Record numbers expected to travel

■ Local residents join heavy travel group.

By Mella McEwen

Americans are expected to hit the road in record numbers this long Memorial Day weekend, and local travel agents say thousands of Midlanders will be among those hitting the highway.

Peggy Brown, an owner of the Great Destinations travel agency, observed that the Memorial Day weekend is the second heaviest traveled holiday, second only to Thanksgiving.

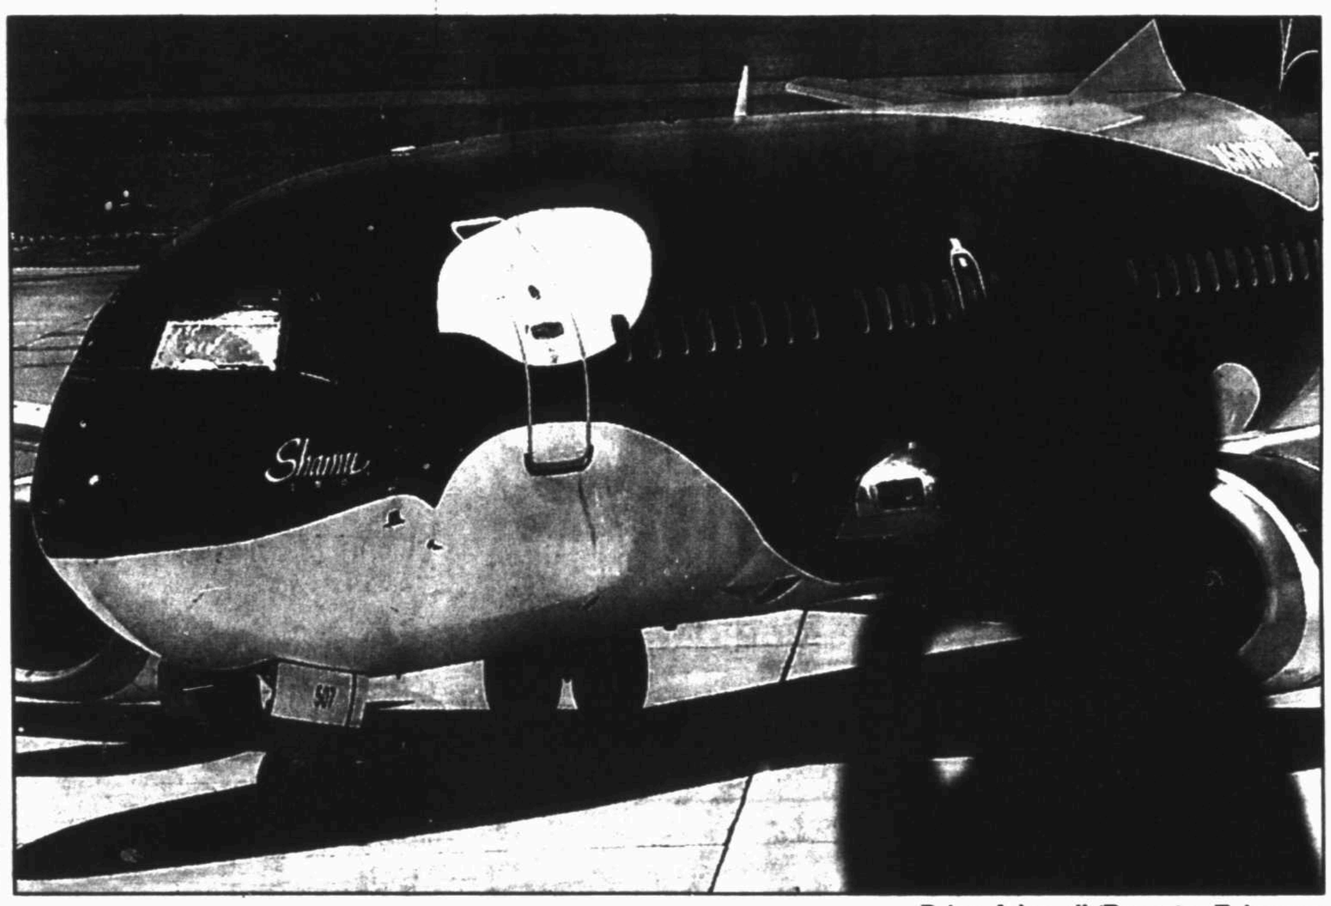

The survey by the American Automobile Association (Triple A) found that a record 33.3 million Americans are expected to travel this weekend, up 4 percent from a year ago.

A majority of those hitting the road — 27.5 million who expect to travel 100 miles or more — will be going by auto, light truck or recreational vehicle, a gain of 3 percent.

"Overall we're finding that the combination of a strong economy, historically low gasoline prices and the lack of airfare wars are prompting people to take to the road," said Bill Noble, group manager, public and government affairs, for Triple A in Texas.

He cautioned that "This is often the

Wave program aims to save lives this weekend

Memorial Day is a time to remember the U.S. men and woman who lost their lives serving their country. Unfortunately, it is also one of the most dangerous for the roadways.

This year, the Midland Police Department — along with Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) — is working on a program local officials hope will reduce the number of accident and/or deaths in Midland this weekend.

Midland Police Chief John Urby announced Thursday that the department will participate in a statewide campaign called the "Wave", and its goal is to reduce speed-related accidents and to increase seat belt and child restraint use.

Special Operations Lt. Brian Bogart said in order for the program to work officers must make themselves aware of the problem areas.

"It is the TxDOT summer Wave program," Bogart said. "We ran surveys on different areas around the city. Some were done by hand, others by electronic devices. From the surveys we were able to pick out the area in Midland where people speed the most and where they are not wearing

Hail storm damages up to 100 municipal vehicles in Odessa

ODESSA — Up to 100 city of Odessa employee vehicles sustained damages from Wednesday night's thunderstorm, which dropped baseball-size hail over Odessa.

The same storm spawned small, harmless tornadoes in other parts of West Texas, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

City spokeswoman Becki Murphy said most of the car damages were minor, like nickel-sized dents, cracked headlights and chipped windshields.

The city's risk management department scrambled Thursday to document damage assessments, but couldn't draft a damage estimate immediately, Ms. Murphy said.

"The bad news is 50 to 100 vehicles were damaged," she said. "The good news is none of the damages will effect the overall performance of the cars, and we'll have most of them fixed right away."

The city won't repair hail-damaged cars that are near their retire-

Late-night twisters mystify National Weather Service

Did a series of thunderstorms turn West Texas into Tornado Alley for a night?

Weather watchers will probably never know.

A six-hour storm that lingered and swirled over Red Bluff Lake spawned a weak twister near the town of Mentone late Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Luckily, the twister didn't cross into city limits, said Harlan Hopper, a councilman and fire chief in the town of 50.

"It was like four miles from town ... just on the edge of the county," Hopper said.

Meteorologist Dan Koch confirmed that the twister "touched down" twice, but was probably harmless to the unpopulated region.

Another weak twister struck Crockett County at around 11 p.m. Wednesday.

A trucker on Interstate 10 told the Weather Service that he saw a

Judge sets trial date for MHS student's lawsuit against MISD

By Daniel Arp
Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Royal Ferguson has set a trial date two months from Thursday in Midland High School senior Casey Riggan's lawsuit against the school district and his principal, Neil Richmond.

"Because the above case involves a plaintiff who may be a graduating senior and who may be going to college out of the city in the Fall and because it also involves the Midland School District and high officials within the School District who will be busy with school duties in the Fall, the Court will specially set the trial before a jury on Tuesday, July 27, at 9:15 a.m.," Ferguson wrote, in an order filed Thursday morning.

Attorneys for the Midland Independent School District were quick to point out that the setting of a trial date does not preclude the possibility the case will be dismissed beforehand. The district filed its motion to dismiss Wednesday.

Rick Strange, an MISD attorney, had not yet seen Ferguson's order Thursday and said it would be dif-

As students shimmied into their blue gowns and fussed with their tassels, 18-year-old Keenan Stringer posed for one last picture with his Greenwood High School pals.

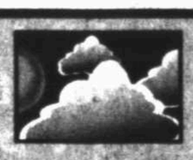

"I loved high school. It was great," said Stringer, one of 100 GHS students who collected their hard-earned diplomas Thursday at Chaparral Center.

Despite 1999's unsavory moments — like a rash of school shootings across the nation and the president's impeachment — high school will have a special place in Stringer's memories, he said.

It's the period where he finally made the transition from student to adult.

Midland church groups offer multitude of opportunities for town's youth this summer

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a six-part series on Keeping Our Kids Safe." Part 5 deals with what opportunities local churches will offer this summer.

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

Keeping our kids safe

First the thumbs twiddle, then the mind wanders. Or maybe it's the other way around.

But the expressions of boredom may fall on deaf ears soon after, and suddenly the child is left with facing an entire summer with little or nothing to keep him entertained.

When Tuesday rolls around, summer starts in earnest for the city's school children. There will likely be hundreds of kids alone at home with little to do, left by parents who must earn a paycheck to support a family. Or even if the kids aren't left alone, enough of them will long to be entertained during the summer break from classes.

But for every child who sits at home and stares at the ceiling, mindlessly flips the channels or falls asleep reading a teen magazine, there are programs available — most through Midland's many churches — that can keep them busy for a pretty decent chunk of their time.

Children's programs start at the earliest ages. Many offer Vacation Bible Schools in June for pre-school through pre-teen age groups.

But it's often that older youth demographic — the 13-17 age group — that longs for summer activities to fill up their time, but often can't find them or don't know where to look for them.

To start the summer, two outdoor Christian concerts will be presented at SoundSource, 3205 W. Cuthbert ... Vigilantes of Love, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., and Sonic Flood, June 5. Skating will start at 5:30 p.m., with the concert to follow at 7 p.m. Masters Commission, a Christian drama troupe, will open for Sonic Flood, whose song, "I Want to Know You" is currently one of the top songs on Christian radio.

Several churches, in conjunction with the Youth Ministries Association of Midland, will participate on a rotating basis to offer Extreme Skate Days. Sponsoring churches and busi-

SWING FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Alumni Association will host its first-ever scholarship benefit dance, Swing Party '99, which is set for June 12 at the Club at Mission Dorado.

The band Lucky Strikes from Austin will perform original songs from its two recently released albums, "Song and Dance" and "Twelve Past Midnight." Billboard magazine described the band's music as a cross between hot jazz and romantic pop ballads. The band has performed in clubs in Hollywood and San Diego, as well as for various events hosted by the University of Texas at Austin.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the UTPB Alumni Association Education endowment, a separate organization created for the establishment of scholarships for current UTPB students. A smaller percentage of the proceeds will help support ongoing campus-based activities and alumni programs.

"Our initial idea of hosting a quality reunion activity grew into a much larger vision," said Connie Greenlee, benefit chairman. "We hope this will be a fun and worthwhile tradition for the association to implement annually. With over 60 percent of our students requiring financial assistance to complete their education, additional scholarship funding is always a need."

Other ongoing alumni association programs include the Alumni Program Student Internship Program, which provides a stipend each semester for a student to work on programs, activities and events to link current students with alumni; and the UTPB Falcon Athletic spirit activities, which include the fall season kickoff rally and barbecue that benefits the athletic program.

Tickets for Swing Party '99 are on sale for $12 each for current UTPB students, staff, faculty and paid members of the alumni association; $15 each for general admission until June 12; and $18 each at the door. Ticket price includes a light appetizer buffet. For more information, call 552-2809 or e-mail warren_t@utpb.edu.

RETIRING EDUCATOR

Marillyn Odum, Ph.D., principal at Anson Jones Elementary School for Midland Independent School District, was guest of honor at a retirement reception May 20 at the MISD Administration Building.

Ms. Odum has been principal at Anson Jones for the past 13 years. Before coming to Midland, she spent 15 years with the Fairfax County school system near Washington, D.C. She earned a doctorate degree in educational administration from Peabody College of Vanderbilt University.

After all these years, Ms. Odum still enjoys working with children. And, she added, "I love working with teachers and I love working with parents. That's why this job is the most wonderful job in the world because I get to work with all three," as well as the volunteers who serve the school.

Dr. Odum was instrumental in bringing several educational innovations to MISD, including the Reading Recovery program, which is designed to help first-graders who are having trouble learning to read; and writing program and publishing program in the elementary schools, in which children use brainstorming, writing rough drafts and polishing to produce writings that are "published," which Dr. Odum described as writings they "share with an audience."

She also helped establish the first after-school day care facility at Anson Jones, which was sponsored by Camp Fire and gave students at the school a safe place to stay between the school day and the time their parents got off from work. "Practically every (elementary) school has one now," she said.

But now that the retirement reception (which was hosted by the teachers at Anson Jones) is over and the school year is winding down, Dr. Odum is making plans for her retirement.

One thing she really wants to pursue is establishing "a support group for young people who have had brain injuries or strokes," she said.

She also is exploring the possibility of becoming a consultant or a Reading Recovery teacher.

"And," she said with a smile, "we're going to do some traveling."

FAMILY TOGETHERNESS

The descendants of the late Gus and Alice Wilson will gather this weekend in Midland for their 27th annual family reunion. Five generations of the family are expected to attend, some of them traveling from Houston, Las Vegas, Nev.; Dallas, Fort Worth, Tyler, Roxton and Oklahoma City. The family even has a president — Allen Wilson, head coach at John Tyler High School.

The reunion is hosted in different locations each year, according to Midlander Juana Wilson, family member. In the past three years, she said the reunion has been in Oklahoma, Houston and now West Texas.

"It was the idea of Gus and Alice to begin these family reunions to keep the family united," Ms. Wilson said. "We come together and have good old-fashioned home cooking, a barbecue picnic and fun and games.

"We strongly believe that a family who prays together, stays together."

FAMILY TIES

And that's not the only family reunion scheduled for this weekend in Midland.

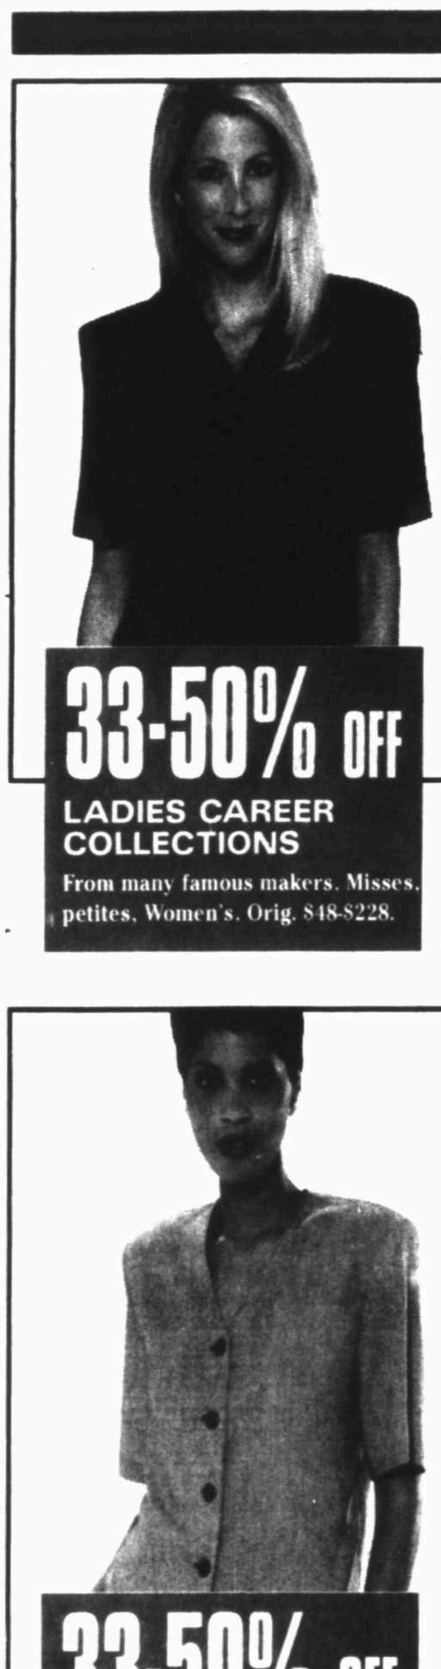

The descendants of Smith Rolison, a former slave, and his wife, Hannah Posey Rolison — some 275 to 300 of them — are traveling here from 12 different states for the occasion, according to family member Jeraldine Stanford of Midland. Some of these relatives are coming from as far away as Ohio, Washington, California, Georgia, Florida and Illinois, she said.

They also come from eight generations, Ms. Stanford said, and range in age from 90 on down.

Tonight the family will meet for registration and a get-acquainted social time at the Hampton Inn; tomorrow they will have a barbecue and picnic banquet at the Holiday Inn Convention Center.

Ms. Stanford is coordinating much of the effort for the reunion but she credits James Edward Young of Houston as being the driving force behind it. She laughingly called him the "family chairman" and herself as "a member of the committee."

EVENTS: St. Luke's has a paintball facility

nesses include Sound Source (June 5), First Baptist Church (June 12) Crestview Baptist (June 19), First Baptist (June 26), First United Methodist (July 10), First Baptist (July 17) and First Presbyterian (July 24). Most events run from 5-10 p.m. Skating at SoundSource is from 5:30-7 p.m. Participating churches will open their parking lots for skaters. each Saturday.

"Every Saturday there'll be a place for those teens to go and there'll be supervision," said Charlie Dodd, director of Youth Ministry at First Baptist Church. "We just want teens to know that there's a place to go that is safe, where they can invite their friends. And we want them to know that the churches care about them. We're going to treat skaters like athletes and give them a chance to practice their skill."

Dodd said refreshments will be made available at some of the churches. Proceeds from sales will go to help construction of the skate park facility currently in the works by the city.

First Presbyterian Church and First United Methodist Church join together June 11-13 for "Challenge '99," a weekend youth retreat featuring Gene Cotton, a nationally-known songwriter who in the 1970s penned songs for Kim Carnes and Stephen Bishop. Cotton will perform a concert open to the public at 7 p.m., June 12, at the First Presbyterian Family Life Center lawn, at the corner of C and Illinois.

"This is really an event for youth at all points in their spiritual journey," said Jennifer Sise, director of Youth Ministry at First Presbyterian Church. "It's even for kids who aren't sure if they believe in God."

The Hispanic Ministries Program at St. Luke's United Methodist Church will provide a three-day program each week from June 8-July 29. The program will involve building self-esteem, developing a group, participating in community, stretching academically and experiencing religious teaching.

St. Luke's will also offer a Neighborhood Youth Program on each Thursday in June and July. It is described as a series of programs of devotion, activity and refreshment for children and youth of the neighborhood.

"We hope both to minister to our neighborhood and to develop a bridge between St. Luke's and the families who live in our immediate area," said Richard Edwards, senior minister.

Youth minister Roger Willis said his church, Second Baptist Church, offers a week-long church camp, "that provides teens with a week to grow closer to God and build relationships with each other in a fun environment.

"Camp for us consists of concert-like praise and worship, relevant preaching, all kinds of sports,a river, a lake, blobbing and a time to kick back, relax and hang with friends."

Willis said on several other occasions, the church will attend or sponsor concerts and retreats. The church also has a paintball facility and has plays sand volleyball, hockey, basketball and Cops and Robbers.

"Cops and Robbers is the equivalent of the old version of Hide and Go Seek," Willis said. "Hide and Go Seek was played within one city block; Cops and Robbers is played over an expanse of 30, sometimes 40 city blocks. The object is the same — make it to base. Robbers start out a designated point and try to make it on foot back to home base. Cops are on foot and in cars, trying to track down the robbers and catch them before they make it back to base."

CLER Ministries, a Christian-based sexuality ministry, will hold a variety of sexuality camps around West Texas and New Mexico beginning June 6.

"The purpose of these camps is to provide eighth grade youth with factual and spiritual sexuality information that will help them view sexual intimacy as a gift from God intended for the marriage relationship," said Linda Goddard, a former Midlander who helped developed the curriculum for the program while at Trinity Presbyterian Church. Ms. Goddard and her family have recently moved to the Houston area. "It is also intended to enlighten youth to the dangers, risks and consequences that can occur when God's gift of sexual intimacy is used outside of the marriage."

The CLER camp schedule is as follows:

— June 6-12: Lake Brownwood Christian Retreat Center, Lake Brownwood, Texas.

— June 13-19: Disciples of Christ Conference Center, Gonzales, Texas.

— June 27-July 3: Ceta Glen Christian Conference Center, Happy, Texas.

— July 10-17: Camp Chimney Springs, Cloudcroft, N.M.

— July 18-24: Christian Youth Foundation, Athens, Texas.

Additional information on the camps and CLER's curriculum can be obtained by e-mailing CLERMIN@aol.com.

A number of Chrysalis Flights are available. Dates and times are found at www.marshill.com/emmaus.

"The purpose of Chrysalis Flights, like Emmaus Walks, are training Christian leaders," said Alan Williams, chaplain at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center. "If kids are confident about their faith and reflect God's love to their friends, who in some cases may not have a church home or who may be 'marginal,' then kids can invite and dialogue with kids better than adults as a whole."

Teen Community Bible Study, which meets weekly during the school year, will meet from 7-9 p.m. on the last Tuesdays of both June and July in what is called "Keep In Touch" sessions. Studies are at Grace Presbyterian, 2801 N. Garfield. Teen CBS is open to all 9-12 graders. When CBS convenes on a weekly basis in August, the book of Revelation will be the focus.

TRAVEL: Motorists urged to check their cars

first-time they've taken to the road since the last driving season, so we urge them to be sure and check their car, especially fluids and the battery. Last summer, with the heat, especially in the Dallas area, we had a 30 percent increase in calls for battery assistance. I've found that heat is as damaging to a car batter as cold."

Motorists can also expect to pay a nickel more on average for gasoline, Noble said, with the price averaging $1.07 per gallon in Texas. Prices are beginning to stabilize, he said, noting that last summer, when increased driving fuels higher demand and thus higher prices, an oversupply of crude helped keep gasoline prices low.

The 5.8 million Americans who won't be traveling on the nation's roadways will be taking to the air or riding buses or trains, the Triple A survey said, a gain of 7 percent.

Julie Gardner, a spokeswoman for Continental Airlines, said bookings on her airline for the Memorial Day weekend have been strong and observed that "Anytime you have a three-day weekend, we have higher than usual bookings. This kicks off our summer travel season and we expect a busy summer."

Karen Esterly, customer service supervisor at Southwest Airlines, said that the airline had been heavily booked starting Thursday afternoon through today.

"You have graduation ceremonies — people are coming in and going out for graduation ceremonies," she said, adding that with schools closing for the summer, families are taking this first opportunity to go on family vacations.

"We did a lot of bookings," said Deena Szymanski with Midland Travel. "It's been a little bit busier than it has been. I'm not quite sure why, but I'm glad we are."

Midlanders are typically traveling to Dallas, or Orlando, or to see family members, she said.

Ms. Brown of Great Destinations said that a large number of Midlanders are traveling within the state, listing destinations like San Antonio, Schlitterbahn and coastal cities like Corpus Christi, Galveston and South Padre Island.

"We are swamped," said Vicki Porter, owner of Amera Travel Network, whose agency began booking summer vacations in March. She said the agency has arranged two senior trips that leave Midland Monday and a trip to Alaska for a group of 83 that leaves June 4. The agency is also arranging a trip to Cancun for the employees of an oil company.

Noting that her agency specializes in leisure travel, her business has been strong despite the downturn in the local economy. She has noted an impact on corporate travel, but her business is up 40 percent over last year, she reported.

Elizabeth Ninomiya, a spokeswoman for American Eagle, said her airline has been heavily booked, "but that shouldn't deter passengers from checking to see if there are seats available, especially in our slower periods when we have special fares. Systemwide, we expect this to be a very busy weekend and the airline expects a heavy summer travel season."

