From the Pulpit— A Greater Audience— Better in Prison— Lock-Step—

A new feature contributed by the pastors of Wichita Falls churches, the "One Minute Pulpit," is inaugurated by this newspaper on the editorial page today. These brief sermons or quotations, bits of philosophy or famous passages from the Bible or literature, are worth reading by those who are given to thought, or who seek to interpret and improve this life. Rev. David Rees-Jones, pastor of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church, is the first contributor. Other "minute pulpits" will follow daily.

It has long been this writer's belief that pastors make too little use of the press. Of course some of them may make a too liberal use of its privileges, but usually on the side of politics or personal glory, not for religion. A Wichita Falls pastor through a Wichita Falls paper may address a greater audience in one day than will assemble in all the churches of Wichita Falls in a month. This is largely true in any city of the nation. Yet, pastors make fewer demands for newspaper space than almost any group engaged in public enterprise or public welfare.

The Record News found Wichita Falls pastors ready to contribute condensed sermons or quotations. All might not have been convinced of the good of such a program, but not one was unwilling to give his time to such a project. It MIGHT do good.

Ed Lasater of Falfurrias, who has the distinction of operating the largest ranch for Jersey cattle in the world, sees an assured future for the Wichita area in the dairy business. So does J. T. Harrell, chairman of the agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce. Mr. Harrel could tell Mr. Lasater that about two cars of Jersey cattle a month are being shipped into Wichita Falls for distribution to farmers in this section.

Raymond Hall, minstrel jailbreaker, bandit and gun man, might have turned his talents in other directions and amounted to something in a law-abiding way. Judging from his exploits, he might have been a guitar or ukulele player in vaudeville. He might have been a lawyer. He might have been a poet, a fiction writer, a painter or newspaperman. He has shown abilities in all directions. Then there are those who believe that his sentence of life in the penitentiary is better for the world than any other the last named occupations.

Units of the Texas national guard here may secure the basement of the Memorial auditorium as a permanent armory, according to a news story Thursday morning. The Wichita Falls units certainly deserve better quarters than are available at present. The auditorium basement would make an ideal location, and at present serves no useful purpose.

In the original auditorium plans, the top portion of the building was to be a war memorial, while the basement was to serve as a market place for vegetables and other products of Wichita Valley farms. Either the market place or the vegetables never materialized, for the building has never been used for its designated purpose. Now the basement may be used as a training place for guard units. Why not? War memorials on top and lockstep in the basement.

BLACK FOUND BY CITIZENS AFTER CHASE

Comanche, Okla., Woman Assaulted in Home By Negro

GUN THREAT MADE

Children Locked Out Of Room as Mother Is Attacked

COMANCHE, Okla., Aug. 2. (UP) An unidentified negro, the alleged attacker of a white woman who lived on a farm near here, was trailed by a posse of citizens and riddled with bullets tonight by possemen who claimed the negro had reached for a gun.

The negro, whose name and age could not be learned on account of his serious wounds, was brought here so badly wounded he was expected to die. It was improbable he would be able to make a statement before he died, physicians said.

His hiding place in a thicket three miles south of here was found by the posse after several hours of search. A discarded hat and later a discarded pair of shoes were clues which lead to the negro's capture.

The negro is alleged to have assaulted the woman, Mrs. H. A. Evans, after threatening her with a revolver and locking her in a room of the farm home. Her children were locked outside the house while the husband was working in the field.

The order prohibited leasing of films in a group, under which picture houses are compelled to take all the pictures or none.

Textile Unions Vote On Proposed Arbitration

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 2. (AP)—Interest of 28,000 operatives engaged in a textile strike here turned tonight to a poll among the members of the New Bedford Textile Council unions on the advisability of submitting the situation to arbitration. A 10 per cent wage cut was the issue.

Predictions were that when the vote had been compiled it would show overwhelming majority against arbitration.

Wichitans Make Half Million Bottles of Brew Per Month

97,500 Persons Could Be Made Joyous With Month's Sale of Malt

Enough home brew is manufactured in Wichita Falls each month to guarantee total unreliability to approximately 48,750 persons of average fortitude and strength, or to produce considerable hilarity to 97,500 men and women, it was revealed here Tuesday after a canvass of the city's sale of malt.

According to wholesalers, Wichita Falls residents purchase upwards of 3,900 cans of malt each week, or a total of 1,300 cases or 15,600 cans each month. Sale of malt during the summer months reaches a heavy volume, and has shown a steady increase during the last few years, according to dealers.

While inquiring reporters could find little "official" information as to how many bottles of home brew can be secured from a can of malt and other necessary ingredients, estimates ran from 400,000 to 900,000 bottles as the amount to be secured from 15,000 cans.

Taken along less pretentious lines, it seems one can of malt properly handled, would provide a fairly happy reunion for 16 persons, while 25 could participate in a Dutch lunch with more than average appetite. Anywhere from 30 to 50 agreeable afternoons could be spent in playing solitare in your own kitchen or garage by the same token, it is said.

Dealers here seem to have little information as to whether the malt sold went into the beverage which made Milwaukee famous or into more lawful concoctions. It may be used as syrup, in pies, cakes and pastries. And it may not.

COLQUITT MAY RE-ENTER RACE

Writer Sees Possibility Of Triangle Contest

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 2. (UP)—Connally or Mayfield? This run-off race for United States senator promises to rouse more interest and activity than all the races of the first state Democratic primary.

Supporters of each can give you seemingly cogent reasons why their man cannot fail of victory.

For Connally the two principal arguments are that the approximately 450,000 who voted for Connally, Blanton, Owsley, Cunningham and McLemore were voting against Mayfield and that in political races the first primary leader has usually been defeated in the run-off.

For Mayfield it is to be pointed out that he starts in the race with a considerable number more of known supporters than Connally. If they voted for Mayfield in the first primary with a large field to choose from they are not likely to quit him in the run-off.

Mayfield's Advantage

Mayfield has also the advantage of knowing where to center his run-off campaign activities. If the votes for other candidates were really votes against him he has only to look at the returns, find out where he got few votes and patch up the difficulties in those places.

On the second proposition that a leader in the first primary loses in the run-off, records on senatorial races are neutral. In 1916, O. B. Colquitt led the first primary and was beaten by Culberson in the run-off. But in 1922, Mayfield led both the first primary, the run-off with Jim Ferguson and the general election, when George E. B. Peddy was put up as a combination candidate for bolting Democrats and Republicans.

Colquitt Possibility

That Colquitt might yet be pitted against Mayfield or Connally is not an impossibility. At any time within 30 days after the run-off, Colquitt's name can be placed on the ballot as an independent or non-partisan candidate. When Colquitt withdrew from the primary race on the ground that Smith would be the party nominee for president and he could not support Smith, the

Fairtrace Pledges Support to Burns And Praises Work of Police Chief

Frank Burns, Wichita Falls chief of police, will continue in his present position with the "full backing and support" of City Manager George D. Fairtrace, the city manager said Thursday in one of his first declarations on the operation of any department here.

Praising the monthly report of the police department, which showed unusual activity by officers during July, Mr. Fairtrace said he wished to set at rest all rumors and reports that a change would be made in the department.

"Chief Burns is doing excellent work and will continue as chief of police in every respect," said Mr. Fairtrace.

"He will have my backing and support, and I look to see the best work in the history of the department under Chief Burns' direction."

On assuming office here as city manager, Mr. Fairtrace declined to make any anouncement of changes in the personnel of departments, but indicated every city employe would have opportunity to prove his worth before final action by the manager.

In the case of the police department, several applications for the chief's position are known to have been made. The announcement Thursday by Mr. Fairtrace, who has complete authority as city manager in selecting city employes, made clear that these applications will no longer be considered.

CITY POSTAL RECEIPTS GAIN

Heavy Increase Shown In July Business

Receipts for the Wichita Falls postoffice totaled $190,947.41 for the first seven months of 1928, showing an increase of $3,500.94 over the corresponding period of 1927 when the receipts aggregated $187,446.47, according to the monthly postal report released Thursday by O. P. Maricle, postmaster.

The receipts for July of 1928 totaled $26,060.33, showing a gain of $2,396.25 compared with July of 1927, which totaled $23,664.18.

The heavy increase of July receipts was interpreted here as indicating a general trend toward a growing volume of business over this section.

Tunney Quits Ring To Save Sanity He Reveals In News Interview

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (UP)—The New York Daily News, in a copyrighted story published tonight under the signature of Paul Gallico, News' sports editor, stated that it had learned from the lips of Gene Tunney that he retired from the heavyweight boxing throne to save his sanity.

The story sets forth that Tunney gave this version of his retirement to Gallico and another sports writer in the presence of a few personal friends.

An accident during the course of his training for the second bout with Jack Dempsey—the Chicago fight—was responsible for Tunney's decision, the story stated.

While sparring with one of his partners, Gene was butted over the left eye. Then, before he had recovered, the sparring partner let go with a terrific right to Tunney's head which almost knocked him down. Tunney fought back and sent his partner sprawling under the ropes but it was several days before the champion's head recovered from the butting and the hard right blow.

For several days, the News' story relates, Tunney wandered about his camp and rested in his room. For two days he did not know his

SPAIN'S BEAUTY IN PRISON AT NEW ORLEANS

Entrant in Pageant At Galveston and Her Chaperone Held

OWES HOTEL BILL

Pretty Girl Declares Her Romance With Youth Is Shattered

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2. (AP)—Penniless and barred from seeking work by a provision of the United States immigration laws, Senorita Aguedo Adorno, "Miss Spain" at the international beauty contest at Galveston, Texas, in June, is a prisoner at the Algiers immigration station facing deportation.

The pretty young woman and her chaperone, Senora Alma Alba, were arrested yesterday in a New Orleans hotel where they were stranded. They came to New Orleans from Galveston. The immigration inspector L. H. Vincent said they would be held pending a hearing at the request of Spanish authorities who suspect them of contemplating violation of their visitors' passports. No date for the hearing has been set.

Romance Interrupted

From behind the bars of the immigration station, Senorita Agueda revealed that her arrest and probable deportation would bring to an abrupt end a romance with a young Spanish resident of New Orleans whom she declined to name. She declared her willingness to marry him immediately if only the federal authorities would allow her to remain in America.

"I don't want to go back to Spain," she cried. "The men there are beasts. If I could just get my freedom and stay in America I would be happy."

Senora Alba would say but little. Immigration authorities revealed that she was concluding a book on Cuban people and their customs.

Funds Exhausted

Inspector Vincent said Senorita Agueda and her chaperone were allowed to enter the United States for the specific purpose of allowing the young woman to compete in the beauty pageant. After the pageant they came to New Orleans with every indicated intention of remaining permanently, the inspector said. Meanwhile their funds were exhausted, resulting in an appeal being made by the management of the hotel to the Spanish consul in their behalf. Their visitors' passports would prevent them accepting work.

PEEK LINES UP BEHIND SMITH

Republican Farm Leader Joins Democrats

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (UP)—George N. Peek, western farm relief leader and former Republican, today endorsed Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York for president.

Peek said he was won over to the Democratic candidate after hearing his views on farm relief. He promised to work among the farmers for Smith's election.

Peek made his declaration after a lengthy conference with Gov. Smith, who, himself, issued a statement today recognizing the need of agriculture relief based on the principle that its cost must "be imposed on the unit to be benefited," which is also the principle of the equalization fee for which Peek and the corn belt committee he heads still is agitating. Smith did not come out specifically for the equalization fee, the so-called "heart" of the McNary-Haugen bill which President Coolidge recently vetoed for the second time.

"As a result of my conference with Governor Smith this morning, I feel certain that he has a clear and correct understanding of the farm problem and that he will solve it with intellectual honesty if he is elected president," Peek said.

Peek's declaration for the Democratic candidate was the cause for jubilation in the Democratic camp here.

After declaring for Smith, Peek devoted the rest of his lengthy formal statement here to an attack on Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential candidate.

French Flier Ready For Try From Paris To Philadelphia

LE BOURGET, France, Aug. 2. (AP)—The Polish airmen, Major Louis Idzikowski and Major Kasimir Kubala, hopped off for New York at 5:48 a. m. today.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (UP)—The Atlantic Transport line's steamship Minnewaska radioed tonight that it had rescued Capt. Frank Courtney and his three companions, who were forced down early this morning while attempting an airplane flight from the Azores islands to this country, via Newfoundland.

The message, which came to the Radio Marine corporation from the commander of the Minnewaski said: "Rescued Courtney and his crew from plane. All well. position 42 degrees, 27 minutes north latitude; 30 degrees, five minutes, west longitude."

The message was timed to indicate that the rescue took place at 10 p. m., Greenwich time, or 5 p. m., eastern standard time.

The message from the master of the Minnewaska confirmed United Press reports carried at the approximate time of the rescue.

The Thuringia contributed by acting as a relay ship for messages. The air was filled with reports checked back and forth by the rescue ships.

Just before 5 p. m., eastern standard time, The United Press received a radiogram from the master of the steamship Columbus reporting that the Minnewaska had radioed that it had sighted the Whale and giving the position as 42 degrees, 27 minutes north latitude, 30 degrees, five minutes west longitude.

All Aboard Safe

A little later the master of the liner Celtic radioed The United Press a similar report.

