drive of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce will start Monday when 17 committees composed of 74 business men make a canvass of the city. C. Fred Russell, chairman of the membership drive, has assigned each committee a certain part of the business district to work.

The goal set for 1931 is $10,000. The budget has been arranged to take care of all the work contemplated by the organization during the year.

Airplane Leads Rescue on Lake

a half of open, choppy water to the floe on which the men waited for deliverance. Then the long struggle back to shore.

All over the eastern end of Lake Erie, fishermen were plying their trade this morning when the plane began its search. One group after another was scanned by the men in the plane but in each case a circle around the section of ice on which they were fishing showed that they could reach land without difficulty.

Finally the marooned men were found, cut off from the solid ice by water still tossing fiercely after the all-day blizzard which swept the lake yesterday. A frantic waving of arms assured the fliers these were the men they sought. Men rushed to collect bits of wood.

Circling above them the fliers read the thought which was uppermost in the minds of these men who had lived through 36 hours of horror. Just one word: "Eat."

Then another word-picture forced upon the ice: "Help."

And finally: "Charcoal."

In those three words, the fliers read a serial story of the hours of anxious waiting. Hunger first, as yesterday wore on and meal times passed without food. Darkness settled and the second chapter was written into their minds with the recurring thought: "Will we be found?" Then, as the bitter cold of early morning seeped through the sweaters and clothing of the fishermen, came the chapter which might well have been the last of the story—a tale of slow freezing to death—had it not been for the blue clad men of the United States coast guard and a miracle of modern science which enables men to lift themselves above the barriers of ice and earth.

Burglars Loot Electra Store

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Feb. 8.—Burglars looted the cash register of the Goldsmith Drug store of $15 and escaped with merchandise valued at $25 here early Sunday morning.

The prowlers gained admission by cutting a hole in the back door and lifting a latch. They took inexpensive watches, cigars and cigarets, razor blades, and fountain pens as well as the money.

O. A. Roberson, finger print expert at Wichita Falls and Pat Allen, deputy sheriff, worked with Police Chief James T. Taylor in investigating the case Sunday. Several suspects were questioned but no charges were filed.

State Deaths

MRS. ELLA SPICER

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Ella Spicer, 75, one of Stephens county's oldest pioneers of Wayland, was buried at the Wayland cemetery Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, following her death Thursday night at 10 o'clock.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Everett O'Down, pastor of the Church of Christ here. Many attended the funeral for the aged settler of this county, including many men and women who had known the Spicers ever since they settled at Wayland 45 years ago.

Mrs. Spicer is survived by her husband, merchant at Wayland, and two sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Spicer moved to Texas in 1885, settling at Wayland. They at first settled on a farm but later Mr. Spicer went into the general merchandise business at Wayland. He has operated a store there for almost 35 years. For many years, Mr. Spicer was postmaster at Wayland, assisted by his wife.

E. GRANT WOOLDRIDGE

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Feb. 8.—Funeral services for E. Grant Wooldridge, 60, prominent land owner of Vinson, were held Thursday afternoon at the Vinson Methodist church.

Mr. Wooldridge died in the fire Tuesday night when he joined many others in a heroic effort to prevent the blaze from wiping out the entire town.

Mr. Wooldridge, accompanied by Mrs. Wooldridge, had returned only Monday night from Dallas where they had attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. B. L. Patton.

One of the most highly respected farmers in this section, Mr. Wooldridge was a native of Missouri but had spent most of his life near Vinson.

Survivors are his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Clark Chambers of Vinson, Mrs. William Stanton of Carlsbad, N. M., and Alma Wooldridge; a brother, J. C. Wooldridge, and two sisters, Mrs. G. F. McSpadden and Mrs. Alex Mathis.

POOR PAY

Burglars Get 17 Cents In Raids on Two Stores

Truth in the saying that "crime doesn't pay" was forcibly brought home to burglars who entered two grocery stores here Saturday night and left with proceeds of 17 cents.

Intruders who entered the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at 604 Jefferson street found no cash and officials were unable to find any stock missing. Entrance was gained through a skylight. From the cash register at the Sunshine grocery, 1610 Elizabeth street, 17 pennies constituted the only loss, according to police.

GRAHAM MAIL RECEIPTS GAIN

January Statement Shows $2,447 Total

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Feb. 8.—According to a statement given out by Postmaster J. R. Ramsey of Graham the postal receipts show a gain of 11 per cent for January. The gross receipts for the past month were $2,447.08, while the total receipts for January, 1930, were $2,200.83.

Cannon Prepares To Resume Work

charges filed against him by the four ministers did not have sufficient weight to justify a trial before the 1934 general conference of the church.

It was the second time within a year that Bishop Cannon has emerged triumphant from accusations emanating within his own church. The first time was at the general conference last year in Dallas when he was accused of gambling in stocks.

Bishop Cannon has been ill for weeks with arthritis and has been undergoing treatment at Sibley hospital and at Marlin, Texas, sanitarium. As soon as he improves sufficiently he plans to take up his duties as head of the Methodist board of temperance and social service and as missionary bishop to Africa and Brazil.

The decision last night was reached after a five-day investigation behind the locked and guarded doors of the Mount Vernon Place church.

For three days the four ministers who brought the charges presented their case. For two days Bishop Cannon defended himself.

After the hearings ended late last night Bishop Cannon called the Associated Press and said he "had no statement to make now on any subject." Members of the committee and the four men who had brought the charges also refused any statement.

Seldom has the national capital seen such elaborate plans for secrecy as were made to keep the proceedings from the public.

Bishop Ainsworth came out into the rain to give the decision to reporters rather than allow them to enter the church, although by that time everyone had left except policemen and a negro janitor.

Stamford Club Names New Leaders for Year

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Feb. 8.—The annual election of officers for the Business and Professional Women's club was held following a three-course dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Griffin High.

Dr. Beulah Gould was elected to serve as president for the ensuing year; Miss Jane Brown as first vice president; Miss Maude Cooze, secretary treasurer, and Mrs. High, reporter. Previous presidents since the club was organized are Miss Maude Cooze and Mrs. R. L. Haynie.

Special Music Given At Episcopal Services

Special music was provided the service at the Church of the Good Shepherd Sunday afternoon, with several numbers being offered by individuals and the choir.

Features consisted of "Come Ye Blessed," a local solo by Mrs. Victor Lowrey; "Adoration," a violin solo by Sam Wallace Jones; and an anthem by the choir.

NAVY CANCELS BUTLER TRIAL

Marine General Receives Sharp Reprimand

mobile ride a friend was supposed to have taken with the premier.

Premier Mussolini, through the Italian embassy in Washington, immediately filed a protest with the state department. The premier was reported as having been highly incensed. General Butler was called on for an explanation. He wrote a letter to Secretary Adams, and the formal apology by this government followed.

Butler secluded himself from newspaper men at Quantico and also declined to answer the telephone. His counsel, Major Henry Leonard, refused to discuss the navy department action, explaining he was "tied down with a gentlemen's agreement."

Questioned concerning reports that President Hoover was responsible for calling off the court martial, Leonard told newspaper men: "You can speculate as much as you want to about that."

However, Walter Newton, one of the president's secretaries, said so far as he knew the president had nothing whatever to do with the action.

Butler's letter to Secretary Adams read as follows:

"1—In connection with the decision of the department to try me by general court martial it is requested that consideration be given to the matters hereinafter set forth.

"2—I was told by the president of the Contemporary club before which I spoke on Jan. 19, 1931, that I could speak my inside mind freely and from his remarks, taken in their entirety, I understood that the club was composed of responsible members of the community interested in public questions and that my statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls.

"3—This information is submitted on the assumption that it was not in the department's possession when it was decided to bring me to trial.

"4—I very greatly regret this incident and the fact that my indiscreet remarks have caused embarrassment to the government."

Reprimand Issued

In a letter signed and dispatched to General Butler today by Secretary Adams, it was said the navy department could not "express too clearly its disapproval of the conduct of any officer of the naval establishment in making remarks which tend to embarrass the international relations of the government."

"Such action on the part of an officer of your rank and length of service," Adams wrote, "merits and received the unqualified condemnation of the navy department, and for their utterance, which you admit, you are hereby reprimanded."

The navy secretary said, however, that in view of the "letter expressing regret," and "your long record of brilliant service" the general courtmartial would be abandoned.

He added he expected "this incident will have a salutary effect on your future conduct in matters of this character."

20 Per Cent of World's Wheat Grown in Russia

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (US)—Further evidence of the determination of Soviet Russia to dominate the world wheat trade was disclosed here today when the department of agriculture revealed its latest information on Russian wheat plans. An official statement of the department said:

"The Russian grain acreage for the year 1931 is placed at 277,000,000 acres, which is said to be an increase of 10 per cent.

Russia's 1930 wheat yield, according to unofficials estimates reaching Chairman Legge of the federal farm board was around 1,150,000,000 bushels.

These figures would indicate a 1930 total board production of around five and a quarter billion bushels, with Russia producing slightly more than 20 per cent of this total.

Count Prorok Sued For Divorce Again

NICE, France, Feb. 8. (US)—Divorce proceedings have been instituted by the second Countess Byron Kuhn De Prorok, wife of the explorer-archeologist, Universal Service learned today.

The count's first marriage to the former Alice Kenny, daughter of William E. Kenny, the New York millionaire contractor, terminated in a divorce after De Prorak admitted he bore his title by courtesy and the authenticity of some of his much-heralded archeological discoveries had been questioned.

HOME BURGLARIZED

Ransacking the entire house, burglars entered the home of H. H. Ball, Daily Times employe, Sunday night and escaped with jewelry and a small amount of money. The thieves entered the back door and scattered clothes, furniture, and contents of drawers all over the house. No arrests had been made late Sunday night.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

An automobile belonging to A. W. Bedoe and stolen from in front of 2115 Yale avenue late Sunday morning was recovered Sunday afternoon by Earle Brooks and Herbert Pogue, city motorcycle officers. The machine had been abandoned near the fire station at Holliday and Seventeenth after it had been driven into the curb and a wheel broken.

Prominent Chicagoan Slays Wife And Himself After Assuaging Kin

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. (AP)—Charles F. Shipman, 60, prominent Chicago business man, shot and killed his wife, Mercedes, 58, and ended his own life here today after cunningly allaying the fears of friends and relatives.

Even as Shipman fired the shots that ended two lives, Charles Meyerholz, Mrs. Shipman's brother, who came here from Pennsylvania, to prevent just such a tragedy, was asleep in an adjoining room.

His brothers, Fred and Frank Meyerholz, had just returned to their homes in Wapello, Iowa, after joining him in what all regarded as a successful effort to banish the idea of suicide from Shipman's mind.

Shipman evidently had planned the tragedy for some time. His wealth, friends said, was virtually swept away in unsuccessful wheat operations at the board of trade, of which he was a member.

Last Friday, Meyerholz, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, received a telegram from Shipman, which read:

"Come at once. Minnie is dead and I will be before you arrive."

Meyerholz at once phoned his brothers and told them to meet him in Chicago. Meanwhile, detectives were sent to interrogate Shipman who said the wire was a hoax designed to bring his brother in law here to discuss financial matters. He told police Meyerholz owed him a considerable sum of money.

When the brothers met, they joined in pleading with Shipman to act sanely and, Meyerholz told police, he agreed to advance Shipman $1,500 with which to attend to his immediate financial needs while he was attempting a comeback in business.

Shipman was highly amenable, Meyerholz said, and readily agreed to attempt a new start. Two of the brothers returned to their homes and the third retired early, confident the crisis was past.

Being partly deaf, Meyerholz did not hear the shots during the night but awoke early and saw a light in the Shipmans' room. He knocked and received no answer. Then, with the aid of Miss Irene Woods, a roomer at the house, he broke down the door and discovered the tragedy.

Haskell Votes Called in Mass Meeting to Oppose New Courthouse

Special to The Record News.

RULE, Texas, Feb. 8.—A mass meeting of Haskell county voters has been called at Haskell for Tuesday for the purpose of voicing objections to the proposed expenditure of $100,000 on the county courthouse. Circulars are being distributed throughout the county urging the citizens to attend the meeting.

Opponents of the expenditure contend the work should not be done at the present time because of general business conditions and a lack of county funds. A petition has been presented to the commissioners court asking for a hearing on the project.

Lubricator Firm To Operate From Motor Factory

Operations of the Eclipse Lubricator company will be resumed Monday at the plant of the Wichita Falls Motor company, officials of the lubricator concern announced Sunday, following the fire Friday afternoon at Call Field which destroyed the concern's main building and $50,000 in machinery and stock.

The truck plant's machinery is to be used until rebuilding of structures of the Eclipse Lubricator company can be completed, it was said.

Search Opens for Father Of Boy Who Died Here

A search to find Sam Tyra, father of B. B. Tyra, 18, of Dumas, Texas, who died Friday at a hospital here, is being made by the dead man's brother, E. O. Tyra, also of Dumas and by the Albert's Funeral home.

When last heard from the father was residing in Sayre, Okla. Attempts to locate him have been futile, and anyone knowing where he now resides is requested to communicate with him or the Albert's Funeral home here, as funeral arrangements for his son are being delayed until the father is located.

The son was passing through Wichita Falls when the illness that resulted in his death developed.

