Troops Entrain For Mountain Regions

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 22 (AP)—Marine reinforcements numbering 1,000 men, today were enroute to the state of Nueva Segovia to take the field against Augustino Sandino, rebel leader, now operating in the region.

Mountain batteries, artillery, in fact everything necessary to carry on modern warfare to dislodge the Sandino followers from their mountain fastnesses, where they have been harassing marine outposts, were taken along.

Entrain on Sunday

The marines left the city of Leon yesterday on their hike which must be made on foot through mountain and jungle regions to northern Nicaragua. The march will require at least eight days. The long column of troops furnished an imposing spectacle for Nicaraguans as hundreds of ox carts loaded with supplies and ammunition passed out of the city. The Nicaraguans were especially interested in 100 big American mules being decidedly smaller than his American brother.

With marine trucks, columns of troops, and official cars in steady procession through Leon, the city assumed a distinctly warlike appearance.

The Nicaraguan government authorities have received reports that a considerable number of men from the east coast have been passing the Acoyapa headwaters of the Rama river on their way to join Sandino's forces. These men, according to this report, are armed with rifles formerly used by the government.

FREE-FOR-ALL SCRAMBLE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE CHASE IS SEEN

WINTER DEALS SET STAGE FOR HISTORIC RACE

PIRATES AMONG BEST WITH GIANTS, CARDS AND CUBS STRONG

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A winter season that saw some of the game's most prominent stars bought, sold or traded, apparently has set the stage for another free-for-all scramble for national league pennant honors next summer.

The sensational player shifts of the off-season have left four clubs, and possibly six, to be reckoned with in any discussion of championship possibilities.

Pirates Among Best
Heading the list are the Pittsburgh Pirates, defending titleholders. Donie Bush, seeking his second season in as many years at the helm of the Corsair crew probably will find chief opposition coming from the St. Louis, Chicago and New York clubs. Cincinnati, on the strength of a fine 1927 finish, and Boston, with Hornsby also are considered in the running by observers.

Complete One Trade
The Pirates completed only one trade of importance but that one brought "Sparky" Adams, crack second baseman of the Chicago Cubs, to Pittsburgh to solve Bush's infield worries. The loss of Kiki Cuyler leaves Bush with the same outfield that won the pennant last year. Pete Sedberry, who came with Adams in the Cuyler deal, now can take Kiki's place "on the wood" if the falls to land a regular assignment.

Barely nosed out in the fight for the flag last summer, the St. Louis Cardinals, led by their new manager, Bill McKechnie, have again shown signs of beating the field to the top in 1928. Cardinal fans feel that Bob O'Farrell, untried but managerial, will return to form behind the bat and that the infield, with "The Power" back, again will compare favorably with any in the circuit. The pitching staff needs to do no better than it did last year, when it outshone all rivals.

Cubs Little Better
The Cubs, sensations for a time last year, appear to have added little to their spot only to take it from another. With the addition of Cuyler, Joe McCarthy's fly-chasers should compile many base hits but the loss of Adams has weakened a none too strong infield. McCarthy is banking on Freddy McCreight, Toledo star, to fill the hole in the hole. Jack Hendricks stands pat on his Cincinnati lineup which closed the season in 1927 with a fine brand of baseball. If the club sets off on the right foot Hendricks feels that he will be in the thick of the fight all year.

Hornsby and Braves
The fans up Boston way are hoping for another "miracle team" under the Braves' new manager, Jack Statter. With Hornsby to supply the spark in the offensive and steady in the field at the same time, the Braves figure to be the "dark horse" of the pennant struggle. Strength needs to be added, however, in the outfield and in the receiving departments.

Brooklyn has gathered together some minor league stars and Dave Bancroft, former Braves manager, to back up the superlative work of Wilbert Robinson's mound staff but the Robins probably will have a tough row to hoe to finish higher than sixth.

Phils Near Doomed
Burt Shotton, who starts the first of a two-year contract as manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, apparently is foredoomed to the second division and perhaps the cellar position. Numerous recruits will make the trip to the Philly training quarters but it remains to be seen whether they can enable the club to climb out of the depths.

JOLLEY SIGNED BY FRISCO FOR RACE ON COAST

(By Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Smead Jolley, leading slugger of the Pacific Coast league in 1927, with an average of .397, has sent his signed contract to the San Francisco club for the coming season. Jolley was not satisfied with his record last year and hopes "to do better." Jolley lives at Wescan Ark.

