13 Dead, 52 Hurt In Detroit Factory Fire

Others May Die After Blaze Turns Box Factory Into Raging Inferno

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—A sudden fire, sweeping through a Detroit boxing factory today, brought death to 11 women and two men and injuries to 52 other persons, several of whom are not expected to live.

The fire turned the plant of the Export Box & Sealer Co. at Grand River avenue and Fifteenth street into an inferno in a few seconds.

The blaze broke out as the 180 employes, mostly women, were in the midst of a rest period and were listening to a juke box.

They Disregard Shout

Apparently disbelieving a shout of fire from the first floor of the two-story factory building, the workers continued to listen to the blaring of the mechanical player until flames began licking the stairway. Most of the victims, seared by flames or maddened by the intense heat, died after leaping from second story windows and crashing on the sidewalk of one of Detroit's most heavily traveled streets.

The exact cause of the fire had not been determined.

Fire Marshal Edward W. Hall, who at first placed the dead at 19 and expressed the belief others would be found dead, said later that all persons in the building had been accounted for.

Edward Jakson, a furniture company driver, saw the fire from across the street.

"I was in the office when I heard a terrific explosion," he said. "There was terrible screaming and shouting. The whole building across the street was aflame.

"Men and women were on the second floor ledge. They had crawled through the windows. The flames were eating at them. Some of them jumped. Some didn't move much after they hit the sidewalk.

"There must have been a dozen or more who tried to crawl across the street after they jumped. My brother and I tried to help some across the street.

"While we were trying to help, there was a second explosion and flames shot out into the middle of the street. That drove everybody back."

Maurice Wash, 16, a negro, dashed into the building and led

Plans For Peace Footing Hurried

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Printing of new ration books designed for another year of wartime stringency was halted today as government leaders rushed plans to hurry this country onto a peacetime footing.

President Truman conferred with six top advisers on reconversion problems. Two of the main problems they discussed were keeping wages and prices steady.

Their main worry on this score: To prevent peacetime inflation which could undo much of the good that came from the wartime controls on prices and wages.

Meanwhile these were other high spots in the government's efforts to swing over to peace as soon as possible:

1. OPA indicated indirectly that rationing may soon disappear. It stopped an order to print 187,000,000 new ration books for food, gasoline, shoes.

2. In order to prevent unemployment where possible, restrictions were eased on home and plant deliveries of anthracite and coke. This meant more men could be employed in hauling this fuel.

Government officials familiar with some of the plans being cooked up predicted that employers and workers may be allowed to negotiate wage increases where a boost would not lead to price increases.

But there was no indication of any sharp change immediately in the Little Steel formula, a step long urged by labor leaders. The formula was designed to hold wages to 15 per cent above what they were in 1941.

Except for those plans and predictions, government agencies concerned with reconversion continued tight-mouthed. The White House wants no discussion of

Petain's Jurors Are Threatened

PARIS, Aug. 13. (AP) — French high court jurors trying Marshal Petain for treason disclosed today that almost all 24 of them had received new letters threatening death to any who vote to condemn him.

The trial, which began on July 23, is expected to go to the jury tomorrow night.

Some jurors said they had received as many as a dozen threatening letters. Pierre Bloch, one of the jurors, said one letter declared "Beware, I am sitting just a few feet from you in the court room," and another concluded with "death to Jews."

Defense attorneys attacked the state's case in daylong arguments, asserting the prosecution had used disreputable witnesses and had failed to bring "a single fact" into court in proof of its charges against the 89-year-old former Vichy chief of state.

Chief defence counsel Fernand Payen called Petain "one of France's most glorious sons," and said he had never shown anything but loyalty to the republic during his long years of service.

The defense spent virtually the entire day examining the case built up by prosecutor Andre Mornet.

Refuting the prosecution charge that Petain abused the powers granted to him by the national assembly at the time of the fall of France, the defense said French President Albert Lebrun had not protested against the marshal's actions.

"If Petain is guilty of plotting to bring himself to power, then the prosecution's star witness—former Premier Paul Reynaud—is equally guilty," said defense attorney Payen. "He called Petain into the government."

Gen. Ike Denies Report, Lauds Russian Military Cooperation

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 13—Gen. Eisenhower declared today he had not halted his troops at the Elbe or elsewhere last spring because the Russians requested it. He added he would be glad to place before Congress the record of the way the Red Army high command cooperated with him during the European war.

Eisenhower, at a Moscow press conference, said he ordered American commanders to stop at the Elbe short of Berlin and to turn south because he wanted to break up Hitler's Bavarian redoubt "as fast as possible. These orders, he asserted, were given weeks before the Americans reached the river.

The American general, who is visiting here at the invitation of the Russians said that subjects he and Generalissimo Stalin had talked about during their social meetings in Moscow had convinced him Soviet Russia's paramount desire is to be friendly with the United States.

The general said he did not want to repeat the things Stalin had told him because that was the generalissimo's business, but he added that he was markedly impressed with the absolute sincerity of the Soviet leader.

The former supreme commander of the Western Allies disclosed by his remarks that he and Soviet Marshal Georgi Zhukov had become fast friends and that the Russian general had given him a clear insight into Red Army strategy.

Eisenhower said he and Zhukov had discussed the atomic bomb, but Stalin had not mentioned it in his conversations.

Since he has been here Eisenhower also had an excellent exchange of conversation with Vyacheslav Molotov during which he told the Soviet foreign commisar that what the world needs is to get rid of all soldiers, including himself, and get down to the business of peace. The remark drew a laugh from Molotov.

Questioned about fraternization in Germany by U. S. troops, Eisenhower declared that any peace could not be built on hatred and added that in his opinion on nonfraternization policy would work out over a long period.

Shimbun Sees Worst, Urges Fullest Unity

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Warning sharply against a "fatal internal split," the tabloid Tokyo Shimbun admitted tonight that for Japan, "the worst has come to the worst." The enemy broadcast, monitored by the Federal Communications commission, urged every Japanese to obey whatever decision the emperor may make.

The broadcast urged all Japanese to avoid "indignation," adding: "As to how things have come to this pass, it is natural that everyone of our nation has his or her opinion. He or she may have indignation . . . However, no amount of discussions on past developments of this war of Greater East Asia is of avail under the present circumstances.

Fatal Dissension

"It should be born in mind that such discussions might lead to fatal dissension among our people . . . We must bear in mind that such an internal split in this gravest of national crises would affect our efforts to render the best of services in the interests of the throne."

National unity is the only way Japan can cope with the situation, the broadcast said.

"Fortunate — most fortunate — his majesty's decision on the matter is final and best. And this decision from the throne is the final word spoken on any matter which, whether civilian or military, one must obey in the last resort.

Must Obey Fully

"Even if the imperial command should not be in line with our individual desire, the only thing left for us to do is to obey. . . ."

There was no indication of the nature of the expected "decision," and so far as FCC monitors have learned, the Japanese people have not yet been informed that surrender has been discussed.

Earlier today, the Domei news agency reported in a foreign-directed broadcast receipt of the Allied answer to Tokyo's surrender offer.

Announcement of the arrival of Allied note in Tokyo came shortly after Domei had renewed warnings of a possible invasion of the home islands because of Allied fleet carrier operations off the coast.

The Domei English speaking broadcast acknowledging receipt of the Allied reply was intercepted in New York by the Associated Press. It was preceeded by the word "bulletin", and said merely that it was "authoritatively" disclosed that the text of the Allied reply to the Japanese government's message" was received in Tokyo Monday through the Swiss legation."

Time Limit Not Set

No time limit was set by the Allies for a Japanese response, but President Truman, Secretary of State Byrnes and other high officials had remained available throughout Saturday night and Sunday in event of a Nipponese reply.

The Japanese radio thus far has not informed the people of the surrender note exchange, the FCC said today. Newspapers stressed

Slashing Red Armies Drive On; Sakhalin Is Invaded

By ROMNEY WHEELER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 13—Russian armies, lunging toward the arsenal city of Harbin, tore out gains up to 28 miles in Manchuria today and cut a vital Japanese communication line as Tokyo reported a Soviet invasion of Sakhalin island, lying 26 miles north of the Japanese homeland.

Swift-driving, tank-tipped Soviet thrusts threatened to disrupt the entire Japanese communication system in Manchuria, playing havoc with the enemy's supply and leaving pockets of enemy troops open to encirclement and annihilation.

Swarm On Karafuto

Japanese broadcasts said Russian Marines had swarmed ashore on strategic Karafuto, Japanese territory on the southern half of Sakhalin island, and established two beachheads on the west coast in a swift follow-up to the seaborne invasion of Korea.

There was no confirmation of the enemy report from the Soviet high command.

Moscow's broadcast communique announced Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's five-pronged drive toward Harbin had seized at least 22 Japanese strongpoints in converging sweeps into central Manchuria from the west, northwest, north, northeast and east.

The Russians ripped across one of Manchuria's three vital north-south rail lines and threatened another, the 950-mile line linking Dairen and Mukden with extreme northern Manchuria, Moscow's war bulletin disclosed.

The easternmost of Manchuria's north-south lines, running from the Korean port of Seilshin to Kiamusze on the Sungari river, was severed when Marshal Kirill A. Meretskov's First Far Eastern Army captured the rail junction of Linkow, 170 miles northwest of Vladivostok.

Capture of the three-way junction put the Russians 177 miles east of Harbin, the great war production city of central Manchuria, and cut the last rail communication line for Japanese troops putting up bitter resistance in the marshy valley between the Sungari and Ussuri rivers in eastern Manchuria.

Meretskov's troops found the battling tough on the west bank of the Ussuri, marking the Russian-Manchurian frontier. They lost and then recaptured Hulin, 210 miles north of Vladivostok, the Soviets disclosed.

Meretskov's Army was advanc-

Celebration Here Not To Wait On Truman's Official Proclamation

Lubbock will not wait for President Truman's V-J day but will celebrate while its enthusiasm is at high tide, and there were reports that other South Plains cities would do likewise.

This would be following plans announced before President Truman's statement that V-J day would not be proclaimed immediately when, and if, Japan accepts the Allies' surrender terms. The official end of the war would be set later, he said, presumably after surrender documents are signed.

Await Acceptance

"As soon as the President announces that Japan accepted our peace terms, we will close and carry out the observance according to the previously announced plan," declared Mrs. Gladys W. Workman, secretary of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association. Banks and professional offices will join retail stores in closing soon after release of news that the Japs have thrown in the towel.

Nearly 20 churches affiliated with the Lubbock Ministerial association will follow suit. They had agreed to the following timetable:

Church Service Plan

Should the official news be received before 7:45 p. m., services will be conducted in the various churches at 8 p. m. Should the news come after 7:45 p. m., then the services automatically would be commenced at 8 a. m. the following day.

The Broadway Church of Christ will hold special services on the day that President designates as V-J day, according to Dr. Norvel Young, minister. Services will be held at 8 p. m.

Dean James M. Gordon and President W. M. Whyburn of the college announced the Texas Tech viewpoint in a joint statement, which read: "Our recommendation is that if V-J Day is announced today (Monday) we should suspend school tomorrow —Tuesday. If it is announced Tuesday, we should suspend school Wednesday. If it is announced any time Wednesday, we ought to suspend school for the

U. S. Is Expected To Receive Foe's Formal Statement Today

"Official V-J Day" Proclamation Will Be Held Up Until Formal Signing Is Complete; Legal Procedures Are On

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (Tuesday Morning)—Washington awaited tensely early today a message the Tokyo radio said would announce Japanese acceptance of Allied surrender terms—unconditional surrender.

The enemy's "flash" broadcast, heard at 12:50 a. m. (Lubbock time) today, said tersely:

"AN IMPERIAL MESSAGE ACCEPTING THE POTSDAM PROCLAMATIONS WILL BE FORTHCOMING SOON."

If it does, it will come just in time to save Japan from a new and more intense wave of death and destruction. Time for the Nipponese to make up their minds has been running out swiftly.

Even should Tokyo's promised announcement be forthcoming quickly, however, this could not be "official" V-J Day.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Sunday the actual surrender arrangements might take two or three days and that Mr. Truman would not issue a proclamation until the documents actually are signed.

Regardless of who signs the surrender on behalf of the Allies, Washington officials were generally agreed that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will lead the occupying forces into the Japanese homeland.

"LEGAL PROCEDURES" NOT COMPLETE

The Tokyo radio statement came only a short while after a broadcast reporting that the Japanese cabinet had been in continuous sesion until late last night and that a reply to the Allies "probably will be available as soon as legal procedures are completed."

There was no amplification of what the "legal procedures" entailed.

The enemy broadcast was heard an hour and a half after the White House ended another fruitless day and night of waiting—the third since President Truman on behalf of all the Allies told Japan its offer of a conditional surrender would not be acceptable..

Tokyo asked to accept the Potsdam ultimatum of July 26 with the reservation the emperor could remain as a sovereign ruler.

To the Saturday reply that the emperor would take his orders from the Allies there was nothing but silence until early today.