Dirigible Plays Over Waters Awaiting Fleet

U. S. S. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8. (AP)—The naval dirigible Los Angeles unhitched from its mast-ship, the Patoka, at 8:10 o'clock this morning for a cruise over Panama waters while awaiting the annual United States naval maneuvers to begin Feb. 15.

Before the ship left it refueled and reprovisioned, taking aboard 20,000 cubic feet of helium gas, 200 pounds of ice, 50 loaves of bread, a loin of beef and other edibles from the mast-ship.

DEATHS

Prominent speakers from over the state are on the program. E. B. Harris, editor of The Rule Review, is president of the Four-Counties association.

Torture Claims Bring Demotion of Police Chief

TULSA, Feb. 8. (UP)—An investigation into charges of a 19-year-old boy that he had been tortured by third degree methods today had brought an executive order stripping Tulsa Police Chief Garland Marrs of his powers and regulations.

The action was taken last night by Police Commissioner Thomas Munroe. The youth, Willie Elms, whose brother is under arrest at St. Paul, Minn., for the murder of Detective James Woollery here recently, said Marrs and Lieutenant Robert Kennedy burned his feet with matches in attempting to make him tell the whereabouts of his brother.

Marrs and Kennedy denied the charge. Charges against Elms have been dropped.

BAYLOR ROAD CONTRACT DUE

Miller Creek Gap to Be Closed

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Feb. 8.—The Seymour Chamber of Commerce announces that contract for surfacing a short strip of highway No. 23 at the Miller creek bridge, will be let at the next meeting of the highway commission at Austin on Feb. 27.

This 2,900-foot strip of highway was destroyed in the flood which swept Miller creek in June, 1930.

With the completion of this work, Baylor county's splendid system of concrete and all weather roads will be completed with the exception of a strip on highway No. 24. This will be finished some time in the spring.

This construction program has cost approximately $1,500,000, giving Baylor county a total of 90 miles of hard surfaced roads.

Railroad Watchman Succumbs in Hospital

A. C. Reynolds, aged night watchman for the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad here, died at a hospital here late Sunday night. Death was caused by a heart attack, although it is understood that Mr. Reynolds had been in failing health for some time. Funeral arrangements are to be in charge of the Merkle Undertaking company and probably will be made Monday. Two brothers from out of the state were in Wichita Falls at the time of death. It is unknown whether other relatives survive.

Portuguese Rush Soldiers Into Rioting Sectors

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 8. (AP)—The Portuguese government today sped soldiers, sailors and police into Madeira, where Friday grave rioting followed announcement of the government's intention to import 2,000 tons of foreign wheat without duty and raise the price of bread.

Inhabitants of Funchal declared a strike Friday when they learned the price of bread would go up and in resultant clashes several strikers and policemen were injured.

Shade Trees Distributed In Chillicothe Homes

Special to The Record News.

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Feb. 8.—J. C. Stephens, argonomist, of the Chillicothe experiment station, stated between 1,500 and 2,000 Chinese elm trees are being distributed to families in this community this week, giving two of the shade trees to each family. A charge of 25 cents will be made for each tree more than two free ones given, Mr. Stephens said.

Memphis City Taxes Split

Petition Asks Lowering of Gas Rates

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 8.—At a meeting held by the city council of Memphis it was voted to extend the time of payment of city taxes without interest or penalty until April 1.

A petition signed by 400 gas consumers of the city was presented to the council, requesting that the city take legal steps to secure cheaper gas rates. The present rate is 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, less 10 per cent if paid by the 10th of each month.

After discussing the petition at length, no action was taken on the matter. The petition was accepted by the council and turned over to a committee for investigation.

A reduction of 25 per cent was made in all salaries of city employees. All the employes were present at the meeting and accepted the action of the council.

Wesley J. Mangum, who is now serving in the capacity of city buildinging inspector, was named as tax assessor for Memphis.

HOW MANY COLDS MAKE AN EPIDEMIC?

THIS is dangerous weather. Raw, chill dampness breeds sickness. Don't neglect your children's colds!

Keep them warm and dry—make them drink lots of water—and at the first sign of a cold use MENTHOLATUM.

Rub it on their chests. Cover it with flannel. For though Mentholatum does not stain, the extra warmth speeds up its action.

Then put just a bit of Mentholatum in each nostril to clear their heads quickly. It breaks up congestion . . . soothes sore nose and throat surfaces.

Stop at the nearest drug store—and buy Mentholatum now. 30c in tube or jar—a reliable cold remedy for over 36 years. (60c for large-sized jar.)

First District Leads In T.F.W.C. Board Reports

First district, T. F. W. C., had more than one outstanding accomplishment to report when members of the executive board met in Austin last week and set dates of the district meetings. Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, president of first district, which will meet in Graham April 21, 22, and 23, showed in her report that first district was the only district in the state reporting the dues of all clubs paid in full. Credit for this was given Mrs. St. Andrew Myers of Henrietta, secretary, who has been untiring in her work.

The first district reported more money paid on subscriptions to the permanent home in Austin than any other of the seven districts. The first district is the only district in the state that has supplied official stationery to department chairmen and the only district reporting a board meeting already held. The first district is third in number of founders, the total of the district being 43.

In closing her report, Mrs. Oneal extended an invitation to state officers and chairmen to attend the district convention in Graham, saying that a point of interest would be the magnificent auditorium in that town which was significant because of the $8,000 breakfast held there when one plate of bacon and eggs sold for $4,000 and 40 others at $100 each. Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie, state director for Texas and member of first district, hastened to add that breakfast during the district convention however would not be at such a price.

There were 75 members present in an all-day conference at the Driskill hotel with Mrs. R. E. Lindsey, state president, presiding.

Routine business occupied the greater part of the day with the reports of Dr. Annie Webb Blanton, of the University of Texas, chairman of the department of education and Mrs. Lee Joseph of Austin of the department of international relations outstanding in interest. Five recommendations made by Dr. Blanton were adopted as the educational policy of the federation during the coming year. They follow:

1. A change in the law whereby the county superintendent shall be appointed by the county board of school trustees, instead of being selected by popular election as at present.

2. Changes in the laws to strengthen the powers of the county board of education, authorizing that body to exercise fuller control over all school districts of fewer than 500 scholastics, such districts being those which are by state law designated as rural; to employ for rural schools such a number of trained supervisors as the needs of the schools and their financial resources will justify; to purchase all school supplies for schools under their control; to exercise authority in organizing and carrying on through their specially trained employes, supervision planned to improve Texas rural schools according to modern standards.

3. That the Texas Federation of Women's clubs favors the repeal of all of the present laws as to the certification of teachers and the vesting in the state board of education authority to make rules as to the issuance of teachers' certificates; that it recommends that the state board of education raise the requirements of teachers for rural schools, and that after due notice and time to meet such requirements; it provides that teachers, principals, supervisors, and superintendents of country schools, and county superintendents shall have special training for work in rural schools.

4. That since a majority of the states of the union have now established retirement funds for teachers, and since justice to both teacher and child, and economy in administering the public schools, demand the establishment of such a fund for Texas, therefore the Texas Federation of Women's clubs endorses the submission to the people of Texas, of an amendment to the state constitution which will authorize the state to participate in the establishment of a state-wide teachers' retirement fund for Texas.

5. That since the policy of extreme itemization in appropriations for state colleges results in lack of economy and in injustice, the policy of lump-sum appropriations for state colleges is favored.

Plea for World Peace

Mrs. Joseph spoke of experiences at a meeting in Chicago last week at which the world court and the league of nations with their allied problems were the paramount issue and made an impressive plea that the federation bend all its efforts toward this avenue leading to lasting peace.

Dr. H. T. Manuel of the University of Texas spoke just before the board recessed for dinner, stressing the need of more educational advantages for under-privileged and foreign born children.

Board members present at the meeting included:

Mesdames R. F. Lindsey, Mount Pleasant; John Perry, Sweetwater; L. B. Randall, San Antonio; Henry Redmond, Corpus Christi; W. L. Whitsel, Canadian; L. C. Brite, Marfa; Julian Oppenheimer, Fort Worth; Bob Barker, Fort Worth; William Bacon, Dallas; Fred B. Minor, Denton; Earle Cogdell, Grandbury; J. F. Welder, Victoria; Sam J. Smith, Austin; W. R. Thompson, Fort Worth; C. S. Hutchins, Greenville.

J. L. Young, Mineral Wells; W. B. Price, Lubbock; J. C. Nagle, Waco; W. H. Wentland, Manor; Frank Friend, San Angelo; W. W. Saulsbury, Temple; E. E. Larkin, Galveston; Alex Adams, San Antonio; A. K. Newby, Houston; Lee Joseph, Austin; Lee J. Rountree, Bryan; J. E. King, San Antonio; J. L. Brock, Bryan; J. K. Beretas, San Antonio; A. H. Conn, Corpus Christi; F. T. Collins, Amarillo.

W. H. Moore, Fort Worth; Frank B. Slater, Dallas; S. J. Robinson, Dallas; Misses Marion Mullins, Fort Worth; Annie Webb Blanton, Austin; Ollie Coon, Greenville; Ollie Bird, Denison; Mesdames W. R. Potter, Bowie; G. R. Scott, Corpus Christi; Ben G. Oneal, Wichita Falls; F. B. Slater, Dallas; W. R. Price, Lubbock.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

An Iliad of the 20th century has been created in Cimarron. Art in the cinema reached its height when an audience forgot the personality of actors and actresses on the screen in the humanity they created. It is not Richard Dix and other players but Yancey Cravat and history that have high moments.

Yancey Cravat, as brave, beautiful, full of ideals and as impractical a galiant idealist as any on history's page, took his young wife Sabra from a background of "family" in Wichita, Kan., with his small son and his printing press to the new town Osage in the new Oklahoma, where he intended to guide the destinies of a town that grew from nothing to 10,000 in six weeks.

Yancey loved Sabra; he worshiped an ideal of woman; he lived in adventure. His was that gallant soul that must forever be climbing the mountain tops—rescuing the perishing, carrying the flag at the battle front. But he believed that his greatest ambition was to make his young wife happy.

In Osage Yancey faced outlawry like a hero. He had friends who had known his many braveries. He built the house to establish his newspaper, threatened to print on the front page the name of the man who had shot the former editor in the back, nicked the ear of that man who shot a hole through his white sombrero and remonstrated with Sabra for flying like a mother hen in his defense because his simple vanity could not bear the thought of anyone believing he hid behind a woman's skirts.

It was not Richard Dix—it was Yancey Cravat who held the first service in the saloon and gambling hall of Osage and took the collection for the organ for which the church would be built. It was Yancey Cravat who cut another notch in his gun.

When flowers grew in the yard; when there was wall paper on the wall and a lambrequin on the mantel and the newspaper, with the stuttering printer's aid was a successful project, then even Sabra and a new daughter were not enough to hold the modern Ulysses home. The song of the wanderer rang in his ears and he went with his comrades for new adventure.

Osage thrived. History turned many pages. From the clapboard town that might have been Borger or Eldorado, a city grew. Sabra carried on. Adventure for her lay in founding home and the little successes of club and civic life. She was a born Penelope. Yancey was always swept with the tides of new empires. Sabra laid foundations.

When Yancey Cravat came back as brave and buoyant as ever in his rough rider's uniform, he made Sabra feel herself a little minded woman. The women of Osage were planning to drive Dixie Lee, the impossibility dainty and plaintively pretty exponent of that oldest profession on earth from the town. Sabra's editorial was written and she went with her friends to the courtroom.

Yancey, always on the side of the under dog, took Dixie's case, won it with shafts of ridicule and bits of sympathy and once more resumed his place as husband and editor to fight the battle of the Indians.

In the years that passed so swiftly and easily before an enthralled audience, the story of oil discovery was told in journalistic fashion. Ambition became ashes in Saba's mouth when she could not have her way with son, daughter or father. Donna, the daughter, rebelled because, among all their friends, they alone remained poor. Cym, the son—a sad proof of the statement that great men rarely ever rear great sons, married the daughter of an Indian made rich with oil.

Yancey refused to exploit the Indians for political preferment, turned down the chance to be governor, stood for his son in the Indian marriage—then disappeared once more.

In the final sequence, he was still the eternal hero. By that time, Oklahoma had become a thriving modern state; personal success had come to Sabra and her children had grown to realize her real worth. But with the serenity of soul and breadth of vision that years brought, the memory of Yancey was yet her sweetest treasure. His words in the closing scene are the key to the man. "Wife and mother," he whispered; "stainless woman".

Dorothy Dix Tells Why Women Are Judged by Clothes

There is nothing that men are so fond of satirizing as the way women dress. They never weary of gibing at feminine apparel and making wisecracks about skirts going up or down, and the unstable waistline which is sometimes under the arms and sometimes around the knees, but seldom where nature intended it to be.

To them women's clothes are just another vagary of an irrational and inexplicable sex, and an additional proof that the feminine brain is cut on the bias and frilled in the middle and tucked around the edges.

Apparently it never occurs to men to attempt to interpret women in terms of dress, yet a woman's clothes are her instinctive effort at self-expression. Her politics she gets from her father. Her religion from her mother. Her point of view from her teachers and her clubs and movies and what she reads, but her clothes are her own. They represent her individual taste and aspirations and sophistication and judgment.

They give you a line on her as nothing else could. Indeed, it is not too much to say that from a woman's hat you can construct her whole personality as Cuvier was able to reconstruct a whole animal from a single bone. That is why when strange women meet they always cast a lightning glance at the way the other is dressed.

