A public hearing on a proposed Snyder school tax rate of 51.5 cents — an eight-cent increase over last year's — is scheduled at 7 a.m. Thursday in the school administration building.

The hearing has been called in compliance with "truth in taxation" laws, which require taxing entities to allow public comment whenever they propose to raise taxes 3 percent or more above a calculated figure called the effective tax rate.

The effective tax rate for Snyder ISD this year is 49.6 cents per $100 valuation and the proposed rate of 51.5 equals a 3.7 percent increase.

The effective tax rate is a figure which takes into account such financial considerations as a comparison of taxable values from year to year.

The actual tax rate used by Snyder ISD last year was 43.5

and on a taking off on a vacation flight for Greece today with 137 people aboard, and authorities said 54 people perished when flames swept through the plane.

Survivors reported mass panic in the crowded aisle of the twin-jet aircraft as passengers tried to escape down emergency chutes when the burning plane came to a stop at the edge of the runway at Manchester Airport in northwest England.

The airport manager, who estimated the plane was racing down the runway at 100 mph, said the jet was saturated with fuel after the engine explosion and became "a towering inferno."

All 83 survivors were hurt, hospital authorities said, but only 15 were burned. Many suffered only from shock, they said.

"We were about two-thirds of the way on takeoff and there was a loud bang that sounded like an engine bang," passenger David Ashworth said. "I looked out to the left, where the sound had come from, and the left engine and wing were already on fire when we came to a stop.

"By the time the doors were open and the first people were out in the (emergency exit) chute, the fire was already inside the cabin, and the rear of the plane was completely full of smoke," he told reporters at the hospital.

The jet, operated by a subsidiary of British Airways, carried 131 passengers and a crew of six. It was unclear if any Americans or other foreigners were on board, but Airtours usually handles package tours for Britons.

Mike Mather, 21, of Norwich, still trembling under a hospital blanket from the ordeal, also said he heard a "bang," and added, "There were people inside that plane who had no chance of getting out, many didn't stand a chance at all."

Airport manager Gil Thompson put the final death toll at 54 and blamed the accident on an explosion in the engine on the left wing as the pilot poured on power to take off.

"We understand ... that there was an explosion in the port engine which severed the main fuel line and saturated the aircraft with fuel," Thompson said. "It then became really a towering inferno."

An airport authority official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said there was a second explosion after the plane came to a halt.

Manslaughter verdict given Bhakta

Jurors in the murder trial of 30-year-old Bharat N. Bhakta found him guilty of voluntary manslaughter Wednesday afternoon and began deliberating possible punishment in the case Thursday before noon.

The jury decision rejected the state's charge of murder and found that Bhakta's actions which resulted in the death of his wife Kumud was one of "passion."

The 132nd District Court jury deliberated some three hours Wednesday. Under the charge given them, they could have returned a verdict of murder, voluntary manslaughter, aggravated assault or acquital.

The range of sentences available with the manslaughter conviction includes 2-20 years in jail along with fines of up to $10,000.

Bhakta finished his testimony in his own behalf Wednesday morning and both District Attorney Ernie Armstrong and defense attorney Pete Greene presented their final arguments in the case before court recessed for lunch around 1 p.m.

During closing arguments, Greene asked the jurors to put themselves in the defendant's position. "There is no question that there is passion in this case," he said, adding that the situation would have "caused a reaction in anyone."

He called Bhakta's actions a natural response to the situation. "Mr. Bhakta is a real person, a human. Any man should react the way he has described or they're not much of a man."

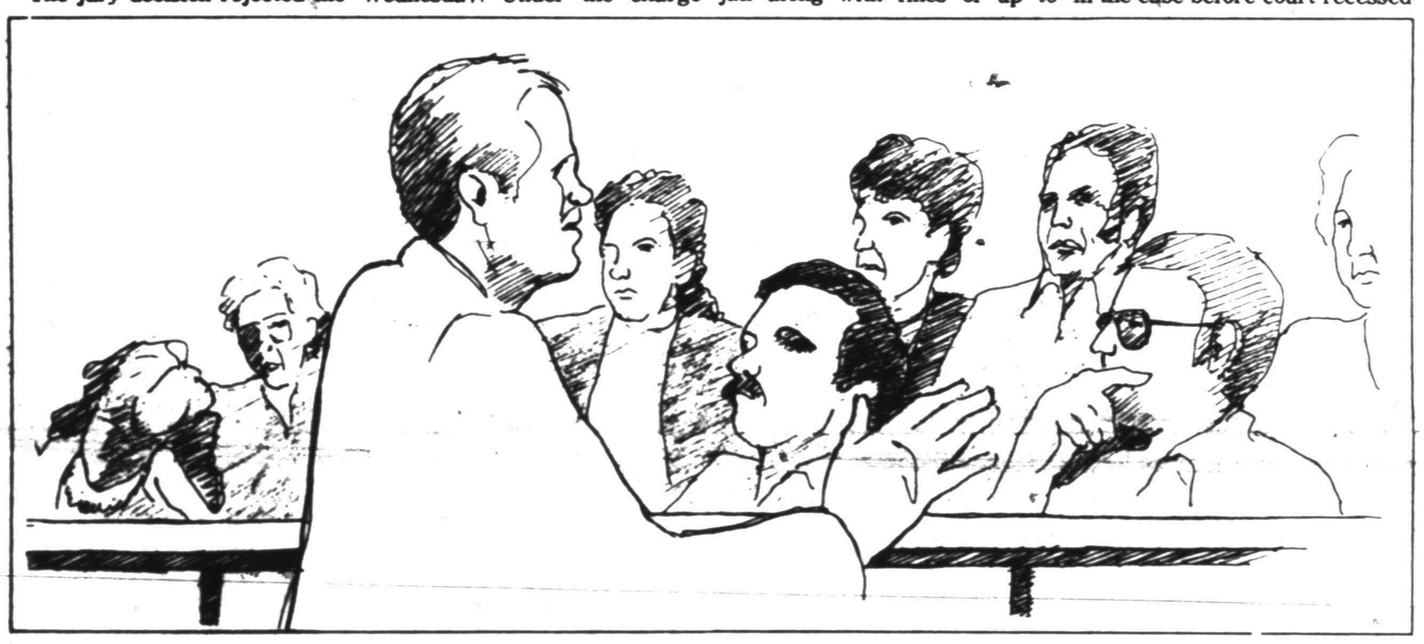

Testimony indicated the husband and wife argued while cleaning rooms at the Strayhorn Motel the morning of April 25.