Mr. Truman went to bed at 10:30 o'clock last night.

Except for three news photographers, the White House Executive offices were deserted when the Tokyo broadcast was heard.

Shortly before 1:30 a. m. (Lubbock time) however, Commodore James K. Vardaman, Presidential Naval aide, arrived at the Executive Mansion, but there was no immediate indication that he would awaken the president.

In clamping the customary "lid" on the White House at midnight, Presidential Press Secretary Ross sent reporters home with the word there would be nothing further before 9 a. m. at the earliest.

Tokyo had been insistent that the Big Four reply to the conditional surrender offer had not been received until Monday, although Bern said it arrived Sunday morning.

Allied Attack Roars On

Allied onslaughts against the enemy mounted as the delay wore on. American and British sea and air forces were intensifying their assaults and Russian and Chinese armies in Asia were giving the Nipponese troops there no respite.

The giant B-29 Superfortresses, idle since last Thursday, returned to the attack today by blasting the Marifu railroad yards and ships off the southern Honshu coast. Airforce headquarters at Guam, in announcing the first superfort blows since the Japanese surrender offer, said the attacks "will continue."

Even before today's early broadcast, official Washington continued confident the war soon would be over, regardless of the outcome of the current surrender maneuvers.

Allies "Just Getting Started"

Behind this confidence is the fact that at the time the Japanese offered to surrender last week, the Allies, and particularly the United States, were just getting well along with a campaign to knock and shock the enemy into a realization of defeat.

First step in this campaign was the use of the atomic bomb. The first one hit Hiroshima a week ago Sunday night and the next blasted Nagasaki in midweek.

The second step was the Russian Declaration of War.

The third step as originally planned, it was learned today, called for the introduction of still more terrible new weapons—not more destructive than the atomic bomb, but different from it in application and in psychological effect on the enemy.

In a sense the Japanese already had had a warning of what more is in store for them. Mr. Truman said in his Thursday night speech that the Russian declaration of war was worked out during the Big Three meeting and "the Japs will soon learn some of the other military secrets agreed upon at Berlin."

Allies Would Use Him

In response to Japan's offer on Friday to surrender if she could keep her emperor and his sovereign powers, it declared that from the moment of surrender the emperor would be used as an Allied instrument for carrying out the conditions of surrender. Later on, it said, the Japanese people will have a chance to decide whether they want an emperor.

The note left here before noon Saturday and was put in hands of Japan's minister to neutral Switzerland a few hours later. Like the rest of the world, the Swiss foreign office still stood by last night for a reply.

Diplomats here suggested there might be a split in the Nipponese cabinet, perhaps centering around the War and Navy portfolios. Some of them had an idea the bosses of what is left of the Navy might have been waiting for some time to yield at any price but that the Army preferred to hold out in hopes of softer terms.

De Gaulle Sets Four Subjects For U. S. Visit On August 22

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — General Charles de Gaulle will reach Washington August 22 to meet President Truman. Four subjects vital to France's future may come before them.

The White House announced today the trip of the president of the provisional government of France is definite, without discussing its purpose beyond "the mutual desire" of the two men to meet.

American and French sources, speculating on questions likely to be brought up, gave attention to these topics:

1. The French economic situation.

2. The question of Germany's reparations.

4. The Far Eastern situation, especially as respecting French territory.

De Gaulle may stress particularly the materials France needs to restore her industry and agriculture to full-scale operation.

Announcement of the impending visit of the French government's leader was made simultaneously at the White House and in Paris.

Charles G. Ross, presidential secretary, issued the following statement:

"After an exchange of views in May between the President of the United States and Mr. Bidault, French minister of foreign affairs, during the course of which the mutual desire of President Truman and General de Gaulle to meet was expressed, it was agreed that the president of the provisional government of the French republic would come to the United States as soon as circumstances permitted.

"It has now been agreed that the meeting will take place this month and the 22nd of August has been fixed for the arrival of General de Gaulle in Washington."

Powerful Fleet Steams Nearby

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Aug. 14.—The world's most powerful fleet, patroling the coast of Japan, was America's nearest armed force to beaten Nippon when Tokyo radio reported today that "an imperial message accepting the Potsdam proclamation" for surrender would be forthcoming soon.

With heavy air strikes against the Tokyo area carried out only yesterday and no report from the fleet today, it was assumed that Admiral Halsey's armada was standing close by the gates of Tokyo ready to move in on word from the naval high command.

Correspondents Called In

There was no immediate comment from Admiral Nimitz, but public relations officers called all correspondents into session for 4:30 p. m. (2 a. m. eastern war time).

When the Tokyo report was heard here at 3:55 p. m. today the Guam radio broke into a musical program to announce that Japan had quit. A wave of cheering swept over the headquarters building.

The enemy broadcast was heard only a short time after the "bombs away" signals were received from Superforts over Honshu, main island of Japan.

Carriers Are Nearby

American carriers were operating less than 200 miles off the coast of Japan yesterday, Associated Press war correspondent Richard K. O'Malley reported from the fleet. A run toward Tokyo bay would require only a few hours.

There was no word here, however, what part the fleet would play when fighting is definitely

IN THE MAIL

MY Dear Miss Turner:

After I read your comments about the Russians, it occurred to me that, in case you haven't read it, you might enjoy reading "These Are The Russians" by Richard Lauterback, Time and Life correspondent, who lived in Russia during the terrible German occupation and later phases of the European war. The book gives a very readable first hand view of the Russian people, their suffering, sacrifices and (dominating it all) their unbeatable spirit.

Another humanly interesting book revealing the character and temper of a Russian laborer is "Anything Can Happen" by Papashvily, a Russian immigrant.

Reading these books last week gave me a more friendly feeling for our allies and strengthened my faith in the Russians as people with whom we can live peaceably.

Sincerely,
Lola Beth Green,

DEAR Miss Green:

Thank you for your letter on the Russians. We are looking forward to the reading these books you mention.

RATION BOOKS

A READER calls to suggest that lost ration books may be found at grocery stores. Time To Plant Fall Gardens Is Here

Instructions for preparing the soil for a fall garden now that a good rain has made planting possible have been given by Miss Clara Pratt, county home demonstration agent.

The soil for a fall garden should be plowed only four or five inches deep, with the soil raked fine and smooth before sewing the seed, Miss Pratt pointed out.

Beans, irish potatoes, mustard, leaf-lettuce and radishes should be planted right away. The Bliss Triumph and Katahdin varieties of potatoes are satisfactory for fall planting and require a growing period of 70 to 80 days.

Inoculate beans with nitragin bacteria to stimulate quick growth. Sow four to 6 seed per foot, covering one to two inches deep. If all the seed germinate, thin the plants to six to eight inches apart. Stringless green pod and Ideal Market are good varieties for fall production.

Leaf Type Lettuce

The early planting of lettuce should be of the leaf type only. Head lettuce is a cool season plant and can be planted later. The Grand Rapids Black seeded Simpson varieties of leaf lettuce are recommended.

Tendergreen and Southern curled mustard may be planted now.

Spinach, carrots and onions are the most cold resistant of the fall vegetables. Beets, lettuce and English peas will withstand light frosts. Spinach likes a limy soil and a firm seed bed. After seeds are planted walk on top of the row or tamp with a hoe. Bloomsdale Savory is a good variety for this area.

On Planting Carrots

Special soil preparation is needed for carrots. Spade the soil 8 to 10 inches deep. Mixing in well rotted manure or compost to prevent packing. When carrots come in contact with hard layers of subsoil they become misshapen and for this reason a deep, specially prepared seed bed is essential. Danver's Half Long, Chantenay and Nantes are good varieties.

To have early green onions, plant sets in September. Small onions left from the spring garden may be planted in place of sets to produce early green onions.

To get a uniform stand of beets, break the seed coat with a rolling pin then plant tiny seeds two or three inches apart. Detroit Dark Red and Crosby's Egyptian are choice varieties.

If planted right away English peas will make. Bliss Everbearing does well in the fall.

Baker Engagement Is Of Interest Here

The wedding will take place this month in Laredo.

War Costs Millions Of Lives And Well Into Trillions Of Dollars

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press War Analyst

World war II has cost the peoples of this earth no fewer than 55,000,000 dead, wounded and missing by the most conservative but tentative and incomplete estimates from official statistics.

Behind barbed wire, as prisoners of war, are additional 12,000,000 and they will be joined as soon as hostilities end by the rest of the Japanese armed forces—and additional 5,000,000.

Nearly Six Years

By today World war II has dragged to within 19 days of a full six years. Great Britain has been in it actively for that whole time. The United States has been at war with the Axis for 3 years, 8 months, 6 days since Pearl Harbor. China, at war with Japan, continuously, since July 7, 1937, has been fighting for 8 years, 1 month, 6 days.

This war, almost twice as costly as World war I in lives and money, has cost the peoples of the earth at least a trillion dollars in monies actually spent, plus many times that in lost work-hours and property destruction.

The United States alone has spent $300,000,000,000 (B) so far and even if all war contracts are cancelled as soon as hostilities end, our total war bill will exceed $350,000,000,000 (B) when all costs are paid.

End Of Cost Not Yet

It will be at least a year before the total cost of World war II can be known.

There is great variance between estimates by various departments of the same government. Hitler himself, last Feb. 2nd, estimated Germany's war losses at 12,500,000, of which 6,300,000 had been killed.

Yet on July 29 a captured document which is now accepted as official and almost accurate lists Germany's war losses at 4,064,438 up to Nov. 30, 1944.

The casualties of all belligerents in World war I amounted to 29,750,000 of which Germany lost just under 7,000,000 dead and wounded.

Nor do the German lists give the number of civilian casualties in air raids and invasions.

Conservative Estimate

The following shows the first available, minimum and conservative estimate of civilian and military dead, wounded or missing, exclusive of prisoners of war:

Soviet Russia	21,000,000
Germany 6,000,000 to	12,500,000
Poland military	900,000
Poland exterminated	5,700,000
China	3,000,000
Japan	2,700,000
United States	1,070,000
British Empire	1,430,000
France	1,000,000
Italy	1,100,000
Yugoslavia	1,685,000
Austria	700,000
Hungary	600,000
Rumania	700,000
Greece	700,000
Holland	275,000
Finland	183,166
Belgium	60,000
Czechoslovakia	60,000
Philippines	30,000
"Slaves" dead or missing	350,000

Jap Surrender Offer Averts New Pounding

GUAM, Aug. 13 (AP) — The Japanese surrender offer came just in time to avert the most terrible aerial pounding ever conceived.

Superforts which devastated 50 Japanese cities within five months—one month of which was devoted principally to strikes at Kyushu island in support of the Okinawa invasion — were increasing their force so rapidly they would soon be able to accomplish the same amount of destruction in a five-week period.

At the current rate of expansion, the U. S. Strategic Air force by September would have been three times greater than the combined Eighth and 15th Air forces which helped subdue Germany. And they still wouldn't have reached full expansion until January.

The USSAF had virtually accomplished its aim of becoming an all-weather air force. Superfortress operations were far ahead of schedule when the Japanese said they wanted to quit.

The atomic bomb was a terrific jolt to the Nipponese, as would be any explosive which could be flown 1,500 miles to wipe out a city the size of Indianapolis.

But the Japanese knew they were licked before any atomic bomb fell.

Arrangements Made For Service Speakers

Arrangements are being worked out whereby returning servicemen, whose names are transmitted to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce by military authorities, will be introduced as speakers at various local service clubs.

Names of the returning veterans are furnished by the public relations departments of the military units—a part of the government's plan for aiding the servicemen in re-adjusting themselves in their home communities.

STRIKE VOTE RESCINDED

DALLAS, Aug. 13 (AP)—Members of the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers local (CIO) have withdrawn plans for a strike vote at North American Aviation plant, Grand Prairie, Texas, which had been set for next Wednesday. Workers voted yesterday to call off the strike vote after three hours of debate.

Charter Revision To Be Studied

Plans are under consideration for naming a City Charter committee, composed of representative business men, civic club leaders, and attorneys, to begin a study of the city's needs in regard to a new, revised charter, city officials disclosed yesterday.

Mayor O. W. Ribble called attention to the need of a modernized charter at the last regular meeting of the City Commissioners and City Atty. Vaughn Wilson has expressed approval of the idea.

Wilson however, has made it clear that he believes the matter should be given careful study by a representative committee, comprising both laymen and lawyers. Several local lawyers are reported to have suggested the revision, since the city's 750 ordinances need codifying.

$2,000 Saddle To Be Flown To Halsey

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—A $2,000 silver-encrusted saddle will be flown to Admiral "Bull" Halsey if he decides to ride Emperor Hirohito's white-charger through Tokyo after Japan's surrender.

The Treasury said today that the western stock saddle of blonde leather ordered for Halsey by the Reno, Nevada, chamber of commerce has been finished. When the Pacific war ends the Navy will air express the saddle to Halsey's headquarters, the Treasury said.

Halsey said several months ago that he hoped to lead a parade through Tokyo on Shirayuki, the emperor's white horse.