It was not until 9 p. m. that the report came direct from the Minnewaska that the rescue had been effected and all aboard were well.

It was not known what caused the Whale, which was a craft considered both highly airworthy and seaworthy, to come down.

The position where the rescue was effected was 605 miles from Horta and was 275 miles northwest

President of Road Built by Lazarus Denies Claims in Suit for $1,000,000

Denial of the claims of Silas A. Lazarus, who filed suit in St. Louis for $1,000,000 against the estate of the late Sam Lazarus, is contained in a statement received here Thursday by John P. Marrs, Wichita attorney, from Charles H. Sommer, president of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railway company.

The late Sam Lazarus was well known in Texas and Wichita Falls as the builder of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific railroad, while Mr. Marrs was his attorney during this period. Silas Lazarus in his suit claimed to be an illegitimate son of the railroad builder, and asked for a division of the property.

Mr. Sommer's statement follows:

"I have been a business associate and close friend of Sam Lazarus for over 25 years, during which time I have been most intimately in touch with all of his business and personal affairs, and still continue to administer the affairs of his estate. I have never heard, during all that time, of Silas A. Laz-

Prof. Claims Babies Not Injured by Mothers Who Drink

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 2. (UP)—A flapper can take a "nip" from a whiskey bottle and puff cigaretes and still not endanger the health of her babies after marriage, Dr. John Whiteridge Williams, professor of obstetrics at John Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., said here today.

"Drink—and most women drink very little—does not harm mothers. In Germany, beer is a baby's first diet and in France water is unknown," Dr. Williams declared.

"As for cigarets—nothing to it. Women are just as able to smoke cigarets as men and the effects are the same."

Colquitt May Re-Enter Race

way became open for Colquitt to run as an independent.

Incidentally, the Texas election laws make it much easier for Colquitt to get into the general election that way than by staying in the primary. In the primary it would take at least 200,000 supporters to be a candidate. He can become an independent or non-partisan candidate with 2,655 supporters. The Texas election law permits the filing of such a candidacy on petition of 1 per cent of those who voted in the last preceding general election. In that election the conclusion was so foregone that only 263,507 votes were cast. One per cent is 2,655.

Ferguson Watched

If such a petition is presented the secretary of state would have no choice but must include Colquitt's name in the general election ballot.

Much speculation has been had over Jim Ferguson's attitude in the run-off. His race with Mayfield was one of the most bitter ever fought in Texas, yet there are some who believe Ferguson will be for Mayfield. Congressman Claude Hudspeth of El Paso has come out for Mayfield and it is recollected that Hudspeth was a strong Ferguson supporter in his days in the Texas senate. Also one of Mrs. Ferguson's private secretaries holds a similar position now with Hudspeth. Ferguson supported Owsley in the first primary, publishing his speaking dates in a box opposite those of Louis J. Wardlaw, defeated candidate for governor. Hudspeth also supported Owsley.

Barry Miller probably will not inherit the usual enmity incurred by a leader in the first primary. J. D. Parnell, who ran third against Miller for lieutenant governor, was prompt to pledge his aid to Miller. The race is so sharply divided over the question of supporting the national ticket that it is more likely Thomas B. Love, Miller's opponent in the run-off, cast his maximum vote in the first primary than that Miller got his maximum.

Youth Arrested For Murder of Girl, 17

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—A message to the Brownwood Bulletin today from Goldthwaite announced arrest of Bert Mayfield, 23, charged with murder of Ruby Osborne, 17-year-old Goldthwaite girl, who died four days after being found unconscious beside the highway near that city.

Mayfield, for whom officers of two counties had searched since the girl's death a week ago, was arrested near Hamilton.

Plainview Bank Slip Is Clue at Hastings

HASTINGS, Okla., Aug. 2. (UP) A deposit slip on a Plainview, Texas, bank has connected the three bandits who Monday robbed the Oklahoma National bank here with a house robbery in Plainview, officers disclosed today.

The deposit slip, taken from a coat in a Plainview residence, was found on the floor of the bank after the robbery. The name on the slip was the same as that of the man whose home had been robbed.

CITY REVIVES SONG GUILDS

Summer Zoo Opera in Cincinnati 'Different'

CINCINNATI, Ohio., Aug. 2. (AP)—Butcher and baker and candlestick maker will blend their voices in Cincinnati this summer in a revival of singing guilds, which in other days brightened the life of old world communities.

The music fete is planned in coordination with the production of Wagner's opera of labor devoting itself to song, "Die Meistersinger von Nuremburg," the most ambitious undertaking in the history of the Cincinnati summer Zoo Opera company.

Rivals Bayreuthian

Men of the Big Four railroad, the Bakers' Singing society and other groups of artisans and craftsmen have joined their voices to groups from the musical colleges, virtually every important singing organization in the city, and public school choruses, to make the event rival the famous Bayreuthian festival of Germany.

These groups will support the regular stars of the Zoo Opera company who will sing the principal roles.

The scene will be the summer opera auditorium at the Cincinnati Zoological Gardens, and the production will be directed by Isaac Van Grove.

"Die Meistersinker" is seldom attempted because of the large cast and the chorus required, groups from all the guilds of the day having parts in its European performances.

To follow the production as closely to Wagner's intent as the stage permits the Cincinnati craftsmen all will be given parts.

Symphony Orchestra

The Cincinnati May Festival organization has been called upon for its best voices, and the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra will play the score.

The opera will be presented three nights during the first week in August, and the stars will include artists from the Metropolitan and Chicago Civic Opera companies.

Among the principals will be Fred Patton as Hans Sachs, the cobbler; Forrest Lamont as Sir Walter von Stolzing, a young Franconian knight; Henri Scott as Veit Pogner, the goldsmith; Joseph Schenke as Kunz Vogelgesang, the furrier; Louis John Johnson as Sixtus Nachtigal, the buckle maker; Herbert Gould as Fritz Kothner, the baker; Constance Eberhardt as Magdalena, and Elizabeth Amsden as Eva, the daughter of the goldsmith.

The other leading roles are the town clerk, the pewterer, the grocer, the tailor, the soap boiler, the stocking weaver, the coppersmith and a night watchman.

League to Advise School Editors

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 2.—Criticisms of the "makeup," style and policies of newspapers edited by the high school students of Texas will be published in the Interscholastic Leaguer, paper issued monthly by the Interscholastic league bureau of the University of Texas, Roy Bedichek, chief of the bureau, has announced.

The papers of all schools enrolled in the press conference, a meeting of which is held annually at the university under the auspices of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity, and the Interscholastic league bureau, are now being graded and criticized by the members of the fraternity, according to DeWitt Reddick, faculty sponsor.

Plans are now being worked out by the fraternity for the next conference, which is to be held in the spring. Invitations are extended to the editors of all high school papers to enroll in the conference. The press conference was organized last spring and officers were elected. Mary Elizabeth Eikel of New Braunfels is director and Hal Sayles of Abilene is assistant director.

Old Singing Guilds Revived

Groups of Cincinnati craftsmen will sing the choruses in the summer zoo opera's production of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg" in August. Soloists include Elizabeth Amsden (upper right) and Forrest Lamont (below). Isaac Van Grove (above) is director.

Total appropriation sought for the first year of the biennial beginning Sept. 1, 1929, is $1,540,825 and for the second year $1,690,225 as compared to the currently available appropriations of $843,123 and 787,050 for the first and second years, respectively, of this biennium.

CAPONE'S BEER PRICES SOAR

Gangsters Dismayed At Lack of Killings

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (UP)—Chicago gangsters, grown despondent since the dismal failure of the last three beer wars, took heart today in reports that the return of Scarface Al Capone, exiled lord of the underworld, was fraught with grave eventualities.

Shaking off their lethargy, they heard that Capone was back to wreak vengeance on enemies who had taken advantage of his absence to burn down a $100,000 alcohol recooking plant and otherwise hamper his operations just at the peak of the mid-summer liquor business.

They heard likewise that efforts were being made to arrest Capone for the killing of Frank Uale, Brooklyn gang chief, and that he had returned to learn how he stood with Chicago's new police commissioner, William F. Russell.

All in all, it was a most encouraging outlook for the restless gangsters.

Shatters Hopes

Hardly had they reached for their machine guns, however, when Johnny Genaro, admiral of Capone's great fleet of beer trucks, and Frank Nitti, commander general of the Capone field artillery, rose up as spokesmen for their chief and dashed all hopes for renewed outbreaks of violence.

Admiral Genaro and General Nitti announced that Mr. Capone, having spent his exile fashionably in Miami, Fla., and Los Angeles, had returned to Chicago only as a peaceful citizen and with the desire to encounter no further difficulties in maintaining permanent residence. He planned no reprisals, it was said, and begged merely to be allowed to go about his harmless bootlegging activities quietly.

Capone Exonerated

An investigation of police blotters and other data seemed to bear out the statement. No gang activities of consequence were listed, and recently no suburban ditches have yielded bullet-riddled bodies.

Further, Mr. Capone was represented as feeling he was the victim of an injustice in the Uale incident. Despite the claim of New York police that it was directly traceable to him through a gun purchased in Miami, the Chicago officials scoff at the idea that Capone had anything to do with the killing. They are not looking for him, that is, they hastened to add, unless he once more becomes obstreperous.

However, from sources close to Mr. Capone it was learned that developments now brewing may bring renewed hope to the languishing Chicago gunmen.

Beer went from $60 to $75 a barrel today. It was the initial move of a campaign by Mr. Capone and other captains of the beer industry to freeze out the small fry operating soft drink parlors in competition with the leaders. Something may come of that. The gangsters hope so.

Hero of 'Cappy Ricks' Stories On Last Voyage Back to Coast Home

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (US)—Capt. Robert Dollar, 84-year-old steamship baron, sailed his ship into the unusually lonely seas of old age with the cheers of hundreds of his friends of all nationalities ringing in his ears.

Thin, wiry and slight, with a thin white beard, the reputed original of the "Cappy Ricks" stories sat today on the edge of a huge arm chair in the offices of the Dollar line here and recounted old Chicago incidents.

He is on his way back to San Francisco, his present home, after a trip around the world. Almost wistfully the steamship man acknowledged that he had visited his old home in the highlands of Scotland. There was no one there who remembered him.

"I'm getting pretty much alone in the world," said the old sea lord, "but I've thousands of friends and reason to thank God for their friendship."

"Peter Kyne? Certainly I know Pete. Why, he was only a lad when I hired him to go to China. He took sick and started writing stories. He came to me and told me he could make more money writing yarns."

"Yes," continued Captain Dollar, "I know the yarns are supposed to be about me. Cappy Ricks. Pete knows I never was a ship's captain."

Local Waitress Once Tortured By Aching Feet Gets Instant Relief

If there's anyone in the world who can't afford to have aching, burning feet, it's a waitress. Nothing is more distressing than sore, tired feet during a busy hour. According to Mrs. Beula Bentley's story, it's real agony. Mrs. Bentley, who is a waitress in Boston cafe, a popular Wichita Falls restaurant, knows from painful experience what she is talking about when she says:

"I've been using Coolene for only a short time, but I want to tell you how wonderful it is. You see, I am a waitress—and must be on my feet from morning until night, so before long they began to get sore and tender. They'd get as hot as an oven and burn just as much. When waiting on people, it was pretty hard to keep smiling when every step was torture. But about a month ago I tried Coolene and it turned out to be just the thing for me. It made my burning feet feel cool and comfortable overnight. It took the soreness and pain from them—and made them feel in tip-top condition. Since then the busiest days don't bother me a bit."

Now you, too, can enjoy instant relief from tired, aching, burning feet. Coolene, a marvelous new soothing cream, contains rare oils—and frankincense and myrrh—used by the ancients for centuries to protect their feet from hot desert sands.

It penetrates at once to the inflamed nerves—soothes and cools them—relieves congestion in the tiny veins. Almost instantly all foot miseries vanish and your aching feet feel new and refreshed.

Agonizing foot pains caused by corns, callouses and bunions usually disappear with the first application of Coolene. Greaseless, vanishes instantly, cannot stain. Satisfaction guaranteed, or small cost refunded. Sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere, such as: J. M. Spoonts, J. H. Allison, Renfro Drug Co., Brook & Eighth Drug Store.

Coolene is securing these remarkable results not only in this city but everywhere. Miss Jean Kulpovich, another popular waitress, says, "Coolene took the pain and swollen from my feet at once."

Ramblin'
with
Marie Theresa

A MEANS of decreasing the prevailing large number of husband murders has just come to my attention. It is the idea of a French countess, Jeanne La Mar, who is at present giving a series of exhibitions in Los Angeles to stimulate boxing among women.

Now, that's what I would suggest as a fair solution to the problem of keeping husbands outta the way without having to use widdow sashes and other expedient means.

When you stop to think about it, there really is no need of killing them.

THIS communication reached me this morning: "Dear Marie Theresa: And, why, may I be so bold as to ask, why should the ice water in individual coolers, of which you spoke in your column vesterday, be placed at your LEFT elbow?" and it is signed "Your Devoted Slave."

Had I any idea that there were still devoted slaves to do the bidding of damsels thirsty and in distress, I would never have mentioned so modern and uninteresting a thing as a water cooler—I should pine and weep for a cool, dripping drink from a moss-covered old pitcher, just like the one Rebecca carried at the well, brought to me every few minutes by the D. S. who pinned me the above message.

