Man Held In Plane Hijacking

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man pretending to carry a bomb hijacked a United Airlines 727 carrying 119 persons from Portland to Los Angeles and forced the plane to return to Portland, where he surrendered early today, the FBI said.

All 112 passengers and seven crew members left the aircraft unharmed, the FBI said.

The man gave himself up at 4:25 a.m. CDT and was taken into custody by the FBI, who identified the suspect as James R. Allbee, 26, of Portland.

The airport bomb squad opened the package he said was an explosive device and confirmed it was not a bomb. Authorities did not reveal the contents of the package.

"The only demand that has been made is that the man wanted to come back to Portland," said FBI spokesman Bill Williams.

Williams said that the case would be turned over to the U.S. attorney's office and that Allbee would be arraigned later today before a U.S. magistrate.

He said the FBI would have no comment on a possible motive for the hijacking expect to say "you can be assured it was not a terrorist act or anything of that nature."

Negotiations were conducted over the aircraft's radio, Williams said.

Several hours earlier, an explosive device and an extortion note directed to United were found at the Portland International Airport, but authorities said it did not appear the two incidents were related.

Security Council Snubs U.S. Plea

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council today turned down a U.S. proposal to postpone its Palestine debate and decided to begin the discussion this afternoon.

The decision was taken in a five-minute closed-door meeting presided over by U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, who had tried in vain to head off the debate and a certain U.S. veto of an Arab resolution supporting "national independence and sovereignty" of the Palestinians.

The Arabs planned to introduce the resolution, which also reaffirms the Palestinians' rights to return to their homes, in the meeting called for this afternoon.

The United States is committed to veto the resolution in its present form, which automatically prevents its adoption.

Young Wednesday proposed a further postponement of the debate — already pushed back from July 30 — to gain time for more negotiations, but it was rejected by Arab representatives.

"Impossible," said Kuwait's Ambassador Abdalla Yaccoub Bishara when asked whether he would accept a postponement. "There will be a vote and a U.S. veto Friday."

Another Arab delegate said, "There will be no further delay."

Arab delegates said if the resolution was killed in the Security Council, they would call for an emergency debate on the Palestinian rights issue in the U.N. General Assembly, where the U.S. has no veto power.

Ironically, it is Young — who resigned over an unauthorized meeting he had with a PLO representative during which he tried to obtain a postponement of the debate — who must cast the veto as permanent representative of the U.S.

And there was little doubt if Young failed to obtain a postponement of the debate, the U.S. veto would be used to prevent adoption of the resolution.

"We will take such action as we deem to be appropriate," Middle East special envoy Robert Strauss said Wednesday, including if necessary "a veto."

"We don't want to face that," he said. "We want to encourage that it (the debate) be postponed."

Young's meeting with the PLO's observer at the United Nations, Zehdi Labib Terzi, and what the Israeli government believes to be a re-evaluation by Washington of U.S. policy toward the Palestinian question has caused strained relations between Israel and the United States.

Israel said the phrasing of the Arab-backed resolution amounted to granting statehood to the Arab Palestinians that would present a threat to the Jewish state and jeopardize the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

But some Arabs said they believed the resolution was not strong enough and want the word "statehood" for the Palestinians included.

It doesn't satisfy me," Bishara said Wednesday. "It's too weak for my taste." And Terzi said though the PLO supported the resolution, the "wording doesn't satisfy us."

In a show of support for Young, Iran today invited the ambassador to visit that country.

Police Nab Slaying Suspect After Call

By JACK DOUGLAS

A police appeal to the public for help in solving the murder of a Texas Tech University graduate student brought quick and unexpected results Wednesday night.

Minutes after 6 p.m. news broadcasts showing pictures of a Coronado High School letter jacket found at the scene of a brutal killing, a 19-year-old man called police and later told detectives the jacket was his. He was subsequently charged with the murder of Claude Ventry Bridges.

Maurice Eugene Dancy, who lives just a block from the 2824 23rd St. residence where Bridges' nude and sexually abused body was found, was arraigned about 11 p.m. before Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack, after telling police his football jacket had been stolen.

Dancy, of 2826 24th St., remained in the county jail today in lieu of a $100,000 bond set by Blalack.

Police said they believe Bridges, 31, was killed early Tuesday when he surprised a burglar at his house. "He just woke up and caught a burglar, that's what I think," Det. Capt. Wayne Love said.

Det. Sgt. Charley Parks said Dancy called about 6:30 p.m. asking to talk to a detective. The former Coronado High School football player was picked up at his house, and en route back to the police station reportedly told officers his jacket had been stolen. The jacket was found outside an open window of the victim's house when the bludgeoned body was discovered.

Dancy was questioned by homicide detectives about an hour before being arrested. However, it was learned authorities had a good idea who the murder suspect was even before the news broadcasts. "We were about 95 per cent sure," one officer said.

A report states a police mug shot of Dancy made in connection with a past offense showed the suspect wearing the identical jacket found at Bridges' house.

The report also indicates Dancy was wearing what appeared to be blood-stained tennis shoes when he walked into the police station Wednesday.

Police said a search warrant served at the suspect's house shortly after 10 p.m. turned up several items, including two silver dollars and a Mercury nickel, which the dead man's wife, Mary Louise, said were missing from the couple's house.

Authorities also confiscated property which was thought to have been taken in several other burglaries.

Dancy, a convicted burglar presently on five years probation, called police aft-

HSCH Needs Patient Mix

By KIM COBB

Like the old line about leading a horse to water, pointing a doctor toward Health Sciences Center Hospital doesn't mean he's going to admit patients there.

The hospital has consistently had trouble admitting enough paying patients to balance the books. What they have had the most success in admitting are those people who can't pay their bills — medical indigents.

Hospital officials have bemoaned the fragile relationship between community physicians and the teaching hospital as a major cause for the lack of paying patients. Get the community physicians to admit paying patients, they say, and the financial situation at Health Sciences would brighten considerably.

Visiting experts in hospital administration met with the Executive Committee of the Lubbock-Crosby-Garza Counties Medical Society early this week to talk about the problem.

Dr. Truman Blocker, president emeritus of the UT medical branch at Galveston; and Jack Thompson, administrator of the teaching hospital there, delivered a report based on a survey of hospital operations taken during their first visit July 12.

Blocker — a highly repected figure in the medical community — urged the physicians present to be as cooperative as possible, and medical society president Dr. Lloyd Garland termed Blocker's suggestions "an excellent appraisal" of the situation.

In his presentation, Blocker emphasized that both the general public and area physicians needed to be aware of the hospital's role from a service standpoint. The various chairmen of the medical school clinical department are looking for an "appropriate" mixture of patients, both from a medical as well as economic viewpoint.

To provide upgraded clinical teaching (as well as to open the avenue for more paying patients), Blocker recommended that the hospital appoint outstanding physicians to a part-time pay status on

School Year Opens With Meet Here

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

At a gathering of most of Lubbock public schools' 3,000 faculty members today, a North Carolina educator reaffirmed the value of the nation's public school system.

Gene Causby, assistant superintendent for public relations and public affairs for the State Department of Instruction in Raleigh, N.C., was the principal speaker at the general faculty session that kicked off preparations for the coming school year.

The meeting at the Civic Center also marked the first day of the 1979-80 school year that teachers will be on duty in their respective buildings.

Borrowing from author Charles Dickens' description of the eighteenth century, Causby called the present situation "the best of times and the worst of times" for public education, but emphasized the positive view.

He noted that many teachers are rightfully concerned about inadequate salaries and classes that are too large, "but I'm sure there are those who would testify that it's considerably better than it was. Most of us never had it so good."

He said that in public education, "no other group of people who preceded us have quite as much expected of us as we do now."

Causby said that educational opportunity and individualized instruction have always been talked about, but teachers now must implement those goals. He termed such goals "extremely worthy, but extremely difficult" to achieve.

He called the present time the "age of wisdom" and credited public school teachers with their part in achieving the scientific advances of today's technology.

Causby said "it is in vogue to be critical of the schools," and suggested that school personnel take the initiative to stop the criticism that is exchanged between administrators, teachers and the community.

Causby concluded, "It is your constant, eternal never-ending task to find a better way. Your biggest job this year is to do more for your youngsters. A professional is one who constantly seeks to do better. It's a marvelous opportunity and a fearsome responsibility."

Storms Rumble In West Texas

A-J News Services

A cold front pushed out of the Texas Panhandle and into the South Plains late this morning, bringing cloudy skies and thunderstorms across West Texas. The National Weather Service at Lubbock International Airport warned that some of the storms could become severe.

Chance of precipitation in the Lubbock area is 40 percent this afternoon, 30 percent tonight and 20 percent Friday, according to the NWS.

Cooler air spilling into the northwestern section of the state behind the front sent the mercury plunging into the 60s in the Panhandle and the 70s on the South Plains at midday. The mercury will get no higher than the mid-80s this afternoon and Friday, Lubbock forecasters said, dropping to the low 60s tonight.

Late this morning, NWS radar showed thunderstorm activity across much of the Panhandle and northern South Plains, in the Lubbock area and in the Permian Basin region. Heavy thunderstorms also pounded the Hill Country of Central Texas during the morning.

Despite threatening clouds over the northeastern and eastern sections of the South Plains Wednesday afternoon and night, precipitation amounts generally were light. Jayton had .48 of an inch of rain Wednesday night and traces were reported at Paducah, Spur and Tulia.

Heavier rain fell downstate, with 1.47 at Houston, 1.29 at Waco and .85 at Wichita Falls.

With 18.01 inches of rain so far this year at Lubbock International Airport and substantially more in some parts of the city, Lubbock has almost reached its average yearly rainfall, 18.41, with 4½ months remaining in 1979.

Normal precipitation here through August is 13.01, a weatherman said.

Very heavy thunderstorms rolled through the Texas Hill Country early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County.

Other thunderstorms moved into Southeast Texas before dawn and forecasters said thunderstorm activity lingered throughout the night in West Texas near the Pecos River.

The severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County came after forecasters sighted an area of very heavy thunderstorms from Fredericksburg to Kerrville to Junction.

The National Weather Service received several reports of strong, gusty winds as the thunderstorms moved through the Hill Country and warned that the storms were capable of producing small hail.

Forecasters warned that heavy rain in the Hill Country could cause some flash flooding of low lying or flood prone areas.

Heavy thunderstorms rumbled across much of North Texas and Central Texas late Wednesday, dumping heavy rainfall in some areas. Waco had the heaviest rainfall at a reporting station with 1.29 inches.

City Seeks New Study On Signal

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council decided this morning to ask the state highway department to re-study conditions at the intersection of 23rd Street and Avenue A to determine whether a signal should be placed there.

However, the council also voted to request that highway department standards be waived if they are not met so a light can be installed at the intersection.

Harold Chatman, a member of the Citizens Traffic Commission, told the council it should look at "humanistic" factors and not just figures on traffic volumes in deciding whether to install the signal.

Chatman said the request for the signal was supported by Lubbock school officials, members of the Iles Elementary School PTA and 400 persons who signed a petition requesting the light.

To make a left turn from 23rd Street onto Avenue A "you are virtually taking your life in your own hands," Chatman said.

As a result he said many people take longer routes to avoid the intersection.

Chatman noted the traffic signal at Zenith and Parkway Drive "didn't meet the highway department warrants"

Seniors Suspended For Clothes Swap

WOODSTOCK, South Africa (UPI) — The graduating class of Queen's Park high school was suspended for turning up at morning assembly in drag.

The students at the coeducational school decided to swap clothes Wednesday as a joke to celebrate the last 40 days of the term.

Gilmore ordered the pupils to go home, get dressed properly and return to school with their parents.

Most of the parents thought Gilmore's reaction was a bit harsh. "It was just a joke," said one parent.

Skelton Gives Advice

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton advises aspiring comics to keep their acts clean and says they should give the profession the "same dedication as a monk."

SKELTON

If a clean act doesn't go over, he advised, "add a little class and make it look like you're leading the parade if you're run out of town."

Mae West Goes Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — Mae West is making her debut next week as a huckster in a radio commercial, or, as she puts it, "breaking my vow of commercial chastity."

MAE WEST

The wise-cracking stage and screen actress has signed for several 30-second commercials for Poland Spring Water, premiering in California, it was announced Wednesday.

Miss West claims to be 86 years old — on the rare occasions when she will discuss her age. In her first commercial scheduled for showing Tuesday, she kids herself on the subject of age by saying:

"I've been drinking Poland Spring Water for about — hmm — 20 years. Started when I was four.

"I'm just crazy about it," she says of the product. "... I invited the boys from Poland Spring to come up and see me some time — and they did. The rest, as they say, is history."

Bernstein Taking Year Off

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Conductor Leonard Bernstein says he's putting up his baton — at least for a year — to concentrate on composing.

"I've promised myself, no I've even sworn, that I won't lift my baton for the entire year 1980," Bernstein, the former music director of the New York Philharmonic, told reporters Tuesday evening during a break in the Salzburg Festival, where he is conducting both the Israel Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic orchestras.

He said he needs a whole year free from conducting to think clearly about composing his own music.

"What will come out I don't know. But I don't think it will be a symphony. An opera, maybe. A cello sonata. Or perhaps a flute piece. There are so many things I've never written. It might even be something very modest."

Drink Of Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Now you can enjoy the "crystal purity and refreshing coolness" of New York City tap water at $2.50 a bottle. So say the promoters of the new 28-ounce bottles of "Celebrated New York Water — Drink of Millions."

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

John Phufas, one of the originators of the idea, said he thought of bottling the tap water after learning that a friend took New York water to Florida to mix drinks.

"Up to now, drinking New York water has required that you be in New York," he said. "Now you'll be able to enjoy it anywhere."

If you're a New Yorker, you can still get the water free by turning on your tap. However, if you live outside the Big Apple but are tired of other bottled brands, you'll be able to get Celebrated New York Water at almost twice the cost of other brands.

Federal Officials Defend U.S. Oil Sale To Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials say the government approved emergency exports of heating oil and kerosene to Iran at least in part to maintain the good will of a nation that ships far greater amounts of oil to the United States.

Questioned at a town meeting in Burlington, Iowa, President Carter said Wednesday the amount of fuel involved is "just a very tiny amount" compared to U.S. imports from Iran.

According to government sources and independent estimates, Iran will be getting about 1 million barrels of kerosene and 1 million barrels of heating oil.

With the United States importing about 750,000 barrels of oil daily from Iran, the 2 million barrels headed back to the Persian Gulf country roughly equals the amount of crude oil Iran ships to the United States in three days.

The Energy Department said it recommended approval of the deal "because it was in the national interest of the United States to reciprocate to Iran to meet their relatively small emergency need caused by a temporary refinery problem — especially in light of the large quantities of petroleum which that country exports to the United States."

State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said approval of the export was based on both humanitarian reasons and on U.S. interests in assuring continued access to Iranian oil.

Amerada-Hess, the company handling the deal, would not discuss details of the transaction. But an official said, "We are confident the shipments won't affect our supply of heating oil or kerosene in the United States this winter."

Government sources who asked not to be named said Amerada-Hess promised the Commerce Department in writing it would replace the products sold to Iran by purchases on the world market if that becomes necessary to avoid shortages in the United States.

Energy Department spokesman Phil Keif said the sale is less than one-tenth of 1 percent of annual heating oil consumption in the United States and would not hamper the government goal of stockpiling 240 million barrels of home heating oil.

He said 175.3 million barrels of heating oil was on hand as of Aug. 10 and that the stockpile "will exceed the 240 million barrel target by 2 million barrels at the end of October."

Nonetheless, word of the sale to Iran brought quick criticism from Republican presidential candidates Robert Dole and George Bush and from United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser.

And it prompted U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce's energy subcommittee to call on congressional staffers to look into the situation — although Dingell said he personally had no problems with the transaction.

"It's a one-shot sale," said Dingell. "I'm not prepared to say that we shouldn't give them a supply (of kerosene and diesel fuel) if it helps assure us of a long-term supply of crude oil."

Energy Department spokesman James Bishop noted that "a similar transaction in January by the same people" attracted little attention at the time, although it was made public.

Energy Department officials were warning at that time that civil strife in Iran would have a disruptive effect on energy supplies in the United States. However, the shortages — with the resultant long gasoline lines — had not actually hit at that time.

Typhoon Judy Halts War Games

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Judy gained strength today and dumped 7 inches of rain on parts on Okinawa, forcing the postponement of a massive U.S. Military exercise and a virtual halt to air, ground and sea transportation.

Up to 7 inches of rain were recorded in Naha, Okinawa's capital, before dawn today and intermittent downpours doused wide areas of the Pacific coast of Japanese main islands. Airline, bus and ferry services serving Okinawa were canceled.

Police said five persons were killed in Japan's Gifu and Nagano provinces Wednesday because of the storm.

A U.S. Marine Corps spokesman in Okinawa said a two-day amphibious landing exercise, code-named "Fortress Gale," originally scheduled to begin Friday, was postponed until Saturday because of the approaching typhoon.

An estimated 40,000 troops, 26 warships and 280 aircraft are taking part in the war games.

A Japanese Meteorological Agency spokesman said Judy, the 11th typhoon spawned over the Pacific this year, was about 180 miles southwest of Okinawa early today. 3

He said the typhoon with winds of more than 100 mph was moving northwest at 6 mph and was expected to head toward the East China Sea.

Coca-Cola, USSR Sign Contract

ATLANTA (AP) — The Coca-Cola Co. has signed a 10-year extension of a 1974 scientific and technical agreement with the Soviet Union in a joint effort to develop protein-rich foods and beverages in the Soviet Union, the company announced.

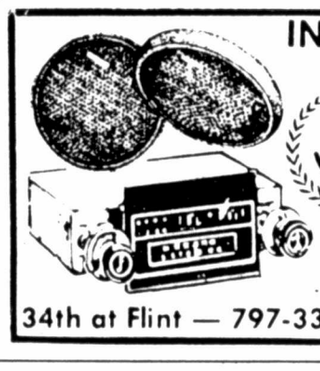

J. Paul Austin, chairman of the Atlanta-based soft drink company, announced the agreement this week.

The value of the agreement to Coco-Cola was not revealed.

Austin said that under the agreement the Soviets will decide whether to build additional whey protein plants based on results of a pilot plant. A decision is expected next month.

CORN CROP "MOSTLY GOOD"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's corn crop was rated as of mid-August as "mostly good and in some areas, excellent." Below-normal temperatures during the week of Aug. 13-19 slowed development of corn and other fall-harvested crops in much of the Midwest and New England areas, according to the Agriculture Department's weekly bulletin on crops and weather conditions.

Public Fear Of Cancer Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fear of cancer is looming larger in the public's perception now that medical science has reduced the rate of heart disease and lengthened life expectancy, the surgeon general says.

Dr. Julius B. Richmond said in an interview recently that although Americans are healthier today than ever before, most don't realize it.

He noted that fewer Americans are dying from the nation's leading killer, heart disease, and life expectancy is more than 73 years.

But those advances mean the public is becoming more fearful of cancer, the surgeon general said.

"Cancer relatively assumes a more prominent role. If people live longer, the likelihood of dying of cancers is going to become greater," said the 62-year-old pediatrician. "But that's counterbalanced by the fact that those who have cancer diagnosed under age 45 are living longer."

Richmond, who recently toured China with Joseph A. Califano Jr., the former secretary of health, education and welfare, said, "If we still had children — as we saw in China — dying of infectious diseases, we wouldn't be worrying so much about cancer in the elderly."

"When I was a pediatric resident (in the 1940s), I spent 25 to 50 percent of my time taking care of polio patients," he recalled. "Now, in the last 15 years that I taught medical students, I didn't have a case to show them."

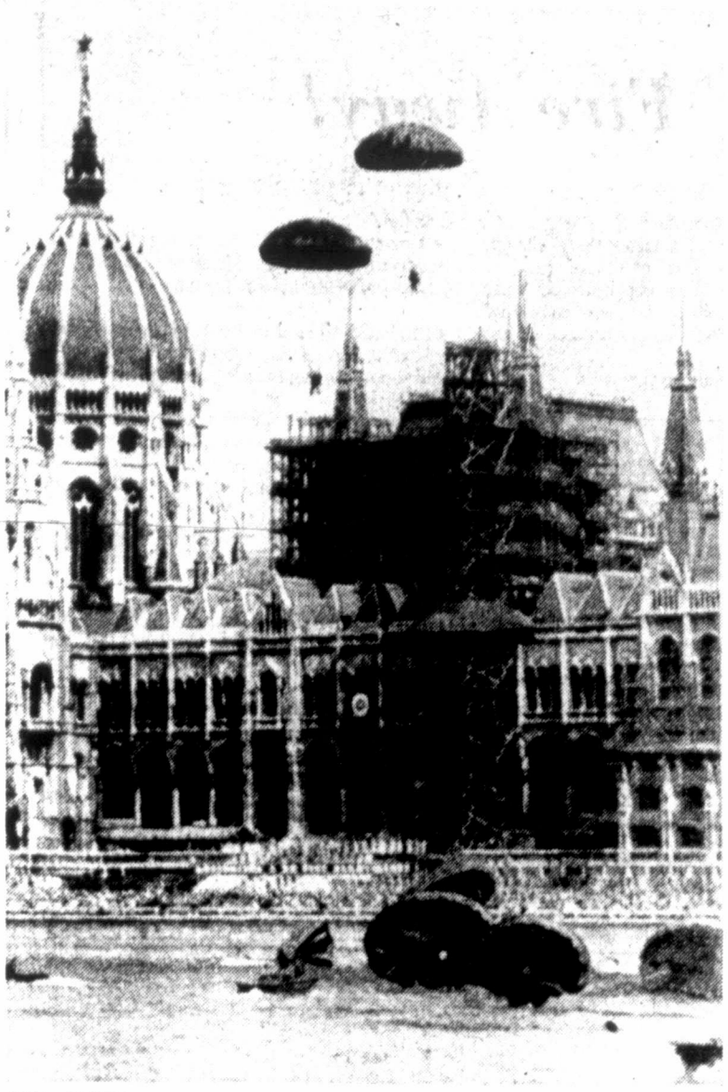

"So we have made that kind of progress. Now I think society can attend more to what you might say are the tougher problems of cancer causation," said Richmond.

The surgeon general published a report last month urging Americans to take better care of their own health. Unhealthy behavior or lifestyles may be to blame for as much as half of all deaths in the United States, his report said.

Richmond believes that the preventive health message is starting to sink in.

"If we hadn't seen a 22 percent drop in heart disease over the past decade, I don't think people would be jogging as much, or worrying about diet quite as much, or about hypertension detection or stopping smoking," he said.

One exception has been a rise in smoking among college-educated women, but he expects these women soon will join the trend away from cigarettes.

Workers Claim Goddess' Protection

TOKYO (AP) — Workers digging the longest undersea tunnel in the world believe a jealous goddess protects them while they work — as long as no women enter the worksite.

It's a man's world in the Seikan Tunnel, which, when completed in 1982, will link the cities of Aomori and Hakodate in northern Japan and cut traveling time from Tokyo to Sapporo from 17 hours now to a little less than six.

The tunnel will enable Japan's famed "bullet" trains to travel at speeds of 110 miles per hour on a track 750 feet below sea level.

The working men believe the tunnel is protected by a goddess called Sanjin, who becomes jealous when women are admitted inside.

On the two occasions when women visited the site, flooding occurred soon afterward. Fearful of incurring more divine wrath, the men had the tunnel closed to women sightseers after the last visit in 1971.

They also believe it is taboo to whistle in the tunnel, for fear of summoning evil spirits.

On the first day of each month the workers pray to an image of the goddess enshrined in front of the tunnel, asking for her blessing while they work.

"Personally, I don't believe in the goddess," said a spokesman for the Japan Railway Construction Public Corp., which is handling the project. "But, if it makes the men happier, it's okay."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Record Gets Bad Review

A HOUSE Democratic review of the record of the 96th Congress concludes that while the national focus on energy has produced near-unanimous agreement that we must break loose from the oil-producing nations' stranglehold on us, "there has been substantially less agreement on the best way to go about accomplishing this goal."

Congress, of course, can't produce the nation's energy supply itself. And it is not solely responsible for America's wasteful use of energy.

Seven months, however, seems excessively ample time for the lawmakers to realize they cannot free Americans from international oil cartel bondage until they overcome their regional and partisan differences.

INSTEAD, congressional Democrats find little leadership within their own ranks or from President Carter. Republicans, meanwhile, stand almost solidly opposed to any Democratic plan.

The performance amply justifies the findings of the latest Gallup poll which shows that 19 percent of the public approves of the way Congress is handling its job and 61 percent disapproves.

The approval rating has dipped 21 percentage points in two years and makes Jimmy Carter's sagging popularity look good by comparison.

House Speaker Tip O'Neill of Massachusetts is aware of a difference. The younger and better-educated members of Congress are more difficult to lead, he says. "Persuasion is the only tool I have."

ALTHOUGH HIS close aides say O'Neill has become increasingly frustrated by his inability to get anything done, the speaker professes that Congress is responding to the public desire for less government.

Conversely, he sees no threat to continued Democratic control of Congress as long as "obstructionists and elitists represent the Republican Party and don't think of the poor and the working man."

O'Neill may be right. But more than likely Democrats will come back from recess with dusted off demands that the party get its house in order and produce a more positive record for lawmakers to wave before the voters on their next trip home.

Today's Question: Is $15,446-plus too little pay for fighting fires?

CITY MANAGER Larry Cunningham says "we need to take a look" at whether untreated wood shake shingles here pose an unusual fire threat.

Houston and Dallas are doing that in the wake of a major apartment house fire in Houston the other day which firemen said spread rapidly because of wood shingles.

Lubbock's high winds and rainless months that dry out shingles would appear to make the problem, if there is one, especially acute here.

Our building code prohibits untreated wood shingles in commercial zones, but not in residential and apartment house districts.

The Dallas Fire Department is seeking a total ban on untreated wood shingles there. Shingle sellers don't like the idea, of course. Firemen counter that a blaze in an upper-income North Dallas neighborhood earlier this year caused extensive damage to several homes because all had shake shingles.

It's a matter that should be pursued.

Sudden Thought: If just one major blaze is caused here this fall by dry weeds that should have been mowed this summer, it will more than wipe out all of the "savings" realized by not having a good weed abatement program.

IT COMES AS no surprise that Sen. Ted Kennedy, one of the leading exponents of taxpayer-financed political campaigns, is knifing the concept in the back.

Because Kennedy has not "formally announced" that he is a candidate for President, a Kennedy for President Committee in Florida can spend anything it wants in promoting Kennedy for President.

It thus gets around the federal campaign finance laws, whereas announced candidates are limited in what they can do.

"THE HEART OF the problem," Kennedy was quoted in a Common Cause blurb last October, "is that the Senate and the House are awash in a sea of special interest lobbying and special interest campaign contributions."

Kennedy was hailed by Common Cause in 1977 as a "leader of the bipartisan effort" to pass a campaign finance reform bill.

The fact of the matter is that, under the American constitution, there's no way you can muzzle anybody who wants to promote, by word of mouth or by paid advertising, an idea or a person.

The Kennedy worshipers in Florida are merely exercising their constitutional rights. Kennedy and Common Cause should quit trying to deny them those rights.

What's In A Name? Everything

WASHINGTON—I think maybe we'll have to change the name of Camp David to Camp Jonah. I would resist those who want the name change to be Camp Nemesis. Jonah implies merely hard luck, while Nemesis smells of ill-fate and defeat.

The Maryland mountain retreat of all Presidents since Franklin Roosevelt has been a rendezvous with reversals since Dwight Eisenhower.

We first heard about the "spirit of Camp David" when Ike went up there with Communist Party Chairman Khrushchev and fabricated what could be called Detente I. Tensions between the two superpowers were going to relax then and there.

But that was when Jonah, alias Gary Powers of the U-2 fiasco, crossed Ike's path like a black cat. Damned bad luck that the U-2 spy plane got plugged by Russian high-altitude flack, and that the pilot bailed out in infamy.

THE FIRST "SPIRIT of Camp David," alias Detente I, walked like a ghost into Russo-American relationships. Ike's invitation to pay Krushchev a return visit was revoked, and Big K pounded the UN table with his shoe.

Camp Jonah, nee David, was where novelist Fletcher Knebel arranged for a President, who strongly resembled Lyndon Johnson, to withdraw from reality; in other words to go crazy, on account of the Vietnam War and the war-resisters at home.

Camp Nemesis came close to being a suitable switch from David and Jonah when Richard Nixon took it over as a hideout. He unwittingly made it a way-stop for John Dean and others along their path to the federal courts and prisons.

NEMESIS, THE FEMME fatale of mythology, belongs to the sorrowful Nixon tale, which we'd so much like to forget.

But we experienced a revived "spirit of Camp David" when President Carter took Israel's Begin and Egypt's Sadat up there for a kissing bee. Suddenly, it seemed, the Old Testament was repealed.

Moses had made up with Pharaoh. They were going to live side by side in a lasting peace. The Jewish State, a mighty mite in desert warfare, was going to cough up a lot of conquered sand dunes which Egypt would gratefully receive.

Somewhere in the deal another displaced, landless, luckless people, the Palestinians, would be settled on a reservation, though Israel was stalling on that one.

Camp David all too soon became Camp Jonah again. The oil-rich Arab states discovered they could use that crude mineral as a weapon. The oil producers, OPEC, started raising their prices and soon had the U.S. and its western associates by the windpipe, cutting off our industrial breath of life.

President Carter could call the shots in dealing with Israel, and now he's doing so. The USA is the arms-supplier and the reason why Israeli forces could whip several times their weight in assorted Moslems.

But as OPEC tightened the squeeze, America became what Brutus said of Cassius, "a warm friend, cooling." Our diplomacy became less pro-Israel, more pro-Egypt, and this giveaway veered from Jerusalem to Cairo.

Today we've got the Carter White House complaining that the Israelis are misusing American-supplied weapons to kill Palestinians in raids on nearby Arab towns and bases.

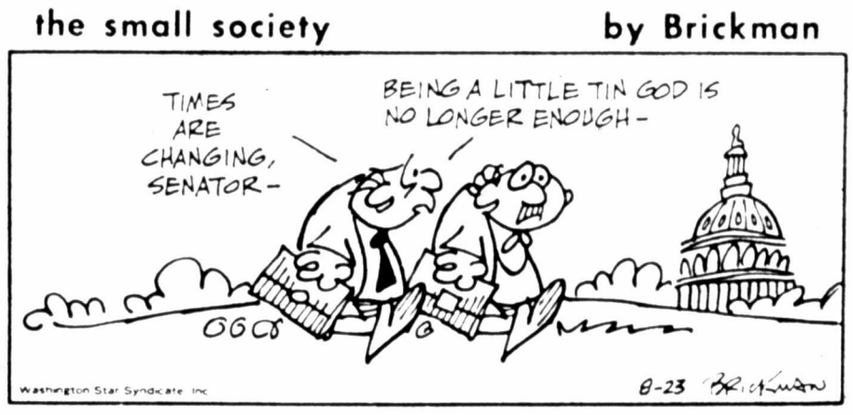

Camp David, named for Ike's grandson and not from the Old Testament, is where the kissing started in several administrations, but Camp Jonah-Nemesis is where it had to stop.

Sylvia Porter:

Too Many FTC Strings Tie Consumer In Knot

WASHINGTON—Beyond dispute, the most unpopular federal agency in Washington these days is the same agency that has recently done the most to help you, a consumer, save money and get a fair deal in the marketplace.

That agency is the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). And it's under attack from all sides—from Congress, the White House, a host of special interest groups representing virtually every major sector of the economy from food to funerals.

Why is the FTC so widely hated?

Largely because it is aggressively pursuing what it was created to do—to promote competition and prohibit unfair, misleading or deceptive trade practices.

IN THEORY, nearly everyone endorses those goals but in reality, they oppose the measures to achieve them.

Over the past year or so, the FTC has been deeply serious in exercising its consumer protection responsibilities. It has, for instance, helped to:

Improve automobile warranty protection; raise the quality of vocational schools; lower the prices of eyeglasses and blue jeans; correct practices so that millions of dollars have been refunded to innocents bilked through unscrupulous land sales; make sure that leading grocery stores were actually making available for purchase low-cost advertised specials.

IT WILL MOVE to require accurate labeling of appliances, home insulation products and how-to-care labeling of household furnishings. It also is asking tough questions of dentists, physicians, lawyers, home builders, accountants, advertisers, broadcasters, newspapers, grocers and bankers.

This rundown alone of the FTC's targets, past and future, is by no means complete—but surely it's sufficient to explain to you why the agency isn't lacking for critics.

"It's not surprising that the FTC is on the defensive," a congressional aide told my associate, Brooke Shearer. "Many people benefit from what it does, but what they gain pales in comparison to what smaller but highly organized groups stand to lose."

TO ADJUST THIS chronic imbalance between the ordinary citizen's access to government and that of richer, more powerful organizations, Congress four years ago passed the Magnuson-Moss Act to ensure that the FTC would hear all sides of an issue from all affected parties before it reached a decision.

The law requires the FTC to hold open hearings: to allow for cross examination and to fund the participation of small business and public interest groups in the rulemaking process.

It also directs the FTC to deal with widespread unfair or deceptive practices on an industrywide rather than a company-by-company basis. This elaborate administrative scheme, which has worked well thus far, is now in great danger of being gutted.

A broad coalition of special interest groups wants Congress to grant itself the authority to override any FTC rule. The House already has tied this so-called "legislative veto" to the agency's future funding bill. The Senate is being lobbied hard to follow suit.

Supporters of the legislative veto hail it as "a big stick that Congress would have over regulators to make them justify their work product." But it's in reality a tool for lobbies to use (out of your sight and mine) to hamstring the FTC.

RIGHT NOW, CONGRESS has plenty of methods for reviewing or restricting overzealous agencies. Other less damaging controls have been suggested—including the President's regulatory reform bill which would require agencies to submit detailed impact studies before issuing any major rule.

On the surface, these bureaucracy-taming proposals seem appealing to a broad cross-section of public opinion, but in fact, they would politicize and paralyze administrative agencies.

They would force rulemaking underground—into the back halls of Congress or the courts. Either way, you, the consumer, would be cut out.

What sunshine exists now to throw light on regulatory decisions would once again fade into lobby-created clouds.

John D. Lofton:

OPEC Not Villain In Oil Drama

(First in a series of two)

WASHINGTON—Henry Adams came to this city from Europe in the early 1860s to take a job as a private congressional secretary, plunging into what he called the "lurid atmosphere of politics."

In the autobiographical account of his education, Adams writes: "As far as a young man of anxious temperament could see, no one in Washington was fitted for his duties...The few people who thought they knew something were more in error than those who knew nothing."

Well, the political environment here is still ghastly. And as one watches the pathetic attempts of the Carter administration to grapple with our energy problems, it is obvious that there are also still those here who are unfit for their duties.

IN A PRIVATE memo that is reminiscent of the view of some Nixon aides that Watergate was mainly a public relations problem, President Carter's chief domestic adviser, Stuart Eizenstat, urged his boss to put the twin monkeys of inflation and energy on the back of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Pointing out that this is imperative to combat "the political damage we are suffering from all this (and) to regain our political losses," Eizenstat tells Carter: "With strong steps, we can mobilize the nation around a real crisis and a clear enemy—OPEC."

But OPEC is not the enemy. To be sure, the petroleum cartel has taken full advantage of the decline in U.S. energy production. However, we have not been denied oil.

In terms of the energy crisis facing the U.S., the "clear enemy" has been and continues to be inept and ridiculous government policies. None of these policies is more absurd than the continued withdrawal of large sections of the federally managed public lands of the U.S.—something OPEC has had absolutely nothing to do with.

Of the 2.25 billion acres of land that make up our 50 states, about 760 million acres are owned outright by Uncle Sam. The federal government also manages the mineral rights of another 63 million acres. Thus, the federal government controls more than one-third of the land area of the U.S.

DEAN WILLIAM DRESHER of the University of Arizona College of Mines estimates that publicly controlled lands contain up to 50 percent of our known domestic energy resources, including:

— 40 percent of all coal and 70 percent of all low-sulfur coal;

— 75 percent of our oil shale;

— 85 percent of U.S. tar sands;

A complex geologic structure known as the "Overthrust Belt," located in Colorado, Utah, Montana and Wyoming, is showing evidence of being a major petroleum resource.

However, the federal government owns 36 percent of Colorado, 66 percent of Utah, 30 percent of Montana and 48 percent of Wyoming. The Feds now own 96 percent of Alaska, where the largest petroleum field in the U.S. was discovered in 1968.

BY THE END of 1974, the national government had formally withdrawn 312.5 million acres from minerals exploration and production, and an additional 183 million acres were governed by such severe restrictions as to constitute de facto withdrawal.

In December of last year, Carter designated 56 million acres of Alaskan lands as national monuments, and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus set aside another 40 million acres as wildlife refuges. Both of these actions closed these lands to mineral exploration and production.

OPEC was uninvolved in these decisions, but OPEC will surely benefit from them, since they will increase our reliance on imported oil.

Stu Eizenstat's strategy is plain old-fashioned snake oil. It is a scheme designed, not to solve our energy problems, but to save Jimmy Carter's political hindquarters.

THE EIZENSTAT plan is a shell game which, it is hoped, will focus public attention away from the President's bungling and on the allegedly heinous crimes committed by the OPEC villain.

The Eizenstat approach is purely cosmetic. Sending administration spokesmen across the country to denounce OPEC, as he suggests in his memo, will not produce one additonal drop of oil.

What will produce more oil is the abolition and repeal of the miles of federal red tape which is strangling our domestic energy industry. This is what Eizenstat should be advising the President to do. Good government is good politics.

If Carter can increase U.S. energy production, his standing in the polls will take care of itself.

Oil Firms Continue Drilling In Baltimore Canyon

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The biggest gamble around this new casino resort is not taking place at the gaming tables and slot machines.

America's thirst for more and more energy has the oil industry betting $1.5 billion there is oil and gas under the Atlantic Ocean from 60 miles to 110 miles from the Boardwalk.

And although the payoff has been only mildly encouraging in the three years since the first bids on oil leases in the Baltimore Canyon Trough, some oil companies still are drilling and others still are watching.

Since the first exploratory well was sunk in March 1978, wildcatters have come up with 14 dry holes, two gas strikes and one oil strike. Three other wells are still being drilled.

Six companies have given up on Baltimore Canyon oil, at least temporarily. Only Texaco, Exxon and Tenneco are still drilling.

Industry and government experts say they still don't know if there is enough crude oil and gas out there to make it worthwhile to pipe ashore to the energy-hungry Northeast. One industry executive estimated the cost of building just one underwater pipeline at $500 million.

But the experts say no one, including the six frustrated oil companies, has completely given up on the Baltimore Canyon area.

"There's a lot of exploration that still has to be done out there," said one industry official who asked not to be identified. "When you have 14 dry holes, there's a natural dampening of enthusiasm. But no one is going to spend this kind of money without taking a good look-see."

The government now estimates that there may be 1.02 billion barrels of oil and 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the Baltimore Canyon Trough geological formation off New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

That estimate, which if accurate would supply America's total oil needs for only about 50 days and its gas needs for about 10 months, will be revised downward soon, U.S. Geological Survey officials say.

Dwayne E. Hull, the geological survey official in charge of the offshore drilling, believes many oil companies are waiting to see if Texaco and Tenneco can find more gas and oil.

Despite the number of dry holes, Hull said, "I'm encouraged by what I see so far." He explained that the ratio of dry wells to strikes is not bad in his view.

"Some of these guys didn't do so well and others are announcing successes right next door to them," he said. "So, they are going to do some hard geology and study the structures to see where they might go back to."

The industry's new caution in the Baltimore Canyon area was clear in February when it bid only $41.7 million for 39 nine-square-mile tracts. In August 1976, the industry paid $1.13 billion to the government for the right to drill on 93 tracts.

Some industry experts say they must now explore greater depths, and in deeper water closer to the edge of the Continental Shelf, for oil and gas.

They note that a once-promising geological formation called the "Great Salt Dome," or "Baltimore Dome," just 60 miles to 81 miles east of Atlantic City has already produced five dry holes. Exxon is now giving the formation one more try.

The industry, which has dotted the Gulf of Mexico with drilling rigs and production platforms, says it is costlier to work in the Atlantic Ocean.

Mobil and Exxon said bad weather raised their costs 8 percent and 9 percent, respectively. One dry hole cost Gulf $15.3 million to drill to 18,554 feet, officials said.

