MISD trustees named among top five in state

The Texas Association of School Administrators (TASA) has announced that the Muleshoe Independent School District Board of Trustees has been selected as one of five 1994 Texas Honor School Boards. The announcement was made during an MISD board meeting last Monday.

The Muleshoe board was selected as the Region 17 School Board of the Year in June.

Board members include Cindy Purdy, president; Sam Harlan, vice-president; Curtis Shelburne, secretary; Max King; Frank Saldana; Arnold Price and Ed Cox.

Upon learning of the honor Purdy said, "We are very honored to be chosen for this award. Our strength as a board stems from our commitment to work as a team to do what's best for our children. This teamwork–including trustees, teachers, administrators and support staff – has been fostered under the excellent leadership of superintendent Bill Moore."

Moore said, "Our trustees share a vision of excellence for our students, and they work as a team in making all decision based on what's best for our kids. It is a pleasure to work for such a dedicated group of people who work so well together. We are proud of them for being selected as an Honor Board of Texas."

Moore, superintendent for MISD, was recognized as this year's Superintendent of the Year for Region 17.

The Muleshoe Board joins those from Eastern Bernard, Region 3; Menard (Region 15), Terrell (Region 10) and Weatherford (Region 11) as this year's honor boards.

One of these five boards will be recognized as the Outstanding School Board in Texas for 1994 at the TASA/TASB (Texas Association of School Boards) Joint Annual Convention in Dallas on Oct. 2.

TASA created the School Board Awards Program in 1971 to recognize those school

Water conservation field demonstration day to be held in Lubbock

LUBBOCK – A water conservation field demonstration day will be held Thursday, Aug. 25 at the Ute Becton Farm located five miles east of Idalou and eight miles north on Farm Road 789. Interested producers are invited to stop by the field day at their convenience from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to see the many water conservation techniques being demonstrated.

"Since severe hail damage to the cotton crop forced cancellation of the demonstration day scheduled for Sept. 8 in Lynn County, this will be the last field day for the 1994 growing season.

Ken Carver, High Plains Water District Assistant Manager said, "We hope producers will take this opportunity to see how drip irrigation has been used to irrigate cotton in the hot, dry weather experienced so far this year."

Drip irrigation is the slow, frequent application of small amounts of water to the soil area directly surrounding plant roots. Water losses caused by evaporation, deep percolation, and runoff are virtually eliminated. Using drip irrigation can save 30-40 percent of the water required by most other irrigation systems.

"Most producers are aware that drip irrigation requires less water than conventional furrow irrigation. However, most want to see how well it performs. This will be a good opportunity for them to see how the cotton is responding to drip irrigation in hot, dry weather," Carver said.

Representatives from sponsoring agencies will be on hand to discuss water conservation techniques with producers.

Wilfred E. "Willie" Crenwelge, USDA-Soil Conservation Scientist, will demonstrate the neutron moisture meter. Brian Houton, Water District Agriculturist, will explain the use of gypsum blocks and resistance meters.

Dr. Rose Mary Seymour of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will discuss evoptranspiration and how to utilize the Potential Evopotranspiration (PET) Network.

Jerry Funck, Water District Agricultural Engineer Technician, will discuss the drip tape, emitters and other drip irrigation hardware installed at the Lubbock County Site.

USDA-SCS District ConservationistRandy Underwood, Soil Conservationist Karie Kollar, Civil Engineering Technician Gordon Paden and Soil Conservationist Quenna Terry will demonstrate the mobile field water conservation laboratory.

In addition, drip irrigation equipment dealers will show their products and answer producers' questions.

Cotton award to recognize outstanding producer

MEMPHIS - Cotton growers using environmentally-sound methods to consistently produce high quality fiber at a profit are eligible to be "in high cotton."

Nominations are being accepted until August 31 for The Cotton Foundation In High Cotton Award, a new program sponsored by Argus Agronomics in cooperation with the National Cotton Council.

Recognition will be given to one full-time cotton grower from each of the four major cotton producing regions: Southeast, Mid-South, Southwest and Far West. The award recipients will receive an expense-paid trip for two to the 1995 Beltwide Cotton Conferences which begins January 4th in San Antonio, Texas.

