Hearing will quiz 'voluntary nature' of crime statement

A pre-trial hearing on the "voluntariness" of a statement given by capital murder defendant Dorsie Lee Johnson of Colorado City will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday in 132nd District Court.

The 19-year-old Johnson and a companion — Amanda Lynn Miles, 19, both of Colorado City — now stand charged with the murder of a Snyder convenience store clerk during a robbery attempt here March 23.

A similar hearing on a statement given police by Miles is scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday.

In a related matter, the attorney representing Johnson has filed a motion for change of venue on his behalf. This motion is to be heard in October.

At issue in the hearing Wednesday is the conduct of criminal investigators who took the statement from Johnson and the circumstances surrounding the giving of the statement.

Testimony from law enforcment officers involved in Johnson's arrest and interrogation is expected during the hearing.

Defense attorney Frank Conard of Sweetwater and District Attorney Ernie Armstrong will be questioning witnesses regarding the Arab caught

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An Arab with a pistol took over the Italian consulate today and held the consul and three co-workers hostage for two hours before surrendering to Egyptian commandos.

The man left the downtown consulate building surrounded by several armed Egyptian soldiers. He was put into an armored car and driven away.

One of the commandos, who refused to give his name, said, "We didn't have to overpower him. He just gave himself up."

There apparently were no shots fired in the 1 p.m. takeover and no indication that Consul Francesco Ercolano or his colleagues were injured.

Local

Grid contest

Week one of the SDN football contest turned out to be a close one with three people in the running for first place with only one incorrect pick.

With the use of the tie breaker, Scott Edwards of 217 34th St. became the year's first winner. Second place went to Mike Wineteer of 419½ 36th Place. First prize is $12.50 and second prize is $5.

A new contest will begin in this issue and entries will be accepted until noon Friday.

Ladder appeal

Hearings for two teachers questioning their not being chosen for career ladder status are scheduled as part of the Snyder school board meeting Tuesday.

The hearings are to be in closed session unless specifically requested for open session by the teachers involved, according to school officials.

Also expected to be present Tuesday is a paralegal counsel provided through the Texas State Teachers Association.

"TSTA concerns" is listed also for a possible hearing before the board.

Bullock revises revenue estimate

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said today although the Texas economy shows no significant signs of an upturn, the state's projected budget deficit is not as bad as he predicted in July.

Bullock in July projected a $3.5 billion reduction in all funds for 1986-87 and a $2.9 billion shortfall in major funds. Today, he revised those figures to $2.8 billion and $2.3 billion respectively.

"Since our last official estimate, the Legislature, in special session, has made some budget cuts and resolved a number of pending issues which have lowered the July shortfall estimate," Bullock said in a statement.

Also, he said, Attorney General Jim Mattox had assured him that the state will not — as anticipated in July — have to refund $100 million in contested franchise tax payments during 1987.

White to take blame

AUSTIN (AP) — Renewing his call for a tax increase, Gov. Mark White is telling lawmakers he will take the political flak if they approve his plan.

"To those who try to blame you for what we do here, tell them we had to do it. Blame me," White said as he opened the second budget-balancing special session Monday.

"I'll defend it. I'll explain it," he said.

The governor said his proposal for a one-year, 1⅛-cent sales tax increase is as necessary now as when lawmakers gathered for their first 30-day session on Aug. 6.

With the November election less than two months away, White acknowledged there could be fallout. But he predicted that the majority of Texans would applaud the courage of those who support higher taxes.

"I know what I am asking of you when I call for a temporary tax increase. I know it's a difficult choice," said White, who faces former Republican Gov. Bill Clements in his own re-election race.

Texans who value good schools, good roads and higher education will be among those praising lawmakers, White said.

"We're going to be criticized by some who have no vision, or by those who put politics above the fiscal integrity of our state. We need a temporary tax increase to save education and build our future," he said.

White's program remains unchanged, calling for spending cuts first, then the increase in the sales tax from 4⅛ cents to 5¼ cents for a year.

But White said spending cuts alone won't erase the state budget deficit, which Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated at more than $3 billion.

ISD bids detection of drugs

Bids from three companies which offer "drug deterrant" programs for school systems will be considered Tuesday by Snyder school board members.

For monthly fees ranging from some $940 to $1,800, the companies will implement steps to detect illegal drugs on school campuses.

The bid items are part of the board's regular September agenda. Tuesday's meeting is to begin at 7 p.m. at the school administration building.

The agenda includes formal acceptance of the resignation of trustee Mike Reed, who has earlier indicated to the board his intent to move from Snyder after enrolling in law school at Texas Tech this fall.

Under bid items, the board will consider also estimates for a computer assisted instruction Microhost system.

This will be a 20-terminal system to be installed at Snyder High School. It is to be used primarily by students needing remedial work in mathematics and English language arts.

Funds for the system will come from Chapter 1 funding granted the school district as part of a three-year plan.

As part of an ongoing school policy update–designed to bring local policy within new state guidelines–the board will consider also changes related to employee grievances and career ladder appraisals.

Regarding grievances, the new policy will allow for these to be aired before the board monthly without previously being listed on the agenda once the employee has gone through the chain of command of first meeting with

Bank bid, speed on Houston 'changed'

"Changes" were implemented by the Snyder city council Monday to include a switch for the city's bank depository as well as a "changed" speed limit for the recently completed Houston Parkway.

Following nearly 30 minutes of discussion, city councilmen unanimously chose West Texas State Bank as the city's depository for the fiscal year. For the past several years, Snyder National Bank has handled the city's monies.

The council's decision was based on what they foresee as a higher interest rate for city money on deposit in excess of $100,000.

On certificates of deposit over $100,000 maturing in 180 days, WTSB offered 1½ percent interest above the current market value of the federal treasury bill (T-bill).

Snyder National bid a flat rate of 6 percent interest for such funds and American State Bank bid a rate of ½ percent tied to the T-bill rate.

Regarding the Houston Parkway change, council members raised the speed limit from 30 to 45 mph for the stretch reaching from the Big Spring Hwy. to the curve just south of the 48th St. intersection.

Motorists have been held to the 30 mph limit on Houston since the street opened early this summer. Eight citizens made the request in letters submitted to council members.

Councilmen also re-evaluated the stop signs at Houston and 48th St. at the residents' request. The council noted, however, that the signs need to remain in order to "slow traffic into the residential area."

The council also considered employee health insurance plans and opted to renew the current policy with G.I.C. although this means the city will pay an additional $13,000 in insurance premiums.

Last year, the city spent some $57,117 for employee health and hospitalization plans. The figure will jump to some $70,422 this year.

"Major companies usually won't bid because there is no loyalty. They usually refuse to bid unless a municipality stays

Self-study design hopes to pinpoint WTC's uniqueness

A self-study now underway at Western Texas College will serve to identify the long range "vision" of the school, promised the staffer responsible for its completion Monday.

Associate Professor Richard Lancaster told the WTC board the study would serve to "determine what makes WTC unique." And accomplishing this, Lancaster said he hopes to use these findings "to make it work for us."

The hopeful report was greeted enthusiastically by the board, meeting for its regular September session. Bob Hargrove, WTC trustee, cited the "extra effort" which has already gone into the planning.

Lancaster noted this will be the second self-evaluation conducted on campus, part of requirements for accreditation through the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Such studies are required every 10 years. But in addition to the requirements for certification, Lancaster referred repeatedly to what he called the "allied purpose" of the study.

He pointed to plans for followup activities after the visit by Southern Association officials, expected in the spring of 1988.

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are three proven rules for good teeth. Brush after each meal, see your dentist twice a year, and mind your own business."

With Lake J.B. Thomas benefiting from the recent rains, one of Snyder's most disrespected fishermen decided it was time to improve his image.

Bill Atwood, owner of Atwood Construction, went to Lake Thomas last week and hauled in a nice string of catfish–the largest weighing in excess of eight pounds.