So when Mrs. A says to Mrs. B., apropos of Mrs. C., who has just moved into their neighborhood: "I don't think we need call. I met her in the butcher shop at 9 o'clock in the morning in a beaded georgette frock." Or when Mrs. D. asks Mrs. E.: "Have you met that perfectly lovely Mrs. F.? She wears the simplest and the smartest things you ever saw and I think we had better ask her to join our bridge club," it isn't so foolish as it sounds.

It merely means that they have weighed the two strange women in the balance against their clothes and have decided that the inappropriately dressed woman was crude and ignorant and without social experience, whereas the woman who knew exactly how to dress had poise and tact and intelligence, and was a woman of the world, and would be pleasant to know socially. And nine times out of 10 this verdict is absolutely just.

Certainly any young man who is contemplating matrimony does well to note and ponder well the way the girl he fancies dresses, for in no other way can he get such a tip about the sort of wife she will make. It will tell him a thousand things about her character and disposition about her habits, about her inclinations and ideals that he will need to know, and that may save him from paying alimony later on.

When a poor girl, for instance, dresses far in excess of her means and goes about looking like the Queen of Sheba, even a blind man should be able to see that she is selfish and greedy and extravagant and one of the clothes-mad women who are willing to buy a Paris frock with the heart's blood of her father or husband. It shouldn't take any prophet to tell a poor man that the overdressed poor girl is a luxury that only a millionaire can afford, and that if he marries her he will spend the balance of his life slaving to pay her bills.

On the other hand the girl who is always just a step or two behind the latest fashions, who knows just what to wear that suits her best, that she is a bargain hound and that she is a bargain round and clever with her needle, is a splendid matrimonial bet. She will make the kind of wife who will know when to spend and when to save, and how to make one dollar do the work of five. She will make the sort of wife of whom a man will never be ashamed, and she will help him to rise in the world because she knows how to make the best out of a little.

The girl who is always inappropriately dressed, who comes to work looking as if she was diked out for an afternoon party, lacks judgment and a sense of fitness. She will make the kind of wife who fritters money away on foolishness, and who never has anything to show for what she spends. She belongs to the type of wives who can never resist anything that is marked down from $2 to $1.98, whether they want it or have any need for it or not, and who buy party dresses when they haven't a decent street dress to their names.

The girl who never looks quite tidy, whose hair always seems to need a shampoo and whose hands a manicure and whose dress would be the better for being cleaned and pressed, is lazy and sloppy. She will make a slovenly housekeeper, who never sweeps under the bed, or scrubs the bathroom, and who opens up a few cans for dinner when she hears her husband's key in the lock. A girl who hasn't enough energy to sew on her own buttons and darn her own stockings will certainly let her husband and her children hold themselves together with safety pins.

Taking it by and large, you will find that almost invariably the fluffy-ruffles girl is frivolous and shallow; the severe-looking girl who always wears tailor-made things that are as mannish as she can get them is severe in her ideas and lacking in charm and adaptability; the girl who wears colors that swear at each other has no tact or intuition and will always be a bull in the china shop, and the girl who looks as if her worst enemy had bought her hats for her is so vain she thinks she is beautiful in anything, while the girl who wears whatever is the fashion, regardless of her figure or color, is nothing but a sheep.

So, boys, in picking out your wives watch your sweetie's clothes. There is a lot in 'em.

Patriotic Program Heard By Major Francis Grice D.A.R.

Election of officers to the continental congress in Washington and an interesting program led by Mrs. Guy Rogers on "Americanization," were two special features of the monthly meeting of Major Francis Grice chapter, D. A. R., at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Saturday. Mrs. Ben Bell was elected alternate for the regent and Mrs. J. L. Jackson was elected delegate with 10 alternates, including Mesdames Guy Rogers, Luke McCrory, Fred T. Couper, John Waggoner, Jasper Ferguson, Alice Burnsides Barkley, C. Joline, E. T. Duff, Lula Bristol and J. E. Hall.

Naming the subject of "Americanization" as particularly apropos at this time, Mrs. Rogers introduced Mrs. Claude Woods who gave a sketch of the distinctive American, Oliver la Farge and a brilliant and feeling review of his "Laughing Boy." This almost perfect specimen of a romantic idyll told the life and ideals of the young American Indian and touched on the tragedy of the American ideal when it is abused.

Mrs. Rogers, in the sympathetic talk with which she treated her subject, told in detail of the Angel island door for immigrants, saying that America had two front doors, the other being Ellis island. Though Angel island belongs to the war department, the immigration commission has a lease on several acres there where the administration building is flanked on the right by the woman's building, on the left by the men's and in the back by quarters for engineers and employes.

The conveniences established for immigrants in each department were described and it was explained that beside the regular dining room there was another called the oil cloth dining room. There men eat first and women and children come afterward so that children may be fed without haste. Two meals a day and a light lunch are given immigrants with Orientals receiving the food of their countries and Europeans the diet used in theirs.

Beside the people imported, the authorities deport thousands, the speaker stated, naming those who come in illegally, the Japanese who forfeit the bond under which they enter, alien sailors who desert their ships, public charges, alien criminals and the immoral and those who apply for admission and cannot pass the examinations.

For 17 years, the Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church has had workers at Angel island who teach American customs, see that girls are safely installed at work and if necessary, even officiate at births. In 1920 D. A. R. activities began and the helpers have worked together furnishing clothing, books and seeing that the D. A. R. manual is translated into different languages. Playground equipment has been installed, Christmas parties given and the idea of service impressed. Helpers try to do the right thing in the best way, regardless of who gets the benefit.

In closing her talk, Mrs. Rogers read a sketch written by Conrad Bercovici and the day when he took his final oath of allegiance—a tremendous indictment against the lack of patriotism shown in this particular office.

Valentine Luncheon

The tables where Mrs. de Montel, the regent presided were beautiful with long ribbons of red over white and sprays of southern smilax trailing on these. Place cards were red cupids, arrows and hearts with the names of guests written in white and lighted red candles in crystal holders made a pretty glow in the room where the heavy curtains were drawn. After the salute to the flag, Mrs. C. W. Beavers gave the invocation and following the minutes, Mrs. S. Y. Ferguson reported for the nominating committee and Mrs. Jasper Ferguson was elected recording secretary.

Mrs. J. E. Hall, chairman of arrangements for the Washington seated tea to be given Feb. 17 at the Country club, reported on arrangements made for that affair and the committee working with her was named, including Mesdames C. H. Reid, John Hampton, Jouette Bonner, John Waggoner, Roy King, Fred T. Couper and Walter Priddy.

Hostesses who arranged the lovely table and luncheon Saturday included Mrs. G. K. Wilson, chairman, Mesdames A. C. Ludlam, Sidney Gaines, John R. Hyatt, C. L. Apple, W. J. Burt, J. Y. Holbrook and Miss Sara Sue Denny.

Covers were laid for Mesdames D. G. Whitney, C. W. Beavers, Winthrop Rogers, John L. Waggoner, E. C. deMontel, Clifford Deaton, Jasper Ferguson, Luke McCrory, J. L. Jackson, E. T. Duff, Walter Bachman, Everett Williams, S. H. Hall, J. E. H. Raileyetaoin Burnside, S. Y. Ferguson, J. E. Hall, J. E. H. Railey, W. J. Burt, D. C. Copelin, Miss Sara Sue Denny, Mesdames D. L. Rubsam, W. M. Cason, Eleanor Pace, V. C. Calvin, W. E. Parshall, Carrie Joline, F. W. Fischer, Fred T. Couper, Claude Woods, Carrie Wilcox, E. B. Bailey, Ben Bell, John Prewett, Paul Pond, C. L. Granberry, Mary K. Hartson, Ruth S. Cain, Guy Rogers, J. K. Naylor, G. K. Wilson, G. T. Buchanan, Sterling Crumpler and Lula Bristol.

Shrubs Rank Next to Trees In Importance, Says Mrs. Dobie

Garden Expert Gives Hints on Work of Transplanting And Tells How to Care for Plants

By BERTHA M'KEE DOBIE

Of all the plants that make our gardens, shrubs are, next to trees, the most important. Those that hold their leaves push winter from our doors, and those that shed them give us the high joy of spring. Evergreen and flowering shrubs ask the least and give the most of anything we can grow. Right selection, careful planting, pruning once a year or perhaps not, plenty of water before and at flowering time, a turfless area about them on occasional loosening of soil, a small demand; and in return what beauty of leaf, flower and berry, what fragrance, what refreshment!

Evergreens, balled and burlapped to keep out drying air and to prevent falling away of soil, may be successfully transplanted at any season. Deciduous shrubs are best transplanted when they are dormant—that is, in Texas, during December, January and February; but with proper precautions may be dug and reset any time before hot weather. I have seen a redbud eight feet tall brought from the woods when in full flower without losing a blossom. It was due, however, with a great bulk of earth.

Delicate Work

Getting a shrub out of the ground may be as delicate a matter as putting it in again. Ordinarily the gardner plants nursery stock and the first hazard is none of his. Sometimes, though, with increasing wisdom, he changes the position of shrubs already in his yard or digs a gift shrub or brings home a woods plant. Then with a grubbing hoe he blocks out an area proportionate to the height of the shrub—an area having a radius of 10 inches is about right for the average shrub he cares to dig—and makes a shallow trench. Then with a spade, not a spading fork, he cuts the ground deeply all around the trench, gently dislodges the roots that remain fast, and lifts out the plant, taking care not to shake off the soil. A shrub so dug will "never know it has been moved." Of course it is not necessary to go to so much trouble in transferring a dormant flowering shrub. For that, securing a good unsplintered root system is sufficient. Nurseries sell deciduous shrubs usually with bare roots.

The good gardener is careful not to expose the roots of a shrub he has dug or received well-wrapped from a nursery any longer than is necessary. He provides a hole about twice as wide and deep as the plant at present requires. In the bottom—for most shrubs—he puts manure mixed with good soil and tamps this loose dirt until it is firm. Crepe myrtle, for one, does not enjoy a fertilized soil. If the shrub is balled and burlapped, he simply sets it in at the right level, without removing the burlap, and holds the stem straight while he or another shovels in and tamps the soil. If the shrub has bare roots, he spreads them carefully, so that they will have the same uncramped position they had before, and slowly pulls soil around them, making it firm as he goes. For this purpose he uses top soil only, and if it is excessively stiff mixes with it some sand and leaf mold. If the shrub has come from the woods, the good gardener likes to put around the roots some of the same sort of soil it formerly grew in; for instance, rich sandy loam for holly or wild peach, and a few limestone chips for redbud, mountain laurel or agarita. When he has filled the hole to within two inches of the top, he waters the newly set shrub, and then puts on the remaining soil and leaves it loose to serve as a dust mulch.

Some shrubs require particular soil treatment. Any shrub that is listed as needing an acid soil should be given leaf mold and peat moss, with occasional additions of aluminum sulphate in small quantity.

After being planted, a deciduous flowering shrub should have its top cut off about half way to the ground. Such pruning assures its life and increases its spread. Broad-leaved evergreens should be cut severely back if they have been dug with bare roots. Few coniferous evergreens can be cut back without ruining their shape, and for this reason are nearly always sold balled and burlapped.

For a year after they are transplanted, shrubs need an occasional watering through dry periods. It is better to turn the hose on at a mere dribble and allow the water to run for several hours then to drench the ground in a few minutes. And, of course, sprinkling is worthless. A mounded ring of earth out several inches from the stem prevents loss of water. Light cultivation after watering is beneficial. But a summer mulch of leaves or grass clippings will reduce the frequency of both watering and shallow cultivation. Once an evergreen shrub is established, it requires no further watering except during a prolonged drouth. Flowering shrubs will always require plenty of water, either naturally or artificially supplied, shortly before they bloom. Berry bearing shrubs such as nandina must have water while they bloom or the berries will not set. No tender shrub or tree should receive water late in the fall; many an Italian cypress has had its top frozen because it was encouraged to grow too late. Once a year, probably in February, shrubs may be given a fairly deep cultivation and fertilizer applied if it is needed.

Shrubs that are paired in kind and position are frequently an annoyance. They may start off beautifully matched, but almost invariably one outgrows the other, so that the doorway or chimney or whatever other feature they are intended to set off looks lop-sided. When the watchful gardener sees that such a want of balance impends, he takes steps. Those steps are to the fertilizer pile and the hydrant. He pets the backward mate and ignores the forward.

Clipped Shrubs

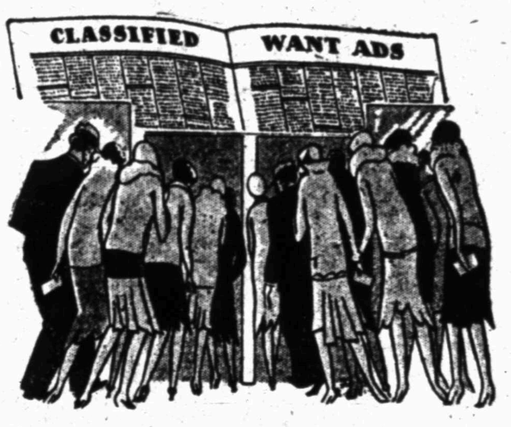

Pruning of shrubs serves one of three functions; to keep them in position, to give them a formal symmetry, or to increase growth and flowering. Clipped, or sheared, shrubs have their place, but it is a place subordinated to some formal architectural scheme. Nothing can be more incongruous than a lot of shrubs with cropped round heads banking a cottage. Yet shrubs, even when carefully chosen in the first place, do sometimes outgrow their positions, and must be cut back. In such a situation it is usually best to cut them far down and let them sprout out anew. A few of the coniferous evergreens can be sheared without harm. When a bush grows too wide, certain branches should be cut off entirely, and no stubs left.

