Film Library to Serve Schools of 6 Counties

Organization of the Gate City Co-operative Film Library to serve the schools of six counties has been completed, C. T. Roberts, Wellington superintendent, announced this week. Wellington's participation was approved recently by the school board.

Nine schools are already in the co-operative library, Wellington, Childress, Wheeler, Brisco, Turkey, Estelline, Clarendon, Quail and Dodson, and others are due to join. The deadline for joining is June 1.

The film library was made possible when Shirley, soft drink distributor from Childress, contributed 5,000 for the purchase of 100 educational films. The project will be administered by a board of directors, one from each county, along with the officers. B. W. Beard is the director from this county.

At the organization meeting held in Wellington recently, H. W. Truitt of Clarendon was elected president; Newell O'Dell of Childress, vice-president; and Miss Ruth Richerson, county superintendent of Donley County, secretary.

The film library will be housed in Clarendon Junior College and operated by the college library.

The subject matter of the films will pertain to the curriculum of the public schools, with all grades, 1-12, included. Each school will pay a fee of 50c per student in average daily attendance during the previous year. Wellington's total fee will amount to $475.

Operation of the film library will begin August 1, in order that school with summer terms can have access to them.

"It is likely that other business firms will wish to furnish a film or two, and these will be most acceptable," Mr. Roberts said. "Sixteen-millimeter films will be used, and they may relate to any subject of an educational nature. No propaganda or purely advertising films will be accepted."

Four Dodson Students Die As Result of Car-Truck Collision

Four popular Dodson high school students, children of families active in the life of that area, are dead and another is seriously injured as the result of a car-truck collision Sunday night, May 2, about 11:15 p. m. three miles northwest of Dodson on FM highway 338.

Killed instantly were Percy Dempsey, 17 and his 16-year-old bride of less than two months, Jeanette Nipper Dempsey.

Joe Whitson, 18, died in St.

Joseph's Hospital Monday at 8:45 p. m., and Jack Lennon, also 18, died in that hospital at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Barbara Lennon, 15, is in serious condition in St. Joseph's. Jeannette Nipper Dempsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nipper, while Percy Dempsey made his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Johnson. His parents are R. L. Johnson of Chowchilla, Calif., and Mrs. Bob Downs of Friona. The couple was married in Childress March 11, but revealed their wedding to members of their families only last week.

Joe Whitson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eulie Whitson. Supt. and Mrs. T. E. Lennon are the parents of Jack and Barbara.

The accident occurred when the car in which the five teen-agers was riding crashed into the back of a truck parked on the highway without lights. Sandy Grayson Negro whom officers said lived west of Hollis, and driver of the truck, told members of Sheriff Claude McKinney's staff that the lights went out on the truck and he was hanging a lantern on the front to try to get it off the highway.

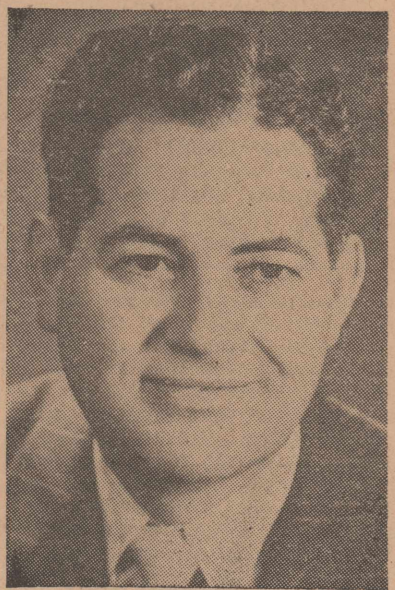

He was charged with negligent homicide, pled guilty before County Judge R. L. Templeton Monday evening, and has been sentenced to an "indeterminate jail sentence not exceeding a year," the judge said.

Investigating the accident were Sheriff McKinney, Deputy Kenneth Hodge, Highway Patrolman Noel Calloway, and Chief of Police Bill McCarver. An inquest was held by Judge Raymond Horton, justice of the peace.

Grayson was uninjured, as were his wife and two children.