Atwood was fishing with Bill Kirkpatrick of Midwest Vacuum Trucking. It was serious business for Atwood who took a Polaroid camera so that Kirkpatrick could shoot a picture of Atwood with his string.

On the way to the coffee shop to show off his catch, Atwood dropped by the SDN office. "I want everybody–especially Mickey Nunley–to see this. Nunley thinks he's the only guy in the world who knows how to catch a fish."

At the coffee shop, the photographs and the testimony of Kirkpatrick failed to earn Atwood respect as a fisherman. Even the preacher asked Bill where he had bought 'em.

A new teacher at Snyder High School was red-faced, but SDN staffer Vicki Brown came back beaming from her assignment.

Brown, wife of Ave. D Baptist Church minister Calvin Brown, was on assignment last week at the high school when the amusing incident occurred.

Apparently, high school administrators had admonished teachers to keep the hallways clear–that students should be in classes.

Brown was on the second floor of the high school when she heard a voice from the other end of the hallway. Unaware that the teacher was talking to her, Brown turned the corner and continued on down the hallway.

The teacher, determined to follow instructions, chased Brown down and demanded that she get out of the hall and into class.

It was then that Brown explained that she was not a student, but a newspaper staffer. Like any woman, Brown explained to the embarrassed teacher that she, however, appreciated the compliment.

Seven convicted in drug case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Seven South Texas men were convicted of federal racketeering conspiracy charges stemming from a drug trafficking investigation known as "Cash Crop," in which prosecutors contended 250,000 pounds of marijuana were smuggled into Texas from Mexico from 1980 to 1985.

Seven others were convicted only of conspiracy charges and seven were acquitted of all charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Lewis of Houston said the jury on Monday convicted the defendants he considered to be at the core of the case.

Those convicted of conspiracy to operate a criminal enterprise included Jesus Carillo Barraza, 40, of San Antonio; Sam Barnett, 34, and Julian Vera, 38, both of Edinburg; Jose Luis Cantu, 37, of McAllen; and Milton Jones, 38, and Juan A. Rodriguez, 36, both of Humble.

Barraza was convicted of six drug-related charges, including the federal "RICO" charge of operating a racketeering conspiracy. The other five were convicted of the RICO charge and two conspiracy counts.

Also convicted of the federal RICO violation and two conspiracy charges was Delfino Chavira, 30, of Edinburg.

Juan Frank Garcia, the government's top target, eluded trial by going into hiding. His brother, Santos Garcia, 36, of Alamo, was acquitted on the RICO charge but was found guilty on one conspiracy charge.

U.S. Attorney Helen Eversberg said she considered the complicated, four-month trial a plus for the government in its war against drugs despite the fact that seven of 21 defendants were acquitted of all charges.

Prosecutors contended the defendants smuggled the drugs into the country from 1980 to 1985.

A complete price tag for the trial was not available Monday, but the total for jury fees and expenses alone total $38,553.

The jury in U.S. District Judge Ed Prado's court must still decide whether an estimated $250,000 worth of property the government claims was bought with drug money should be forfeited.

Lewis led the prosecution as an appointee of the Organized Crime Task Force Program created by President Reagan.

Those convicted of conspiracy counts only were Johnny Aguilar, 33, and Saul Muniz, 31, both of McAllen; Gilberto Cantu, 41, of Edinburg; Anselmo Hernandez, 41, and Carlos Losoya, 29, both of Pharr; and Robert Pruitt, 31, of Schertz.

Amanda Rivera of San Antonio was found innocent of one count of the RICO charge and two counts of conspiracy.

Birthday bash for 'Star Trek' draws 1,500 to movie set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty years after "a western, but with space ships" took a generation of Americans boldly to where no man had gone, the "Star Trek" crew is seeking out new worlds of popularity.

About 1,500 people turned out Monday to celebrate the 20th birhday of the space saga with Capt. James T. Kirk, Mr. Spock and the crew of the Starship Enterprise.

As waiters in "Star Trek" uniforms circulated, guests took turns posing for photos in the chair from which Kirk directed battles with the evil Klingon Empire and dictated his captain's log.

They shared a cake in the form of the starship that served as setting for the television series and the three movies that have followed.

Invited to the bash were the original cast, every guest star who has ever appeared on the TV series or the movies, all the writers, directors, producers and people who've worked on the shows during the past 20 years.

The gathering was held on the Paramount Pictures sound stages where the upcoming fourth "Star Trek" movie was filmed. "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" is scheduled for Christmas release.

Producer Gene Roddenberry, discussing how he got the show on NBC 20 years ago, said, "I'd tell them it was a Western, but with space ships instead of horses."

"I went ape," he declared. "I said, 'I'm going to write what I want to write.' This would be a chance to say to the world some things I wanted to say."

Among the themes were the dangers of prejudice, even against aliens, and the need for peace, even among intergalactic superpowers.

As Roddenberry watched the guests mingle, he said, "I'm surprised and pleased. I really planned to have a show only a few people would remember. I never thought there would be this attention and adulation."

Leonard Nimoy, who played the aloof Mr. Spock, sported a light growth of beard instead of his trademark pointed ears.

A fifth movie is in development. Nimoy directed the third and fourth, and William Shatner, who plays Kirk, will direct the fifth.

Science fiction, while it has loyal followers, doesn't attract a large enough audience to account for the popularity of "Star Trek." The series and movies reached beyond science fiction. It was the western movie, the pirate saga, the swashbuckler, the rip-roaring adventure story in disguise.

Roddenberry also gave the series a light-hearted approach that appealed to the audience.

No small part of its success apparently was due to the fact that it came along during the Vietnam War, world tensions and unrest in this country. "Star Trek" offered a vision of the future. It said that "we had made it," that we had not blown ourselves up and there was indeed hope for the future.

Woman Wants to Wash Helpful Husband Out of Laundry Room

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Help me before I kill my husband. He insists on doing the laundry and it drives me crazy. I like to do it myself. I have asked, fought, pleaded, reasoned, and even gone as far as making a sign in big letters to hang above my machine saying, "Do Not Wash!" He ignores it. He says I don't appreciate his help, so I tried to explain that there is more to doing laundry than just throwing everything into the machine with soap, and then into the dryer.

I like to sort out the wash. I like to soak out stains first. I like to fold the clothes as soon as the dryer stops.

Not him. If a sock is in a ball, it's washed in a ball. If there are stains on a shirt, it's washed and dried with the stains — making them harder to get out. He washes tea towels with underwear! I just can't stand it anymore. He's retired and needs to keep busy. Can you or anyone who has had this problem tell me how to handle it?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your hubby needs a hobby. Since he wants to help around the house, put him in charge of the vacuuming, cleaning the bathrooms and dusting the furniture. And tell him that the laundry is off limits.

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen months ago, when I learned that my husband was hooked on cocaine, I was stunned! I have never used drugs in my life and wasn't aware of the signs. I only knew that he was broke all the time, but I didn't know why.

I found out later that my best friend, "Lori," got my husband started on cocaine, and was also his supplier. I felt heartsick, angry and betrayed. It took a lot of love, patience and counseling to keep my marriage together, but I did it.

I broke off all contact with Lori, but now she calls me at work and at home, begging me to forgive her and renew our friendship. I keep telling her I want nothing to do with her, but she comes to my place of work and keeps begging me. If she would clean up her act, I might reconsider, but, Abby, she still uses drugs and insists that she's not addicted.

Am I wrong to distance myself from her? If not, how can I get her to leave me alone?

HARASSED

DEAR HARASSED: Tell Lori that unless she cleans up her act, you want nothing to do with her. (Since your friendship apparently means so much to her, it might be an incentive.) Stick with your decision, and tell her that if she continues to harass you, you will call the police, then, if necessary, do it. But first do all you can to persuade Lori to get professional help for her addiction.

DEAR ABBY: I am going out of my mind trying to find the answer to this question. Where in the United States can first cousins marry? I spoke to a lawyer in Kentucky and he said there is no state in the United States that permits first cousin marriages, but I think he is wrong. Please, please help us, Abby. We are both over 21.

