Sreywaus Case Packs Wilting Waurika Court

Girl Tells Story of Attack Made on Her By Sledge

IS GOOD WITNESS

Defendant Twitches as She Relates Sordid Story On Stand

WAURIKA, Okla., June 18.—Another day of intense heat with a sun pouring molten rays on the parched pavement, found Jefferson county court room again packed and crowded to listen to the harrowing details of the assault charged to have been committed by Harry Sledge, scion of a wealthy Duncan family upon Ethel Sreywaus. Old men with gray heads stood for hours with hands cupped back of ears, which were no longer acute in hearing, fearful of missing even one word of the story that fell haltingly from a young girl's trembling lips.

Women who were mothers and grandmothers forgot to wave the fans with which they had provided themselves, when the testimony reached its peak in interest and sordidness, while giggling flappers stood first on one foot and then the other, listening and craning forward to catch a glimpse of the quiet, reserved, modest and well-behaved little French-American girl, as she told the story of shame that she says came to her on Saturday night, February 21.

Elements of Tragedy.

All the elements of tragedy and heart break are present, and aside from a personal tilt between the lawyers representing the opposite sides, not one stray bit of humor has found its way into the crowded, stuffy court room. Nothing is to be heard except the occasional shuffling of feet as someone changes position, and the low tones of the witnesses as they mingle with a continual hum and drone of the electric fans.

At 9 o'clock this morning Ethel Sreywaus was called to the witness stand. Quietly, but in a voice thick with tears, she told her story of February 21, in all its sordidness. She told of being fatherless and having made her home with the R. W. McClure family for the past three years and that she and her two sisters, Lillian and Odie, who are employed as domestic help in different homes, roomed together at the home of Mrs. Leahy. She told in substance that she knew Ted Elliott well, had had a date with him a few nights previous to the night of February 21, and that she trusted him. The other two boys she was introduced to that night as Harry Sledge, and "Bill" Smith, instead of Bill Brown. She said that all three came to Mrs. Leahy's that night and asked Ethel to go to the Sledge home in Duncan and play the Victrola for a time. She consented to go with them after the promised to go for another girl by the name of Billy Morrison.

Go to Ranch.

After getting Billy and driving about town for a time the party of three boys and two girls drove out of Duncan one-half mile to the Sledge farm house. Harry got out of the car and went in and lighted a fire and turned on the lights in one room. He then called to Ted Elliott, who got out and went in the house. They were in there just a few minutes when they called to Bill Brown to come and bring his girl, Billy Morrison.

Ted asked Ethel then to get out of the car and go in the house and after some coaxing she did, Miss Sreywaus said. They went straight through the house to the middle room. No one was there except Bill Brown and he and Billy Morrison went into another room when the Morrison girl suddenly screamed out. At this Ethel asked Elliott to take her home. She said she knew that was no place for her, as hard as she had worked through the years to keep her character and that she must be taken home. Here she testified that Harry Sledge came between her and Elliott stating:

"I want your girl."

Elliott left the room, leaving Ethel and Harry Sledge alone. He immediately threw her on a couch, she testified, and as he did so she heard a car drive away. Sledge is alleged to have told her at this point that she was alone with him and entirely at his mercy, adding:

"Everybody thinks I am tough and I'll make you know that I am."

Choked and Beat Her

He choked her and beat her with his doubled fists, she said, and every time he released her she would continue to scream. Finally he told her that he would not kill her but that he would accomplish his purpose with her.

Later, he told her to get up and wash her face and to promise to say nothing about the affair as she couldn't afford to—having no one to protect her, no father and no brother; while he had the Sledge money and influence, she testified.

Turning, Sledge spied Bill Brown's

One Legged, Wins Leg Case With Help Of 3 In Like Case

DALLAS, June 18.—Cancellaton of a check to an artificial limb company for payment of a balance due on a wooden leg, because, as he alleged, the leg did not fit, was sustained by decision in justice court here today. Suit for the balance was entered by the manufacturing concern and a jury decided the defendant had a right to cancel the check.

MISS MARMON TAKES LEAD IN BATHING SHOW

Miss Evelyn Frances Lyle Is Picked by Judges At Olympic

Miss Evelyn Frances Lyle as the Frita Motor company's "Miss Marmon" brought down a ringing round of applause from a crowded house at the Olympic theatre last night in the initial showing of the Wichita Falls merchant's bathing girls' revue and carried off the first night's banner in the three-lap affair that is to decide "Miss Wichita Falls" on Saturday night.

Miss Lyle, in a pink-white bathing costume that ruffled out in an exquisite prettiness and daintiness, was the judges first choice. "Miss Marmon" was "Miss Wichita" for last night at least.

Second in the choice of the judges was Miss Ina Merle Robinson as "The Flapper Wife," who divided applause nearly equally with "Miss Marmon."

"Miss Goodyear"

Gene Segall Tire company's "Miss Goodyear" was one of the favorites. Miss Johnnie Sadler took the part. Her costume, a lightly tinted affair that offset a charming personality was one of the features of the show.

Miss Peggy Eastwood was the Perkins-Timberlake presentation, representing the "Jantzen Girl," a beautiful girl dolled up in a jewel bedecked costume that offset well a charming smile and winning demeanor.

Miss Ava Gregg was "Miss Ludlam and Riggs," wearing a beautiful costume of special design that brought down round after round of the applause of the house.

The Art Jewelry store chose color and a girl who could wear color, and presented Miss Rebecca Walker as "The Queen of the Jewels," a diamond bedecked girl in a black bathing suit, one of the most attractive features of the revue.

"The Powder Puff Girl" was the Central Drug Store's entrant. Miss Maud Mayo played the part dressed in a costume that looked like a massive

Two Safe Crackers at Northside Lumber Company Are Accosted

ONE IS WOUNDED

Hospitals and Physicians Placed on Warning To Watch

At 1 a. m. police reported one man arrested when he came to the city hall to claim the automobile officers confiscated at the Northside lumber yard following a shooting at two men surprised in the place. He made a clean breat of the thing, police reported, and said he and a companion, whose name he gave and for whom a search was being conducted early Friday morning, were trying to steal some automobile tires from the company.

What would probably been another costly safe robbery was averted here early Thursday night when city police laid down a barrage of shots as two men who leaped a fence in the rear of the Northside Lumber company yards in North Wichita and made their escape in the darkness of the Wichita river banks. Plain clothes men Carmichael, one of the parties of officers sent to the scene on reports that the safe was being looted declared emphatically he believed one of the men had been hit.

Watch Hospitals.

Officers kept a watch on the hospital and physicians offices last night to see that no one came in for medical attention for gunshot wounds.

The two men, a description of neither of whom could be obtained were actually in the office of the company when found. The lumber yard is on the Burkburnett road just a short point west of the river bridge. A man living near the yards and whose name police did not obtain saw the pair moving about inside the office. He phoned the city hall and then stood guard with a shotgun until a squad of officers arrived.

While the police were closing in on the office the men evidently became alarmed, for the next thing the officers knew they saw two figures scrambling frantically over a fence in the rear of the yards. Pitsols and a shotgun flared out at them but in the darkness and excitement the men made their escape.

Tamper With Safe.

The safe, officials of the company said, had been tampered with but the thieves had evidently been surprised before they could make much head way. No tools were found near it.

A Ford touring car, however, was seized by the police and is now being held at the city hall with the suppession that it belongs to the robbers. It was found at the side of the road near the lumber yards and residents of that neighborhood could give no information as to its ownership. Officers are confident it is the property of the thieves and claim they have a valuable clue as to the identity of the men.

Speculation arose after the shooting as to whether the men foiled last night were the same who in the past week have looted three safes of large amounts of cash. It is possible, they say, that the men are the same.

TO LAY LONG GAS LINE

Kansas City Company in Constract in Webb County

SAN ANTONIO, June 18.—The Mission Oil company of Kansas City, has contracted with O. W. Killam of Laredo for gas from its Webb county fields and will lay a 12-inch pipe line to McMullen county, where it will connect with the Southern Natural Gas company line, now serving San Antonio with natural gas.

The line is now being surveyed and Dec. 1, is the date named for completion. WARN MORE "WATCH STEP" AT LAKE KEMP

Iirrigation Board Takes Decisive Action In Fencing Case

Official protest against the proposed steps for creating a pleasure resort and leasing tracts of land around Lake Kemp by the W. T. Waggoner estate was voiced Thursday morning by officials of irrigation district No. 1. At a meeting of the board, a letter was drafted and forwarded to R. L. More, Mr. Waggoner's agent at Vernon, protesting against the plan as outlined by him.

They warned Mr. More they would hold him strictly accountable for any pollution of Lake Kemp waters that might arise from the building up of a pleasure resort. They also protested virgorously against commercialization of the lake's attraction by charging a fee for admittance to it. It pointed out that taxpayers of Wichita county had assumed a taxation burden to pay for the lake and that it was unfair to them to make a charge for reaching the water.

The letter follows:

"The W. T. Waggoner estate:

"Attention Mr. R. L. Moore, Vernon, Texas.

"We have read in the newspapers of this city a proposed plan whereby you expect to put into operation a proposition to lease lots surrounding Lake Kemp and to lay out certain tracts for park purposes and other tracts where admissions will be charged to the public. We assume that the page ad in the Wichita Falls paper of yesterday correctly represents your intentions in this matter. Assuming, we are taking the liberty of referring you to the contract un

LONDON, June 18.—(AP) — A Shanghai dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says that fifty thousand persons attended an anti-foreign demonstration there demanding war against Great Britain and Japan. Many foreign refugees from the interior are flocking into Shanghai.

Warning Sounded From Great Britain

LONDON, June 18. — (AP) — Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain stated in the house of commons today that with other itnerested powers the British government would protect the life and property of British subjects in China and would hold the Chinese government responsible for all injuries and for all damages. "There can be no weaknesses or hesitation," declared Chamberlain.

Diplomatic Corps Fails Its Mission

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18. —(AP)—The representatives of the diplomatic corps at Peking, who went to Shanghai with the hope of settling the unrest there resulting from the anti-foreign demonstrations, have returned to Peking without having succeeded in their purpose. They, however, carried bacg proposals made by Admiral Tasi Ting-Kan, and Tseng-Chien, vice minister of foreign affairs in the Peking government who represented China in the negotiations for the settlement of several major issues long desired by China.

Demand Mixed Court.

These included the "rendition" of the mixed court and Chinese representation in the government of the international settlements.

"I set down and hurt myself today when I was walkin' backwards so my Sunday school teacher wouldn't see m patch."

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.
How I Stand.

EACH month I figure each amount
I have in every bank account,
A little here, a little there,
Although but little I can spare,
And write it out in flowing hand—
Each month I figure how I stand.

And yet myself I never ask,
Myself I never take to task,
I never ask myself the way
I really stand myself today—
Not at the banks, but how I look
In something else besides a book.

How do I look in other's eyes?
A bit more foolish, bit more wise?
Yes, when the month begins or ends,
How do I stand among my friends?
How does the page of life appear
To those I know, to those most dear?

Have I lived down some foolish past?
Have I learned common sense at least?
Have I paid off a debt or two,
Some bank of love I overdrew?
Whatever figures may infer,
Have I improved my character?

I wonder what men think of me?
I wonder just what women see?
A darker soul, a cleaner mind,
A heart more cruel or more kind?
Perhaps my monthly blaance grows—
I may be poorer though, God knows.

Folks know that I am doing well;
They know how much I buy and sell;
But do they think of me tonight
Not doing well but doing right?
With God and family and land
I wonder how I really stand?

Explorer Got Back to Civilization in Fishing Boat Which Found Him

TO TRY IT AGAIN

Exact Distance From Pole Will Approximate 100 Miles

OSLO, Norway, June 18. (AP)—Ronald Amundsen, explorer did not return from the Arctic to Spitzbergen by plane, but was picked up by a fishing boat and taken there.

OSLO, June 18.—(AP) The entire Roald Amundsent north pole expedition arrived safely in Spitzbargen in one plane. The party did not return to King's Bay by plane, but was picked up by a fishing boat and conveyed there. It is reported that the expedition reached north latitude 88 degrees, 30 minutes, or about 100 miles from the north pole.

Explorer Descended At Latitude 87.10

STOCKHOLM, June 18. A dispatch received here from Oslo, Norway, says the two airplanes in which Roal Amundsen's expedition set out for the north pole on May 21 arrived in Spitzzerge Tuesday afternoon.

The dispatch indicated the members of the expedition are safe and that it is likely a new attempt to reach the pole would be made shortly.

The dispatch received here says Amundsen used so much fuel that he was unable to continue and after descending in latitude 87.10 was forced to return to Spitzbergen.

Two Degrees Lacked Him of His Goal

COPENHAGEN, June 18.—(AP)—It is reported here that the Amundsen expedition returned to Spitzbergen in one machine, the other plane being unserviceable.

The expedition appears to have reached a point two degrees from the north pole.

Modesty May Yet Hide a Big Secret

LONDON, June 18.—(AP) — The Daily Mail quotes Smith Peterson, secretary of the Norwegian club, at the Norwegian legation in London, as saying that he had received information but which had not been confirmed, that the entire crews of both Amundsen planes were picked up by the Norwegian government patrol boat Heimdal, which is attached to the expedition sent north by Norway to endeavor to find Amundsen.

Hoppers Pick Iowa Park As Roost, Notify All Relatives, Then "Hop"

IOWA PARK, June 18.—"Grasshopper pie" could have been a leading item on the bills of fare of local cafes Thursday night when the summer's first swarm of hoppers invaded and practically took possession of this community.

Started Out Early.