The general rule for pruning flowering shrubs is that those blooming in early spring should be pruned just after they flower, and those blooming in summer during February before growth begins. Early blooms of necessity come on wood of the year before; later blooms come on wood of the current season. There are some special rules. Crepe myrtle pruned produces larger panicles of flowers, but unpruned it grows into one of the most glorious flowering trees in the world. Hydrangeas bloom upon wood produced during the current season upon older wood, and hence should not be cut very close to the ground. When Philadelphus, or mock orange has flowered, the old shoots should be cut off in order that young basal shoots may grow strong for next year's flowers. Spireas should be rather rigorously pruned to keep them tidy.

Right of Way Obtained For Tillman Highway

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Feb. 8.—Easements are being obtained by Newton Sanders, right of way man for the state highway commission, for the new route of highway No. 14 from Snyder to Frederick, paralelling the Frisco railroad. When completed this will shorten the road between these points 5.2 miles.

Making Veterans Wait As the Bankers See It The Eye of a Needle A Heaven for the Rich

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Bankers help to make war but do not like to pay for it in a lump sum after it is over. The present opposition to the full payment of the soldiers' bonus comes largely from gentlemen who run banks, and who are not concerned about the veteran who offered his life for his country, and who will be white-haired and tottering before he gets his compensation.

Thousands of world war veterans are jobless today, hungry and penniless. Bonuses pledged them by the United States will mature in 1945, almost 15 years from now. Many of the veterans will be dead by that time, and death may come to some because the promise of a tomorrow cannot be realized today.

For centuries people took literally that passage in the New Testament where it is written: It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. But one need no longer take that passage literally. It is now as easy for the rich man to enter heaven as for the poor man. In fact, easier. According to Dr. Robert Norwood, of St. Bartholomew's, there is no virtue in poverty, as such. The asceticism of St. Francis of Assisi did nobody any good.

Many will be in accord with Dr. Norwood, although we do not forget that those who gather to hear him on Park avenue and Fiftieth street are of the tribe that always lost out to the camel. The poor have no corner on the quality market. Poverty, as the world has learned, is the greatest breeder of vice we know of. The chances today of the rich entering the kingdom of heaven seem to be about equally divided with the down-and-outers. But since Bible passages cannot be altered to apply to modern conditions, the interpretation of Bible passages can. Which is convenient for lots of good people who have money.

A list of the 10 greatest living men, based on their mental power, capacity for human leadership, and creative artistic ability, is given out by Rabbi Louis I. Newman, of Congregation Rodelph Sholom of New York.

There is one philosopher and he's Henri Bergson, a Frenchman. There is one poet and he's Tagore, a Hindu. India is again represented by an emancipator, Mahatma Gandhi.

The one author listed is G. B. Shaw, an Irishman. The one inventor is an American, Edison. The one physicist, Albert Einstein, a German. Switzerland is represented in Ernest Bloch, composer of music. And Russia is down with two statesmen, Joseph Stalin and Leon Trotsky. Italy is mentioned with Mussolini as dictator.

Of the 10, four are Jews: Einstein, Trotsky, Bergson, Bloch. England is not represented at all (unless Shaw be claimed as an Englishman), while her dependency, India, is twice represented. Nor is Spain mentioned, nor any of the Scandinavian countries.

Italians will take issue with the choice of Edison instead of Marconi. Frenchmen will contest the naming of Stalin or Trotsky or Mussolini in favor of Briand. Germany may claim Richard Strauss is greater than Ernest Bloch. England might argue for Masefield in lieu of Tagore.

The list should have been entitled "Ten Greatest Moderns"—to give the women a "break."

One of the best assurances of a return to the happy days of 1928 and 1929 is given out by 25 large corporations who have pledged themselves to maintain status quo salaries and jobs—a pledge that involves half a million employes.

Call Another Election

THE RECORD NEWS hopes the city council orders a new election on the water improvement bond issue rather than appeal from the ruling of Judge P. A. Martin holding the recent election in which the bonds were voted invalid. It hopes this notwithstanding it believed there was no fraud in the election nor any irregularities other than those that were due to carelessness in the conduct of the election. It hopes this also because it believes that the bonds can and will be voted again by a much more decisive majority than in the recent election and with votes about which there can be raised no question.

The recent election might be sustained in an appeal but an appeal would require more time than a new election and there would always be dissatisfaction on the part of those who contested the election. In the next election we expect to see the bonds carry by such a majority as will leave no doubt as to the desire of the citizens of Wichita Falls for an ample supply of soft water and their willingness to pay for it. We even expect to see some of those who voted against the bond issue in the first election support it in the second.

Our elections are always rather loosely conducted, partly because the Terrell election law is loosely drawn and jumbled making a strict compliance with its provisions well nigh impossible and requiring more machinery than the state, the county or the city could provide. There has never been an election held in Wichita county or in Wichita Falls in which there has been strict compliance with all the provisions of the election laws and in this sense there are always irregularities in the conduct of our elections, but we would say there is less real fraud in our elections here than anywhere in the United States. We would say that there was no fraudulent intent on the part of any voter or any official in the recent bond election. It does appear that there were more than the ordinary number of irregularities in the election; sufficient to raise some doubt as to whether or not the result would have been different if there had been a strict compliance with the law.

So we say let's have another election with as strict compliance with the law as possible and carry the bond issue by such a majority as will leave no doubt that the people of Wichita Falls want an ample supply of soft water with all the savings and advantages that such a supply will give.

Advice for Industry

THOSE people who are always demanding that the government "stay out of business" are respectfully referred to a few paragraphs in the recent inaugural address of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Governor Ritchie, endorsing this demand, added that this in turn puts a responsibility on business itself.

Does business, he asks, want a minimum of governmental interference? Very well; it can deserve and gain this freedom "only by developing a higher order of self-government and by tackling those problems which are of its own making instead of passing them on to government."

Then he points out that business, complaining of government in business, puts government into business "in its most obnoxious forms" by insisting on high, complicated tariff bills. It builds up public utilities worth billions, "and then pits propaganda against politics instead of applying to its affairs an enlightened business statesmanship to which the public would respond."

The governor then candidly points out that business could avoid much governmental interference by putting its own house in order. He suggests, for instance, that business should devote some serious study to the problems of labor turn-over and involuntary unemployment, and remarks that "industry should evolve its own forms of prevention and put the burden of this on its own economic surplus."

All of this constitutes one of the sanest discussions of the government-business problem that has been heard in a long time. Too often, the spokesmen for industry adopt a position that is strangely like that of the man who wants something for nothing. They abhor all governmental supervision, regulation or competition; yet they expect the government to provide props and balances whenever they are needed, to clean up the debris caused by mistakes which industry itself makes, to solve problems that industry has created.

If Governor Ritchie can force a realization of the fact that the thing works both ways he will be doing all of us a great service. If industry wants freedom from governmental regulation, let it follow a few of the suggestions he has outlined. If it devotes itself to such a program, and realizes that earning dividends is not its sole responsibility, everything will go along nicely. If not, the government will get deeper and deeper into the field of business every year.

Not Very Encouraging

THE man who wants to retain an unquestioning and child-like faith in the workings of democracy in the modern state is advised to pay very little attention to the mayoralty campaigns in our two largest cities.

At its last election New York gave a stupendous majority to a young man whose chief qualifications seems to be that he is amiable, dapper, very well dressed and unusually quick at repartee. And now in Chicago we can see a mayor who wants a fourth term seek it, apparently, on the theory that all one needs to do is provide a good show for the populace.

In neither case is the spectacle at all encouraging. New York has its Jimmy Walker; Chicago has its Big Bill Thompson. The believer in democracy can hardly get much nourishment out of either situation.

Quotations Worth Noting

The past generation that so freely prescribed whisky had another practice—that of bleeding the patient—which has now been abandoned. The reverse operation—blood transfusion—has taken its place. That generation put whisky into the patient, and took blood out of him. Modern practice, reversing the process, takes whisky out of him and puts blood into him.—Dr. Howard Kelly, Johns Hopkins university.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Vaude-Villians

They stand nearby the Palace day on day,
And talk in low and falsely hopeful tones.
Their snappy clothes, pathetically gay,
Bespeak ability to wheedle loans;
They swap their gags like children swapping toys,
And rip their lucky brothers into bits;
Their food and drink in Broadway's blatant noise—
Their Bible is Variety or Zit's.

So, hand to mouth, the weeks go swiftly by,
While faded clippings yellow in their hands;
They hum the current hit and watch it die—
And, penniless, they quote their rash demands.

Ah, you, who stand there seven days in seven,
God grant you make the two-a-day in Heaven! —DON WAHN.

Gag

Harry Richman tells of the riveter who was laboring on the 70th story of a new skyscraper, when a plane began toying with the clouds nearby. Suddenly a parachute-jumper leaped from it. As the parachuter neared the riveter, the latter was so spellbound he lost his balance and fell.

About the 26th story the riveter passed the man with the parachute and yowled: "Aw—move over!"

A Form of Criticism

He was so hammy, says M. Gendel, he couldn't even hold a Times Square theater mob jammed in traffic.

Observation

The Wickersham telephone exchange district is in the East 50s—a district noted for the greatest number of speakeasies.

And that the recent million dollar fire at the Lincoln Square theater, here (which signalled the first "9-9" alarm in over 20 years) destroyed everything in the theater block except a barroom. The bar still is intact, with glassware, etc., proving that even fire ignores prohibition.

Pardon His Damp Hand

She is one of the Coward-McCann book publishing staff and she gets in their hair by continuously complaining about the amount of work she does. The other day she ankled into Mr. Coward's office and sighed: "Oh, deah, oh deah, I worked so hard last night, I'm actually seeing you double!"

"That," acidly replied Mr. Coward, "is to your advantage."

Another Version of It

The "fly-in-the-coffee" gag has been revised by the Britons in this manner: "Is there something wrong, sir?" asked the waitress.

"Yeah," growled the customer. "Look at this fly in my cup. What does this mean?"

"Sorry," snapped the gal as she turned away, "I'm a waitress not a fortune teller!"

Unrepentance

Tomorrow I'll call myself a fool
When I look back upon
Today and count the witless things
I'll wish I hadn't done.

But, oh, until tomorrow comes
How sweet it is instead
To love with all my silly heart
And not to use my head!
—SELMA ROBINSON.

Rib-Tickler

Take it from one of the New Yorkers, Phil Baker, the comedian, who uses a stooge in a box seat for greater laugh wallops, thought up a clever stunt, which, however, he never had the opportunity to use. The idea was that Baker would say something about honesty, and then declare that all a man had to do was ask a straight question and he would be answered truthfully.

"I'll prove it," Baker was to say, "If the man who killed Lingle is in the house, will he stand up?"

At this his confederate in the upper box was to rise. "Did you kill Lingle?" Baker then was to say, and the assistant was to retort: "Oh, no, I thought you said 'Lincoln.'"

Baker had a high opinion of this bit, but the day before it was to be inserted in the act the box-seater balked. "Suppose," he objected, "somebody was to take a shot at me before I could say 'Lincoln'?"

The Native New Yorker

The native New Yorker, says Benny Holzman, gets up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, buttons up his Chicago suspenders to Rochester pants, puts on a pair of shoes made in Massachusetts, washes in a Pittsburgh basin, using Cincinnati soap, sits down to breakfast at a Grand Rapids table, eats hot biscuits made with Minneapolis flour, some Kansas City bacon cooked on a St. Louis stove, claps on a hat made in Danbury and rushes for his Detroit motor car.

At night he dives into some night club and indulges in some Montreal wet wash—the only home product in town!

Just for the Records

Some of the New York papers now feature different versions of Al Capone's career. One of the writers points out that the gang king pronounces his name Ca-pone (pone to rhyme with Cohen).

This, obviously, is a mistake considering that all Italian names end in a vowel—a-i-o-u. In fewer words, when we met him at Miami recently and asked him how he pronounced it, he replied: "Cah-po-knee."

He added, however, that so many people called him "Ca-pone" that to be obliging he called himself that now and then so that they wouldn't be embarrassed.

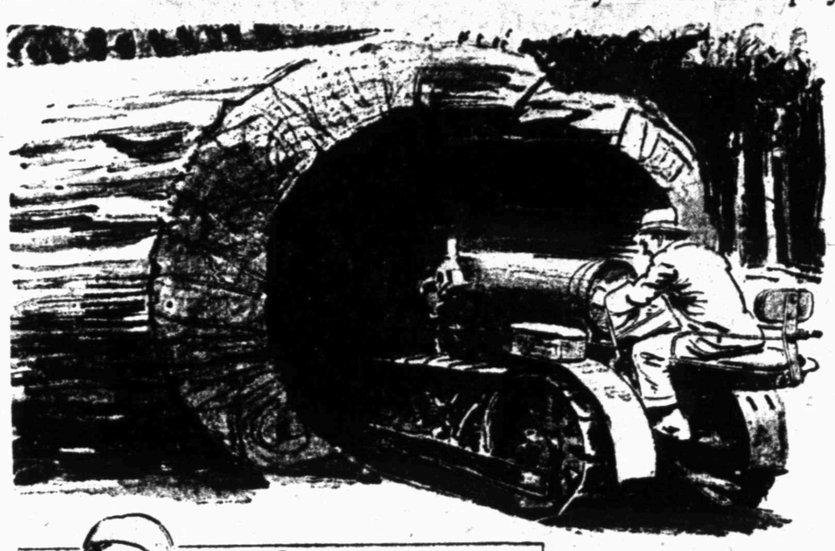

As a matter of fact his name was once spelled C-a-p-o-n-i.