COUSINS IN LOVE

DEAR COUSINS: The Kentucky lawyer is mistaken. There are 21 states plus the District of Columbia that permit first cousin marriages. They are: Alabama, Alaska, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Virginia. And in Wisconsin, a woman may marry her first cousin if she is 55 years or older.

Israeli-Egyptian summit said canceled over dispute

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt and Israel today canceled a summit meeting planned for later this week after talks broke down on how to resolve a longstanding border dispute, Israeli officials reported.

The meeting between Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Prime Minister Shimon Peres would have been the first summit between the two nations in five years and would have marked the end of what both Israel and Egypt have described as a current phase of "cold peace."

The Israeli officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a formal statement on the summit's cancellation was expected later in the day. There was no immediate comment from Egypt.

Egypt had said it would not agree to hold the Peres-Mubarak meeting until an international arbitration agreement was signed for resolving the dispute over Taba, a 250-acre beach in the Sinai peninsula which both nations claim.

The two sides also were having difficulties choosing a panel of three neutral arbitrators, the Israeli officials said.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy has been shuttling between Israel and Egypt for 10 days to help prepare the summit.

Murphy returned to Cairo today after a brief trip to Saudi Arabia.

The dispute over the tiny beach south of Israel's Red Sea port of Eilat has been a thorn since 1982, when Israel refused to evacuate the resort area along with the rest of Sinai under terms of the countries' U.S.-sponsored 1979 peace treaty.

Opening lead: ♣ K

Cross swords, step back, fence!

By James Jacoby

Sometimes the play of a hand becomes a duel between declarer and the defenders, each side prepared to make quick thrusts and deft parries. The first thrust against today's slam was the opening lead of the club king. If declarer had ducked, it would have scored a clean hit for the defenders and "curses, foiled again" for declarer. However, the parry was easy to find since the ace doubleton in clubs opposite the small doubleton had "throw-in play" written all over it.

To prepare for the throw-in, declarer drew trumps and played out three rounds of diamonds, ending in his hand. He now led his remaining low club toward dummy's bare 10. If West wins his queen, the duel is over. A club or a diamond lead from West offers a sluff and a ruff; a heart lead surrenders a free finesse. Score the point and match to the declarer.

Was there a winning riposte for the defense? West's opening lead of the club king promised the queen. (The ace was visible in dummy.) With the jack in his hand, East should have signaled by playing the nine. When South later plays his last low club for a throw-in, West could then counter confidently by ducking, and East would be on lead. Now comes the "coup de grace" to finish off declarer — a heart lead through South's A-Q. South must lose a heart trick as well as the club for down one. Touche! The victory goes to East-West.

Parenting style may affect child's school performance

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Are some child-rearing methods better to use than others if parents want to increase the odds that their children will do well in school?

The answer is yes, according to a study by two psychologists at the University of Rochester who examined the relationship between parenting styles and children's academic achievement and adjustment to school.

"There are many reasons that some children are more successful in school than others, and our study looked mainly at parenting styles," said psychologist Wendy Grolnick, one author of the study.

"But we did find that some methods parents use to guide their children clearly work better than others, when you relate them to how the youngster is doing in school."

Homes producing students with better grades and achievement test scores were headed by parents who encouraged some independence in their children, said psychologist Richard Ryan, the other author of the study. These parents allowed daughters and sons to make some choices and participate in decisions.

Granting some independence to the youngster is not the same as letting the child "run wild," Grolnick explained. "Children doing well in school had parents we would call 'involved.' More than many couples, these mothers and fathers showed interest in things that are going on in their child's life by talking with them every day about school, about homework, or their youngster's other interests. They enjoyed spending time with the child."

Children with better grades and higher achievement test scores also had fewer behavior or learning problems, according to this and other studies, Ryan said.

"We had teachers fill out a questionnaire for each child in the study that not only measured misbehavior like getting into fights or sassing the teacher, but also measured other tendencies that can interfere with optimal learning, such as a youngster's tendency to be withdrawn. We found in this study what many teachers know from experience — that academic achievement and positive behavior go together."

The Rochester study defined styles of parenting by measuring how parents rated on several different scales. One measured how much parents provided clear guidelines, expectations and rules for their children, and was designed to measure how lax or firm parents were in controlling their children.

A second scale looked at how involved parents were with their children. Questions were designed to find out whether parents spent much or little time with them, how much they enjoyed the time spent together, how knowledgeable they were about their children's activities.

A third scale measured the degree to which parents either encouraged independent problem-solving and decision-making in their children, or valued obedience above all.

The study also looked at the socioeconomic circumstances of the parents.

"Interestingly enough," Ryan said, "we found that the biggest difference between classes is that more affluent parents spent more time with their children. But in every class, some parents encouraged more autonomy in their children and some parents were more authoritarian."

Why were the children of parents who encouraged independence more successful in school? Ryan suggested a couple of possible interpretations. One is that children who come from such homes are better prepared for school, where they must regulate their own behavior and learn material independently of their classmates.

Another possibility is that children influence parenting styles, Ryan said. "Children have different abilities and temperaments," he pointed out. "Some are more adept than others at learning rules and expectations and completing responsibilities without continual reminders. They'd be the kids that parents would tend naturally to grant more independence.

"In this particular study of 48 pairs of parents and their children, we couldn't pinpoint whether fostering independence begins with the parents or the children; most likely, there's an interplay between them that reinforces this desirable behavior in the youngster."

Space station is fuzzy dream

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's space station exists only in volumes of drawings, miles of computer tape and the minds of engineers who still disagree over it.

But by 1994, NASA plans to have a structure as long as one and two-thirds football fields orbiting 280 miles above the Earth, and housing eight crew members for up to 90 days. The goal is to have astronauts in a space outpost for science every day of the year.

The cost: about $10 billion, 80 per cent from the United States, the rest from Canada, Japan and the European Space Agency.

As with nearly every plan in the American space program, the space station has been sent back to the drawing board by the Challenger explosion. The loss of one of the nation's four shuttles has crippled plans to launch, supply and maintain the space station.

And the accident gave new clout to internal critics of the safety of the station's design just when the space agency was ready to draft final plans.

In 1984, President Reagan set a national goal of opening a permanent space station by 1994. Since then, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration defined uses for the station and spent a year refining its design. Final design and construction remain to be done.

The current design calls for two 361-foot vertical booms connected by two 146-foot booms to form a rectangle. A transverse boom through the middle of the rectangle and extending out on either side would measure 503 feet.

Attached to the center of the transverse boom would be two 44-foot-long modules, each 13 feet in diameter. These modules, connected by tunnels, would house crew quarters and a laboratory. A 24-foot supply craft would be docked to the station and exchanged every 90 days.

Japan is to build a laboratory module; the European Space Agency, a laboratory and two orbiting platforms.

The shuttle could dock at either of two ports. Other spacecraft and platforms would link up at five locations on the booms. Robot arms would maneuver payloads.

NASA's plans call for space-walking astronauts working as orbiting steeplejacks to build the latticework of booms from components delivered by the shuttle. It was thought 15 shuttle flights would be needed to lift the parts into orbit.

When Challenger exploded, these plans started unraveling.

In June, astronaut Gordon Fullerton completed a report outlining serious safety flaws. He pointed out the station had no "life boat" — a crew would be stranded there if the shuttles were grounded again.

Former policeman charged in heist

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former policeman who now works for the county attorney was arrested and charged in connection with a 5-year-old robbery of almost $200,000 in Navy payroll money from a local bank.

Manuel Salazar Jr., 31, is the second man connected with the Kingsville Police Department to be arrested in the crime.

He was charged Monday with aggravated robbery and was released from the Kleberg County Jail after posting a $25,000 bond, authorities said.

Salazar is an employee of the Kleberg County Attorney's Office, screening misdemeanor cases. Kleberg County Attorney Bill Ewert said he has been suspended with pay pending the disposition of charges.