There was one other witness to the accident, James Ellis of Dodson, who in a signed statement to officers said that he had started home, saw the truck parked on the highway, drove up the road, then came back and asked if he could help. The Negro told him, according to Deputy Hodge, that he had a light fuse out and was going to tie a lantern on the truck

Pontiac Builds Fastest-Firing Automatic Gun

Pontiac Mich. —The fastest-firing automatic gun ever mass-produced is being built under Army Ordnance contract for the Air Force by Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors.

The Defense Department's lifting of secrecy on this amazing jet aircraft cannon being produced by the automobile manufacturer brought to light this week some of the amazing features of this revolutionary gun, officially the "Gun, Automatic, 20 MM, 39". It was developed as the phenomenal increases in aircraft speeds demanded comparable increases in the firepower of their armament.

Robert M. Critchfield, General Manager of Pontiac and Vice President of General Motors, said the security of the gun project had been guarded so closely that many employees at the main plant where the gun has been produced and fire-tested for over a year, are unaware of its nature.

Pontiac Motor is the only production source of this precision built cannon. The rate of fire of the weapon, not revealed, is acknowledged to be considerably greater than the firing rate of the latest .50 caliber machine gun, which fires 1200 rounds of ammunition per minute.

The gun had been on the drafting boards and in the experimental stage for about five years before it was decided to mass produce the gun. Ordnance officials say, intricate mechanisms required that thousands of man hours be applied to each redesign and modification to bring it to production line status. Some of the changes on the gun were suggested by actual use of the gun in Korean combat. Last year, for instance, Pontiac executed many engineering changes on the project as directed by Ordnance notices. Many engineering changes were for the purpose of lengthening the life of parts of the gun. Many engineering changes ous fire-power, the gun is relatively light weight, making it ideal for aerial use.

In appearance, the gun is like a giant revolver, without a handgrip. The ammunition is carried into the firing chamber in a revolving cylinder similar to the old six-shooter. It is fired electrically and is gas operated. The revolving cylinder solves the problem of cooling the gun.

The fantastically high cyclic rate of fire has never before been achieved in an approved ordnance weapon. Use of fast-flying jet aircraft, with but a fleeting chance to fire at dog-fighting adversaries, made evident the need for fast-firing cannon. The M 39 apparently is the answer to split-second volume fire-power against fast-moving targets. Pontiac Motor was originally awarded the contract for building the secret weapon in 1952. By scouring

Work Progresses On Hollis Lake

With dirtwork about completed on the earthen dam, workmen were busy this week placing stone rip-rap on the face of the dam which some day should hold a considerable body of water.

Foreman on the job said it would probably be two weeks or more before the gates can be closed and water allowed to accumulate behind the dam.

Meanwhile, the creek which is expected to feed the lake and supply a major portion of the water is still draining through and under the dam via two large casings which pierce the earthen obstruction.

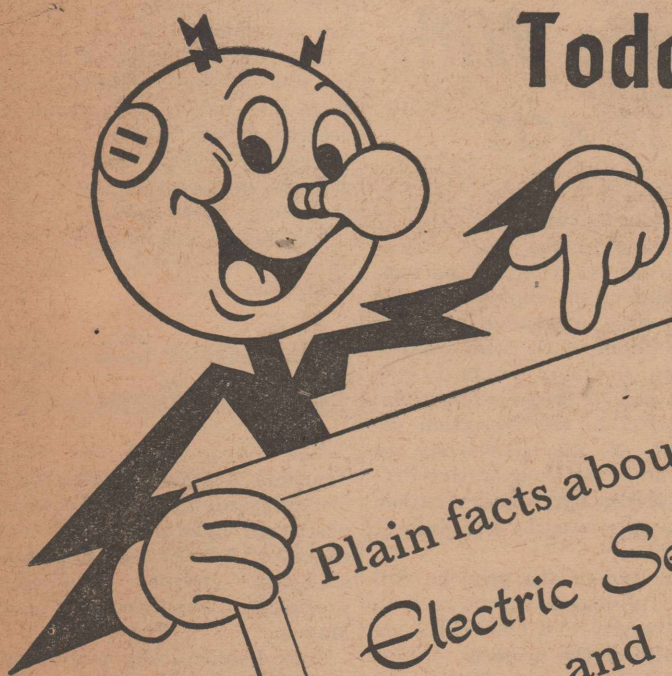

Work has gone on uninterrupted for the past five weeks with no untoward incidents to slow it down. The weather has been ideal and workmen say that except for occasional dust storms, everything has gone along according to plan.