Secretary George Putnam, of the San Francisco club, announced that Jolley has had the best batting average, since he joined the team of any man had played baseball on the coast in recent years. Jolley, who stands six feet three inches, broke into baseball as a member of the Greenville, Miss. team and was with Shreveport and Corsicana before joining the San Francisco club. He is 24.

PLAY ON LAST HOLE WINS EL PASO TOURNAMENT
NABHOLTZ NOSES OUT MCDONALD SMITH IN BIG SENSATION
(By Associated Press)
EL PASO, Jan. 23.—A sensational recovery on the last hole in the second annual El Paso open golf tournament brought victory to Larry Nabholz, unattached professional.

Nabholz, whose lone drive has aided to keep him in the money in competition for four years, finished the 72 holes over the El Paso Country club in 295 strokes, one over par. Starting Saturday with consistent golf, he turned in a pair of 73's for the first 36 holes and came back yesterday with a 72 and a 73 to beat out McDonald Smith of New York, who needed 294.

Explosion Shot
Sending the ball well down the fairway on the final hole in the final round, Nabholz apparently had chafed the bad luck attending the first part of the final round but then into a trap near the green. He cleared an explosion shot. The ball struck the cup and rolled on twelve feet. A perfect putt gave him a three and first prize of $1,000.

Smith, who won the Los Angeles and Palos Verdes opens in the recent series of California tournaments was playing under the handicaps of 74 and 75 in Saturday's opening rounds, after he made a record 66 in practice. He received in the final flight a 72 and a 73 He received $700.

Four Veterans Tie
Four Veterans finished in a tie for third place with 295. They were Al Esminosa, Chicago; Willie Hunter, Los Angeles; Billie Burke, New York, and Bill Mehlhorn, Pittsburgh. They divided the $900 offered as third, fourth, fifth and sixth prizes.

Tommy Armour, national open titleholder, who won last year's El Paso open with 288, was unable to turn in but one par round and finished with 304.

Completion of the El Paso meet found most of the players turning to San Antonio to practice for the seventh annual Texas open, Feb. 3 to 5. Entries for this meet include Cruikshank, winner of the 1927 Texas open. Prizes total $6,500.

The statement was made in connection with an announcement that the Louisville Railway company, the El Paso Electric company and the Tidewater Power company of Wilmington, N. C., have been awarded Anthony N. Brady memorial medals for outstanding accident prevention and health promotion records.

COSGRAVE PARTY IN WASHINGTON FOR FOUR DAYS

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State, arrived here from Chicago today for a four day visit. The official party was met at union station by representatives of the state department, the British embassy and the Irish Free State legation.

The visitor's program today included an audience with President Coolidge, dinner with the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey, and a luncheon with Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan.

Since he began his American tour last Friday, when he landed on United States soil for the first time, Mr. Cosgrave has traveled more than 1,800 miles, and attended a long string of functions in New York and Chicago. The most serious feature of his visit thus far has been his contact with admirers who have flocked about him everywhere.

"You can imagine what it is like," said Dr. Killen, his physician, today, "with hundreds of these enthusiastic Irish-Americans squeezing his hand in a vigorous and hearty handshake incessantly."

WOMAN HELD FOR JURY PROBE ON LARCENY CHARGE

(By Associated Press)
ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 23.—A grand jury investigation involving Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, dean of home economics at Syracuse university and formerly New York's secretary of state, was regarded today as certain.

Recommendations that criminal proceedings be instituted are contained in the report of Randall J. LeBoeuf, Jr., who as special commissioner, appointed by Governor Smith, investigated Mrs. Knapp's administration of the state census in 1925. Mrs. Knapp, Republican, the only woman elected to a state executive office in New York, was then secretary of state.

Larceny and Forgery
The report accuses her of grand larceny, forgery, false audits and illegal removal of state records. It says that of disbursements under her charge totalling $1,199,902.87, there was $118,707.76 in illegal disbursements and $79,125.26 in waste, one making a total of $197,833.02 questioned.

Criminal action against four other persons connected with the census also is recommended by Mr. LeBoeuf. These are Mark Stern of Schenectady, deputy secretary of state under Mrs. Knapp and under her successor, Robert Moses; Anna A. Little of Albany, auditor in the secretary of state's office; Julia M. Ryan, of Albany, chief clerk of the state civil service commission; and Dr. Walter Laidlaw of New York, head of the Cities Census Committee, Inc. and an employee of the state census bureau.