"This is not a yield contest," emphasized Dr. Andrew Jordan, the Council's Technical Services director and Foundation executive director. "Nominees will be considered for their consistent profitability and environmental stewardship in the production of quality cotton. A grower's service in the community and to agriculture also will be determining factors."

Foundation President Bill Tracy, a Buttonwillow, CA, producer, said growers who earn the respect of their peers "are usually the ones who are efficient in production, management, marketing, in all facets of their operation. They often use the latest technology and are diligent in such areas as water quality monitoring, soil erosion reduction and worker safety."

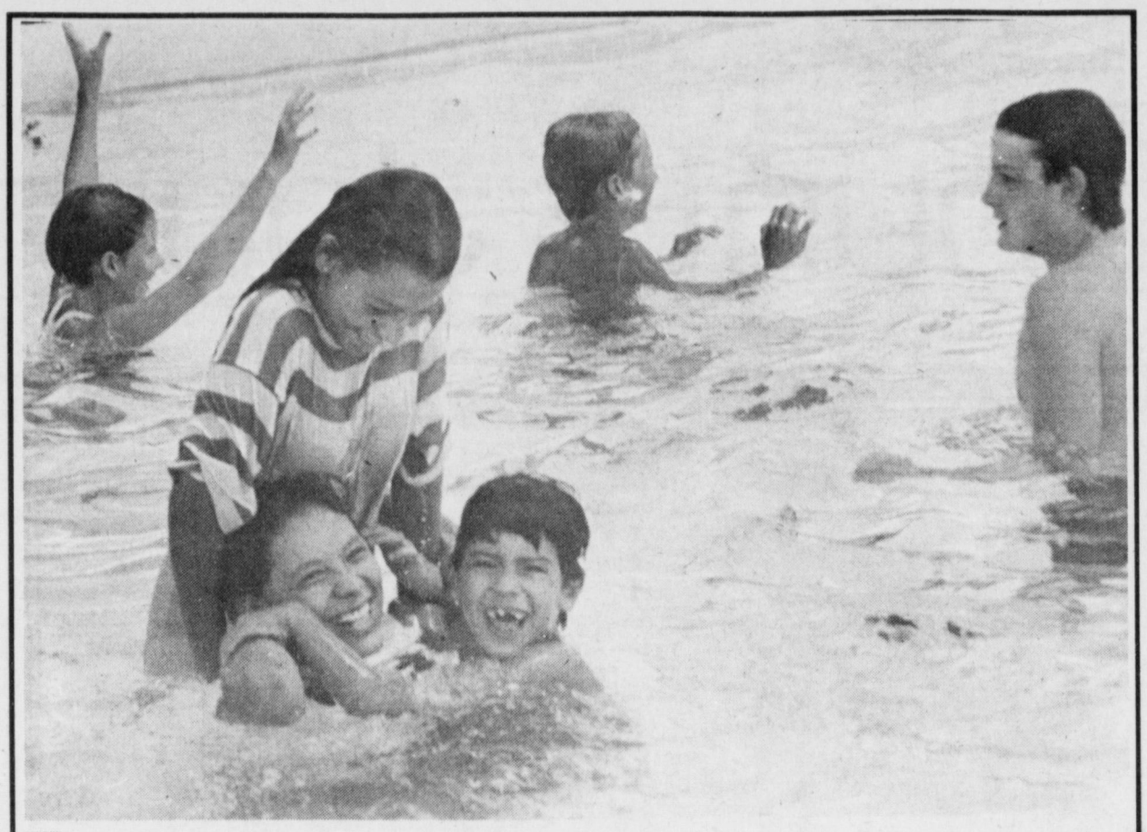

"The public often is not aware of the cotton industry's contributions to maintaining a clean environment," Tracy added. "This project will allow us to showcase the fact that efficient cotton production is consistent with sound environmental practices."

Argus' President/Publisher John Montandon said selections will be made by a special panel representing industry, government and conservationists.

"A great deal of attention has been focused on the environmental aspects of farming, and through this award we will emphasize what outstanding cotton producers are doing in their day-to-day operations to preserve and enhance the natural resources that constitute a valued asset for all farmers," Montandon said.

Nominations forms are available by contacting Argus Agronomics, P.O. Box 1420, Clarksdale, MS 38614 (601)624-8503. Entries must be returned to Argus before Aug. 31.