Tenneco's leased semi-submersible rig Zapata Ugland hit paydirt in May an June, striking both natural gas and oil in the same 18,400-foot well about 105 miles east of Atlantic City. The gas was found at 13,180 feet below the seabed and the oil, which is very low in polluting sulfur, was found in a narrow 3-foot layer at 8,318 feet.

The Tenneco strike was only 2.1 miles south of where Texaco discovered what it called a "significant" amount of gas below 13,000 feet last August.

The only other encouragement came in January when a test well being drilled solely to gather geological information struck gas at 15,744 feet about 81 miles southeast of Atlantic City.

The well, being drilled by Standard Oil of California (Chevron) for study by 11 companies, was sunk in 2,686 feet of water, the deepest attempted off American shores. The well was abandoned and will not be reopened under government rules for such test wells.

Meanwhile, the industry is gearing up for exploratory drilling off other East Coast states. Tenneco is drilling its first well off Georgia and others are expected to follow.

In addition, the government plans to offer 128 tracts between 63 and 157 miles off Cape Cod, Mass., in the Georges Banks area in October.

Acronyms Basis Of Business

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alphabet soup indigestion is a language phenomenon that has been aggravated by the computer. It also has proved a good thing for Gale Research Co. of Detroit.

Gale publishes a reference work called the Acronyms, Initialisms and Abbreviations Dictionary, which enables a librarian to find out in a minute what any combination of letters stands for.

Ellen T. Crowley, who edits the book, said the alphabetic abbreviations, which really started with President Roosevelt's New Deal agencies in 1933, have proliferated at breakneck pace in the computer age.

"The acronyms and abbreviations save so much space in print media and letters and so much broadcast time," he said. But finding what an unfamiliar one means can be difficult.

Fredrick G. Ruffner founded Gale with a rented desk and a telephone to solve a similar difficulty — locating trade associations.

After service as a lieutenant in the Army in Okinawa, Ruffner worked for an advertising agency. He found reference information one of the biggest problems. Trade associations were the best source for up-to-date information but locating the right trade group could be difficult.

So he decided to publish a comprehensive directory of trade associations and sell it to corporate, government, institutional and public libraries.

Out of that has grown a business with 300 employees, 100 of them editorial workers, and annual sales of $12 million.

There already were two well established publishers of index type reference works for libraries in the United States when Ruffner started Gale. Both, Wilson and Bowker, are in New York and both are over 100 years old.

"They're both still bigger than we are, but I think we're gaining on them," Ruffner said.

Gale now publishes 1,500 titles. "It's a good business because libraries no longer can afford big clerical staffs and they are glad to pay $20 to $200 a volume for any up-to-date indexed reference work that will enable them to answer questions quickly," Ruffner said.

"It's also good because business and goverment libraries have increased so enormously, we're not dependent on the educational and public library market."

Nicaragua's New Regime Surprisingly Moderate

By JOHN VIRTUE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua's leftist revolutionary government has surprised many people by its moderation in its first month in office since dictator President Anastasio Somoza fled the country.

First of all, there have been no summary trials and executions like those in Fidel Castro's Cuba 20 years ago or as in Iran today.

The ruling five-member junta has been releasing imprisoned National Guardsmen who in another time might have gone before a firing squad. Some guardsmen even sought out and surrendered to members of the Sandinista National Liberation Front whom they felt would treat them better than the average citizen.

Those released so far included a 75-year-old former guardsman who gave the "coup de grace" in 1934 to Gen. Augusto Sandino, the guerrilla leader presumably assassinated on orders of Somoza's father and after whom the Sandinista movement is named.

Secondly, the junta "Government of National Reconstruction" has respected private property. The exceptions have been the holdings — including 75 companies — belonging to ex-president Somoza and other property belonging to his family, top aides and National Guard leaders. 3

However, many wealthy Nicaraguans — fearing the worst is yet to come — have left the country and some worried middle-class Nicaraguans now are seeking exit visas.

There are two big questions about the revolutionary government that worry many Nicaraguans and their neighbors: will the government remain non-Communist and will it refrain from exporting revolution to its vulnerable Central American neighbors?

There is a general feeling that the make-up of the junta, put together in the final weeks of the offensive against Somoza, will be changed. If a strongman emerges, the betting is on a man who isn't even a member of the junta — Tomas Borge, 48, a co-founder in 1961 of the Sandinista front.

Commentary

Although just over 5 feet tall, Borge is a charismatic figure who is known as "El Jefe" to the thousands of teenagers and young adults who fought under the Sandinista banner to end the 43-year-rule of the Somoza family.

Borge was freed from prison last September as part of a hostage exchange after the Sandinistas seized the National Palace and all of its occupants. Now interior (justice) minister, Borge has as his assistant the man who engineered the palace seizure, Eden Pastora, better known as Commandante Zero.

Borge, who visited Castro in Havana last week, says Nicaragua's revolution will be Nicaraguan in nature and not patterned after Communist Cuba's.

The Sandinista leadership also has said it will not export its brand of revolution to its northern neighbors in El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala, all of which have right wing military presidents.

However, many of the young Sandinistas — including foreigners who joined the fight — probably will become bored after a few months of inactivity and will be anxious to take up arms again. Some will probably head north on their own, even if intervention is not government policy.

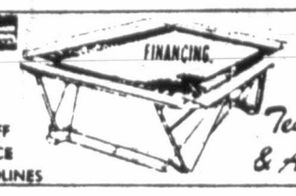

Also, there have been rumors that El Salvador's guerrillas — who specialize in kidnappings — contributed large sums to the Sandinista coffers. If that is so, then there's an IOU awaiting repayment.

Outwardly, Managua looks like Havana did during the first part of the Cuban revolution.

Sandinistas in battle fatigues are carrying an assortment of machine guns, rifles and sidearms check identification at government buildings and the leading hotel where some of the junta members live.

The "companero" greeting of Cuba is exchanged in Nicaragua and revolutionary slogans adorn government correspondence and communiques.

China, USSR Disagree On Agenda

PEKING (UPI) — China and the Soviet Union open talks in Moscow in mid-September in an effort to ease 20 years of bad relations, but diplomatic sources in Peking say that so far they haven't even been able to agree on an agenda.

The Soviet Union insists the talks be confined to bilateral issues between the two countries, including territorial disputes among their 4,700-mile border that have led to bloody skirmishes several times in the last two decades.

The Peking sources said China wants to make an issue of the whole Soviet foreign policy, including Soviet advances into Asia and Africa and the new Soviet alliance with Vietnam.

Moscow seems certain to reject this, diplomats believe, and say there is little prospect the talks will accomplish much.

China last May notified the Soviet ambassador in Peking, Ilya Shcherbakov, that it was ready to discuss bettering of relations between the two communist giants.

The Chinese move came shortly after China announned it would not renew its 30-year military alliance with the Soviet Union, which expires next April.

The negotiations first were expected to open in Moscow in late July, but now have been set for sometime during the second 10-day period in September, the sources said. They may later be moved to Peking.

After 10 years of economic and military cooperation, the two countries fell out in the late 1950s when the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev quarreled over the direction of communist policy.

The latest outburst of violence along the border came to light July 24, when the Chinese foreign ministry charged that Soviet soldiers ambushed two Chinese near the western Chinese frontier in the Xinjiang (Sinkiang) autonomous region, killing one of them.

Chinese Party Wants Halt To Opposition

PEKING (UPI) — Opposition to the new modernization plans and increased democracy of the post-Mao Tse-tung regime still exists in provinces around the vast nation and must be eradicated, the Chinese Communist Party said today.

The party's official newspaper in two front-page articles told of meetings held in Hupei and Yunnan provinces in an efort to change the veiws of leading party officials.

Some leaders have been accused of refusing to accept and implement the party line set last December, which has brought widespread changes to China including an "open door" policy to modernize the backward economy with foreign help.

"This is a question of extreme importance. It has bearing on whether the modernizations can be realizaed in China," the newspaper said, quoting commentators in Yuman Province.

The People's Daily newspaper did not call for purging of the recalcitant officials, but said it was "compulsory" they "make up this missed lesson."

"The majority of party officials have a correct understanding and correctly approach the policies and formulas of the party's third plenum in December and to conscientiously implement them with correct understanding andclear attitudes," the newspaper said, quoting from the Wuhan newspaper in Hupei Province.

Police Seek Inmates In Maryland Escape

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Twelve escaped inmates of the Maryland House of Corrections were captured early today as authorities hunted for 21 others who broke out of the prison in the second-largest jailbreak in Maryland history, state police said.

Sgt. Hugh K. McCormick said the men escaped by cutting through a bar and a security screen. He said they scaled a 15-foot wall and three security fences in fleeing the prison.

Trooper Ron Price said inmates were spotted as far away as Prince Georges County, a suburb of Washington, D.C., about 20 miles southwest of Jessup.

Other convicts — all dressed in civilian clothes — were sighted in Howard, Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties and in the city of Baltimore, about 10 miles from the prison, he said.

Bill Clark, a state police spokesman, said state and local police flooded the Baltimore-Washington area looking for the men — all considered dangerous.

"We don't know who these men are, nor what they are charged with, so we're urging motorists not to pick up hitchhikers," he said.

Price said the inmates were easy to spot. "They're walking along the side of the roads and when they see a police car, they take off running into the woods," he said.

There was no immediate comment from prison officials.

The state's largest prison escape occurred in April 1959 at the Patuxent Institute, a juvenile facility, also located in Jessup. Thirty-four inmates broke out at that time.

Among the first men captured, two were caught on the nearby Baltimore-Washington Parkway; one near the Baltimore-Washington International Airport; and another in Baltimore, said McCormick.

Clark said police were first notified of the escape around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday when prison officials reported six men missing.

"They took a bed check and found out there were about 30 missing," he said, adding that police were notified of the increased number about 1:30 a.m.

Nearly 100 state police troopers and an unknown number of local and municipal police were assisting in the search which was concentrated in the Howard County and Jessup areas. In addition, dog patrols from Anne Arundel County police were being used.

The state's prison system has been under fire from correctional officers who say facilities are critically understaffed and that guards lack adequate training.

They have also attacked the state for cutbacks in funding.

"We've picketed and demonstrated throughout the summer to get the public's attention on the plight of guards in the correctional institutions," said Edward Davis, president of the guards' union local at the Maryland House of Corrections.

DEATH INVESTIGATED — Sheriff's deputies in Santa Barbara, Calif., are investigating the death of James Oppen, 58, a prominent attorney whose body was found aboard his boat near Santa Cruz Island Tuesday night. Man Held For Murder Attempt Of Musician

NEW YORK (AP) — A 26-year-old mail clerk has been charged with attempted murder for allegedly pushing a talented young musician in front of a subway train. The victim's hand was severed by the train.

Bellevue Hospital's microsurgery team restored the hand of Renee Katz, 18, after the June 7 incident, and a Transit Police task force began an investigation.

On Wednesday, after overnight questioning, Allen Curtis Lewis of Queens was charged with attempted murder and held on $25,000 bail.

A detective said in court papers that Lewis had admitted "he is the individual who caused Renee Katz to fall in front of the subway train."

Lewis, a clerk at CBS headquarters in Manhattan, was described by Assistant District Attorney Leonard Rienzi as a man who had "a prior history of touching females on subways."

Court papers showed he had been arrested twice before, once in January 1978 and again last March, and got conditional discharges in both cases.

Miss Katz' mother, Rose, reached by telephone after Lewis' arrest was announced, said her daughter only hopes the police got "the right person."

"I don't think anyone's happy about it," said Mrs. Katz. "The whole thing is just unpleasant."

Miss Katz was standing on the subway platform at Eighth Avenue and 50th Street waiting for a train to take her to the city High School of Music and Art, when she was pushed to the tracks by what witnesses described as a teen-ager wearing orange pants.

After the train rolled over her, police found the severed hand, packed it in ice and rushed it to Bellevue, where it was re-attached in a lengthy operation.

Doctors doubt she will ever be an accomplished flutist and pianist again, but the girl insists she will play the flute again "even though I may never be any good." She is planning to go to college this fall and study voice.

Transit Police Chief Sanford Garelik declined to say what led police to Lewis, except that the arrest was "based on information developed through the investigation," which included a hotline for persons with information.

At Lewis' arraignment before Judge Brenda Soloff in Manhattan Criminal Court, Rienzi called the attack "a callous, vicious, senseless act of violence."

If convicted on the attempted murder charge, Lewis could be sentenced to up to 25 years in prison.

Rape Suspect's Cellmate Named In Girl's Death

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — An 18-year-old man charged with capital murder in the death of an art student is a former jailmate of the man charged with raping her, authorities say.

Walter J. Blair Jr. was arrested Wednesday near the vacant mid-town lot where the body of 21-year-old Katherine Jo Allen was found Sunday. She had been shot three times in the head and upper body.

Police Sgt. Al Lomax said Blair earlier this summer had been held in a maximum-security cell in the Jackson County jail adjoining that of Larry Jackson, the man charged in the April 2 rape of Miss Allen.

Blair was held from Jan. 22 to July 16 on charges of capital murder, robbery and assault in the shooting of a 16-year-old girl. The charges were dropped. Officials in the prosecutor's office did not say why.

Authorities said Blair, who is being held under $3 million bond, will appear at a preliminary hearing Aug. 28.

Police Capt. Lloyd A. DeGraffenried indicated that at least one other person faced criminal charges in the case, but he refused to elaborate. "It is not a closed case," he said.

Miss Allen, a student at the Kansas City At Institute, had been scheduled to testify next week in the trial of Jackson, 22, who is awaiting trial in the Jackson County jail.

Lomax said a motive had been established, but declined to say whether Miss Allen's scheduled testimony may have been involved.

She had told authorities she had received threatening telephone calls during the past several weeks warning her not to testify against Jackson.

More than 1,200 British soldiers were killed near Fort Duquesne, Ohio, in 1755 by 250 French troops and their Indian allies.

Authorities Look For Unknown Pilot

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Authorities today sought the pilot of a small aircraft that reportedly forced a Hughes Airwest DC-9 jetliner with 22 persons aboard to take evasive action to avoid a collision.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the pilot of Las Vegas-to-San Jose Flight 744 told authorities he was forced into a steep climb 7,000 feet above the San Francisco Bay area Wednesday to avoid hitting the unidentified small plane.

Stewardess Penny McCleary, 28, was treated and released from a San Jose hospital after she fell in the cabin during the maneuver and bruised her back, a Hughes Airwest official said.

The flight landed without incident at 5:04 p.m., said the FAA spokesman. The pilot, identified by the FAA as Capt. Jim Decker, reported the near miss to airport police. The FAA said it had not received an official report from the pilot.

An FAA duty officer in Los Angeles said the incident occurred about 22 miles east-northeast of the airport as the craft was being directed by air traffic approach controllers at the FAA's Oakland center.

The FAA said Decker radioed controllers reporting the evasive action, which he failed to describe further. Hughes Airwest official Larry Litchfield said the craft pulled up sharply.

"He asked if there was any traffic," the FAA official said. "And (the controller) did not observe any other aircraft on radar in that vicinity."

Commercial airliners, and many private craft, are equipped with electronic "transponders" that communicate with ground-based computers connected to radar screens.

When an aircraft's transponder is turned on, the craft's flight number, airspeed, altitude and other details are displayed on the screen beside the radar "blip." The display allows controllers to tell which craft is which.

The FAA official, who asked that his name not be used, said it is possible for a small aircraft to escape radar detection, but declined to elaborate.

Teen-Ager Charged In Child's Murder

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The search for a missing 5-year-old girl has ended with the discovery of her nude body and the arrest of a 14-year-old boy on charges of first degree murder and involuntary sex, police said.

A firefighter Wednesday found the body of Angel Ann Halstead beneath palmetto bushes about 500 yards from her home, said Police Lt. Robert Allen. She had disappeared late Monday.

Brooks Bellay appeared before Circuit Judge Phil Nourse in an emergency hearing Wednesday night and was turned over to the Division of Youth Services. Nourse ordered he be held without bond at the Fort Pierce Detention Center.

Vero Beach firefighter Charlie Corbin discovered the body of the child under a clump of bushes after he spotted a pink cotton top and some pink shorts.

Fire Chief Forrest Smith, who was in the group that found the girl, said her body was nude and her death appeared to have been violent.

The body was found about 150 yards from the end of the dead end street where she was last seen by her brothers, Ray and William.

"I asked them, 'Where's Angel?'" recalled their mother, Sandy Dickerson. "And they told me she was down at the dead end throwing rocks at the cows."

Despite efforts by 150 volunteers, searchers had missed the body in the woods.

"They had police dogs in the area but they didn't find anything," Smith said. "I can't believe it. This morning we came in and decided to take six firefighters out and walk slowly over the entire area. We weren't out there long before we found her."

Disheroon Takes Stand, Confesses To Robbery

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Joe Allen Disheroon took the witness stand this morning during his trial for aggravated robbery and told a 137th District Court jury he knew what he was doing when he entered Chris's Rexall Drug on May 2.

"I knew I needed some medication," Disheroon said.

The 35-year-old defendant, responding to questions from his defense counsel, Floyd Holder, said that the morning of the robbery — during which he was shot by an off-duty policeman — he awoke suffering withdrawal symptoms from his morphine addiction.

The Dallas man also told the court that prior to becoming involved in a federal prison drug research program in 1972, he had not been addicted to any drugs. After leaving that program in February 1973, up until the date of the May robbery, Disheroon said he had never gone more than two days without a fix.

On cross-examination by Rick Howell, felony chief for the criminal district attorney's office, Disheroon said he had used illegal drugs, but was not addicted to them, for about 10 years.

When Howell read the indictment accusing Disheroon of the May 2 robbery and asked the defendant if he was the person who "did all that," Disheroon responded in a barely audible voice, "Yes."

The slender defendant also admitted to the prosecutor that he had never been forced to take morphine and that he wanted to use drugs "to feel normal."

Disheroon also admitted to Howell's rapid-fire accusations that the robbery was a deliberate, intentional act.

"You knew about the Methadone program (for opiate addicts) and you had that choice on May 2, didn't you?" Howell asked. "But you chose to take that .357 magnum, stick it in Chris Christensen's stomach and point it at officer Herron.

(Herron was one of two off-duty police officers who responded to the afternoon holdup alarm. The other, Ronnie Sowell, fired the shots that felled the defendant.)

"Now you're asking the jury to excuse your conduct because you're sick, aren't you?" Howell demanded.

Disheroon, looking straight at the prosecutor, simply replied, "Yes."

In other testimony this morning, defense attorneys continued their parade of psychiatrists and drug experts in an attempt to prove Disheroon's morphine addiction rendered him "insane" and therefore not responsible for his actions May 2.

Oscar D. Jones, director of the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Drug Program in Lubbock, told the six-man, six-woman panel of the symptoms of an addict's withdrawal from an opiate such as morphine.

However, on cross-examination, Jones said he did not have any specific knowledge of Disheroon's addiction, and that the philosophy of treatment used at the MH-MR Center is that a person is responsible for his own actions.

Psychiatrist Alvin J. Cronson elaborated on withdrawal symptoms, adding that in addition to the physical problems, opiate addicts also experience "terror at being sick."

If a person is "in the clutches of the abstinence syndrome" (withdrawal), that person is irrational, Cronson said. The doctor added that in such a state an addict would not be able to conform his actions to society's legal requirements.

However, Cronson also told Howell on cross-examination that his opinions concerning addicts suffering withdrawal were based on general experiences and not specific information concerning Disheroon's case.

Wednesday, clinical psychologist Richard Wall testified that Disheroon was responsible for his actions, but in a reduced sense because he was not aware of his specific "personality disorder."

Pick up "Wallsaid he conducted two interviews"

Wall said he conducted two interviews with Disheroon after the defendant was jailed in connection with the May 2 armed robbery of Chris's Rexall Drug Inc., 332 University Ave.

Those interviews, Wall testified, revealed that the 34-year-old defendant suffers from a personality disorder that prompts him to take action to drive away people.

"He gets no gratification from people," the psychologist testified. "He wants to be in control of the situation and himself."

This type of personality, Wall told the jury, "beautifully set up" the Dallas man for addiction to morphine. And, the psychologist added, that because Disheroon was not aware of this personality disorder, he was "absolutely not" responsible for his "voluntary" decision to participate in the drug program while he was in prison.

The defense opened its case after prosecutors Howell and Mark McBride called the pharmacy owner, his wife, several employees and the two police officers who confronted and shot Disheroon after the defendant allegedly robbed the store and was attempting to leave with the store owner as hostage.

Pharmacy owner F.B. "Chris" Christensen identified Disheroon as the man who aimed a "pretty big" pistol at the pharmacist's stomach and told him to hand over morphine and Dilotid, a morphine derivative.

Young Gets Official Invitation To Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi has invited Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, to visit Iran, Pars News Agency said today.

The agency did not say whether the invitation was made before Young's resignation last week over his controversial meeting with a Palestine Liberation Organization representative in New York, or whether Young had responded.

Federal Judge Denies Confessed Murderer Stay Of Execution

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A federal judge today refused to issue a stay of execution for confessed killer Jesse Bishop, saying the two public defenders who tried to avert next Monday's scheduled execution had no legal standing in the case.

However, U.S. District Judge Harry Claybourne approved an appeal of his decision and that appeal was expected to be heard by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco on Friday morning.

Bishop, 46, is scheduled go to the gas chamber at Carson City early Monday for the December 1977 slaying of a newlywed Baltimore man who was shot as he tried to stop a robbery at a Las Vegas Strip casino.

Claybourne told Deputy Clark County public defenders Kirk Lenhard and George Franzen that they had not shown they had "a personal stake in stopping the execution.

"The personal stake test is not met by the petitioners in this case," Claybourne said during the 15-minute hearing. "They're not the ones being sentenced to death ..."

Bishop, who has consistently fought efforts to delay his execution, told Claybourne at the start of the hearing that he did not want anyone interfering in the case.

"I have been sentenced to death and I didn't ask for it," said Bishop. "I feel I have a constitutional right to waive my appeal."

Bishop said that anyone who appears in his behalf "without my consent violates my constitutional rights."

Bishop has sad that while he would pefer a life sentence, he felt he had no chance for a commutation from the state Pardons Board and would rather be put to death than go through the torment of repeated stays of execution.

Dr. Jerry Howle, who interviewed Bishop, issued a psychiatric report saying Bishop appeared to be antisocial and unusually relaxed but is sane. He said Bishop "does have the capacity to appreciate his position and make a rational choice with respect to continuing or abandoning further litigation."

Both Bishop and the state contend attorneys Kirk Lenhard and George Franzen, who filed the petition for the stay, have no legal standing in the case. Deputy Attorney General Ed Taylor argued that the "next friend" principle under which the two filed the petition "may not be utilized for the purpose of allowing intruders or uninvited meddlers" to intervene.

Lenhard said he believed Claiborne "might be prepared" for a ruling from the bench. He said he did not know what the next step would be if the stay was denied.

"There are other groups that could appeal this, of course," Lenhard said. "I'm going to have to cross that bridge when I get to it, if that occurs."

Climbers Look For Barefoot African Man

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Specially equipped climbing teams were searching the slopes of 17,000-foot Mount Kenya today for a barefoot African who scaled the mountain without climbing gear so he could pray, park officials said.

Mount Kenya park warden Phil Snyder told reporters the man, believed to be a member of the Meru tribe, was first seen Friday by two British climbers at the mountain's windswept summit, ill-dressed and carrying only a small sack of food.

Snyder said the man told the Britons he makes the climb several times a year to pray at the summit, considered holy ground by tribes in the area. A search for the unidentified iman was continuing, officials said.

Snyder dispatched a ranger alpine team to the area. The climbers spotted the man Tuesday, inching his way down the 2,000 feet of sheer rock face that leads to the mountain's Nelion summit, but he hid from them and Snyder said he may have descended when a cloud cover set in.

"I am just amazed," Snyder said. "I spoke to the rangers and they said he was climbing down on his own and seemed quite confident...getting to the top of Nelion is one of the most difficult climbs...this may be one of the most amazing climbs in mountaineering history," referring to the fact the man used no special gear.

Orientation Session Slated At MHS

Sophomores and other students new to Monterey High School will have the opportunity to become acquainted with their new school during an orientation session at 7 p.m. today in the Monterey auditorium.

Following introductions and comments by student leaders and principals, student guests may tour the building, meet their homeroom teachers and ask any questions they may have about the school.

Monterey is located at 3211 47th St.

RAPID TRANSIT

Family Members' Deaths Recounted By MacDonald

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Former Green Beret Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald took the stand in his own defense today and, battling to stifle his sobs, recounted the night nine years ago when his wife and two young daughters were stabbed and beaten to death at the family's Fort Bragg apartment.

MacDonald, who is charged with the murders, told of struggling with intruders in the living room of the apartment and said he felt there was a "distinct possibility I would be killed."

In testimony punctuated by sobs, sighs and long pauses, MacDonald said he was sleeping on the couch in the apartment when he was awakened by the screams of his wife, Colette.

"It was Colette's voice, crying, 'Jeff, Jeff, help me. Why are they doing this to me?'"

MacDonald said he heard his daughter, Kimberly, cry out. "All I heard was, 'Daddy... Daddy... Daddy... Daddy... Daddy,'" he said.

The government claims MacDonald killed his family in February 1970 and set up a bloody crime scene reminiscent of the Sharon Tate murders six months earlier. MacDonald contends a group of hippie intruders committed the killings.

"I saw some people at the foot of the couch," MacDonald testified today, and said he eventually identified them as two white men, a black man and a white woman.

"I either thought or said, 'What the hell's going on here?' I also either thought or said, 'What's going on here? What are you —doing in my house?'"

The black man "started to sling something at me," MacDonald said. "I raised my left arm up and got hit, I believe partially on my arm and head at the same time, and I was knocked back onto the couch.

"I think it was before I was first hit I heard the words, 'Acid is groovy, kill the pigs.'" MacDonald continued. "It was a female monotone voice."

MacDonald said the black man was wearing what appeared to be an Army field jacket with sergeant's stripes on the sleeves. He grabbed the man's arm and struggled with him over the weapon.

At the same time, MacDonald said he was receivng what he thought were ineffective punches that later turned out to be stab wounds.

"I couldn't make any sense of it and at some point my hand got bound up in the pajama top," he said. Seconds later, the man with the club got free.

"I thought that there was the distinct possibility I would be killed," he said. Under questioning by chief defense attorney Bernard Segal, MacDonald said he then saw a blonde woman wearing a white floppy hat and boots. He said he saw a light flickering in her face and recalled thinking at the time that it must have been from a candle.

The three men all had military style haircuts, he said.

"The next thing I knew I was lying on the floor and the house was very quiet," MacDonald said.

MacDonald, now an emergency room doctor in Long Beach, Calif., spent most of the first hour of his testimony describing life with his family and detailing an uneventful day before the slayings on Feb. 17, 1970.

German Youths Killed In Fall

BOLZANO, Italy (AP) — Five vacationing West German youths 14 to 16 years old were killed Wednesday and a 17-year-old was injured in falls from an icy cliff in the Gardena Valley.

Rescuers said three of the boys were climbing 10,338-foot Mount Sassolungo when a dense fog closed in suddenly. They turned back and began a slow descent, "practically crawling," but "took a wrong road covered with ice all the way," slipped and fell into a ravine.

After several hours, three other boys set out to search for them, got lost and fell from the same cliff. A rescue party of alpine guides found the five bodies and the survivor, who was reported in serious but satisfactory condition.

The guides said the boys were "hopelessly ill prepared" for climbing the mountain. A total of 23 climbers have been killed in the Alto Adige mountains this year.

Detectives In Kentucky To Question Suspect

HOUSTON (AP) — Two homicide detectives are in Covington, Ky., to question a man being held there on a capital murder charge in the death of a Houston city marshal.

Three Italian Babies Show Improvement

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The three surviving octuplets born a week ago to Pasqualina Chianese two months prematurely showed slight improvement today, but attending physicians cautioned against undue optimism.

San Paolo Hospital reported in its daily medical bulletin that tiny Anna and Valentina gained a bit of weight while Silvana overcame the jaundice she developed three days ago.

"We shouldn't delude ourselves by these slight improvements," said Dr. Ugo De Bellis, chief of San Paolo's pediatric ward. "Such premature babies can suddenly develop respiratory or intestinal complications."

De Bellis said their surivival will appear assured only after they reach a weight of about four pounds, not expected to occur before they are two months old. Their weights now range from 26 to 27 ounces each.

"If within several months we succeed in giving the parents at least one of the three babies, it will be the most immense joy of my 30-year medical career," the pediatrician said.

One of the octuplets died 10 hours after birth, two died last Friday and two last Saturday. The 29-year-old mother had taken fertility drugs.

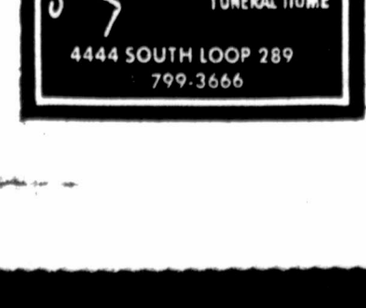

Monterey Yearbooks To Be Distributed

Monterey High School yearbooks will be distributed in the school cafeteria from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Friday.

Students should bring some type of identification in order to receive their copies of the annual.

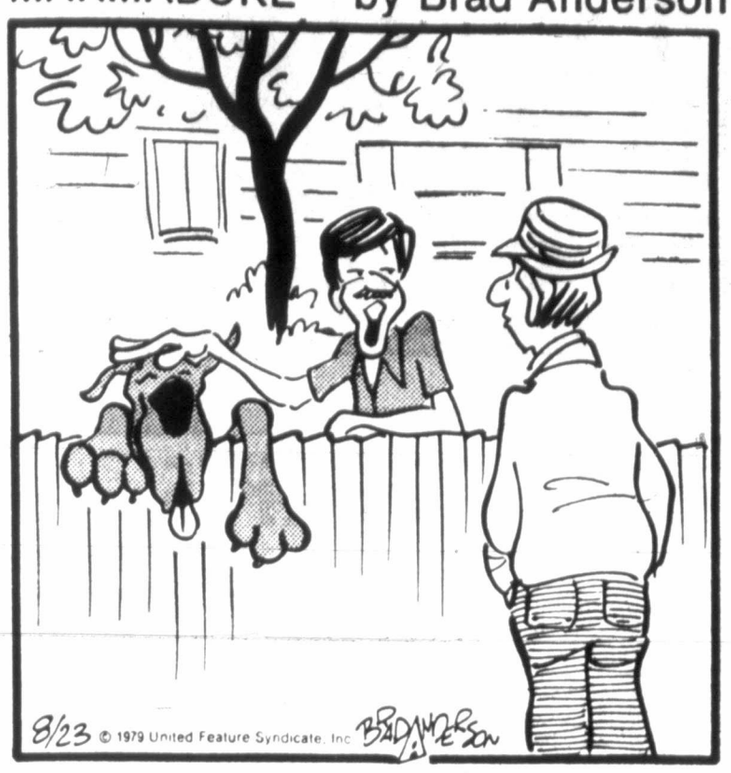

A signing party also will be conducted during the distribution period. Publications director Betty Stanley stressed that no books will be given out before 7 p.m. Friday.

Inflation Boosts Municipal Bonds

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation may have been hard on most types of financial investments in recent years, but it has been a boon to many people in the municipal-bond business.

As it pushes investors into higher and higher tax brackets, inflation all but assures a constantly growing increase in demand for tax-sheltered income — which is the prime attraction of municipal bonds.

The result has been some dramatic changes in the municipal-bond market, which not too many years ago was regarded as the exclusive province of institutions and the wealthiest individuals.

In 1978, individual investors put more than $10 billion into tax-free bonds, according to Richard Molnar of the municipal bond department at the brokerage firm of Prescott, Ball & Turben.

A significant chunk of that investment went into the special vehicles such as unit investment trusts and mutual funds that have grown up to meet the demand from smaller investors.

The nation's largest brokerage firm, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, says it by itself has sold some $6 billion worth of municipal-bond investment trusts since it began offering them in 1971.

And Standard & Poor's Corp. reports that mutual funds investing in municipal bonds, which first appeared less than three years ago, have accumulated assets of better than $3 billion.

Both the unit trusts and the funds use the principle of pooling small investors' money to create a large organization with clout in the marketplace.

Dealers in municipal bonds have traditionally bought and sold in "round lot" units beyond the reach of most individuals — $25,000 or more. The unit trusts and the funds can deal on that level, while at the same time making their shares available to the public at much lower minimums, generally $1,000 to $5,000.

Despite their basic similarity, there are important differences between the unit trusts and the funds.

The typical trust is a fixed portfolio of 10 to 25 bonds that remains in existence until the bonds mature, at which time the principal is distributed back to the trust's shareholders. It imposes no management fee, but usually carries a sales charge of 2.5 to 4 percent at the time of purchase.

In a possible break in that tradition, First Albany Corp., a brokerage firm based in Albany, N.Y., recently sought Securities and Exchange Commission approval to offer a unit trust with no sales charge.

The tax-free bond funds, by contrast, have portfolio managers who can buy and sell bonds whenever conditions warrant. They charge management fees amounting to, say, half of one percent of total assets per year.

An investor can avoid a sales charge on these, however, by selecting a "no-load" fund which does not have salesmen working on commission.

Some firms offering the funds and trusts have added another wrinkle lately, insuring the interest and principle on their portfolios with municipal-bond policies offered by a subsidiary of MGIC Investment Corp.

Americans Advised To Invest In Gold

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — If the description of today's Americans as the "me generation" is indeed accurate, then gold is the perfect investment for the times.

First of all, it is a "winner." Inflation may be making a hash out of other people's finances, but if you own gold, you're staying ahead of the game.

Like many of today's other avenues toward self-improvement, gold is solitary. There's no part ownership in a larger venture, no dependency on what some hired management or elected board of directors does.

As a protest against big government and big-government spending, gold makes as clear a statement as any tax-cutting proposition on any ballot. The government can print all the excess dollars it wants, the gold bugs say, but it can't print gold.

Nobody seems to be more aware of this than the government itself. When a law was passed five years ago to permit private ownership of gold in this country, the government began regularly selling gold from the Treasury.

Whatever the intent of that action, it effectively set the government and some of its citizens on opposite sites in a financial struggle.

By increasing the supply available on the market, the government was acting to depress gold's price, or at least to keep it from rising as much as it otherwise might.

"Sell all you want," tacitly replied the buyer who came to the government auctions. "You may depress the price temporarily, but in the long run even you don't have the power to discredit gold as a store of value."

To date, the buyers have been borne out. After a decline from about $200 an ounce to just above $100 in the early days of the gold sales by the Treasury, the price of gold has tripled in the past three years, passing $300 this summer.

But the bull market in gold is somehow a joyless one. Recollections of the skyrocketing stock market in the 1960s, with all its speculative excesses and subsequent exposures of corporate chicanery, evoke images of brass bands and celebrations of prosperity.

The mood is much different now. One long-time gold bug lamented in his newsletter recently that, despite the clear-cut success of his forecasts, he was still widely described as a crank.

"How could it be," he mused, "that our predictions, even after they have already come true, are still so disbelieved by certain segments of the press and the vast majority of investors?"

One possible answer is that Americans aren't used to gold, the way Europeans are supposed to be. There is a bet-against-the-future aspect to gold that grates on the old all-American ideals, like growth.

If you advocate gold, in a sense you are urging an anti-social act — akin to making for the lifeboats before the other passengers find out that the ship might sink.

Gold-buyers also can be seen as contributing to the problem from which they are trying to protect themselves. Gold is, after all, a non-productive investment. It builds no factories, creates no jobs, doesn't even pay any dividends.

The gold bugs have been right in the past, and those who now predict that gold prices will go higher still may be right again.

It may turn out that they have done a great service for their customers, more than earning their subscription fees, book royalties and seminar admission charges by helping many people preserve their assets in a time of economic trouble.

But popularity, acclaim? For the bringers of bad news, that may be too much to expect.

Board Denies Parole For Union President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Parole Commission says Joseph Tonelli, former president of the United Paperworkers International Union, will have to serve more time on his embezzlement conviction.

The commission denied Tuesday the 71-year-old Tonelli's request for parole from his sentence of a year and a day. He is now scheduled to be released Nov. 14.

Arizona Facing Plague Threat

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Tests of wild rodents across northern Arizona reveal a 280-mile "bubonic plague belt" that health officials fear may expand southward to heavily populated areas.

Plague, which is transmitted by fleas, appeared in a high percentage of several types of rodents and other animals tested this year by the state Department of Health Services.

The 39 animals tested so far this year include rats, deer mice, prairie dogs, rabbits, coyotes and foxes. Twenty-two of them were found to have plague, department records show.

Three humans, all of whom lived in the rural area from Springerville to Seligman in northern Arizona, also caught the disease this year but were treated with antibiotics and recovered, officials say.

So far this year, plague has been blamed for two deaths in New Mexico and was diagnosed in at least two people in Southern California.

More than a dozen cases of bubonic plague also were reported in Colorado last year.

Although Arizona health officials spray pesticides to kill fleas in areas where plague is found, they say ridding the state of the disease appears impossible.

"We can't routinely dust the whole northern half of the state," said Dr. Phil Hotchkiss, manager of the department's division of Epidemiology and Immunization.

Officials also have been alarmed by recent discoveries of diseased animals in areas that indicate plague is spreading south toward Maricopa County, which includes Phoenix and more than half of Arizona's population.

"Fortunately, we're not cursed with large urban rat populations," which could cause a severe health crisis if infested by fleas from wild rodents, Hotchkiss said. "But the problem still has very definite potential for more human cases," he said.

When a human inhales bubonic plague germs, the result is pneumonic plague — the highly contagious "Black Death" that wiped out much of the population of Europe and Asia in the 14th century.

Symptoms include fever, nausea, swelling of the lymph glands and breaking of the blood vessels, which turns the skin a purplish-black color — hence the nickname "Black Death."

One factor that health officials fear could promote the spread of plague to humans are poorly maintained, uncovered landfills that provide havens for rats, mice and ground squirrels.

"Someone goes to a landfill to dump something and fleas can jump off a dead rat onto the person," said Stu Baker, the department's coordinator of solid waste enforcement.

"Or a family might bring its dog or cat with them to the dump. The pet runs around, picks up some fleas, goes home again and gives them to the kids."

Khomeini Issues Warning

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini issued stern new warnings to Iran's rebellious minorities today and told his own troops they will face revolutionary courts if they disobey orders to crush the uprisings. Three more executions also were reported, bringing the toll since February to 452.

Khomeini told the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party and other "unclean" organizations, "If you surrender, hand in your weapons and join Islam, you will be forgiven. Otherwise, if you continue your efforts against the people, you will suffer the consequences."

Khomeini, for the second time this week, also said government troops "must obey their superiors, and if they don't they will be tried and punished. Military personnel are not permitted to hold strikes and those who do, will be considered counter-revolutionaries and will be sent to revolutionary courts."

Reliable sources have reported that some regular troops have been reluctant to move out against Kurdish insurgents in the rebellious western region, leaving revolutionary guardsmen to do the bulk of the fighting.

Khomeini declared in a message distributed by government media, "I order the revolutionary guards to cooperate with the regular army in crushing those creating disturbances, especially in Khuzestan and Kurdestan." Like the Kurds, ethnic Arabs in oil-rich Khuzestan province have been battling for autonomy.

Khomeini also said he had told Hassan Nazih, managing director of the National Iranian Oil Co., to give one day's oil revenues, about $65 million, to the people of Kurdistan. He didn't say how the money would be distributed, but it was believed it would be spent on aid projects.

The latest executions occurred Wednesday in Qazvin, west of Tehran. The men were found guilty of drug-smuggling and plotting against Khomeini's Islamic Republic, government newspapers said.

Kurdish rebel leaders have accused Khomeini of mounting an all-out war to "annihilate the Kurdish masses" and charged his attempt to crush their fight for home rule is worse than the suppression suffered under Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Tehran Radio reported 86 persons, including 11 government soldiers, killed in the past two days as the lastest Kurdish rebellion boiled through the mountainous Kurdistan region.

"The only difference (between the two governments) is that during the Pahlavi regime, they did not kill innocent people so ruthlessly," Karim Hesami of the Kurdish Democratic Party charged Wednesday. The party was outlawed Sunday by Khomeini, Iran's fundamentalist Shiite Moslem leader, after days of bloody fighting between troops and rebels.