Starting early in the evening when a brisk wind moved in from the southwest, millions of the insects made their appearance here. Early light was a magnet for the attraction of the leaping, flying pests. Screens were a positive necessity.

Even at that the hoppers could not be entirely excluded from enclosures, and throughout the night cafe waiters battled with hoppers, some "as big as spriggies," which flopped through the shelves, bathed in soft custard pie and used cups and glasses for roosts.

Stick On Radiators.

Automobiles coming in from all directions reported roads and fields alive with them. Hundreds of dead ones were found stuck into the radiators of machines, impaled when they dashed headlong for the glaring lights. Tires bore a uniform coating of slime green mash—the result of crushing countless hoppers resting in the path of the wheels.

Mixed in with the hopper hordes were millions of small green bugs that circled in never-ending orbits around every light. They were more difficult to keep outside than the larger hoppers.

By the Millions.

Farmers in this territory have reported hoppers by the millions in their fields for the last two weeks, but this is the first time the pests have invaded the urban district. The area from which they came seemed to be largely localized, neither Electra nor Wichita Falls reporting the hoppers in such severe quantities. The hopper belt extended for perhaps six miles on all sides of the city.

THIRTY GO

American Leasehold Among Properties to Be Visited

The American Refining company is host today to some 30 representative business men of Wichita Falls and Fort Worth at a sightseeing party over the Carson county oil fields east of Amarillo, Texas, Panhandle.

The party left Wichita Falls at 5 this morning in a special Pullman on the Fort Worth and Denver and expected to arrive in Claude about noon today. At noon the party was to be met by a committee of Claude's business men who were to escort the visitors over the Carson fields. Some seven or eight hours were to be spent in the field, after which the party intends to catch a Fort Worth and Denver train back, arriving in Wichita Falls early Saturday morning.

The American Refining company has long been a prominent operating company in the Panhandle, owing extensive properties there. According to Mr. Priddy, president of the company, last night, many of the company's directors even had never seen the field there, and the present party was arranged as much fo rtheir benefit as for Wichitans who wished to make the trip under competent guidance and direction.

Mr. F. A. Clarity, vice president and general manager of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, and W. F. Sterley, general freight and passenger agent, both of Fort Worth are also accompanying the party.

The list of those making the trip follows:

face at the window of the room and called out:

"Come on in Bill."

A little later Elliott returned and came into the room and Ethel told him that Sledge was a brute, when Sledge interrupted her by saying:

"Don't call me a brute or I'll knock your other eye out." The Sreywaus girl testified that she had fought and bitten, using all the force she could command to protect herself against him and was physically exhausted.

Makes Good Witness

The little Sreywaus girl made a good witness, although she would choke and tears would fill her eyes as she told the story.

Sledge, who passes for just the ordinary chap, not degenerate or debauched, sat facing her as she told the story of her shame. He twitched nervously at times. Without hesitation she told the harrowing story of her resistance to him, her story tallying with those as told on the stand by her sister, Lillian, and Billy Morrison.

Her testimony was finished when she told of how a conference was held and an effort made to get her to agree to say that she was in a car wreck and how, after a long time Ted Elliott took her home. She related how she was unable to walk into the house that night at 11 o'clock but had to be carried in by Ted Elliott and her sister, Lillian. The latter putting her in bed and calling Dr. Don McGregor, in whose home her sister is employed. She left the stand after a grilling cross examination in which the defense sought to prove, by indirect attack, that she was not of good repute. This she denied bitterly.

Doctor's Called.

Dr. Don McGregor was the next witness called by the state and he testified as to the serious physical condition in which he found the patient, her body bruised and beating, bearing mute testimony to the struggle she had been through. Dr. D. Long and Dr. J. P. Bartley, both of whom were called in consultation by Dr. McGregor, substantiated the medical testimony of Dr. McGregor which was to the effect that until the night of February 21, Ethel Sreywaus had been a girl of virtue.

The defense will begin the presentation of its testimony Friday morning.

radio from the Heimdal which reported "all safe and well," was followed by the names of the pilots and all members of both crews. He added:

"There is no mention in our information as to whether Amundsen actually reached the pole. We are prepared to believe, however, that he did, and that the absence of an announcement of it in his message is only an indication of the explorer's modesty. Our chief reason for believing he accomplished his object, is when he reached Auckland, New Zealand, from the south pole he did not mention his great achievement."

Norwegian Capital Celebrates His Return

LONDON, June 18.—(AP)—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegram from Copenhagen gives a message received from Oslo which says that when the first brief report that Amundsen had returned was received in the Norwegian capital the news was posted in windows. Crowds gathered in the streets and cheered loudly. The restaurants suspended their musical programs in order to enable their bands to play thhe national anthem, after which the patrons cheered Amundsen.

der which our rights are held. While this contract or similar contracts have not been construed by the courts of this state, yet we think our rights and your rights are reasonably clearly defined thereby.

"You are therefore advised that you have no right to lease any of the lands included within the basin or reservoir when the water in the reservoir is at high water mark, that is to say, when the water runs over the spillway. This refers not only to the lands bordering the lake, but to the islands included therein. We recognize your rights as to the lands outside of the high water mark and your right to lease or sell the same, provided that the same shall not be used in such manner as to pollute the water of said reservoir.

"You are therefore advised that district protests and protests virogorously, accountable for the pollution of the waters of said reservoir in leading lots on lands which may be owned by you and not affected by the contract, or polluting it by other use permitted under the contract down to the water's edge. The district recognizes that it cannot be expected to keep itself fully advised of the various leases which you may undertake to make, nor as to the terms which you may impose under said contract, but that the district will look to you for any damages by reason of the pollution of said reservoir under the scheme which you have promulgated as disclosed by the newspapers.

"You are further advised that the district protests and protests vigorously against your capitalizing the large expenditure of the taxpayers' money of the district in the construction of this great reservoir and the irrigation system by charging exorbitant or unreasonable rentals for leases, and the like. You are further advised that the district protests virogously against any excessive or exorbitant rental to be charged by you and will not under any circumstances recognize that your leases have any rights to the reservoir itself unless such rights, permissive or otherwise, shall be granted by the district itself.

"In this connection the district wishes to make clear its intention and its views and to say that the district believes that this great reservoir should be used freely and to the fullest extent by the people of this district and of Texas, uninterrupted and unimpeded by any unreasonable regulations, considerations or restrictions, and so far as the district is concerned, all people will be treated alike and will be given the fullest rights and privileges thereone with only such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent the pollution of the reservoir. On the othe hand, we believe that you should vie with the district in making this reservoir a great and wholesome playground for the people of this district and state and that no sordid motives should be permitted at any time to enter into the matter.

"Yours very truly,

"J. A. Kemp, T. B. Noble, G. C. Wood, N. H. Martin, J. S. Bridwell, directors of Wichita county water improvement district No. 1."

RUM RUNNERS SET ADRIFT BY ROBBER BAND

Hi-Jackers Strap Them In Boat and Leave Them

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—(AP)—The story of a night fight between hi jackers and five rum runners which ended in the latter being bound in the forecastle of their boat and left to drift helplessly toward the Gulf of Mexico was told today in dispatches to the Daily States from Morgan City, La.

The members of the crew were rescued by another small vessel and brought to Morgan City where they identified Alonzo Lee as one of the attacking party. He was arrested and the sheriff said had given him names of others.

The dispatches said the vessel was the power boat Searus. Her liquor cargo named as 620 cases of whiskey and many sacks containing bottles of assorted liquors was taken, as was the little vessel's gasoline supply.

"Teenth" Began At Galveston Capture By Federal Forces

Today is Emancipation Day, the greatest day in the world for American colored folks, and the colored population of Wichita Falls are preparing to celebrate in the most elaborate manner. An all-day and night affair has been arranged and a number of prominent white citizens have been invited to make addresses during the festivities.

President Lincoln issued a proclamation on January 1, 1863, declaring all slaves in the states then in the Confederacy to the 'then, thence-forward,, and forever free." A preliminary proclamation had been issued on September 22, 1862, giving warning of the intended measure.

Negroes throughout the nation now celebrate June 19 as Emancipation Day. This date was first observed in Texas. A federal naval officer captured Galveston on June 18, 1865, and on the following day he proclaimed the negroes of the island and Texas to be free of bondage.

Fewer Boosts In City's Taxes, Hyer

Wichita Falls property owners did a much better job of rendering their property for taxation this year than last, figures compiled as a result of the recent meeting of the board of equalization show.

W. R. Hyer, tax assessor and collector, said Thursday that only 1,000 cards had been sent out this year giving notice of tax increases, whereas about 2,500 were mailed out last year. This means, of course, that the board found it necessary this year to make some 1,500 fewer increases than last.

Thisis attributed in much degree to the unit system of appraisment which has been installed and used for the first time this year.

The board will meet again June 26 to 30 to listen to protests on the raises.

Defeated Forces In Role of Scavengers

during the demonstrations, while in some places, such as Canton, a general strike is planned for June 25. The shipping strike at Shanghai already serious, is feared will spread.

Battle In Progress.

The Cantonese who drove the Yunnaneze from Canton are restoring the city. Foreigners are stil lapprehensive and a number of the schools conducted by foreign teachers in Canton have closed and the teachers have left for Hongkong.

Defeated Forces In Role of Scavengers

CANTON, June 18.—Daily strike meetings; business gradually resuming; remnants of the Yunnaneze forces being put to work as scavengers; this is the daily picture of Canton, this week a city at peace, last week torn by civil war.

Business is inproving, although the money market is still closed. The government central bank of China is preparing to open. The defactor government has temporarily abolished a number of miscellaneous taxes, adding in business recovery.

With peace prevailing in the city severe fighting between the forces of General Li Fook-Lum, who captured Canton last Saturday, and Leung Hing-Kai, is reported going on today at Fatshan a dozen miles to the southwest.

Meetings are being held in Canton daily to promote sentiment for the proposed general strike starting June 25 against the British and Japanese employers especially, but to include Americans later. The strike committee is also interesting themselves in the foreign control in the schools. One resolution adopted at a special meeting of the committee, would forbid students entering "imperialistic institutions."

Most of the foreign controlled schools are reported closing down for a time, the foreign teachers proceeding to Hong Kong. The situation is regarded as very uncertain. Alex Baxter, vice president of the Canton Christian college today refuted reports of serious interruption to work at the college, although admitting that sympathy with the Shanghai students had had some slight effect on the college students.

Three marrage licenses were the sum total issued Thursday by the county clerk's office. They went to the following: F. J. Andrews, Wichita Falls and Ruth Pippins, Wichita Falls; J. W. Gilreath, Burkburnett and Mrs. Zeffe Logan, Burkburnett; George E. Moore, Wichita Falls and Miss Hazel Ewing, Wichita Falls.

powder puff. Her samples of powder and sachet were distributed among the audience.

"The Wallpaper Girl"

"The Wallpaper Girl" of the Watson Paint and Paper company was Miss Aileen Richardson in a costume of white figured with charming wallpaper designs.

The Wichita Daily Times entrant, "The Flapper Wife," played by Miss Ina Merle Robinson, was a yellow costumed girl with a large white ribbon over her shoulders bearing her title on either side so that the audience might see.

Miss Billie Tucker in a flaming red bathing suit with a still redder military cape to set it off right was "Miss Record News."

"Miss Vendope" was Miss Edna Ritter, attired in a bathing suit costume decorated with miniature flags of every nation. Her march to the music of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" was impressive and beautiful.

Canoe Girl Stars

Landon-Hill gave the show one of its most popular entrants in Miss Evelyn Barker as the "Canoe Girl," a tall athletic sort attired in a striking red costume and carrying a canoe paddle in a real out-of-doors sort of manner.

The girls were all allowed to promenade on the stage to music of their own selection by Mayer's Orchestra De Luxe, the "Satisfied Seven."

Last night's judges were J. Wilkie Talbert, Judge Edgar A. Scurry and J. E. Gill. The basis of each award was the amount of applause that greeted the contestants.

If it should happen that one girl does not win a majority of the various nights' selections the two or three winners will be judged again Saturday night following the regular revue. Cash prizes and a beautiful silver loving cup is being awarded by the Olympic to the winners.

Tonight's revue will take place about 9 o'clock.

Following last night's performance D. L. Fitz of the Fritz Motor company, called The Record News and asked that paper to thank those whose applause won for "Miss Marmon" last night's decision.

at Quanah shortly after 7 o'clock and it was still raining slowly at the midnight hour. Vernon reported no rain. Amarillo got just enough rain to settle the dust.

The rain over that section will prove of immense value to crops. Southwestern Oklahoma and the Lower Panhandle counties have received frequent rains during the past two months and crop conditions were never better. Thursday night's rain was not needed but it will prove of real value to all kinds crops and the cattle range.

Wheeler County Shows Twelve Operations --Has Three Oilers Now

TEXHOMA DUE NEXT WELL IN JACKSON NO. 1

Local Company's Well Is Now Shut in at 2,243 Feet

OTHERS DRILLING

Panhandle County Shows Near Boom of Few Months Ago

Wheeler county, Texas, on the far east edge of the Panhandle production shows an almost phenomenal development for that part of the country situated as it is far from a real outlet for the oil and in an almost inacessible portion of the country. A summary of the area shows 12 separate operations with others likely soon.

Texhoma is due the next completion there in its No. 1, Jackson, standing shut in at 2,243 feet, a well of some sort.

A summary follows:

W. D. Shedden, agent, in No. 1-C. Westmoreland, in the center of the northwest of section 27, block A-8, H &GN survey, is shut down at 1,961 feet, where it had a good gas show. A new string of 8 1-4 inch casing is to be run.

