Stout Corsicana Line Stops McCall, And Tigers Win State Championship

FAST CHARGING BENGALS EXCEL IN ALL PHASES

Scoreless Game Decided On Penetrations Of 20-Yard Marker

CROWD DELAYS GAME

Overflow of Spectators Causes 40-Minute Pause in Play

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

CORSICANA, Texas, Dec. 26.—The Corsicana High school Tigers, even though they were held to a scoreless tie today by Masonic Home of Fort Worth, are the 1932 Texas Interscholastic league state football champions. They earned the state crown today by penetrating the Masons' 20-yard line five times against none for the Masons. This rule was agreed on by Coaches Pierce of Corsicana and Russell of the Masons last Wednesday. Under the interscholastic league rules, the 20-yard penetration applies only in bidistrict games, and is optional in the championship finale.

It was a wild day. The game itself was filled with desperate passes, magnificent punting, powerful line plunging. The estimated crowd of 12,000 could not find standing room, so in the second period, thousands of people swarmed on the field and it was 40 minutes before the game could be resumed. Finally Referee Benny Lee Boynton gave the spectators 10 minutes to clear the field or call off the ball game. They left the field, crowding their way along the side lines and double seating in the stands.

Bleachers Collapse

In the fourth period, temporary bleachers, estimated to seat 3,500 people, collapsed hurling hundreds through 19 feet of space to the ground. It was feared that many were injured, but a careful check-up by Corsicana policemen, state highway patrolmen and local hospital aids did not reveal a serious injury. Many suffered slight bruises and scratches.

As for the football game, the Masons were completely outclassed. Not once did they sweep inside the Corsicana 20-yard line, although they moved to the 22-yard stripe early in the first period when Roberts and Newsome banged through the Corsicana first line of defense.

Corsicana's defense stopped the great Scott McCall cold and double still. Outside of a few nonessential gains, McCall could not elude

Hope Lost For Miners As 39 Bodies Rescued From Gas-Filled Tomb

MOWEAQUA, Ill., Dec. 26. (AP)—All hope was abandoned tonight for the 54 miners entombed in Moweaqua's community mine by a blast that sealed the digging the day before Christmas.

Twenty-seven bodies were found today; 12 were carried to the surface yesterday, and 15 remain in the north wing of the tunnel, entombed beyond the most fragile chance of survival.

It was made known today that the north wing, where the explosion focused its fury, had been sealed Sunday to protect rescue squads from seeping gas; in that tomb are the 15 unaccounted for.

The dull ache of waiting for word from the gas filled tomb was sharpened by reality today as the message came from below that 27 more miners had been found, dead.

Crews Work On

Moweaqua, not daring to hope, sent down its relays of rescue crews to worm their way through perilous falls of rock, under twisted timbers that might fall at any moment and add them to the list of dead.

A breath of fresh air fanned hope into flame this morning.

Fresh air, pumped in by the rescuers as they burrowed along the south wing of the "T" shaped tunnel, met a barricade and blew back upon the faces of the sweating crew. A barricade ahead—perhaps it meant there were living men beyond it, saved from the deadly gases by a blockade that formed a refuge.

Hope spurred them on. There was no time for clearing a way through the shambles. They could only wriggle and squirm on through the dark bore, risking life to save what life was left ahead.

Then hope vanished on the lethal air of that tomb. The rescue workers came upon a body, then another and another—27 at last, were counted; all dead, not of the flames that snuffed out the lives of the 12 found at the intersection of the "T" Sunday, but dead of the after-damp that poured through the tunnels as the men ran from their mine car to escape the fumes.

Leased Mine

Only then was it made known that the north wing of the tunnel, where the explosion focused its fury, had been sealed Sunday to protect the rescue squads from seeping gas. In that death cham-

The plane carried leLut. Delmar Dunton, Maj. Charles Giem, and four non-commissioned officers. Reports from Oaxaca City said the amphibian was the last of the 17 planes to leave Tejeria airport and was caught in a storm with a low gasoline supply.

Death Of Young Couple In Tourist Camp Cottage Puzzles Authorities

DENVER, Dec. 26. (AP)—Poison wine, carbon monoxide gas or a suicide pact was advanced by authorities tonight as the possible cause for the deaths of Harold Crawford, 19, of Denver, and Miss Gillian Cool, 20, of Pueblo, whose nude bodies were found today in a tourist camp cottage at Aurora, a suburb of Denver.

Two bottles, one empty and the other filled with wine, gave basis to a poisoned liquor theory; a gas heater burning full blast in the small room might have generated the carbon monoxide in the absence of any ventilation, and the pain-contorted features of the couple might have resulted from poison draughts, the officials said.

Other evidence indicated there had been an effort to revive one by the other, and that each had attempted to reach the door of the cabin. The body of the boy was beside the bed, covers of which had been pulled off as though he grasped them in falling. The girl's body was a few feet away sprawled on the floor, face up.

Coroner C. H. Carr said he was having the wine analyzed to determine if it was poisonous. Examination will be made of the contents of their stomachs.

The couple registered at the camp ground late last night and the caretaker said their names were not on the register because of the cold weather and lateness of the hour. They said they would not need the water turned on in the cabin at the time.

Officials were puzzled by five moistened handkerchiefs under a pillow apparently used in an effort to revive one of the two, since the water had not been turned on.

SENATE GROUP HAS NEW PLAN FOR BEER BILL

Proposal Would Repeal, Not Amend, Alcohol Limit In Volstead Law

EARLY VOTE SOUGHT

Plan Would Leave Liquor Law Ineffective If Court Was Adverse

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—A subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee was set to work today on the constitutional phases of the house 3.2 per cent beer bill to speed up consideration of the measure when congress returns.

Senator Blaine, Wisconsin Republican, who heads the subcommittee, promptly announced a plan for revising the house measure so that it would repeal, rather than amend, the provisions of the Volstead law limiting the alcoholic content in beverages to one-half of one per cent.

This would result, in case the supreme court held 3.2 per cent beer unconstitutional, in leaving the statute books clear instead of reverting to the present Volstead limitation of one-half of one per cent.

Action Blocked

Formal action on the beer bill was blocked when a quorum of the senate judiciary committee failed to materialize for the meeting called by Chairman Norris to take up the measure.

Blaine asked Norris to refer the bill to a subcommittee, but the chairman objected, saying he thought it would expedite consideration of the measure to have it considered by the full committee.

Blaine then proposed that Norris authorize a subcommittee to study the constitutional questions involved to save time. This was agreed to, and the chairman designated Blaine's subcommittee which already is working on the draft of a prohibition repeal resolution.

Norris said he would call another meeting of the full committee for Wednesday in another effort to get

Hoover Goes South For Better Fishing

WITH PRESIDENT HOOVER off Florida Coast, Dec. 26. (AP)—President Hoover's fishing trip, hitherto a leisurely drifting journey, today temporarily changed its tempo with orders calling for full speed ahead toward more southern waters.

The U. S. Sequoia, flagship of the presidential fishing fleet of seven government boats, plowed southward steadily from sunrise on in an effort to place the chief executive and Mrs. Hoover and their five guests as far down the Florida coast tonight as possible. At Fernandina, however, a stop was made to allow for refueling, but afterward the push in the direction of St. Augustine was resumed.

During the more than an hour required for refueling, the president put off in a small boat for the first fishing he has enjoyed since Saturday, when he returned with an empty creel. Mrs. Hoover and Justice Stone of the supreme court and Mrs. Stone, Senator Austin of Vermont and Mrs. Austin and Mark Sullivan went out in another small boat and fished near the president.

'Healer' Who Killed Child, 3, In Weird Rites Claims Immortality

LINDEN, Texas, Dec. 26. (AP)—Details of the weird religious rites which brought death to Bernice Clayton, 3-year-old cripple, were revealed today as three men charged with murder in the strange case were held for action of the Cass county grand jury.

Defendants are Paul Oakley, 20, purported "divine healer"; Coy Oakley, 25, his brother and "disciple"; and Sherman Clayton, 30, father of the slain child.

The hearing was delayed more than an hour by the queer actions of Paul Oakley, who tore his clothes to shreds and stood nude in his jail cell when officers came to take him and the other two prisoners to the courtroom.

Paul Oakley was said by officers to have made a statement shortly after his arrest in which he admitted that the child died with his hands on her throat.

After he had ripped his clothes off today, Sheriff Nat Curtright was required to find other garb for him before he could be brought to the hearing.

The first defendant to be arraigned was Paul Oakley, who startled spectators jamming the courtroom with the assertion that he was immortal.

"That is all I've got to say," he declared. "I was not born—I was conceived by God. That's what I've been telling you all along."

He then seated himself with his brother and Clayton at the counsel table and refused to say anything about the affair.

The three men sat closely togeth-

MASKED KILLER IS CAPTURED

Rancher Surrenders After Slaying Neighbors

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Dec. 26. (AP)—A country-wide search for a masked slayer who late Christmas eve killed Everett Fling, 25, a rancher, and later fatally wounded his brother, Charles, 22, ended abruptly late this afternoon when Leland Bell, a neighboring rancher, surrendered to Sheriff Mike Allen with an admission of the slayings.

Charles Fling who was fatally wounded in an attempted escape from the mounted slayer, died at a local hospital tonight, a few hours after the surrender of Bell.

The Quay county sheriff said Bell made a statement in which he told how he had waited in the elder Fling's barn in the Redonda county country, 20 miles south of here, and opened fire on him, and how he later concealed himself in the Fling home awaiting arrival of the other two brothers who fled as Bell pursued on horseback. Louis Fling, 17, escaped the gunfire and spread alarm.

Bell was secreted tonight in an unnamed jail, officers said, to avert possible mob action resulting from high feeling in the desolate ranch country. They reported a disagreement over a land and cattle deal led to the slaying.

Walter Winchell's Eldest Child Dies

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Funeral services for Gloria, 9-year-old daughter of Walter Winchell, famous New York "gossip" columnist, will be held Wednesday afternoon from a Broadway funeral parlor. The child, often mentioned in her father's daily column, died early this morning in Park Central hotel overlooking Central park. She had been ill two weeks.

Winchell, although fearful for his child's life, last night made his usual radio broadcast, unwilling to disappoint his large audience.

The columnist was immensely fond of Gloria, the eldest of his two daughters. His other daughter is Walda. Mrs. Winchell and the two children usually spent their winters in Florida, due to the frailty of Gloria.

Friends of the father, countless in number, were saddened by the death of the child, and the parents received condolences by the scores.

'Flu' Epidemic Hits 400 on Atlantic Liner

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 26. (UP)—A serious influenza epidemic at sea, in which 400 of the 900 passengers aboard the liner Cameronia were stricken, was reported today when the vessel arrived from New York.

The ship's surgeon, Dr. Daniel Murphy, the only medical man on board, battled heroically to care for the passengers and succeeded in bringing the Cameronia into port without a single death.

The shipboard epidemic started soon after the Cameronia left New York and spread with amazing rapidity, sending scores to bed in their cabins. Many of them suffered acutely, their troubles being aggravated by heavy seas which were encountered throughout the voyage. Many of the victims were women and children.

University of Illinois Plans Huge Expense Cut

URBANA, Ill., Dec. 26. (AP)—A million dollar slash in operating expenses is planned at the University of Illinois during the next biennial budget period, President H. W. Chase announced tonight.

A 10 per cent salary reduction for all teaching and administrative staffs members and corresponding cuts in all other budget items will bring about the saving, he explained.

Doctor Chase said the institution would submit a budget calling for an appropriation of $4,650,000 for each of the next two years. The last appropriation totaled $11,250,000 for the biennium now ending, but of the amount approximately $2,500,000 has been saved.

Garner Convinced Special Session Needed To Enact Necessary Measures

Vice President-Elect Views Prospect of Hoover Vetoes on Farm Relief and Beer Bills as Likely

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Reports that President Hoover would not approve Democratic sponsored farm relief and beer legislation at this session today led Speaker Garner to express the personal opinion that prospects of avoiding an extra meeting of the new congress were "not bright."

The Democratic vice president-elect said he was "hopeful that an extra session will not be necessary," but that "if one may judge by reports and interpretations in newspapers everywhere, from the executive and his close advisors, the prospects do not look bright to me personally."

Approval Doubtful

On the basis of these reports, Garner said he was doubtful whether the chief executive would approve such measures if they were passed at the short session. The house agriculture committee is planning to submit a farm bill for action shortly, and the beer measure is pending in the senate, having already been approved by the house.

"Nine out of ten men would like to see a program of comprehensive legislation passed at this session looking toward relief of the country," Garner said. "They want the budget balanced and I believe they want carried out the mandate of the people as reflected in the November election, as quickly as possible.

"That would give Governor Roosevelt a chance to survey the situation and we could go along until next December."

"We promised to submit the 18th amendment immediately—the Republicans used the word 'promptly' in their platform," he continued.

Modification Promised

"We promised to modify the Volstead law immediately. The Republicans said little about that. Both platforms promised agricultural legislation. Judging by what you newspaper men say, the president probably would not sign a farm bill worked out by us.

"We would be obligated to call an extra session, in my personal opinion, to carry out our promises if they are not enacted at the present session."

He stressed if the Democratic platform to balance the budget, and provide beer and farm legislation were "permitted to become law," at this session, President-elect Roosevelt would have an opportunity to see what was needed before drafting his recommendations to the 73rd congress in December.

Although the house defeated the Democratic outright repeal proposal by six votes, Garner indicated that if the senate acts on the proposition at this session, another opportunity might be granted for a vote in his branch.

BOILER BLAST KILLS WICHITAN

Body of Rufus Parker To Arrive Tuesday

PALESTINE, Texas, Dec. 26. (AP)—One man was killed instantly and another was burned so badly that he died in a hospital when a boiler near a wildcat oil well at Todd City exploded today.