Truman Sees Early Postwar Period As Most Critical In U. S. History

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ernest B. Vaccaro, Associated Press reporter who "covered" Harry S. Truman as chairman of the Senate's War Investigating committee, as major presidential candidate, as vice president and, since April 12, as President, writes here of Mr. Truman's views of postwar America.)

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. —President Truman views the early postwar period as the most critical in this nation's history from the standpoint of the average American's daily welfare.

The chief executive sees in three specific and related problems the top challenge to government, industry and labor. Those problems are:

1. How to prevent widespread unemployment.

2. How to gear the machinery of war to the arts of peace.

3. How to keep purchasing power at a level high enough to absorb the output of busy peacetime factories.

Campaign Appeals

Speaking in the Pacific Northwest early in his campaign for the vice presidency last year, Mr. Truman advocated that the overall approach to reconversion bring the government's multi-billion- dollar war plant investment into use by private industry.

Since entering the White House he has called for government funds to augment unemployment compensation payments until the states themselves can assume the full burden of insuring against sudden loss of purchasing power.

Meanwhile, the Office of War Mobilization and reconversion is at work on a multiplicity of plans, all aimed at softening the impact of a sudden halt to war work.

Vast Civilian Market

There is, Mr. Truman knows, a vast market for civilian goods, and the savings in war bonds and bank accounts offers the means for their purchase as fast as they become available.

But plants must be cleared of machinery not adapted to the manufacture of civilian goods and machinery must replace it. This is only one of the problems of reconversion that will require time. Workers then must be channeled back into the reconverted plants, the President believes, at wages sufficiently high to sustain mass purchasing power.

The tax structure must be reexamined not only with a view toward enabling industry to finance full speed reconversion but in the light of public debt of astronomical dimension. The public's stake in war bonds, the general desire for a strong Army and Navy, the commitments to service men and women under the "GI Bill of Rights" all will require heavy expenditures that must be financed by taxes if the debt is not to continue to rise.

Problems Weigh On Him

Even as the Cruiser Augusta carried him to the Big Three conference at Berlin and as he returned with Generalissimo Stalin's final agreement to enter the war against Japan, the thought of the postwar home front were weighing on Mr. Truman's mind.

He told reporters it was not a job for one man, or for any group of men in either government, industry or labor, but a job for all, just like the job of war itself.

Of one thing, however, the chief executive is confident— that it is a job that can be done.

A team that could amaze the world by turning out planes and tanks and guns — and atomic bombs — with such speed and in such proportions as to astound the world can, he believes, perform the same mifacles for peace, and for the welfare of the little people all over the world.

"Oh, how I wish I were 30 years younger," Mr. Truman used to tell last year's campaign crowds as he dwelt on the possibilities of the future. The vast resources of the United States, American manufacturing ingenuity, the creation of purchasing power abroad offer opportunities, he said, that confound the skeptics, the men of little faith.

These thought of the coming peace run through the President's mind as he undertakes direction of the program upon which the future will be charted.

Social Security Plan Ends First Decade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (AP)—The social security program wound up its first 10 years tonight with a report that 4,250,000 persons are now receiving benefits.

From President Truman came a statement that he will make specific recommendations to Congress to make it "a more perfect instrument for the maintenance of economic security throughout this country."

In the past decade, Mr. Truman said, social security has become an essential part of the American way of life.

As of Aug. 1, Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security board, said in the agency's tenth annual report, approximately 190,000 persons were receiving weekly unemployment compensation payments, twice as many as on VE-day.

Benefits averaged $18 a week, he said.

All told, 4,250,000 men, women and children now are receiving cash benefits aggregating $111,000,000 a month.

Since the act went into effect Aug. 14, 1935, social security payments have approximately $9,000,000,000.

The home office said bands and bonfires have first priorities in the celebration planning. London authorities have given a free hand to provide "any appropriate means of celebrating this historic occasion."

He was in action on battlefields of the Middle East and on Crete, later became executive officer to Col. Evans F. Carlson and won the Navy Cross for bravery in storming Makin island with Carlson's raiders.

Man Charged With Assault On Officer

Charged with assault with a prohibited weapon on Glynn Hudgens, city-county officer, W. Tom Jones, 53, Lubbock landowner, posted bond of $1,000 Monday morning.

The complaint alleged Jones had pointed a pistol at Hudgens and threatened to kill him when Hudgens and J. C. Smith, police patrolman, sought to question him early Monday in 1100-block Main.

The officers were investigating a report that a man had been displaying a gun in the vicinity.

Hudgens told District Attorney Burton S. Burks that Jones attempted to pull the trigger while the gun was pointed at him. But Hudgens rendered the weapon ineffective by placing his thumb under the hammer. Hudgens and Smith took the gun away from Jones and on searching him found another pistol in his right front pocket, Hudgens told Burks.

The alleged assault took place after Jones had got in his automobile and prepared to back away from the curb.

The case will be investigated by a grand jury.

Two Held Here In El Paso Robbery Case

El Paso authorities are expected to arrive here today to accept custody of two men charged in a $6,000 robbery Friday in El Paso.

The officers are due to come to Lubbock from Oklahoma City with Myrtle Knapp, one of four persons charged in the robbery, in custody. The fourth person, a woman, was still at large last night.

The Knapp woman was arrested by FBI agents in Oklahoma City.

The pair jailed here were booked as Paul Knapp, 41, and R. L. Griffith, 45. All suspects were reported residents of Oklahoma City.

Knapp and Griffith were arrested Saturday afternoon near Amarillo after going through Lubbock. Road blocks were set up on all highways leading out of Lubbock in an attempt to nail the pair.

Officers had information that the women left El Paso by plane for Fort Worth while the men drove away in their two automobiles.

The four were charged with robbing Manuel Verala of $6,000 as he departed from a bank.

Reno Divorces Unpopular With U. S. Rank-And-File

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—While the Reno divorce has come to be regarded by many as an American institution, the American voting public does not appear to be so fond of it.

In fact, if the question were put to a vote in the other 47 states at this time, a majority would have the courts in their own states refuse to recognize divorces which were granted in Reno courts. This is particularly true of voters who are 50 years of age or more. Fifty-six per cent of them think Reno divorces should not be recognized by courts in their own states. This contrasts with the vote of younger people—21 through 29 years of age—who are about evenly divided on the question.

GALLUP

The Supreme court of the United States late in May gave other states the right to deny Nevada's legal doctrine that anyone spending six weeks there has established legal domicile and is entitled to a divorce in the state.

The May decision upset an earlier court ruling that citizens of one state may establish legal residence for the sole purpose of getting a divorce in another state.

In finding out how the American voters feel about Reno divorces, the Institute had field reporters in all parts of the country ask this question:

"Do you think the courts of this state should recognize divorces granted by Reno courts?"

The answers reveal these results:

No	51%
Yes	34
No Opinion	15

The vote by age groups:

	Yes	No	No Opin.
Ages, 21-29	43%	44%	13%
Ages, 30-49	36	50	14
50 and over	26	56	18

Maybe it is sectional loyalty, but the fact remains that the only area in the country where more voters can be found in favor of having courts recognize Reno divorces than opposed is in the area comprising the states — Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California. Taking these states as a unit, the Institute found 48 per cent in favor of having their states recognize Reno divorces, 35 per cent opposed, 17 per cent with no opinion.

Accused Slayer Is Found Dead

MERIDIAN, Tex., Aug. 13. (U.P.)—In the same house where he allegedly killed his wife a week ago today, Littleton O. Lowrie, 48-year-old gray-haired farmer was found dead today.

Justice of the Peace W. W. Wright said that Lowrie died of a self-administered dose of poison after calling an undertaker and telling him:

"I'll be ready for you when you get here."

Undertaker Called Sheriff

Wright said that at 7 a. m. Lowrie called J. T. Lomax, Meridian undertaker to tell him to come get his body and that Lomax called Sheriff Dave Montgomery.

When Wright, Montgomery and Lomax arrived at the Lowrie home they found the man fully dressed in bed dead, and beside the bed a jar containing cyanide.

Late Friday, Lowrie was released from the Bosque county jail on $5,000 bond on charges of murder in connection with the death of his wife, Minnie Laura Lowrie, 42.

Until the last Lowrie maintained that his wife suffered fatal injuries in a fall down the front porch steps.

Deep Wounds Cited

Bosque county authorities maintained that she died from one of six deep head wounds, "at least two of which could have caused her death," according to district attorney Bill Allen of Hamilton.

Lowrie said that he found his injured wife on the front steps of their farm home and that he moved her inside, but that she was dead by the time a physician he had summoned arrived.

After his arrest, officers found a blood-stained wrench in the Lowrie home which they charged may have been the murder weapon.

Army Mobile Power Effective In Taxi

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13. (U.P.)—A peaceful taxi patron learned much of the U. S. Army's mobile power Saturday night as his intended one-mile cab ride was stretched 160 times.

Ervin Scoefield hired a taxi to take him to North Kansas City, but en route, the driver, following the "share-the-ride" plan, stopped for two men in Army uniforms.

When the driver interrogated, "where to?" the GI's pointed a revolver and ordered to Iowa. Scoefield was invited along.

The trip was ended in Malvern, 35 miles southeast of Omaha.

Fight For Life Of Injured Girl Fails

HOUSTON, Aug. 13. (AP) —Mary Ann Jones, 7, was dead today from concussion and respiratory paralysis nullifying a dramatic dash by ambulance to Houston and the ministrations of pulmotor-operating firemen.

Mary Ann fell from the family automobile near Fairfield last Thursday. Taken to Teague by her father, firemen there had been working five-four shifts at a pulmotor to keep the child alive.

Sunday a physician ordered her brought here to be placed in an iron lung. Accompanied by the Teague firemen operating the pulmotor the ambulance blew two tires. Ration board officials at Huntsville furnished replacements.

At the city-county operated Jefferson Davis hospital Mary Ann was put into an iron lung.

She died last night a few hours after reaching the hospital.

"Where Do We Go From Here?" Is Question Of Federal Employes

By SIDNEY GOVENAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—"Where do we go from here?"

This question was on the lips of thousands of federal workers today as they concluded the end of the war was at hand.

They were not alone with this question Servicemen stationed in and around Washington, servicemen's wives marking time until their husbands' return, and thousands of others who fall into no particular category were framing the same question in their minds.

Washington Isn't Home

And for many of them, the answer is: "I'm going home."

Home for many people in Washington is any city, town or hamlet in any far corner of the country—but not Washington.

The war which began almost four years ago for this country has drawn thousands into the nation's capital where there was a job to be done, but in few cases do these immigrants consider Washington as their permanent home.

Though thousands will be needed for many months to come to keep the wheels of the most complicated government in the world rolling, others know that with the end of the war many agencies will die. And with them go the jobs which brought so many people here.

Means Elimination of Agencies

Washington's reconversion program is unlike that of any other city of similar size. The city has no large factories, no shipyards, no aircraft plants. Reconversion in Washington means the probable elimination of some wartime agencies, the trimming down of others and the return of numerous non-war bureaus crowded out of the capital and dispersed over the country.

The bustling city will never approach the position of becoming a ghost town, but such things as housing shortages, transportation jams and other discomforts brought on by overcrowding will diminish.

Before the war, in 1940, Washington had a population of approximately 663,000. Now about a million persons make their home here. Many more commuting thousands live in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

Not all persons who plan to leave are unhappy about it. A certain Senator's secretary whose job lasts only for the duration had this to say:

"Washington's a 'funny town. It's a place where a person has to ask a taxi driver where he is going instead of telling him where you want him to take you. It's a place where if you ride on the street car you can't fall down because the crowd holds you up. It's a place where when you open the door of a restaurant six persons fall out."

Many others, however, who came here for what they thought was only a temporary stay, have learned to love it. They love its bustle, its crowding and everything else about it. They know it is a city where big things happen, and they want to be here when they do.

Sergeant, Who Visited Here On Dec. 7, 1941, Back For War's End

When Tech Sgt. Theodore R. Cravens visited his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cravens of Lubbock, Dec. 7, 1941, the Japanese staged their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor and the American-Japanese war began.

Yesterday when he came home after nearly two years in the South Pacific and the Philippines, there were indications that the war might end at any moment.

"It seems like big things begin to happen every time I drop off in Lubbock," the sergeant said with a laugh. "But even if this peace talk is the real thing, I'm staying in the Army. I've been in the Regular Army 18 years and I like it."

Strangely, Sgt. Cravens has been serving under the son of the man who was his father's commanding officer in the Spanish American war.

The elder Cravens, who resides out on Forty-sixth street, served as a bugler under Lt. Col. Eben Swift, commanding officer of the 9th Illinois Volunteers. Sgt. Cravens has been serving in the Philippines under Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift, commander of the First Cavalry Div. The sergeant, "top kick" of the 7th Cavalry Band, explained that he and his fellow musicians had been kept busy acting as litter bearers during the Philippine campaign.