This lake site is located on the Osa Black farm approximately 10 miles north of Hollis. Mr. and Mrs. Black are building a new home on the farm, and plan to move there some time during the summer.

EDITORIAL COMMENT — THE WELLINGTON LEADER

Essential Industry Must Be Dispersed Now

Texas junior senator, Price Daniel, has made this point to his fellow senators: "The most recent disclosure of the destructive power of the hydrogen bomb emphasizes more than ever the necessity for the decentralization of industries and the dispersal of essential defense production plants."

This idea is not new. The Wellington Leader urged it editorially before World War II. But there is now an urgency as Senator Daniel points out, that has not existed before.

"Congress and the executive agencies often have indicated full realization of the necessity, but it is now evident that too little has been accomplished in this direction. Our only consolation is the hope and faith that action now will come speedily and that it will not be too late," the senator pointed out.

Wellington people who heard Price Daniel speak before the Rotary Club on the Texas Tideland, remember him as a man of sound good sense and level-headedness.

He cites the example of steel, as the most important of industries, in both war and peace. Yet 85.4 per cent of the American steel producing industry is located within a radius of from 150 to 200 miles of Pittsburgh. That is a No. 1 target area in this country.

To continue: oil and gas industries are entirely dependent upon steel. As it now is, 90 per cent of the oil is produced west of the Mississippi, but only 7 per cent of the seamless tubing and only a small per cent of the other steel products used.

"Texas is the largest oil-producing State in the Union and produces much of our country's natural gas, and yet it is only in recent years that the State has had modern steel mills operating within its border," Mr. Daniel reminded the senate. "... They need continued encouragement and expansion."

✓ "In other states west of Texas there is not enough steel production to meet the peacetime production needs of the oil and gas industry, let alone the possible wartime needs. Without oil in adequate quantities, our country would be helpless. Our fleets would be idle and our armies immobile. Our planes would be grounded and our forces would be without supplies. No munitions could be produced and our domestic economy would be bankrupt." Mr. Daniel cites steel and oil because he is familiar with their operation in Texas.

"In his report Dr. Flemming (Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization) said "A government-wide policy on dispersal of new plants is being implemented." This is as it should be with reference to new plants, but too few plants designed for essential production are being built. Furthermore, existing production facilities are not being dispersed. Dr. Flemming pointed out many significant facts in his report... Over 71 per cent of the industrial capacity and 54 per cent of the workers engaged in manufacture are located in our 50 large metropolitan centers. It would require only a few of the new and terrible bombs to cause millions of casualties and disrupt essential defense industry. Our cities cannot be made invulnerable."

Russia has long recognized this problem. Her plants are tucked away deep in the Ural mountains or even farther away in Siberia. "We are told that it would now require many, many bombs and many, many bombing trips to reach all her essential production facilities," Senator Daniel said.

In behalf of our defense industries, of our country and our future, we, too must take this stand with Senator Daniel. Treacherous and savage will be the attack upon America when and if the next war comes. Then there will be no time to disperse our essential industries to safer locations.

anything about it nothing will be done. There are areas in which the city cannot operate — the Chamber can, and will if it has the support of the merchants.

Next week the Chamber of Commerce starts a membership drive.

Mechanization on the Farm To Reduce Dairy Work Load

Dairy experts have told Cove farmers that within 10 years they can expect to equip their farms for bulk handling of milk.

Milk will run through glass tubes from the milking machine into a large refrigerated tank. A tank truck will pull up to the barn and run the milk from the farm tank into the truck tank. Then, off it goes to the city for bottling.

Farmers receive such news with mixed feeling. It will eliminate work. Out goes the milk cans and all the work required to keep them clean. But it will cost a lot. And it now requires a young fortune to set up a profitable dairy farm.

Farms must be large enough to support a sizable herd. With modern equipment, one man can handle many more cows than was possible a generation ago. And the end is not here.

