Educational encounter

U.S. President Ronald Reagan is surrounded by Japanese school children who joined him at an archery exhibition during his visit to Tokyo Thursday.

Reagan urges Japan to boost its defenses

TOKYO (AP) — President Reagan prodded Japan today to boost defense spending and lower trade barriers, while Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone called on the United States to push down interest rates and curtail taxes that hamper international trade.

In a day mixing the culture of ancient Japan with an exercise in 20th century international politics, Reagan said Japan should "share more of the burden of our mutual defense effort."

The president and Nakasone touched on a gamut of controversial issues that separate their two nations.

After a senior administration official reviewed the talks on the second day of Reagan's six-and-a-half day Asian journey, the president's spokesman took the rare step of following Reagan to a podium to stress that progress was indeed being made and that it was demonstrated — if in no other way — by an agreement to continue U.S.-Japanese discussions.

"We came here to set an agenda, and we set that agenda," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes. "We're setting a benchmark...to indicate the problems we have can and will be resolved."

U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield, known for his brief, low-keyed answers to questions when he was the Senate Democratic leader, was asked how the talks were going an responded, "Can't complain."

The Reagan administration would like Japan to play a greater role in the joint U.S.-Japanese defense of this island nation, and it has complained about limits on U.S. access to the Japanese marketplace, where American producers would like to sell more fruit, beef and other items.

With Nakasone at his side, Reagan ended their formal talks by telling reporters reporters in an auditorium of the prime minister's official residence that he was satisfied ' our mutual security relationship is proceeding smoothly."

"...the most important contribution Japan can make toward the peace and security in Asia is...to provide for its own defense and share more of the burden of our mutual defense effort."
— Ronald Reagan

But, the president added:

"As for Japan's defense efforts, the United States remains convinced that the most important contribution Japan can make toward the peace and security in Asia is for Japan to provide for its own defense and share more of the burden of our mutual defense effort."

Nakasone has indicated an interest in increasing Japanese defense spending, but, with public opinion divided and an election campaign likely, he has moved cautiously in this area.

Japan now spends less than 1 percent of its gross national product on defense and contends any buildup is limited by constituional restraints imposed after World War II that bar Japan from raising an offensive war machine.

The president saluted the strength of U.S.-Japanese ties saying, "I have come as a friend of Japan seeking to strengthen our partnership for peace, prosperity and progress. I will leave Japan confident that our partnership is stronger."

He noted, however, that "Japanese quotas on agricultural products are a cause of concern."

"In return," Reagan said, "the United States must combat protectionism in our country, and I have given the prime minister my pledge to do so."

A senior administration official, speaking on the condition he not be named, acknowledged that "in the trade area, it's the United States that's doing most of the asking."

Reagan, looking tired although his aides said he is bearing up well under the strains of his trip nearly half way round the world, mispronounced the name of Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, calling him "Reagan," and then quipped, "I tried to get him to pronounce it the other way."

For his part, the prime minister indicated there are policy differences on both sides. Nakasone said he asked Reagan "for continued U.S. efforts to lower U.S. interest rates."

He added:

"I expressed my concern that the unitary method of taxation is becoming a serious impediment to the Japanese investment in the United States."

This refers to the practice of states calculating an international company's taxes on the basis of worldwide earnings rather than income derived solely in that state. While the practice may increase state revenues, critics argue it limits overseas investments.

Reagan and Nakasone, who will meet Friday in the informal setting of the prime minister's weekend villa on the outskirts of this sprawling capital, conferred today after the president and his wife Nancy visited a shrine to Emperor Meiji, during whose reign Japan began evolving as a modern nation. There, in a drizzling rain, they watched an exhibition of 9th century horseback archery in which samurai-robed archers shot at targets while riding at a full gallop.

Survival of son called 'miracle'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Seven years after he was declared dead, 12-year-old Brian Keith Wampler is healthy and active.

Keith Wampler

He bears only small outward signs of the 1976 traffic accident which left him with the roof of his mouth split, his skull crushed and his jaw, collar and pelvic bones and both legs broken. His spleen, liver and one lung were punctured and he had multiple facial cuts.

"It's a miracle because Keith is not supposed to be alive," says his stepfather, Roger Gregg.

The Knoxville youth was riding with his grandmother and uncle when their car slid off a rain-slickened road into a tree. He bounced into the dashboard several times and was thrown into the back seat.

Rescuers worked for nearly a half-hour to free him from the wreckage. He was taken to St. Mary's Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead on arrival with no vital signs.

Doctors worked for 20 minutes to resuscitate him, but were uncertain how long he would survive.

They told his mother, Terri Gregg, that he wouldn't survive because his injuries were too extensive.