"The 7th landed in the first wave during the invasion on Oct. 20, 1944," Sgt. Cravens said, "and I got a Purple Heart, although I haven't any scar to show for it. Just a scratch. In fact one officer in our outfit got one for cutting himself with a safety razor."

Sgt. Cravens was accompanied here by his wife, Polina, and step-son Manuel, 15, who resides in El Paso. His sister, Mrs. Ebert Hardison, and her children of Childress, and his brother, Kenneth of Childress, came here to visit him. At the end of his 33-day furlough, the sergeant will report to Camp Bowie for duty.

Official Priorities For School Received

Official approval of priorities for the construction of the 12-room elementary school for southeast Lubbock — the first of the school projects to be financed under the proposed $1,500,000 bond issue — was received from the War Production Board at Washington, D. C., Monday.

A. C. Jackson, business manager of the Lubbock Independent School district, who received the W.P.B. approval authorization, expressed himself as pleased at the prompt action. He filed the application at El Paso on July 23 and the request was transmitted to Washington two days later. The order received today, indicated that the application was approved on August 9.

"This is certainly quick work," Jackson commented. He explained that the board planned to begin construction in 75 days and that the estimated cost of the building and equipment would be $125,000. The application, which was granted, is for an AA-3 priority.

No applications have yet been filed for the other proposed school buildings, which the District proposes to construct with funds received from the bond issue, which is to be voted on August 21.

Don Cherry Defeats Chick Trout For Tourney Crown

By MACK TURNER
Avalanche Sports Editor

The annual Lubbock Country club invitation golf tournament came to a close Monday afternoon, and ended on the seventeenth green with Don Cherry, Wichita Falls' wizard of the fairways, the winner over Chick Trout, Lubbock Country club champion, 3 and 1 in the finals.

A gallery of perhaps 150 fans thrilled to the steady conservative game played by both players, thrilled to the way Cherry drove in to take advantage of every break, thrilled to the great comeback of Trout's, one that almost brought him the title.

Cherry Grabs Lead

Cherry won the opening hole, and after that was never down. He gained a three up advantage in the morning round, and seemed to be on the road to an easy victory. But Trout came back strong, and after a close battle on the front nine, Trout pulled up even with the Wichita Falls golfer on the 13th hole.

They halved the fourteenth, then Trout's game fell apart, and Cherry was quick to pounce in and win the title. Trout's approach shot on No. 15 landed back of a tree, and he had to shoot low for the green, landing in the trap. It took him a bogey five to sink the ball.

Cherry drove, approached and putted for a birdie three on the hole, and regained his lead. He shot par golf on the next two holes, and Trout was still facing trouble. Trout overshot the green on No. 16, and missed his putt on No. 17 to go one over par on both holes.

Trout missed a birdie on No. 11 when his putt rimmed the cup and flipped back out, but he won the hole when Cherry went one over par. Trout missed another great chance on No. 12 when his putt rimmed the cup again to cheat him of a birdie, and the hole.

Many Good Shots

Both men turned in some grand shots, and time after time they delivered the goods when the chips were down, and great approaches and putts brought many rounds of applause from the crowd that followed the match.

Cherry won the first hole Monday morning when Trout bogeyed the hole. Both golfers parred holes, halving them all the way to No. 7, when Trout evened the match when Cherry bogeyed the hole, and Trout sank a par. This was reversed on the next hole, and Trout made the bogey and Cherry regained the lead. They parred nine, and came in with Cherry one up at the turn.

The best golf of the match was shot on the back nine of the morning round. Cherry firing a two under par 34, and Trout matching par figures for the round.

Cherry Builds Lead

Trout birdied No. 10 to even the match. They halved eleven, and Cherry sank a birdie two on No. 12 to again regain the lead. They halved the next two holes in par, then Cherry fired in another birdie to take No. 15, and took No. 16 in par as Trout went one over. They both parred the next two holes, and came in with Cherry three up at the halfway mark.

Cherry bogeyed No. 1 on the afternoon round, and Trout picked up the hole with a par. Trout got the bogey, and lost the hole, on No. 4 to again put Cherry three up. They played par golf on through the eighth hole, and Trout buried a birdie three to cut the lead to two holes. They came in this way, both parring No. 9.

They parred 10, and Trout barely missed his birdie on No. 11, but won the hole when Cherry went one over. Trout missed another short putt on No. 12, and finished even with a par three.

Cherry was in the rough, one of his few journeys there, on No. 13, and missed a putt with a chance to halve the hole, and Trout evened the match. They parred 14, and from there on Cherry took control and came up to the final congratulations on No. 17.

The tournament was acclaimed as the greatest ever held in Lubbock, and gained much praise from the large number of visiting golfers.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 13. (AP)—Ken O'Dea's double off the right field screen scoring Ray Sanders gave the St. Louis Cardinals an 11-10 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today in a free-hitting 15 inning battle for second place.

Billy Southworth and Leo Durocher used a total of 11 pitchers. The contest ran four hours and 11 minutes. Nineteen Red Bird hits overcame the damage of six errors.

The Cards opened with a three-run first inning on started Tom Seats when Whitey Kurowski hit a homer with two on but the Brooks scored one in the first and knocked out George Dockins with five in the fifth.

Back bounced the Red Birds to knock in six, in the sixth, including Kurowski's second homer of the day, and add another in the seventh for a "safe" 10-6 lead. The Dodgers clubbed out three in the eighth on five hits and tied in the ninth on Goody Rosen's single scoring Johnny Peacock.

Animating the Animators In Hollywood Cartoon Studio It takes a long time and infinite patience to create an animated cartoon. What a contrast to the "swift lift" a bottle of frosty-cold Dr. Pepper gives you! That's why the artist who drew the animated sequences in one of the new 1945 Dr. Pepper "Hollywood Mini-Tour" movies turns to flavor-rich, iced Dr. Pepper at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock . . . or any time he and his lovely assistant become hungry, thirsty or tired. In the completed cartoon "Mini-Tour" you'll see the Dr. Pepper cooler coming to life and delivering the two artists two bottles of "cold Doc" . . . frosty-cold Dr. Pepper.

Long Time and Infinite Patience . . . can also be applied to Dr. Pepper. Sixty years is a long time, and for 60 years Dr. Pepper has been one of the top favorite 5-cent soft drinks; because of its exclusive flavor it is constant in taste appeal. The Dr. Pepper flavor is not borrowed from any single source . . . not a copy of any other drink, but is an original blended creation that never tires the taste. Infinite skill in the blending of Dr. Pepper makes sure that its unique, original flavor is always the same . . . tangy, full-bodied, richly satisfying. Try Dr. Pepper three times a day for just three days . . . and you'll be a fan for life! . . . When you're hungry, thirsty or tired.

"affairs under his jurisdiction."

In Chungking, the Chinese Army newspaper said Empress Nagako was a key figure among the Japanese wanting peace, and that even before atomic bombing and Russia's entry into the Pacific war, Japan was ready to pull back to her 1931 boundaries and let her war leaders commit hara kiri.

The possibility that Tokyo might be polling field commanders on surrender was suggested by the fact that the Allied terms said the emperor would be used to issue orders to cease operations and lay down arms.

Some military experts here were not at all sure that troops in bypassed islands or isolated strongholds wouldn't fight fanatically on.

Might Be Tarnished

And, they said, the emperor's reputation among his people as a supreme being might take on a distinct tarnish if he couldn't get them to obey his orders to quit,—even though the orders were dictated by the Allies.

There was no apparent lack of confidence here that Japan would realize the folly of dragging out the war, only to be compelled to take at least as severe terms after more battering.

China's ambassador to the United States, paying his first official call on President Truman, left the White House wreathed in a broad grin and declaring:

While he indicated his belief "I believe good news will come at any moment."

was founded more on expectation than on specific information, the ambassador said he hadn't considered it too early to congratulate the President on "the magnificent results of the combined Allied war effort."

And, since "we have no longer to talk about war," he added, his conference with Mr. Truman was about postwar problems.

Domestic issues likely to bob up at the close of hostilities figured in the chief executive's biggest conference of the day.

From six top advisers, he obtained reports on the outlook for labor disputes and wage stabilization questions.

Japan, however, still was keeping from her people any official word of surrender overtures.

Radio Tokyo also fed out warnings of renewed Allied naval activity off Japan. Along with other developments, it said, this "tends to point to the possibility of an enemy landing operation" on the Japanese homeland in the near future.

the throne.

Another Domei broadcast, recorded by FCC, said the emperor received Foreign Minister Togo at the imperial palace today but made no comment on the purpose of the visit.

The Domei agency, broadcasting a review of Tokyo press comments of Monday evening, quoted the papers as saying "undoubtedly, worse has come to worst." Appeals were renewed for "unity in the face of the national crisis."

The Domei broadcast, recorded by the American Broadcasting company, quoted the Tokyo Shimbun as editorializing:

"As to how things have come to this pass it is natural that everyone in our nation has his or her own opinion. He or she may have indignation over factors leading to our present situation However, no amount of discussion of past developments in this war of great east Asia is of avail under present circumstances."

Urging anew that the people give "absolute obedience" to the emperor, the editorial said:

"Even if such imperial command should not be in line with our individual desire, the only thing left for us to do is to obey readily and without questioning the last word from the throne."

He was dragging the women across the street when he was struck by a falling body. He was taken to a hospital with a wrenched shoulder.

The tank where the explosion was believed to have occurred was located on the first floor. Markle said he was standing "about two feet" from it when he noticed that as the cold oil anti-corrosion compound was poured in a flame sprang up from outside and below the tank. "Then suddenly," he said, the room was filled with flames and black smoke. I ran for the nearest door. I cut my hand going out but I made it."

S. M. Hayes, 22, paid $100 and court costs for liquor law violation Monday and F. A. Brown, 40, paid a similar assessment in each of two liquor cases naming him.

Police investigated two burglaries over the weekend. A burglar who entered Harvey's cafe, at 709 Broadway, had an eye open for his larder, taking 4 pounds of cheese, 6 pounds of roast beef and 20 pounds of sugar. Police said the cafe in the Lubbock Auction and Commission company building, at 1219 Ave. D, was entered for the "umpteenth" time in the last several months. There was evidence that a music box had been tampered with but nothing apparently was taken.

New officers were installed at a regular meeting Monday night of Allen Bros., post of the American Legion, with Harve J. Hitler Shenanigans Surmised By British

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN GERMANY, Aug. 13 (AP)—Those British staff officers who lend credence to stories that Adolf Hitler may still be alive believe it most likely he would be in Germany, possibly in the Schleswig-Holstei narea with bogus Army papers awaiting normal discharge as a technical or farm worker.

They say that if he is alive he most likely would have altered drastically his appearance and would try to slip out with false papers expertly prepared by forgers. British authorities now have information that a large scale Nazi program of producing false Army papers was carried out in the last days of the Third Reich.

Jap Aircraft And Shipping Suffer Heavily As Mighty Yank Armadas Sweep Big Areas

GUAM, Tuesday, Aug. 14. (AP)—Despite adverse weather that limited carrier plane operations over Tokyo early Monday, preliminary reports indicate considerable damage was done to enemy aircraft, installations anl other ground targets, Admiral Nimitz announced today.

First reports said 46 enemy planes were destroyed on the ground and 71 were damaged, while 21 enemy planes were shot down by Allied combat air patrols, Nimitz asserted.

None of the enemy planes penetrated to the fleet.

Light cruisers and other vessels of the Third Fleet on Aug. 12 shelled military installations on Paramushiro island in the northern Kuriles, Nimitz' communique announced.

The ships met some opposition from shore batteries but the American forces suffered neither damage nor casualties. The fleet forces sank 10 trawlers and a submarine chaser in Kurile waters.

Ships participating included the Cruisers Richmond and Concord.

MIGHTY FORCE BATTERS KYUSHU AND SHIPPING

OKINAWA, Aug. 12. (Delayed) (AP)—A mighty force of more than six hundred Far East Air forces planes based in the Ryukyus battered airdromes and industries on Kyushu today and smashed shipping offshore in a powerful blow underscoring Gen. George C. Kenney's determination to hit Japan until the moment of victory.

(General MacArthur's communique from Manila had announced Far East Air forces strikes only through Sunday, Aug. 12, but Kenney already had said his airmen went out again Sunday and Monday, east longitude time.)

Jap Destroyer Smashed

The most spectacular mission today was made by Fifth Air force night patrols which spotted a Japanese destroyer in Tsushima straits and dropped a string of 24 one-quarter-ton bombs. They missed the destroyer, which swerved suddenly, but hit a heavy cruiser which was spotted alongside at that moment.

The cruiser, which the returning fliers said looked like one of Japan's largest, was left dead in the water, but the airmen did not claim to have sunk her.

BIG MILITARY BASE, LEFT SEA OF FLAMES

MANILA, Tuesday, Aug. 14. (AP)—More than 400 Far East Air forces bombers and fighters in their heaviest saturation raid of the war on Japan left the southern military base of Miyazaki a sea of flames Sunday, and the non-stop aerial assault thundered on yesterday.