Bhakta said the confrontation centered around his wife's admittance that she had been unfaithful to him during his recent return visit to India.

DA Armstrong argued that Bhakta "strangled" his wife, pointing to medical evidence of burst blood vessels in the eyes and around the heart — injuries which two medical witnesses indicated could only have been caused by applied pressure.

Armstrong repeated testimony offered by the pathologist who performed an autopsy on the victim. Nina Hollander of the Dallas-based Southwest Institute for Forensic Sciences testified that this pressure would have to

CLOSING ARGUMENTS — Defense attorney Pete Greene asked jurors in the Bharat N. Bhakta murder case Wednesday to put themselves in the defendant's position. "There is no question that there is passion in this case," he said, adding that the situation would have "caused a reaction in anyone." The jury found Bhakta guilty of voluntary manslaughter — a reduced charge from the murder conviction sought by the state — and was considering the punishment phase of the case at noon Thursday. Endowed scholarship established at college

An endowed scholarship in memory of Patsy Jones Fee has been established at Western Texas College by her son, James Aaron, a Fluvanna rancher.

Mrs. Fee, who died about a year ago, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. (Pat) Jones of Fluvanna. Mrs. Jones, a graduate of Fluvanna High School, was the first woman student to earn a degree in animal husbandry at Texas Tech University, where she graduated in 1948.

"As tuition costs continue to increase, endowed scholarships such as this are even more appreciated," observed Dr. Don Newbury, WTC president. "We are extremely pleased to add this scholarship to the WTC Scholarship Foundation."

The scholarship will cover tuition costs for one woman student majoring in agriculture, with the applicant holding at least a 3.0 grade point average.

Having spent most of her life ranching, Mrs. Fee was riding the range with her father "as soon as we could glue her to the saddle," Jones said.

At Tech, Mrs. Fee was a member of both livestock and meat judging teams. She was a member of the Aggie Club, Block and Bridle, Texas Tech Rodeo Association and Sock and Buskin, a drama organization.

Mrs. Fee's father was born in the Fluvanna community in northwest Scurry County in 1900 after his parents had moved to the area in 1892. Mrs. Jones, a native of Jonesboro, has lived in

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If you look like your passport picture, you need the trip."

After telling about Durelle Gorman losing her purse, at least two "friends" of Elois Pruitt have called to tell a similar story on her.

Elois is deputy district clerk, known in recent weeks as "Crash Pruitt" after a three-wheeler wreck that sent her over a barbed wire fence.

Frank was looking for some stray cattle, and Elois was trying to catch Frank to tell him the cows had been found when she had her mishap that left her black, blue and plenty sore.

It had nothing to do with the three-wheeler, but Elois–like Durelle– misplaced something. Frank and Elois were having several couples over one evening for hot dogs.

Elois had gone to the grocery store, and in her haste to get back home, misplaced the hot dog buns. When it came time to eat, the buns were nowhere to be found.

After a long search, it was the consensus of the hungry guests that Elois had left the buns at the grocery store. One of the guests took off to find 'em.

Only moments later, Elois found the buns stuffed in the bottom of an entry hall closet, where she had pitched her coat and purse when she came in from the store.

Frank, who is a government professor at Western Texas College, is normally the one who is accused of being the absent-minded professor, so ole Frank loves to tell this one on Elois.

Of course, Frank and Elois can tell lots of stories on each other. Their children tell one about the time the Pruitts hosted a Sunday school class for young marrieds.

All the youthful guests, with kids left at various sitters, were having a great time. The young guests played the various games with enthusiasm–not realizing the lateness of the hour.

Frank and Elois got their heads together and figured out a less than subtle way to make the guests aware of the time. After being in the back of the house a few minutes, Frank and Elois entered the living room–dressed in their pajamas.

Burglary suspect flees

Scurry County sheriff's investigators are searching for a suspect in a residential burglary reported north of Snyder Wednesday night.

According to investigators, J.R. and Carrie Dering of the Cooper Apartments — just north of Snyder on the Clairemont Highway — returned to their residence around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and saw a man inside their apartment.

After being spotted, the suspect fled the dwelling through a back window — leaving behind a pillowcase which he had apparently filled with small household items.

The suspect did, however, escape with a .270 caliber rifle.

Entry to the residence is thought to have been gained through the back window.

Ask Us

Q. — Can the mother file for back payment of child support after the child reaches age 18?

A. — Yes, but waiting until that time reduces the legal remedies available and the ultimate chance for payment. For example, in Texas the generally accepted statute of limitations for such payments is 10 years. If payments have been unpaid since the child was age 10, by age 18 only two years remain before some of the money owed cannot be legally considered.

Facility to open despite furor

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Despite residents' protests about converting a halfway house into a home for mentally retarded adults, six retarded individuals will be moving in next month, officials say.

About 30 neighborhood residents crowded into a Lufkin Planning and Zoning Commission meeting earlier this year to protest re-zoning of the residence. The commission unanimously denied the request.