Sam Diaz, a nine-year veteran of the police department, previously was charged with masterminding the Oct. 29, 1981 holdup. Prosecutors had dismissed the charge against him to avoid violating the Speedy Trial Act but now say they plan to refile the charges.

The robbery occurred when two Mercantile Bank officials were transferring $177,800 in cash intended for a Navy payroll from the main bank to a branch at the Kingsville Naval Air Station.

New England's incomes prosper

WASHINGTON (AP) — New England led the country in income gains over the past three years while five energy-producing states had income gains so weak they did not even keep pace with inflation, the government reports.

The Commerce Department said Monday that Americans' personal incomes have risen 20.9 percent since the end of the last recession in 1982, climbing to an average of $13,867 for every person in the country last year.

But this gain since the depths of the last recession masked widespread regional discrepancies.

New England out performed the rest of the country with a 27.3 percent increase in per capita incomes from 1982 to 1985 as the region's high-tech and defense industries enjoyed substantial growth.

New Hampshire residents enjoyed the biggest increase of any state, a 30.6 percent gain, followed closely by Massachusetts and Connecticut with gains of 28.5 percent and 26.9 percent respectively.

During this period, consumer prices were rising 11.9 percent so after adjusting for inflation, the average American saw his income advance by 9 percent from 1982 through 1985.

But five states had income gains so small they did not even keep up with the rise in prices.

Alaska residents fared the worst, seeing per capita income rise by just 5.1 percent since 1982. Other states where income growth failed to keep up with inflation were Wyoming, with a 7 percent rise in incomes; Oklahoma, up 7.4 percent; and Louisiana and Montana, both with 8.9 percent increases, all below the 11.9 percent rise in prices.

Debate stirred over escape of Pan Am jet's flight crew

LONDON (AP) — The escape of the Pan Am flight crew has stirred debate over whether the ancient rule that a captain never abandons ship should apply to jetliner hijackings.

An informal Associated Press survey Monday found disagreement on the issue among pilots, airline officials and the hijack victims themselves.

Opinions ranged from one survivor who called the cockpit crew's action "absolutely superb" to a spokesman for a competing airline who said it was "unthinkable."

By escaping through a hatch in the roof of the Boeing 747 soon after terrorists boarded the plane Friday, the three-man flight crew effectively grounded the jetliner at Karachi Airport.

But it left the nearly 400 passengers and remaining crew without an authority figure and confronting four terrorists, who in the end blasted them with grenades and submachine-gun fire, killing 19 people.

Capt. William Kianka of Hopewell, N.J., the pilot of the jumbo jet, was interviewed outside his home by WABC-TV and was asked about the crew's action.

"There's no doubt in my mind that we made the correct decision."

Don't overdo Feldene use

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says I can take up to four or five Feldene capsules a day for my arthritis. My druggist says I shouldn't take more than one a day because of the side effects. Whose advice should I follow?

DEAR READER — I definitely side with your druggist. Feldene is a very effective drug for arthritis. In my experience, if one a day doesn't do the trick, more are unlikely to help. The manufacturer recommends one pill a day. I think that taking four or five Feldene pills a day is too much and will certainly increase your chances of developing side effects, such as peptic ulcer and intestinal distress.

To give you more general information about arthritis, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, UNDERSTANDING OSTEOARTHRITIS. Others who would like a copy should send $1, plus their name and address, to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had a cornea transplant four years ago. My eye is still blurry. The doctor says it is impossible to get 20/20 vision with a transplant. Is he right?

DEAR READER — Apparently. It's hard to achieve perfect 20/20 vision by synthetic or artificial means. Your original cornea was right for you; nothing the doctor provides is going to improve on Nature. Nonetheless, blurry vision is not a common consequence of corneal transplants. You should get a second opinion to determine if anything more can be done to improve your vision.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What does it mean when the blood analysis shows the platelet count is high? Is this dangerous?

DEAR READER — Platelets are tiny blood cells that participate in blood clotting. Too few (thrombocytopenia) can cause hemorrhage. Too many (thrombocytosis) do not affect bleeding, but can indicate an underlying disease, such as iron deficiency or cancer. Thrombocytosis means that a thorough medical investigation must be carried out.

DEAR DR. GOTT — After checkups, my husband's physician mails us a letter that gives the results of all tests and the normal ranges. My husband's SGPT was 86, with normal being 0-39. What does this mean? The letter says he doesn't need to come in.

DEAR READER — SGPT (serum glutamic pyruvic transaminase) is an enzyme manufactured by the liver. Ordinarily, a small amount is present in the blood stream and can be measured by the routine chemical analyses that are often part of the annual physical examination.

If the liver is damaged, abnormal amounts of the enzyme may leak into the bloodstream and cause an elevated reading. For example, hepatitis (liver inflammation) can cause the release of large quantities of SGPT — much more than your husband showed in his blood test.

Evidently, the other measures of liver performance were normal in your husband's case. I think he should ask his doctor about the significance of his elevated SGPT. In my experience, a slight increase in the compound can be seen as a result of certain medicines. Also, the consumption of alcohol can elevate the blood SGPT.

San Antonio's mayor takes drug test

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros took a drug test as part of his drive to have city employees submit to random checks for drug or alcohol abuse.

The results of Monday's test were not immediately available.

Cisneros agreed to the test after officials with the San Antonio Police Officers Association said they favor random drug testing of officers.

Robert Martin presents paper

Robert Martin, a 1965 graduate of Snyder High School, recently co-authored a professional paper in optoelectronics which was presented in the Charles Schneider Memorial awards program at Oklahoma State University. The paper is entitled "Understanding Isolation Voltage Testing."

Martin, senior application engineer for applied optoelectronics technology in Sunnyvale, Calif., has contributed as a design engineer, test equipment manager, applications engineer, and product marketing manager. He was employed at Texas Instruments for nine years and held various engineering responsibilities for the design of automated systems in the semiconductor division.

He is the son of Mrs. J. A. Martin and the late J. A. Martin, long time residents of Scurry County.

Hopes gown will be lucky

Miss McPeak hopes her gown is just as lucky this year because she'll be wearing it.

Young Texas girl wins her struggle to attend classes

VENUS, Texas (AP) — The mother of a girl who must use a plastic tube to breathe says a year-long battle to attend school without the interruptions was a mental strain on her daughter.

"It's been harder on Shelley, more than anything else," said Heannie Clower. "She thought nobody cared about her because they wouldn't take care of her at school."

Shelley Clower, 7, who is now in the second grade, has a windpipe that wasn't fully developed at birth. Doctors inserted a tube in her neck extending to her lungs, enabling her to breathe.

But the tube must be cleared by suction up to three times a day, a procedure that school officials agreed to perform only after a group representing handicapped Texans exerted pressure on the school district.

Shelley, who weighs 34 pounds, had surgery when she was 1 week old to correct a defective heart valve. At 3 months, she underwent surgery again to install the breathing tube.

Trouble arose when her parents asked the school to take care of her breathing apparatus. The school district was concerned about its employees being held liable if anything went wrong.

"We thought it was their responsibility to take care of her," said Ms. Clower.

Advocacy Inc., an Austin-based group representing handicapped Texans, filed a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education in February. The group argued the school district was not complying with a federal law, the Education for All Handicapped Children Act.

Public favors breast feeding of newborns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women who want to breast-feed their children at work can count on support for the practice from most of their colleagues, U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop says.

Koop joined leaders of the Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition on Monday in releasing a national survey that found almost three-quarters of adults believe breast-feeding is the best way to feed a baby.

A majority of those polled also felt that employers should provide facilities for women to collect milk or nurse their babies at work. Fifty-three percent said employers should make such accommodations, 36 percent said no and 11 percent were unsure.

A working mother can collect milk in a bottle, freeze or refrigerate it and give it to her baby later.