Summer ends with a splash

Many local children turned out for one last splash at the Muleshoe Municipal Swimming Pool on Thursday. The city pool officially closed for the 1994 summer season on Thursday and will not reopen until next summer.

Scale insects attaching area red oak trees

A small insect, obscure Oak Scale, can pose a big threat to red oaks and now is the time to apply a pesticide to infested trees, says Bailey County Extension Agent Curtis Preston.

These scales are about 1/16 inch in diameter and covered by a hard shell and they are difficult to detect by casual observation. They are about the same color as the bark and look like cigarette ashes.

Heavily infested branches and even the main trunk, will be smooth where scales occur as opposed to the rougher texture of normal bark. These scales can kill large branches and occasionally, the entire tree by removing the plant sap with their piercing/sucking mouthparts.

Eggs hatch once a year in late summer and baby scales or crawlers, are six-legged and mobile. The newly hatched scales settle in under old scales and elsewhere on the tree, insert their mouth parts, begin feeding and soon form their own protective scale shell.

Monitoring in Lubbock indicates hatching began about Aug. 1. This is a little ahead of schedule because of the warmer weather earlier this year on the South Plains.

Scale insects are most susceptible to control during the crawler stage, Preston said.

Insecticide treatments will be most effective if applied now.

Recommended control is two applications of Dursban two weeks apart beginning at hatch. Horticultural oils have not worked very well on these insects.

Malathion and diazinon can be used, but the residual is short and requires several applications to cover the 4-5 week hatch window. Always read and follow insecticide label instructions carefully, Preston cautions.

Researchers working to improve quality of peanuts grown in Texas

LUBBOCK –Consumers' concern for better taste and food quality are keeping peanut farmers busy. Research scientists at the eTexas Agricultrual Experiment Station are working to improve the quality of Texas peanuts.

"West Texas peanut farmers produce some of the highest yields in the nation. About 25 percent of the peanuts produced in Texas in 1993 were grown in Gaines County.

But quality must be a goal along with quantity of production if any industry is to succeed long-term," said Dr. Michael Schubert, associate professor working with peanut and oilseed crops at the Experiment Station.

The Experiment Station scientists are working with Dr. Timothy Sanders, USDA-ARS, Department of Food Sciences at North Carolina State University to study the ratio of two fatty acids, oleic and linoleic acids inoleic and linoleic acids in peanuts.

O/L ratio is important in the quality and shelf life of peanuts. Schubert spent one month this past winter working in Dr. Sanders' lab in Raleigh, NC and will participate in a Peanut Flavor Training Course sponsored by the National Peanut Council this summer.

"Dr. Sanders works with many aspects of quality and flavor of peanuts. He and his coworkers are studying the chemisrty of what makes peanuts taste good," said Schubert.

Dr. Schubert is working closely with Dr. Olin Smith, professor and peanut breeder at Texas A&M University at College Station on the O/L ratio research. Peanut breeding lines selected last winter for variability in O/L ratio are currently growing in field plots in Gaines, Brazos, and Frio counties.

Better Business Bureau

Congratulations, you have just been notified that you have won a prize!

The Better Business Bureau warns that your "free" prize may turn out to be quite costly. As many disappointed 'winners' have found, the value of the actual prize may be greatly overrated.

You may be required to pay a "redemption charge" or other fees which exceed the market value of the prize. In some cases the prize may never arrive, and neither does a refund, if the compnay closes up and skips town.

Recently, BBBs have heard from consumers across the country who have received official-looking letters stating they won $5000. Those that sent a fee to cover postage and handling are still waiting to collect their winnings.

Prize giveawayss also may be lures used by some companies to you to purchase thier products, such as vitamins, water purifiers or vacation packages. In many cases the products are poor quality and greatly inflated in price. Give us a call and check it out first - 763-0459.

Although the Better Business Bureau's main function is to issue reliability reports, the Bureau also assists in the resolution of disputes between business and its customer. BBBs have a national reputation for fairness because they remain nertral in these disputes. BBBs do not take sides, but work to get the problem settled as quickly as possible.

In certain cases where the customer is not satisfied with a company's response, both parties are offered arbitration. If they both agree, then the Bureau will set up a hearing for both parties to tell their sides to a volunteer arbitrator who then makes a decision in the case - much like a judge in a court of law.