Returning pilots claimed that all but some small buildings were destroyed in the blow at Miyazaki, which also is a railway center for the southern part of the home island of Kyushu.

In the second strike against the enemy's homeland since Japan's offer to surrender, the squadrons sowed destruction across not only Kyushu but the neighboring island of Shikoku and Ryukyu stepping stone islands to the south.

Results Unannounced

Gen. George C. Kenney announced that his Far East Air forces had pressed home the attack yesterday, but the results of these raids have yet to be announced.

Smoke towered 15,000 feet over the targets as the airmen turned back toward their Okinawa bases. Three Japanese planes that tried to stop them were shot down. Four of the attacking planes were shot down, at least two by anti-aircraft fire, but two pilots were saved.

More than 160 Thunderbolts spearheaded the assault on Miyazaki.

For the first time in many days, strikes against enemy shipping look a subordinate role in the attacks.

The only important blow listed against shipping was in Tsushima strait to the west of Kyushu, where Mitchell bombers sank a medium freighter and several smaller vessels.

Fleet Stands By

over.

Admiral Halsey has told newsmen riding the seas of Japan with him that the fleet would have a specific job. Part of the Navy's work will be to clear the mines out of Japanese major ports. Not until the harbors have been cleared of their infestation of mines, protectively planted by the shipping to be able to move in safely.

Can't Change Minds

Another task of the fleet will be to show the Japanese that American armed forces are on the alert and that once the Mikado's men have surrendered there can be no changing of minds.

Troops everywhere in the Pacific have been on the alert.

It will require some time to move them in because of the distances they would have to travel. Nearest American ground forces to Japan are on Okinawa, the Marianas islands and the Philippines.

In a recent statement Admiral Nimitz said the Navy must be on the alert against possible treachery by the Japanese in any offer to surrender.

Word of Tokyo radio's report was slow in reaching service personnel around Guam, since many of them were out on jobs.

Acheson Resigns As Assistant To Byrnes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (AP)—Acheson has resigned as assistant secretary of state, an authoritative source disclosed tonight.

The resignation was tendered Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, and accepted.

Acheson, 51, was the department's assistant secretary for congressional relations and international conferences.

It was his second time in government service. Previously, he had been undersecretary of the treasury, under the late President Roosevelt, serving from May to November, 1933.

He resigned that office after a dispute with Mr. Roosevelt over the question of devaluation of the gold content of the dollar.

At the request of Cordell Hull, then secretary of state, Acheson left his private law practice in 1941 and returned to government service as assistant secretary.

Rescue Crews Rushed To Mexico Crash Site

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13. (AP) — Rescue crews including mountain climbers, flew today to the wreckage of an airliner that crashed with 16 persons aboard on the snow-covered slopes of the famous Ixtaccihuatl volcano that overlooks Mexico City.

Searchers who spotted the wrecked craft early today reported there was no sign of life.

The plane, operated by Compania Mexicana De Aviacion, had been missing since Saturday afternoon en route from the Guatemala border to Mexico City during a rainstorm.

One of the passengers, John D. Landing, was reported to be a United States citizen.

Sweden Denies King In Mediation Role

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 13. (AP) — The foreign office officially denied today that King Gustav V had been asked to mediate between Emperor Hirohito and the Allies.

It referred to a Sunday broadcast by an NBC correspondent who quoted an informed source as saying Gustav might be asked to intervene on the ground that Hirohito could deal only through a royal house.

Air Giants Take Up Attack Again

By VERN HAUGLAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Tuesday, Aug. 14—American Superfortresses resumed the assault on Japan at noon today in a maximum effort which is still continuing and could be the greatest of the entire war.

First announced targets were the Marifu railway yards, on Honshu 14 miles southwest of Hiroshima, and shipping off the nearby Kure naval base.

The number of planes involved and other targets were not disclosed, as U. S. Army Strategic Air force headquarters pointed out that the attacks still were in progress and "will continue."

Last One Was Thursday

The last previous B-29 raid was a small-scale blow at Fukuyama and Tokyo Thursday.

Then it was announced that the B-29s were not going out There was no explanation, but the Japanese offer to surrender was apparently the reason for the layoff.

Resumption of the assaults today constituted a maximum effort by the Tinian-based 313th wing of the 20th Air force.

A wing effort of maximum strength is usually about 100 planes.

Opening of New Phase

This first daylight strike against rail yards marks the opening of a new phase of the Superfortress campaign—against enemy transportation lines which previously have been hit only incidentally of by carrier and tactical planes.

The strategic air forces thus were following the pattern of the European air war, when they hit transportation lines in the closing phases of the conflict.

The rail yard target today is 14 miles southwest of Hiroshima, first city struck by the new American atomic bomb. (There was nothing to indicate the atomic bombs were being used in the present assault.)

Main Tokyo Line

The target is on a main double-track railroad from Tokyo south. Its destruction would halt fuel and food shipments to the fire-ravished enemy capital.

The yards in the target sector are 3,000 feet long and eight to ten tracks wide.

The B-29s attacked from 15,000 feet altitude.

This is the first maximum effort by the Superfortresses sinee that on U. S. air forces day, Aug. 1, when more than 800 of the big sky giants raided Japan.

There was no indication as yet whether the raids now in progress would reach that high number.

"Grandma" Starts Off For Wild Blue Yonder

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Aug. 13 (AP)—CAP flier John Garrett told the crowd at a civil air patrol-junior chamber of commerce air show that "Grandma" would take her first plane ride.

So "Grandma" climbed into a plane, escorted by two CAP fliers.

Just about then Garrett announced that the pilot of the plane was wanted on the telephone so "Grandma" waited alone in the ship.

Suddenly the craft's motor started and the machine began moving across the field.

Police Patrolman Lavern Rawlings ran quickly to the plane and clung to the craft's tail assembly. Three CAP cadets joined him in attempting to halt the plane.

One of the cadets managed to reach inside the plane to shut off the ignition only to recognize "Grandma" as Gene Slater, a CAP pilot. The three cadets and Rawlings then dropped off the plane—but only after the patrolman had skinned his knees and torn his trousers.

Show officials had neglected to inform Rawlings and the three cadets that the whole thing was a stunt.

Five Badly Hurt In Explosion Of Bomb

ALBUQUERQUE, Aug. 13. (UP)—An Army practice bomb exploded accidentally in a ranch house 33 miles southwest of here Sunday afternoon, ripping off the leg of a young girl and seriously injuring four other persons.

The bomb was found in a pasture on a ranch 12 miles west of Belen, N. M. It exploded after being brought into the house. The house was demolished.

The explosion blew off the right leg of nine-year-old Idene Montoya and injured Tillie Montoya, 14, Irene's sister; Mrs. J. U. Montoya, their mother; Frank Padilla, 38, and Salamon Padilla, his 12-year-old son.

Elimination Of OPA Offices Advocated

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13. (AP)—Senator John H. Overton of Louisiana said today in an interview that when he returned to Washington he would seek abolition of regional offices and the enforcement division of the Office of Price administration.

Overton said he considered the regional offices superfluous and that they retarded effectiveness of "common sense price control."

The senator said he believed it would be necessary to continue price control after V-J day, but that in his opinion each state should deal directly with the central OPA office in Washington.

Case Between Renter And OPA Dismissed

WACO, Aug. 13. (AP) — A case pending in state district court at Belton in which A. D. Horton of Killeen sought an injunction to stop J. P Green, OPA rent administrator at Temple, from interfering with rents charged by Horton, has been dropped by agreement of attorneys. This was announced by Federal Judge W. H. Atwell in a letter received here today.

Atwell said as a result an order will be issued dismissing a hearing on an injunction he issued restraining Horton from the state court action. The hearing had been set here today.

remainder of that day. In as much as graduation comes Saturday, it would be definitely impracticable to suspend school either Thursday or Friday."

It was explained that final examinations were being given Thursday and Friday.

The "V-J" closing arrangement, previously announced by Mrs. Workman for the city business firms, is as follows:

1. If announcement is received before 3 p. m., stores and other offices will close immediately for that day only and will re-open the next business day.

2. If the announcement is received after 3 p. m., stores and other offices will close immediately and will remain closed the next day.

3. If announcement is received after 3 p. m. on a Sunday, stores will remain closed the following day.

4. If announcement is received on a Saturday, stores will close immediately to open for business the following Monday.

5. If the announcement is received at night, stores will not open the next day.

City officials indicated that the city would join in observing the same regulations.

Littlefield's plans were to proceed in the same manner, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, wife of the secretary of the Retail Merchants association there, said she understood. Mrs. Lee Green, secretary of the Slaton association, said Slaton too plans to "follow original plans."

At Brownfield, Burton Hackney, commander-elect of Howard Henson Post No. 269, American Legion, said the Terry county-wide observance sponsored by that post would go forward, just as had been announced.

A fitting program is being arranged, Hackney said, for 3 p. m. and the day victory is announced. Site of the affair will be the Terry county courthouse square there and all citizens of the county are urged to attend.

Should the victory announcement come after 3 p. m. on any day, the observance will be held at that hour the following day, Hackney said.

From Levelland, Mayor Roy N. Rodgers said:

"The people will want to let off steam, immediately after they learn that Washington has let it be known officially the Japs have surrendered. We plan to proceed with our celebration when we learn the news officially has been received."

A blast of whistles and sirens undoubtedly will greet Lubbock's reception of victory news.

Firemen said they would turn sirens loose.

The Santa Fe railroad's locomotives will "join in the fun."

Cotton compresses, "if we have steam up" when the news comes in, planned to join the din.

LAMESA ADOPTS PLAN OF IMMEDIATE JUBILEE

LAMESA, Aug. 13. (Special)—The Lamesa Chamber of Commerce and various civic clubs have arranged a V-J day program that will begin immediately after the official announcement proclaiming it, according to Mayor Sam Richardson.

Richardson, who will serve as master of ceremonies, said that the city's fire siren would be blown for 10 or 15 minutes as soon as the proclamation is made, and will serve as a signal for the populace to gather on the courthouse lawn.

Lamesa's high school band, under the direction of Richard Young, will assemble immediately to furnish appropriate musical selections.

Dr. C A. Morton, newly installed as pastor of the First Baptist church here, will deliver the invocation. All pastors of the city have been invited to participate in the program.

District Judge Louis B. Reed, a veteran of both world wars who served as a lieutenant colonel in the current war, will deliver the principal address.

Boy Scouts of the city will assist local police in directing traffic.

Don't Tear Up Ration Books Yet, Says OPA

DALLAS, Aug. 13. (AP)—W. A. Orth, regional OPA administrator, cautioned today: "Don't tear up your ration books for confetti just because you hear its V-J day."

He said there was a possibility that some commodities, among them gasoline, fuel oil, stoves, and processed foods, "may be taken from the ration lists not too long after V-J day, but just when it will be no one knows," Orth said.

Truman Is Revealed As Souvenier Hunter

MOSCOW, Aug. 13. (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower disclosed today that President Truman is something of a souvenir hunter.

He said the President had taken the big globe from Eisenhower's office—the globe which the general carried over Europe and Africa during the war.

Sixth Case Of Polio Is Diagnosed Here

Weekend reports to Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, brought the number of poliomyelitic cases diagnosed in Lubbock this year to six.

As a note of reassurance to Lubbock parents, Dr. Rollo reminded that not yet has a polio case developed this summer in Lubbock.

Latest victims are Morgan Walker, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Walker of Abernathy, and Loy O'Brien, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Connie O'Brien of Lamesa.

While both are suffering paralysis of the right shoulder and arm, condition of neither was believed alarming, it was reported last night.

The boy was admitted to the hospital Saturday and the girl last Tuesday.

ing on a 360-mile front extending from Hulin, through captured Tungan to Linkow and then south to the Korean frontier, and gained nine to 28 miles in hard fighting through wooded and valley-cut mountains.

The Japanese were entrenched in mountain passes and a swaying battle raged through its second day before Mutankiang, junction of the Chinese Eastern railroad.

Malinovsky's troops also were pressing along the western stretches of the Chinese Eastern railroad. They gained 18 miles, winning Mientuho.

Russian forces, driving into Manchuria from the east and west, were 398 miles apart.

Supported By Fleet

Tokyo said the Russian invasion of lower Sakhalin island was made with the support of the Soviet Pacific fleet.

The Russian landings apparently were designed to outflank the great steel and concrete fortifications marking the frontier between Russian and Japanese Sakhalin.

Along the frontier, however, the enemy reported that "powerful" Russian ground forces had broken through the border forts and had advanced 17 miles inside Karafuto, reaching the village of Keton.

Keton is on a highway leading 46 miles south to the town of Nairo and the nearby port of Shikuka, on the Sea of Okhotsk.

Horsemen In Mongolia

Meanwhile, a Domei agency dispatch reported that Soviet horsemen and armored columns striking from Outer and Inner Mongolia had "reached the vicinity" of Linsi, in the former Chinese province of Jehol.