"The working woman can be confident that more of her coworkers will support her decision to breast-feed," Koop said at a news conference. Men are even more supportive of breast-feeding than women, he added.

But the survey, carried out by a private firm for the coalition of health, volunteer and government groups, also found the public with mixed views about the propriety of breast-feeding in public.

Twenty-nine percent said it was natural, but 27 percent said women should not nurse in public places.

More than one-third said it made no difference to them; one in seven said it made them uncomfortable.

The survey found 72 percent believed breast-feeding is the best way to feed a baby. Twenty percent said no; the rest had no opinion.

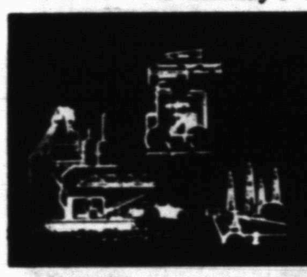

Foreign volunteers armed by Sandinistas

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Nicaragua is issuing weapons to foreign civilian volunteers, thereby converting them into potential targets for Contra rebels, the military commander of the largest rebel force says.

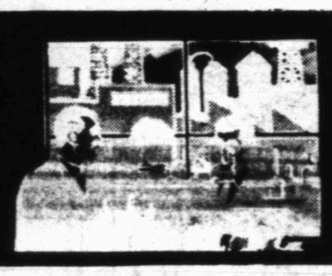

"They are part of the enemy. We have warned them not to go into the war zones or carry weapons. We cannot be responsible," said Enrique Bermudez, one of seven directors of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force rebel group.

"These people are at risk of being killed by our forces, especially if they are wearing uniforms, carrying weapons and riding in military vehicles," he said in a weekend interview.

Bermudez, leader of the U.S.-backed Contra group known as FDN from its Spanish-language initials, was referring to thousands of volunteers, mainly from Europe and the United States, who work in Nicaragua building houses, health clinics and schools.

Pinochet says 'war against Marxism' on

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet, slightly injured in an assassination attempt, threatened to expel or jail human rights activists as part of what he called the military government's new "war against Marxism."

On Monday, the government closed six of eight opposition magazines, sent army tanks into slums, arrested at least five foreign priests, and rounded up leading dissidents under a 90-day state of siege imposed after the president's motorcade was ambushed Sunday.

The government also banned dispatches from Chile by the Reuters news agency. Three of the detained Roman Catholic priests are from France and two are from the United States.

The government today planned to bury the five bodyguards who died in the ambush and then to stage a mass rally in support of Pinochet. Ten other bodyguards were wounded in the attack.

Pinochet has sought to play down government newspaper ads billing the rally as aimed at drumming up support.

Herschel scores two TDs...

Cowboys defeat Giants as Walker debuts

IRVING, Texas (AP) - If his NFL debut is any indication, Herschel Walker is going to cause a lot of headaches for opposing defenses.

"I think I contributed," Walker said in a classic understatement after scoring two touchdowns, including the game-winner with 1:16 left Monday night in the Dallas Cowboys' 31-28 victory over the New York Giants.

Walker, one of the USFL's brightest stars with the New Jersey Generals, convinced even the grumbling Tony Dorsett he was worth $1 million a year in his NFL regular season debut.

Ironically, it was Dorsett's sprained ankle in the first half that gave Walker his chance at tailback.

"When I went in I was really scared at first about remembering all the plays," said Walker. "I said 'Please Lord, let me remember the plays.'"

Walker scored on a one-yard plunge in which he looked like he jumped off a three-meter diving board. He set up another score with a 10-yard run on a reverse.

Then he dashed 10 yards up the middle on a third-down draw play off the spread formation for the game-winner.

Dorsett, who had objected to Walker's huge five-year guaranteed salary and demanded a trade, was one of the first Cowboys to shake his hand after the game was over.

"Tony told me 'congratulations,'" Walker said. "He's helped me a lot."

Walker's worksheet read 10 carries for 64 yards, as well as six receptions for another 32 yards.

"I feel at home now," Walker said.

Dorsett, who said he will be able to play Sunday against Detroit, said "Herschel played extremely well. He had the opportunity to play and took advantage of it."

Dorsett scored on a 36-yard screen pass from Danny White before his ankle stiffened up on him.

Walker said he had already discovered a big difference between the USFL and the NFL - linebackers.

"Football is football, but the linebackers on the Giants are the best I ever saw," Walker said.

Walker wasn't perfect. In fact, he stood a chance to be the goat of the game in the third period.

Linebacker Harry Carson recovered Walker's fumble at the Dallas 14 and Joe Morris, who agreed to a new four-year, $2.2 millon contract just hours before the game, scored from two yards out to give the Giants a 21-17 lead.

"I don't fumble that much," Walker said "I just need to take a few more snaps. Once you start thinking about mistakes you can't play."

The Cowboys and Giants then traded touchdowns. Thornton Chandler caught a 1-yard scoring flip from White midway through the fourth quarter to put Dallas back in front. New York's Bobby Johnson made a spectacular 44-yard reception with 5:24 to go to put the Giants back on top, 28-24.

But after the Giants' go-ahead score, Dallas charged 72 yards in six plays with Walker catching a 24-yard pass on the game-winning drive. A 35-yard pass from White to Tony Hill set up Walker's score.

A desperation pass by Phil Simms at the final gun was batted down in the Dallas end zone by rookie Cornell Gowdy.

Walker even made Dallas Coach Tom Landry smile.

"Herschel played great, he's a football player that's all," said Landry. "It's exciting to watch him work. We might use Herschel more. He has so much power."

Landry said Walker wouldn't have been at tailback if Dorsett hadn't hurt his ankle in the first half.

"We (Walker) wouldn't have played tailback in the game unless Dorsett was hurt," Landry said "Tony showed great courage.

"Herschel was working at tailback in case an injury happened. He was ready as you saw."

Simms, who hit 22 of 45 passes for 300 yards and two touchdowns, summed up the Giants' impressions of Walker: "I hate him!"

Giants' Coach Bill Parcells said "It was another one of those games we've been having with the Cowboys. Walker did very well for the first time. He's strong. He broke a lot of tackles."

It was Dallas' 21st opening victory in the last 22 years and upped their all-time record against the Giants to 33-13-2.

Air McMail arrives at Tech; Raiders have tough test next

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech's new head football coach had been saying the Red Raiders would throw 50 or 60 passes a game in an attempt to end the school's string seven straight losing seasons.

In Texas Tech's 41-7 victory Saturday night over Kansas State, it becmae clear that David McWilliams wasn't exaggerating.

Air McMail has arrived on the South Plains of Texas.

The Red Raiders launched 55 passes - shattering the old school record of 43 - and McWilliams notched a victory in his first collegiate game as a head coach.

"It has been hard to get people to believe we were going to pass that much," said McWilliams, a longtime assistant coach at the University of Texas before accepting the Tech job at the end of last season.

He added with a grin, "After this game, if they don't believe it, I've got to think they never will."

The opener was special, McWilliams said.

"I've been coaching for 22 years, and I've gotten excited about all 22 of them (season openers). But this one was different because I wanted to begin my head coaching career with a win," he said.

Immediately, he has another challenge ahead - the No. 2-ranked Miami Hurricanes on Saturday.

"Every game is different. Kansas State was our first game, and we needed to get it behind us," McWilliams said minutes after Saturday night's win. "But I'm already thinking about Miami. I'm excited. It's exciting to know we're going into that type of game off a victory like this.

"We're playing a national power, and this gives us an opportunity to go out and show we belong out there with them," he said.

"I don't feel you ever have to work to get a team up for a national power. I always felt, if you have to get anybody up to play anybody, then it's going to be a long night."

Air McMail is built around 6-1, 200-pound sophomore quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver, who completed 19 of 40 passes against Kansas State for 204 yards and two touchdowns.

A string of dropped passes hurt Texas Tech in the first half against Kansas State, which led 7-6 at intermission and was threatening to score again early in the third quarter.

