President accepts Donovan's resignation

Donovan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, on leave of absence since he was indicted in October, resigned Friday after a New York judge refused to dismiss fraud and larceny charges and ordered him to stand trial.

President Reagan accepted the resignation "with deep regret" and said Donovan was "entitled to the benefit of a presumption of innocence."

There was no immediate official word on his successor. But an administration source said speculation centered on former Rep. John Erlenborn, an Illinois Republican; Kay McMurray, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service; James Miller, head of the Federal Trade Commission; and Edward Rollins, White House political director.

Since Donovan's indictment, the Labor Department has been run by Undersecretary Ford B. Ford.

Donovan met with the president in the Oval Office about 1 p.m. and discussed his decision to leave, said White House spokesman Larry Speakes, after a New York state judge rejected the secretary's bid to have the charges dismissed on grounds the prosecution was biased.

In a written statement later, Reagan said: "Ray Donovan has not been convicted of anything; and no less than any other American, he is entitled to the benefit of a presumption of innocence. While I agree with Ray that his need to devote himself fully to his defense now precludes his continuing in office, he leaves the Cabinet with my friendship and heartfelt gratitude for all of his efforts on behalf of this administration."

Donovan said in a statement issued by the Labor Department that he did not want his personal problems "to distract the president or the country from the administration's mission of securing America's pre-eminent position in the world."

Donovan, the first sitting Cabinet member ever to be indicted, still protested that he was innocent and vowed to fight to prove it.

On Oct. 1, Donovan was named in a 137-count indictment issued by a grand jury in New York City charging him with larceny and fraud.

"The evidence in this case, if proved and believed, demonstrates a carefully contrived scheme to steal property," said New York state Supreme Court Justice John P. Collins, in refusing the secretary's request to dismiss the charges. "There is no justification warranting this court to dismiss the indictment in the interests of justice."

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, who had been feuding with Donovan ever since he was appointed, called on Reagan to name a secretary "who will vigorously pursue the statutory obligations of the Department of Labor."

Jury sentences Lopez to 50 years in prison for murder

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — "I'm disgusted," said defense attorney John W. Smith, "the facts in the case did not warrant that sentence," after a jury of nine men and three women deliberated slightly less than two hours to set the murder sentence of 18-year-old Christopher Lopez at 50 years in prison.

Earlier, the jury took just under two hours to find Lopez guilty of the Aug. 4, 1984, shooting death of 15-year-old Irineo Bersosa Duran, Jr.

"I'm really surprised that the jury didn't give him life," Smith said, saying that during voir dire he had not been able to get rid of, what he termed, the radicals on the jury.

Smith said he definitely plans to appeal the sentence, contending that a number of reversible errors occurred during the course of the trial.

As Smith began to present his defense of Lopez before noon Friday, he announced that he planned to call former Ector County District Attorney Mike Holmes, Sheriff Bob Brookshire and two investigators, one a former deputy sheriff and the other a former Odessa police detective.

Smith said he planned to show through their testimony that the Lopez family, following the killing of Lopez's older brother in June 1984 and the serious wounding of his mother a month earlier, had sought help from Odessa and Ector County law enforcement officials because of the continuing feud.

Smith had expected to show, through the testimony of Holmes and the sheriff, that Chris Lopez was in fear of his life and acted in self defense the night of the shooting.

The night Duran was shot and killed he was a passenger in a vehicle driven by 16-year-old John Vargas, who Lopez believed had shot into his home and wounded his mother.

The shooting of Duran occurred in front of a residence in the 2400-block of Atwood Ave., in South Ranchito Estates, a southeast Odessa subdivision, where Lopez and two friends had gone to a party, when Vargas and his friends arrived.

According to Vargas' testimony, as he arrived and pulled up in the driveway of the Atwood Avenue home, some friends warned Lopez was there and he should leave because there might be trouble.

The two friends who arrived with Lopez, Louis Moreno Hernandez, 18, and Paul E. Pequeno, 17, who owned the vehicle they were in, had both left the car, which was blocked in on the deadend street as Vargas began to leave.

Christmas in April gets inaugural 'leftovers'

From Staff and Wire Reports

WASHINGTON — The Committee for the 50th American Presidential Inaugural ended up with a $3 million surplus and will donate $1 million to the Treasury and then give the rest to charity, including Midland's Christmas in April program, the White House announced Friday.

"It's a nice donation for us and we're going to put it to real good use," said Bobby J. Trimble, president of Christmas in April, Inc. "I was real surprised when I got the phone call from Washington, D.C."

Trimble, who will be heading Midland's 13th year in the program, expected this year to provide house improvements to the homes of more than 100 low-income elderly and handicapped Midlanders, said he got a call two weeks ago from Washington asking about the program's status and the sources of donations.

"I didn't think anything about it until I got the call yesterday," the 1982 recipient of the President's Volunteer Action Award said Friday night.

Trimble, who helped initiate the Washington, D.C., Christmas in April program, said he didn't know why the spokesman for the White House wanted to talk to him when a secretary called to inquire about his schedule Thursday. He told her he was leaving the house at 10 a.m. to drive a bus for a Leadership Midland tour and wouldn't be back until late.

"But he really needs to talk to you," said the secretary.

"I said, 'He'll just have to call before 10 a.m.,'" Trimble said.

When the call came a few minutes later, it was with a question: "Would you be interested in some money?"

Trimble said he responded with, "If there aren't any strings attached."

"I don't take federal funds," he said. "There's too much paperwork."

Hispanic chamber 'can start a trend'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

"We have a lot to say, we have a lot to do," said the president of Texas Association of Mexican American Chambers of Commerce in summarizing the role of the local organizations during the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Friday evening banquet in the Midland Hilton.

Speaking to an audience of 250, although about 150 had been expected, Rudy Flores, TAMACC president, and Raynaldo Lopez, regional administrator of the Small Business Administration, set the tone for the group's first banquet. Officers were installed and three Hispanics recognized for their service to the community. Receiving awards were Ciro and Bertha Sanchez and Lalo Camarillo.

Midland Chamber executive vice president Grant Billingsley, serving as master of ceremonies, suggested the Hispanic chamber "set a trend that 100 years from now people can look back and say, 'those people started a trend.'"

Raynaldo Lopez

The trend of Hispanic chambers of commerce is growing across the state, according to Flores, recalling in 1975 there were four chambers with 20 members. Today, there are 25 chambers with 5,000 members.

"BY NO MEANS does it interfere with existing chambers. We serve a market they do not," said Flores, noting that Hispanic groups serve businesses usually with five or fewer employees. However, he encouraged all chambers to work together.

The Hispanic chamber should offer technical assistance programs to its members, set up procurement programs, furnish direction to the corporate community, get involved in the community, serve as mentors for school children, offer seminars for the small-business person and seek new vendor sources.

He cited the example of McDonald's officials who have talked with TAMACC officers about entering the Hispanic market. "They said, 'We want to get your people in middle management. We'll make money if you make money.'"

Jokingly, Flores referred to General Dynamics, the firm which manufactures military items, saying that while that company charges the government $9,000 for a wrench, "Hispanics can make it cheaper."

The Hispanic chamber also should set up a legislative forum to let politicians know their thinking on various policies.

"There are rednecks in any race, but the Anglo can be our best ally. We can work together," he said.

"THERE IS no advancement of any sort until there is economic and business development. Minorities tend to hire minorities, and that puts more money into the community. Everyone benefits; we get more education for our children.

"The decade of the '80s is the decade of the Hispanic," he said.

Lopez, a Harvard business school graduate, recalled financial writer Andrew Tobias' recommendations for getting rich: marry it, be a rock star, baseball player or computer whiz, or start a business.

MIDLAND CENTENNIAL 1885-1985

Appalachian center aids Third World

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — The Center for Improving Mountain Living (CIML) is applying Appalachian know-how to Third World development, but its director is afraid he'll be remembered as the man who introduced kudzu to Nepal.

F. Merton Cregger said he had given some seeds of the fast-growing southern vine to Nepalese officials visiting the center's headquarters at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, about 170 miles west of Charlotte. They were involved in the center's fight against soil erosion and deforestation in Nepal, a mountain kingdom north of India.

"I said, 'Don't tell anybody where you got it,'" said Cregger, 63. "I warned them how it's multiplied around here. But they said they had so many people they could cut it back for fodder."

The kudzu story is only a minor sidelight to a program that has involved dozens of foreign officials, American scholars and PVOs — private voluntary organizations like CARE Inc. The international program, begun in 1979, has even brought African students to North Carolina to build Tanzanian solar-powered latrines for elderly mountaineers — like a Peace Corps in reverse.

"Appalachia is like a developing country in many ways," said Nancy Blanks, the center's associate director for international programs. "People from the Third World come here and see the mountains and they all say this looks like home."

But she said visitors to the center from mountainous, developing countries like Ethiopia, Uganda and Nepal were amazed by American roads, by services for children and the elderly in isolated coves and by single-family water and sewer systems.

"It gives people hope," said Ms. Blanks, who served with the Peace Corps in Micronesia and Fiji. "If we can do these things, they can too."

One major thrust of the program is "water harvesting," which adapts the farm and sport-fishing ponds common in Appalachia to villages in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Instead of letting rainfall run off, villagers are being taught to collect it in ponds that can be used for animals, agriculture, fish and drinking.

"It's particularly important during the hunger season, when the highest mortality and morbidity rates occur," said Ms. Blanks. "That happens during the dry season when last year's crops are all used up and this year's crops aren't ready."

Unlike some development programs that force high technology on primitive people, water-harvesting ponds are built with shovels, and the use of the pond is left up to the villagers.

The $16.8 million program — including $1.5 million from the U.S. Agency for International Development — is managed by CIML's Joint PVO-University Development Center.

Sixth-graders visit adopted grandparents

EL PASO (AP) — Debbie Martinez drifted away from the commotion and planted a loving kiss on Martha Gorton's cheek.

The two embraced like long lost friends, traded smiles and shared chit-chat.

The reunion in a nursing home patio lasted just a few minutes. But 89-year-old Ms. Gorton sparkled like a young woman on a first date.

Soaking up the sun on a windy afternoon, Ms. Gorton later described 11-year-old Debbie as if the young visitor were a treasured trophy.

"She's my granddaughter, the little darling in the red over yonder," she said. "She's pretty as a picture."

The Gorton and Martinez bloodlines never blended. Debbie simply chose to adopt Ms. Gorton as her grandmother.

On this occasion, Debbie wore a bright red embroidered Mexican folk dancer's dress. She and 28 other students in Margaret Heard's sixth-grade class at Ascarate Elementary School made a special trip to entertain and inject a little cheer into the RN Nursing and Convalescent Home in El Paso's Lower Valley.

Before the afternoon wore out, the Ascarate School sixth-graders launched dozens of helium, message-filled balloons urging people to write to their lonely adopted grandparents.

Then the students treated the oldsters to a birthday party, complete with songs and dance and gifts.

Audria Lindeman, 82, parked her wheelchair next to Ms. Gorton's and commented on how much she appreciates the visits from Ascarate School, six blocks away.

"We all just love them. There's nothing like youth," she said. "Wouldn't it be nice if we could be rejuvenated, Martha?"

"When I was about 50, I never did think I was going to get old," Ms. Gorton replied. "I'm older than you, so you have to mind me."

The entire class makes a special visit to the nursing home just once or twice a year. But some students visit on their own after school or during summer vacation.

Four years ago, Ms. Heard accepted an invitation from nursing home activities director Sara Govea and took the first batch of children. She has returned every year with a different class eager to participate in the adopt-a-grandparent project.

Some children are a little jittery at first, afraid of what to do or say. A few of their frail companions have been breathing since the 1890s, eons ago for an 11- or 12-year-old.

Ms. Heard figures her students are learning a lot about people, the concept of age and aging and life and death as well.

Once in a while, an adopted grandparent dies. The teacher tells the substitute grandchildren death is just a part of life.

"The kids also realize that they're bringing a lot of happiness to people," Heard said. "Sometimes, they're appalled that some of these people have no family or else have family who seem to leave them here and forget about them."

Seeing loneliness among the neglected elderly first-hand has made some of the sixth-graders appreciate their own parents and natural grandparents even more.

Ascarate Principal Nellie Morales readily endorsed the project because it "gives the kids an awareness of people."

"Everything they learn isn't from books, they need to learn about everyday life and people," she said. "They're responding to people who aren't really relatives but yet to them, it's bringing joy to somebody's life."

Diana Salcido, 11, brought some gifts to cheer up Martha Reeves. She figures the nursing home experience has heightened her affection for her real grandmother, 75-year-old Victoria Lucero.

Museum to open with full house

CINCINNATI (AP) — People have been playing cards for some 600 years, but it hasn't always been easy, according to Margery B. Griffith, curator of The Playing Card Museum, which is scheduled to formally open in Cincinnati later this year.

The first recorded mention of playing cards in history, Mrs. Griffith says, is a listing in the treasury accounts of King Charles VI of France for the year 1392 of 56 sols paid to Jacquemin Gringonneur, an artist, for designing three decks of gilt-ornamented cards.

Then, five years later, in 1397, she relates, the Chief Magistrate of Paris issued an ordinance banning card playing, as well as some other games, "excepting only on holidays."

The early popularity of card playing and the recurrent proscriptions on it are a major theme of the historical collection, to be presented as a public service of the U.S. Playing Card Co.

In the past, playing cards were often produced as books, usually as almanacs containing "educational" information on one subject or another, according to Mrs. Griffith.

"Those book-decks did indeed disseminate knowledge, but they also served another purpose," she explains. "Under repressive monarchies and other regimes, card playing was frowned upon. The educational material provided the respectable camouflage that enabled the cards to get by."

"Frowned upon" may be understating the case, as items from the collection attest.

In 1507, the German priest, philosopher and author Thomas Murner brought out the first educational deck in book form and was nearly executed for heresy. His sin: using playing cards to teach logic.

In 1725, one Guiseppe Maria Mitelli no sooner came out with a book-and-deck than it was officially banned. The penalty for "keeping, using or selling" it: for the people seven to 10 years in jail; for the nobility: five years' banishment to Forte Urbano, "possibly," Mrs. Griffith observes, "a forerunner of today's minimum-security prisons for white-collar folks."

A kindlier attitude is revealed in "Sermone de Ludo cum Aliis," a vellum-bound, illuminated theological treatise of the times. "Those games are permissible," it asserted, "which do not keep people from Mass and which encourage the heart to good works."

The modern deck derives from tarots, cards that were once used for games but now are mostly identified with fortune telling. They are believed to have originated in Italy in the 13th or 14th century and then to have quickly spread to other western European countries.

The early tarot decks generally consisted of 22 pictorial cards and 56 number and court cards. Mrs. Griffith believes that the evolution of playing cards as we know them began when the French late in the 15th century dropped the pictorial cards from the deck.

"First, the old knight and page became the jacks," she says. "Then, the two most significant innovations were introduced: the double-ended court cards and the index, the small numbers in the corners that enable players to identify their cards while holding them in a fan."

The lavish, often thematic designs on the backs of playing cards have long intrigued card players, Mrs. Griffith points out. But she thinks the work deserves more serious recognition as an art form in itself. To reinforce her view, she cites the museum's bound volume of hundreds of card-back designs by the 19th-century British artist Owen Jones.

"He is the all-time master and his work still influences card designers everywhere," she says.

The museum sponsors themselves hold a pre-eminent place in the contemporary history of playing cards. The U.S. Playing Card and its predecessor companies date back to 1832, its brand names — Bicycle, Bee, Congress, Tally Ho and Aviator — are familiar here and abroad.

When the opening ceremonies take place, the museum will be dedicated to Dick M. Race, an employee for nearly three decades who, over the years, became the company's unofficial historian and a popular lecturer on playing-card lore.

"The museum was his idea," Mrs. Griffith says. "He died suddenly last May, just as his dream was about to become a reality."

A former researcher at the Cincinnati Art Museum, Mrs. Griffith is enthusiastic about the new venture.

"Very likely more people in more centuries have enjoyed playing cards than any other recreational activity," she says. "With The Playing Card Museum, we hope in some small way to explain and help perpetuate this enduring and universal popularity."

Chemistry prof cats around with articles

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — F.D.C. Willard is the only cat listed as author of a scientific paper, according to Dr. Jack Stocker, a chemistry professor at New Orleans University.

The article "by" the cat appeared in "Physical Review Letters." The cat's owner and co-author, a member of Michigan State University's department of physics, had written it alone but had used the formal "we" throughout.

When a colleague told him this was unacceptable, he added the name of the cat to the manuscript so he wouldn't have to rewrite the article to replace "we" with "I," Stocker explains.

Willard's story is just one recounted by Stocker in a recent interview.

"I try to humanize the profession of chemistry, teach a little science and entertain," says Stocker, expert in scientific trivia and a tour speaker for the American Chemical Society. To do this, he has an arsenal of odd facts.

"There was one scientist who presented his paper by singing it. He accompanied himself on a guitar," Stocker says. "There was also a chemist who wrote an article to the meter of Longfellow's 'Hiawatha.'"

Stocker's trivia is all well documented. He can tell you the title, author, and publisher of a chemistry book dedicated to trumpeter Louis Armstrong. He has a list of antibiotics named after opera characters (such as mimimicin).

The shortest scientific paper (one sentence long), he'll tell you, was published in 1965, and one article has 142 authors. He also has a list of chemicals with unusual names that include megaphone, cadaverine, butterflane, and george.

"I started my file of trivia over 30 years ago," Stocker said, "but I didn't start speaking about it until 1979, because it would have been considered undignified. Even today, some elderly chemists complain that I go too far."

But, by and large, Stocker is greeted with enthusiasm whenever he speaks. "It goes beyond applause and laughs," he says. "People come up to me afterward with their own anecdotes and odd bits of information."

Stocker says he's glad that chemistry is now mature enough to laugh at itself. "Now I can poke fun without risking my professional standing.

"And by the way," he adds, "did I tell you that Willard the cat was nearly invited to speak at an international symposium? A French scientist apparently only decided against him when he saw his signature. It was a paw print."

'Spaced-out' seeds come home to Earth

VERNON, Conn. (AP) — Thousands of seeds sent into orbit aboard the space shuttle orbiter satellite, are coming back to Earth next month, and a member of the Vernon Board of Education has decided to take advantage of the experiment.

Several hundred of the seeds will go to the Rockville High School science department, where students will plant them and monitor their growth, Jack Piela said.

An explosion ripped through the Gold Miner's Daughter Restaurant-ski lodge Friday at Alta, Utah, killing at least one person and injuring more than five others.

Blast at ski resort kills one person

ALTA, Utah (AP) — An explosion flattened part of a three-story hotel-restaurant at this mountain ski resort Friday, killing one person, injuring five and trapping a man and a 12-year-old girl in the rubble, authorities said.

The girl was freed late Friday, and rescuers were still trying to reach the trapped man.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

The girl's hand had been pinned under a concrete block. Her mother, who was one of five people hospitalized with injuries, had given permission for doctors to amputate her daughter's hand if necessary to save her life, said Salt Lake County Sheriff's Deputy Nathan Ridge.

But she was freed just before 10 p.m. after large cranes were brought in to remove the slabs of concrete trapping her, and no amputation was necessary, Ridge said. She was rushed to a helicopter immediately after been extricated and there was no immediate word on her condition.

Ridge said the trapped man, who was in the bath when the three-story Gold Miner's Daughter restaurant and hotel exploded, had communicated with rescuers.