SPEAKER GIVEN GRIFFITH EDICT IN SALARY FUSS

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23.—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington American League club, said today that Tris Speaker must voluntarily reduce his own salary within the next week or give up his center field berth with the Senators.

"It's up to Speaker," said Griffith. "He must make the first move. If he wants to play for Washington this season he will have to cut his salary. Unless he does he automatically will be released on February 1, the expiration of the time limit for tendering contracts."

Griffith mentioned the name of West, a hard hitting recruit from the Southern Association, as a possible centerfielder for the Senators.

"Although West was handicapped during the past season by sickness," Griffith said, "I think it would take a good ball player to beat him out of the job this year if Speaker goes out."

WALL STREET TRADING... NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Prices were firm at the opening of the stock market today.

Reports of high earnings in 1927 in the retail field resulted in brisk buying of Woolworth, Abraham and Straus and other like issues in the first half hour.

Spanish securities opened off 9 points... The market weakened again later in the morning and selling induced by rather bearish sentiment among rising traders and prospects for rain in the western belt.

Near noon there was a flurry of buying on reports of the rapid spread of the pink boll worm in some Texas counties, and the market recovered a few points of the day.

NEW YORK TRADING... The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 10 to 20 points.

Decline carried March off to 12.97 and May to 18.37 but there appeared to be some old trade orders in the market for foreign account.

Volume of business tapered off in rallies of about 10 points in the early low prices and the market sagged back again, active trading at midday showing net declines of about 20 to 25 points.

Some statisticians interpreted the rising figures as pointing to a crop of about 100,000 bales above the government estimate of last December, which, of course, would be a very small difference.

EVERYONE SHOULD ATTEND EVERY MEETING

WHAT IS THIS INSTITUTE? —Perhaps it might be termed a Business Congress and is designed on the same plan as Teachers' Institutes and Farmers' Institutes in that a recognized authority on retail and selling problems, delivers lectures and conducts the meetings with a view to promulgating new ideas and developing those best suited to the community and its specific objects are— FIRST: To help the citizens in general to appreciate the value of co-operative effort. SECOND: To meet outside competition more effectively and to get more of the trade that logically belongs at home. THIRD: To help merchants earn a larger net profit out of their margin of profit. FOURTH: To help employees render a better service to their customers, to their employers—and incidentally be worth more to themselves. You will find the Institute of value to you whether or not you are directly interested in retail trade, and we particularly invite you to make an effort to avail yourself of the opportunity offered at the evening meetings.

THE STORY THUS FAR

The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '90's, when a fight was being waged for the opening of the territory to settlement.

Chief characters are: TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was shot in a poker game; PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, teacher, Indian interpreter, showman;

JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live; TITUS MOORE, owner of the Bar K brand;

RITA, his daughter; RITA, his little tomboy daughter.

The boy grows up on the ranch and learns the cowboy's trade. When Rita and her mother depart for the east he learns for the first time how much he cares for the red haired, arrogant beauty.

Moore is one of the chief opponents of the movement to open Oklahoma. DAVID PAYNE, leader of the movement, dies suddenly and Tony in his loyalty to Moore is troubled because of his sympathy for Payne's cause. He tries to forget Rita Moore and accedes to the wishes of the Wichita chamber of commerce asking him to lead the "Boomers" into Oklahoma, he accepts.

When Pawnee Bill organizes his own wild west show, Tony goes with it, but it has an unsuccessful season and when Pawnee Bill gets a letter from the Wichita chamber of commerce asking him to lead the "Boomers" into Oklahoma, he accepts.

CHAPTER XXXVIII
You seem to be pretty well posted on this Oklahoma situation," remarked Tony Harrison.

He and Pawnee Bill sat opposite each other in a day coach, two hours away from Wichita, a map spread out on their knees. Their clothes were in wrinkles and all of cinders; they were dirty and tired from two sleepless nights in the uncomfortable seats. But Pullman accommodations had been beyond their means. The Wichita Chamber of Commerce would welcome two puppers.

Pawnee Bill chewed at an unlighted cigar. "I've studied it some, Tony," he said. "This district here in the heart of the territory—tracing with a forefinger—" he pointed to a spot on the map.

"That's the part that's called Oklahoma. You know that. It's part of the tract that was ceded to the United States government by the Creeks and Seminoles back in 1866. You'll notice it's bounded on the north by the Cherokee Strip; on the south by the Chickasaw nation; on the east by the Sac and Fox reservation, and on the west by the Cheyenne and Arapahoe reservation. It's a hundred and twenty-five miles long and from fifty to a hundred and sixteen miles wide, depending where you cross it. It contains two million acres—1,867,800, to exact."