Although several other men were at work nearby, none was injured and they assisted in bringing Rufus Parker, 27, to a hospital here, a distance of 15 miles. His companion, Jim Phillips, 31, was killed outright when the explosion, attributed to pipes clogged by muddy water from a nearby creek, occurred. He was thrown 100 feet against pipes.

The well, several hundred yards from the center of Todd City, was known as the Baltye-W. L. Barclay. It had been drilled to a depth of about 1500 feet and preparations were being made to bring it in.

Parker formerly lived at Wichita Falls, Texas, but more recently had resided here. Phillips also made his home here.

BODY TO ARRIVE HERE WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Rufus Parker, formerly of Dundee, will be arranged in Wichita Falls Tuesday. Mr. Parker was fatally hurt Monday when a boiler near a shallow wildcat oil well at Todd City, 15 miles east of Palestine exploded.

Mr. Parker was severely scalded and died in a hospital at Palestine shortly afterward.

The body of Mr. Parker will be forwarded here to the Merkle Undertaking company and will arrive at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Parker had resided in Dundee most of his life. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Parker, Henrietta road, moved to a farm near here several months ago. Mr. Parker was employed in Wichita area oil fields for many years and only recently went to East Texas.

Survivors include the parents, two sisters, several brothers and his grandmother, widely known at Dundee as "Grandma" Parker.

Philadelphia Woman Killed Near Amarillo

COLLIER BACKS GENERAL LEVY AS NECESSITY

Ways and Means Chairman Insists Budget Must Be Balanced

CALLED LAST RESORT

Veteran Democrat Seeks To Give New Administration Clear Sheet March 4

By CECIL B. DICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The likelihood that a general sales levy would come to a vote in the present session of congress arose today with a statement from Chairman Collier of the house ways and means committee that he would resort to it to bring the federal budget into balance for the incoming administration.

"We are going to balance the budget at this session of congress if we have to resort to a general sales tax to do it," said the veteran Mississippi Democrat, long an opponent of the legislation. He said he hated "the sales tax like the devil" but "frankly I can't find any other source of revenue to balance the budget."

Estimates Needs

Collier estimated that in addition to the revenue to come from the beer bill, if it is enacted, and payments amounting to $329,000,000 from foreign debtors, about $500,000,000 would have to be raised to make federal expenditures meet revenue during the fiscal year 1934. He will lay the whole question of federal finances before his committee, Jan. 3, he said.

"I'll support the sales tax as a last resort," he emphasized. "I want the new administration to have a clear sheet March 4. I think it would be unjust to have a new administration come into power with the federal government running $100,000,000 behind a month. No business, however big, can function by putting out when nobody is putting in."

Collier said, "I don't think the present session of congress can cut expenditures enough to balance the budget," and predicted that all of President Hoover's proposals for reductions would not be approved.

Seeks G. O. P. Votes

Expressing a belief that self liquidating federal construction should be done by bond issues, and that only the actual operating expenses of the government should be included in the budget, the Mississippian said:

"Future generations will get as much out of the buildings as the present, and we should not pay for them out of current income.

"I hope that the revenue legislation we proposed will be non-partisan and I want the Republicans to vote for it as well as the Democrats. I also want to get rid of as many nuisance taxes as possible.

"I am going to have the ways and means committee meet for a round table discussion on the first Tuesday in January and I am going to put to them the proposition of balancing this budget. We've got to raise whatever revenue is necessary to keep this government in a sound financial basis."

Change of Sentiment

The house defeated the manufacturers' sales tax reported by Collier's committee last spring, but the Mississippian said "there has been some change of sentiment" and added that if President Hoover "vetoes the beer bill we'll have to resort to the sales levy."

Collier said that althought his home state of Mississippi and probably other states were adopting the sales levy, "we can't lay off of it just because of them."

Principals In Byers Bank Robbery Get 25 Years, Third Man Five Years

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, Dec. 26.—Sentences of 25 years each were imposed by juries on two principals in the robbery of the Byers, Texas, bank a few weeks ago in the 97th district court here Monday. Judge Vincent Stine presided at the trials of five cases Monday and dismissed the court until the February term.

John Dodson, 40, and Clarence Blackstock, 19, entered pleas of guilty to charges of robbery of the Byers bank and received sentences of 25 years each in the state penitentiary. County Attorney Earl C. Hall prosecuted the cases. D. Swain Burckett represented Dodson and Blackstock was represented by Clyde Suddath.

Dodson and Blackstock were captured by Deputy Sheriffs Pat Allen and H. L. White of Wichita county a few hours after the bank was looted in November. Approximately $1,200 was taken in the raid, all of which was recovered except about $20 believed lost in a long chase in Wichita and Clay counties. They were arrested in a field near Thornberry after they were forced to leave their car by motor trouble.

Blackstock pleaded not guilty to a charge of car theft in connection with loss of the machine used in the robbery from J. L. Hughes of Cleburne several days prior to the raid on the bank. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and Blacker as George Wilson, who lives near the Clayton home in a rural community 10 miles west of Linden, told of intruding on the ceremony.

'Healer' Rips Clothes To Shreds in Jail

Wilson said the last Monday afternoon he went to the Clayton home to investigate when he heard singing and wild shouting.

"Coy Oakley met me at the door," said Wilson. "He told me 'they didn't allow devils in there' and for me to get out. I told him I wasn't a devil. He insisted I was and pushed me out of the door'."

Wilson said when he looked in the room, Paul Oakley had the child, a cripple from infantile paralysis, on the floor. He said Paul Oakley had one of his hands on the child's throat and the other on her forehead.

"Clayton was sitting about four feet from Paul, singing and praying," Wilson continued. "Coy Oakley seemed to be attending the door.

"A little later in the day Paul Oakley came over to our house to borrow some sheets for the body of the child. Paul told me he had killed the child. He said the devil made him do it, and then he said he choked it to death to keep it from crying."

Mrs. Clayton, 20, mother of the child, sat near the witness stand with another young child in her arms. She had told officers previously she was in the kitchen at the time the ceremony was being performed and did not learn of her child's death for some time.

In answer to a question by County Attorney Whitworth, Wilson stated that when Paul Oakley came to his house, he did not appear to be insane. Whitworth asked this question several times during Wilson's testimony and always received a negative answer.

At the conclusion of Wilson's testimony, Paul Oakley was asked if he wished to cross-examine the witness. His only answer was to move a hand upon the table as if drawing a circle and then lift his arms in a movement resembling prayer.

Dr. O. R. Taylor testified that he examined the body of the child and came to the conclusion that her death was caused by strangulation. He said muscles on both sides of her neck were swollen and that the sides of her body was bruised badly. He asserted that skin appeared to have been torn from her left ear and that the member had the "appearance of having been burned."

Mrs. Wilson gave virtually the same testimony about Paul Oakley's coming to her house as had her husband. She said Oakley approached her with a smile on his face and announced, "that biggest baby is dead."

Paul Oakley leaped to his feet and waved his arms in the air as his brother, Coy, walked to the witness stand. Officers pushed him back into his seat.

Coy Oakley testified that he had been "considerably unnerved" by the death of the child but was "all right" now.

He said he and his brother left Sulphur Springs Dec. 8 for a trip into Cass county to visit relatives. He said they arrived at the Clayton home the Thursday before the death of the child.

He testified that the "Claytons and he and his brother had prayer and shouted" for several days prior to the child's death.

"I was sick, too," he explained. "They prayed for me and prayed for the baby. I saw it all when the baby was killed. Sherman Clayton was holding its feet with its head hanging down and Paul was choking it."

Officers had quoted Paul Oakley as admitting after his arrest that he had choked the child to "drive out the devil" he believed responsible for its ailment.

He's a Fool

"Are you crazy or not," the county attorney asked Coy.

"Some say I'm crazy," replied the witness. "Some say I'm a fanatic, but I'm telling you I'm just a fool for Christ's sake."

This declaration brought a loud "amen" from his brother, Paul.

With the testimony of Mrs. O. B. Snellgrove, who told of preparing the child's body for burial, County Attorney Whitworth rested the case against Paul Oakley and proceeded with that of the brother.

"I'm not guilty," Coy Oakley shouted when asked if he desired to make a statement in his own behalf. His previous testimony had been as a state witness against Paul.

He said he did not wish to testify in his own defense.

Suspects 'Frame-Up'

The same testimony as had been presented in Paul Oakley's case was repeated. Coy listened intently. When Mrs. Snellgrove took the stand for the second time, Coy cross-examined her.

"Do you think I acted peculiar," he asked.

"Yes," she replied, "like you needed a lot of what you haven't got—some sense."

"Thank you," Coy replied.

When his case was called, Sherman Clayton took the stand to deny he had held the child by the legs while Paul Oakley choked her.

"I was just shouting and praising the Lord," he asserted.

Clayton said he believed "Coy Oakley was trying to frame me."

Coy Oakley denied this assertion, saying he loved Clayton.

County Attorney Whitworth argued his case briefly and Justice of the Peace E. C. Crow bound the three men over for action of the grand jury.

Locusts Sweep Down, Ruining Crops in Path

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 26. (UP)—A swarm of locusts 300 miles long swept down the Bermejo river in the Formosa district today, annihilating cotton, tobacco and grain crops.

Farmers of the district strenuously dug trenches and constructed locust traps in a effort to save their crops, 40 per cent of which have been ruined.

Appeals to the government for sulphur and arsenic to be used fighting the pests were received here.

One farmer and his wife hanged themselves after the locusts destroyed their orchards, on which they had worked for years.

'She Musta Kilt Herself,' Farmer Says When Arrested For Wife's Death

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 26. (AP)—A. A. Humphries, illiterate Gainesville, Ga., farmer, summarized a rural mystery that sent him to jail here today on charges of murdering his educated wife and hiding her body in a well, with the words "she musta kilt herself."

Deputy sheriffs acting on requests of anxious relatives found the battered form of Mrs. Maggie R. Humphries on her farm five miles southeast of Gainesville. It was hidden under a pile of brush at the bottom of an abandoned well. Her head had been crushed.

Her prolonged absence from home she disappeared Dec. 8—led to the search. Officers said Humphries told them she had gone to visit a sister in Shelby, N. C., and that she communicated with him frequently.

Inspection of the Humphries' home on the outskirts of Gainesville revealed bloody sheets and blood on a floor. Deputies remembered the old well. Humphries was arrested after the body was discovered. He was brought to the Fulton county jail here.

He denied telling any one he had received letters from his wife after she disappeared and said the blood on the floor was the result of killing a hog.

"She musta kilt herself," he said. "I don't know of no other way. She didn't have no enemies that I knowed of and we got along jist fine. I shore didn't do it."

Gainesville officers quoted her relatives as saying she had $500 in cash just before she disappeared which has not been located.

Mrs. Humphries, daughter of the late Billie Reed, prominent resident of Hall county, Georgia, owned considerable property includfng the farm and five dwelling houses in Gainesville.

DEATH CLAIMS NORMAN MACK

Editor and Prominent Demo Dies in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 26. (AP)—The death of Norman E. Mack, 74, editor and prominent Democrat, was mourned tonight by many friends from president-elect to humble citizen.

Mr. Mack, former editor and publisher of the Buffalo Evening and Sunday Times, former national Democratic chairman and member of the Democratic national committee 32 years, died at 12:50 a. m. today after a brief illness.

Messages of sympathy from his friends in every walk of life poured into his home and his downtown office. Governor and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was one of the first to express his sympathy to the family of the man who served his party so faithfully. Before noon telegrams had been received from the country's leading editors.

Citizens of Buffalo, where he spent 55 years of his life, were shocked at word of Mr. Mack's death. Throughout his national political career he refused political offices which would take him away from Buffalo. He considered his newspaper work his real life job and succeeded to the extent of building a several million dollar institution from an obscure weekly.

Honored by Demos

Mr. Mack started his newspaper career in Jamestown, where he edited and published the Chautauqua Lake Gazette in 1878. In 1879 he sold the Gazette and purchased the Buffalo Sunday Times with the proceeds and a $2,500 credit. Later the Buffalo Evening Times was established and Mr. Mack became the active editor and publisher of both papers.

Mr. Mack's official entrance into national politics came in 1884 when he switched from an independent editorial policy and endorsed Grover Cleveland for the presidency. From that point on he became a staunch Democrat and his rise in the party ranks paralleled his success in the newspaper field.

Although born in Canada, Mr. Mack will be buried in Buffalo. Funeral services will be held in Trinity church Wednesday with Bishop Cameron W. Davis of the Episcopal diocese as celebrant. Burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery.

LaGuardia To Offer Bill For Five-Day Week, Cut Interest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (UP)—Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York, today announced he would introduce in the house tomorrow a "startling" resolution to place labor on a five-day week basis and lower present interest rates charged by the government's agencies.

He said these rates were "responsible for prolonging the present depression and preventing any permanent solution of our economic difficulties."

The New York progressive Republican charged that home owners were being "foreclosed of their little homes in every city and town in the country" because government agencies—the federal reserve system, farm loan banks and the home loan bank—maintained an "unreasonable" interest rate.

"There is nothing permanent or sacred about a 6 per cent or 8 per cent rate of interest," he said. "Farm mortgages throughout the country are being foreclosed by the thousands every day. This cannot continue."

La Guardia said he had drawn up his resolution "in simple language" in order that "even our bankers could understand it."

Oklahoma Oil Man And Pioneer Claimed By Death

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 26. (AP)—D. W. Moffitt, 71, retired, formerly vice president in charge of sales of the Mid-Continent Oil corporation and before that a business associate of Joshua Cosden died here tonight after a series of paralytic strokes.

Moffitt came to Oklahoma two days before the opening of the Cherokee strip as station agent for the Rock Island railroad at Enid.

He entered the oil business in Chanute, Kan., in 1906 when he became associated with the Kansas Oil and Refining company. Moffitt later became general manager of the plant which had grown rapidly.