Added Ms. Esterly of Southwest, "It's going to be a busy weekend, but nothing overwhelming — so far."

GRADUATE: First day of school most memorable for some seniors

(From 1A)

"I think the best part of high school was having more freedom and getting the chance to know my classmates better," said the aspiring math scholar.

Brenna Mathis, 18, moved from Dallas to Midland in the eighth grade.

"The school here was a lot smaller than the ones in Dallas. I was used to two-story buildings," she said of her initial culture shock. "But people here were more friendly."

Take, for instance, her classmate Rachel Helms, who she met in art class.

"She came up to talk to me, and we became best friends ever since," Miss Helms said. "I can't believe it's over this fast. The hardest part is seeing everyone in here for the last time."

Miss Helms, 17, said Miss Mathis "was new and seemed like she needed a friend. I needed a friend too."

After graduation, Miss Helms wants to attend Midland College and pursue a career in journalism. Much to her benefit, she's one step closer to her dream than she was a week ago.

"Graduation's a milestone, but it's one with mixed emotions, definitely," Miss Helms said. "I'm happy and sad, but that's the way it goes."

Chad Aly, 19, said Greenwood schools afforded him the opportunity to achieve his goal of becoming a high school football player. He tried out for and made his first team in 3rd grade.

"I always wanted to do it, and my dad put all his spirit into sport," Aly said. "He was there at all my games throughout my football career, except for three."

In retrospect, if he had the chance do something differently, he would have "studied a lot harder, instead of having too much fun."

For some students — like 17-year-old Monty Magee — the first day of school is the most memorable.

"The first day of kindergarten, I chased a girl in the playground and kissed her. They told my parents and I got in trouble. She now lives in San Antonio," Magee said, who will attend Ranger College. "Now, I'm ready to get out of here and do something else."

Cheryl Sutherland, 18, also had an embarrassing moment her first day of school.

"My kindergarten teacher had this big bathtub in the middle of the room. It was lined with carpet and filled with all these toys," she said. "Everyday, I'd take them out and sit inside of it, pretending to take a bath. All the kids made fun of me for that."

High school, on the other hand, was a different story. It's symbolic of her metamorphosis from an unruly teen to a young adult.

"I did stuff I shouldn't have. I was hanging out with the wrong crowd," said Miss Sutherland, an aspiring Realtor. "... but I got a job, met new people, became more mature and took on some adult responsibilities. It all worked out."

But senior year, she said, went by too fast.

"I feel this is nothing but a dream. I feel like I'll be in school next year, because this is just a dream."

PROGRAM: MPD will enforce on Fourth of July also

(From 1A)

a seat belt."

The campaign will focus on increased traffic enforcement on Memorial Day, Bogart said. The program will also be done on the Fourth of July and Labor Day weekends.

"We will have extra people working these areas this weekend," Bogart said. "After the weekend we will do a post-survey. The Memorial Day post survey will work as the Fourth of July pre-survey and so on.

"We know we are not going to see 100 percent seat belt use or zero speeders, but we would really like to see an increase in seat belt use and a reduction in speeders."

According to Jim White with the office of public information for Midland police, the money for the campaign came from a $10,000 grant from TxDOT. The funds will be used to pay overtime for officers working the program.

Following is a list of streets that police report more than 80 percent of the motorists speed on in Midland. The name of the area will be listed, followed by the percentage that exceed the speed limit, according to police.

■ Loop 250 North Service Road — 97 percent.

■ Golf Course Road, between Midkiff Road and Garfield Street — 94 percent.

■ Loop 250 South Service Road — 91 percent.

■ Highway 349, North of Loop 250 — 89 percent.

■ Eastbound Illinois Avenue, by the hospital — 88 percent.

■ Midkiff Road, between Golf Course Road and Wadley Avenue — 88 percent.

■ Wall Street, between Loop 250 and Midkiff Road — 87 percent.

■ Wadley Avenue, between Midland Drive and "A" Street — 82 percent.

■ Midland Drive, between Cuthbert Avenue and Andrews Highway — 81 percent.

■ Cuthbert Avenue, between Garfield Street and Andrews Highway — 80 percent.

Following is a list of the three best and three worst streets for seatbelt use, according to police.

■ Percentage of drivers: highest — Midland Drive at Loop 250 with 85 percent; lowest — Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive with 67 percent.

■ Percentage of passengers: highest — Midland Drive at Loop 250 with 79 percent, lowest — Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive with 20 percent.

■ Percentage of children under four years old: highest — Midkiff Street from Wadley Avenue to Loop 250 and Lamesa Road and Scharbauer Drive both with 100 percent, lowest Midkiff Street at Illinois Avenue with 25 percent.

LAWSUIT: Richmond claims Riggan was source of rumors

ficult to comment. He said he would guess the order was triggered by receiving the school district's response, filed along with the motion for dismissal Wednesday.

"There are some automatic procedures that kick in place," Strange said.

"A lot of things can happen between now and the trial date," said Brian Carney, Riggan's attorney, who was working towards filing a response to the dismissal motion Thursday.

"We appreciate the court taking the time to specially set this hearing," Carney said. "It's good to know the court's going to put us on a fast track."

Riggan is suing the school district, its board of trustees and Richmond for allegedly violating his civil rights in a disciplinary measure taken against him.

Riggan was disciplined by Richmond for being in possession of two photos of Richmond's car parked on a public street outside a female teacher's home.

Richmond also claimed Riggan was the source of rumors about the principal and the teacher.

Riggan was suspended three days, put in an alternative education program for five days and ordered to write two letters of apology for "disrespect to an adult."

Riggan has said he will not write the letters of apology, and he will not be allowed to participate in graduation though he will receive a diploma in the mail.

The lawsuit alleges Riggans' due process rights were violated at various points throughout his appeal procedure, which ended when the school board upheld Riggan's punishment.

The lawsuit also alleges Riggans' freedom of speech rights were violated and the school district did not follow its own procedures during the grievance process.

The Riggans have not decided on damages. As yet, the lawsuit asks for attorneys' fees.

DAMAGE: Cars near retirement date won't be fixed

(From 1A)

ment date, she said. The same applies for cars that only received body damage.

"We can pour out money trying to fix every car with a dent, but the next week, there might be another hail storm in our area," Ms. Murphy said.

Some police units also sustained minor damage, but nothing that will effect put the officers in danger, she said.

As of Thursday, workers hadn't determined how many cars were parked at the municipal office's parking lot and how many were in use, Ms. Murphy said.

At least four Ector County sheriff's cars were also damaged, said Lt. Billy Clark. Most of them sustained body damage, though one had a broken windshield and an other had a broken overhead light, Clark said.

At Art Renteria's body shop on Second Street, it's not unusual to hear the clamor ratchet sets and see a few cars parked outside the garage.

But Thursday's business was more hectic than usual. Between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., at least 50 people came to Renteria's shop for hail repair estimates.

"This is just from the storm last night," Renteria said, while shuffling his grimy fingers through a stack of yellow estimate sheets. "It's been busy all day."

In fact, he hired three additional mechanics to help meet the demand for storm-related repairs.

Keith Angelly, who lives on 89th Street, said golf ball-sized hail caused a web-like crack on the right side of his pickup. He got caught in the storm while driving home from Odessa High School.

"I've had that pickup for 11 years, and that was the first time it's ever been damaged by hail," he said. "I'd been driving in the storm and (finally) pulled over to the side of the road, under some trees. And the last hail stone that hit me was the one that cracked the window."

Three years ago, he replaced the roof of his house when a massive storm ravaged west Ector County. Thursday morning, Angelly inspected his house for damages, but found just a few torn shingles and a lot of broken branches.

"You just gotta live with it," he said, while counting the dents on his roof. "It's better than living in Oklahoma City and being hit by that F-5. I'm just glad I still have a roof to be on top of."

TORNADOES: Sites haven't been assessed for damage

tornado cross mile marker 288. It was first seen eight miles west of Bakersfield, but 20 minutes later, a state trooper reported that it was 15 miles north of Sheffield, Koch said.

"It's not unusual to see these kind of storms produce families of tornadoes," he said. "There were probably more tornadoes (Wednesday) night, but we'll never know because they were formed over such isolated areas."

Koch said the Weather Service hadn't assessed the tornado sites as of Thursday, but didn't hear any reports of destruction.

Meanwhile, the basin's stormy nights could diminish by Monday.

The storm system that brought almost two inches of rain to Midland is fading, but might endure the weekend, Koch said. If so, the chance of thunderstorms will whittle down to less than 20 percent.

Weather logs indicate the basin received seven consecutive days of rain. It's most obvious in the Fort Davis area — where the altitude and climate are just right, Koch said.

But in Midland-Odessa, residents have only seen the two extremes: either a trace of rain or a stormy downpour. The year-to-date rainfall total is still about an inch below average, Koch said.

Head-on collision kills three in Odessa

ODESSA — Two girls suffered serious injuries Thursday in a car accident that killed their mother, stepfather and the driver of another car.

Lauren Thurman, 10, and her sister Kara Thurman, 14, of Hale Canter, remained in critical condition at Odessa Medical Center at press time. Their parents, David and Susan Fish, both 42, died after their car was struck head-on in the southbound lane of U.S. Highway 385.

The driver of the other vehicle, Joan Keithly, 48, of Kermit, was driving the in the wrong lane, state troopers said. She also died. The case is still under investigation.

Then I Remembered

Memories take me back to days in that small central Texas town when Memorial or Decoration Day would bring to the streets a company of aging patriots from World Wars I and II. For a small donation, they pinned that bright red paper poppy to your shirt, gave you a sagging but proud salute, and thanked you. They were proud of that grand old flag for which many had been wounded, and scores had died. Burning in their heart was a fierce love for this "land of the free and the home of the brave." My, it still thrills my heart! What happened? Where did it go? Sadly, "none calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for truth; they trust in vanity, and speak lies; they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity." Isaiah 59:4. So, folks burn Flags, defy our Constitution, and trample our freedom in the name of human rights.

We must return to our God, and reclaim that nation for which they "gave their lives that that nation might live." Paul tells some church leaders from Ephesus, "Remember the words of the Lord Jesus..." Acts 20:35 All of them. And, give thanks for His sacrifice till He comes.

OBITUARIES

Charles Chamberlin

Charles Wellington Chamberlin, Jr. died Wednesday, May 26, 1999 after a brief illness. Charles was born December 10, 1920 in Arlington, New Jersey to Charles and Maude (Alberts) Chamberlin. He married Mickey O'Neal of Midland, daughter of longtime Midland residents, B. E. "Slim" and Rachel O'Neal, on September 8, 1943. He worked for the public service electric station in New Jersey until he joined the Army Air Corp. He was stationed at the Midland Airfield, but saw a brief tour in Panama at a signal station. After his discharge he worked as a contract truck driver and then went to work for the Permian Corporation, retiring after twenty-five years of service. While with Permian he worked as a truck driver, yard supervisor and a field gauger. Mr. Chamberlin was a member of Cotton Flat Baptist Church.

Mr. Chamberlin is survived by his wife of 56 years, Mickey Chamberlin of Midland; his son, Chuck Chamberlin and his wife, Andra, of Midland; his daughters, Janet Watson and her husband, Charles, of Sugar Land, TX, Lynn Chamberlin of Sugar Land, and Lori Watson and her husband, Bobby, of Midland; his brother, Albert Chamberlin of Wordsboro, Vermont; his sister, Eunice Kugler of Garden City South, Long Island, New York; 6 grandchildren, Will Watson and Mick Watson, both of Sugar Land, Kim Norton of Virginia Beach, VA, Bo Watson, Kayton Watson, and Kenzi Watson, all of Midland; 3 great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Visitation will be Friday from 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM at Ellis Funeral Home. Funeral services have been scheduled for 4:30 PM Saturday at the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Reverend Jim Fields officiating. Interment will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Serving as pallbearers will be William Watson, Mick Watson, Bo Watson, Rick Green, Rance Green, and Steve Davis. Honorary pallbearers will be Permian Corporation Retirees.

The family requests memorials be directed to: American Heart Association, 3525 Andrews Hwy., Suite 111, Midland, Texas 79703.

Ben Mayberry

Ben (Hot Shot) Mayberry, 60, died Tuesday, May 25, 1999, in a Galveston hospital following a lengthy illness. He was born March 4, 1939 in Gonzales, Texas.

The funeral service will be held Saturday, May 29, 1999, at 1:00 p.m. at Mt. Rose Baptist Church with Rev. Bill Palmer officiating. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery. The funeral arrangements are under the direction of Reyes-Garcia Funeral Home.

He was preceded in death by his father, Ben Mayberry, Sr.; a brother, Edward "Happy" Mayberry; a sister, Mattie Dangerfield; and his grandparents, Ervin and Florence Taylor.

Survivors include his mother, Lona Mae Mayberry of Midland; two sons, Lynn Bess Mayberry of Inglewood, CA and Jimmy Mayberry of Big Spring, TX; four daughters, Michele Mayberry of Plano, TX, Vickie Mayberry Windham of Houston, TX, Tunya Mayberry Williams of Midland, TX and Melodye Archele Tryon of Midland, TX; four brothers, Raymond Mayberry of Odessa, TX, John L. Mayberry of Los Angeles, CA, Robert Mayberry of San Jose, CA and Sherman Lee Mayberry of Odessa, TX; a sister, Pauline Wallace of Midland; 5 grandchildren; 1 uncle; 2 aunts; 11 nephews; and 4 nieces.

Pallbearers will be Julius Jones, Willie Wilson, Marshall King, S.M. King, Eddie Riley and L.C. Polk. Honorary pallbearers will be the men of the Mayberry Family.

Theoria Hudson

Theoria Schrock Hudson was the third of eight children born to Harry Schrock and Polly Washington Schrock on August 9, 1912 in Rockdale, Texas.

Mrs. Hudson accepted Christ at an early age. She united with the Macedonia Baptist Church in 1937 after moving to Midland. She later became a member of the Church of God in Christ where she remained until her demise.

Theoria Schrock was joined in holy wedlock to Mr. Robert Hudson on October 23, 1927. To this union 8 children were born.

She was preceded in death by her parents; spouse, Robert Hudson; three brothers, Deward, Sam and T.J. Schrock; two sisters, Seleta Clark and Thelma Carroll; one son, Charlie R. Hudson; one daughter, Ruth E. Roberts; and one grandson, Todd Talbert Hudson.

She leaves to cherish her memory a brother, David Schrock of Dallas, TX; a sister, Saloma Bates of Midland, Texas; three sons, Brynee and wife, Lovie Hudson of Pomona, CA, Hayward Hudson of Los Angeles, CA and Tommy Hudson and wife, Barbara Hudson; one adopted grandson, Andre Hudson Hemphill and wife, Toni, of Commerce, Texas; three daughters, Mary Love Hudson of Houston, Texas, Barbara King and husband, Howard, of Midland, TX, and Gwendolyn Hudson of Midland; 32 grandchildren; 46 great-grandchildren; 6 great-great-grandchildren; and a host of relatives and friends.

Services will be held at Alexander Temple at 11 o'clock a.m. on Saturday, May 30, 1999, under the direction of Thomas Funeral Home.

Kenneth Moore

Kenneth E. Moore was born to Alfred I. and Levenia Hilbish Moore on June 11, 1919 in Beggs, Oklahoma. He graduated high school in Muskogee and from Oklahoma Baptist University in Shawnee, Oklahoma in 1941 with a Bachelor of Science in Education. He was joined in holy matrimony with Lucile Capp of Shawnee August 11, 1940. He enlisted in the Marine Corps reserves and was called to active duty November 1942. He attended Marine Corps Officers School in Quantico, Virginia in January 1943 and served 25 months in the South Pacific (Saipan, Tinian, Okinawa, Japan and Hawaii). 2nd Lt. Moore was awarded the Silver Star for meritorious action during the amphibious assault of Saipan in 1944 and received an honorable discharge in March 1947.

He is a Christian and was an active deacon (ordained) of First Baptist Church, Hobbs (1952-54), Goldsmith Baptist (1954-57), Crescent Park Baptist, Odessa (1957-60) and First Baptist Church, Odessa (1960-1998). He was active in church and civic affairs, serving in the Black Gold District of the Boy Scouts of America (19 years) in numerous capacities including Eagle Board and District Chairman, Meals on Wheels and as a Reagan Elementary grandparent volunteer.

He was employed by Phillips Petroleum Company for 43 years, from September 1, 1941 through February 1, 1985, starting as a roustabout and for his last 20 years as Superintendent, Gas Settlements Division.

Kenneth is survived by Lucile Moore, his wife and partner of 58 years; his daughter, Ann and husband, Jerry F. Anderson of Odessa; his son, Ken E. Moore and wife, DeAnna of Midland; grandson, Jerry Anderson, Jr and wife, Lynette of Odessa; grandson, Bill Anderson and wife, Tricia of Odessa; granddaughter, Molly and husband, Rodney Hernandez of Odessa; grandson, Cary Holt and wife, Lori of Fort Worth; granddaughter, Stacy Moore of Austin; granddaughter, Amber Tipton of Midland, Texas; and great-grandchildren, Jerry Don, Ashley, Laura, Betsy, Ryan, Tommy, Kristin and Madison; a sister, Rita Moore Hunnicut of Tahlequah, Oklahoma; and brother, Ralph W. Moore of Roundup, Montana.

He was devoted to his wife and family. Friends and family alike recognized him as unwavering, loyal and true. The Lord has a steadfast companion today.

Visitation will be on Friday, May 28, from 9:00 AM to 9:00 PM with the family to receive friends from 5:00 PM to 7:00 PM at Hubbard Kelly Funeral Home, Odessa. Funeral services will be at 2:00 PM Saturday, May 29 at the First Baptist Church with Dr. Ernest Easley officiating. Interment to follow in Sunset Memorial Gardens. Pallbearers will be grandsons, Jerry Anderson, Jr., Bill Anderson and Cary Holt; his great-grandson, Jerry Don Anderson; Rodney Hernandez and Henry Wiggers. Honorary pallbearers are Jack Claassen, Forest O. Harper, Carroll Chowning, Bob Colin, Cress Steele, Weldon Brumbelow and the deacons of First Baptist Church. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests any memorials be made to First Baptist Church, 700 N. Lee, Odessa, TX 79761 or Vista Care Family Hospice, 816 N. Golder, Odessa, TX 79761.

U.N. war crimes tribunal indicts Milosevic

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A U.N. tribunal on Thursday indicted Slobodan Milosevic for crimes against humanity, holding the Yugoslav president personally responsible for the horrors in Kosovo and brutal purge of ethnic Albanians. It was the first time an international court has charged a sitting head of state with war crimes.

Belgrade rejected the indictments as a political stunt and refused to recognize the tribunal's authority, and diplomats worldwide voiced concerns about the prospects for peace now that they must negotiate with an indicted war crimes suspect.

The indictment of the Yugoslav leader and four top aides focused the world's gaze anew on the litany of massacres, rapes and deportations tearfully recounted by thousands of refugees who have fled the region.

Among the atrocities blamed on forces ultimately answerable to Milosevic was the massacre of dozens of ethnic Albanians in the village of Racak in January — a killing frenzy that provoked outrage around the world.

The indictment also includes other, less well-publicized but more horrific massacres, including one in late March in which Serb forces rampaged through villages, looting and torching houses as terrified residents hid in a nearby forest.

Serb police found them and ordered women and children out of the country, herded 105 men and boys into a deserted house and gunned them down before torching their bodies, the war crimes tribunal said. Tacked to the end of the indictment was a chilling list of the 340 victims.

President Clinton said the indictments would have a twofold effect.

"It will reassure the victims of Belgrade's atrocities in Kosovo and it will deter future war crimes by establishing that those who give the orders will be held accountable," Clinton said in a statement.

But Belgrade defiantly rejected the charges.

Goran Matic, a government minister, called the tribune "a private court" set up by Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, NATO supreme commander in Europe Gen. Wesley Clark and State Department spokesman James Rubin, "for all those who do not think the way they do."

Milosevic himself made no mention of his indictment in a statement calling on the United Nations to take the lead in efforts to resolve the crisis.

The indictment charges Milosevic; the president of Serbia, Milan Milutinovic; deputy prime minister of Yugoslavia, Nikola Sainovic, a close aide of Milosevic; chief of general staff of the Yugoslav army, Dragoljub Ojdanic; and Vlajko Stojiljkovic, minister of internal affairs of Serbia.

Each was charged with three counts of crimes against humanity and one count of violating the laws and customs of war.

"There is a credible basis to believe that these accused are criminally responsible for the deportation of 740,000 Kosovo Albanians and for the murder of 340 Kosovo Albanians" ranging in age from 2 to 95, chief prosecutor Louise Arbour said in announcing the indictments.

"This is a case that is not solely based on command responsibility. We have charged all five accused ... on the basis of personal criminal responsibility for ordering, planning, instigating, executing, for aiding and abetting in the commission of these offenses," she said.

The charges all stem from atrocities committed this year in Kosovo, which had a prewar population of 2 million. Each count carries a maximum penalty of life in prison; the tribunal has no death penalty.

Arbour said more charges were likely as Western governments continue to turn over intelligence gathered against Yugoslavia's leadership.

But before the tribunal can prosecute the 57-year-old Milosevic, it has to get its hands on him.

The court issued international arrest warrants for the Yugoslav leader and his four co-accused, and Arbour ordered the suspects' assets in foreign bank accounts frozen to discourage them from fleeing abroad.

The indictment, requested Saturday and approved Monday, was kept secret for a few days to allow U.N. staff to pull out of Yugoslavia, Arbour said.

The indictment had been widely expected, with ethnic Albanians giving investigators detailed accounts of massacres, rapes and other atrocities since March, when thousands were forced to flee the ethnic purge at the same time NATO airstrikes began.

The court had been under mounting pressure from human rights groups and others to indict top Yugoslav officials for their command responsibility in ordering atrocities against civilians in Kosovo or failing to prevent or punish subordinates for carrying them out.

Thursday's charges turned key players in the search for peace in Kosovo into war crimes suspects and internationally wanted men, troubling some diplomats who wondered how to mediate a settlement with an indicted Milosevic.

Older Midlanders make community a better place!

It may be a young person's world, but don't tell that to lots of Midlanders we know and appreciate!

The month of May is being celebrated as Older Americans Month and that is entirely fitting because their contributions to the Midland community are awesome. In fact, we agree with Alex Rose, district coordinator for the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), who said, "When I think of Older Americans Month, I think it should be 'Older, Wiser, More Active Americans Month.'"

Improved medical care and nutrition have resulted in many Americans living longer today, but they are not spending their retirement years rocking their time away in rocking chairs or knitting, although some still do rock and some knit. They are contributing to the Midland community in a big way.

Earlier this week, Midlander Carole Hobbs was presented the City of Champions Award by the City of Midland for her tireless humanitiarian efforts. Those efforts included her 20,011 hours worked as a volunteer in the auxiliary of Memorial Hospital and Medical Center (MHMC)! There are numerous others of retirement age — and younger — who volunteer countless hours at MHMC and other Midland institutions, and their efforts make Midland a richer, better community.

Improved medical care and nutrition have resulted in many Americans living longer today, but they are not spending their retirement years rocking their time away in rocking chairs or knitting, although some still do rock and some knit. They are contributing to the Midland community in a big way.

But don't call them Older Americans. Chances are if you do you'll find yourself red-faced when they tell you how wrong you were. Rather, call them Older, Wiser, More Active Americans. That is what they are.

Midland — and all communities — should thank its lucky stars for having such caring, dedicated, wise and sincere more active residents who happen to be older. They help to give us guidance and mature judgement. They can do that because they've been down this road before.