The decision in these arbitration cases is leagally binding on both parties. Customers and businesses that have been through an arbitration hearing have indicated that they believe it is not only fair, but cheaper and quicker than going to court. For more information about arbitration, give us call at 763-0459.

Birthday policy

The Muleshoe and Bailey County Journals publish birthday announcements free of charge for babies one year old or for people ages 90 and over. A photo may also be included with the announcement. Complete guidelines and forms are available at the Muleshoe Journal office.

By Mrs. J.D. Bayless

Mrs. Avenell Moffeit of Littlefield called her aunt Ellen Bayless and told her about Avenell's brother-in-law Harold Arant having a heart attack last Thursday. He was in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, and was hoping to go home last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shields and son from Clarendon, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Jones children from Luders, Mr. and Mrs. Daylon and children from Seagreaves were all guests in the home of Mrs. Lorella Jones and Wendell the past week.

Mrs. and Mrs. J.C. Snitker went to Crosbyton during the weekend to see the outdoor play "Gods Country".

Mr. and Mrs. Jarrol Layton and children Ashley and Lourne went on a few days trip to San Antonio. They went to Sea World, the Alamo and sight seeing.

Ellen Bayless was in Muleshoe Thursday shopping and visited her sister-in-law Mrs. Clara Coffman.

Dalen and Rose Nichols and Mrs. and Mrs. Neal Caswell went to Crosbyton Friday evening to see an outdoor play "Gods Country".

The women are very busy canning. We all are wishing for another rain. We received rain last week ranging from 7/10 to over an inch in our area.

Have a nice day

Weddings

Sawyer, Prater exchange vows

Misty Michelle Sawyer became the bride of Derek Prater in a double-ring outdoor ceremony on Friday, July 22, 1994. The Rev. Jimmy Low presided over the ceremony at New Beginnings, a Christian Retreat Center near Channing.

Misty is the daughter of Judy and Lehmon Jacobs of Muleshoe. Derek is the son of Arnold and Pat Prater of Muleshoe.

The evening ceremony took place on a picturesque island in the middle of a lake. The bride was escorted by her father.

She wore a tea-length fitted dress of Victorian lace. The skirt was fitted with an overlay of [illegible] one side and [illegible] with a handkerchief hem. The lace bodice with a sweeheart neckline was accented with seed pearls.

The dress featured a diamond cutour in the back that was trimmed with cascades of pearls and sequins with puffed sleeves fitted to the hand.

The bride's attire was accented with a diamond and pearl necklace with a setting of amethyst and matching earrings that were a wedding gift from the groom.

The bride carried a mixed bouquet of purple daylilies and African violets accented by English Ivy.

Bridesmaid was April Sawyer, sister of the bride.

For something old, Misty carried pennies with the couple's birthdates. Something blue was her garter, something new was her dress and something borrowed was a pearl bracelet that she borrowed from her aunt Norma.

Mr. and Mrs. Derek Prater

The groom was dressed in black denim with a black western jacket, a black western hat, a white western shirt and his attire was finished with a silver bolo. Bestman was Justin Helton. Bobby Grumbles Jr. was the usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception dinner ws held in the dinning room of New Beginnings. The cake was served by Norma Bruce, aunt of the bride. Misti Wilburn, sister of the groom, served the punch.

Special guests for the occasion were: Misty's parents Lehmon and Judy Jacobs; her grandparents Bobby and Dorene Hudson; her grandmother Eula Hennington; April Sawyer, sister of the bride; and Norma and Bill Bruce, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Special guests also included The groom's parents Arnold and Pat Prater; his grandmother Agnes Wolf and Grace Prater; and the groom's sister and brother-in-law Misti and Bob Wilbur of Dalhart.

Job opportunities strong in thriving real estate industry

LEVELLAND - Today's real estate market is a realtor's dream. According to figures provided by the Texas Real Estate Research Center, home construction is up 22 percent statewide, real estate sales have increased 10 percent, and commercial real estate has bounded back as well.

"There's a lot more real estate activity than we have seen for the past 10 or 12 years," said Al Sechrist, SPC assistant professor of real estate who teaches courses on both the Levelland and Lubbock campuses. "Interest rates are low, and people want to own a home."