"Even the chaplain told me not to expect him to make it," she says.

She credits Keith's survival to his own courage. "He was a little fighter and he fought his way back," she said.

Graham's sentence debated

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

SAN ANGELO — Thomas Alan "Tom" Graham, who in the last instant of his eyesight saw his father dying from a shotgun blast, today paid the penalty incurred by his father when the elder Graham allegedly emptied a 12-gauge shotgun at a deputy sheriff during a burglary committed by both.

A 119th District Court jury of nine women and three men were in deliberations late this morning to determine punishment of 18-year-old Graham of McCamey, after deliberatinf 70 minutes and finding him guilty of the murder of Charles A. "Chuck" Renfro.

Renfro, 45, an Upton County Sheriff's Department Deputy stationed in McCamey, was slain in the early morning hours of July 15 when he responded to a silent alarm inside Red Bluff Lumber Co. Graham was permanently blinded and his father, Richard Lee "Dick" Graham, 40, killed when they were shot by a citizen during the bungled robbery of Intratex Gas Plant near Bakersfield two days later.

The deliberation came after an emotional plea for probation from court-appointed defense attorney Lawrence Barber, who said Graham's blindness was punishment from God, and Graham's claim on the stand that he had "changed his life."

"What did you mean when you said you'd changed your life?" District Attorney Aubrey Edwards of Big Lake asked the defendant.

"I've given my life over to the Lord," he replied quietly. "When I was shot the last time I asked the Lord to forgive me and he did."

"Before Chuck Renfro was killed you didn't live that kind of life?" asked Edwards.

"What I did wasn't from God. It was my own choice. I'd been saved at an earlier life but I'd kind of gotten away then."

"If they did send you down to the penitentiary," said Edwards, "there's a lot of men down there that could use those teachings, aren't there?"

"Yes, sir."

Barber called upon jurors to let Graham go back to McCamey in the custody of his mother.

"Punishment has been dished out, in this case, by a greater and higher authority," he said. "It was done in Bakersfield, Texas.... Richard Graham met his maker right there. Thomas Graham was blinded. I'm 45 years old and I'd give up 20 years of my life in a penitentiary rather than lose my eyesight. I understand what punishment is all about, but Thomas Graham already has his.... He ain't goin' to hurt noboby no more because he does not have the capability. He's living in his own hell right now, and he's going to live in it tomorrow and next week and next year."

Barber added that assessing probation on a murder conviction might not seem equitable, "but he's going to be on probation the rest of his life. The Lord took care of his punishment."

Edwards had urged the jury to assess Graham a lengthy prison sentence. "If you're worried about treatment at Texas Department of Corrections, they have facilities to take care of people like him," he said. "I'm asking you in a case of this magnitude to send him to Texas Department of Corrections for not less than 25."

Edwards countered Barber's plea for probation based on the defendant's blindness by telling jurors, "You have never put yourselves in a position to lose your eyesight like he did when (Clifton) Hood shot him when he had a rifle in his hand."

Jury considers Lucas' punishment

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A jury that convicted Henry Lee Lucas of murdering his teen-age common-law wife with a butcher knife began deliberating punishment this morning in the first Texas trial for the drifter who claims to have killed about 165 people across the country.

Lucas was convicted Wednesday just hours after telling jurors, tears streaming down his face, that he stabbed Frieda "Becky" Powell during a quarrel and then sat next to her corpse and "talked to her about trying to figure out what to do with her body."

He faces a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Lucas, 47, said he didn't mean to kill the teen-age Jacksonville, Fla., runaway with whom he had traveled in 36 states, "from Maine to California." He said he looked "onto her as a child" and said he had taken care of her since she was 11.

After realizing Ms. Powell was dead, Lucas said he dismembered her body because "it was the only thing I could think of."

The conviction was his second arising from his claim of journeying across the country in a bizarre murder spree. Earlier this year, Lucas pleaded guilty to the murder of Kate Rich, 80 of Ringgold, and received a 75-year prison term. Her bones were found in Lucas' wood-burning stove.

Court-appointed defense attorney Tom Whitlock had asked jurors to convict Lucas of voluntary manslaughter, which carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

Lucas also has been charged in eight other Texas murders. Four are capital murder charges, which carry a possible penalty of death by injection.

Cobb said he believes Lucas next will be tried in Georgetown, Texas, where he is charged in the strangling death of a young, unidentified woman whose body was found near Interstate 35 in 1979.

In 1960, Lucas was convicted of killing his mother in Michigan. In 1971, after his parole, he was returned to prison for attempting to kidnap two young girls in Michigan.