Sheriff Pete Hayward confirmed that one person had been killed in the blast. He said he had no details on identity, age or sex. He said all other people at the resort had been accounted for.

About two dozen rescue workers, working by floodlight, were aiding in the effort to clear rubble from the site at the popular ski resort 20 miles southeast of Salt Lake City in Little Cottonwood Canyon.

The explosion occurred about 2 p.m., witnesses said.

Terry Jacobson, a television news photographer who was in a building on the mountain not far from the restaurant, said she first heard "a noise that sounded almost like an avalanche.

"Just following that there was a noise, a tremendous explosion and a flash of light and the next thing I saw was smoke billowing out of the building, people jumping out of the second- and third-story windows...running and jumping and absolutely terrified," she said.

The blast heavily damaged half a wing of the complex. June Jenko, a restaurant employee, said 45 guest rooms had been destroyed.

Brian Flandro, desk clerk at the nearby Alta Lodge, said he heard the explosion.

"At first, it sounded like snow falling off the roof, which happens occasionally," he said.

He said he sent other employees out to check, and they ran back in shouting, "The Gold Miner's Daughter has blown up."

Sheriff's Lt. Gary Anderson said all three stories of one wing of the hotel collapsed, but the restaurant and ski shop were undamaged.

Jury convicts David Port of mail carrier's murder

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — David Port was convicted Friday night on charges that he forced a female letter carrier into his Houston home at gunpoint, murdered her and then dumped her body into a field.

Jurors deliberated 2½ hours before deciding the case that drew national attention when Port's parents were jailed for refusing to testify before a grand jury investigating their 18-year-old son.

Bernard and Odette Port, who were not subpoenaed and did not attend the three-week trial, had argued that parents should not have to testify against their children.

The parents, who were jailed while their son was free on a $20,000 bond but later released, steadfastly rebuffed questions about his role in the June 7 shooting death of Debora Sue Schatz, a 23-year-old letter carrier.

The younger Port now faces up to life in prison on the murder charge.

Prosecutors had argued that David Port confessed in front of several different police officers, but defense attorneys countered that someone other than Port murdered Ms. Schatz.

The verdict was announced shortly after 6:30 p.m., following jurors' request to review several pieces of evidence, including photos of Ms. Schatz and a policewoman's note pad on which part of Port's confession was allegedly written. Deliberations began at 4:10 p.m.

In final arguments, prosecutor Mary Milloy urged jurors to "brand" Port with a guilty verdict.

Earlier, defense lawyer Jack Zimmermann appealed for acquittal, saying that prosecutors failed to prove their case and "we don't guess people into the penitentiary."

"It ought to bother you there's no motive," Zimmermann said. "Don't you know if there was a motive, they would have brought it up to you."

But Miss Milloy countered that "the defense would have you believe there was some phantom murderer in that house" when Ms. Schatz was killed. "It's not a whodunnit. You know who did it. It was David Port."

Police said Port told them he shot Ms. Schatz after she struggled with him on a stairway inside his house and later stuffed her body in the trunk of his car and dumped the remains in a bayou north of Houston.

Authorities found the body in a field several miles from the spot he designated.

State District Judge I.D. McMaster told the jury Friday that Port could not be convicted solely on the basis of a confession he gave to Houston patrol officer Irma Sauseda while riding to the police station in a patrol car.

During the grand jury investigation last summer, McMaster jailed Port's father and stepmother Sept. 12 on a contempt of court charge. The couple had repeatedly refused to answer questions before a Harris County grand jury about Ms. Schatz's slaying.

Prosecutors never said the Ports were involved in any wrongdoing in Ms. Schatz' death, but argued the couple had information vital to the case.

The Ports, however, claimed they should not be forced to testify against their son, saying they should have the same privileges as spouses, who are not required by Texas law to testify against each other.

Their arguments were repeatedly rejected by state and federal courts, but the publicity surrounding the case was enough for defense attorneys to win a change of venue from Houston.

The courts also rejected the Ports' argument that it was a violation of their Jewish religion to bear witness against a relative.

On Nov. 9, after nearly two months behind bars, the couple went back before the grand jury. Afterward, McMaster agreed to order Port's release, ruling his answers to the grand jury's questions were sufficient to clear him of the contempt charge.

Mrs. Port remained in jail for refusing to answer six of the panel's 200 questions. She was released Jan. 30 after the grand jury's term expired, the her son's jury trial began Feb. 25.

Ohio governor closes 70 savings and loans

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gov. Richard F. Celeste on Friday ordered 70 savings and loan institutions insured by a private company to close for three days after some reported runs on deposits.

At least two institutions initially defied the order, but closed their offices Friday afternoon. Celeste's emergency order was welcomed by some, but caused confusion and criticism at others.

"I think it was not only hasty, but entirely uncalled for," said Donald McKay, president of the Home Savings and Loan Association of Youngstown, a federally insured institution not affected by the governor's order.

Regulators and industry analysts said they could not remember such an extensive closing since the Great Depression, but no one could immediately confirm that.

Celeste issued the order Friday morning after customers, alarmed by last Saturday's closing of the Cincinnati-based Home State Savings Bank, camped overnight outside at least two other Cincinnati savings and loans to withdraw their money.

The closings, until Monday, froze accounts at savings and loans whose deposits are insured by the private, Cincinnati-based Ohio Deposit Guarantee Fund. Ohio's approximately 125 state-chartered savings and loans protected by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. were not affected.

In Columbus, Celeste and other state officials met privately with Federal Reserve Bank officials in efforts to obtain federal insurance for the 70 state thrifts.

"It's very difficult to talk about any details of that effort because there are many tacks being undertaken simultaneously," he said after the meeting. "What will create confidence is to have these institutions reopen as viable financial institutions. Our goal in that effort — if it's at all possible — would be some sort of federal insurance."

Celeste also said he could not guarantee the closed institutions would reopen Monday.

"I think it's a time when we need to take forceful action," Celeste said at a news conference at Cincinnati's Lunken Airport, where he announced the closings.

Celeste said officials of some of the thrifts on Thursday urged him to impose temporary closings or other measures.

Midland burglary suspects remain in jail on bonds

From Staff Reports

Two Midland men suspected of burglarizing the homes of their neighbors in separate incidents remained in Midland County Jail Friday night on $30,000 bonds.

Jeffrey Alexander Yarbrough, 18, 1409 S. Colorado Ave., was charged with the burglary Feb. 27 of a trailer home at 502 Walcott, owned by Gary Price. According to police reports, the victim's mother saw Yarbrough enter the residence through an unlocked door at 5 p.m. that day.

Joretta Price, who operates a picture framing business from out of her house at 2100 S. Terrell, located directly behind her son's residence, said she saw Yarbrough leave the house with something under his arm, according to the arrest affidavit. The item was a cable television converter box, police said.

Reports indicate Ms. Price phoned her son's residence, and, when there was no answer, walked to the house where she confronted Yarbrough as he was leaving.

She asked Yarbrough to return the item before taking it from him when he refused, the affidavit said. Yarbrough then is alleged to have gotten into the back seat of a brown Pontiac, occupied by a male and female, according to police reports.

Two dollars in change was discovered missing from a dresser drawer in Price's bedroom, according to police.

Ms. Price, who later identified Yarbrough in a photo lineup, said she knew the suspect because he lived in the neighborhood, the affidavit said.

Yarbrough was arrested at 10 p.m. Thursday at his residence. He was arraigned at 1:30 p.m. Friday by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine

Alfredo Hernandez, 44, 1006 N. Terrell, was arraigned by Pine at 2 p.m. Friday on charges of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit theft

The unemployed man is charged with the burglary Feb. 10 of the Andy Bautista residence at 511 N. Terrell, Apt. C. According to the arrest affidavit, Hernandez is suspected of stealing a 19-inch color television set and a cable television converter box after entering Bautista's house by removing a pane of glass from a kitchen window.

Fingerprints taken from the glass matched those of Hernandez, according to the affidavit.

Hernandez was arrested in the 200 block of South Street at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday, according to police reports.

HISPANIC

"The best thing Tobias said was that there is no question small businesses have pulled this country out of the recession a few years ago. Last year, the bulk of new jobs was created by small businesses. And women are going into business at five times the rate of men."

Narrowing his focus to the Midland-Odessa area, Lopez said there are about 600,000 small businesses here.

"Our goal should be to take those steps to provide opportunities for small businesses to compete in the economic system. The SBA today is more responsive to the total small business community."

LOPEZ DEFENDED President Reagan's philosophy to cut the budget, but advised the group that a lot of SBA programs that affect minorities aren't being eliminated. Although Budget Director David Stockman's plan calls for a zero funding level for SBA, Lopez said several programs are being retained, including the Minority Small Business Program, Minority Procurement Advocacy Program and the SBA's portfolio. Not being retained is the loan program.

"I realize this is not a popular thing to say to a roomful of bankers and people who have used the SBA loan program," he added.

The Sanchezes were recognized for their "years of community service combined with ownership of a highly successful real estate business. Ciro is recognized as one of Midland's first Hispanic businessmen, and is credited with opening a lot of doors and enabling others to see that minorities could be successful in fields such as real estate and insurance at a time when those opportunities were severely limited or non-existent for minorities," said board member Oralia Corrales.

Camarillo, who has been in law enforcement 24 years and received the chamber's award for Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer, was described by board member Enrique Farias as being capable of working with any age group. "He is admired by his superiors, his peers and the Midland community."

POLICE CHIEF Wayne Gideon said in a letter that since Camarillo had assumed command of the Crime Prevention Unit, that unit was named Outstanding Crime Prevention Agency in Texas in 1982.

Officers installed were Roger Robles, president; Maria Antonieta Soto, first vice president; Tony Fraga, second vice president; Ruben Vargas, secretary; Tony Hernandez, treasurer; and Richard Alvarado, parliamentarian.

Board members other than Mrs. Corrales and Farias included Manuel Carrasco, Sam Flores, Celia Morales, Ciro Sanchez, Manuel Sanchez and Cecilia Ochoa Wollschlager.

Robles summarized the Hispanic chamber's purpose: "To make a stronger community and a better Midland."

LOPEZ

According to Lopez, as Vargas began to back his Chevrolet Blazer toward him, he thought Vargas meant to run over him, so he took a .30 caliber carbine rifle from the trunk of Pequeno's car and fired at the Vargas vehicle, intending to hit Vargas. One of the bullets he fired struck Duran in the head.

Leon Navarette, 17, testified no one realized anyone had been hurt until Duran fell against him and he realized the youth was bleeding.

Navarette said he told Vargas Duran had been hurt and Vargas headed for Medical Center Hospital. Duran was dead on arrival at the hospital, having suffered a bullet wound to the left rear of his head.

In a statement Lopez gave sheriff's deputies later the same morning, he said he did not know Duran or had not seen him in the vehicle when he shot at Vargas.

Lopez faced trial on the same charge last December, but the jury deliberated about 10 hours before reporting to 70th District Court Judge Gene Ater it was hopelessly deadlocked and unable to produce a unanimous verdict of guilty or not guilty.

At one point Friday night, before Judge Ater allowed jurors to halt deliberations for a supper break, jurors indicated they were deadlocked in the punishment phase, unable to unanimously agree on a sentence for Lopez.

After eating, jurors deliberated for about 50 minutes more before sending out word they had agreed on a sentence.

In final arguments, defense attorney Smith, referring to the wounding of Lopez's mother and death of his older brother, Ronald Don, told jurors that because of the things that had happened to Lopez he deserved consideration.

"You have the duty to mete out justice," he told the nine men and three women, "but you also have the opportunity for mercy; give him five years probation, or at the most, 10 years probation," Smith asked. Tell him you think he's worthy of a chance but, if he blows it, he'll serve his sentence.

Prosecutor Cadra told jurors probation for Lopez would be only a slap on the wrist. Having Lopez report twice a month to a probation officer, Cadra said, would be tantamount to telling him to "go and sin no more."

The kind of action that resulted in the death of that 15-year-old youth, a boy just beginning to live his life, cannot be tolerated in this community, said Cadra.

GIFT

The stipulations to receiving the funds were that they would go to buying materials and the amount given would not be released, he said.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said $2 million would be dispersed among 23 community-based charities.

With expected expenditures of between $70,000 and $80,000 this year, Midland's Christmas in April has grown from the 17 houses repaired 13 years ago to the 169 repaired last year.

"It's come a long ways from what we started out with," Trimble said. Although some of the houses are well-built, many are not and "have to be patched up a lot," Trimble said. "You try to keep 'em warm and dry the best you can and hope you can make life a little better for their last few years of living."

Already this year, 20 houses have received emergency repairs to roofs, gas lines and water heaters. The annual workday, scheduled the last Saturday of April, will be April 27.

Other charities to receive funds are:

Canine Companions for Independence, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Child Find Inc., New Paltz, N.Y.

Christmas in April, Midland.

Christmas in April, Washington.

Cities in Schools, Atlanta.

Committee for Food and Shelter Inc., Washington.

The labor federation has complained that under Donovan, the department relaxed its enforcement of regulations to make workplaces safer while at the same time stepping up its policing of union activities.

But Donovan had always enjoyed a close relationship with the Teamsters union, and its president, Jackie Presser, said after the secretary resigned: "In this unfortunate situation, all I want to do is send my prayers and best wishes to Raymond Donovan and to his family."

Donovan, in a statement issued by his lawyers in Washington, said, "I have not violated any law and I am confident that a jury will find me not guilty after hearing all the evidence."

Donovan has denied any knowledge of a subcontract which is at the heart of the charges against him. The subcontract was entered into while Donovan was executive vice president of the Schiavone Construction Co.

The indictment accused Donovan and nine other defendants of using a phony equipment lease arrangement to circumvent rules requiring contractors receiving federal funds to give some of their work to minority-owned firms. Prosecutors say the scheme defrauded the city's Transit Authority of $7.4 million.

In urging Collins to dismiss the indictment, defense lawyers accused prosecutors of misleading the grand jury with incomplete or tainted evidence.

But Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said in a telephone interview after reports surfaced of Donovan's resignation, "This office didn't bring him down. His conduct brought him down."

DEATHS

Woman reports burglary to police

From Staff Reports

In complaints filed Friday with Midland police, Helen Koehn, 2705 Delano, said $900 worth of items were stolen from her house between 12:15 p.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Reports indicate entry was gained by removing a screen from a bedroom window. The house was rummaged through and a $500 sterling silver and black pearl ring, $150 Bowie knife and a $250 .38-caliber revolver were taken, according to reports.

Two rolls of chain link fence valued at $700 were stolen Thursday afternoon from the east parking lot of Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely, according to police. Steven Vaughan, 2307 Terrace, told police he saw a suspect put the rolls in a 1976 light blue Ford Pinto at about 5 p.m.

Vickie Burge reported the theft of a $600 desk calulator belonging to Ralph Williams, an employee of Pennzoil Co. The theft occurred at the office, 200 N. Loraine, between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday, reports said.

AMA head: Doctors' mission is patient care

EL PASO (AP) — The president of the American Medical Association says physicians are being told by government officials, the private sector and the media "that we have to start acting like business people."

"We have a primary mission to care for patients despite the pressures from medical malpractice suits or from the government," said Dr. Joseph Boyle during a visit to this far West Texas city Thursday.

Boyle said his speeches in various U.S. cities urging a "fundamental commitment" to patients have been favorably received by doctors, who welcomed the encouragement.

He backed a recent decision by Dr. Jack Copeland, a Tucson, Ariz., surgeon, to try to save a patient's life by implanting an artificial heart that had not been approved by the Food and Drug Association.

Copeland "was doing his best to save that man," Boyle said.

Boyle said people need to understand the financial and other pressures facing physicians.

"We have a system which is expensive but delivers a kind of care unheard of any place else in the world," said Boyle, who specializes in internal medicine.

Boyle said the AMA has recommended a number of ways physicians can reduce their professional liability as rising malpractice insurance rates trigger increased costs to patients.

But he warned that with more than 40 million people a year being admitted to hospitals nationwide, human error can occur.

The AMA has advised doctors that some malpractice lawsuits stem from a physician's attitude.

Manges agrees to pay $47.7 million to bank

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 22-month legal battle between a Seattle bank and South Texas rancher-oilman Clinton Manges over energy loans has ended with Manges agreeing to pay $47.7 million, according to court documents.

U.S. District Judge Edward C. Prado entered the judgment against Manges on Thursday after several months of negotiations between attorneys for Manges and Seattle First National Bank.

Manges, owner of the San Antonio Gunslingers of the United States Football League, was ordered to pay the $47.7 million at an interest rate of 9.17 percent, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday.

Prado ordered the terms of the settlement and how it will be paid off to be kept secret.

The Associated Press was unable to reach Manges for comment.

"It's settled, and he's (Manges) satisfied with it," said Manges' attorney, Morris Atlas of McAllen.

Seattle First National Bank and its parent company, SeaFirst Corp., filed a $100 million suit against Manges and members of his family in May 1983. Duval County Ranch Co. and Man-Gas Transmission Co. also were named as defendants in the suit.

San Antonio attorney Jim Ingram, who represents the Seattle bank in Texas, said he thought the judgment was the largest ever awarded in Bexar County.

Ingram said that Manges, as part of the agreement, has dismissed suits that he had filed against Ingram, a San Antonio Light newspaper reporter and the paper's owners, the Hearst Corp., in connection with the handling and reporting of the bank's suit.

The bank had loaned Manges about $35 million between 1979 and 1983.

The Manges loans were part of an aggressive lending policy involving energy loans in the Southwest that led to Seafirst losses exceeding $500 million, The Seattle Times reported.

Seafirst was taken over by the San Francisco-based BankAmerica Corp.

Under the agreement, Manges pledged a percentage of oil and gas production from his expansive Duval County ranch to the bank.

Official says Beaumont will survive cuts

BEAUMONT (AP) — Police and firefighters won't get new equipment, streets will go unrepaired and municipal employees may have thinner paychecks, but the city manager said Friday the town will survive the loss of 20 percent of its annual budget.

City Manager Karl Nollenberger said the city lost about 20 percent of its $102 million annual budget when $20 million disappeared with the failure earlier this month of ESM Government Securities Inc. in Florida.

The $20 million, respresenting two-thirds of the city's surplus operating funds, was invested by a since-resigned city finance director in government securities. The fund was designed to provide .4 to 1 percent more interest than investments in Beaumont, officials said.

Reaching for that extra money is costing the city some hard times, the city manager said.

Nollenberger said deferral of some projects and purchases of some equipment will make up for half of the loss.

City paving projects have been canceled. A special crime investigation van ordered for the police will not be purchased. Some general construction projects also have been curtailed or deferred, Nollenberger said.

Making up the second half of the missing $20 million will be the most difficult part, said Nollenberger. That $10 million will have to come from reductions in the salary of the city's 1,300 employees, or from curtailing city services.

Nollenberger, who says he doesn't want to cut services, is setting an example. The city manager, who has voluntarily taken a 20 percent cut in his $72,310 annual salary, spent Friday meeting with groups of city employees.

The employees are exhibiting a public-spirited attitude, he said.

Fifty-five drainage workers offered to give up a month's salary to help the city out of its bind. Members of the police union are studying a salary reduction to last until the end of the fiscal year in September. Other city workers have offered individually to contribute, Nollenberger said.

The sacrifice, though, will have to be universal, Nollenberger said.

"Everybody or nobody takes a cut," he said.

If salary cuts are not in place by March 29, he said, then the city will have to start cutting some services. Nollenberger wouldn't even hint what services would be reduced, but said the effect could be wide-ranging.