The thriving status of the real estate industry means more job opportunities for people who want to go into real estate as a profession, he noted. Opportunities are available in both residential and commercial real estate, real estate appraisal and others. "There's a lot of room for people in real estate here on the South Plains and surrounding areas," he added.

And SPC's real estate program is designed to get people into the profession in a short time, said Sechrist. "f you have had previous college courses, you can get a real estate sales license in six semester hours. And it only takes 12 semester hours to get the initial real estate sales license without any previous college experience," he says. Evening courses are offered for the convenience of those who work during the day.

SPC offers a one-year real estate salesmanship program which awards a certificate of proficiency. SPC's two-year program in real estate leads to the associate degree in applied science. The program also provides the coursework needed for a broker's license.

Real estate courses meeting Monday and Wednesday evenings on the Levelland campus this fall are law of agency, 5:30-6:30 p.m., principles of real estate, 7-8:15 p.m. and real estate math, 8:30-9:45 p.m. "The principles of real estate course is a good all-around course for anybody who wants to learn about real estate, not only those who want to go into it professionally, he said.

Real estate courses on the Lubbock campus are law of agency, 6:30-9:30 p.m. Thursdays; principles of real estae, 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesdays; real estate marketing, 6:30-9:30 p.m. Mondays; real estate appraisal, 6:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesdays, and real estate law, 6:30-9:30 p.m. Thursdays.

SPC's fall registration begins the week of Aug. 22.

Sechrist feels that real estate is a good profession for those who like to work with people. "It's not strictly a sales job. Real estate focuses more on counseling people on their needs and desires for a home. We don't create that desire. The American public want to own a home."

He cited serveral advantages for those who choose the real estate profession. "Regardlesss of the company, real estate agents work as independent contractors. They control their own time and schedule. A broker holds his or her own license, runs an office and sponsor other sales people, while those who remain in sales can still make an unlimited incorme, depending on their work attitude."

Jo Hale is a local broker who earned her associate degree in real estate from SPC in 1989. "I had always been interested in real estate, and when my husband suffered a heart attack, I went back to school. I really enjoyed the real estate law course at SPC. And it was interesting to get back into math, which was one of my weak points." She received her sales license in 1988 and her broker's license in 1991 working three years for a broker before striking out on her own in her own office.

She enjoys the people factor in her chosen profession. I really enjoy working with people and helping them get what they want in a home,"she said. She cited a case of recently helping a widow on a low income move into a home of her own.

Howard and Oleta Gwinn are both in the real estate business. Gwinn took all the core real estate courses through SPC's offerings at Reese Air Force Base and got his real estate sales license two years ago. He had spent 30 years in banking, and when his bank closed, had returned to college at age 61. "I loved it, met a lot of neat people. I felt real encouraged," he noted... His wife was his sponsoring broker.

He agrees that real estate is not a hard-sell profession. "It's not like selling cars. We do a lot of mailings, knocking on doors in search of prospective customers. And the hours are flexible. We have some freedom to travel."

Mrs. Gwinn, who had previously owned a vacuum cleaner store, received her sales license in 19484 and her broker's license two years later, the same year she graduated from SPC's real estate program. "I think SPC was the best place to go. I was 50 when I started back to school, and they were very helpful." She has done well in the industry. "Last year was one of my best years; I reached my goal. This year looks good, too."

For more information on SPC's real estate program or fall registration, contact Sechrist at the SPC Lubbock campus, 747-0576.

Nominations for high school teacher award being taken

AUSTIN - Nominations are now being accepted for the 1995 Texas Excellence Awards for outstanding High School Teachers. The deadline for nominations is September 30, 1994.

The University of Texas at Austin seeks to raise public awareness of the contributions that teachers make to our society and is committed to raise the esteem of the teaching profession in communities across the state. Toward that end, each year The Ex-Students' Association and The College of Education of The University of Texas recognize Texas high school teachers profession, and who are held in the highest regard by their current and former students, fellow teachers, administrators, students' parents, and community.

Simple nomination forms are sent to every Texas high school prinicipal in July; each may nominate one teacher. principals are encouraged to seek input from students, teachers and parents. If you know of an outstanding teacher, please bring it to the attention of their principal.

Ten will be selected to come to The University of Texas campus for the second Conference on Texas Excellence in Education, February 16-18, 1995.