In case you are really interested in knowing why the left elbow, Slave, a dusty, weather-beaten and wholly prosaic desk is at my right, and there is no room for a cooler.

TEXANS don't know how to walk.

That statement was made by one of the best-known business women of the city Wednesday evening, after she had heard complaints made by several women on the amount of sunburn they can accumulate daily.

Despite the great distinces Texans may travel without having to cross state lines, they have been badly spoiled in this matter of getting about from place to place unless there is the ubiquitous auto to convey them to their destination.

CHICAGO style expert expresses the opinion that the bustle will again be worn by women of America. The fashion of 30 years past will be revived, according to this expert, as a swing from the extremely slender and hipless mode of the present.

And in yesterday's press was a feature written from the words of other creators, who expressed the opinion that women do not adhere to styles unless they are suited to the time and circumstances, that the times and the stress of the age creates the fashions. Designers are but ministers to time and necessity in the fashioning of attire, both masculine and feminine.

I have a mental photograph of a business woman, for instance, setting herself out awav among a pair of leg o' mutton sleeves and a bustle that would take up the greater part of the room or the small apartment she occupies, not to speak of the inconvenience of the things in the office and elevators.

Bustles may return, but in spirit only.

STORY OF WAR TOLD IN POEM

Benet Writes Longest Epic Of Southern Strife

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (UP)—Stephen Vincent Benet, who, because he is but 30 years old, is classed as one of the youngest writers, brought something new into American literature today.

It is an 80,000-word cycloramic poem, which begins with John Brown's raid upon Harper's Ferry, tells the entire story of the war between the states, and ends with the surrender of Lee at Appomattox.

Benet has worked upon it practically all of the last two years. He was financed chiefly by a fellowship given him by the Guggenheim foundation. Most of the actual writing was done in France.

Not only is this the longest poem an American writer has produced, but its publishers, Doubleday-Doran, have issued an edition of 70,000 copies which is many times larger than the first editions of a large percentage of the popular books of the day. No poetical work has ever been published on its initial appearance in such numbers.

"John Brown's Body"

"John Brown's Body" is the title Benet has given his work. But after the first of the eight books into which it is divided, John Brown is all but forgotten.

There follows in rapid fashion pictures drawn in words of the leaders of both sides; bits of romance; tales of life among those left at home both in the South and North; stories of individual soldiers, and crashing battle scenes.

Benet, in a foreword, explains that the greater part of his work is historically accurate. He cites the portions which are imaginative.

"What I have chiefly tried to do in it was to evoke sights, sounds, odors, landscapes, places, ideas, names and men which seemed to me peculiarly American" he wrote his publishers.

A prologue opens the book presenting the Yankee captain of a slaving ship and his youthful mate in the cabin of their boat as they leave the African coast with a cargo of slaves. The mate has qualms over the business at hand. The captain philosophizes and quotes to him the Bible. The prologue is as vivid as any scene in the book.

There follows the story of John Brown's raid told with as much violence of detail as some of the battle scenes. Then comes the story of the war.

Strong Characterization

Particularly strong are Benet's pictures of his characters. Of Jefferson Davis he writes:

You are not the warm night on the Bayou,
or the New Orleans lamps,
The white wine bubbles in the crystal cup,
The almond blossoms, sleepy in the sun;
But, nevertheless, you are the South in word, deed, thought and temper,
The cut cameo, brittle but durable, refined
but fine,
The hands well shaped, not subtle, but not weak,
The mind set in tradition, but not unjust,
The generous slave-holder, the gentleman
Who neither forces his gentility
Nor lets it be held lightly—
And yet, and yet
I think you look too much like John Calhoun,
I think your temper is brittly-posed,
I think your hands too scholar-sensitive,
I think you are all things except success,
all honesty
Except the ultimate honesty of the earth,
All talents but the genius of the sun.

He sees Lincoln as follows:

"Lincoln, 6 feet 1 in his stocking feet,
The lank man, knotty and tough as a
hickory rail,
Whose hands were always too big for white
kid gloves,
Whose wit was a coon skin sack of dry,
tall tales,
Whose weathered face was homely as a
plowed field—
Abraham Lincoln who padded up and down
The sacred White House in night shirt and carpet slippers,
And yet could strike young hero-worshipping hay
As dignified past any neat, balanced, fine
Plutarchian sentences, carved in a Latin bronze;
The low-clown out of the prairies, the ape-
buffoon,
The small town lawyer, the crude, small-
time politician
State-character, but comparative failure at forty
In spite of ambition enough for 20 Caesars,
Honesty rare as a man without self-pity,
Kindness as large and plain as a prairie
wind,
And a self-confidence like an iron bar;
This Lincoln, president now by the grace
of luck,
Disunion, politics, Douglas and a few speeches
Which make the monumental booming of Webster
Sound empty as the belly of a burst drum,
Lincoln shambled in to the cabinet meeting
And sat, ungainly and awkward."

Lee in Defeat

The scene at Appomattox courthouse when Lee surrendered is told in slightly more than 20 lines: "The chiefs and the captains met,
Lee, erect in his best dress uniform,
His dress-sword hung at his side and his eyes unaltered,
Chunky Grant in his mud-splashed private's gear
With the general's stars on his shoulders.
They talk a while of Mexico and old days.
Then the terms are stated.
Lee finds them generous, says so, makes a request.
His men will need their horses for the spring ploughing.
Grant assents at once. There is no parade
of bright swords given or taken;
Grant saw that there should not be.
It is over then.
Lee walks from the little room. His face is unchanged; it will not change when he dies.
But as he steps on the porch and looks towards his lines
He strikes his hands together once with a sound—
In the room he has left, the blue men stare at each other
For a space of heart beats, silent.
The grey ride off.
They are gone—it is over."

Yale Graduate

Benet although born in Pennsylvania comes from a family which migrated to Florida in the eighteenth century from Minorca. His great-grandfather was 22 years old when Florida was sold by Spain to the United States. His grandfather and his father both were West Point graduates. The former, although a southerner, served with the Union army during the war as a brigadier-general. His father, Col. James Walker Benet, was in the ordnance department of the army throughout the world war, later retiring. Hence, it is not remarkable that Benet should choose a fighting topic for such an ambitious narative-poem.

Benet himself is a graduate of Yale, graduating in 1919.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

For the first section, Sports Clothes Active, we present the dress worn by Cherie at the left. It has a sunburn back just as the newest bathing suits and the smartest evening gowns to this summer. The first, to acquire the sunburn back.

The second to show it. Cherie's dress is made of white linen, no sleeves, flared skirt, one piece and that's all. Except that you won't find a smarter dress on any tennis court anywhere. Diana's dress is of pale blue washable silk trimmed with fagotting that makes a sort of yoke with bow ends as well as bands around the waist and sleeves. The skirt is pleated in clusters of three all the way around. Suppose they play some tennis now.

They did because those were Sports Clothes, Active. For Sports Clothes, Inactive, meant merely to cheer others on to hotter efforts, we offer these exhibits. Left, a silk crepe frock which really fits both categories. Next, however, is the country club frock, simon pure. A pleated georgette dress in violet blue and white worn with a violet hair hat. The number of pleats, alone, would tell you that this dress is decorative and not meant to be practical. Next is a striped dress of printed shantung made with a sailor collar but no sleeves. In the lower right hand corner you can see Cherie and Dina in the wide-brimmed drooping hats that show that the day's stint of tennis is over with.

Legitimate Cause for Divorce Is Subject of Discourse by Miss Dix

If People Could Resign From Marriage as They Can From Jobs, There Would Be Fewer Nagging Wives and Brutal Husbands, and the Misfits Would Be Saved a Lifetime of Misery.

A correspondent asks:

"What do you consider a legitimate cause for divorce?"

Anything that robs a man or woman of all peace and happiness and that makes his or her daily life a perpetual martyrdom I do not believe that any man or woman should be compelled to endure the torments of a matrimonial purgatory for 30 or 40 years because of the mistake he or she blundered into making in the ignorance of youth. Nor do I believe that any man or woman should be punished for a lifetime for the faults of some one else.

Also I believe that what we call the divorce evil should be treated on the homeopathic principle of like-for-like, and that the cure for it is not stricter divorce laws, but more liberal ones. For the only way to keep people from getting divorces is to keep them from wanting them. To keep them satisfied and happy as they would be if they had gotten good husbands and wives, and nothing would do so much to improve the domestic morale as for the said husbands and wives to know that they would lose their jobs if they didn't give a satisfactory performance.

Comparatively few men and women want their homes broken up, to be parted from their children, and to undergo the mess and scandal of a divorce, and it is the knowledge that they can get away with anything short of murder in the family circle and have the household machinery still function as usual that makes husbands and wives vent their spleen upon each other and treat each other as they would not treat a dog.

Many a man who curses and abuses his wife would mend his manners if he knew that she would give notice and quit at the end of the week, even as his stenographer would, if she was not treated like a lady. Many a wife would stop her tirades and put a silencer on her tongue if she was aware that her husband didn't have to stay in his present position as a bill-payer unless things were made pleasant for him.

But while divorce is often justified, it is in many cases inexpedient, even when justified. Especially for women who frequently find that in getting a divorce from an unsatisfactory husband they have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire and that their last estate is worse than their first.

This pitiful tragedy happens over and over again to the woman who has the misfortune to have a philandering husband. Her heart is broken by his unfaithfuiness. Her wifehood outraged by his disloyalty. Her soul is torn with jealousies. And so she rushes into the divorce court with her wrongs and gets her decree and then finds that it brings her no surcease of suffering, no happiness, no peace of mind. It only adds other miseries in that it deprives her of a comfortable home, her place in society, a good living and the luxuries to which she has been accustomed.

Just what are the cardinal sins in marriage is a matter of individual opinion. The law lists infidelity, habitual drunkenness and brutality as the headliners of the offenses that husbands and wives commit against each other, and certainly no man or woman should be forced to live with an individual who is guilty of apy of these heinous faults.

But sometimes these black sheep have charms and virtues that atone for their being off color. There are philanderers who even treat their wives like lady loves, and flirtatious wives who, like Mrs. George in Shaw's play, was so interesting when she returned from one of her brief excursions off the straight and narrow path that her husband never could make up his mind to part with her. There are drunkards who are the most lovable men and model husbands when they are not in their cups, while as for brutality, more women fall for caveman stuff than resent it. The brutality that sends women to the divorce courts consists in hard words, not hard blows.

Failure to provide is another cause for divorce that the law grants women in most states. Fair enough. No woman should be expected to live with a man who is too lazy and trifling to go to work and make a living for his family, but what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and failure to be a good housekeeper should entitle any man to a divorce from his wife.

It is just as bad for a woman to poison her husband on mean cooking as it is for a husband to starve his wife. It is no more an offense for a man not to provide a home for his wife to live in than it is for her to keep that house like a pigsty. Any man is entitled to a decree absolute, without having to pay alimony, who can prove that the wife is a thriftless, shiftless housekeeper, whose biscuit would give an ostrich dyspepsia and whose coffee would justify homicide.

Personally, I should put temper above all other causes for divorce. It is harder to endure than infidelity or drink. It is the most fiendish form of brutality, and I think any woman is entitled to divorce from a man who swears at her and insults her, who flies into rages over nothing, who growls over his food like a dog over a bone, and who goes into silent grouches in which he refuses to even answer a question.

And I think any man is entitled to a divorce upon request from a shrewish woman who nags him about everything he does and leaves undone, who makes hysterical scenes, who sulks and whines and complains, and who keeps him awake at night while she delivers curtain lectures.

I think stinginess in a man and extravagance in a woman are just causes for divorce. I think a wife has a right to a divorce from a husband who will not give her a fair share of the money she has helped to earn, and I think that a man has a right to a divorce from a woman who throws away all he earns, and who is ruining him by her senseless spending.

I think that utter incompatibility is a just cause for divorce. Plenty of good men and women get married on some gust of physical attraction and then find out that they not only have nothing in common but that they antagonize each other at every turn, and they lead a cat-and-dog life fighting over every subject that comes up. I have never been able to see how any morality is subserved by forcing two people to live together who bring out all that is worst in each other. Far better, it seems to me, for two such uncongenial souls to part and go their separate ways in peace, instead of being bound together, their hearts filled with hate, hoping and praying for each other's death.

Undoubtedly divorce is bad. But there are lots worse things. Murder, for instance. Or a lifetime of misery.

'Happiest Girl in Texas'?

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Texas mother, Mrs. E. C. Toepperwein, 2416 Wyoming St., San Antonio, says: "When my little daughter, Mildred, was just two, she became so constipated that I was badly worried. Then a friend got me to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in Texas."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

OIL SHARES IN GOOD SHAPE

Fuel Famine Considered By Oil Leaders

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 2. (Sp)—Conditions in the oil industry are now more favorable for an advance in oil stocks than at any time in the past year, an analysis of the financial situation by W. J. Wollman and company reveals. It says in part:

"Demand for high grade crude with a consequent advance in prices, the record breaking gasoline consumption and much higher prices for bulk gasoline, natural gas-gasoline and at filling stations should have a cumulative effect. A feature has been the advance in natural gas-gasoline of almost 300 per cent in the last few weeks."