"The religious leaders should understand that they cannot silence the masses with their forces," Hesami said in a statement read over the telephone from the Kurdish town of Mahabad.

Hesami also vowed retaliation against the government, which has executed 29 Kurds since Saturday and reportedly arrested 100 more on Wednesday in the Kurdistan capital of Sanandaj, scene of some of the heaviest fighting of the rebellion.

"For every Kurd executed, we will punish one revolutionary guardsman captured by our forces," Hesami said. He did not spell out the punishment.

For years the shah suppressed the Kurds' aspirations for self-rule by jailing rebel leaders and blanketing the Kurdish region with government troops. The Kurds joined the Khomeini revolution which ousted the shah's government in February, but renewed their autonomy drive after concluding the revolution had merely substituted one dictator for another.

Carter, Critic Of Policy Clash On Fuel For Iran

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — President Carter engaged in a six-minute debate at 5 a.m. today with an auto worker who vigorously disagreed with Carter's decision to permit the export of American oil products to Iran.

"What we don't understand is why the Ayatollah Khomeini is doing this to the people over there, executing them, and more or less we are condoning it?" the man asked Carter. The dialogue occurred as the Delta Queen steamboat stopped at Lock 21 on the Mississippi River near Quincy, Ill., a few miles from Hannibal.

Carter defended his decision to permit the sale of an estimated $47 million worth of kerosene and diesel fuel, saying "They ship us one and one-half million barrels of oil every day."

Carter encountered his debating partner on the way to spending several hours sightseeing in Hannibal, hometown of Samuel Clemens and his literary creation, Tom Sawyer.

The unidentified man who questioned Carter was part of a crowd of about 300 people who greeted Carter when he climbed overboard shortly before 5 a.m. and began shaking hands.

He told the president his Iranian brother-in-law who worked for Bell Helicopter in Iran had just been released from prison there.

Before approving the sale of U.S. refined oil products, the man demanded to know, "Why couldn't we get a reasonable assurance that they would take care of human rights over there?"

"All we had to do was get an assurance that they would start analyzing this and not treating people rotten because they were dealing with Americans."

In the midst of the badgering, Carter calmed the man down enough to say, "you won't let me answer your question."

Referring to Khomeini, the Iranian ruler, Carter said: "I don't approve of his government, but the fact is that they ship us about one and one-half million barrels of oil every day. One time they asked us to send them a million barrels back."

Carter explained that the United States receives 50 million barrels of oil a month from Iran and that they had requested, due to sabotage of a refinery, one shipment of kerosene.

Asked the president: "You want me to tell them (the Iranians), 'Don't ship us any oil?'"

Someone in the audience said, "Maybe we'd be better off if they didn't."

Carter, in a clearly sarcastic tone of voice, replied: "Maybe so, we can do without it."

The man finally conceded that Carter's decision was "reasonable" but he still asked why Carter couldn't win at least a "worthless assurance that they will look into some of their human rights violations."

Carter told the man: "You're the best question asker I ever saw, but you don't give me a chance to answer."

He reminded the man that no Americans were killed when they were evacuated during the Iranian revolution earlier this year.

"They could have killed Americans but they didn't," Carter said.

The dialogue took place over a chain-link fence, with the crowd watching quietly and several of the man's companions interjecting an occasional comment. Some members of the crowd had been waiting all night, and during a few rain showers, to see the president.

Jacket Credited In Quick Arrest

er reportedly seeing the football letter jacket on television. "We give full credit to the media for helping us in this," Love said.

Another policeman added, "I thought putting it on television would help, but I sure didn't think the suspect would call us."

Blalack, who ruled in the city's 22nd homicide of the year, said a preliminary autopsy report revealed Bridges died of a crushed larynx. The official charge states that Dancy "did intentionally and knowingly cause the death of an individual, Claude V. Bridges, by stomping him with his feet in the throat."

An affidavit for a search and arrest warrant states that while Dancy was telling police the jacket was his, police observed "what appeared to be a red splattered substance on the tennis shoes Maurice Dancy was wearing."

The affidavit also states the dead man appeared to have been "stomped on the neck with imprints resembling markings made by the bottoms of tennis shoes. It also appeared...that portions of the tennis shoes of the said Maurice Dancy had been painted over by red paint or a red substance in the area of the red spots."

Police saw a color mug shot of the suspect "wearing a red Coronado letter jacket identical in appearance to the one found at 2824 23rd St. (Bridges' house)," the report continues.

Authorities today were examining hair on a comb found at the murder scene to see if it matches that of the suspect.

Dancy was placed on five years probation Oct. 10, 1978, after being convicted of burglarizing a house at 5424 14th St. Dancy, who lives just a block from Bridges' house, was living only two blocks away from the 14th Street residence when it was broken into.

District Attorney John Montford estimated Bridges was killed between 3 a.m. and 7 a.m. Tuesday. His savagely beaten body was found on the living room floor about noon Tuesday by one of his professors and a classmate, who became worried when he didn't show up for a major exam.

Authorities speculate the killer was burglarizing Bridges' house when he was surprised by the resident. Parks said it appeared a struggle began in a bedroom and ended in the living room. The house had been ransacked, according to investigators.

Montford said he may seek a capital murder charge against Dancy. He indicated he was happy with the results, but added that he was puzzled over why Bridges was so brutally attacked and sexually abused.

Authorities also were baffled over why the dead man's car was stolen and then parked just two blocks from his house.

With this murder appearing to be solved, police continue to investigate the death of 74-year-old Paul Raymond Benton, who was found with his throat slashed at his 2311 Eighth St. home Monday night.

Bridges' family have asked that memorials be made in care of Dr. Kenneth Ketner with the Tech philosophy department.

Funeral services for Bridges were held Wednesday night in Lubbock. The body will be transferred to Chattanooga, Tenn., for additional services and burial Saturday.

Survivors include his wife; his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Bridges of Lexington, Ky.; a grandfather, O.C. Jones of Texas; three sisters, Mrs. Gary Jordan of London, Ky., and Mrs. Jim Forester and Mrs. Debbie Stone, both of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

City Council Hears Plea

when residents first requested the signal.

Since Avenue A is a state highway, City Manager Larry Cunningham said the city would have to get the approval of the highway department before a light could be installed at 23rd Street and Avenue A unless the city bears the full cost of the light.

Earlier this year, the highway department studied the intersection and found the volume of traffic and traffic accidents did not meet the requirements for a signal.

However, the Citizens Traffic Commission recommended that another study be done by either the highway department or by the city.

Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan noted the intersection might meet the state requirements when the light is installed because those drivers avoiding the intersection would no longer do so.

Councilman Alan Henry said the council was "asking the highway department to use a little humanitarian judgment" in examining the intersection.

Also appearing in support of the light was Lubbock school district representative Bill Parker, director of pupil personnel, who said the designation of Iles Elementary as a magnet school had increased traffic at the intersection.

Also this morning the council designated the Lubbock Women's Club at 2020 Broadway a design-historic landmark.

At noon council members were scheduled to discuss the city-county library budget with Lubbock County Commissioners.

The council also was scheduled to discuss an attack on the weed problem in Lubbock and discuss the request of Lubbock firefighters for a 12 percent pay increase.

Israeli Force Raids Village In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli infantrymen crossed into southern Lebanon today on a search-and-destroy mission and blew up two houses in a frontier village before withdrawing, state-owned Beirut radio said.

It estimated the Israeli force at 40 men.

"The Israeli unit entered the village of Baraachit, searched the area and blew up two houses ... and later withdrew," the radio said.

Baraachit is 6 miles from the Israeli border and 3 miles southeast of Tibnine, the operational headquarters of the Irish Battalion of the United Nations peacekeeping forces in southern Lebanon.

The incursion came after a night of heavy Israeli artillery and mortar barrages, aimed against a string of frontier villages.

Lebanese Prime Minister Selim Al Hoss was trapped briefly in one of the villages when Israeli shellfire pounded Nabatiyey as Hoss was leading government officials on an inspection tour.

But the shelling was reportedly not as intense as Wednesday, when Israel and its Lebanese rightist allies launched one of the heaviest artillery assaults of the year.

SUSPECT ARRAIGNED — Maurice Eugene Dancy, 19, of 2826 24th St., far right, stands before Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack during his arraignment Wednesday night on charges of murder in the death of Tech graduate student Claude Ventry Bridges. At center is Detective Joe Nevarez. Dancy, who lived about a block from the victim, was arrested about 9:30 p.m. when he came to the police station to ask about a high school letter jacket found at the scene of the crime. Viet Refugees Flee Violence

DENVER (AP) — A gang of Hispanic youths armed with clubs and a hammer attacked a Vietnamese man and smashed the windows out of his car as new violence flared in a housing project where tensions between the ethnic groups have caused refugee families to flee, police said.

Police and remaining Vietnamese in the area came to the man's rescue before he was seriously injured Wednesday night, authorities said. The beaten man was not identified.

Police reported no arrests. Patrol cars cruised the project during the night, and no new incidents were reported early today.

Nearly all of the 22 Vietnamese families in the predominantly Hispanic low-income housing project had moved out earlier this week after simmering tensions beteen the two groups broke into violence.

"I don't know where they went," Bernard Valdez, director of the Denver Department of Social Services, said Wednesday.

Some of the Vietnamese left behind identification cards and visas in their haste to get out, a spokesman for the refugees said.

"I don't even know how many there were," Valdez said. "It was somewhat crowded. Many left to move in with friends and relatives, and my understanding is, they would not tell where they were going because they were afraid they would be followed."

The window-breaking confrontation that erupted Wednesday night capped racial friction between the Vietnamese and Hispanic residents of the area known as the "Projects" that had been smoldering for nearly six months.

The tensions result from cultural and language differences, and one economically deprived group's jealousy and frustration over the arrival of another such group, authorities say.

"For years, there has been a strain on services...waiting lines for housing, social services. You have problems existing. Then you compound a situation that is not working well by interjecting another ethnic group also in need and a competitive situation arises," said state Rep. Rich Castro, whose district includes part of the troubled area.

It was the second violent confrontation in recent weeks involving Vietnamese who have fled their homeland for the United States.

Long-simmering tensions between refugees and Texas fishermen, shrimpers and crabbers in Seadrift came to a head earlier this month when a crabber was shot to death. Two Vietnamese were charged in the slaying, and four Vietnamese boats and a house were subsequently firebombed.

Two arbitrators from theRoman Catolic Archdiocese of San Antonio have been attempting to patch up the feud through the church's resettlement program and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

An estimated 200,000 Vietnamese have resettled in the United States since the end of the Vietnam War.

There are more than 400,000 boat people in camps in Southeast Asia awaiting resettlement after fleeing their homelands. The United States recently agreed to accept 220,000 additional Indochinese refugees, most of them from Vietnam.

President Carter defended the nation's refugee policy Wednesday by urging an audience in Burlington, Iowa, to keep America "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

HSCH Seeks Help From Physicians

the medical school faculty, but without any restirctions on their income from private patients.

"Such appointments," the report reads, "will not only benefit undergraduate and graduate training programs but will help to establish rapport between 'town and gown,' provided the staff privileges as well as responsibilities are assured.

"This will increase the private patient population."

The solutions suggested by Blocker and Thompson, some of which have been recommended previously, sound workable, Garland said. Implementation of the suggestions is the key at this point, he said.

"It looks great on paper," Garland said. "But the proof of the pudding is in the performance."

Garland is encouraged by the hospital's recruitment of Blocker and Thompson to offer help for the hospital-physician problem. The situation needs a leader, he said, and Blocker has been appointed to coordinate the efforts.

Dr. John Selby, another member of the Executive Committee and chairman of the South Plains Health Systems, said another kind of leadership is needed as well. But the leadership Selby referred to must come from the university level, he said.

"I hope the new president (for Texas Tech University) is someone who will be medically oriented," Selby stressed. The key to insuring cooperation between academic practice and private practice is in a strong leader who insists that cooperation exists, he said.

Selby also complimented Blocker's presentation, but added that the medical society has no real authority with community physicians. "We can urge and we can persuade," Selby said, but in the long run the decision to admit patients to Health Sciences is up to the individual doctor and his patients.

Analyst Says Hospital Cost Bill Would Only Be Temporary Cure

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter considers his hospital cost control bill a centerpiece of the fight against inflation, but a private analyst suggests it would be no more than a Band-Aid.

A study published by The American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research says the spiraling cost of health care is fueled in large measure by tax and insurance policies that ease the pain of a big medical bill.

Carter's cost control proposal, rejected in the last Congress, is headed for the House next month. The House Ways and Means Committee has approved it; the hospital industry and some Republicans vow to fight it; and the Senate Finance Committee has refused to consider a similar measure.

So the prospects for enactment are clouded at best. And the study by Jack A. Meyer, formerly with the Council on Wage and Price Stability, says the bill wouldn't put more than a temporary lid on soaring hospital costs anyhow.

The cost containment bill would impose mandatory price controls next year for hospitals that flunk a complicated three-phase test. In effect, there would be three sets of guidelines: national, state and hospital-by-hospital. A hospital exceeding all three would face controls unless it could convince the government it faced special circumstances.

And as Meyer noted, few hospitals would not argue that their circumstances are special. "The end result emerging from the passage of this legislation would most likely be a barrage of administrative appeals and possibly lawsuits," he says.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, the national guidelines would permit an average increase in hospital expenditures — and costs — of 11.3 percent this year. The administration had aimed for a 9.7 percent ceiling, but inflation has worsened since the program was drafted.

The idea is to get hospitals to stay within the voluntary guidelines this year lest they face mandatory limits in 1980. The budget office figures that without government action, the cost increase this year would be about 14 percent.

Meyer writes that the current proposal has so many "exclusions, exceptions and contingencies as to make it unlikely that it would have any bite."

But he said even if it worked as designed, "the proposal would seem capable of producing only short-term, illusory results." He said hospitals might well choose to cut, change or spin off services to stay within the guidelines, instead of trying to do it by making the health-care system more efficient.

"By glossing over the underlying forces driving spending, this bill would bypass the chance for meaningful reforms that promise a less expensive way of providing the same services," he says. "In the quest for quick results, it might achieve 'progress' by cutting back on the quality of health care. ..."

Meyer argues that real progress will require a change in the system of incentives that now tend to push health-care spending upward. When the insurance company is going to pay anyhow, there is no pressure on the doctor, the hospital or the patient to hold down the bill.

Report Says Education Not Helping Poor

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — American children don't have equal chances to make good and equal education isn't enough to erase the differences in their chances for success, a new report on children claims.

The American dream — catapulating oneself into a higher social class by talent, education and hard work — eludes the poor generally, according to the report entitled "Small Futures: Children, Inequality, and the Limits of Reform."

The report comes from the Carnegie Council on Children and was produced by Richard H. De Lone, formerly associate director of the Council and now executive vice president of the Corporation of Public-Private Ventures, a non-profit organization promoting public and private collaboration on social and economic problems.

The American dream envisions that two children, say, Joey and Phil, in the same class in grammar school will have the same chances for success if they work hard and get high marks. But this report says other factors come into play and after graduation, one takes the high road — on which he was born — while the other can't get off the low road on which he was born.

The Joeys and Josies among American school children who have the best chances are likely to be white and from an affluent family.

The ones with the poor chances are likely to be black, Hispanic or white from low or no income families.

De Lone's report suggests these steps to accomplish what he calls "reduce economic distance between the classes":

—Income distribution through a mechanism such as the credit income tax. Not only would wealthy would pay more, but the poor, those whose income was below par, would rate a payoff from the government.

—Pubic policies of full employment.

—Targeted economic and investment development.

—Strongly supported affirmative action programs.

De Lone says the following differences "make it impossible" for children born poor and rich to enjoy truly equal opportunity:

—The top fifth of U.S. Families receive somewhat over 40 percent of the coantry's net namily income, and families in the bottom fifth receive between 5 and 6 percent.

—The top 4 percent of families own 37 percent of personal wealth. The net worth of the average family in the bottom 20 percent is zero.

Even when measures of individual ability are identical, children whose families are in the top tenth of the income distribution are 27 times as likely as those from the bottom tenth to achieve upper income status as adults.

—Only 1 male in 5 exceeds his father's social status through individual effort and achievement.

—The employment, earnings, and social mobility gaps which separate blacks and whites have scarcely changed in America in a century.

"The dynamics of our social structure are not likely to produce more equality of opportunity unless there is more equality to begin with," the Carnegie Council report says.

Tech Will Recognize Distinguished Grads

Two oil company executives with petroleum engineering backgrounds, a California medical doctor and a Lubbock nutritionist have been named 1979 "distinguished alumni" of Texas Tech.

The four, Charles Robert Black of London, president and general manager of Texaco Iran Ltd.; Roy Butler of Ardmore, Okla., president of Noble Affiliates Inc., Dr. Scott M. Grundy, chief of the metabolic section of the Veterans Administration Hospital in San Diego, Calif.; and Dr. Mina Wolf Lamb of Lubbock, professor emeritus of food and nutrition at Tech, will be recognized at the 13th annual "Distinguished Alumnus" banquet at 7 p.m., Friday, Sept. 7, in the University Center Ballroom. The annual recognition dinner is sponsored by the Texas Tech Ex-Students Association and the university.

Names of recipients and plans for the dinner were announced by Bill Dean, executive director of the Ex-Students Association, and Tom Craddick of Midland, ex-students president.

A petroleum engineering graduate in 1958 and native of Abilene, Black will be cited for "a distinguished career with Texaco Inc., beginning as a field engineer in Hobbs in 1958 and working up through various engineering positions into management."

In 1974 he was named assistant to the vice president in the producing department (Eastern Hemisphere), then manager of Middle East operations in 1976. Seven months later he was made president and general manager of Texaco Iran Ltd. based in London.

Butler, a native of Rising Star, will take over the appointed position of chief executive officer of Noble Affiliates Inc. on Jan. 1, 1980.

He received the bachelor's degree in petroleum engineering in 1949 and the master's in geology in 1950, both from Texas Tech, then began his engineering career with Continental Oil in 1950. Five years later he joined Samedan Oil Corp. and worked out of Ardmore in oil and gas producing areas. After becoming president in 1965, he remained with the company until 1974. He was then named executive vice president of Noble Affiliates, Samedan's parent company.

He has been active in civic and

Minorities Criticize SPAG

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In an effort to increase minority representation in the South Plains Association of Governments and thereby enhance chances of bringing additional federal funds into the area, approximately 100 Lubbock residents met Wednesday to organize a lobbying effort.

The primarily Mexican-American and black participants, joined by a handful of whites, said their new-formed Conference of Organizations will press for increased representation of SPAG's board and the subsequent creation of an Economic Development District.

SPAG critics at the meeting spoke out against "insulting remarks about Chicanos and minorities in West Texas," which they said were voiced at last week's SPAG meeting.

"They (SPAG board members) said we were not capable of serving on the board," Bidal Aguero said. "They said we would rather turn back $5 million (in federal funds) than add more minorities to the board."

Creation of an EDD area overlapping the SPAG area could bring more federal funding into the 15-county region. But the federal government said establishment of the district is contingent on increasing SPAG's minority representation.

Several SPAG members at the Aug. 14 meeting objected to seeking the EDD designation, saying it would mean having the federal government "tell SPAG how to operate."

Lubbock OIC representative Diana Henderson, who attended the last SPAG meeting, said she has worked with the members for a long time, adding "everybody on the SPAG board is not a racist."

But, she added, "when do we (blacks and Mexican-Americans) get to the point that we have proven ourselves" and can get representation on the board.

According to Human Relations Commission chairman Theron Cole, in order for SPAG to be approved as an EDD, the board's by-laws must be altered to comply with federal guidelines calling for "the same percentage of minorities on the board as the percent of minorities in the region."

Wednesday, a sufficient number of counties contacted agreed to place the issue of an EDD on the SPAG agenda for Sept. 11, Cole said. To apply for the EDD designation, it was necessary to have 12 counties, or 75 percent, agree to discuss the issue.

Having the designation would mean the area would be eligible to receive grant money for examination of area problems, to have a specialist submit proposals for solutions and to receive public work grants and business loans anywhere in the district, Cole said.

"The only problem is if SPAG refuses to change its by-laws," he added.

"Right now, today, we have the 12 counties necessary," Miss Henderson stressed. "Our strategy should be how we can keep those 12 counties to stay and vote for (for EDD),".

Fearing that before the Sept. 11 meeting some counties could change their votes, community representatives outlined a campaign blitz which "would let SPAG know the federal government is not the only one who wants the EDD."

One approach discussed was calling each of the SPAG board members to find out what they think about the EDD and how they will vote at the next meeting.

"The call would be followed by a letter either thanking them for what they said or saying something else," said Social Action Services representative Sister Regina Foppe.

Another recommendation was to have a seminar before the meeting to educate the people "on EDA and SPAG and the board."

Representatives agreed to do the legwork for the phone calls and letters, but showed the most enthusiasm for a proposed rally Sept. 9.

"A rally would have one of the biggest impacts as a follow-up to the letters and phone calls," said Marcelo Tafoya. "We would voice an opinion that is not a march and that is not a picket."

Noting the friction between the two groups in the past, Mexican-American and black leaders sharply reminded residents of both communities to work "toward the goal of a better life for all our people."

Lawyer Robert Davidow, who was involved in a federal court challenge to the Lubbock election system, noted, "there was cooperation between the Chicanos and the blacks" in that case.

An emotional Gilbert Herrera told the group, "I believe that if my tax money is going into the city I have a right to know how it's going to be spent."

He told the blacks and Chicanos in attendance, "You cannot survive on your own. It's about time for you to get on your feet and do what's right."

Theron Cole added, "We need to get to the people who will be voting (on the

Oil Firms Urging Gas Competition

DALLAS (AP) — With gasoline lines all but evaporated, service station operators are beginning to compete again, and one Mobil dealer says his supplier is pressuring him to sell all of his increased allocation.

Jerry Etheredge, operator of Promenade Car Care in the suburb of Richardson, said Mobil told him — in a letter dated May 18 — that the gasoline crisis was temporary.

"We recognize that the current hours reduction is due to a temporary product limitation resulting in gasoline being allocated to your location," Etheredge quoted the letter as saying. "However, when your location's allocation permits, or when supply limitations are removed, we fully expect a return to your hours of operation (as contained in the station lease)."

"The minute I got the letter, I was enraged," Etheridge said. He said the letter noted that a Mobil representative had already talked with him about the situation. "That never happened," Etheredge said. "I told them that never happened, and they said, 'Jerry, just be advised that you got the letter.'"

Etheredge said he is receiving 97 percent of the gasoline delivered to him in August 1978, up 12 percent since the beginning of August.

He also contended Mobil's prices are too high and that the company is insensitive to dealers' problems by demanding increased sales.

"The prices are so high to dealers at present, that if we added the Department of Energy allowance of 15.4 percent (profit), that puts us at more than a dollar a gallon for super unleaded right here in Dallas," he said.

Etheredge said the price he must pay Mobil is nearing 79 cents a gallon for regular. "They're going to try to force us to lower our prices and force us to absorb the loss," he said. "They have not done a damn thing to help the dealers."

But Russell Pfaff, Mobil's regional general manager in Chicago, denied Etheredge's allegations.

"Mobil under no circumstances

Slow Air Waves Cause Precipitation Rise

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Slow-moving air currents, largely responsible for a dry 1978, are producing unusually large amounts of rainfall over the South Plains this year.

Already, 18.01 inches of rain have accumulated in Lubbock gauges this year, almost five more than the normal 13.07 inches of precipitation usually received by the end of August.

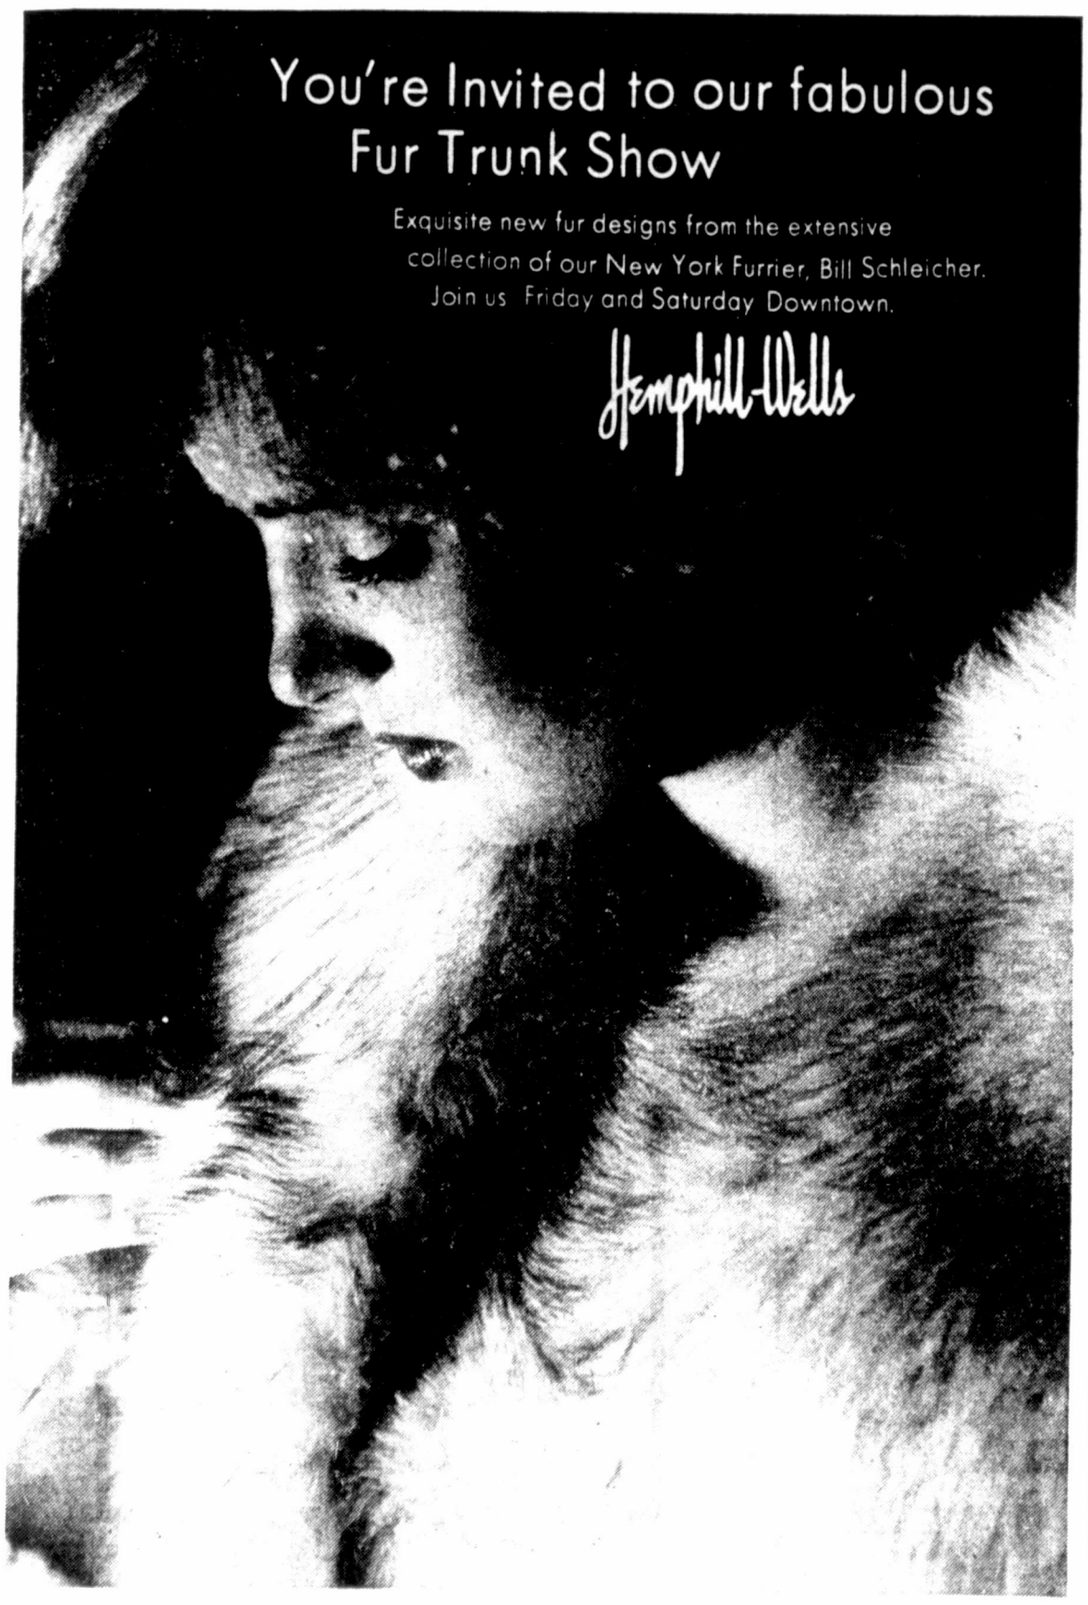

The pattern also is being reported by other West Texas cities, where in some cases 1979 rain totals already have surpassed annual averages and 1978 rainfall amounts.

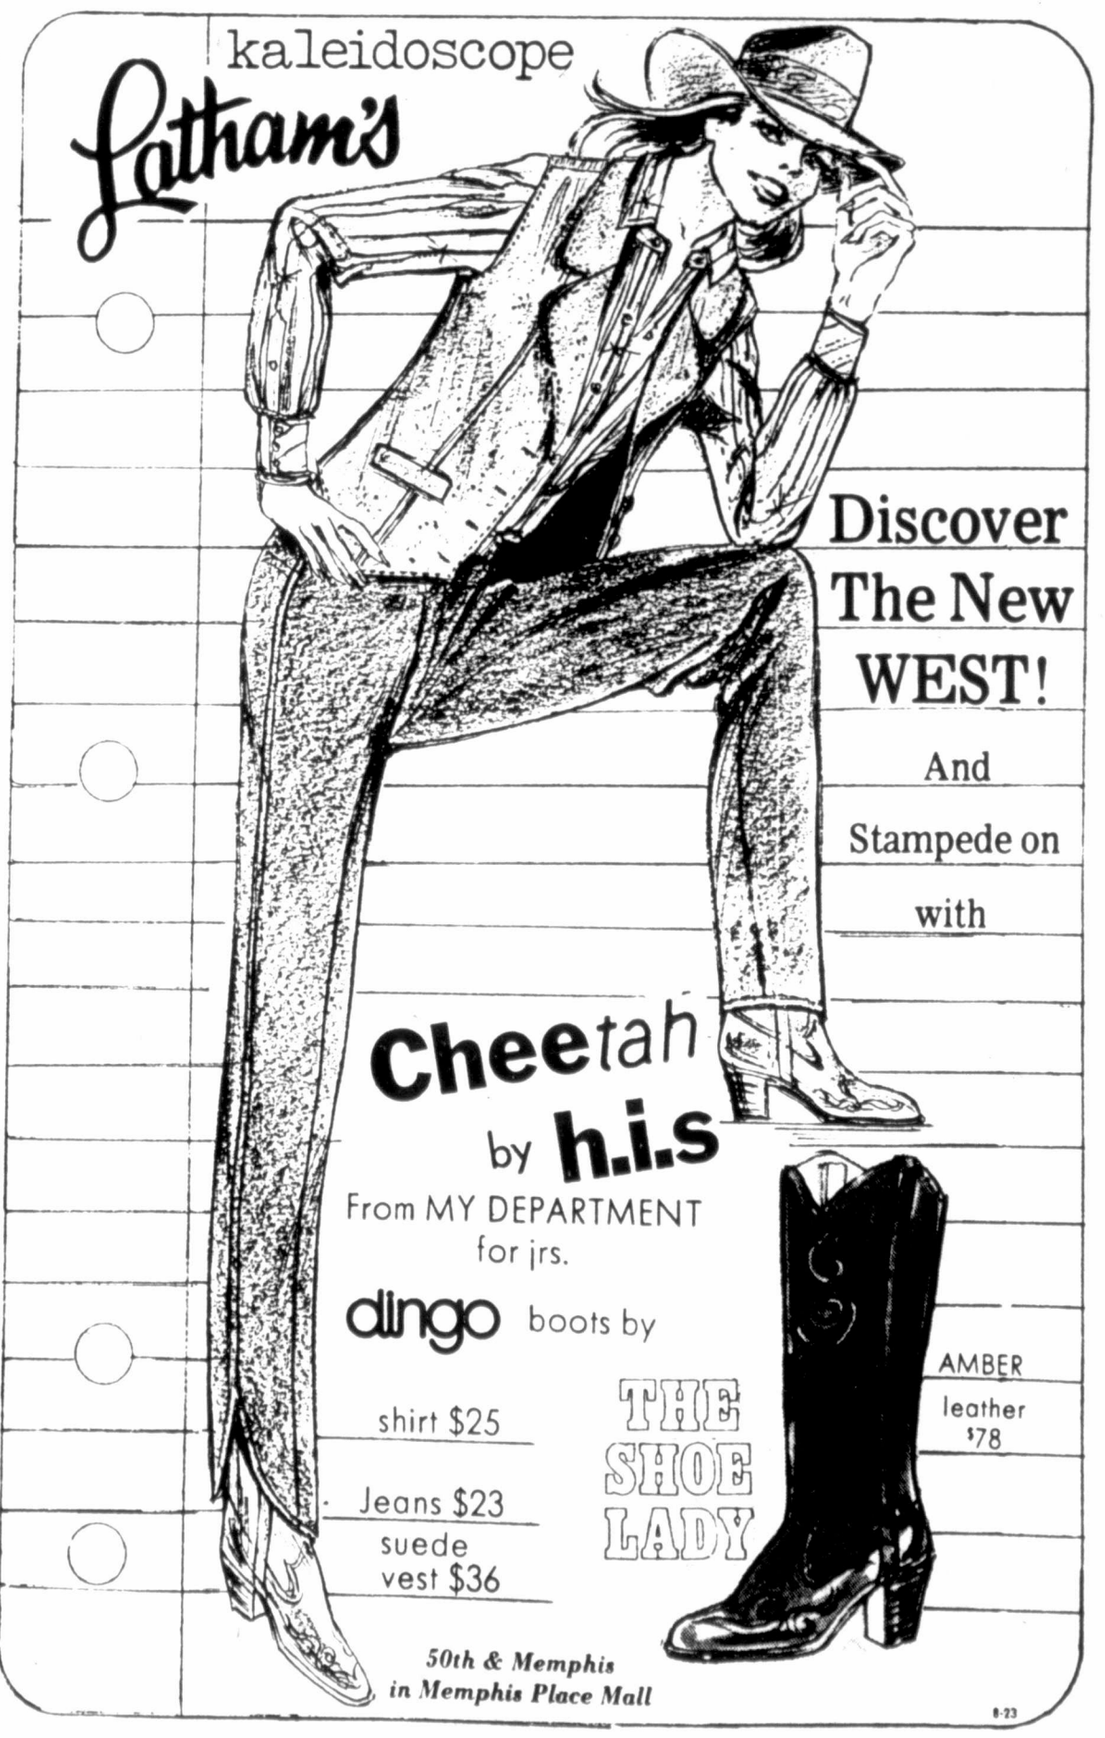

In Plainview, rainfall amounts already total almost 3 inches more than the average 12-month total. City gauges show that the 23.02 inches of rain which fell over the city the past eight months, are double the amounts reported during the same period in 1978.

Figures recorded by Robert Stanley Sr. in Matador also correspond with observations made over much of the rest of West Texas.

In Matador this year, Stanley has recorded 22.76 inches of moisture, more than two inches above the town's ex-

Diet-conscious Consumers Consider Yogurt Delicious Substitute

ROSEMONT, Ill. (Special) — Yogurt is the fastest growing dairy product on the market. The tangy dairy food has become popular for its convenience, versatility and taste.

The numerous varieties: sweetened, fruit-flavored, sundae-style, and frozen yogurts, have all contributed to the popularity of this age-old product. More than 20 flavors are available. The newest item on the market is a yogurt drink, now available from several large dairy companies in the country.

The yogurt meal, particularly the yogurt lunch, has gained many fans among dieters. At approximately 225 calories when sweetened fruit is added, the yogurt meal contains fewer calories than a 370 calorie meal of tuna salad sandwich and potato chips. Yogurt is only slightly higher calorie-wise, than milk. An eight-ounce cup of plain yogurt has 180 calories compared to the same amount of whole milk with 160 calories. A tablespoon of yogurt, used in recipes instead of sour cream (25-30 calories) or mayonnaise (101 calories), contains only seven to nine calories.

Yogurt is made from a mixture of fresh, partially skimmed milk and nonfat dry milk, although fresh whole milk and skim milk may be used, too. The final product may also contain sugar; flavorings; colorings; and fruit in the form of pieces, purees, concentrates, or preserves.

Yogurt additives help produce a firmer texture or prevent water separation. If some liquid does separate, it is perfectly safe. Just stir it back into the yogurt, or pour it off.

Although there have been many changes in yogurt making, the basic principle of fermentation still guides production. First, the milk mixture is pasteurized and homogenized. Then pure bacteria cultures are added. These friendly bacteria convert lactose (milk sugar) to lactic acid. The acid causes the milk to curdle or thicken, creating the tangy flavor. Heating the bactria and milk mixture causes the fermentation to occur. Fermentation is also the process by which home yogurt-makers work.

If you don't have one of these specialized appliances, it's easy to make your own yogurt in the oven. Preheat the oven to 100 degrees. Have several clean glass jars or custard cups ready to hold the amount of milk you are preparing. This may be prewarmed in the oven. The yogurt recipe calls for a pint of milk. You may add 1/3 cup of dry milk to the whole or skim milk for creamier yogurt.

Heat milk to 180 degrees, or almost boiling. Cool it to lukewarm (115 degrees). Then add two or three tablespoons of plain yogurt at room temperature, and stir well. Pour the milk into the prepared containers, cover with plastic wrap, and place in the warmed oven.

The milk with the added yogurt should reach a custardy consistency in three to four hours. If you use a yogurt culture from a specialty food store, it may take seven to eight hours to reach the right consistency. Check every half hour. Refrigerate when ready. Your yogurt should keep six to seven days.

Reserve a small amount from this first batch to use for another batch. Preferably, yogurt should be not older than five days when used as a starter.

If you wish to make fruit yogurt, have the warm, sweetened, crushed fruit in the bottom of the jars before adding the milk and yogurt. Yogurt should be gently folded into other ingredients if you use it in cooking, since beating breaks down its texture.

Yogurt is the gourmet secret in this recipe for Shrimp Stroganoff. Besides adding a delicious rich flavor, the yogurt is an excellent source of protein and calcium in this perfect-for-company entree.

SHRIMP STROGANOFF

3 tbsps. butter
½ cup chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. dill weed
1 can (10-½ oz.) beef broth
1 can (2 oz.) sliced mushrooms
2 cups cooked shrimp
1 cup plain yogurt at room temperature
Hot buttered noodles or rice

In large skillet, melt butter; saute onion and garlic until onion is tender. Sir in flour, salt and dill weed. Remove from heat; gradually stir in beef broth and mushrooms with liquid. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add shrimp; heat over low heat 5-10 minutes. Stir in yogurt; heat to serving temperature (do not boil). Serve over noodles or rice. 4-6 servings.

Ways with Flavored or Plain Yogurt:

• Blend with mayonnaise for fruit salad dressing.

• Use as topping for soups, pancakes, waffles and pies.

• Substitute one cup yogurt for one cup cold water in making gelatin salads.

• Make a parfait by alternating layers of smooth yogurt and fruit.

Ways with Plain Yogurt:

• Flavor with sugar and dash of vanilla; top with cinnamon or grated orange rind; serve over fruit.

• Stir in jam, preserves, honey, maple syrup, brown sugar, nuts, or spices for a nutritious and tasty snack.

• Use as a dressing for potato salad or coleslaw.

• Serve plain or with chives as a topping for baked potato, or as a party dip.

• Use as the liquid ingredient for a quiche, the sauce in a chicken casserole or chicken ala king, or as a pie ingredient.

• Yogurt contributes a tender crumb to pound cake, crepes, or pancakes.

Cooking with Yogurt:

• Spare the heat. Low temperatures and short heating times prevent the yogurt from separating (the flavor is not affected — only the appearance).

• Add a small amount of cornstarch or flour to yogurt to help prevent separation when baking with yogurt.