Safety Boyd Cowan intercepted a pass and dashed 83 yards for a touchdown that turned the momentum around.

"That play certainly changed the complexion of the game, and we were able to take control after that," McWilliams said. "We had the opportunity in our first game of being behind at the half, and we were able to come back. That was important."

Linebackers James Johnson and Michael Johnson led a blitzing defense that sacked Kansas State quarterback Randy Williams three times and hurried him into throwing the interception that turned the game around.

Against Miami, McWilliams expects linebacker prospect Brad Hastings to be in his starting lineup. Hastings, who set Tech's single-game tackle record with 29 against Texas A&M last year, underwent orthoscopic knee surgery on Aug. 24 and missed the Kansas State game.

However, Hastings was walking around without crutches the day after surgery, started running three days later, and could have played in the opener.

"I'm amazed at how fast he came back. Physically, he was where he could have played, but he hadn't worked out all week, so we decided to hold him out," McWilliams said.

"But unless something unexpected happen, he should be ready to go against Miami. He should be 100 percent."

A&M hands findings to NCAA committee

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - The findings of an investigation of allegations of booster payments to football players at Texas A&M Universtiy has been turned over to the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the school's president says.

President Frank E. Vandiver said Monday the only copy of the 10-volume report was sent to the NCAA last week. Vandiver said he would make no further public comment on the subject pending the NCAA's response.

Vandiver told the university's Faculty Senate he headed a delegation that personally delivered to the NCAA the report answering the Dallas Times Herald allegations made last year about the university's football program. The investigation on which the report is based was conducted by personnel outside of the university's administrative and athletic structures, with some 300 persons interviewed, he said.

"The final report was some 2,000 pages contained in 10 volumes, and I believe it was the best and most complete report that could have been assembled," Vandiver said.

In a series in December 1985, the Times Herald reported allegations of a widespread pattern of booster payments to football players at A&M, continued performance payments and the sale of players' complimentary tickets.

Vandiver also briefed the faculty leaders on a study that indicates that student-athletes at Texas A&M graduate at approximately the same rate as the overall student body.

"If you have been out of town during the summer, you should know that a summer sport around campus has been to compare the various national publications that rank A&M's football team in the top 10," he said. "We are all looking forward to the season, but there is another ranking of our athletes that is particularly outstanding."

A report compiled by the university's admissions and records staff shows that approximately 66 percent of the students who entered Texas A&M as freshmen for the 1980-81 academic year were graduated by Aug. 31, 1985. The corresponding rate for the school's student-athletes was 61.9 percent. Nine more of the 92 student-athletes included in the five-year study have since received degrees, pushing the rate for them up to 72 percent.

Ryan cools off Cincy; Houston leads by nine

by The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan turned up the heat and cooled off Cincinnati's chances of catching the Houston Astros in the National League West.

Ryan struck out 10 during six shutout innings and combined with Charlie Kerfeld on a three-hitter Monday night as the Houston beat the Reds 3-1.

The victory, the third straight for the Astros, gave them a nine-game lead over second-place Cincinnati.

Said Ryan: "I've been waiting for this game all year."

In other NL games, Montreal routed New York 9-1, Pittsburgh got by St. Louis 3-2, Chicago beat Philadelphia 7-4, San Francisco defeated San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles blanked Atlanta 7-0.

Expos 9, Mets 1

Rookie Bob Sebra pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster connected for a two-run homer as Montreal rapped 16 hits and stopped New York's four-game winning streak.

Sebra, 4-3, lost a chance at his first major-league shutout when Darryl Strawberry hit his 20th home run of the season with two outs in the ninth. Bob Ojeda, 16-5, took the loss.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2

Bob Patterson won his first major-league start and Hipolito Pena got his first career save as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis.

Patterson, 1-2, gave up five hits in seven-plus innings during his ninth career appearance. Pena finished with one-hit relief.

Danny Cox, 9-12, took the loss, only his third in 12 career decisions against Pittsburgh.

Cubs 7, Phillies 4

Leon Durham hit a three-run homer and Keith Moreland drove in two runs, leading Chicago past visiting Philadelphia.

Ed Lynch, 5-4, pitched 5 1-3 innings for the victory and Lee Smith worked the final inning for his 26th save.

Dodgers 7, Braves 0

Bob Welch pitched a four-hitter and Mike Scioscia's solo home run ignited a three-run fifth inning as host Los Angeles defeated Atlanta.

Welch, 7-11, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in pitching his third shutout and seventh complete game this season. The shutout was the 19th of his career.

Earl Weaver says he won't be back

BALTIMORE (AP) - Earl Weaver, disappointed that he could not produce a winner in his second stint with the Baltimore Orioles, won't be back as manager in 1987.

Whether he remains as skipper for the remainder of the current season apparently will be decided by team owner Edward Bennett Williams, who talked Weaver out of retirement in the middle of the 1985 season.

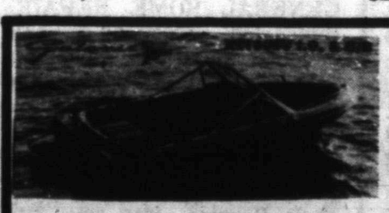

"If you can't think of anything else to do, you might as well play golf or go to the races," Weaver said in reference to an extended slump after the Orioles lost 9-3 to Boston in 11 innings Monday night - their 24th loss in 31 games.

The slump has dropped the Orioles into sixth place in the American League East, 16 games behind the Red Sox and just 1½ games ahead of last-place Milwaukee.

Reduced spending may help farmers in '86

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unexpected sharp reduction in costs is one of the big reasons that farmers generally are doing better than expected this year, according to an Agriculture Department analysis.

The spending cut would enhance the tiny increase expected in livestock cash receipts and help offset a predicted reduction in crop prices.

The department's Economic Research Service says 1986 farm production costs could drop 4 percent to 6 percent. That would translate into reduced cash spending of $4 billion to $8 billion this year, following a $3.5 billion decline in expenses in 1985.

"If the 6 percent drop in expenses is realized, it would be the largest annual cut since 1932's 19 percent," says economist Gary Lucier.

Initially, agency economists forecast farm production expenses might decline by $1 billion to $3 billion as prices of major items continued to slip. However, the original forecast was revised upward, largely because of:

—A large and rapid decline in fuel prices.

—The spillover effect of the drop in energy prices on fertilizer and chemical costs.

—An absence of price increases of most other farm production items such as machinery and building materials.

—Lower-than-expected market interest rates and outstanding farm debt.

But cash receipts from crop marketings are expected to fall this year, and farmers are again expected to place large quantities of grain and cotton under the department's price support loan program. Also, total crop output is expected to decline 5 percent this year because of lower harvested acreage for major commodities.

Reflecting lower price support loan rates, the crop prices received by farmers are expected to be down 8 percent to 12 percent from last year, but livestock cash receipts are expected to rise slightly, Lucier and colleague Richard Kodl said in a new outlook report.

Net farm income, which takes into consideration the changes in value of commodities held by farmers, may be in the range of $25 billion to $29 billion this year, about $1 billion less than the previous forecast. Last year, net farm income was $30.4 billion, down from the revised level of $32.7 billion in 1984.

The report said government payments and the declining production expenses "are the two most important elements" of this year's farm income forecast. Government spending on farm programs this year will probably be a record high, in the range of $18 billion to $25 billion, the report said.

According to agency economists, that would include all direct payments to farmers under the commodity programs, net price support loans made by the Commodity Credit Corp., and government purchases of dairy products under the milk support program.

The report cited several reasons for the rise in government farm costs this calendar year, including the larger "deficiency payments" to farmers to make up for low crop market prices.

Another reason for higher costs in 1986 has been the advance to farmers of more than $3 billion in 1986-crop deficiency payments for corn, cotton and rice, which normally would have been disbursed in calendar 1987.