The national leader in crude oil production, the Gulf Oil corporation is also one of the largest producers and sellers of natural gas.

Its sales for the first half of 1928 amounted to 8,463,560,000 cubic feet, compared with sales of 7,843,709,000 for the same period in 1927.

Does a gasoline famine threaten the country?

This thought is being circulated as a result of increased demands for gasoline, and with increased consumption.

A preliminary digest of the bureau of mines report for June shows that on July 1 there was in storage at refineries in the country only 30 days supply, compared with 34 days on June 1, and 41 days on June 30, 1927.

Domestic gasoline consumption in June amounted to 967,000 barrels versus 882,000 barrels in May, and 678,000 barrels in June, 1927.

Total gasoline stocks decreased 2,943,000 gallons in June, and oil stocks decreased 536,000 barrels, the report says.

The Atlantic Refining company has enjoyed unusually good business so far this year, and for the first half of 1928 its earnings averaged $9.98 per share, while for the second quarter its earnings figures at $7.96 a share, against $2.01 for the first half of 1927.

The net earnings of Atlantic for the half of 1928 amounts to $5,689,987 compared to a net loss of $1,477,419 for the first half of 1927.

The Atlantic controls the Atlantic Oil Producing company, active in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas.

Companionate Couple Land Back Home for Aid, Broke But Happy

GIRARD, Kan., Aug. 2. (UP)—The famous couple of companionate marriage fame is back in Girard, Kan., their home, after a sojourn on the western coast where they "went broke" and had to bum to "way out west in Kansas."

Despite their financial reverses, both Josephine Haldeman-Julius Roselle, the bride, and Aubrey, her companionate mate, are still clinging to the companionate marriage principles.

"It's all right, but so many people don't understand or appreciate the merits of it," Josephine said tonight in an interview.

Since their return from the western coast, made just two weeks ago, the couple has been working—and working hard—for E. Haldeman-Julius, Girard publisher, who adopted Josephine.

Josephine is employed as a helper in the book concern, "just learning the book game." A local creamery, owned by her father, is the scene of Aubrey's labors.

"I'm just learning the trade so I can sell books if I want to and Aubrey is helping in the creamery through the busy season," Josephine explained.

Men Do What the Gals Want Them To

Editor Writes of His Busy Love Life

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (UP)—Edward Anthony believes that when it comes to affairs of the heart men do what women want them to do.

In support of his theory he has created a new fictional character, named him Wilton Olmstead, and presented him in a book published today by Bobb-Merrill under the title of "How to Get Rid of a Woman—Wilton Olmstead's Intimate Story of His Busy Love Life."

Wilton starts with a flirtation on a commuters' train; whirls through an affair with his cousin on a tandem bicycle; ends it by feeding her cayenne-filled chocolate creams on April fool; and so on through life; successfully getting rid of as many women as he meets.

"My observation is," said Anthony, "that a woman is always the master mind. She may not even realize it herself. But if she wants a man to be just her friend, he winds up just that; if she wants him to be more, that's what he becomes.

"We men think that we dominate such things, but we don't. The women are too clever for us. They let us think we have our way, but really we have it only so far as they want us to.

"Hence, while Wilton Olmstead may appear pretty much of a boob as he relates his many experiences with women and boasts of how he freed himself of their influence, it may be that he is only an exaggeration."

Anthony is the author of several works and of much light verse, as well as being an editor and publicist.

BEGS FOR DADDY

Father Didn't Want Baby, So Court Files Non-Support Charge

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (US)—A dimpled, pretty year-old baby girl went begging for a daddy in domestic relations court here today.

Before a crowded court room audience baby Charlotte Hanchey "goo-gooed" at Judge Lupe while her youthful mother, Mrs. Anna Hanchey, told the magistrate that her father didn't want her.

"Everybody thinks she's sweet but her daddy," sobbed Mrs. Hanchey. "He says he can't stand her near him."

"He must have a heart of stone," said Judge Lupe as he signed a bench warrant for Morris Hanchey to appear in court to answer charges of non-support.

TEXAS WOMEN WORKERS GROW

Few States Surpass Them In Numbers

HOUSTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Texas women are beginning to do the work.

At any rate that is what Ernest L. Tutt, Houston manager of the U. S. department of commerce, says.

Only a few states surpass Texas in the number of women employed, figures in Mr. Tutt's office show. The largest number of the weaker sex are employed in agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry. Records show 100,000 Texas women engaged in these professions, and only four states had greater numbers. These were: Mississippi, 132,639; Georgia, 129,027; South Carolina, 126,991, and Alabama, 122,755.

In mineral extraction, Texas dropped to seventh place in the number of women employed, only 77 following that profession.

That the Lone Star State still is primarily an agricultural state is indicated, Mr. Tutt said, by the small number of women working at the more harmful manufacturing and mechanical trades. Texas ranks 24th in this respect with 20,712 women so employed.

On transportation jobs Texas stands sixth with 8,000 members of the slighter sex following that line. A total of 21,486 were occupied with trade, giving Texas 10th place.

In public service Texas ranks fifth, 1,104 being employed in that line of endeavor, while in professional service the state of six flags is in seventh place with 85,905. Fifth place also is occupied in the employment of women in domestic and personal service, the number so employed being 86,796. And 29,883 held clerical positions, putting Texas 14th in that classification.

Museum Goes Back To Mouse Diet for Snakes

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Apparently it is more humane to feed snakes on mice than upon birds. The White museum here has gone back to the mouse diet for its big rattlesnakes after a protest from the humane society against feeding the snake sparrows.

The snakes eat only live food and museums over the country use birds, mice and even rabbits. The sparrow was used as an experiment on the snake here, attendants wishing to determine the relative deadliness of the snake and a tarantula. A sparrow, bitten by a tarantula died in one second. No time was obtained on the snake.

Skinderis sees without spectacles and has most of his teeth. He said he drank what he liked but gave up smoking when he was 90-odd, deciding it was hurting his health. According to his passport, he was born in Rasvinial, Lithuania, in 1824.

GIRL STEALER THOUGHT FOUND

Indictment Won by Police Against Captor

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (US)—Hope for a solution of the Grace Budd kidnaping mystery, the arrest of her captor, and possible recovery of the girl alive loomed tonight.

That a sensational denouement in the strange case may be imminent was indicated today when the police asked for and obtained an indictment in general sessions.

What man was named in the indictment was carefully guarded by the police. "Frank Howard" was the name the girl's kidnaper gave when he gained the confidence of her mother, Mrs. William Budd, and drove off with the child last June 3 in a blue motor car.

That police have the kidnaper under surveillance was intimated. Fear that if their quarry becomes alarmed the girl might be slain is said to be the reason for the police secrecy.

It was reported today that "Howard," or whatever his real name may be, had been located near Toledo, Ohio. Captain John Ayres, however, denied that the kidnaper actually is under surveillance.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK.—Down along Nassau street on the lower end of Manhattan, they are excavating for the new subway. It is the business section just off City Hall Square, and most of the work is done at night. The street is floored with huge timbers over which the great trucks rumble with a hollow sound. When they take up the boards in the evening and begin to excavate there is always a crowd standing around to watch the work. The man with the pneumatic drill braces himself amid the deafening clatter while blue shirted laborers dig and heave and shovel dirt out in small quanities. Beneath the street there is a network of pipes, old walls, twisted, rusty metal, and debris of all kinds. One evening they uncovered what appeared to be an ancient board fence, completely covered up. The boards were old and moldy but they were good-sized timbers and still strong. The workmen tried to pry them out but they would not budge. Then they tried to jerk them out with the aid of a small crane, but the rope would not hold. It slipped each time, and the crane sat back on its hunkers with a sudden creaking. An interested crowd of spectators watched these unsuccessful efforts, commenting audibly and offering various suggestions with that freedom and friendliness which is typical of New York City. Finally the laborers, grunting disgustedly started to dig out the offending boards. One curious member of the crowd addressed a question to anyone who might be listening. "Now I wonder what that old board section was," he said. "That," said another onlooker gravely, "Is the original free lunch counter built by Hendrik Hudson when he first landed at New York." The other man looked at him suspiciously for a minute. "Gwan," he said, "you're thinkin' of John Smith ain't you? Hudson was the bird that married Pocahahontas."

Down along Third avenue there is so much to see that one seldom sees it all. It is the old east side section, a section that once was the heart of New York's gayest life but now is given over to second hand stores, foreigners, dirty bearded men, and children who seem to have no homes. Not far from Fourteenth street there is a restaurant, called the Russian Bear. It is located in what was once a private house and you ascend a worn flight of stone steps to the entrance. Inside there are many little tables with waiters in bright Russian smocks hurrying between. A bright faced woman takes you in charge and finds a vacant table. The food is real Russian food, "borsk" and "pumpernickel." Out to one side on a little stage a costumed orchestra tunes queerly-shaped instruments and breaks into one of the inimitable Russian songs, songs that have grown deep into the hearts of a great peasant race through long years and generations of toil. The music throbs and sings its way into your blood, with the odd minor runs, the haunting melody, the mingled sadness and gayety of this people. For a little while you are in Russia and when you come out again the faces that pass in the light along Third avenue do not dispel the illusion.

I have been told that no human being is entirely normal. We all have tendencies which, if accentuated enough would make us dangerously abnormal or insane. I remember one man of my acquaintance who invariably, when he became intoxicated, would begin to think about commiting suicide. Ordinarily he did not show this tendency at all and was a cheerful happy-go-lucky fellow. But with with a few drinks in him it became necessary to keep an eye on him. The idea of suicide seemed to fascinate him for some reason. One night he tried to jump out the window repeatedly and was restrained only by force by the only other person in the place. The other fellow sat on him until he seemed to cool off. But each time upon releasing him he would make for the window, and fought savagely when stopped. The friend finally had to put him down and sit on him for an hour or so until the rest of the crowd got back. The next morning he did not remember anything about it.

Gypsies Among Us

HUNGARY, land of the Gypsies, wants to see no more of them. A government decree, just issued, rules that the Gypsies shall be wanderers no longer. They are to be transformed into responsible citizens, liable to military service and subject to all the mundane laws that affect other Hungarians. They must put away their picturesque costumes and give up their own language, and they must settle down and take to working for a living.

This is probably all very sensible and proper. Gypsies are a disturbing element. They have been known to steal things; worse yet, they unsettle us, and by their very existence hint that our way of life is a big mistake. The Hungarian government, doubtless, is wise.

But it may be that enacting the decree will prove easier than putting it into effect.

The Gypsy is not only a man of different blood than ours; he seems to have a different kind of soul. Not for him are the standards, rewards and triumphs of the civilization of which we are so proud. He has a different set of values.

We seem to be born with the impulse to look ahead. We are always wondering how we are to fare next year. Life has certain tangible, material rewards, that can be felt, touched, seen and handled; houses, automobiles, bank accounts, and the like. Under our standard, the successful man gets these things and the failure does not. A way of life that leads to them is good, and a way of life that does not is bad.

All of this is foreign to the Gypsy. Life is a much more easy-going affair to him. Its rewards never lie in the future, nor are they things that can be weighed and measured. They are, instead, emotional reactions; glimpses of new vistas, the pleasures of carefree wandering, the delight of the open road. The mere process of living, to the Gypsy, can be enough if it is tackled right.

A man with such standards is doomed in this modern age. We scorn not only the past, but the present also. The future, to us, is everything. Getting, making and doing are great words in our vocabulary. What if we do fail to taste the fine savor of life as we go along? Are we not working our heads off?

So the Gypsies must conform to our standards. The world is no place for their philosophy. Everyone must work. Idling is an art that is out of date.

But it wouldn't hurt us to be a little bit less sure of ourselves. We are coming perilously close to the point where we shall be trying to live by bread alone. If may be that the Gypsy is wiser than we think.

Revenge on Truck Drivers

A NEW JERSEY aviator had it in for truck drivers who delivered supplies at his airport. Their trucks, lumbering through mud holes, splashed him with mud and water, soiling his clothes and spattering his airplane. He determined to get even.

So one day he went aloft and waited until he saw a string of trucks approaching the airport. Then he swooped down and dove for the trucks. The drivers saw him descending on them and leaped helter skelter, for safety, ditching their cars. Then he sailed away, laughing, and they swore and perspired getting their trucks out of the ditch.

The flyer was arrested, which probably was fitting and proper. No aviator has any business frightening people that way. It's akin to rocking the boat.

But he has a certain sneaking sympathy of ours. We, too, have been splashed by trucks, the drivers of which laughed callously. We hate to see anybody break the law, but we can't be really sincere in condemning this man.

A New Labor Idea

A NEW cure for unemployment is suggested by Ethelbert Stewart, chief of the statistics division of the department of labor.

He proposes that industry in the United States should adopt the five-day week within a few years, following this, perhaps much later, with the six-hour day. Both of these changes, he says, should be accompanied by an actual increase in wage rates.

A decade ago such a suggestion would have been hooted from one end of the country to the other. Now, while it probably won't get adopted over night, it at least will get a hearing. We have learned in recent years that more things are possible in American industry than we used to imagine.