Beaumont, a city of 118,000 in the southeast corner of the state, enjoyed an A-plus credit rating before the ESM failure. That high rating has been lost and Standard & Poor has put the city on its "credit watch" list.

Nollenberger said $32 million worth of city bonds that had been scheduled for the market on Monday have been withdrawn. Loss of the bond proceeds forced cancellation of street, water and drainage projects, he said.

Beaumont got into the mess because, for the first time, municipal funds were invested out of the city, Nollenberger said.

Robert Nachlinger, the city's finance director, placed the money with ESM. Nollenberger said it was understood that Bradford Trust Co. was to hold the securities at its New York office.

But when ESM failed, the city manager said, it was learned that Bradford did not have the securities, nor did Nachlinger have receipts as proof of the investment. When this came to light, Nachlinger resigned.

"All we have is copies of wire transfers," said Nollenberger.

Susie Factor hugs her daughter Kristen after her release Thursday from jail in Houston. Ms. Factor has been charged with trying to sell another daughter, only a week old, for $500.

Desperate woman sells baby to undercover police

HOUSTON (AP) — Her rent was overdue, she was out of work and it was a struggle just to care for her 2-year-old. So when the "nice" married couple offered $500 for her newborn baby, Susie Factor took the money.

The "nice" couple were undercover cops. And Susie Factor now faces a felony charge of selling a baby.

"I didn't want to sell her. I just wanted to pay the rent," Ms. Factor told the Houston Chronicle in a copyright story.

"I just wanted to do something for my baby. I just wanted her to be with a well-off family," the 23-year-old woman said. "And now they're trying to make me out to be one of those black-market people."

Ms. Factor was arrested Monday as she accepted five $100 bills in exchange for her 4-day-old daughter, police said. Although the young mother was released on a personal recognizance bond, her troubles are far from over.

She is still out of work, still unable to pay the rent on the rundown apartment she shares with another single mother with two children.

And Ms. Factor is not sure she did anything wrong.

Her troubles began 18 months ago when she and her husband of three years separated. The young mother took her child, Kristen, found an apartment and looked for work.

As an eighth-grade dropout, she had little to offer employers. Her career became a series of jobs in fast-food restaurants. The last was in a taco stand.

It paid $3.35 an hour for a shift lasting from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m., but the restaurant was only 1½ miles from the apartment and Ms. Factor could walk. Since there was no car, that was important.

Ms. Factor began dating a man she had known for five years. Within a few months, she was pregnant.

When she was eight months pregnant, her problems intensified. She was laid off at the taco stand because she had no doctor's certificate approving her working in the last month of pregnancy. The $300 rent was a month overdue.

Former prison official indicted for funds' theft

MADISONVILLE (AP) — A former Texas prison official who vanished for five months after agreeing to cooperate in a state investigation has been indicted on charges of stealing $17,500 in state funds.

A Madison County grand jury returned the indictment Thursday charging James R. Pitts, a former construction superintendent for the Texas Department of Corrections, with 39 counts of third-degree felony theft.

"The evidence against him is solid," said Assistant District Attorney David Barron.

An arrest warrant was issued Friday for Pitts, but authorities were uncertain of his whereabouts, Barron said. Bond was set at $50,000.

Between October 1983 and January 1984, the indictment charged, Pitts arranged false bids, double-billed the state and charged the state for work that was never done.

Pitts, 37, became the focus of an intensive manhunt after he mysteriously vanished July 3. His disappearance came one day after Attorney General Jim Mattox announced Pitts would testify in an inquiry of how TDC handled construction materials, equipment and contracts.

Pitts' abandoned van was found on a rural road with a single bullet hole in the windshield and blood stains inside. He later was sighted in Ohio and Pennsylvania and then surfaced five months later in Houston to testify before a Harris County grand jury.

Pitts said he had escaped from two men who had kidnapped him. But law enforcement officers claimed Pitts had faked the incident.

The Madison County grand jury on Thursday also indicted two current prison employees and two former employees on misdemeanor charges of tampering with government records.

Douglas Jones, 56, of Midway; Michael R. Goad, 32, of Midway; Robert Christopher, 50, of Huntsville; and Henry G. Lovell Jr., 57, of Rosharon were accused of certifying false documents submitted by Pitts.

Arrest warrants also were issued for the four men, and bond was set at $1,000 each, Barron said.

Jones and Christopher are still employed by the TDC as office managers in the construction division at the Ferguson Unit near Midway in East Texas.

Goad, an assistant superintendent for construction at Ferguson, left TDC in November. Lovell was an office manager in the construction division at the Ramsey II Unit in southeast Texas. Records showed he left the prison system in August.

Jones and Christopher refused to comment. Goad and Lovell could not be reached at their homes.

LULAC to honor White with award

AUSTIN (AP) — The League of United Latin-American Citizens said Friday that Texas Gov. Mark White had been awarded the national LULAC 1985 "Trustee of Education" award.

The award will be presented March 21 at the annual dinner of the LULAC National Educational Service Centers in Chicago.

Ruben Bonilla, chairman of the LULAC board, said White was selected for his initiative in establishing the Select Committee on Public Education and in presenting its recommendations to the Texas Legislature.

"His extraordinary efforts in education have made Texas a leader in the national pursuit for excellence in public education," Bonilla said.

Tired, tearful jury recommends death penalty for girl's murderer

CLEBURNE (AP) — A tired and sometimes tearful jury Friday recommended the death penalty for a man convicted of capital murder in the slaying of one of three teenagers near Lake Waco in 1982.

After almost seven hours of deliberation late Thursday and Friday, jurors returned the verdict against Muneer Mohammad Deeb.

Deeb, 25, a Jordanian national, was found guilty of capital murder Wednesday in the stabbing death of Waxahachie teen-ager Jill Montgomery.

Two other teen-agers also died in what prosecutors described as a botched murder-for-hire scheme in which Miss Montgomery was mistaken for the intended victim.

Nancy Shaw, the mother of Miss Montgomery and a trial observer, said afterward that she is relieved but not yet at peace.

"As far as accepting Jill's death, I'm not sure I will ever be able to accept it," Ms. Shaw said. "But I am learning to live with it a little better with each verdict that comes in."

The seven-man, five-woman state district court jury deliberated less than two hours Wednesday night before convicting Deeb of capital murder.

The bodies of Miss Montgomery, 17, Raylene Rice, 17, and Kenneth Franks, 18, were discovered at Lake Waco's Speegleville Park on July 14, 1982. All three had been bound and gagged before being stabbed to death, authorities said.

Prosecutors called 40 witnesses during 12 days of testimony to prove that Deeb hired David Wayne Spence to kill Gayle Kelly Reyes, on whom Deeb had purchased a $20,000 accidental death policy three weeks before the teen-agers were killed.

Spence, 26, mistook one of the two teen-age girls for Ms. Reyes, prosecutors said.

Spence was sentenced to death in Miss Montgomery's death in July by a Waco jury. Deeb's trial was moved to Cleburne on a change of venue.

"I'm pleased with the verdict," said McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell. "I think that, in a way, it makes our state, our country, a safer place to raise our children.

"They (jurors) are sending out a message to other people like Deeb. You don't kill other people's kids, you don't kill babies and get away with it," Feazell said.

Defense attorney Jack Holcomb refused to answer questions after jurors reached their decision. In a prepared statement, Holcomb said Deeb was "shaken and disappointed."

Magistrate: Spindletop suit should be dismissed

BEAUMONT (AP) — A federal magistrate is recommending that a lawsuit, which could involve billions of dollars in royalties from the legendary Spindletop oil field, be dismissed.

James Clark and Dan Profitt contend in their suit that they represent some 125 descendants of driller James Meaders, who they say was given one-eighth interest in four plots of land in 1911.

The land includes most of the Spindletop field, where the discovery of oil in 1901 triggered the great Texas oil boom.

Clark, from Cincinnati, and Profitt, from Elsmere, Ky., contend a 1931 deed filed with Jefferson County in Beaumont proves their claim.

But U.S. Magistrate Earl Hines, in a report issued Thursday, urges dismissal of the suit because heirs to Meaders waited too long to make their claim.

Ownership passed long ago when descendants of Meaders did not make a claim and other owners did, according to Hines.

Meaders died in 1931 in Pittsburg, Texas. Clark and Profitt, who are cousins, said their estates should have received oil royalties since then. Profitt, owner of an advertising company, estimated the royalties at $20 billion.

They have 10 days to respond to the Hines recommendation. Clark's wife, Brenda, said they would object.

"A year ago the oil companies said we had nothing, now they say we waited too long to file our claim," she said.

Lawyers for Amoco Production Co., Mobil Oil, Phillips Petroleum Corp., and Texaco argued at a hearing on the case in November.

Attorney Morris Herrell said that according to Texas law, the Meaders estate is not entitled to royalties because the land was unclaimed by them for 70 years.

Candidates seek posts in soon-to-be-destroyed hamlet

BUCKINGHAM (AP) — Although the bulldozers will start rolling through this 150-acre hamlet within the next year, there are plenty of candidates seeking posts on Buckingham's Board of Aldermen.

And the losers in next month's elections probably will have a chance to serve since many of the candidates don't plan on being around to complete their two-year terms — provided anyone is left in town.

A developer, Buckingham Development Venture, already has bought up most of the land in this town, completely surrounded by the Dallas suburb of Richardson, and plans to start building a multimillion-dollar office, retail and residential center.

Of the town's 64 families, 49 already have moved. Twelve other families were scheduled to close on their homes Friday, while two of the three remaining holdouts have settled.

On April 6, the 60-odd remaining voters — split evenly between longtime residents yet to move and renters leasing homes from the developer — will choose between seven candidates in a race with no real issues or organized campaigning.

State senator's bills would block nuclear dump

AUSTIN (AP) — A Panhandle senator has filed proposals that he claims will help Texas keep nuclear waste out of his Senate district.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, said the proposals would create two panels that could hold up the U.S. Department of Energy's investigation of Deaf Smith and Swisher counties as possible nuclear waste dump sites.

Sarpalius said "talk's cheap; it's time to make sure we don't get the shaft."

A Sarpalius resolution would create a special nine-member committee, which would include six lawmakers. A bill sponsored by the senator would establish the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office.

Official: No plans to close Texas S&Ls

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Savings and Loan Commissioner L.L. Bowman III said Friday that neither the state department nor federal regulatory authorities have any present plans to close any savings and loan associations in Texas "today or in the future."

"Recent news reports of savings and loan problems in Ohio refer only to institutions in that state and no Texas savings and loan associations are affiliated with any Ohio financial institutions."

Oklahoma senator says he'll back MX missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., announced Friday that while he has serious reservations about the military effectiveness and high cost of the MX missile, he will vote for it next week because of the renewed U.S.-Soviet arms control talks.

Boren lined up against the controversial missile system last year, voting to freeze $1.5 billion in production funds appropriated by Congress.

Meanwhile, Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Alan Cranston of California, whose vote counts have a history of accuracy, said he believes the Senate is now divided 46-46 on the MX issue with eight senators still undecided.

The Senate opens debate on Monday. The first of two scheduled votes is to be held on Tuesday, the second on Thursday.

Earlier Friday, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., announced she will defy intensive White House lobbying, switch from her previous position of support and vote against the long-range, multiple warhead system.

She called MX "a vulnerable, expensive system that provides no significant improvement in our nuclear deterrent."

Boren said: "I think it is extremely important that we send the president's team to the Geneva arms reductions talks in the strongest possible bargaining position. To refuse now to release the funds appropriated last year would send the wrong signal."

Kassebaum said: "There already is plenty of hardware for American and Soviet negotiators to discuss at Geneva. The real question is whether each side has the resolve necessary to pursue a strategy that channels these high technology arsenals toward a more stable and peaceful world."

Boren said he voted against MX appropriations on the last five Senate roll calls on the issue. He made clear he is not committing himself to vote for production and deployment of additional missiles in the future.

Meese: Busing has had 'marginal effect'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Friday that court-ordered school busing has "had marginal effect as far as improvement is concerned," but that any administration review of desegregation plans will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Holding his first news conference as the nation's top law enforcement officer, Meese said he did not have any particular school systems "in mind at all." He did say, however, the Justice Department would continue to assess school desegregation orders.

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer session, Meese also said Reagan administration officials are "moderately encouraged" by the response of the Mexican government to U.S. pleas for a crackdown on drug trafficking.

The attorney general also said he would keep daily logs of his appointments but would not make them public. In any instance where he finds it necessary to remove himself from participation in a case, Meese said, he will make that known.

In a move seen as having nationwide implications, the administration late last year filed a friend-of-the-court brief supporting the Norfolk, Va., school board's bid to end court-ordered school busing, even though the plan would increase racial segregation in city elementary schools.

The brief, filed with a federal appellate court hearing the case, marked the first time the Justice Department has argued that a local school board can abolish a complete court-ordered busing plan and return to neighborhood-based schools, even if racial segregation increases.

Earlier this month, the department's civil rights division filed a friend-of-the-court brief in an appellate case stating the administration's opposition to a lower court order requiring consolidation of the Little Rock, Ark., school system with those in two adjoining rural school districts.

The department argued that the order, which would mean busing across county lines, "exceeds the scope of the violation."

Asked about his views on school busing plans, Meese said that "in most cases, we've had requests from school systems to take a new look at the school busing requirements...to see whether the problem that was originally perceived by the court has been corrected and whether more effective means of providing for the desegregation of school systems can be substituted."

"As a matter of fact," he added, "I think it's generally recognized in educational as well as legal circles that school busing has had marginal effect as far as improvement is concerned and actually in some cases has added to deterioration of the situation."

Medical manufacturers issue recall for 11,000 defibrilators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two medical manufacturers have issued recalls for nearly 11,000 hospital and ambulance heart defibrilators that may carry faulty power packs, the government said Friday.

The recalls were issued over the past month by Physio Control Corp. of Redmond, Wash., and Datascope Corp., of Paramus, N.J., the Food and Drug Administration said, because of failures of nickel cadmium batteries that power the units.

Physio Control issued a recall on Feb. 13 for some 9,200 defibrilators it produced, in four separate models, FDA spokesman Dave Duarte said. Datascope last Friday issued a recall for 1,794 devices, he said.

The defibrilators involved include both hospital and ambulance defibrilators, Duarte said. Some hospital models can operate from standard electrical outlets as well as the batteries, but the portable models, used by ambulances and emergency rescue squads, operate only from battery power.

The failures involve nickel-cadmium battery packs produced by the General Electric Co. in Gainesville, Fla., between June and November of last year.

Bud Schaller, a GE spokesman at corporate headquarters in Cleveland, said the battery packs are used to build up an electric charge in a capacitor inside the defibrilators.

Casket no longer just 'old pine box'

By CONNIE RUX

ABILENE (AP) — A casket doesn't have to be "just an old pine box."

Today's coffins run the gamut from a simple cloth-covered wood to solid bronze. Abilene Casket Company here has been in the business of making customized burial caskets since 1927.

"In fact, I have one identical to the one President (John F.) Kennedy was buried in," says Belon Sedberry, co-owner of the company with Bill Megginson. The two men, both longtime salesmen for the company, bought the operation in January 1984 when Texas Coffin Company in Waco made a stock trade.

"We sell strictly to funeral homes, but we welcome the public to come by and look at the caskets," Sedberry explains.

The company keeps 1,200 to 1,400 coffin shells in stock at their 11th Street facilities. Workers at the company hand-make the delicate tucked, pleated, tufted, shirred or tailored linings to order.

Sedberry takes special pride in the custom work they do. It's the little things that make a difference: "We're the only manufacturer in the United States to put velvet trim or binding on the throw that goes on top of the casket.

"We're known for our fine hand-tailored interiors. Most places do it by machines, but all of ours are done by hand," he adds. "We want to stay in the custom-made business as long as possible. It may come a time when we'll get squeezed out and have to go to the assembly-line standard casket."

SUCH DETAILS take time — Sedberry estimates it takes about four hours to complete a velvet-tufted interior.

The casket shells are made in another part of the country, but Abilene Casket Company adds the finishing customized touches, including the linings and the handles. They also carry special caskets, such as oversized for the larger or taller person — "We made one recently for a person weighing over 600 pounds" — or Orthodox Jewish caskets, which must have no metal in them. Wooden dowels are used to hold the Orthodox Jewish coffins together, including the wooden handles.

"We're the only custom casket company in the Southwest. We're also the only people in this part of the country to make oversized caskets — the standard casket is 6 feet, 6 inches," proudly states Sedberry, who worked as a salesman with the company for 15 years.

Sedberry and Megginson, who was a salesman for 20 years, still do some sales even though they have two salesmen working with funeral homes over an area from Dallas and Amarillo to parts of eastern New Mexico.

"Funeral homes call us all the time with orders, and we deliver them when our trucks are going their direction," Sedberry says. Locally, funeral homes carry various models in their own showrooms, but may send families to the company if a specific request is made or if the right style cannot be found.

THE KENNEDY casket is one of the most expensive and is extremely heavy, made of solid African mahogany. But the bronze caskets are also very costly, running about $5,000. The most expensive bronze casket has two inner "caps" or split covers topped by a solid outer lid that seals.

"With a full top, there are less places for deterioration," where moisture can seep through the seam, he explains. "You get more for your money with a full top than a cut (half-open) top."

There are solid copper models, painted white or brushed with clear lacquer. And there is a whole line of hardwood caskets in maple, oak, cherry, walnut, African mahogany, birch — and polished pine.

"A lot of people tell me 'I just want to be buried in an old pine box,' and I tell them, I have one," he says, chuckling. The "pine box" is not as inexpensive or plain as its pioneer predecessor. A plain unfinished pine casket can cost between $300 and $500, while a polished pine casket is in the range of $1,500.

"An oak casket can weigh 350 pounds, without the body," Sedberry says.

CASKETS ALSO come in many colors and are known in the funeral business by such names as a yellow model dubbed "The Yellow Rose of Texas" or a lavender one called "Lilac."

The lowest-priced casket is a cloth-covered wood "flat top," which may be covered in an embossed fabric referred to as "moleskin," he says. The lining would be minimum. Cost is from about $300 to $500.

"The number one selling casket would have to be the silver. It's always been that way," he notes. "But in the lower-priced caskets we try to have something for everyone's needs."

They also make several models of baby caskets, from newborn through all ages, in both wood and metal.

"A lot of times the small funeral homes can't keep baby caskets in stock, and they send the families here to select one," he explains. "It does get to you, and they (families) get pretty emotional."

Sedberry feels his work is providing a special service, but he remembers some people more than others. "Yes, it does bother me at times," he says, recalling one instance when a man came in after his 16-year-old son was killed by a drunken driver. "He was from out of town, and he wanted to know if we had a purple casket. Purple was his son's favorite color.

"The nearest we had to purple was an orchid casket, so he buried his son in an orchid casket," Sedberry recalls.

VAULTS ALSO are carried by the company. The "Cadillac model" of vaults has a metal base that goes in the bottom of the grave with the dome placed over the casket and locking automatically in place for airtight protection.

Regular galvanized steel vaults come in three gauges — the lower the gauge, the thicker the metal. But there also are stainless steel and copper vaults. "That's getting up there in price, but they'll never deteriorate," he says of the copper ones.

"There's no state law that says you have to put a casket in an outside container (vault), but certain cemeteries have rules," Sedberry says. Some country cemeteries require the casket at least be in a box. "Perpetual care" cemeteries, for example, also require "an outside container that won't deteriorate, because when they do, the ground has a tendency to sink."