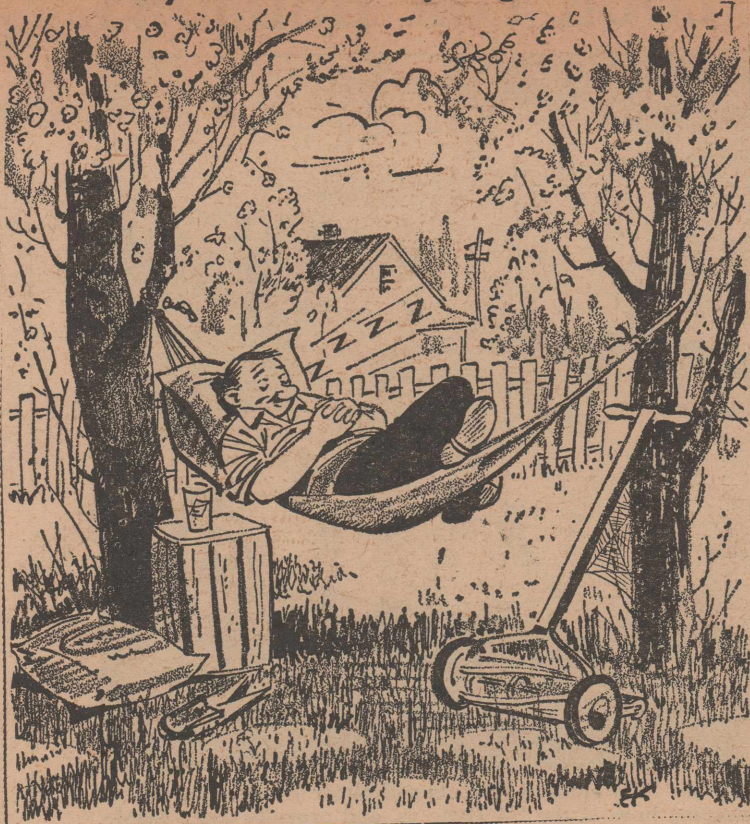

With the introduction of more and more equipment, the training of our future farmers becomes all the more important.

The best investment in a farm is a well-trained farmer.

Ready for Those Spring Chores

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek has a novel idea this week which we offer for what it's worth.

Dear Editor:

I know that with so many important matters bothering Congress, such as the Indo-China matter, K. P. duty for Private Schine, how big the hydrogen bomb ought to be, and other things which require so much thought, I'm ashamed to devote any of mine to farming. It's sort of out-of-place to be talking about the farm problem at all, with world shaking problems on every hand, but since I figure the farm problem will be here after the others are settled, in fact, if the hydrogen bomb gets out of hand the farm problem may be the only one confront man-kind, or that portion of him still left, and I thought I would give you the benefit of my thinking, to save Congress the trouble.

As I understand the problem, Congress is now worrying over what to do about farm price supports. Should they be rigid or flexible?

According to Sec. Benson's ideas, price support ought to be flexible, but there are a lot of people in favor of keeping them rigid.

Under the flexible system, opponents argue, a man might work all year on a crop, take it to town, and discover the market is so limber he's wound up in the hole. On the other hand, Sec. Benson argues that if we keep a rigid, guaranteed price, the surpluses will keep in mounting and it'll break the government.

Now when it comes to a choice between me or the government being busted, I hate to make a choice as I ain't in favor of either proposition.

I have thought the whole thing over though and I believe the trouble is that Sec. Benson has the right terms, flexible and rigid, but he's using them in the wrong place, and I have worked out a compromise, which will take care of both the rigid camp and the flexible camp.

What the farm program ought to allow, under my system, is rigid price supports but flexible workin' hours.

Rigid price supports with rigid workin' hours is no better than flexible prices with flexible hours. It's these extremists that keep the country in hot water all the time. A little give and take is what this country needs.

My proposal, rigid prices, flexible hours, ought to satisfy all sides in this controversy, and if you think it has any merit I wish you'd send it on to the Department of Agriculture and to Congress and let's settle this thing once and for all.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Crossroads Report

Dear Mr. Ike:

It was just commenced to dawn on me, with all of the publicity on these FHA scandals, why it is that I don't get along any better in a financial way. It is my rural innocence that holds me back. Like these FHA repair and home improvement loans, where I always thought you had to spend the money on building materials and carpenter work, but the people who were not so naive didn't miff this fine opportunity like I have.

They figured it out that you could use the proceeds of these loans for just any kind of home improvements, like Cadillacs, TV sets, and alimony payments. However, I likely couldn't have worked it like that anyway. When the government was building a house for me, the FHA inspector watched me like a hawk and I figured it would be an automatic pass to the federal penitentiary if he caught me skimping on window putty or screen tanks.