We're glad to be the beneficiaries of their wise counsel and hard work!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, May 28, the 148th day of 1999. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 28, 1934, the Dionne quintuplets — Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne — were born to Elzire Dionne at the family farm in Ontario, Canada.

On this date:

In 1533, England's Archbishop declared the marriage of King Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn valid.

In 1863, the first black regiment from the North left Boston to fight in the Civil War.

In 1892, the Sierra Club was organized in San Francisco.

In 1929, the first all-color talking picture, "On with the Show," opened in New York.

In 1937, President Roosevelt pushed a button in Washington signaling that vehicular traffic could cross the just-opened Golden Gate Bridge in California.

In 1937, Neville Chamberlain became prime minister of Britain.

In 1940, during World War II, the Belgian army surrendered to invading German forces.

In 1972, the Duke of Windsor, who had abdicated the English throne to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson, died in Paris at age 77.

In 1984, President Reagan led a state funeral at Arlington National Cemetery for an unidentified American soldier killed in the Vietnam War. (The remains were later positively identified as those of Air Force Lt. Michael J. Blassie.)

In 1987, Mathias Rust, a 19-year-old West German pilot, landed a private plane in Moscow's Red Square after evading Soviet air defenses.

Ten years ago: Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil won the Indianapolis 500 auto race.

One year ago: Pakistan matched India with five nuclear test blasts of its own, raising fears of a nuclear arms race.

Last minute budget rider was anti-Indian

It was late in last fall's congressional session and Congress was trying desperately to pass an omnibus budget bill to fund the government for another year. Several budgetary deadlines had already passed, and congressional elections were just around the corner. Time was tight.

Anderson

That's when Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., went to work. Inserted into the 40-pound, 3,800-page omnibus spending bill was an innocuous measure informally called the mitigation title of the Water Resources Development Act.

It had never received a single hearing on Capitol Hill (there had been some field hearings) and no senator had ever taken an up-or-down vote on the measure. But there it was, tucked away in a trillion-dollar spending bill to fund the federal government. Just like that, the federal government had given away 200,000 acres of land to the states of North Dakota and South Dakota, land that once belonged by treaty to the Great Sioux Nation and which the Indians want back.

How this came to be is a case-study in what's wrong with Congress — and presents a case for how it might be fixed.

In some ways, this case is hardly unique. End-of-session deals are common in every Congress, as lawmakers will try almost anything to attach their pet projects to bills that have a chance of passing. Spending bills are an especially easy way to bypass legislative scrutiny and pass laws that have nothing to do with the federal purse-strings.

Usually it's the majority party that exploits this privilege the most, but it's bipartisan sport in a capital where everyone has parochial interests to look after. In Daschle's case, the parochial interests involved hunters and fishermen in South Dakota, who didn't like the idea of such pristine habitat being turned back to its original owners.

The issues underlying this particular land grab date back more than a century — to an 1868 treaty that gave the Great Sioux Nation control of all Dakota lands west of the Missouri River. That treaty was broken a few years later when Congress stole the Black Hills, and eventually herded the native population onto the tribal boundaries that survive to this day.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers got involved in the late 1940s, when it took control of hundreds of thousands of acres that were used to create dams and reservoirs along the river. When the Corps no longer needed the land, it suddenly came up for grabs.

A bill passed in 1992 would have transferred back much of the land to the Standing Rock Sioux reservation. But Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., repealed that provision in 1994 with a last-minute rider to an earthquake relief bill. The Indians were furious.

Daschle got involved soon thereafter, and tried his level best to forge a compromise. At one point in 1996, he even invited the tribal leaders to his office and served caviar as he searched for consensus. Two of the tribes eventually did agree to a deal (which evolved into the mitigation rider), but two others walked away from the negotiations. They want nothing less than what they believe they're owed: Full ownership of all Corps lands given to the Indians by the 1868 treaty.

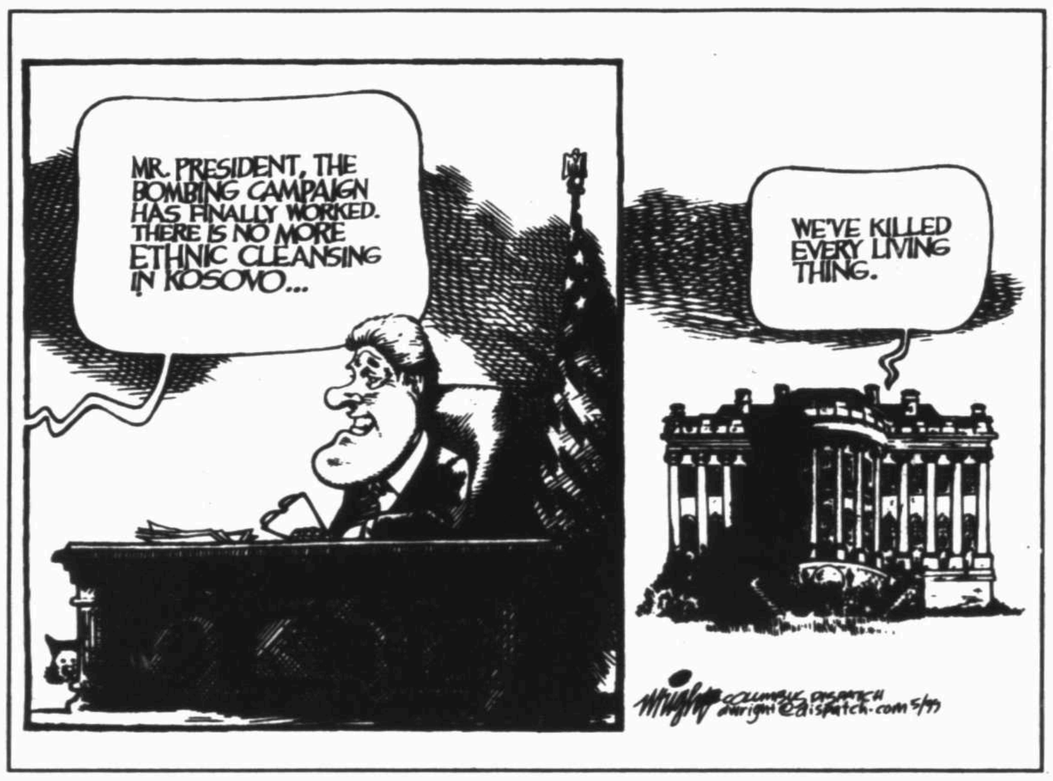

"The bottom line is that this is an anti-Indian, anti-environmental rider," said one Indian activist who asked to remain anonymous. "It's been real common in the last couple of Congresses to add both anti-Indian and anti-environmental riders (to the budget). Daschle figured out a way to do both at the same time."

You didn't hear about this story last fall because, for one, it's a local issue — but also because the people most affected don't have much of a voice in Washington. It takes money to get out your message and grab the public's attention, money that these tribes don't have. The reservations affected by this include some of the poorest communities in the country.

While there may not be a ready solution to the land wars that continue to rage in the upper Great Plains, there is a way to reduce the chance of future last-minute emergency riders. It's been proposed many times in the past, but never approved. It's called bi-annual budgeting, and it entails Congress moving to a two-year budget cycle. One year in a session would be devoted primarily to passing the budget, while the second year would presumably be devoted to passing other legislation and conducting oversight.

It might mean that future land issues won't be settled with a last-second add-on to a budget package that few people even bothered to read.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Big government, modern America: A love story

Americans, whether they acknowledge it, have gone into seemingly permanent partnership with their government. The days for which we Jeffersonians pine so earnestly ain't coming back. Modern America likes Plato's construct, the "guardian" state.

Some straws in the wind:

■ The lively prospect of a new gun-control law, the supposedly Republican-controlled Senate having buckled on the issue.

■ The Supreme Court's 5-4 decision this week making the public schools liable under the anti-bias laws to allegations that they did too little to prevent sexual harassment.

■ President Clinton's call for stronger laws and executive orders that would let parents, without financial penalty, take time off from work for family matters.

Murchison

What have these diverse matters in common? Well, contemporaneity. All surged into the headlines just lately. But something more binds them: the unstated presumption that the way we live our lives is a matter our government has the right, nay the duty, to help oversee. We can't attend to these matters ourselves anymore — not through parental or social or community or religious suasion.

Odd thing about gun control laws: Back before we had any, we never heard tell of students shooting up schools and schoolmates. Now we have a variety of laws — and a variety of shooting episodes. Still not enough laws, the public says.

Gun control feeds into the Supreme Court's sexual harassment decision. Remember the post-Littleton question: Why didn't school administrators ever come down on the Trenchcoat Mafia? Possibly for fear of provoking lawsuits. The old parent-teacher collusion that once kept peace in the schools was informal. "Not long ago," as Steve Forbes accurately pointed out, "if a student came to school with his head shaved, wearing a trench coat and celebrating Hitler's birthday, the principal would have called his parents and sent him home ..."

Not now. The federal government holds higher cards than the taxpayers. Larger than ever, thanks to the latest sexual-harassment decision, are the opportunities for a lawsuit. "We can be assured," writes Mr. Justice Kennedy, in dissent, "that like suits will follow — suits which, in cost and number, will impose serious financial burdens on local school districts, the taxpayers who support them, and the children they serve."

Meanwhile the president proposes "a national goal that all working Americans can take time when they need it to take care of their families" — without losing pay.

His audience applauds warmly. Would Bill Clinton tell an audience something it wasn't prepared to applaud?

Interestingly, there is now a conservative version of partnership — one that even Al Gore endorsed this week; a partnership between the government and "faith-based" (i.e., religiously oriented) organzations working on crime and poverty problems. Forbes, Dan Quayle, and George W. Bush have issued their own calls for re-involving the churches in addressing cultural malaise.

Good, good — so far as it goes. Better some creative role for the private sector than none at all. But that hardly makes everything right. A "partnership" invitation of any sort is an acknowledgement that the old culture-shaping institutions — priests and preachers, family doctors, starchy judges, watchful parents, nosy neighbors, concerned teachers — lack the power of self-regeneration. Government must help the lot of them to their feet.

Maybe we've indeed fallen that far, which would explain the applause for stricter gun control and closer supervision of the work place. It strikes an old Jeffersonian that nostalgic rhetoric about small government isn't relevant to a country that so earnestly desires partnership. If we're going to have partnership, better by far the Quayle-Bush-Forbes variety than Clinton's.

And yet ... and yet ...

CHARLEY REESE

It's hard to tell where news stops, entertainment starts

I'm sure George Lucas, the director, is grateful that he could save a lot of money on advertising. The news industry took it upon itself to hype and promote his new Star Wars episode to a degree I've never seen before for any movie.

That's OK. Any Lucas movie will be a good one with good moral values. It's just an interesting example of the changes in the news business.

Admittedly, I am a relic of the dark ages in the business. I remember when a publisher angrily nixed a suggestion that his newspaper run a TV schedule. "They're competitors, and if they want to advertise their schedules, they can buy an ad," he grumped. Stories about movies were confined for the most part to an occasional review, unless the movie was being filmed or premiered in the circulation area. But that was a long time ago in an America far away.

Reese

Now, thanks in part to corporate mergers and takeovers, the news and entertainment industry are blended and it's hard to tell where one starts and the other stops. It's common now to say that one is in the "information" business rather than in the news business.

One of my favorite TV shows in the long ago was a western called "Have Gun Will Travel" with the late Richard Boone, who played a gun for hire. I wonder if all these people who crop up on TV talk shows have business cards that say: "Have Information, Will Talk"?

I'm undecided if the info-enter-advertainment industry's good or bad. An old way of doing something is not necessarily the best way to do something just because it was an old way. And people do seem a lot more interested in the new space movie than in the wars in Kosovo and Iraq.

It's eerie, sort of, to think that nearly 700 U.S. planes are pounding the bejesus out of Yugoslavia while in the United States, people go about their business just as if it weren't happening. Even the round-the-clockers on television have lost interest in the war, and it's been relegated to just another story along with the latest pill story, the movie opening, the gun-control debate, the latest lawsuit, and so on.

Another factor in the decision to relieve Lucas of the necessity to buy advertising is that our society seems to measure the importance of things in dollars. The new Star Wars episode will surely gross a zillion dollars. Therefore, it's big news.

On the other hand, I just read that NATO jets are burning a quarter of a million barrels of jet fuel per day destroying Yugoslavia in preparation for the day when American taxpayers will be told to rebuild Yugoslavia. It seems to me we could save a lot of money, not to mention lives, by refraining from destroying it in the first place. But then, I'm no foreign-policy expert. I suppose if I owned some of the big corporations that will profit from both the destruction and the rebuilding, then I could see the wisdom of the policy.

Alas, I have only a few shares in an information company pension plan. Not a single bomb, missile or construction company in my portfolio. Shows you what a dope I am. I thought with the collapse of the Soviet Union, peace might spread like the common cold.

So, my advice is, be bullish on bombs and missiles and bearish on peace and sanity. Who knows? The bomb-shelter business might even make a comeback. In the meantime, may the Force be with you.

India loses two jets in Pakistan as Kashmir conflict continues

DRAS, India (AP) — Two Indian MiG jets crashed Thursday in Pakistan as warplanes launched strikes for a second straight day to force Islamic guerrillas from the mountainous Kashmir frontier region.

Pakistan said it shot down both planes over its territory. However, India's military said one MiG-21 crashed in Pakistan due to mechanical failure, then a MiG-27 flew to assist the first pilot, and was shot down by a surface-to-air missile.

Pakistan said one pilot was killed and it was holding the other as a prisoner of war.

The United States, Britain, Russia, China and U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan urged restraint by both nations, which have fought three wars since their independence from Britain in 1947, two over Kashmir.

Last year, India and Pakistan each exploded underground nuclear devices and declared themselves nuclear powers, generating fears of an arms race on the volatile South Asian subcontinent.

Pakistan pushed hard Thursday for international intervention in the conflict, and a government minister said "two nuclear-armed adversaries are facing each other eyeball to eyeball."

"We hope India will not go beyond a point of no return," said Information Minister Mushahid Hussein.

"If we didn't have the bomb, India would have occupied Kashmir by now," he said. "That's what the bomb means: deterrence for security, for survival, for self-defense."

Indian Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee convened an emergency meeting of Cabinet ministers and military chiefs Thursday, and was to hold a meeting Friday of all major political parties to seek endorsement for the military action. Many parties, including the main opposition Congress party, have already supported the airstrikes.

India slammed Pakistan for targeting its aircraft, saying it was "shameless" of Islamabad to suggest that India had violated peace agreements between the two nations.

"The present situation has been created entirely because of Pakistan's provocative activities," the Foreign Office said in a statement. "Pakistan should realize that such foolhardy ventures against India will not succeed."

India launched Operation Vijay, or Operation Victory, to evict about 600 guerrillas who seized unoccupied areas in the Indian-held part of Kashmir early this month. India says the infiltrators are Afghan guerrillas and Pakistani soldiers dressed like militants. Islamabad says it does not know the identity of the infiltrators.

India says the strikes have all been conducted within its territory, 1.5 miles from the Line of Control, the unofficial border both nations agreed to after the last war.

India's National Security Adviser Brajesh Mishra tempered the Foreign Office's strong remarks, saying in a television interview that "we don't think the situation will escalate into a general war."

India and Pakistan went to war immediately after independence, when Muslim-majority Kashmir became part of India, angering Islamic Pakistan. India now controls two-thirds of Kashmir, Pakistan holds nearly one-third, and China has a tiny portion. India and Pakistan each claim Kashmir in its entirety.

Ancient Parthenon to undergo restoration

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — In one of the most ambitious restoration projects ever conducted atop the Acropolis, eight damaged columns on the 2,300-year-old Parthenon temple will be taken down and repaired.

Under a plan approved by the Central Archaeological Council, restorers will take apart, clean, and reconstruct the columns on the north face of the temple.

"It will be the biggest work until now on the Parthenon. When it is completed, it will give us a better image of the monument," said Lina Medonis, general secretary of the culture ministry. "It surely will be better than it is now."

The columned Parthenon, dedicated to the goddess Athena, the city's protector, was completed in 438 B.C. after eight years of work by Greece's finest architects and artists. Its graceful design remains a standard of architectural beauty.

Many columns and sculptures were shattered in 1687 when Venetian besiegers fired a mortar at an arsenal that Turkish occupiers had set up in the temple.

Reno criticizes aides for not bringing China wiretap case to her

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno faulted Justice Department and FBI subordinates Thursday for not coming to her two years ago with their disagreement over whether to wiretap a nuclear weapons scientist suspected of spying for China.

"Where there is something serious, where (FBI) Director (Louis) Freeh disagrees with the findings (of Justice officials), I think that it should be discussed at my level," Reno told her weekly news conference. "I was not briefed on the details."

Reno delivered her most detailed explanation yet of how the Justice Department handled allegations that a Taiwanese-born scientist at the Los Alamos National Laboratory may have given nuclear weapons secrets to China.

Reno's comments came after aides pleaded with her to rebut suggestions from Republican Richard Shelby of Alabama, the Senate intelligence committee chairman, and Democratic Sen. Robert Torricelli of New Jersey, usually a staunch defender of the Clinton administration, that she should resign or consider doing so.

Reno explained that when the FBI first sought in 1997 to wiretap the scientist, Wen Ho Lee, the warrant application was rejected by Justice's Office of Intelligence Policy and Review. Working with Justice officials, the FBI reworked the application twice to add information, but it was still rejected.

Through his attorney, Lee has denied spying. Lee was fired this spring and remains under investigation.

Reno said then-Assistant FBI Director John Lewis complained about that decision to her without going into details, so she asked Justice's Executive Office for National Security to review it. Daniel Seikaly of that office agreed with the earlier decision and told the FBI, Reno said.

Seikaly never took the matter up with Reno or Deputy Attorney General Eric Holder, she said.

"I assumed since I did not hear again from the FBI that it was resolved to their satisfaction," Reno said.

Looking back now at the evidence available in 1997, the career lawyers were correct to reject the wiretap, Reno said.

But if the continuing disagreement had been brought to her, she said, "I would have asked the FBI to go back and look at their records to see if there was additional information that could be utilized to show probable cause."

The FBI itself had some reservations about whether the evidence was sufficient, according to a senior bureau official, who requested anonymity. Agents basically had three facts: the Energy Department listed Lee among officials who had access to W-88 nuclear warhead data obtained by China, Lee had traveled to China to give lectures, and he had once telephoned another laboratory scientist under suspicion of spying, this official has said.

But a Republican congressional source said FBI officials left the impression on Capitol Hill that they felt they did have probable cause.

In 1998 the FBI mounted a "false flag" operation in which undercover FBI agents posed as Chinese spies and tried to get Lee to spy for them, but Lee would not, according to other law enforcement officials. And Lee's wife reported that contact to U.S. authorities, officials said.

Senate approves tighter restraints on technology exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate easily approved legislation Thursday to expand congressional oversight of technology exports and to tighten security at weapons laboratories in the aftermath of a report alleging Chinese espionage.

But efforts by the House to take up its own package, including many recommendations from that report, ran into partisan bickering that prompted House Speaker Dennis Hastert to abruptly postpone action until next month.

The package, added to a $288.8 billion defense spending bill, would expand the role of intelligence agencies in reviewing export licenses, boost Pentagon monitoring of satellite launches in China and require the administration to report to Congress on any security breaches.

It would also put the FBI solely in charge of all background investigations of workers at Energy Department weapons laboratories, And it recommends that the administration and Congress work together to provide financial incentives for expanding the domestic commercial satellite-launch industry.

In contrast to the Senate's show of bipartisanship, House debate on tightening controls got off to a rocky start, with both sides hurling accusations of partisan grandstanding.

The senior Democrat on the espionage panel, Rep. Norman Dicks of Washington, accused Republican leaders of blocking consideration of some of the panel's recommendations that are supported by the administration.

Unable to continue debate, the House adjourned for a weeklong Memorial Day recess.

Vietnam sparked long line of anti-war films

By Georgia Temple

The Vietnam War itself marked the beginning of the end of America and Hollywood's glorification of war.

"For the first time since the War of 1812, large numbers of Americans refused to support the government in waging a foreign war," Lawrence H. Suid said in his book "Guts & Glory: Great American War Movies." "And also for the first time since that conflict, the United States pulled out of a war."

Maimed veterans served as disturbing reminders of the price paid by young soldiers who had gone to Vietnam with their lives stretching before them only to have wholeness ripped from their bodies and their minds. The 58,000 American deaths in a war a country looses seemed futile sacrifices.

Even now, the subject is too emotional for some veterans. Midlander Patty Bryant, who served in the Air Force from 1969 to 1976, stays away from movies dealing with Vietnam.

"I've tried to watch 'Good Morning, Vietnam' about three times, and I start crying when I get into the movie, so I just avoid movies about Vietnam," Ms. Bryant said. "It's a very sad movie. A lot of the guys that I went to high school with didn't come back."

Hollywood was reluctant to use the Vietnam War as "the setting for an action adventure film or even as the motif for an anti-war statement," Suid said. "Until the mid-1970s, only an occasional television drama or a film like 'Limbo' touched on the subject."

An exception was John Wayne's "The Green Berets" released in 1968. The film met with critical reviews, controversy and positive box office results.

Some heard call to service on silver screen

By Georgia Temple

No singular sound more clearly signals the close of the day for an American soldier than that of a solitary bugler playing taps. The haunting clarity of the notes linger in the silence, whispering that day is done.

A reveille for years past sounds Monday as the United States honors the more than one million Americans who heard their final taps while serving their country, a custom that began in 1866 when the people of Waterloo, N.Y., honored soldiers killed in the Civil War.

Among the ranks of those being remembered on this national holiday are generations of soldiers whose sense of patriotism has been influenced through the stories portrayed on the silver screen.

Such was the case for Midlander Gene McDaniels, who served in the Pacific during World War II. McDaniels was influenced by "Wings," a movie made in the late 1920s that was honored at the inaugural Academy Awards.

"You saw that thing, and you were ready to go out there and fly," McDaniels said of the movie. "I was 18 and I'd graduated from high school and I joined the U.S. Army Air Corps."

When Midlander Patty Bryant, who "used to love to watch movies about World War II," enlisted, the United States was divided between supporters and anti-war protesters. This division fueled her desire to enlist.

"I love my country," said Ms. Bryant, who was in the U.S. Air Force from 1969 to 1976. "At that time, a lot of the college students were protesting, and I just wanted to say, 'I believe in my country.'"

Others doubted that the movies had played any role in their attitude toward enlisting.

Midlander Eunice Barkes, who served in the Army from 1949 to 1952, remembered seeing "D Day" about a year after she had graduated from high

'Saving Private Ryan': 'Best war movie' makes its video debut

By Georgia Temple

Many who have seen Steven Spielberg's "Saving Private Ryan," have been moved by the movie, which garnered an Oscar for its director. Some moviegoers wax poetically about the film, while others have a pragmatic approach regarding its impact.

"I thought the opening scenes storming the beaches at Normandy were graphic and gruesome and a fairly realistic picture of what war is really like, even though I can't speak from experience," said historian John Arnold.

"An extremely intense movie, but I'm not convinced that its Steven Spielberg's best movie," said historian Will Morris. "My senior citizen students, many of whom are World War II veterans, were very, very moved by it. It makes me very glad that I never went to war."

"'Saving Private Ryan' lifts up the theme of gratitude for those who have died in the cause of freedom,' said the Rev. Jerry Hilton, pastor of First Presbyterian Church. "You walk out of that movie realizing that the fact is we're all Private Ryan, and we're all indebted to those who gave their lives in the service. Quite honestly, it's the best war movie I know of."