Sedberry, an Abilene native, worked for a time at West Texas Utilities before joining the casket company.

Voluntary labeling effort 'failing,' lawmaker says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A voluntary effort to warn the public about the possible dangers of giving aspirin to children suffering from certain diseases appears unsuccessful, the chairman of a House health subcommittee said Friday.

"From information that has been made available to the subcommittee thus far, it appears that this voluntary effort is failing on four counts," Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., told a hearing on the possible link between aspirin and deadly Reye Syndrome.

But Dr. Frank E. Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said there are signs the voluntary effort is working, and there is not enough scientific data to justify requiring stronger warnings.

Waxman said labels negotiated between the aspirin industry and the Department of Health and Human Services "are inadequate and vague. They do not mention Reye Syndrome and only suggest that parents consult a physician before using aspirin for children with chicken pox or flu."

He said "little consideration was given to assuring that the label was displayed in a prominent format clearly visible to consumers."

Furthermore, he said, with the possible exception of one manufacturer, the labels will not appear on aspirin bottles until after the current flu season, and not all of the industry is represented in negotiations on voluntary labeling.

Waxman called for legislation requiring a clear warning on all aspirin products advertising that aspirin should not be given to individuals under 21 who have chicken pox or influenza or symptoms of flu, and that such use has been strongly associated with Reye Syndrome.

The FDA commissioner said there has been a decline in sales of aspirin products for children during the flu season for the last several years.

"Also, doctor recommendations for the use of aspirin for the treatment of flu and chicken pox in young children declined 72 percent between 1980 and 1983," he added. "These trends probably suggest that our public education efforts have succeeded in reaching consumers and health care providers."

Reye Syndrome is characterized by vomiting and lethargy that may progress to delirium and coma and, in some instances, death in children and teen-agers who are recovering from flu or chicken pox. Many children who survive have brain damage.

"It's so fast, and parents don't know enough to even recognize the symptoms before it's too late," Gail Happle of Florence, S.C., who lost her only child to Reye Syndrome in January, told the subcommittee.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Public Citizen Health Research Group and a leading proponent of mandatory labeling, said "the voluntary program is a cruel disaster. During this heavy flu and chicken pox season, no aspirin purchased in this country has warning labels."

Administration pushes for sub-minimum wage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is campaigning hard for support among minorities and other groups for legislation to cut the minimum wage for youth by 25 percent during summer vacation, a move the Labor Department says would create 400,000 jobs.

Identical legislation introduced last May failed to come to a vote in either the Senate or the House before the 98th Congress expired at year's end. But President Reagan gave the idea prominent notice in his State of the Union address Feb. 6 and the legislation will be introduced within the next month, Bruce Navarro, the Labor Department's acting chief of legislative affairs, said Friday.

The three-year test program would institute a sub-minimum wage of $2.50 an hour, down from the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour, from May 1 to Sept. 30 for workers 16 to 19 years old.

The effort to garner support among minorities has had mixed results, but the Labor Department obtained an endorsement late last year from the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Education, which represents 114 historically black colleges and universities. Black teen-age unemployment was 43.1 percent in February.

The National Conference of Black Mayors endorsed the proposal last April with several stipulations, among them that federal funds for summer youth employment not be cut and that adults not be displaced by youths earning the sub-minimum wage. At least one conference member, Philadelphia Mayor Wilson Goode, has since withdrawn his support.

Some black ministers favor the proposal, but the Rev. Jesse Jackson opposes it, saying society should train youth for more highly skilled jobs. The National Urban League and other civil rights groups oppose the measure, as does organized labor, which says sub-minimum wage youths would be replacing higher-paid adults.

The administration has been touting a sub-minimum wage for youth as a way to create jobs since 1981. Trustees of the Boys Club of America endorsed the concept four months ago, "partly because the adult unemployment rate has gone down," said Robbie Callaway, the organization's government relations director.

"Earlier, we felt that it would take jobs from adults," said Callaway. "That fear has lessened since the unemployment rate went down."

The proposal contains criminal penalties against displacing adults with low-paid youth.

Schroeder dons tuxedo for wedding rehearsal

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart patient William Schroeder got out of hospital garb and into a brown tuxedo Friday for the dress rehearsal of his son's marriage, one day before the real wedding he can't attend.

Dr. William DeVries, who implanted Schroeder's heart 111 days ago, and Dr. Robert Jarvik, who designed the metal-and-plastic Jarvik-7 heart that is keeping the federal retiree alive, also attended the rehearsal in the hospital lobby, Ms. Hazle said.

Schroeder's son Terry and his fiancee, Julie Schnarr, came by bus to the hospital rehearsal, along with a priest, eight bridesmaids and other family members, said Donna Hazle, a spokeswoman for Humana Hospital Audubon.

A dinner for the wedding party followed the rehearsal, which was private.

Schroeder, 53, will reach another milestone Saturday, his 112th day without a natural heart. That equals the time that Barney Clark, the first recipient, survived with the Jarvik-7 heart. Clark died in 1983.

DeVries decided the 90-mile trip in a specially equipped van to Jasper would pose too great a medical risk for the 53-year-old federal retiree. He is still recovering from a Dec. 13 stroke and a subsequent fever.

Drug mitigates heart attacks

NEW YORK (AP) — A new clot-dissolving drug that can reduce the severity of heart attacks by restoring blood flow to the heart has been found effective in two-thirds of patients who received it, according to a nationwide study.

The drug, tissue plasminogen activator, occurs naturally in the body in small amounts and is produced in large quantities by genetic engineering. The findings were presented Thursday at the annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology in Anaheim, Calif.

Heart attacks occur when the coronary arteries, which supply blood to the heart muscle, are blocked by clots and the heart muscle, starved of oxygen and nutrients, begins to die.

If those blockages can be opened quickly, damage to the heart muscle can be limited, said Dr. Eugene Passamani, associate director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, which funded the study.

Minority enrollment down

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Minority enrollment at the University of Michigan has been declining because of high costs and perceptions that the school is "inhospitable" to blacks, an administrator says.

The conclusion was part of a year-long study of why Michigan has failed to attain its goal of 10 percent black enrollment, set in 1970.

Black enrollment peaked in 1976 at 7.2 percent but has declined each year since, except for a slight increase last year to 5.1 percent, the study said.

The report was delivered Thursday to the Board of Regents by Niara Sudarska, associate vice president for academic affairs. She said the school projects an image of being "a relatively inhospitable place for blacks."

Hospital suspends custodian

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State Hospital has suspended a custodian without pay for refusing to pick up an AIDS patient's laundry.

The 28-year-old employee, who was not identified, was the second employee to refuse to work with the hospital's first patient suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome, spokesman Don Hulbert said Thursday.

New Brazilian president undergoes surgery; Vice president sworn in BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The newly elected president of Brazil underwent surgery Friday and missed his inauguration but the transition from military to civilian government went ahead in an atmosphere of jubilation.

In a ceremony that marked the end of 21 years of military-backed government, the vice president was sworn in and assumed control of the government until 75-year-old Tancredo Neves recovers from his abdominal operation.

Neves was rushed to the Military Base Hospital in this modern capital late Thursday night and underwent surgery Friday morning. Doctors said Neves was in good condition after a three-member medical team operated on him for an "acute abdominal condition" diagnosed as diverticulitis, an ailment of the small intestine. First reports said he had appendicitis.

Congress, in accordance with the constitution, inaugurated Vice President Jose Sarney, 54 — a lawyer, writer and politician. He automatically became acting president.

"I hope to be a great co-worker of the president's," Sarney said before the swearing-in. "I will help President Tancredo Neves to consolidate civilian rule in Brazil."

Thousands of wildly cheering, flag-waving citizens appeared undaunted by the sudden change of events.

Some 10,000 Brazilians crowded onto the neatly trimmed lawns in front of the twin-towered congress building. Some swayed to samba music as dignitaries from more than 100 nations arrived for the ceremony.

A chant of "go home!" "go home!"greeted Vice President George Bush and Langhorne Motley, assistant secretary for inter-American affairs. The crowd applauded leftist President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua.

According to the constitution, Neves must be inaugurated within 10 days, but officials said he could receive an extension if circumstances warrant it. Doctors Friday predicted a speedy recovery.

Latin America's largest nation has been ruled by a string of five generals since the armed forces staged a right-wing coup in 1964, ousting the left-leaning but democratically elected government of Joao Goulart.

Brazil joins eight other South American nations which in recent years have traded military regimes for civilian governments. Only Chile, Paraguay and Surinam are ruled by the armed forces.

"Finally, we have victory," said Vera Lucia Cardosa, who traveled two hours by bus to the 25-year-old capital to take part in the events. "It's a disappointment that Tancredo isn't with us."

Rows of federal troopers lined the mile-long Esplanade of the Ministries, where banners read: "A New Republic Is Born In The Streets." Some placards said: "Democracy Now;" one read: "Reagan, Take Your Hands Out of Nicaragua."

Red flags from illegal — but tolerated — Communist parties blended with the streams of green and yellow national banners. Vendors hawked flags, fruit and barbequed meat.

Four formations of jets, courtesy of the outgoing air force minister, soared overhead minutes before the swearing-in began.

'Cantinflas' named Mexican soccer team's mascot

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Internationally known comedian Mario Moreno, best known as his character "Cantinflas," was named Friday as the official mascot of the Mexican soccer team that will be the host team at the 1986 World Cup tournament here.

At a news conference attended by Moreno and members of the national soccer team, the entertainer drew back the curtains unveiling the logo showing him in his Cantinflas character.

The logo shows Cantinflas, with his trademark pencil-thin mustache, in the red-green-white uniform of the national team in a kicking stance in front of an oversized soccer ball.

"Personally, this is an honor for me, an immense honor for me. This is very important to me," he said, adding that he felt it was important for all of Mexico to support the team.

For years, Moreno has been a top box-office draw throughout Mexico and Latin America in his comic character as Cantinflas, which has been compared to Charlie Chaplin's "Little Tramp" character.

Counties forecasts

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Saturday a 20 percent chance of rain. A little warmer with highs mid-60s. Wind southwest 5 to 10 mph becoming west 10 to 15 mph by afternoon.

Saturday night partly cloudy with lows upper 30s.

Sunday partly cloudy with highs mid-60s.

Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Saturday...a 20 percent chance of rain. A little warmer with highs mid-60s. Wind south 5 to 15 mph becoming west by afternoon.

Saturday night...partly cloudy with lows near 40.

Sunday...partly cloudy with highs mid 60s.

Partly cloudy skies forecast for Sunday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Today's 20 percent chance of rain will dwindle to only partly cloudy skies tonight and Sunday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Temperatures will be warmer with a high today expected in the middle 50s and a low tonight in the upper 30s. The mercury Sunday should climb into the middle 60s.

Winds will be from the southwest at 5-10 mph today, shifting westerly at 10-15 mph by this afternoon.

Friday's high of 49 missed the record high for the date of 88, set in 1974, by 39 degrees. The low this morning of 40 was 17 degrees warmer than 1947's record low of 23 degrees.

STATE

An upper level disturbance combined with moisture-laden Pacific air to make it a soggy Friday for much of the state.

The National Weather Service reported widespread rain in the south, southeast and south central portions of Texas and light rain in parts of the Edwards Plateau, the Trans Pecos and the High Plains.

Mostly cloudy skies blanketed the state, with patchy fog covering most of South Texas and the Coastal Plains. Temperatures were generally in the 50s, except for some 40-degree readings in the High Plains and the Trans Pecos.

The weather service was predicting an end to the rain Saturday in North and South Texas but more wet weather in West Texas. Rain might be mixed with snow in the mountains and far north region of West Texas Saturday morning.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms unleashed tornadoes in Florida and Arizona on Friday, while New England was buffeted by winds gusting to 30 mph.

A tornado that touched down briefly near St. Petersburg, Fla. damaged some cars there, and a twister in Coolidge, Ariz., was accompanied by heavy rains and small hail.

Showers were scattered from the southern Plateau to south Texas and over the south Atlantic Coast states.

A travelers advisory warning of heavy snow and blowing snow was posted for the north-central and west-central mountains of New Mexico. A travelers advisory for snow or freezing rain was in effect for the Guadelupe Mountains of West Texas, where 2 inches of snow fell at Pine Springs.

Snow showers were also scattered over portions of New England, the Great Lakes and the higher elevations of the southern Plateau.

Chaps gain national tournament berth

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — Down by 10 with 11:41 to go and apparently destined to spend the spring in the weight room, Midland College staged a furious comeback to win a trip to the Nationals in Hutchinson, Kan., with a brow-wiping 82-79 conquest of tougher-than-expected Laredo Junior College here Friday night.

It was when coach Jerry Stone went to his two tight-end offense and a harrying press that the Chaparrals turned things around. It was 59-51 Laredo with 10:43 left and hopes growing dimmer by the moment. That's when Midland ran off a 15-0 streak to seize the lead. But it was never a comfortable lead. The herd from the border stayed within catch-up range until a pair of free throws by Teviin Binns gave MC an 82-77 advantage with 21 seconds left.

"No, I hadn't given up hope," said Stone. "But I knew we had to do something in a hurry."

What he did was insert Tony Wright, Eddie Frazier and Ricky Grace and things turned around.

"They sparked us," said Stone. "We got a couple of five-second turnovers and things just started to fall together."

It was a long, uphill climb over Junior Rey, the 6-foot-9, 290-pound mountain who would be a man, but the Chaps finally got over the hump for their 29th victory in 33 starts this season. But it was the biggest one, for it will send them to Hutchinson Sunday where they will play their first tournament game 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Their opponent will be Westark, 33-3, which beat Liberal, Kan., 82-80, Friday in another playoff game.

After the game, Binns, who had 16 points for the night, reminded teammates, "Hutchinson, Kansas, and every game before a packed house of 9,000 fans."

It was evident early that if the Chaps were to win this one it would be with their depth, but at the same time it looked as though the hurrying Herd would never run out of gas. Rey and 6-4 Duane Washington combined for 37 points, but while MC was watching Washington it was 5-11 Pat Covington who almost shot the lights out for the Chaps. He was 9-17 from the field and all of them would have been three-pointers in the NBA.

"Coach told us to keep an eye on number 10 (Washington), he didn't tell us about 22," said Vernon Coleman. "In the second half, I picked him up and started overguarding him. A guy like that, you just have to overplay. One thing you can't do is let him shoot. Not the way he was scoring."

"Laredo was better than I thought," Stone said. "They would have made a good representative from Texas. I didn't know they had that kind of poise."

"Hey, they could've won nationals if they'd beaten us tonight," Wright said. "That was a good team."

It was a bitter defeat for Laredo and coach Chris Orr, whose team finished 27-7.

"We weren't quite good enough. We came up three points short. We just didn't handle the press. I think we lost our concentration for about five minutes and they charged ahead. We are not used to the quick hands that Midland College has. They reached in a lot and bothered us. Maybe they should've been called for some of it but they weren't."

During that five minutes, 10:42 to 5:39, Laredo didn't score a point while MC reeled off 15, Wright kicking in with five, Grace with five, while it was Frazier who got the Chaps going with a hook shot from the right side. And it was Frazier and Wright who took charge under the boards.

With five minutes to go, MC had a 68-61 lead. Laredo narrowed it to 70-69 with 3:59 left, but they were never to come as close again.

Red Raiders fall on Adams' bomb

Associated Press

NCAA Midwest

HOUSTON — Little 5-foot-11 Michael Adams was Boston College's big man with the game on the line Friday night.

The senior guard's 25-foot jumper with five seconds to play carried the Eagles to a 55-53 victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders in the first round of the NCAA Tournament Midwest Basketball Regionals.

"When I saw a big man on me I hesitated, then I thought I'm quicker so I didn't worry," said Adams. "I gave a fake and I had a slight opening. I didn't want too much time to get down."

BC Coach Gary Williams said "We've been in a lot of games like that this year and we've lost some of them."

Tech knew Adams was going to take the last-second shot but couldn't do anything about it.

Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers "We figured Adams would be going for it and we wanted him to have to shoot over a taller man, but he (Adams) was just too quick and got around him."

Tech finished its season with a 23-8 record, winning 11 games in a row until Adams' shot. BC is now 19-10.

Adams, who scored 17 points, got the ball with 13 seconds tk play after a time out, dribbled to the top of the key, and let fly with a perfect swisher. Boston College had stalled the finah 1:31 off the clock before the game-winner.

Tech's Vince Taylor tied the game 53-all with a layup just before Adams' heroics.

Boston College squandered away a five-point halftime lead with poor free throw shooting. The Eagles hit only 6 of 14 charity shots in the second half to help the No. 17 ranked Red Raiders get back into the game.

Bubba Jenninbs led Tech with 16 points and Taylor added 12.

Roger McCready added 15 points for the Eagles.

Tech trailed from the opejing tip until Taylor tipped in a missed shot with 11:06 to go for a 43-32 Red Raider lead.

The Eagles, sixth place finishers in the Big East Conference, raced to a quick 7-0 lead over the cold-shooting Red Raiders before Jennings brought them back whth five straight baskets.

With Adams scoring nine points and McCready 10 points, BC owned a 33-28 bulge at halftime over th' Southwest Conference champion Red Raiders.

Tech, surprised by a tenacious BC zone, missed its first six shots and didn't score until over four minutes deep into the game. Boston College shot 60 per cent in the first half to only 42 per cent for the Red Raiders.

BC ended up shooting 48 per cent from the field for the game to 41 per cent for the Red Raiders, who outrebounded the Eagles 31-29.

The Eagles hit only 15 of 25 free throws for the game to 7 of 11 for Tech.

It was only the second time Tech and BC had ever met, the Raiders taking an 82-81 decision in 1980.

Duke 75, Pepperdine 62

Duke's Johnny Dawkins and David Henderson put on a second half shooting display as the 10th ranked Blue Devils defeated Pepperdine.

Henderson, who had seven points at the half, led Blue Devil scorers with 22 points and Dawkins, held to eight points at intermission, finished with 21 points.

Pepperdine forward Eric White, who hit seven of eight first half shots, finished with a game-high 26 points

Pepperdine ended its season with a 23-9 record.

In a roller-coaster first half, Duke sprinted to a 10-2 lead before White caught fire for the Waves and hit his first five shots from the field to spark Pepperdine to a 23-21 lead with 4:50 to play in the half.

UAB 70, Michigan St. 68

Alabama-Birmingham's Steve Mitchell and Jerome Mincy each scored 18 points to nullify a 32-point performance by Michigan State's Sam Vincent and lead the Blazers to victory.

Vincent, a third team AP All-American, hit six of nine shots and had 14 points at the half as the Big 10's Spartans took a 35-32 halftime lead after eight lead changes.

But Mitchell hit five of six first-half shots and combined with Mincy in the second half to overcome the soaring Vincent.

James Ponder added 15 points for the Blazers and Skiles finished with 15 for the Spartans.

Vincent rammed in 14 first half points for the hot-shooting Spartans, hitting six of nine shots from the field.

Vincent hit the first six Michigan State points of the game as the Spartans were successful in shooting over the Alabama-Birmingham zone defense.

Memphis State 67, Penn 55

Fifth-ranked Memphis State, playing all but a minute of the second half without foul-plagued All-American Keith Lee, rode guard Andre Turner's hot shooting Friday to victory over the Penn.

Lee played only 61 seconds of the second half before drawing his fourth foul and the 17-point underdog Quakers, who finished the season 13-14, built a five-point lead at 31-26.