"Of unassigned lands," Tony Harrison murmured.

"Exactly. That portion is Oklahoma proper. It's getting so now they're calling the whole territory Oklahoma, but for our purposes we'll just use the name in connection with this area we're trying to open."

"Oklahoma," he went on, "is an Indian name meaning beautiful land. It was the name proposed by the Indians for the territory. The Creeks radicals when the Indian tribes should have become a people and their hunting grounds a state. Of course, it didn't work out that way." He smiled and chewed some more on his cigar.

"Tony fixed his gaze on a hole in the top of the older man's wide-brimmed hat. "Better crease that hole won't show," he suggested, "until you can afford to buy a new one. The heels of your boots are sort of run down, too," he said critically.

"Know it," admitted Pawnee Bill, and he laughed. "Wonder what they'd think if they knew that a complete bankrupt I was?"

Tony shifted in his seat to study the fitting landscape. "What I don't understand is he said presently, in the Chamber of Commerce in Wichita expects you to take the summers in and keep them there. They've tried it before—under Payne and Couch—but they've always been run out by the soldiers. I don't see how this is going to be any different."

"I'll admit that's something that's to be worked out," said the other. "I expect it's up to me to find some way, or they wouldn't have sent me."

"Another thing, what's Wichita's interest in the thing?"

"Well, there's no trick in answering that. Wichita regards itself as the rival of Kansas City. It's ambitious and just naturally wants to spread out. Wichita wants Oklahoma opened because it wants the southwest trade."

Tony nodded. "I understand. It all comes back to the one question of how you're going to lead a flock of settlers into the Promised Land and keep them there."

"There's one other question," Pawnee Bill said with a frown. "Just why did they pick on me for the job?"

"I can answer that. My good friend Pawnee Bill, Indian interpreter, pioneer, showman, is a figure of some importance despite his present embarrassed financial condition. The business men of Wichita want a leader who will command the confidence of the people and who has the nerve to force things to a showdown." He ended with an elaborate gesture of the hand and Pawnee Bill reddened and twirled his flowing mustache.

"The Cherokee Strip cattlemen, of whom my respected friend Titus Moore is one," the older man said presently, "have been the stumbling block in the path of the advocates of free land. Without them and their lobby, Oklahoma would be settled today. I hope," he added gently, having noticed Tony frown at mention of Titus Moore, "you won't think I have anything against him. They've been selfish—the whole lot of them."

"Not an uncommon trait in humans, Bill."

"Admitted. You and I in their shoes maybe would be doing the same thing. Some of my best friends being among the Strip cattlemen, it's going to be right funny to declare open war on them."

They rode for many miles without another word between them. Nearing the outskirts of Wichita, Pawnee Bill pressed his nose against the pane and motioned for Tony's attention.

"Recognize those, Tony?" and he pointed.

In the distance lay a line of tents and wagons, many of the latter the covered schooner wagons of the pioneers.

"Boomers," said Tony. "They're here, too, are they?"

"Optimists," breathed Pawnee Bill. "It's the same in half a dozen Kansas cities. They came here—some as far back as four years ago—and when they couldn't enter the Promised Land they just stayed put and waited. I wonder how much longer they'll have to wait—well, and their brethren in Caldwell, Hunnswell, Arkansas City..."

The train's speed slackened. He got up from his seat, stretched and cramped joints, stretched wearily and hauled down the little grip from the overhead rack.

"Just about there, Tony."

"One thing's got to be understood between us," said the younger man. "The fading into the background tonight. They'll be throwing a banquet in your honor and there'll be speeches and a lot of pow-wowing, but I won't be there."

Pawnee Bill groaned at the thought of the speech that would be expected of him. "Better come, Tony. I'll need your support."

"Nothing doing. I'll meet you some place afterward."

"All right. In the lobby of the Delmonico hotel."

They were entering the long train shed now. Tony Harrison threw open a window and peered ahead into the gloom. "Reception committee and everything," he grinned. "Looks like a million people waiting to welcome you, Bill."

Oh Lord, the other sighed weakly and stuck out his own head. "There's Oklahoma Harry Hill," he said, "and George Dixon, and Joe Rich, the money lender. Who that man in front I don't know, unless it's the mayor. I'll be glad when this night's over."