"The lieutenant in the movie is on a mission to redeem Private Ryan, and he gives his life to do it," said the Rev. Larry Ashlock, pastor of Crestview Baptist Church. "And the private dedicates the rest of his life to the one who sacrificed his for him. It's temporal salvation."

Phil Konz, pastor of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, said, "The only surviving son becomes worth everybody else risking their lives to save,' said the Rev. Phil Konz, pastor of Holy Cross Lutheran Church. "A reverse analogy. The son of God risked his life to save everyone else. 'Saving Private Ryan' is the reverse of that. That was a pretty good movie."

This week, the movie made its video debut at local stores.

Out of 88 copies on the shelf Tuesday morning, Blockbuster at Midkiff Road and Cuthbert Avenue had school.

"I thought that was a pretty good movie," said Ms. Barkes, whose daughter, Nancy, also served in the U.S. Army and is now in the reserves. Mrs. Barkes did not feel that the movie was a factor in her enlisting.

"I had met a recruiter in town and that was part of it," Ms. Barkes said of her reasons to join the military. "But the other part was I thought it would be a great adventure, and it was."

Midlander Ciro Sanchez, who served in the U.S. Army in France during World War II, remembers cowboy movies when he was growing up.

"It was all cowboy movies; I don't remember war movies," said Sanchez, who added that he was a film fan as a youth who didn't have many opportunities to go to the movies.

Midlander George O'Brien, a Marine in the Korean War and a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient, also did not feel that the movies had any impact on his patriotism one way or the other.

"I have never been much of a movie fan," O'Brien said.

In times of world wars, the movies have thrown their persuasive weight behind the country's call to arms.

"For more years than not, it was held both by government and the motion picture industry that one of the movies' primary tasks was to build patriotism, to get the boys to sign up to do their bit," said critic Stephen Hunter in an article written in 1990 that appears in his book "Violent Screen: A Critic's 13 Years on the Front Line of Movie Mayhem." "This didn't begin to crumble until the mid-50s."

Throughout most of the 20th century, cooperation between the military machine and the movie industry has been standard fare.

"Since the earliest days of the industry, the military had participated in movie-making with advice, personnel and equipment," said Lawrence H. Suid in his book "Guts & Glory: Great American War Movies." "As early as 1911, Hap Arnold, who later commanded the Air Force in Europe during World War II, picked up 'a few extra dollars' by performing in a movie shot on Long Island.

"For 'Birth of a Nation (1915),' D.W. Griffith asked West Point engineers for technical advice in preparing his Civil War battle sequences. The Military Academy even supplied some Civil War artillery pieces for close-up shots."

Even films with an anti-war theme received help from Uncle Sam. One such example was King Vidor's "The Big Parade," made in the 1920s. Some of the scenes of military troops, equipment and planes moving to the front were actually filmed in Texas.

"Although 'The Big Parade' contained an essentially anti-war theme, Vidor said that the military never objected to the film's content," said Suid. "He personally thought the film had 'an anti-war feeling, definitely ... But I don't know if you can call the whole film an anti-war film.' Before it opened, he had 'anticipated an attack from militarist factions. But there were none.'"

Instead, Vidor discovered the reverse.

"When one of the Du Ponts, the manufacturers of large amounts of war materials, visited the set during shooting, he liked what he saw so much that he told Vidor he would supply a tent in which to show the picture if exhibitors refused to handle it," Suid said. "The offer proved unnecessary. The film met with instant acclaim and box-office success."

In 1927-28, the Academy Awards at its inaugural banquet honored "Wings," Paramount and William A. Wellman's large-scale action drama about two American flying buddies during World War I, with its Best Production Award. Two years later, in the 1929-1930 awards, the Academy honored Universal's adaptation of Erich Maria Remarque's novel, "All Quiet on the Western Front," with the Best Production Award.

Unlike "Wings," "All Quiet" had an anti-war theme.

"I think it still stands as America's strongest pacifist film," said Danny Peary in his book, "Alternate Oscars," which traces the Academy Awards through 1991.

The French banned "All Quiet" until 1963 because of the sympathetic portrayal of the Germans.

"My feeling is that the film has always been well received in America because it shows Germans — our enemies in World War I — coming to their sense in a losing war effort," Peary said, noting that none of their victims is identified as an American. "As good as the film is, and it holds up, I doubt if American audiences would have received it so well over the years, if, with few script changes, these soldiers who question giving up their lives for uniform, flag and country were Americans."

The United States entry into World War II, provided new material for Hollywood. But, movies such as "Wake Island," "Air Force," "Bataan" and "Sahara," filmed in the early years of the war and made without the assistance of an armed forces that had a war to fight, were of necessity small scale, fictionalized stories that only loosely were based on historical fact, according to Suid.

Following the war, in 1946, the Academy Awards's Oscar for best picture went to William Wyler's "The Best Years of Our Lives," a movie that still surfaces in the foreground of several Midland veterans' memory.

"That was a great movie," McDaniels said. "It was one of the few movies that had a fellow that won an Academy Award in it that had never been in a picture before. His name was Harold Russell, and he had lost both of his hands during the war (in a grenade explosion)."

Russell, who went on to be a businessman and president of the Disabled American Veterans, received the Oscar for Best Supporting Actor as well as a special Oscar for his courage.

"This marked the only time two Oscars have been given for the same role," said the World Almanac Who's Who of Film.

Midlander Ritzie Williford, who served in the Navy from 1944 to 1946, said "The Best Years of Our Lives" was the film "that I loved more than anything else. One of my very favorite movies that really depicted that particular period of time when the guys were coming back from the service with limbs that had been taken from them and other traumatic emotional problems because they had lost dear, good buddies and friends."

Through the decades, Hollywood has moved back and forth between creating patriotic war films, especially during world wars, and anti-war films. In 1956, the first film suggesting authority might be corrupt signaled a chance in the way things were done.

Robert Aldrich's "Attack" starred Jack Palance as an embittered second lieutenant in a Battle of the Bulge infantry company whose hated, cowardly commanding officer kept betraying his own men in battle.

"Attack" was, Hunter said, "The first movie for which the Army refused to provide equipment, which, in pre-budget-conscious days, was a routine operating procedure that spoke for the oneness of purpose between film industry and government."

Suid also wrote of the military's assistance to filmmakers, saying, "Government regulations state that assistance must be at no cost to the taxpayer. ... It is clear that cooperating on commercial films is less expensive for the military than producing its own 'message' movies. More important, commercial films are far more effective in reaching large audiences than service-produced documentaries."

Then came Vietnam.

"Until the early 1960s, most Americans perceived the nation's military as an all-conquering and infallible force for good in the world," Suid said.

This view, enhanced by history books, popular literature, the mass media and movies, originated with the defeat of the British in the American Revolution and reached its pinnacle in World War II.

"If Korea did not prove to be another smashing conquest," Suid said, "most people believed the fault lay with the politicians in Washington rather than the armed forces in combat...

"As the victories of the Second World War receded from memory and the 1962 Cuban missile crisis threatened the American people with nuclear holocaust, disenchantment with things military began to develop. The escalation of the Vietnam War and the concurrent rise of the anti-war movement after 1965 accelerated the criticism of the armed forces in the print and visual media."

The 1968 film "The Green Berets" received almost unanimous poor reviews, generated controversy and complaints from hawks and doves alike, and surprised the experts by being a box-office success.

"Confounding critics and Hollywood insiders who had predicted the film would flop, it brought in $8.7 million in film rentals during the first six months of its run," Suid said.

The production cost was $6.1 million. John Wayne's "The Green Berets" generated a total domestic theatrical film rental of $9,750,000.

"The film's success confirmed Wayne's statement that although he had made it 'from a hawk's point of view,' he had also made it 'strictly for entertainment,'" Suid said, adding that Wayne credited the criticism of the film as contributing to its success, saying, "Lucky for me, they over-killed it."

Among the more realistic portrayals of war for Ms. Williford was the movie and subsequent television series, "M*A*S*H," which was set against the backdrop of the Korean War.

Ms. Williford described "M*A*S*H" as "the best real presentations of what was going on in that particular war when it was being fought. They showed how people managed to live through it with their sense of humor. If it hadn't been for people having a good sense of humor, they would have all gone berserk."

In 1990, three movies dealing with patriotism and representing separate wars hit the screens: "Born on the Fourth of July," "Glory" and "Memphis Belle."

"Glory" and "Born on the Fourth of July," when taken together, Hunter said, "Seem to sum up a history of movie patriotism.

"In 'Glory,' patriotism is conceived without rancor or irony. When Denzel Washington takes up the banner and races up the hill, only to be blown away by Johnny Reb's guns, his sacrifice is heroic and meaningful; the flag he carries isn't a joke.

"The patriotism that sends young Ron Kovic to Vietnam is still built around flag worship and a young man succumbing to the romance of heroic deeds in far-off places under a star-spangled banner. But when the young Ron stands on the curb watching the veterans march proudly by under that banner, his vigorous belief in it seems tragic, as though he has been gulled."

In World War II, the B-17 Flying Fortress, the Memphis Belle, became a symbol of the Allied war effort. The movie about the plane's last mission met with "mixed reviews," said Brian Pendreigh in his book, "On Location: the Film Fan's Guide to Britain and Ireland."

"It was an old-fashioned film from a time when causes were just and heroes were ordinary guys in extraordinary situations," Pendreigh said. "Perhaps the world had become more cynical since then."

five left that evening. Sandy Kirkpatrick doubted that any would remain by the time the store closed at midnight.

Ms. Kirkpatrick is not among the movie's many fans. "I was not impressed with it," she said. "I liked its point, but I am not a war movie person. And you don't want to eat dinner while you're watching it, especially spaghetti."

The movie has earned its R-rating, Ms. Kirkpatrick said. "It is very gory. It's very graphic, and I wouldn't suggest letting any child watch it, not under the age of 13 depending, of course, on the child."

Hollywood Video received "more than 200 copies of the film" and by that evening had "maybe 20 left on the shelf," said Corey Allison.

Allison said he liked the film and found it was "pretty realistic. It showed how bad the war was. All the battle scenes showed that a lot of people lost their lives fighting for this country. I think if I would have served or lived back during that time, it would have affected me more."

Hastings also received "quite a few" copies of "Saving Private Ryan" and had "very few" left on the shelf that evening, said Heather Leonard, video manager.

Ms. Leonard saw the movie in San Antonio and found it to be "beyond words. It's spectacular. It really gave the general public an idea of what war is like."

WAR: Soldiers not as enthusiastic as movies portrayed them

(From 1B)

"I did see that one," said Ms. Bryant, who was among the support team in the Philippines where the wounded in Vietnam would go before returning to the United States. "It was kind of a glorification of Vietnam.

"It was accurate, but it wasn't. The guys that were there didn't feel all that enthusiastic about being there as the movie made it seem. They wanted to be any place but there. But, of course, it had John Wayne in it. You have to love it."

No major filmmaker approached the subject again until 1975 when Francis Ford Coppola began "Apocalypse Now," by John Milius, whose script owed a debt to Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness."

The film came out in 1979, the year after another film about Vietnam received the Oscar for best picture, "The Deer Hunter," and yet another, "Coming Home," received Oscars for best actor, Jon Voight, and best actress, Jane Fonda. Also released that year was "Go Tell the Spartans," written by Wendell Mayes during the war.

"The rarely screened sleeper, 'Go Tell the Spartans,' set in 1964 before America's escalated involvement, is still, with the possible exception of 'Platoon,' the best anti-Vietnam film showing our soldiers in combat," said Danny Peary in his book "Alternate Oscars." "Conceived before the conclusion of the war, Hal Ashby's 'Coming Home,' a cross between 'The Best Years of Our Lives' and 'Born on the Fourth of July,' is still the best anti-Vietnam War film about returning vets.

"But the best-picture award went to Michael Cimino's apolitical con job, 'The Deer Hunter,' which for some reason many viewers considered an eye-opener about the war, when even Cimino admitted it was an 'unreal,' surreal portrait."

"Coming Home" was Hollywood's first anti-Vietnam War film, Peary said. "Significantly, 'Coming Home,' like the anti-war movement itself, was not against U.S. soldiers" but "against the military brass and government who show concern for our young men only during the recruitment and training processes. It is a persuasive plea for more caring treatment for all returning soldiers."

In an article on the "Changing Film Images of Vietnam," written in 1989, critic Stephen Hunter called "The Deer Hunter" "a murky allegory so full of technical blunder and racism it seems remarkable that it convinced anybody, including the members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, that it could be best picture; it wasn't even a good picture."

Francis Ford Coppola's 1979 release "Apocalypse Now," Hunter described as a "troubling and vast film that seemed to take its tone from Michael Herr's hallucinogenic reportage from in-country called 'Dispatches.'"

"The Deer Hunter" and "Apocalypse Now" pointed the way, Hunter said, "To what might be called the imagist school of Vietnam filmmaking — that is elaborate workups by self-styled artists, who, of course, found it impossible actually to go to Vietnam as grunts and who made films untroubled by a sense of technical accuracy because of course, they were more interested in the war as an elaborate literary metaphor than any kind of on-the-ground reality. Stanley Kubrick's 'Full Metal Jacket' seems to be the most perfectly developed version. It was such a dedicated artifice that it could actually be filmed in London."

Eight years later, in 1986, Oliver Stone's "Platoon" received Oscars for best picture, directing, editing and sound.

"'Platoon' turned out to be the Vietnam War film that everybody had waited for, and many needed," Peary said. "It depicted the war experience that many vets remembered but couldn't explain to those they had returned to; and it vindicated those who had protested the war on the grounds that it couldn't be won, was so poorly conducted that our young soldiers were consistently being slaughtered on pointless missions and was turning our frightened young men into racist, amoral monsters who raped and murdered without being punished."

Many accused the film of being "inaccurate or one-sided," Peary said. "But the fact that Stone was a Vietnam vet gave his picture the verisimilitude lacking in other films about this war." He recalled critic Ralph Novak saying of the film in 1986: "'No sane person should want to get any closer to war than this film.'"

Hunter, whose 13 years of front-line action as a critic is compiled in his book "Violent Screen," preferred Stanley Kubrick's "Full Metal Jacket" to "Platoon."

"Kubrick is not a traditional storyteller, and he resists providing viewers with simple attitudes," Hunter said in a review in 1987. "His goal — he achieves it magnificently, though at some risk and high cost — is to provoke and confound.

"The movie leaves you in turmoil. He is not merely saying, 'War is hell.' He is saying, 'War is hell, and yet men love it and it is somehow a profound and absorbing human experience. What does it mean?'

"In the end, for Kubrick, war is like the black monolith at the center of his most famous film, '2001': It is dense and impressive, yet ultimately unknowable."

Of "Platoon," Hunter said, also in 1987, "The story itself is an old one, familiar from 'Attack,' 'The Naked and the Dead,' 'The War Lover' and any of a dozen others that push the line of the Army-as-corrupt-institution."

"Platoon" may make the point, Hunter said, "That war reduces man to stereotypes and that all wars are more similar than they are different; but that doesn't change the point that we're still dealing in stereotypes and similarities, and that it really hasn't found a new way to encompass the unique weirdness that was Vietnam."

Other films about Vietnam treated by Hunter include Brian De Palma's "Casualties of War." He called the characters well-defined and brilliantly performed but took exception with the film.

"It's an avowedly pointed film that goes to great lengths to establish that the boys who commit the atrocity are by no means aberrant, but are rather the outcome, the necessary result, of a system that is in itself corrupt," Hunter said in 1989. "That is its final equation: Corrupt policies beget corrupt systems that beget corrupt soldiers.

"This may be true; then again it may not. What is especially unfortunate about the film, it seems to me, is its blast of radical fury at a generation of Americans only recently returned from exile. It is true that four men did rape and murder a young woman in Vietnam; but it's also true that 400,000 did not. So which is news?"

Other views of the Vietnamese War presented to moviegoers came in the form of such movies as Roland Joffe's "The Killing Fields," which Hunter described as "an extraordinary journey to the elemental places in the soul.

"The heart of darkness is Cambodia under the Khmer Rouge, an Auschwitz for our times. ... Joffe's ability to convey both the terrible beauty and the terrible waste of war is nothing short of remarkable."

'Private Ryan' aimed higher — succeeded

By Rob Lowman
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — This year wasn't the first time, and — based on their record — it probably won't be the last time that Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences members make a mistake when naming the best picture. At least "Shakespeare in Love" was a commendable, if lightweight, choice. It was certainly better than some of the boring, "prestigious" epics that have won in the past, but it was hardly as cinematic, moving or thought-provoking as its chief rival, "Saving Private Ryan."

Before you protest, "Ryan," which is out on video, isn't a perfect film, but unlike "Shakespeare," it aimed higher and succeeded — sometimes brilliantly. The scenes of the landing at Omaha Beach on D-Day are unmatched in film, an extraordinary sequence that few directors could pull off, which is why Steven Spielberg rightly won the Oscar for best director and the film picked up four other Academy Awards.

(If there is any consolation for losing the best picture Oscar, "Ryan" was last year's box-office champ, taking in more than $210 million.)

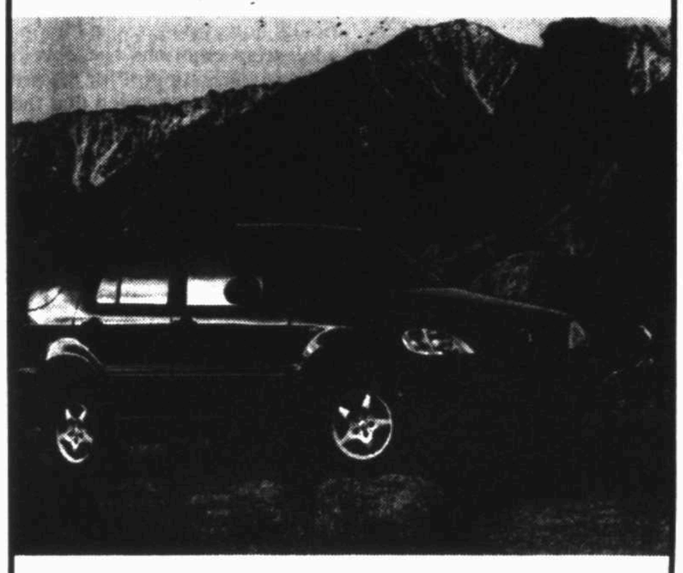

But the film is more than just pyrotechnics and technique. If "Ryan" was merely an homage to the fighting men in World War II — like numerous flag-waving combat movies have been — then that wouldn't be enough to make it a great film. The war drama tells the story of a platoon led by Capt. Miller (Tom Hanks) to rescue a family's last surviving son (Matt Damon), after his brothers had been killed in combat. In doing so, it raises questions about courage, sacrifice and morality that resonate throughout the film, giving it a true poignancy.

On the small screen, "Ryan" loses little of its impact. But video viewers can distance themselves from some of the more harrowing scenes, which were very intense on the big screen, and, ironically, that might have offered them some perspective to appreciate the film's exceptional qualities.

DreamWorks has set "Ryan" as a rental only, though there should be plenty of copies in the stores. No sell-through date has been announced, and there are no plans for a DVD version at this time.

Just a thought: The largest segment of the voting members of the academy are actors (about one-fourth), and an actors' film ("Shakespeare") won this year. Maybe they forgot that they aren't voting for the Screen Actors Guild awards. It is, after all, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

AROUND TOWN

Midland County Public Library's brown bag lunch program this week will feature Linda Bond, executive director of Arts Assembly of Midland, speaking on "Things to Do With the Kids (and Grandkids) by Being a Tourist in Your Home Town." The program is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. June 2 in the library's meeting room. The library is located at 301 W. Missouri.

Ms. Bond has served on the tourism committee of the Chamber of Commerce's Convention and Visitors Bureau. She has written articles that were published in Texas Monthly, Texas Highways, USA Today, Women's Wear Daily and Family Circle. She also is the author of two musicals produced off-Broadway and plays for Summer in the City, which she initiated in 1994. She and her husband, Bruce Partain, wrote the 1997 and 1999 Summer Mummers plays.

The library's summer series, themed "It's a Mixed Bag," will continue each Wednesday through Aug. 4. Participants are invited to bring brown bag lunches; drinks will be provided by Albertson's on Midland Drive. Talks will be 25-30 minutes in length and allow time for questions. For more information call 688-8991...

...AMERICAN LUNG Association's Better Breathing Club will meet 11:30 a.m. June 1 at Westwood Medical Center. For more information call 522-2273...

...WEST TEXAS Orchid Society will meet 7:30 p.m. June 14 at Midland Senior Center in Kingsway Mall. Visitors are welcome to attend. Persons attending are asked to enter through the back door of the mall (south side) off Midkiff Street...

...VAN, Serving the Visually Impaired, will meet for bingo 10 a.m. June 2 at the VAN House, 2908 W. Ohio. Persons attending may bring sack lunches if they wish; coffee and refreshments will be provided.

Support group for men learning about living with visual impairment will meet 10 a.m. June 1 at the VAN House.

For information about either event, call 694-2648...

...NEWCOMERS' CLUB will host a coffee 9:30 a.m. June 3. Anyone new to the area is invited to attend. For more information and location call 694-0759 or 686-8737...

...COMPASSIONATE FRIENDS, a support group for parents who have lost children of any age, will meet 7:30 p.m. June 7 at Hospice of Midland, 911 W. Texas St. Call 682-2975...

...MIDLAND COUNTY Public Libraries — both the main library at 301 W. Missouri and the branch library at Midland Park Mall — will open the 1999 Summer Reading/Read-to-Me Club on June 2. Sign-up event will be 10 a.m.-5 p.m. at the main library. Games, crafts and refreshments will be available. If unable to attend the event, interested readers may also sign up any time. Children from birth through age 14 may participate.

Special free programs will begin the following week. "Words in Motion Jr." with Karen Graves and the Permian Basin Poetry Society will be presented 10:30 a.m. June 8 for children from age 3 through kindergarten; "Words in Motion" for students in first through seventh grades will be 2:30 p.m. that day.

A one-hour movie for all ages will be presented 2:30 p.m. June 9.

On June 10, age-appropriate programs on "Flying Things," featuring Barbara Davis and the library staff, will be presented at 10:30 a.m. for first through seventh graders, and at 2:30 p.m. for 3-year-olds through kindergartners.

For more information on these programs call the main library at 688-8991 or the branch library at 697-8113...

FAMILY MATTERS

Thoughtful teen-agers suggest solutions at community event

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR READERS: I wanted to tell you how wonderful it was to be involved with such bright and thoughtful teens as were in attendance at the "Search for Solutions Teen Forum."

May

Many topics were covered in the meeting, but I want to address one unanswered question and one observation I made.

The unanswered question asked if the boys' non-acceptance by girls could have been a cause of the rampage(s) that have occurred. A recurrent observation in many of the school shootings is rejected boys seem to be reacting, in part, to the belief that they were the object of ridicule by the girls who they wanted to like them. It may or may not be a coincidence, but I think it is a part of a larger sense of rejection and isolation experienced by these young men. Would their acceptance by just one girl have altered their decision to kill?

Accepting that idea on face value would be difficult; however, because I know something about adolescent emotions and development, I believe there is some support for the proposition.

Many have suggested that these boys' perception that they were not accepted by their peers could have been a major contributor to the shootings. The main social developmental task of adolescents is to answer the question: "Who am I?" by becoming a member of a peer group. Lacking an appropriate peer group, these Colorado kids chose to form an evil peer group with hate and murderous intent as a criteria for membership.

At least in theory, another option for them would have been to form a small peer group that included girls. Since no girl has ever participated in these mass shootings, speculation could be that the influence of "one good woman" could sway a decision to destroy other humans. Likely? I don't know. I do know that many lost sheep have been found through the love of a woman.