But with the help of a new state law, the house is being prepared for the six to move in Sept. 1. Senate Bill 940 overrides zoning laws in Lufkin and all other Texas cities, allowing such facilities no matter what objections are raised by neighbors.

And that has some Lufkin residents outraged.

"It was like they couldn't play by the rules, so they changed the rules and are forcing this down our throat," said Phil Medford, who lives nearby.

"We've got rules, regulations and guidelines that everybody else in Lufkin has to abide by, but now this Senate bill has given them authority to act outside our current zoning laws," he said. "That's what's so upsetting is the way they did it after we had gone through all the proper channels."

Another resident shared Medford's dissatisfaction.

"It's very hard for me to understand why someone would come into a neighborhood a second time after being soundly defeated the first time, and try to force this thing on us," said local resident Bob Dunkin, who lives next door to what is now the halfway house.

"When the first reading of the zone change came up eight months ago, not one family in the entire area wanted the mentally retarded halfway house. Now we look up one day and here they are moving in."

Glenn Addison, of Goodman-Wade Enterprises, who serves as administrator of the halfway house, or "group home" program in Lufkin, says the facility will be an asset, not a detriment, to the neighborhood.

"We are going into the neighborhood and spending a great deal of money to fix up the house before the residents move in, so we're adding to the looks of the area," Addison told the Lufkin Daily News.

But Dunkin said the Senate bill doesn't provide adequate protection for the retarded residents or for other residents of the neighborhood.

"What if these people do sneak out of the house in the middle of the night and take a little stroll? If they do, they're more than likely going to be run over," Dunkin said.

"There are a lot of kids around this neighborhood, and if one of the retarded people happens to have some kind of attack, if they mentally aren't capable of thinking and they do kill someone, well it's just a real sad situation. Who's going to be responsible for that?"

Addison said the halfway house will be a home for the mentally retarded, not the mentally ill: "We're talking about people who are just slow. They don't pose any kind of danger at all."

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — His friends laughed when 15-year-old Joe Arrazola tried to warn them about the dangers of drugs, but at least one has stopped since Arrazola died from sniffing gasoline, his mother says.

Arrazola's mother said her son's drug use was a habit he didn't want, but it was one that killed him last month — he was found dead in the driveway of his parents' home.

An autopsy report attributed the death to sniffing gasoline one time too many. And although his friends laughed when he warned them about drugs, at least one has stopped taking drugs since his death, Mrs. Arrazola said.

And she hopes others will follow that youth's expample.

"I think Joe's death is a message," she said at a news conference Tuesday. "He would have wanted that."

Joe was found dead shortly after midnight on July 23.

"By the time he found out, he was in too deep," Mrs. Arrazola said of her son's drug habit.

"He knew where he was at, he knew he was in trouble," said Taylor County Justice of the Peace Samuel Matta, who ordered an autopsy on Arrazola after pronouncing him dead. "His desire was to quit."

Abilene Police Youth Officer Lee Reed said inhaling gasoline seals air sacks in the lungs, suffocating a person. That is apparently what happened to Arrazola, Matta said.

He had been sniffing gasoline for about a year when finally, Matta said, "he tried it one too many times, and it cost him his life."

Tuesday's news conference was put together by Matta, to allow Mrs. Arrazola to tell Abilene parents that her son wasn't the only chemically dependent child in the city, and that something needs to be done.

"We are going through here in Abilene, like we're going through it in most of the state and most of our nation, the greatest health epidemic that the United States faces today. Kids are seeking some way to get high, to get away from certain things," Matta said.

Mrs. Arrazola said she found her son was on drugs when some of his friends were arrested.

Rumors Open Fresh Wounds In Parents' Broken Hearts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We are grieving over the recent loss of our 19-year-old daughter. Margaret was a beautiful, popular girl with everything to look forward to. She graduated from high school with honors and was maintaining a B-plus average in college. Her interests were nutrition and physical fitness, and she hoped to go to law school. She excelled in everything she did and was a joy to us for all of her 19 years, never giving us a minute of heartache. Margaret went into a sudden coma and died a week later. We learned that a malignant brain tumor ruptured an artery, causing severe cerebral hemorrhage.

Yesterday, a friend told me that two of her neighbors were under the impression that our daughter died of a "drug overdose"! These people didn't even know her, and I can't imagine where they heard this terrible lie. Our hearts are broken enough without this vicious gossip.

Please tell your readers to keep their mouths shut when they have no facts, and to have more respect for the memory of the deceased, regardless of their age or the circumstances of their death.

HEARTBROKEN IN NEW YORK

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your beloved daughter. Concerning vicious gossip: It takes a friend and an enemy working hand in hand to cut you to the core: an enemy to make up a vicious lie, and a "friend" to tell you about it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my first year of junior high, and I've been going with this guy for a couple of months. Now he wants a more grown-up relationship, and I'm not ready for it.

I don't want to have sex before I'm ready, but I'm afraid if I say no I will lose him. I don't want to lose him, but I don't want to be pushed into something I'm not ready for.

Should I give in and risk getting pregnant, or should I tell him how I feel and risk losing him? He is very persistent, and I like him a lot.

I really hope you put this in the paper, because a lot of girls my age are going through the same thing and we are going to have to make a choice either way.

SCARED

DEAR SCARED: What a wise (and honest) girl you are. If you have to ask, you're definitely not ready. Furthermore, any boy who would put a girl in this position is selfish, uncaring, immature and a user. Don't worry about "losing" him; tell him you're not ready for that kind of relationship, and if you lose him, consider yourself lucky.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for publishing the letter from "Discouraged in Jay, Maine," who complained about sesame seed buns served in fast-food places.

I don't wear dentures, but I have a colostomy and must chew my food well and eat nothing that might cause a blockage. I was told that some seeds can swell considerably while in the body, causing a blockage.