In 1975, he was paroled again and began what authorities say was a nationwide murder spree. Most of the crimes described by Lucas were sexually oriented, investigators say, and many of the victims were mutilated.

Lucas involved in area killings?

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas and onetime traveling companion Ottis Toole have been charged with capital murder in the 1982 bludgeoning death of an Odessa shoe salesman.

Toole, who is serving a 20-year prison sentence for arson, also was charged here with murder in the death of a 36-year-old male hitchhiker.

On Wednesday, Lucas was convicted in the second case in which he has been tried. He claims to have killed 165 people during cross-country ramblings that sometimes included Toole.

Lucas was convicted in Denton on Wednesday in the stabbing death of 15-year-old Freida Powell, a Florida runaway who lived with Lucas. In September, he was sentenced to 75 years in prison after pleading guilty in the slaying of 80-year-old Kate Rich of Ringgold.

Syrian gunners fire on U.S. jets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian gunners fired ground-to-air missiles at U.S. jets flying over central Lebanon today, and Syrian-backed mutineers resumed bombarding Yasser Arafat and his beleaguered fighters in Tripoli after a short-lived truce. But the PLO chief again refused to flee.

The Syrian command in Damascus said it drove off four U.S. F-14 Tomcats over central Lebanon. White House spokesman Anson Franklin, in Tokyo with President Reagan, said the U.S. planes were fired upon from Syrian-held positions while on a reconnaissance mission. None was reported hit.

Arafat's loyalists in Tripoli came under heavy bombardment from Syrian-held heights north and east of Tripoli, state radio said. The attack at midday broke a truce, less than 24 hours old, between Arafat's fighters and mutineers, backed by Syria. Israeli jets buzzed the battle area, the radio said.

Arafat's chief spokesman, Ahmed Abdul-Rahman, in a statement distributed by the Palestine Liberation Organization news agency WAFA, said Arafat had no intention of abandoning his last Middle East stronghold and that any reports that he would flee were "completely untrue and aimed at creating chaos."

Italy's defense minister, Giovanni Spadolini, announced in Rome today that if requested, Italy would evacuate Arafat from Tripoli and that two Italian warships had been ordered to the Lebanese coast to stand by for a possible evacuation.

Spadolini said Arafat could be picked up "at any place on land or sea where he might request it." None of the Italian peacekeeping contingent of more than 2,000 troops in Beirut would be involved in the rescue, he said.

Lebanese religious and political leaders in Tripoli were urgently contacting Arafat and rebel leaders to try to salvage the cease-fire, which earlier had been "generally holding," Beirut radio said.

The truce briefly took hold Wednesday evening and was to apply for four days, to give the warring factions time to discuss their disputes, said one of the cease-fire's arrangers, Sheik Ahmed Bin Saif al Thani, the foreign minister of Qatar.

During negotiations for the cease-fire, the mutineers insisted that Arafat must leave Tripoli. Newspapers controlled by Syria and Libya, which both back the rebels, said Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khaddafy "agreed that Arafat's departure from Tripoli is a must."

The truce was mediated by the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Qatar on behalf of the six major oil-producing nations of the Arabian peninsula.

The rebel attack has cornered Arafat in Tripoli, 50 miles north of Beirut. Loyalist holdouts remain at the Baddawi camp of Palestinian refugees on the outskirts of Tripoli.

Tripoli police had estimated that at least 1,000 people were killed and 3,000 wounded in the week-old assault. The International Red Cross has said hundreds of the casualties were civilians.

The rebels claim Arafat has betrayed the PLO goal of wresting a homeland from Israel. Arafat claims the rebels have been deceived by Syria, which he says wants to dominate the PLO.

Syria denies involvement in the mutiny, but Syrian troops in north Lebanon have been supporting the mutineers with tanks and artillery.

French paratroopers fired at a car speeding toward the French chancery in Beirut Tuesday, seriously wounding three of the four occupants, the French said.