STOCKTON, Calif.—T. Rocha doesn't mind a suit once, but he balks at buying the same suit twice. Recently he bought himself a nifty garment and, while he left his car parked to do some business, someone stole the suit which he had left in the auto. Shortly after Frank Marques, 43, met Rocha in a pool room and offered to sell him a suit. After his first glance at the suit, Rocha called police. It was the same garment that was stolen from his car.

Tail of Father's Race Horse Sent President-Elect

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 26. (AP)—The tail of a horse was added today to the scores of Christmas gifts received by President-elect Roosevelt.

The tail is that of the great trotter Gloster which Mr. Roosevelt's father raised and sent to the turf from the Hyde Park stables in 1873.

After Gloster achieved many turf victories, the elder Roosevelt sold it to Senator Leland B. Stanford of California. But later it was killed while being shipped from Palo Alto, Calif., to San Francisco in a freight car.

The tail, which Governor Roosevelt plans to hang up under a lithograph of Gloster, is about five feet long. It was sent to the executive mansion by an unnamed resident of Goshen, N. Y., scene of the annual Hambletonian stakes competition, harness racing's richest prize.

Gloster was the first horse in the world to trot under 2:20. The Roosevelt horse bettered that mark three times in 1873. Its best mark, 2:17¼, still stands as a high wheel sulky record.

Beer Bill Goes To Subcommittee

a quorum and begin formal consideration of the bill.

Avoid Chaos

Blaine suggested his plan for repealing and substituting sections of the Volstead act instead of merely amending it as proposed in the house bill might avoid a "chaotic condition" if the house bill were declared unconstitutional.

The house bill would change the wording of the Volstead act from one-half of one per cent to 3.2 per cent, and if the supreme court held it unconstitutional the Volstead law would regain its present status.

Under Blaine's proposal, if the 3.2 per cent were held unconstitutional, the repeal action of the bill would stand and there would be no enforcement percentage until congress acted again.

Contracts made under the 3.2 percentage would then be enforceable, and there would not be thousands of dealers throughout the country subject to prosecution, he said.

Question in Mind

This method, also, would "take the question of constitutionality out of the bill to some extent," Blaine said.

The subcommittee chairman said the first question he wanted to study was whether "if in the absence of an arbitrary, facetious or capricious finding by the congress as to what degree of alcohol constitutes an intoxicating beverage, will the supreme court look beyond the finding of congress?"

"If the supreme court holds that congress has taken into consideration a sufficiency of evidence and having found what is not intoxicating, the court can say we will not disturb the finding of congress," Blaine added.

U. S. Embassy in Rome Moved to New Quarters

ROME, Dec. 26. (AP)—The United States embassy was moved today to beautiful new quarters in a villa once the property of King Victor Emanuel and occupied at various times by members of the royal family.

The property consists of two buildings 62 years old and 11,000 square meters of park on the corner of Via Veneto and Via Boncompagni in the center of the fashionable hotel district.

It was purchased by Ambassador Garrett in 1930 for $1,000,000 from the Fascist party to which it previously had been sold by the king.

During the last two years the United States embassy and consulate, which will share the new home, occupied rented quarters in the Via Venti Settembre.

When he returned he found, not his own new automobile, but another of similar make, standing at the curb. He reported it to the police, who found that Mrs. Hibbard, who owned a similar car, had parked behind Bentley's car and then had ridden off in his by mistake.

MINE GIVES UP MORE BODIES

Hope Lost For 15 Remaining in Coal Mine

ber lay 15 miners, entombed beyond the most fragile chance of survival.

The death toll of 54 was the largest in any mine explosion within this state. It was not the greatest catastrophe, however, for fire in the Cherry, Ill., mine Nov. 13, 1909, cost 267 lives.

The Christmas eve disaster number this community of 1,400. The mine was its life and now its death.

When Glenn Schaffer, owner of the property, shut down the workings 18 months ago, Moweaqua was deprived of its one industry. Business men and miners determined to keep it alive, else the community would lose its livelihood. They agreed to lease it from Schaffer and keep the diggings open on a cooperative basis.

Although the Christmas festival made the disaster even more heart breaking, it was the imminence of the holiday that saved half a hundred more lives.

Whim Saved Life

For the last week the pits had been operating at full time with 102 miners. But Saturday, last day before Christmas, only 54 men went to work. Angelo Tintoni owed his life to a last minute whim. He went down to the mine, checked in for work, then thought he'd take the day off and ride out in the country to buy a turkey for his wife.

The business of saving lives became the grim business of bringing their dead back, and 60 men were working through the tortuous mile and a quarter from the main shaft to the place where the bodies lay. Hours of work lay before them, and it would be many hours before the last of the dead could be brought from the south tunnel. There remained, still, the task of clearing the air in the sealed north wing and locating the victims there. The trunk of the "T" is three quarters of a mile long, each wing another half mile in extent.

Boys Made Orphans

Fathers, brothers, sons, were among the dead. Made orphans by the disaster were Anderson and Herbert McDonald, 13 and 15; their mother already dead, they lost father and two brothers in the mine—Charles Sr., Charles Jr., and Carl McDonald.

The city council made plans for a national appeal in behalf of the paralyzed community, the widows and children left without support and the American Red Cross started relief work among them.

Through the windows of an empty store, four blocks from the mine mouth, could be seen rows of grey caskets ready to receive Moweaqua's dead.

Indian Skull Stirs Scientists' Interest

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Dec. 26. (AP)—Parts of a human skull found near Brownwood Nov. 14 has caused much interest among scientists. A story on the find appeared in the current publication of Science Service, Washington, D. C.

Several men interested in the discovery have come to Brownwood to view the fragments and look over the ground where discovered. Dr. E. H. Sellards and Prof. I. A. Pearce of the University of Texas, Sid Thomas, graduate student in the universitf and Dr. Cyrus N. Ray, Abilene, president of the Texas Achaeological and Paleontological society, were among the visitors.

The find was made while rock was being excavated for road building. It was thought at first the skeleton was imbedded in solid limestone, but closer study showed the bones lay under a heavy ledge.

After detailing characteristics of the bones, Science Service said:

"Whether or not the skeleton represents an early race of people in Texas, or an Indian race is at present unknown.

"In the absence of associated fossil animals or other evidence from the conditions of the occurrence, the age of the remains is altogether problematical. It is, however, in the opinion of the scientists a remarkable Indian skull, making it important that search be made for mode complete representation of the race to which it belongs."

Pope Pius Proclaims 1933 as 'Jubilee Year'

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 26. (UP)—Pope Pius XI was proclaimed the year 1933 "jubilee year" in the Roman Catholic church.

Several monarchs already have notified the pope that they will make special pilgrimages to Vatican City as part of the observance, and all "Knights of the Supreme Order of Christ," who include the kings of Belgium and Italy, have been invited to take part.

Though under present plans the "holy year" will be observed only in Rome, it is virtually certain the celebration will ultimately extend throughout the world. The papal bull, proclaiming the observance is to be issued early in January and the Pope will announce the celebration in a world-wide radio broadcast.

'Electric Dollar' Suggested As Means To End Depression

Proposed New Currency Would Never Vary in Value, Is Claim

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 26. (AP)—A new kind of money, the "electric dollar," with its value based on electrical energy instead of gold, was proposed as one way to do away with depressions before the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

It would be issued in the form of currency, like the paper money now in use and would end depressions because it would always purchase approximately the same amount of goods, said Dr. John Pease Norton, economist.

He predicted the "electric" money would "end abruptly" the wide fluctuations of prices which result from alternate hoarding and releasing of gold supplies, a practice he declared responsible for depression such as that of the present.

The "electric dollar" would be valued in terms of kilowatt hours, the units by which electricity is measured and which Mr. Norton said are the same in quality and quantity everywhere in the United States. It would be legal tender for all transactions or contracts with a duration of less than five years, because the average cost of producing a kilowatt hour of electricity does not vary greatly in that time. He estimated 90 per cent of all transactions are for less than five years.

The "electric dollar" would be a remedy for depressions because its purchasing power would be kept stable, Dr. Norton explained. This would be done by increasing or decreasing the amount of electric dollar currency to correspond with the rise and fall of commodity prices within a margin of perhaps two per cent.

The currency would be issued by the government through the electric companies as gold and silver currency now is issued through the banks. It would be secured by the companies' promise to deliver future kilowatt hours, just as the present currency is secured by the promise of the U. S. treasury to redeem it in gold. A suggested value for the electric dollar would be 40 kilowatt hours, valuing the average kilowatt hour at two and one-half cents.

Gold currency would continue to exist and would fluctuate in value with reference to the electric dollar just as foreign currency now fluctuates with reference to United States gold currency.

The electric dollar would bear interest, perhaps three per cent. This would allow the electric companies one or two per cent profit as they would realize four or five per cent on the currency.

Professor Norton spoke before the econometric society affiliated with the association.

DAVIS TALKS ARMS WITH F. R.

Important Steps Made, Is Diplomat's Opinion

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 26. (AP)—Norman H. Davis, American diplomat, told his old friend Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight that he believed important steps have been taken toward a world disarmament agreement which would reduce international tension, relieve nations of the financial burden which the machinery of war entails and pave the way for a successful world economic conference early next summer.

Davis expressed to Mr. Roosevelt and newspaper men the view that the first step would be to get France and Italy to follow the terms of the London naval agreement of 1930, particularly with regard to submarine construction. Then, with manufacture of air bombs prohibited by international agreement, poison gas, mobile heavy artillery and bombing airplanes outlawed, the powers would be able to take steps for the restoration of world confidence, he said.

Restore Confidence

"We need disarmament to restore confidence," Davis went on, "because confidence means credit, and credit is the dynamo for trade and commerce.

"These problems will be inherited by the president-elect, and I came here to talk with him about them."

Davis, whose diplomatic career began in Woodrow Wilson's administration, while Mr. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, is a Democrat, but was chosen by President Hoover as American delegate to the League of Nations disarmament conference at Geneva.

He also is a member of the organization committee for the world economic conference, which he said probably will take place early next summer in London. The committee of experts arranging the agenda for the conference will reconvene Jan. 9 in Geneva. The agenda, while not a binding document, will be distributed among the nations.

Outlines Plan

"When the conference gathers around the table, it will see what part of the agenda, or conference menu, suits it," Davis said. He added that no effective work can be done even with regard to the agenda until it has the approval of the key nations.

Davis outlined for the president-elect a picture of a permanent international disarmament commission whose business it would be to "prevent knockout blows" administered by mobile heavy artillery, large air bombs, submarines and other of the most formidable instruments of war, even in the event that war should be declared.

FLU EPIDEMICS CALL FOR PRECAUTIONS!

A Few Simple Rules that Will Put a Person on the Side of Safety!

While it does not pay to become alarmed over Flu, it does not pay either to be careless. Many a case of Flu could have been avoided with a few simple precautions.

Here are a few rules which may be wisely followed:

Stay out of crowded, stuffy and smoky places.

Stay in the sunshine as much as you can.

Avoid coughers and sneezers.

Dress warmly, keep your feet dry, sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Drink lots of water. Eat plentifully of citrus fruits and their juices.

Watch out for colds. The so-called "common cold" often paves the way for flu.

At the first sign of a cold, do something about it! One of the best things you can do is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately. These tablets are effective because they do four important things. They open the bowels, combat the infection in the system, relieve the fever and headache and tone the entire system.

Better still, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as a preventative of colds! A cold is easier avoided than cured. A cold anticipated is a cold thwarted. As a precautionary measure do what thousands are doing—watch your living habits and take one or two Bromo Quinine tablets every morning and night. That will keep your bowels open and combat germ attacks.

All drug stores sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. No reliable druggist will try to sell you a substitute on any pretext. As a measure of safety, get a package today and keep it handy all winter. —Adv.

'Dope' Smuggled Into Prisons in Scores Of Odd Ways

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (UP)—Smuggling narcotics into federal prisons concealed in the center of a glass-eye is but one of the many devices now used.

Prison bureau officials today said that "dope" is found almost daily in the center of soap, candy, cigarets and cigars, buttons, pencils, in writing paper between the pages of the Bibles and other books and magazines and in picture frames, received for prisoners.

Letters written on hard paper only are acceptable, since soft paper could soak up a narcotic solution which the prisoner might extract by burning the paper and distilling the narcotic.

SLAYER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Suicide Ends Search For Woman's Murderer

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 26. (UP)—Dr. Squire P. Bevier, wealthy, 60-year-old dentist, committed suicide today after writing a weird and rambling letter in which he confessed killing Mrs. Josephine Elder in an argument over her false teeth.

Bevier's body was found in his garage at the rear of his home. Hunted since the 71-year-old woman was found dead in his office last Friday, he sneaked into the garage during the night and shot himself through the heart. A policeman was hiding inside the house at the time, waiting to capture the dentist if he returned home.

The letter, found in Bevier's pocket, had been written during two days which he spent in hiding at a deserted cabin 10 miles south of the city. It revealed that he had been obsessed with an idea that an enemy was sending patients to him who would not pay.

Mrs. Elder, mother of Conroy Elder, former Missouri supreme court justice, was beaten to death with a two and a one-half pound mallet. She put up a terrific fight and inflicted several deep scratches on Bevier's face before he beat her unconscious. Several of her fingers were broken in trying to ward off the blows.

Police Notified

Mrs. Elder left home Thursday to see Bevier, who had made the false teeth with which she was dissatisfied. When she did not return home her son notified police. They broke into Bevier's office Friday, found her battered body and learned at Bevier's home that he had appeared there unexpectedly Thursday noon, then left hurriedly.

Christmas day, a truck driver reported he had seen a man answering Bevier's description jump off a bridge into the ice-filled Mississippi river. A note found in Beiver's desk stated "this damn blackmailer got hers—me for the river." These facts led to conviction that Bevier had drowned himself, but the guard was kept stationed at his home.

The note which Bevier wrote while hiding in the lonely cabin and carried with him when he sneaked past the guard and back into his own garage to shoot himself to death was written in pencil on cheap tablet paper.