W. D. Shedden, trustee, in No. 1. Elmer, in the center of the northeast of section 70, block A-8, is drilling at 1,600 feet.

Noble brothers in the northwest of the southeast of the northeast of section 9, block 27, had a show of gas around 1,900 feet.

Globe Oil company No. 1, Tindall, in the northwest of the southwest of the southwest of section 29, block A-8, is around 1,700 feet.

Best Oil company in the southwest of the southeast of the northwest of section 19, block A-8, is drilling.

Texhoma Oil and Refining company No. 1, Jackson, in the northeast of the northeast of the northwest of section 18, block A-8, is now drilling.

Pendleton and Vaughn, is below 1,800 feet in the center of the northwest of section 4, block A-8.

Phillips and others in the southeast of the northwest of the southeast of section 41, block 24, is around 300 feet.

Whittington's No. 3, in the northeast of the northwest of the northeast of section 9, block 27, is a 65 barrel well; his No. 2, in the southwest of the northeast of the northeast of the same section, is to be shot; No. 4, in the southeast of the southeast of the northwest of the same section, is a 50 barrel well at 2,095 feet and deepening.

Wildcats Offset Each Other On East End Of Harmel--SW Archer Area

Marland - Murchison And Fain Run Three Rigs a Quarter Mile Ahead Of Production.

Three wildcat oil wells drilling 300 feet of one another is the unusual sight that the visitor to the east edge of the Harmel area is presented this week. There the Marland Oil company of Texas and the Murchison and Fain Oil company have three rigs running on the east line of their Echols B, lease in block 2405, TE&LCO survey, just a little better than a quarter of a mile ahead of production at that point.

Stories and more stories have been written about the lone wildcat well out on the bald prairie, but in the modern day of ultra-scientific way of doing things it is now necessary to write about a wildcat group. The wells are situated offsetting each other. No. 1-B located 1,050 feet north of the southeast corner of the block. No. 2, just 300 feet north of that and No. 3 about 300 feet south of the No. 1. No. 1 is down about 1,000 feet, No. 2 about 700 feet and No. 3 about 400 feet.

The key to a situation that at first seems a bit risky and venturesome on the part of the operators is found in a small hole, already filled with mud and abandoned which Marland Oil company went to the trouble to make some weeks ago very near the location of the No. 1, well. A diamond core drill of the type Marland has used successfully all over the east Texas and other Mid-Continent areas was used to drill a small hole and take a perfect core of something down about 1,400 feet. Just what was found there is the secret of the geological department of the Marland Oil company, but whatever it was it was deemed sufficient first to start one hole, then another and another, till now the three rigs are running a quarter mile or so ahead of production.

Gulf Production company owns the offset here and is sitting back and taking things easy until one of the wells is completed.

Oil Gossip

C. E. Hyde, chief geologist for the Marland Oil company of Texas and a resident of Houston, was a Wichita Falls visitor yesterday.

F. J. McNellie of Houston, production superintendent for the Marland Oil company of Texas is spending a few days in Wichita Falls.

THE GOAL OF EDUCATION.

At the University of Texas commencement exercises, Dr. Splaun, president of the institution, called for a restoration of cultural education to its rightful place in modern teaching. He demanded a certain amount of learning for the sake of learning, and thought it should precede special training to give balance and proportion to the mind whose talents are to be highly developed in a single direction.

In dealing with the larger aspects of his subject, Dr. Splawn carried his hearers back to Jefferson, who stood for training for leadership and the general spread of knowledge to enlighten the people. There is both intellectual courage and mental grasp in the two following paragraphs taken from the university president's address and which condition the substance of his reasoning:

"To protect the community against technical men who are ignorant of most things outside their profession, but who because of their technical proficiency are supposed to have wide knowledge, it is necessary to prescribe the liberalizing and citizenship courses as prerequisite for the entrance upon the vocational subjects. The people are going to trust their lawyers, their doctors, their engineers and others technically equipped, with a certain amount of leadership. It is, therefore, necessary that those entering upon these highly specialized vocations shall first be educated. They should have that liberal training which would at least make them conscious of their own limitations, give them perspective and enable them to point to sources of correct information.

"We want here at the University of Texas the best teaching in the country. We want to do our part in extending the frontiers of knowledge. We want through the university to make available to the people of Texas as much of the sum total of knowledge as they need to employ. The truth will make us free—free from crude and blundering methods, from prejudices, from partisanships, from superstition. The truth will enable us to unlock resources, both material and spiritual, that will contribute to such happiness and joy of living as men have not yet believed possible."

Thus Dr. Splawn makes the Jeffersonian ideal of the "pursuit of happiness' 'the goal of true education. The ministry of teaching is to increase the sum of human happiness. Knowledge is to serve freedom by putting into the hands of the people a means of testing the leadership which they must follow. It is to impress men in the professions and high public positions with a due sense of their fallibility and teach man to seek for confirmation of their opinions in the appeal to "sources of correct information" of which an enlightened people are competent to judge. Thus education is a vitalizing influence upon democracy, and as such only can it have a future in this country where everything is made to serve the cause of the people.

OUR POOR VOTING RECORD.

We may have to revise the established opinion of European indifference to government and American interest in politics if a recent canvass of the actual voting strength of leading countries of the world is correct. Simon Michelet, president of the National Get-out-the-Vote club, has compiled some figures which show the United States rather far down the line in point of percentage of qualified voters who actually cast their ballots in national elections.

According to Mr. Michelet, only 50 per cent of our qualified voters take part in national elections. New Zealand heads this list with 60 to 84 per cent. Great Britain comes next with 76 to 82 per cent. Germany follows with 75 to 82 per cent and France is fourth with 70 per cent. Australia, Canada, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland rank nearly as high as the leaders. In all these countries more than 50 per cent of those qualified actually vote.

After having, for many decades, asserted the superiority of our institutions on the ground of the popular interest which supports them, we can hardly admit that Europeans are really more public-spirited than Americans. There must be some other explanation of our poor showing in the matter of voting. And here two considerations suggested themselves. In practically all the countries that lead us in voting, the national governments exercise powers which with us belonog to the states. And in the larger European countries tremendous changes have occurred in the last few years, presenting the electorate questions of the gravest importance.

Forty years ago, before we had acquired highly ddeveloped industrial civilization, our country had a voting record which would rival the best in the world today. The increasing complexity of our modern life has brought with it a certain dampening of populaar enthusiams for public affairs. Moreover, in our recent political compaigns real issues have been lacking. The people have remained more or less preoccupied with their economical concerns because there has been no political issue sufficiently challenging to arouse them to their full duty as citizens.

That Americans are actually indifferent to the public welfare can easily be disproved. They are neither negligent nor aloof in their mental attitude toward public affairs. They have not withdrawn themselves from politics. They simply want issues and programs great enough to draw them from their private concerns. Had we experienced anything like the upheavals which have taken place in Europe in recent years, our stay-at-home voters would form an insignificant minority instead of equalling in number those who exercise the franchise.

FIRST TEXAS BALE.

And now it is announced that the first bale of cotton of the 1925 crop was picked and ginned in the magic valley and shipped to Houston to be sold. It is significant that the 1925 bale was 26 days ahead of the first bale last year. It is not significant that the first bale was shipped from Houston to New York. Houston is getting to be one of the cotton export ports of the world.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

The Drug Contentment.

"Love the little trade which thou has learned and be content therewith," said Emperor Marcus Aurelius to his subjects.

It was good advice in those days.

Kindly and enlightened as the emperor was, there would have been troubled ahead of any of his subjects who tried to rise above their environment.

Contentment was a salutary quality.

But bad contentment continued throughout history, we still would have progressed about as far as the subjects of Marcus Aurelius.

Practically everything that has been accomplished has been accomplished because somebody was discontented.

James Watt was discontented with the amount of labor involved in doing tasks by hand.

So he began to study the power in the expansive force of steam, and presently the steam engine began doing man's work for him, and carrying him on his journey.

Some hundred or more years afterward other men began to be discontented with the cumbrous steam engine which was so heavy it could not be harnessed to light vehicles.

So they turned their attention to adapting the newly devised explosive engine to a carriage, and the automobile was on its way.

From time to time the people of various nations have been contented with bad government administered solely in the interest of selfish tyrants and their underlings.

Then there have been wars, and when the wars have ceased, freedom has been won.

A man may find contentment in his home, in his wife and children, but when he begins to find it in his job, and in himself, there is something wrong with him.

And when he begins to think that the world is all right as it is, and that nothing he can do or help to do will make it any better, he needs some kind of a shock to wake him up, for he is drugging himself with a mental poison.

The work that we were sent into this world to do by Divine Providence is barely begun.

We have all the tools and the materials we need for making it better and happier.

But these tools we must develop by use, and the materials we must find for ourselves, as we have found many of them in the past, and are still finding more.

"That sort of thing is not contentment.

Science is not contentment.

Self-satisfaction with what one has done, no matter how important it may have been, is extremely dangerous.

And it is dangerous, too, for the inhabitants of the world to be satisfied with what others have done before them, so long as there is sorrow and misery and suffering around them.

All progress has grown out of discontent, and always will. We talk of contentment as the goal to be gained, but it is really one of the forces that has acted through the centuries as a brake on achievement, and a snuffer on the candle of enlightenment.

Find a contented man and you will find a dull one.

Find a discontented man and you at least find a force which can be harnessed and made to do something useful.

CAPPER ON FORD.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, in one of his newspapers, places Henry Ford in his picture gallery as the first American billionaire. Indeed the Kansas senator insists that Henry Ford is the first billionaire that the world has produced.

Senator Capper volunteers information that Wall Street watches Henry Ford like a hawk, and the lightning calculators of Wall Street after scanning the balance sheet of the Ford Motor Company figured up the total value of the company to be $863,000,000,000. They figured that the surplus of the company was incorporated only 22 years ago with during 1924, and they placed it in their calculations as the Ford profit for the year.

Henry made 2,100,000 cars and trucks in 1924. He sold cars at the rate of 250 an hour, 24 hours a day, for the 300 working days. He paid his employees $253,000,000 in salary during the year. Senator Capper was astounded.

These Wall Street figures overwhelmed him. After surveying the column he explained for the benefit of his readers, "And to think that the Ford company was incorporated oney 22 years ago with $28,000 in its treasury. The story of its growth is a great romance of modern industrial history."

There are men who say that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was America's first billionaire. Indeed they say he was the world's first billionaire. He stepped aside and transferred the load to others. He has given more than $500,000,000 to religious, educational and medical research work. He has transferred, by deed or gift, hundreds of millions to his children. If he had held it all in his own name, John D. Rockefeller Sr. would have gone beyond the billionaire class.

All the world praises Henry Ford, that is, all the humanitarians and welfare workers and the wage workers of the world. For years and years the elder Rockefeller was condemned on all sides and excoriated by the merciless critics of the press and the political organizations. And yet he has given away more wealth counted in dollars than any philanthoprist the world has known.

GAS A HUMANE WEAPON.

Gas will win future wars. Gas is more humane than gun powder. Who says no? J. B. Haldaner, the noted British chemist, who was gased at one time and wounded with shell fire later on the bloody firing line of the World war. This British chemist says poison gases do not affect all persons alike. Many are found immune to mustard gas.

He says among negroes this immunity has reached 80 per cent and volunteers the information that this will make troops of the African race especially valuable in future wars in positions subject to gas attacks.

France has two immense colonial empires. French military officers have bade trained soldiers of 2,000,000 negroes, natives of its colonial empires. Why should there be wars in the future. Why not a world court? With all the great nations including the United States and Germany, to enforce the peace of the world?

PRICE HAS A PROPHET.

Col. Theodore Price of New York is one of the financial prophets of America. His latest reseme is that business is still going on smoothly, building is brisk, prices are better stabilized than they were since the close of the war, and he hopes the crops of the American farmers will keep the ship of prosperity still on even keel. Colonel Price is not a bear just at present. He is very hopeful for the future.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.
Gemini.

Today's planetary aspects are much more favorable than those that prevailed yesterday, and indicate a sense of self-reliance and confidence in one's own individual efforts, which augur well for the untimate success of any task that may be undertaken. There will also be felt a lack of hesitation in reaching definite conclusions, and much that was obscure and doubtful, will, with a little thought, become clear and positive. All the signs denote that operations related to the professions, of mining, will be especially favored. Today is an auspicious occasion for "marriage or giving in marriage," as the indications are that there will be engendered a spirit for happy wedlock.

A child born today will be erratic—both physically and tempermentally. It will be blessed with a good constitution, and though it may fall sick with frequency and suddenness, it will re over just as quickly. In disposition it will be, at times, most charming and attractive, and, without any apparent cause, will quickly change and become despondent and morose. Its character, at times, will be distinguished by great strength of purpose, while, at other times, it will reveal deplorable weakness, during which periods it will do things to cause regret and anxiety. In its affections, it will love demonstratively at one moment, and the next will be cold and indifferent. It will lack steadfastness and continuity of purpose, unless steps are taken in time to eradicate these kaleidoscopic changes and measures adopted to insure consistency.

If today is your birthday, you are too little self-assertive, and too submissive, to ever attain any great measure of success. You lack the essential of self-confidence. You possess exceptional ability and considerable intelligence, but an excess of diffidence often forces inferior qualifications. Not much can be gained by blatant self-advertising, on the other hand, all efforts lead to a "cul de sac" if one's light is hidden under a bushel.

Your charm of manner endears you to all with whom you come in contact, and you are held in the highest regard by all those who know you. In your love you are of the clinging type, and your mate is, or will be, one who is both masterful and compelling.