The addition of new programs such as the whole-herd buyout program and the conservation land reserve will increase USDA farm outlays this year. The buyout is sending more than 1.5 million dairy cows, heifers and calves to slaughter over an 18-month period that began last April 1. Most of the animals, including some for export, are being sold off this year.

Auxins may overcome bitterness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bitterness in the juice of navel oranges might someday be overcome by feeding orange trees small doses of plant hormones called auxins, says an Agriculture Department research scientist, Shin Hasegawa.

The auxins, he says, inhibit the production of a nomilin, a compound that is needed to make a second chemical, limonin. Hasegawa said Monday that it is the limonin that causes extreme bitterness in navel orange juice.

Hasegawa, a chemist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Pasadena, Calif., said in a report released here by the agency that the auxin is readily available at low cost and is used routinely on apples, pears and grapes to prevent fruit from dropping off before harvest.

Only limited amounts of juice from navel oranges can be added now to juice products because of the problem with bitterness, he said.

Daniloff was interested in Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicholas Daniloff's fascination with the Soviet Union began with the stories he heard from his father about the agonies of the Russian Revolution.

Daniloff, a prisoner of the Soviet KGB and the center of tensions between the superpowers, was born in Paris into a Russian-American family and raised in New Hampshire. "Since everyone spoke French, the dinner conversation was always sprinkled with French and English," he wrote in a three-page autobiography he wrote for his employer, U.S. News & World Report.

His father, a Russian refugee, tried "to obliterate the memories of 1917 and his own Russian heritage," Daniloff wrote.

"But the stories of Lenin's seizure of power, the ensuing terror, the arbitrary executions, including some of my own relatives, the Russian civil war, the dogs that barked warnings minutes before the secret police arrived, the neighbors who buried their jewels but forgot where they had hidden them, the fantastic escapes — all this was talked about at home at one time or another and only whetted my appetite to know more," Daniloff wrote.

"I was left with these questions: Where does the Soviet Union really come from? What do its leaders and its people really believe? Where is it going? How will the United States and the Soviet Union live, coexist, compete, contend on this planet without blowing the world up?" Daniloff wrote in 1981.

Unlike his father, Daniloff apparently wanted to delve into his heritage. U.S. News said he was a descendant of both a Czarist officer and a revolutionary.

His wife, Ruth, said Daniloff has done the research for a book he planned to write on Alexander Frolov, his ancestor who was sent to Siberia for 30 years for taking part in a plot to overthrow the Czar in the December uprising of 1825.

After graduating from Harvard in 1956, Daniloff came to Washington looking for a job.

"As a college graduate in 1956, my thoughts focused primarily on diplomacy," Daniloff wrote. "As it turned out, neither the U.S. foreign service, nor the CIA, nor the U.S. Information Agency, nor the military services wanted me."

"In despair and frustration, I went off in the summer of 1956 to the U.S.-Canadian weather station near the North Pole, then joined The Washington Post as a copyboy in the fall."

A year later, he went to Oxford, England, to study philosophy, politics and economics at Magdalen College. Daniloff's wife is British.

Trading academics for a more lively career, Daniloff joined United Press International in London, and at the age of 25, he was made bureau chief in Geneva, Switzerland. A year later, he went to Moscow as a correspondent.

Daniel Gilmore, a UPI reporter who first hired Daniloff, described him as a serious journalist, "more of a scholar than a reporter."

Returning to Washington in 1965, Daniloff worked briefly on The Washington Post's foreign desk before rejoining UPI. "I next covered the State Department during the Vietnam War under Dean Rusk; the White House when President Nixon resigned; the Senate when it passed the Panama Canal treaties but sidestepped SALT; the Pentagon when Harold Brown, the technological whiz kid presided over a reluctant military buildup," he wrote.

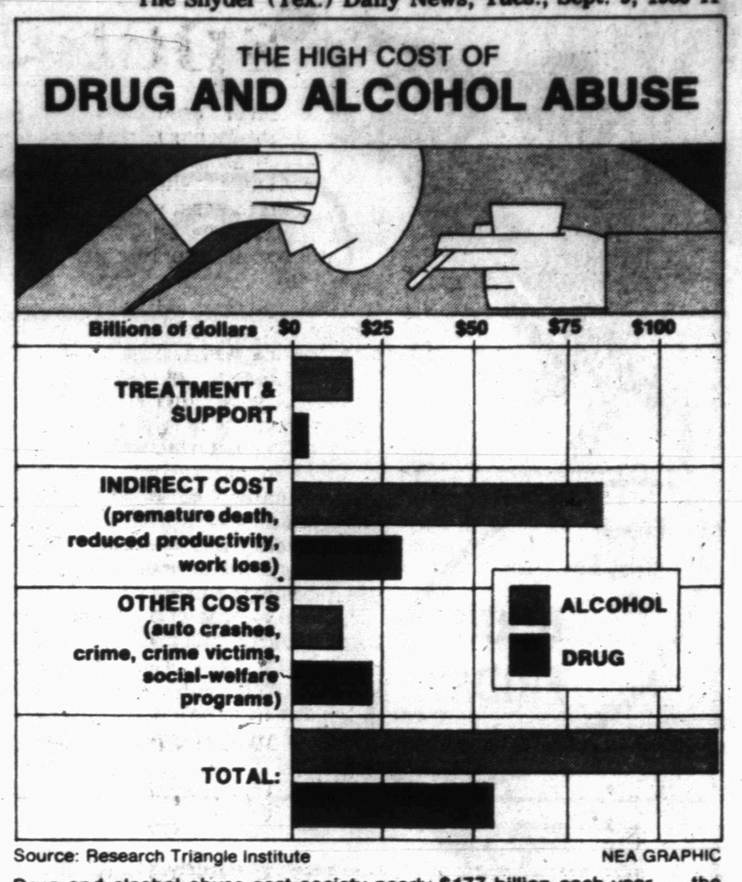

In 1973-1974, Daniloff studied Chinese at Harvard where he was a Nieman Fellow. He joined U.S. News in 1980 and soon was assigned to Moscow.

Friends and colleagues called Daniloff a reserved, quiet man with a professorial air and a methodical approach to his work.

"He is really an academic type," said Robert Andrews, an AP reporter. He said Daniloff has a "puckish sense of humor."

"The man is totally ethical," said David Nagy, an editor at Reuters who worked with Daniloff at UPI. Another former colleague in Moscow said Daniloff was a kind person who frequently befriended Soviets who had trouble obtaining exit visas to see their spouses.

Besides his wife, a free-lance writer, Daniloff has two children, Miranda and Caleb.

Drug and alcohol abuse cost society nearly $177 billion each year — the cost of treatment and prevention, job losses, work problems, and abuse-related accidents and crime.

Hearing slated in murder case

giving of the statement.

District Judge Gene Dulaney will listen to the testimony and then rule as to whether or not police obtained Johnson's statement in a legal fashion.

Johnson and Miles were arrested in Colorado City on April 8. They stand accused in the shooting death of Jack Huddleston, killed during the robbery of the Allsup's store located at 4000 College Ave.

Both were indicted for that offense by a Scurry County grand jury in April and both face the possiblity of a death sentence if convicted on that charge.

Both Johnson and Miles are currently being held without bond in the Scurry County Jail.

Miles is represented by Sweetwater attorney Peter Sheridan.

In other action related to the Johnson trial, Conard filed a motion for change of venue on his behalf Monday.

In that motion, Conard is seeking to have Johnson's trial moved outside Scurry County because "there exists in Scurry County so great a prejudice against the defendant that he cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial."

In support of that motion, Conard filed affidavits from 10 Scurry County residents swearing that they think Johnson cannot get a fair trial here.

Reasons given in the affidavits include the fact that Johnson is black and pre-trial publicity given the case by the Snyder Daily News and radio station KSNY.

A hearing on the change of venue motion now filed in the Johnson case has been set for 9 a.m. Oct. 2 in 132nd District Court.

City renews insurance bid with the same carrier for two years, because as soon as a rate hike goes into effect, the municipality is out looking for a lower rate," Joe Williamson with Williamson-Steakley Insurance told councilmen.