Huh-Uh

One of the New York commentators reports among other things: "Another reason why David Belasco's stars are the greatest box office attractions is that he never permits them to appear at benefit performances. This is a sound idea, considering that New York offers countless benefit shows at which practically the same players are seen."

Very interesting and all that sorta thing. Will Rogers and Eddie Cantor, however, are two of the greatest box office attractions in the world—and this, in spite of the fact that Rogers and Cantor hold the record for appearing at more benefit shows than any other stars.

THE LOVELY LIAR : BY ROB EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Poppy Prior, deserted by Ted Allison on the eve of their elopement, runs away to New York. Her mother thinks she is married, and Poppy hasn't the courage to face Mrs. Prior's disapproval after an announcement appears in the paper. Arrested for the theft of a bracelet belonging to Celia Nixson which she found on the train, Poppy lies under the questioning, fearful that her mother may hear of the arrest. Kevin Wallace, friend of Celia, offers to help Poppy because he believes she is innocent. Escaping from the home for girls to which she is committed, Poppy appeals to Wallace. He sends her to Jane Rochester, an art student, who insists that Poppy share her apartment. As Jane's cousin, Poppy Rochester, Poppy gets a job modeling in the department store where Jane works. Poppy meets Ted at a party and he later declares his love and wants to marry her. Poppy loves Wallace, but sees marriage to Ted a solution of her tangled affairs. In her home paper she reads of her mother's accident, and Jane insists that she go home at once. With a borrowed wedding ring in her pocketbook, Poppy gets on the train.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXIII

The room that had been hers so long. The room she remembered cluttered with toys as a child. Dolls sitting around a tiny table, undressed every night when she was. Put to bed in a row of wooden cribs standing beside her own small bed. There were still a few of them now packed away in a box in the closet, reminders of those days.

In the spring the window looked out on a maple tree, green, with warm soft leaves. In the fall, the tree was crimson, with a carpet of red below, dull red. The tree had been there as long as Poppy could remember, the branches touching her window, holding out strong arms to her, the leaves rubbing against the glass pane. The tree was part of the room to her. Her tree. Sunlight that fell onto the rug was dappled and patched, with broad silhouettes of the leaves marking the floor.

Memories of it crowded upon her as she sat at the bench by her dressing table, the top quite clear of any of her own belongings now.

Her room. The room she had left that night which seemed so far, far away, and was only a short month. She had been a little afraid to go into it again, for fear it would have changed. But no, it was the same. The furniture arranged as she had left it, the bed by the window where she could see the pattern the leaves made on the spread, the chair near the table.

Not quite the same, though. A bareness about it. The table cleared, with only the lamp on it—she had always had magazines and books covering the top—the dressing table holding only one small vase, which was empty, the pictures rearranged in Grace's fashion. The dance programs she had left carelessly hung on the corner of the bureau gone.

She hadn't quite known how to greet Grace, who was waiting for her when she got off the train. But Grace had solved all that by taking her into her arms and kissing her. Grace had only asked one embarrassing question on the way to the hospital.

"Your husband didn't come with you then?"

Poppy had mumbled something, cold all over, terribly frightened.

The woman she saw lying in bed at the hospital, moaning, her head swathed in bandages didn't seem like her mother. It must be someone else. Someone very frail, very ill.

"She's partly conscious today," Grace whispered, "and the doctor says we mustn't stay too long."

"Better, then?"

"The doctor says yes. Oh, Poppy, I'm so glad you came! You don't know how worried I was when all this happened and I didn't know your address." A nurse shushed them out in the hall. They couldn't stay any longer now, she said, but they might come back in the afternoon for a few minutes.

So they went home, and Grace took Poppy to her room and then left for the kitchen.

Good being home. Knowing she was home. The living room was the same, except for the new chair Roy had told her about. Shabby in the day time when the sun stole through the windows, cool, aloof, inviting at night when the lamps were on, and the place was not quite so bright.

"Let me see your wedding ring, Poppy . . . Oh, no! Don't take it off!" For Poppy drew the ring from her finger and handed it to her sister.

The Bride Returns

Then this room. Her room. At first she had been afraid to go in, glad that Grace hadn't come with her into it to see the tears that rolled down her cheeks, when she looked around, saw the things that were so familiar and that she had missed so much.

She hardly heard the telephone bell as she sat and looked out the window. Conscious that it rang, yes, but nothing more. Everything seemed so far away, but the room.

Grace coming in. Poppy rose with a start, and looked at the bag she had laid on the bed but hadn't touched. She hurried to it now, brushing her fingers across her eyes.

"It was the society editor of the Times on the phone, calling to ask about mother. I told her you were in town," Grace explained sinking down on the bed.

"Will it—be in the papers?" Poppy already saw the item. "Mrs. Theodore Allison arrived this morning from New York, called by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Maude Prior. Mrs. Allison was formerly Poppy Prior."

"Sure it will be in the papers. Everybody's anxious to see you, Poppy. You ought to know that."

But to have it in the paper—again. Poppy glanced down at the ring which wasn't hers, and which she had slipped on her finger when the train pulled into Ashland. Why couldn't she be brave? Why had she to be such a miserable, pitiful coward?

"Mother and I have been so worried about you, Poppy. Of course you've been on your honeymoon and all that—but not writing, not sending us a picture of your husband—you brought one with you, didn't you?"

"What?" How pale Grace was. Older, too, than when Poppy had left. More worn looking. Was she only 26? She looked at least 30 as she sat there with the sun shining on her face.

"Oh." Should she tell Grace now? Ask her to prepare her mother, when Mrs. Prior recovered? What would Grace say? Grace was so easily shocked, so proper in her ways. She couldn't keep up these lies forever. . . . Then a cold chill of fear came over her when she thought of sitting there and calmly telling Grace she wasn't married, that she'd borrowed a wedding ring, that she had been mixed up in the courts—that she'd been at the Minnie Bascum home. That she'd run away.

If only there weren't the home to explain, she might. But that was too awful.

"I came away in such a hurry—" she murmured after a short silence. "So worried about mother—"

Grace nodded sympathetically. "Are you happy, Poppy? Roy said you said you were. I'd be miserable if I thought you weren't happy. Mother and I thought perhaps that's why you hadn't written. That you were sorry and were making the best of things. It's been sort of preying on mother's mind. She worries a lot about you—"

The Inscription

"I'm happy, Grace. I wouldn't want mother to worry for the world." She wasn't telling a lie when she said that. She was happy in New York, happy thinking of Kevin.

"It'll take a big weight off her mind. I want you to tell her when she gets better. It'll help her recovery a lot. The news of your marriage shocked everybody in Ashland. The phone was ringing all the next day. People asking questions and all that. Mother answered them as best she could. She knew so little, though. We only had your note to go by. Maybe you think we weren't surprised when we came home and found it, pinned to mother's pillow. Not knowing Ted, not knowing you knew him.

"Roy said it was the best thing in the world, though. He said he wished that we had done it six years ago—then we'd—well, sometimes I do, too. It's so hard waiting, and waiting—" Grace sighed, and a sob caught in Poppy's throat. Poor, patient Roy, waiting six years for Grace. And Grace waiting for him, all because mother thought they ought to have their house paid for before they were married.

Grace losing her looks, getting old. Roy getting bald. How much longer would they wait?

"Poppy, I've more than enough linen for myself. I've been sewing all these years—so I want to give you some things before you go.

Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Why are apples called the fruit of Eden?—A. V. S.

A.—For many centuries it was supposed that the apple was the fruit which Eve under the direction of the serpent ate and gave to Adam to eat in the Garden of Eden. This view is no longer held, many more tropical fruits being suggested as the probable fruit of the garden, among them the pomegranate.

Q.—How many people are drown in a year in this country?—A. E. H.

A.—In 1928 there were 8,474 people drowned and in 1927 there were 7,901. One-third of the deaths occurred in the age group, 10 to 24, and 56.3 per cent were of persons under 25 years of age. July was the peak month. Later statistics than these have not yet been compiled.

Q.—What is a farthingale bench?—R. S.

A.—It is a broad-seated chair without arms, made in the time of James I and Elizabeth to accommodate the large-hooped dresses or farthingales worn by the women of that period.

Q.—Are "luck" chain letters mailable?—L. M. S.

A.—When sent sealed and with proper postage, they are mailable. Thousands of dollars are wasted yearly in this manner, but the post-office department appeals to the common sense of people not to clutter up the mails with such matter.

Q.—Which are considered the arts and which the sciences?—W. M.

A.—According to Jevons a science teaches us to know and an art to do, Astronomy, for instance, is the foundation of the art of navigation, chemistry is the basis of many useful arts. The arts are distinguished as fine arts and useful arts, the former including painting, sculpturing, music, poetry, architecture; the latter (useful arts) including the trades. The sciences have been variously classified. The principal ones are physics, chemistry, astronomy, meteorology, mathematics, geography, geology, ethnology, anthropology, archaeology, biology, and medicine.

Q.—How many ships are there in our merchant marine?—C. E. F.

A.—In 1929 three were 7,007 sail vessels and 18,319 steam vessels in the merchant marine of the United States.

Q.—Has the tractor displaced the horse rapidly in Canada?—E. S.

A.—In 1920, there were 3,400,522 farm horses in Canada, and in 1930 there were 3,290,028, a decrease of only 105,504.

Q.—What causes dogs to become bow-legged?—D. K.

A.—Dr. Stephenson of Cornell university says the rickets is the usual cause. Cod-liver oil, butter-fat and sunshine are both prevention and cure for this condition.

Q.—Where is the biggest coral reef in the world?—C. B.

A.—Probably the largest coral reef in the world is the great barrier reef of Australia lying off the coast of Queensland. It is 1,000 miles long.

Q.—What degree of cold is required to freeze ice for skating?—A. J. T.

A.—No definite statement can be made as to the degree of cold required to freeze ice of certain dimensions. Many surrounding factors must be taken into consideration. The formation of ice of considerable thickness requires continuous low temperature for a sufficient time. Sufficient ice for skating is rarely formed unless the temperature goes to about 20 degrees F.

Q.—Was the Christmas mail going abroad especially heavy in 1930?—P. C.

A.—Beginning Dec. 1 and ending Dec. 16, there were 111,183 sacks of mail dispatched from New York City. This was 5,585 sacks more than the number for the same period of 1929. The foreign money order business out of New York City from Nov. 17 to Dec. 16 amounted to $8,248,392.66, while in 1929 it amounted to $9,640,934.32.

Q.—What is a lachnite diamond? L. G. S.

A.—Lachnite is a trade name for an imitation diamond.

Q.—How much is spent in a year for fuel for locomotives?—A. E. G.

The Record News Offers Its Readers a New Map of the World

Even a brief study of this map and of the commercial and geographical data which accompany it will be to the average person a revelation as to how little he really knows about the world. Careful study will be a liberal education in this field.

This magnificent map should be on the desk of every business and professional man. It should be in every home library. A copy of it should be in the hands of every teacher and of every student who has passed the primary grades in the public schools.

No greater value has been offered for 10 cents, which covers cost, handling and postage. Fill out and mail this coupon today.

Canned Banquets

Recently a delicious banquet was served where every food had been in the can for at least 15 years and was still as attractive and tasted as good as the day that it was packed. This ability to keep for many years is only one of the many reasons why canned foods are becoming popular all over the world and are carried into northern countries on sleds pulled by dog teams, and carried across deserts by camels, as well as being found in every grocery store in civilized countries.

Perhaps the greatest advantage of using canned foods is that you can always be assured of having a big variety on hand as long as your pantry shelves are covered with assorted canned goods. Often it is impossible to obtain fresh foods just when you need them, and the canned variety will act as a very good substitute. They are easily prepared.

We no longer need make fun of the new bride who uses a can opener, for often canned foods taste better and are more wholesome than improperly cooked fresh foods.

Kitchens are maintained by every large cannery where the best methods are worked out for saving the flavor and preserving the food value of the canned foods. The new methods now used by modern canneries conserve vitamin C which prevents scurvy.

The next time you order some canned goods, try out some of the new varieties of foods which are being packed. The old standbys, such as peas, corn and tomatoes are still good but in addition to these many other foods are canned, such as asparagus, artichoke hearts, tomato juice, pineapple juice, grapefruit, succotash, carrots, turnip greens, shelled walnuts and pecans, salad oils and salad dressings, canned soups, sardines, crab meat, shrimp, tuna, fresh prunes, dried prunes, green lima beans, string beans, bean sprouts, bamboo shoots, beets, pumpkin, sweet potatoes, fish, meats of various kinds, fruits and berries, spinach, okra, chicken, caviar and milk. All of these foods are just as wholesome when canned as when fresh, and in many cases it is a distinct saving to buy them in this way. Families will find it an economic advantage to buy their canned goods by case lots, in this way effecting a saving in buying and having a stock on hand when needed.