Successful people born on this date are: McDonald Clarke, "The Mad Poet"; Frances S. Osgood, poet and author; James E. Cabot, author; John R. Thomas, architect; James Montgomery Flagg, artist; Wm. H. Seward, soldier and banker.

Irrigation

Permanent Materials.

Yesterday we said that an earthen dam such as we have at Lake Kemp was built of the most premanent materials known and that if ample spillway capacity was provided it was a splendid type of dam.

At first thought this may not seem correct. But let us examine the statement further. Earth is disintegrated rock. It cannot undergo futher disintergration. It may in time become rock again. Shales, slates, and many sandstones were a tone time just mud and sand.

So earth is one of the most stable materials we have. Any change in form means that it will become harder.

Concrete, steel, and stone are all acted upon by the forces of nature which constantly tend to break them down into other forms.

An earthern dam is worn down by the action of the wind and the rain, but so are dams of concrete and stone. The erosion of an earth dam is much easier taken care of than in other types. It requires but little skill and the materials are plentiful and close at hand. This is not the case with stone or concrete.

Spillway capacity is the essential thing in a well built earthern dam. No matter how well constructed it may be it can be easily destroyed if water flows over it. Preventing such an accident is the function of the spillway.

The spillway at Lake Kemp will take care of ten time sas much water at the highest recorded flood in the Wichita river at the dam site.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE HOPELESS WAR

When summer's here
From far and near
A host of earnest
Folks appear
In Michigan,
Afghanistan,
And Labrador
And Quito—
And organize
To swat the flies
And with new methods
Paralyze
Thte evil mite
Which loves to bite
Us humans—the mosquito.

Yet swarms of flies
Each day arise
And light on butter,
Milk, and pies,
And though I've been
A dweller in
All sorts of far-flung regions,
On every hand
In every land,
On Arctic snows,
On desert sand—
Mosquitoes came
In just the same
Uncounted humming legions.

Flies spread disease,
And quite at ease,
Mosquitoes take their dinners,
In each new war
Like those of yore
The insects are the winners!

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

THE MODERN MOTHER NEEDS A SENSE OF PROPORTION, A SENSE OF HUMOR AND A SENSE OF RESONSIBILITY FOR THE PRODUCT SHE TURNS OUT

A woman asks:

"What qualities should an ideal mother possess?"

To begin with, a mother should have love, and tenderness, and sympathy, and be willing to sacrifice herself for her children. These are the stock virtues of motherhood, and virtually all mothers possess them.

But they alone do not make a woman a good mother. Often they do as much harm as good, for you can ruin a child by blind devotion. You can enfeeble it by too much tenderness. You can make it a selfish egotist and an overbearing brute by making yourself a doormat for it to walk over.

So to live, tenderness, sympathy and unselfishness the ideal mother must add other qualities, and the most important of these is the ability to see her job as a whole and to realize that she is responsible for the finished goods that she turns out.

Not many mothers have this vision; or, rather, they shut their eyes and refuse to see that the molding of their children's characters, the settling of their destinies, is in their own hands.

They let a high tempered child grow up undisciplined and without teaching it any self control. They let a slothful, lazy one grow up without forming habits of industry. They never teach a self-indulgent, greedy child to curb its appetite. They spoil and pamper their children, and then they say that they "hope" their children will turn out all right!

The ideal mother knows that you form children's characters in the cradle, and so she does not trust to luck with her youngsters. She begins when they are babies to teach them self-control, and thrift, and industry, and all the principles of right living.

The ideal mother must have a backbone. Unfortunately, most mothers permit their hearts to crowd out their spinal column until they have no more backbone than a fishing worm. This is why you hear women say despairingly that they can't do a hing with their 10-year-old children.

It takes nerve, and grit, and determination and courage to fight self-willed youngsters, and mother is too soft to do it. So she gives in rather than to listen to her baby's howls of rage or go through the struggle of conquering a disobedient child. And the inevitable result is that her children have a contempt for her as a weakling, and ride roughshod over her, and become the out-breaking young hoodlums who fill our jails and brothels.

The ideal mother is a human being. She doesn't pose before her children as a plaster saint or an oracle on a pedestal. One of the reasons why children do not confide in their parents is because the average father and mother pretend that they were such models of all the virtues when they were young that their children feel that they have nothing in common with them and that they wouldn't understand how a boy or girl feels who wants to do all sorts of foolish things.

How can a girl tell her mother that a boy kissed her if mother represents herself as Miss Prunes and Prisms, and says that when she was young girls never skylarked, and never went on joy-rides or to cabarets, or held hands in the movies, but spent a pleasant evening sitting up in the parlor in the presence of their elders discussing improving topics?

It is the human mothers who can sympathize with their children's desire for good times and help them to them; who will stretch a point to get a girl a new frock or a boy the fraternity pin he craves who get well enough acquainted with their children to really help them and guard them.

The ideal mother has a sense of proportion. She doesn't see her ducklings as swans. Her love doesn't blind her to her children's faults and blemishes. Rather it sharpens her vision so that she gets a line on them as they really are. Thereby she is enabled to help them make the most of such gifts as they have.

She sees that Tom is brilliant but unstable and lacking in purpoes, nad she holds him to whatever he undertakes to do until she forms the habit of steadfastness in him. She sees that John is dull but a plodder, and she trains him for some occupation in which quickness of mind is not demanded and in which the prizes go to faithfulness and hard work. She sees that Mary is intelligent but homely, and lacking the charms that allure men, so she gives her some occupation by which she can make a good living for herself and which will fill her life with interest.

And this sense of proportion keeps her from making her children ridiculous by bragging about them, and boring every one with whom she comes in contact with endless stories of what wonderful and marvelous creatures they are, and how, wherever they go, they are the cynosure of all eyes and the admiration of all beholders.

Finally, the ideal mother should have a sense of humor that will enable her to laugh instead of cry over many of her children's peccadillos and keep her from taking them too seriously. For the thing that ails young people is chiefly youth and they will get over that if you will give them a little time.

HOW IT STARTED

Cocoa—Our "Hot Chocolate"

"A hot chocolate, please!" The most popular beverage the soda fountain has to offer, cocoa has come to be regarded as an American institution; that is, we never give a thought to whence it came, or where. And the lover of the "hot chocolate" should visit Cuba or the West Indies and order a cup of his favorite drink. There she will find the original and real "hot chocolate," prepared so thick that one cannot actually drink it, but must eat it with a spoon. For that is how cocoa is "drunk" by the natives of tropical America, where it had its origin.

It is to Christopher Columbus, returning to Spain after his first trip to the West Indies, that we owe the knowledge and the use of cocoa or chocolate, which was introduced by him into Europe and thence to civilized America. Landing on the shores of the West Indies he had found the natives drinking the chocolate beverage, and among the souvenirs with which he returned from the new world were some cocoa or, properly, "cacao" beans, from which is produced cocoa and eating chocolate.

It is interesting to note that the most important species of the cacao tree is called the "Theobroma," which is Greek for "food of the gods."

DIXON SHADES RODRIGUEZ IN SLOW BATTLE

Avalon and Rich Fight To Draw—Wells Beats Clark

Dick Dixon, Fort Worth bantamweight, shaded Blas Rodrigues, speedy little Torreon flyweight, Thursday night in a 10-round main event on the weekly American legion fistic program at the Eleventh and Ohio arena.

Rodrigues did most of the leading, but Dixon scored more cleanly, countering with body blows the greater portion of the way. The Fort Worth midget, heavier and with longer arms than his opponent, fought a cool and calculating fight. A sweet left jab to the face coupled with rights to the body gave Dixon the decision. However, there was no material damage done.

Bout Bit Slow

The bout was a rather slow affair considering the weight and physical speed of the fighters.

Both boys showed cleverly on the defense. Blas could do little in the close fighting, whereas Dixon missed many blows at long range. Infighting, by the way, has been Rodrigues' strong forte in his other battles staged here over the past several weeks.

Jack Avalon, San Antonio welter, and Kid Rich of Wichita Falls, fought a 10-round draw. The San Antonioan led during the early rounds, but was more or less on the defense in the late sta zas. It was a very cautious fight.

Red Wells Wins

Red Wells, Fort Worth welter, won a decision over Benny Clark of Dallas, in a six-rounder. There was more life and real slugging in this bout than in the two headliners.

Clyde Barret, Wichita Falls lightweight, fought Bobby Wells of Fort Worth four rounds to a draw.

There was a two-round curtain raiser between a pair of 8-year-o'd youngsters, Whirlwind Kelly and Kid Barrett.

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth welter, refereed.

OLD PIONEER CELEBRATES

Last week two of the old settlers of Childress county celebrated their golden wedding, having some 70 guests for the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Adams were married at Ables Springs in June, 1875. They have lived in Childress county since 1910, having one of the model small farms in the county. CHIEF GERMIST TRIAL WITNESS TELLS HOW HE SOLD "BUGS"

Charles C. Faiman is Interrogated by Judge In Shepherd Trial

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP)—Testimony depended upon to prove that the death from typhoid fever of William Nelson McClintock, the millionaire orphan," was caused by criminal means was adduced by the prosecution today as its last step in the murder trial of William Darling Shepherd, the youth's foster father.

Charles C. Faiman, guarded in a downtown hotel for months by state's attorney's detectives while he awaited a call to the witness stand to prove a "corpus delicti," "the body of the crime," never faltered in his accusation of Shepherd, and with his testimony in, Prosecutor Robert E. Crowe, announced the state's case was ended.

A Good Witness.

Called as a witness by the court after Prosecutor Crowe, in an eleventh hour move late yesterday announced he could not sponsor him because he could not vouch for his testimony, Faiman never gave the state cause for a moment's worry as he gave his testimony upon direct examination by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.

Uninterrupted by interrogations, Faiman talked for an hour in a dead, flat monotone scarcely audible with downcast eyes, much wetting of the lips and with much shifting about in the witness chair.

He gave Shepherd three test tubes full of typhoid baccilli, taught him how to slay young McClintock with them, gave Shepherd back an incriminating letter for $50, demanded $250,000 for his participation in the elimination of Billy McClintock, was willing to accept $200,000 for his part, and finally agreed upon $100,000 testified Faiman.

Cross examination by Prosecutor Crowe, who told Judge Lynch yesterday he could not be assured of the story Faiman would choose to relate from the witness stand after the various denials and affirmations he had made since he was taken into custody March 13, last, elicited that Faiman had been promised "considernation" by the state's attorney and understood that meant "immunity."

Faiman is under indictment with Shepherd as a confessed accomplice.

Stewart Ridicules It.

Cross examination by William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel became an attempt to ridicule Faiman, his school, and the young man's life work, along with forcing many admissions that Faiman had told falsehoods about various events connected with the Shepherd case, and had told three different stories about his relations with the accused man.

Stewart said his intention was to reveal to the jury that Faiman and his testimony was too ludicrous for belief.

The designation "doctor" claimed by Faiman came from his license to practice chiropody, Stewart brought out, the only art or science Faiman was licensed to practice despite his claims of graduation from two universities, degrees of Ph B, M. D., and L. L. D., and advertising that he taught, among other things, theology, medicine, surgery, midwifery, embalming and mortuary sciences, and law.

Stewart's efforts to render the witness ludicrous caused the crowd of spectators jammed in every nook and corner of the court room to guffaw merrily and Judge Lynch summoned extra bailiffs to preserve order, adding a threat to clear the courtroom.

Ten times Faiman testified, he met Shepherd after the lawyer wrote him the letter asking about the criminal bacteriology course, but he could not say upon what date as to day or month. He could rattle off the numerical designation of any meeting at which some especial point was brought out.

It was in that manner upon direct examination that he told of the various steps in his relations with Shepherd from a school teacher trying to sell a course to an interested prospect to a co-conspirator willing to supply the necessary instrument and connive at murder for "200 grand," $200,000, later reduced to a demand for $100,000.

Faiman admitted that he did not know Shepherd contemplated murder when he gave him the typhoid germs, and said that he first became suspicious when Shepherd sought to recover the letter and said he had "a big proposition on." Faiman admitted that despite having been in communication with Shepherd several times since then he never has sought to collect the promised $100,000.

Faiman admitted his school is not recognized in Illinois and that he had issued about 700 degrees, many of them to persons who paid but did not study. He announced that he recently had resigned the presidency of the institution and that his wife ran it with a former mail clerk installed as president.

The defense counsel started to examine Faiman about some alleged "shady" deals and Prosecutor Crowe objected, the argument requiring the remainder of the court session. The state's attorney was given until tomorrow morning to produce authorities on the disputed point.

Before he dropped into the jocular vein, Stewart seriously tried to force Faiman to admit that Faiman had been without the technical knowledge necessary for his arraignment of Shepherd upon his direct testimony and that he had prepared for the appearance in the witness box by studying while in custody of the state's attorney. Faiman admitted he had his books with him, but denied that especial volumes had been supplied him.

The defense attorney also was serious in his efforts to prove that Faiman had revamped the chronology of his meetings and conversations with Shepherd as compared with statements Faiman made at the hearing at which he was granted bond.

Completion of the defense's cross examination of Faiman probably will require most of tomorrow, Stewart indicated tonight.

After the defense has finished with Faiman, Prosecutor Crowe announced, he will formally rest the state's case.

The prosecutor revealed for the first time that Robert White, whose disappearance created a sensation in the jury-choosing stage of the trial, would not be called to the stand. White was supposed to be ready to testify that he saw Shepherd about Faiman's school, where White was known as Faiman's "bodyguard."

2 PROSTRATED IN CITY FROM TORRID HEAT

Indiana Store and Local Cafe are Scenes Of Prostrations

Wichita Falls yesterday experienced something that rarely occurs here, even in the hottest of hot summer weather. Two persons were overcome by the heat.