A man can't help it if he looks like a crook. All he can do is just be honest, and this is sometimes a great impediment to financial progress. I looked so unreliable to this inspector that he wouldn't put the final OK on my loan until I put up earnest money for a new one when he noticed one of the lawn shrubs was looking a little pale.

Man's Inhumanity Has Not Destroyed Our Religious Faith

It is a miracle that religious faith has survived despite the cruelest and bitterest persecution by pagan groups.

We know that Roman Catholic prelates and priests have suffered in communist-dominated European and Balkan countries. The newspapers tell daily of what Roman Catholic missionaries are suffering in China.

The persecutions and massacres of Jews under Hitler have made our twentieth century rife with terrorism and destruction unequalled in history. Present-day horrors recall and emphasize the tragedy of man's inhumanity to man.

It is a devastating and terrifying record, yet not altogether terrifying. For that record has supplied evidence of the persistence of truth and the power of religious faith.

But persecution is not to be thought of only in its more dire and terrible forms.

There is a persecuting spirit prevalent in our own and other countries which does not take on forms of physical cruelty, but which seeks to besmirch and destroy those against whom it directs its intolerance.

Such persecution often attacks even the noble and high-minded, by tactics of smearing and lying, in the hope that many will believe lies if they are loudly and persistently told. This method, unfortunately, has often proven successful.

The fact that religion persists against all the efforts to destroy it, and that truth crushed to earth does rise again, does not lessen the reality of the suffering, however.

It is gratifying to know that there are some things that can stand up against man's inhumanity to man.

It would be well for us to search our own hearts and lives to see if there is in us any of that intolerance from which persecution springs.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

LAW PROTECTS ATTORNEY CLIENT CONFIDENCES

Most people do not realize how zealously the information given by a client to his lawyer is guarded. It is a fundamental principle of the legal profession that all information confided to lawyers must remain secret. It is the property of the client the same as though it were money, and is not the property of your lawyer to give away. There are only three people in whom you can confide and know that your confidence is protected. They are your lawyer, your doctor and your minister.

Even the law itself protects you in your relationship with your lawyer. No one can compel him to divulge any information confided to him by a client. The reason for this protection is obvious. Unless you are able to confide fully and completely in your lawyer, he is unable to help you. He cannot protect your interests unless he knows all the facts.

There is an exception to this protection, however, for under the Canons of Professional Ethics to which the lawyer subscribes, the announced intention of a client to commit a crime is not included within the confidence which he is bound to respect. The lawyer may properly make such disclosures as may be necessary to prevent the act of protect those against whom it is threatened.

The same Canons outline other principles which attorneys must follow. For example: A lawyer may not represent clients with conflicting interests except with the client's consent after they have full knowledge of the situation. He is bound to give a frank opinion on the merits and likely results of a lawsuit, and should advise his clients to make a fair settlement if he can avoid or end a lawsuit.

He should not overvalue or undervalue his services. Ability to pay is no justification for an excessive lawyer's fee, although lack of finances on the part of the client may require a reduced fee or none at all. All he must never regard his profession as a money-getting trade but always remember that it is a branch of the administration of justice.

The same code requires that he be fair to other lawyers and that he be frank, cooperative and respectful to the courts. He is responsible for decisions regarding the best procedure to follow in a trial. He must do his best to prevent his client from acting improperly toward the court or jury, or in his duties as a citizen. These and many other restrictions are voluntarily accepted by the lawyer because the acts forbidden are felt to be unworthy of the high standards of the profession.

It is rare that one finds a lawyer who willingly and knowingly departs from the ideals of the code of ethics. It is more strict than the law itself, and many acts which are lawful are frowned upon by the code as improper conduct for attorneys. A lawyer may find himself criticized severely by his fellow lawyers and the courts, or even called before one of the Texas Bar's 31 grievance committees, because he has done something which, though lawful, is contrary to the Canons.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

YOUNG CAPITALIST AT WORK

Bob Rock is a good-looking black haired 17-year-old Louis school boy. He's six-foot-two and powerfully built. He loves football and plays on the Bishop Bebourg High School eleven. But Bob is playing another game he loves as much as football, the game of American business. He is production manager of a thriving corporation, and the kick he's getting out of marketing a good product, paying dividends to his stockholders, and perfecting new mass production techniques on his assembly line thrill him as much as scoring a touchdown for Bishop Bebourg High.