Holmes KO's Bey in 8th

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes knocked down David Bey twice in the eighth round and then stopped him in at 2:58 of the 10th round Friday night to retain the International Boxing Federation heavyweight title in what may have been Holmes' last fight.

Holmes had Bey reeling from a series of head shots when referee Carlos Padilla jumped in and stopped the bout.

The victory was Holmes' 47th against no defeats, and he could join Rocky Marciano as the only heavyweight champions to retire without having lost a fight.

Holmes has said he probably will announce his retirement June 9 but has held open the possibility of another fight. June 9 would be the seventh anniversary of his winning the World Boxing Council title he relinquished in December 1983.

"This is it' means I'll retire if I don't get an offer from Michael Spinks by the end of April," Holmes said. "A reasonable amount — $4 million from Michael Spinks or $25 million from Gerry Cooney."

Asked if he was pricing himself into retirement, Holmes said: "Yeah, I am. I'm looking forward to my retirement on June 9, but if someone comes up with $3 million or $4 million."

Holmes, who had looked unimpressive in stopping James Smith in the 12th round here last Nov. 9, was controlling the fight at the Riviera with his left jab when suddenly in the eighth round he took complete control.

Holmes was in the middle of the ring when he unleashed a right and left hook to the head that dropped Bey. The 233¼ pound challenger got up immediately and wobbled about the ring as Padilla gave him the mandatory eight count.

Holmes jumped to the attack and forced Bey to a neutral corner, where he landed two crashing rights to the head.

UTEP survives No. 18 Hurricanes

Associated Press

NCAA West

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Senior guard Lester Goodwin gunned in 23 points and Dave Feitl's two free throws with three seconds left secured Texas-El Paso's 79-75 win over 18th-ranked Tulsa in Friday's opening round of the NCAA West basketball regional.

UTEP's balanced offensive attack offset a shooting clinic by Tulsa senior guard Steve Harris, who fired in 31 points and led a last-minute Hurricane rally that all but wiped out an eight-point UTEP lead in the final minute.

Juden Smith carried UTEP in the first half with 11 points and finished with 13. Senior forward Herbert Johnson, Tulsa's second-leading scorer and former star at Midland High, was held to 10 points, including just two in the first 20 minutes.

Feitl, who finished with 17 points, converted the clinching free throws after Tulsa sophomore forward David Moss missed a 10-foot baseline jumper with four seconds left that would have tied the game.

N.C. State 65, Nevada-Reno 56

Lorenzo Charles celebrated his return to the scene of his greatest triumph with 22 points and 12 rebounds, leading North Carolina State to victory.

Two years ago, a stuff shot by the 6-7, 255-pound Charles gave the Wolfpack the NCAA title in the same University of New Mexico Arena. On Friday, he dominated the inside against his undersized opponents and put the game away with three straight baskets, two of them stuffs, when Nevada-Reno came within six points with seven minutes left.

Former Midland College star Spud Webb had 11 for North Carolina State.

At one point, the Wolfpack went almost five minutes without scoring as the Big Sky conference champions pulled within six points on the outside shooting of guard Rob Harden and the inside work of 6-7 forward Dwayne Randall.

Randall and Curtis High led Nevada-Reno, which finished 21-10, with 14 points. Harden and Tony Sommers had 12 each.

VCU 81, Marshall 65

Rolando Lamb scored 30 points and combined with fellow seniors Calvin Duncan and Mike Schlegel to help Virginia Commonwealth recover from a sluggish start and cruise over outmatched Marshall.

Duncan, Lamb's running mate at guard, scored 19 points and excelled defensively, while 6-8 center Schlegel had 14 points and six rebounds as Virginia Commonwealth ran its record to 26-5.

Marshall was in the game only for the first five minutes, when the Southern Conference tournament champs jumped to a 6-2 lead on three jump shots by freshman guard Skip Henderson, who scored the Thundering Herd's first nine points and 11 of their first 13.

Navy sails over No. 20 LSU by 23

Associated Press

NCAA Southeast

DAYTON, Ohio — Navy Coach Paul Evans was not surprised the Midshipmen upset 20th-ranked Louisiana State Friday in the NCAA Southeast Regional basketball playoffs.

However, he was stunned by the margin — 78-55 — over the Tigers, sinking LSU to its 10th consecutive postseason defeat since 1981.

"I didn't think we could blow out anybody," Evans said. "But I thought we could play with anybody."

Dale Brown, LSU's coach, had a simple explanation of the unexpected rout.

"We just seemed to have a mental burnout," said the coach of the Tigers, finished with a 19-10 record. "It's a youthful team. There weren't any signs.

"It wasn't a fluke. The points are almost incredible. They totally dominated us. You have moments of embarrassment. That's what it is."

Nikita Wilson, LSU's leading scorer this year with more than 15 points per game, scored just nine points before fouling out with 8:27 to play.

"The stretch to win the SEC championship took a lot out of us," the 6-foot-8 sophomore center said. "We got ourselves up for six straight games."

Mich. 59, Fairleigh Dickinson 55

Leslie Rockymore and Robert Henderson, both substitutes, rallied second-ranked Michigan from a 10-point second-half deficit to a victory.

The Wolverines pushed their school-record winning streak to 17 games.

Host Dayton and Villanova met in the last game Friday night to determine Michigan's opponent.

Fairleigh Dickinson's control game gave Michigan fits.

The Knights, ECAC Metro Conference Tournament champions playing in their first Division I playoffs, built a 32-22 cushion with 14:22 left.

Then Michigan's half-court trap began to take its toll.

Henderson, a 6-foot-9 junior forward-center, stole the ball three times, fueling the comeback. He also had six points in the second half.

Rockymore, a 6-3 senior guard, hit a free throw that pulled Michigan even at 39-39 with 5:53 to play. Then he scored five straight points to give the Wolverines, first seeded in this region, a 46-41 lead.

Jamie Latney's basket with 10 seconds left closed the gap to 57-55, but Roy Tarpley connected on two free throws with two seconds remaining to clinch the decision.

Tarpley, despite missing almost six minutes of the second half, led Michigan with 15 points. Rockymore had 12 and Richard Rellford and Henderson 10 apiece.

Wilson, a 6-7 junior center, paced the Knights, 21-10, with 12 points. Hampton, averaging 15 points, was limited to 10.

Maryland 69, Miami, Ohio, 68

Jeff Adkins tipped in a rebound with 14 seconds left in overtime to enable Maryland to salvage a win in overtime.

Miami, led by Ron Harper and Eric Newsome, wiped out an early 11-point deficit in the second half to tie the game at 59 at the end of regulation play.

Before Adkins' goal, Adrian Branch had scored all of the Terps' points in overtime and finished with 24 points, one behind Maryland leader Len Bias.

The Redskins, runner-up in the Mid-American Conference, twice held three point leads in the extra session.

Adkins finished with 12 points.

Harper, a 6-6 junior and the Mid-American Conference's Player of the Year, led the Redskins with 26 points. Newsome, at 5-8 1-2 the smallest player on the floor, had 15 points, all but two after the first half.

Villanova 51, Dayton 49

Harold Jensen's driving basket with 1:11 left earned Villanova its victory over Dayton.

The Villanova-Dayton game was tied for the third time in the second half, the last at 49-all on Ed Pinckney's layup with 3:35 to go.

The Wildcats then controlled the ball until Jensen, a 6-foot-5 reserve sophomore, saw the opening and went in uncontested.

Dayton, 19-10, then held the ball until there were 27 seconds left, but shots by Dan Christie and Sedric Toney failed to go in in the waning seconds.

MHS' Jordan gains state finals

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — After Friday's preliminary competition, Andrew Jordan of Midland High was the only MHS swimmer to qualify for today's finals, but he won't be alone in competing in today's events.

Along with Jordan, sophomore Sam Perry and the 400 free relay team and the 400 medley relay team will swim in today's consolation finals at the University of Texas pool.

Jordan, the only senior among MHS' individual qualifiers, swam a 21.92 in the 50 free to qualify with the fourth fastest time in that event. Jordan is a three-time pariticipant in the state swim meet but almost didn't make it this year. He qualified only through the wild card system but now he looks ready to make his presence felt.

Perry, who swam in both the 100 backstroke and the 200 individual medley, will swim in the 100 back consolations after placing ninth with a time of 55.95. Perry finished 16th in the 200 IM with a 2:06.00.

Becky Simpson, the lone qualifier for the girls team, finished 15th in both the the 200 free (2:02.00) and 500 free (5:33.7), ending her season-long domination of those two events.

The 400 medley relay just missed qualifying for the consolation finals with a 13th-place finish, just 6/100ths of a second out of 12th. Jordan swam the breaststroke, Perry the backstroke, John Brenner the butterfly and Ricky Perkins the anchor freestyle. The medley relay's time was just 6/100ths off a school record.

The 400 free relay team of Jordan, Perkins, Jay Green and Brenner was 10th with a time of 3:21.30 and will swim today in consolations.

Diver Doc White finished 14th in the 1-meter competition with an eight-dive total of 241 points.

Puntus Wilson shoots down Cougs

Associated Press

BEAUMONT — Powered by sharp-shooting Puntus Wilson, who helped lead Midland College to a national junior college title in 1982, Lamar came from 10 points behind to defeat Houston 78-71 Friday night in the first round of the National Invitational Tournament.

The win marked only the second time in 21 meetings that the Cardinals defeated the Cougars. The first was also in Beaumont in 1969.

After running nip-and-tuck through the first 15 minutes, Houston pulled ahead by 10, 35-25, on an Alvin Franklin jumper with 1:25 remaining in the half.

The Cardinals came within six by halftime, 37-31, when Wilson stole the ball and drove the lane with one second remaining.

The second half began the same way with both teams trading baskets. The Cougars went to a full-court press with about 12 minutes remaining as the Cardinals started to fight their way back to take the lead at 54:53.

The lead changed hands nine more times in the next four minutes before the Cardinals finally took control 64-63 at the four-minute mark. Lamar stretched its lead behind the hot-shooting Wilson's free throws as he hit four of four.

Anthony Todd led the Cardinals with 23 points, while Wilson hit 19, James Gulley 12 and Jerry Everett 13. The Cougars were led by Greg Anderson's 25 points, 12 rebounds and four assists.

The Cardinals out-rebounded the Cougars, 38-36, and down the stretch, the Cardinals hit seven of eight free throws.

The Cougars' record fell to 16-14, while the Cardinals improved to 20-11.

Indiana 79, Butler 57

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Steve Alford, known for his offensive skills, showed Butler's Bulldogs he can play at both ends of the court in leading the Indiana Hoosiers to an easy win.

The 6-foot-2 sophomore guard had eight steals to go with a game-high 26 points as Indiana overcame stubborn Butler 79-57.

"I've been concentrating on my defense this week," said Alford. "It's something I've got to concentrate on in the off-season. It's something the coach has been on me for all season."

"The half-court pressure defense," said Butler Coach Joe Sexson about the difference in the game. "It was the most aggressive half-court defense we've faced all year, and our guys weren't ready for it.

"We'll be better at that next year. We hadn't seen it before. It's kind of a shock."

The defense helped produce 19 turnovers and a 44 percent shooting performance from the field. Indiana, meanwhile, hit on 62 percent of its shots from the field.

"We worked very hard on our defensive play all week for Butler," said Alford, who was 11 of 16 from the field.

Alford had three steals and layups in a 14-point Indiana streak in the first half. He also had six in a 10-point spurt that put Indiana up by 20. That score with 14:37 remaining in the game gave Indiana a 50-30 lead, but the gallant Bulldogs refused to die.

Indiana Coach Bob Knight declined to meet with the media after the game, sending assistant Jim Crews.

"Coach wanted me to come and experience a press conference in which we won a game," said Crews, who coached the team in a loss to Purdue after Knight was ejected early after picking up a three technical fouls and tossing a chair across the court.

He also coached Indiana in a loss against Iowa, when Knight was suspended for one game for his actions in the Purdue contest.

"We got some things defensively that we haven't in the past," Crews said. "We couldn't contain (Darrin) Fitzgerald. (Chad) Tucker really came on strong in the second half. We had a difficult time getting through their screens."

Fitzgerald, Butler's scoring leader with 22, and Tucker, who scored 21, paced a 13-point Butler streak that pulled them to within seven.

Tucker had five points to ignite the streak and it ended with four points by Fitzgerald.

Indiana, now 16-13, responded with another eight-point streak to again take command.

Richmond 59, Fordham 57

RICHMOND, Va. — Senior guard Kelvin Johnson drilled a six-foot baseline jumper with three seconds remaining to lift Richmond to a triumph over Fordham.

Johnson scored the game-winnner after grabbing a loose ball from a scramble under the basket following forward John Newman's missed bank shot.

Richmond, 21-10, led by as many as nine points midway through the second half. A tip-in by freshman Peter Woolfolk at the 10:08 mark gave Richmond a 47-38 edge.

But Fordham used a 13-2 run, capped by George Jones' layup, to take their first lead of the second half at 51-49 with 6:12 to play.

Fordham, 19-12, took its final lead of the game at 53-51 on a follow by Steve Samuels with 3:49 remaining.

After Woolfolk canned a pair of free throws for a 57-55 Richmond lead, Jones sank a 12-footer to knot the score at 57-57 with 1:07 left.

Newman scored a game-high 35 points, 20 in the first half, while Johnson finished with 12 points.

Senior guard Tony McIntosh paced Fordham with 18 points.

Tn.-Chattanooga 67, Clemson 65

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Gerald Wilkins scored 26 points to help Tennessee-Chattanooga overcome a late rally by Clemson.

It was the second consecutive first-round NIT win for the Southern Conference Moccasins, who lost only one home game in a 22-7 season.

The Atlantic Coast Conference Tigers finished the season 16-12.

Nifty outside shooting and good use of the shot clock by the Mocs in the end overcame Clemson's inside game.

The Mocs pulled ahead just over a minute into the game and kept as much as a seven-point advantage throughout the first half.

Clemson, down by four points with 10:34 remaining in the half, got within 18-16 on two shots by center Horace Grant after Wilkins took a brief rest on the bench.

But Wilkins re-entered and in just over a minute scored on jumpers of 16 and 18 feet, putting Tennessee-Chattanooga ahead 22-16 with 6:54 to go in the half.

At halftime it was 32-25, with half of the Mocs' points belonging to Wilkins.

The Tigers finally pulled ahead at 59-58 on a 20-foot baseline shot by Glenn Corbit with 4:52 left to play.

Orangemen find playoff 'Pearl'

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Dwayne "Pearl" Washington scored 15 of his 23 points from the free throw line as 15th-ranked Syracuse trimmed DePaul 70-65 in the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament Friday night.

Freshman Rony Seikaly of Athens, Greece, added 17 points for the Orangemen.

Syracuse, 22-8, won the game at the free throw line, hitting 20 of 24 attempts in the second half, with Washington leading the way with 10 in a row after intermission and 15 of 16 for the game.

It was Syracuse's first victory over DePaul in four meetings and ended the season for the Blue Demons at 19-10.

The Orangemen went ahead to stay with 7:51 left in the opening half when Washington drilled a 16-footer to break a 17-17 deadlock. Washington then fed Greg Monroe for a layup 36 seconds later.

Syracuse built its lead to 42-32 with 16:30 left, and then survived a pair of DePaul comeback efforts that sliced the lead to 48-45 and 54-51, the last with just over eight minutes remaining.

DePaul never got closer, but had a chance to get within two with 33 seconds remaining when Kevin Holmes had a steal but was unable to control the ball, batting it out of bounds.

Tyrone Corbin led the Blue Demons with 17 points and Dallas Comegys added 15.

Rafael Addison, Syracuse's leading scorer with an 18.8 average, scored only eight points, including four free throws in the final minute.

Illinois 76, Northeastern 57

Ken Norman scored 23 points and 12th-ranked Illinois used a strong defense to overpower Northeastern.

The Fighting Illini, 25-8, never trailed in surging to a 12-point halftime lead and stretching the margin to 29 in the second half before the Huskies rallied in the final two minutes.

The Huskies, winners of the ECAC North Atlantic tourney, had won 12 games in a row going into the NCAA event, but they never were in the game, shooting only 45 percent against a tenacious Illinois defense.

It was the seventh victory in the last eight games for Illinois.

Northeastern, 22-9, trailed 14-12 when the Illini began to make their move, getting an inside basket from Norman and a pair of free throws from Efrem Winters for an 18-12 lead.

Illinois led 39-25 early in the second half before Northeastern scored six quick points, but the Huskies then yielded the next eight points and the game no longer was in doubt with more than 15 minutes remaining.

Doug Altenberger and Anthony Welch each added 13 for the Illini, and Winters had 11.

Reggie Lewis led Northeastern with 22 points, eight of those in the final 3:30.

Georgia 67, Wichita St. 59

Freshman Cedric Henderson and Joe Ward scored six points each during a 16-2 spurt that sparked 19th-ranked Georgia to a first round win.

The teams were deadlocked at 31 when Henderson started the six-minute spree on a layup with 16:21 remaining and Georgia enjoyed a 47-33 advantage when Ward closed the spree on a 10-footer from the left baseline with 10:08 to play.

All-American Xavier McDaniel, the nation's leading scorer and rebounder, had 22 points and 11 rebounds for the Shockers before fouling out with 2:05 remaining.

NCAA East

McDaniel got 18 of his points in the first half, including 16 consecutive points for the Shockers during one streak. He hit only two of eight shots from the field in the second half as the Bulldogs did a better job of denying him the ball.

Henderson led Georgia with 20 points, despite sitting out more than 8 minutes of the second half after collecting his fourth foul with 12:54 left and Georgia leading 39-33.

It was then that Ward took over with two dunks off steals in a 13-second span.

Gerald Crosby added 13 points and Ward 10 for the Bulldogs.

Aubrey Sherrod had 17 points and Karl Papke 11 for Wichita State, 18-13.

Georgia Tech 65, Mercer 58

Sixth-ranked Georgia Tech got 19 points from Yvon Joseph and survived a second-half scare to down Mercer.

The Atlantic Coast Conference champions surged to an 18-point lead in the first half and led by that many 2½ minutes into the second half before Mercer closed to within six points with 95 seconds remaining.

Tech, 25-7, turned in a sloppy performance, hitting only two of eight free throws in the final two minutes.

Joseph, a 6-foot-11, 245-pounder, intimidated Mercer, 22-9, in the first half when Tech assumed control of the game.

Joseph had six points in a 17-4 run that gave the Jackets a 27-11 lead 14 minutes into the game.

The Bears, trailing 41-25 at halftime, cut the lead to 49-41 with 9:22 left and then got it to 62-56 with 1:35 remaining on a pair of free throws by Sam Mitchell.

Mercer then got a steal by Keith Czapla, who was unable to convert a free throw after being fouled with 1:15 left.

Mark Price added 14 points and Bruce Dalrymple 13 for Tech.

Mitchell, Melvin Randall and Earl Walker each had 17 for Mercer.

Shreveport stops cheap beer nights

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The Shreveport Captains announced with mixed emotions that the team was abandoning "Quarter Beer Night," when two bits used to be able buy Saturday night baseball fans a 16-ounce cup of lager.

But Taylor Moore, president of the Class AA Texas League team, said Thursday the Captains would continue to sell beer at $1.25 per cup throughout its 1985 season, which begins April 10.

Bullets plug Rockets as Malone hits for 36

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Jeff Malone scored 13 of his game-high 36 points in the pivotal third quarter to lead Washington to a 120-114 National Basketball Association victory over the Houston Rockets Friday night.