The identity of the pair—one a man and the other a woman, could not be learned, but reports made to the police station indicated both were clear-cut cases of heat prostration. The woman was overcome shortly before noon while in a store on Indiana avenue, while the man toppled off a stool in a local cafe a short time later. Both were revived in a short time and taken to their homes.

A case of heat prostration is unusual in this climate, which with its dry air is not conducive to anything more than discomfort. So far as is known, no one was overcome here last year sufficiently to require medical attention.

Thursday was another blistering day with a temperature of recorded early in the afternoon. No immediate hope for relief is afforded by the weather bureau, which has predicted only "partly cloudy" for Friday.

Suit Is Filed Over Banking Fixtures

An injunction to restrain the Security National bank from removing any fixtures or equipment from its old banking room in the Morgan building is asked in a suit filed Thursday against the bank by Carl F. Williams, Mrs. Willie King, James King, Mrs. Mary Ella Goins, J. W. Goins, and Mrs. Lillis Morgan.

The petition recites that the plaintiffs are owners of the building in question and that they acquired all fixtures, equipment, etc., in the banking room when the building was purchased by them. In February, 1920, the bank room was leased to the defendant, it is alleged, and the lease expires in July of this year.

The bank is now located in the Staley building, but it is alleged the institution will seek to remove the fixtures as outlined and an injunction is asked to restrain them.

Harmony District May Raise Taxes

An increase in this fee has now been asked for next year and the district is considering opening a school of its own and hiring an instructor.

PLAINVIEW TO BE SCENE OF RAIL HEARING

Childress Index Editor Speaks His Mind On Amarillo's Position

Reports from the state railroad commission at Austin relative to the hearing of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railway for permission to build a new railroad from near Childress to Lubbock, Plainview, Silverton and Dimmitt will be heard at Plainview. The probable date has been announced as July 20.

A large number of witnesses will be called and indications are the state railroad commission will grant the permit, as members of the board have stated they see no reason why any permit to build a railroad through that section of the state should be denied. A member of the interstate commerce commission will sit wth the Texas commissioners.

What Edtors Say.

In speaking of the fight that might arise over granting the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railway the Childress Index has the following to say concerning the action taken by the West Texas chamber of commerce board meeting recently held in Wichita Falls:

"At a meeting of the board of directors of the West Texas chamber of commerce, held at Wichita Falls Wednesday and Thursday of last week, the matter of endorsing the building of the South Plains branch of the Fort Worth and Denver road was brought up. An Amarillo director was on his feet immediately with the suggestion that while the Plains and West Texas was in great need of additional railway facilities, yet it would not be right to endorse any particular proposition. Possibly true but if the branch in prospect was to build from Amarillo there would have been a different story to tell. One of the finest farming sections in Northwest Texas will be opened by the Denver road in the building of the South Plains branch, and the people living in that section of the country are entitled to all the assistance they can get. Many of them are from 30 to 40 miles from a railway, and with the building of the South Plains branch from Childress is their only chance of securing a road. It may be a good thing to not endorse any proposition, but it does look like there is a streak of jealousy when the objection came from the source that it did.

For Wichita Falls.

Newspapers and business leaders of the Lower Panhandle and South Plains sections do not like the attitude Amarillo is taking in this fight, which they feel is a selfish one. Those sections are very friendly to Wichita Falls and are looking to this city as their future wholesale and industrial center.

Dallas Seeking A Highway to West

DALLAS, June 18.—Detailed surveys of the proposed Dallas Northwest highway from Dallas to Rhome in Wise county are being made by the special committee of the Dallas chamber of commerce, following a request for the survey from the state highway department, it was announced today. A hearing on the proposal was held recently before the highway commission.

The highway is being sought by towns along its route. Construction of the road would mean a new means of access from Dallas to West Texas, connecting as it would with the Meridian highway at Rhome.

He was the only boy of the high school to be given a diploma in commercial work.

Miss Thelma Waters, honor student of the senior class of the Electra Hi which made her validictorian of the largest class graduated from this school. She won on an average of 95 7-12. From the offer of 12 scholarships she has accepted T. W. C. at Fort Worth.

ELECTRA, June 18. — An educational executive of ripe experience but who, nevertheless, is a young man has made of the Electra public school system one of the most complete and progressive of any in the state.

The man is B. N. Dinsmore who, as superintendent of schools here, has in the past seven years built up a record of service and accomplishment that brooks no equal anywhere. Quietly and unostentatiously he has worked tirelessly for the good of the educational facilities of the city, and now the fruits of his labors are being shown.

"Father of the School."

Mr. Dinsmore is known here as "the father of the Electra school," and well may he bear that title. He came to Electra back in 1917 when the public school system included about 600 students, 12 or 15 teachers and one school building. Through successive years as Electra has grown, Mr. Dinsmore has seen that the schools have grown with it; and now the system has 2,200 students, more than 60 teachers and four large buildings representing an investment of approximately $300,000.

When Mr. Dinsmore assumed charge the only school building in town was the present central structure. Since that time the Waggoner Junior high costing $40,000, the Thompson ward building costing $60,000 and the Electra high school costing $150,000 have been added. They have a combined capacity of 3,000 students.

Graduate List Increases.

As still further indication of the progress made, the list of graduates from the schools has steadily increased in recent years. In 1918 there were five graduates, in 1919, seven, 1920, eighteen, 1921, nineteen, 1922 twenty-nine, 1923 forty-four, 1924 forty-six, 1925 forty-seven.

In athletics the name of Electra high is known and respected throughout Texas. Mr. Dinsmore has taken personal charge of their direction since he has been with the schools and has turned out high-class teams each year. The Electra school has twice won the state championship in track and field events.

Not only as an educator and school man, but in civic, fraternal and religious life Mr. Dinsmore is one of the outstanding citizens of the community. He is a member of a number of civic clubs here, of lodges, and is active in church work.

STATE LAWS DELIVERED

Printers Must Wait Until September 1 to Get Pay.

AUSTIN, June 18.—(AP)—Delivery of the printed general laws was started today by the contracting printers, it was announced in the secretary of state's office. The laws went into effect at midnight this morning.

The delay in delivery was in the compilation, it was said. Because of the failure of the thirty-ninth legislature to make the appropriation for the work, $7,000, available immediately, the printers must wait until September 1 before they are paid, it was explained. To assure delivery it was necessary to finance the deal.

FIRST COTTON BLOSSOMS ARE SHOWN IN CITY

Dr. C. L. Tyson Brings In Blossoms From Irrigated Farm

The first cotton blossoms for this season were being exhibited Thursday morning by Dr. L. C. Tyson, from whose farm the blossoms were obtained. Dr. Tyson's farm is irrigated and he says irrigation has caused the cotton to grow and reach the blooming stage earlier than on dry land farms.

"The blossoms are earlier this year than in the past," stated Dr. Tyson. "In former years blossoms rarely opened before July. We have lots of flowers on our cotton and many of them are turning red, which shows the flowers are several days old."

The Tyson farm is located four miles northeast of Wichita Falls near the Petrolia highway.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—The cotton market again developed a trend toward higher prices today and prices were higher from the start. First trades showed gains of 19 to 24 points and the initial transactions proved to be the day's lows except for July which made a new low near the close. The early firmness was due to favorable cables and failure of rains anywhere in the drouthy sections of the west.

After the opening prices advanced, gathering strength during the second hour on a dry western weather map and failure of the official forecast to promise any rain of consequence in the belt. July traded up to 24.24, October to 23.35 and December to 23.45, or 51 to 64 points above yesterday's close.

After mid-session the market eased off under pressure of realizing sales in greater volume than the market would absorb except at lower prices. Cloudy weather and some indications of rain were reported from Texas. The market gradually eased off into the late trading when July made its new low at 23.91. The close showed net gains for the day of 28 to 31 points on new crop deliveries.

Exports today, 3,500 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 18 — Stock prices turned decidedly reactionary today, net losses in many issues running from 1 to 3 points. There was nothing the day's news to bring about the decline which started when professional bear operators launched an attack against a number of specialties recently exploited by pools.

So persistent were these bear attacks that many traders who had built up paper profits on the long side thre wtheir stocks into the marke which was unable o absorb them except at material concessions in quoted values. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales running well over one and one-half million shares.

Prices pointed upward at the opening but little headway was made except in relatively unimportant specialties. The apparent sluggishness of standard industrials and rails invited short selling which increased in magnitude when it was discovered that buying support in many issues had been withdrawn. The continued ease in money rates and the scarcity in the floating supply of several popular stocks kept the decline in check. Rallying tendencies developed in the late afternoon, closing prices generally being above the low levels of the day.

Heavy accumulation of the three Pierce Arrow issues, all of which mounted to new high levels for the year, was noted throughout the day. The common stock touched 34⅛ and then sagged a point for a net gain of 4⅝ on the day.

The preferred closed fractionally higher at 83½ after selling as high as 86 and the prior preferred scored a sensational gain of over 25 points by touching 170 and then yielding to 165¼. Hupp Motors also was heavily bought, closing 1⅝ higher at 19⅝ after touching a new top at 20⅜.

Other issues which mounted to new high levels for the year were International Combustion, Union Tank Car, Robert Reis, Tobacco Products A, Goodyear Rubber preferred, Standard Milling and New York Canners.

Nash Motors broke 21 points to 410 on two sales. Havana Electric dropped 8 points to 171½ and United States Cast Iron Pipe closed 6½ points lower at 158 after having sagged as low as 156.

Call money held steady at 3¾ per cent, but this rate is understood to have been shaded in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Weakness of Italian lira which broke 23 points to a new low record for the year at 3.65 cents and then recovered most of its loss was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm around 4.85½, but French francs ruled slightly lower at 4.72 cents.

Murchison and Fain Oil Company is New Concern in Wichita Falls

The formation of a $3,000,000 oil company to take over the assets of the old Murchison-Fain, Murchison-Fain-Golding and kindred groups, North Texas oil producers, has been announced. The new company will be known as the Murchison and Fain Oil company. It has a capitalization of $3,000,000. Organization is in the form of a trust estate with C. W. Murchison, E. R. Fain and C. P. McGaha, named as trustees.

The Murchison and Fain Oil company is the outgrowth of several years activity in North Texas by Murchison, Fain and associates, with C. P. McGaha, named as trustee in the new company, interested as geologist for the firm. This activity in south Archer alone has resulted in the discovery of four pools there, the Harmel, the Gambrell, the Litchfield, and the newest Wilson pool just north of Olney. A large production for the firm has developed in at least two of the pools discovered. Besides this there is production in north Archer and in other parts of the district with some work done at one time and another in Wortham and other East Texas localities.

The company was mentioned a week or so ago in connection with a sale of certain of their properties to a leading major here, this deal having fallen through, however.

It is a producing company alone.

Altered His Books At Boss's Commnad

SAN ANTONIO, June 18.—Peter O'Brien, on trial in the Ninety-fourth district court on charge of embezzlement of $3,000 from D. Sullivan, banker, took the stand in his own behalf this afternoon and declared that he kept fictitious accounts on the books of the bank at Sullivan's orders to defraud the government out of income taxes. One of these accounts, known as the Clemm account, he declared, totaled more than $1,000,000. from the books of the bank at Sullivan's orders and attempted to rewrite the entire cash book of the year 1918 but found it too big a job and then juggled the figures in the original cash book until the balances agreed with what Sullivan had reported to the income tax collector.

GRIFFITH LOSES FIGHT TO GAIN ESTATE SHARE

Tom Green Court Sustains Demurrers Raised By Defendants

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 18.—A. B. Griffith of Fort Worth today lost the first round in his legal battle against J. M. Shannon of San Angelo and A. F. Clarkson of Senora, for settlement of an alleged partnership formed in 1885, when demurrers to the plaintiff's petition were sustained by Judge J. F. Sutton in district court here and the case was dismissed. Notice of appeal to the court of civil appeals was given.

Griffith in settlement of the alleged partnership seeks one-third of the value of the Shannon and Clarkson estate, estimated to be worth several millions of dollars. These estates have been built from assets of the partnership, which never were dissolved. Building for the capitol syndicates of 400 miles of fences in the Panhandle was one of the contracts the partnership obtained, Griffith alleged.

REBUILT USED CARS

It is an established fact that A USED CAR is no better than the firm from whom it is bought. While the Fox Brown Chevrolet Company is a new firm, the organization is not at all unfamiliar with what is necessary in merchandising used cars. It is only natural that every effort on our part will be made to build an enviable reputation in the sale of used cars.

We consider one of the best ways to do this is to sell used cars that will give as much service and transportation for the money invested as any new automobile on the market.

We invite you to call and inspect the used cars that we have for sale. They have been reconditioned by a corps of competent mechanics, and all worn parts replaced by new ones where needed.

LA FOLLETTE IN LAST HOUR AT PEACE TO ALL

Pathos Contained in Statement of Senator Just Before He Dies

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Death brought to an end today the daring and stormy political career of Robert M. LaFollette.

Peacefully, the Wisconsin senator, last year an independent candidate for president, passed away at his home here, a victim of heart attacks, from which he had been a sufferer for a decade, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

To the last, Senator LaFollette sought to ward off death's thrust, as he had done on several occasions in recent years, but when he realized that the fight was a losing one, he called his son, Robert, to his bedside, and in an almost inaudible voice gave this last message to the public:

"At Peace With World."

"I am at peace with all the world, but there is a lot of work I could still do. I don't know how the people will feel toward me, but I shall take to the grave my love for them which has sustained me through life."