In referring to canned goods, I also include foods prepared in jars and bottles in which the same method of sterilizing the food and sealing it is used. With such a big assortment of varieties to choose from it is possible to serve wholesome banquets and avoid monotony in the diet at any time in the year. Do not let prejudice stand in your way. Numerous scientific experiments have shown that canned goods are wholesome for any one to use.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Outstanding Ears

Question—A. R. L. asks: "How can I train my son's ears to lie closer to his head? He is 15 years old."

Answer—You should have begun to train your son's ears to lie closer to the head when he was younger. At this age the cartilage of the ears is well formed and not so easily trained. Holding the ears back all night long with adhesive tape is probably one of the best remedies. With older persons plastic surgery is sometimes resorted to.

Bananas Are Starchy

Question—B. B. asks: "Is it or is it not healthy to eat three bananas a day?"

Answer—Bananas are a starchy food and should be used as such. In some diseases they should not be used. For the average person three bananas would fill all the carbohydrate requirements of the body for one day. They are most easily digested when baked.

What Causes Calcium Deposits?

Question—E. J. asks: "What is the best way to prevent the deposit of calcium in the tissues of the body? Is there a certain diet to prevent this? Is it best to keep away from foods that contain calcium? Are osteopathic treatments helpful by increasing the blood supply through the body?"

Answer—Deposits of calcium in the tissues are not due to an excess of calcium in the food. Deposits are usually due to a certain type of acidosis, and are simply to protect the body against the irritation. The best plan is to increase the alkalinity of the body by using plenty of alkaline-forming foods, especially the foods containing sodium and potasium. Osteopathic treatments are very helpful in increasing the circulation.

Memphis Hatchery Greets Early Chicks

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 8.—The Memphis hatchery took off its first hatch of chicks this week and now have more than 3,000 eggs setting. The hatchery has a 31,000 capacity incubator. J. F. Forkner, operator and owner, says the plant began setting eggs about the same time this year as last year, but the weather this year is proving much more favorable.

The Panhandle Produce has 3,400 eggs setting and expects to take off its first hatch about the 16th of this month. The company has a 5,000 capacity incubator, and expects to keep it running full until about the first of July.

Electra Legion to Give Comedy This Week

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Feb. 8.—The first play of the year will be presented under the auspices of the Claude C. McDonald post of the American Legion Wednesday and Thursday nights, Feb. 11 and 12, at the Grand theater. Miss Nelle Zents of the Universal Producing company has been in Electra for the past two weeks directing rehearsals and making the necessary arrangements.

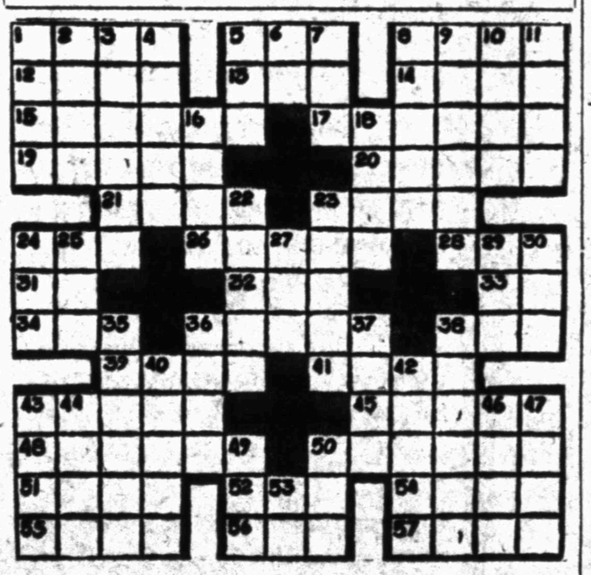

The play, "Corporal Eagan," is a comedy drama of rookie life. The title role will be played by C. C. Slaughter and his buddy, Izzy Goldstein, will be played by August Hofer. Other characters include Sally O'Neal, Miss Beatrice Delashaw; sergeant, J. V. Ballard; nurses, Christine Smith and Florence Rouse; Abie, Freeman Miller; Y. M. C. A. worker, Jett Hughes; McGinnis, F. TEXAS AGGIES BOB UP AS REAL BASKET BALL CONTENDERS

REID'S CAGERS THICKEN PLOT

Farmers Impressive in Two Court Games

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Feb. 8.—The plot thickens in the Southwest conference basket ball theater, with Coach John Reid's Texas Aggies cast in the "heavy" role. It threatens to become even thicker unless some team manages to cool off the Cadets very shortly.

Impressive victories scored by the Aggie quintet over Baylor and the University of Texas easily were the feature of the past week's conference play, not excepting Southern Methodist's exciting win over Texas Christian in their crucial contest here. By the decisiveness of their scores, the Farmers definitely established themselves in the race.

Aggies Come Up

In stopping Baylor, 31 to 12, Tuesday night and then overwhelming Texas, 34 to 10, last night at College Station, the Farmers gave the greatest defensive exhibitions of the season. What was more important, they pulled up into clear possession of fourth place, only 67 percentage points or a half-game out of second.

Realizing he had no goal shooting sensations on his squad, Coach Reid is said to have put in most of his time perfecting a defense. He seems to have been successful, to say the least. At the half last night, the Aggies were ahead, 21 to 4, the Longhorns having sunk only one field goal. They collected three more in the second half, when the Aggie mentor inserted a flock of substitutes. While they were doing that, Moody, a substitute forward, sneaked in four field goals and two free shots to lead the Farmer scorers.

Frogs Break Even

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs broke even for the week and clung to second place by downing Baylor, 38 to 22, last night at Waco. Coach Schmidt's flag favorites failed to impress the audience, however. Baylor had them tied, 11-11, at the half and was holding its own at 21-all midway of the final period. At that point, unfortunately for the Bears, their star guard, Puny Witcher, went out on fouls, and the Frog forwards did the rest. Doc Sumner and McCulloch ran up 13 points apiece. For the third straight game, Ad Dietzel, tall Frog center, was stopped pretty dead. He batted in only two field goals and sank four of the free variety.

Seven games scheduled for the ensuing week should supply the real "low-down" on the championship aspirants. Every team except Rice will see action at least twice, and the rampaging Aggies have three bouts on their hands. Just how great a figure the Farmers are to cut in deciding the title will be determined the last of the week, when they invade North Texas for tilts with the undefeated Southern Methodist Mustangs and Texas Christian.

Ponies Go Abroad

The Mustangs, victorious in four starts at home, will face a hostile crowd for the first time Tuesday night, when they meet the Texas Longhorns at Austin. And Texas fans can be hostile enough to suit the most exacting when a Southern Methodist team is on the premises. There are various surmises as to how the Pony dribblers will react.

The schedule:

Monday, Baylor vs. Aggies at Waco.

Tuesday, Texas vs. Southern Methodist at Austin.

Friday, Baylor vs. Arkansas at Fayetteville; Texas Christian vs. Aggies at Fort Worth.

Saturday, Baylor vs. Arkansas at Fayetteville; Southern Methodist vs. Aggies at Dallas; Texas vs. Rice at Houston.

Conference standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Southern Methodist	4	0	1.000
Texas Christian	4	2	.667
Arkansas	5	3	.625
Texas A. & M.	3	2	.600
Baylor	2	4	.333
Rice	2	5	.286
Texas	1	5	.166

Dietzel Again Tops Southwest Scorers

DALLAS, Feb. 8. (AP)—Adolph Dietzel, lofty Texas Christian center, closed another week at the head of the Southwest conference individual scoring race, with a total of 80 points in six games. The Frog sophomore has counted only 21 points in his last three starts, but his big start enabled him to stay in the van. Rhea Williams, Southern Methodist forward, was in second place and had by far the highest average among the goalers, with 72 points in four contests. Doc Sumner, T. C. U. forward, climbed into third place with 65, and had made the most free shots—23.

The leaders:

	Games	Fg.	Ft.	Pts.

Jean Pirates Defeat Holliday High Quintet

Special to The Record News.

JEAN, Texas, Feb. 8.—Jean High school Pirates handed the Holliday High school cagers a rather one-sided defeat Friday night on the Archer City High school court by the score of 25 to 13. Pratt, Pirates' brilliant center, won the game singlehanded as far as scores were concerned as he rang up 20 counters. However the whole team played a whale of a defensive game all through the contest. The Holliday boys also played a good defensive game.

Thursday night the Jean Bulldogs local independent team defeated the Megargel Independents on the latter's court by the count of 26 to 25. The Megargel quintet gave the Bulldogs a tussle all the way but were clearly outclassed by the fast, hard playing Bulldogs.

Faber Oldest Big Leaguer on Rolls

RED FABER

RED FABER TO DISPORT AGAIN

Veteran Ready to Enter His 18th Campaign

By CLAIRE BRUCKY
NEA Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—By far the most interesting bit of information in the 1931 roster of the Chicago White Sox, which contains practically every piece of statistical data except individual finger prints, is the little item in the date-and-place-of-birth column which read "Sept. 6, 1888, Cascada, Iowa."

The date would mean little but the fact that in another column on the same line is printed the name "Urban Charles Faber." And with this combination of name and date you have a story.

17 Years' Service

Old Red Faber, veteran of 17 consecutive White Sox campaigns, is ready to shuffle into another, burdened this time by way of being the oldest player in major league baseball and the sole survivor of the clan of saliva ball dispensers.

Faber was a college twirler of major league possibilities before Hal McKain, his pitching teammate, was born. His first professional offer came from Dubuque in 1909 and Pittsburgh drafted him the following season. The Pirates shipped him back to Dubuque only to recall him in 1911, after which they released him to Minneapolis.

Red then drifted to Pueblo and Des Moines and while pitching in his home state he was sold to the White Sox for $3,500. He reported at the close of the 1912 season while Charles Comiskey and John McGraw were completing arrangements for a world playing tour with stars recruited from various major league teams.

Joins Giants

Comiskey seized this opportunity to look over his new purchase, but by the time the outfits had reached the West coast he had Faber ticketed for the return trip home. McGraw then stepped in with a proposal to take Red in his outfit, so our hero shed his White Sox uniform in favor of Giant toggery. On the trip around the world he pitched four of the five victories the McGraw team won and, in spite of generous offers from McGraw, the Sox owner determined to hang on to him.

Without the spitball, Faber himself will tell you that he never could have reached the major leagues. He could put something on the ball by other means but a sore arm which developed in 1911 while he was at Pueblo made him resort to the moist delivery. Thereafter he mastered the trick and he swears he never has had a sore arm since.

Knows Sweet and Bitter

Red knows the sweet taste of hero worship and the sourness of razzberries. Annual campaigns have been full of both for him. He also appreciates the all-revealing glare of a world series spotlight.

Faber pitched and won with the Giants. He also stole third base with a teammate occupying that corner, introducing a "John Anderson" for the first time to world series competition. And he was on the mound the day Heine Zimmerman pursued Eddie Collins across home plate with the score that gave Faber and the White Sox victory.

Washington U. Nears Its Fourth Cage Pennant

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 8. (AP)—Washington State college was the only obstacle remaining in the path today of the University of Washington Huskies for their fourth consecutive northern division Pacific coast conference basket ball championship.

The two leading teams tangle for the first time this year when they meet on the Washington floor here Friday and Saturday. A double victory for the Huskies virtually will clinch the 1931 crown and give them their fourth straight crack at the southern division titleholders.

HUFF RETURNS

Bill Huff, president of the Spudder baseball club, returned from Chicago Sunday afternoon where he attended the argumentation of the Red Bennett case. The judges in the case have not yet rendered a verdict after hearing the complaints.

ALLEN AVERS

By JACK (RED) ALLEN

Old Jupe Plunious dimmed the ardor of many golf fans Saturday afternoon, but at that a crowd of between 75 and a 100 rain soaked local golfers followed Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood around the Country club golf course. When the pair of great golfers teed off from the first tee the rain teed off from the overhanging clouds. The combination drizzle-downpour followed the golfers all the way.

It must be a great life to do nothing but pound a golf ball with a club, let the caddy carry the utensils, and stroll around the grounds with a modernistic designed umbrella. Both "The Haig" and Kirkwood made great hits with the gallery, the former especially appealing to the half drowned mob.

Hagen played indifferent golf on the first nine, but after he had cussed and discussed the weather all he could he settled down to a great exhibition. The whole gallery waited in vain for one of the professionals to slice or hook a drive.

The local pros put up a great battle. Hesler and Strachan hit their stride on the turn and gave the visitors some stiff competition. One of the highlights of the match was Hesler's putt on the sixth green which bounded in the cup from 30 feet away.

Joe Kirkwood's trick shot exhibition was the sunshine of the day. One of his special drivers weighed five pounds, another could be bent in any shape, and still another was equipped with hinges so that it resembled a snake when it was swung. A reddy tee 10 inches long was another article that drew howls of glee from the mass.

Tex Bowden, local golfer, was the tool of Kirkwood. He donated his watch for a demonstration in which Kirkwood placed a golf ball on top of the watch and then hit the ball without disturbing the timepiece. The same Tex permitted a golf ball to be placed on his toe where it was sent flying into space by a terrific drive (the ball not the toe). The trick shot artist described this feat as the newest corn remover. Demonstrations of the dub golfer minus the bad language was one of the best parts of the show. Kirkwood seemed to have the golf balls trained. He topped the ball, missed it, sliced, hooked, and drove straight, calling his shots each time.