• Use yogurt to thin condensed cream soups for sauces; you'll like the new flavor.

• Yogurt fills in for buttermilk in biscuits and pancakes when thinned with about half again as much water.

• To add yogurt to a hot mixture, stir a small amount of the hot mixture into the yogurt first, and then combine that mixture with the remaining hot mixture.

• Yogurt alone should not be broiled for a glaze as is often done with dairy sour cream. However, if combined with flour, yogurt makes an excellent broiled glaze.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Many couples who live together without marriage say, "We don't need a piece of paper to make our commitment binding. A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing!"

May I point out that when a person buys an automobile he had better have that "piece of paper" or he could be in a lot of trouble.

Also, a driver's license is just "a piece of paper," but you'd better not be caught driving without it.

And when a person graduates from high school, college or a trade school, that "piece of paper" can make the difference between getting a job and not getting one.

We live our lives with pieces of paper, beginning with a birth certificate and ending with a death certificate. And let's not forget the will — another very important piece of paper.

So when I hear people say, "A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing," I'm reminded of the classic old adage: "Ignorance is bliss."

Paper Is Proof

Dear Paper: Granted, written documentation makes life immeasurably less complicated, but common-law marriages have been recognized as legal and binding for a long time in some states.

Forgive my pickiness, but the "classic old adage" you refer to is not "ignorance is bliss." It's "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." ("Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College" by Thomas Gray.)

DEAR ABBY: I feel like a silly adolescent writing to you about this, I've always respected your advice.

I'm a 26-year-old woman, never married, who is currently dating a man my age who is in the same boat.

I care about him, but there's the problem. He doesn't kiss very well. To be honest about it, the man just doesn't know how to kiss at all.

Please don't tell me to talk to him about it. I just couldn't. I'm afraid his feelings might be hurt and I'd never see him again. I am very much attracted to him and, given a chance, I think we might be good for each other. Please help.

Frustrated

Dear Frustrated: You need not tell him anything. Show him by kissing him the way you want to be kissed. Unless he's a total lummox, he'll catch on.

HEALTHY FARE — A fresh vegetable platter, highlighted by Norway sardines, is perfect fare for casual meal situations and is low in calories.

Fresh Sardine Salad Provides Nutritious Meal

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (Special) — The sardine from Norway is known as the little fish with the big value. They offer great nutrition, they're convenient to store and use, and their versatility lends them to all kinds of meal situations.

A powerhouse of nutrition, Norway sardines are uniquely good for you. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, sardines are "one of the best low-cost sources of high-quality food for human consumption." A three-ounce serving contains an average 40 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for protein. That's nearly as much protein as is found in a similar serving of cooked hamburger.

Norway sardines also are an excellent source of calcium, a nutrient that many adults are often short of. Vitamin D, the nutrient that is added to milk, also can be found in sardines — in fact, a whole day's vitamin D is packed into a three-ounce sardine serving.

And there's more. Sardines from Norway provide such vitamins and minerals as iron, magnesium, phosphorous, niacin and Vitamin B12. They're an excellent food choice for dieters because they offer high nutrition for a modest amount of calories — only 250 calories in a three-ounce serving (drained weight.)

For all this nutrition you also get a food that's easy to store on the kitchen shelf and ready to use in a moment's notice. Keep sardines on hand for assembling hefty lunchtime sandwiches, or for instant hors d'oeuvres served with crackers and a wedge of cheese. Sardines are great take-alongs for the backpack, fishing or camping trip (men particularly enjoy them.)

Here, sardines from Norway are combined with other healthy foods — potatoes, cheese, fresh spinach and tomatoes — in a luncheon or light supper salad. Served with a sour cream-based dressing, this salad is perfect fare for warm summer or early fall meals.

SALAD OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN

¼ cup vegetable oil
3 tbsps. white wine vinegar
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 lb. potatoes (3 med.) boiled, peeled and sliced
6 cups torn spinach
2 cans (3¾ ozs. ea.) Norway sardines in oil, drained
2 med. tomatoes, sliced
8 ozs. Cheddar cheese, cut in julienne strips
Midnight Dressing (recipe follows)

In small bowl whisk together oil, vinegar and parsley. Add pototoes; toss gently; chill. On large platter or individual serving plates arrange spinach, sardines, tomatoes, cheese and potatoes. Garnish with lemon wedges, if desired. Pass Midnight Dressing separately. Makes four servings.

Midnight Dressing: In small bowl whisk together 1/3 cup each mayonnaise and sour cream, 1½ tablespoons prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish and 2 sliced green onions. Makes about 1 cup.

Warmth, Versatility, Guidelines To Proper Selection Of New Coat

NEW YORK (AP) — A new coat is always a wardrobe investment, so "sightsee" a bit before you buy, advises the Fiber Information Center, which points out that guidelines should be warmth, versatility and personal pleasure.

With luxurious quilts that look more at home on city streets than on the mountain trail and man-made fiber "furs" that look and feel like the real thing, the range of current coats is large, fashion experts at the center report.

As you start your pre-winter hunting trip for the right coat, look for some of the newest body-warming and eye-warming trends, they suggest.

The "new-generation" quilt coats are weather-resistant and offer warmth without weight. The Puff Coat, the latest designer answer to the problem of keeping warm, looks like a sleeping bag walking, and is actually called "a walking environment." Like many other kinds of quilted looks, it's made with a nylon shell and polyester fiberfill quilting.

The great variety in quilted styles this season makes it easy to find one to suit your shape, the stylists at the center note. If you're concerned about looking like a walking cocoon, try one of the slimmer styles.

The newest look is a full-length, side-toggled and fitted quilt coat, inspired by the fencer's jacket. There are quilts that serve as rugged, daytime storm coats and then reverse to sparkling iridescence for evening.

Along with quilts, the fun-fakes offer man-made "furs" that are more drapeable and durable than previously because the "fur" side is often backed with woven or knit polyester. They maintain their shape and offer light-weight, easy-care comfort, stylists at the center say.

This season there are "species" such as simulated fox, lynx, raccoon and mink in luxuriously soft, long-wearing modacrylic and acrylic. Styles include such imaginative looks as a trapper's vest, complete with fuzzy tails, a completely reversible storm coat with a "furry" overshell of "lynx," and numerous toggled jackets, as well as evening styles with an elegant Perisan-lamb look and touches like jeweled collars and buttons.

Most such coats should be cleaned at least once or twice during the wearing season, the Fiber Information Center advises. Always check the fabric-care label, doubly important because of various lining materials.

A good care tip for all coats: let them dry thoroughly before storing in a closet. Never place them near a direct heat source such as a radiator or fireplace.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

When declaring or defending, any additional chance, no matter how slight, to make or break the contract should not be overlooked. It is simple arithmetic that 51 percent is more than 50 percent.

Six no trump is the proper contract on the North-South hands, for it is unbeatable on any lie of the cards. However, neither player did anything seriously wrong on the above auction. North correctly showed the ace of spades before supporting diamonds — he had slam aspirations. Once South cue-bid the ace of hearts, North wasted no time in getting where he wanted to be. While South's decision to push on to the grand slam was speculative, he had decided that, at worst, it would depend on a club finesse and might be a laydown.

West led the jack of spades. Declarer won in dummy, drew trumps and took the club finesse with a prayer, but the gods were not kind. Down one.

Declarer was a bit hasty in putting all his money on the club finesse. He had not yet investigated other possibilities. The heart suit offered a slight prospect of providing a discard.

If either defender started with exactly Q-J-x in hearts, declarer can set up dummy's ten of hearts. That is a remote chance, but it can be tested while keeping the club finesse in reserve.

Correct technique is for declarer to win the first spade trick in his hand and then draw trumps. Now he cashes the ace and king of hearts, enters dummy with the ace of spades and ruffs a heart. As it happens, both the queen and jack drop, so declarer can cross to the ace of clubs, discard a club on the ten of hearts and claim his contract.

And if the two heart honors do not drop? Declarer is no worse off. He is in his hand and he can take the club finesse for his slam. But he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has given the contract his best shot.

Clip 'n' Cook

SOUPER SINGLE QUICHE

1 slice white bread
1 envelope instant onion soup mix
2/3 cup light cream or half and half
2 eggs, beaten
1/3 cup shredded Swiss cheese (about 1½ oz.)

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Into bottom of two-cup casserole or remakin, press bread; bake until lightly browned.

Meanwhile, in medium bowl, thoroughly blend instant onion soup mix, cream, eggs and cheese. Pour into casserole; bake five minutes. Reduce oven to 350 degrees and bake an additional 20 minutes or until quiche tests done. Makes one serving.

American Education System Receives Bad Grades

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer

A new "report card" on the state of education in America is out, and it say the country is letting down a whole group of kids whom you now will mostly find doing things like:

Working now and then at the car-wash;

Or mugging for a living; or getting dishpan hands at greasy spoon eateries; or just killing time or swilling booze on doorsteps, pushing narcotics on street corners or shooting dice on the sidewalks of the nation's ghettos.

The "report card" says schools and society both flunk in meeting the needs of millions of youths who went to school but did not aim for college. Included are 2.5 million youths between 16 and 21, washed up with education and mostly out of work.

Economically disadvantaged, they are black and Hispanic mainly. But whites also are in the ranks.

The youths share bleak job prospects. Even when employed, they rate only dead-end jobs — messengers, dishwashers, stock clerks.

The "report card" is the work of the American Assembly, an affiliate of Columbia University set up by Dwight D. Eisenhower when he headed Columbia. It runs think tanks "on matters of vital public interest."

"Youth unemployment is one of the nation's most difficult domestic problems," a braintrust of leaders declared at closing sessions of a four-day Assembly-sponsored think tank on that topic.

The braintrust included Prof. Eli Ginsberg of Columbia University, David Mahoney of Norton-Simon Inc., Vernon Jordan of the National Urban League, Alan Kistler of the AFL-CIO, President Albert Shanker of the American Federation of Teachers, Atlanta Superintendent of schools Alonzo Crim, and others.

"The most serious aspect of the problem is the large and growing gap between the joblessness of minority and other youth," the Assembly said in the report drawn up in the meeting in Harriman, N.Y.

"The unemployment rate of black youth, exceeding 20 percent for each year during the past quarter century, has risen alarmingly in recent years to over 30 percent..."

"Similarly the unemployment problems of Hispanic youth are severe, although less well documented. In contrast, the unemployment rates of white youth...has remained about half that of minorities."

The Assembly lists among causes for the problem some dub "social dynamite":

—Deficiencies in education and training.

—Race, sex and age discrimination.

Schools:

"It is crucial that all students emerge from the schools with the basic skill levels required for employment in available entry-level jobs.

"A secondary but critical role should be the development of knowledge of and contact with the world of work."

The government:

"On the average, federal support for college students is four times as high on a per capita basis as support for high school dropouts.

"We recommend a significant increase in the federal resources available for in-school and out-of-school programs for youth who are not college bound."

Employers and unions:

"Closer linkages between education and work...established jointly by schools, employers, and unions through...vocational skill development, programs of cooperative education, vocational exploration, and job placement.

"These groups should cooperatively develop performance standards for...these programs especially targeted toward those not intending to go to college."

Alternative institutions:

"The goals of these institutions...should be basic skill development and work preparation.

"...these institutions should be carefuly monitored and held accountable for effectiveness in achieving goals.

"Employers should be actively involved..."

School counselors:

"Employment counseling services in schools could be...transformed to include job development and job placement. These counselors should develop a wider knowledge of the training, work and educational options available to

Youth programs:

"Training programs that provide basic skill development — apprenticeship, institutional skills training, on-the-job training, Job Corps — should be expand-

"All employment and training programs should include parttime work experience programs...with penalties for poor performance and rewards for exemplary performance."

Man Re-Enters Seminary After Layoff Of 50 Years

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Fifty years ago Eugene McCarty was on his way to becoming a Roman Catholic priest. Now, he will try again.

This week McCarty, 70, will enter Sacred Heart seminary in Hales Corner, Wisc., in suburban Milwaukee.

The Warminster, Bucks County, resident needs at least two years of study before he can be ordained, but the tragedy and disappointment of the last 50 years have more than prepared him for the calling.

When he was 20, McCarty was on the last legs of his chosen path. He had spent three years studying at the Augustinian Academy on Staten Island and was one month into the noviate at New Hamburg, N.Y. when his father died.

With six younger children at home, he was forced to drop out of the seminary and return to Pennsylvania to support the family.

As his younger brothers grew, McCarty tried to return to the priesthood but was rebuffed.

"They said I had been out in the world too long," he said. "They said my class was too far ahead of me, that they needed younger men."

Several years later he married. He and his wife, Marjorie, had 8 daughters and 2 sons.

He built a career as a successful construction engineer.

"My wife and I used to talk about what each would do when the other died. I told her that if she died first, I would try to get into the seminary," he said.

Town To Stage Bull Run Again Despite Dangers

TECATE, Mexico (UPI) — Tecate's first annual "running of the bulls" has been declared a great success and will be repeated next year, despite the death of one American tourist and injuries to more than a dozen other persons.

Dell Schriever, 56, died hours after he suffered massive head injuries Sunday in the border city's first "Pamplonada," copied from the famed running of the bulls held each year in Pamplona, Spain, made famous in Ernest Hemingway's novel, "The Sun Also Rises."

"The man's death is unfortunate," said a spokesman at the Baja California Tourism office in Tijuana, sponsor of the event, "but a lot of people received much enjoyment from the day."

The event, sponsored by the state to boost tourist traffic to the town of 40,000 about 25 miles east of Tijuana, drew more than 12,000 spectators.

More than 400 runners, mostly American tourists, were chased for 13 blocks along Calle Libertad by 21 young bulls and cows of the fighting breed.

Schriever, of Campo, Calif., a plumber at the San Onofre nuclear power station, "was brushed by one of the bulls and he fell and the other bulls ran right over him," said Cathy Clevenger, a friend. 8

Bergland Plans Ag Meeting For Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS (Special) — Comments and suggestions on the economic and social issues affecting the structure of American agriculture and rural life will be gathered at a public meeting here Dec. 6, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

The meeting here, one of 10 public meetings to be held for this purpose, will accomodate persons living in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Bergland and other top officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will attend each meeting, which are part of the "national dialogue on agricultural structure" Bergland announced in March.

"We are at a point in our history where a broad-based public discussion of the issues that shape national policies is need to promote the kind of agriculture and rural living this nation wants for the future," the secretary said.

"The forces that have shaped American agriculture as we know it today need to be re-examined. Our intent is to develop the most comprehensive package of factural information and recommendations for use in proposing future policies, especially new farm legislation when the current farm bill expires in 1981," he said.

Bergland said the term "structure" is difficult to define in precise terms. However, he broadly defined it as these issues:

— Number and sizes of farms, and how they vary by region and type of operation.

— Ownership and control of resources, including the form of business organization, its tenure, and its purchasing and marketing arrangements.

— Degree of production specialization and how it affects managerial and technologocal requirements.

— Barriers to entering and leaving farming.

— Social and economic characteristics of farm operators and owners.

Bergland said USDA is compiling a series of background issue papers with basic facts and statistics outlining the major questions involved in structure. These will be printed and distributed during September and October, he noted.

Critical areas where solid, factural information is lacking will be identified, Bergland said. He said a research agenda will be developed for these areas, and studies done by USDA, universities, foundations and other groups.

Anyone who wants to comment at any of the public meetings should sign up in advance, Bergland pointed out. Those who want to comment, but cannot attend one of the meetings should send their suggestions to the project coordinator, Structure of Agriculture, USDA, Washington, D. C., 20250.

All comments, whether written or oral, will be recorded and given careful consideration, Bergland said.

Irwin Named To Fill New Bailey County Job

MULESHOE (Special) — A new assistant county extension agent for agriculture has been named for Bailey County.

Jimmie Fred Irwin will fill the newly created position, effective Sept. 1. He will assist county extension agent Spencer Tanksley in conducting educational programs in agriculture and in providing leadership for the 4-H youth activities conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in the county.

Irwin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Ted Irwin of Lubbock. He was born in Big Spring and grew up in Lubbock, graduating from Estacado High School.

He received a B.S. degree in 1977 and will receive a M.S. degree this month, both from Texas Tech University. While pursuing his graduate degree, he has served as a research assistant at Texas Tech.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures closed lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Commercial selling in wheat and corn encouraged selling by local traders and commission houses. The higher prices of Tuesday encouraged farmers to step up the pace of country wheat sales, leading to some offsetting hedge-type sales by commercial grain dealers on the futures mmarket.

Trader sentiment about the net effect of current heavy rains in the Midwest continued to waffle. Although many traders Tuesday seemed to view moisture levels as exeessive, prevailing sentiment Wednesday was that the rains would benefit the soybean crop.

Parker Joins Commission On Energy

Dr. Harry W. Parker of the Texas Tech University chemical engineering faculty will begin a leave of absence Sept. 1 to join the Engineering Societies Commission on Energy Inc., where he will serve primarily as consultant and adviser to the U.S. Department of Energy in the areas of coal, oil shale, petroleum and natural gas.

The commission (ESCOE) of Washington, D.C., is a non-profit corporation established by professional engineering societies to provide independent, objective assessments of federal government energy research and development programs.

Its staff evaluates the design and economics of alternative new energy technologies; conducts economic evaluations of processes, techniques, systems, methods and equipment to determine potential for commercial application; and develops methodologies for comparing the relative merits and costs of disparate technological alternatives.

The engineers-in-residence serve for approximately two years. The results of their studies are made available to the government, technical community and the general public.

Parker joined the Texas Tech faculty in 1970. His research interests have included enhanced petroleum production methods, use of oil shale, small gas producers for agricultural power, conversion of woody residues to animal feeds by thermochemical methods, and the economics of energy production.

Parker earned the bachelor's degree with honors in 1953 at Texas Tech University. He earned the master's and doctor's degrees in chemical engineering at Northwestern University. For 14 years he worked in energy related research for the Phillips Petroleum Co. During that time he was the inventor of more than 80 U.S. patents, largely in the field of enhanced oil recovery.

In addition to his teaching he has developed more than 25 lectures and publications on energy topics during the past two years. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and the Society of Petroleum Engineers of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers.

CURATOR NAMED

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Marshall Pei-Sheng Wu has been appointed curator of Asian art at the University of Michigan Museum of Art. Wu was formerly assistant curator in the Asian Art Department of the Honolulu Academy of Arts. He is the first person to hold the newly created position at the U-M Museum, whose Asian art collection "is considered one of the finest in an American university museum."

Mishap Restores Sight Of Man

OTTAWA (AP) — Bob Aubrey tripped over his seeing eye dog last week, jarred himself, and somehow regained his sight after eight years of blindness, he said.

The 50-year-old man had suffered from Lebere's optic disease, he said, a hereditary disease that also affects his brother.

He said he tripped while heading to open the door, and when he got there, he saw two men.

"It is really hard to describe how I felt ...it was just an incredible feeling, actually kind of scary," he said, adding his doctor could not explain why he regained his sight.

Luxury Houseboat Sinks In Storm

CHADLER, Quebec (AP) — The sinking of the luxury houseboat Jaguar V off the Gaspe coast last month was apparently caused by rough seas, a provincial police officer says. Two occupants drowned and three more are missing and feared dead.

Inspector Jean-Pierre Desgagne said tests on debris believed to have come from the 34-foot, $90,000 boat showed it probably was battered to pieces by large waves.

Jacques Laflamme, 47, and Andre Despard, 39, both of the Ottawa area, owned the boat and were aboard, police said. They faced trial later this year in connection with a multimillion dollar gambling ring which police broke in Ottawa. Laflamme's body was found, as was that of Despard's wife, Diane.

Trumpeter Besieged By Insects

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) -Being the tower trumpeter of Krakow isn't all fanfare and glory, says Kazimir Pudelko.

It gets cold up there in the winter and you can't go down for a bowl of zurek. And if you make your own in the tower on a stormy night, there are waves in the soup pot.

Lately, he says, the problem has been bugs.

"They come from the pigeon feathers," says Pudelko, shuddering in his cramped quarters high in the 500-year-old fire tower. "And they are really bad."

An amiable 26-year-old father of two, Pudelko is one of six official trumpeters working in the old brick-and-stone tower 10 stories above Krakow's medieval market square.

Every hour on the hour, the trumpeter on duty pulls an iron handle to ring out the time on a large bell. Then he puts on a firefighter's hat, opens a small window over the square and plays the two-line "Marian Fanfare."

He closes the window smartly and marches to each of the three other corners of the tower, repeating the trumpet call at each one.

Then he yanks a lever to ring it again on a smaller bell.

All six trumpeters are music-school graduates, but they are also firefighters, keeping a centuries-old lookout for fires and other dangers.

It has been, at times, a hazardous job. The fanfare ends on a broken note in memory of a trumpeter hit by a Tartar arrow in the 13th century.

"We still look for fires," Pudelko says. "But they're harder to see now with all the city lights."

Pudelko, whose name in Polish means box, shares his 24-hour shift with a partner whose name means skylark.

They spend 24 hours in the tower on a shift, each working six hours at a time. The man who starts with the 7 a.m. fanfare finishes with the noon one that is broadcast throughout Poland, bells and all.

"Our microphone was made in 1907," he says, pointing to a large black funnel-like device. "It was supposed to go to a museum once, but when they brought the new one it didn't work as well as the old one."

The old microphone hangs over the trumpeters' humble room. Little more than a box with a door, the room barely holds their one cot, two chairs, tiny table and one heater — the only heater in the tower.

A television set sits at the foot of the bed, a hot plate on a beam at the head. Two heavy beams cross the middle of the room, forcing occupants to crouch but giving Pudelko a place to hang his trumpet on a nail.

"I had friends in the tower," he says of his decision to become a trumpeter. "There was no one for an opening so I decided to take it. I had to learn how to play the trumpet. I played the clarinet."

If he stays on the job for 40 years, his trumpet will be put in a city museum. But Pudelko says 25 years is the longest anyone has stayed at it in recent years.

Each day of work means climbing up a dark, 88-step spiral stone staircase, then clambering up four more stories of wooden stairs and ladders through the dusty, pigeon-littered tower interior.

Krakow's trumpeters made local newspapers this month when they complained about an outbreak of bugs. They said they were being bitten when they played and even when they tried to rest in their tiny room.

The bugs, officials say, are mites from an estimated 5,000 pigeons' nests in the tower.

City Hall has promised to de-bug the tower later this month, when the trumpeters will move for 48 hours to yet another lofty medieval post on the other side of the square.

After the de-bugging, even better things are promised back home at the fire tower. Among these: pigeon-proofing of the centuries-old structure, a new sound system so trumpeters can play inside without opening the windows, and more heaters.

"We're even supposed to get a shower," says Pudelko.

No big changes are expected in the trumpeters' hours, however.

Bible Hero Comic Book Draws Many Complaints

LONDON (AP) — Spiderman, the Incredible Hulk and monsters from space can't teach the British Bible Society much about horror, say critics of the society's new publishing venture.

The 175-year-old organization has just published a comic-book version of the story of Samson, the Old Testament hero who lost his hair, his strength and his eyes to the beautiful Delilah.

He regained his hair and his strength in captivity and brought the temple of the Philistines crashing down on himself and more than 3,000 of his foes. The book, for youngsters 8 and over, shows it all in gory, full color.

Speaking modern English in bubble captions, Samson is also shown squeezing a lion to death and setting fire to 300 foxes who run into the Philistines' fields and set them aflame.

The high spot is the blinding of Samson — a red-hot stake being plunged into one eye, the other a burned-out socket and the hero shown full face, writhing in agony.

A first printing of 15,000 copies of "Samson the Mighty" is on sale for $1 a copy, competing on magazine stands with the usual horror, war and science fiction comics.

The Bible Society's managing editor, David Halls, says he plans similar illustrated versions for the young of the stories of Moses, Abraham and Joseph. He says he started with Samson "because he is the most sensational."

Raymond Johnston, director of the revivalist religious movement National Festival of Light, says "Samson the Mighty" panders to a thirst for violence.

"The putting out of Samson's eyes is depicted with a horrifying explicitness which is totally unnecessary," he said.

He suggested the illustration may violate the Children and Young Persons (Harmful Publications) Act passed in 1955 to curb comic book excesses.

Johnston called on the society to withdraw the book from sale and replace the blinding scene. The society said it was ready to discuss the matter with him, but Halls commented: "It is unlikely that children who can cope with the violence of the Incredible Hulk or the horror of Sleeping Beauty would be seriously worried by Samson."

The non-denominational, non-profit society was started in 1804 by the Rev. Thomas Charles, a Welsh clergyman concerned over the lack of Bibles in the Welsh language. It now publishes the Bible in 268 languages and dialects.

The comic strips are drawn by a team of French artists directed by a 70-year-old Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Pierre Thivollier. The society said he had spent much time working with poorly educated children in Paris.

Company Plans To Close Plant

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Winnebago Industries says it will close and sell its subsidized Riverside plant in about 60 days and has abandoned plans to buy 14.6 acres of airport redevelopment land at a cut-rate price.

The 131,000-square-foot plant opened in May 1978, and last fall had about 300 employees. However, the work force has dwindled to 35 as gasoline shortages and high prices have reduced demand for motor homes.

Ernest Pintor, chairman of the city's Redevelopment Agency, said the company decided to scrap plans to buy the land cheap, then sell it at a higher price, for fear of damaging its corporate image.

But plant manager Jack Kantola said they decided not to buy the land "because we're selling the plant and don't need the land."

Under a 1977 agreement that brought the company here, Winnebago was given a $1 million subsidy, and was required to build a $4 million plant. The company also was given options to two parcels of nearby land. To exercise the options, Winnebago had to invest an additional $1.5 million.

Pintor recently said Winnebago had satisfied the investment requirements and was free to buy the land for $10,000 per acre. The Redevelopment Agency said Winnebago decided to exercise the option, then changed its mind.

Aide To Seek Study Of Oil Spill Effects

BOSTON (UPI) — A top aide to Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III next week will recommend to a presidential advisory panel that federal funds be allocated to study the long-term effects of the Mexican oil well blowout.

David Clem, chief secretary to O'Neill and a Texas native, last week surveyed the coastline and offshore waters on the lieutenant governor's behalf.

O'Neill is the chairman of the Outer Continental Shelf Committee, an advisory panel that makes recommendations to the president and the secretary of the interior regarding offshore oil practices.

"We should look at the budgets of the pertinent agencies for money to study the long-term environmental impact," Clem said. "We must ensure that those baseline studies are initiated now."

During the weekend, 50 miles of the Texas shoreline were blackened by crude oil, the largest U.S. coastal area affected since the well blew out 78 days ago in the Bay of Campeche.

Dr. Patrick Parker of the University of Texas' Port Aransas research center said his staff had determined the oil is toxic to fish eggs and larvae.

"We've got our hands full right now trying to do some emergency research," he said. "But I can tell you this: It's a real problem."

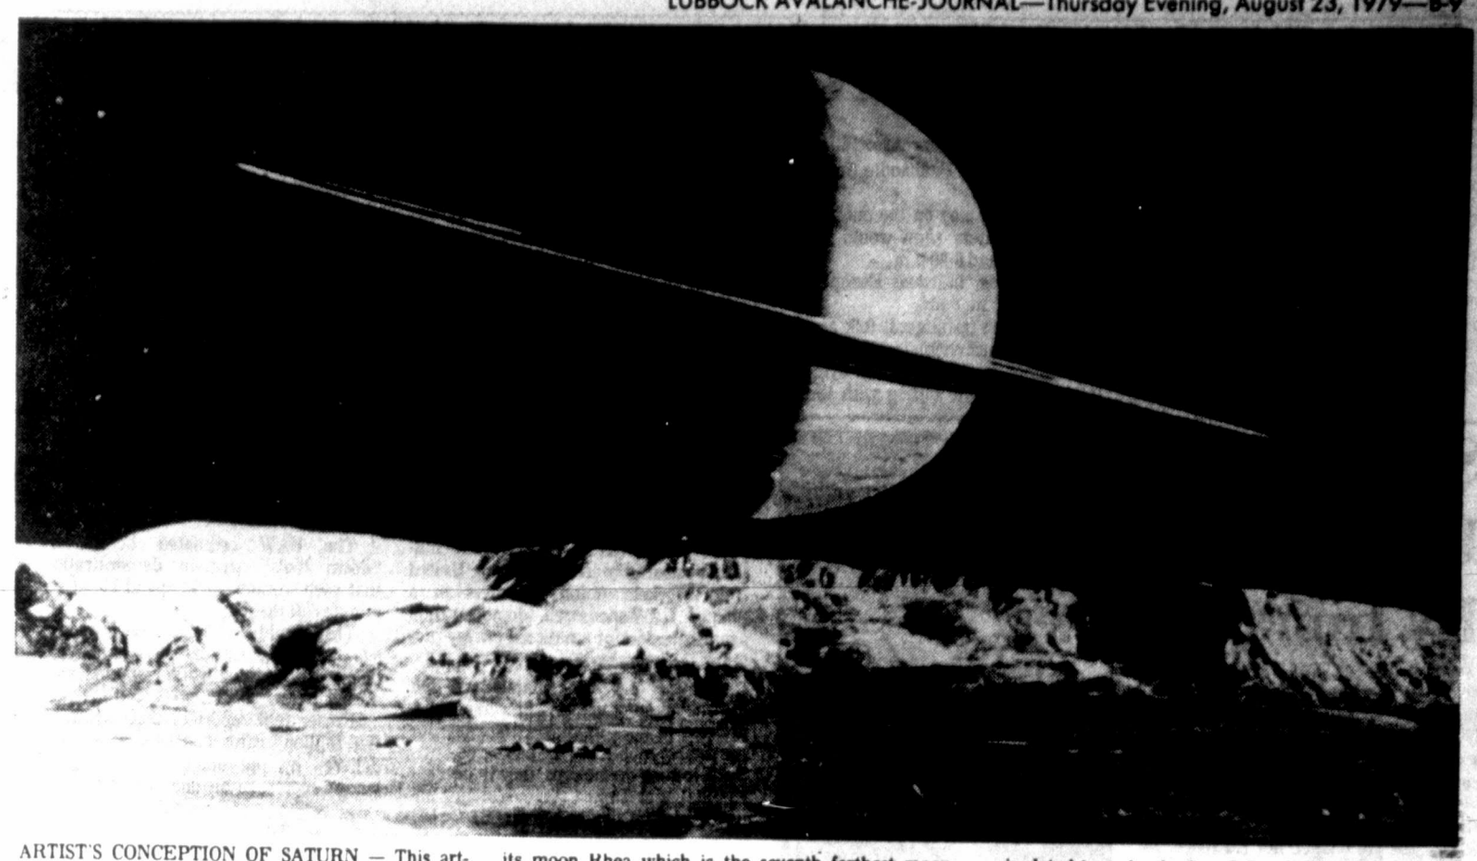

The OCS committee is scheduled to meet Aug. 29-30 in Portland, Maine. "I intend to make some general resolutions," said Clem, who will attend the session in O'Neill's place.

Among other things, Clem said he will urge the panel to press President Carter to take a personal role in negotiations with the Mexican government and to offer "what assistance we can to cap the well and aid in cleanup operations."

The Mexican government spurned offers of U.S. Coast Guard equipment and personnel until the oil slick reached U.S. Waters, Clem said.

"I'm not sure how much the State Department is pushing, given the sensitive nature of negotiations by the U.S. for Mexico's oil and natural gas," he said.

Louisiana Solon Eyes Compensation Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. David Treen, R-La., said he plans to introduce a bill that would compensate states and people damaged by the Mexican oil well blowout through the use of a national oil spill liability fund.

Treen said he wants the Mexican government to compensate Louisiana, Texas and other Gulf Coast states for damage and the cost of cleaning up any oil washed ashore from the blown-out Ixtoc I well in the Bay of Campeche.

The Mexican government should reimburse the United States, Treen said, which would in turn reimburse the liability fund.

Treen said he would send a telegram to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance stating that because oil now reaching Texas is from a well drilled by the Mexican national petroleum company, PEMEX, the government should bear responsibility for damages and cleanup costs.

Treen said the liability fund would compensate federal, state and local governments, individuals and companies for the costs of removing oil, for damage to property, for damage to or loss of natural resources, and for the loss of profits or tax revenue.

The fund also would compensate fishermen forced to curtail operations because of the spill.

A bill now pending in Congress would create a $200 million U.S. liability fund from a three-cents-per-barrel charge on oil produced in this country or imported, to be used for spills occurring after the law passes, Treen said.

He said he would seek an amendment to include damages from the Mexican spill.

Treen said Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act amendments passed last year require that the costs of a spill from operations in U.S. waters be paid by the company responsible, out of a liability fund established by that law.

"Since the Mexican operation is beyond the scope of this law, we must turn to the State Department for help," Treen said.

Treen is the ranking Republican on the subcommittee on Coast Guard and navigation of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which has jurisdiction over the bill.

Ambassador Hints Of Gas Deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador Patrick Lucey may have spoken out of turn when he said agreement is close on the purchase of natural gas from Mexico.

Washington sources said the prediction by the U.S. ambassador to Mexico took some officials by surprise.

Privately, an official who follows the talks closely said Lucey's comment seemed to have broken a tacit agreement to keep confidential the day-to-day progress of the bargaining.

It also was at odds with a statement last week by former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger that the talks were encouraging but had lost momentum recently.

Asked about the apparent conflict with Schlesinger's views, spokesmen for both the Energy and State departments would only say that they hope for an eventual agreement because a deal is in the interest of both countries.

Lucey's remarks were made to reporters covering President Carter's Mississippi River boat trip. They had asked him if he was being considered for a new government job, and his reply was:

"Right now would be a very inappropriate time for me to leave Mexico because we're very close to a deal."

The State and Energy departments and the Mexicans consistently have declined comment on the status of the negotiations which have ben under way — off and on — for nearly two years.

The talks foundered last year when Mexico's terms proved incompatible wih U.S. regulatory guidelines, and one official said the current talks are highly sensitive.

"It's very clear to everybody except Mr. Lucey," the official said. "I guess he feels he can talk about anything as long as he doesn't talk to the Palestine Liberation Organization."

That was a reference to U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young who talked with a PLO official and ended up resigning over the ensuing controversy.

"I would have said there is no cetainity of an agreement," the official said. "There are some questions that haven't been resolved. This guy (Lucey) is being more up-front than anybody else."

Lucey, a former Wisconsin Democratic governor, said both sides still hope to agree before Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo visits Washington next month.

But the source said differences on the price and quantity of the gas remain unresolved.

Bluegrass Band, Gunfighters To Perform At Fair

The Flatland Bluegrass Band and the Amarillo Gunfighters Association have been booked as free attractions for the 62nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here Sept. 22-29.

General manager Steve L. Lewis said the band would play on the outdoor stage at 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sept. 22-25 while the gunfighters' show would follow the Bob Ford "World of Magic" show daily at 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Also scheduled to perform outdoors is Vandermeide, billed as Europe's fastest hypnotist, who may be seen at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. daily.

The band consists of five male musicians performing traditional, folk and bluegrass music, with three-and four-part harmony a distinct characteristic.

Last year, the band was the featured entertainment for the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra's "Pops Nite" concert. It also shared the billing with the popular Star Wars character, Darth Vader, for Midland-Odessa's 1978 version of "Pops in the Park."

In addition, the group has performed at bluegrass festivals in Glen Rose and Kerrville as well as Hugo, Cement and Duncan, Okla. The band's first album was released earlier this year.

The gunfighters will be making their second appearance at the fair. Headed by Ace Howard, former Hollywood stuntman, the members are trained in a variety of stunts, including being shot from rooftops, throwing themselves over cliffs, leaping from galloping horses and realistic "shootouts."

The association has been "gunslinging" for 10 years from Dodge City to Mississippi and Arizona as well as in Texas.

In addition to the free attractions, an array of country and western stars have been scheduled for Fair Park Coliseum, including: the Charley Pride show, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 23; the Statler Brothers show, with Barbara Mandrell, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 24; the Eddie Rabbitt show, with Janie Fricke, 8 p.m. only Sept. 25; the Dave and Sugar show, with John Conlee, 8 p.m. only Sept. 26; the Golden Years of Country Music by South Plains College, 7 p.m. only Sept. 27; the Tom T. Hall show, with Charly McClain, 8 p.m. only Sept. 28; and the Tammy Wynette show, with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 29.

Tickets are $4, $5 and $6 for all shows except the SPC production which cost $2 and $3. All seats are reserved. Tickets may be obtained at the fair offices, 102 E. Broadway, Ed's Wagon Wheel, Luskey's Western Wear, Dunlap's or at Hemphill-Wells and Sears stores in South Plains Mall.

Seminarian Released By Inmates

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A seminarian taken hostage during communion at the Orleans Parish jail was released early today, several hours after two inmates freed a musician also taken during the service.

Neither Ferdinand Barre, about 36, who plays guitar twice a week for services in the jail chapel, nor Ed Grice, 25, who is to be ordained a Catholic priest next May, was hurt during the eight-hour siege.

The standoff began when two 23-year-old prisoners in line to receive communion grabbed Barre and Grice, who was conducting a special communion service, said Sheriff Charles Foti.

According to Foti, Donald J. Ford of New Orleans and David Webb of Violet, La., said they had weapons under towels which were wrapped around their hands.

Officers said a sheriff's deputy who was watching the service grabbed a nun and whisked her to safety, and the other prisoners filed out of the small room.

The inmates' first demand was for a car and time to escape, said Foti. When this was refused, he said they asked for the drugs cocaine and Quaaludes, and finally for beer.

They got soft drinks.

Leslie Donano, a police investigator assigned to the sheriff's department was the chief negotiator, Foti said. He was joined by SWAT team members from the police and sheriff's departments, several priests, and finally Archbishop Philip Hannan, who was concerned about Grice.

"The whole operation was just a concentrated effort from start to finish," Foti said.

UAW Protest May Cost Workers

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly five million postcards were signed by United Auto Workers union members in a unique UAW-sponsored demonstration against the lack of a national energy program, the union says.

But the question remained whether the major automakers will carry out a promise to dock employees 85 cents for the time spent signing the postcards.

"I refuse to believe they'll be that stupid," said United Auto Workers union President Douglas A. Fraser.

The cards were signed Wednesday by more than a million members of the United Auto Workers union as part of "write-in" to congressmen, senators and President Carter.

It appeared from reports around the country that many signings were scheduled just before or just after breaks, or even during breaks, to minimize disruption. That could give the companies room to say that no real work stoppage had occurred.

The UAW estimated before its "down tools" write-in demonstration that each worker would spend about six minutes off the job.

That would be 85 cents on the average, the union estimated, if employers docked the pay of workers taking part during in work time.

Fraser told reporters that "close to five million" cards had been signed for delivery by the union in Washington when Congress reconvenes next month.

If the figure reached five million, that would mean 1.25 million of the union's 1.5 million members had participated, since each worker was to sign four cards.

"I'm tired of being ripped off by the oil companies, OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) and the lack of an energy program," the cards read. "When Congress returns, I want them to enact an effective energy program."

Only in Framingham, Mass. was any large-scale disruption noted. Some 1,500 day-shift workers walked off their jobs and set up pickets at a General Motors Corp. assembly plant building Buicks and Oldsmobiles after their 10 a.m. card-signing.

They were joined by 1,500 more workers from the plant's night shift, who said they walked out in support of the wildcat walkout by the first shift.

Fraser and union Vice President Irving Bluestone sent the local a telegram calling the walkouts unauthorized and ordering the workers back.

Fall Registration Set At Tech

Registration at Texas Tech University for the 1979 fall semester will be Aug. 30-31 in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Registration packets and schedules of classes have been mailed to all students enrolled at Texas Tech during the 1979 spring semester or summer session, according to registration officials.

Students will register from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Aug. 30, and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Aug. 31. Entering freshmen who have been admitted to the university but did not attend a pre-registration conference may pick up registration packets from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 27-31 in the Coronado Room of the University Center. These packets will enable entering freshmen to register at their convenience Aug. 30-31.

Students planning to register for the fall semester must consult their advisors and have schedule cards approved before entering the coliseum.

Sherman Church Suit Planned By Critics

SHERMAN (UPI) — More than 70 critics and former parishoners plan to sue the First Pentecostal Church and its controversial pastor for $1 million, but the Rev. Charles E. Glass says he's heard that threat before.

One plaintiff, who asked not to be identified, said the group has discussed hiring attorney Stephen Hefner and plans to file a federal civil suit next week charging Glass and his followers have harassed church members because of their religious convictions.