Confined to his bed for several weeks by illness which had wracked his body repeatedly in the last few years but had failed to weaken his fighting spirit, the senator suffered a heart attack this morning which brought to his physicians a realization that the end was near. He lapsed into unconsciousness shortly before noon and died at 1:21 p. m., with his wife and other members of the family at his bedside.

Without ostentation, the body will be taken tomorrow to the senator's home, Madison, Wis., for burial. No services will be held here, but on insistence of those who stood shoulder to shoulder with him in his battles in Wisconsin, he will lie in state in the capitol there Sunday, and funeral services will be held Monday in that building, where he once presided as governor.

All Creeds in Sorrow.

Leaders of all political creeds were quick today to pay tribute to Senator LaFollette and acknowledge his influence on contemporary American politics. One of the first to offer condolences to Mrs. LaFolletee was President Coolidge, who wrote:

"The news having just reached me of the death of Senator LaFollette, I wish to extend to you and your family the sympathy of myself and Mrs. Coolidge. As you know, I presided over the senate for a considerable period while he was a member of that body and so came to know of his great ability and untiring energy.

"He has left behind him a great concourse of friends who will, I know, do everything in their power to comfort you in this hour, but my own experience tells me that nothing that mortal can do will be of very much help to you. I trust that you may, as the years go by, find an increasing satisfaction in the list of honors that were conferred upon Senator LaFollette by his countrymen."

Oklahoma Issues Permit to Ku Klux

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 18. — The ku klux klan became a licensed corporation in Oklahoma today when a permit was issued to the Georgia corporation to operate in Oklahoma. The license was delivered by R. A. Sneed, state secretary, to C. E. Hoffman, an officer of the klan headquarters here.

The application set forth that the corporation was one for benevolent purposes without capital stock, not operated for profit and that no capital was to be used in Oklahoma.

Electric Shock Renders Helpless

DALLAS, June 18.—To be rendered practically helpless by strong volts of electricity from a small wire that burned his finger and thumb to the bone as he lay balanced on iron pipes 70 feet above a concrete floor was the experience of G. C. Webb, 29, here today. He was rescued from his predicament by a fellow workman who heard his single cry for help, uttered just before the strong current rendered him helpless.

He said the current contracted his muscles so that he could not release the wire or call again for help after the frist shock struck him.

Mob Hangs Negro Castle Gate, Utah

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 18. — (AP) — Robert Marshall, negro slayer of City Marshal Milton Burns of Castle Gate, Utah, was hanged by a mob near that city today, according to advice received here. On Monday he shot and fatally wounded Burns, who had some months previously taken a pistol away from him.

Official Papers Relate Details of German Negotiations

LONDON, June 18.—(AP)—Official papers issued today in the capitals concerned gave the first authentic report of all the conversations arising out of Germany's suggestions of February 9, for a security pact. The papers included the French note which has just been communicated to Germany on this subject.

As the French note is in essence only an invitation to Germany to elaborate her proposals in greater details, it becomes clear that the negotiations which have already lasted more than four months, without even a preliminary agreement having been reached are likely still to be greatly prolonged.

The text of the German suggestions has alrady been fully covered by semi-officia statements published in Berlin. The French draft reply and the prolonged exchanges between the British and French governments are made public in the form of a white book. The correspondence shows that both Great Britain and France had prepared draft replies, which were subject to revision by one side or the other.

One important point, which Austen Chamberlain, Brith secretary for foreign affairs, says must be retained, was the stipulation that nothing in the proposed treaties should affect the rights and obligations attached to membership in the League of Nations under the covenant. The French government wanted to omit this stipulation altogether.

REGENTS FAIL TO TAKE STEP ON OIL LANDS

Land Committee Fails To Reach Decision at Austin Thursday

DALLAS, June 18.—No decision was reached as to what action the board of regents of the University of Texas might take to obtain transfer of university oil royalty funds from the permanent to the available fund at a meeting here today to the land committee of the regents, it was announced at the close of the meeting. The land committee had been authorized ot act for the board in question arising from the refusal of State Comptroller Sam H. Terrell to pay the funds into the available fund, under the contention that the West Brook act, which provided for the transfer, is unconstitutional.

The committee today authorized the statement that in event "it should be determined to institute legal proceedings, no attempt would be made to recover from nor require an accounting of the pipe line companies nor the lessees for oil produced and sold from the date of this meeting until the date of the filing of the suit, should it be determined to file suit." This action follows receipt of notice by Land Commissioner J. T. Robison from the Texon Oil company that it was unable to remit May royalties because the pipe line companies had declined to make returns for the oil runs, fearing a possible cloud in the title of the lands as a result of the controversy.

Those present at the meeting were: R. G. Storey of Dallas, chairman; Judge S. C. Padelford of Fort Worth, Sam Neathery of McKinney, Mart H. Royston of Galveston, and Dr. Walter Splawn, president of the university.

The committee recently obtained the services of an attorney to advise as to the constitutionality of the West Brook act as well as to the validity of the leases.

The GILDED ROSE

CHAPTER 70.
A Rogue Defeated.

"I'm sorry that you should take it in this way, Ridgeway, but your wife and I did agree to meet here, and give you grounds for divorce. The girl's been frightfully unhappy in her marriage with you, and it's up to you to free her. This will be all the evidence you need."

Landis glared at the speaker like a madman.

They were in the wide living room of the old marshland inn, and a great lantern hanking from a rafter in the ceiling cast an eerlee light on the two men.

"You dared to break in here, you sneak-thief that you are—"

Briscoe laughed unpleasantly. He lifted a key from the mantlepiece.

"Your wife kindly sent me this key. She has another one. And at this inn happens to be her property, and I happen to be her invited guest, I should say the boot is on the other foot, and you are the one who is intruding."

"Where is she?"

"She has not yet arrived. She is on her way, however."

"And you dare to tell me to my face that you—the murderer of Marietta Fernandez—(for you killed that poor girl as surely as if you'd put a bullet through her brain) you dare to stand there and tell me that you've planned to ruin, similarly, the life of my young wife?"

Briscoe answered impudently:—

"If it pleases you to put it in that way—"

He got on further, for with a spring, Landis came at him with his bare fists, and a terrific fight ensued. There was murder in the heart of Rosilyn's husband, and indeed he very nearly did well Brisco . . .

When he ddesisted, Briscoe was lying on the floor of the inn, in a sorry spectacle, his once handsome features swollen out of all recognition.

"Spoiled his beauty forever, I should think!" Breathing heavily, and himself rather an object of pity, Landis regarded his fallen enemy.

As the moments passed, and Briscoe gave no sign of reviving, Landis went out to his car and got some brandy.

"This'll bring him round, though I ought to have wiped the earth clean of the swine!" He re-entered the inn, however, and tilting up the fallen one's bruised face poured some of the liquid through his swollen lips.

Briscoe made a gurgling sound. His throat constricted. Then he spluttered swallowing a little of the fiery liquid.

Landis, who was very powerfully built, despite his slenderness, then lifted him from the floor and carried him out to the car, dumping him unceremoniously into the back seat, as though he were a sack of coal.

He climbed into the driver's seat, started the engine, and headed for the cottage of a gamekeeper who, in the past, during his sojourns at the inns fo rtbe duck-shooting, had often accompanied him and Briscoe.

The keeper opened the door of his small abode and Landis got down from the car.

"A gentleman you know is beuind," he announced briefly, going to the back seat of the machine. "He's had a bit of an accident. Give us a hand to help him out."

Nothing could surprise the gamekeeper in 'the doings' of the merry gentlemen who used to form gay bachelor parties at the marshland inn. Mr. Ridgeway, on the duck-shooting expeditions, had ayways tipped him well. He came forward looking at the slumped-up figure in the back seat.

"It's Mr. Briscoe!" The man smelt the strong odour of brandy. He nodded his head sagely. In a drinking-bout, Mr. Briscoe had got into some scrap, or other . . .

"I don't think there's any necessity to call a doctor. No bones broken. Just give him a bed for the night, and keep mum about it." And Landis slipped a twenty dollar bill into the gamekeeper's hand.

Between them, they carried Rupert Briscoe into the little cottage, where the owner lived 'en garcon.'

"It's all right, sir. I'll take care of him." The man gave him an understanding side-look amounting almost to a wink. "I'll look after the gentleman. I shan't even say you brought him here."

Landis answered, airily:—

"I don't care if you do. And if I'm wanted. I'm over at the old place."

"But it's been closed these many weeks," the gamekeeper said, surprised.

"I've opened it. My wife and I are having a little holiday together."

"Beg pardon, sir. And please remember me kindly to the young lady."

Landis suppressed a sardonic grin. It would be news for Rosilyn to learn in what circumstances her husband had received this message . . .

"Good night." He was off again into the darkness heedless of direction, and driving the car like fury.

Rosilyn—and Rupert Briscoe!

It was too unthinkable.

The great head-lights of the car lit up the desolate roadside turning it into a white ribbon that wound through dark hedgerows and low grasslands.

Suddenly the figure of an old woman came into view, running towards the oncoming car, and waving . . .

Heavens! who was she? At this hour?

He rammed the brakes on hard, for she was heading directly towards the machine, and he had to swerve to avoid her.

"What's the matter?" There was something familiar in the rusty black clothes she wore, and in the terrified old wisage . . . "Annie! It's you? Great Jupiter!" And Landis stared into the frightened eyes of the old servant "How on earth did you get here? What's happened?"

"Oh, Mr. Ridgeway, sir, she's dead! She's dead!" came the despairing wail.

Tomorrow—Safe and Sound.

CHAPTER 71.
Recovery.

"Dead? Who? Quick, tell me!" Old Annie had left home with Rosilyn, and Rosilyn had driven off in the new two-seater, which was reckless of her, in that she was a novice at the wheel.

"Miss Rosilyn. The car overturned—"

"Good God! Where?" Landis had flung the side-door open and was hauling the old woman into the machine. "Quick, tell me! Which direction?"

"Along this road . . about a mile . . . I've been running for help."

He released the clutch and the car bounded forward.

In less than two minutes, he slowed up, for there, at the side of the roadway lay an overturned two-seater, and ten yards or so ahead of it, the crumpled figure of a girl.

Landis made a quick examination. She was stunned, not dead. The heart was beating. Between they, they got Rosilyn into the bigger car, and Landis drove at lightning speed back to the Marshland inn.

He laid her on the big couch in the living room and called up at once for the local doctor—the same man who had attended Rosilyn's father when he died.

But before the medico arrived, Rosilyn was conscious.

"My head! It aches so!" she wearily whispered to the anxious young husband who bent over her solicitously. "Just let me rest."

He sat beside her on the wide divan, his fingers on her pulse, and her soft sair tumbled against his sleeve, while old Annie who, though shaken by the accident, was uninjured, bustled to get a bed ready against the doctor's arrival.

When the medico came and the necessary examination had been made, he said to Landis reassuringly.

"She'll be all right in a few days' time, if she rests, and sees no one but yourself. Lucky for her that bruise isn't half an inch further up, or she'd certainly have been killed! Just keep her quiet and I'll be around the first thing in the morning. Meantime, some drops of this—" he produced a bottle from his bag—"every two hours if the head hasn't stopped aching. But she'll sleep, all right enough, after I've given her a draught.'

Rosilyn, like a tired but obedient child, opened her eyes when the medicine was given her.

Landis carried her upstars to the bed that Annie had prepared.

Tomorrow—"Briscoe's Fate."

BEAUMONTERS BUST TANNER OUTFIT 13-9

Taylor Elevates Home Run In Tenth With Two On Paths

BODIE HOMERS THRICE

Moundmen Suffer Heavy Casualty in Sluggling Affair

By BLONDY CROSS.

Beaumont's Exporters clouted Spudder mound talent with the gusto of a championship nine instead of a cellar outfit Thursday at the plant. Eighteen wallops to virgin territory tell in part how the Shipping gentry rubbed the dungeon mire from their optics long enough to scuttle our noble Spudders, 13 to 9, in ten hilarious couplets.

Leach caught one of Lefty Stone's slants on the bicep in the tenth. Kirke singled past second, and then Chink Taylor broke a 9-9 knot with a larruping hoist far over the port palisade. Stone excitedly passed Deviveros, and then Skipper Bernsen, who had entered the conflict in the seventh frame followed up with an explosive swat to right center for a brace of cushions, checking Deviveros at the paying counter. That was all. The Spudders menaced in their portion of the inning, but failed to tabulate.

She was a hectic combat, and extra sack socks came from all angles.

Frank Ping Bodie, the young Spudder outfielder, 21 years old to be exact, according to Ping himself, (note: it's his twenty-first year in organized baseball), continued in a batting slump. The youngster could connect for only three home runs and a high temperature single in five efforts.

Besides his home run, Taylor poled a pair of timely doubles. Woehr and Deviveros punched the ticket for round trips. Ormand slapped a trio of one-basers and a single. It was a great day for Beaumont batting averages, and a cruel infringement on the hurling rights of Wichita Falls slabsters.

Freddy Flashes.

However, Jacobus and McNeil, Beaumont chunkers, had their troubles for the Spudders whammed 16 safe swats to say nothing of the volcanic display put on by Bodie. Little Freddy Dorman, next to the veteran Ping, was the most effective of the Spudders with the hickory. The Georgia youth walloped a double and three singles, also stole a base. Fleet base running by Freddy in the seventh when he singled to center and got away with second when Leach bobbled momentarily brought the stands to their feet. He scored, by the way, on Turgeon's single.

Ormand led off in the first with a single, and then Woehr nicked Lefty Winn for a homer to left, giving Beaumont the jump right at the start. Bodie hit one to the homer zone in the Spud half of the round with the runways unpopulated.