No one can say, of course, just what will happen in the next decade or so. But, at any rate, it can be said that the five-day week and the six-hour day are at least possibilities now. They are no longer ultra-radical Utopian dreams.

Lindbergh's Income

TREASURY DEPARTMENT estimates place Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's earnings during the past six months at approximately $204,000.

That is a pretty fair sort of income—one that even a heavyweight prize fighter or a carefully marcelled movie actor might be proud of. And the flying colonel, to our way of thinking, has earned every dime of it.

It's refreshing to know that such a chap as Lindbergh, who scorned all the cheap, obvious methods of cashing in on his exploit, turned a deaf ear to the publicity agents and made it very plain that he isn't flying primarily for the money there is in it, can reap a golden reward just the same. There will be mighty few people, we suspect, who will begrudge it to him.

Raskob's Retirement

JOHN J. RASKOB'S temporary retirement from General Motors was a wise act, taken in the public interest.

Of course, anyone who stopped to think must have known that his selection as Governor Smith's campaign manager did not involve General Motors as a corporation in any way. But many thoughtless people doubtless were wondering if there were not "something back of it"; if he had retained his old connections, it probably would have been whispered that General Motors' vast organization was applying pressure all the way down the line to swing votes for Smith.

That, of course, would have been an obvious absurdity. But some people would have believed it. Raskob's resignation clears the air and makes it plain to the dullest citizens that General Motors is an industrial, not a political organization.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service — by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster is in love with an artist, Nathaniel Dann, but she is tricked into promising to marry Frederick Dean in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of.

Brewster had lost his fortune in speculation before his death and Virginia is left destitute. She pawns some of her jewelry and Oliver Cutter promises to invest the money for her.

She seeks work, but without success. She discovers that she is being shadowed and suspects that Dean has bribed the agencies not to help her. Oliver gains her confidence and shows her attentions which Niel resents, but then Virginia does not like the familiarity with which his model, Chiri, treats him.

Dean sends Virginia an evening wrap which she returns, telling him how contemptible she thinks his saving tactics are. His threat to ruin Cutter frightens Virginia and she warns Oliver. Then she is lucky enough to get a position which she likes.

The summer passes and in early September she is amazed when charged by Cutter's wife with trying to alienate his affections. She appeals to Oliver to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments. Then he confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he is madly infatuated with her and will gladly give her the hundred thousand if she will go away with him.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Virginia submitted unresistingly to Oliver's embrace. Her mind was blurred with shock and despair. The fine spirit that had flamed against her father's traducer was quelled. She lay quiescent, a broken crusader.

Over her head Oliver's face took on an expression of amazement, so thoroughly had he been convinced a moment before that he had lost her.

He relaxed his hold, to help her to a chair. A great, struggling sob wrenched itself suddenly from her lips as her mind broke loose from the paralyzing talons of fear.

She thrust out her hands and freed herself with one vigorous shove. Oliver staggered away from her, tripped on the edge of a thick rug and fell flat on the floor.

Virginia laughed, a strange laugh that sounded weird in the prosaic surroundings. It was mingled hysteria and ridicule.

Oliver's face burned hotly as he scrambled up, all dignity lost to him.

"You little devil," he shouted, believing that she had fooled him deliberately, though for what purpose he did not stop to ask himself.

Virginia did not answer him. She had turned toward the door and saw that it was opening slowly. But she was past caring who might witness the scene she was leaving.

The newcomer was Miss Evans. She took one comprehensive glance at her employer and withdrew with Virginia, closing the door behind them.

"I did not know if you were laughing or crying," she explained in apology for her intrusion.

Virginia did not make a direct answer. "You'd better get your things and come with me," she advised, suddenly conscious of what Miss Evans would be in for at Oliver's hands when he learned where Virginia had got the information that had exposed him. He was sure to make a hurried investigation, she foresaw.

"Does he deserve it?" Miss Evans countered.

"He deserves to be shot."

"All right. Will you wait, though, until I tell him I'm leaving? I've been breaking in Miss Lord for the job on the quiet so he won't be inconvenienced."

"I'll wait for you downstairs," Virginia told her. "Bring all your things and we'll take a taxi to my office. I think I can get you a position there."

Miss Evans beamed. "I won't be a minute," she declared gratefully.

Later, on the way to the offices of the Blue Capella Steamship Line, Virginia told her more about the position she might be able to get for her.

"They told me a few weeks ago that I could have an assistant," she said; "but I thought I could do the work alone. I'm afraid it's not going to be so easy for me to concentrate on it now."

She paused and looked away with an unfathomable expression in her eyes. "They will need someone to take my place soon. I'd like you to have it, and if I can help you to fit yourself for it I shall feel I've repaid you a little for the sacrifice you have made for me."

She turned her head and saw that Miss Evans was looking at her questioningly. "I hope you aren't thinking of giving up your position just to advance me," the secretary said uneasily.

"No," Virginia returned quietly "I'm going to be married."

Miss Evans exclaimed with pleasure, thinking of course that Virginia meant that she was going to marry her artist fiance. "Oh, I'm so glad," she cried; "a girl as beautiful as you are needs someone to look after her. It must be heavenly to be in love," she added with a little sigh.

Virginia did not reply.

At the Blue Capella offices Virginia left Miss Evans at her desk and then went to Mr. Welkins to explain that urgent private business had kept her from the office. Welkins was very nice about it, knowing that Virginia was a conscientious worker.

"I've brought a very capable woman with me whom I'd like to engage as my assistant if you still feel that I need one," she said when they had settled the matter of her nonappearance that morning at nine.

"Splendid," Mr. Welkins surprised her by saying. "I'd intended putting one of my own girls on your force, Miss Brewster, to see if you could break her in to take your place for a while. We want you to go on the southern cruise of the Agena."

He stopped, and Virginia sensed that he was waiting for an expression of pleasure. Ordinarily a trip on the Agena, especially to the West Indies, would have thrilled any of the Blue Capella's employes. Apparently Mr. Welkins expected her to be delighted.

Her silence puzzled him. "You will be glad to go, won't you, Miss Brewster?" he asked uncertainly. "We want someone as hostess who will know how to make the passengers feel as though they were our guests on the ship. Bring them together; see that everyone has a good time."

"Why, I don't know," Virginia began hesitatingly. "There are a number of things I'd have to think about before I could decide, Mr. Welkins. But if you will give me a few days . . . I'd want to talk to Mr. Dann about it. . . ."

"Of course, of course. Well let's meet your new assistant and see if she will do."

Virginia went out to send in Miss Evans. Presently the latter returned to say that she had been given the position.

By closing time Virginia had about made up her mind that she would refuse the offer to go as hostess on the Agena's cruise, though a chance to get away from New York and the immediate influence of Frederick Dean appealed to her strongly.

The thought of Nathaniel swung the pendulum of desire back to New York as she counted the time she would be away from him if she accepted the assignment.

There was all too little time to be with him, she feared, her mind still on the setback Oliver had caused her. A slowly growing conviction that she would have to pay her pound of flesh—flesh of the heart—was bringing her to face a very real possibility of having to count each hour with Nathaniel one of a fast vanishing few.

But she still had a small part of her year! Was the then of such poor stuff as to lay down her arms at the first sign of defeat? Virginia bolstered up her waning courage by flaying herself with scorn for being an "easy quitter."

The cruise would last six weeks, and who could tell what she might accomplish in that time? Virginia had not even a vague idea of how to use the time to advantage, but she felt that it would be a total loss to her if she were to leave the city.

She reconsidered her intention to talk it over with Nathaniel. "He might say I ought to go," she thought. "Anyone would; but I think I would go mad with suspense if I were where I couldnt even try to fight."

She might have gone to Welkins at once to tell him of her half-formed decision, but it was late and she knew that Stacy Blaine was in his office.

Blaine was just off the Altair, in from a run to Panama and the islands of the Caribbean. Virginia had met him on one of his previous visits to the offices of the Blue Capella. They were rather good friends, and he never returned to the home port without bringing her some memento of his latest voyage.

Virginia knew he would come to her when he left Mr. Welkins and she hurried a little, hoping to get away before the conference ended. The thought of chatting with him at this time filled her with dismay.

Stacy's business with Mr. Welkins must have been of small importance, for he appeared before she had expected. After a friendly greeting she remarked feelingly: "Suppose you still refuse to dine with me? But you ought to, you know; I'm pretty blue and not a sweetie in town."

"You're a great sailor," Virginia forced herself to say in the manner of their usual give and take.

"You never will believe that I'm true in every port, will you?" Stacy laughed back. "Just the same I'm way down low. Ran into some bad news concerning an old friend of mine in Haiti. Chap called oddly. Name's O. D. D. Leigh. Great character all through the West Indies. Well, here's a gewgaw for you Shameful how you take gifts from me and never give a thing in return."

He tossed a bracelet made of shiny brown seeds on Virginia's desk with an air of being helplessly exploited. Virginia admired it and thanked him, but he noticed a detached note in her voice and manner.

A slight frown creased her brow and she appeared to be thinking of something that troubled her. "Oddly, Oddly," she murmured softly, then to Stacy. "I'm sure I've heard that name before."

"No doubt you have," he replied complacently; "fellow's well known to a lot of people. Anyone coming back from Haiti would be likely to speak of him."

"No, it wasn't recently, if you mean you think I've heard of him here in the office," Virginia said. "I can't remember when I heard his name before, but I'm positive it was long ago."

"Well, he's been in the public eye for years, ever since he first started bucking the sugar trust in the islands. So you won't date me?"

That was always his closing line and Virginia always smiled him away.

She continued to ponder over the reason why the name of O. D. D. Leigh had struck fire on some forgotten memory and only put it out of her mind when she lifted the new brass knocker on Nathaniel's door.

They were having dinner in the Village, and when they did that she came directly from her office to his studio.

There was no response to her knock, and thinking that he was out opened the door and stepped inside. As she did so a voice called out from the kitchenette. It was Chiri's, high-pitched and laughing.

AMBITION

Your ambition's just a dreaming,
Just a subtle, crafty scheming
How to win.
Life, and how you will combat it,
And be more successful at it
Than you've been.

Try and have that way of scheming;
Try to dream ambition's dreaming.
Weaklings stop.
Live right in ambition's dreamland;
Some day, you may work your scheme and
Be on top!

Printing Mistake May Ruin County's Votes

COLUMBUS, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—A mistake in printing of ballots for the primary election in Colorado county last Saturday jeopardized the vote for the entire county, in the opinion of some county officials.

The printed ticket said: "I am a white Democrat and pledge myself to support the nominees of this party."

The law directs that the text on the ballots should read: "I am a white Democrat and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary." It further states that if any wording other than this is used the ballots shall be thrown out.

It was too late to have new ballots printed after the mistake was discovered.

WOMEN'S WAGES FOUND MEAGER

Labor Commission Recommends Minimum Wages

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—More than half the women and girls employed in industry in Texas are working for wages insufficient "to provide the minimum requirements of a decent existence," the state department of labor reported in a comparative survey of wages and living costs.

The survey was contained in a bulletin published by the department covering its activities for the last six months.

Only 44 per cent of the women and girls employed in industrial establishments earn as much as $15 a week, it was shown. An accompanying report on living costs named at $15 a week as the minimum upon which any woman depending upon her own resources can live.

Declaring this condition "grave," Labor Commissioner Charles McKemy recommended the enactment of a workable minimum wage law for women and children.

The conditions were revealed in inspections made in 3,474 establishments employing 77,286 workers, of which 43,883 were men, 33,504 women and 199 children under 15 years of age. Sixty-five per cent of the men reporting were found to be receiving $15 a week or over.

Publishers Pay Best

Printing and publishing concerns were found to have the best records in the matters of wages and hours. Lowest average wages were being paid by laundries. The longest hours were being exacted by hotels and restaurants.

A special survey of the textile mill industry revealed that the 26 mills reporting employed 5,286 workers and operate on an average schedule of 55 hours a week, paying men an average weekly wage of $19 and women $13.50. In 254 instances wives were found to be employed in the mills along with their husbands, and 228 children under 15 years of age were working.

Four hundred nineteen families were renting their living quarters from the mills, 270 families renting from others, 114 families owned their own homes, and 50 families board. It was found that in practically all mill villages, the rent houses are kept in good repair, water and light furnished free, and reasonable rents deducted from the employes' wages.

Some Convicted

The labor department has filed 35 complaints for violation of various labor laws. Of these, 19 have resulted in convictions, six have been dismissed and 10 are still pending.

In addition to the cases prosecuted, the labor department, acting under a provision of the law, has issued to factories, mercantile establishments and the like 125 formal written orders for the correction of minor irregularities and infractions of the law. These orders had to do with the proper guarding of machinery, ventilation of work rooms and elimination of other hazards.

One suit has been filed in behalf of the state to recover heavy penalties for violation of what is known as the "spider law," regulating the baling of cotton so as to prevent injury to workmen.

The department has adjusted 80 wage claims, collecting a total of $4,987.27 for the claimants.

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Scales and Mrs. Ewing Scales, Mrs. Hugh McClure, Mrs. Walter Hamm and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Givens, of this city, left Thursday morning for Weatherford, where they will attend the encampment of the Church of God, which is being held there this week.