Keep in mind that we are talking about a subject — cause of mass shootings — without adequate data to generalize. Obviously not every teenage boy or girl who has been jilted or rejected by a potential girlfriend or boyfriend responds with murderous intent. However, I do agree with the teen who asked: "Could the lack of acceptance by females be a contributing factor?" Teaching our teens to socialize appropriately may be an important component of a "solution" plan.

Another teen observed that "the teens who cause all the problems are not here tonight." She was correct. The teens represented by that audience were well-grounded and successful. Although the disenfranchised teens were not in the audience, every teen who was there knew at least one teen at school who did not "belong" for one reason or another.

I believe that one teen who "belongs" reaching out to one who doesn't could have far reaching implications. How that reaching out would occur would require some study.

I strongly agree with the teens and another panelist who said that programs such as PALS are a key to long-term success. This program matches an interested high school student with elementary students who need academic and social help. This type of peer-mentor structure has been successful time after time.

The way to feeling included is through the "including" act of service one to another. A child who feels himself to be of value to others will find that respect for self and others soon follows. I believe such programs should be encouraged and expanded to the extent possible. The lack of attachment to another person or an appropriate ideal gives hate a chance to manifest itself.

While counselors and teachers can help, caring teen-agers are the best ones to accomplish this on an individual level. I believe that such an approach would also help break down the perceived barriers between "us" and "them." As Christ instructed us, "Feed my sheep." I think he meant all His sheep, not just the cute and darling ones.

THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES OFFER THE FOLLOWING AFFIRMATIONS FOR TEEN-AGERS (From Dr. Erik Erikson):

- You know what you can do and respect your limits.
- You can say "NO" when you need to.
- You can be yourself and still have friends.
- You are entitled to your own values.
- You can take care of yourself without feeling selfish.
- You can appreciate and take care of your body.
- You can trust your feelings to let you know.
- It's OK to disagree.
- It's OK to know who you are.

DEAR ABBY

Husband wants to take steps to tell stepchildren to leave

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I lost my first wife. About a year and a half later I remarried. My kids were adults and on their own. My new wife still had children in high school. I helped all of them to get their first car, and sometimes worked on their cars to keep them running. When they have problems or need money, I have been the one they came to for help.

Van Buren

My grown children try to work out their own problems and hardly ever come to me for help. When my wife's kids have problems with their marriages, they stay at our home. One has been with us for several months now. Another thinks we should babysit two or three times a week. When I say anything to my wife, she gets upset.

I'm retired now and would like to have my home back for my wife and me to enjoy our retirement. I worked for more than 40 years to enjoy retirement — now I hate every day of it.

I've considered leaving, but with the laws as they are, she would get half of my retirement, and she never worked to put anything into it.

Not a day goes by that I don't wish I had not remarried. I would have been happier living by myself. — HATES EVERY DAY

DEAR HATES: It's possible that when your wife's children were in high school, you overindulged them. However, you are all adults now, and it is time for them to accept responsibility for themselves.

You are overdue for a talk with them. If your wife feels unable to bring herself to talk to them with you — do it alone.

After 40 years of hard work, you are entitled to some happiness in your retirement. If you are truly as unhappy as your signature indicates, talk to a lawyer about your options, and what your wife is entitled to if you and she should separate. It may not be as much as you fear.

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from a reader signed "Ex-Seminarian" discussing the topic of Immaculate Conception.

He stated that according to Christianity, Immaculate Conception refers to Mary's having been born without the stain of sin (original sin). Well, I take exception to that statement.

There is absolutely no biblical reference to Mary, the mother of Jesus, having been born without "original sin." The Immaculate Conception refers to just that — Jesus was conceived while Mary was a virgin.

The concept of Mary being born without sin is something the Catholic Church has perpetuated for many years. She was certainly chosen by God to bear his son, but by no means or biblical reference was she without sin. This is merely man-made doctrine with no biblical basis.

You are NOT confused, Abby. It is "Ex-Seminarian" who is confused. — MARINO GARCIA, CINCINNATI

DEAR MARINO: Perhaps. You weren't the only one to point this out.

I should have caught the misstatement "according to Christianity" and corrected it to read "according to the doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church."

Other Christians may not accept the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception, but the term is properly used to describe the circumstances of Mary's conception, not Jesus'.

DEAR ABBY: With all the discussion of the difficulties that might occur because of the Y2K problem, it's easy for most people to assume that it's only a computer problem — but it isn't.

Thirty years ago, when my mother died, my father purchased cemetery lots and headstones for our entire family. My headstone reads, "Born 1939, Died 19( )."

Abby, I'm sure you can see the problem. If I live beyond the last day of December, I'll have to have that headstone refilled and recut with "Died 20( )."— DONALD SCHAFFER, SAN DIEGO

DEAR DONALD: Consider yourself blessed to have such a problem. Why not add a line? For example: "19( ) ... to be continued." Or, "Just couldn't leave. Stuck around until 20( )." With a sense of humor, the possibilities are endless.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? Get it off your chest by writing to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS

Seniors' activities many and varied

By Alexandria L. Rose

During May, in Midland and throughout the entire state, seniors don't need to worry about having nothing to do. So much has happened — and will happen — that the month designated at Older Americans Month should be amended to Older, Better and Ever So Active Americans Month. Becoming a senior is no excuse to slow down.

Rose

On May 8, Connections for Independent Living Day in Midland was celebrated at Midland Park Mall, where representatives from American Association of Retired People (AARP) and Midland Senior Center distributed information on how people can be safer in their own homes.

May 11 was Senior Appreciation Day at Midland College. The event, co-sponsored by the Agency on Aging, honored volunteers from the 17 counties served by the agency. People from all over the region were present for fun, entertainment, lunch and induction of six outstanding volunteers in to the Hall of Fame. Myrtle Hall of Midland was presented with the Bill Smith Award.

More than 200 participants from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Kermit and other area communities spent the day at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center at the "Dignity 2000: Successful Living for Aging Texans" conference. Noted Midlanders on the program included Al Schorre, Mary Lou Cassidy, Cookie Wetendorf and Dana Wilson. Lunch was provided by Westwood Wound Care Center. Topics of discussion included "Medication Management," "Caregiver Resources," "Public Policy Issues," "The Spiritual Connection," "Effective Solutions" and "The Future for Aging Texans."

In addition to the presentations, the event included information to be distributed and knowledgeable people to answer questions concerning senior issues. One of the most valuable pieces of information I picked up was the "Medicare Supplement Insurance Handbook and Rate Guide," published by the Texas Department of Insurance and issued in December 1998. This handbook answers questions about costs for the different age groups from 65-75 for Medicare Supplemental Insurance for all the 10 basic plans, A through J. Since I have had several calls on the AARP Hot Line about the cost of additional insurance, this information is invaluable. Another piece of literature that has been updated is the "1999 Guide to Health Insurance for People with Medicare." This publication is published by Health Care Financing Administration of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Each senior in need of this information should obtain copies.

At the conference on successful living, much was said about the "frail elderly" and ways to help. Exercise and diet are keys in helping this trend turn around. An example from the latest Runners World is the story of 78-year-old Nona Todd, a legend among competitors at the Arizona Senior Olympics. No one remembers the last time she failed to place in the top three. She has amassed 762 medals, and last February she competed in 18 events (nine of them running events) in five sports. In our community no one remembers when Ed Wilder, 83, has not participated and competed in the Celebration of the Arts and Septemberfest.

On May 22 AARP Southeast Midland Chapter had a bake sale to raise money for their community service projects. And yet to come, on June 10 is Summer in the City Evening at Centennial Plaza downtown, hosted by seniors throughout the community.

Trends: Collectibles for kids

By Kelly DeGarmo
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FOOT LOOKS

It's sandal season, and that means devoting more attention to your feet (like washing with deodorant soap and clipping your toenails, for starters). For a way-cool look, try a funky nail polish, temporary tattoo, bindi gem or toe ring.

POWER IN A CAN

This summer, Tyco introduces Canned Heat, a remote-control car packaged in a can. The lid twists off to become the radio transmitter that controls the micro-sized vehicle. The canister doubles as a storage container. It operates on four AA batteries. The coolest part? One of vehicles is a VW Beetle.

ONLINE MARKETING

Just about every hot-selling toy nowadays has a Web site. It's a great marketing tool for companies to promote their products. Betty Spaghetty has her own award-winning site, which recently received an Addy Award for its graphics and interactive elements. Unlike some sites, Betty reveals her privacy policy and encourages kids to get their parents' permission before entering contests. Be wary of typing personal information such as home or e-mail addresses or birth dates into a Web site without first talking to a parent or guardian about how the information might be used.

Betty Spaghetty goes online at www.bettyspaghetty.com.

MORPH MADNESS

Transformers gain another species. You've heard about "Animorphs," the popular Nickelodeon television series based on the Scholastic book series. "Animorphs" is about a group of five teen-age friends who change into fierce animals to defend the world from an alien invasion. Naturally, there are cool new Animorph toys based on the characters from the series. Each toy "morphs" from a human into a ferocious animal.

RSVP

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) is recruiting persons 55 years and older to volunteer with non-profit agencies. RSVP will match volunteers' skills and interests to community agencies' needs. The program is sponsored by Community and Senior Services, 3301 Sinclair. For more information, call 689-6693. A sample of current opportunities include:

- Midland Lion's Recycling Center needs project recyclers to wash and clean donated eyeglasses. Volunteers also may work the lensometer machine, reading and labeling prescriptions on glasses. Schedule is very flexible, two hours on one or two days weekly or monthly. Training and supervision provided.
- Mission Adult Day Care needs a creative hobby person to help instruct simple crafts twice a month, at 10 a.m. during the first and third weeks of the month. Staff will supervise and assist as needed.
- Area Mission Outreach Services needs volunteers to sort, store and display donated clothing. Shifts are 9 a.m.-noon one day, Monday through Friday. Volunteers are also needed to disperse groceries to the needy.

High tech, no tech highlight lifestyle

By Lana Cunningham

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Patsy Sayers, 70, likes to say her life is "High Tech in the morning, No Tech in the afternoon," since she spends her mornings cruising the web for family history sites, and her afternoons as a registered massage therapist.

Above a small desk in the dimly lighted office is a sign that proclaims "The Beginning is Near." For the optimistic Patsy Sayers, each day is a beginning — a start on finding some new facts about her family history or in easing the pain of a client. She's not one to tolerate those people who focus on the end of the world.

Her life is "High Tech in the morning, No Tech in the afternoon," as the 70-year-old describes herself. When the sun rises each morning, Ms. Sayers already is sitting at her computer checking on MSNBC's latest reports, and then unearthing tidbits about family history through genealogical websites. In the afternoon, she switches off the computer and turns to her work as a registered massage therapist. Occasionally, when clients are suffering from an illness, Ms. Sayers will research it on the Internet and give the information to her client.

She was born "oilfield trash" in Seminole, Okla., and had attended 36 schools by the time she graduated from high school. "We followed the oilfields," she said of her father's moves. By the time earned she earned a diploma, she was in Honolulu where her father was working with the military during World War II.

"I came back to America and went to Tulsa University and Oklahoma State University as a journalism major," she said.

Before she could earn a degree, she married and then had two children, a son and a daughter. Today, she also is called "grandmother" by five and "great-grandmother" by two.

Over the years she worked at various jobs and wrote children's books in her spare time. Her resume lists several positions as an oil and gas accountant at different times in Midland and other cities. She also worked 15 years in Aspen, Colo., for the principal heir to General Mills. "I've always been a health nut," she said.

At the age of 30, she was injured in a car accident which broke 37 bones. "The time I spent in a hospital was enough to make me never to want to go there again," she said.

The last time Ms. Sayers found herself laid off from an accounting job in Midland, she decided to pursue a dream and become a registered massage therapist. "It's hard to find work in Midland when you're over 40," she reasoned. Starting with the Austin School of Massage Therapy, Ms. Sayers has added additional studies to her resume, including the Colorado Center for Healing Touch.

"A lot of business comes to me through doctors' referrals," she said. Clients have ranged in age from 2 to 92, and the reasons for a massage include relief from migraine headaches, stress, arthritis, fibromyalgia and lupus. "I give my clients everything I have. If I did more than three a day, I wouldn't have anything left to give."

More people are realizing massage is not "hedonistic," she said, but for maintenance of good health. "I love it when people limp through my door with a frown on their face and say 'I feel so bad' and when the massage is over they say 'I sure do feel a lot better' and hop out the door," Ms. Sayers said.

"If I'd had any idea how much I would love this work I would have done it 20 years ago."

Meanwhile, she has written the curriculum for the massage therapy course now taught at Midland College. The course involves 300 hours and follows the Texas State Curriculum.

Even before turning to massage therapy as a career, Ms. Sayers was hooked on genealogy. Her father, who died recently at the age of 93, encouraged his daughter to research the Sayers' family, and she has traced it back to the 1500s in Ireland. She's researched her mother's family back to 1216 in Switzerland. "I had no idea I had any German blood."

"Dad loved the Internet. He would have me call up something, he'd look at it and then say 'I'll be damned.' "

Research has opened the pages of her family history and stimulated her creative mind. She found one family of 13 children that crossed the Atlantic on a boat. The Sayers, she discovered, were horse lovers, high tempered and full of fun. That was a perfect description of her father.

"I lie in bed at night and think about these people. I can see that family with 13 children on the ship and it's rolling. I wonder what the mother did for clean diapers," she said with a chuckle.

Ms. Sayers remembers a grandmother telling her as a child, "Patty, in your lifetime you can do anything you want. You're pioneer stock and you're strong." When that grandmother was a young mother standing barely 5 feet tall and weighing 90 pounds, she drove a covered wagon from northeast Missouri to Oklahoma for the land race.

A decade ago, research consisted mostly of digging through books and records. "The Midland Public Library has one of the finest genealogical libraries in the country," she said. And she found help at the local Mormon church.

But once she discovered the Internet, Ms. Sayers spends her mornings surfing through such sites as familytreemaker.com. And the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has opened its FamilySearch web site. Using the various sites, she broke through barriers, even locating cousins who had photos of a great-great-grandfather.

"Genealogy is like a drug," she said, admitting she is hooked on the hobby.

Each morning, the sun's rays find Patsy Sayers already at the computer, starting her day with High Tech before she eases down into No Tech with her clients for the afternoon.

Flowers bloom at former school

By Margaret Kruger

LAKE MILLS, Wis. (AP) — A one-room school, established in 1863 and still called Brick Street School, is blooming with flowers. Owner Hope Oostdik of Dutch Designs, who specializes in spring flower bulbs, is slowly filling the old classroom with color as she forces tulips, miniature daffodils and hyacinths into bloom.

She has also been busy planting more than 100 pots of bulbs, which she sells in her first-floor shop, formerly the classroom of Brick Street School. The traditional bulbs are a bonus for gardeners eager to begin digging. They can be planted as the weather warms and the soil becomes workable.

Before Oostdik opened her floral shop in 1996, the building was last used as a school from 1960 to 1964, when children of migrant workers attended classes for four months in the spring and fall. The school closed in 1959 when classes were incorporated into the city of Lake Mills schools. The migrant workers' children joined other classes in city schools after 1964.

Most of Oostdik's spring bulbs are sold in fall, but the forced pots can provide a spot of color for those who didn't get around to planting their own crops last year.

"The basement is a perfect place to nurture the spring bulbs. It is dark, and even with no heat, they don't freeze in winter," she said. When brought up into warmer temperatures and light, the spring bulbs pop into bloom.

Also stored in the basement are cut branches of forsythia, curly willow and pussy willow that Oostdik forces into bloom and sells in bunches or uses in floral arrangements. Pots of cool-tolerant herbs such as parsley are also available.

Recent spells of warm weather have encouraged daffodils and other outdoor spring plants to blossom sooner than usual.

"We are about three weeks ahead of schedule for the outdoor plants," Oostdik said, adding that daffodils will not freeze if cold weather returns. "But wind, snow or heavy rain can put down the stems, and if it gets too warm, the bulbs won't last as long."

Brisk consumer spending leads economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest consumer spending spree in 11 years kept the economy growing at a robust rate in the year's first quarter, the government said Thursday. But financial markets took a nosedive on investor worries that the fast growth would trigger higher inflation.

The economy grew at a solid annual rate of 4.1 percent, even though the country's trade deficit was a bigger drag on growth than previously thought, the Commerce Department said.

The government's new figure for gross domestic product — the broadest measure of economic health — represented a slight downward revision from a 4.5 percent figure released a month ago.

But the new figure still showed a remarkably strong economy, now in its longest peacetime expansion. The GDP report also showed that corporate profits, which had been in the doldrums, had a sizable rebound for the first quarter.

Consumer spending, which powered the 4.1 percent increase, grew at an annual rate of 6.8 percent — the fastest increase since early 1988. That was even better than the original estimate of a 6.7 percent increase in consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of total economic activity.

An inflation gauge tied to the GDP rose 1.1 percent in the first quarter, showing price pressures remained well contained.

But financial markets, which have grown increasingly nervous about inflation, were not impressed with the figure. The Dow Jones industrial average was down 235 points to close at 10,467 — the biggest point drop since last September — though the 2.2 percent decline was not among the largest historically in percentage terms.

Investors were focused on the fact that economic growth remains well above the comfort level of the Federal Reserve, which only a week ago indicated it is edging closer to raising interest rates because of worries the economy is growing too fast.

"The bottom line is that the Fed probably would view this as still excessive growth," said economist David Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

Many analysts believe that the central bank could start raising interest rates as soon as its next meeting June 29-30 if inflation pressures appear to be mounting.

In the January-March quarter, economic growth was reduced by 2.53 percentage points by record trade deficits tied to the global financial crisis that has pushed one-third of the world into recession. That, in turn, has cut sharply into American export sales and generated a flood of cheaper imports in the United States.

Some 'Star Wars' fans think that Jar Jar mussa die

LOS ANGELES (AP) — And you thought adults hated Barney. Just listen to what they're saying about Jar Jar Binks, the flop-eared amphibian from the new "Star Wars" movie.

Many fans, echoing the views of a number of film critics, see the character as an annoying goofball at best and a racial stereotype at worst.

Since George Lucas' "Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace" opened May 19, the Internet has been afire with messages — and several entire Web sites — calling for no less than the annihilation of the creature.

"The tally so far is running about 10 to 1 in favor a having a festive Jar Jar-B-Q," said a Web site called Jar Jar Must Die.

By Thursday, the Web site deja.com had amassed 15,000 messages just about Jar Jar, with many saying they couldn't stand him.

Jar Jar, a computer-animated character dropped into the frames next to the actors, is a bumbling sidekick who steps in animal dung and says things like "yousa" and "meesa" for "you" and "me."

To some, his speech sounds like Caribbean-accented pidgin English, and his ears suggest dreadlocks. With his bell-bottom pants and vest, Jar Jar looks to some like the latest in a long line of black stereotypes in movies. (Critics have also complained of Asian and Italian stereotypes in other characters.)

Film critic Joe Morgenstern of The Wall Street Journal described Jar Jar as "a Rastafarian Stepin Fetchit on platform hoofs, crossed annoyingly with Butterfly McQueen."

General Motors recalls some 1998 and 1999 Cadillac Sevilles

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. is recalling about thousands of Cadillac Sevilles because electrical shorts in the generator may cause fires to start under the hood.

The danger is in 35,000 cars from model year 1999 and about 139 from 1998.

Fires have started even with the engine off and the key removed, GM said Thursday.

There have been seven confirmed reports of fires, none of which have resulted in injuries, the company said.

"We want our customers to know that we consider this a serious condition," said John Smith, Cadillac general manager.

The recall covers the 1998 vehicles built in August 1998, and have vehicle identification numbers greater than WU934376.

The vehicles should not be parked in an enclosed area, like a garage, until they are brought into a dealership, GM said.

RockHounds have bad day at the office in 11-1 setback to Travelers

Espada DeVanon

■ Score: Arkansas 11, Midland 1.

■ Josue Espada tied a Texas League record with three errors in one inning Thursday. The 'Hounds had a season-high seven in the game.

■ Jeff DeVanon was the only RockHound to collect multiple hits against the Travelers Thursday.

When the Midland RockHounds went to the office Thursday, they never thought it was going to be one of those days they would rather forget.

The RockHounds committed a season-high seven errors, including tying a Texas League record by shortstops in an inning with three miscues in the second by Josue Espada, in an 11-1 loss to the Arkansas Travelers in front of 2,012 at Christensen Stadium.

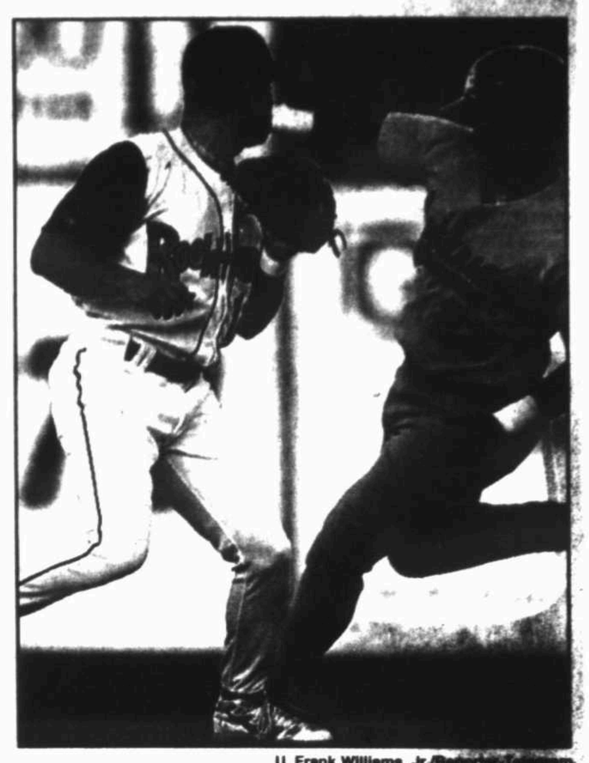

Arkansas broke out of a six-game slump with 13 hits and four innings with two or more runs scored. The Travelers also got a solid pitching performance by John Ambrose (2-6), who allowed just the one unearned run on four hits. For a team, which hasn't performed well on the road, the Travelers needed a game like the one they had Thursday.

"We needed something to happen," said Arkansas first baseman Chris Richard, who went 3-for-5 and drove in three runs. "We got some runs early and that gave us confidence because Ambrose went out there, had his good stuff and he just got after them. Our bats are also starting to come around. Hopefully, that carries over and we play some good baseball."

Richard drove in the first Travelers' run in the first inning with a single to left off Midland starter Jason Anderson (1-5) to bring home Mike Hardge and give Arkansas a 1-0 lead.

Things started to get ugly in the second inning when three errors by Espada helped Arkansas score two more runs and build a 3-0 lead. Espada tied El Paso shortstop Santiago Perez, who committed three in one inning just last season, for the

Trail Blazers beat Utah, advance to play San Antonio

By Landon Hall
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Portland Trail Blazers didn't let the Utah Jazz pull off another miracle finish.

Isaiah Rider scored 24 points, Jim Jackson had 17 and the pair combined to make 12 free throws in the final 1:05 Thursday night as the Blazers defeated the Jazz 92-80 to win their best-of-7 Western Conference semifinal series 4-2.

The Blazers advance to play San Antonio in the Western Conference finals beginning Saturday.

The Jazz, who won Game 5 to stave off elimination for the sixth time in two postseasons, may have let their last shot with future Hall of Famers Karl Malone and John Stockton slip away.

Malone had one of the worst postseason games of his career, scoring a career playoff-low 8 points on 3-for-16 shooting.

"This is a very good basketball team," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "They're young, lively and they deserve to be where they are. Our guys battled them, we just didn't have enough to win against them."