It's unfortunate that there isn't a Wendy's restaurant in his town. The food at Wendy's is delicious and the buns are unseeded.

COLOSTOMATE IN JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR COLOSTOMATE: There may be one after this hits print. And the competition just might provide a choice of seeded or unseeded buns. (At least you planted the seed.)

Machine pulverizes kidney stones now

DALLAS (AP) — Removal of kidney stones usually means several days in the hospital and a painful incision.

But a new treatment that immerses a patient in water and then disintergrates his kidney stones with shock waves could reduce the pain, time spent in the hospital and even the cost of curing the health problem.

The new treatment uses a piece of equipment called a kidney lithotripter, which has been installed in the newly opened Litho-Center Southwest at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, one of two in a five-state area.

"In this age of miracle medicine, it constitutes a miracle," Dr. James Cochran, center director, told the Dallas Times Herald. "The condition that usually requires at least a week in the hospital and a painful incision now can be treated with an overnight stay."

The average cost of $9,000 to $12,000 for such a stay will also be cut to between $6,500 and $8,500 with the new treatment, Cochran said.

Each year about a half million people in the United States are diagnosed with kidney stones, mineral deposits which form in the kidney and often block the narrow ducts leading to the bladder.

Although some stones pass through the urinary tract, as many as 80 percent of patients must have surgery, Cochran said.

The kidney lithotripter, approved by the Food and Drug Administration late last year, has already successfully treated 14 patients at the Dallas center, he said. The $2.2 million project is a joint venture of the hospital, a group of physicians and Uro-Tech Management Corp. of Houston, officials said.

The machine focuses shock waves on the stones, causing them to crumble into small particles that can be passed through the urine.

The patient is placed under general anesthesia, then positioned on a reclining seat and lowered into a large tub of water. The kidney stones are located with an X-ray unit, and the patient is positioned over a reflector at the bottom of the tub.

"The shock wave puliverizes and crushes the stones by setting up an internal vibration," Cochran said. "The stones turn to sand, which can be passed through the urinary tract with minimal discomfort."

Doctors say the treatment is effective in about 80 percent of the cases. Patients must be referred by their physicians.

In 1586, a plot to kill Queen Elizabeth I was uncovered in which Anthony Babington, supporter of Mary Queen of Scots, planned to murder Elizabeth and her ministers and assume power with the aid of English Roman Catholics and Spanish soldiers. When the plot was discovered, Babington and six others were executed for high treason.

A chance for a discovery play

By James Jacoby

"Idle hands are the devil's workshop" is a good Puritan saying. If you think of your opponents as diabolical defenders when you're in a slam contract, take the idle cards out of their hands and you may see a devil transformed into an angel.

Play for slam was quite good, depending on the clubs splitting 3-3 or the diamond finesse working. South won the opening lead in dummy and started the trump suit. West held off taking his trump ace until three rounds were played. After winning the ace, West led a second heart. Declarer won in dummy and came to his hand with the club ace to draw the last trump. Then he played to the club king, and cashed the last heart and the last high club. When clubs did not split, South played a diamond to the queen, unfortunately losing to West's singleton king.

How can declarer acquire X-ray vision? Not by putting on his Superman cape. Instead, he should take the idle cards out of the defenders' hands. He does so by playing his fifth spade, discarding a diamond from dummy, before playing to the club king. He now plays as before, cashing his high heart and the last high club. At the two-card ending, he leads dummy's diamond. When East follows with the jack, he remembers that East has the remaining club and so cannot have the red king. When he rises with the ace he is rewarded by the fall of the king.

Hot weather a danger for most poultry

COLLEGE STATION — Hot mid-summer and early fall temperatures can be very stressful for market poultry. Producers, including 4-H and FFA youth who are raising broilers, capons or turkeys for fall livestock shows, often have difficulty producing quality birds since hot weather causes a reduction in feed consumption and growth, explains Dr. Fred Thornberry. He is a poultry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Thornberry says studies have shown that temperature should not exceed 82 degrees Fahrenheit if maximum growth is to be attained with broilers past four weeks of age.

"Temperatures above 90 degrees will depress weight gain by about 10 percent for broilers between five and nine weeks of age. High temperatures also can cause increased mortality," he warns.

Detrimental effects of hot weather can be reduced by following these suggestions.

—Keep market poultry over three weeks of age as cool as possible. Cooling aids include shade, roof insulation, painting the roof white to reflect radiant heat from the sun and fans. An evaporative cooler or fogger can be very effective.

—Housing should be as open as possible to maximize natural ventilation.

—Increase floor space and improve performance by culling poor quality birds.

—Poultry will eat little during the hot portion of the day. However, feed consumption can be increased by feeding small amounts of moistened feed at two to three hour intervals during this time.

—Night lights in summer are a must for all market poultry except turkey hens. Feed consumption will increase if birds can eat during the cooler night hours. A 40-to-60 watt bulb will provide sufficient light for a project flock. flock.

—Quality high protein rations should be kept before the birds at all times to promote maximum growth.

—Cool drinking water should be kept before birds on hot days. Some successful feeders provide ice water.

—Capons, heavy turkeys and broilers should be handled as little as possible in hot weather. Excess exercise, exertion or fright can kill these birds.

—On extremely hot days, frozen water jugs can be placed in the pen to help cool the birds.

—Hang insect pest strips in the pen but out of reach of the birds to reduce stress from mosquito populations. Fall-reared capons and turkeys should be vaccinated for fowl pox between eight and 12 weeks of age.

'Ragin Tigers look forward to scrimmage with Vernon

Coach Dennis Tomlin said the 'Ragin Tigers and coaching staff alike are looking forward to Friday's scrimmage with Vernon.

The scrimmage is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Stamford's Bulldog Stadium.