TO THE VOTERS OF WICHITA COUNTY:

I want to thank you for the support you gave me in the recent Democratic primary for the office of County Tax Assessor. I had five (5) opponents in said race, all of whom are good men and are my friends. There were 9580 votes cast in the Tax Assessor's race. Mr. Shumake and I, being the two leading candidates, received only 86% of said votes, thereby showing that neither Mr. Shumake nor I were the first choice of 44% of the voters participating in said primary. On account of the Democratic rule requiring a successful candidate for office to receive a majority of the votes cast at a primary election, it will be necessary for you to choose between Mr. Shumake and me on August 25th, 1928. I have been connected with the Tax Assessor's office for the past six years and I am familiar with all the departments thereof, have aided in the preparation of the tax rolls for several years, posted the abstract books, and I am likewise familiar with the value of property throughout the county. I feel that my experience in the office and knowledge of all its affairs qualifies me so that I can give to the people of this county, if chosen as your nominee, the VERY BEST AND MOST EFFICIENT SERVICE. I most heartily invite an investigation of my qualifications, and in the event you believe me worthy, I solicit your votes and influence for the August 25, 1928 primary, and for all of which I will be ever GRATEFUL. Thanking you for your support in the recent primary as well as on August 25, 1928, I am,

Obediently yours,
R. S. (Bob) DUNAWAY.

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By EDWIN RUSHMORE

Introducing Mr. Edwin Rushmore, official greeter, super-glad-hand shaker, executive secretary, all-around "fix it" and fattest bachelor of the International Rotary club.

No White House occupant or practical politician shakes more hands every 12 months than does this man, who has about the biggest cheerio job in the United States. And he comes up smiling after each onslaught of the mitt-grabbers, as some 125,000 members of the Rotary club who have gripped his hand will testify.

"I was in a hotel lobby recently making arrangements for a Rotary convention," Mr. Rushmore told me, "and heard the following conversation between two of the chosen people. I think it's the funniest thing I have ever run across.

"'Ouy,' said the first, 'haff you heard about Rosenblatt?' "'Noa,' replied the other, 'tal me.'

"'Uttz terrible!' groaned the first. 'He loosed 'tree hundred t'ousand dollahs in Syracuse in de cutt and outt beezness!'

"'Ouy, I heered about dot—but you meed a mistook. It vashn't Rosenblatt—it vaas Cohen; and it vashn't in Syracuse — it vass in Troy; and it vashn't t'ree hundred t'ousand—it vass two hundred and fifty; and it vashn't outts and outts—it vaas white goods!'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health."

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Heart Burn and Gastritis

The heart is not a very sensitive organ as far as sensation is concerned, and most of the pains which seem to occur near the heart are really in the stomach, diaphragm, plura or lungs.

Heart burn is usually only a symptom of acidity of the stomach which is to the left side of the body and presses almost directly under the heart. When the stomach is filled with a fermenting mass of food or where there is a large amount of inflammation present, there may be a burning feeling created in the upper portion of the stomach which is referred to as "heart burn" because of the region from which the pain is felt, and because the actual pressure of gas may cause interference with the heart itself.

If you belch frequently just after eating a meal, you may have eaten too much. Try cutting down the amount of food at one meal to half of that you have been using. This may be still too much, and it may be necessary to further reduce the quantity. No human stomach can take care of 15 or 20 separate articles of food, of which most dinners consist, without the stomach itself, as well as the rest of the body, finally becoming tired out.

Too much gastric juice produces a hyperacidity of the stomach which tends to inflame the lining of the stomach and intestines. Such bad combinations as starches and acids, and meats and starches must be avoided if you wish to get rid of heart burn. Make your meals as simple as possible, using from two to four articles at a meal. Highly seasoned foods and condiments excite the flow of gastric juice and more acids are thrown into the stomach than can be readily handled. Also, highly seasoned food usually causes more food to be eaten than the body is naturally hungry for.

One who continually mistreats the stomach with wrong articles of food will produce a chronic state of inflammation that takes a long time to eradicate. This inflammation is very apt to form ulcers if allowed to continue.

If you have been troubled with heart burn, make note of the above points and change your bad habits to good ones before the heart burn leads to stomach ulcers, or before some heart disorder develops because of the great gas pressure created from hyperacidity of the stomach.

You can prevent heart burn by not eating too much food, by avoiding bad combinations, by not eating when tired or worried and avoiding the use of condiments, highly seasoned and rich foods.

If you have regular periods of heart burn, it is advisable for you to use a few days of some liquid diet to give your stomach a rest so that the inflammation which is present may subside. The use of soda is not a permanent cure for heart burn. Either an orange juice or a milk diet until the symptoms of inflammation have disappeared will lead to a permanent cure, after which one may use any of the wholesome, well balanced menus which are given weekly in my column in this newspaper.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mrs. G. H. asks: "Is there a disease called skin tumor? Please explain cause and cure."

Answer: There are many tumors which grow in and immediately under the skin. If you will have an examination made by a local skin specialist and send me his report, I will be very glad to give you my view as to the treatment which I believes would be appropriate.

Question: H. J. K. asks: "In dieting for catarrh of the ear, should starch and sugar be left out?"

Answer: Starches and sugars should be avoided if one wishes to clear his system of any catarrhal tendency. It is advisable to use a short fruit fast for several days, followed by a diet rich in non-starchy vegetables and some proteins.

Question: C. H. writes: "I am a boy 16 years old, underweight, and have been troubled with shortness of breath for more than a year. My appetite is too good and I dream and talk in my sleep. Will you give me your advice?"

Answer: You are probably suffering from some gas pressure on the diaphragm. You should take deep breathing exercises to develop your breathing capacity and be careful of your food combinations to avoid the gas fermentation.

Question: A. K. writes: "I smoke and chew quite a bit. I have a burning feeling in my stomach and throat nearly all the time. Do you think this is caused by the smoking or chewing? What is worse than the other—smoking or chewing?"

Answer: While neither of these habits is wholesome, chewing is more apt to injure your stomach. You may have some stomach inflammation which is due to other causes.

(362) A GARDEN SEAT

This garden seat is not hard to make and it affords scope for various pretty designs. Mortice and tenon joints can be used throughout, aided and strengthened by screws and nails. In the cross-work on the back it is well to mortice the inner strips and screw the others on the outside of these.

This illustrates how the framing for the seat is made. It is fitted to the uprights by mortice and tenon joints.

This shows the end of the seat. Diagonal struts are fitted on which help to make the seat steady. They are rustic branches.

Sketches and Synopses.

Here the artist shows how the seat looks from above. The seat is made of six slats of half inch or three-quarter inch board. The slats are nailed, with openings between to let the rain off. Two cross pieces on the bottom make the seat stronger. A clear varnish, applied with a brush, leaves the wood with its attractive natural color.

SPUDDERS HOME TODAY AFTER SWEEPING SERIES WITH STEERS

JIM'S MEN BAT 9-4 FINAL WIN

Change in Leadership Fails To Halt Dallas Plunge

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 2. — The Spudders headed homeward tonight to continue the courageous pennant fight with a two-week stay in their own playground, after sweeping the two-game series with the Steers. Galloway's men batted hard again today behind effective pitching by Mike Cvengros and took the long end of a 9 to 4 score from the fast-falling Steers.

The Spudders hammered Bartholomew and Leopold for 13 hits. Howard Fitzgerald was the leader fo the attack, macing four smacks in as many trips to the plate, including a home run and double. Howard drove in five runs.

Eldred and Turgeon each crashed two hits, one of Brick's smashes going for a triple and Pete hammering a double and single.

Cvengros yielded nine hits but except in the eighth inning when the Steers bunched three blows for a trio of tallies was master of the situation. Mike was wild, however, issuing eight bases on balls, but by "bearing down" and aided by fast support at critical occasions managed to hold the Dallas athletes safely.

Tarleton at Helm

A change in management failed to aid the Steers and it was their eleventh defeat in the last 12 games. Bob Tarleton took charge of the club today and despite a shakeup of the batting order and the using of practically all his reserve strength failed to lead a victory. Fifteen players were used by Tarleton.

The Spudders tallied three runs in the first inning. Benton strolled and went to third on Turgeon's double to left. Fitzgerald doubled to center, scoring Benton and Turgeon. Fitz ambled to third while Bartholomew was tossing out Eldred. Jenkins lifted to Gingiardi, Fitzgerald scoring.

Wichita Falls tallied again in the third. Fitzgerald singled to center after one was out. Eldred flied to right. Jenkins singled to right, Fitzgerald going to third. Fitzgerald scored and Jenkins was out on an attempted double steal. The Spudders counted again in the sixth.

Fitz Hits Again

Again Fitzgerald singled to center. Eldred singled off Smalley's glove and Fitzgerald was out at third. Swenson tripled to center, scoring Eldred.

Dallas scored its first run in its half in the sixth. Rosenthal walked after one run was out. Gingiardi singled to center and Rosenthal scored when the ball rolled past Fitzgerald.

The Spudders scored a cluster of three more in the seventh. Cvengros hit to right after one was out. Benton singled to left. Fitzgerald hit a home run over the center field wall, scoring Cvengros and Benton ahead of himself.

Steers Make Bid

The Steers made their only bid in the eighth with three runs. Rosenthal again walked, but was forced by Gingiardi, Benton to Turgeon. Seimer rolled to Cvengros, Rosenthal taking second. Billings batted for Tate and singled to center, Gingiardi stopping at second. Mann doubled to right, scoring Gingiardi and Billings. Mann went to third on a wild pitch. Morse singled to right, scoring Mann.

Wichita Falls added its last run in the ninth. Lapan walked. Cvengros singled to left and Lapan went to third and Mike to second when Miller fumbled the ball. Benton rolled out with no advance. Turgeon grounded out to short, Lapan scoring.

The fast-traveling Waco Cubs, who yesterday won their ninth straight game, oppose the Spudders Friday at Wichita Falls in the start of a three-game series. The Spudders are still two games back of the leading Houston Buffs.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

OUR SPUDDERS are home today—and now is the time for all good fans to come to the aid of their ball club. Persistent pennant contenders, the Spudders begin a two-week stand this p. m. in their own balliwick that will have important bearing on their ultimate destination in the flag hunt. And in these games here the athletes need the whole-hearted support of the fans.

Attendance this season hasn't been as good as that of last year here. This seems to reflect a situation prevailing throughout the Texas league and all baseball, however, and is not to be construed as meaning that Wichita Falls is tired of its club. However, it is a fact that the patronage at Athletic park hasn't been as responsive as a pennant contender seeking to repeat its triumphs of last season merits. Better support should be accorded to the Spudders from now to the end of the season.

GALLOWAY'S MEN are within striking distance of the Buffaloes. A slight let-down on the part of the pacesetters would permit the Wichita Falls nine to go back into first place, provided, of course, that it keeps winning. While the Spudders are engaging in the two weeks play here the Buffs will be meeting enemy nines on alien fields for 12 days. Surely this is the time for the Galloways to regain the ground lost in the recent disastrous three-day stand at Houston.

THE FAST-STEPPING Waco Cubs are here this afternoon for three days, followed by San Antonio for three, Beaumont for two, Houston for three (including a double header, Sunday, Aug. 12) and Fort Worth three, 15 games in the two weeks.

HERBERT HOOVER is "hard as nails" after a three-day fishing trip, says a press association.

Maybe Herb is going to challenge Dempsey.

TUNNEY REQUIRED three months' of hard training to become "hard as nails," while Hoover achieves that condition within three days.

"Mr. Hoover's muscles must be hard as nails the way he stands these long automobile rides," the press association further quotes a friend of the Grand Oil Party's nominee.

THERE'S A TIP for those who play golf to keep fit. Automobile riding is great exercise.

For back-seat drivers.

SOME of Wichita Falls' streets are recommended to those seeking exercise riding in automobiles.

NAMES IS NAMES

A fellow named Bunt is a pitcher for the Lubbock West Texas league club.

And Clarence Crabbe is a member of the U. S. Olympic swimming team.

REFUTING A BROMIDE of youth, that "as the twig is bent so the tree will incline," or words to that effect, it is noted that Hoover who was raised in a cow pasture fishes for diversion, and Smith, who worked in a fish market, golfs for pastime.

THE SITUATION IN RHYME

"I'll retire," said Gene Tunney.
"Gee," chuckled Tex, "Ain't that funny."
"It looks to me," announced Jack.
"That I'll stage a grand comeback."

Mantell Will Meet Parelli

Dutch and Joe to Grapple Here Tuesday Night

"Phooey, what an awful bum. I've almost got more respect for myself than to rassle him already."

None other than Dutch (Adonis) Mantell speaking, and you could hear him all the way from Amarillo when he said what he said about Joe Parelli, the Chicago horse rasp. Dutch and Joe are to engage Tuesday night at the Spudder ball park in the noble and elevating pastime of treating the rabid fans to a salad of eye-gouging, biting and general slambang rough stuff.

Meanwhile, Joseph of Chicago is "layin'" for the Panhandle ape man who used to be the best tree climber in the whole kingdom of Luxembourg. Joseph has an old score to settle with the Texas Tarzan, same being revenge for the breaking of a couple of ribs, an injury inflicted upon him in a previous match by the playful but sometimes rough Mantell.