The Jazz trailed by nine points with

Standout amateur boxers square off tonight in Midland

Staff Report

Some of the best amateur boxers from around the state and nation will come together in Midland tonight for the Fourth Annual Earnest Franco Invitational, presented by the Twin Cities Tigers.

The fighters will be part of a large card that will include a series of bouts between the best fighters in Texas versus an all-star group of Army pugilists from Fort Carson, Colo.

The first bell for tonight's festivities will sound at 8 p.m. at the Crown Royal Club.

The feature bout of the night will match Matt Franco of Odessa versus Fort Carson's Corey Bernard. Both are among the nation's best at 139 pounds. Franco has been ranked among the nation's top 10 over the last five years.

"Matt Franco lost to this kid at nationals last year," said David Rodriquez, president of the Twin Cities Tigers. "It is not a grudge match. He (Franco) is just not used to losing. Both will have a lot at stake."

This event is the first of three marquee boxing events that will come to Midland in the next year. Next February, the West Texas Golden Gloves returns to the Petroplex. It will be a qualifier for the state tournament.

Next April, the National Women's Championships will take place in Midland. The finals of that event, which are scheduled to be broadcasted on ESPN, will be held at Chap Center.

"The interest in amateur boxing is really high. What is helping boxing is that next year is the Olympic year," Rodriquez said. "Everyone is watching out to see who the next Oscar De La Hoya is."

Among the tough fighters from the Army team will be a former Twin Cities fighter Zack Franco.

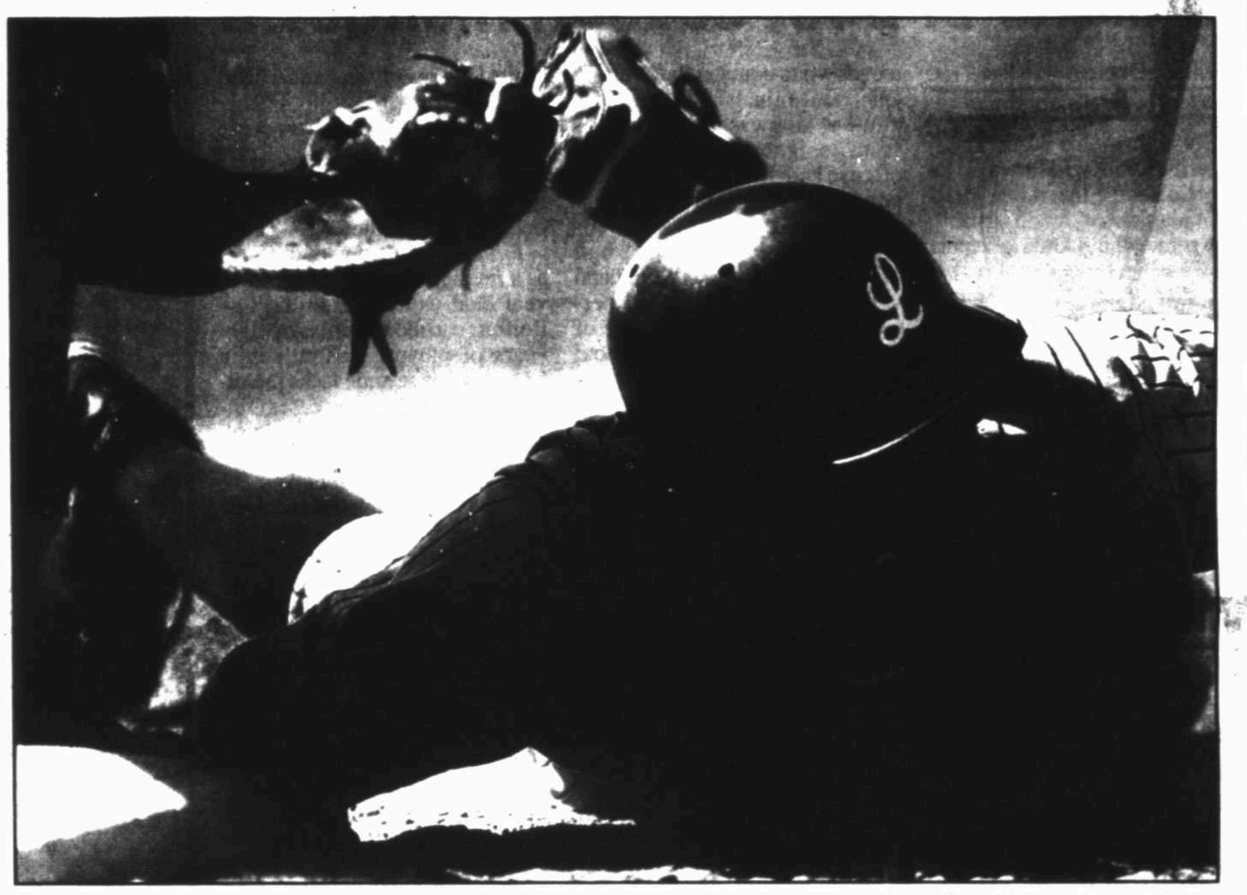

"Zack joined the Army, so this will be a homecoming for him," Rodriquez said. "It (his Army ties) allows us to bring the best the Army has got, in terms of athletes."

It's rare for a team to make it as far as the No. 6 Midland Lee baseball team has gone into the postseason and enjoy the comforts of home as much as the Rebels have.

Thanks to lucky guessing on coin flips and zip codes, Lee got to play all of its first two Region I-5A playoff series at home, avoiding a pair of arduous trips to El Paso. But all good things come to an end, and for the Rebels, such fortune concludes at the most challenging time of the year.

Lee hits the road today for a best-of-three regional semifinal series against No. 7 Duncanville which starts at 4 p.m. at Abilene's McMurry University. The second game of the series will start 30 minutes after the conclusion of the first, and a third game, if necessary, will be played at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Midland Lee vs. Duncanville

You can't blame Lee coach Jesse Benavidez if he's feeling a case of deja vu over the situation. Two years ago, Lee and Duncanville met in the same round of the playoffs on the same field, and thanks to graduation schedules (Lee's is at 1 p.m. Saturday) they will play a Friday doubleheader, just like two years ago.

Duncanville swept Lee in two games in 1997, but history or home fields aren't what Benavidez is most concerned about.

"I don't care where we're playing, I'm never in a comfort zone until maybe there's two outs in the seventh and we're up 10 runs," Benavidez said. "When we're the home team we haven't lost any games. I know that one of those games (against Duncanville) we're going to be home."

Another French Open flop: Sampras again suffers second round shocker

'I'm sitting here just after losing, thinking, 'What happened? What could I have done strategy-wise?' It's just a numb feeling.'

— Pete Sampras, who lost to Andrei Medvedev. Sampras fell in the second round of the French Open for the second straight year.

PARIS — Pete Sampras' annual ordeal at the French Open ended the way so many others did: anguish on his face, hollowness inside, and a vow to return for more punishment next year.

For the fourth time in 10 futile attempts to capture the only Grand Slam title that has eluded him, the No. 2-ranked Sampras tumbled out in the second round Thursday, falling to No. 100 Andrei Medvedev 7-5, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"I'm sitting here just after losing, thinking, 'What happened? What could I have done strategy-wise?' It's just a numb feeling," Sampras said.

The depth of Sampras' torment could be seen in his actions on the court in the sweltering, 90-degree heat. He kicked the clay, beat it with his racket, kept up a running argument with himself, even threw down his towel. For so stoic a man, it was tantamount to a raving tantrum.

"I was very frustrated," Sampras said. "I wanted to contain myself. I'm still boring. Let's not forget that. But I was on the edge of breaking a few sticks."

Sampras tried serving and volleying. He tried staying back. Too often, he got stuck in the middle, just as he did on the same slow court a year ago against No. 97 Ramon Delgado of Paraguay.

Playing for nearly 4 1-2 hours in a five-setter two days ago had nothing to

Seven Texas teams embark on regional roads to Omaha, CWS

■ Texas, Texas A&M, Houston, Rice and Texas Tech among the teams looking to get past the first round of regional play this weekend and eventually to the College World Series.

Associated Press

The Lone Star State is well represented in the expanded NCAA Division I Regional tournaments with seven teams in the mix, all playing on Texas soil.

But to advance to the super regionals, the second step to the College World Series, Texas teams will have to beat up on each other a little bit. The regional round begins Friday.

Rice, the top-ranked team according to two publications and the Western Athletic Conference champions, will be in Lubbock taking on a field that includes dangerous but slumping Texas Tech, which lost both the Big 12 tournament games it played.

Rice (52-11) opens against lightly regarded Wisconsin-Milwaukee (30-27). Tech (40-15) plays Rutgers (37-19).

Though many Owls weren't thrilled to be seeded eighth nationally by the NCAA's Ratings Percentage Index, some will at least be glad to see Dan Law Field, where Rice has won two of its biggest games.

"We did well there our freshman year (in 1996), winning the final Southwest Conference Tournament," Rice first baseman Jake Baker said. "Then we won the regional there in 1997 and ended up going to the College World Series my sophomore year. I'm not superstitious at all, but I am excited about going back there."

The most Texas-laden regional is the one hosted by Conference USA regular-season champion Houston. Also playing there are Texas, Southwest Texas State and Southwestern Louisiana.

Houston (38-22) starts against pitching-poor Southwest Texas (27-30), which made postseason only by winning the Southland Conference tournament. USL (38-22) gets hot-and-cold Texas (35-24) in the other opener.

UH coach Rayner Noble was pleasantly surprised his Cougars are a top seed.

"I had thought that if we had won the conference tournament championship we would have gotten one," said Noble, whose team lost to Tulane in the C-USA championship game. "But I think the fact that Tulane and we are No. 1 seeds proves that our conference is up-and-coming."

Experienced Baylor is the lone Texas team at the Waco regional, but the Bears host a talented group of teams from outside the state.

Baylor (46-13) begins with Eastern Illinois (32-21), while Minnesota (44-16) takes on Arizona (33-21) in the other initial matchup.

Stiff competition also awaits Texas A&M at its regional in College Station.

Monmouth (26-22) travels down from New Jersey to battle A&M (46-14). Long Beach State (33-23) and Mississippi (33-26) round out the field.

Aggies coach Mark Johnson will throw Chance Caple at Monmouth, saving ace Casey Fossum for the decidedly tougher second game against either Long Beach or Ole Miss.

"Chance is going to have to win a game for us to win the tournament, so why not the first one?" Johnson said. "If he is on, then we'll be fine."

Stars goalie 'Crazy' Eddie shows no signs of post-season meltdown

By Gil LeBreton
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

DENVER — To some knee-jerk critics, he will always be Crazy Eddie, the Inevitable Melting Goaltender.

To some, the scouting report will always say that the way to get to Ed Belfour is through his head.

"People say the jury's still out on Eddie," Stars teammate Mike Modano said last night.

"Well, the jury is in."

The vote was 3-0, in a manner of speaking. In these Stanley Cup playoffs, we were reminded at McNichols Arena, the jury has found Belfour not guilty of lapsing into Crazy Eddie. Belfour, not guilty of allowing himself to be goaded into distraction. Belfour, not guilty of being a speedbump on the road to Lord Stanley's place.

"I think he has pretty much silenced his critics," Modano continued, after Belfour himself had stifled the Colorado Avalanche.

"He's been our best player."

It is time, indeed, to reassess the playoff prowess of Ed Belfour. Time to peer again into those azure-blue eyes and try to see what one can see.

To some, the Stars' playoff fates were cast last year when Belfour began raining fists on Shawn Burr late in an already-decided first-round game at San Jose. It was a hint, they said, of the total meltdown to come in the Western Conference finals at Detroit.

What hogwash. The critics seem to ignore that the Stars' offense had dimmed and that the power play had been firing nothing but blanks.

"There has been so much bull said," teammate Brian Skrudland said. "I know Eddie says he doesn't read the papers. But some of the things that are written about him are really uncalled for.

"I know that we play for the whole team. But for Eddie's sake, I'd like to see us continue on and get this big prize, so he can put this stuff, once and for all, behind him."

That sentiment is spreading throughout the Stars' locker room. And Belfour, ever quiet and inscrutable, keeps giving his teammates reason to think so.

The numbers alone don't do Belfour's night justice. Matched against the well-credentialed Patrick Roy, Belfour turned back 34 shots and snuffed three power plays.

The Stars' defense, as per custom, did throw a spidery web in front of him. But whether it was a game-opening siege by the Avalanche, whether it was Theo Fleury trying to stick in a rebound high, whether it was Sandis Ozolinsh with a backhander from the slot, or whether it was Peter Forsberg flying in short-handed, Belfour never blinked.

"He was awesome," Colorado defenseman Aaron Miller said. "We could've easily had three or four goals, but he wouldn't let us."

The jury that Modano spoke about has been a kangaroo court. In these playoffs, Belfour has displayed nerves of steel and a heart of steal.

"He's in that zone that people talk about," teammate Craig Ludwig said. "Our defense tonight? You can describe it in one word — Eddie."

Before he signed with the Stars as a free agent last year — a three-year deal worth $10 million — Belfour carried the cross of eight years of playoff frustrations in Chicago. His resume lacks the silvery (or gold, in some cases) finish of a Roy, a Dominick Hasek and a Curtis Joseph.

Of those four goaltenders, all having carried their teams to the NHL conference finals, Belfour likely would rank fourth in most straw polls. But there we go, convening juries again.

Which of the four — Roy, Hasek, Cujo or Belfour — has been better in this last month?

Crazy Eddie. Clearly, we know which goalie has outplayed the other in this Stars-Avs series.

Belfour does not surrender much personal information in interviews. Purportedly, he doesn't read the newspapers.

"But that might be something that's driving Eddie right now," Ludwig suggested. "He reads the papers. He knows what's been said. And he's basically right now telling all you guys to stick it somewhere.

"We never had those questions about him."

The jury can rest.

With Belfour stealing the show, the Stars are poised to take a giant leap in these Western Conference finals.

That's not crazy. That's the Stars' playoff MVP.

Sabres win, take lead in East finals

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — For a change, Dominik Hasek didn't dominate. This time his Buffalo Sabres teammates made it so he didn't have to.

Miroslav Satan, Joe Juneau and Stu Barnes scored goals just over seven minutes apart in the second period Thursday night as Buffalo rallied past the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 to take a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Again, as they did in losing the first game of the series to a goalie who had never started a Stanley Cup playoff game, the Maple Leafs wasted an opportunity to take a lead in the series.

Game 4 is Saturday at Buffalo's Marine Midland Arena.

After sitting out the first two games of the series with an injured groin, Hasek was back in his familar spot after being replaced by backup Dwayne Roloson. With Hasek not his usual acrobatic self because of the injury, the Maple Leafs gained a 1-0 lead on a goal by Yanic Perreault late in the first period, then self-destructed and never recovered.

Clemens wins 19th consecutive decision; Yankees beat Red Sox

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Boston Red Sox have seen plenty of Roger Clemens over the years. They've just never seen him quite like this.

The Rocket, wearing the hated Yankees pinstripes for the first time against his former team, allowed two hits in seven innings to beat Boston 4-1 Thursday night and win his 19th consecutive decision.

"Obviously you think about it a little before the game," John Valentin said of seeing his former teammate in a Yankees uniform. "Once the game starts you concentrate on what you have to do."

Valentin was the only Red Sox player able to do that, getting both hits off Clemens, including an RBI single in the sixth. Other than that, Clemens was dominating, striking out seven and walking three.

Clemens (4-0) has not lost in 29 starts, dating to last May 29 when he fell to Cleveland while pitching for Toronto. The winning streak is the longest ever in the AL and fourth longest in major league history, five shy of Carl Hubbell's record for the Giants in 1936-37.

After losing the opener, the Yankees won the last two games of the series to move within a half-game of Boston in the AL East. The Red Sox had won 15 of 18 before losing the last two.

Athletics 6, Royals 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Kenny Rogers pitched a six-hitter for his 14th straight win at Oakland, and Eric Chavez and A.J. Hinch homered in a six-run fifth inning as the Athletics completed a three-game sweep.

■ AL Roundup

It was the eighth straight win at home for the A's — their longest such run in six years — and marked a reversal in fortune against the Royals, who swept a three-game set from Oakland in Kansas City last week.

Tigers 10, White Sox 5

DETROIT — Rookie Jeff Weaver continued his role as Detroit's stopper with eight strong innings and Luis Polonia went 5-for-5 as the Tigers snapped a four-game losing streak.

Orioles 6, Angels 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Brady Anderson hit a grand slam in the seventh inning and Juan Guzman pitched six strong innings for Baltimore.

NBA: Portland eliminate Jazz

(From 1C)

6:40 left, but cut the lead to two on a layup by Bryon Russell and a free throw by Jeff Hornacek that made it 80-78 with 1:21 left.

Jackson made two free throws to push the lead to 82-78 with 1:05 left. Utah's Bryon Russell missed on a 3-point attempt, and Brian Grant grabbed the rebound. Jackson made two more from the line to make it 84-78 with 45.7 seconds left.

A 3-pointer by Stockton was short, and Rider made eight free throws in the final 33 seconds to seal it.

Arvydas Sabonis had a solid game, scoring 14 points. Rasheed Wallace had 14 points, and Grant had seven points and 12 rebounds.

Hornacek scored 21 points to lead the Jazz. Russell had 17. Stockton had 14 points and 10 assists.

There were no altercations, even after Malone elbowed Grant in Game 5, opening up a gash over his right eye. Rider had talked of retaliation, but there was none.

"We proved that we can do it, man, this year isn't a fluke for the Blazers," said Grant, who embraced Malone after the game and tried to make peace.

"We both respect each other," Grant said. "A lot of things we said to each other we didn't mean. He wished me luck and I wished him luck."

Portland took a 74-65 lead when Greg Anthony dribbled along the baseline and found Walt Williams alone in the corner for a 3-pointer with 6:40 left. The basket came after two turnovers by Malone — a ball dropped out of bounds and an errant pass after he came up with a jump ball.

A turnaround jumper by Grant made it 78-71 with 3:30 left. A one-handed jumper by Russell and two free throws by Stockton cut it to 78-75 with 2:35 left, but Rider kept up the pressure by hanging in the air and hitting a bank shot for an 0-75 lead with 2:17 to play.

"They said (the pressure) was on us, but it wasn't on us," Rider said.

Grant's aggressiveness also picked up the Blazers. He didn't get his first point or rebound until late in the first quarter, but was a presence the rest of the game and a defensive hindrance to Malone.

This was the first time in 148 career playoff games that Malone did not reach double figures.

Notes: Utah has lost its last 11 playoff games in Portland dating to 1988. ... Bill Gates sat next to fellow Microsoft co-founder and Blazers owner Paul Allen during the game. ... The Blazers improved to 27-3 this season at the Rose Garden and 4-0 in the playoffs. ... Greg Ostertag had three points, and was outscored 43-5 by Sabonis in the three games in Portland

McGwire ruins no-hit bid with homer

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Mark McGwire broke up Mark Gardner's no-hit bid with a home run with one out in the sixth inning, and the St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco 3-2 in the 12th Thursday.

Eric Davis tripled with one out in the 12th off Jerry Spradlin (0-1) and scored on a wild pitch.

McGwire's 14th homer was a 427-foot shot into the upper deck in left field.

Rockies 4, Astros 3

HOUSTON — Two wild pitches and a ninth-inning sacrifice fly by Henry Blanco scored the go-ahead run as the Colorado Rockies avoided a sweep and snapped Houston's four-game winning streak.

Chris Petersen reached on a force play in the ninth, then moved around to third base on a pair of wild pitches by Trever Miller (0-1). Blanco drove in Petersen with a long fly to left field.

Braves 8, Brewers 7

MILWAUKEE — Chipper Jones, a home-run hero the previous night, hit a three-run shot and the Atlanta Braves beat the Milwaukee Brewers for their third straight victory.

Dodgers 4, Reds 3

CINCINNATI — Eric Karros homered and Eric Young had a go-ahead two-run double as the Los Angeles Dodgers took advantage of an off-day by Pete Harnisch and held on to beat the Cincinnati Reds.

ROCK: 'Hounds lose

(From 1C)

Texas League mark of most errors for a shortstop in one inning.

But it wasn't just Espada's fault Thurday night as the RockHounds kicked the ball around four more times in the game.

"That's the way it goes sometimes," said Richard about the RockHound errors. "Sometimes you have bad nights. Tonight, they had some errors and we took advantage of that."

Offensively, the RockHounds bats were pretty much quiet with just five hits, two of which came from Jeff DaVanon, who went 2-for-3. The only run scored for the 'Hounds came from T.R. Marcinczyk, who reached on with a walk and later scored on an error in the sixth inning to cut the Travelers' lead to 8-1.

It wasn't the best of nights for the RockHounds as they have a chance to wipe this game into the "one we'd rather forget" pile and concentrate on tonight's 6 o'clock doubleheader with the Travelers.

In baseball, sometimes there's good days and sometimes there's bad days. Unfortunately for the 'Hounds, this game was on the negative side.

LEE: Rebels seek series win over Duncanville

(From 1C)

Home or not, what the Rebels (27-6) may have to worry about most is getting to that comfort zone of a big lead, and if they do, how they can hold it. In Duncanville's regional quarterfinal series against Lewisville, the Panthers (23-8) overcame late inning deficits in both games to sweep Lewisville.

Duncanville has won 45 playoff games in the 1990s and has playoff mystique, not to mention a juggernaut of an athletic program which has also won state titles in football and basketball this school year. Lee, which has two players from the Class 5A small school football champions (Duncanville won the 5A big school title), got a boost last weekend from sweeping No. 9 El Paso Socorro 12-0 and 13-10, and Duncanville should present a similar challenge.

"They're kind of like those (Lubbock) Monterey teams," said Benavidez, comparing Duncanville to the powerhouses coached by the retired Bobby Moegle. "If you let them stay around close, they're going to find a way to win"

Offensively, Lee has been playing above and beyond the call of playoff duty. The Rebels haven't scored any fewer than eight runs in any of their five playoff games and they're averaging over 12 runs a game, which is especially impressive when it's considered that two of those games ended after five innings due to the 10-run rule.

Benavidez isn't worried about his team's hitting against Duncanville, or even too concerned about Lee's pitching. He's hoping that the Rebels can do the little things such as field, throw and catch.

"When you play (the Panthers) you know they're going to do a good job in fundamentals," Benavidez said. "It's a matter of keeping them from scoring on mental mistakes. You have to make routine (plays)."

That might be a greater challenge than expected for the Rebels against Duncanville. Shortstop Ryan Klatt's recurring back pains flared up early in the week and he is a question mark for the series. If Klatt can't play, Lee will have to do some serious shuffling with its infield, which could become even more makeshift if third baseman Eric Neatherlin also ends up pitching.

Against Socorro, all the elements were in place at one time or another for the Rebels. They hit the ball well, belting four home runs in the series, committed only an error in each game, and got an excellent pitching performance in the first game from Collin Gilliam, who came within one out of a no-hitter and will likely start the first game today.

"The confidence factor is there," said Benavidez of his team's performance against Socorro. "The way we played the last two games and coming from behind in the second game (Lee trailed 7-2 at one point) we know we have momentum."

The same could be said for Duncanville. The Panthers, who were the runner-up in District 7-5A, lost the first game of their area round series against No. 3 Hurst L.D. Bell 3-0 but took the series by winning the next two games 9-2 and 9-6.

Against Lewisville, Duncanville scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth of the first game to pull out a 5-4 win. Trailing 3-1 with two outs in the seventh inning of the second game, a Duncanville batter reached on a dropped third strike, then Michael Fuller hit a home run to send it into extra innings. The game lasted until the 10th, when Duncanville scored seven runs to pull out a 10-3 victory and the series.