This fast-moving Russian drive apparently was aimed for the Yellow sea northeast of Peiping. If Red Army forces cover the 240 miles to the coast, they will split the 1,500,000 Japanese troops in China and Manchuria into two isolated pockets and lay the enemy forces open to ultimate decimation.

Those who conferred with Mr. Truman were John W. Snyder, war mobilizer; Labor Secretary Schwellenbach; William H. Davis, stabilization director; Chester Bowles, OPA boss; George W. Taylor, War Labor board chairman; and John R. Steelman, former chief of the U. S. Labor Conciliation service and now an adviser to Schwellenbach.

Gasoline And Shoes

Gasoline rationing may end within a week after the Japanese surrender Rationing of shoes is expected to end within two or three months after V-J day.

The War Production board—in order to provide as much postwar employment as possible — produced a program to crack bottlenecks which are delaying completion of industrial plants for civilian production.

The help would come through priorities assistance. But WPB Chairman J. A. Krug said this will not be an over-all priorities assistance. He said the priorities will be limited to items not otherwise obtainable.

United Press Presses False Flash Probe

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. (AP)—The United Press said tonight it had ordered impounded all teletype tape at all points along the circuit over which was sent a false "flash" last night that Japan had surrendered.

The UP said it hoped that a study of the tape "would provide a clue to the identity of the guilty person" sending the erroneous information. A reward of $5,000 was offered by Hugh Baillie, United Press president, for the identification and conviction of the person sending the report.

The press association described the flash as "of mysterious origin" and said that while it was sent under a Washington dateline, it was not transmitted by its Washington bureau.

MARKET STILL WONDERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—Stock market prices fell 1 to 3 points today as Wall Street operators spent their second full session wondering if the Japanese surrender bid would result in world peace or continued war in the Pacific.

Investors preferred to await official word before appraising the market. Prices opened mixed and dealings were fairly active before selling off in slow volume.

President Truman's quick action in conferring with top advisers on postwar employment and labor problems was interpreted as softening a sudden reconversion to peacetime operations if the Nipponese quit, and leaders whittled some of their extreme losses.

Of 905 issues dealt in, 178 advanced, 574 declined and 153 were unchanged. The Associated Press 60-stock composite fell .7 of a point to 64.3. Rails showed the biggest fall on average.

Lower were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, United Airvraft, Eastern Air Lines, du Pont, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.) and Texas Co.

A few spots of resistance appeare din U. S. Rubber, International Harvester, American Airlines, Westinghouse, General Electric and Allied Chemical.

Volume totaled 970,000 shares against 1,690,000 on Friday—highest since June 29.

Bonds followed the pattern of the big board.

Cotton . .

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—Cotton futures moved through a nervous session today under influence of the uncertain war developments. Aggressive hedging by both merchants and mills along with some commission house liquidation depressed prices 85 cents a bale in early trading, although most of the losses were recovered later. Final prices were unchanged to 25 cents a bale lower.

Reports that military officials plan large cancellations of textile contracts when peace comes was accompanied by considerable selling from mills, hedging inventories against such termination.

Time To Shift Scenes

Senate Group Calls The Turn

IN ITS annual report to the United States Senate, the Senate War Investigating committee has called for a shake-up of war agencies.

"Our committee has found that the reconversion job to date has not moved nearly fast enough," declared the report, which recommends that the various agencies be reduced in number and placed under the direct control of War Mobilization Director John W. Snyder.

Pointing out that wartime economy demands "closely knit, centralized control," the committee recommends "a more definitely co-ordinated policy."

The report goes on to say: "We must now utilize and divert into peacetime channels our productive capacity that is not needed for our military production."

All of these recommendations will meet with popular approval. The average citizen is more than anxious to see the country get back on a peace-time working basis as soon as Japan can be defeated. Reconversion to be done efficiently with as few jars and unemployment as possible must be carried out without lengthy delays and red tape.

It is high time to begin shifting the stage scenery in preparation for the next act.

Just Inherent Barabarity

THE futile attempt of the Japanese to stop the United States from bombing strategic areas by locating American prisoner of war camps near them is another example of Japan's inherent barbarity.

For a year the United States has protested this violation of the rules of civilized warfare, as set forth in the Geneva convention, and for a year, the Japs have been replying, "So sorry." Yet Tokyo has continued to broadcast reports of various war camps for American prisoners being hit by our bombs.

In May, 1945, the United States demanded, through the Swiss delegation then acting as intermediary, that this practice be stopped and that all such camps be removed to zones of safety. Later this nation warned that Japanese individuals responsible for this inhumanity would be punished. But Japan has deliberately refrained from making any announced change.

It is for such defiance of international rules of warfare that Emperor Hirohito should be made to pay.

And pay day does not appear far away.

Better Control Needed

WHILE Lubbock has a city ordinance requiring the licensing of dogs and their vaccination against rabies, it does not have one law that most cities have—an ordinance requiring owners of vious dogs to keep them confined or muzzled.

Consequently when a person bitten by a dog complains to the police, all the law enforcement officer can do about it is go out and ask the owner to restrain his pet. Sometimes the dog owner complies, but if he does not, the police are powerless to take action.

With August promising some hot days, the problem is expected to become more acute during the month. During that period, referred to by the old-timers as "dog days," there is often an increase in rabies. And then, too, hot dogs, like overheated persons, do not always behave rationally.

There is also angle to the dog problem. Vicious dogs are not the only ones causing trouble locally. In the last few days, the City Attorney's office has received complaints from citizens, who report that their nightly slumbers are being disturbed by the barkings and whinings of a kenne lof seven cocker spaniels. The cockers are said to have caused previous complaints.

The possibel solution, now under serious consideration, is a nuisance ordinance, modeled after those in effect in other Texas cities.

Optimism is unbecoming in an elderly person, and in some instances dangerous. The other day an old codger worked up a spell of optimism, jumped up and tried to click his heels together three times and broke his starboard leg.

There is much to be said for the logic of a four-year-old girl who had a misunderstanding with a goat, as it were, and who upon being asked if the goat butted her, replied, "No, he didn't butt me—he headed me."

"How can I overcome a nervous condition that causes me to have an almost overwhelming impulse to fight everyone I see?" some one asks. Our suggestion would be that he pick a big roughneck and obey that impulse.

One-Minute Sermon

We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. —1. John 3; 14 through 16.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE MOST SACRED TREE OF EIRE

The "Crann a Hulla," a 1000 year old stunted ash growing on poor soil and bleak surroundings about two miles from Doneraile, Eire, is revered as a tree sacred to Granat, a beatiful maiden. The young Prince of Munster had his eye upon the beauteous maiden, but she turned him down. The Prince tried to persuade her to change her mind. Blaming her beauty for her troubles, she decided to destroy it and gouged out one of her eyes. Tradition says that the Tree grew out of the beautiful girl's eye. It has been revered since as the Tree Sacred to Crann (Granat).

UNSUSPECTED TREASURE

XIX

The day after we wired Bond I met Tony Mercede in Kunming. He was upset at the thought of our leaving so soon. "Hell," he said, "I'm only going to be here another month. My contract was up a long time ago, but I agreed to stay on until summer—" He broke off abrutly and snapped his fingers. "Listen: how about another hunting trip before you go? I'll get hold of Vince in Calcutta tomorrow or the next day and make the arrangements, and we can spend a few days up in Tongsawa. Maybe we'll get us a leopard or a tiger or something. And you and Gingiss can hang around Calcutta for a week or two after that, and by then I'll be ready to go back to the States with you."

I agreed for both Gingiss and myself. Three days later Tony hopped out of an Army transport at Dinjan and announced that everything was set. Elephants and guides and all the paraphernalia for the safari would be ready for us at the Maharajah's lodge within two days.

As a vacation and a complete change from flying transports over the Hump, that hunting expedition turned out to be just the thing. We even found something to take the place of oxygen. (The only pity was that it had to be The Great White Trader's favorite brand of Scotch.) But as a game-bagging proposition, the trip was pretty much a bust. It was until the last day, that is.

Tony was on the leading elephant, Gingiss rode the second and I followed up the rear as we moved slowly along the jungle trail.

We were passing through a kind of glen formed by lumpy, moss-covered rocks and overhanging trees that sprang up and behind them, when I heard the soft crackling of twigs underfoot of a habitant of the jungle. It seemed to come from very near the trail and a little off to the left. I decided to investigate. Without making the mistake Gingiss had made when he spotted his over-age tiger, I said absolutely nothing, and simply swung my feet out of the chair and slid off the elephant's back. I landed upright in the tall grass with surprisingly little noise and took about two short steps forward. Crouching low in that position for at least three or four minutes, I decided it must have been my imagination and was just about to throw the rifle over my shoulder when my Number One Boy to my left let out a scream, "Sahib!-Sahib!"

I flinched and pulled my gun around at the same time—just to see the boy's spear flash through the air toward a point a little above and in back of me. I shot a glance toward the low branches of the heavy jungle oak, and there she was—130 pounds of leopard, claws unsheathed and ready to spring—less than six feet away with nothing between us but the clearest kind of space—when I fired. She was in the air when the bullet struck; I could see it jerk her head back. Almost at the same time there was a sharp crack from Tony's gun. He had crept behind me. And then the huge beast crashed at my feet—lifeless.

Gingiss, Tony and I were examining the leopard when I heard, directly behind me, a mewing sound like that of a small kitten, and yet it had had a slight growl. I grabbed my gun, cocking it at the same time, ready for action. The native boys had already raised their spears, poised for the kill — but nothing happened. We waited that way for fully a couple of minutes when the sound was repeated. This time it was louder and I could tell it came from an animal; however, I forged steadily forward and under the thick vinelike growth for about five or six yards, half on my stomach, half on my hands and knees. I was about to give it up as a false alarm when I noticed just ahead of me a cavelike opening. I pushed aside the branches and foliage and there in a pocket of a huge gray rock sprawled three baby leopards, sound asleep.

They were within six feet of where I stood, and my first feeling was one of bitter disappointment: I didn't have my camera. I was cursing softly to myself when I realized I was out hunting leopards—that's why I was here in the jungle—and practically within my very grasp were there of the finest prizes a man could possibly find; evidently the cubs of the mother I had just killed in self-defense. . . .

* * *

I had my rifle in my hand but, knowing I wouldn't need it for these kittens, I laid it down and signaled for Gingiss and Tony, to come near. I figured we would each of us creep up very quietly and grab one of them. The native boys knew something was up by this time and they circled back to see what it was. Just as they arrived I sprang into the cave and caught one of the cubs in my hands. The other two let out yips and tried to scramble out of reach, but Gingiss and Tony had followed my example, and in a matter of a few seconds we were standing in a group, panting and laughing, each of us with a startled and shivering baby leopard in our arms.

Fifteen Americans Executed In Italy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — Fifteen American soldiers, in full uniform, were executed by the Germans in Italy early last year in flagrant violation of the rules of warfare.

Disclosing this over the weekend, the Army said the fate of the 13 enlisted men and two officers was discovered shortly after V-E day when their bodies were found in a common grave near Genoa. Their hands had been tied behind their back and their shoes had been stolen.

The men were captured by the Nazis during a daring night raid aimed at blowing up a strategic railroad tunnel near La Spezia. Planes had been unable to bomb out the line.

Their bodies have been exhumed and taken to an American military cemetery. Several of the Germans responsible for the atrocity, already have been taken into custody and will be placed on trial soon.

The victims all were members of the office of strategic service 2671st Special Reconnaissance battalion based on Corsica.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

"THE nicest compliment I ever had came this morning from Nancy—aged nine—" writes Genevieve Stubbs from Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.

"She was crying, and because I first held on my lap, then sympathized, then changed her whole world by pinning her curls into a new hair-do — get this, 'You're the very sweetest lady I ever knew.'

BRANDEIS

"I wiped off her tears with a large, man-sized handkerchief and she went to sleep on my shoulder.

"I found out that Nancy's grief was caused by lack of funds. A sudden trip to camp and she didn't have the two nickles for some bread and butter with jelly and a glass of cold orange juice.

"But a man-sized handkerchief, a sympathetic shoulder and a new hair-do seemed to fix it all up.

"Trouble—so real and overwhelming when it strikes suddenly—what to do about it? It was easy enough to solve hers. But how about yours and mine?

"I'll wager that if a sympathetic shoulder could be found they'd be solved almost as simply.

"And I wonder whether grown-up troubles couldn't be eased a lot with a man-sized handkerchief and a new hair-do, if you know what I mean."

Yes, I do know what you mean, and I agree with you.

But the trouble with grown-up troubles is that adults go around nursing their troubles instead of finding that sympathetic shoulder on which to nestle with them.

A piece of bread with jelly and a glass of orange juice doesn't seem much to cry over.

But to Nancy they were very real.

Many a problem that worries you could be solved so much more easily if you'd only find that sympathetic shoulder.

And how about the handkerchief? Well, how about a good cry when things get too tough? You'll be surprised how much it helps. Sometimes I wish I were a woman. Tears are her prerogative and tears are a most effective remedy.