The train stopped and there was a shout from many voices, the blaring of a band. As Pawnee Bill emerged from the train Tony remained discreetly in the background and saw his friend swept from his feet and into the center of a clamorous group. Tony watched him as he was led up to a dignified man, with whom he shook hands, saw him vanish into the crowd and followed the throng to the street. There Pawnee Bill was helped into a landau.

He turned once to wave and Tony caught his eye. Then he was carried away.

"Where can I find the Delmonico hotel?" the young man inquired of a bystander.

The man grinned and perked a thumb. "Just follow the parade. That's where they're headed for."

"Thanks." He trudged on, lugging his battered suitcase. He felt very much in need of a bath and a shave and wondered if he dared register at the Delmonico without the price of a room in his pocket. He resolved to take a chance—Pawnee Bill would come to his rescue later.

It was dark when he had finished his toilet. He ate leisurely and rose from the table with a quarter in his pocket and nothing to jingle against it.

As he walked idly through the streets he noticed pictures of the serious eyed David Payne in many windows. There were flags about, and bunting—evidently the committee had done things up in style.

He smiled. At that moment Pawnee Bill was sitting at the formal banquet in the Delmonico. Or, perhaps, shifting uneasily from one foot to another as he responded to the speeches of welcome.

There were groups at every street corner. He lingered at one, where a large crowd, thin as usual, being held by the impassioned oratory of a curbside speaker. He caught snatches of his talk—"Oppression... a cowardly government... we ought to go in by force and defy them to run us out."

Curiously drew him nearer. He wanted to know how the man in the street felt about it and he studied the faces of the listeners. Evidently they were in thorough accord with the speaker, for they interrupted him periodically with shouts of approval.

"And Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado," the man was saying passionately, "are settled on the north, and Texas on the south. But the march of civilization has been deflected at the borders of the Indian country. Are we to stand idly by and see a few cattlemen grow richer every day on land that belongs to the people? Are we?"

"No!" The answer was hurled back at him by many voices.

Tony Harrison moved on, his forehead puckered in a worried frown. With this kind of sentiment, it would indeed be a serious situation if they invaded the territory.

"The soldiers can't run them out again without blood being spilled," he said aloud. "I wonder how Pawnee Bill will manage it. If ever a man had a tough job, he has."

Many of the Boomers, faced with a cruel winter, become discouraged. The Springer bill is introduced in congress and Pawnee Bill is hopeful.

SYMPHONY IN STREET CAR DECORATION

HOUSTON, Tex.—Houston has become a colorful city. Literally every street car that whizzes along the streets is painted in a different color or design, and the public has given the scheme its unqualified approval.

A public official with a creative turn of mind reasoned that since people wear different colors to escape monotony, street cars could accomplish the same thing by being painted in various hues.

Now each line has different colored cars. One carries a painting of Houston's skyline in several shades; others bear painted emblems of the different schools they pass.

GOP LEADER IN STATE RAPPED BY DALLAS MAN

DESPODIC ROLE HELD OVER CRAEGER IN CONVENTION MOVES

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Jan. 23.—R. B. Craeger, Republican national committeeman from Texas, is severely criticized in a statement issued by George Griffith, one time Republican candidate for election to the Texas legislature.

"Despotic Power" "Never has a man posing as a state national committeeman arrogated to himself the authority and despotic power as has Craeger," the statement declares. "He has called two snap rump conventions. At the last one, announced to select the time and place of the next Republican convention of Texas, and without due notice to the voters, Craeger with his handful of made-to-order delegates then and there assumed the further authority of selecting for party voters the next President of the United States."

Alternate Barred "Further, Craeger, seconded by Prince Nolte (Eugene Nolte, of Seguin, state chairman) and their dominating rule, prohibited the only independent alternate delegate from voting or lending his voice with protest under the rump convention. He was excluded on the grounds that he was under civil service rules."

"Mr. Craeger has attempted to select for us a Republican candidate for the presidency, Mr. Hoover, the independent, the man who was so long affiliated with the opposing party and affiliated actively politically with them."

Plainview's Depot Site Being Cleared

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 23.—The grounds in Plainview which will be the site of the depot and freight houses of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railroad are being cleared to make ready for the construction of the buildings.

All of the drainage structures every girl he desired was caught like a fly in his web. But, when he met the Ladybird—See what happened to the Spider in "The Ladybird."

have been completed on the new rail line from Plainview to the cap rock, and the grade is now ready for the laying of the rails. The only stretches on the entire road from Estelina to Dimmitt which have not been graded are within the town of Hart, and a small strip in the city of Plainview across streets. Train service on the new rail line is expected to begin about June first according to officials of the road.