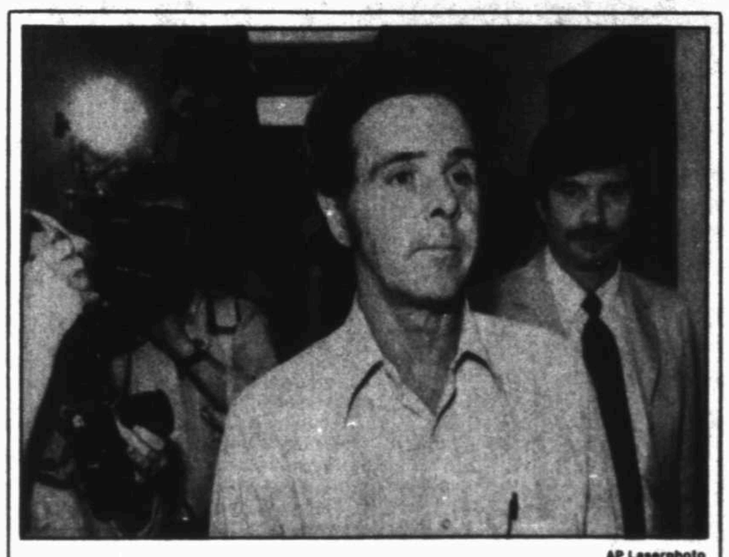

Bomb-laden trucks driven by suicide terrorists blew up the French and American command posts in Beirut Oct. 23, killing 58 French and 237 American troops.

The Americans and French are part of a multinational peacekeeping force that deployed in Beirut shortly after Israel invaded 17 months ago in an attempt to smash the PLO.

Israel has agreed to get out if the Syrians, but the Syrians refuse.

In Israel, the military command today completed a drill to see how fast thousands of reservists could be assembled. It called the practice "rapid and orderly."

Syria announced a general mobilization Monday, claiming Israel and the United States were preparing to attack. Israeli and U.S. officials have denied such an intention.

Henry Lee Lucas is led from the Denton courthouse, where he was convicted Wednesday in the murder of Freida "Becky" Powell.

Lucas, companion face charges in area

Lucas has been charged in 10 Texas murder cases, four of them capital cases carrying a possible penalty of death by injection.

Toole and Lucas were both accused in criminal complaints filed with Howard County Peace Justice Lewis Heflin on Tuesday of beating Happy Howry, 66, with a tire iron "while in the course of committing robbery."

According to the complaints, Lucas and Toole, in recent interviews, gave law enforcement officials "probable cause" to file the charges.

Howry, the shoe department manager at a JC Penney store, disappeared from Odessa on April 25, 1982. His abandoned car was found in Big Spring three days later, and his body was discovered in a field near here a week after that.

Investigators had suspected robbery in the death because Howry's wallet was missing.

Big Spring authorities refused to elaborate on the charges against Lucas and Toole, citing a gag order issued by a federal judge in Florida.

Toole was also charged Tuesday in the June 1, 1982, shooting death of William Boyd Hite, a hitchhiker whose body was found near Big Spring.

Lebanese negotiators agree on reforms

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Delegates to a committee of Lebanon's warring factions today said they have reached a consensus on government reforms designed to ease Moslem-Christian tensions.

But a member of the committee said a final agreement had yet to be reached on recommendations to be presented to Lebanese factional and government leaders when they resume their "national reconciliation conference."

The "all-party committee" was left behind to continue work when the leaders recessed the conference last Friday after five days of meetings.

The leaders were scheduled to return Nov. 14, but a delay of at least one week is expected.

"There is a good understanding among the all-party committee and we are pressing favorably for an accord," said one committee delegate who insisted on anonymity. "But everything is still under discussion."

The delegate said a "statement or communique" would be issued some time today, but refused to discuss its contents.

The committee represents leaders of the warring Christian, Moslem and Druse factions. Delegates stressed that any agreement would be "tentative" and subject to approval by faction leaders.

The delegates are discussing Moslem-Christian parity in Parliament and the creation of a constitutional court and a supreme court as a means of satisfying Moslem claims for greater representation in the government headed by President Amin Gemayel, a Christian.

Under a 1943 agreement, Christians and Moslems divide leading government positions, with Christians holding a 6-to-5 advantage. Moslems contend they have gained the majority in population since then and deserve at least an equal leadership share.

Lebanon's factional strife has been attributed in part to the power-sharing arrangement, but also stems from the occupation of northern and eastern Lebanon by Syrian troops since the 1976 war, the presence of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the occupation of southern Lebanon by Israeli troops who invaded in 1982.

U.S. opposes factional fighting endangering Lebanese civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, breaking its silence on the fierce fighting between Palestinian factions in northern Lebanon, is calling for an end to the "radical and brutal behavior" which is endangering innocent civilians.

In a statement Wednesday, the State Department also said the administration is sending $1 million to the International Committee for the Red Cross for relief activities near Tripoli, where the Palestinian fighting has concentrated. State Department spokesman Alan Romberg also said the administration is working with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency on ways to assist refugees from the fighting.

The administration has virtually no sympathy for Yasser Arafat, the beleaguered leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization who is cornered in Tripoli by dissident PLO factions backed by Syria.