Life "Worthless"

"This woman confessed my enemy sent her," wrote Bevier. "Worried me for a year. Made her teeth over four times, paid a part at start and then said she did not want them. I must pay back her money and all her carfare. I became mad, choked her and then she said my enemy had sent her. I became wild—you know the rest."

The letter indicated Bevier believed an "enemy" had tried to get revenge because Bevier "blackballed" him in a lodge he sought to join.

"Once I saw him and a patient who wouldn't pay laughing together after he pulled the trick," he wrote.

The letter concluded:

"I'll start for St. L. as soon as it is dark enough. I'll get myself before any one gets me. The sun is nearly set. Nearly the end of a beautiful day. Also nearly the end of a worthless life."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Many years ago, when the late Franklin K. Lane ran for governor of California as a preliminary to his removal to Washington first as Interstate Commerce commissioner and then as President Wilson's secretary of the interior, he was defeated by a rather slim vote.

CHARLES McNARY

Mr. Lane later gave a dinner in honor of the little group of his closest supporters in that campaign. At the conclusion of the feast he handed out to each a commission appointing the recipient to some whimsically titled state office, sealed with a Lane campaign button and signed: "Franklin K. Lane, governor of California, minus 3,428 votes.

His Hands Tied

In view of the apparent determination of senate Democrats to block all Hoover appointments, except of a routine nature like army-navy promotions, where the tenure of office runs beyond March 4 next, Mr. Hoover is not doing much more for some of the men he selects for federal preferment than Mr. Lane was able to do for his friends so long ago.

Whatever the personal satisfaction in being able to pass down a family tradition of having once been picked by a president of the United States for an important office, many men would rather not be named at all than to be denied confirmation.

It is difficult enough for an outgoing president even where no party change is impending to find men willing to take jobs that will be at the mercy of his successor within a matter of weeks. The right to be known as "Ambassador," "Minister," "Commissioner" or what-not for so brief a time is an expensive luxury if it involves traveling to a distant post for chair-warming purposes.

Faced by the Democratic stand against confirmation which was supported by a handful of anti-Hoover Republican senators, Mr. Hoover's supposed intention to keep right on making such appointments regardless might run into much unwillingness to accept empty honors.

Turning the Tables

The ground upon which senate Democrats rested their action was that after President Harding's election in 1920 the senate never held an executive session to confirm Wilson post-election nominations. That was a Republican senate and the Democrats have waited 12 years to turn the tables on their opponents over the aisle.

Senator McNary took the position that there was no real parallel, since this also still is a Republican senate nominally. The Democrats could not reasonably have expected any confirmation of belated Wilson appointees, he argued, while presumably the Republicans could now if they could get into executive session.

Estes Names Committee For Oil Hearing Dec. 28

TYLER, Texas, Dec. 26. (AP)—Carl L. Estes of Tyler, president of the East Texas Producers and Royalty Owners Association, today announced that a steering committee of seven would represent the East Texas oil field at a hearing of the Texas Railroad commission on Dec. 28.

Estes announced the personnel of the committee as follows:

F. W. Buford, independent refiner, Dallas, chairman; J. G. Puterbaugh, independent producer, Longview; Rade Kangerga, royalty owner, Henderson; Joe R. Pearson, independent operator, Corsicana; L. H. Gary, independent pipe lines, Tyler, and J. K. Wells, independent producer, Arp. The president of the association is an ex officio member of the committee.

Hambone's Meditations

The United States will grow a new crop of industrial giants as result of the depression, predicts the president of Rotary International. There, little bankrupt, don't you cry; you'll be a magnate, by and by.

Congress may not revive beer, but it's aroused new interest in fractions.

Signs of Maturity

THE absence of "traditions" in the United States provided the background for one of the beloved O. Henry's most popular stories, "Two Thanksgiving Day Gentlemen." In that charming tale, while pointing the youthfulness and hurried growth of this American empire, the author also prophesied a process of aging which already is coming to pass.

Monday morning's Record News carried a story of the 24th annual visit of a local woman to the Wichita county jail on Christmas day with seasonal gifts for the prisoners. Twenty-four years is no great span of time in world nor in national history, but it represents a sizable portion of the individual's tenure of existence. And the performance of this act of Christmas mercy for two-dozen years speaks eloquently for Mrs. Winter's love of tradition.

Other evidences of growing traditions can be found in the celebration of Christmas which just has closed. With various families, certain yuletide rites have become institutional. There is one family in this community, for instance, which closes its Christmas eve reunion each year with the singing of "O, Tannenbaum," the old German Christmas song. A grandmother in the family brought the song into this country many years ago, and it has been a cherished requisite to every Christmas celebration in that family since that time.

More whimsical features of old-time Christmases also have acquired the dignity of traditions in other families. Some 40 years ago, in a certain family, it chanced that a cardboard cat, gaily colored, appeared among other homely gifts on the Christmas tree. Never since that time has the cat lost its place. For that family, no Christmas tree can reflect the season's joy without the cardboard cat perched aloft in its branches.

In still another home, the spirit of Christmas is not properly present until a tiny figure of Santa Claus rides the topmost tip of the annual Christmas tree. He presided over this family's first Christmas—and will be the sovereign spirit over their Christmas fireside to the end of their days.

Such periods of depression as that endured in this country since 1929 may actually serve to hasten the growth of traditions—which are only a deep regard for sentimentalized incidents. They indicate a growing capacity for reflective living in contrast with the purely objective living to which America has been so largely devoted. Perhaps the nation is growing up, with a richer kind of life than it yet has known.

A Moral for Tax-Makers

THE federal government enters 1933 with a deficit of approximately $1,250,000,000, six more months to go before the fiscal year is ended and recent figures showing Uncle Sam's red ink entry mounting at the rate of more than $6,000,000 a day.

Total receipts for the fiscal year through Dec. 15, says a treasury report, were $876,693,402 as against expenditures of $2,019,166,417.

Despite a small gain over the preceding month, November revenues from the "nuisance taxes" enacted last summer totaled only $26,860,000 as against estimated average monthly receipts of $37,500,000.

For the first five months of the present fiscal year—despite the new taxes and the increases made in old ones—Uncle Sam's internal revenue collections showed a big decrease as compared with the year before.

The moral for tax-makers, not only in Washington but in state legislatures and other bodies, seems to be that increased taxes do not always produce increased revenues. Beyond a certain point—which is greatly reduced by existing economic conditions—the law of diminishing returns applies.

All of which emphasizes the importance of economy—the curbing of waste and extravagance—as a major factor in the problem of balancing governmental budgets under present conditions.

Temper and Telephones

A NEW YORK jail the other day opened to receive, for a three-month term, a middle-aged salesman who had an unusual and destructive way of expressing his dislike for telephone service. He had a habit of making phone calls from pay station booths, and when the operator would tell him that his nickels worth of time was up, or when he couldn't get the number he called, he would take out his knife and cut the telephone wires.

Now at first glance one may feel a certain sneaking sympathy for this chap; for the mechanical contrivances with which our lives are surrounded can be exasperating, at times, and his ill-advised resentment was at least human and understandable.

But the real trouble, probably, lies in the frailty of human nature rather than in any defect of these bits of machinery. For a telephone system, when you stop to think about it, is one of the most marvelously complicated and intricate affairs ever devised; and the real wonder is, not that occasionally it makes mistakes, but that on the whole it makes so few.

Romance Still Lives

FEW stories in modern times have had more of the essence of pure romance than the one which has built itself up about the disappearance of Paul Redfern, the American flier who vanished five years ago while trying to fly from Georgia to Rio de Janeiro.

Redfern, according to this story, came down deep in the Brazilian jungle and is now living there as the king of a native tribe, which honors him highly but refuses to let him get away. So now a new expedition is being prepared to go down to the jungle, look for him and bring him back to civilization.

Here is a sample of the sort of yarn that adventure-story writers have been fond of for decades. If it isn't true, it ought to be; for it comprises just the right proportions of mystery, adventure and surprise. The modern world, apparently, is quite as capable as former ages of producing exciting tales.

MARINES QUIT IN NICARAGUA

U.S. Troops End Occupation Of Republic

By JAMES P. HOWE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Renewed rebel activities in Nicaragua will not interfere with the evacuation plans of the United States marines who are "folding up their tents" in the Central American republic.

A week from today—Jan. 2—the last of the leathernecks will sail for home after one of the most extraordinary expeditions ever undertaken by this government. The evacuation began Nov. 29 when a transport started for Norfolk, Va., with 300 officers and men.

This was the first concrete step in the carrying out of Secretary Stimson's promise that the guard would be turned over to Nicaraguan authorities immediately after the inauguration of President-elect Sacasa on Jan. 1. By next Monday night, according to word received here at marine corps headquarters, all of the 1,400 American officers and enlisted men will have said farewell to the country which has been policed by marines for 19 of the last 20 years.

Marines were first landed in Nicaragua in 1912. The detachment numbered about 100 and served as a guard at the United States legation. They remained 13 years, being recalled in 1925, but were sent back again in 1926 to help in maintaining order and assist in training the Nicaragua national guard. At that time the insurgent, Augusto Sandino, who continues active at frequent intervals, was engaged in fighting the marine trained national guard. Managua dispatches a few days ago indicated that Sandino had become tired of fighting and had made offers of peace to government leaders.

The peak of the American intervention in Nicaragua, which is about the size of New York state with a population of 650,000, was during July, 1928, when there were 5,365 marines and 456 naval officers and men in the land famous for its coffee. Since then the force has gradually been reduced.

American casualties since May, 1926, totaled five officers and 29 men killed in action against bandits and insurgents while 14 officers and 85 men died of wounds.

The expense of keeping the marines in Nicaragua over the cost if they had been at home approximated $1,000,000 a year, it was estimated by Maj. Gen. B. H. Fuller, commandant of the marine corps, testifying last year before the appropriations committee of the house of representatives.

Head of Filipino Senate Advocates Compromise Plan

MANILA, Dec. 26. (AP)—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, in a statement today discouraged the plan of the Philippine independence mission at Washington that Filipinos unite and ask President Hoover to sign the pending compromise bill giving the islands their independence after 10-year period.

Quezon, however, called nearby legislators to meet Thursday as an independence commission to consider the proposal.

"Why should we be asked, before knowing the details and provisions of the bill and before knowing the stand of the mission at Washington, knowing as we do the measure positively does not correspond to the ideas of the Filipino people, to urge the president to sign it?" Quezon asked.

Quezon has told supporters he particularly objected to presidential powers over the islands retained by the measure and the proposed retention by the United States of military and naval bases.

He was quoted as saying that should the United States retain these factors a situation similar to that in Haiti and Nicaragua might result.

Poison Cake Kills Family of Five

NEWPORT, Ark., Dec. 26. (AP)—Authorities of Newport today were investigating the deaths of Walter Ballew, his wife and three children who died as a result of eating Christmas cake.

Mrs. Ballew baked the cakes last week in preparation for the holidays. A small cake was served for dinner Thursday. Shortly after the dinner, the family became violently ill.

Ballew and his wife died Friday and their three sons, ranging in age from 15 to 23, died Saturday.

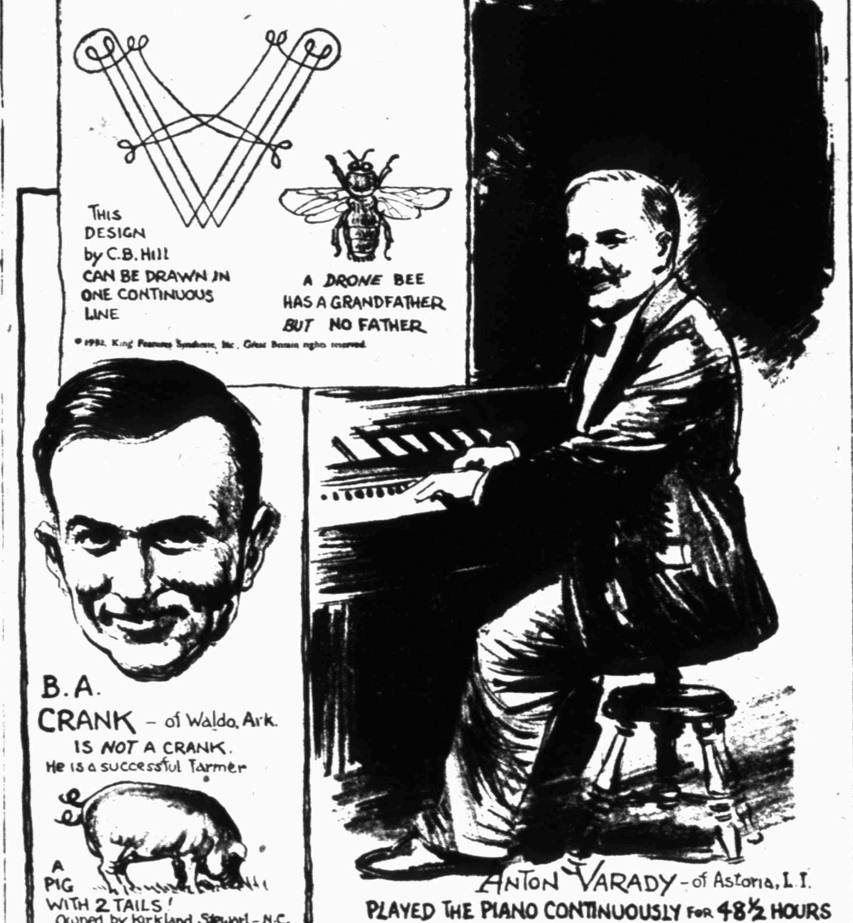

Sheriff Albright said an examination of the bodies established the family died from poisoning. He said he found eight pounds of poison in a barrel in the Ballew attic, understood to have been used last summer for cotton insects.

He said Mrs. Ballew may have used some of the poison by mistake, or that it may have been intentionally mixed into flour during her absence.