"Right now we're getting our legs under us. We had been working extremely hard every day and about Tuesday we just ran out of gas," said Tomlin this morning. "We've shortened our practice sessions some and we're ready to see what the No. 1 Class 3A team in the state can show us what we need to work on."

Vernon is the No. 8 preseason pick of Texas Football Magazine.

"Our number one objective Friday is to find football players. We already know what we're doing offensively and defensively. This isn't to work on plays or anything like that. This is to find the right personnel for the job," the coach said.

"We've got some real battles shaping up in our defensive line, our offensive backfield and at inside linebacker. We have two or three people still in the running for some positions. It's wide open going into the scrimmage. We'll be looking for some people to prove themselves. This scrimmage will be extremely important to them."

The Snyder training staff will have some extra help this season, thanks to the concern of several individuals. The school has been donated a golf cart which has been re-worked to carry a stretcher. It's been painted in the traditional gold, with black lettering. The cart got its first use this morning when kicker Mitch Page was hustled off the workout field after suffering an apparent twisted ankle.

More information on the cart, its donors and its uses, will be forth coming in an article in The Snyder Daily News.

Degrate cut

Tony Degrate, Lombardi Trophy winner from Snyder, was apparently cut from the Cincinnatti Bengal training camp Wednesday morning.

Degrate, voted defensive player of the year for the University of Texas Longhorns and a two-time All-American, was reportedly enroute to Austin today.

Eagles send Montgomery packing for Detroit camp

by The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Eagles continued ridding themselves of players who are unhappy with their contracts by sending former All-Pro running back Wilbert Montgomery to the Detroit Lions just one day after they cut holdout tackle Dean Miraldi.

The Eagles traded Montgomery on Wednesday for linebacker Garry Cobb. Earlier this month, Philadelphia attempted to send Montgomery to Seattle but he failed a Seahawks physical. But the 30-year-old running back, who has been plagued by a bad knee, passed a Lions physical and the trade was completed.

Montgomery's presence could ease the pain of losing star rusher Billy Sims, who is slowly recovering from a knee injury and is on the reserve-physically-unable-to-perform list.

Montgomery, the Eagles' all-time leading ground gainer, refused to report to training camp in a dispute over renegotiation of his contract.

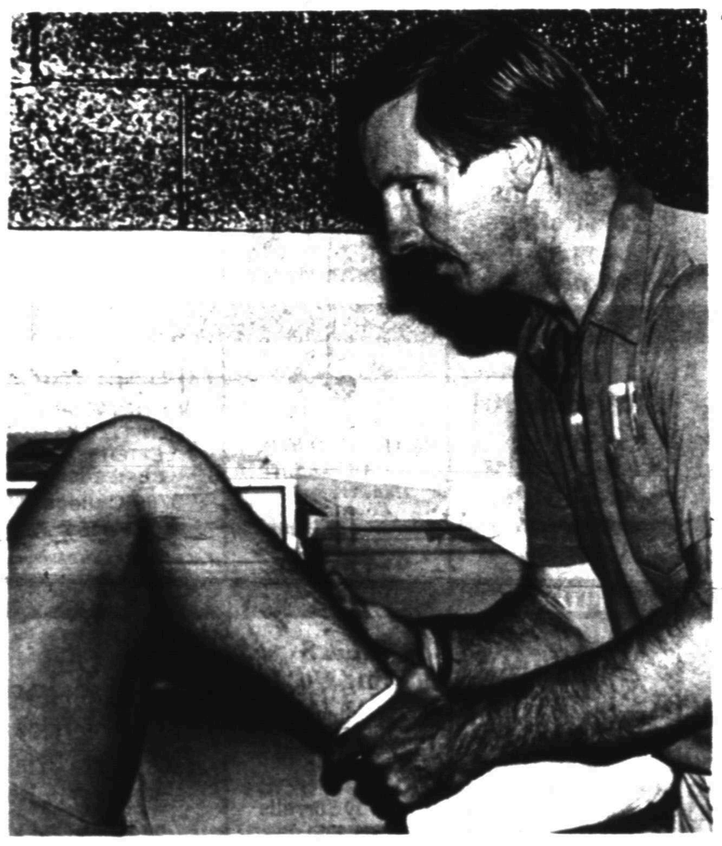

On Tuesday, Miraldi, a starter, was waived by Philadelphia. He had told the Eagles that he was afraid the East Coast weather would damage his health.

Cobb, 28, played six seasons with the Lions after making the team as a free agent in 1979. He captained Detroit's defense the last two seasons.

Philadelphia still is without All-Pro wide receiver Mike Quick and starting defensive lineman Dennis Harrison and linebacker Jerry Robinson.

The Eagles acquired on Wednesday linebacker Tim Golden, who was cut by Indianapolis; wide receiver Judious Lewis, waived by Seattle; and wide receiver Tron Armstrong, dropped by the New York Jets.

The Cleveland Browns cut Steve Collier, an offensive tackle, and the Pittsburgh Steelers placed offensive tackle Russ Graham on injured reserve with a twisted left knee.

Cowboys' Lockhart threatens to leave if negotiations fail

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas Cowboys middle linebacker Eugene Lockhart has threatened to leave the team, perhaps as early as this weekend, if the club refuses to renegotiate his contract to his liking.

Lockhart, a sixth-round draft choice last year, said he is disturbed that he is scheduled to earn $79,000 this season, while his backup, Steve DeOssie, will make $140,000.

He's also disturbed that the Cowboys gave former USFL running back Todd Fowler a $125,000 signing bonus and agreed to pay him $125,000 if he makes the team this year.

"They're giving more money to these unproven USFL guys than to me, and I am the starting middle linebacker," Lockhart said.

The club is not obligated to renegotiate Lockhart's contract since he has two years remaining on his original deal signed last year, but the Cowboys' policy is to renegotiate contracts of second-year players who have made the starting lineup.