They Still Score.

Deviveros opened the second with a blast over the left field fence. Walk, infield out, and single by Ormand sent another over for the Exporters.

Ping got his second homer in the fourth. The sacks were empty when the earthquake occurred.

Bingle by Leach, wild pitch by Winn, infield out, and double by Taylor scored another Beaumont marker in the fifth.

The Bersen crew slugged Winn savagely in the sixth, tabulating two and putting a pair in scoring position before Suds Sutherland, right hander, could be brought to the rescue. A bingle and an error then counted two more before the advance was haltd. Singles by Hale, Jacobus, and Kirke, and doubles by Ormand and Woehr comprised the attack. One-basers by Callaghan and Bodie, and a double by Dorman sent two across the platter in the Spudder portion of the round.

Spuds Tie It Up In Seventh.

Wichita Falls knocked Jacobus from the hurling eminence in the seventh, scoring four, and then punched McNeil for one. Query doubled. Sutherland singled. Distel doubled. Cal bounded out to short, and then Pingus combed off his third four-bagger, his nineteenth of the season. The sphere rode high and far over the left field fence. McNeil went to the box, and Fitz grounded out, pitcher to first. Dorman singled and made second on Leach's error. Golvin walked, and Turgeon sent Freddy home with a ringing single past second. Query forced Turge at the keystone. The score was tied at 9-9.

Dorman and Golvin singled in the ninth. Turgeon was being given free transportation on purpose by McNeil when Walt set out for second. He was cut down, McNeil to Deviveros. Turge walked, and then Mac passed Query. Buddy, hitting for Sutherland, bounded into a double play, Metz to Deviveros to Kirke with the winning run heading for home. But it didn't count.

Rip Wheeler And Bob Osborn Leave Spuds for Period

The Spudder outlook was dimmed considerably Thursday with the departure for a period of Rip Wheeler and Bob Osborn, right handers of the mound corps.

Wheeler was granted leave of absence to appear at the settlement of an estate in Marion, Ky. The father of Osborn, who has been sick for a long time, died Wednesday night in El Paso. The big right hander will be gone for several days.

Ed Hughes' Column

WHY THE WOLF-PACK IS OFTEN WRONG.

How much does the location of seats at fights have to do with the astonishing differences of opinion which frequently arise after a decision has been rendered? A great deal, in the opinion of this writer.

How near must one be to the fighting line in order to note the exact movements of the boxers, the precise amount of damage inflicted by each? The writer would say within 15 rows, at least. This is not to infer that a spectator beyond this limit is not in a position to enjoy a combat. But enjoying a glove contest beyond the 15-row limit and being seated so as to tab the merit of each blow struck beyond a doubt are two different things.

ED WAS CURED

At a distance one gathers a general idea of what is going on. If the battle be a one-sided affari then he cannot be misled as to the activities. Knockdowns and cleanly delivered punches are as evident, as convincing to him as to his more fortunate brethren within the flare of the arc lights. Nor is he so much in the dark, actually and figuratively speaking, when the fisticuffing is at long range.

Nevertheless, such is not the case when there is much infighting. In this type of milling it is often difficult to detect cleanly delivered blows even when situated in the press box. How then is it possible to spot them in the far-flung floor seats or gallery indoors and the ground, bleachers and grand stands out of doors?

The writer, at various times, has been parked in every conceivazly priced seat which the boxing game offers. On one occasion we sat some 20 rows back, and at the conclusion of the fight received a shock when the referee awarded the decision to the man we thought had been worsted. Shoving up to the press box, and expecting to find indignation among my fellow scribes, we were bewildered to learn that the award was most fair. That cured me of criticising from the back woods of the arena.

Why Fans Are Mistaken.

Sitting under the ropes, we have many times noted the false impressions under which those, not so advantageously located, labor. These customers, we have remarked, are unduly impressed by the fellow who shoots long, sweeping punches, the chap who is ever laboring away industriously, though not always effectively. They see the punch and observe, lazily, that it lands somewhere. Whether it has been wholly or partially blocked they are in no position to determine. Usually they decide that it has landed, and so credit it. The punch as a matter of fact, may have missed entirely.

On the other hand, the chap who selects infighting to best an apponent is usually unappreciated by the individuals in the darkness. His short, cleanly delivered blows, not being spectacular, are not within the scope of these fans. What they cannot see they cannot count.

Perhaps the best proof of false impressions gained by those in the rear respects the damage which blows do or do not inflict. We in the press box often hear a perfect thunder of shouts when one principal, subjected to a few stiff punches, is forced to cover or clinch. The wolf-pack howl from the darkness is for the coup de grace, the feverishly awaited knockout. They figure the victim is on the verge of a knockout, and that one good jolt will send them home.

As a matter of fact the "victim" is not infrequently smiling, his legs full strong, while preparing to deliver the same dose to his tormentor. One must be near the ropes to percieve the condition of the legs, a wavering of which is one of the first signs of genuine distress. Another is the expression of the eyes. How can those yards away detect whether the expression is "glassy" or one of sparkling consciousness?

THAT McTIGUE-BERLENBACH GO

The writer still hears arguments concerning the fairness of the decision which gave Paul Berlenbach the championship after 15 rounds of close boxing with Mike McTigue. Many who sat in the press and favored seats of the ringside still believe that Mike received the worst of it. However, this writer thinks that most of those who were not in "position" would have had different opinions on the subject could they have sat within the first 15 rows.

It is one thing to enjoy a fight; another to analyze it accurately from a vantage point which admits of accurate estimating.

GREB WILL WIN

George Engle, former manager of Harry Greb, is a rather unusual type of fight mentor. His disposition is a sunny, fosgiving one; nothing at all vindictive in it. Were it otherwise he might have some harsh things to say of Harry Greb. The Pittsburgh Windmill and Mr. Engle are no longer friends, yet that does not prevent the latter from applauding his former charge as a fighting man. Engle is now associated with Gene Tunney, but he still regards Greb in mighty glowing terms as a ringster.

"Whom do I think will win between Greb and Walker?" repeated George after the writer had put the question. "Well," returned Engle, "you can put me into print as saying that Greb will win, and easily, too. He'll make Walker see more gloves than Mickey ever thought had been manufactured by all the glove makers in the world. I say this sincerely, because I have nothing in the world against Walker, nor have I any particular personal regard for Harry Greb."

"But I don't mind saying that Greb is one of the gamest, and most talented fighters that I ever saw. In all the time that I managed him he never balked on any match that I made for him. He made me understand that there were only two fighters that he didn't care to meet. One of them was Fred Fulton and the other was Jess Willard. They're not too good for me. They're just too big, that's all,' was the way Greb put it. Perhaps he was right about Willard but I always thought that Fulton would have been easy for a fellow with Greb's heart and natural fighting qualities.

"Strange, that while Harry never wanted any part of Fulton or Willard, he was always dead anxious to meet Dempsey. 'That's one bird I can lick, and you can't get him too quick for me,' Greb used to tell me. And, personally, I think Harry would have made it highly interesting for Jack, say for eight or ten rounds. He had just the style to bother Jack, who was never too good at beating men smaller than or as large as himself."

Behind and eigh-run lead amassed in the first two frames, and displaying an airtight defense, the American Reginers, for the second time, defeated Texhomas yesterday on the Twilight diamond, 11 to 6. It was the first game for both teams in the second half of the league race.

O'Dell McDuffy went to the rescue of Choc Thompson, Texhoma pitcher, too late to save the contest. He entered the affray in the third and held the victors hitless for three stanzas. He stopped their spurt and set them three up and three down until the last inning. In the final frame a triple, two singles and a sacrifice scored two runs.

Hershel Johnson and Raymond Windham were the fielding stars of the game, while Bill Andree led the hitters with three singles in four times up.

Christian Steals Home.

After Windham had passed out Hale to Kellogg, Andree beat out an infield hit. Medford walked. Glidewell hoisted to McMahon. Cannon beat out an infield hit to short, filling the bases. Andree and Melford scored, Cannon took third, and Christian first on Kizziar's bobble at short. Christian stole second. Francis popped one over the infield for a single that sent Cannon romping home, and Christian to third. Christian stole home. Francis took second on the play and scored on Skeen's infield hit. Rounsaville forced Skeen at second, Johnson unassisted.

Windham opened the second with a single to center. Andree singled to right sending Windham to second. Medford advanced both runners when he rolled out, Johnson to Kellogg. Glidewell hit to Thompson who threw to the plate. Ross dropped the ball and all hands were safe. Cannon singled to left, scoring Andree and sending Glidewell to third. Christian whiffed. Francis singled over second, scoring Glidewell, and sending Cannon to second. Skeen singled to left scoring Cannon and sending Glidewell to third. Rounsaville grounded out.

Texhomas Rally.

Texhoma rallied in the fourth and netted five scores. McMahon walked and went to third on Kizziar's single. Kizziar stole second. Haney took the third strike. Ross singled to left scoring McMahon and Kizziar, and took second on the throw in. He went to third on a passed ball. Johnson stopped one with his back, and Kellogg walked, filling the bases. Ervin went to Glidewell's relief. Gordon cleaned the bases with a double to left. Hale skied to center.

The Americans' final two came in the sixth off McDuffy. Windham tripled to deep center. Andree singled over second base, scorng Wndham. Medford singled to center and took second when Haney juggled the grounder, Andree took third. Ervin hit to Johnson, who threw Andree out at the plate. Cannon squeezed Medford in with a neat bunt down the first base line.

Wichita Falls Poloists Lose To Omaha Four

Kenmere Outfit Goes Down In Stiff Tussle, 2 to 1

The Kenmere quartet, Wichita Falls poloists who participated in the Southwestern championship tourney at El Reno, returned to the city yesterday defeated but only after having advanced to the semi-finals and going down in a stiffly fought contest with the Omaha, Neb., four.

The Wichita Falls club lost to Omaha, 2 to 1, Wednesday after defeating the Fort Sam Houston team the day before. Now the average polo game runs in scores anywhere from 6 to 5 on up to around 15 to 12 and such similar scores. The fact that Kenmere lost a 2 to 1 tilt is a story in itself. Members of the Wichita Falls entry declared the game was one of the roughest and hardest fought they ever took part in. That they lost only 2 to 1 riding poorer ponies than their opponents did, for the Omaha team boasted a string of classy animals, would indicate that not necessarily did the best team go down in defeat.

The contest was so rough that every member of the Kenmere quartet is carrying bruises and bumps today. Horace Robbins, who scored three out of five goals made against San Antonio the day before, went out in the second period with the Omaha team handicapped by a severely sprained wrist. Wichita Falls picked up a spectator to fill in at Robbins position the remainder of the game.

Had Robbins been able to continue play it is possible Wichita Falls would have won, one would imagine when considering the closeness of the score. However, the Omaha team was a hard-riding, clever playing outfit, according to the Wichita Falls players.

The Wichita Falls team was composed of Dave White, Dr. J. H. Flecher, Horace Robbins and Charles Featherstone.

THE LOST ART OF SPOONING -By Rupert Hughes

As sure as shooting, if you live a little while longer, you will encounter hundreds of editorials, articles, sermons, lectures and conversations to the following effect:

"The appalling deterioration of morals among the young, which is threatening the home and the fabric of decent society and bringing near the end the civilization, can be traced directly to the airship. In the dear old days of 1925, when the quaint old automobile was the favorite mode of ransportation, women were revered by men, and the home was a sacred institution. Girls were modest then, and motherhood was their chief ambition. Such love-making as they indulged in was carried on with modesty and morality.

"Of course there was some flirtation for the world was not perfect even then, but genuine wickedness was rare and heavily frowned upon. The girls of that time were demure and shy. They are the mothers of today and they stand aghast at the changes in the world. In the evenings of 1925, when the moon filled the heavens with its pure azure, the young people who were mutually attracted, would step into their modest automobiles and hie themselves to little arbors not more than thirty or forty miles from the parents' home. Even if they had been mischievously inclined, the motor cars of that day could hardly be driven at a higher speed than fifty or sixty miles an hour. And so, after an hour or so of revelling they would check their exquisite little gasoline sedans in the soft shadows of the trees and there would rest a while, murmuring sweet nothings, exchanging love-vows perhaps a few shy caresses, and making their plans for a future of consecration to the highest ideals of the home. That was in the long-lost golden age of 1925.

"But nowadays—only a generation has gone by and yet—oh, heavens, what a contrast; Now that every young hawk—or cloud buzzard as the pest is called—has his own airship. Nearly every girl either owns one or can run one. And the mating season of these degenerate days more nearly resembles the courtship of insects than that of rational beings. There is hardly more morality or decency among the young of 1945 than among the lowest animals. Like the ants the lovers put on wings and elope for a nuptial flight, with no more sense of responsibility or permanence.

"It is a commonplace nowadays for the reckless cloud-hoppers to drive their machines at the rate of 200 miles or more an hour. Before the parents can say no, or in spite of their tearful protests, the young people rise instantly to the clouds where they find concealment. They either anchor with balloons or pack their airship outside some notorious cloud house where they revel and drink and dance in complete abandon, forgetting all solemn and worthy things. And the girls return home lost to hope as to shame.

"If the sky is too cloudless to conceal their nefarious goings-on, they hie them to distant mountain crags and lose themselves in lonely canyons. If they find these crowded, they flit to the desert-deeps among the sheltering dunes. But even the wilderness is swarming now with wantonness and if they cannot find a Death Valley of their own they soar away to the sea, and rest their aqualanes on the waves. It is getting so hat one cannot be sure whether the flocks in the sky are seagulls or petting planes.