Joe gave a demonstration of how George Duncan, Scottish golfer, used his irons. He stepped up to the ball and hit the pellet without the customary preliminary swing and getting the proper stance. "He doesn't waste much time," Kirkwood said, "in fact, he doesn't waste anything."

Leaders Lose to Cellar Occupants In Big Six Race

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 9. (AP)—The lowly cagers of Oklahoma and Missouri, occupants of the two rungs at the bottom of the Big Six standings, hurdled Kansas and Nebraska in a pair of basket ball games last night.

Nebraska's defeat at the hands of the Missourians, 20 to 33, was the first suffered by the Huskers in conference competition this season, but the Huskers remained in first place, just a step above Kansas.

The Jayhawkers fell by the scant margin of 30 to 33 before the onslaught of the Sooners, who last night were victors in a conference game for the first time since 1929, when they won their second successive title.

Kansas led by 20 to 8 at the half, but thereafter Oklahoma opened up the scoring drive.

Despite the upsets, positions in the percentage column remained the same as a week ago. In the only other game counting in the standings last week Iowa State drubbed Missouri, 29 to 19.

AMERICANS WIN TRACK EVENTS

Foreign Thinly Clads Are Beaten by Yanks

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. (AP)—The first real foreign threat of the current indoor track season has been beaten back by a group of American home breds.

France, Canada, and Switzerland all sent some of their best to the Millrose games in Madison Square garden last night and all of them failed in the face of sensational performances by Russell Chapman of Bates college, George Bullwinkle, of the college of the city of New York, Bill Bruder, of the Newark, A. C., and Karl Wildermuth, of the New York, A. C.

After running an anchor leg in a college relay, Chapman returned to the track an hour later to turn in a 1:53 4-5 half mile and defeat Dale Letts of the University of Chicago and Seraphin Martin of France, world's record holder at 800 meters, who was making his first start indoors.

Bullwinkle ran the 1,000 yards in 2:16 to lead Sam Martin, Boston A. A., Frank Nordell, New York university, and Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland, across the finish line.

Wildermuth and Bruder accounted for more foreign stars in the 50-yard sprint, which was run in heats, winners only qualifying for the final. Leigh Miller of the Hamilton, Ont., Olympic club, was nosed out in the heat. Wildermuth won while Bruder defeated Ira Singer, the New York university flash, and Ralph Adams, of Canada. In the finals Bruder defeated Wildermuth and A. L. Watking of Harvard.

Sharing the spotlight with these stars were Ray Conger, Illinois A. C., George Spitz, New York university, Alexander Wilson, Notre Dame, Harold Manning, Wichita, Kan., and Percy Beard of Auburn. Conger won the Wanamaker mile for the third successive time and retired the trophy from competition.

New Jersey Dark Horse Wins Golf Tournament at Harlingen With 71

HARLINGEN, Texas, Feb. 8. (UP)—Adding a par 71 to his brilliant 65-round of Saturday afternoon, Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., dark horse today captured first honors and the $1,000 pot of the $3,500 Harlingen open.

Horton Smith, whose mediocre showing of the last two weeks was broken yesterday with a 69, two under par, fought vainly today to overcome the four-stroke lead gained yesterday by Wood, finishing with a 68, one stroke behind Wood.

Wood's score for the 36-hole medal play yesterday and today was 136. Smith chalked up 137 for the two days' work.

Smith made the turn three under par for the first nine holes today Wood following two behind him. Wood, however, encountered the same trouble as virtually all other professionals playing over the Harlingen course, making a difficult return from the half-way point.

He lost his two strokes on the 16th and 17th holes, taking one over par each. On the 18th he sent a 40-foot putt squarely to the cup, but the ball rolled over and perched on the other side, enabling him to par the hole.

Al Espinosa, with a card of 141, was third, winning $400. Johnny Golden, winner of the $10,000 first prize at Agua Caliente, and Charles Guest tied for fourth with 142 each. They split $400.

Other winners, with their scores for the 36 holes and their purses, were:

Wiffy Cox, 143, $100; Clarence Clark, 144, $75; Harry Cooper, 144, $75; Mike Turnesa, 145, $50; Tony Manero, 145, $50 Herman Barron, 146, $50; Abe Espinosa, 147, $50; Sam Schneider, 147, $25; Jack Guild 147, $25; Jack Grout, 148, $25; and Pat O'Brien, Tom Raklets and Francis Schneider, each with cards of 150, shared $50.

Ideal weather prevailed throughout the day, and a big gallery followed Smith and Wood.

New Hollis Gymnasium To Be Scene of Tournament

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Feb. 8.—Delegates from all schools of Harmon county will meet in Hollis at an early date to perfect plans for an all-county track and basket ball meet to be held in Hollis during the last part of February. The new gymnasium is one of the best equiped places for athletics in Southwest Oklahoma and will in all probability be dedicated at this meet.

ZUNDY TO MEET HENRIETTA JRS.

Secondary Schools Face Easy Week

An easy week is scheduled for the Reagan and Zundelowitz Junior highs, Zundy meeting the Henrietta juniors on the foreign court Wednesday night for the only scheduled game of the week.

The Redbirds of Reagan had better success than the Zundyites in last week's play with foreign teams, Coach A. D. Beck's charges beat the Burkburnett juniors twice while the Red and Gray clad Reagan five won the victories without their coach on the field, Beck being in the hospital and unable to direct the play of his proteges.

The first teams of the two junior highs have been working together for the past two weeks and the first five of each team is almost picked. Randolph, Wininger, Cyr, Hunn and Tarkenton have the inside track for first places on Roy Golden's Zundy team. J. L. Creecy, Phillips, Stengel, Woodward and Fletcher are the best for Reagan.

OLUSTEE, Okla., Feb. 8.—J. H. Murray, superintendent of the Olustee schools, was elected chairman of the State High School Athletic association, at the state teachers meeting held in Oklahoma City on Feb. 5, 6, 7. Murray is in his fifth year as superintendent of the Olustee schools. He has been teaching in Jackson county the past nine years. He is a graduate of Oklahoma A. & M. college and has taught three summer terms in the Southwestern State Teachers college at Weatherford. He is a first cousin of Governor Murray.

Home Stretch in View for Western Loop Cage Teams

CHICAGO, Feb. 8. (AP)—The Western conference basket ball championship struggle will reach its first big crisis tomorrow night at Evanston, where Northwestern, heading the parade with five straight victories, meets Minnesota, the runner-up with four victories and one defeat.

The Gophers can make a real race of it by tripping Northwestern, but another victory for the Wildcats will make them extremely hard to catch. Northwestern's conquests include two victories over Michigan, and one each over Illinois, Chicago and Ohio State. Minnesota lost its opener to Chicago, but won in their next meeting, and in addition defeated Iowa twice and Wisconsin once. Northwestern last night dropped Chicago, 31 to 16, after a slow start.

After two lean weeks, actionswill become lively everywhere except at Michigan and Ohio State, neither of which are scheduled this week. Indiana took a 30 to 23 beating from Purdue last night.

Ohio Sprinter Breaks New Zealand Record

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Feb. 8. (AP)—George Simpson, former Ohio State university sprinter, broke one New Zealand record and equalled another here today.

Simpson ran the 220 yards in 21 1-5 seconds, shaving one-fifth of a second off the national record. He was timed in 9 4-5 seconds for the 100 yards, equalling the national record.

Harlow Rothert, giant weight man from Stanford, established a new national record in the shot put with a heave of 49 feet, 5 inches.

The American middle distance runner, Rufus Kiser, was beaten in the mile by G. Savidan.

New York City.

Gentlemen:

More and better health to you in your fight against the spitting evil. Your advertisements attacking spit-tipped cigars have my commendation.

You are fighting the battle of the health commissioners in striving for better sales of your non-spit-tipped cigars. I am not interested in your specific product. I am interested in public health. That is why I am writing you.

You can publish this letter if you care to.

Very sincerely,
Rushmore Lape
Health Officer, Fair Haven, Vermont

RL/JD

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Lape's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Lape writes: "Your advertisements attacking spit-tipped cigars have my commendation."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

Auction Bridge

Continuing The Bid— Lesson No. 6

IN AUCTION BRIDGE, the dealer having or passed, the next player to his left now has the right to bid, pass or over-bid. To over-bid the dealer he must bid one in a higher suit, or more than one in a lower suit. A bid is higher than a previous one if it is for: One, a greater number of odd tricks, or 2, the same number of tricks in a suit of higher value. Thus a bid of 3 diamonds is higher than a bid of 2 spades, as a bid of 2 spades is higher than a bid of 2 hearts.

102. LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF intention of the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, to pass an ordinance submitting amendments to the charter of the city of Wichita Falls. In accordance with the requirements of article 1171, revised statutes of Texas, 1925, notice is hereby given to all resident citizens and qualified voters of the city of Wichita Falls that it is the intention of the board of aldermen of said city to pass an ordinance on the second day of March, A. D., 1931, at its regular place of meeting in the Memorial auditorium in said city, providing for the submission of amendments to the charter of said city to the qualified voters thereof at an election to be held in said city on the seventh day of April, A. D., 1931; said ordinance to provide for amendment to section eighty-one of said charter, such amendment to authorise the payment of taxes to the said city of Wichita Falls for 1930 and subsequent years in, not to exceed four equal installments; and further providing for penalties and interest on delinquent taxes for the year 1930 and subsequent years. And such amendment to further provide that the said city of Wichita Falls shall have a first and superior lien to secure the payment of all such taxes. Said ordinance shall also provide for an amendment to section thirty-four of said charter, which shall authorize the board of aldermen of said city to meet at such time and place as may be prescribed by ordinance, but not less frequently than once each month. At said meeting a hearing will be held by the said board at which an opportunity will be given those favoring or opposing the passing of such ordinance to appear for or against its adoption and passage. Dated this 2nd day of February, A. D., 1931. (Signed)—Walter Nelson Jr., mayor, Wichita Falls, Texas. Attest: (Signed)—W. E. McBroom, city clerk, Wichita Falls, Texas.

CITY POUND NOTICE—Taken up and impounded by the city of Wichita Falls, Texas under the provisions of ordinance No. 461, to prevent certain stock running at large: Description: One blue roach mane horse about 10 years old, about 13 hands high, blind in left eye, scar on left hip, short tail, scar on left fore leg, wire cut on right fore foot. Burned Theater To Be Rebuilt

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 8.—Contract has been let by R. E. Martin, for the rebuilding of the Gem theater building, recently destroyed by fire, and the construction work is expected to start this week, according to Mr. Martin.

When the building is completed, modern equipment of the latest type will be installed. Additional room is being provided the structure by adding about 30 feet more to the building now occupied by the Clark Drug company adjoining the theater building on the east.

Girls' Debating Trial Set in Memphis Tuesday

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 8.—On next Tuesday afternoon preliminaries in girls' debates will be held in the high school auditorium, according to Mrs. Seborn Buck, who has been coaching the teams for some time. Two teams are entered, the winning team to represent the school in debates at the county meet.

The two teams entered for the trial debate are Loreece Webster and Lola Mae Grundy, composing one team, and Jessie Wood and Vera Neeley, the other. The subject for debate is "Resolved, That a Substitute for Trial by Jury Should Be Adopted." The boys will not have preliminaries, due to the fact that only one team is entered.

MEGARGEL GAS BILLS FOUGHT

West Texas Towns Protest January Totals

Special to The Record News.

MEGARGEL, Texas, Feb. 8.—The gas users of Megargel and the city commissioners have sent a signed protest against the exceedingly high gas bills for the month of January, a period of mild weather and consequent lessor use of gas. A great many of them claim their bills for the past month was much higher than the same month one year ago, which was exceedingly cold, the thermometer registering near zero for a week and very cold all through the month.

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Feb. 8.—High gas bills for a warm January has brought about much dissatisfaction over gas rates in a number of towns in this section of the Panhandle. As a result petions are going to city councils asking for investigation of both meters and fuel value, and incidentally on tax valuations of the companies serving the cities and towns.

The gas company officials here state that meter reading dates were changed and the January rate was for a period of over 30 days while that for December was for a period of 10 days less.

In most towns the gas rate is 75 cents per thousand cubic feet with a discount of 10 per cent if bills are paid before the 10th of the month. This makes a rate of 67½ cents. The rate in Amarillo is 42 cents, Dalhart 45 cents, Pampa 45 cents, Crowell 65 cents. Childress, Memphis and Wellington are paying 75 cents. There is no service charge.

P.-T. A. at Memphis Asks Aid to Feed Hungry Children

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 8.—A call for help has been issued by the Parent-Teacher association in feeding school children. According to Mrs. Scott Sigler, president of the Parent-Teacher association of Memphis, a number of small children in Memphis go to school without breakfast and do not return home for lunch.

A drive for milk has been started by the organization, and all people that have cows and do not use all their milk are requested to give it to this organization, in order that they might help to relieve the situation in this manner.

"TEXAS HISTORY MOVIES" By Patton and Rosenfield

MARTIN RAPS CRIME WAVE

Heathen Peoples Get Strange View of Americans

Basing his address on the Lucan story of the Golden Rule and the sermon on the mount, Judge P. A. Martin in his address to members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church Sunday morning condemned the crime and immorality wave that is sweeping the country and praised the missionary work being done in foreign countries in spite of this fact.

"We have been studying the progress of missionary effort in heathen lands this past week. Nothing is said in our literature about it, but I do not hesitate to say that the worst drawback to our efforts to Christianize heathen peoples is to be found in what they see and learn of American character as exemplified by the Americans they see and read about. They are victimized by the criminal class, terrorized by our war-like demeanor and exploited by our captains of industry," the speaker pointed out.