The new hair-do is also a good idea. Try it some time. You'll feel like a new person. Or make it a new hat, or a new dress, or a new necktie or a new sports jacket. You'll be surprised how much better you'll feel if you'll just put on something new. To do something new will make you be something new.

HOWEVER my correspondent is is not very consistent.

In the same letter that contains such lovely philosophy, she complains about a new neighbor who plays the piano at all hours of the night.

"Apparently she believes in the theory 'Never let your left hand know what your right hand is doing'," she writes. "What she 'renders' on the keys sounds like a Bach version of the Santa Fe time table. Nobody can make it out. What shall I do?"

Why not go to the camp with Nancy and have a nice jelly sandwich and a glass of cold orange juice?

Or tie that man-size handkerchief around your ears?

How Gen. Spaatz Got The Call

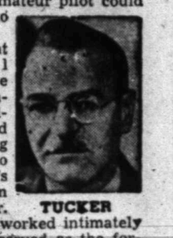

WASHINGTON

By Ray Tucker

GENERALS "IKE" Eisenhower and "Doug" MacArthur were the behind-the-scenes principals in the controversy which preceded the recent allocation of air commands for the final stages of the Japanese war. The smiling Kansas boy, who served as MacArthur's aide when the latter was Chief of Staff, won out.

Friends of both men point out that no personalities were involved. The sole question between them was as to which group of fliers had the peculiar capability and experience for softening the enemy's mainland for the invasion.

With the appearance of the atomic bomb, the dispute may have only academic interest. Possessed of such a weapon, even an amateur pilot could blast the Rising Sun Land to smithereens.

TUCKER

General MacArthur urged that control of all American aerial forces in the Pacific theater be given to Lt. Gen. George Kenney, who has performed so brilliantly in providing cover for land and naval units in their amazing advance from Guadalcanal to Okinawa. He felt that Kenney's long association with problems in this area entitled him to the honor.

But General Eisenhower had worked intimately with Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, who served as the former's No. 1 airman in England, in North Africa and again when the Allied armies needed tactical and strategic bombing for their offensive from the beaches of Normandy to the cellars of Berlin.

In General Eisenhower's opinion, no individual in this war has had General Spaatz's opportunity to master the science of softening up an opponent in advance and then destroying his troops on the battlefield.

CHANGES: President Truman — also Chief of Staff George Marshall — approved the arrangement which gave General Spaatz command of the Pacific area and put General Kenney over the Fifth, Seventh and Thirteenth Air Forces — the most powerful aerial armada which any man in world history had ever had under his personal direction.

Another Eisenhower aide, "Jimmie" Doolittle, will also have a choice spot. He will head the Eighth Air Force, which has been transferred from its original home in England. It will now blitzkrieg the Jap mainland from its new base on Okinawa.

It is understood that the favorite of Gen. Hap Arnold, commander of the AAF, for the Spaatz post was Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker. He built up the Eighth Air Force from its earliest days in England while General Spaatz sidekicked for General Eisenhower in North Africa. But when Italy capitulated and the major battle shifted to the European continent, Eaker was shifted to the Mediterranean and Spaatz returned with Eisenhower to the main theater.

General Eaker now acts as virtual deputy under Arnold in Washington, and, oddly, he signed the orders providing for a new division of labor in the Far Eastern skies. Level-headed, efficient and kindly, he appears to be the ideal man for central administrative and organization work.

The same factors that placed Spaatz over Kenney account for the substitution of Lt. Gen. George Stratemeyer for Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault in China. The leader of the "Flying Tigers" did more with less than any man in the Air Forces. But he does not rank with Stratemeyer as a strategist or tactician, and that is what the Allies need as they drive in for the kill.

REVOLT: That amiable revolt of 18 New Deal Senators against President Truman's preoccupation with foreign affairs was not a howling success. The boys meant well, but personal and factional differences forced them to postpone decision or action until Fall, even though it was delay in attacking home problems that threw them togther.

It was the British elections which led the New Deal boys—Sens. Elbert Thomas of Utah, Harley Kilgore of West Virginia and Claude Pepper of Florida — to call the conference. They noted that the Laborites won mainly on domestic issues. Meanwhile, not a single piece of major legislation on postwar difficulties has been enacted since HST took office. The reconversion program is at a standstill. It is possible, they agreed, that the Democrats could go to way of the Tories.

The self-appointed trio originally meant to ask only a few "kindred spirits"—Pepper's phrase. But premature publicity, the fear of hurting feelings and other reasons forced them to invite many others —two many, it turned out. They notified 30 and 18 showed up. Not all were as "liberal" as the three sponsors. Thus the group became a cross section of a divided party rather than representatives of the radical faction.

WINNING THE WAR

By Albert Leman

DRAW a red circle around the month of October on your calendar pad.

Military experts are convinced that by then — unless Hirohito quits in the meantime — Japan will have been plastered by the atomic bomb and by everything else in the book. Her industries and defenses will have been obliterated.

The most terrible explosion on record occurred when the Mont Blanc, a munitions ship, was rammed in Halifax harbor in the last war. Her cargo of 3,000 tons of TNT blew up, leveling one-third of the Nova Scotia city and killing thousands. A single cosmic bomb is seven times more powerful.

New York martime experts say that October in Japan offers "ideal landing weather;" by then the typhoons are over. Rejection of surrender terms beyond that time will be literally an act of national hara-kiri.

At the moment when the United States government gave out the information about the huge plants and enormous numbers of scientists employed in releasing atomic energy, the Tokyo radio was broadcasting that bombed-out Nipponese scientists were carrying on in "huts made from sheet tin."

The atom, indeed, has exploded in many directions, giving new inspiration to the attempt of man to catch up in his social organization with the inventions of his mind so that the benefits may be utilized by all. Many adjustments will become necessary as the mind leaps ahead of social organization, as it has in the atomic discovery.

Many established concepts will become obsolete. They have already.

Those people we call politicians got a rude shock with the explosions in Japan, whether they realize it or not. So did those people who stubbornly resist social change, who cried aloud over the British elections, who are still strewing bouquets of hate over the grave of Franklin Roosevelt—whether they realize it or not. They are bewailing for the return of something that is gone forever. The atomic explosion blasted away the last vestige of it.

New Age Requires Daring

A provocative calculation was made by Robert Briffault in his book "Breakdown" published in 1932, a discussion of the disintegration of society in Europe. It has some meaning now, too. This was that man's ability to use science to improve his modes of living is about 300 years ahead of his ability to organize society so that everybody can enjoy what the scientific mind evolves.

Whatever the gap is, it's got to be shortened now.

It all comes down to what we call politics, the art of government.

This new atomic age will require daring. Progress has come so slowly in accomodating our social organization to change. But slowly we move forward. The visionary social philosopher and planner of yesterday often lives to see his dreams accepted by practical men, though not so often as the scientist.

THIS was graphically illustrated once several years ago by the late President Roosevelt in an informal talk at a dinner at which the guest list ranged from big business Republicans to Norman Thomas, the Socialist.

Mr. Roosevelt read from Socialist platforms of several years back and then from Democratic and Republican platforms of subsequent years to show that what was considered radical and socialistic yesterday is accepted today as sound doctrine by Republicans as well as Democrats. This was demonstrated again in the Republican platform of last year which accepted New Deal reforms previously scorned by Republicans.

The atomic discovery may speed up the process.

BOWES RECOVERING

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. (U.P.) — The office of Major Edward Bowes said today that the former radio amateur hour impresario was recovering from a serious illness of last December. Bowes makes almost daily calls at his office, it was said.

San Francisco Charter Has A New Meaning

Atomic Bomb Means New World

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The atomic bomb that shook the world far beyond Japan cities has not only given us a startling concept in natural science but it is destined to have an equally startling effect on social science. It will affect our social organization and its purposes, our forms of government.

Scientists warn against expecting too much too soon in the application of this amazing new discovery to the things of ordinary living in peacetime. But reading between lines of their cold and careful words it is possible to forecast safely that the roseate dreams will be realized, just as they were from steam, electricity and other scientific findings.

STOKES

The Sunday supplements and the bizarre, pseudo-scientific fantasies of the comic strip have never been very many years ahead of the actuality, nor have such prophets as Jules Verne, Edward Bellamy and H. G. Wells.

New Frontiers Opened

The horror of contemplating what man might do to himself if he turned this new weapon against himself in a future war has been stressed over and over. So has the equally obvious and impressive reaction that men had better learn to live together in peace if civilization is not to destroy itself.

This gives San Francisco and its charter new meaning.

But, beyond that, the atomic discovery is bound to have a tremendous influence upon our forms of society and the functions of government when you consider its effect upon the mechanical contrivances of our machine civilization. New means of power—for automobiles, airplanes, ships, railroads—that will make time and boundaries meaningless. New industrial processes that will make so many things available with so much less labor. New concepts that may make money and wealth meaningless.

AND all this gives new meaning to such things as the recent British election and the plans they are making over there and some are making over here, too, to give the people a greater share in the benefits of machine civilization that science makes possible. Over there they propose to do it by giving the people, through their government, more control over certain basic national resources.

Chinese Reds And Chiang Group At Odds And Situation Critical

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Swift action is likely to come in China if civil war is to be averted there in the backwash of Japan's collapse.

Leathery-faced Red General Chu Teh has put the situation in the world's headlines by ordering his troops to disarm Japanese garrisons and occupy points wherever they are. His troops are widely scattered throughout Japanese - occupied China.

WHITE

Chungking's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has promptly countermanded the Red instructions and ordered all concerned not to act until he tells them to He told the Reds flatly "never again to take independent action."

Civil War Charged

A Red commentator in Yenan, the Chinese Communist capital, replied by charging that Chiang was planning civil war.

Yenan may be wading in strong in order to get the best settlement possible out of the bargaining it sees ahead. But Chiang's order alone is hardly likely to stop the Chinese Reds if it is really their intention, as Chungking reports make it appear, to grab first and talk afterward in Japanese-occupied China.

Meanwhile, a number of factors still keep the door from slamming shut.

For one thing, General Chu's order referred to Japan's unconditional surrender as an already accomplished fact. He can always say he acted hastily on faulty information and retract his order on that basis.

Leader Not Heard From

For another, Mao-Tze-Tung, the political leader of Red China, has not been heard from, and final decision on any overt Red break from Chungking would have to come from him.

Mao's silence may be the real key to the situation. He must be fully conscious of the extended conferences which have been going on in Moscow between Chungking's Premier T. V. Soong and high Russian authorities including Marshal Stalin.

(It has never been reported that the Russians have supported the Chinese Reds, although they have helped Chungking materially, but that has not stopped the Chinese Reds from hoping.)

Mao must know well by this time that the official American attitude on the Chinese internal dispute amounts in its simplest form to continued recognition and support of Chungking as China's de facto and de jure government.

Heavy Disadvantage

Finally, Chinese Communist leaders must realize that in any civil war they might get themselves mixed up in they would be at a grave disadvantage.

While Chungking has been poorly armed in relation to Japanese invaders, its troops are overwhelmingly well-armed in relation to the Communist troops who have only what they have made themselves and captured from the Japanese.

Chinese Reds may of course be relying upon the political basis they have built up in occupied China through the years to provide support in a people's war against Chungking.

If so, they are dealing with a generalissimo whose dander definitely is up.

Business Transacted By County Court

County commissioners court in its semi-monthly meeting Thursday transacted the following business:

Allowed payments totaling $10,088.70 for road work in county precincts 2 and 4; payment of $276 to Mark Halsey Drug company for electric fans; payment of $207.22 to R. B. George Machinery company for machinery parts; payment of $1,430 to C. B. Harris on his contract to plumb the courthouse basement; payment of $191.04 to J. R. McKinley Plumbing company for work done on old folks home.

The court also approved an order approving an increase in the salary of Miss Georgia Clifton, 99th district court reporter, to $3,750, in accordance with an act of the last legislature, commencing Sept. 3; approved the 1944-45 report of the tax assessor-collector; approved J. M. Hall as county service officer subject to his qualifying; and passed an order authorizing collecting $1 for each civil case filed in the county court, except for delinquent tax suits, for purpose of creating a "county law library fund" in accordance with legislative enactment.

A. C. Straley was announced presiding judge of K. Carter voting box, to succeed H. W. Sims, resigned, and Mert Gentry was appointed presiding judge of Posey box to succeed Billy Boyce, resigned.

County Judge Walter Davies was authorized to have floor furnaces installed at the old folks home.

Salary of Miss Helen Edwards, assistant county home demonstration agent was ordered raised $20 a month, under stipulation she would retain her position here.

More Contract Slashes Sighted

By SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON Aug. 13. — Further slashes in war contracts to clear the decks for industrial reconversion were in prospect today with the Navy getting ready to trim aircraft orders by as much as $2,300,000,000 (B).

The War department was prepared, too, for wholesale cancellation of contracts as soon as V-J day is proclaimed.