"How we long for a return to the good old days when women were womanly, and men revered them. The good old '25 extravagance was not the rule as it is now. The humble flivver took the simply dressed young people but a little distance from home, and all the roadsides were idyllic with young love. In prety taverns called 'roadhouses' they met and danced to the quaint and dignified strains of the classic jazz-bands.

"There were no such dances then as now, and the mothers and fathers of our day look back on those dear old times with tears in their eyes. Let the ribald youngsters scoff at 1925 as Puritanical. It may have been a little slow, but it was sweet and sure. Unless something is done to turn people back to the high moral standards of that time, civilization is doomed. Let us not forget that Rome fell; etc., etc.

"Just this sort of thing will undoubtedly be written and uttered a thousand times in a score of years, just as it is written and uttered incessantly today that the automobile is ruining the home, destroying the women and bringing civilization to an end.

Rome is still falling eloquently, and it will doubtless go on falling down the unending backstairs of time. Of course, the actual fall of Rome had nothing to do with the causes alleged by orators whose ignorance of fact is only equalled by their memory of rhetoric. Rome had been Christianized for a century before it fell, and it fell because political and military incompetents happened to be in power at a time when the outsiders were all led.

And then, of course, Rome never really fell any more than Washington, D. C., fell when it was conquered and burned by the British. Rome is still doing business at the old stand under Italian descendants of the original Romans. But we shall never cease to be told that it fell because the young people were too gay, or because the morals were loose, though Roman morals like all other morals were always loose and still are, according to the standards of the moralists.

We shall never be lacking in alarmists, but we should not permit bem to alarm us overmuch until we look into the truth a bit and try to observe affairs in perspective.

There is one tremendous fact that cannot be disproved, though you may ignore it, or regard it with regret or with relief according to your personal trend of mind. Theophile Gautier put in flippantly but vividly when he said:

"The ancients had seven deadly sins, and for all the boasted inventions of modernity, I cannot find that we have added one additional sin to the old list."

For people constantly forget that the g people of our day, however wild. T d oone single wicked thing was not done in the days when arents were at their same age, n their grandparents were d when their great-grand- ere young: and so on back to and grandest possible parents in the year one.

There is doubtless a good deal of truth in the suspicion that young couples going out in automobiles after dark have in mind certain practices known as petting, necking, or whatnot. It is probably true that a certain amount of flirtation is carried on without any very solemn pledges or plans. It is permissible to assume that a lamentable degree of impropriety is sometimes attained.

But it is also certain that many bethrotals and marriages ensue with a consequent interest in real estate, architecture and baby carriage filling. And it is an absolutely inescapable fact that mighty few people get themselves engaged or married nowadays without some preliminary sparking in automobiles.

It is as true nowadays as it ever was that parents who watch their daughters too closely rarely lose them, at least by their marriage. Mothers who never leave their daughters' sides—never leave their daughters' sides. Their daughters stay at home as old maids—or go out to earn their own livings and their freedom.

The astounding thing is that anybody should expect young couples not to go out in automobiles and hide from the eyes of parents or neighbors. If anybody is fool enough to think that youth will not connive and conspire for solitude, he ought to be wise enough to keep his idiocy to himself. But, wonderful to relate, pumberless people get up and bawl their wonderment at the tops of their houses and voices.

The most bewildering thing about this unceasing roar and bellow of criticism is its implication that there has been some recent changes in human nature and custom.

Mothers and fathers who bugged each others' heads off in their youth and terrified their own parents by their tendency to sneak off into the dark for their demonstrations—these very mothers and fathers with sameless inconsistency or pitiful irrecollection are horrified because their own children sneak off to a distance for their own throttling exercises.

Of course, parents have always been shocked at finding their children carbon copies of themselves, and there has always been one thing more terrible for a parent than a daughter who goes out with the boys—and that is a daughter who does not. For then the parents know that they are going to have a daughter as a star-boarder for life and that there are going to be no grandchildren to boost the family pride and carry on the grand old name by the ancient method of falling in love, spooning, marrying and reproducing.

The thing that really terrifies the parents of today is not so much the spooning of the children as the speeding of the automobile and its ability to carry its passengers to inaccessible remoteness where parents cannot peek, eavesdrop or call down the stairs.

They do not stop to think that it makes little difference how fast people go or where they go; they are still the same people whn they get there.

A girl or boy with self respect and innate decency can, and will, maintain those qualities as well in a car going sixty miles an hour as in a hammock going sixty feet, or on a parlor-sofa not going at all.

The mothers and fathers who used to go buggy riding had infinitely superior opportunities compared to the speed-victims of today. The buggy was not an ideal dove-cote but the horse could be driven with one hand or trusted to amble along at a discreet walk without being driven at all. Also horses and buggies could be stopped in shady dells as well as automobiles can be now. Even the thrill of danger was not absent from buggy-riding, for horses were in their day as perilous as automobiles have ever been. We have forgotten how common it used to be for horses to take fright and bolt, dashing their clients to disaster and often to death. The young motorist of today thinks he is pretty fast, but speed is only relative and the young couple of long ago whirling through the landscape behind a pair of runaway horses with the lines lost, had all the excitement that they could digest and just as excellent a chance of broken bones or skulls as any of our motor-scooters.

As for the behavior of young couples that went buggy riding, it ranged from as bad as possible to as good as could be. I did a good deal of it myself as a boy and while I knew all sorts of mischie fand tragedy, I know that I was innocent.

As I see it, and as an honest historian would doubtless write it, there has been a gradual decay of skill in courtship, a decline in fervor and a purification of morals or at least a weakening of ardor in immorals. This is due to an increasing decrease in the perfection of the laboratories.

The airship will mark the ultimate descent from the sublime to the ridiculous so far as we can see at present.

Today young lovers or young gamblers in love go out together in an incommodious upper berth on four wheels. Yesterday they went out on bicycles. The only advantage of the bicycle was that it carried the lovers to what was then a safe distance from home. Spooning was simply impossible. The wooers had to stop and get off, because at the least demonstration they fell off. The same was true in lesser degree of tipsy canoes, skiffs and sailboats. Sleighrides were full of fun but too sniffy and chilly for real comfort.

Before that the lovers went out walking and in the parks and lovers' lanes found seclusion for their purposes. Even that, though an improvement on the automobile or the bicycle, was a lapse from the superior conditions of the rustic arbor in the garden or the hammock or the settee on the front porch.

And the front porch was distinctly inferior to the warm and cosy parlor with the gas and the voices turned low. People nowadays are apt to think that blandishments could not be fercibly exchanged in such close contiguity to the family, but love will find the way, and families know enough to keep out of the way.

You should read what the moralists and preachers of a hundred and a quarter years ago said about the sofa when it was first introduced into America. Its name was spelled sopha from its Turkish origin. In olden Turkey the sopha was a kind of reclining throne and monarchs issued edicts from it as French and English monarchs issued theirs from their beds.

The ancestors of the people who are now denouncing the automobile as the ruination of the youth were even louder in their outcries against the sofa; they called it an emblem of Oriental luxury and vice and accused the parents who admitted it to their homes of conniving at the ruination of their children.

I know of one young couple in the sofa days who pretended to show great appreciation of the girl's mother's musical ability. Sitting on the dark porch they would request mother to play the piano, knowing full well as long as the music continued they were safe from intrusion. Sometimes mother would play for hours in the parlor while the couple were on the porch safely enjoying themselves.

The sofa which can be found today in the most respectable homes was even abused as an immoral thing by the 'bundlers'. Since I find that numerous wise people do not know what 'bundlery' was, I may be permitted to explain it.

In our early days when most of the people lived in openwork log cabins there was no lack of ventilation. Houses were heated by great logs chopped and dragged in to the fireplaces where most of the heat went up the chimney. But love would not be denied or frustrated by any amount of cold. Young men who shuddered and shivered o nfoot across long miles of snowy road found their sweethearts more willing to sit up with them than the rest of the family was. The rest of the family went to bed, usually in the same room, with sheets for partitions, if any.

Candles were both dim and expensive; they were usually made at home and lige the logs, each one meant so much hard labor. The lovers did not mind saving in candles, for light was long ago recognized as an enemy of love. But they simply could not sit up and endure the cold, so they simply went to bed with their clothes on!

The most pious and strictest parents permitted their beloved daughters to creep under the blankets and lie their in the arms of the young visitors till they had whispered their secrets out and the lonely wooer felt strong enough to set out for home.

And that pathetic, necessary method of courtship was called 'boundling.' It was commonly practiced among the early Puritans and throughout New England as late as 1815. It came to an end with the improvement in conditions. Houses were better built and better heated and people could sit up before the fireplace or near the stove without freezing to death. Love follows the luxuries as the cock-tail follows the American flag.

Say what you will of morality, there are two pretty good tests of it—not infallible perhaps, but hard to overthrow; illegitimate children and public women.

Countless honorable men and women preserved their honor and treated love as a sacred thing in the days of bundling, in the days of the sofa, the hammock, the stroll, the park bench, the picnic, the regatta, the buggy ride and the bicycle.

But all too many of them were swept away into sin and its bitter fruits.

One thing is certain: the number of street women in those days enormously exceeded those of our time. One thing is certain that illegitimate children enormously exceeded those of our time. The Puritan thought little of them unless there were danger of their becoming charges on the town. And the rural regions and the less citified countries have always been the greatest breeders of illegitimate children. For many years Scotland led all the world in their high percentage. She is still well up to the fore.

Of the young people of our day, it is impossible to say much except that they still seek lonely places for making love as youth has always done. They still bill and coo and dance and drink and make fools or friminals or wise-folk of themselves as youth has always done.

So far as anybody knows, they are doing nothing really new, except to ride away a little faster to their dual paradises. The statistics would seem to indicate that they are a little more decent, and their encounters a little less disastrous than any previous average.

Lincoln said, "Trust the people." Let us amend it to read, "Trust the young people!" In my opinion at least, they are better than they used to be; at their worst no worse than always, and at their best far better than ever before.

"Back in 1925 such love-making as they indulged in was carried on with modesty and morality."

Oil Worker Meets Death Near Vernon

VERNON, June 18.—Morgan Lindsey, 24, was fatally injured here this morning about 8 o'clock while unloading a truck and trailer of drill stems brought in from the oil fields to be stored on a vacant lot on Mesquite street. The body accompanied by Mrs. S. A. Ferguson and Mrs. A. T. Ferguson leave at noon tomorrow for Walnut Grove, Miss., where the remains will be interred by the side of his parents.

Jefferson Co. Cotton Survives Dry Spell

WAURIKA, Okla., June 18.—Notwithstanding the hot dry weather and the high winds that have prevailed for the past two weeks, Jefferson county's cotton crop never looked better, in fact the dry weather has been in the favor of cotton. There is some complaint of grasshoppers but the farmers are using the poison liberally and are having good results. Harvest is in full blast with much better returns than was predicted.

Demand Also Urged That Journalism School Be Reinstated

TYLER, Texas, June 18.—Mail order advertising, unlicensed medical practitioneers and the fate of the University of Texas school of journalism were live issues before the Texas Press association meeting in 46th annual convention here today.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's pruning knife cut too deeply into the university appropriations when it eliminated the journalism appropriation according to sentiment expressed. Moulton Cobb of Cameron, a graduate of the school of journalism, attacked the governor's stand as "unjustified and a reflection on our intelligence and education." He was applauded when he declared that "abolition of the school was an insult to every newspaper in Texas."

Demand Reinstatement.

Mr. Cobb called upon his fellow editors and publishers to demand a reinstatement of the school. A resolution embodying these thoughts is to be introduced, it was declared by officials of the organization.

The question of accepting mail order advertising is to be a free-for-all discussion Saturday. A certain mail order house is offering a large contract to country newspapers, according to Sam Harben, of Richardson. About 60 per cent have declined the advertising as being inimical to interests of local merchants while 40 per cent have accepted. Advisability of accepting such advertising is an open question in Texas, he said, and an opportunity will be given to hear all sides before the association goes on record in the matter.

It is probable the association will join with the State Medical association in its $100,000 state-wide campaign to keep unlicensed practitioneers and nostrums from the newspapers. The medical association will ask publishers to refuse advertisements of persons attempting to practice medicine wthout a license. Dr. C. M. Rosser of Dallas, president ofthe medical association, will outline the campaign of the association in an address tomorrow. Officials of the press association state a resolution favoring non-acceptance of advertising of so-called illegal practitioneers will be adopted.

Many Attend Meet.

Editors and publishers of small towns newspapers from all over the state are attending the convention, a large percentage of the older members of the association being present. Mrs. Francis Calahan of the Trinity county News, Groveton, spoke on "The Weekly Newspaper Field as a Avocation for Women." She warned the woman wanting to publish a county newspaper that "it is a rough school." W. D. Hart of the Cooper Review, Cooper, urged newspapermen to use influence on outdoor advertisers "to use discretion in their advertising to the end that they do not detract from our beauty spots along the highways or mar our natural scenery." He has an interest in a poster advertising business, he said, and declared the uncontrolled outdoor advertising should be regulated.

The delegates were guests at a chicken barbecue at Hitt's Lake near Tyler.

Dallas Slayers Have Denied Confession

HOUSTON, June 18.—Frank and Lorenzo Noel, neroes from Dallas, awaiting electrocution at Huntsville July 3, will likely go to their death protesting innocence oftwo brutal murders and of assaults on white women to which they formerly confessed.

According to W. R. Dulaney, prison commissioner, the negroes have entirely repudiated the confessions that had much to do with sending them to the electric chair.

According to Dulaney, the negroes said they were beaten and forced to make their confessions. It is said the repudiation of their former story was made to a minister who has visited the men in the death cell since they have been at Huntsville.