In continuing his address, he said in part:

"Another difficult lesson confronts us today; the Lucan story of the Golden Rule and of the sermon on the mount; Scriptures which, if we are to take literally, are hard indeed to live up to. The teaching of the old Testament was 'a life for a life, an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth' and the doctrine of returning good for evil was a new one for the Jews in the days of Jesus. However, it was not unknown among the philosophers of the Orient. Over in China, Confucius and some of his disciples had taught the same doctrine some 600 years before Christ, but they had not figured out the great motive of the perfect life. They were seeking only that earthly peace for the mind and the soul that comes from doing good and seeking to avoid the pangs of conscience that follow the doing of evil. Confucius had even figured out a golden rule, it is said, embracing the negative statement of the principle 'do not do unto others that which you would not have them do unto you.'

"Jesus was speaking to an Oriental people in an Oriental language, a language well filled with proverbs, parables and hyperbole. And He was selecting words and illustrations that He thought were best calculated to carry the doctrine taught directly to the minds and consciences of the people for whom it was intended. He knew that the teaching was revolutionary in its nature and that they were not well prepared to 'endure strong doctrine.' But it had to be preached to them. They had to understand that Love was taking the place of Law and that hatred had no place in the kingdom of the new dispensation. The 'lex talionis' of ancient times had been repealed when angelic hosts sang the refrain of 'peace on earth and good will to men' over the hills near Bethlehem. And now, as He seeks to teach the people what it means, He drops into the language best suited to that purpose, a language highly figurative, and yet most expressive.

"It is hard to imagine a man who when he sees a thief getting away with his cloak, calls him back and politely invites him to take his coat also; or a man who, when smitten on one side of the face, meekly turns the other to his enemy for another blow.

"And we would call the man a mistaken philanthropist who parts with his goods to just any and everyone who happens to have the nerve to ask for them or one who loans out all his money and never asks for its return, no matter how badly he may need it.

"We may be able to imagine a man with as small a thing as a mote in his eye, but can we 'feature' an individual with a beam, a timber large enough to support the roof of a house in his eye? No, we lose the beauty of the whole lesson when we attempt to become too literal in our interpretation of it. The beauty of it is in the great thought that we must no longer resort to the law of retaliation when a man does us a wrong; must no longer dispense kindnesses with the selfish thought that the recipient of our bounty will repay; must no longer harbor anger and animosity in our own hearts and brood over our own wrongs, but on the contrary we must forgive, as we hope to be forgiven and when occasion offers, do good to the man who has done evil to us, and, regardless of our own feelings, go on wishing well for our fellow man and showing to the world the great spirit of universal love which, after all, is but the kingdom of God among men. This is the great truth taught in our lession of today in my judgment. It is what Dr. Sledd calls 'a permanent, active, and controlling good-will' in the human heart.

"When we view the lesson in this light, we not only find that it is not difficult, but it is really consistent with the experience of good men and women the world over. You may have lost your temper on occasion and indulged in words or combat with your fellow man; now whether you were in the right or the wrong, you always came out of the conflict with a feeling that it would have been much better for you to have kept your temper. Some person may have done you an injury, and, for a time you have allowed yourself to become very, very angry; but when you calmly analyze the matter, you feel that you have done yourself a real injury by getting mad at him and feeling bitter towards him about it.

"Self-examination and self-analysis is taught in the parable of the blind leading the blind and the mote and the beam, a lesson badly needed in our own age for we are all prone to magnify the faults of others and minimize our own. It is a national weakness, as well. In our intense devotion to our own sort of folks we too often fail to see the good points of other people in other lands. Much of the ill feeling of other people for America grows out of our habits and manners, as exhibited to them.

"We have been studying the progress of missionary effort in heathen lands this past week. Nothing is said in our literature about it, but I do not hesitate to say that the worst drawback to our efforts to Christianize heathen peoples, is to be found in what they see and learn of American character as exemplified by the Americans they see and read about. They are victimized by the criminal class, terrorized by our warlike demeanor and exploited by our captains of industry. Men and women of the lowest type visit their shores and inhabit their towns and cities, under the protection of the flag which they disgrace and the heathen point to them as samples of our civilization. It is a high compliment to missionary enterprise that they have made any progress at all among the people of the older civilizations like China and India.

"If we could get rid of the beams of avarice and crime, of immorality, covetousness and lust among our own people at home and abroad, we would be better able to pull out the mote of ignorance, superstition and idolatry in the eyes of these people across the seas.

The Lovely Liar

You can't have a thing, being married in such a hurry—"

"I won't have it, Grace, not for a minute!" Poppy exclaimed. Taking things from Grace, the things Grace had made so carefully. Things from her hope chest. . . . "Besides, I don't need them. I live in a furnished apartment."

"Not really, Poppy! Mother would be—well, she wouldn't like that, you know. She'd like you to have things of your own."

All so strange Grace talking to her as if she were married. Discussing linens, furnished apartments. The views mother had about married couples owning their own things. Living in their own houses.

"You oughtn't to make Roy wait any longer, Grace," Poppy switched the subject because she felt she must. She was on dangerous ground.

"I know. He's been awfully patient. After you were married, I talked to mother again about our marrying and all that, and she still thinks we ought to wait a while longer." Again Grace sighed. "Let me see your wedding ring Poppy—oh, no, don't take it off." For Poppy drew the ring from her finger and handed it to her sister. "That's bad luck you know. Pretty, isn't it? What's engraved on the inside?" And Poppy held her breath.

She'd never looked on the inside, yet she realized that there were often inscriptions. . . .

"Nothing," she said quickly, taking the ring from Grace, and putting it back on her own hand. "Nothing," but her voice was shaking.

"I thought I saw something—" the telephone interrupted her, and Grace ran downstairs to answer it.

Poppy took the ring off, and looked at the inscription. Grace was right. There was something. So small she could hardly make out the words. "Betsy from Phil. May 19, 1926."

Injured Frederick Boy Recovering From Hurts

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Feb. 8.—Condition of Virgil Lyles, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lyles, residing at the Hollman sand pits, north of Frederick; who was injured Thursday when a grader fell on him, is reported improving. The boy was helping Haskell Hollman, who was driving a truck, Virgil riding the grader which was attached behind. The boy was taken to the Frederick hospital where it was found his left arm was broken and his collar bone fractured.

WOMAN VISIONS DIPLOMAT HILL

Senator's Widow Developing Home Area

By BESS FURMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. (AP)—An ideal steadfastly held for a quarter of a century will find lofty realization if congress accepts the wealthy Mrs. John Brooks Henderson's home as a vice presidential mansion.

High and impressive on its hilltop, it will typify the official prestige which Mrs. Henderson, friend of the presidents from Lincoln to the present day, has sought for fashionable Sixteenth street.

This broad thoroughfare, which, if extended, would bisect the White House at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, once was called "Avenue of the Presidents" at Mrs. Henderson's request.

The name didn't stick, but Mrs. Henderson has never ceased to struggle for another re-christening as she has wooed, with rare bargains, stately foreign embassies into the environs of Meridian park, across from her home.

"Her whole mind is crystallized on making artistic and beautiful her part of Washington," said her Japanese private secretary, Jesse S. Shima. "She visioned all of the embassies and legations here, each a beautiful building designed according to the architecture of its own country."

More than 300 lots, all expensive, Mrs. Henderson purchased in the vicinity of Meridian Hill to further her dream. Instead of collecting rents from the humble cottages that happened to be on them, she swept them all away, planning for the erection of stately mansions.

Spanish, Cuban and Polish diplomatic headquarters came to sites purchased at half market value or less. Often she contributed also to construction. The French and Lithuanian diplomatic representatives moved into her mansions—she has a half dozen clustered about Meridian Hill. The Mexican embassy came to ground she had formerly owned.

But the most cherished site of all, purchased at $600,000, Mrs. Henderson had set aside in her own mind for the British embassy.

To this day, her secretary said, she refers to the site as "the British embassy," and her disappointment was great when the diplomatic representatives of England chose to erect their handsome new headquarters on Massachusetts avenue, far from her hill.

But undaunted, only a month ago she offered the site to Minister Wu for construction of a Chinese diplomatic home in Oriental architecture. To the Greek ambassador also she has made recent overtures with a view to having built a house "in a style to suit." Should the nation accept her home as vice presidential headquarters, Mrs. Henderson's secretary said, her disappointment in the loss of the British embassy would be partially assauged.

Simple, even rigorous, is the life of this public-spirited woman, now nearly a nonagenarian, many times a millionaire. A strict prohibitionist, she once emptied a cellar full of rare wines into the gutter. She rises early, exercises daily, eats no meat but chooses instead a diet of vegetables, fruits and nuts.

Her diplomatic center developments are her own idea, carried out since the death of her husband, a senator from Missouri.

Start of Childress Road Work To Provide Work for 100 Men

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Feb. 8.—County Engineer S. D. Bacon reports working orders for highway 5 have been received and that work will be under way at once. This work is between Childress and the east line of the county, where the highway connects with the Hardeman county highway.

The contractors shipped in their machinery and camping equipment about two weeks ago and had all arrangements made for the beginning of the work as soon as notified. The work, so it is stated, will begin at a point about five miles east of this city, at a point known locally as Horsehead, where some of the heaviest grading will have to be done.

Recently the state highway commission announced that highway contracts let for work in drouth stricken counties would specify local labor must be used. The announcement is made that this contract calls for the employment of local labor. This will give employment to almost 100 men, which will give considerable relief to the labor situation at this place and in the county.

While not officially announced, it is believed that other highway work will be contracted within a short time. So far no contract has been let for the building of highway 4 from Red river to the north line of the county on highway 4. Also no contract has been let for the erection of a bridge over Red river on this highway.

Also, the grading on highway 4 from the city to the south line of the county, where connection is made with the highway in Cottle county, has been completed for almost a year and the grade is ready for topping with concrete. It is expected this work will be under way by the early part of the summer, as the commissioners court expects to ask for this work.

Fannie Hurst Compares Lives of Wife and Mistress in Interview

By H. ALLEN SMITH

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. (UP)—Fannie Hurst, the novelist, put on a going-away hat with a funny little veil attached and came downstairs to hazard a few opinions on "immoral" women.

It was the worst of all possible hats to wear during an interview. The veil is built onto the hat in the manner of a catcher's mask, sticking out from her face two or three inches and supported in that position by a heavy wire frame. This frame, when Miss Hurst is looking directly at you, is about even with her nose, but Miss Hurst isn't always looking directly at you.

Every time she tilts her head you can't see her nose, or her eyes, or her mouth, according to the angle of the tilt. And since Miss Hurst is a highly personable young woman, the veil served as a source of worry for the interviewer.

About this new book of hers. The mere fact she has used a mistress as the central character in her story doesn't indicate, she said, she has espoused the cause of the kept woman, or given support to her manner of living.

"Not that it makes a great deal of difference," she said, saucily tilting her head and thereby cutting off the view of her eyes.

"I'm inclined to the opinion a woman who lives with the man she loves is more moral than a woman who marries a man she doesn't love. Ray Schmidt, the girl in 'Back Street,' is a composite of a number of women of her type that I have known or observed. She is a fictive person, yet I believe she is true."

Miss Hurst said she has tried to show, among other things, that the mistress has to build up and maintain an aura of mystery and romance about her person in order to exist. She has to be a glamorous individual, a spectacular person, sensuous and wily, in order to hold her spot on the social scene.

If she did not devote most of her time to the business of making herself attractive, she would be lost, the author said.

The modern day wife, Miss Hurst thinks, expends too much time on outside pursuits, such as business and society and clubs. She doesn't devote enough time to the task of keeping her husband interested.

"Therein lies the fundamental difference between the wife and the mistress," Miss Hurst said. "I don't know but that the wife could take a few lessons from the kept woman. In a great many instances the wife, secure within her smug legal boundaries, grows lax in these things. That's why ugly developments sometimes pop up."

The author said that since publication of "Back Street" she has been deluged by mail, from men and women all over the United States. Some of them excoriate her, others praise her. The one distinct impression the writer has received is that women are generally quiet cruel to women. There are more letters condemning Ray Schmidt than there are sympathizing with her.

Miss Hurst left for Cincinnati, the city of her new story. She will visit relatives there.

WHEN YOU ARE QUEEN

The empress of Germany was taught as a girl to mix dough and bake bread. Housekeeping was a serious problem for Queen Victoria of England. The empress of China sent anxiously to remote parts of Asia for delicacies to serve to guests.

When you as a housewife enter the portals of your new home, whether it is a small apartment or a residence of magnificent proportions, you are truly a queen with power greater and swifter than any of these regal ladies possessed over their own tables.

You have behind you the organized resources of the greatest merchants in all the world. These merchants do not wait for your orders. They anticipate them!

Bread? Merchant-bakers will deliver it promptly to your order, in waxed paper, warm from the oven, perfectly mixed and baked to perfection!

Housekeeping? No special training is needed for this today; for mechanical servants serve you at every turn, and the advertisements are always at hand to guide and advise you in your selection of food, furnishings or household aids.

Guests? Advertisers have made the art of entertaining one of the most precious accomplishments of American hostesses . . . and their authoritative advice helps you meet every delightful social occasion.

Advertisements have made you truly a Queen in the American Home!