The Bullets trailed 68-60 midway through the third period, but Malone keyed a 30-7 Washington scoring spree that enabled the Bullets to take a 90-75 lead. The margin never got below five points the rest of the way.

Houston, despite getting 32 points from Ralph Sampson, had a three-game winning streak snapped. The Rockets cut a 100-87 deficit to 102-97 with five minutes remaining in the game, but a three-point play by Malone with 3:43 left increased the Washington lead to an insurmountable 109-100.

Gus Williams scored 30 points for the Bullets, who improved their record to 34-33 and moved a half-game ahead of New Jersey into third place in the Atlantic Division.

Malone's scoring efforts marked the fourth time in the last five games he has broken the 30-point barrier. Cliff Robinson added 26 points for the Bullets, who played the game in front of a sellout crowd of 19,105.

Washington scored the game's opening 10 points and held a 22-7 lead midway through the first quarter, but Houston used an 18-8 scoring spree to close to within 30-25 entering the second period.

Led by Sampson, who scored 14 points, the Rockets made 19 second-quarter field goal attempts and took a 56-52 lead at intermission.

Mavericks sting Nuggets

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Aguirre scored 22 points to lead the Dallas Mavericks to a 127-108 romp over the visiting Denver Nuggets in a Midwest Division battle Friday night in National Basketball Association play.

The Mavericks held Denver, the league's highest scoring team, to 49 points in the first half and led 100-65 after three quarters.

The win moved Dallas, 38-29, to nine games over 500 for the second time in their five year history. Dallas also pulled within 1½ games of Houston, 120-114 losers to Washington Friday for second place in the Midwest Division.

Guard Mike Evans led Denver, 42-24, with 16 points. The Nuggets, who lost their second straight, fell from four points behind at 23:19 to 17 down at 48:31 in seven minutes of the first and second quarters and never recovered.

Dan Issel finished with eight points, the 15-year veteran has now scored 27,310 career points and needs four points to pass Eldin Hayes, who retired last year from the Houston Rockets and who is the NBA's fourth all-time leading scorer.

Rookie center Sam Perkins scored 21 points, and reserve guard Derek Harper added 15 for the Mavericks, who have won 6 of their last seven games. Dallas' record last stood at nine games over .500 after a 13-4 start last season.

Rebels, Cougars square off in chilling 4-5A contest

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

It's still early in the season. A chill in the air keeps popping up to add discomfort to the players and fans. The grass is just turning green. It's baseball season but it's too early for one of the biggest games of the year.

Big games are supposed to wait until later in the year, when the league is in the clutches of a pennant race. It's not supposed to occur in Week 1, Game 2.

But, that's the way it stands in District 4-5A at this moment and the site is Midland Lee Field where the Lee Rebels will take on the Abilene Cooper Cougars at 2 p.m.

What makes this game so big is it's the first of two league meetings between two teams that are supposed to finish one-two in the 4-5A race. Both are 1-0 after opening day victories on Tuesday and neither team wants to lose and fall into the role of hunter.

Abilene Cooper is a team that many are looking toward as a member of the 5A final four this year. The Cougars are ranked No. 2 in the state and have a player Lee coach Ernie Johnson feels is "premier pitcher in the state." in Terry Suggs.

"I think he'll start and probably finish," said Johnson. "I hope he doesn't finish but I do expect him to start. I'll be disappointed if he doesn't."

And, why is that?

"First, he's the one we've prepared for," said Johnson. "Second, I would be a bit miffed if they think they're that much better than us and start someone else. Suggs is going to make a lot of money. He throws a 90 mph fastball and he throws it across the plate. He shouldn't lose a game all year, even to us. But, those things can happen.

"I expect this to be quite a challenge but I'm really looking forward to it," said Johnson. "We might fall flat on our faces but we've had two real good work outs this week and I think we're ready."

Johnson may be willing to concede the pitching edge to Cooper, but not everything involved in the game of baseball.

"They're not that good of a hitting team. With Suggs, pitching is their strength and they play pretty good defense. They've got some experience and Andy (Cougar Coach Malone) has been working hard with them."

Johnson has some experience too, especially in the infield where all positions but third base are filled with returning starters. Even at third the Rebels have experience in Paul Colwell, who pulled some starting duty on the left-side line a year ago.

At the plate this season, Lee is led by second baseman Dirk Bergoon (.438); outfielder Tuey Rankin, (.375) Colwell, (.368) and picher/designated hitter Mike Small, (.304). Rankin is also one of the best hitters in league play at .750 while Bergoon is hitting .500.

Johnson plans to counter Suggs with right-hander Mike Rittenberry, the most effective Lee pitcher this year with a 0.58 ERA, allowing only two earned runs in 24.0 innings.

Defensively, the Rebels are on a two-game errorless streak.

ELSEWHERE AROUND the league, Midland High is off to Abilene for a game against the AHS Eagles, Odessa Permian is at streaking Big Spring and San Angelo goes to Odessa High.

History has shown that MHS-AHS games lean a bit toward the high-scoring side of things and Bulldog coach Tim Whalen doesn't see any reason why today's meeting will be any different.

"Our games with Abilene in the past have been more like football games," said Whalen. "I remember one year we had them down 17-3 and they beat us 19-17. The umpires made some questionable calls and we started umpiring ourselves instead of playing ball. This one could come down to who kicks the extra points, maybe a field goal."

One reason Whalen isn't too hopeful of a low-scoring affair is his team's current pitching situation. In 10 outings, Bulldog pitchers have given up a whopping 5.22 earned runs a game. Michael Gonzalez, a possible starter against AHS, has been the most effective with a 3.17 ERA.

"We might go with Gonzalez or (Mike) Stanton," said Whalen. "Maybe both. Maybe (Kenny) De La Garza too. I don't know yet."

While De La Garza has had a tough time on the mound with a .420 ERA, he has seen a lot of success at the plate, leading the Bulldog .302 team attack with a .533 average.

Catcher Greg Hatcher has been smoking at .441 while second baseman Darren Thorpe is hitting .355 and Stanton .333.

According to Whalen, the Eagles can also "hit the ball. They can hit the heck out of it. They have some athletes."

AHS is currently among the ~~four~~ teams tied for first in the 4-5A standings at 1-0 while MHS is looking to get out of the four-way 0-1 cellar.

Two Unknowns take lead in USF&G golf

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tony Sills and Brett Upper mastered swirling winds and a wet course Friday to go 9-under-par, surging from just off the pace and into the second-round lead with scores of 135 in the $400,000 USF&G Golf Classic.

John Mahaffey, who shot a 9-under 63 to take the lead in the rain-interrupted first round, shot 73 in the second round, falling into a tie for second at 136 with Gibby Gilbert, who shot 71 on Friday.

Upper shot 68 on Friday to go with Thursday's 67. Sills, who had a 66 in the first round, shot 69 on Friday.

"John let us get in there a little bit," Upper said.

Mahaffey had to wait a little over 15 hours to take his last two shots of the first round, but he made them count.

He was caught by Thursday's rain 211 yards from the pin on the 18th hole, but he hit his approach shot to about 35 feet from the pin and knocked his putt in for a birdie.

"I really didn't play much different today, but this is a different course," he said after Friday's second round.

The fairways, soaked by an overnight rain, didn't give golfers the roll on Friday that they enjoyed on Thursday, and the winds were tricky.

"The wind swirled a lot today. My caddy and I had a lot of trouble figuring out where the wind was coming from," Sills said.

Upper's 4-under-par 68 tied with Nicky Price for the best round on Friday. Eighteen golfers shot better than that on Thursday. Still, par 144 was the cutoff point for Saturday's third round.

Ewing given Naismith honor

ATLANTA (AP) — Patrick Ewing of Georgetown was named the winner of the Naismith Trophy, honoring the year's best male college basketball player, by the Atlanta Tipoff Club Friday.

Cheryl Miller of Southern California won the Naismith Trophy for women.

The players were selected in nationwide balloting by 272 coaches, sports writers and editors and at-large representatives from each state.

Ewing outpolled Chris Mullin of St. John's, followed by Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma, Keith Lee of Memphis State and Kenny Walker of Kentucky.

Miller was followed in the balloting for women by Janet Harris of Georgia, Medina Dixon of Old Dominion, Andrea Lloyd of Texas and Pam Gant of Louisiana Tech.

The trophies will be presented April 4 in Atlanta.

Chap netters split match

From Staff Reports

Midland College took on bigger NCAA Division I schools Friday and came away with a split decision. The men posted a 6-3 victory over Northern Illinois while the women dropped a 6-3 match to Texas Christian.

In both matches, the Chaparrals dominated the No. 1 positions in singles and doubles. For the men, Sean Strickling defeated Jim Shackleford, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 and then teammed up with Robert Vrij to win No. 1 doubles over Shackleford-Bill Hambach, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

For the women, Helen Lebeller rallied from a 4-6 loss to post 7-5, 6-0 victories over TCU's Liza Riefkohl and joined Chap teammate Sarah Swan for a 6-4, 6-4 win over Angie Olmedo and Lauri Rapp.

"Although they lost their match, and they were expected to because TCU finished third in the Southwest Conference, our winning both No. 1 spots is a real feat," said MC coach Joe Williams. "Winning three games in the match should help our national ranking."

The MC women are currently ranked No. 6 among junior college teams while the men can't improve improve their No. 1 honor.

Champs look for a home

By WILLIAM N. WALLACE
N.Y. Times News Service

PHILADELPHIA — The Stars, last year's champions of the United States Football League when representing Philadelphia, are a team without a home this year, or with too many homes.

The club is now called the Baltimore Stars and it seeks its primary patronage from that city. Yet its headquarters and practice site continue to be here at Veterans Stadium, and it will play its "home" games at the University of Maryland's Byrd Stadium in College Park, closer to Washington than Baltimore by 23 miles.

The Stars' first home game in this puzzling new environment comes on Sunday when they play the Generals.

On Saturday, the Stars will load into buses here, go to Baltimore for a promotional appearance at the Inner Harbor and proceed to College Park. "That will be our first look and our first practice in the stadium," Coach Jim Mora said.

"In essence," said Carl Peterson, the team president, "we will be playing 18 games on the road this season."

WHEN THE USFL voted last summer to abandon spring football and go to a fall schedule beginning in 1986, the Stars' owner, Myles Tanenbaum, decided he would have to move his team from Philadelphia. It could not compete in the fall against the city's beloved Eagles and there would be no room for both at Veterans Stadium.

He chose Baltimore because that city was without pro football after the Colts of the National Football League had moved to Indianapolis. Because Memorial Stadium, home of baseball's Orioles, would not be available this spring, Byrd Stadium became the club's temporary home.

The next problem was to sell tickets, and the Stars worked hard at that. "Marketing," said Peterson. "That's what I've become, a marketing expert, and I thought I was a football man."

Peterson, the former personnel director of the Eagles, is concerned because the team, almost identical to last year's champions, has yet to win. There have been two defeats and a tie, different than in the last two seasons when the Stars won 35 of 41 games.

A series of minor but annoying leg injuries during training camp in Florida and the impermanent environment are not excuses, said Mora. "Hey, we haven't thrown in the towel yet," he added.

ON THE field the Stars have uncharacteristically made turnovers on offense and allowed the big play on defense.

Kelvin Bryant, the running back favoring a tender ankle, has gained only 2 more yards rushing than the Generals' quarterback, Doug Flutie. The Stars' usually well protected and elusive quarterback, Chuck Fusina, has been sacked 13 times.

More than half the players have made their homes in the Philadelphia-South Jersey area and the move to Baltimore, 95 miles to the south, has not enchanted them or the office staff.

Sam Mills, the Stars' inside linebacker, said, "We don't know what to expect down there from new fans. There's pressure on us. As the Baltimore Stars we've never won a game."

The Stars have worked hard at ingratiating themselves. There have been countless appearances at various functions and the 33 Colt Corrals, the fan clubs of the departed team, have turned their support to the newcomers.

Peterson has asked every player to make four personal appearances in Baltimore during the season, and Mayor William Donald Schaefer said recently that he had certainly seen a lot of Chuck Commiskey lately.

Commiskey, the Stars' all-league guard who weighs 290, is hard to miss.

The Stars have also tried to evoke the past glory days of the Colts. "People like Artie Donovan, John Unitas, Lenny Moore and Tom Matte have helped us a lot," said Peterson.

Matte, one of those former Colt heroes, will be a member of the Stars' radio broadcast team.

There have been positive results. Peterson said that the Stars had sold 17,000 season tickets, more than they ever did in Philadelphia, and that he expected a crowd of 35,000 Sunday. The Stars averaged about 29,000 last season at Veterans Stadium.

Bradley's homer gives Yankees first win of spring

Associated Press

Scott Bradley hit a two-run homer and the New York Yankees won their first exhibition game of the season, 4-2, over the Detroit Tigers on Friday. The Tigers, who had not lost since their opening game, had a six-game winning streak snapped.

Bobby Meacham also had three hits in four at-bats for the Yankees in Lakeland, Fla. Dave Winfield singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning.

Phil Niekro, who had pitched three perfect innings in his previous outing, gave up a run on three straight Detroit hits in the first inning. Darrell Evans drove in Detroit's other run with a fifth-inning homer.

In Kissimmee, Fla., Lee Mazilli knocked in three runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates won their first exhibition game with a 7-1 decision over the Houston Astros. Joe Orsulak drove in two more runs and paced the 11-hit Pirate attack with four hits in five at-bats. Tye Gainey homered for Houston.

Wally Backman drove in four runs with a double, single and sacrifice fly, and Mookie Wilson hit a two-run homer to lead the New York Mets over Boston 8-2 at Winter Haven, Fla. Wilson and Danny Heep had three hits apiece in the Mets 16-hit attack.

Exhibition Baseball

In Orlando, Fla., undefeated Toronto scored three runs in the 10th inning off reliever Ron Davis for an 11-8 victory over the Minnesota Twins. Mitch Webster scored the go-ahead run on a passed ball. Tim Laudner hit a three-run homer for Minnesota.

Greg Walker and Ron Kittle homered to pace the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in Sarasota, Fla. Walker's three-run homer highlighted the White Sox's four-run first inning against Baltimore starter Bill Swaggerty. Gary Roenicke homered for Baltimore.

In Tucson, Ariz., Geoff Zahn, Luis Sanchez and Curt Kaufman combined on a five-hitter as the California Angels defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-0. Zahn gave up one single in three innings. Gary Pettis drove in two runs with a single in the first inning, and tripled and scored in the third inning.

Dave Kingman hit his first home run of the spring, and the Oakland A's scored four unearned runs in the eighth inning to beat San Diego 6-2 in Phoenix. Don Sutton made his A's pitching debut with three innings' work, giving up two runs.

Jim Wohlford and Andres Galarraga homered to power the Montreal Expos over Texas 8-0 in Pompano, Fla. Bill Gullickson combined with three relievers to shut out Texas on eight hits.

In Clearwater, Fla., Eric Davis homered to lead off the game for the first of his five hits, and he drove in three runs and hit for the cycle as Cincinnati outslugged Philadelphia 13-10. The Reds scored eight runs in the first inning off left-hander Shane Rawley.

Al Oliver singled home what proved to be the deciding run, and Los Angeles profited by two Atlanta errors to beat the Braves 3-2 in West Palm Beach, Fla. An error by Braves shortstop Rafael Ramirez led to two runs in the second inning, and Claudell Washington committed an error in the third that helped Oliver make it 3-0 with an RBI single.

In Sun City, Ariz., Dave Henderson's two home runs backed the two-hit pitching of Matt Young and two relievers as Seattle defeated Milwaukee 9-0. Young worked four perfect innings, and Jim Presley and Alvin Davis also homered for the Mariners.

Jorge Orta's three-run homer in the third inning powered the Kansas City Royals to a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals at Fort Myers, Fla. Orta's homer broke a scoreless tie. Willie McGee had two hits for St. Louis.

In Mesa, Ariz., Dan Gladden drove in two runs with two hits, including an inside-the-park homer, as the San Francisco Giants edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1. Gladden's homer went over the head of Billy Hatcher in deep right-center field in the sixth inning.

MHS second in golf tourney

From Staff Reports

Midland High's Stacy Owens led the Lady Bulldogs golf team to a runner-up team finish at the Midland Invitational girls golf tournament Friday.

Owens, a senior, shot 91 on the 18-hole course at Hogan Park, two strokes behind leaders Barbie Crews of Odessa Permian and Liz Montelongo of San Angelo. Crews won the sudden-death playoff on the first hole to earn medalist honors.

San Angelo took the team title with the low team score of 372 on the afternoon and MHS pulled in behind at 399.

Midland Lee finished fifth in the six-team event with a 449 score.

Other Tall City scores:

MHS—Shelli Childers 98, Kim Dickson 102, Pam Emerson 108, Michelle Maxwell 119.

Lee—Shari Saikin 98, Cynthia Porter 107, Tracy Bernard 119, Vicki Smith 125. Denise Hatch 139. Individual Lee entries—Michelle Lance 127, Tami Stevens 155.

MHS and Lee will return to action March 29 at the Amarillo Invitational.

CHAPS

Grace, whose 20 points led the Chaps, wouldn't admit defeat was in his thoughts, even after Lardeo took a 41-30 lead into he final minute of the first half abd still led by 10 with just over 10 minutes to play.

"We nver quit. We kept thinking about the last game (the regional final against McLennan) and how they came back on us. At half, we just told ourselves 'We've been here before.' It was just a case of gutting it up."

It was anybody's game through most of the first half, then it began to look like the 66-55 loss at Odessa all over again. In the final 5:41, Laredo outsocred Midland, 13-2, during one stretch. Seven of those points came at the free throw line. The Chaps never reached the one-and-one shooting situation in the first half.

But in the end the Chaps' grit paid off despite Laredo's remarkable 23 of 24 marksmanship from the line.

For a half, Rey, who lacks leaping ability but is so big that not much can be done about him, was an obstacle Binns had trouble solving. Teviin was one of seven from the floor before fatigue and fouls on 6-10 David Willard and Rey gave the Chaps' center some shooting room in the second half.

For the night, Lardeo was 28 of 60, and went 15 of 28 from the field in a sizzling first half. MC was 33 of 68 form the game, and 16 of 33 in the first half. The difference at intermission was Laredo's 11-12 from the line to Midland's two of two.

Waltrip fastest 500 qualifier

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, who said he couldn't remember the last time he failed to qualify for a Grand National stock car race on the first day of time trials, was the fastest second-day qualifier Friday for the Coca-Cola 500.

Waltrip's Budweiser-sponsored Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS turned a fast lap Friday of 167.616 mph on the 1.522-mile oval at Atlanta International Raceway.

That would have been good enough for 11th place if he had done it in Thursday's opening round of qualifying. Instead, however, Waltrip will start 21st in Sunday's race.

The two-time Winston Cup champion failed to finish among the top 20 qualifiers Thursday after his crew made a last-minute engine change.

"We were not running as well as we thought we should have been," Waltrip explained. "So we decided to change the motor. But the guys just ran out of time. There were a lot of little things we could have done, but we just barely got the car into the (qualifying) line in time as it was.

"If we'd have left the other engine in the car, we'd probably have qualified 10th. But we wanted to go for it all, like we always try to do."

Neil Bonnett, Waltrip's teammate, won the pole Thursday.