QUEERED HIMSELF

LYNN, Mass.—Leonard Hope was out of probation and was reporting to Probation Officer Colby. Hope appeared before the officer and got through his questioning in good shape. As he turned to leave, however, Hope staggered a bit. As he went down the stairs he fell. Colby ran to his aid and found him drunk again. He was locked up for violating his probation.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE HOME OF BIG BUSINESS—The corporation laws of the state of Delaware are most lenient to corporation management, and the state has been dubbed the Gretna Green of the large business corporations of the United States. These Delaware corporations, as they are known, maintain their working headquarters in New York, Chicago, or elsewhere, but they are obliged to maintain a nominal homeoffice within the state of Delaware. Most Delaware corporations discharge this obligation by being listed on the directory in the lobby of the Industrial Trust building in Wilmington, Del., using one of the offices for the periodical meetings of their board of directors. Hence the large number of corporations domiciled within the building, including some of the most important in the United States.

Tomorrow—"A Crank That Is Not a Crank."

PARIS LOVE

by NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

SYNOPSIS

Since her husband died 10 years ago, Kate Sayers had made $60,000,000 by continuing the manufacture of Pirons of the now famous American motor car Europa. In constant attendance on her was Alfredo Santini, whom she knew only as a gigolo and a driver of racing cars, although he was the chief of a gang of jewel thieves. Armand Cabrero and Etienne Lejarre, salesmen at Piron's jewelry shop, were members of his gang. Mrs. Sayers' daughter Alacia had recently fallen in love at first sight with Armand de Pas, Prince d'Orsant, poverty-stricken pretender to the French throne, who was learning the business at Piron's. Santini induced Mrs. Sayers to have her fabulous rubies reset at Piron's and one of his gang substituted imitations the day Santini left Paris in the Europa racer he was to drive in the Grand Prix at Monte Carlo. Armand was arrested because he had handled the rubies but M. Piron gave bond. Alacia suspected Santini. A jealous girl told Alacia that Santini was going to throw the Monte Carlo race. Armand agreed to drive Alacia's exact duplicate of Santini's racer in the Grand Prix, and they left together in this car in pursuit. At Monte Carlo Santini disappeared mysteriously. He saw Alacia next day and objected to another Europa being in the race. Armand, sitting in his car waiting in semi-darkness for a painter to come and paint the racing number on it, was mistaken for Santini by a stranger. This man warned him not to remove the rubies from the upholstery of his seat, and not to attempt to escape to Italy, Lejarre, he said, would go to Genoa and sell the jewels.

INSTALLMENT XXX

Armand lit a cigaret and tried to collect his thoughts, still a little stuned by the overwhelming piece of good luck which had befallen him. It was not easy to catalog the information which had been so generously handed to him in a moment's time, but its genuineness was beyond question. From the man's talk it was obvious that he had been out of touch with Santini, perhaps since immediately after the later's arrival. Also, it was reasonable to deduce that the man had been lying low somewhere, for he had evidently associated closely with Lejarre, and Lejarre was hiding from the police. Perhaps the mysterious agent did not even realize that a second Europa had been entered for the race. So: Lejarre was a party to the theft of the rubies! This bit of information threw light on a great many things. Lejarre had been with Armand each time the safe had been opened. It was he who had helped count the little packets in which they had been kept, and it was he, beyond a doubt, who had palmed the real stones and substituted the false under the very noses of himself and the blockhead of a surete representative! Come to think of it, the man had merely used the commonest of card tricks. And his formal dress with the starched cuffs which was de regeur at Piron's, had aided him nicely. No wonder only one set of fingerprints showed on the papers M. Jessant had carried away for examination. And no wonder too, that when Lejarre got wind of this, he had taken informal leave of the establishment.

And so Santini, under pain of death from the distrustful confederates, was to hand over the jewels, return to Paris, his hands apparently clean, to begin a new program of crime. Well, Armand thought with satisfaction, not having received any suggestions in the matter, Santini would undoubtedly make a dash for Italy as he had originally planned. And if Santini went to Italy, the jewels would go with him. If his arrest could not be managed before the race, then he must be prevented from leaving the track afterwards, even momentarily. But how? Cursing himself for a fool in allowing his informant to leave without shadowing him, Armand watched uneasingly while the good-natured Bernarde painted his car with a huge black number seven.

The system of police registration is as complete in the Principality of Monaco as anywhere in Europe, yet on the night before the annual automobile race, it did not contain the name of Santini. M. Biot, one of the gentlemen sent down in confidence by the Paris prefet had carefully examined the daily lists sent in by hotel and pension keepers without adding to his information and it looked as though a house-to-house canvass would be the only means of locating that elusive gentleman.

Moreover Santini had a life-long acquaintance with the out-of-the-way corners of the whole Riviera, and if there existed a safe hideout in Monte Carlo, he was sure to know of it, and would be able to remain there indefinitely guarded by abysmal ignorance on the part of those who might be asked for information as to his whereabouts. The entry form which he had signed for the automobile club bore an address in Nice but inquiries revealed that he most certainly was not staying at it; while a weary parade of the streets and a more refreshing round of cafes and bistrots had not yielded so much as a glimpse of him. After his brief visit to the Hotel de Paris, the man had apparently melted into thin air. All of which was duly reported to the Prince d'Orsant, a very worldly figure in impeccable evening clothes, who listened to the recital impatiently enough. Armand, recalling the threat of the man in the paint shop, shivered slightly, wondering if by chance Santini had already been done away with! In a man ordinarily so fond of publicity, the gigolo's present reticence was unpleasantly significant, to say the least of it!

"And the car?" the prince demanded. "Have you no trace of that either?" The detective was most apologetic. He had no trace of Santini's car, yet he admitted that it must be right at their elbows; his confrere was in fact at that moment making a systematic inspection of private garages, but that, one comprehended, was an 'enormous matter, an affair! Perhaps by tomorrow night . . .

"Tomorrow night will be too late," De Pas told him, grimly, adding to himself that probably it was already too late; and his own course of action was still undecided beyond a certain point when half an hour later he was dining with Alacia and telling her the story of his afternoon's adventures. She listened with all the attention of which that remarkable recital was worthy and beat her little fists on the damask-covered table in a very becoming fury when he had finished.

"If only we could lay our hands on that car!" she cried. "There it stands, bijoux compris, waiting to be taken away. If only we could lay hands on it! Get it for me, Armand!"

"And," said he, "if I get hold of the moon, I'd bring you that, as well."

"Armand, Armand!" she said. "Have you any plan? Think up a plan!"

He had one, but he did not divulge what it was. Much later that night, when he stood alone on the little balcony of his room looking out over the moonlit sea, he thought about this scheme. It did not offer an agreeable prospect, but he could think of no other alternative. To allow Santini to escape with the jewels was out of the question, for Armand had set his heart not only on their recovery but upon making that recovery with his own hands. Leaving the matter entirely to the police was unthinkable, for the enmity between himself and Santini had now become a personal matter. Of course the obvious procedure was to go to the local authorities immediately, and arrange to have Santini arrested promptly upon his appearance at the starting point of the race, always provided this could not be accomplished sooner. But suppose Santini never turned up at all tomorrow! Even though the frontier must be watched by now there was more than one way of getting into Italy. There were high-powered speedboats in Monaco harbor, and an airplane service to Genoa. Certainly if Santini had become suspicious, or really intended to doublecross his confederates, he might very well have left already, for his scheme about throwing the race had been ruined from the moment of Armand's appearance with the second Europa. There remained the possibility that, in spite of everything, the man would attempt to start in the race. He loved the limelight; the betting on him was tremendous, and to disappear at such a moment would be a confession of guilt and a bar to future activities. But to the scheme of having him arrested just before the start there was one serious drawback.

Supposing that such an arrest was made. At a moment of such dramatic importance it would be world-wide front page news. The car would of course be searched immediately to substantiate the charge. And what if no jewels were found? A fine scandal, that, and a useless furor with Armand himself, the amateur driver, the royalist, a laughing stock and the victim of an unbearable sort of publicity. No, unquestionably the local police must not be taken into his confidence at this stage of the game. If Santini was to be stopped, it must be done by one person, to-wit, Armand. There was only one way to do this. If Santini raced, his car must be rammed during the race. The blow must appear to be accidental and if possible delivered in such a way that both men might escape with their lives. If they did not. . . . Armand shrugged his shoulders. It was a single race and there would be no mechanic in the car to consider. The matter lay entirely between Santini and himself. It was a terrifying risk but it had to be taken.

He left the balcony and seating himself at the writing table began a letter.

"My le Prefet de Police de Monte Carlo," he wrote. "Monsieur: This is to inform you that should I meet with any accident during the race today it is vitally important that the driver Santini be held and his car thoroughly examined, with special attention to the contents of the upholstery behind the driver's seat. Communicate with M. Jessant, at Paris. Immediate action is imperative."

Then he signed his name, wrote the single word "urgent" on the envelope and rang for a chasseur. He decided against writing Alacia. In case anything went wrong it was better that she think it an ordinary accident.

Words and Pen Are Mighty if Used Correctly

Disraeli said "With words we govern men." He should have added "if we know how to use them properly."

Bulwer-Lytton said "The pen is mightier than the sword." He should have added "that is, a pen writing the right words, and writing them correctly."

No matter how brilliant a thought, or how powerful a message, its brilliance and power will be ruined by words mispronounced or misspelled, or when couched in incorrect grammar.

You don't want your written and spoken words to mark you as an illiterate fellow, any more than you want a soiled collar to mark you as slovenly in personal habits.

The Word Book will enrich your vocabulary, will aid you in avoiding errors, and will prove generally useful to you in your efforts to perfect yourself in writing and speaking.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Winter is the time when one sees natural things so much more clearly than in the summer. Nature is in undress. But because you can see the gnarled trunks of trees, they are no less beautiful. You find beauty where you look for it.

Starlight and moonlight are even more beautiful when they shine through a lace pattern of twigs down upon the earth than when the leaves cover those twigs.

The flowers we worked so hard to bring into bloom; those flowers we cut and kept with pride in the long summer months, are gone. But there are staunch little evergreens like soldiers in their hardihood. And standing just before them, barberry bushes are purplish with berries.

In spite of the man who can't enjoy the open gas grate because he remembers the bill to follow, we still contend that family life is a sweeter thing when families gather round even a gas grate. Of course, it isn't like the wide fireplace where huge logs crackle and blaze, but when it comes to comfort, it's more comfortable at that. For much of the heat from a log fire goes up the chimney and while you are roasting your face, your back is apt to be chilly. Of course the ideal thing is to have a heated house and a log fire also.

Speaking of families sitting round fireplaces—did you live in the day when one in that family read aloud to others. That is a family habit almost gone; too many picture shows; too much contract; too many dances; too swiftly moving a life outside.

Yet, did people but know it, there are pictures and drama and far flung adventure under the covers of one small book and one good reader can personally conduct a family over the entire world at a minimum cost.

Christmas day we were driven slowly about the city to see what we could see. Save for the lines of cars drawn up before homes in which probably rounds of guests were drinking eggnogs, life seemed at a stand still.

We did notice one thing of interest; the number of birdhouses that have appreciably increased in the past season. Really artistic achievements stand on wide limbed trees. And in a row of small oaks, you may at the same time see little last year's nests deserted. Such a fugitive thing life is, that it seems as if the world of people would gather roses while they may.

However, there are no birds living in these houses. We are too unacquainted with bird life to know why they do not fill them, but insist to our mind, that it is too early yet for martins to think of family life.

Should we have such neat little, sweet little homes offered us, we would move in at any time of the year.

There's a crispness in the December air that fills the spirit and soul. Beauty—(it may be that coloring is rare)—but the Texas skies near sunset time and when the stars stud the blue, and when the moon shines round and golden, are a beauty too strong to be described.

Mine Shaft Ordered Sealed as Fire Rages

ATHENS, Ohio, Dec. 26. (AP)—Fire broke out in Ohio No. 1 mine of the Ohio Coal company at Jacksonville today and appeared so widespread that a state mine inspector ordered the shaft sealed for from 60 to 90 days. The 300 miners employed in the workings quit work Friday for the Christmas holidays and none was inside.

John Knight, night fireman, discovered the fire when he started the ventilating fans. Andrew Ginnan, state mine inspector, ordered the fans kept in operation to prevent an explosion and directed that the shaft be sealed temporarily.

Dempsey's Former Trainer Divorced, Married Again

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—The American quotes Mrs. Dorothy Hayes today as saying that she has been granted a Mexican divorce from Teddy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey and more recently manager of Lina Basquette of the screen.

The newspaper heard also that Hayes and Miss Basquette were married the day after notification of the divorce was received, which was Dec. 21. Friends of Hayes and the actress said they had received Christmas cards from them signed Mr. and Mrs. Hayes.

Forum Luncheons Mark Social Events Of Week

The Christmas open house when Mrs. P. P. Langford and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Langford honored Junior Forum members, is a memory of silver wreaths, crimson poinsettias, and intriguing snowstorms and pleasant social contact while 150 guests were served with delicious plates by the officers of the junior organization, who assisted Mrs. Langford in the dining room. ◆

The tea dansant of Dec. 26, given at the Forum clubhouse proved one of the most brilliant of these events. Music was furnished by a magnificent orchestra and one of the largest groups of dancers heretofore known took advantage of the weather, the music and the season.

The December luncheon for Junior Forum members is to be held at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Tuesday, Dec. 27, when a program telling of Christmas in other lands will be combined with exquisite musical numbers. Mrs. Temple Shell is in charge of general arrangements and has worked out a program unique in content and in manner of presentation.

Garden Club

An occasion always anticipated by lovers of beauty is the monthly luncheon of the Garden club and many members are looking forward to the meeting Wednesday, when luncheon will be served at the Woman's Forum clubhouse promptly at 12 o'clock.