Funds to be used to fix rural roadways in the state

AUSTIN – Lt. Governor Bob Bullock said Friday that efficient measures inside the state highway department have produced $57.6 million in savings which will be used for critically needed maintenance on the state's rural roadways.

"This money will help enhance the saftey of millions of Texans, from children in school buses to farmers and ranchers, who rely on rural roads," Bullock said.

He pointed out that the $5.76 million is a 45 percent increase over the $125 million preventive maintenance budget already planned for the coming year.

Bullock said he has been advised by Texas Department of Transportation officials that the money will be distributed among the 19 state highway districts which primarily deal with Farm-to-Market roads and state highways in rural areas. (List attached.)

Bullock last week appointed an interim Senate committee to look into rural road system and infrastructure needs. The committeee consists of Sens. Bill haley of Center, chair; Ken Armbrister of Victoria and Bill Sims of Paint Rock.

"This is a step in the right direction as the committee starts its assessment of the needs and the method of distributing state money," Bullock said. In appointing the committee, Bullock said that "safety, commerce and conveience are all at stake" in the rural transportation system.

Besides the state-numbered highways, the rural road system includes 40,000 miles of state Farm-to-Market roads and 138,000 miles of county-maintained roads.

Bullock said that Department of Transportation Executive Director Bill Burnett has advised him that the vast majority of the new money will be spent on Farm-to-Market roads.

What the world would be like with truth in all labelling

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE Baxter Black D.V.M.

We were headed up a back road the other day and passed a sign that gave us pause. It read INTERMITTENT STREAM RANCH.

Butch and I discussed whether possibly these folks wer the victim of a new truth-in-labeling law hatched by some busybody bureaucracy.

Could INTERMITTENT STREAM RANCH orginally been DRY CREEK RANCH? Or even STUTTERING BROOK FARMS? We began to look for other names that might fall prey to these picky-picky pontificrats.

The MILE HIGH CITY. Colorful, descriptive but certainly not completely truthful. Truth-in-labeling might require Denver to rename themselves the SOMEWHERE-IN-THE-NEIGHBORHOOD-OF-A-MILE-HIGH CITY.

How 'bout the MISSISSIPPI RIVER? Wouldn't it be more accurate were it called the TEN STATE CONTIGUOUS CO-OPERATIVE DRAINAGE SYSTEM (and BAIT SHOP).

Advertising a MANURE SPREADER might be less confusing if the advertiser distinguished between a person and piece of machinery. Truth-in-labeling would dictate they be more specific, i.e. A BOVINE NIGHT SOIL DISSEMINATOR vs A CONSULTING ECONOMIST.

CHICKEN POX. Not only inaccurate but a slam to the poultry industry as well as the Pox family in Green Forest, Arkansas. KID SPOTS is what they should be.

FREEWAY. At over a million dollars a mile it should be called the SANTA MONICA EXPENSEWAY.

Does RELIGIOUS RIGHT mean they are correct all the time and THE LIBERAL LEFT mean he's gone for good?

Do the SMOKEY MOUNTAINS offer a haven for nicotine slaves?

Are the names GARDEN CITY, NEW YORK CITY and DES MOINES really descriptive of the town. Would a stranger pullin' off Kansas Highway 50 through the wheat and feedlots suddenly exclaim, "This town is a garden spot! It surely must be GARDEN CITY!"

In truth, NEW YORK is OLD YORK and I've never seen a moin in DES MOINES. Why not call it DES CORNS or DES PIGS.

The POLLED HEREFORD DIGEST. Have these animals been surveyed by George Gallup? Or attacked by a group of maddened vaulters? Better the CONGENITALLY UNARMED HEREFORD DIGEST.

Truth-in-labeling. Once they get started it will never end.

Opera de Llano to premiere in Lubbock

LUBBOCK – Opera de Llano, a local group of musicians and actors, will begin their premier season August 13-14 on the main stage of the Godbold Cultural Center, 2601 19th Street.

The opera's first production will be a collection of well-known scenes, including parts of Act II of Ariadne auf Naxos by Richard Strauss, an excerpt from Act I from Puccini's La Boheme, the card scene from Carmen by Georges Bizet and the Act II finale from Le Nozze di Figaro by Mozart.