Van Alstyne woman's quilt brings her acclaim

By BOBBIE GRANT

VAN ALSTYNE, Texas (AP) — Fannie Shaw's claim to quilting fame dates back to 1929. That's the year the talented Van Alstyne artist designed and made a story quilt about the Great Depression — a quilt that has since gained national recognition among quilters.

"I didn't set out to make a quilt about the depression," explained Mrs. Shaw, who says her hobby is painting, not quilting. "What was in my mind was to paint a picture about those bad times. I wanted it to show all kinds of people strugglin' to pay bills and others not being able to get jobs.

"Well, I just kept studyin' about the way the picture should look, but I just couldn't see any way to get in all the people I wanted to show. Finally one night when I couldn't sleep, I kept ponderin' about that painting and it just popped into my mind that it ought to be a quilt!"

The quilt — a graphic depiction of former President Herbert Hoover's "Prosperity is just around the corner" speech — has been shown in national quilt shows from California to Michigan and has been photographed for such publications as McCall's Needlework and Crafts magazine and World of Quilts.

"Last year, I was invited to bring my quilt to the Michigan National Exhibit and Quilt Show in Rochester. At first, I wasn't sure I wanted to get so far away from home," the 91-year-old Van Alstyne resident said recently. "But my granddaughter Nancy went with me and we had a wonderful time! It was my biggest thrill, and I've gotten letters (about the quilt) from 46 states."

The granddaughter, Nancy Hawkins of Richardson, was responsible for getting the 1929 quilt into the limelight.

That was in 1977 when she saw a notice of a quilt show and contest to be held in Richardson. "I just signed her up for it," Mrs. Hawkins recalled. "I didn't tell her I was entering her name. I just knew she had made a lot of quilts and I felt sure she had one that she could send," Mrs. Hawkins explained. "I didn't know this quilt existed. I had never seen it till Grandmother got it out for me to take."

The quilt, which shows people from all walks of life looking around corners for better times, was two years in the making, Mrs. Shaw said. "Some of the blocks have more than 25 separate pieces in them and cutting out all those pieces and then putting them together took a long time."

Each block features one person — a butcher, groceryman, plumber, teacher, housewife, clerk, cowboy and others — some based on Van Alstyne residents of that time. The center block depicts a farmer plowing his field, whistling to keep up his courage.

"I pictured my husband and his team of horses in that one," she explained. The bottom corner block shows Uncle Sam coming around the corner, bringing farm relief and gold.

Mary Grunbaun, owner of the Great American Cover Up in Plano and a leading authority on folk art quilts of the South, saw the quilt at the Richardson show and contacted McCall's magazine about it. The quilt was featured in the Spring 1978 edition of McCall's Needlework and Crafts magazine.

Since that time, the quilt has been shown in Bonham where it won its creator the 1978 Outstanding Older Texan award, at North Texas State University at Denton and the Mill Valley Quilt Authority and Quilter's Journal national show in 1979 at San Francisco as well as the invitational Michigan show.

"It's the only story quilt I ever made," Mrs. Shaw said. "I learned to quilt when I was 10 years old. All the girls did. It was something we were expected to do. When I married, I had 14 quilts I had made, but those and others I've made were for family use."

Mrs. Shaw said her "real love" is carving. "My daddy was a carver and I learned from watching him. He carved dolls from strips of wood.

Good communication is essential to a family. In a survey conducted several years ago among family counselors across the United States, several areas were listed as the issues that most often brought problems. Some of these issues were disagreements over time, money, relatives, and children. Many of the counselors noted that behind these concerns were the deeper problem of a lack of communication. Learn to communicate with God and improve communication in your family.

Belgium will begin deployment of missiles

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The government on Friday said it would begin deployment of U.S.-made NATO cruise missiles on Belgian soil this month.

The decision was hailed by the United States and by officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization who have questioned Belgium's commitment to the alliance in the past five years.

It leaves the Netherlands, one of the five NATO nations scheduled to receive the missiles, as the only one still undecided on the deployment.

Prime Minister Wilfried Martens, addressing Parliament Friday, said: "The allies, in particular those who, like us, are committed to deploy the missiles, believe it not acceptable that Belgium breaks the solidarity that exists within the alliance."

Since 1979, he added, Moscow "has continued its deployments of both (medium-range) SS-20s as well as other missiles of shorter range that also threaten Western Europe."

He said Leo Tindemans, the Belgian foreign minister, urged the Soviets to advance medium-range weapons negotiations by dropping their insistence these be tied to progress in space weapon talks.

Moscow rejected this "last attempt," the prime minister said, prompting his government's decision to deploy the first 16 of 48 cruise missiles.

But Martens said that if East-West arms talks achieved results, Belgium would consider a six-month delay in the basing of the remaining 32 missiles in late 1987.

The prime minister's decision was immediately applauded by U.S. and NATO officials in Brussels and in Washington. "It will have a positive effect on the (Geneva) talks because you should not make concessions before you come to the negotiating table," said a spokesman for NATO Secretary-General Lord Carrington.

"We applaud the steadfastness of the Belgians in moving ahead with the decision to deploy," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

"We think it could have considerable effect on the discussions at Geneva," Speakes said.

NATO decided in 1979 to deploy 572 medium-range cruise and Pershing-2 missiles in five European nations — Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium — to offset the installation of Soviet SS-20s mounted with triple warheads. The Soviet missiles now number 414, according to NATO figures.

Belgium delayed a final decision on the deployment, saying it wanted to give disarmament talks a chance. New arms control talks begun Tuesday followed a 15-month hiatus sparked by a Soviet walk-out shortly after the beginning of cruise missile deployment.

The Netherlands is the only country yet to agree to receive the missiles, and Premier Ruud Lubbers on Friday said he hoped deployment would not be necessary.

Lubbers restated the Dutch government position that if the deployment level of Soviet SS-20 missiles next Nov. 1 is equal to or less than the number deployed last June 1, his government would not install any NATO cruise missiles on its soil.

Brashear Family

Brashear Family to give concert

ODESSA — The Brashear Family will be in concert Tuesday at the Globe Theatre, located on the Odessa College campus.

The Brashears are well-known for their southern traditional gospel music and were voted the Group of the Year by the Southern Gospel Music Association.

Tickets, priced at $5 in advance, may be purchased at the Joy Shop, Permian Mall, the Odessa Scripture Shop and the Globe Theatre. Group rates are also available. The night of the concert tickets will be $6.

Praise Pupeteers Share Team

Puppeteers to give program

McPherson, Kansas Praise Puppeteers, a share team from Central College, will present a program of Christian puppetry and personal witness at 7 p.m. Monday at Free Methodist Church, 4712 Shadylane.

The musical, "Daniel, Darius and DeLion," retells the Old Testament story of Daniel from the lion's point of view. The share team's sponsor, Dale Burge, says of the production, "Prepare to fall in love with history's most misunderstood lion."

Praise Puppeteers is one of four groups — music, drama and puppetry — in the Central College share team program. Each year, these groups, which are made up of student volunteers, minister to a total of 20,000 persons.

Central College is a two-year Christian institution. Affiliated with the Free Methodist denomination, Central is the oldest accredited junior college in Kansas. The college's student body of 300 represents a total of 38 states and several different denominations.

The public is invited to attend the free performance. For more information call the church, 694-0268.

'Love man' takes his mission to the streets

WATONGA, Okla. (AP) — James Coleman is a mystical figure in an ecclesiastical collar who roams the nation, saving the souls of the forgotten — the drug addicts, the winos, the imprisoned.

He has been called the love man.

Coleman's life is filled with contradictions — once acquitted of a murder charge, now he assures murderers on death row that Jesus still loves them.

As a minister, he is mostly self-educated, but he knows the Bible as well as a scholar. Coleman, 47, quit Watonga Elementary School in the fifth grade and chopped cotton to help support his eight brothers and sisters.

He counsels peace and love, but has had to defend himself physically on many occasions when he takes his mission to the streets.

Coleman is an evangelist, but he takes few contributions. Instead, he works as a truck driver for two or three months at a time, then gives his earnings to his ministry. He drives from town to town in an undependable old car, helping the people society has abandoned.

Just spread the word, that's all Coleman wants to do.

He is as persuasive as a salesman, but as quiet as a nun.

Coleman knows the contradictions are there and does not apologize for them. He tries to bring people to God and on the way to salvation, teaches them skills to improve their lives on this earth.

There have been as many triumphs as failures.

In Salt Lake City, the evangelist was so successful in setting up transient shelters that the governor wrote him a letter of thanks, as did several other state officials.

He paid most of the costs out of his own pocket.

Recently, Coleman brought his unusual ministry to the county jail in Watonga. The deputies like him. They let him go to the second-floor cellblock.

Coleman stood outside the bars, looking at the prisoners for a moment before speaking. The cell was shadowy, lighted by bare electric bulbs and sunshine streaming in through a barred window.

The six inmates ignored him and stared at a black-and-white television set placed about a foot outside the bars.

Coleman was low-key.

"You doing OK?" he asked one prisoner.

"Yeah," the man muttered.

"Can I shake hands with you?"

"I guess so," the man replied and reluctantly left his bench and shook Coleman's hand.

"You mind if I turn this T.V. off and just talk to you awhile?" Coleman asked of the men. He didn't wait for an answer. He flicked the switch and the television died.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

District superintendent to speak st St. Luke's

Gillingham

Dr. Leonard Gillingham, district superintendent of the Clovis District in the New Mexico United Methodist Conference, will deliver a series of sermons in special services at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

A discussion session will be held in the Family Room of the church at 10:30 a.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Gillingham is a graduate of Southwestern State College, Weatherford, Okla., as well as Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, Dallas. His doctor of ministry degree was earned at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill.

During September, he was the preacher for The Protestant Hour which aired on 2,000 radio stations. He is the author of the book "Dealing with Conflict."

The public is invited to attend.

Bible series continues

"The Power of the Law" will be the topic of the third in a four-part series on the Book of Romans being presented at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway.

The Rev. James Otterness, pastor of Odessa's Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, leads the series which will conclude March 24 with "The Power of Death."

Also at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, the Rev. Clark Ford will continue with the third in another four-part study of "The Basic Beliefs of the Christian Church."

Both are open to the public and will be followed at 6:30 p.m. with a snack supper and a short vespers service at 7:30 p.m. For more information call the church, 694-5321.

Wycliffe marks anniversary

Wycliffe Associates will present Wycliffe's thrust to complete the Bible translation task in Latin America at a "Latin America Leap" banquet at 7 p.m. March 25 at the Holiday Inn, 4300 W. Highway 80.

The "Latin America Leap" will move Wycliffe closer to completion of its word in the Americas, one of Wycliffe's major goals for the 1980s.

More than 5,000 Wycliffe translators and support workers are ministering to Bibleless peoples around the world. A few months ago, Wycliffe reached a major milestone. A translation team began work in the 1,000th language, the Irarutu in Indonesia.

The local Wycliffe Associates banquet will celebrate Wycliffe's 50th anniversary. An experienced Wycliffe missionary will report on the progress of Bible translations among the unreached tribes and remote peoples in 45 countries.

For more information on the banquet call Kay Holder, 689-9667.

SMU choir to perform

The Southern Methodist University Choir, directed by Dr. Lloyd Pfautsch, will present a concert today at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, Main Street and Illinois Avenue.

This concert is part of the choir's annual tour which takes its members to churches in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Included on the program are choral works by Benjamin Britten, George Frederic Handel and Johann Sebastian Bach. The Bach and Handel numbers are in recognition of those composers' 300th birthdays in 1985. Also included in the program will be new works recently written and published by Pfautsch.

Child care is provided for preschoolers. The public is invited to attend this free concert.

Redding to address FACT

The public is invited to hear David A. Redding, author of 15 books, speak at the Parish Hall of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity at 7:30 p.m. Thursday for the Families All Coming Together group.

He has been called by Life magazine, "One of the most eloquent younger voices in the U.S. pulpit today." His latest book, "Before You Call, I Will Answer," presents a provocative look into the meaning of prayer.

Families All Coming Together, FACT, is a fellowship of families and individuals who recognize substance abuse as a family illness. The goal of FACT is to improve life through living a spiritual program of awareness and education. Redding's topic will include substance abuse.

Men's fellowship to meet

Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International meets Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Midland Hilton Ballroom. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m.

Guest speaker is Ron Griffith, who has held teaching positions in Clovis, N.M., and Plainview, and served as instructor of music at Abilene Christian University. He works in a full-time capacity as field representative for the Newspaper Bible, Inc.

Interested parties are invited to attend.

Also, FGBMFI meets for a "Prayer Breakfast" the second Saturday of every month at 7:30 a.m. at the Midland Hilton, Room 201.

Passion Play planned

ODESSA — Members of various churches have combined to present a passion play April 5 and 6 at The Globe Theatre, located on the Odessa College campus.

The Passion Play is a dramatization of the last week in the life of Christ. Tickets, priced at $2.50, may be purchased in Midland at Rudd's Christian Bookstore and Sonshine Corner, and in Odessa at The Scripture Shop and Rudd's Christian Bookstore. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Asbury to hold revival

Asbury United Methodist Church, 106 W. Dakota St., will have a revival preaching mission Sunday through Wednesday.

The Rev. Hadley Edwards, pastor of Hollowell United Methodist church, will preach in the 7 p.m. Sunday service. Dr. Rex Mauldin, district superintendent of the Big Spring District of the UMC, will preach in the 7:30 p.m. services Monday through Wednesday.

The public is invited to attend.

Friends' meeting moved

Midland Friends Meeting (Quakers) will be changed to a different place Sunday.

The meeting, which will be followed by supper and a discussion, will be held in the home of Kathryn Bowers. The topic will be Central America Week, March 17-24.

A representative of the group said, "Through our worship and discussion we will try to focus on what our role should be in the continuing conflict."

Communion services slated

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the American Anglican Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Services are held in the chapel of Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

Juice may be substituted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A document from the Vatican, which more than a year ago revoked a special permission for alcoholic priests to use grape juice instead of wine in celebrating Mass, has reinstated the permission in a modified form.

Local bishops may not grant the permission, as before, but it must be cleared individually by priests involved with the Vatican doctrinal office, the new ruling states.

It was received by the National Conference of Catholic bishops.

From 1974 until 1983, all U.S. bishops and superiors of religious orders had special permission to excuse alcoholic priests from ingesting wine when they celebrated Mass, and allowing them to substite grape juice. In September, 1983, the Vatican doctrinal office revoked that authorization, but recently restored it in altered form.

Church of England holds classical beliefs, poll shows

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Clergy of the Church of England hold classical Christian beliefs to a far greater degree than do lay members, according to the first Gallup surveys on British doctrinal and moral views.

The Church of England recently has been in controversy over a bishop's questioning of Jesus' physical resurrection.

But the Gallup organization, with headquarters here, found that 84 percent of all the church's bishops and 77 percent of the clergy believe in Jesus's bodily resurrection, while only 52 percent of lay members do so.

Regarding the virgin birth of Jesus, 68 percent of the clergy believe it was historical fact, but only 31 percent of members do so. Sixty-two percent of clergy and 70 percent of the bishops consider Jesus' miracles historical fact, but only 31 percent of members do so.

Roman Catholic members held more closely to traditional beliefs, 72 percent believing in the bodily resurrection.

Wycliffe Associates Presents "Latin America Leap" Banquet

Wycliffe Associates will present Wycliffe's thrust to complete the Bible translation task in Latin America at a "Latin America Leap" banquet at 7:00 p.m. on Monday March 25th in Midland at Holiday Inn 4300 West Hwy. 80.

The "Latin American Leap" will dramatically move Wycliffe closer to completion of its work in the Americas, one of Wycliffe's major goals for the 1980s. In spite of turmoil and unrest in several Latin America countries, Wycliffe translators are faithfully moving forward.

More than 5000 Wycliffe translators and support workers are ministering to Bibleless peoples around the world. A few months ago Wycliffe reached a major milestone. A translation team began work in the 1000th language, the Irarutu in Indonesia.

A monumental task lies ahead. Two thousand language groups still do not have any written words. Translators are needed to develop an alphabet, a dictionary, and literacy materials for each of these languages, as well as translate God's Word.

Your local Wycliffe Associates banquet will celebrate Wycliffe's 50th anniversary. An experienced Wycliffe missionary will report on the exciting progress of Bible translation among the unreached tribes and remote peoples in 45 countries.

The banquet will also include dinner, Christian fellowship, audio-visuals, and opportunities for lay people to be involved in Bible translation. For more information call Kay Holder at 915-689-9667.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Look for new outlets for your creative talents. Those in a position to know, think your ideas are great! Stop resisting change and go with the flow for a while. Someone important will re-enter your life in November or December. Give romance another chance. You have learned a lot in the last few years. New rapport is possible with family members. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: the patron saint of Ireland, St. Patrick; English actress Lesley-Ann Down, Russian-born ballet great Rudolf Nureyev, actress Mercedes McCambridge, singer Nat King Cole, the Yankees' Mike Armstrong, the San Diego Padres' Tim Lollar.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A sports event shows you a new side of a friend or relative. Take a child to the museum or theater. Home repairs can no longer be postponed. Get several estimates.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Think things through for yourself. Not all changes are improvements. The practical joker side of your nature could cause problems with someone who doesn't know you well. Romantic partner appreciates elegance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An excellent day for starting a family project. Someone extends a helping hand. Mate is in a talkative mood. Your earlier worries disappear. Seize an opportunity to repay a favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A difficult period comes to an end. You feel much better about yourself. Time will improve a family relationship. You find a way to get along with a difficult neighbor or roommate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A busy day lies ahead. A new excitement is in the air. Romance is featured for the young at heart. Do whatever is necessary to resolve a conflict with mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Small talk is a waste of time today. Use a social event to impress those who can help your career. Entertaining at home is fun and inexpensive. Keep the guest list short.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give yourself some time alone this weekend. It is time to think about some things that concern you. Family members will understand your need for privacy. Limit social engagements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get any promises involving money or real estate in writing. A diet or new hairstyle improves your appearance. Get out and socialize more. New contacts mean fresh insights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Quit trying to win friends and influence others by always agreeing with them. No one respects a "yes man." A certain amount of recreation is essential to your well-being. Put work aside.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are being too hard on yourself. Lighten up! A phone call could change some of your plans. Put family needs first. Good news arrives from someone at a distance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mate makes a sweet and wonderful suggestion that turns things around for you. Laying your cards on the table will bring new peace of mind. Do it now!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Something you thought lost forever, is found. You make a remarkable discovery about romance or a family member. Someone you meet this evening will fascinate you. Go slow.

Ex-corpsman, media organizations victims of hoax

Eisenberg

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Navy corpsman who claimed he would get the Medal of Honor for saving 12 lives in the 1983 bombing of a Marine barracks in Beirut and two news organizations who believed the story say they have been the victim of a hoax.

Gary Curtis Eisenberg said a man identifying himself as Lt. John Thompson of the Navy public affairs office called Sunday and told the 27-year-old veteran he would receive the nation's highest military award soon at a formal ceremony.

A man identifying himself as Thompson also called several Houston news organizations with the same information. Station KTRK-TV aired the story Wednesday evening, and The Houston Chronicle published an interview with Eisenberg in Thursday's early editions.

But the call-back number that Thompson left actually was the Navy comptroller's office in Bethesda, Md. And Navy spokesman Lt. Peter Johnstone in Washington confirmed Thursday there is no record of of any Medal of Honor being awarded in connection with the attack.

"There was no Medal of Honor recommendations coming out of the Beirut bombing. The highest thing we do have is a Bronze Star," Johnstone said. The Bronze Star is awarded for heroic or meritorious service in combat.