Glass, who has been accused of breaking up families and running the church in the manner of a cult, said he was not concerned about the suit.

"They have not been harassed by me, my wife or the church," he said Wednesday. "And I'm not particularly concerned about the suit."

Glass, who denied any illegal or unethical activities at the independent Pentecostal church, said dissatisfied church members have discussed legal action against him for five years.

The plaintiffs met Tuesday in nearby Whitesboro to discuss legal plans and methods to raise funds for the suit. Couples who have not seen their grandchildren because of court-ordered separations were advised what legal action they could take to ensure visitation rights.

Glass; his wife, Mary Jo, and their followers have been frequent targets of criticism, criminal charges and church reprimand in the past year. Former members have accused them of preaching a gospel centered on sex and satanism and harassment of dissidents.

On Monday Mrs. Glass was arrested for slapping a woman in the church's prayer room. Three church members were convicted last week of trespassing during a January disturbance in Whitesboro when they allegedly were harassing former church members.

School Desegregation Hotline Installed Here

Two red hotline telephones have been installed in the Lubbock public schools central office building in an effort to keep members of the community informed about the school district's desegregation operations.

Mike Bennett, coordinator of public information for the district and his secretary, Doris Cocanougher, will staff the phones from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays until Sept. 5 in order to answer any questions about the general integration plan, bus routes or time schedules.

Those seeking information concerning the plan may call the hotline number, 744-1212.

Bennett said he does not expect many inquiries through the mini information center because "this is the second year and people seem much more comfortable with the program than before."

Betty Anderson, who coordinated the effort on a larger scale for the integration transition group LOOK (Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids), said the group was "not overwhelmed with calls" last year but said, "we served our purpose."

Mrs. Anderson said the hotline project, which utilized about 50 volunteer operators functioned as a rumor control and information center. She said the volunteers did not encounter many rumors that needed to be investigated, "maybe because we were there" to stop them.

She termed the purpose of the six-week project a "preventive measure," but said that such an effort this year is probably not needed.

Executive Cites OPEC Remedies

By PHILLIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Charles G. Bluhdorn, head of the 58th largest industrial company in the nation, is still waiting for an answer to an urgent letter he wrote to the attorney of the United States four years ago.

If the federal government had taken action on the thrust of his letter and the lengthy legal brief that accompanied it, Bluhdorn feels, the United States might not be in the throes of the economic crisis that has resulted from the continuing series of price increases imposed by the oil-producing nations.

In July 1975, Bluhdorn, the chairman of Gulf and Western Industries, Inc., proposed to then Attorney General Edward H. Levi that the United States consider invoking the Sherman Anti-trust Act to break the cartel of the Organizations of Oil Producing Countries. OPEC, he asserted, was engaged in an illegal price-fixing conspiracy that was posing the United States with "the most serious economic threat in our nation's history," and there were legal remedies available to meet the challenge.

To support this contention, Gulf and Western had commissioned a group of top legal experts to prepare an analysis of OPEC's status under the U.S. anti-trust laws. They concluded that OPEC's activities fell within the jurisdiction of such laws; that if its members were privately owned foreign corporations, they would "unquestionably" be subject to both criminal and civil liability for their collusion on price, and that even though OPEC was made up of foreign states, its members were not immune from an anti-trust suit for price-fixing.

The brief and Bluhdorn's accompanying letter were personally delivered to Levi by the two nationally known New York lawyers who led the team that did the analysis — Whitney North Seymour of Simpson Thacher and Bartlett and Arthur L. Liman of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison. Bluhdorn urged the attorney general to consider the brief carefully and then "act with firmness and determination for the sake of our national interest."

Even though the Ford administration still had a year and a half left in office — and Seymour later checked back personally on the matter — Bluhdorn told us he never received an answer to his letter.

That's why the Gulf and Western chief is following closely — although a little sadly — the recent suit brought by the International Association of Machinists accusing OPEC of violating the provisions of the Sherman Act by its price-fixing activities. That suit, brought by the union in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles, will be heard Aug. 20 by Judge A. Andrew Hauk, who has sought comments on the delicate issues involved from a wide-ranging group of lawyers, government officials, businessmen, legal scholars and union leaders.

Reports that the Carter administration was considering going into court to try to block the suit raised such a storm of protest that any such moves were abandoned, and the administration now says it will keep hands off.

Bluhdorn takes no pride in the fact that his voice-in-the-wilderness warnings about the dire impact of oil-price increases on the U.S. economy — which he began issuing even before the Arab oil embargo of 1973 — have proven so startlingly true. What particularly bothers him, though, is his belief that the United States was a party to creating its own destructive problems.

"We put the knife to our own throats" is the way he describes Washington's failure to act against OPEC's monopolistic pricing when the cartel was much less powerful than it is today.

The 52-year-old Austrian-born conglomeateur is convinced that the United States could have broken the power of OPEC before it achieved its present stranglehold on the American and world economies. "But we lost prescious years in failing to act" after the oil embargo and subsequent price rises that followed the mideast war in 1973, he said.

Get Bluhdorn started talking on a subject he feels passionately about, as we did during a visit the other day to his office high above New York's Columbus Circle, and his voice rises, he springs to his feet and he pounds his desk to make a point.

One thing he's emphatic about is the need to put the national welfare above self-interst. "They say I'm corny when I talk about that," he told us. "But I owe this country a lot and I don't deserve to be behind this desk if I don't recognize that."

Bluhdorn concedes that his outspoken views on the OPEC threat and his efforts to dramatize the issue by means of the antitrust brief made him "a lot of enemies" in the business community. "When I predicted that oil would hit $20 a barrel by 1980, a lot of businessmen considered me to be someone who was trying to scare the U.S. and scare the world," he said. "But it was important to get out on the table the power of a cartel like that and alert the American people to the problems we were facing."

Right now, however, Bluhdorn says he believes, sorrowfully, that the Machinists' lawsuit will not accomplish a great deal because the OPEC countries have amassed so many billions of dollars here that "no U.S. government is going to take any action against them."

What will work now, he says, is for the American people to develop a new sense of self-discipline and adopt an energy-saving way of life, even if it means going without some comforts that have been taken for granted.

At the same time, Bluhdorn points out, the OPEC nations should understand that "people who sit on mountains of money may need a lot of security."

"Those who want to be our friends," he adds, "would be well-advised to think about our own stability in the years to come."

CIA Says Fuel Use Will Exceed Supply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If energy use continues at current levels, decreasing oil supplies willl limit industrial nations to economic growth rates they now find unacceptable, the CIA Reports.

In a study titled "The World Oil Market in Years Ahead," the CIA's Office of Economic Research said this week energy demand for anything over a 2 percent to 2.5 percent economic growth rate in the developed nations soon will exceed supply.

Stabll or declining world oil production will make even the Soviet Bloc a net oil importer unless it is willing to risk "a substantial slowdown in economic growth and allow increasing consumer hardships," the report found.

It said increasing output from less developed countries, expecially Egypt and Mexico, will be partly offset by a rise in consumption in the Third World nations.

And it predicted the Soviet Union, now an oil exporter, may soon begin competing with Western nations in the world market for scarce oil supplies.

But Marshall Goldman, a Harvard University Soviet expert, said he found pessimistic CIA assessments of the Soviet Union's oil supply exaggerated.

CIA analysts, who did not consider the effect of rising oil prices on conservation, said the problem of adjusting to inadequate oil supplies will continue throughout the 1980s in the industrial countries.

"The inadequacy of energy supply to meet energy demand at acceptable rates of economic growth has already been reflected in a 60 percent increase in OPEC oil prices between December 1978 and July 1979," the report said. "This price increase will be a stimulus to additional energy conservation. Unfortunately it will impact even more sharply on economic activity."

The report said "unprecedented rates of conservation" — exceeding even those that accompanied the 1973 Arab oil embargo — would be needed to meet future energy demands if current annual economic growth targets of 3 percent to 3.5 percent are to be maintained.

The analysts said geologists offer only slim hopes of new oil discoveries that could keep pace with the rise in energy demands.

Agency Seeks Fines Against Gas Couriers

SEATTLE (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is seeking nearly $600,000 in fines against two Pacific Northwest courier companies accused of using leaded gasoline in vehicles designed to use unleaded fuel.

The fines sought from Loomis Courier Service Inc. and Gelco Courier Services in Seattle and Portland, Ore., are "by far the biggest penalty of this sort we've ever proposed (in the region), and it may be the biggest nationally," said regional EPA spokesman Bob Jacobson.

"It's not just nitpicking," Jacobson said. "The heart of it is pollution. The (catalytic) converter has to be protected."

Leaded gas hinders the ability of the converters to remove key pollutants from exhaust fumes. The companies used leaded gas in 114 vans, trucks and passenger cars, Jacobson said.

Gelco took over Loomis Courier assets on April 30, but penalties were sought from both companies because the violations apparently occurred both before and after that date, Jacobson said.

Robert D. Young, vice president for administration of the parent Loomis Corp., said he couldn't say whether Loomis vehicles were using the wrong kind of gas.

A Gelco spokesmen in Seattle referred calls to a Gelco vice president in Portland, who didn't return a reporter's calls.

However, Richard O'Brien of Portland, who has worked for both companies, said the EPA's accusations concerning the Oregon operation were unfounded.

Dutch Give Warm Welcome To American Visitors

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Travel Editor

The welcome mat is out for Americans in Holland.

Actually, the good relations between Dutch and Americans have been around for quite a long time. Dutch and New World ties began in 1625 with the founding of New Amsterdam on Manhattan Island. Our good relations were then cemented in the late 1700s when the Colonies fought for independence from England. The Netherlands became one of the first countries to recognize us, and in 1782, John Adams obtained a desperately needed loan and a treaty of commerce and friendship from the Netherlands.

Now we share Holland's favorite color of orange. It did not go unnoticed by the Dutch people that the Braniff International 747 jet inaugurating non-stop service from Dallas-Fort Worth to Amsterdam was painted a bold orange color. Orange is the official color of the Netherland's Royal Family, dating back to 1568 and William the Silent, prince of Orange, an ancient principality.

When the Netherlands were occupied by the German army in World War II, Radio Orange in London broadcast speeches by Queen Wilhelmina and Crown Princess Juliana to the Dutch people.

Some Dutch people suffered the wrath of the Nazis by wearing orange flowers. Cornelius Ryan noted the orange connection in his book A Bridge Too Far. Ryan wrote of one scene as the British attempted to liberate Arnhem in 1944: "... Calaghan, a Dunkirk veteran, was bothered by the number of civilians surrounding the troops. 'They ran along beside us wearing armbands, aprons, and little pieces of ribbon, all orange,' he remembers. 'Children, with little snippets of orange cloth pinned to their skirts or blouses, skipped along, shrieking with delight.'"

Except for Ryan's account of the Market Garden operation, and the subsequent movie, today's generation of Americans knows little about the Netherlands' experience during WWII. However, the Dutch have never forgotten. Although mostly a British operation, the Dutch are quick to remember that many Americans also died to liberate Holland.

Americans visiting the Netherlands will be touched by the sight of the Netherlands American Military Cemetery near Margraten. Surrounded by a beautiful countryside, the American graves are respectfully visited by 675,000 Dutch citizens annually. Many of the grave sites bear flowers and small flags placed there by Dutch visitors during Memorial Day services and throughout the year.

Because Holland is small (less land area than the Texas Panhandle) yet has one of the world's best transportation systems, many important sites pertaining to WWII can be easily visited.

Oosterbeek, only 5 miles from Arnhem, is home of the Airborne Museum. Located in the actual building that served as Divisional Headquarters for the First British Airborne Division's ill-fated operation, the museum serves as a tribute to the parachute troops that attempted to take the Arnhem bridge beginning September 17, 1944.

The museum has several life-size dioramas in the cellar that factually show the headquarters as it appeared 35 years ago. The former hotel also contains original weapons and equipment of both Allied and German origin. Situated in a large park, the museum is flanked by two anti-tank guns from the Market Garden battle. A Sherman tank is a reminder of the liberation of Oosterbeek that finally came in April 1945.

Oosterbeek, once a flourishing Roman settlement, is also the site of the oldest church in Western Europe. The city's ancient Catholic church contains the famous Fourteen Stations of the Cross by Jan Toorop. Oosterbeek (approximately 225,000 population) is large enough to have activities that will entertain any visitor, but is small enough to appeal to the traveler that wants convenience with an unhurried pace.

Arnhem's war scars are gone that resulted in part from the famous bridge that spans the Rhine, an important objective for the Allies during Operation Market Garden. Arnhem, today, is a beautiful city with several magnificent parks.

The largest airborne operation in history formed the initial phase of Market Garden. The 60 miles from Scheldt-Meuse Canal through Eindhoven and Nijmegen to Arnhem became known as The Corridor, or Hell's Highway. Following the drop of the U.S. 101st Screaming Eagle Airborne Division on September 17, 1944 near Eindhoven, the U.S. 82nd "All America" Division near Nijmegen, and the British 1st Airborne Division Group near Arnhem — a large part of Holland had been liberated, but the crossing at Arnhem proved to be "a bridge too far" and the Allies suffered greater casualties than during the D-Day invasion at Normandy.

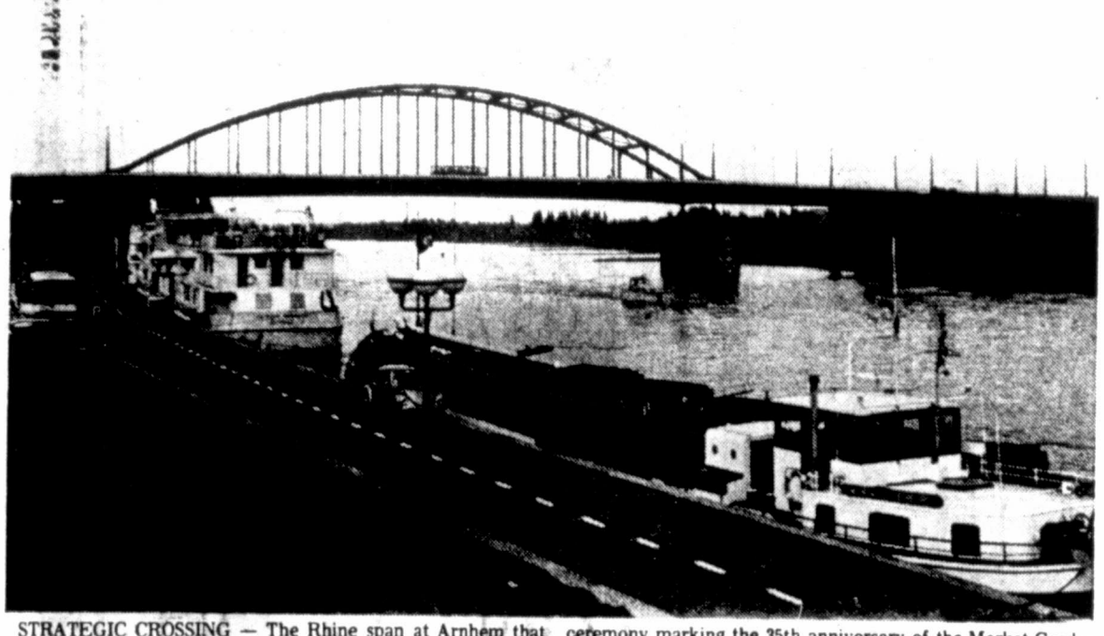

Guided tours of the Arnhem battle area can be arranged at either the Airborne Museum, whose director is a retired Dutch Brigadier General, or through the Arnhem VVV tourist office.

September 1979 will witness many historical commemorations pertaining to Operation Market Garden. A duplication of the parachute landings during the Battle of Arnhem will be staged the 15th of the month. Write to VVV, Arnhem, The Netherlands, for detailed information regarding commemorative activities. General tourist information is available from: Netherlands National Tourist Office, 576 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10036.

The Netherlands has always been one of the most economical European countries to visit, and now thanks to the Holland Culture Card, Americans can enjoy savings on admissions to museums, order theater tickets, and save on one day first class rail fares. The personalized card costs $2.50 and is available from the tourist office in New York. The card must be obtained before leaving the U.S.

Americans wanting to count their pennies should also keep in mind that there are "Holland Tourist Hotels" across the Netherlands. A comfortable room with a very ample breakfast is about $35. The Dutch also cleaverly organized many restaurants to feature a Tourist Menu. A full three course meal will cost about $6 or $7. The Dutch have a great train service that is very economical; A "Day Rover" ticket ($17.50) gives you unlimited travel for one day, and an "Eight Day Rover" ticket ($36) gives you unlimited rail travel for as many days.

Without a doubt, Holland has rolled out the welcome mat for the American visitor. From the minute Braniff's orange jet lands at Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport until you return to the same airport for last minute duty free shopping — Holland is a veritable holiday land.

STRATEGIC CROSSING — The Rhine span at Arnhem that proved to be "a bridge too far" in 1944, will be the site of a ceremony marking the 35th anniversary of the Market Garden Operation of World War II. (Staff Photos by Ted J. Simon)

SINCERE TRIBUTE — The Netherlands American Military Cemetery at Margraten is visited by 675,000 Dutch citizens annually. The site is dedicated "In memory of the valor and the sacrifices which hallow this soil."

Braniff Plans Bargain Fare

Braniff International will offer a new budget fare 46 percent below its reduced economy fare and 20 percent less than any promotional fare currently available when the airline begins 747 flights between Los Angeles and Singapore this fall.

Subject to government approvals, the fare package will include the lowest available budget fare and the only APEX, or advance purchase excursion, fare in the Lost Angeles-Singapore market. The one-stop 747 flights from Los Angeles to Singapore begin October 30, with two departures weekly, at 11 a.m. Sundays and Wednesdays.

Inauguration of the service is part of Braniff's expansion in the Orient, which now includes Hong Kong and, beginning Sept. 17, Seoul.

Theaters Aid In Ticket Quest

Students and senior citizens stand a chance of getting London theater tickets at half price under a new policy which offers seats at nine of the British capital's most prominent theaters.

Ticket vouchers cost about $5 and guarantee theater-goers at least a 50 percent discount off the regular ticket price. The vouchers must be picked up on the day of the performance. The special box office is at the "Avenue" Ticket Office in the Queen's Theatre Foyer, on Shaftesbury Avenue, which leads out of Piccadilly Circus.

Theaters involved include the Drury Lane, London Palladium, Victoria Palace, Her Majesty's, Lyric, Globe, Queen's and Apollo. At the moment they're showing such attractions as Annie, Ain't Misbehavin', The King and I, Jesus Christ Superstar and other plays and musicals which are London hits.

Insurance Industry Cites Record Claims

NEW YORK (AP) — The Insurance Information Institute says the "property and casualty insurance industry responded to a record number of catastrophes in the first six months of 1979."

It says insurers paid claims of more than $600 million as a result of 30 catastrophes which affected parts of 41 states and the District of Columbia.

A catastrophe, says the institute, is "any occurrence from which the expected insured loss is likely to exceed $1 million." Catastrophes include hurricanes, tornadoes, hail, wind, ice, snow, freezing and other natural occurrences."

Chrysler Suppliers Offer Rebates To Employees

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s rebate campaign is using the slogan "Get a Car — Get a Check." For employees of some Chrysler suppliers, it could be "Get a Car — Get Two Checks."

At least 12 companies with more than 30,000 employees have announced they will match Chrysler's rebate with one of their own if any of their employees buy a Chrysler car eligible for a rebate.

Chrysler announced $400 factory-to-buyer rebates Friday, first in the industry since the dark days of 1975. The offer does not apply to the popular subcompact Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni and Chrysler's imported models.

Initial reports from around the country showed sales Saturday, the first day of rebates, up more than 80 percent from the previous Saturday.

The company, which has asked for $1 billion in federal aid, started August with a bloated 108-day supply of cars and needs to raise cash.

Chrysler has 19,353 suppliers who sold it $9.1 billion worth of goods and services last year. Some already were cutting prices and stretching payment terms.

Jeff Elpern, charged by Chrysler with promoting the rebates among the suppliers, said about 80 companies took similar action in 1975.

"The viability of a lot of these companies is stuck with us," Elpern said.

Though expressing "no doubts about the future of the company," Rod Ackerman, senior vice president of Warner Electric Co. of suburban Troy, noted, "We can't sell them new merchandise unless they move the old."

Warner, which has 3,000 employees and sales of $200 million, supplies compressor clutches for auto air conditioners to Chrysler.

The company also has decided to turn in 28 of its all-Chrysler fleet of 90 cars six months to a year ahead of schedule for new Chrysler-made products, said Ackerman.

"I think you'll see a lot more of it," said Dave Snyder, spokesman for Federal-Mogul, Inc. in suburban Southfield, after announcing his company's proposition to 10,000 employees. "We have a strong interest in the welfare of the auto industry."

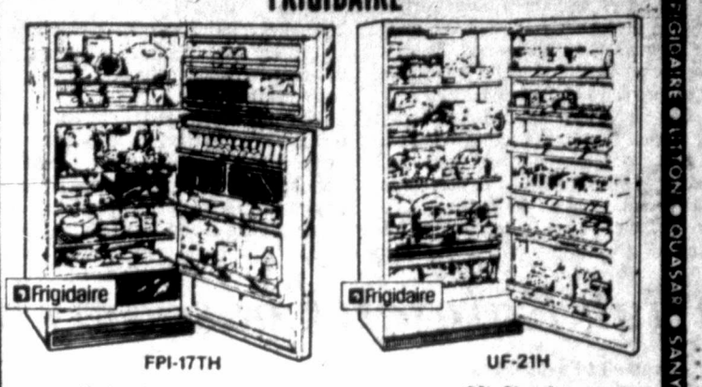

"We're concerned that Chrysler makes it," said Philip A. Hall, president of Charles A. Strelinger Co., a distributor of tools and material-handling equipment in suburban Warren.

At Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc., president Leo-Arthur Kelmenson said in a memo to 600 U.S. employees the agency was "spending our bread where it gets buttered."

He said it was "not only a vote of confidence in one of our largest clients," but also "the auto bargain of a lifetime."

Paper Industry Predicts Used Cardboard Shortage To Recur

By ROB STODDARD

BOSTON (UPI) — Another shortage has come and gone, involving not gasoline, lettuce or citrus fruit, but used corrugated cardboard, a staple in the paper recycling industry.

But it's a shortage that is expected to recur.

Used corrugated cardboard is recycled for the production of boxes such as the ones many supermarket or liquor products come in. It's also used in building products like insulation board and gypsum wallboard.

Last month, the American Paper Institute in New York, a trade association for the pulp, paper and paperboard industries, described used corrugated as "an endangered species."

Jay Rodney Edwards, vice president of API, estimates the demand for recycled corrugated will increase by 10 percent over the next year, spurred by greater demand from U.S. merchants and increased exports to Europe and Asia.

Because of the heavy demand, paper recyclers were worried by a shortage which developed earlier this summer.

According to Dick Foohey, vice president of Great Eastern Packing and Paper Stock Corp. of Boston, the market was tight as a drum on the first of July. Then the annual shutdown of paper mills in eastern Europe — heavy importers of corrugated from the U.S. — and a strike by a major recycling firm in Connecticut reduced demand, created a surplus, and the price dropped in mid-August.

The strike has been settled and, Foohey said, once the international industry returns to full production this fall, another shortage is anticipated.

Regardless of the current status of the market for used corrugated, API's Edwards says industry and trade representatives will be working to increase the supply in the future to meet projected demands.

Edwards is convinced the future of the industry, which recycled 5.3 million tons of used corrugated in 1978, depends on better collection techniques.

"It's a case of increasing or expanding the collection system so that more tonnage is collected," he said. "We think to expand collection we must alert the smaller factories and retail stores to our need. In many cases, used corrugated is just tossed out."

API is so concerned about the collection system that it's urging private citizens to get into the act of saving corrugated boxes for recycling.

The Institute has begun an "earn a truck" campaign.

"If you had a pickup truck and you wanted a new one, you could trade it in on a new truck with payments of about $150 a month," Edwards said.

"You probably could make that amount by recycling a ton or two of corrugated a week. If you worked at a small factory, you could go see the boss about his used corrugated and say 'I want to use it,'" Edwards said.

For large firms, the profit motive is used to improve collections.

church affairs, including service as a member of the board of commissioners and mayor of Ardmore. He was designated a "Distinguished Engineer" by Texas Tech in 1971.

Grundy is nationally and internationally recognized as an authority in the field of sterol metabolism, particularly as it relates to clinical problems. He is a 1955 graduate of Texas Tech and received the M.S. and M.D. degrees from the Baylor College of Medicine, where he was graduated with honors in 1960. He completed Ph.D. requirements at the Rockefeller University in 1968.

He has held academic positions with Baylor College of Medicine and the Rockefeller University and now serves as professor of medicine in residence to the University of California in San Diego.

Much of Grundy's research was done while he was chief of the Phoenix clinical research section of the National Institute of Arthritis, Metabolism and Digestive Diseases, Phoenix Indian Medical Center, from 1971 to 1973.

Dr. Lamb, who has devoted her life toward promoting better health through better nutrition, is a 1932 graduate of Texas Tech with a degree in chemistry and received the master's degree in food and nutrition in 1937, the first such degree offered by Texas Tech's College of Home Economics. Her Ph.D. work was done at Columbia University.

She became a member of Texas Tech's food and nutrition faculty in 1940 and assumed the chairmanship in 1955, a position she held until 1969. For the next six years Dr. Lamb served as the first Margaret W. Weeks Professor of Home Economics and became a professor emeritus in 1975.

Her lifelong campaign for nutrition education and better eating habits has taken her to all parts of Texas and 16 other states as well. At the international level the Texas Tech nutritionist has served as a speaker, committee member or consultant in Hamburg and Hanover, Germany; Monterey, Mexico; and San Juan, P.R.

Lubbock television executive Bill McAlister will be master of ceremonies. Presentation of citations and plaques will be by Frank Junell of San Angelo, former Texas Tech regent, to Black; Ray Butler of Alice, named "distinguished engineer" in 1975, to Roy Butler; chemistry professor Margret Stuart and Joe Dennis, chemistry professor emeritus, to Grundy; and home economics dean emeritus Willa Vaughn Tinsley of Lubbock to Dr. Lamb.

Interim President Lawrence L. Graves will present medallions to recipients of the Distinguished Alumnus plaques. Craddick will make introductions.

Lake Site Dig Sheds Light On Early Man

A few bones, a fist-size rock and a few chipped flat stones may add to significant history of man on the southern Great Plains.

The discoveries this summer at the Lubbock Lake Site add to proof that aboriginal mankind knew how to deal with a harsh and changing environment, living in harmony with it and surviving despite vicious dangers and disastrous drought.

The bones discovered were particularly important at the Clovis level, marking lifeways 12,000 years ago. The fist-size rock turned out to be a pounding stone, probably used in butchering.

The flat stones included a tool from the Archaic level, about 5,000 years old, and this has caused great excitement among scholars interested in that particular period. Only at the Lubbock Lake Site has there been evidence of middle Archaic man excavated on the High Plains of Texas.

Dr. Eileen Johnson, director of the Lubbock Lake Site research project, explained that this is "extremely important" to scholars, many of whom thought the area might have been abandoned during that period because of severe climatic conditions.

"The record at the Lubbock Lake Site indicates that the population may have been reduced, but the site was not abandoned," she said.

Studies indicate that the period may have been one of severe drought, and this may account for the population decrease, in Dr. Johnson's view.

The 1979 dig closed Aug. 18, with materials retrieved from the site removed to The Museum at Texas Tech, where a National Science Foundation grant will support detailed analysis leading to an understanding of cultures that developed at the site and environmental conditions shaping those cultures.

The Moody Foundation has supported the 1979 dig. That grant was made through the Lubbock Lake Site Development Corporation to The Museum.

In addition to the Archaic stone tool, archaeologists uncovered two flaked tools about 8,500 years old, from the Firstview level, earlier than the Archaic period but later than the Plainview era.

At the Clovis level, about 12,000 years ago, they discovered the humerus of a prehistoric cat, about twice the size of the modern mountain lion; a bear bone tool, the proximal end of a radius of the Arctodus more than twice the size of the modern grizzly bear; a pounding stone, the size of a big man's fist; a mammoth bone tool; a flake from the bone of a mammoth, particularly valuable as representative of that culture; and a turkey bone from the late Pleistocene epoch.

The cat bone, the first found at the site, was that of a saber-tooth tiger, an American lion or a giant jaguar. It and the turkey bone must await further study before scientific identities can be assigned. The bear bone tool was more readily identified.

The tooth of the ancient Arctodus was found during an earlier dig and it has been positively identified. Its discovery marked the first time Arctodus has been found in association with man.

"With our first discoveries, we could know that the bear has been skinned," Johnson said, "but our new discoveries tell us that the animal was butchered and, after the meat was torn away, the bnes were used to fashion this tool at least and probably others."

In addition to digging for evidence of man's activity, scientists at the site this summer made intensive soil and geological studies. Vance Holliday, field supervisor for the project, was in charge of the soil studies. Curtis Welty was field geologist.

"Man has left us little evidence of prehistoric times," Johnson said, "but with what we are discovering we can see that aboriginal man survived by finding a harmony with his environment. As it changed, cultures changed. Few may want to go back to aboriginal lifeways, but some consideration for the harmony between man and environment is necessary for survival."

High Rainfall Caused By Slow Currents

Stanley reported that average rainfall for the first seven months of the year is only 12.11, but that in 1979, 20.81 inches of precipitation fell by the end of July.

This month, Matador has received 1.90 inches of rain, only about .60 more than last August.

And despite predictions by the National Weather Service that August 1979 would be slightly dryer than normal, 3.18 inches of rain already have drenched the Hub City within the last 23 days. Only 1.87 inches of moisture were recorded falling over Lubbock in 1978.

Ironically, a spokesman at the National Weather Service attributes the excessive moisture to the same slow-paced air waves that caused West Texans to find only slight amounts of moisture falling over their region last year.

Ideally, rain occurs in certain areas of low-lying long waves of air circulating around the earth, explains the meteorolgist, "if you are under a ridge portion, you get low rainfall totals. But, if you are under a trough portion of that wave, you get wet seasons."

As long as the waves continue to move at a normal rate of speed, an area receives short periods of both conditions, or an average year, said the spokesman.

But when positions of the wave change only slightly, or become stationary, prolonged dry or wet seasons result," said the weather official, who added, however, that scientists have not yet been able to determine why troughs or ridges pass over particular regions.

An almost stationary front that began passing over the Lubbock area last weekend has dumped substantial amounts of moisture upon the South Plains this week, adding to this month's and this year's already unusually high figures.

Competition Occurring At Gas Stations

thinks we have a temporary crisis," Pfaff said. He said Mobil charges dealers more than other companies because it provides more fuel. "They (the public) can buy from whomever they please," he said.

Pfaff said Mobil was not "pressuring" dealers to sell their allocations, but was "counseling" them to do so in the interests of base allocation stabilization.

Some dealers already have lowered gasoline prices, but most dealers agree the new competition won't go as far as in all-out "gas war."

"We are very cognizant of the fact of what others are charging," said Sam Davis of Arapaho Village Mobil in Richardson. "There's no wholesale price cutting yet, but some are beginning to watch it."

"I've dropped mine a cent to make them more in line," said W.W. Hughes of Dallas.

Pat Carbone, local spokesman for the Texas Service Station Association, said a real price war would have to be triggered by major oil companies and not by independent dealers.

Carbone said major companies in the past have lowered prices at company-owned stations, forcing independents to do the same to compete.

That contention is disputed by oil company spokesmen, who say they are required by law to charge independents the same price they charge company-owned stations.

"You won't see gas wars as long as there is a shortage," said Max Nalley of Exxon. "Nobody will cut prices on a short supply."

Pricing isn't the only way to compete, though, as some dealers have pointed out. Some have decided to try to woo customers by giving them better service.

Personal attention at the gas pumps harkens back to gas station giveaways and operators who once prided themselves on how quickly they could clean a customer's windshield.

The prominence of self-service stations has added to the erosion of complete service, although some stations now charge identical prices at full service and self service pumps.

"With the cost of living the way it is, I don't think we can cut prices too much," one dealer said. "But we sure can deal in service."

Ex-Wife Relieved Jimmy Chagra Fled

EL PASO (UPI) — The ex-wife of convicted Las Vegas gambler and "kingpin" cocaine smuggler Jimmy Chagra says she is relieved he jumped his $400,000 bond and fled.

"I'm glad he's gone. I hope he's safe," Vivian Chagra said Wednesday, adding she believed the controversial gambler had not been treated fairly by the courts.

"How could justice possibly be served? A society that rejected him so badly, yet condoned his brother's killers the way they did?"

Chagra's brother, flamboyant El Paso attorney Lee Chagra, was gunned down at his high-security law office Dec. 23. Three men were implicated in the death, including Louis Fred Esper, 56, who was convicted July 14 of conspiracy to commit aggravated robbery of Lee Chagra and received a 15-year prison sentence.

"Lou Esper, who sent the guys down to Lee's office with the gun, received 15 years," Mrs. Chagra said. "(He will) be eligible for parole in five. And Jimmy ... his minimum ... they wanted life for him. Ten years without any possibility of parole as the minimum."

The stiff sentences that awaited the 34-year-old high-stakes gambler resulted from a federal continuing criminal enterprise conviction a week ago in Austin. The statute under which Chagra was convicted was designed to punish the "organizer, supervisor and manager" of drug enterprises.

A jury took two hours to convict him following a three-week trial, and formal sentencing was scheduled in El Paso on Sept. 5.

The government had asked U.S. District Judge William Sessions of El Paso to increase Chagra's $400,000 bond to $3 million cash, fearing the ex-carpet salesman might flee. A hearing on that motion to increase the bond is scheduled today in El Paso.

But with news Tuesday of Chagra's disappearance, a vacationing Sessions instructed U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth to revoke Chagra's bond and reset it at $3 million.

Meanwhile, an unidentified Drug Enforcement Administration agent said the agency had an idea of where Chagra might have fled.

"We think he may be in Canada," the agent said, "although if captured in that country he could be easily extradited back o the United States. Canada is a good jumping-off place for another part of the world."

Given the circumstances, Vivian Chagra said, her exhusband had no choice.

"I can't say I'm happy that he's taken that alternative because I have his children," she said. "You know, maybe they'll never see him again. He was a loving, good father. They'll miss him ... I'll miss him."

Chagra, she added, "is going to be an outlaw no matter how he behaves. Why shouldn't he at least have his freedom?"

Chagra's co-counsel — his brother Joe and Las Vegas attorney Oscar Goodman — met in El Paso Wednesday to discuss the situation.

Goodman, who had argued during the trial that to increase his client's bond was unnecessary because of Chagra's devotion to his new-born son, his family and his mother, said he would continue to represent Chagra.

The attorney said he had had no contact with Chagra since the trial.

"When I left Jimmy it was our intention to meet in Las Vegas (last) Sunday or Monday. His brother Joe had come to participate in the meeting," Goodman said.

"The judge was very decent in letting him remain at liberty on the bail set at the trial pending sentencing. We felt it was our obligation to advise the judge when it became apparent that he (Chagra) was not available to us.

"I am terribly disappointed this happened because I felt there were excellent areas for an appellate review," Goodman said. "In my opinion the possibility of (appellate) success was favorable. The status of what we can do at this point is murky at best. Perhaps it will have a good ending and he will be at the hearing tomorrow."

'ASSIGNMENT FROM THE LORD' — B. Dwayne Jackson and his wife, Sonja, relax in their home before Jackson, a former Houston narcotics officer, left to begin a seven-year prison sentence for conspiracy to violate civil rights. Legion Proposes SALT II Changes

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Legion doesn't like the SALT II treaty the way it reads right now, but it would accept it if a few changes were made, changes it approved at its national convention.

The proposed alterations, which the Legion believes would result in a "genuinely equitable" agreement on nuclear arms limitations between the United States and the Soviet Union, were contained in a resolution unanimously approved by the Legion Wednesday.

Another resolution overwhelmingly approved by the convention offered Legion membership to Vietnam-era veterans previously excluded because they served before passage of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, considered the official start of the "conflict."

Jack Carey, national commander of the Legion, and U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., offered the convention their points of view concerning the SALT II debate currently raging throughout the country.

"The present SALT treaty does leave the U.S. inferior," Carey said. "The resolution is recommending to the Senate they need to make some changes and test the Soviets."

These changes include limiting Soviet Backfire bomber production, reducing the number of Soviet heavy missile launchers and maintaining a strong U.S. nuclear reserve.

Cranston said his support of the treaty is based primarily on assurances by the joint chiefs of staff and the secretary of defense that America "can do all we need" to remain strong militarily, even with SALT II.

The major issue, Cranston said, is whether Russian compliance with the treaty can be monitored.

"I am convinced it is adequately verifiable," said the Senate majority whip in a news conference before his speech to the convention.

He said it is hard to predict Senate action on the treaty, but added, "I think it will be verified, perhaps by a very big vote."

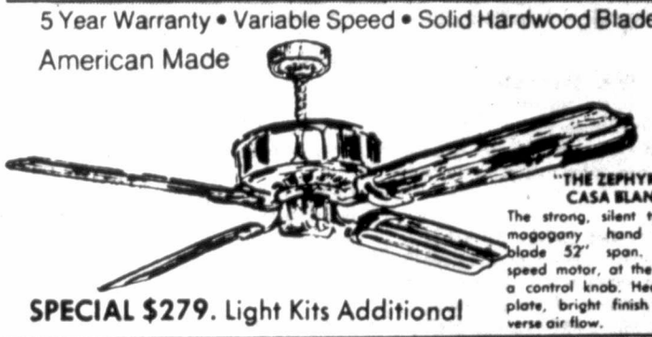

Cranston also predicted, however, that the Senate would "leave its mark on the treaty" through amendments.

Passage of the resolution changing the membership rules of the Legion came as a surprise to Carey because, in doing so, the delegates rejected a committee recommendation that present rules be maintained.

The resolution opened membership to Vietnam-era veterans who served before Aug.5, 1964. previously, veterans who had served prior to that date and after the Korean War were considered to have served in peace time.

The resolution moved the eligibility date back to Dec. 22, 1961, when the first U.S. "adviser" was killed.

Workmen Find Remains Of Body

GALVESTON (AP) — Workmen have recovered partial remains of another body from the Ranger I oil rig that collapsed off the Texas coast May 10, killing eight men.

A similar discovery was made last week and medical examiners said they will attempt to determine if the remains found Tuesday are from the same body.

Four bodies were recovered shortly after the rig collapsed and a fifth body was recovered after salvage crews brought the wreckage to a Pelican Island shipyard last week.

Twenty-six men were rescued after the collapse.

Death Investigated

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal agency is checking the circumstances of the death of one of the owner of the Woodway Square apartment complex where a July 31 fire caused an estimated $34 million in damage.

Rocky Rothgeb, resident agent for the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, said Wednesday the action is being taken at the request of Houston arson investigators.

Paul Schuler of Schuler Associates in Seattle was killed in an Idaho motorcycle accident five days after the fire. The Seattle firm owns most of the 500-unit apartment complex.

Rothgeb would not elaborate on the investigation.

Paul Drake, an arson investigator, said the possibility of a link between the death and the fire is being investigated even though there is no indication at this time of such a connection.

Suspect Surrenders

EL PASO (AP) — A retired White Sands Missile Range engineer, one of seven persons indicted on federal firearms charges, has surrenderd to authorities.

Millard Brown Jr., 60, was indicted with the owner and several employees of an El Paso gun shop on charges involving the alleged illegal sale of guns.

Brown's indictment was sealed until Tuesday. A warrant has been issued for a seventh man, still at large.

The indictment says Brown knowingly sold and delivered firearms other than to the buyers indicated on records kept at the gun shop.

Shop owner Barney Meaders III and the others were indicted on charges alleging consiracy, making false entries in records aand selling firearms to non-residents

Suspect Extradited

EL PASO (AP) — An illegal alien wanted in Durango, Mexico, in connection with the slaying of two prison guards has been turned over to authorities at Juarez, the border city south of here.

Rognaciano Litela Martinez was arrested last week at Lubbock on a warrant from Mexican authorities.

Queen Displays Sketches Of Henry VIII's Court

LONDON (UPI) — In her own gallery in Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth is rolling back the centuries these days to introduce people who were around her famous ancestor, King Henry VIII.

Put baldly, "Holbein and the Court of Henry VIII" is a series of sketch portraits of the courtiers who crowded around Henry and his six wives.