A particular feature of the program will be a talk by Mrs. Audrey A. Barnard who is making a special study of botany at C. I. A.

One-minute talks on current events concerning flowers will also be made by 10 women.

The tables will as usual be decorated with bowls of blossoms or berries from the members' homes. Mrs. Peyton Gwynn, chairman, will preside during the business session and Mrs. J. C. Mytinger will have charge of the program.

Reservations will be taken by Mesdames Rhea Howard, 6178 or J. A. Riggs, 4593.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

THE RUNABOUT CHILD

"My child was a lovely baby and as good as an angel until the past few months. Now it seems that I can do nothing with him. He delights in breaking things. He pulls the table cover off and laughs to hear the crash. He is as destructive as a plague. I don't know what to do with him any more. I've tried everything, spanking him, putting him in bed, seating him on a chair, all to no good."

Did you give him something to do? Something of his own to be busy with? While a child lies in his crib he gathers some impressions of people and things about him. Those impressions are imperfect. He has not touched and weighed and measured the things in the house. When he finds his feet he is off on a tour of inspection in this perfectly new world. It is a very interesting place. The table has thickness, it stands up and hits you back when you bump your head against it. He didn't know that before. The chairs can be pushed and they can stand on their other parts as well as on their legs. Also they make a loud noise when they go over. That is all new to him. As to their meaning to grownup people he is blissfully ignorant.

We can't have the place wrecked. Furniture and rugs and the little odds and ends that have beauty and meaning to their owners must be safeguarded from this raider. He really does not mean to destroy. He does not know. What he is trying to do is to find out all about these new things. No, he has not seen them all these two years. He was getting ready to see them. It is now when he touches and pushes and pulls and bites into them that he is seeing them. He has to learn all this but we can't afford to have him get his education out of the furniture. We provide other means and save the house.

As soon as a child starts exploring take him on your shoulder and let him look, touch and learn what he can take and what he must let alone. If he has a few such excursions he will not have to go about on his own and his disastrous mistakes will be lessened. Keep taking him about the house until he understands what you mean. Then keep supplying him with things that teach and satisfy. His senses are alert to find what they can gather and as it is upon them he must depend for an important share of his working experience we take care to supply them with material. We take a drawer or a box that the child can reach easily and fill it with odds and ends that interest and amuse him.

Put into it balls of varying material, size and color and use; pieces of cloth, varied in texture and color; blocks that fit into each other, lids that can be taken off and put on boxes; metal odds and ends that give him the feeling of weight and temperature in opposition to those of the cloth; a doll in some attractive dress and that offers activity; a toy animal. Keep sorting over the material and adding and subtracting things as his use of them indicates.

Teach him to use his things for a half-hour every morning, by himself. As he grows older and stronger lengthen the time he spends with his things and make them more useful to him. If he is trained in this way he won't bother the household furnishings so much. And he will grow much faster and with a higher quality of intelligence than if you just keep after him all day saying, "No. Don't touch. Stop that. Leave that alone."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

SHAVER SEES SCHOOL PLIGHT

Fund Shortage Predicted By Educator

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP)—Charles N. Shaver, former state superintendent of schools, declared here today that unless the next legislature made some provision for the expected drop in per capita revenues, some rural schools and independent systems may have to close during the next fiscal year, that teachers' salaries undoubtedly would have to be cut and that it would be difficult to avoid cuts in length of sessions.

Shaver pointed out that the final $3.50 of the $17.50 per capita state contribution for the fiscal year ending last August had been mailed only recently and of the $16 per capita setup for the current school year beginning in September none has been set out yet.

He said a deficit of $5,500,000 appeared in the state's school fund at the end of last year and predicted another equally large for the present year, ending next August.

He predicted that the homestead exemption law would deprive Texas schools of another $3,500,000 for the next fiscal year, when it becomes effective.

Rosa Ponselle to Sing in Parents' Homeland in 1933

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—For the first time in her life next summer Rosa Ponselle will sing in the land from which her parents came—Italy—and if there should be a catch in her golden voice, it will be because:

"Poor mother never lived to hear."

Rosa is native to America, but her parents came from Naples. She reversed the tradition that opera artistes must learn their roles with Italian companies. From the ground up her training has been American and, except for concerts in England, Canada and Cuba, her singing has been confined to America.

Signora Ponzillo, who reared her famous daughter in Meriden, Conn., always wanted to see the day when Rosa would reveal her voice to the music-loving people of her own native land. She died six weeks ago.

The invitation comes from Del Croix, blind and armless director of the Maggio Musicalle Fiorentino, a great music festival in Florence late in April and early in May next year. The diva will sing "La Vestale," which she sang for the Metropolitan Opera company six or seven years ago, and afterwards she will be presented to Mussolini and will sing for the royal family.

She was in rehearsal when she announced her acceptance of the invitation. Yes, it was a great honor, a great honor. To be sure, she was looking forward to it. But her countenance darkened and her voice grew listless.

"Poor mother never lived to hear."

Iron Decree Against Opium in Turkey

ANGORA, Turkey, Dec. 26. (AP)—President Mustapha Kemal was inaugurating today, with "iron" decrees, a new Turkish reform of international importance—severe state control and limitation of narcotic drugs.

The gazi himself presided at a cabinet meeting Christmas day at which it was decided that three recently closed narcotic factories in Istanbul will not be allowed to reopen, that poppy cultivation will be severly limited to meet medicinal opium needs, that Turkey will adhere to the international Hague and Geneva drug traffic accords and that special tribunals will be created to try narcotics smugglers and illegal manufacturers.

The cabinet decree concluded: "Thus we accomplish our most modern and most civilized duty towards the Turkish nation and humanity."

This act of Kemal Pasha and his record for rigid enforcement of his reforms in Turkey make him one of the outstanding leaders in the international anti-narcotics war.

Garner Puzzled Over How He'll Resign From Job

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26. (AP)—Speaker John Nance Garner's brow furrowed a bit today as he wondered "how I'm going to get out of the house of representatives?"

The vice president-elect was also chosen to represent the 15th district of Texas in the 73rd congress at the November election.

"I thought maybe I could resign," he said, "but Attorney General Allred of Texas says there is some doubt whether I can quit an office that I do not occupy as yet. William Tyler Page (former clerk of the house) says he thinks I can but it's a question of interpretation of Texas statutes."

The speaker laughed as he outlined the problem to newspaper men.

"I'm one of the few men trying to get out of office instead of in," he said. "I want my successor elected before March 4. That may solve the problem."

Czar's Former Coachman Jailed For Forgeries

MOSCOW, Dec. 26. (AP)—Nicolai Feodorovitch Trubetskov, 45, former coachman for the late Czar Nicholas, was today in jail here for forging checks.

He was arrested by Moscow detectives, after defalcations in a Moscow sewing trust where he was purchasing agent, were tracked to him.

He was charged with diverting unrevealed amounts of money to his own use by forging the trust's checks.

PITT PUTS IN DAY OF LABOR

Panthers Work Hard For Rose Bowl Game

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 26. (AP)—The Panthers of Pittsburgh university, in search of Rose bowl fame against Southern California Jan. 2, opened their final week of preparation here today with intensive morning and afternoon drills.

The day was one of hard work. It was one of four days which will see Coach Jock Sutherland pushing his charges at top speed before tapering off at the end of the week.

Activities started this morning with a brisk signal drill on the desert near the Panther hotel after a brief respite for observance of Christmas, and closed this afternoon with a workout on defense against Trojan plays.

In excellent spirit after the holiday the players displayed much pep and ginger. Garbed in golf knickers and sweat shirts, they went through practice under Sutherland's exacting eyes.

A repertoire of Warner formations, featuring reverses and a number of new plays were in evidence with Warren Heller and Mike Sebastian, backfield aces, doing most of the ball carrying.

The low punts of Hogan, quarterback, which rolled considerably after hitting the ground, led observers to predict the Panthers were going to combat the Trojans at their own game—quick kicks which proved so disastrous to Notre Dame.

The fleetness of Heller and Sebastian was called into play during the afternoon when they were drilled in stopping the Southern California pass attack.

Sutherland plans to resume the tripto the Pacific coast next Saturday night.

TROJANS APPEAR TO BE IMPROVING

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26. (AP)—University of Southern California's football team returned today from its brief vacation with added tonnage which Coach Howard Jones promptly worked down in an extended drill on defense against Pittsburgh plays.

Coach Jones was pleased to see his players packing more weight, for it diminished worries that the Trojans might be physically stale for the game at Pasadena Jan. 2.

The Panther plays as executed by Southern California's third string eleven failed to get anywhere against the first and second teams. Ernie Smith, trombone tooting tackle, was all over the place. He even intercepted a pass for good measure.

Coach Jones will shift practice to afternoons beginning tomorrow, and contemplates hard chores until Thursday. After that the team will taper off with a light workout in the Rose bowl, Pasadena, Saturday and a good brisk walk Sunday.

The team continued to steer clear of injuries and serious illness, although Smith and George Lady, a sub tackle, had slight colds.

Only one Pitt play seemed to work with any degree of success against the Trojans. It was a quick opening thrust from a single wing-back formation, but after it had clicked three or four times the Southern California stalwarts stopped it cold thereafter.

Lateral passes failed to bother the defense and forward flips were nowhere at all.

Gang Vengeance Blamed In Death Chicago Girl

CHICAGO, Dec. 26. (INS)—Gangland warfare between the Al Capone syndicate and the Roger Touhy mob might have been the background against which is etched the murder of an auburn-haired girl, identified as Gertrude Morrow, 19.

This possibility was explored by authorities in the absence of any definite clews to the identity of the girl's assassin or to the motive for the crime. The known circumstances of the killing tended to point to the assumption that the pretty young woman was done to death for the underworld's usual reason—vengeance.

Slain in typical gangland fashion, the young woman's body, face downward in the mud, was discovered on the roadside 20 miles northwest of Chicago. She had been shot three times, one bullet passing from the back through the front of the head, a second through the temples and the third through the spine.

Young Son Of Old-Time Sox Star May Crowd Fonseca Off First Base

CHICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—A Notre Dame schoolboy's ambition to play first base may end the White Sox managerial career of Lou Fonseca.

Here's the situation:

Fonseca holds a contract to manage the White Sox for a second year in 1933 but he has been informed that his tenure of office depends not only on results with a team reinforced by three former Philadelphia stars but on his ability to play regularly at first base, his old post. If he can't play the position regularly he has been advised that he will be ousted.

Along comes the Notre Dame schoolboy, Billy Sullivan Jr., son of the famous old White Sox star of yesterday and rated as one of the best major league finds in years, with the announcement that he's going after only one position next year—first base. Young, capable and willing, Sullivan is no idle threat. And if he succeeds in forcing the manager to the bench, the pilot's job may fall to Jimmy Dykes, or possibly "Sad Sam" Jones, the pitcher.

As a week-end commuting student player in the spring of 1932 and a full fledged, daily worker in the summer vacation months, Sullivan made a great impression on White Sox fans, playing the infield, catching and first-basing with skill. While hammering out a batting average of .316 in 93 games and 307 times at bat he cracked out 97 hits, 16 of them doubles, for a total of 118 bases. Fonseca, burdened with managerial affairs, batted only .135 in 18 games.

"I played from midseason on with a tumor on my left eye lid," Sullivan explained as he paid a winter visit to the White Sox offices, "so I should hike my average plenty in 1933. Lew may play first base next summer but I'm all set to give him a battle. I don't want to catch."

First base seems to be the only post left open to Fonseca unless injuries should come to change the prospective lineup and young Sullivan is intent on closing that gate.

Babe Writes Her Name On Contracts For Dignified And Lucrative Jobs

CHICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson celebrated Christmas today in announcing she had signed contracts for three ventures in her sudden leap to professionalism.

The one woman track team from Dallas, Texas, is going to make some athletic "shorts" in the movies, do a bit of radio work, and also write for a syndicate.

"So far," her statement said, "I have three jobs—all of them good ones, all of them dignified. 'Endorsing' is not on the list, nor will it be."

Miss Didrikson took her pen in hand to take a parting shot at the national A. A. U., which she said had "bungled" in suspending her in the first place.

"By their belated action in reinstating me," she wrote, "they confessed their realization that they had bungled. I declined to accept the reinstatement, made a few playful and I think justified, comments, on the inordinate length and multiplicity of their rules and regulations. I have never characterized A. A. U. rules as 'ambiguous.' I did say there are a lot of them—this is a fact. Also that the rules book was rather thick, which is a matter of opinion. I was only stating mine.

"If the A. A. U. will permit me, I am doing my best to attend to my own affairs—affairs that have resulted entirely from their own error, and it would make everything so much more pleasant for everyone if they should elect or could be induced to do likewise."

Lawn Tennis Association Elects Midwesterner For 1933 President

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Harry S. Knox of Chicago, first vice president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, today was named by the nominating committee for president in 1933, the first man from the mid-West to be so honored since Dwight W. Davis, donor of the international cup, was selected to the office in 1923.

Knox succeeds Louis W. Carruthers, of New York, president for two years, who declined to be considered for renomination because of the press of business interests.

The nomination is the culmination of a "revolt" by certain eastern elements in the association and the mid-West and far-West organizations against alleged domination by U. S. L. T. A. affairs by the eastern group which has held the presidency and other important offices without a break for nine years. The "revolt" was suppressed last year at the New Orleans meeting but has been gaining headway since.

One concession was made to the "old guard" in the insertion of the name of Holcombe Ward, president of the eastern association, as first vice president ahead of Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City, who was in line for promotion from the second vice presidency he held last year after being elevated from the post of secretary. Ivy was renominated for second vice president.

Lawrence F. Baker of Washington, D. C., the "old guard" nominee of 1932 who defeated one of the insurgents, Paul W. Gibbons of Philadelphia, for the secretaryship last year, was renominated for that post and Walter Merrill Hall, of New York, was renominated as treasurer.

Although there have been upsets at the convention in the slate of nominees, the vote generally follows the list as presented.