KTRK announced Thursday it believed it was the victim of a hoax. The Chronicle removed the story from Thursday's late editions, then published a story Friday under the headline, "Story about man winning Medal of Honor a hoax."

"Obviously, we were the victims of a hoax. What we printed wasn't true," said Chronicle City Editor Don Mason.

Eisenberg said he did not know who was responsible for the trick but insisted "I'm telling you the truth.

"I can't believe this. I have no idea why anyone would want to do this to me, but I think it's as tacky as hell," Eisenberg said.

According to Johnstone, Eisenberg was discharged from the Navy in November 1983 after seven years of service. However, Navy personnel were unable to provide Eisenberg's entire service record.

Eisenberg said he was in Beirut at the time of the bombing for a reunion with some buddies "because we were all leaving the Navy about the same time."

"As I was walking out of the door of the latrine, it (the barracks) blew up," Eisenberg said.

More than 240 U.S. servicemen died in the Oct. 23, 1983, attack on the Marine compound at Beirut International Airport.

Eisenberg said he tended to the wounded and dying, carrying them to operating rooms aboard the aircraft carriers stationed in the Mediterranean.

He claimed that last August he traveled to Washington, where he was awarded the Navy Cross, a Silver Star and a Purple Heart for saving the lives of 12 men.

Jay Rockefeller buys Washington-area mansion

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Sen. Jay Rockefeller and his wife, Sharon, are buying a 15-acre estate for $6.5 million in the nation's capital, the senator's press secretary said Friday.

"The senator and Mrs. Rockefeller have an agreement in principle with the owners. They hope to close the deal late this month," said Tim Gay.

The former West Virginia governor, heir to one of the nation's largest fortunes, has been renting a four-bedroom home in the fashionable Kalorama Circle area. Rumors were flying for months about where he would settle.

Rockefeller, the great-grandson of Standard Oil founder John D. Rockefeller, has four children. The mansion, near Rock Creek Park, was built in 1926 on wooded property, and has seven bedrooms and an outdoor swimming pool.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Witold Lutoslawski, a 72-year-old Polish composer, is the first winner of the $150,000 University of Louisville Grawemeyer Award for Music Competition.

Lutoslawski, reached by telephone in Warsaw, said he felt "enormously honored" by the prize. His prize-winning Symphony No. 3 was performed for the first time Sept. 29, 1983 by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Lutoslawski said he will establish scholarships with the money so young musicians can travel abroad, hear new music and contact other composers.

"As you can imagine, this is not easy in our country, because it is difficult to get hard currency," he said. "So it is a great privilege for me to have this award to make it possible," he said.

Lutoslawski's symphony was among 204 entries from more than a dozen countries in the competition underwritten by Charles Grawemeyer, a retired Louisville businessman.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One of the most memorable scenes in the movie "Gone With the Wind" is the death of Bonnie Blue, Rhett and Scarlett's little girl.

The actress who played Bonnie Blue, now a 50-year-old banker, says she still gets fan mail.

"I still get two or three fan letters a week," said Cammie King Conlon, marketing director for a California bank.

Mrs. Conlon recalled that she couldn't stop from blinking while she was supposed to play dead, "so they made a mask of my face to use when Clark (Gable) picks me up after I fall from the pony."

Actually, it was a midget who fell from the pony, and a blue-eyed baby boy plays Bonnie in the establishing scene where Gable nicknames her "Bonnie Blue."

"The bizarre thing is, I have brown eyes," Mrs. Conlon said. "But they still thought I looked enough like a cross between Clark and Vivien (Leigh, who portrayed Scarlett) to play the part."

After "Gone With the Wind," there was only one more role, Mrs. Conlon said.She was the voice of Bambi's sister in the 1942 Walt Disney movie.

DETROIT (AP) — The nephew of the late boxing champion Joe Louis has announced he will run for mayor, pledging to fight for safe streets and improved services but promising to treat incumbent Coleman A. Young with kid gloves.

"I love the man (Young), and we're not going to attack him," Thomas J. Barrow said Thursday. "But I'm going to tell him, 'You're taking us, man, where we don't want to go.'"

Barrow, president of Barrow, Aldridge & Co., the largest black-owned accounting firm in Michigan, said he is a Democrat — as is Young, who has been mayor of the nation's sixth-largest city since 1974.

LONDON (AP) — Life in a British prison has convinced American actor Stacy Keach to give up cocaine, the Daily Express reported Friday.

"Stacy believes prison has been a godsend. He has been straightened out the hard way, without treatment," said an unidentified film producer friend quoted by the tabloid.

Keach, 43, who plays a tough-talking detective in the American TV series "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer," was sentenced to nine months in prison on Dec. 7 for trying to smuggle 1.3 ounces of cocaine through London's Heathrow airport in April.

The report said that with time off for good behavior, Keach should be released from prison in June. The newspaper said Keach plans a campaign to warn youngsters of the dangers of cocaine.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Barbara Mandrell stole the show during CBS' 11th annual People's Choice Awards.

As she accepted her second award of the evening Thursday night, Miss Mandrell thanked her husband, her children and "the child that is here with me tonight, in my tummy."

"You've honored me to a point that it is hard to find the right words," said Miss Mandrell, chosen favorite female musical performer and favorite all-around female performer. "I don't have enough to say, but I do thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Royal Russian estate renovated after 68 years

PUSHKIN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Millions of rubles and nearly 30 years of work have been invested to restore Catherine's Palace, a rare reminder of the lifestyle enjoyed by the Russian nobility before the 1917 revolution overthrew czarist rule.

Pillaged and burned by the Nazis during World War II, the palace has been restored to its former grandeur "because it is a monument to our art history, culture and architecture," a guide explained during a recent visit to the sprawling estate.

Visitors are reminded that the renovation of this monument of imperial splendor would have the approval of the founder of the Soviet state: a silhouette of Vladimir I. Lenin hangs over a doorway to the great hall next to his words that "beauty must be preserved."

The garish opulence of the gold onion domes and the priceless artworks beneath speak of a time when the ruling elite romped through this country playground then known as Tsarskoye Selo — the czar's village.

Craftsmen have re-created the intricate wood parquet floors, wall tapestries and hand-painted fireplace tiles, and a handful of the exhibition rooms again hold their original artworks.

More than 100 paintings by 17th- and 18th-century Dutch, French, Flemish and Italian artists were evacuated from the palace by Soviets as the Nazis approached in 1941, and hidden during the occupation.

The amber room is one of several still under restoration and one of the legends of the palace most often extolled by tour guides and literature about the village.

Carved plates of Baltic amber were "purchased" by Peter the Great from the King of Prussia in 1716 in exchange for 248 soldiers. The panels were transported to the imperial capital of St. Petersburg, then to the royal family's estate at Tsarskoye Selo.

The panels were stolen from the palace during World War II and have never been found.

Guides at the palace said research was under way to create new amber panels for the room, which has been partially restored and adorned with amber carvings, mosaics and jewels.

Bitterness over the Nazi occupation and the damage done to Pushkin's cultural treasures during the war lingers heavily in the estate, just 15 miles from the "hero city" of Leningrad, where many thousands died of famine and disease in a 900-day Nazi blockade.

In nearly every exhibition room, placards display photographs of how each room looked when the Nazis were driven out in January 1944. They explain how the restoration has progressed and boast of the people's triumph over the destruction left in the war's wake.

Relic hunter seeks more adventure

READING, Pa. (AP) — At 42, Burt D. Webber Jr. remains the adventurer's adventurer.

He is the man who, in 1978, recovered $13.8 million in treasure and relics from the sunken Spanish galleon La Nuestra Senora de la Concepcion in the Silver Shoals, 80 miles north of the Dominican Republic.

But after a career that has included a brush with a Cuban gunboat, a scrape with an angry mob on Grand Cayman Island, the wear and tear of work beneath the sea, and the boom or bust of hunting shipwrecks, Webber is a man smart enough to know when it is time to give up.

"I don't think I'll ever lose the adventure lust," he said. But, he also feels he has, more or less, used up his nine lives.

"I'm the kind of person who has tremendous problems on crews," Webber said. "I can't discipline myself to stay out of the action, that's where it gets kind of dangerous."

During recent explorations of the waters off Cape Hatteras, N.C., where powerful currents tug in opposite directions and predators hunt, Webber said, he began to feel his years.

But he is not going to quit before he takes on two more operations this year.

One is a search for the remains of the Jesus Maria de la Limpia Concepcion, which went down off Punta Santa Elena, Ecuador, in 1654.

Though partially salvaged by the Spanish soon after she foundered on a coral reef, the Limpia Concepcion is still believed to contain a booty worth $15 to $16 million.

Webber said he had already obtained a salvage lease from the Ecuadorian government, and his associates have located what they believe is the remains of a camp the Spaniards used when they recovered part of the Limpia Concepcion treasure in colonial times.

The galleon, the flagship of a fleet, struck the Chanduy Reef as it was bound for Panama with precious metals from points in Peru.

According to Webber, the wreckage lies in 40 feet of cold, murky water. However, with the help of instruments, he believes the salvage job should be "relatively easy."

Webber's second project is an attempt to recover the rich cargo of the steamship Central America, which sank off Cape Hatteras in 1857.

Now lying beneath more than 100 feet of shark-infested waters, the Central America was en route from Panama to New York City, Webber said. Most of the passengers were Gold Rush miners returning from California with their new-found wealth.

"The values in gold are phenomenal. They dwarf anything I've been involved in," he said.

While these adventures await the Rebesonia native in the next few months, he's also developing Sealeather Enterprises, a business based in the Dominican Republic through which Webber and three associates will market shark leather and several byproducts.

According to Webber, shark hide is prized among bootmakers and can be used for belts, wallets, and other accessories.

Using his long-term association with the Dominican government, Webber has set up a network of 18 coastal villages where the chief fishermen have been provided with the equipment and training necessary to hunt sharks.

This will rid the villagers of a nuisance which preys on their major food supply, while yielding meat, oil, and hides, he said.

But undersea exploring remains his true calling. He has hopes of finding more sunken treasure, but he has also had the fulfillment of retrieving relics that enhance our knowledge of the past.

Indian ruins offered to park service

HOLBROOK, Ariz. (AP) — Buried but reportedly intact Ansazi Indian ruins on a remote 40-acre property adjacent to the Petrified Forest National Park are being offered to the National Park Service by an New Mexico-based organization.

The Archaeological Conservancy, a private, non-profit organization headquartered in Santa Fe, said it had purchased the 40-acre property from a Montana couple and was offering to donate it to the Park Service to be added to the park east of here.

While the scientific-research potential of most such sites has been disturbed by souvenir hunters, the hamlet's location on a roadless mesa reachable only through the park has left it "pristine" and unexcavated, conservancy President Mark Michel said.

He described it as "one of the best examples of an undisturbed Anasazi ruin left in the Southwest."

The Anasazi, possibly the forebears of the Pueblo Indians, flourished in the Four Corners region until about 600 years ago.

Among the remnants of their civilization are the Mesa Verde, Colo., cliff dwellings and a ritual and commercial center at Chaco Canyon, N.M.

Michel said the Petrified Forest hamlet would have been about halfway between those two locations and Hohokam Indian settlements in Arizona's Salt and Gila river valleys; as a result, the hamlet might provide clues to trade and cultural exchanges between the two societies.

Beneath some "low mounds," which are all that can be seen, there are an estimated 50 rooms, Michel said.

"For that part of the world, it's a pretty good-sized site," he said. "I'm sure the first-level rooms are intact."

The village is located on about 10 acres of the 40-acre property.

Once the Park Service takes possession, scientific study of the ruins can begin, Michel said.

'Mr. Belvedere' resembles 'Mr. Mom'

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — Next to detectives with moustaches, male housekeepers-baby sitters have become the rage on television.

This is Hollywood's perceptive response to the increase in the two-parent work force. Obviously, day care centers aren't funny enough.

ABC brings another male domestic into our living rooms in "Mr. Belvedere." Christopher Hewitt, the British actor who tried to replace the little guy (Herve Villechaize) in "Fantasy Island," plays this problem-solver and surrogate parent.

It's another mediocre, ordinary comedy that indicates ABC still hasn't found the touch. While adult comedy and realistic humor is thriving in prime time with "The Cosby Show," "Cheers" and "Kate & Allie," ABC is offering more Hollywood mythology. How many British butlers do you know?

A foreigner watching American TV over the years might think most homes come equipped with a nanny, or manny. Sebastian Cabot played the manservant in "Family Affair." Peter Cook was wryly reserved in "The Two of Us."

The twist this season was that the manservants were mere lads, and they had Brooklyn accents — Scott Baio in "Charles in Charge," Tony Danza in "Who's the Boss?"

In "Mr. Belvedere," Hewitt becomes housekeeper to the Owens family, which includes father George, a sports columnist played by former baseball catcher and Lite Beer loser Bob Uecker; mother and lawyer-to-be Marsha (Ilene Graff), and their three children.

Sixteen-year-old Kevin (Rob Stone) is struggling with responsibility and growing up, 14-year-old Heather (Tracy Wells) is struggling with responsibility and whether she wants to be alone with her boyfriend, and 8-year-old Wesley (Brice Beckham) is struggling with growing up and his pet hamster.

Actually, Wesley should probably be the problem-solver; he's the brightest kid. Beckham and the droll Hewitt are the two few good things here.

Lynn Belvedere once worked for Winston Churchill, although it's too late to call him for a reference, he says. From there, the comedy goes downhill and gets very predictable.

When George objects to having a male housekeeper and sends him packing into a nighttime blizzard, you know Belvedere will be waiting at the door when George recants. George is tough to take. There's no credible motivation for his non-stop nastiness.

Of course, only Belvedere has time for the kids. He becomes their confidante in another case of prime-time parental misfeasance.

NBC News grapples much more realistically with the new American household in the documentary, "Women, Work and Babies" Saturday night. Jane Pauley is anchor; Lisa Myers and Jack Reynolds are the correspondents.

Producer Bob Rogers says more than half the children under 18 have working mothers, and 48 percent of all married women with children under 6 are working. The husband is the sole money-earner in only 27 percent of married families with children.

In an earnest, but dry examination, NBC explores the consequences of these figures in the home and the workplace. The facts are there, but the cases NBC finds are not particularly compelling.

NBC touches many important effects: on the husbands who have had to adjust; on the marriages that are on new and sometimes shaky ground; on the women, who are caught between conflicting needs and goals, and, of course, on the children. This documentary offers some strong views that the feminist revolution of the past two decades has harmed this generation's children.

Dr. Burton White, director of the Center for Parent Education in Newton, Mass., believes that if parents want a highly motivated, well-adjusted child, someone in the immediate family must stay home with the child.

Dr. Jerome Kagan, professor of Developmental Psychology at Harvard University, disagrees. He says today's adolescents are not getting lower I.Q. scores. The incidence of neurosis isn't higher.

NBC cites several examples of filthy, disease-ridden child-care centers. The program steers clear of sexual-abuse cases that have been so prominent in the news.

Contenders for best director have diverse skills

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They were once those legendary figures who shouted orders through megaphones and who wore puttees — leather or cloth strips — over their legs.

Today's film directors are more often seen in jeans and T-shirts, but they remain creative force behind a film and the movie set's absolute ruler. They're also magician, psychiatrist and tyrant.

This year's contenders for the Academy Award for best director represent a range of diverse skills and talents: David Lean for "A Passage to India," Roland Joffe for "The Killing Fields," Robert Benton for "Places in the Heart," Milos Forman for "Amadeus" and Woody Allen for "Broadway Danny Rose."

Franklin Schaffner, who won an Academy Award in 1970 for "Patton," recently discussed the duties of a film director. A handsome 64-year-old, he graduated from the golden age of television drama to directing such films as "The Best Man," "Planet of the Apes," "Nicholas and Alexandra" and "Islands in the Stream."

Directors, he said, work on the screenplay and participate in casting the film. They stage the scenes and shots and have everything to do with the final visualization.

"The vision for the project is the director's," Schaffner said. "I'm not arguing that the writers, actors, producer and production designer don't make an enormous contribution. They do. But one person must be responsible for the film at any given moment and that is the director.

The producer, actors and others on the project may sometimes argue with the director. "If the director is any good, his decisions will be accepted. If he is not, he will be challenged, and blood will be spilled," Schaffner said.

Back in the big studio era, most directors were hired hands who were given a completed script and told to put it on film. No more. Most of today's directors work closely with the writer during the script writing process.

"The director must also present an acceptable budget," Schaffner continued. "What about the above-the-line (talent) costs? What about the below-the-line (production) costs? Should you shoot in Canada with a part-English crew and thus save $1 million?"

Then comes the search for the actors, balancing such elements as who would be right for the roles and who would help the box office. Along with the producer, production manager and assistant director, the schedule is created. Directors would love to shoot the script in sequence, starting with Page 1, but that is almost never possible.

"On the first day of 'Patton' we filmed the scene where (George C.) Scott says, 'We will go into Berlin,'" Schaffner recalled. "We didn't shoot the prologue (the classic speech of Patton before a huge American flag) until the last day. George never wanted it as a prologue; he wanted to make the speech before the troops went into battle.

"The only film I shot in sequence was 'Papillon,' and that was because we started with only 56 pages of script."

Current problems dim public memory of Reagan landslide

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — The leadership change in Moscow and the distress in America's rural heartland dropped on President Reagan's desk within days of each other, dramatic examples of how quickly the euphoria of a landslide re-election can be swept aside by difficult challenges.

Reagan took office seven weeks ago, able to claim a mandate by pointing to his historic victory over Walter F. Mondale.

"I don't believe you re-elected us in 1984 to reverse course," Reagan said in his inaugural address. The message was clear: the president would press ahead, confident he had the backing of the people.

But like so many of his predecessors, Reagan quickly was confronted by events that promised to shape his second term more decisively than any claimed mandate.

All of them were predictable but not controllable.

An Analysis

The death of Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko was expected, if not this month then the next or the one after. His failing health had been obvious for some time.

Now Reagan is confronted in the Kremlin by Mikhail Gorbachev, 20 years his junior and the representative of a new generation of Soviet leadership, a man who might prove far more imaginative and flexible, and as a result, more formidable than his predecessors.

Gorbachev's first task will be consolidating his power within the Kremlin.

After that, his impact is likely to be felt in the arms negotiations in Geneva and in the capitals of Europe, where the Soviets are certain to press vigorously their campaign to convince U.S. allies that Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense plan is dangerously destabilizing.

The economic plight of American farmers was an issue in the 1984 presidential campaign, and the returns showed that despite their problems, rural voters were overwhelmingly in Reagan's corner.

But now the issue is defined differently than a choice between Reagan and Mondale. Congress sent the president legislation last week to provide loan guarantees to struggling farmers, and Reagan vetoed the bill the day it reached his desk.

"I asked Congress to demonstrate courage, hold the line and match rhetoric with deeds," the president said as he signed the veto message. He called the measure a "massive new bailout that would add billions to the deficit" without really helping farmers.

With farm families across the nation losing their homes and land, the president's determination to let them go under as victims of a free market could present a far sterner test of their political loyalty than did Mondale's candidacy.

The new Soviet leadership and the problems of the U.S. farm belt are only two of the more prominent problems threatening to dim the memory of Reagan's landslide.

On every continent, the United States is confronted by crises over which it has little control, such as renewed violence in the Middle East and the leftward drift of the Greek government.

And where the United States tries to influence events, whether in New Zealand or Latin America, administration approaches stir new controversy.