The Cowboys have offered Lockhart a three-year contract of $110,000, $130,000 and $150,000, but he said he wants another $40,000 a year.

Donelson Chevrolet was one of 151 teams entered in the competition, and was undefeated before losing to the nation's sixth rated team, Longview, in the finals.

The Snyder team will now compete in the nationals in Moore, Okla., Aug. 30 through Sept. 1. Snyder is seeded among the top three teams.

Yankees closing on Toronto Jays

by The Associated Press

If judging in pennant races had a style category, the New York Yankees would have lost ground Wednesday night. Instead, they're closer to the Toronto Blue Jays than they have been since July 22.

The second-place Yankees beat the California Angels 13-10 Wednesday in a game that featured eight errors, nine unearned runs, and a bloop single that became, effectively, a two-run homer with the help of two errors.

"I guess you could call this a laugher," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin.

Martin's club won its seventh straight game and 14th of 15 while the Blue Jays were losing to the Cleveland Indians 5-2. New York trails Toronto by only three games in the American League East after being behind by seven games just a week ago.

In other American League games, Kansas City beat Chicago 2-1, Milwaukee defeated Minnesota 3-2, Oakland rallied past Detroit 4-3, Texas downed Boston 5-3, and Baltimore outscored Seattle 11-8.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 2

Neal Heaton's six-hitter and a home run and two RBIs from Joe Carter allowed Cleveland to survive back-to-back home runs by Toronto's Jesse Barfield and Cecil Fielder in the fifth inning.

Heaton, 7-13, pitched his fourth complete game, walked four and struck out six. Doyle Alexander, 12-8, took the loss.

Orioles 11, Mariners 8

A 10-run third inning, highlighted by Eddie Murray's two-run double and Lee Lacy's two-run single, tied the AL's season high. Fifteen Baltimore batters rallied off three Seattle pitchers on five walks, four singles, a pair of doubles and a two-run throwing error.

Dennis Martinez, 10-7, pitched 5 2-3 innings for the victory. Seattle starter Jim Beattie, 5-6, walked the first three batters in the third inning and got the loss.

Royals 2, White Sox 1

Charlie Leibrandt and Dan Quisenberry combined on a six-hitter and George Brett's 17th homer broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning. Leibrandt, 12-6, reached a new career high for victories in a season.

The Royals had only five hits off Chicago's Floyd Bannister and Bob James. Bannister, 5-11, has lost six straight decisions and has not won since June 10.

Brewers 3, Twins 2

Robin Yount's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning gave Milwaukee a sweep of the three-game series with Minnesota. The Brewers rallied against Steve Howe, 1-3, and Ron Davis. Ray Burris, 8-9, pitched his sixth complete game of the year for the victory. Tim Teufel homered for Minnesota.

A's 4, Tigers 3

Oakland rallied for four runs in the bottom of the ninth inning against Willie Hernandez, 7-8. The winning runs scored on Steve Henderson's double off the center-field fence and a throwing error on the play by first baseman Dave Bergman.

Rangers 5, Red Sox 3

Gary Ward belted a three-run homer in the first inning and Texas handed Boston a sixth straight loss. The Red Sox have lost 11 of 12.

Starter Jeff Russell, 1-3, got his first AL victory with help from Greg Harris, who earned his eighth save with 3 2-3 innings of one-hit ball.

The Red Sox grounded into their 127th, 128th, 129th and 130th double plays - most in the American League, while Wade Boggs hit his seventh homer.

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 11-11, is winless since July 14. He also lost an encounter with Jim Rice in the Boston locker room after the game.

Hornung sues NCAA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Paul Hornung is seeking $3 million from the NCAA because it refused to allow the former football great to be a commentator for college games in 1982 and 1983.

Hornung filed the lawsuit against the NCAA three years ago. The trial began Tuesday in Jefferson Circuit Court and is expected to last a week.

Hornung claims his career was damaged and the NCAA defamed him by not allowing him to work as a color analyst for Atlanta cable station WTBS.

An NCAA official told the station that the 1956 Heisman Trophy winner was rejected because he "does not personify college football" and that "he had at least one undesirable public situation while a professional player," referring to Hornung's one-year suspension from the National Football League's Green Bay Packers in 1963 because he had been placing bets on his team to win.

POSTAL EXAM

Clerk-Carrier

The Snyder Post Office has not accepted applications for the Clerk-Carrier exam since March, 1982. The Post Office usually tests for these positions every two or three years. The Clerk-Carrier Position currently pays $8.30 per hour plus excellent benefits. People are hired for these positions based on their exam score.

WORKSHOP By POSTAL EXAM PREPARATION CENTER

Serious postal candidates should begin preparing now because the Post Office may begin testing the same week applications are accepted. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired. In order to make sure that you have enough time to properly prepare, this workshop is being offered before application dates have been set. This workshop was designed by the foremost authority in America on gaining postal employment. Stephen McNally is a former postal employee and a Ph.D. candidate in Education. He has averaged 100% on 5 out of 5 Clerk-Carrier exams. One of Mr. McNally's students recently made this statement, "This workshop was well worth my time and money. Using Mr. McNally's techniques allowed me to score 100% on my first 3 Clerk-Carrier exams!" E.A., Summerfield, IL.

GUARANTEED SCORE of 95% or HIGHER

*The Exclusive P.E.P.C. Double Guarantee: 1. At the end of the workshop, if you do not think these methods will significantly increase your score, your money will be refunded. 2. You will enter a written contract guaranteeing you a score of 95% or higher or your money will be refunded in full.

WORKSHOP TUITION IS $35.00. Payable in cash, Visa, or MasterCard. (No personal checks). This fee includes the 2½ hour workshop, the textbook, which includes 3 complete tests, 10 additional practice exercises, tips to make you test-wise, and more.