Put more excitingly, it is a bridge across time, bringing you face to face with these people as completely as if you had stepped into the king's antechamber to meet them.

Here is proud and thin-lipped Jane Seymour, one of Henry's six queens. Here are plain, ordinary-looking men and women with none of the idealization of a royal court about them. Here is Sir Thomas More, grave and somber in his fur collar, and a rogue's gallery of memorable faces.

Famous or infamous events lie behind these faces — the turmoil over Henry's first divorce, his split with Roman Catholicism to found the Anglican church, his marriages and beheading of wives, his momentous conflict with More, the "Man for All Seasons," which brought More to the Tower, the block and sainthood.

Behind them, too, is a more modern story, the adventurous tale of how these drawings came to be in the Queen's Gallery at Buckingham Palace, where they are now on stunning display.

It sarts with Hans Holbein, a German artist who created the immortal image of England's King Henry — legs spraddled, hands on hips, dominating everything. In this show that image bulks large in a menacing suit of armor which Henry wore.

Holbein made two trips to England, the first as More's guest. He gained royal favor and painted Henry over and over — though none of these portraits is still in the royal collection.

Holbein died in London of the plague in 1543. He was 46.

Among the debris of his studio was an album of 85 portraits, quick sketches in charcoal with light smudges of color. An inventory of the time said they were "of certeyne Lordes, Ladys, gentlemen and gentlewomen in king Henry the 8: his tyme."

Time did not treat these portraits gently.

They passed in and out of royal hands, probably were hauled to Italy and Holland, were taken out of the album and split up — six are scattered today in various European collections. They were glazed, traced, stained, cut up like silhouettes, maltreated in almost every way.

Yet taken together they are "perhaps the most remarkable visual record of a royal court in European art," the catalogue says.

Somehow Holbein had managed to sketch everyone who aas anyone in Henry's vibrant palaces. He must have been a persuasive man, for the whole notion was new.

"The very idea of sitting for one's portrait was a startling novelty in the 1530s," says Dr. Roy Strong, an authority on the period. "For those who sat, what an astounding revelation it must have been to be confronted by themselves."

It seems possible to read the mind of the stubborn Archbishop of Canterbury or feel the self-serving cruelty of scheming Richard Southwell. It would be easy to fall in love with beautiful Mary Zouch from Holbein's drawing, and mental resolves are made to avoid powerful, haughty men like William Earl of Southampton or John Earl of Bedford.

Chinese Politics Class Tailored For Blind

SHANGHAI, China (AP) — Children run their hands over the plaster beard of Karl Marx, touch Lenin's sharp goatee and feel the smooth round face of Chairman Mao. It is a politics class in the Shanghai School for the Blind.

About 175 students learn to feel the differences between the busts, and learn the differences in the thoughts, of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Mao.

Larger-than-life plaster busts are studied by each child and each receives a small bust of Chairman Mao for individual tactile contemplation.

They also learn the story of how Chairman Hua Guofeng befriended three little blind girls in Hunan.

But in a pragmatic and agricultural society the blind must learn to distinguish among a dozen barnyard fowl. They smooth the long, curved neck of the goose, touch the rooster's spur and hold the downy duckling to their cheeks.

"This one's feet are broad like beds," the teacher says, guiding a child's hand over big webbed feet. "Feel how fat the goose is... this one is still a baby... this one eats tender grass... this duck is very good to eat."

The school, founded in 1921 by foreign missionaries, has 42 teachers and 98 staff members. It has an annual budget of 100,000 yuan, about $65,000 U.S.

Children 9 to 18 receive the same education as in ordinary schools and study from Pynyin Braille textbooks. The school provides two years' training in massage for some students, operates a Braille print shop and a plastics pressing workshop which earns 20,000 yuan, about $13,000 U.S., each year.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept 22) Persons with whom you have dealings tomorrow will be greatly influenced by the way you react to them. Set a good example and you'll have no problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct 23) Getting off by yourself where you can have a little privacy may be exactly what you need to get your thoughts in order tomorrow. Give it a try.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Select companions with whom you have much in common and who are not too demanding. If you're among persons whose interests you don't share, you'll feel like a wallflower.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your progress tomorrow is likely to be measured in small steps, rather than giant leaps and bounds. Be content as long as you're moving ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Don't permit yourself to be pressured into agreements tomorrow before you have the opportunity to carefully study each and every detail and their possible effects.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 19) When it gets down to the nitty-gritty, you will be a pretty shrewd shopper tomorrow. Check your sources. You may find a bargain you want.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It may be a bit difficult to be as independent as you would like to be. However, if you asociate with pleasurable companions tomorrow you won't mind playing second fiddle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be happy tomorrow as long as you feel you are spending your energy and effort on something useful and productive. Frivolous pursuits may make yuou feel guilty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Situations that call for a good organizer or manager will be the ones you shine at tomorrow. Step in if you feel you are needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take the time to do those little chores that you've neglected. They won't be so annoying to handle tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extremely cognizant of details tomorrow. Little things which escape your attention may cause problems later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Put your prudence to the test tomorrow to see if you can get by without unnecessary spending. The savings may really surprise you

Germany Notes

Production Dip

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — West German motor vehicle production fell 29.8 percent to 259,100 units in July, the Automobile Industry Association said.

The association said the sharp June-to-July drop reflected drops in production due to vacation closings of auto plants, but noted that adjusted for vacations and seasonal factors, July production was 4 percent lower than a year ago.

Passenger car and station wagon production totaled 238,400 units in July, down 30.5 percent from June and down an unadjusted 9.4 percent from the previous July.

In the first seven months of 1979, the association reported passenger car and station wagon production totaled 2,401,600 units, up 3 percent from the like 1978 period.

Commercial vehicle production recorded sharper growth, the industry group said, with 187,300 units produced in the first seven months, up 11 percent from the like 1978 period.

Chavez Says UFW Still Struggling For Survival

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — Cesar Chavez is anything but boastful of past glories as he once more pits the collective bargaining of his stoop-labor fieldhands against the owners of the fields where they toil.

Again in the midst of a strike, the United Farm Workers have only reached adolescence, Chavez says of the union he founded 13 years ago in the orchards, vineyards and vegetable rows of California's bountiful farmlands.,

Despite the national reknown and successful battles of the past, he says, the union is stil struggling for survival against farmers with easy access to cheap non-union labor.

The stocky 52-year-old Mexican-American leader recalled the bitter, often bloody fights leading to UFW recognition, and he predicts an immediate future of still more struggle.

"We're where the industrial unions were 40 years ago. We'll get there, but it will be a few more strikes and a few more years," he said wearily during a 12-day march to Slinas last week. Seeking popular support for the current UFW strike as he trudged through Salinas Valley farmlands fasting on a diet of water only, Chavez drew thousands of farm workers signaling their support at roadsides and rallies.

"I don't know what the biggest accomplishment of the union is... maybe the fact that it's alive today," he said as he walked.

Once more, Chavez has called for a consumer boycott of nonunion iceberg lettuce and products of United brands, parent firm of SunHarvest, a major lettuce producer.

The boycott was Chavez' chief weapon in his earlier battles with lettuce-growers and E&J Gallo wines. "This is a very crucial fight right now because we're trying to break what we call the wage barrier. We've broken the representation barrier but even with a union, wages are still very, very low. We hadn't concentrated on wages before because we were busy trying to get recognized."

The UFW has been stalemated in contract talks with six major lettuce producers in the Salinas Valley, the nation's "salad bowl"

The union has been seeking a 41 percent wage increase to boost current minimum hourly aages of $3.70 to $5.25. A major tomato producer reached an agreement with the union for the $5 level in the wake of the Salinas Valley march.

But the battle remains with the lettuce growers whom Chavez criticizes for "talking out of both sides of their mouths."

"First they say they don't have the money, then they make a higher offer when a non-union grower pays its workers $5 per hour plus fringe benefits. In 1970, we negotiated the first contract and got $2 per hour. Eight years later we're getting $3.70, which is worth about $1.84 on the cost-of-living index.Who can live on $3.70?"

Chavez said the industry has seen income and profits go from $6.5 million in 1970 to $71 million last year. He adds, "So they have the money. How can we believe them when they say they don't have the money?"

As union leader, Chavez spurns fire and brimstone speeches. He is low key, convincing and humble and strikes responsive chords from both Spanish-speaking field hands and the Kennedys, Jane Fonda and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

"It's hard to speak in front of large crowds. By the time I'm through shouting into the microphone I'm exhausted. Gandhi had a great system where he just sat in a crowded room and talked, almost in a whisper, but got his message to everyone. That's because people would repeat what was said to the person behind them."

Chavez openly admires the Indian who successfully pressed social protests in Asia by fasting. He, too, has used the tool to focus atention on the struggle of the farm workers.

"People can't draw upon an image of a movement without being attracted first to a human being," he explains. He obliges admirers and supporters seeking a memento, a picture or autograph, from him.

"But I'm not a hero. I was the founder of the union and that may be misleading to people. I think the present leadership could take over right now and the union would continue."

Not everyone agrees.

He has come under attack from disgruntled workers who say he fails to delegate responsibility and authority to help the union mature quickly.

Growers also criticize Chavez for stirring up the farm workers for "political purposes " such as rallying support for presidential hopeful Brown, a longtime supporter of the farm workers union.

Chavez says he expects attacks, but is bothered more by the use of illegal aliens as strikebreakers and talk of resurrecting the federal "bracero" program that would allow Mexican nationals to enter the country as labor contract workers.

"We're frightened by iy. There's not enough jobs to go around as it is. It will affect wages and the union. But we can organize them. It's the paid strikebreakers that we're having the most problems with.

"It's an international problem. Boundary lines mean nothing to hungry people. I don't know what's going to help but we do support a legal ban to keep the growers from using them as strikebreakers."

GOP Sects Differ On 1980 Pick

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two recent polls testing Republican presidential preferences for 1980 disclose some interesting differences between the GOP leadership and party rank and file.

The first poll, by the Gallup organization, was a random sampling of people who said they were Republicans. The second, by the Christian Science Monitor, was a survey of Rpuublican state chairmen and national committee members.

The Gallup survey, part of its regular national sampling of 1,272 persons, involved only the 304 who identified themselves as Republicans. This made the margin of error for the answers they gave plus or minus 7 percentage points.

The Monitor contacted 162 GOP leaders and got replies from 99. That, of course is slightly over 62 percent of the total and should be judged in that light.

The Republicans polled by Gallup said their first choice for the nomination was former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. Second by 1 point was former President Gerald Ford; former Gov. John Connally of Texas and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee were a distant third and fourth.

The party leaders said they believed Reagan was the front runner, but in expressing their own preferences ranked former CIA director and former GOP national chairman George Bush first. Bush was nowhere in sight in published reports of the Gallup polling.

The Republican leaders ranked Reagan and Connally behind Bush. Baker was fourth and Ford was unranked.

There are obvious explanations for the different rankings. Reagan and Ford probably are the best known Republicans in the country and both were candidates in 1976. It probably is a credit to the Connally and Baker campaigns that they were able to gain any name recognition in what is still an unfocused contest.

Nor should it be too surprising that Bush is high in the estimation of the GOP Leaders. Many of them served with him when he was Republican national chairman.

Miller Has Unfinished Business

BENTON, Ill. (UPI) — Sipping a soft drink on a hot and humid day, Arnold Miller say he has some unfinished business to settle before stepping down as president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Although he has undergone treatment for a heart attack, stroke and exhaustion since last year, the 56-year-old former West Virginia coal miner says he will definitely seek a third five-year term in 1982 — and he will be out on the campaign trail.

Miller came to Benton recently to attend the Land of Lincoln Mine Rescue Team Contest at Benton High School — and to talk to District 12 UMW officials and rank-and-file miners "because they tell you what's going on at the mines."

Brian Thomas, 10, of Benton, asked for and got Miller's autograph. Eugene T. Moroni, senior vice president of the Old Ben Coal Co., stopped by to say hello. So did many others.

As the noon sun bore down, aide Mike Browning, 23, of Whitesville, W.Va. — a coal miner for five years before he joined Miller's staff three months ago — told his boss it might be a good idea if he moved into the shade of the football grandstand. Miller did.

"I have a flat wheel, but at least I have a wheel," said Miller of his health. "Some of our members don't have a wheel — they've lost a leg or an arm."

Before he quits, there is some unfinished union business Miller says he wants to see completed.

"I could retire on $2,825 a month tomorrow if I wanted to. That would buy all the fishhooks and shotgun shells I need," he said.

"But I want to see some of the programs we have started come on line. I want an education program (for young miners) set up and I want to solve some of the problems the industry has.

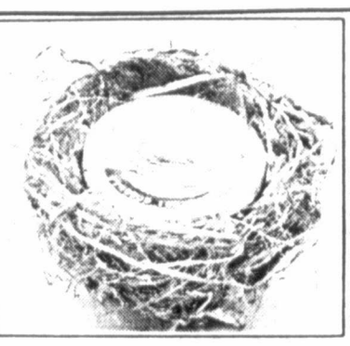

"I'd like to get this union in a posture of negotiating contracts without a strike."

In his view, the chances of reaching a contract agreement in 1981 without a strike "look good." The UMW shut down most of the nation's coal miles for more than three months in 1977-78.

Miller said he does not think he wil have any "real opposition" for re-election in 1982.

He skipped the campaign trail during the last election but said, "I've already put them on notice the next time I will campaign. I'm going to campaign on what I've done. Now I don't think it's hardly possible for somebody to beat me on what they want to do."

Columnist Gives Tips On Using Concrete

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Things you should know about working with concrete:

When it is poured over a large area, such as a driveway, concrete should be reinforced with wire mesh sold especially for the purpose.

In mixing concrete, whether for a complete project or a patch, use only as much water as needed to make the mixture workable. Too much water weakens the finished product.

To prevent a slippery surface on concrete walkways, roughen the finish with a broom or something similar.

A thin surface of new concrete can be put over an old, thick surface if a bonding material is applied to the old finish or, in some cases, if the binder is added to the new mixture.

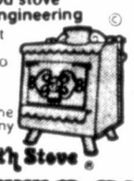

In repairing concrete, the crack or other gap should be cleaned of all loose chips or debris and soaked with water before applying the patching material.

For large jobs, buy concrete by the cubic yard and have it delivered to the site; or make your own mixture from portland cement, water, sand and a coarse aggregate; or make a mixture from portland cement, water and sand.

For smaller jobs, use one of the premixes which require only the addition of water. Get a concrete mix, which includes the coarse aggregate, when the patch is large and may have to bear heavy weights. Get a sand mix for smaller patches, cracks and on ordinary surfaces.

Probably the most important step in a concrete project is the "curing" of the material. This means that it must not be allowed to dry naturally, but kept wet so that it can harden to its maximum strength. Curing can take from two to seven days, but it is best to stretch out the curing process as long as possible.

There are many ways to cure concrete. It can be wet down a couple of times a day. It can be covered with burlap or any other material that will keep it damp and at the same time prevent the sun from getting directly to it. Or it can be given a coat of a special compound made for preventing the moisture in the mixture from evaporating too quickly.

Pre-Owned Specials...

The response to our "Whale of a Hail Sale" was so outstanding that we now find ourselves OVERSTOCKED on excellent pre-owned AIRSTREAMS and ARGOSY TRAVEL TRAILERS. We must reduce this stock to make room for the '80 models.
We now have in stock pre-owned Airstreams and Argosys in 18', 20', 22', 25', 27' & 29' & 31', lengths with prices starting as low as ..... $2995!
EXAMPLE No. 1 27' AIRSTREAM SPO Double Air, Zip-Dee awning, AM FM 8-track, TV antenna, power jack, BAL stabilizer Jacks — very sharp!
WAS $9670 — NOW $8282 ..... SAVE $1388!
EXAMPLE No. 2: 31' AIRSTREAM, twin beds, AM FM stereo, TV antenna, 7.1 2', refrigerator & Separate freezer, 'L' front lounge.
Was $10,575 — NOW $9494 ..... SAVE $1081!
REMEMBER! A 31' AIRSTREAM TOWS WITH LESS EFFORT THAN AN AVERAGE 20' TRAVEL TRAILER!
We still have a very few Airstream Road Rangers and Monacos with slight hail damage and tremendous discounts! 8-1

Showers are also expected for parts of the Rocky Mountain states westward to Oregon and California. Rain is forecast for a narrow band from the New England states southwest to Mississippi and over parts of the Great Lakes. (AP Laserphoto)

Local Teen Injured In Hit-Run Incident

A 16-year-old Lubbock girl was in Health Sciences Center Hospital today after being injured in a hit-and-run incident shortly after 9 p.m. Wednesday in the 1900-block of 39th Street.

Her condition was described as satisfactory this morning.

A 19-year-old Lubbock man came into the police station soon after the car-pedestrian incident and reportedly admitted driving over Tonja Walter of 2101-A 39th St.

The man, who was released on a personal recognizance bond, told police he sped away from the accident scene because he "just panicked."

A witness said he saw the motorist traveling eastbound when the car struck the victim in the street, throwing the girl into the air and onto the curb. The witness added that the driver continued east after striking the girl.

In other activity, Betty Ann DeVaughn, 21, of Littlefield said she was beaten and dragged across a vacant lot after stopping her car about 3 a.m. today in the 2300-block of Redbud Drive to check on a tire.

The woman, who was treated and released at Methodist Hospital, said two black men were scuffling and fell against her vehicle. She said the two men started dragging her across the lot after she told them to get away.

A 24-year-old Lubbock woman said she went to a house about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and was raped by the elderly resident.

The woman told police the man, described as about 60, struck her in the face, threw her on a bed and assaulted her. The victim was then driven to the bus station, where she called a friend, according to reports.

The woman was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The suspect was described as a white man, weighing about 140 pounds and 5 feet 9 inches tall.

Four boys, ages 6, 7, 8 and 10, were taken into police custody about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday after the juveniles told their mother they had burglarized Diane Burke's 2023 35th St. residence and stolen $1,000 in jewelry.

A previous burglary at the woman's house led police to the young suspects' house. Fresh paint found at the woman's house and also at the boys' residence pointed towards the suspects' guilt, according to police. The jewelry was recovered in a nearby field.

Pete Salazar, 23, of 2008 39th St. told police his front teeth were knocked out about 2 a.m. today when he was attacked by one of several Mexican-American males near Erskine Street and University Avenue.

Salazar said he had given the men a ride in his car.

A Lubbock hospital nurse was arrested Wednesday after police raided her residence and found "everything from adrenalin to morphine."

Police received an anonymous tip earlier in the day through the Crime Line that the 27-year-old nurse and her roomate were selling Demarol and Dilaudid.

A search warrant was obtained from Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy, and police raided the nurse's house at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday.

In the house, police found small amounts of about 20 different types of drugs, most of them doctor's samples, police said.

The woman was arrested for possession of controlled substances and booked into the county jail. Police said the nurse's 33-year-old roommate is in California.

A Lubbock television repairman lost $1,130 Wednesday after he agreed to buy several televisions and a refrigerator from a man named Charles, who took the money and ran.

The 47-year-old repairman said he received a call about 12:15 p.m. Wednesday from a man called Charles, who said he worked for a moving company.

Charles told the repairman that a trucker had told him of his televison repair business, and he wondered if he would be interested in buying several televisions and refrigerators at a good price.

The caller explained to the repairman that when merchandise was shipped or received by mistake, the company allowed employees to buy the items, rather than reship it.

The victim agreed over the telephone to buy several portable televisons, two console televisions and a refrigerator for $1,130.

The victim then was directed to meet Charles' son at a Town and Country store, and told they would go to the van lines company and pick up the merchandise.

The victim and his son went to a local Town and Country store where they met a young white man about 25 years old, who took them to the company.

There, the young man asked the victim for the money, "so the items could be bought in Charles name," police said.

The three men then went into the company, where the suspect obtained some kind of billing sheet from a clerk, the victim told police.

Then the suspect told the victim to go to the loading dock and that he would be there shortly with Charles to help load the appliances.

When neither the young man or Charles showed up within 10 minutes, the victim checked with the van line manager, who said no one named Charles worked there.

Contributions Exempt From Requirements

AUSTIN (AP) — Contributions to the Republican National Governor's Conference meeting scheduled here in November are not subject to reporting requirements for campaign spending or lobbyists, Attorney General Mark White ruled Wednesday.

White's legal opinion went to Gov. Bill Clements, who will host the conference's first Texas meeting.

Clements said his host committee plans to file voluntary reports of its funding sources and amounts.

The Democratic attorney general said the GOP governors' meeting was similar to past gatherings of the Southern Governors' Conference.

Contributions to those meetings were not subject to state law, he noted.

The significant difference is the obvious partisanship of the Republican group, he added.

"If the purpose of the conference is simply to discuss issues, and there is no intention to become involved in elections in Texas, then the (political funds reporting) act would not be applicable," White wrote.

The Texas campaign reporting law sets no limits on contributions or expenditures but requires disclosure of amounts over $50.

"Your office states that the host committee will not become involved in activities designed to influence legislation," White said. "Consequently, contributions toward the costs of the Republican Governors' Conference, when unattended by direct communication for purposes of influencing legislation, are not lobbying expenditures" with legal definitions.

State Finishes Sign Changes

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation will complete its changeover of right-of-way signs throughout the area today.

The signs, granting right-of-way to vehicles coming off freeway ramps, will be placed on frontage roads on U.S. 87 near Hale Center, Tahoka and south of Loop 289 in Lubbock. Additional signs will be placed on U.S. 84 near Slaton.

In most of these cases, traffic will become two-way on the frontage roads, with traffic on those roads being required to yield to traffic exiting or entering the freeways.

Court In Delaware Drops Charges Against Priest

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — All charges against the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano were dropped today when another man pleaded guilty to the "Gentleman Bandit" robberies for which the Roman Catholic priest was on trial.

The courtroom crowd gasped as all charges against Pagano were dropped and Delaware officials publicly apologized for his arrest and subsequent trial.

In an agreement with the state, Ronald W. Clouser, 39, of Brookhaven, Pa., agreed to plead guilty to second degree robbery for three of the six crimes Pagano was accused of committing during a two-week trial.

"He (Clouser) feels compelled for moral reasons, fully aware that the state may not have been able to prove his guilt," Public Defender Marsha Kramarck told Superior Judge Andrew Christie.

Clouser's attorney, Saul H. Segan, said Clouser "asks to plead guilty because he is guilty. He came here to exonerate another man and, if I may say so, he showed a great deal of courage."

Pagano showed little expression before the crowd of about 150 in the courtroom.

Superior Court Judge Andrew Christie announced in court Monday that Clouser had confessed to the robberies.

A lean, tanned, prematurely gray, chain-smoking U.S. Postal Service employee, Clouser was to be the first defense witness called today.

Delaware police tried to verify Clouser's claim, but apparently still were certain enough that Pagano should be tried as the "Gentleman Bandit" to recommend that the trial be continued.

Clouser already has pleaded guilty to three armed robberies in nearby Delaware County, Pa. When police arrested Clouser after the robbery of a Springfield, Pa., food store, they confiscated a small, silver, semi-automatic handgun similar to the one described by victims of the Wilmington area robberies.

Delaware police spokesman Cpt. Al Ament said Clouser was given a lie detector test.

"I can't reveal the results of the test," he said. "I'd like to reveal the results of the test. I think it would be very interesting to a lot of people."

An attorney involved with the case said Clouser failed the test when he claimed to be the "Gentleman Bandit," but the attorney added the results of such tests are so unreliable that they are never admitted as evidence in Delaware courts.

Pagano also was administered such tests after his arrest, and failed them when he denied being the "Gentleman Bandit."

Official Tells Of Plot Against Bill Davis

FORT WORTH (AP) — An FBI sound technician has told jurors of a plot to kidnap and drown Bill Davis, younger brother of murder conspiracy defendant Cullen Davis.

Jerry Hubbell, a Dallas-based FBI agent, testified he had been called in to help investigate a possible kidnapping — a federal offense — on Aug. 18, 1978. Hubbell said Fort Worth agent Ron Jannings told him of the alleged plot to kidnap and kill Bill Davis.

"(Cullen) Davis was attempting to hire someone to go to Connecticut and have his brother kidnapped and taken to North or South Carolina and drowned in a lake ... or someplace," Hubbell said Jannings told him.

Jannings previously testified that Davis' former crony, David McCrory, approached the FBI in August 1978, saying he had been ordered to arrange mass murders for the millionaire industrialist.

Jannings also said McCrory told him Davis would pay $500,000 for the death of his brother; $200,000 for his ex-wife, Priscilla; and $80,000 each for state district judges Joe Eidson and Tom Cave.

Davis is on trial a second time on charges he tried to hire the murder of Eidson, his divorce judge. A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction in the first attempt and a mistrial was declared in January.

Hubbell said he wired McCrory with a secret body recorder on Aug. 18 and helped another agent prepare the technical equipment that taped an Aug. 20 meeting between Davis and McCrory.

According to Hubbell's testimony, the recorder taped to McCrory's back transmitted into another recorder that synchronized sound with images from a video camera hidden in an FBI van near the Davis-McCrory meeting site. Hubbell and other agents monitored the parking lot meeting from a van disguised as a survey company truck.

The van was parked so agents could film the meeting through the back windows, Hubbell said. That plan almost backfired when Davis became curious and tried to peer through blackout curtains while the agents remained frozen inside, one with his pistol drawn.

McCrory had been given certain items "so he could show those items to the defendant ... as a means of proof that the judge had been killed," Hubbell said. That "proof" included Eidson's drivers' license, several identification cards, the alleged "murder weapon" and a faked photograph showing Eidson's ketchup-stained "body."

Agents treated the photograph with a special fluorescent powder — which would rub off and could be spotted under a black light. But McCrory said Davis only held the photograph by the edges and the test failed when Fort Worth police allowed Davis to wash his hands after his arrest.

Davis, 45, said he never saw the photograph. Hubbell also said he secreted a transmitter inside McCrory's car before the Aug. 20 meeting "for the personal safety of Mr. McCrory."

The transmitter, which would have beamed sound into an FBI receiver, malfunctioned.

Delta Airlines To Inspect Tire Blowout

FORT WORTH (AP) — Delta Airlines officials say they plan to inspect a Boeing 727 jet to try to determine why its tire blew out after takeoff from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Wednesday evening.

The jetliner made an emergency landing on a foamed runway at Carswell Air Force Base at 8:38 p.m., almost two hours after it left D-FW Airport.

None of the 102 passengers and crewmembers on Flight 510, bound for Monroe, La., was injured. Maj. James Odom, the base public information officer, called the landing "rather uneventful."

Those aboard were taken by bus back to D-FW Airport for another flight.

The jet, piloted by Capt. Chauncey Hall of New Orleans, blew a left rear inside tire on takeoff at 6:50 p.m.

D-FW Airport spokesman Jim Street said Hall may have remained in the air until he burned enough fuel to land safely. He said he could not explain why Hall went to Carswell rather than return to D-FW Airport.

A Delta spokeswoman said the pilot may have decided to land at Carswell because it has runway foam and D-FW does not.

Odom said it was the first civilian emergency plane landing that he could recall at the base.

School Sets Registration

Friday will be registration day at St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann Catholic School located at 22nd Street and Frankford Avenue.

Times are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school cafeteria, and parents will be able to sign up their children for after-school programs at this time.

Programs taking place after school include: beginning and advanced gymnastics and ballet designed for gymnasts; Adventure in the Arts, fine arts programs to be conducted Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays by artists from Texas Tech University; conversational Spanish; boy and girl scouting; piano and guitar.

St. Elizabeth-St. John Neumann has programs for pre-kindergarten through sixth grade.

In addition to the regular academic subjects, Spanish and religion are included in the curriculum.

More information may be obtained by calling Mary Jo Moore, the principal, at 799-4788.

Crosby Lawmen Cleared In Carter Death

A-J Correspondent

CROSBYTON — The Crosby County grand jury has absolved the sheriff's department here of any negligence in the death of John Thomas Carter.

Carter, who was accused in the killings of an elderly Lorenzo couple, was found shot to death in his Crosby County jail cell March 7 after jury selection for his trial had begun. The 34-year-old Lubbock man's death was ruled suicide.

Carter and Mrs. Paula Bruce, 57, of Lorenzo were charged in the Oct. 2, 1978, deaths of Valton Gandy, 73, and his wife, Cora, 68. The Gandys were found shot to death outside their home a mile north of Lorenzo.

Mrs. Bruce is to be tried here Sept. 24 for the killings.

The grand jury also decided there was insufficient evidence to return an indictment against any person who might have given the pistol to Carter and adopted a resolution commending the Crosby County sheriff's department for "its tireless efforts in solving the Gandy murder case."

LCC Announces Campaign Goal

"Partners in Free Enterprise" is the theme of Lubbock Christian College's business campaign.

Robert R. Norris, publisher of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, will serve as chairman of the campaign, which will start this fall.

Alan Henry and Roy Holmes will serve as co-chairmen. "Captains" in the campaign will be Don Hufstedler, Dorman Igo, C.B. Carter, Carroll McDonald, Clem Boverie and J.B. Potts.

"The men who have volunteered to serve this campaign are representative of the fine citizens we have in Lubbock. We are indebted to the many Lubbockites who have believed in and supported the college for the past 22 years," LCC President Harvie M. Pruitt said in announcing the campaign.

Dr. Pruitt also announced a three-year campaign goal of $180,000 or $60,000 per year.

Larry Roberts, LCC's vice president for development who has been formulating the business campaign over the past several months, added, "LCC is an integral part of the business community of Lubbock. With no direct federal or state aid, LCC educates nearly 1,500 students annually and puts more than $4 million into the local economy. We feel that businessmen will support this cause."

Foster Parents' Seminar Slated Saturday In City

Foster Parents and Foster Care Workers with teen-agers know the years between ages 13 and 20 can be touchy, trying times for themselves and their children.

A day-long seminar to be held Saturday in the Lubbock Children's Home Central Building will feature lecture and group discussion concerning discipline; relating to teen-agers' friends; helping teen-agers handle their sexuality; coping with problems of dating, drinking, drugs, running away and being sure the placement is working.

Rick and Joan Baum, directors of Browngate Farm, a group living home for teen-agers, will be instructors at the seminar which is sponsored by Lubbock Foster Parent Association, University of Houston, Texas Department of Human Resources and others.

Admission for the seminar, lasting from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., is free. Lunch will be provided by Lubbock FPA.

Certificates will be awarded at the close of instruction and continuing education units also will be given through the University of Houston to anyone completing all hours.

Less Oil To Hit Texas Beaches

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Oil-stained Texas beaches are in for "sporadic" dousings of more runaway Mexican crude from the world's worst oil spill, but scientists are heartened by concentrations to the south that appear lighter than first feared.

"Sporadic patches of sheen and mousse (thicker oil) are expected to wash ashore on Padre Island during the next several days," Coast Guard spokesman Jim McGranachan said Wednesday, but added, "It's not going to be as bad as it was last week."

More than 50 miles of scenic Padre Island beach, much of it in multi-million dollar tourist areas, were fouled last week by the oil. Several more miles of remote beach 30 miles north of Brownsville were doused late Wednesday by light sheen.

A giant 40-mile-by-60-mile patch of sheen, which contained some small concentrations of thicker oil, loomed off Port Aransas early today. Some of the oil had begun washing ashore, but Coast Guard officials said the impact on the tourist beaches would be "light" compared to last week's covering that was 3 inches deep in some places.

Reconnaissance flights Wednesday off Tampico, Mexico, 250 miles south of Brownsville, showed that a huge concentration of oil covering hundreds of square miles was mostly the lighter sheen. Some thicker concentrations of the fudge-like mousse were in the patches, but not as much as scientists had feared.

Last week's flights had shown very thick concentrations of oil in the area, and scientists had worried about a second assault on the beaches and environmentally sensitive bays and lagoons.

Scientists speculated Wednesday night that the lighter concenrations of Tampico were due to containment efforts begun about two weeks after the Ixtox I offshore well blew out June 3 in the Bay of Campeche.

The crippled well has been spewing more than 10,000 barrels of oil daily and has dumped at least 2 million barrels into the gulf so far. Mexican officials say the well won't be capped until at least Sept. 16.

Thousand of tennis ball-sized steel and lead balls are being pumped into the well and have helped cut the flow from the initial 30,000 barrels per day. Open water containment boom and skimmer setups are also sweeping up some of the oil at the well head.

Three of Gov. Bill Clements' aides toured the coast Wednesday and met with officials from coastal counties about the possibility of requesting federal disaster aid that would allow hotel owners, fishermen and other residents to secure loans against damages.

Clements, who founded the Dallas firm that leased the Ixtox I rig to the Mexican government oil company, said Aug. 10 after touring the then-clean beaches that it was "much to do about nothing."

Clements' top aide Allen Clark and press secretary Jon Ford said the governor made those statements before there was any damage to the beaches. "In those same conversations, he points out that it could become a lot more serious," said Clark. The comments infuriated many coastal residents.

DR. LAMB

Elevated Cholesterol

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 41-year-old male and I've not had any history of heart disease but a lot of my close relatives on my father's side, including my father, have had heart disease.

I'm 5 feet 10 and weight 160 pounds and engage in a vigorous jogging program. My blood pressure is normal and I'm nondiabetic. My problem has been consistent elevated cholesterol levels and occasionally high triglyceride readings despite periodic low-fat diets. During the past five years my lowest cholesterol count has been 265 and the highest has been 338 which was my most recent test. At what approximate level might drug therapy be called for and what, if any, are the risks associated with this type of therapy?

DEAR READER — You're wise to take preventive meansures now, particularly if you have a strong family history of early heart disease. Your elevated cholesterol levels may increase your risk of having a heart attack about three times what it would be if it were completely normal. The three main factors that people can do something about that influence whether you're going to have a heart attack or not really are the elevated cholesterol level, cigarette smoking and elevated blood pressure.

When all three of these risk factors are increased in a young man, it may increase his likelihood of having a heart attack to 38 times what it would be if these risk factors were simply normal.

To give you more information on the risk factors, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-2, How To Measure Your Risk Of Heart Disease. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

As you can see from The Health Letter I'm sending you, office determinations of cholesterol aren't always the same as the values used from research studies. Even so, by any measure, your recent test of 338 is too high. If that is an accurate indication of your level of cholesterol, it would be to your advantage to lower it. It seems like almost every medicine to lower cholesterol ends up having side effects. That's why I've always plugged heavily for altering one's life style rather than using medicines when possible.

That 160 pounds may mean you're too fat. You can have a better idea by seeing if there are any significant fat deposits under your skin around your waist. Those last five to 10 pounds can be very important.

Individuals who do get into trouble with "vigorous jogging" are those who try to run too fast or do too much.

Inaccurate Reports Hike Public Fears

CHICAGO (AP) — Public anxiety over what substances cause cancer is heightened by misleading and inaccurate scientific reports, the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association says.

Dr. William R. Barclay said Monday government agencies in particular often issue scientific findings to create drama and justify their existence.

"Allegations against artificial sweeteners, atomic energy plants, food colorings and preservatives, pharmaceutical products, and industrial chemicals are made almost daily and keep the public in a state of fear that borders on hysteria," Barclay said.

Scientific tests forming the basis of these reports, Barclay added, are often conducted with dosages exceeding any to which man could be exposed and are evaluated by persons with questionable expertise.

His views were expressed in an editorial in the current issue of the weekly scientific magazine.

Barclay said his editorial was prompted by a recent National Cancer Institute report that reserpine, a drug used to treat high blood pressure, caused cancer in mice and rats.

"If you took the time to read the report, you'd be puzzled as to how in the hell they came to the conclusion this drug causes cancer," Barclay said in an interview.

"If people took those headlines at face value and stopped using the drug, some would suffer strokes and some would suffer heart attacks," Barclay said.

Contacted for comment, a spokesman at the National Cancer Institute said the agency would prepare a response.

Barcley said that frightening headlines cause problems for doctors, who then must spend valuable time answering the questions of concerned patients.

"It is incumbent on government to exercise extreme care in the analysis of these studies, to submit the reports to careful scientific peer review, and to be certain that any interpretation of the reports to the lay press accurately reflects conclusions that the data can support," he said.

Such reports frequently are issued at the end of the week and the mischief has been done by the time they can be verified and discounted in several days, he said.

Partly to create drama and partly to ensure their existence, Barclay said that when these agencies "get the slightest hint, they jump on it. You can't stay in business if you stay quiet all the time."

Alcoholism Effects Studied In Rodents

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Researchers say rats can become alcoholics, and a study of the effects of liquor on rodents may shed some light on human drinking problems.

Armed with a $500 private grant, a team at Eastern Montana College has found that some rats take a strong liking to alcohol-spiked water and become dependent on it.

"The thing that excites me the most is that the rats have been given independent access to alcohol," said researcher Howard Simmons, director of an alcohol and drug treatment service here. Nothing was done to induce the drinking behavior, such as adding sweeteners, he said.

The research shows that 10 percent of the imbibing rats indicated a clear dependency on alcohol within one week, said Simmons, noting that is the same percentage usually attributed to the human population.

"The fact that we're getting animals to drink under these circumstances at all is significant," he said.

One-third of the 50 rats only sip now and then at water with 1 percent alcohol content, said Simmons. The majority imbibe water that is 15 percent to 20 percent alcohol, he said. But the heavy drinkers consume a mixture that is 50 percent alcohol.

Post-mortem analysis will be conducted on the rats to determine what damage, if any, occurred to their livers, lungs and brains, he said. And future generations of the rats will be studied for insight into human problems with alcohol, said Simmons.

The project began last fall when the team, headed by Ellen Garber, assistant professor of psychology, received an EMC Ford Foundation Venture Fund grant. Research began three months ago and is expected to continue for at least three months.

The research is inexpensive. The only direct expenses are the cost of alcohol, food and rats. The original $500 grant is nearly expended, he said, but the researchers hope to obtain more funds from the National Institute of Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse.

Simmons said the behavior of the heavy-drinking rats is similar in some respects to that of humans.

For example, the dependent rats seem willing to work for the alcohol and they drink in cycles, Simmons said. And when the rats get drunk, they show decreased motor coordination, he added.

Because the rats are housed individually, there is no way of observing whether they exhibit antisocial behavior while under the influence, said Simmons.

Simmons said he believes the research may help to establish that alcoholism is caused by physiological factors. He likened the effects of alcohol on some people to the effects of allergies in others.

Yeoman Looks For Leadership Among Cougars

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

HOUSTON — Bill Yeoman is cautiously optimistic he has the horses to capture a second consecutive Southwest Conference Championship this fall. But the question remains. . can his choice of jockey direct the University of Houston thoroughbreds to the finish line in first place?

The Cougars are loaded with experience. Thirty-three lettermen, including 12 starters from 1978's 9-3 squad make Houston one of the most experienced collegiate teams in the country. Experience definitely helps win championships, but there is another necessary ingredient — leadership.

Offensive leadership is Yeoman's main concern as he begins his 18th season as head man at Houston. The Cougars lost dynamic and talented quarterback Danny Davis to graduation last year. Davis, an All-SWC performer in 1978 and Houston's most valuable player, guided the Cougars to two Cotton Bowl berths during his tenure. His leadership will be missed, but Yeoman is keeping his fingers crossed that senior Delrick Brown will be able to step in and direct Houston's awesome veer attack.

Brown is no newcomer to SWC football. The 6-foot, 160-pounder from Lufkin stepped into the UH starting lineup during most of the 1977 season and adequately replaced the injured Davis. Brown's physical abilities are considered better than Davis' by many Houston players and coaches. Brown is quicker and has a much stronger arm. But his leadership capabilities remain unanswered.

"Even if we had Danny (Davis) coming back, our main concern would be the quarterback position," said Yeoman during Wednesday's SWC media tour stop at the UH campus. "It's hard to argue with what the kid has done. I feel that Delrick can be a fine quarterback for us. I believe the kids have a great deal of confidence in him and he has a great deal of confidence in himself.

"If we give him the same kind of support Danny had, then maybe the results will be similar."

E Sports
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Thursday Evening, August 23, 1979

Following in Davis' footsteps doesn't bother Brown. He has waited for two years to return to the starting quarterback berth and looks forward to the new season.

"I always get excited when football season starts," admitted Brown. "I guess I'm more excited this season because I'm going to be able to start the year as a starter. Some people think that there'll be a lot of pressure on me because of what Danny did. I don't feel any pressure. I learned a lot from Danny and from that I'm more confident and at ease with the team. I feel like I'm in charge."