In addition to the summer performances, the company plans to offer educational stagings of opera scenes in area schools to give children and their parents a behind-the-scenes look at what really goes into the production of an opera.

If there is sufficient interest, Opera del Llano will conduct opera workshops in the late summer or fall. Topics will include stagecraft, opera histroy and performance practice.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 14.

Boys Ranch to celebrate 50th anniversary

The Cal Farley's Boys Ranch Rodeo is celebrating its 50th Anniversary, and the boys and girls are preparing to show the Panhandle what they can do.

The annual event will be held during the Labor Day weekend on Sunday, Sept. 4, and Monday, Sept. 5 at the Ranch, 36 miles northwest of Amarillo.

In hopes of winning trophy belt buckles, children of all ages from Boys Ranch, Girlstown, U.S.A., and Cal Farley's Family Program will compete.

The boys will be riding calves, bulls, broncs and steers, and the girls will be competing for top honors in barrel racing and pole bending events. Riding clubs from the Tri-State area will join the youths during grand entries on both days.

It is a rodeo for all of our boys and girls, and those who do not compete as contestants will be selling barbecue plates, soft drinks and popcorn, or working at the many jobs required for a successful rodeo.

Several popular specialty acts will entertain the crowd, including a calf scramble, an FFA project parade, and barrel races with five and six-year-old children riding stick horses. Among the spectators will be many of the Ranch graduates who return with their families for an annual reunion.

Up to 10,000 people are expected to fill the rodeo grandstands. The Boys Ranch Rodeo is the only one of its kind in the nation. Further information and reservations are available by calling (806) 372-2341, or by writing P.O. Box 1890, Amarillo, Texas 79174.

FAITHFUL AND OBEDIENT

The dog has a reputation for being faithful and obedient. Many have been known to give their lives in sacrifice for their master. How wonderful are the joys when we faithfully attend the Lord's house and obey his word. How great the praise when the Lord can say . . .

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant . . ."

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH . . . THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Cotton season good for some, bad for others.

The release of the Aug. 11 crop production estimate will provide the first glimpse of what the future might actually hold for the 1994 High Plains Cotton Crop.

According to Lubbock-Based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG), the August estimate should reflect the state of the area crop after July 22, the date when enumerators from the Texas Agricultural Statistis Service began collecting crop date.

The rapidly maturing High Plains Crop is still keeping most crop observers in the dark about how things will turnout. With the areas planted acreage placed at 3.27 million acres, the potential still exists for a 1994 crop in the neighborhood of 2.5 to 2.75 million bales, although some estimates are well below these figures.

The biggest question mark remains the area's dryland acreage. The dryland crop has struggled throughout the season from a lack of both in-season rainfall and subsoil moisture.

Significant acreage is still characterized as having little yield potential and prospects for the remainder of the dryland crop will hinge on August and September weather.

Kater Hake, cotton specialist at the Texas A & M Agricultural Research & Extension Center at Lubbock, notes that the 1994 crop is such a mixed bag that no matter what the weather does it will be good for some and bad for others.

He notes that there are some dryland fields, generally those that were planted in late May or early June, that are in better shape than earlier planted fields.

Hake attributes this difference to the fact that some of the later planted dryland fields are just now beginning to bloom and did not suffer as much during June and July.

Most irrigated fields continue to look good and should produce average or better yields provided the weather and insects cooperate.

Legal Matters

Stopping Elder Abuse

Elder abuse is a seriuos problem that affects millions of older persons living with their children, spouses, or in nursing homes. While many cases of neglect and abuse are sucessfully prosecuted, many more go unreported.

What you can do

Individual Texans have a significant role to play. If you suspect abuse or neglect of an elderly person, you are required by law to report your suspicions to the appropriate authorities. Call the Texas Department of Human Services (800-458-9858), the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services (800-252-5400) or the Attorney General's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit Hotline (800-252-8011).

The Texas Department of Human Services investigates all allegations. This agency makes the determination whether the circumstances described in a report are likely to constitute actual abuse or neglect.

How to Recognize Abuse

You might be suspicious if you see a recurrent pattern involving some or all of the following symptoms:

- Frequent unjuries such as bruises, cuts, black eyes, or burns.
- Frequent complaints of pain without obvious injury.
- Burns or brusies in an unusual pattern that may indicate the use of instruments, cigarettes, or similar items.
- Passive, withdrawn, and emtionless behavior.
- Frequent injuries requiring hospitalization.
- Injuries which regularly appear after weekends, vacations, and holidays.