Broker's Theft Cases Before Jury Today

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26. (INS)—Indictment of Leslie B. Henry, Pasadena broker and former civic leader, on 16 counts of grand theft and eight counts of forgery, will be asked of the grand jury tomorrow when it opens a sweeping investigation of the financial mixup which resulted in Henry's arrest last week, the district attorney's office said today.

Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, former film star, who asserts she lost between $40,000 and $50,000 through Henry's operation is to be the principal witness. Henry has declared he will refuse to testify.

BALL CLUB TO ALABAMA

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)—After many cold, wet spring seasons at home, announcement has been made that the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern baseball league, will train down on Mobile bay at Mobile, Ala., next spring.

Flabby Old Grads Of Nebraska Play Exciting Contest

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 26. (AP)—The Crimson and Cream trailed in the mud at Nebraska field today but it was all in the family.

For Henry Schulte's, Blues, who won the football game, 7 to 0, were just as authentic Cornhuskers as were Fred Dawson's losing Reds. They all handled the pigskin for Nebraska in the past 15 years or so, and rallied to play just once more today, in the interest of charity.

Five thousand fans, twice as many as expected, chortled at the good plays and razzed the poor ones, with happy impartiality. It was an old home day for players and officials.

While oldsters puffed across the line at grinning mates and realized the handicap of 50 extra pounds, they let a sizzling show his heels for the only score of the game.

Marvin Paul, two years out of school, grabbed the opening kickoff and raced 95 yards down midfield for the touchdown, dodging past Bud McBride. Bill Bronson kicked the extra point. By mistake, 12 Reds instead of 11 were playing at the time of the score.

Then the heavyweights of the line settled down to work and stopped the galloping backs. Among the big boys was Bub Weller, scaling 288 pounds, and Roy Lyman, 256.

Lincoln Junior league officials promoted the event for their baby clinic fund.

Johnny Gilbert Breaks Modern Jockey Records

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 26. (UP)—Johnny Gilbert smashed the modern world jockey record today when he rode three horses to victory at Jefferson park to bring his total score to 208. The previous record of 207 was set in 1927 by Lee Hardy.

Little Johnny won in the third race with Drombo, the fourth with Justina and raced won the home stretch in the sixth to win astride Jack Beiner.

Hank Mills, Gilbert's closest competitor, failed to win today. His score is 194.

EARTH 3,000,000,000 YEARS OLD

TORONTO, Ont. (UP)—It would require quite a number of candles to decorate a birthday cake for mother earth, according to scientists at the University of Toronto who set the earth's age at 3,000,000,000 years.

Football Surgeons Open Annual Clinic To Discuss Game Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Confronted by no such pressing problems as beset them last year, when the football death toll brought on a public demand for a change in the rules, college coaches and athletic directors tomorrow open their annual four-day clinic on the 1932 gridiron campaign.

Election of a successor to the late Edward K. Hall as chairman of the football rules committee appears the only important problem waiting the annual gathering of the coaches and the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Although the deaths from football in the season now drawing to a close have been only seven less than the 50 recorded in 1931 the new rules adopted last year are generally conceded to have made the game less hazardous and have met with general approval.

There may be some brisk skirmishing over the "dead ball" rule, which automatically stopped the play when any part of the carrier's body except his hands or feet touched the ground, but even that provision has many staunch supporters and the rules committee is expected to be given a mandate to let the rules alone for a year.

Several persons long closely connected with football and with Hall have been mentioned as his successor with William S. Langford, for 25 years secretary of the committee, most prominently named. Walter Okeson, commissioner of eastern officials, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, retiring coach of football at Chicago university, also have been mentioned as possible chairmen.

In addition to the coaches association, which meets tomorrow and Wednesday and the N. C. A. A., which holds its sessions Thursday and Friday, the track coaches also will meet here Wednesday and the sport brotherhood will hold its annual luncheon tomorrow with Stagg as the honored guest.

Among those scheduled to address the coaches tomorrow are Floyd Eastwood of New York university, who will report on football injuries and fatalities, Gil Dobie, Cornell coach, and Lou Little, head mentor at Columbia, Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, retiring coach at West Point, Adam Walsh, assistant coach at Yale and Dr. Eddie O'Brien, noted eastern referee.

The meeting will continue through Wednesday with the annual banquet and "brawn derby" story telling contest that might. By that time, too, the coaches will have drafted some member as president to succeed Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, retiring Yale head coach. Stevens is the fifth coach to lose his job while holding the presidency and the feeling is growing that the office is a jinx.

FRANK O'DOUL BAT CHAMPION

Brooklyn Slugger Hangs Up Highest Average

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—In confirmation of a fact which every baseball fan knew three months ago, Frank J. O'Doul, Brooklyn's star left-handed slugger, today was officially pronounced batting champion of the National league for the 1932 season but a closer scrutiny of the list shows Chuck Klein of the Phillies walking off with the all-round laurels.

Leader in three hitting departments, and champion base thief of the circuit, Klein also was third in batting, tied for home run honors in the circuit, Klein also was third in triples and a smart fielding player.

Chuck scored 152 runs, only six below his own league record, hit safely 226 times, leading Bill Terry Giants' manager, by one blow, and his hits went for 420 bases. He hit 50 doubles and 15 triples and stole 20 bases, two more than Frank Frisch and George Watkins of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Virtual Tie

"In contrast to the 1931 campaign when Chick Hafey, Terry and Jim Bottomley finished in a virtual tie for the leadership with averages of .345, separated only by fractions, O'Doul left no doubt about his 1932 superiority. His mark of 148 games was .368, 20 above last year's winning percentage and 18 ahead of the nearest regular, Terry.

The list of leaders gave an outstanding example of the consistency of the star hitters as the four for 1932 all were among the first five for 1931 with only Bottomley dropping back and all the first 10 were listed among the league's regular .300 hitters.

Klein was only two points behind Terry at .348 followed by Hafey, playing with Cincinnati, at .344; Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, .341; Don Hurst, Philadelphia, .339; Ernie Orsatti, St. Louis, .3360; Virgil Davis, Philadelphia, .3358; Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh, .333, and Harold "Pie" Traynor, Pittsburgh, .329.

Few Records Fall

Only a few hitting records fell before the bats of the National leaguers, playing for the second year with the deadened ball, although Klein's great performance threatened several others that he set two years before. Paul Waner walloped 62 doubles, surpassing by three the National league mark Klein established in 1930, but five short of the major league record of 67 set by Earl Webb of the Red Sox in 1931. In the course of making his doubles record Waner tied another by hitting four two-baggers in one game.

Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn doubled the old record for hitting home runs as a pinch hitter when he came through with the perfect blow six times during the season. Hamilton Hyatt of Pittsburgh in 1913, Fred Williams of Philadelphia in 1928, and Cliff Crawford of New York in 1927 were the ones to hit three pinch homers.

Terry hit six home runs in four days during an early season burst to tie a major league mark held by Klein, Babe Ruth and Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns. A minus record was made by the Giants, who hit only 49 sacrifices during the season for a new low.

Of the other miscellaneous hitting records, Floyd (Babe) Herman, then of Cincinnati, walloped 19 triples for first place, O'Doul hit 158 singles for top ranking in that department, Hughey Critz of the Giants appeared at bat the most times, 656, and Dick Bartell of the Phillipies sacrificed 35 times.

Nick Dobbs' Rangers Whip Texarkana, 44-14

TEXARKANA, Ark., Dec. 26. (AP)—Nick Dobb's rangers of Dallas overwhelmed the Texarkana Junior college football team, 44-14, here today. Lon Byrd and Jodie White were outstanding for the winners and Arthur Kackley and Bob Jordan for Texarkana.

UNLUCKY SLIP

CINCINNATI.—Michael L. Hirsh had to stand helplessly by and see an engine demolish his automobile recently. Hirsh had tried to turn around on a road next to the tracks when his car slipped and mired in the mud with the front wheels over the tracks. The six other occupants of the car got out and tried to move the car but to no avail. Hirsh and his companions stood back as an engine approached and smashed the car to bits.

HE TEMPTS FATE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—One can hardly expect not to be robbed if he tempts thieves the way Ted Brown did in a hotel the other day. Brown went to bed and left his key on the outside of the door. When he awoke the following morning he found a sneak thief had been unable to pass up such an easy mark and had robbed him of $90.

Livestock

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

(AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Fed steers and yearlings of light weight sold at about steady levels with some sales as much as 35c higher while kinds with weight found a rather slow outlet at steady to 1 cent lower prices. Chicago secured $7.25 on 1,134-pound steers while top medium weights made $6.60 and best heavy steers turned at $6. A few other loads of better grade around the circuit cleared at $6.00@6.50 but the general bulk of offerings were of quality to sell around $3.75@5.25. Stockers and feeders were scarce with prices little changed from prices late last week. A few sales were reported in a speed of $3.25@4.50 with choice feeders up to $5.25. Several markets were closed today in observance of the Christmas holiday. Receipts totaled 22,000 as compared with 36,867 last Monday and 48,693 the same day a year ago.

As compared with Friday's average loads, hogs sold at steady to 10 higher levels, St. Louis reporting a top of $3.65 on choice light weight butchers.

the Corsicana wings with his snake-like end runs, nor could he penetrate the Corsicana front wall with his direct smashing. Newsome was the best ball lugger on the field for the Masons. Several times he carried the ball for substantial gains, but never close enough to give the Masons a serious touchdown threat.

McCall Fumbles

Corsicana gained penetrations in the second period when Finley plunged to the 29-yard line, and when McCall fumbled and allowed Westbrook to recover on the Masons' 18-yard line. The third penetration occurred in the third period when Bowlin swept through on a smash at center to the Masons' 18-yard line. Two more penetrations were scored in the fourth period, once when Green plowed to the Masons' five-yard line, and again Finley intercepted McCall's pass and drove his way through a broken field to the Masons' 15-yard line.

Corsicana passed up several opportunities to score touchdowns. When the game terminated, Corsicana was on the Masons' 1-foot line with one down to go for a touchdown.

The stout line defense that Corsicana uncovered was the outstanding feature of the game. Coach Pierce's boys on the forward wall charged hard and were alert to all the trick formations that the Masons uncovered.

After three years of trying, the Corsicana Tigers are now state champions. They suffered semi-final elimination in 1930 and 1931.

First Period

McCall kicked off for Masonic home to Bowlin, who returned to his 27-yard line. After two downs, Finley quick kicked out of bounds on the Masons' 25-yard line. Stages punted to Bowlin, who returned to his 28-yard line. The Masons again held and Finley punted out on the Masons' 13-yard stripe.

On the second down, Newsome fumbled and Green recovered on the Masons' 24-yard line. Corsicana lost the ball on the Masons' 29-yard line when Corsicana failed to gain on the plunges and two incomplete passes.

A 23-yard end run by Newsome and a 15-yard penalty moved the ball to Corsicana's 40-yard line. Roberts and Newsome plunged the ball for a first down on the Tigers' 20-yard line. Murphy intercepted a pass on Corsicana's 4-yard line to stop a scoring threat. Finley punted to Thorpe on Corsicana's 34-yard line. Unable to gain in three smacks at the line, McCall punted out on Corsicana's 18-yard line.

End of period—Masonic Home 0; Corsicana 0.

Second Period

This period opened with an exchange of punts. Finley got away a long one that drove the Masons to their 7-yard line. A plunge by McCall and two runs by Newsome gave the Masons first down on their 17-yard line. Newsome plunged for a first down on the Masons' 30-yard line. The Masons' aerial attack failed. Stages punted to midfield.

On a long punt, Thorpe received and fumbled. Finley recovered the ball for Corsicana on the Masons' 34-yard line. A flat zone pass from Finley to Green sent the ball to the Masons' 22-yard line for a first down. Finley plunged to the Masons' 19-yard line. Corsicana then lost the ball on three incomplete passes.

McCall fumbled and Westbrook recovered for Corsicana on the Masons' 18-yard line. Finley plunged for 5 yards. Corsicana tried three incomplete passes.

At this stage of the game, the players were called off the field by their coaches while policemen tried to move back the huge crowd that swarmed on the field and prevented their playing. After a 40-minute delay the field was cleared and the game resumed.

Stages punted to Bowlin on Corsicana's 47-yard line. A pass from Green to Rector moved the ball to the Masons' 30-yard line. Kessinger tried a field goal from the 38-yard line. It was short, giving the Masons the ball on their 20-yard line.

End of half—Masonic Home 0; Corsicana 0.

Third Period

Kessinger kicked off for Corsicana to Roberts, who returned to the Masons' 24-yard line. After an exchange of punts the Masons, with McCall and Newsome carrying the ball, plunged to a first down on their 34-yard line. Bowlin intercepted McCall's pass and raced to the Masons' 39-yard line. Two plunges by Finley and an end run by Green swept Corsicans to a first down on the Masons' 21-yard line. Bowlin plunged to the 16-yard line. Green picked up a yard on the second down, and then was tackled by Roberts for a 5-yard loss. Kessinger tried a field goal from the 24-yard line. It was blocked by White and McClure recovered for the Masons on their 13-yard line.

Stages punted out of bounds on the Masons' 43-yard line. Roberts intercepted Finley's pass on the Masons' 38-yard line. McCall fumbled and Cole recovered on the Masons' 30-yard line. Bowlin and Green lost 5 yards in two end runs. Finley punted out on the Masons' 12-yard line. Stages' pass was intercepted by Green on the Masons' 43-yard line. A pass from Finley to Bowlin sent the ball to the Masons' 23-yard line. McCall intercepted Finley's pass on the Masons' 20-yard line. McCall punted to the Corsicana 43-yard line. A 45-yard pass from Bowlin to Cole sent the ball to the Masons' 8-yard line, where he was run out of bounds by Thorpe. End of period—Masonic Home 0, Corsicana 0.