Brown handoffs will be taken by running backs who saw some playing time last season but were not starters. Randy Love and Emmett King each gained more than 1,000 yards for UH a year ago, but they are gone.

They will be replaced by a stable of runners who Yeoman feels are capable but need to be tested during the first three or four weeks of the campaign.

Junior running back Terald Clark and junior fullback John Newhouse (a cousin of former UH great and Dallas Cowboy fullback Robert Newhouse) are scheduled to start for the Cougars when they open their season on the road Sept. 8 against UCLA.

Clark, 5-9 and 195 pounds, is strong, quick and has the speed to be a game breaker. Newhouse, 5-11 and 205 pounds, is "terribly talented" according to Yeoman. Newhouse can fool defenders with his speed and is a devestating blocker.

Clark and Newhouse are being pushed hard by a pair of talented sophomores, Dallas Wiggins, who reminds Yeoman of Alois Blackwell because of his quickness and knack for reading his downfield blocks, is Clark's competition. David Barrett, a 6-2, 220-pound bruiser Yeoman considers the first legitimate fullback Houston has had in many seasons, is after Newhouse's job.

Sophomores Eddie Wright, Ernie Wesley and Alan Polk (who is coming off a knee injury) are likely to see playing time until Yeoman decides which backs are running the best and have assumed the proper sense of responsibility.

Houston's receiving corps lacks depth and even with Brown's stronger passing arm, the Cougars may not be able to throw the football as much as Yeoman would like

Hubert Miller takes over the split end spot vacated by Willis Adams. Miller played some tight end for the varsity during the '78 campaign and was switched to split end following spring drills. He should be a little more flexible as a

Knight Gets Sentence, Offers IU Resignation

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bobby Knight says there is "no way" he intends to serve his jail sentence for hitting a policeman and has offered to quit his job as basketball coach at Indiana University because of the assault conviction.

School officials met today to consider the resignation offer which Knight made Wednesday night. Earlier in the day he was sentenced to six months in jail on an assault conviction in the incident that took place at last month's Pan American Games in Puerto Rico.

The fiery Knight, meanwhile, said there is "no way under any circumstances" he will return to Puerto Rico, where officials are trying to decide whether to seek his extradition.

Imposition of the sentence, which also includes a $500 fine, was delayed until Monday, and no attempts to extradite Knight were expected before then. District Court Judge Rurico Rivera also hinted he would suspend the jail term if Knight would personally appear in San Juan to appeal his conviction during a Wednesday trial in absentia on a charge of hitting Puerto Rican policeman Jose D. Silva in the face.

Thaddeus M. Bonus, IU vice president for university relations, said Knight's resignation offer was made by telephone Wednesday night.

University officials, including president Dr. John Ryan, were to meet today to discuss the matter, Bonus said. The decision whether to accept the resignation will be up to Ryan, Bonus said.

Meanwhile, Knight said he was convinced he would have been in jail today had he appeared at the trial. And he left no doubts about whether he would voluntarily return to San Juan.

"There is no question in my mind that if I had gone to Puerto Rico I would be in jail. The sentence would be exactly the same," Knight said in a telephone interview with Indianapolis Star sports editor Bob Collins from an undisclosed location in Montana where he is vacationing.

"There is a feeling of helplessness in

Raider Defenders Dominate

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Nobody was keeping score, but the first controlled scrimmage of the Texas Tech grid season Wednesday afternoon at Jones Stadium, clearly belonged to the defense.

The Raiders worked for two hours in the heat of the late afternoon, and although the offensive unit did have some moments, it was the defensive squadthat held up best under the conditions.

"That's only natural," explained Dockery afterwards. "Most of the time your defensive unit comes around a little quicker. At least you hope it does."

The Tech boss was especially pleased with his second-team defense saying, "they played extremely well.

"And I thought the first team looked good the second time (they were on the field)," he added. "Our defense had some intensity — and that's good to see."

But the sun made it's presence felt.

"It got a little hot," said Dockery. "Some of the players let up, and some of 'em stayed with it."

Defensively, Dockery praised the work of freshmen Ricky Sanders and Dennis Veals. Big lineman Dane Kerns (6-7, 255, Jr.) also caught the coach's eye.

"Dane looked like he has really improved," said Dockery. "He looked good today."

"It's hard to evaluate players right now," said Dockery. "But some of our young backs did well on offense."

Dockery pointed to the play of freshman quarterbacks Jim Hart and Mark

Looking Ahead

IT'S BEEN A long time for Kyle Musick; no wonder he's looking forward to putting on a game jersey the first day of September.

It was just a few days ago that Jerry Don Sanders, the new football boss at Lubbock Christian College, remarked that Musick was the best defender in last Saturday's scrimmage. Now comes Musick to remark that, "By the time we play McMurry (here Sept. 1 in the school's inaugural football game), we'll be ready."

For sure, Musick will.

Football, the young man will admit readily, is Musick's favorite sport. It's not his only athletic talent, but he enjoys the hitting. But, it's been a while since he has had any of that full-gear contact.

"I played in the ninth and tenth grades in high school, but that's the last time," he remarked Wednesday.

His junior and senior years at Grants, N.M., weren't kind to him. They did create a strong motivational force, however.

AS A FRESHMAN and sophomore in high school, Musick had started as a linebacker. But, coming into his junior year, tragedy struck.

As Musick and three companions were returning to Grants from the state fair at Albuquerque, they were involved in an accident. Musick was driving the truck when it rolled. He was the most seriously injured, sustaining a broken collarbone, broken ribs and a punctured lung. And these multiple injuries kept him out of football the entire season.

The following autumn, in the second game against Albuquerque Cibola, Musick went out again, this time with a back injury. And he never returned to the playing field.

Facing this type of misfortune, Musick looked for other athletic games. He found his competition in baseball, and as a catcher, he was good enough to land a scholarship at Lamar (Colo.) Junior College.

He played there a year — but the school had no football. Last fall, knowing that the Chaparrals had an outstanding baseball program, Musick transferred to LCC.

He didn't make the school's baseball team, but while involved in the spring drills, he heard that the school was inaugurating football.

As a result, Sanders is smiling.

"IT'S A LOT harder (in football) up here," Musick remarked. "Right now (prior to start of classes), you eat, sleep and live football. That's what I like. In high school, you didn't do that. The workouts are harder, too.

"We do a lot of work on fundamentals. But, every day, you can see the improvement (in the team). We're clicking.

"In the spring, we got familiar with the coaches, learned what they wanted from us in the way of fundamentals, went over the defenses. That was a good part of the program."

But, now, "We'll be glad to play McMurry. I'm getting tired of hitting the same guys (teammates) every day. It will be good to even scrimmage Cisco (JC in Sweetwater Saturday).

BUT, WITH ALL the misfortune, Musick still wants to play. And badly.

He also knows where he wants to go — and how to get there.

"I want to prove something to myself," Musick said. "People will trust you if you have a goal in life.

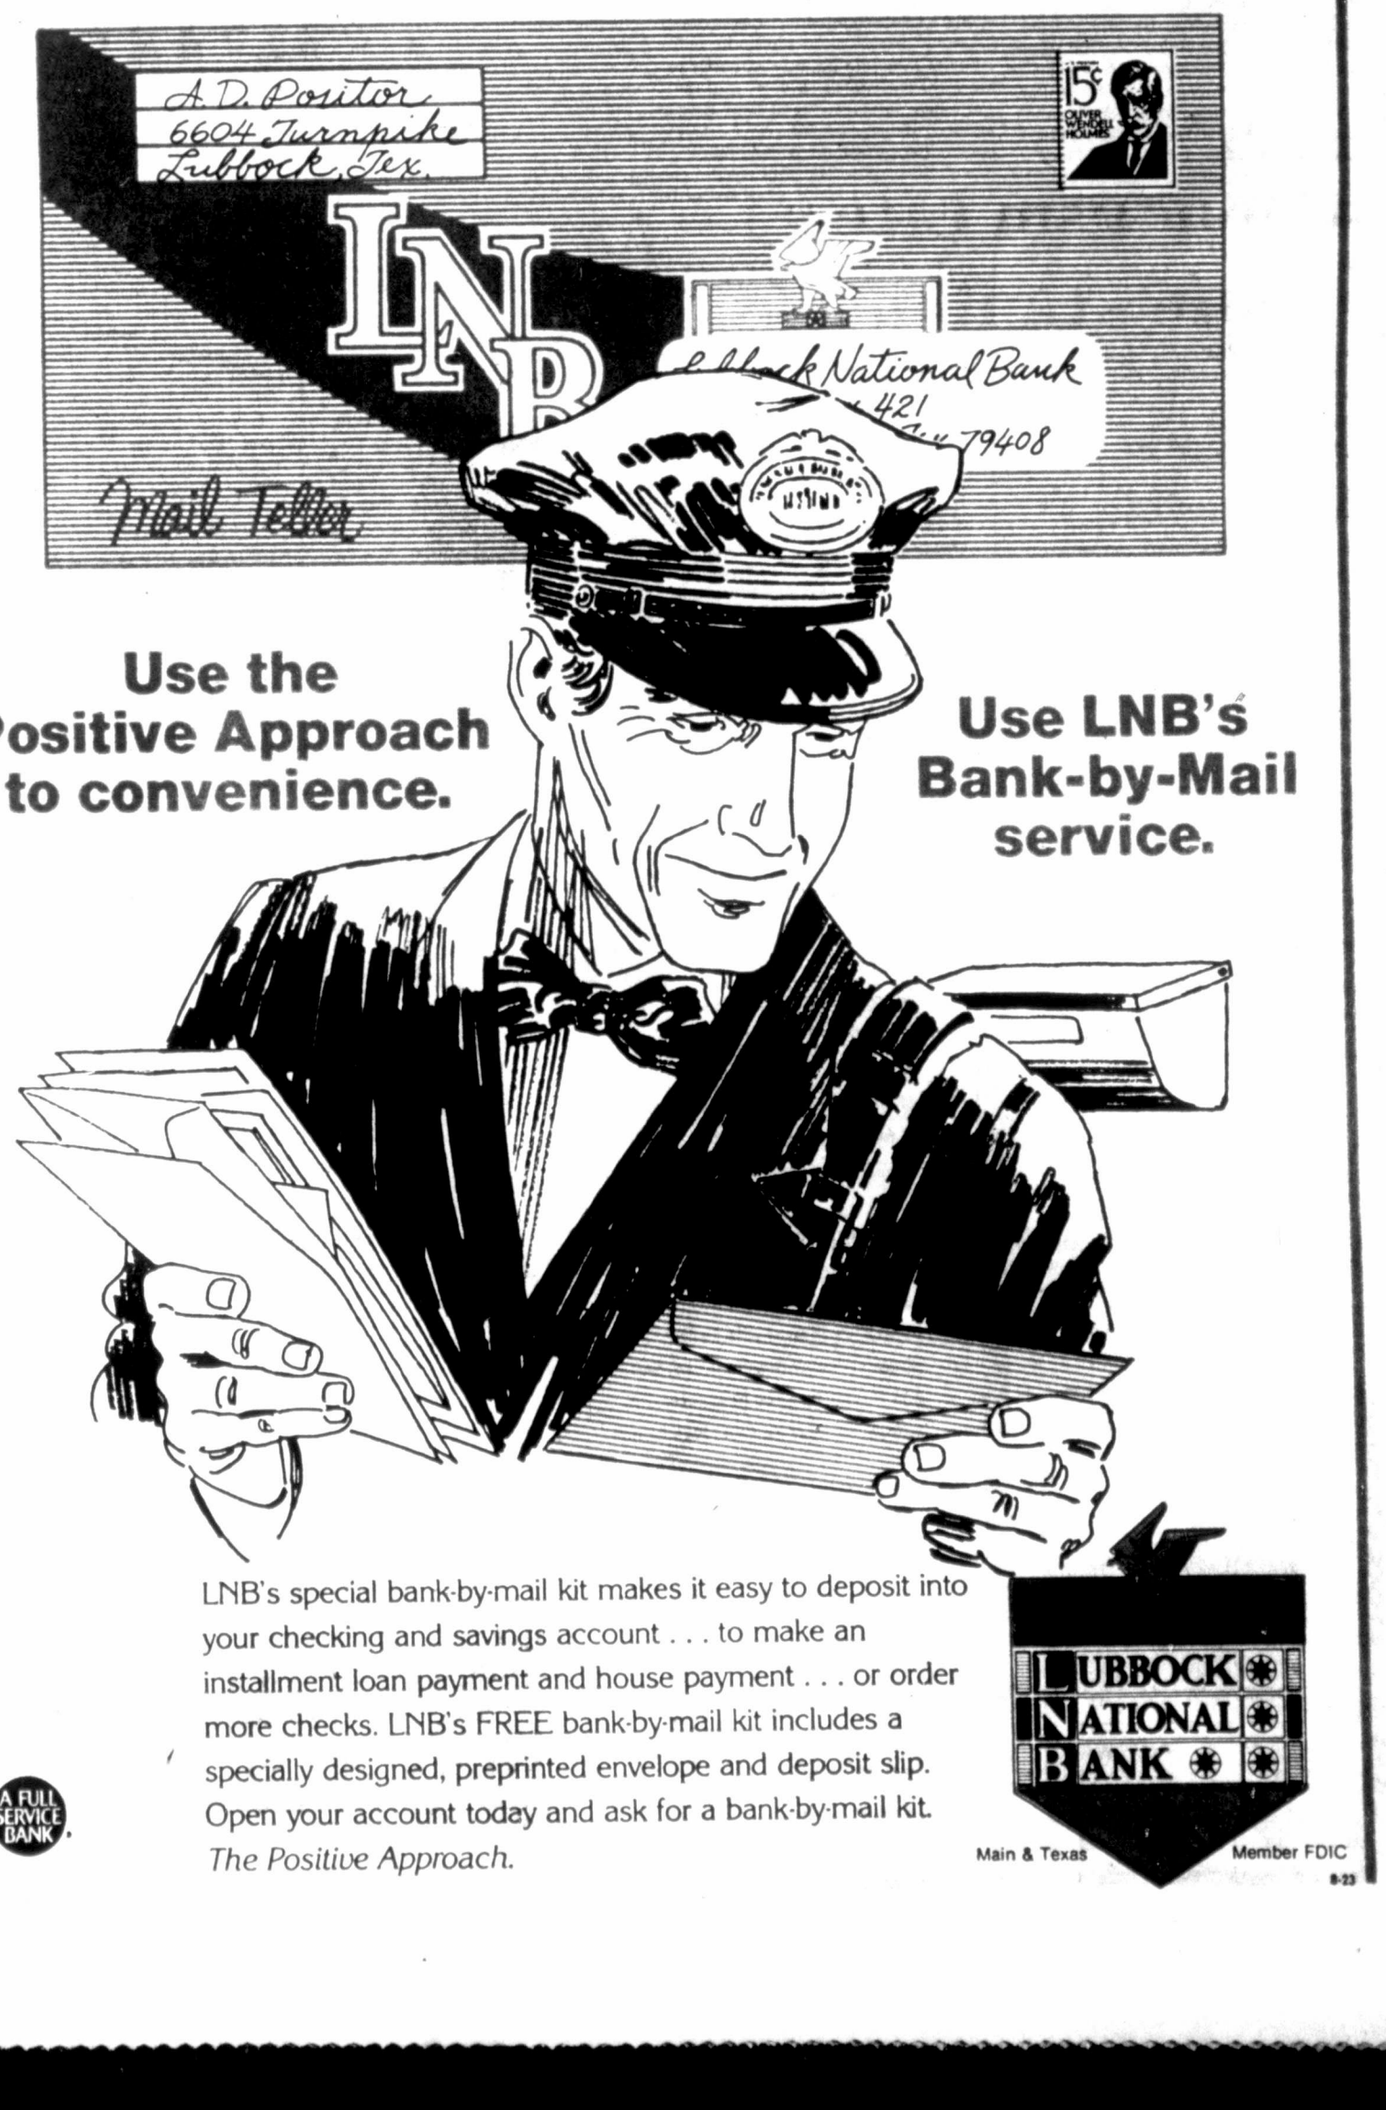

"I'm small now, about 170 pounds (up 10 pounds from his high school playing days), but I plan to hit the weights and eat a lot and, hopefully, get up to 190 pounds by next year.

"You have to keep working. If you keep on pursuing something, you will eventually get there."

Cowboys Get Nod In NFC East

Detroit, Rams Picked For Titles

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Depth is the measure of champions and if the Dallas Cowboys plan to return to the Super Bowl for a third straight year, they will have to come up with replacements at several key spots.

Dallas remains the best team in the National Football Conference, perhaps because the rest of the NFC is not all that strong.

Sports Analysis

Returning to the Super Bowl won't be as easy as it should be for a team with Dallas' lineup. But it's still the best in the conference and will be there when playoff time comes. Dallas, however, could have some new company.

The Cowboys' trip to Pasadena, Calif., and another Super Bowl will require eliminating Los Angeles — something NFC teams have always managed to do in the playoffs — Atlanta, Philadelphia and Detroit. The improving Lions, in fact, could be the conference dark horses.

The Cowboys are not without their problems. On defense, Too Tall Jones has decided to become a boxer and Jethro Pugh has chosen a less strenuous retirement, leaving two openings on the line. All Pro safety Charlie Waters was hurt in a preseason game and is likely to sit out a good portion if not the entire season. Running back Tony Dorsett also missed important training camp work because of an injury.

But the replacement parts are there. Larry Cole, who split playing time with Pugh last year, and Larry Bethea, a No. 1 draft choice in 1978, step into the line. Veteran Randy Hughes will fill in for Waters at safety and handyman Preston Pearson and Scott Laidlaw will handle Dorsett's role.

Quarterback Roger Staubach, receivers Tony Hill and Drew Pearson, defensive end Harvey Martin, defensive tackle Randy White, and other talented players make it difficult to overtake the Cowboys.

Philadelphia will try. Coach Dick Vermeil's program could begin reaching fruition this season. All-America Jerry Robinson, the No. 1 draft, joins All Pro Bill Bergey at linebacker and the offense has some talented people like quarterback Ron Jaworski, running back Wilbert Montgomery and wide receiver Harold Carmichael.

St. Louis must overcome the shocking training camp death of J.V. Cain and will look for leadership to veterans like quarterback Jim Hart, fullback Jim Otis, wide receiver Mel Gray, tackle Dan Dierdorf, center Tom Banks and guard Bob Young. Free safety Ken Stone led the NFC with nine interceptions last season and is a key man along with Roger Wehrli in the secondary.

Washington's Over-The-Hill Gang is finally over the hill and coach Jack Pardee must rebuild. The same is true with the New York (Jersey) Giants under new coach Ray Perkins.

The Lions started in reverse with a 1-6 record last season but won six of their last nine behind quarterback Gary Danielson. The front four, led by Rookie of the Year Al Baker and Doug English, could be the best in the conference and No. 1 draft Keith Dorney should shore up the offensive line.

Minnesota must start over following the retirement of quarterback Fran Tarkenton. Tommy Kramer is the most likely replacement but he'll need help. He has appealing targets in Ahmad Rashad, Sammy White and Rickey Young, who led the league with 88 catches last season. Chuck Foreman must return to his 1,000-yard level and newcomers like center Dave Huffman and defensive end Randy Holloway have big jobs replacing retired Mick Tingelhoff and Carl Eller, who was dispatched to Seattle.

Until Chicago solves its quarterback scramble, the Bears will remain in the middle of the Central pack. Mike Phipps, Bob Avellini and Vince Evans are the choices and Walter Payton, perhaps the premier runner in pro football today, wishes one of them would emerge to lift some of the Bears' offensive burden off his broad shoulders.

The two Bays — Green and Tampa — seem locked in at the bottom of the Division, although both have some interesting young talent and could be only a year or so away from moving up.

Los Angeles' hold in the West may start eroding. The Rams can expect stronger challenges than they've had in recent years from Atlanta and New Orleans, both improved.

Steve Rosenbloom's departure may ease the LA front office squabbles that followed the death of his father, but the retirement of guard Tom Mack won't help the offfensive line one bit. Gone too, are linebacker Isiah Robertson and safety Bill Simpson. But the Youngbloods — end Jack and linebacker Jim — are solid and so are cornerbacks Pat Thomas and Rod Perry, in a defense that is the Rams' strong suit. Cody Jones, Larry Brooks and Fred Dryer team with Jack Youngblood up front for an awesome rush line.

Atlanta's defense was responsible for the success of the Falcons last year and the club developed a Hairbreadth Harry reputation by winning six games in the last two minutes, four of them in the final 10 seconds. Linebacker Greg Brezina, the team's most valuable player last year, and cornerback Rolland Lawrence are the cornerstones of the defense.

New Orleans made progress last year and the Archie Manning-led offense could keep things interesting for the Saints. San Francisco's rebuilding program begins as O.J. Simpson winds down his fabulous career.

Page Returns, To Spend Season As Red Shirt QB

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Randy Page is back on the Texas Tech campus and working out after a summer of indecision.

But his Red Raider uniform includes a red shirt and as a result, coach Rex Dockery is busy grooming backup quarterbacks to work behind Ron Reeves.

Becaus of a shortage of semester hours, Page is having to take the role of a red shirt this fall, he reported. He returned to Tech after seriously considering transferring.

But with Page, who had seriously battled Reeves for the starting QB position in spring training out of the picture, the backup spot is in the hands of Richy Ethridge, with squadman Rex Jones and freshmen Mark James of Gregory-Portland and Jim Hart of Irving in the battle. Ethridge, a third-year sophomore, is currently running No. 2.

"I'm working out every day," remarked Page, "but, naturally, they're concentrating on the other guys more than me."

In the final spring game, Page, from Oklahoma City Southeast High School, rushed for 126 yards and hit seven of 13 passes and one touchdown in a 31-7 losing cause. It took a 65-yard rushing, one touchdown, 8-for-15 for 169 yards and three-TD afternoon for Reeves to overshadow him.

"After I got back home (for the summer), they called me and said that I didn't pass enough hours," Page related. "I would have had to spend the entire summer here and go to school both sessions at Tech to be eligible.

"I just wanted to spend some time at home with my friends, so I thought about transferring to a junior college (Oscar Rose) in Oklahoma City and giving up football. I was kinda tired of it, and I thought I'd just play basketball — that's my favorite sport, anyway.

"I went ahead and went to summer school at Oscar Rose, passed 11 hours. Coach Dockery talked to me during the summer and left the door open if I wanted to come back to Tech this fall. I thought about it, but I didn't make up my mind until the week before three-a-days.

"Coach Dockery talked to me again that week. He didn't put any pressure on me, just told me again that I could come back and be red shirted.

"I had been thinking about it, and my dad had talked to me some, but he left it all up to me."

Page came back and donned the red shirt.

"I can regain my eligibility this fall, and the 11 hours I got at Oscar Rose will transfer. I can start playing (for the quarterback spot) next spring."

The situation will leave Page out of the weekly game plans, but "It'll give me a lot of time to keep my nose in the books.

"I'm sure everybody gets tired of football sometimes, and I've been playing all through high school. And I knew every player on the (Rose) team. Maybe this year will be good for me; it'll give me a chance to learn what I missed by playing split end last fall."

Raiders Sign 9.2 Sprinter

Texas Tech track coach Corky Ogglesby got some great news when Leonard Jervis, an Olympic sprinter from the Bahamas, blew into town late Tuesday night.

Jervis had signed a letter-of-intent with Tech early in the summer, but Ogglesby had held off on an announcement until he was sure that his prize pupil would arrive in Lubbock.

Jervis, from Nassau, owns a personal best of 9.2 in the 100-yard dash and a 10.1 in the 100-meters. He also ran the anchor leg for the Bahama sprint-relay team in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

The smooth talking Jervis was at the Tech football scrimmage Wednesday and he also found time to inspect the weight room at Jones Stadium.

"I like the facilities," said Jervis. "I hope to do well here, and I'm going to work the others (sprinters) hard.

"I don't want to be on a losing team, that's no fun."

Jervis is a transfer from Iowa Lake Junior College in Clearlake, Iowa.

"But he's still got three years of eligibility," said Oglesby. "Because they (Iowa Lake) dropped their track program."

Grandfather Not Eligible

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A 44-year-old grandfather who practiced last spring with Florida State's football team won't be able to play this season because he didn't take enough credits, school officials say.

Larry Pendleton, an assistant athletic director, said Wednesday Messina had passed 35 academic credit hours during the past year, instead of the school-required 36 hours.

Messina has practiced with the Seminoles throughout spring drills. His appearance on the playing field drew national publicity.

Seminole officials also announced that junior guard Lee Ruskin has resigned from the team because he said he's no longer interested in playing football.

SWIMMER DIES

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — University of Alabama and Nashville Aquatic Club swimmer John Charles Worthington III is dead after falling out of a boat and being hit by the motor, authorities say. Worthington, a 20-year-old junior from St. Joseph, Mich., was thrown Wednesday from the boat on Percy Priest Lake after a skier released the tow rope and the boat gained speed, other swimmers said.

Vikings To Try Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — It took the Minnesota Vikings 12 quarters of exhibition play before they scored their first touchdown, but the defending NFC Central Division champions are still looking for their first exhibition victory.

The last chance for that elusive first triumph will come tonight when the Vikings meet the Kansas City Chiefs at rain-drenched Metropolitan Stadium.

"We'd like to win at home, see some progress and be ready to open the regular season Sept. 2 against the 49ers," says coach Bud Grant, who has downplayed his team's 0-3 record.

"Exhibition games are important and entertaining, but it's hard to keep track of records," he said. "If you ask most people they can't tell you what our record is, or anybody else's.

"The regular season is another matter. Hopefully, if we can lose three in a row in the exhibitions, we can win three in a row in the regular season."

The Vikings lost last week to Miami 21-10 but got into the end zone for the first time in 1979 when reserve quarterback John Reaves hit Ahmad Rashad with an 8-yard TD pass midway through the final quarter.

Kansas City, 2-1, is coming off a 20-3 victory over St. Louis. The Chiefs lost their first exhibition game 14-10 to Green Bay, but rebounded to defeat Philadelphia 24-21 two weeks ago.

The Chiefs, under coach Marv Levy, are known for their Wing-T offense, but Grant says it's not much different than the offense most NFL clubs run.

New Bowling Lanes Set Official Opening

One of the nation's top female billiards players, Miss Campos is ranked No. 1 in Texas. She'll be joined here by Joe Joseph, a member of the Bowling Hall of Fame; Loa Boxberger, one of the top women's bowlers in the nation, and Bernie Rudo, Brunswick division manager from Chicago.

Miss Campos is an instructor in billiards at the University of Texas and has appered on the CBS news magazine show, "60 Minutes." As a member of the Brunswick Staff of Champions, she travels around the world promoting the sport of billiards with exhibitions and clinics.

Later in the evening, local news personalities will be bowling for muscular dystrophy. For every pin the news personalities knock down, Brunswick will make contributions to the MD campaign, according to manager Jerry Wilson.

The South Plains Bowl complex is located at 5150 69th St.

Richard Puts Out Mets' Fire

By The Associated Press

One of baseball's hardest throwers, the Houston Astros' right-hander was sailing into the ninth inning against the New York Mets Wednesday with a five-hit shutout.

Then he gave up two hits and a run, and Houston manager Bill Virdon started thinking about his bullpen. But he didn't bring anyone in, because he figured he didn't have anyone better for the immediate situation.

"I would not have used anybody else unless I thought J.R. was wild," Virdon said. "But he had good stuff, and I'd just as soon have him out there as anybody to get one out."

It turned out to be a good decision — Richard ended the game with a flourish by striking out his 10th batter and preserved a 3-1 victory for the National League West leaders.

The game marked the ninth time this season that Richard had struck out at least 10 batters in a game, and boosted his NL-leading total to 232 strikeouts.

"It was a big win," noted Virdon. "J.R. did an outstanding job and at this point in the race with us only up 1½ games (over Cincinnati), we have to consider every game a big game."

While Richard was doing the pitching for Houston, Jose Cruz and Jeff Leonard were doing the hitting. Cruz had a bases-empty homer in the second inning and Leonard supplied a two-run single in the eighth for the Astros' eventual winning runs.

Pirates 8, Giants 6

Tim Foli's tie-breaking, two-run single with two out in the eighth inning led Pittsburgh over San Francisco. Ed Ott walked to open the inning, was sacrificed to second and then pinch-hitter Bill Robinson was intentionally walked. Both runners advanced on a grounder by Omar Moreno before Foli's line drive hit scored Ott and Robinson.

Kent Tekulve, 8-6, the fourth Pirate pitcher who came on in the eighth, was the winner. Gary Lavelle, San Francisco's fourth pitcher, 7-8, was charged with the loss.

"It's a great feeling to play in the second half and have the games mean something," said Foli, playing on a contending team for the first time in his major league career. "With the other clubs I've been on, we've been 20 or 30 games behind after the All-Star break."

Dodgers 7, Cubs 2

Ron Cey drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple, and Joe Ferguson drove in two more with a solo home run and run-scoring double to lead Los Angeles over Chicago.

Cey's triple highlighted a four-run uprising in the seventh inning, when the Dodgers chased loser Mike Krukow, 9-9. Ferguson, who homered in the fourth, contributed his RBI double to the seventh-inning outburst.

Braves 4, Phillies 3

Gary Matthews drove in two runs and Gene Garber notched his 22nd save as Atlanta defeated Philadelphia. Winner Eddie Solomon, 5-10, allowed only two hits in six innings. But after walking Mike Schmidt leading off the Phillies' seventh, Solomon pulled a leg muscle and was replaced by Joey McLaughlin, who held the Phillies in check until the ninth, when the first two batters reached base.

Garber came in at this point and, after loading the bases and hitting Greg Luzinski and walking Dave Rader to force in two runs, pitched out of the jam with the help of a double play.

Reds 7, Expos 2

Johnny Bench became the Cincinnati Reds' all-time home run leader with a three-run, fourth-inning homer that paced the Reds over Montreal.

It was Bench's 15th home run of the season and his 325th as a Red, one more than Frank Robinson. Bench became the club's all-time RBI leader earlier this season.

Mike LaCoss, 14-5, scattered eight hits for the victory and Steve Rogers, 11-8, was the loser.

"I watched it," Bench said of his historic homer. "I figured with two outs I could afford to — and when the ball went over the fence I jumped a little bit and said, 'Wow' out loud. I don't know how long the record will stand, but right now I'm the home run king here and that's a heck of a feeling."

Cardinals 8, Padres 5

Ted Simmons belted his 21st homer and Keith Hernandez doubled twice and drove home two runs, helping St. Louis beat San Diego.

The Cardinals, aided by a Padres error, scored four times before loser Bob Owchinko, 4-8, retired a batter. Rookie John Fulgham posted his sixth victory in 10 decisions while scatterng 13 hit.

Lemon's Comeback Win For Chisox

By The Associated Press

Chet Lemon's one-day walkout ended just as suddenly as it began — much to the chagrin of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Lemon, who walked out on the Chicago White Sox prior to Tuesday night's doubleheader, came back Wednesday night and slapped a tie-breaking eighth-inning single to give his team a 4-3 triumph and snap the Brewers' four-game winning streak.

"It was like a stage set — like a move — me getting the winning hit after what happened," said Lemon, who walked out during batting practice, reportedly because he wasn't allowed to take his swings before Wayne Nordhagen and Alan Bannister. "It's a great feeling to come back and help the ball club win because I watched the guys lose a doubleheader here on television last (Tuesday) night."

It was the Brewers' turn to be solemn after Lemon's hit drove in Lamar Johnson to snap a 3-3 tie and leave Milwaukee 6½ games behind first-place Baltimore — nine games in the loss column — in the American League's East Division.

"When I came back this afternoon, no one hassled me. No one pried about why I did what I did," said Lemon. "The other guys know I wouldn't want to do anything to hurt the ballclub. Everybody was pulling for me, and I appreciated that."

Red Sox 9, Twins 4

Jim Rice and Fred Lynn drove in runs to help Bob Stanley win his first game since the All-Star break as Boston pounded Minnesota in a game washed out after eight innings.

Lynn collected his 106th RBI of the season with a seventh-inning double and Rice delivered a first-inning run with a single, raising his total to 102. California's Don Baylor leads the majors with 110.

Meanwhile, Carl Yastrzemski celebrated his 40th birthday with two singles, rasing his lifetime total to 2,987 hits and tying him for 15th place on the all-time hit list.

Indians 13, Angels 3

Mike Hargrove, Rick Manning, Bobby Bonds and Toby Harrah had three hits each in the 18-hit Cleveland attack that buried the Angels. Indians started Dan Spillner, 8-3, gave up just five hits, including a solo homer by Rick Miller in the third and a two-run shot by Willie Mays Aikens in the ninth.

Tigers 3, A's 1

Alan Trammel's third homer of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning, helped carry Detroit past Oakland.

Royals 3, Yankees 1

Mariners 6, Blue Jays 3

GENERAL

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight, who was found guilty Wednesday of aggravated assault in slugging a police officer in Puerto Rico during the Pan American Games, has reportedly offered his resignation to the university. Knight disclosed his resignation offer in an interview with the Indianapolis Star. Knight was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 by San Juan Superior Judge Rurico Rivera. He was tried in absentia.

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Washington State University senior Hayward Harris collapsed and died during a team football practice. He was 21. Washington State Coach Jim Walden said Harris, a defensive tackle, was taking part in his first practice session and was involved in a non-contact, response drill when he collapsed.

BALTIMORE (AP) — City police held two men on charges of assault with intent to murder former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Joe Gilliam. Gilliam was beaten Monday night. Narcotics detectives said the beating of Gilliam apparently was drug related.

TENNIS

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Top-seeded Roscoe Tanner defeated John Sadri, 6-4, 7-6 in the third round of the $200,000 Association of Tennis Professionals Championship. In other action, second-seeded Harold Solomon blasted Nick Saviano, 6-0, 6-1; Vince Van Patten upset Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 6-2, 6-3; Peter Flemming, seeded No.7, edged Tim Wilkison, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2; Francisco Gonzales of Puerto Rico beat Jaime Fillol of Chile, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1; Brian Gottfried outlasted Chris Lewis 6-1, 7-6, and Ilie Nastase of Romania defeated Bruce Kleege 6-2, 7-5.

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Two-time defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain defeated Harry Fritz of Canada 6-1, 6-1 in the opening round of the U.S. Pro Tennis championship. In other matches, top-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain beat Peter Rennert 6-0, 6-2; Britain's John Lloyd defeated John Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-1; Ivan Lendel of Czechoslovakia beat Steve Krulevitz 6-3, 6-2 and Ross Case of Australia eliminated Ivan Molina of Colombia, 6-3, 6-4.

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd outlasted Mimi Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 in the $75,000 Women's Tennis Cup. In other action, Ivanna Madruga of Argentina outlasted Ann Kiyomura, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3; Jeanne DuVall suprised Terry Holladay 6-2, 6-3; Virginia Ruzici of Romania defeated Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, 7-5, 6-4 and Britain's Sue Barker defeated Bettyann Stuart 6-1, 6-0.

HOCKEY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings acquired center Andre St. Laurent and Detroit's top draft pick for each of the next two years in an agreement that kept Dale McCourt a member of the Red Wings. As part of the agreement, the Kings have an option to swap the 1981 first-round National Hockey League draft selection for a 1980 second-round choice if Detroit obtains a second-round pick in the interim. Los Angeles Kings owner Jerry Buse disclosed that he offered McCourt a $3 million, six-year contract to join the Kings, an offer that would have made the center the highest paid player in the NHL. But McCourt supposedly turned down the offer.

BOWLING

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Marshall Holman averaged 234 for six games and grabbed a 27-pin lead over Steve Cook and Dennis Lane after one round in the $70,000 Sarasota Professional Bowlers Association Open.

Garrett Wins Road Race

He didn't need the points, but Malcolm Garrett Jr. found last weekend's Sports Car Club of America race at Texas World Speedway among the season's most rewarding.

He scored his first over-all victory this season and led all but three of the 18 circuits of the road course. His average speed for the 50-mile race, run in humid 96-degree temperatures, was 89.504 mph, and his quick lap of 1:59.1 for the twisting three-mile course was the fastest ever recorded for a B Sedan entry.

Garrett has six first places and one second place finish in Southwestern Divisional B Sedan racing and in his last outing a month ago clinched his second straight Southwestern title. He didn't need to go racing Sunday.

But racing keeps your skills sharp and Garrett had an engine he wanted to be sure was right for this fall's national championship clash at Road Atlanta, so his Datsun 710 went aboard the trailer for the tow to College Station.

While up to now class wins have been routine for the Lubbock insurance broker, an over-all win had eluded him. He had run second to big-bore D Production machinery all over the division.

This time, though, it was different.

"I qualified first for a change, two tenths of a second quicker than Richard McDaniel of Dallas, in a TR-7, and third-quick, a second below me, was Ron McLean of St. Louis in another Datsun 710," Garrett related.

"I led the first lap, but McDaniel passed me when we got onto the (high-speed) oval portion of the track on the second lap," he said.

He was six more laps shaking the St. Louis driver, but never was able to ease off until the final stages of the race, which he won by 17 seconds. McDaniel, a three-time D Production national champion, in the meantime managed to slingshot McLean on the final circuit to finish second over-all.

Garrett will pass up the final race of the season next month. "If you tear something up, it's too close to Road Atlanta to be sure you can get it fixed in time," he explained, adding that everything about the car was "working perfectly" in last weekend's outing.

David Elle, Lubbock's only other SCCA driver, will need to make the last race, though, to insure his holding the second spot in division B Sedan standings.

Both Garrett and Elle will be eligible to compete at Atlanta in October, with Garrett guaranteed a starting slot by virtue of his division championship.

PROMOTION

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — David Baker, assistant sports information director at Penn State University, has been named sports information director at the college. He succeeds John Morris, who resigned.

Brown Expected To Take Over As QB For Cougs

pass receiver than Adams was but may not be the quality blocker.

Two-year starter Eric Herring is a proven player at the flanker position. The 6-2, 185-pound junior has deceptive moves and has proven that he can catch the ball in traffic. Herring is also a kick return threat. He returned a punt 72 yards for a touchdown against Texas Tech last year.

The starting tight end position is held by senior Garrett Jurgajtis. The 6-5, 225-pounder is considered one of the best tight ends in the conference. He will be backed up by sophomore Mark Ford.

The strong portion of the Houston attack is without a doubt the offensive line. The Cougars rushed for 300 yards a game in 1978 and four of the five starting linemen from last season's team are back for another go-round.

The four returning starters are guards Jack Fancil and Dennis Greenawalt and tackles Melvin Jones and Robert Jones. Fancil (6-2, 260), and the Jones boys, Melvin (6-3, 270) and Robert (6-3, 255), are sure starters. Greenawalt is the only offensive lineman facing a stiff challenge for a starting postion.

Greenawalt, a 6-4, 245-pound senior, found a starting berth last season when regular guard Jim Wells suffered a broken foot before the start of the season. Greenawalt blossomed into an All-SWC performer while Wells watched from the sidelines. Wells, also a senior, is back this season and he's hungry to reclaim his old job.

"Jim will keep the pressure on Dennis and anyone else who takes a deep breath," said Yeoman. "We'll just have to take a close look at the postion during scrimmages to see who will be starting there."

Defensively, the Cougars look extra tough. Nine starters return from the starting unit of a year ago. Yeoman's only defensive concern is stopping the pass. UH ranked dead last in pass defense in '78 and Yeoman hopes that situation will better itself this time around.

"We have proven leadership defensively in David Hodge and Tommy Ebner," declared Yeoman. "I'm hoping — and so are the players — that we can be more consistent this year on defense. We did not have the consistency last season you have to have to win."

The key to UH's defensive success lies in its strong line. The heart of that line consists of junior tackles Hosea Taylor (6-5, 270) and Leonard Mitchell (6-6, 270). Taylor collected seven quarterback sacks a year agao and went on to claim all-conference honors. Leonard had eight sacks and returned two interceptions for touchdowns.

If the tackles and ends, James Wilson (6-1, 210 on the left side) and either Joe Redmon (6-3, 215) or Sam Proctor (6-2, 200) on the right can continue to pressure opposing quarterbacks, Houston linebackers and defensive backs are confident the pass defense will improve — greatly.