Don West, representing Hugh Boren and Son Insurance Agency, recommended a cost containment program offered by Great West Life Insurance Co. at a cost to the city of just over $58,000.

Councilmen Tommy Davis and David Hines expressed concern that some city employees might actually lose benefits because of the process involved in securing these, however.

Under the cost containment program, employees would be required to obtain preauthorization for surgical procedures as well as second opinions regarding those procedures.

In other action, councilmen also:

—Administered the oath of office to newly elected councilmen Fred Castillo in District 1, Mike Post for District 3 and Joe Fowler in District 4.

—Adopted on second reading an ordinance accepting the city's 1986-87 budget.

—Adopted on second reading an ordinance setting the city's tax rate at 25.5 cents per $100 valuation.

—Approved on second reading an ordinance to rezone lots 5-10 of Block 5, Noble Heights Addition from commercial zone C-1 to commercial zone C-2. The zone change now allows Lou Voss, owner of Lou's Kiddie Kottage, to erect a sign on her property.

—Appointed Larry Anderson of the accounting firm Anderson and West to prepare the city's annual outside audit.

—Authorized Mayor Rod Waller to sign an agreement with the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation to erect load limit signs on four bridges in the city limits. The signs protect the city from liability claims that could stem from overweight vehicles using the structures.

—Approved a request allowing the city manager to receive bids to sell the city's used water meters.

Mayor Rod Waller presided Monday. Also present were David Hines, Tommy Davis, Fred Castillo, Troy Williamson, Joe Fowler and Mike Post.

School policy to be changed their respective supervisor or school principal (level 1), then the superintendent (level 2).

The policy change regarding career ladder allows classroom teachers to appeal their not being chosen for the salary bonus.

In other school-related business, trustees will:

—Hear a request from the Snyder Soccer Association to erect a sign at the recently completed soccer fields located between West Elementary and the junior high.

—Consider hiring six teachers for the new fall term.

—Hearing a presentation regarding the new pre-kindergarten program offered here this semester.

Lawyers angry at policemen

HOUSTON (AP) — A man jailed on a narcotics charge thought he was talking to two lawyers in his jail cell, but the men were actually Houston police officers, the inmate's attorney says.

Harris County District Attorney John B. Holmes said Monday he understood only one police officer accompanied another person into the jail cell posing as an attorney for that person, not the inmate.

"There's nothing illegal about it," he said.

Defense attorney Dan Gerson said his client, Miguel Cortez, and common-law wife, Bridget Sparrow, thought they were talking to attorneys in the Harris County Jail last week, but both men were police officers trying to get evidence.

The two officers also talked to Ms. Sparrow another time at the home of a friend who apparently was a police informant, Gerson said.

"The friend had told her these were really top-notch attorneys," Gerson said.

Ms. Sparrow, however, became suspicious and called Gerson, he said.

Holmes explained that if the officer only pretended to be that person's lawyer, no attorney-client privilege was established with Cortez.

Midwest rate request denied by councilmen

Although a final decision will likely come from state officials, a request to increase electric rates from Midwest Electric Cooperative--which serves rural customers in Scurry County--was denied by Snyder city council Monday at its regular September meeting.

City officials note that under state law Midwest was required to bring the rate request to the city council because part of the city is serviced by the cooperative and because the city council has ordinance making powers.

The electrical needs for the Towle Park area are served by Midwest inside the city limits.

It was noted also that the Public Utilities Commission essentially will have the final say in the rate case since it has the power to overturn any decisions by local municipalities.

Midwest's request is based upon a test year survey conducted during 1985, according to documents filed along with the request.

The rate hike is estimated at 5.4 percent or approximately $544,000 based upon costs incurred by Midwest during that year. It is noted, however, that due to an expected reduction in operating costs, the rate as requested would actually equal an 8.7 percent increase or approximately $842,000.

The reduction in operating costs is credited to declines in the cost of electricity purchased by the utility from wholesale power suppliers.

College aims at self-study

Lancaster said this phase will be implemented during the 1988-89 school year as college teachers and administrators respond to the study's findings.

As a basic theme of the study's goal, Lancaster pointed to a motto printed on the cover of the proposal document to be submitted to Southern Association officials, "Our enduring resource is within ourselves."

During Monday's session, the board was informed also that initial indications for needed roof repairs on campus have proven incomplete.

It was first estimated that nine campus buildings needed repairs, entailing some 4,750 sq. ft. Rex Hopkins, director of the physical plant, said Monday that the recents rains have indicated roof leak problems on all campus buildings with the exception of the administration building.

The estimate to repair these leaks now stands at $10,000.

In response, trustees accepted a bid of $9,061 from Coffman Roofing of Big Spring and authorized Hopkins to negotiate for "up to $2,000" to make any added repairs.

The original estimate was submitted for repairs to the nine buildings first identified.

Two other bids were received Monday, estimates of $7,125 from Durwood Kruger of Hermleigh and $5,235 from Blackwell Roofing of Snyder.

Trustees authorized also advertising for bids to purchase 14 new golf carts to be offered for rent at the WTC Golf Course.

It was noted the current carts, purchased three years ago, have generated a profit of some $10,000 annually, a figure which takes into account their initial purchase price plus all needed repairs.

Fourteen E-Z-Go brand golf cars purchased three years ago totaled some $30,800. Income for these carts annually through rentals was estimated at $21,755.

In another bid item, trustees authorized a $12,394 outlay of budgeted monies to purchase automotive equipment for college classes.

Items approved include a digitial gas analyzer, a digital oscillosope, a non-monorized wheel balancer and an alternator-voltage regulator tester.

Based upon a staff recommendation, a $9,600 bid for an alignment machine drive-on ramp was not accepted. Jerry Dennis, director of occupational education, said he now believes the existing ramp can be altered at a reduced cost estimated at $4,000.

In other board action, trustees:

—Approved contracts with school districts where WTC extension center classes are being held this fall.

—Reappointed Roger Mize and Bill Jones to new three-year terms on the WTC Scholarship Foundation Committee. Jones, who resigned from his trustee post in August, had served as the board's representative on the committee. His reappointment was suggested by board member Bill Wilson, who moved the board waive the requirement for board membership in light of Jones' "service and dedication" to the scholarship board.

WTC trustees conducted a brief executive session at the beginning of the meeting to discuss personnel. No actien followed the session, however.

Board members attending Monday were R.C. Patton, board president, Edwin Parks Jr., Bill Wilson and Bob Hargrove. Absent were Roy Baze and Howard Sterling.

Criminal mischief incidents reported

Police are investigating two criminal mischief complaints filed Monday.

Don Cheek, local Borden's Milk distributor, filed the first at 1:47 p.m. He said someone had apparently turned off the cooling unit on one of his trucks — parked on a vacant lot at Ave. K and 24th St. — sometime between Aug. 28 and Sept. 8.

Listed as damaged was a large quantity of ice cream and frozen desserts. No estimate was available for the value of the ruined merchandise.

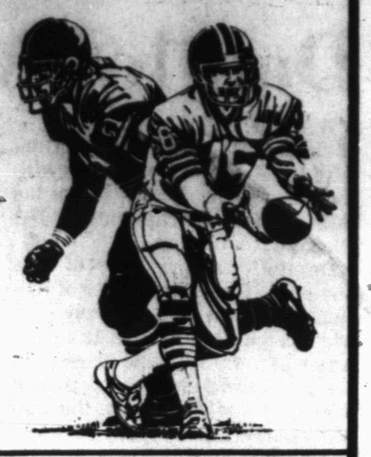

Anna Ubando filed the second complaint at 8:39 p.m.

She told police that the passenger side window of her 1977 Chevrolet had been broken out while the vehicle was parked at her residence at 503 34th St.

In other action Monday, city officers jailed two Snyder men on misdemeanor charges — one for driving while intoxicated and one for public intoxication.