Could Step Up Autos

Other government agencies were geared to place their reconversion programs into action. A War Production board official said that if the Japanese surrender becomes official within a week, it might be possible to produce as many as 550,000 new automobiles by the end of the year.

The previously authorized quota for this year was 250,000. The official said a quick end of the war would eliminate the sheet steel shortage, principal obstacle to increased auto output.

Orders for cancellation of Navy aircraft contracts are ready and probably will go out this week. Under present plans, which are subject to downward revision, the Navy intended to retain approximately $1,250,000,000 (B) of its present plane contracts. Those retained cover experimental type planes, aircraft in the very final stages of construction and planes which will be needed for the post-war fleet.

Some Already Cancelled

Late last week, after the Japanese offered to surrender, the Army and Navy ordered contract cancellations aggregating nearly $4,000,000,000. Of these, $1,200,000,000 (B) were Navy ship contracts.

Within the next two or three weeks, both armed services are expected to order cuts in contracts for ordnance, food and clothing.

Though some government officials still felt concern over the impact of a sudden Japanese surrender on the national economy, especially over the prospect of widespread unemployment until reconversion can be achieved, Chairman James M. Mead, D., N. Y., of the Senate War Investigating committee did not think the outlook was so grim.

Mead said that "developments of the last few days' have greatly strengthened his confidence that reconversion can be handled without serious economic dislocation. He evidently was referring to disclosure by reconversion director John W. Snyder that government procurement agencies were beginning large-scale cutbacks in war contracts and the revelation that a master VJ-Day reconversion plan would be put in force by the War Production board.

Othman Gets Jump On Army, Explains All About Radar In Language For The Layman

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Spell "radar" backward and what do you get? Confusion.

The Army published 200 pages yesterday explaining the atomic bomb, but it read like double-talk to me. Now the Army comes along and says it will issue the inside dope day after tomorrow on radar, which is a widget that can see through fog and the black of night without even squinting.

Consults Old Professor

I have no confidence in the Army's ability to explain radar to my satisfaction and I have consulted the old professor for the truth about radar in words that make sense. Pardon me, Army, for scooping you; here's the straight stuff on radar

A few years before the war the boys in the back rooms of a couple of universities and three big electric manufacturing plants were kicking the gong around on the subject of sending electric power without wires. This would save a lot of wire, not to mention poles.

Figured Out A Deal

The trick was to make their power go in a straight line, instead of all over the lot. They finally figured out a deal whereby I could hold an electric light bulb in my hand at the top of the Washington monument (which already has got a light) and you could turn on your dynamo in Alexandria, Va., 20 miles away. My bulb would glow, without wires, black capes, mirrors, anything.

That current was traveling through the air from your generator to my bulb. The inventors were excited about this, as you can imagine, and they were talking over their coffee about the happy day when every house had its aerial to take in electricity from the air.

Like Water From Hose

They even mentioned the possibility some day of electric automobiles, with meters on 'em, to run with juice from the air.

You're wondering what this has got to do with radar? Haw. There was an old thing about squirting a stream of electricity through space, like water from a hose. When the stream bumped into something at the other end, like me on top of the Washington monument, some of the electricity bounced back to where it came from.

Don't ask me why. The Army will go into that Wednesday. Anyhow, you're still in Alexandria, lighting up my bulb on top of the monument. You've got a small screen on top of your dynamo and, for better or worse, you can see me, my bulb and the tip of the monument in it. That, friends, is radar.

Set Up Sideline Business

When the war came, the scientists forgot about wireless power transmission as such and took up the sideline business of picture-making, which seemed to be more important. So it is that an admiral on a battleship can peek at his screen and see through the night in all directions.

If there's a Jap bomber anywhere around he can tune in on it, sharply, and see it, too. And so on. Our boats carry radar. So do our airplanes and the lads who sail 'em can see as well by night as by day, like owls, only better.

May Become Television

My professor says that radar some day will become television, without scanning discs, synchronous motors, and all the other complicated innards now in use. Some day also the radar fellows will get back on the beam with those electric autos, while the copper wire stringing the country will be melted down for pennies. Honest, that's what he says.

Okay, Army. Take it away. Let's see you explain it better.

Confederate Vet From Floydada Is Buried In Fort Worth Monday

FLOYDADA, Aug. 13. (Special) —Funeral services for Thomas Montgomery, 98, last member of the Robert E. Lee camp, United Condereate Veterans, were conducted this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Forth Worth.

Montgomery died early Sunday morning in a Floydada hospital.

A native of Alabama, Montgomery came to Floyd county in 1892 and bought the J. A. ranch, co-owner with J. Tinsdale of Clarendon. In '94 Montgomery purchased the T. M. Bar ranch, near Floydada, which he has been operating successfully since that time. He became a director of the First National bank of Floydada in 1908, as president several years and was then named chairman of the board of directors. He was active in this capacity and operating his ranch, although bedridden the last year, until approximately three weeks ago.

Montgomery help organize the Security National bank of Spur and was one of its directors. He had extensive property holdings in Floydada.

Until recent years Montgomery attended all meeting of the Confederate Vetefan association.

Only survivor is a sister, Mrs. W. W. Johnson of Fort Worth.

PROFESSOR DIES

AUSTIN, Aug. 13. (U.P.)—Samuel E. Gideon, professor of architectural design and architectural history at the university of Texas since 1913, died here early this morning after several months' illness. He would have been 70 years old next December.

Tinfoil was used to wrap bananas when they were a rare tidbit in the United States.

Employment Controls Abandoned In Area

Employment controls on male workers is lifted and statements of availability are no longer required of female workers in the Amarillo-Panhandle War Manpower Commission area, effective Monday, according to F. A. Wells, area manpower director.

This announcement came from a meeting of the area's WMC management labor committee on August 8. It was also disclosed that statements of availability on males and referral by U. S. Employment Service offices on male workers is being eliminated in all labor market areas except Amarillo, Borger, Dumas and Pampa.

Final approval on this move was received by Wells Saturday afternoon from J. G. Boni, regional manpower director.

DSM Is Presented To James F. Byrnes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—For his services as war mobilization director for two and one half years, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes received from President Truman today a Distinguished Service Medal.

Standing on the Dewey crabgrass in the White House rose garden, the Chief Executive read a citation which said "he did not hesitate to support unpopular measures essential to the successful prosecution of the war."

Hollywood Uses New And Explosive Word

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13. (AP)—There's a new word in the laudatory lexicon of movie press agents. Anything stupendous or terrific is now publicized as "atomic."

Shortly after Uncle Sam's sensational new explosive was disclosed last week, an ad smashed out with: "Atomic bomb! Incendiary blonde! Betty Hutton!" A burlesque house introduced the "Atomic Bomb Dance." A comedy was trumpeted as being so funny it was atomic; presumably people split their sides laughing at it.

Houston Woman Is Only Feminine Flag Pole Painter In U. S.

By JACK RUTLEDGE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The nation's only woman flag pole painter is, naturally, a Texan.

She is Mrs. Eddie Mae Flanagan, 30, of Houston. She weighs 89 pounds, is a blonde with blue-green eyes, wears smart green slacks, a white blouse and a captain's cap on the job. She is a native of Sulphur Springs.

Her 11-year-old son Rex carries her equipment and accompanies her to work.

Jess Gibson of Houston says she makes a trim addition to a flag pole.

Isn't At All Scared

Mrs. Flanagan says she isn't at all scared of her work.

She got into the business last year. She said she became fascinated while watching J. B. Hassell at work on a sweying pole.

"I decided if poles didn't break with him, they wouldn't break with me, so I started out," she explained.

She says it's a pretty good occupation. All she needs, besides nerve, is some rope, a small bosun chair, a little paint and a small brush.

$15 In 40 Minutes

She said she painted the 100-foot pole on the Cameron Iron Works in 40 minutes, and was paid $15 for it.

She described how flag pole painters work: You take a couple of ropes, space them about three feet apart with double clover hitches around the pole; you sit in the bottom one with the bosuns chair and inch the top one up a bit; then you grab it tightly and pull up the one with the chair in it.

First thing you know you're at the top of the pole. Then you begin to paint, and work your way down again.

So far, she has painted poles atop the Branos and Auditorium hotels, several for the Cameron Iron Works, one for McEvoy, and others.

She looks forward to her next big job—painting the flag pole atop the Gulf building, the highest flag pole in Houston.

War's First Casualty To Lose Portions Of All Four Limbs Gets $60,000 In Presents

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Aug. 13 (U.P.)—Master Sgt. Frederic Hensel, first World war II casualty to lose portions of all four limbs, spoke happily today about the little chicken farm he'll have soon.

The 26-year-old veteran of Okinawa, described by a fighting mate as the "bravest man of this war," ordered more than $60,000 in cash gifts converted to war bonds until he can choose the farm site himself.

Presented At Hospital

Representatives of Detroit Free Press and Chicago Herald-American showered the cash gifts on Sgt. Hensell and his pretty, brunette wife, Jewell, as they celebrated their third wedding anniversary yesterday at Percy Jones hospital, where the Pacific veteran faces a series of four operations to prepare him for artificial limbs.

"I don't know what to say," Hansel said. "Just tell everyone I said thanks a lot, and everyone sure has been swell."

Other Gifts Are Sent

The cash gifts from more than 30,000 newspaper readers were supplemented by many more useful gifts sent direct to Hensel at the hospital.

Among these were a deluxe, three-room trailer, held in readiness by a Chicago firm for the sergeant when he is able to leave the hospital, and equipment which permits projection of 16 mm sound film on the ceiling of his room, sent by Screen Comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello.

Letters Total 175 Daily

Then there was a small, leather-cased alarm clock, Hensel's anniversary gift from his wife.

A daily average of 175 packages and letters have been sent to him at the hospital since his plight was revealed.

Hensel was able to sit up in a wheel chair for his anniversary yesterday for the first time. Mrs. Hensel proudly pushed him down the corridor as she greeted friends with a wide smile.

Shipment Will Ease Area Sugar Shortage

DALLAS, Aug. 13. (AP) — Supplies of sugar in more than a score of Texas cities will be boosted with portions of a five-million-pound shipment from Cuba which arrived by boat at Houston last week, B E. Trigg, regional food rationing officer of the OPA, said today.

The Army, with first call, took 1,000,000 pounds, or about 10 carloads, Trigg said. Six carloads will go to cities in Oklahoma.

The rest was to be divided among home, industrial and institutional users in Texas.

Two carloads each were designated for Amarillo, Lubbock, Austin and Abilene.

One carload was designated for each of these cities: Wichita Falls, Corpus Christi, and Harlingen.

Domestic refineries, the rationing official said, were meeting demands of other cities in the region.

Trigg said a "lion's share" of the off-shore shipment would go to home consumers. Whatever amounts are distributed immediately to industrial and institutional users will be replaced by supplies from domestic refineries, he said.

Nazi War Criminals Moved To Nuernberg

NUERNBERG, Aug. 13 (AP) — Notorious German leaders who once strutted in the stadium of this Nazi shrine city were housed in bare cells in Nuernberg's city jail today.

Battery B of the U. S. 391st anti-aircraft artillery, which has been guarding Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Robert Ley and other Nazis at a Luxembourg hotel, completed the move. The Nazis will go on trial as war criminals next month.

The trip was without incident but tight-lipped officers declined to discuss any details.

Most of the battalion, commanded by Capt. Lyman Crothers of Newark, N. Y., came in two days ago. They threw a strong guard around the prison, where a special cell block had been prepared. The remainder arrived yesterday with Capt. Hubert Biddle of Bremen, Ohio, who has been jailer at Mondorf, Luxembourg.

Even The FBI Boys Had To Get Passes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (AP)—The Army kept such a tight guard on the work of developing the atomic bomb that even FBI agents, who helped guard its secrets, had to get special passes to get into the bomb plants.

The War department disclosed this tonight in telling part of the story of a special intelligence and security organization which protected the war's best kept secret.

The organization was so hush-hush that it operated independently of the Army G-2, intelligence. It was solely a part of the Manhattan engineer district, the name given to the bomb project, and operated under the direction of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, boss of the bomb project.

Plentiful Jobs Seen To Absorb Cutbacks

DALLAS, Aug. 13. (AP)—James H. Bond, regional War Manpower commission director, said here today that V-J day would not mean mass unemployment for war workers in the Southwest.

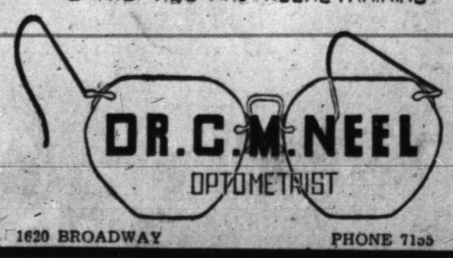

Bond said Texas business was badly undermanned and he thought it could absorb the estimated 350,000 persons who may lose jobs when war contracts are cancelled.

He urged employes to direct all workers to register at the United States Employment service.

He said it was possible 90 per cent of war workers might be cut off within 24 hours after V-J day, but that other jobs could be found for them.