"There just seems to be some things happening at the right time for us," said Duncanville coach Bob Rombach, whose team won the region last year. "There seems to be no set pattern to how we play."

What has been constant for the Panthers is winning. Six-foot-five junior left-hander Justin Simmons has been Duncanville's best pitcher, going 11-2 with a 1.35 ERA and 116 strikeouts in 93 innings. Rombach has been using Simmons in the second game of each series but isn't sure how he'll be deployed against Lee.

There's not much of a dropoff in Duncanville's second mound option, senior right-hander Michael Garza, who stands at 8-3 with a 2.76 ERA and 97 strikeouts in 78 2/3 innings. Offensively, senior shortstop Brandon Fahey leads the team with a .390 average and 31 RBIs.

"We know (the Rebels) are an outstanding offensive team," said Rombach. "In a short series anything can happen. We're capable of scoring runs, but we're also capable of stinking it up."

Neither Lee nor Duncanville has stunk it up much this season, so how the teams handle intangibles and unexpected circumstances are that much more important.

"I think we're in our prime right now," said Lee leadoff hitter Neatherlin, who is hitting .571 and has scored 10 runs in the playoffs. "We're at that place where we're really confident but not overconfident.

"Pitching is the key right now because they are definitely doing the job."

TENNIS: Capriati, Kournikova win

do with this loss, Sampras said. It was just the annoying red clay that's so foreign to him.

"On every surface, it's a natural instinct," he said. "Sometimes on clay my instinct is not the right call. Maybe it's best to stay back, maybe it's best to take a little bit off my serve and come in on the next shot. I get into a hole, and I want to serve my way out of holes. On clay, you just can't do that."

Sampras' serve is a huge weapon on grass and hard courts, which largely accounts for his 11 Grand Slam titles — five at Wimbledon, four at the U.S. Open, and two at the Australian Open. On clay, the serve is subservient to groundstrokes and tactics, and in those areas Sampras' game is flawed.

When he steps on the courts at Roland Garros, he becomes an ordinary mortal, vulnerable to anyone, especially players like the Ukrainian Medvedev, who grew up playing on clay. Sampras managed only five aces in the match, while spraying 61 unforced errors.

At 27, Sampras knows he's running out of time to figure out how to adjust to clay. And he knows that unless he does, he will leave a hole in his career that will weaken any claim to being the greatest player in history. He came into the French Open acknowledging exactly that, saying he'd consider the year a huge success if he won this title and nothing else.

"In some ways, I might put too much pressure on myself here," he said. "I kind of feel it playing out there, like I'm pressing a little bit. I just can't afford to have 10 or 15 minutes of a concentration lapse, like I did at the end of the third, into the fourth set."

The implacable Medvedev won five straight games during that stretch, from 4-4 in the third set to 3-0 in the fourth, to take command of the match.

Medvedev, ranked as high as No. 4 five years ago but down now to 100 after sitting out with a wrist injury, didn't do anything spectacular to beat Sampras. Almost expressionless on the court, Medvedev was content to hit groundstrokes from side to side, keeping the ball deep and close to the lines. His serve was good enough for 11 aces.

While Sampras berated himself — "It's not like playing on grass," he shouted after an ill-timed charge to the net — Medvedev quietly went about his own business. Even after winning, Medvedev celebrated with only a little wave to the crowd.

"Have I done anything really, really significant?" Medvedev said. "To win two rounds? Come on. I think he is the greatest player on earth that's ever picked up a tennis racket. But I don't think he played his best tennis today. It's not his favorite surface, it's my favorite surface. I don't get my head turned around because I beat Pete."

Sampras' loss, a day after the exit of No. 1 Yevgeny Kafelnikov, left the French Open without seven of its 16 seeded men before the end of the second round.

In other action, Jennifer Capriati, who reached the semifinals here nine years ago before off-court troubles derailed her career, advanced to the third round with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 victory over fellow American Lilia Osterloh.

The 23-year-old Capriati recently won her first event in six years.

Also advancing were two other American women: No. 2 Lindsay Davenport survived a three-set scare from the promising 16-year-old Justine Henin of Belgium, and No. 3 Monica Seles won in straight sets. No. 6 Steffi Graf, No. 11 Patty Schnyder, No. 16 Julie Halard Decugis, and unseeded Anna Kournikova also reached the third round.

Conchita Martinez of Spain defeated the eighth-seeded Frenchwoman Mary Pierce, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND

CAN WE COME TOGETHER: RACE AND RECONCILIATION IN THE 21ST CENTURY

THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1999 • 7:30 P.M. • UTPB GYMNASIUM • ODESSA
FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

This latest roundtable/town hall discussion through the UTPB John Ben Shepperd Public Leadership Institute features individuals with varied perspectives on this issue which remains one of the great unanswered questions for American democracy.

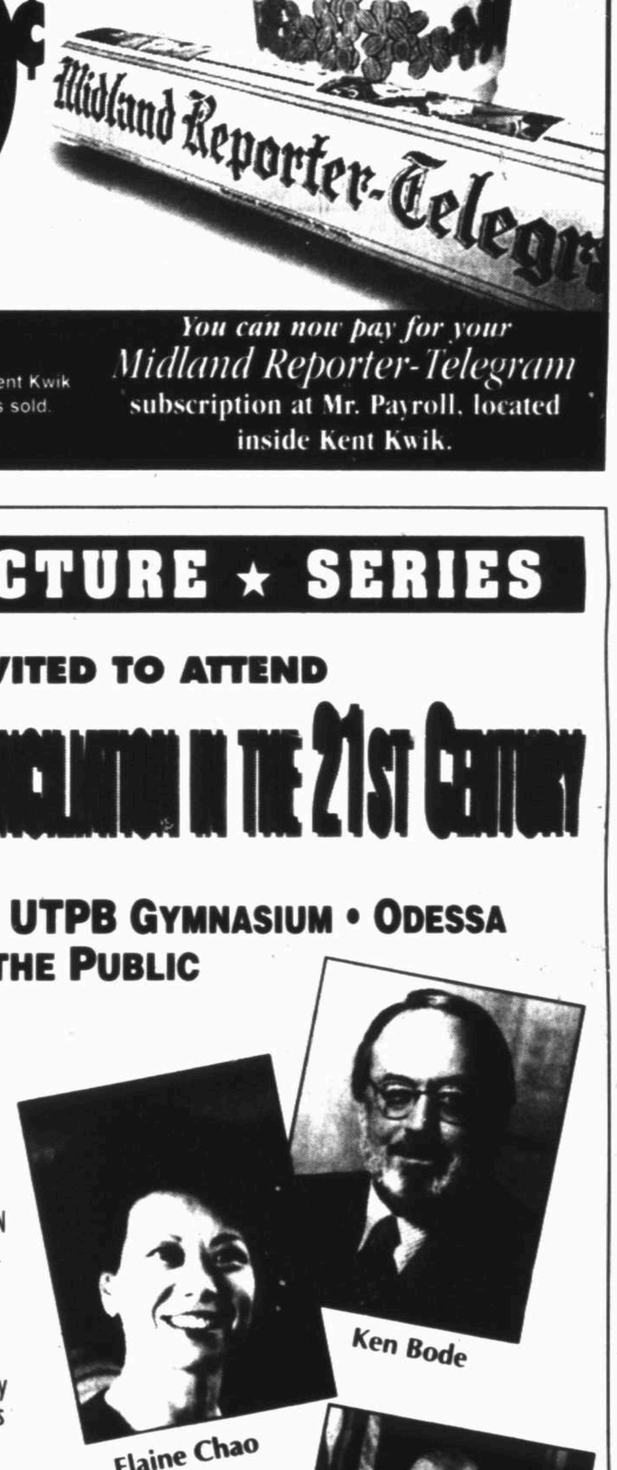

Moderator: Mr. Ken Bode
Former moderator of Washington Week In Review, Mr. Bode is currently dean of the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University. Mr. Bode spent 10 years as a national political correspondent for NBC News. In addition, he served as Senior Political Analyst for CNN while authoring award-winning documentaries on Bob Dole, Bill Clinton, and George Bush. Mr. Bode has been called "the most astute moderator on television."

Ms. Elaine Chao
Ms. Chao brings a distinguished reputation for accomplishment in government, business, and the nonprofit sector. Perhaps her greatest triumph is in turning around the troubled United Way of America, restoring both its fiscal health and public image. During her tenure as Peace Corps Director she initiated programs in the Baltic region and the new independent states of Russia. She served as Deputy Secretary of the U. S. Department of Transportation, and in 1988-89 chaired the Maritime Administration.

Admiral William J. Crowe, Jr.
Admiral Crowe, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and recent ambassador to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, was labeled as a "new breed" of military man, trained both on the battlefield and the halls of Congress. Unlike many in the military, Admiral Crowe holds an M.A. from Stanford and a Ph.D. in policies from Princeton. He has been instrumental in fashioning a "Navy of opportunity" for all Americans, regardless of ethnic background. Currently, Admiral Crowe leads a study on updating security at American embassies around the world.

Mr. Charles J. Ogletree
Harvard law School professor and legal theorist, Mr. Ogletree has been described as the most articulate voice in the land on ethics and the law. Educated at Stanford and Harvard, Mr. Ogletree gained international recognition for the 1989 Fred Friendly PBS series "Ethics in America." His legal insights have been described as a "blend of focus and flexibility." A widely published author, he is a frequent guest on the Lehrer Report, Nightline, Good Morning America, and the Today Show. He was recently given the "People's Lawyer of the Year Award" by the National Conference of Black Lawyers. He serves as a member of the Stanford University Board of Trustees.

Mr. Richard Rodriguez
Mr. Rodriguez is contributing editor for the Los Angeles Times and Harper's Magazine and a frequent guest of PBS' Lehrer Report. He is a widely recognized commentator and writer who poetically addresses the challenges America faces as it seeks to balance the realities of cultural diversity with the social fabric from which our country draws its identity. He has authored two books, Hunger of Memory and Days of Obligation, which speak to the dilemma of American culture.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, May 28, 1999:
You could often change plans or reverse your stand this year. You are vital, possessing unusually high energy. Others are clearly drawn to you. Your natural talents are abundant; tap into your creative resources. Your presence meets with easy accord. Everyone wants to get to know you. Use your ability to lend perspective and calmness to situations that lack these. If you are single, romance builds to a passionate level. You are likely to be friends first, however. If attached, express your caring, be nurturing and watch your relationship heat up. Scorpio is a big help at work.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Don't view the morning as being representative of your day. Chuckle at what happens and remain positive. Get into work — you are particularly strong when dealing with funds. Close relating brings greater happiness. All signs point to an early escape from work. You beam! Tonight: With favorite people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Someone you care about places unexpected demands on you. Clear out your work, then venture out to christen Memorial Day weekend. If you aren't going away, invite friends over to help you celebrate. Good will and happiness mark your mood. Tonight: Let it all begin!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ What seemed absolute proves to be anything but! Consider plans carefully. Be willing to flow with a change. Your smile and easy ways mean a lot to another. Pitch in and help others. Make an additional effort toward a child or a woman. Tonight: R & R, then fun!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ A trusted friend causes an uproar; you'll wonder what is going on. Don't let another wreak havoc on your finances. Your creativity makes nearly anything possible. A flirtation could be building up to a lot more. Remain aware of what is going on. Tonight: Beam in what your heart wants.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ A friend or associate demonstrates his unreliability. You could get upset — or you could just go with the flow. Much is in your favor, presently. Attend to domestic and personal matters. Sharing good feelings with another deepens the bond between you. Tonight: Relax with a special friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Handle a problem that comes in from left field. You might not be able to start this holiday weekend as you had envisioned. Listen carefully to feedback from an associate. Communication is your strong suit. Say what you feel; another is responsive. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★ A child or loved one disappoints you. Evaluate your expectations. Could you be responsible for this on some level? You might want to overindulge or go overboard and remain oblivious to what is happening. Make time for a must appearance. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Your mind responds to a distant drummer. Take off as soon as you can. A relative or family member throws a monkey wrench in your path. Handle it, then take off for a special holiday weekend. The good times knock at your door. Romance awaits at a distance. Tonight: Dreams come true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Though early events may put you in a sour mood, don't worry! Follow your heart and go with the flow. Good news comes that more than compensates for the slow start. Make time for a special person in your life. Open up more to the potential that lies between you. Tonight: Play it low-key.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Despite an unexpected financial flux, you feel good about what comes up. Join friends. Make the most of a special opportunity. Get out and christen this holiday weekend. Others seek you out; popularity soars. Tonight: Say "yes."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Your unpredictability could cause a last-minute problem with a boss or someone you put on a pedestal. Know when enough is enough! Express your feelings and draw loved ones near. Humor marks your interactions. Others look to you. Tonight: In the limelight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Don't worry about what you think is happening. Allow your lively side to emerge. Take stock of all the joy in your life; everything else will fall into place. Fun is had by all. A flirtation could veer in a new direction. Tonight: Take off ASAP.

The Case of the Vanishing Trick

Both vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ A 8 7 6 2
♡ 9 8 2
◇ 10 3
♣ 8 5 2

WEST
♡ K Q 10 6 4
♣ A Q J 10

EAST
♠ K Q

◇ J 7 5 4
♣ 9 7 6 3

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 5
♡ A 3
◇ A K Q 9 8
♣ K 4

The bidding:

| SOUTH | WEST | NORTH | EAST |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1◇ | 1♡ | Pass | 2♡ |
| 2♠ | 3♣ | 4♠ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: King of ♡

Listen to the bidding. It can give many valuable clues to the play of the hand. South's technique on this deal is worth studying.

South had to have a good hand to compete perhaps to the three-level opposite a partner who had passed against two bidding opponents.

North correctly valued ace-fifth in support of partner's second suit worth a jump to game in the major.

West led the king of hearts, and it would seem that there were at least four losers — one in each major and, since West surely had the ace of clubs, two in that suit.

But appearances can be deceptive.

Declarer allowed the king of hearts to hold the first trick to sever communications between the defenders.

The heart continuation was taken in the closed hand and the diamond ace was cashed, declarer unblocking dummy's 10.

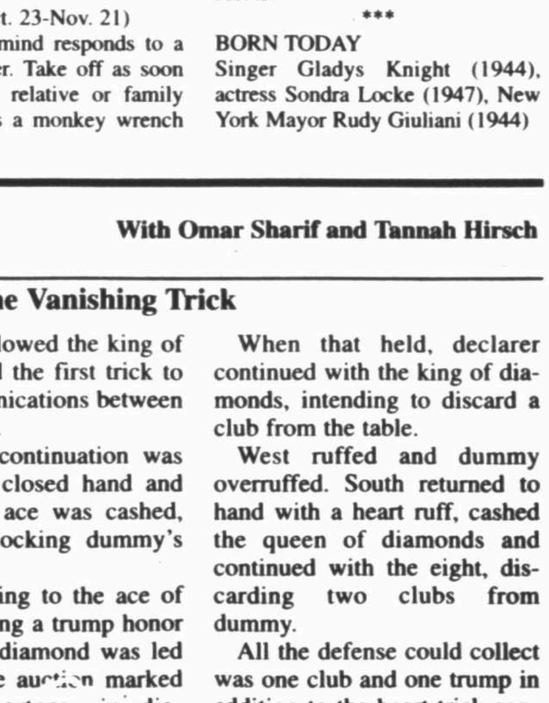

After crossing to the ace of spades, fetching a trump honor from East, a diamond was led and, since the auction marked West for shortness in diamonds, the nine was finessed.

When that held, declarer continued with the king of diamonds, intending to discard a club from the table.

West ruffed and dummy overruffed. South returned to hand with a heart ruff, cashed the queen of diamonds and continued with the eight, discarding two clubs from dummy.

All the defense could collect was one club and one trump in addition to the heart trick conceded at trick one.

Celibacy and Cher don't get along

NEW YORK — Celibacy is not Cher's preference.

She said she's been doing without since her relationship with Richie Sambora ended six years ago.

"For me to be single this long is quite strange," the singer-actress told Ladies' Home Journal. "It's the longest I've ever been on my own. I've had a great time, but now I'd like to find somebody again."

So why doesn't she?

"The truth is, I hardly ever see men that I'm attracted to," she said. "It's easy for women to hang out with men who are famous, but no man wants to be Mr. Cher."

---

BURBANK, Calif. — Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura complained about his loss of privacy as he plugged his bare-all autobiography on the "Tonight Show With Jay Leno."

"They get on you about things you did when you were 18 and 19 because they tell you you're a role model," he said Wednesday. "Jay, I don't know about you, but when I was 18 or 19, I didn't make any decisions based on well, I might be a role model 25 years from now."

The former pro wrestler brags in his book about visiting prostitutes in Nevada, carousing in the Philippines, using steroids and marijuana, and losing his virginity on a bet at 16.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Mel Gibson and Robert Redford will head to South Carolina in the fall to make movies.

Scenes from "The Patriot," starring Gibson, will be filmed in Charleston, Chester, York and Georgetown counties. "The Patriot" will loosely follow the life of Francis Marion, the "Swamp Fox" of Revolutionary War fame.

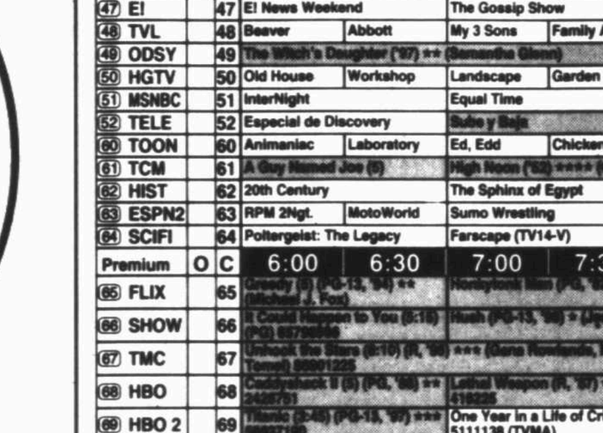

Redford will direct and star in "The Legend of Bagger Vance." Crews are scheduled to shoot in Beaufort and Charleston counties.

The movie is about a golf championship between two legends of the sport. Redford plays a third golfer.

OAK PARK, Ill. — A 130-year-old house that Ernest Hemingway once lived in was spared from demolition by a dollar.

The local library sold the two-story Victorian home Wednesday to Scot and Stacy Sterenberg for that amount — and a promise they will move it.

Gov. Jesse Ventura complained to Jay Leno about his loss of privacy during a recent appearance on the "Tonight Show with Jay Leno."

The city wants the land to expand the library, but nobody bid on the home at an auction last month. The Sterenbergs were the only ones to ask to buy the house where a young Hemingway and his family lived for six months in 1906.

"This is our first home. We though it should be filled with history," said Ms. Sterenberg, 29, a free-lance writer. "Hemingway was an adventurer. I think this is very adventurous of us."

The couple will have the house moved to a lot about a mile away in the city's historic district. They plan to raise a family there.

"Another writer will be born under this roof," said Sterenberg, 31.

LOS ANGELES — Ellen Barkin has filed for divorce from fellow actor Gabriel Byrne, nearly six years after they separated.

Miss Barkin, whose films include "Diner" and "The Big Easy," married Byrne in 1988 after they starred in the movie "Siesta."

According to the divorce petition filed Wednesday, they have been separated since 1993. They have two children, 6 and 9.

Byrne has appeared in more than 30 films, including "The Usual Suspects" and "Man in the Iron Mask."

Crude falls

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices fell Thursday in futures trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, with very light volume before the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Light sweet crude oil for delivery in July fell 18 cents per barrel to $17.17, and home heating oil for delivery in June fell .12 cent per gallon to 40.25 cents.

Natural gas prices also rose Thursday, with contracts for delivery in July settling at $2.22 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 7.2 cents.

The contract for June deliveries of unleaded gasoline was unchanged from Wednesday at 49.90 cents per gallon.

In London, North Sea Brent Blend crude oil for delivery in July fell 11 cents per barrel to $15.36 at the International Petroleum Exchange.

Euro down

NEW YORK (AP) — The euro dropped to a new low against the dollar Thursday, but recovered slightly after European central bankers expressed support for the struggling new currency.

In late New York trading, the euro was quoted at $1.0420, down from $1.0455 Wednesday. Earlier in Europe, it fell to $1.0409, down more than 10 percent from where the euro started in January when it replaced the currencies of 11 nations in the European Union.

The euro has stumbled in recent weeks amid concerns about the soundness of the European Union and slowing economic growth in the region.

Electric bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' $20 billion-a-year utility market faces a sweeping overhaul under an industry deregulation bill that supporters say will reduce electric bills.

The legislation was approved by the state Senate Thursday and sent to Gov. George W. Bush, who plans to sign the bill into law joining Texas with 20 other states that also have moved to deregulate the industry.

"I believe it's going to reduce rates and increase competition and I know it's going to be good for clean air," Bush said.

Bill supporters say the measure will mean lower rates and better reliability for consumers who could shop for their utility providers. The Senate approved the bill on a voice vote.

Under the legislation, electric rates would be frozen at their current level until Jan. 1, 2002. They would then be lowered by 6 percent.

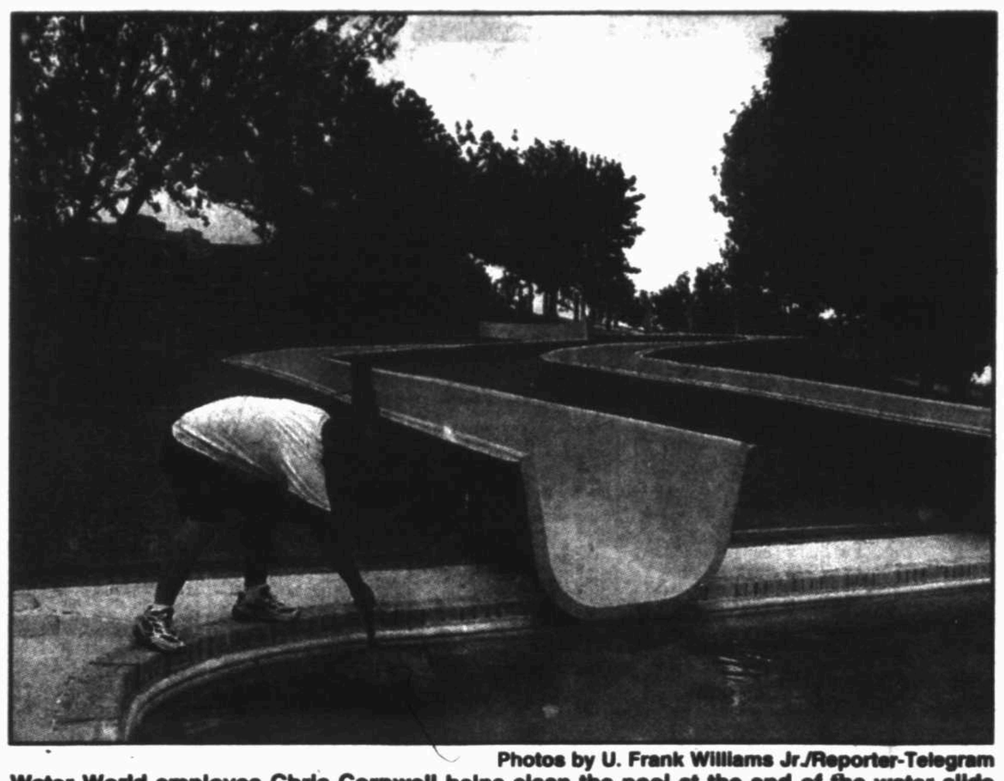

Senate sponsor David Sibley, R-Waco, predicted consumers' could see their electric bills cut by as much as 10 percent in the next few years.

"The Legislature has taken a huge step by voting to open up the electric market to competition for the first time," Sibley said. "This is the end of the era of captive consumers in this state."