"That guy call me a bum. He says I'm a bum. I'll make him look like a bum that's took awful sick when I get my mitts on him," was Parelli's outburst when Dutch's observations were retailed to him by Alec Ross, who is bringing the two matmen here for the edification of the local fans.

All of which makes everything look like a big evening for next Tuesday night at the ball park. Ross also announces that he will present some good preliminary numbers.

SHIRES QUITS CUBS

Art Jumps Waco Nine To Play With Brother's Semi-Pro Club

WACO, Texas, Aug. 2.—Art Shires, Waco first baseman sold recently with George Blackerby, Cub outfielder, to the Chicago White Sox, has joined the Baytown Oilers, semi-pro team, members of the South Coast league. He will complete the season with that club, which is managed by his brother, Jack Shires.

Manager Pratt of the Waco club said he would take no action on the departure of Shires. Dissatisfaction over his sale to the White Sox, which prevented him from receiving a liberal cut on a purchase by the Cleveland Indians is said to have caused Shires' jumping of the Cubs.

U. S. DEFEATS ARE CONTINUED

MacArthur Asks Report On Olympic Failures

By ROBERT J. PREW

OLYMPIC STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—Major General Douglas MacArthur, president of the American Olympic committee, today requested all managers and coaches with the American teams at Amsterdam to submit detailed reports to him.

General MacArthur asked for comment on present performances and recommendations for future games, and requests that all reports be in his possession by the time the President Roosevelt sails for New York. He wishes to incorporate the criticisms and suggestions in his own report.

MacArthur's Comment

Not until this complete and final document is available following the return of the teams to the United States are the American disasters in the track events likely to be satisfactorily explained. General MacArthur's one comment so far is that the American competitors have been to self-confident.

"We make fast times on our fast tracks at home, and when we see that the runners of other nations do not do as well on their tracks, we think that we have nothing to beat when we come here for the Olympics.

"We forget that we are meeting other nations under conditions that most of them are used to, while we are not."

Conger Defeated

There was no American victory on record today. Ray Conger of the Illinois Athletic club was hopelessly beaten in the final of the 1,500 meters. The new Olympic champion in this event is Harry Larva of Finland, who today lowered by two-fifths of a second the record-breaking time hung up by Nurmi, his countryman, in Paris four years ago.

The day also provided a new champion in the javelin throw in E. M. Lundquist of Sweden, who set a mark of 218 feet, 6 inches, a new record for the Olympics, but below the world distance.

For the first time in the history of the Olympics, Japan is coming out as a real contender. Her representative in the hop-tep-and-jump won first place today, and the Japanese colors were hoisted to the victory pole amid the gallant efforts of the small band of Japanese competitors to sing the national anthem.

Every bit of Humble Flashlike Gasoline which goes into the combustion chamber vaporizes and is completely burned. There is no unburned gasoline to gather in drops on the cylinder walls—cutting the lubricating film, causing loss of power from lack of compression; and seeping past the cylinder rings into the crank case, and diluting the crank case oil.

Humble Flashlike Gasoline is the product of many years of research and experience in manufacturing high-grade gasoline, plus the investment of millions of dollars in up-to-date manufacturing equipment in plants located at points of production or on our own pipe lines.

Beginning today, all stations displaying Humble Signs will be able to serve you with this new and wonderful product. Enjoy the benefits of Humble Flashlike Gasoline. Get your tank filled today! The price is the same as you are asked to pay for ordinary gasoline.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Rallies from an early decline were followed by renewed weakness in the cotton market today and a break which once more carried prices into new low ground for the movement. December contracts after selling up from 19.41 to 19.71, broke to 19.30 and closed at that figure. The general market closed easy, at net declines of 15 to 21 points.

The market opened very steady at an advance of 5 to 11 points on covering and buying for a reaction, but the initial demand was soon supplied and prices weakened in early trading. A favorable view of the weather map and a private report placing the condition on the crop at 70.9 and the indicated yield of 15,106,000 bales, no doubt contributed to this early setback which carried October off to 19.61, and January to 19.31, or about 3 to 4 points net lower.

The lowest prices of the day and movement were reached in late trading when October sold at 19.43 and January at 19.16. At 19.30, December showed a decline of 340 points from the high price reached on the June advance.

Private cables reported local, continental and Bombay liquidation in the Liverpool markets.

Exports today 4949 bales, making 19,695 so far this season. Port receipts 3120. U. S. port stocks, 561,555.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2. (AP)—Influence exerted by unfavorable boll weevil reports was offset by liquidation and selling in the cotton market today. A bearish crop estimate of 15,242,000 bales was responsible for the break which carried October deliveries down from 19.31 to 18.90, or 18 points net down, the option closing at the latter figure. The general market closed weak at a net decline of 15 to 18 points.

The opening was steady. First trades here showed gains of 4 to 7 points, but the market weakened soon after the opening under realizing by recent buyers and prices sold off to 19.04 for October and December, or 18 to 19 points under yesterday's close.

Later in the morning the official forecast for rain in the belt coupled with numerous reports of boll weevil activity induced trade buying and prices rallied 27 to 28 points from the lows, to levels 22 points over the previous close.

After mid-session the market experienced another sinking spell with the issuance of four private crop reports with condition averages ranging from 68.5 to 70.9 and estimated yield ranging from 14,635,000 to 15,242,000 bales, the latter figure proving to be the largest advanced this season.

Improved Oil Conditions Reflected In Heavy Demand for Atlantic Shares

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Atlantic Refining featured another quiet, irregular stock market today. Money was the dominating influence and practically the only topic discussed throughout Wall street. The effect thereof was witnessed in the light dealings and the timidity of most traders. Other oils took on a better appearance but failed to follow the outstanding advance of Atlantic Refining. General Motors and other standard industrials were held back by short selling, while Sears Roebuck and most of the other pool pets were effected by heavy profit-taking. There appeared to be plenty of money available, but the call rate was held at 7 per cent throughout. A few loans were made outside at slight concessions from the official figure, leading to belief that a lower call rate would be in effect for over the week-end.

Atlantic Split-Up Talked

Increased demand for Atlantic Refining followed report here that split-up of the stock was near. Early in the day those heavily interested advised that the directors probably would recommend a four-for-one split-up before the end of the week. Group work in Houston was encouraged by the strength of Atlantic Refining, but while other oils were well tipped they failed to enjoy any material advance. The position of the oil industry today is better than it has been at any time in other three years, but at the same time it is such that any material increase in output will mean great embarrassment for producers during the winter months. If no further price advances are effected by crude oil purchasers it is believed, the industry can effect further stabilization and enter 1928 with the prospect of showing the best earnings since the boom period of 1919-21.

Warner Brothers Active

Warner Brothers was quite active and gained fractionally, coincident with issuance of a special analysis prepared by those who have been among the most active in the stock during recent weeks. This group was among the friends of Collins & Aikman several months ago and now they advise shift to the new favorite.

Worthington Pump was another specialty to enjoy sudden attention as private advice was broadcast by a leading stock exchange firm emphasizing that new products would mean expanding earnings. American Ice also flurried with the warm weather, causing upward revision of estimates as to earnings. Yellow Truck was extremely quiet. It is learned that the Yellow management is experimenting with a refrigerator truck with frigidaire which should prove revolutionary.

Announcement of recommendation that outside loans in the call market pay a larger percentage to bankers handling the business and be limited to $100,000 or more caused momentary heavy selling early in the afternoon. Radio was most effected but rallied a little later as it already harbored a crowded short interest.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (US)—With shorts in September corn again covering heavily and foreign wheat markets displaying a stronger tone, prices of all grains moved higher on the local exchange today. Corn registered advances of ⅝c to 2⅜c, wheat was ⅝c higher, oats were steady to ½c up and rye was ¼c to ⅜c higher at the close.

Wheat prices were firm at the start due to the strength at Liverpool, which was credited to buying by mills and orders placed for grain to fill holiday needs. That market closed 1⅛ to 1⅜d higher.

Trade in wheat continued of moderate proportions in the local market. There was some buying on the strength in corn, but the absorption was mostly credited to shorts and those who were buying against the privileges. Pressure in the form of hedging, a fair amount of which was credited to northwest interest, prevented best prices from being maintained.

Corn shorts in the September delivery continued to protect themselves in the early trade, and that future advanced sharply to $1.01⅞.

In his review of the grain crop conditions of the country released today, Nat C. Murray of Clement, Curtis & Co., said: "Crop prospects generally improved materially during July, and at the end of the month the composite condition of leading crops was about 5 per cent better than the 10-year average. Precipitation was well distributed and ample for growing crops and the temperature was nearly normal.

Cash wheat was steady to firm in price in the local market with the trading basis unchanged to ½c higher. Local shipping sales totaled 15,000 bushels and 5,000 bushels was booked to arrive. Local shipping sales of corn were placed at 102,000 bushels and 12,000 bushels was booked to arrive. Vessel room was reported chartered for 210,000 bushels to Georgian bay.

Oats rallied a little on the strength in corn, but the trade continued featureless. The day's course in rye prices was similar to the trend in wheat, with the market reacting after an early upturn.

Honesty Wins Man Fortune

SUMMITVILLE, Colo. (AP)—For 24 years Jack Pickens kept secret the location of a "peak of gold" in the San Juan mountains until he could find a financial backer whom he would trust to help him open the treasure vault locked by nature.

Today Pickens and Judge Jesse C. Wiley the honest man whom the prospector found after a search of a quarter of a century, are sharing equally the fortune Pickens discovered.

While prospecting over the hills about the Little Annie mine in 1904 Pickens stumbled on a protruding boulder. He tapped the rock with his hammer. A piece broke off, revealing a layer of almost solid gold. Another blow dislodged more gold-lined slabs.

Beneath the surface of that boulder, the prospector concluded, lay a peak of gold.

Determining to keep the discovery a secret, Pickens also resolved to stay near his potential fortune. He obtained a job with a small force of miners at the Little Annie and then began his quiet hunt for an honest man with enough money to exploit the "strike."

Several times the owners of the Little Annie mine started tunnels toward the golden peak, and Pickens held his breath. He was greatly relieved as each of these projects was abandoned, one within 80 feet of his hidden treasure.

Finally the prospector met the man whom he could trust. He and Judge Wiley formed a partnership obtained long-time leases on 40 mining claims, including the golden peak, and within six weeks realized $114,000 from the ore taken off only that part of the boulder showing above the grass.

Since then half a million dollars has been hauled away and yellow metal worth many times that amount still is in sight.

Pickens has a wife and 13 children with whom to share the fortune.

N. Mexico Cotton Termed Inferior

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—About 50 per cent of the cotton grown in New Mexico has heretofore been termed "soft and penalized in price on the assumption that a soft cotton is an inferior cotton and produces a weak yarn of poor spinning quality," the department of agricurture said today, announcing tests which showed the average waste for New Mexico approximated that for similar grades and staples grown in other sections.

The spinning test made from nine lots of Acala cotton grown on irrigated land in New Mexico demonstrated to the department experts that yarns spun from this variety also compared favorably in strength and uniformity with the same types grown elsewhere. The Acala variety now forms the bulk of the crop in the irrigated districts of western Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, the department said. It was found that the average loss in breaking and sizing experienced with other types was maintained, and in some instances the number of ends that broke per hundred spindles per hour was exceptionally low.

Inland Steel is one of the strongest of the independent steel producers and has the second largest output in the Chicago district. It makes a very well diversified line and has adequate supplies of iron ore, coal and natural gas. It also controls the Inland Steamship company operating on the Great Lakes. It has an annual ingot capacity of 1,800,000 tons.

Its main plants are located in the Chicago district along the shore of Lake Michigan, and includes coke ovens, blast furnaces, open hearth furnaces, blooming, sheet, bar, rail, plate and structural mills with all necessary equipment. It maintains direct sales offices in seven large cities.

It was proposed to merge the Inland Steel company with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company and preliminary plans were approved, but in March, 1928, it was announced that the directors had been unable to reach an agreement.

Average annual net income in the last five years has been $5,915,000. The high year was 1926 when $7,148,000 was earned. In 1927 this dropped to $6,806,894, or the equivalent of $5116 a share. Net income for the first quarter of 1928 amounted to $2,291,442.

Funded debt totals $42,000,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of 1,200,000 shares of no par common. The preferred stock was retired April 1, 1928.

The present dividend rate on the common is $2.50 per year. On February 21, the directors declared an extra dividend of $4.45 a share in cash and 1½% in common stock, as well as the regular quarterly cash dividend.

As of January 1, 1928, current assets totaled $30,596,967; current liabilities were $4,105,017, and net working capital $26,491,950.

Book value applicable to the common stock amounted to $49.65 a share.

The club rooms were prettily decorated with orchid colorings and the luncheon table was trimmed in orchid and centered with a pink birthday cake bearing four candles. Readings were given by Tommy Allen Bryce, Joe Cotter Davidson and G. J. Gilles Jr. Betty Slaton won the girls prize in the Charleston contest and Henry Ogden won the boys prize. BRITISH ACE SAVED AT SEA of the spot where Commander De Pinedo, famous Italian aviator, was picked up when his Santa Maria II came down while en route from Newfoundland to the Azores last year.

Courtney and Companions Rescued

In Small Danger

The sea, at the time of the rescue was reported as calm and the wind almost negligible—it having been reported earlier in the day that the breeze was but three miles an hour.