Hodge (6-3, 222) ranks among the best linebackers in the nation. He led the Cougars in tackles with 85 and tacked on 25 assists. The all-America candidate will team with senior Steve Bradham (6-2, 220) to give UH a sold 1-2 linebacking punch.

The Houston secondary consists of seniors. Gerald Cook, a 6-2, 200-pounder, and Kenny Hatfield combine at the corners, while Ebner, a 6-0, 200-pound senior and Elvin Bradley (6-1, 180) are at the safety spots.

Hatfield or Mark Ford will handle the punting duties while David Humphies will do the extra-point and field-goal honors.

Yeoman is the man who innovated the Veer offense and his teams have always been able to move the football. If the Cougars can come up with the big defensive plays and Delrick Brown is the leader the coach is counting on him to be, UH should be in the thick of the toughest SWC battle in years.

Houston Comments

"It's going to be tough for anyone to go through this conference undefeated. Anyone can beat anyone on any given Saturday. It's going to boil down to who wants it more every Saturday."

— Senior cornerback Kenny Hatfield

"It's nice to have a big fullback like David Barrett back there. On third down and one situations, it takes the option out of the option."

— Senior quarterback Delrick Brown

"I'll be disappointed if we don't play well. If you say more than that you're just kidding yourself. The worst thing you can do is start worrying about the future. People should realize football is a one-play-at-a-time game."

— Houston Head Coach Bill Yeoman

Knight Offers Resignation

view of what has transpired. My Puerto Rican attorneys wanted me to plead guilty. I told them to stuck it. There was no way I was going to plead guilty for something I didn't do just to get it over with. It would be a mockery.

"There is no way under any circumstances I would ever go to Puerto Rico."

Knight said he offered his resignation because the university has to have the opportunity to do what it freely and clearly thinks is best for Indiana University.

But he added: "It isn't my desire to do anything other than coach basketball at Indiana University. That isn't mine to say."

Knight's personal attorney, Clarence Doninger of Indianapolis, also was meeting with parties in the Knight case today to decide the next course of action.

A spokesman for the Puerto Rican justice department declined to comment on whether the government will try to extradite Knight. One department source said local authorities probably will not ask for his return to the island because he's not wanted here.

A spokesman for the office of Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen has said the governor indicated he would not be willing to allow Bobby Knight to be extradited.

Knight said he understood that Puerto Rico could seek his extradition from another state when Knight is outside Indiana. "The governor of Ohio could do it if he wanted to," Knight said. "My only chance would be if he would be concerned enough to take the time to read the charges."

Under Puerto Rican law Knight was allowed to stand trial in absentia.

Also not in the courtroom were six witnesses Knight had said would testify in his defense. Defense attorney Jorge Luis Longoria called only one witness, police Lieutenant Julio Leutice, who testified that Knight did not resist arrest as Silva contended.

"In my thinking was there no way there was any chance to win even if we took everybody down there," Knight said. "We filed charges and the DA (in San Juan) wouldn't listen. The cop was lying. So what the hell chance did I have? I thought the only chance was to get it over with and get into this extradition thing," he said.

Tech Defense Dominates

However the Raiders did have some problems at the center position.

"We're just trying a lot of new people there (center)," explained Dockery. "Some people are playing the position that haven't played there for us before.

"We need to have some people come to the front."

"We should see some improvement on Saturday," said Dockery. "Overall, it was a good workout today (Wednesday). I saw some things I liked."

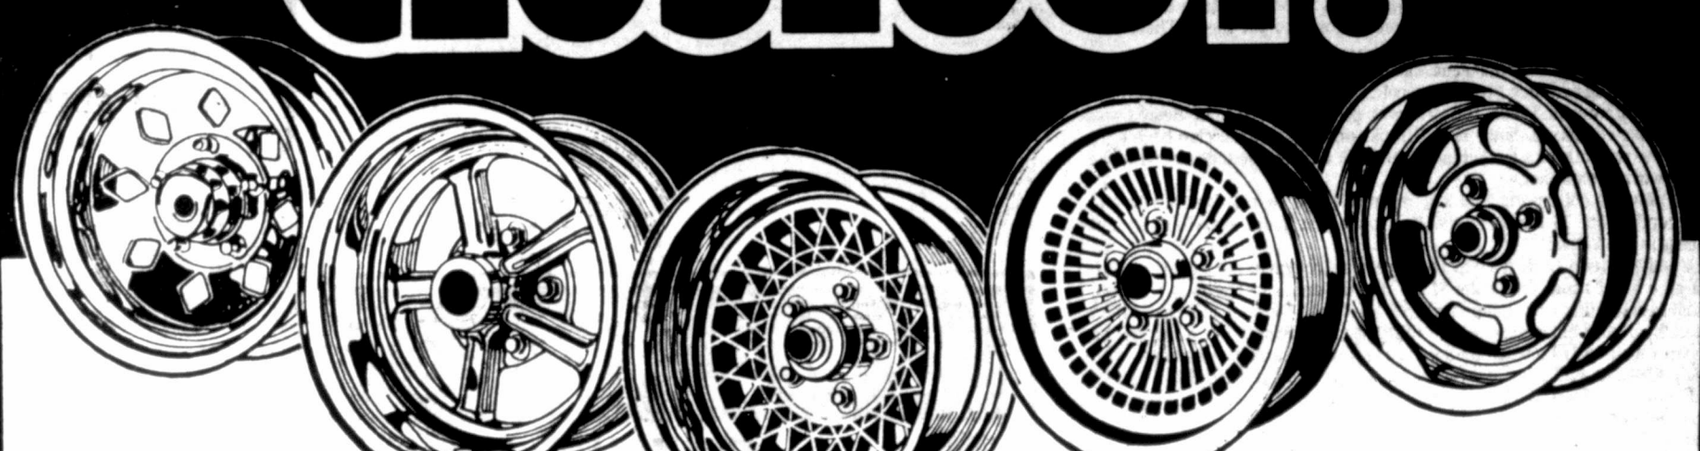

Saturday's scrimmage is tenatively set for around 10:30 in the morning — considerably earlier than the team's controlled scrimmage Wednesday.

Finley Reveals Projected Sale

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — Millionaire sportsman Charles O. Finley, testifying on his financial status in connection with a divorce suit filed by his wife more than five years ago, has disclosed that he is trying to sell the Oakland A's baseball team to a Los Angeles-based group for $10 million.

The hearing is the final one in the divorce proceedings and will likely result in the division of property, including the A's.

Moon Lark Follows Roller-Coaster Path

By DICK ALWAN
Ruidoso Downs Publicist

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — Let's say the impossible dream came true, and you've got your hands on a quarter horse who can accelerate like a cheetah going after steak-on-the-hoof.

And let's say this horse was so beautifully built, he'd rival the Statue of David. Besides all that, his credits included the $1,280,000 All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, and breeders are angling to tap into his bloodlines. Put all these impossibilities together and you have a magnificent three-year old with a potential value of $5,000,000.

But the colt has an open spot in his summer schedule, so you do what any cash-hungry, stakes-mad, eager-beaver quarter horse trainer would do. You take a flyer to California. Obviously, if this colt can wing big at Ruidoso, picking up some California loot is about as easy as watching the Marx Brothers roll off a log.

Being that your pockets are lined with fat greenbacks, you get yourself a new pickup truck, load this four-legged machine into a van, put a roadmap in the hands of your two-man traveling crew, and point them in the direction of the Western horizon. The instructions are simple: "Don't stop until you get to Los Alamitos Race Track." Or something like that.

All goes well until the crew steams through Wilcox, Ariz., in the dead of night. The impossible dream begins turning into a nightmare. The new pickup truck, with its new motor, fizzles out.

So here's your beautiful race horse, this sweet running machine, this annuity for life, stranded in the black of night, at Wilcox — which is perhaps equivalent to an outpost of civilization. Or so it seems when you get that panic-stricken phone call from your stranded crew.

That's just about the way it really happened, and the man who got that call was Jack Brooks, the trainer of Moon Lark. Since this muscular beauty holds a money line of $630,000 and millions of dollars in future breeding fees, the thought of having him stuck at roadside is about as comforting as misplacing your money market certificates.

But the story has a happy ending. Out of the darkness came a farmer, driving his old but serviceable pickup. He stopped, took a peek at Moon Lark in the van, and remembered seeing the colt run like sixty on national television in the All-American Futurity. On the spot, a bargain was struck. For a fee — a generous one at that — the farmer would let the Moon Lark crew borrow his road-weary pickup, thus getting them out of a pinch, and enabling them to make that stakes engagement in the Los Alamitos Derby.

At the time, Brooks was a bit vexed by the steep tariff the farmer had in mind. "Considering the circumstances, I'd have to say it was a fair price," Brooks now allows. "If I had to do it all over again, I'd pay it — gladly."

So Moon Lark continued his journey to the West Coast, won the Derby, and lightened Los Alamitos by $60,000.

This little episode is only one of many high points in the ongoing Moon Lark saga. More recently, though, there have been some low points. These low spots came earlier this summer at Ruidoso when Moon Lark breezed to easy wins in the trials for both the $212,850 Kansas Derby and the $542,000 Rainbow Derby. Inexplicably, the colt didn't move fast enough, and there are many Ruidoso observers (even impartial ones) who'll swear a sudden headwind came up, both times, and that put too much wind drag on the colt, and trimmed enough milli-seconds from his clocking to keep him from qualifying.

This sounds like a tall story, but "Sure, it was a tremendous letdown," Brooks admitted. "But there were no excuses, and I don't want to make any. This is the kind of horse you don't make excuses for. Yes, we did run into a headwind in both those trials, and we really had it bad one time. But that's the way it goes. For a while, I suppose, I did feel we were living under a curse. The thing that goes through your mind is this: For so long, we had so much good luck. Now, why should our luck be so bad?"

But, Brooks added, "Anytime your horse wins as easy as Moon Lark does, you know he's still sound. Eventually, you're going to get there. There's no reason to get discouraged."

Brooks has been general manager and spiritual godfather of the Moon Lark fortunes since mid-summer of '78. The colt, owned by the three-way partnership of Paul, James and Sam Howard, was going nowhere until Brooks was invited to take command. Since then, Brooks and the Howard clan have been clutching the coattails of a fireball as Moon Lark dazzled the industry with one blue-chip win after another.

Right now the colt sports $691,222, the result of a superlative 13 wins and three seconds from 16 career starts. He's done just about everything except two weeks in Las Vegas.

On Sunday, Moon Lark tries to continue his strongman act in the second-richest race of all time. That's the $1,027,200 All-American Derby at Ruidoso. That half-hearted jinx was snapped a week ago in the Derby trials when Moon Lark lost by a nose but registered the third-best qualifying time. Now he'll be toying with history. If he wins, he'll get a dreamy $359,520. Even second, with its lovely $164,342, will have special meaning. The point is this: either first or second will put Moon Lark's career earnings beyond Easy Date's quarter horse record of $849,709.

Fems Tackle Berg Open

MAPLEWOOD, Minn. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, who has made more money on the LPGA tour than any golfer in history, says money is not the motivating factor for most players.

"Naturally, money is a major reason for the growth of the LPGA," said Miss Whitworth, who teed off today at the $100,000 Patty Berg Golf Classic at Keller Golf Course in suburban St. Paul.

"But money, for itself, can't be the major motivation for a player," said the 20-year veteran, who has earned more than $850,000 since turning professional in 1959.

"It's still a matter of getting your priorities in order, and the real motivation should be trying to be the best player. If you can be the best player, the money will follow."

The money has followed for Nancy Lopez, who has been the best golfer on the ladies' tour the past two years.

Miss Lopez, playing in her first Patty Berg tournament, last played in Minnesota in the 1977 U.S. Women's Open at Hazeltine. She was a relative unknown then.

But in 1978 she won nine tournaments and led all players with earnings of $205,046. Miss Lopez also earned the Associated Press' Female Athlete of the Year award, and this year, she's won $172,700 in 15 events, seven of which are victories.

"I'm not sure that even for a player like Nancy, money isn't her real motivation," added Miss Whitworth. "It's her competitive instincts; the desire to be the best."

Shelly Hamlin, the tournament's defending champion, is one of five former champs who are back for a second try.

Also returning are 1977 winner Bonnie Lauer; Miss Whitworth, the 1976 winner; JoAnne Washam, 1975 titlist; and Sandra Palmer, who won the first Patty Berg back in 1973.

Jerilyn Britz, Luverne, Minn., and winner of this year's U.S. Open, is also in the field, as is another Minnesotan — Barbara Moxness of Montevideo.

The Patty Berg tournament began in 1973 as the St. Paul Ladies' Open with a purse of $30,000. Last year it increased from $55,000 to $75,000. The winner will receive $15,000.

Orantes Takes Opener

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — There's something about the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Longwood that spells health for Spanish star Manuel Orantes — physically and financially.

In 1977, the veteran arrived at Longwood after recuperating from elbow surgery and won the U.S. Pro title. He repeated here last year, before being forced out of the Grand Prix by knee trouble.

Now, Orantes is back for the 52nd annual U.S. Pro, claiming he's feeling well again and ready to try to join Rod Laver and Bjorn Borg as the only three-time winners in a row since Longwood salvaged the tournament from bankruptcy and a virtual parking lot in 1964.

"I had a little problem with my elbow for a while, and I wasn't playing well, not bad but not well," the 30-year-old southpaw said. "Now I feel good and I think I'm playing well again."

As defending championing, Orantes said, he felt an obligation to return to Longwood even though many of the world's top pros refused to enter because of a dispute between the club and the Association of Tennis Professionals. Since resolved, the dispute revolved around Longwood's refusal to replace clay courts with a hard surfaace.

A whiz on clay, Orantes made his debut here Wednesday night on the third day of the eight-day $175,000 tournament. He waited around since Monday for the arrival of scheduled first-round opponent Bob Hewitt.

However, Hewitt checked in with an ailing elbow and Orantes learned just before taking the court that his opponent would be 6-foot-5 Harry Fritz of Toronto.

"No, I didn't know him," Orantes said. "I had never even seen him. But a change in opponents doesn't bother professionals. I knew he had nothing to lose, so I didn't let up. When you're a pro, you try to win every game."

Orantes gave Fritz a tennis lesson, needing just 46 minutes for a 6-1, 6-1 victory Wednesday night. Orantes broke Fritz' service in the first game, but was broken right back. Orantes then took charge, losing only one game the rest of the way.

Watson Claims Cash Not Major Factor

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Tom Watson tends to take the long view of golfing history.

He's well aware of the significance — and the lack of significance — in the money-winning record of $402,636 he's set already this season, a record that has other touring pros shaking their heads in wonder and admiration.

But the thoughtful Watson keeps it in perspective.

"The money is nice, of course, but I don't place a lot of importance on records of that kind," he said before teeing off today in the first round of of the defense of his title in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

"The purses change so much that the money is not really a measure of your ability."

And as an example, he went to his friend and mentor, Byron Nelson.

"In 1945 he won (a record) 18 tournaments and was second in three others," Watson said. "He won $63,000. A record like that, 18 wins, what would that be worth with today's purses?" He paused and answered his own question. "Well over a million.

"So a comparison of my money with his money is not an adequate or accurate comparison of the seasons.

"In the end, when it's all over, you'll be remembered by the tournaments you won, the major tournaments you won, and the golf courses you won them on and your scoring average. Things like that.

"The money changes. Winning doesn't change."

Watson, who has won twice as many tournaments as anyone else on the PGA Tour this year, was going after his fifth victory of the season in the event on the famed No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Although he's been in a mild slump — meaning he hasn't won — for a couple of months, the fact does little to detract from his role as a favorite for the $45,000 first prize.

And he has a history of scoring repeat victories.

He's won the Byron Nelson three times. He's won the Western Open two times. He's won the Bing Crosby two times. And he's won the British Open two times, acquiring more than half his career victories in those four events.

Dunbar Tries Pecos In Odessa Workout

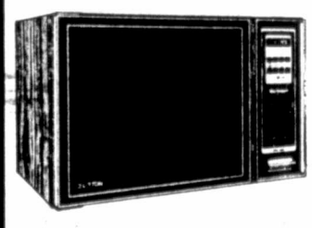

ODESSA (Special) — Dunbar will tangle with Pecos in a controlled scrimmage session at the Odessa High practice field today, starting at 5 p.m.

The session will be head coach Van Jefferson's first look at the Panthers in a game-like situation. For the past nine days, DHS has worked out in both pads and shorts.

The Panthers will also scrimmage Lovington, N.M., next Thursday at the DHS practice field, Jefferson reported.

WSU Seeks Cause Of Gridder's Death

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Cause of death remains unknown for senior defensive tackle Hayward "Spud" Harris, who collapsed and died during football practice at Washington State University.

A decision on whether to conduct an autopsy was expected today, officials said.

After missing the Cougars' first seven workouts because of an academic problem, Harris had resolved the matter a few hours before the ill-fated practice session Wednesday night, said WSU coach Jim Walden.

Harris, 6-foot-4 and 273 pounds, collapsed on the practice field around 7:45 p.m., a few seconds after running through a noncontact response drill with a blocking sled, Walden said.

Seconds later, Cougar trainer Mark Smaha began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Efforts to revive Harris continued for more than an hour before he was taken to Memorial Hospital and pronounced dead at at 9 p.m., said Dr. William Furrer, team physician.

Smaha said Harris, 21, underwent a physical examination before the drill and received a clean bill of health.

Harris was graduated in 1976 from Lakes High School in Tacoma, where he earned All-State and prep All-American honors as a senior. He also was Washington's high school Lineman of the Year and finished fourth in the state in heavyweight wrestling that year.

In his freshman year at WSU, he was the fourth leading defensive tackle with 77 tackles, including 50 solos, and two fumble recoveries.

In 1977, he started the season at right defensive tackle and finished ninth with 43 tackles, including 23 solos, and one fumble recovery.

Harris broke his wrist in the second game of the 1978 season, missed two games and then shifted to noseguard. He was credited with 20 tackles and a quarterback sack.

Harris is survived by his parents, Thomas and Gloria Harris of Tacoma.

Smaha reached Harris, who had been a starter much of his career, within seconds, officials said. Smaha started mouth to mouth resuscitation immediately after checking Harris' pulse, while an aid administered CPR treatment.

TV Plays Role Of Hero In Halting Use Of Drug

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television as the good guy...

Some months ago, Jeff Freilich and Chris Trumbo, the son of the late Hollywood writer Dalton Trumbo, were driving over to Universal Studios to see the producers of NBC's "Quincy." The two writers had some ideas they wanted to pitch.

They stopped at an office on the way, where Freilich picked up a copy of High Times magazine. An advertisement in the drug culture magazine caught his eye:

"Colchicine, 100 percent pure, 100 mg $8."

Not an ad that would do much for most of us, but at the sight of it, Freilich's eyes widened and his mind began racing. There was a script in that ad, and more.

Colchicine, Freilich remembered from his days as a med student, was a substance extracted from a crocus plant, such as saffron, and used in the treatment of gout. Its essence was mysterious and its side effects monstrous, but in small amounts, it seemed to counteract that painful joint ailment.

But what stirred Freilich was the fact that colchicine was being advertised in a drug magazine. He thought of its other use — as a plant stimulant. Army experiments with marijuana in the '40s had shown that, for some unknown reason, the application of colchicine to marijuana spurred the plant's growth and heightened its potency.

Since the Army just wanted a stronger marijuana fiber, and since colchicine was deadly, the experiments were dropped, and, presumably, forgotten. But here was some guy advertising the stuff in a national magazine. It was clear that the market he wanted to reach consisted of marijuana users, that his pitch was bigger and better plants.

For eight bucks plus shipping he'd sell you 100 milligrams of colchicine. Five milligrams, Freilich knew, could kill you. Twenty milligrams would kill you.

There was some indication that if the treated plant were thrown away, and only its offspring plants used, there may be no harm.

But Freilich imagined some 15-year-old kid excitedly sending off for some of this super-duper potion, generously applying it to his puny marijuana plants, and then waiting for the magic to start. This 15-year-old kid might not wait for the second generation plant. Since the stuff came in a white powder, the kid might also figure it could be dusted on a joint. Or used to cut cocaine.

Freilich imagined what would happen then. He'd get a raspy throat, then begin to feel nauseous. Then convulsions would start. His hair would start to fall out. Then paralysis.

And then, Freilich says, "He'd die."

Yes, Freilich thought, definitely a script in that ad. The "Quincy" folks liked the four ideas that Trumbo and Freilich brought them, but they loved the colchicine story.

Freilich and Trumbo went to work on the script, but they also went to work on the guy who was selling the stuff. They called the Food and Drug Administration. Sorry, they were told, colchicine was a prescription drug being used only in small amounts for the treatment of gout. It's out of the FDA's area.

The same was true at the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. One federal official, suggesting that anyone who would do something illegal (such as growing marijuana) deserves what he gets, asked the writers, "What in hell difference does it make to you, anyway?

Finally, Freilich and Trumbo found somebody who'd listen — Karen Howard of the Environmental Protection Agency. Convinced of colchicine's deadliness, Howard arranged a stop-sale order against the firm that placed the High Times ad, and requested a list of purchasers, so they could be warned of the drug's dangers. The EPA also asked for a recall of all colchicine sold through the ad.

Crazy as it sounds, the only reason the EPA was able to take action was because colchicine — used as a marijuana enhancer — was technically a "plant regulator," requiring registration. The seller never applied for registration.

Both High Times and Green Gourmet, the outfit that placed the ad, cooperated with the EPA, claiming they didn't know of colchicine's danger. "We weren't aware of the dangers," said Hight Times' Steve Becker. "We've pulled the ad. But if they (the advertiser) spelled out the dangers, we'd probably have gone ahead with it."

Part of the problem, said Mrs. Howard, is that "the substance is only really dangerous when used in a manner that can cause danger (such as smoking marijuana that has been treated by it).

"It's sold by pharmaceutical companies as a treatment for gout (in minute quantities). But in this instance, it does pose a human health hazard."

The two writers, she said, "were really wonderful. They really performed a public service."

Anyway, Trumbo and Freilich did their "Quincy," the premiere episode airing Sept. 20. In it, Quincy (Jack Klugman) puzzles over the bizarre symptoms preceding the death of a teen-ager, discovers that she'd used some colchicine-treated marijuana, and sets out to stop its use.

He encounters the same bureaucratic confusion and indifference that the two writers met, but is aided in the end, by the EPA.

But in real life, the danger is still ahead. The colchicine ad appeared in April-July issues; a marijuana plant takes about four months to harvest. So, if someone bought a bottle of the stuff and doused his plants with it in May, the plant will be ready for harvest in September.

"There is no research that shows whether colchicine loses its effect when burned or not," Freilich says. "But THC (tetrahydrocannabinol, the active substance in marijuana) doesn't lose its effect when it is burned.

"We're trying to get the message across — the stuff will kill you. The first symptoms will occur within 12 hours."

Networks Make Few Changes In Lineup

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Every spring, when network executives announce their fall schedules, they finish their presentations with the caution, "Remember, this schedule is not locked in cement."

What that usually means, the joke goes, is, "This schedule is carved in ice." It melts away throught the summer, while programmers decide what the real schedule will be.

But this summer, amazingly few changes were made in the three networks' announced schedules. Only one planned fall show has been dropped (ABC's "Nobody's Perfect") and only six or seven have been moved around.

More astonishing, though, is this: NBC has made no changes in its planned fall lineup. This is the network, remember, that instituted change as a standard working policy last year, the network that invented the 24-hour series: they would think them up in the morning and cancel them the next day.

NBC operated on an expanded programming principle used by NBC President Fred Silverman when he was at ABC — the "living schedule." The idea was to keep other networks off balance by juggling the schedule. Problem was, it also kept the juggling network off balance.

"Freddie's living schedule," ABC folk could occasionally be heard to mutter, "is killing me."

But when Silverman moved to NBC, he made the ABC "living schedule" look as stable as the Ten Commandments. NBC's living schedule was so alive it fairly danced; you needed influential connections to find out what NBC would air tomorrow night; for next week, you needed a fortune teller.

John Wilder, who produced "Centennial" for NBC, actually missed an hour of his own show because NBC moved it at the last minute, and he didn't know where to find it.

Well, NBC affiliates knew where to lay the blame when CBS and ABC humiliated their network in the ratings — the living schedule.

Instructions Given For Sliding Monkey

By SHARI LEWIS

You can make this climbing monkey scurry to the top of his rope and slide down again! All you'll need to find is a piece of string about 7 or 8 feet long.

Cut out the box. Paste it on heavier paper (say, the cover of a magazine). Cut out the monkey along the heavy outline. Cut two slits on the dotted lines (one above his head, and the other below).

Knot the ends of the length of string together to make a loop.

Stick that doubled string in one little slit and out the other. Slide the knot around so that it's on the bottom. Pull the monkey down near the knot. Place him face down on the table.

And now your monkey is ready for the big climb! Hook the top end of the loop of string over a cabinet knob, curtain rod or a coat hook.

Pull on one of the strings, and your monkey'll climb to the very top. Pull on the other string, and down he'll slide!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Where was the first subway in America built?

ANSWER: It opened in Boston in 1897.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Don't rearrange the order of the nine numbers "1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9" — just insert one plus sign and two minus signs so that you get 100 as the answer to the equation. (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Singer Says Disco Reflects Mood

REDDING, Conn. (AP) — Mary Travers has not caught disco fever. She still sings the kind of ballads she performed in the 1960s when hers was the alto voice in Peter, Paul and Mary — songs of change in a voice like a cello.

Her blond bangs still hang below her eyebrows, she calls herself a determined optimist and she has a big red-and-white flowered mailbox across the street from her house.

That her heart does not beat to a disco rhythm doesn't bother her a bit. She says disco music echoes the national mood today as well as Peter, Paul and Mary's songs did in the 1960s.

"Success has to do with time," she said, sipping a gin and tonic on a sofa in her beloved, centuries-old country home. "Peter, Paul and Mary were an enormous success because they echoed their time successfully."

If the group appeared on the scene today, it would be completely different, she said.

"We'd be three kids with synthesizers."

Miss Travers, 42, is in a good position to assess the reciprocal effects of popular music and culture, since she helped eight of Peter, Paul and Mary's 11 record albums gross $1 million each in sales during the 1960s. Recently she has been speaking to college students around the country about the relationship of music and society.

The tall singer is direct and articulate, and has a voice that is sometimes astonishingly deep.

Disco, she says, is slightly hysterical.

"People are afraid. It's all too big," she explained. "There's rising inflation. We haven't licked unemployment. We've had gas lines. We're not sure where our energy is coming from. We're not in control of our foreign policy. The domestic situation is in chaos and we have no leadership."

It adds up to a pretty grim picture, but Miss Travers, who calls herself an "optimistic humanist," says she believes things will change in a few years.

"I believe in 1983 to 1985 you'll see something like the '60s. Inflation will stop and the economy will turn around. And there is something in the American spirit about being generous when things are good."

Besides speaking on campuses, which she has done six or seven times a year for about two years, Miss Travers is currently working on her sixth solo album, planning another Peter, Paul and Mary album for release next spring, devoting some of her energy to combating the nation's nuclear-energy policies, and refinishing the floors of her house on her hands and knees.

"I do more than sing," she said.

Some of those other things include the use of her voice, such as singing at anti-nuclear energy rallies.

"I think there are aspects of the peaceful uses of nuclear energy that are useful," she said. "It obviously has worked very well for the military in submarines. But as a fuel on land there's a big overall problem, which is where to get rid of the waste — not to mention the safety problem."

In addition to singing at rallies, she continues to give concerts and play in clubs. And last summer she and Peter Yarrow and Paul Stookey put together Peter, Paul and Mary's first album in eight years. PP&M — as she calls the group — broke up in 1970 after being together 10 years.

"We did a decade," she said.

Bolshoi Ballet Opens In NY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bolshoi Ballet danced the Western premiere of its three-act "The Legend of Love" on Tuesday night at the New York State Theater.

The company will perform the work, its story based on a folk tale and written by a Turkish social reformer, four more times before its season ends here Sunday. The Bolshoi then will go to Chicago for a week and to Los Angeles for two weeks. On this trip it is performing only full-length works, including "Swan Lake."

"The Legend of Love" tells of a queen whose sister is dying. A sorcerer says he can save her if the queen gives up her beauty. She does and he saves the princess. Both women fall in love with the same young man, Ferkhad.

The wonderful thing about the evening was the dancing. Nina Timofeyeva was the queen. Nadezhda Pavlova, first seen here as a promising teen-ager and still very young, was the princess. Vyacheslav Gordeyev was the male lead. All danced with fluid precision. Miss Pavlova and Gordeyev together were as synchronized as a couple of acrobats whose lives depend on perfect timing. Miss Timofeyeva was even better.

Detective Series' Pilot Episode Draws Criticisms From Writer

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television certainly could use a slick Nick-and-Nora Charles type detective series.

That's the need ABC's "Hart to Hart" sets out to fill.

It doesn't, at least not in the pilot episode, to be seen as a series preview Saturday, 8-10 p.m. (CDT). The show, which returns Sept. 22 to begin its regular series run, does offer hope that the husband-wife team of Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers could turn into an appealing detective team offering amusing insights into crime among the affluent.

They successfully imitate Mr. and Mr. Charles in one respect — they own an adorable dog.

The series proposes Wagner as Jonathan Hart, fabulously wealthy amateur detective who has hired somebody else to run his conglomerate because it's boring. Anyway, as he points, to turn $5 into $10 may be impossible. Turning $5 million into $10 million is inevitable.

In the opening chapter of the series, the couple investigates a spa run by Roddy McDowall and Stella Stevens. This particular health farm has proved distinctly injurious to the health of some of its customers, including Jill St. John.

McDowall might make a rotten physician, but he's a delightful actor who plays the villain with ingenuous charm and tongue-in-cheek — metaphorically speaking, of course, because literally tongue-in-cheek could be difficult to understand.

Wagner and Powers arrive at the Golden Goose spa in separate sports cars, pretending they don't know each other. Their investigation pokes a little sly fun at fat farm frivolity. But basically, as amateur detectives, with the Harts the accent is on the amateur.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Market Falls After Active Trade Spell

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell today after two days of indecisive but active trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 1.11 to 884.73 by noon.

Since Monday, when the Dow posted a 3.16 gain to a 10-month high of 886.52, the market has been indecisive despite active trading. The high volumes have been bolstered by trading in issues rumored to be involved in takeovers and by huge block trades, including three blocks of 1 million shares or more that moved on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Analysts were waiting to see if the market would continue to resist traditional downward pressures on stock prices such as the prospects of higher interest rates and high gold prices.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker today said he saw no way he could lower interest rates, given the current high rate of inflation.

Lubrizol Corp., a manufacturer of chemical additives for the petroleum industry, topped the NYSE active list, unchanged at 46, on trading of nearly 400,000 shares including a 390,000-share block.

Continental Air Lines, rumored to be a takeover candidate, was up 1 7/8 at 15 7/8.

McDonnell Douglas fell 7/8 to 27 7/8. There are reports that foreign airlines may drop plans or orders to buy the company's DC-10 airliners.

Also active were Squibb Corp., up 1/2 at 33 1/4, Public Service Co. of Colorado, down 1/8 at 16, and Exxon, up 1/4 at 55.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .02 to 62.15.

Big Board volume came to 16.09 million by noontime, up from 15.09 million at the same point Wednesday.

Ozark Airlines was the most active issue on the Amex, up 7/8 at 7 3/4.

Commission Raps NRC Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to resume licensing of new nuclear power plants after a three-month freeze prompted anger today from members of a presidential commission investigating the Three Mile Island accident.

Some of the panel's 12 members said the NRC should have waited until after the panel's inquiry has been completed in late October.

Harold R. Denton, the NRC's director of reactor regulation, who announced the licensing move Wednesday, tried to explain why the procedure was resumed. It had been suspended on May 21, in the wake of the March 28 accident at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

But, said panel member Carolyn Lewis at one point, "it seems to be that the NRC is thumbing its nose at the (presidential) commission."

The NRC order, which covers both operating and construction applications now before the commission, requires utilities to meet more than two dozen changes brought about by the Three Mile Island accident.

"How do you know these (changes) are sufficient," John G. Kemeny, chairman of the presidential panel, asked Denton.

Denton said he and his staff concluded that they were sufficient to cover the lessons learned from the Pennsylvania accident.

Denton said that as a result of renewal of the licensing process he expects two new nuclear plants — Salem II in New Jersey and North Anna II in Virginia to begin operation in about a month.

The commission, appointed by President Carter, is expected to issue its report on the Three Mile Island accident by Oct. 25.

Denton said his actions in no way foreclosed further changes if found necessary as a result of the presidential findings.

"Mr. Denton, I think you're kidding me," Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt snapped. "... What you're saying is that you can ignore the recommendations" of this commission.

The criticism came as the presidential panel held the last of its public hearings into the Three Mile Island accident, the nation's worst commercial nuclear mishap.

Testimony Wednesday focused on what Kemeny called "clear signals" to federal regulators and the nuclear industry that some mechanical and operational problems at nuclear power plants needed to be corrected.

Those same problems later emerged when cooling water was lost from the Three Mile Island reactor No. 2, threatening a meltdown of the reactor core.

Commission investigators asked Wednesday about three separate events which, they claimed, should have warned the nuclear industry — and in two cases the NRC — of problems later evident at Three Mile Island:

—An NRC staff engineer tried in vain to get his superior to shut down the Davis-Besse nuclear plant in Ohio in late 1978 and early 1979 because of problems he noticed during an incident at the plant about a year earlier when operators prematurely shut off an emergency cooling pumps.

—Jesse Ebersole, a nuclear engineer and adviser to the NRC, tried unsucessfully in early 1978 to initiate a NRC staff examination of a study by Carl Michaelson, an engineer at the Tennessee Valley Authority. The study predicted a partial sequence of events which eventually occurred at Three Mile Island.

—A 1974 incident at an American-designed nuclear power plant in Switzerland had a number of similarities to the Three Mile Island accident, but was quickly brought under control by plant operators. Neither the Swiss government nor the plant's designer, Westinghouse, were obligated to tell the NRC about the incident and neither did until after Three Mile Island.

Appeals Court Lifts Busing Order Delay

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal appeals court today lifted its order that had delayed implementation of a judge's desegregation order calling for busing up to 52,000 pupils in Cleveland public schools by September 1980.

In a unanimous decision, a three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with a lower court's finding that discrimination in Cleveland's school system was intentional.

"From the record taken as a whole it appears clear to us that the U.S. District Court was wholly warranted in finding that the Cleveland schools in 1964 were segregated by race and that in the years between 1964 and 1975 the Cleveland Board of Education had a duty to desegregate that system which it completely failed to perform," said Judge George Edwards in the court's decision.

There are 97,605 pupils in Cleveland public schools, 67 percent of them nonwhite.

The appeals panel, however, told U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti to look further into the question of any liability by the state Board of Education.

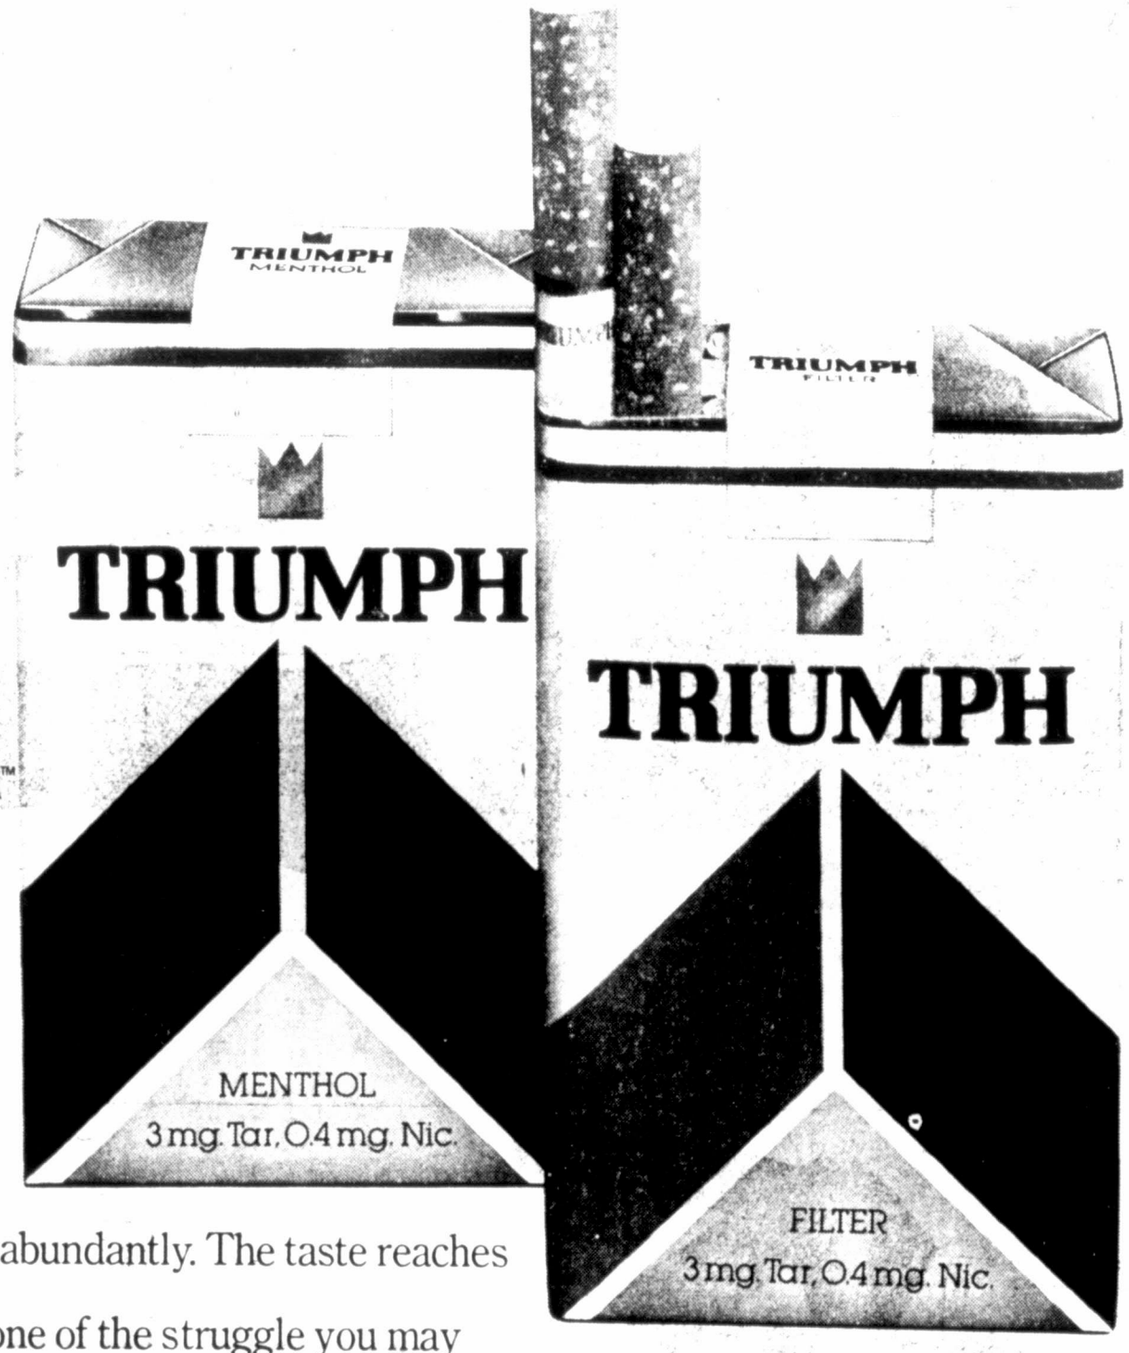

Battisti, in anticipation of today's order, had directed Cleveland school officials last month to prepare to implement a limited desegregation plan this fall.

The school board, which has yet to complete its preparations, has not set a date for the first day of school. A school board meeting was scheduled for this afternoon.

Yes, taste.

New Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph does it.

Even the draw is a surprise.

The smoke comes through abundantly. The taste reaches you smoothly. Effortlessly.

With Triumph, there's none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

No less remarkable than Triumph itself, is the technology that enabled us to build it.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists decided to take a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

How Triumph is Flavor-Intensified.

We found, for example, that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw.

That lower-leaf tobaccos (shaded from the heat of the sun) tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste good enough to stay with.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph is not one of those ultra low tars that spoil your pleasure by short-changing you on taste.

Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, is a cigarette with a taste you can stay with. A taste so good, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.