Fourth Period

On a lateral pass and plunge, Green went to the Masons' 6-yard line. Bowlin failed to gain. Kessinger tried a field goal from the 15-yard line. Stages and Finley engaged in a punting duel with honors even. At this stage, Corsicana was leading on 20-yard penetrations, four to none, and in this game, 20-yard pentrations counted in case of a scoreless tie. The teams continued their exchange of punts. Corsicana finally gained the ball in midfield. Stages then punted to drive the Masons to their 14-yard line. Finley intercepted McCall's pass and drove his way back to the Masons' 15-yard line. It was the fifth 20-yard penetration for Corsicana. Finley plunged to the 5-yard line. Green and Finley failed to gain. Finley moved the ball on the goal line, as the game ended. Masonic Home 0, Corsicana 0. Corsicana won the state championship on 20-yard penetrations, 5-0.

Negro Boy, Hit By Truck, Slightly Hurt

Grady Scott Jr., 9-year-old negro, 1504 Polk, suffered a painful laceration above his right eye and numerous body bruises at 6:45 o'clock Monday night when he ran in front of a truck near the intersection of Polk and Avenue F. Ben Conant, employe of Frost's dairy on the Windthorst road, carried the negro to the Wichita General hospital. He told police investigators he had slowed down for the boy to run in front of him and behind a parked car. Without slowing his pace the negro continued around the parked automobile and back into the truck's path.

THE IDEAL BANDIT

TACOMA, Wash.—From the victim's point of view, George Lagerquist, store proprietor, was held up by an ideal bandit. Just after Lagerquist had closed his store at 11 o'clock one night a youth knocked at the door and, when admitted, asked what time it was, and then drew a gun. When Lagerquist turned to the cash register to give up the money, as commanded, the nervous bandit turned and fled from the store.

Prison Team And Semi-Pro Eleven Play Scoreless And Clean Game

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 26. (AP)—Members of the Stateville penitentiary gridiron team, out to satisfy some suppressed desires, eased the spirit of wanderlust but slightly today in a gridiron battle with a Cabery, Ill., semipro eleven.

The game ended in a scoreless tie, nature taking most of the victory. The battle began in the forenoon on the gridiron behind the prison walls on a field that resembled a skating pond, until the sun got in its work, when it became a quagmire.

Virtually the entire prison population of 3,000 formed a drab rooting section, cheering lustily, but without rhythm for the prison's selected squad against the men from the outside world. Some of the "spectators" squatted in Stateville stadium, but most of them hugged the sidelines along a barbed wire enclosure.

In approved collegiate style, the Stateville band paraded before the game.

The Stateville gridders carried the game to their opponents in the first half, but thereafter, all was Cabery.

Marty Durkin, Chicagoan with the reputation of a killer, failed to perform at his teammates and the rooting section hoped he would. He lasted just three minutes as a guard, when Quarterback-Coach Lynch sent him to the sidelines.

The game was remarkably clean. There were only two penalties for unnecessary roughness, one levied against each team. Doyle, lineman for Stateville, was carried off the field after a pile-up. On the next play, the convicts drew a penalty. Camaradeire ruled, the players wiped opponent's faces and helped pull them from the mud.

The rooting section usually voiced dissatisfaction with a bellowed "put 'em in the hole." The "hole" is solitary confinement.

L. E. Ross, director of penitentiary athletics, issued the following statement after the game:

"On a dry field, we would have beaten them."

Manager Miller of Cabery issued the following post-game statement:

"On a dry field we would have beaten them."

DOG STAR OF MOVIES HERE

Rinlo Gives Exhibition For News Workers

A veteran Hollywood movie star arrived in Wichita Falls Monday in the person of Rinlo, Russian shepherd dog. Rinlo has the ability to fit into most any role desired by movie directors—a fact he demonstrated in the Times building lobby Monday afternoon.

Rinlo walks upstairs backwards, poses as Greta Garbo in a green hat, kneels in prayer, sheds crocodile tears, and puts on many other stunts at a low spoken command or signal from his master. Vern C. Browning of Los Angeles, Mr. Browning declared that kindness is the key to Rinlo's training and since the 4-year-old dog was a 3-month-old pup he has been a constant companion to his master. No one else can feed him.

Rinlo will be introduced to children of Wichita Falls—and their parents, too—Saturday morning from the stage of the Majestic theater at the 9:30 o'clock meeting of the Mickey Mouse club.

Rinlo closed his act for The Record News and Times staff Monday in a "crazy" stunt, grabbing his tail and "taking it to Mr. Browning" to tell his master he was hungry. The dog has taken many heavy roles in the movies, with Billy Dove in "Loyalty," and other features and has played second for Rin Tin Tin in the Hollywood production lots.

Latest Tricks Of Showmanship In Rockefeller Center's Theaters

Two giant theaters in Rockefeller Center, New York's city within a city, embody many innovations in the mechanics of entertainment. At the top is the auditorium of Radio City Music hall, seating 6,200. At the left is an exterior view of the building housing the hall, Sixth avenue and Fiftieth street, New York. At the right is a view of the main lounge. The RKO-Roxy, with about half the seating capacity, follows the same basic design.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Multiplied innovations in theater construction appear in the new RKO-Roxy and the Radio City Music hall, entertainment centers of New York's city within a city—Rockefeller Center.

The two theaters, following the basic design of S. L. Rothafel—better known as Roxy, the motion picture showman—together with the 70-story skyscraper that is to be the new home of the National Broadcasting company, comprise that section of the enterprise to be known as Radio City.

Basically the two theaters are counterparts one of the other, except for size. The music hall has 6,200 seats to base the claim that it is the world's largest enclosed theater, while the new Roxy has 3,700.

Yet, despite the essential similarity, the two are very different in general appearance.

The center of each stage is a three-section elevator which can be moved as a unit of seperately. A revolving stage is provided.

The orchestra pit has two platforms, one which can be elevated as an extension of the front of the stage, the other moving onto the stage under its own power, if desired.

On either side of each main stage are small "encore" stages together with recesses for the two consoles connected to individual organs.

Push button control operates the curtains, individual motors allowing the main curtain to be taken up in sections to suit various types of programs.

There are loudspeakers in the dressing rooms, transformed instantly into a call system for the stage manager, and a public address system makes stage voices audible anywhere in the large auditoriums.

Elevators eliminate stair-climbing by the performers—there's even a dormitory for their comfort.

The music hall, which opens Dec. 27, is to offer vaudeville, while the new Roxy, designed for stage and screen productions will have its premiere Dec. 29.

PSYCHIC SEES BETTER TIMES

Mme. Holton Answers Many Business Questions

Better times are in store for many Wichitans during 1933, according to a review of answers on business conditions given by Madame Nell Holton, famous psychic, through The Record News.

While not all those who have written Madame Holton on the business outlook have received encouraging replies, a great majority of them have been told an improvement can be seen. Generally better conditions for the town as well as individuals seem apparent, according to Madame Holton.

The noted psychic is appearing at the Majestic theater with Princess Pat Holton, baby mental marvel. She will answer questions of Record News readers, so far as space permits, for the remainder of her stay in Wichita Falls. Madame Holton will close her appearance with a matinee for ladies Friday morning.

Here are today's questions and answers:

I. B.—Is my sister going to move back here again?

Answer—I do not see she will move back here for some time. Should later.

G. E. W.—Will I get the insurance money soon?

Answer—Not for some time. There may be some delay.

M. H.—When will times be better for me.

Answer—Conditions should improve for you within three more months. You should make a change in 1933, and would do well facing the public.

A. D.—Does my boy friend care for me and will we get along?

Answer—Yes, he cares for you to a certain extent, and you should both get along nicely, though may never marry.

L. Y.—How soon will I get married?

Answer—You should marry in or before 1934.

T. J. D.—Should I buy the business I now manage or rent it again?

Answer—You should do well to buy it, though would tie you down so much. However, if you can get it reasonable and you feel you care to stay here, then it would be best to buy. Otherwise, I advise you to just continue to rent.

M. L. G.—Will my husband sell his contract with the cement company this year?

Answer—Looks like he will sell, though possibly not until 1934.

H. B.—Will I get steady work as to what I have in mind this year?

Answer—I get the impression you will, though maybe not for a few months?

E. M. P.—Will I get out of debt next year?

Answer—I get the impression you will be out of debt after September, 1933.

B. B. L.—Am I going to make up with my former husband and when?

Answer—Yes, I see you will. But remember you are married to another now, so be careful of the future. I advise you to come to the ladies matinee next Friday at 10 o'clock, and let me advise you upon this matter when only ladies are present.

Mrs. W. R. C.—Should we stay here, or will we move? If so, where?

Answer—I get the impression you would do best to stay in your present location for some time. Although you should do well in or near San Antonio, should you move there.

W. R. K.—Will we marry the women, and will we be happy if we do?

Answer—Yes, I get it that you will marry in 1933, and be happy.

B. W.—Will I ever marry again, if so, when?

Answer—Looks to me like another marriage for you in 1934.

Mrs. E. L. W.—When will my husband get a steady position, and will he get the one he has in mind?

Answer—I get the impression he will get it later on. However, it seems he is not going to get it until he works for a while at a different kind of work.

M. V. K.—Will I ever have a boy, and if so, when?

Answer—It seems you will within a matter of months only.

H. B.—Will I make good in writing stories and plays?

Answer—Yes, you are adapted to such work, and should do well.

D. L. D.—Does my husband love me, and should I stay with him, or should I go to my children in the valley?

Answer—He seems to think quite a bit of you, although it looks like you do not always get along. I advise you to try and get along with your husband and I see you will see your children later.

E. L.—Will I have a better position by the first of the year?

Answer—Cannot see a better position for you by that time but can see a change for the better in 1933.

B. R. S.—Are my suspects right?

Answer — Your suspects are wrong. Your husband is true to you. You should come to the ladies matinee Friday morning at 10 and I will answer your other personal question from the stage.

G. C. B.—Will we live here long?

Answer—Cannot see a move for you for some time. You should have success here.

I. M. M.—Please tell me if I am going to move before spring.

Answer—You are going to make a change in location before then.

Mrs. E. B.—Please tell me if I will make a success in becoming a nurse.

Answer—Yes, and very good success. I see you training soon.

E. R. D.—Is my son going to study the bar? Will he be successful?

Answer—I get the impression he will and success is shown.

S. O. E.—Dear Madame Holton: You answered a question for me over a rado in California, two years ago, and it came true. I wonder whether or not my husband will come back to me? We are parted now.

Answer—The impression comes to me that you two will reunite and will be happy. This should take place in the next February.

I. F. E.—Will W. P. ever confess the truth, and is it for the best?

Answer—Yes. I see W. P. is going to tell the truth, which I advise.

S. R. T.—Dear Madame Holton: Please tell me if my husband will get work? Is it best for us to remain in Wichita Falls?

Answer—I advise you to say. It comes to me he will soon have temporary work. And in June will go to El Paso, get work and send for you soon after. Do not worry so much.

R. E. P.—Am I going to raise the money to get to go to college?

Answer—You will raise some. And why not work to pay part of your college expenses? I see you will have a chance to do so.

HOLIDAY TOLL MOUNTS TO 311

Texas Fatalities Number 17 Over Week-End

shot near Lubbock with rifle given a companion as a Christmas present.

Pete McKay, 35, was stabbed to death at a dance hall at Garden Valley in Smith county; Marion Gomez, 25, was killed in a fight at Port Aransas and Charles Beard, 67, died near Goose creek when a tent in which he was sleeping caught fire.

(By The Associated Press)

The comberness of tragedy was threaded through the cheeriness of the extra-day long celebration of the Christmas.

With the holiday falling on Sunday, the nation generally observed Monday also and the added day of leisure sent thousands to the highways for visits with the accompaniment of numerous motor and crossing fatalities.

A survey by the Associated Press last night put the total death list for the three-day period at upward of 311 with traffic casualties predominating as the leading cause. Michigan and California led among the states in the number of automobile deaths.

The holiday was turned into a day of mourning at Moweaqua, Ill., where a mine explosion imprisoned 54 coal diggers Saturday. After recovery of 12 bodies Sunday, the rescue squads Monday reported finding 27 more bodies in the pit. The East had two mine fatalities in the Pennsylvania-Delaware territory.

Shootings and Stabbings

Poison liquor, brawls involving shootings and stabbings, train mishaps, drownings, fires, and other causes swelled the mounting figure. Many of the deaths were not connected in any way with the Christmas celebration but might have happened on any ordinary day of the year. Despondency led to several suicides on the day of general happiness.

In Newport, Ark., authorities said the Walter Ballew family of five, including three children, died from eating Christmas cake in which the mother by mistake used some poison which had been kept about the place to combat cotton insects.

Of the total auto deaths of 169 for the country, California reported 20 and Michigan 12. There were 300 persons injured in traffic crashes in the Pacific coast state and 175 more in Michigan.

Three poison liquor deaths occurred in New York and one in Wyoming. In the western state three persons also were seriously ill from the same cause.

Miscellaneous accidents and tragedies accounted for 83 deaths. Four died in week-end shootings in Kentucky, one man in a quarrel over a quart of whisky. Texas had nine deaths from shootings and stabbings.

Florida had the lone aviation fatality, a parachute failing to open.

She left Philadelphia, Dec. 10. The woman was killed when she apparently stepped in the path of a car driven by Marvin Tidwell, of Wilderado, near midnight. A coroner held the accident unavoidable.

She leaves a son, Francis Sterling, of Philadelphia.

Gunmen Crack Windows Of Chain Restaurants

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Windows of 14 chain restaurants in Manhattan and Brooklyn were punctured today by rifle bullets, fired, said police, by a gang of marauding racketeers in an automobile.

Although sveral of the places in mid-town Manhattan were occupied by patrons at the time, no one was injured. Police said the gun apparently was aimed high to avoid inflicting injury. Many of the other restaurants located in business sections were closed for the holiday. Police turned to labor troubles as the most likely theory for the shootings.