Under those conditions and considering the size and the seaworthiness of the Whale, it was believed that Courtney and his companions had been in comparatively little danger and that they probably had suffered but little.

Courtney had left Horta, Azores islands, Wednesday afternoon in his Dornier-Napier flying boat Whale with E. H. Hosmer, wealthy Montreal capitalist, as a passenger, Fred Pierce, mechanic and E. W. Gilmour, radioman.

All went well until early today the Swedish motorship Gripsholm reported receiving distress signals from the Whale. The Gripsholm said the ship was down in a position which roughly was the same as that in which the Minnewaska found the Whale tonight.

Shipping immediately turned aside to rescue the fliers.

The liners Celtic, Minnewaska, Columbus, Cedric, President Hayes, and undoubtedly others, turned from their courses to join in the search.

In all of the tragic history of transatlantic flying almost the only instances in which a rescue has been effected have occurred in the vicinity of the Azores islands. It was near there that Ruth Elder and George Haldeman were saved by the Dutch tanker Barendrecht. Two of the navy Nancy planes which attempted the crossing of the Atlantic in 1919, came down in that vicinity and made the Azores islands in safety. Aside from these, Captain Harry Hawker was the only other transatlantic flier who has been saved after a plane has met with mishap. He was picked up north of the Azores and nearer the coast of Ireland.

FRENCHMAN TO MAKE ATTEMPT BEFORE SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (UP)—Dieudonne Costes, noted French aviator, will start from Paris on an attempted non-stop flight to Philadelphia before Saturday, Carl F. Schory, secretary of the National Aeronautical association contest committee, was advised today.

Costes must start before midnight Aug. 4, as the $25,000 prize offered for the first non-stop flight from Europe to Philadelphia expires at that time.

Letter Denies Lazarus Claim

arus, who now claims to be the son of Sam Lazarus, nor heard any reference to this party by Mr. Lazarus or any member of his family, or his associates, as his son, until the attorneys presented his alleged claim for a settlement.

"Mr. Lazarus only had one son, who died in infancy, and was survived by only his widow, Lillie N. Lazarus, and one daugher, Henrietta Baker Russell, and he had three grandchildren, the children of Mrs. Russell, Lazare, Beverly and Valerie, all of whom were mentioned in his will.

"It is indeed most singular that this person, who now claims to be a son of Mr. Lazarus, should wait for more than two years after the administration of Mr. Lazarus' estate, before presenting such a claim.

"Together with Mrs. Lazarus' attorneys, Messrs. Fordyce, Holliday and White, we have investigated every angle of the alleged claim of Silas A. Lazarus, and have found his charge cannot in any way be substantiated.

"While it is the privilege of anyone to file a suit and to make any kind of allegation they may see fit, this kind of suit seems to be the easiest kind to file when a rich man passes away.

"It goes without saying that the claim will be fought to the last ditch."

It doesn't always pay to win a newspaper beauty contest which has a movie contract attached to it as will be attested by Nancy Drexel, who at last is coming into her own as a star. Under her real name of Dorothy Kitchen, she won an estern prize contract along with a six months movie contract at a good figure. At the end of the 12th week, Nancy could get no more checks and she had no job, despite the nice contract. The moral is, "don't get movie struck or believe all the fairy tales you hear." Where a few make good, a million have failed. It took Miss Drextel a year to recover, but her native ability and early training on the stage of New York finally won her recognition. But first, she had to change her name and live down the beauty contest.

If the present day papers were telling the story of "Glorious Betsy," the vitaphone super feature opening at the Strand Friday, it might read something like this:

DIXIE BEAUTY
DEFIES EMPEROR

Elizabeth Patterson, Virginia Belle, Defies Napoleon and Marries His Younger Brother.

"The downfall of Napoleon Bonaparte is freely predicted by the international politicians as a result of his refusal to grasp the full significance of life and also to realize the ultimate power of woman.

"Miss Elizabeth Patterson, the belle of Virginia, and the most beautiful girl in America, has married Jerome Bonaparte, younger brother of the emperor of France.

"The emperor has ordered the marriage dissolved that his brother may make another marriage, more advantageous to the imperial aspirations of France.

"Grave complications are see as the American girl, Jerome Bonaparte, and mystery veiled diplomacy are fighting to block the emperor's plans."

The balance of the story, how it ended, and how it worked out, is the story of the vitaphone production of "Glorious Betsy" which again gives Wichitans the opportunity to see and hear Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel co-starred in a vitaphone masterpiece.

HOT CHECKS

"They can't get away with giving hot checks."

That flat edict was issued for burning ears Thursday by W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor and collector, as he checked over a report of several citizens who sought to pay their taxes with checks that did not mean "money in the bank."

"A bad check to the city for taxes is just exactly the same as a bad check anywhere else," Mr. Hyer said.

"Tax receipts issued will be cancelled as the taxes actually have never been paid."

CITY REDUCES WATER COSTS

Department Here Shows Gain in Efficiency

A decrease of eight per cent in the city water loss and a sharp reduction in the cost of pumping water were revealed in the city water department's July report, released Thursday by City Manager George D. Fairtrace.

The water loss is the difference between the amount pumped and the amount run through meters. In this loss is included leaks of all kinds and the tremendous amount of water which flows through the big lines for the fire department.

In July, 1928, 181,990,000 gallons were pumped at a cost of $1,987.75 as compared to 137,050,000 gallons at a cost of $2,397.50 in July, 1927. The actual number of gallons registered through meters last month was 105,997,000 which reperesents a loss of 30.5 of the total water pumped.

This is considered a low water loss for any city, and is compared with a water loss of 38.2 in June and a loss of 38.7 in May.

Tunney Quits To Save Mind

own name, or where he was, or what he was doing. For two months he was abnormal. He went to see a physician but was afraid to confide his condition. He told the doctor of an imaginary person receiving similar blows and asked his advice for this hypothetical patient. The doctor advised rest and plenty of it. Tunney took this advice for himself.

Tunney, according to Gallico's story, had not fully recovered when he entered the ring in Chicago to defend his title against Jack Dempsey.

It was not until the seventh round, when Jack Dempsey cut loose with a terrific bombardment which sent Gene to the floor for the first time in his fighting career that Tunney regained his full mental alertness, he told Gallico.

"But I had learned my lesson." Gallico quoted Tunney as saying. "I feel that my mind now is clear and free and as keen as it ever was. I want it to stay that way. It means more to me than anything the ring can give to me in the future.

"The same thing drove Dempsey out. Dempsey is a rich man now, but he knows that if he ever fought me again his money wouldn't be worth a nickel.

"The beating he would have to take around the head and eyes would impair him for life. I think I was lucky to have the accident that warned me in time. I am through forever."

Gallico's story stated that Tunney gave permission for publication of this story on condition that the name of the sparring partner responsible for the training camp accident be eliminated. No one was present to see the damaging blows struck, Tunney explained, except Eddie Eagan, a close friend, and the story was kept a secret between the champion and Eagan.

ITALIA FLIGHT IS DEFENDED

Nobile Claims Service To Science Made

(Copyright, 1928 by United Press)

ROME, Aug. 2. (UP)—General Umberto Nobile, rescued from the Arctic ice and now is back in his home at Rome, today voiced a defiant challenge against any attempt to discredit the scientific value of his expedition over the north pole in the dirigible Italia.

Nobile uttered this challenge in an exclusive interview with the United Press correspondent, the first interview he has given.

"Our expedition was worth all the suffering and sacrifices," Nobile asserted, "in the wealth of geographical and scientific research which it will give to the world. No polar expedition in history has accomplished so much scientifically as ours."

The general appeared to be bouyant and in a proud, haughty spirit. He was ready to defend the conduct of the entire expedition which cost the lives of at least two of his comrades and left in doubt the fate of the group of six men carried off in the envelope of the dirigible.

Defies Critics

"It has not been said that we flew a total of 243 hours of which 134 were over the polar regions," the general declared rising to emphasize his defiance of his critics. It has not been said, "that we encountered meteorological conditions and difficulties that tested the fibre of every man with us. We overcame a thousand difficulties and yet if we could have continued three hours more our flights would have been completed."

Prof. Raffaele Bastianelli, noted Italian surgeon arrived during the interview to dress Nobile's wounds. At a desk an orderly was busy opening thousands of letters and telegrams on the general's desk.

No Pleasure Trip

"Our preparations were the most complete of any expedition that ever went to the polar regions," Nobile said. There was not one thing missing that could possibly have been foreseen. This mishap was something which could absolutely not be forecast.

"We all went to the north pole knowing the risks and the hardships. It was no pleasure trip. We went there to explore and search for scientific material. We succeeded. We are confident it was worth the price. This expedition needs no excuses. It accomplished its purpose fully."

WINDOW BROKEN

Freak Accident Mars Plate Glass In Store Here

An old Ford hub cap which had dropped off a car into the street in the 700 block on Seventh street, was pinched between the pavement and the tire of another automobile Thursday night and shot like a bullet through a plate glass window a quarter of an inch thick in the Micks Furniture store, 716 Seventh street.

The tiny, light hub cap made a hole a foot in diameter in the heavy window. The driver of the car was unknown to police.

SOLON GUILTY IN MAIL RAID

Ex-Congressman Convicted Of Conspiracy

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Charles S. Wharton, former congressman and former assistant state's attorney, today was found guilty by a federal jury of conspiracy in connection with the $133,000 Grand Trunk mail robbery at Evergreen park last February, the conviction carrying a possible maximum prison term of two years and a maximum fine of $10,000.

Charles "Limpy" Cleaver, Chicago gunman, accused by the government of being the ringleader of the train robbers, was convicted with the Chicago criminal lawyer on the conspiracy charge and on six other charges of actual participation in the robbery and carrying a maximum prison sentence of 82 years if served consecutively and a fine of $10,000.

Both Cleaver and Wharton asked for new trials. Cleaver's motion will be heard tomorrow and Wharton's will be argued September 17.

Cleaver was accused of planning the robbery and helping execute it with seven others who held up the train, blew open the mail car and escaped with $133,000 in cash, part of which was found in Cleaver's home after he was arrested.

Wharton was accused of allowing the robbers to use his home to divide their loot for which the government said the robbers gave him $4000.

BOURLAND FOR ROAD TAXATION

W. T. C. C. Head Speaks At Electra Picnic

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 2.—Taxation as a method of raising funds for the building and maintenance of state highways was advanced as one of the essential methods of progress, in an address here Thursday night by Andy Bourland, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Bourland spoke before an audience of more than 3,000 people who assembled for a community picnic on the ouskirts of the city.

He spoke with particular reference to the recently enacted gasoline tax for highway funds, lauding its purpose, and elaborating generally on the merits expected to result from its enactment.

Mr. Bourland also praised those portions of the state which were conscientious in their efforts at assisting the state in road work by passing bond issues, and keeping up to date in road maintenance work.

Mr. Bourland was introduced by W. M. Austin, president of the Electra Chamber of Commerce, who remarked in his address that Mr. Bourland held a position "second only in importance to that of the governor of the state."

The crowd, assembled from several outlying communities, was served barbecue and refreshments preceding the speaking. Visitors were received by a special reception committee composed of W. A. Asbill, W. M. Austin, S. B. Marchant, R. E. Sheurer, and E. V. Hamilton, all of Electra; and Tom Haynes, County Line; H. J. Flusche, Mount Carmel; Jack Bradley, Beaver Creek; and F. F. Marshall, Barwise.

R. P. Hall, manager of the Electra Chamber of Commerce, was assisted in the entertainment by W. A. Asbill, S. B. Marchant, and R. E. Schurer.

The Electra Municipal band, under the direction of I. C. Johns, furnished music for the occasion.

Wedding Bells Ring Here For 90 Couples In July, Report Shows

Wedding bells pealed merrily during July.

Ninety couples applied for marriage licenses during the month, while exactly half that number of petitions for divorce were filed, records at the Wichita county courthouse revealed Thursday.

July has been exceeded this year in the number of marriage licenses issued in Wichita county only by June, far famed as the month of brides, when 109 licenses were issued.

While more persons were married in June, more, apparently, were satisfied with marriage during June also, when only 37 divorce petitions were filed. In May 76 marriage licenses were issued and 52 divorces were sought.

The 90 marriage licenses issued during July brings the total for the first seven months of the year to 583, according to records of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk.

Officers Threaten More Night Clubs As They Deny 'Hoodwinking' Methods

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Prohibition law padlocks today threatened 36 more night clubs, passed by in the indictments returned against 26 clubs and 131 individuals earlier in the week.

The new proceedings, it was learned, will be in form of summons and complaints on owners and managers.

This new action by federal authorities in a campaign to mop up New York followed upon a day of denials and counter charges and revelations from both camps—the night club hostesses and the prohibition authorities.

Commissioner Doran in Washington denied the picked squad of dry sleuths from the capital spent $65,000 to hoodwink Broadway's night clubs.

Helen Morgan and Texas Guinan, two of the hostesses indicted, entered strong denials to the dry raiders' stories. Miss Guinan asserted there was no bar in her place to padlock.

"Colvert's Frozen Nectar Ice Cream is a truly delicious confection, composed of universal favorites; a color scheme that is an inspiration."—Mrs. J. P. Bowen, 1708 McGregor.