Bill supporters expect utility companies to be enticed into moving to Texas to offer lower prices and new technology, including devices that tell consumers when they are wasting electricity.

Company executives say the first year they plan to clean and upgrade the park, including installing all-new video games in the arcade. In the next couple of years, officials say, new rides will be added.

Exxon, Mobil shareholders OK merger

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Only regulatory approval now stands between Exxon and Mobil and their history-making $82.2 billion merger that could affect the look of street corners around the country.

In separate meetings Thursday, shareholders of each company overwhelmingly approved the marriage, which would produce one of the world's largest companies, with $203 billion in combined revenue last year.

The new company would be called Exxon Mobil Corp. and have headquarters in Irving, Exxon's current home. Mobil is based in Fairfax, Va.

The impact of the proposed merger on the Permian Basin is not yet known. Mobil has 370 employees in the area, producing 95,000 barrels of oil equivalent.

Exxon closed its Midland office last August after 70 years in the Basin, with 185 employees relocating or resigning. At present, the company has 160 field employees, stationed at the Fullerton, Seminole, Means, Sharon Ridge, Snyder, Spraberry, Crane-Sandhills and Monahans-Pyotes fields.

Exxon's chairman Lee R. Raymond said the combined company will be more cost-efficient — cutting costs by $2.8 billion — and better able to compete with international competitors, including state-run oil companies, than would either Exxon or Mobil alone.

Raymond, who would become chairman of the new company, acknowledged that federal regulators could force the sale of some gas stations where the two brands compete head to head — even on the same corner.

But he said both nameplates — the Exxon tiger and Mobil's red Pegasus — would be retained.

Regulators in the United States and Europe must still approve the deal, which company officials said they expect by October.

Independent analysts generally view the merger as benign for consumers, even though it would create the world's largest energy company.

"The impact on consumers will be hardly noticeable," said Michael L. Mayer of Schroder & Co. "Gasoline marketing in the U.S. is highly competitive. They'll probably have to sell a few thousand service stations, especially in the Northeast, where there's a lot of overlap, and maybe sell a refinery in the Gulf Coast area. They'll scream about it, but they'll do it."

The impact of the proposed merger on the Permian Basin is not yet known. Mobil has 370 employees in the area. Exxon closed its Midland office last August after 70 years in the Basin.

Exxon Mobil "can't exert undue influence on the retail market because most of the major oil companies don't own their own retail stations — they're owned by individuals," said Keith Petersen of Salomon Smith Barney in New York.

Raymond also said the mammoth company would not be able to influence gasoline prices because of competition from independently owned stations that buy from many suppliers, a view shared by the American Automobile Association.

"We would expect that the regulators would look at this closely ... I haven't seen anything yet that would cause a reason for concern," said Bill Noble, an AAA spokesman.

Exxon Mobil would be the biggest seller of motor fuel in the United States. Mobil accounted for 11 percent of the U.S. gasoline market in 1997, and Exxon had 10.4 percent, according to the industry journal National Petroleum News.

According to the American Petroleum Institute, the new company would account for 12 percent of U.S. refining capacity and 7 percent worldwide.

The companies predicted that the merger will result in the loss of 9,000 jobs — 7 percent of their combined worldwide work force — but admitted that's just an estimate.

"Even without mergers, there would be layoffs in this business," said Mobil chairman Lucio Noto, who would become vice chairman of the combined company.

Both chairmen denied that low oil prices were a factor in the merger. Oil companies are cutting costs to boost profits in the face of low prices that some experts believe won't rise significantly for years.

The two companies announced plans to merge in December. Mobil is the biggest U.S. oil company and Mobil is No. 2. The merger would create the sixth-largest oil producer in the world and the largest that is privately owned.

Exxon Mobil will have about 48,500 gas stations around the world, with roughly a third in the United States, plus exploration and production operations worldwide. On a daily basis, the companies together produce 2.5 million barrels of oil and equivalent amounts of natural gas — more than Kuwait.

If the merger goes through, Mobil shareholders will get 1.32 shares of the new company's stock for each share of Mobil common stock. Exxon shareholders would keep their existing shares.

Exxon shareholders would own about 70 percent of the new company's stock.

Stocks tumble as interest-rate worries return; Dow slides 235

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks tumbled Thursday as renewed worries of inflation and higher interest rates sent the market back into its retreat from record heights.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 235.23, a 2.2 percent loss, to close at 10,466.93. It was the ninth-worst one-day point drop ever, and the steepest since Sept. 30, 1998, when the blue-chip average fell 237.20. But in percentage terms, it was far from a record decline.

Broader market indicators also fell, although their losses were comparatively modest. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 23.35 to 1,281.41, and the Nasdaq composite index fell 8.02 to 2,419.15.

Just this week, the Dow has tumbled 362.35 points, or by 3.3 percent. The steep selloff Thursday made the previous day's 171.07-point gain seem like a distant memory.

"Yesterday's market looked really good, but without a follow-through, it's hard for stocks to pick up steam," said Barry Berman, head trader for Robert W. Baird & Co. in Milwaukee.

Some of the selling came from investors cashing in on Wednesday's rally in advance of the Memorial Day weekend. But the strongest factor, analysts said, was the continuing fear that a rekindling of inflation will prompt the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates.

New government figures on the economy kept the market off balance Thursday. The Commerce Department said the U.S. economy grew at a robust annual rate of 4.1 percent in the first quarter, exacerbating fears that the Fed will raise rates to prevent the economy from overheating.

That depressed bond prices, sending the yield of 30-year Treasurys rising to 5.84 percent from 5.80 percent Wednesday.

The Commerce Department report also revealed news that could have heartened the market. An inflation gauge tied to the gross domestic product rose a modest 1.1 percent, and corporate profits showed a big rebound in the first three months of this year. Profits rose at an annual rate of $31.8 billion after having fallen at a rate of $5.3 billion in the fourth quarter of 1998.

But David Orr, chief economist at First Union Capital Markets, pointed out that the fourth quarter included $13.5 billion in lawsuit settlements by tobacco companies. Without those crushing payments, the increase in profits would have been much more modest.

Corporate profits have loomed in the background of the interest-rate watch. Higher rates typically cut into profits as it becomes more expensive for companies to borrow money.

IBM, which soared more than 15 points Wednesday before a 2-for-1 stock split that took effect at the close of trading, fell 2 1/8 on Thursday to 116. Some analysts also blamed persistent worries that computer makers will see their profit margins shrink as they cut prices to compete.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Is it time to dump laggard small-cap stocks from portfolio?

By Eric Tyson

Q: I have a small amount of money in a small cap stock fund IRA that's not doing too well. I would like to be able to transfer this into an IRA where I can direct the stock selection. What do you recommend?

Tyson

A: Small company stocks have been out of favor for several years now in the United States. Thus, you should not be motivated to sell your small cap fund simply because it's not racking up large gains.

Small cap stocks will again have their day in the sun. Stick with the fund you have so long as it has a good management team, track record vs. its peer group and reasonable operating expenses.

A natural human tendency is to want to sell laggards and put more money in investments posting high return numbers. Such a strategy is dangerous, as what you may end up doing is selling low and buying high!

A diversified stock portfolio should include stocks of varying size companies, as well as domestic and foreign companies. In recent years, large cap U.S. and European stocks have been the stars of the show, but that trend won't last forever. For example, in the past six months, emerging market and Asian stock markets have finally posted some large gains.

Q: I have a small IRA with Putnam Mutual Funds that is divided equally among three funds. The overall performance has been adequate, a little more than CDs. I'm willing to "play" with this money to garner higher interest if possible and would like to reinvest whatever interest it gathers to continue to grow it. Is the only way to really grow a small investment by regular contributions to it?

A: An IRA should be predominantly invested in stock funds. If your IRA is indeed invested in such funds and your return is only a little more than CDs, your funds are doing poorly relative to the overall market and average stock fund. Stock funds historically return about 9 percent per year, but in recent years, returns in U.S. stock funds have been running at about double that level.

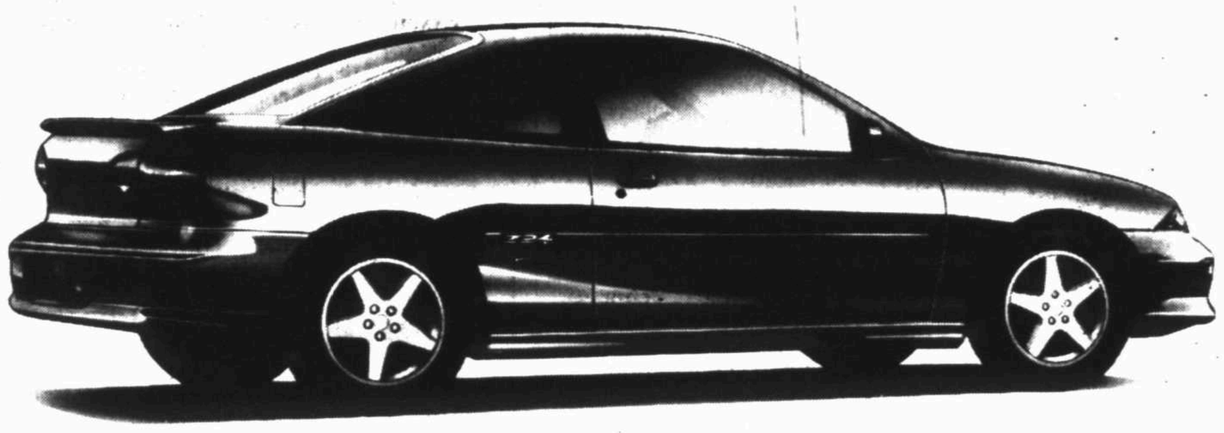

Putnam is a load fund company. That means that when a broker sells you one of their funds, a hefty chunk of your investment goes toward the broker's commission. Most load funds charge around 5 percent to 6 percent. Thus, for every $1,000 you invest, about $50 to $60 is deducted from your investment. To grow your money, invest in the best no-load stock funds. I am partial to those offered by companies such as Vanguard, T. Rowe Price and Fidelity. There are certainly others as well. Pick a good domestic stock fund as well as one investing overseas and keep adding to your investment over the years.

Adding money regularly to your investment accounts is absolutely the most powerful way to grow your nest egg. However, you should be earning healthy returns on your investments as well. At a 9 percent annual return, even without adding any money to your account, your investment should double in value.

IRL's George douses talk of ending IRL-CART feud

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indy Racing League is no closer to ending its feud with rival CART, despite talks aimed at bringing the two sides together, IRL's president said Thursday.

In his most extensive comments on the 4-year-old split in American open-wheel racing, Tony George accused CART of fueling reports of a reconciliation to boost its stock price, soothe sponsors and divert attention from the Indianapolis 500.

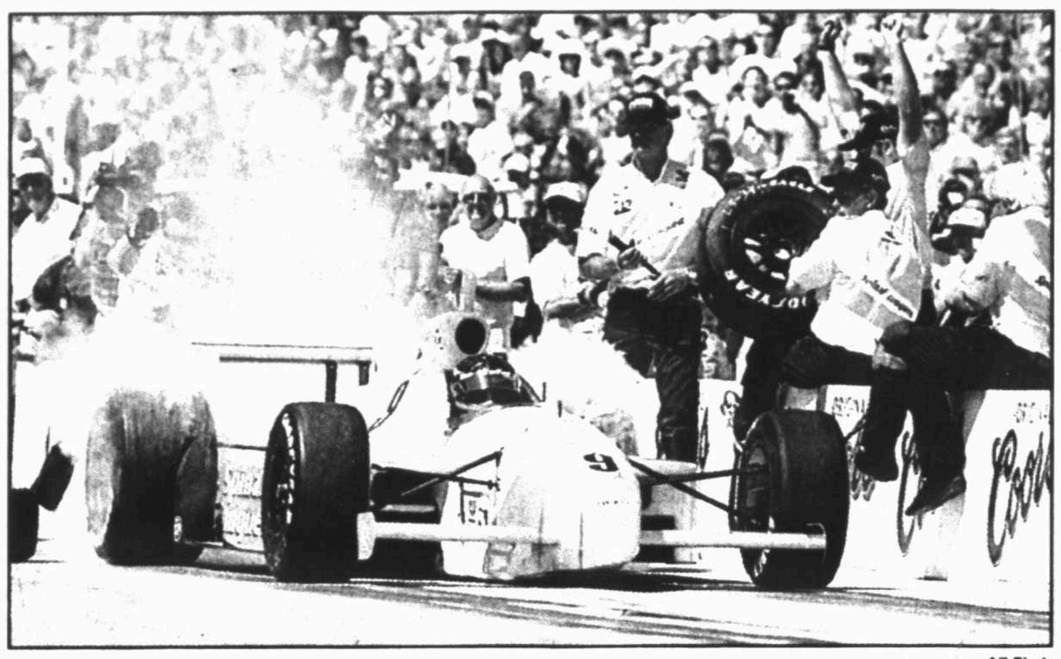

While admitting once again that it would be difficult for both series to survive, George said he got no indication of common ground at a meeting last week with Andrew Craig, chief executive officer of Championship Auto Racing Teams.

"As long as we have different philosophies, we're never going to strike any kind of accord," George said. "I can't say I'm encouraged by anything we talked about."

George, also president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, began the IRL in late 1995 as a low-cost, ovals-only alternative to CART. The older organization responded by boycotting the Indy 500, taking away some of the luster from the world's most famous race.

"We're not going to compromise ourselves just to get them back here," said George, preparing for his fourth 500 without CART. "It's as simple as that. The IRL is doing very well with its growth at this stage. Obviously, we've shown we don't need them to have a successful event."

CART, which holds the Motorola 300 at Madison, Ill., on Saturday, is making plans to expand its 20-race schedule to other overseas markets, mentioning Germany and Mexico as possible sites. But Craig stressed his teams also want to go back to Indy.

AP Photo

Indy 500 race driver Davey Hamilton smokes his tires as he pulls out in the finals of the annual pit stop competition at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Thursday. Hamilton beat out Kenny Brack.

"All we are attempting to do is to act in good faith for what we believe is in the best interest of the sport and the fans," Craig said after being told of George's comments. "We have made no secret of the fact that all our teams would like to race in Indianapolis."

The two sides face major hurdles, such as totally different chassis and engine specifications.

"We have no idea where all the speculation is coming from," Craig said. "We strongly believe that it's best not to comment on any of these specific issues at this time."

George said he met with Craig in March and they got together again last week in Indianapolis. George also has met with NASCAR chief Bill France Jr., portrayed as the potential broker of a deal between the two open-wheel series.

France's International Speedway Corp., which owns and operates NASCAR, recently bought Penske Motorsports. That gave ISC 10 racetracks, with at least three more planned in the near future.

George said his talks with Craig focused on their general support for open-wheel racing, but didn't focus on specifics for bringing the two sides together.

"Certainly, he wasn't trying to cast himself as someone who has all the answers," George said. "It was more to express an interest in what we're doing."

Though nearly all of the most-established drivers remained with CART after the split, George clearly feels he has the upper hand because the IRL has the Indy 500. He said talk of a merger is merely an attempt to bolster CART, which is a publicly traded company on the New York Stock Exchange.

"They need to continue to give some glimmer of hope that something is in the offing to help keep their stock price where they want it to be," he said.

George's right-hand man, IRL executive director Leo Mehl, also gave little hint of a compromise earlier Thursday.

"I call it the May whine," Mehl said. "Those CART guys are very concerned with what's going on here. If they come back here with the same engines we use, the same chassis, they'll get their doors blown off."

George and Mehl said there would be no attempt to reach a deal that would allow the CART teams to return to the Indy 500 unless they run the other 10 IRL races, too.

George conceded that neither open-wheel series is likely to reach the popularity of NASCAR's stock-car series unless they merge.

"Sooner or later, it will have to come to just one series for it to flourish," George said. "I don't know and I don't have a crystal ball to predict what that outcome might be."

Little E gamble looks like winning venture

Associated Press

■ Auto Racing Roundup

CONCORD, N.C. — Early indications are that the $50 million-plus gamble was worth it.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. took an important first step in his Winston Cup career by qualifying eighth for his inaugural race, the Coca-Cola 600 on Sunday at Lowe's Motor Speedway at Charlotte.

Wednesday night's time trials capped more than six months of planning and hoopla surrounding the targeted series debut for the 24-year-old son of one of the sport's most famous champions.

On Thursday, the relief was evident on the faces of everyone associated with the driver known as Little E.

"It's always a gamble because you never know what's going to happen," said a smiling Ty Norris, general manager of Dale Earnhardt Inc. "But there are certain things that people like Dale Earnhardt and his experienced eyes can see, like whether a guy can do it or not.

"And Dale Jr. did not get the opportunity because of his name. He has the ability ."

Anheuser-Busch Inc. was banking on it. The brewer, through its Budweiser brand, committed to backing the younger Earnhardt's entry into Winston Cup racing. Industry sources said the sponsorship deal, which runs through the 2004 season, is worth more than $50 million.

The plan was for the younger Earnhardt to run five Winston Cup races this year before moving up to the circuit on a full-time basis in 2000.

But what if Earnhardt had struggled?

"We did not formulate a what-if situation because we just don't think that way," Norris said. "And I don't mean to sound cocky or anything, but we just don't program ourselves to fail. We try to get all the parts together and go out and give it our best shot."

Dale Earnhardt, the 48-year-old seven-time Winston Cup champion, decided last year that his son was capable of making the ascent from NASCAR's Busch Grand National circuit.

Historically, that transition hasn't necessarily been an easy one.

The sport's archives are full of drivers who were extremely successful in Grand National cars but struggled when they stepped up to the top series. Among current drivers alone, David Green, Steve Grissom and Joe Nemechek are former Busch series champions yet to win Winston Cup race and often struggle just to qualify.

Nonetheless, Norris said the elder Earnhardt and other officials at DEI sensed early in the younger Earnhardt's Grand National days that he was something special. The team kept outfitting him with old cars and used engines, but Earnhardt kept producing impressive finishes.

Earnhardt won the driving title last year. He's in a tight battle with Matt Kenseth atop the standings one-third of the way through this season.

And now, he's adding Winston Cup racing to the mix. In addition to the added demands on his time, the transition has significantly increased the workload for his Grand National team, which also is overseeing his limited 1999 Winston Cup program.

David Green wins pole at Charlotte

CONCORD, N.C. — David Green ended a nearly three-year drought without a pole by winning the top starting spot for the Carquest Auto Parts 300 NASCAR Busch Grand National race.

Green turned an event-record fast lap of 176.569 mph at Lowe's Motor Speedway at Charlotte to win the 19th pole of his Grand National career but his first since June 1996 at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

"This pole probably stands out as one of the sweetest and most memorable because this is the first here at Charlotte," said Green, who had never started higher than third on the 1 1/2-mile, high-banked oval. His best finish at Charlotte was a 16th in 1993.

Defending champion Mark Martin was second Thursday with a 175.575.

Montoya has fastest time in Motorola 300 practice

MADISON, Ill. — When Juan Montoya tested at Gateway International Raceway earlier this month, he proclaimed the track one of his favorites on the CART FedEx Championship Series.

Montoya's love for the track grew Thursday, as he posted the fastest time during practice for Saturday's third-annual Motorola 300.

Winner of the last three races on the CART circuit, Montoya turned a 181.768- mph lap in his Honda-Reynard around the 1.27-mile egg-shaped oval during the afternoon practice session.

Greg Moore Mercedes-Reynard was second-fastest, with a lap of 181.148, followed by Paul Tracy in a Honda-Reynard at 180.962 mph.

Pole qualifying will be Friday, with a special practice session under the newly installed lights.

Montoya, a 23-year-old Colombian, is the first rookie in series history to win three in a row and the first rookie to lead the championship since Nigel Mansell in 1993.

Northern Angels win city crown

The Northern Angels won the 1999 American Little League City Championship Wednesday night at the Eastern Little League Complex.

It was an all Northern matchup in the finals as the Angels defeated the Devil Rays 14-6. The game was tight through four innings until Andy Suddeth and Keenan Kalt delivered clutch RBI singles before Matt Huerta hit a towering two-run homer over the centerfield fence to put the game away.

The Angels defeated the North Central Rangers 15-1, the Northern Yankees 19-9 and the Tower Cubs 11-4 to reach the finals.

Aurelio Lopez went the distance for the win in the finals.

Northern Angels Team Members: Albert Chavez, Anthony Corson, Matt Huerta, Keenan Kalt, Adam Lammers, Albert Lopez, Aurelio Lopez, Brian Nunez, Austin Ruppanner, Andy Sudduth, Andrew Thoma and Trey Thomas. Coaches: Curse Sudduth and Ernie Huerta.

Bell to compete in World show

Midland's Amy Bell will compete in the 28th annual American Quarter Horse Youth Association World Championship Show & Convention in Forth Worth, Aug. 6-14.

Bell will be among 2,000 competitors, ages 18-under, from the United States and several other countries. She will compete with her American Quarter Horse New Found Money (Cash), an 11-year-old chestnut gelding in Working Hunter, Hunter Hack and Equitation Over Fences.

She is the daughter of Larry and Ellen Bell of Midland and is a senior at Trinity. Bell is nationally ranked third in Working Hunter and tied for second in Hunter Hack as of the end of April.

Paschall makes academic team

Eastern New Mexico University sophomore centerfielder Kim Paschall, a former Midland High graduate, has been named to the GTE Academic All-District VI College Division Softball Team.

The 11-player team was picked by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Paschall has a 3.73 cumulative GPA and is majoring in marketing. Paschall finished the year with a .370 batting average with 11 RBIs and 10 stolen bases in 12 attempts.

Paschall has a .355 career batting average in two seasons at ENUM and was first team All-LSC South Division in 1998. She has stolen 22 bases in 27 attempts in her college career.

ENMU was 14-27 overall and 5-11 in the LSC South.

West Texas Stars take 3rd

AUSTIN — The West Texas Stars 14 and under girls basketball team finshed third in the Hill Country Classic, an AAU/BCI tournament held in Austin this past weekend.

The Stars lost in the semifinals to San Antonio's Extreme 56-52. The Stars defeated the Westlake Stars, Belton AAU and Austin Glory, and lost to Houston's Stars by 1.

Midland racers score points

LUBBOCK — Four Midlanders scored medals here recently in the West Texas Karting Association at Rimrock Raceway.

Caleb Perry won the Yamaha-Lite Division as Chris Lee and Rusty Mitchell, both of Midland, placed second and third. Midland's Hal Lee was third in the Yamaha-Heavy Division.

Odessa racers swept the Jr. Briggs Division with Krystal Herron taking first and was followed by Alex Bannowsky and Travis Vaught.

This was the first of a four race Dust Busters Series.

Do You...

consider your self #1 at customer service? Do you know how to make customers happy? Do you go that extra mile to make sure the job gets done? Do you love talking to people on the phone? If you possess these qualifications plus have basic computer skills then read further.

We're looking for a person who can make 60+ outbound calls per day to existing customers. The main focus will be to encourage customers to make payment, thereby continuing their service with our company. This position is mostly customer service/sales.

We would like applicants with a friendly and out-going nature, but aggressive enough to ask for payment. The applicant should have at least 3+ years experience in an office and be able to work on his or her own with light supervision. This is a temporary position with a strong possibility of turning into a permanent position for the right person. The successful applicant will work 40 hours per week, Monday through Friday. You must be able to work from 11AM - 8 PM daily (after training). The hourly rate of pay will be $7.00 - $8.00 per hour depending on experience.

If you really are #1 in customer service and have the skills, attitude and desire for longevity that this job requires, fax your resume to: CUSTOMER SERVICE at 682-3793. Make sure to include daytime and evening phone numbers. (We will contact only those chosen for interviews). No phone calls please.