Bob is one of many thousands of high school youngsters who are in business for themselves in the expanding nation-wide Junior Achievement movement. In 90 small and large communities in 24 states, Junior Achievement corporations are in business. The boys and girls operating them are getting a wonderful experience in self-reliance and a wonderful education in the fundamentals of the American economic system.

Education Tool Since Junior Achievement was conceived by its originators and is considered by its sponsors as "an educational tool" for teaching high school students what makes the American business system tick, our National Education Program staff invited Bob Rock to speak during our 15th Freedom Forum Seminar on the Harding College campus at Searcy. Appearing on the program with him was Robert King, St. Louis businessman who works with the JA boys and girls, and Joseph J. Francomano, nation-

Our Forum conferees were from business, organized labor, education, the clergy, and local and nation-wide service groups. Twenty states were represented. The special goal of the Forum was to concentrate attention on how the youth of America could be best reached with an educational program in American citizenship, the best means of providing them with education in the American way of life, its advantages, how it works, its privileges, and responsibilities. The thirty Forum conferees, the Forum staff, and all the principle speakers agreed that reaching the youth of America with such a positive educational program is one of the most vitally important needs of our day.

Youth in Business Both Mr. King and Mr. Francomano filled in details about Junior Achievement, but Bob Rock's story of the company he and his school chums operate in St. Louis gave life and power to the JA presentation. Last year when he entered school, he attended a meeting with 15 or 20 of his schoolmates. Businessmen JA sponsor explained the movement. Industrial technicians were on hand to advise on possible products which would find a market in St. Louis. Bob and his pals liked the adventurous challenge of going into business. They organized the Union Products, Inc.

Bob was elected president and quickly became production manager, too. With the constant advice of the businessmen sponsors, the youngsters chartered and incorporated their business and capitalized for $100. They issued stock at 50-cents per share and went out and sold it. At a JA Center, they began to spend an evening a week manufacturing a modernistic magazine rack, convertible to an individual snack bar. They purchased raw materials and with machinery provided they set up a production assembly line. The sales department found a market; the article sold briskly, and a profit was achieved.

Tackling Problems Bob and his pals stay in business during the school months, making profit, paying wages, rent, overhead and all the other expenses of business; declaring a stockholders' dividend, paying taxes (ouch!), and tackling some business problems are liquidated. "All of us," Bob told the Freedom Forum conferees, "have found out what business it like, its problems and its possibilities. JA has taught us, too, that life isn't a rosy bed of violets. I think the JA boys and girls, after solving the business problems, will have a better understanding and be better able to cope with the problems of the world."

And this feeling is shared by all who are actively interested in JA. Recently in Chicago I met with several industrial executives. They told me that Chicago alone 25,000 boys and girls are in business for themselves in JA corporations. "And they are our greatest force for resisting Socialism and Communism — for the preservation of our basic American principles," these men said.

For instructions on forming a JA group in your community, write Mr. Francomano, 345 Madison Avenue, New York 17, New York.

We Help Ourselves When We Promote More Uses For Cotton

May 10 through May 15 is National Cotton Week. Is is a time when we think of more uses for cotton and means of producing it more efficiently while taking care of the productivity of our land.

There are many wonderful materials being made of cotton today, beautiful beyond the imagination of the housewives of twenty years ago. Since cotton is so important to our economy it might be well for us to keep in mind the cool comfort and stylish charm of the modern cotton fabrics.

When we are told of some of the hot, dry, synthetics, why not remember how cool and comfortable cotton is—whether it be a clean cotton dress, shirt or cotton underwear. After all cotton is what we produce. It is an indispensable raw product. Let us support it with our purchasing power: for that is one way of keeping the price at a higher level.

Miss Betty Woods Weds Bill Enlow April 23

A quiet ceremony read at the First Methodist Church in Hobbs, N. M. Friday, May 23, united in marriage Miss Betty Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wood of Wellington, and Bill Enlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Enlow of Fort Collins, Colorado.

The vows were read at five-thirty in the evening, by the Rev. Lee Roy Sewell, as the couple stood before the altar in which stood a golden cross, with white tapers in gold candelabra on either side.