Minor injuries involved in two Wednesday wrecks

Two traffic accidents involving minor injuries were reported in Snyder Wednesday.

Dascualo S. Rodriquez of 1605 College Ave. was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries shortly after 3:46 p.m. after a 1978 Chevrolet he was driving was involved in a collision with a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Elvin Charles White of 1001 21st St.

That mishap occurred at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave.

Rodriquez was treated at the hospital emergency room and released.

Wednesday's first accident was logged at 10:26 a.m. in the 1600 Block of the East Highway.

Involved in it were a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Richie Dean Brewer of Snyder and a 1965 Chevrolet driven by William Thomas Farris of Rt. 2, Snyder. A third "non-contact" vehicle was also said to be involved in that mishap.

Police repoted that a passenger in the Brewer vehicle sustained very minor injuries which did not require medical treatment.

cents, consequently the new proposed rate equals an eight cent increase.

The budget the tax rate will help fund reflects a 4.3 percent increase in spending over last year. In actual tax dollars required, however, a 7.7 percent rise is projected.

This percentage is higher than the "effective" tax rate calculation due to a drop in taxable values — primarily oil-related. Oil values for the school district dropped some 15.3 percent, adding to an overall value drop of 11.7 percent.

The school budget this year totals some $12.9 million as compared to $12.4 million for 1984-85.

Verdict given in Bhakta case

have been applied "for some minutes."

Bhakta testified, however, that he only struck his wife about the neck, pushing her back against a concrete wall. He testified this was a reaction after she told him she wanted to leave him and go with the man she had been seeing.

Greene attempted to discount Armstong's strangulation theory by pointing out that the autopsy report referred only to faint contusions on the victim's neck and shoulders. He also noted that as the first medical personnel on the scene, emergency medical technician Keith Davis failed to mention seeing marks on her neck at that time.

Greene also asked the jury to consider Bhakta's character. "Here is a man who has never been in any trouble before or since; a character who works hard, who saves money, who is religious, who cares about family, who cares about his mother, who cares about his marriage and his children."

Armstrong tried to reject the "sudden passion" theory by noting that testimony indicated Mrs. Bhakta suffered both a blow to the back of the head and the "choking" injuries.

"If we only had trauma to the head, I would not argue greatly with Mr. Greene about passion," Armstrong argued to the jury.

Because of the length of time required to cause the blood vessel injury, Armstong told the jury he believed that the defendant "knowingly and intentionally" killed his wife.

In an attempt to discredit Bhakta's credibility, Armstong added, "When he still believed she was going to live, he told the chief of police, 'Yes, I choked her a little. We had an argument.' Then Dr. (Thomas) Wiman comes out and says, 'She's not going to make it. She's not going to live.' Then he changes his story."

The jurors Wednesday were charged prior to the lunch recess but they did not begin their deliberations until they returned from lunch around 2 p.m.

Between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., jurors sent out two notes asking for clarification of the manslaughter charge.

Jury foreman Robert Spradlin emerged from the jury room around 5:35 p.m. and announced that they had reached a decision.

District Judge Gene Dulaney read the verdict to the court at 5:40 p.m.

After the reading of the verdict, Judge Dulaney recessed the court until 9 a.m. Thursday. Thursday morning was used to hear arguments in the punishment phase of the trial.

Few answers given on tracking compound

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Embassy officials told Americans in Moscow that the KGB is using a potentially cancer-causing tracking substance on embassy personnel, but did not say who had been exposed or how Americans could avoid it.

A Soviet diplomat compared the report to a "cheap detective story."

But three separate briefings at the U.S. ambassador's residence Wednesday left American residents of Moscow with more questions than answers about the man-made compound, NPPD, or nitrophenylpentadienal.

Officials said the chemical leaves a deposit on people and objects that it touches. They said minute particles have been found, and they sought to reassure the Americans that there was probably no immediate health risk.

They declined to say who had been exposed to the chemical or where it had been detected.

"All I can tell you is there is no doubt that the KGB is using this substance. I can't go beyond that," Charge d'Affaires Richard Combs told one gathering of businessmen and journalists.

In New York, the Soviet Union's deputy representative to United Nations denied the charge in an interview on the ABC News program "Nightline."

"This invention with the powder deserves to have its place in the very cheap ... detective story. It can't happen in our country, where we protect the foreign diplomats," said Vladimir Shustov.

But angry U.S. senators said the Reagan administration should shut down the embassy in Moscow or expel Soviets from the United States in retaliation.

Rumors that the substance had been found on steering wheels and in drinking water at the embassy snack bar swept the American community of 500 people after the briefings were announced.

"Can you give me some advice — should I keep my kid away from the car?" asked Jane Thatcher, a journalist's wife. "How protective should I be?"

Steven Nielsen, a Moscow-based representative of Chilewich Corp., said after the session he was confused. "I don't feel alarmed. I just feel there was a lot of speculation, a lot of cause for speculation, but no real definite answers to questions."

Asked whether intelligence concerns were one reason U.S. officials would not provide more detail, Combs replied: "The KGB might not know that we know where they put it."

Combs said a "strong protest" was filed Monday with the Soviet Embassy in Washington, and that he filed a separate protest Tuesday in Moscow.

"Testing in Washington has confirmed that NPPD is potentially — and I underscore the word potentially — harmful to people," he said.

NPPD is a mutogen, a substance that causes cell mutations and can cause cancer, Combs said. He said only extensive testing could tell whether there was a hazard to those exposed to it.

Dr. Charles Brodine of the State Department's Office of Medical Services said little is known about the compound.

AT&T to eliminate 24,000 positions

NEW YORK (AP) — Communications workers are demanding immediate job-security negotiations with American Telephone & Telegraph Co. after AT&T announced plans to eliminate 20 percent of the jobs in one 117,000-employee division.