It is also a good idea to talk to the elderly person to see if there is a simple or innocent explanation for suspicious-looking signs. If circumstances still seem to indicate maltreatment, a report should be made. You shouldn't try to investigate or confront the apparent abuser yourself.

Other forms of Abuse

Physical abuse isn't the whole story. You also might suspect neglect when you see seniors who seem to be well-provided for, but are obviously malnourished or filthy, habitually wear torn or dirty clothes, or suffer from fatigue and listlessness. Other things to watch for include unsanitary living conditions or lack of medical care, heat, running water, and electricity.

Financial abuse involves elderly people who, because of sight or other disabilites, have had to entrust their checkbook, credit cards or other financial matters to someone else. Possible signs of this may be numerous unpaid bills, missing personal household items, or someone who lives with an older person and refuses to leave. In thses cases the senior may be unaware of his or her monthly incomes.

For a free copy of our brochure on elder abuse and information on the Senior Service Conference on Fraud Against Older Texans, write to: The Office of the Attorney General, Research and Legal Support Division, P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas 78711-2548. To register for the conference, please call Kate League at 512-475-4762.

Dry weather taking toll on cotton

Prospects for a repeat of the 1993 cotton crop have all but disappeared on the High Plains according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG). Best estimates peg dryland cotton losses as high as 1 million acres.

Irrigated acreage is mostly holding its own and has the potential to be as good or better than 1993 in many fields. Prospects for overall production from the area have dwindled to well below 3 million bales as a result of the cotton losses.

"Dry weather continues to be the major problem we face this year," according to Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President. "Every day we hear about more acreage that is completely lost or which has little or no yield potential even if it gets additional rainfall."

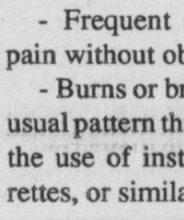

Dr. Dan Krieg of Texas Tech University notes that most of the dryland cotton is all but gone, even if it isn't completely dead.

"Yield potential is below 100 pounds in many fields," explains Krieg. "Most of the acreage is so far gone that in areas recently receiving an inch or more of rainfall, plants have failed to recover to a point that they could make additional yield."

Krieg says he has similar problems in a few row-irrigated fields that did not get watered until it was too late for the plant to recover.

In general the High Plains will have a significantly smaller crop in 1994. Estimates of the crops eventual size range from around 2 million to just over 2.5 million bales.

Good Ointment, But Watch Out For the Fly!

Focus On Faith

Curtis Shelburne

This week I pass on to you a movie review--not from Siskel & Ebert but from Dr. Bill Love, a Houston minister who shares an important lesson as he also gives us an interesting review. Here's what he says:

The movie, It Could Happen To You, is good ointment for what ails us. The story is refreshing, provocative, and challenging for all of us who have ever fantasized about winning the lottery. Embarrassed because he does not have tip money for a waitress, a young policeman makes her a promise: "Tomorrow, I come back. If I win the lottery, I'll give you half of it. Or I'll bring you the tip. Your choice." She laughs and opts for the lottery.

He wins the lottery, and his wife is ecstatic! Who wouldn't be for four million dollars? What is incredible is his remembering and honoring his promise to the waitress. But his wife goes ballistic! What insanity gives away two million dollars because of an offhand promise? The kind of person he is, the kind the waitress is--that's soothing ointment in our money-hungry culture.

There is, however, a fly in the ointment: confusion about covenants. The policeman and waitress fall in love. True, meaningful, authentic, and caring love. Love not based on money. But in the trial over the money the wife's attorney points out that they both entered their relationship while still married to others. The policeman's wife, not half the person the waitress is, wins the suit. The audience pulls for the policeman and waitress because they are such good people who will not sell their souls for a buck. However, there is the basic assumption in our culture today, commonplace in Hollywood, that marriage covenants don't matter much if one or both of the parties are defective. The wife's money-grubbing ways justify the husband's escape to the other woman. "We are two channels," he explains to the waitress, "I am CNN and she is the home shopping network."

The movie is good ointment for our feverish, materialistic, bruised souls. If one carefully extracts the fly about covenants.