For her wedding the bride chose a white dress designed with a high neckline, three-quarter sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a white roll-brim sailor hat and white accessories. Her flowers were a nosegay of white carnations with stephanitis atop a white Bible. She carried out the traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, and a lucky penny in her shoe."

Miss Pat Randolph attended the bride as maid of honor and Don

J. M. Lowrie showed moving pictures of his recent trip to Washington, D. C., and A. V. Lowrie showed the moving pictures taken on various Sundays, since January 1st, of the members at church.

RED CROSS HELP TO TORNADO IN TEXAS LAST YEAR REVIEWED

A recent report of the Red Cross recently told of the emergency services rendered tornado victims in the state last year. This work was in two phases, emergency service, and rehabilitation work.

In the San Angelo tornado, the Red Cross spent 5,900 to provide emergency mass care assistance to 1,500 persons; in Waco, 8,000 persons received this help at a cost of $23,700.

San Angelo tornado victims were fed immediately from mobile canteens supplied by the local Red Cross Chapter and from San Antonio. Emergency workers were supplied with doughnuts and coffee.

The feeding program lasted almost three weeks, with 300 persons fed daily on an average. The Red Cross paid all food bills.

A national Red Cross staff worker and 37 volunteers received and answered inquiries about 1,342 families. Inquiries came from 47 states.

The Red Cross recruited and paid 27 nurses, who worked with volunteer nurses to care for the critically ill and injured. Doctors and hospitals donated their professional services to all persons on the day.

Around $29,000 was spent on such emergency items as temporary rents, food orders, and other items. The entire Red Cross operation in San Angelo cost $279,000.

The Red Cross job in Waco began immediately after the storm, when hundreds of emergency workers began pouring into the devastated downtown section to rescue the injured and bring out the dead. Red Cross Chapter workers from Waco and surrounding cities scoured the city for needed supplies and appealed for blood donors. Other Red Cross workers handled the flood of welfare inquiries that poured into the chapter from all over the country, nearly 8,000. Families needing shelter were immediately installed in one of the three Red Cross shelters staffed by community volunteers. Emergency food orders were provided to many families. As in San Angelo, the injured were treated in the hospitals.

Rehabilitation work following a tornado is almost always more extensive than in other forms of disaster. The completeness of destruction and severity of injuries frequently make helping victims, a big, expensive, and long job.

In both Waco and San Angelo family rehabilitation work was under way even before the emergency period ended. As usual following tornadoes, the largest expense to the Red Cross was for building and repair of homes — in Waco 289 families received this assistance at a cost of $198,300, while 126 San Angelo families were helped at a cost of $173,900. Essential household furnishings went to 368 Waco families at an expense of $39,000 and to 185 San Angelo families at a cost of $46,200. Six hundred seventy-nine Waco families received food, clothing, and maintenance with a value of $27,000, while in San Angelo 162 families received 10,500 in aid in this category. Medical and nursing aid also helped families with severely injured members; in Waco 115 families received such help at a cost of $43,800, while 45 San Angelo families were similarly aided at a cost of $10,700. In both cities the tornado destroyed a small number of one-family businesses upon which the owners were completely dependent; 36 Waco families and 27 in San Angelo without resources to recover their businesses received a total, respectively, of $9,800 and $2,800 in occupational supplies and equipment.

The standard determining the help given each disaster-stricken

IT'S A "GLOPTER"—Thrills of soaring are combined with the low landing speed of a helicopter in this motorless aircraft designed by Igor B. Benson, of Raleigh, N. C. Made from material available at lumberyards and hardware stores, the 86-pound craft takes to the air when towed by an auto as slowly as 20 miles per hour. It glides or auto-rotates to the ground at seven miles per hour.

News Letter

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

INDOCHINA

Not quite a year ago Washington received an urgent appeal from France for additional aid in the amount of 385 million to increase the tempo of Communist resistance in the Indochina war. We talked at that time about reading the so-called "riot act" to France and saying, "This is all. Show some results with this or don't ask us for further help." This approach was vetoed by Foreign Operations Administrator Harold Stassen and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, on the ground that a great power like France should not be subjected to such humiliating terms.