Robert E. Allen, chairman of the Morristown, N.J.-based Information Systems unit, announced the retrenchment to employee groups in a nationwide telephone call Wednesday and said market conditions could require additional cuts.

AT&T said it hoped to save hundreds of millions of dollars each year by eliminating approximately 24,000 jobs at the communications products unit to make the highly competitive business more profitable.

"Sales of new products at Information Systems are up across all of the competitive markets we serve," Allen said. "Now we must strengthen our ongoing efforts to improve profitability."

The Communications Workers of America, which represents about 190,000 of AT&T's 360,000 employees, said in Washington that it was outraged. The union's executive board demanded negotiations on transfers of employees whose jobs are in jeopardy, pensions and existing contract provisions on job security.

"They're cutting people for profits — short-term profits," said Morton Bahr, the union's president. "They're laying off their skilled craft workers, who are their greatest resource, and in effect handing skilled workers to their competitors."

Brian Fernandez, an analyst for Nomura Securities in New York, said, "It's sad to see the leading technology company laying off people. These are trained people. It's not what the Japanese do."

Bahr complained that managers were not being asked to sacrifice as much as the company's workers.

About 30 percent of the positions being eliminated are in management, AT&T said.

"By its recent action, AT&T is creating an almost insurmountable obstacle to successful negotiations" on a contract next year, Bahr said.

He said the union would stage a national day of protest Aug. 29 to focus on the job cuts and a growing trend toward contracting out union jobs and foreign production of telecommunications products.

AT&T is establishing a factory in Singapore to make residential telephones that had been produced in Shreveport, La.

AT&T's streamlining had been expected in light of intense competition in the business communications field and followed rumors of major cutbacks that had circulated in financial markets and trade publications.

On Wall Street, AT&T stock rose 50 cents Wednesday to close at $21.87½ a share in active trading following the announcement.

In the first six months of the year, AT&T had earnings of $815 million, up 19.5 percent from a year earlier. Revenue totaled $16.86 billion, only fractionally higher than in the first half of 1984.

AT&T said about 7,400 of the job cuts were under way and that most would be completed this year.

It said the 24,000 employees affected would either be offered a transfer to any available post in AT&T or financial incentives, including improved pension plans, to leave the company. Layoffs would account for the remaining cuts, but AT&T said it was impossible to estimate how many of the jobs would be eliminated first through attrition.

X-ray exposure poses a hazard

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I keep reading about the danger of excessive X-rays. In the past two years, I have had two CAT scans, four series of kidney X-rays, three skull series, four sinus X-rays, one series for thyroid and one set of dental X-rays. I've also had two malignant melanomas removed. Is this excessive?

DEAR READER — I think that's a walloping dose of radiation. I'm tempted to try to calculate exactly how much you have received, but I cannot. The figure depends on shielding, periods of exposure, efficiency of the X-ray machines, skill of the technicians and many other variables.

I'm also tempted to support my colleagues and say that you must have needed all those tests, but — again — I cannot. That would be sheer hypocrisy. Most of the examinations you mention produce large doses of radiation delivered to wide areas of tissue. I cannot imagine why you would be subjected repeatedly to such high radiation levels. Within a short two-year period, you have received more X-ray exposure than most adults do over a lifetime. Your skin dose must have been astronomical.

I will not comment on the potential consequences of your radiological testing; that is an issue between you and your doctors. However, in my opinion, many people have valid concerns about X-ray exposure. Doctors X-ray far too frequently. In your case, the limit seems to have been generously exceeded.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Fourteen hours before my daughter was born, I had a pelvic X-ray. Does this mean that she runs a 50 percent risk of dying from leukemia? What can we do to protect her from further damage? Why would a doctor order X-rays under those circumstances?

DEAR READER — In all likelihood, your obstetrician ordered a pelvic X-ray at a time when the medical profession was ignorant about the hazards of radiation. Your daughter was presumably a full-term infant, so the effects of your X-ray were fortunately slight. I doubt that she has such a high risk of leukemia; the 50 percent figure probably more accurately reflects X-ray exposure to much younger unborn infants. However, she did receive total body radiation at the time of your examination. Because X-ray effects are cumulative in children, I suggest you make all reasonable efforts to prevent her from further radiation exposure unless the tests are absolutely medically necessary.

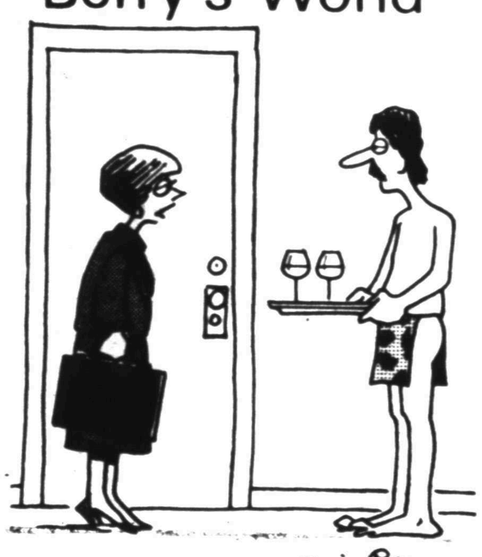

DEAR DR. GOTT — Despite our vociferous objections, our child was given three CAT scans to his head during his neonatal period. You may be sure that before we allow any more X-ray tests to be performed on him, the doctors are going to have to convince my wife and me that the tests are vital and that the information cannot be obtained by safer, alternative means.

DEAR READER — For their own safety, patients must begin questioning — and keep questioning — the use of diagnostic methods that can be dangerous. X-rays, even at low doses, are potentially hazardous and must be refused if there are no compelling reasons for performing them.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.