Presently it is estimated that the United States has taken over approximately three-fourths of the cost of this war. At the time this country was asked for the 385 million, the Congress was not given a true picture of events and developments in that area. We now discover that they were a great deal more serious than suspected. We also begin to hear talk about American boys going in to save the day. Many feel that the softening up process is working and that it will be announced in the near future that American manpower will go in.

If this is done, it will not meet with the approval of Americans generally. The United States absorbed substantially all the cost of Korea, and furnished a high percentage of outside manpower. John Q. Citizen will find it hard to understand why we are called upon to pay the freight, furnish the goods and the manpower for another war following on the heels of Korea.

THE CRIME RATE INCREASE
Crime is outstripping rate of population growth 4 to 1. This statement by the FBI should alarm every person in this country. The figure used to support this statement did not include mediocre and minor traffic violations. They included only crimes of a serious nature. Robbies led the list with burglaries, theft and aggravated assault following closely. The greatest increase in arrests was among those under 18 — it rose 7.9 per cent. It was estimated that 4,000,000 persons were arrested. The United States needs to do a lot of work on its own moral fibre. There can never be a complete victory over Communism unless we can retain our own moral character as a nation.

Walter Rogers, Member of Congress
18th District of Texas

SALT FORK

This community had several good showers last week, with no storms for which everyone was thankful. A cold norther blew in Saturday night, that called for more coats. Heard several say they needed more cover on their beds, too. Some one said that this part of the country would have twelve inches of snow in May. If we could have our choice we'd say let's have rain instead of snow.

Rev. and Mrs. Russell Allen and children drove over to Mangum Saturday night to see Ted Parker.

Tech Tech Day For Ex-Students Planned May 8

The first annual "Texas Tech Day" for ex-students of Texas Tech has been scheduled for May 8.

Hundreds of Tech's former students are expected to gather in centers over the United States. The groups assemble for banquets, speeches, dances, picnics, and parties.

"The purpose of a 'Tech Day' is to bring together each year, at central points over the United States to stimulate interest, and for common enjoyment of tradition and heritage of the big school on the South Plains, Executive Secretary L. C. Walker said in Lubbock.

At their annual homecoming meeting last November, members of the Ex-Students' Association council voted to establish the special day. The executive board voted to hold the meeting each year on the Saturday following the first Monday in May.

Meeting are being planned in cities where organized chapters of ex-students exist and in other cities that have a large number of exes. Walker said recently that a complete list of cities holding a special meeting on May 6 will be released later.

"As this is the first year to hold meetings over the country simultaneously, we feel that we cannot handle all towns to begin with," said Walker.

"Programs are being planned with the thought of holding interest for all ex-students, since a wide time span is represented by Tech exes," Walker stated.

Aside from the recreation being planned by the various cities exes will get a summary of the college program and its accomplishments, sports information, and material on plans for the 1954 Homecoming.

Walker explained that the ex-students executive board selected a date in May for the meeting, because it is on the opposite side of the calendar from Homecoming the other big day for exes of the college."

The present membership of the Tech Ex-Students Association is 14,500. The association is divided in 36 districts, 29 in Texas and seven outside of the state. Membership in the organization is open to all former students of the college whose name and address is supplied to the association office at Tech.

Tech's board of directors officially made May 8 Tech Day at its April 10 meeting.

Arrangements for programs are already underway in most Texas chapters, and, by coincidence, a group of exes in Casper, Wyoming, decided they would hold a meeting May 7, before they heard of the Tech Day project. New York City, Houston, Fort Worth, Tulsa, Dallas, Roswell, Hobbs, Midland, Amarillo, Albuquerque, are among the towns indicating they will hold special functions May 8.

In Lubbock, home of Tech, the many-membered chapter has scheduled a free dance on the campus, hear reports from coaches, and hear a short talk by Academic Vice President Dr. G. E. Giesecke. Tech president Dr. E. N. Jones will be at the Houston chapter meeting.

At the Silas Crawford farm a mile south of Mr. Adkins, only a sprinkle fell. No rain was reported at the Bill Wolf farm three miles south of Loco. From the Fresno and Pleasant Point communities, which are north of Loco, Mrs. C. A. Kesler reports:

Tuesday we got two and one-half inches of rain in some of our community and from one to one and a half in others. Again Saturday, we got about one-inch of rain.