Jury debates sentence for Thomas Graham

Edwards added, "Religion does get to us a lot in times of adversity, but you think he was asking God to help him (at the time of the murder)? You think he was asking God to help Chuck.... How can you slap (Graham) on the wrist and say, 'Go on home and don't do it any more?' Chuck's dead."

Assisting Prosecutor Dan Edwards of San Angelo told jurors that by assessing a stiff prison sentence they could "do something for law enforcement."

"You have a chance to send a message," he said. "If somebody kills somebody else, there're going to be punished. It will make Tom Green safer and Upton County safer and everywhere else."

Defense Attorney Barber also called to the stand the defendant's mother, Doris Graham, who tesitfied she would care for her son if he were placed on probation.

Graham, who sat fidgeting with his cane during deliberations, ran his left hand across his face when the verdict was read.

The guilty decision was based on a state law charging accomplices in felonies with equal responsibility should an associate commit an "anticipated" murder during that felony. On the first day of trial Monday, Graham had pleaded not guilty to murder and guilty to burglary.

"I have never objected to a jury verdict in my life and I'm not going to start now," Barber said privately after the verdict was reached. "That's what makes our judicial system work."

He added that "there's no basis for appeal at this point."

The punishment phase of the trial began at 9 a.m. today. The murder conviction could net Graham five to 99 years' confinement.

Barber indicated privately he would call only Graham's mother and 19-year-old sister as character witnesses.

In his closing arguments, Barber attempted to convince the jury that Graham could not have anticipated a murder being committed when he assisted his father in the break-in of Red Bluff Lumber Co.

"How could this man know what was going to happen within?" Barber asked the jury. "How could he anticipate it? That's the reasonable doubt.... The conspiracy stops when the burglary goes."

Aubrey Edwards countered by noting Graham had at his disposal a sawed-off shotgun as he waited on the roof while his father burglarized the store. "Why was the other gun on top?" he asked jurors. "I would imagine that Thomas Graham was going to use it if anybody came around him. Why do you TAKE a gun?"

Barber also called upon the jury to consider Richard Graham's influence on his son and the fact that justice already had been dealt the elder Graham.

"Most of you are parents or will be someday," he said. "It's kind of spooky how a parent can influence a child, and that's what we're dealing with in this case.... There is no doubt Chuck Renfro is dead. There's also no doubt that the man who killed him is dead. He has done got his deal. He has already got his punishment for that part of it."

Edwards challenged jurors not to let sympathy sway their decision.

"You are the last link in law enforcement," he said. "Can you picture that officer going in that store to protect the property of a citizen? Can you picture the officer getting blown away?.... This is your world that you live with, your children.... Would you not let sympathy interfere?

"We go with the law, and the law says if two people are committing a felony in which a murder is committed, and they planned and conspired to commit that burglary, they are both guilty.... This man is guilty, just as guilty as Richard Graham if the circumstances had been reversed, if he had been on top of that building and Thomas Graham had left (Renfro) lying inside."

Assisting prosecutor Dan Edwards of San Angelo also charged jurors not to let the defendant's handicap influence them.

"When Chuck Renfro went in that door, we'll never know what happened," he said. "All we'll know is he got shot at least three times, once in the middle of the back. Thomas Graham admitted that he heard shots that came from within the building when he was on top of the roof. You think he didn't know what was going on in there?

"...I suspect that Mr. Barber is going to tell you that Thomas Alan Graham suffered permanent blindness when he was shot. At least Thomas Graham has his life. What does Chuck Renfro have? What does his wife have? What do his children have?"

Renfro's wife and children sat quietly several rows from the bench.

Richard Graham, who died when he was shot by Clifton Hood July 16, had a prior felony record and is now suspected to have been involved in other Upton County burglaries, according to Upton County Sheriff Sid Langford.

Langford added that Thomas Graham, "from all I've heard, was a real good kid, real polite. I'd never heard anything bad about him, as far as his conduct in school or anything."

The trial had been moved to San Angelo from 83rd District Court in Rankin on a change of venue.

Wholesale prices make small rise

Energy prices fall for first time in six months

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices, despite the sharpest gain in food costs since April, rose a modest 0.3 percent in October, the government said today. Largely offsetting the 1.1 percent food price gain was the first drop in energy prices in six months.

Beef and veal prices rose 2.4 percent, the first increase after three months of falling prices and a renewed indication of the impact of the summer's prolonged heat and dry weather.

Fresh fruit prices rose 18.5 percent and vegetable prices were up 5.3 percent, also the result in large part of the summer's weather.

As for energy prices, the department said natural gas costs tumbled 2.8 percent. Over the last year, gas prices have fallen 0.7 percent, their first 12-month decline since 1965. Department analysts said a glut of gas on the wholesale market produced the October decline, which came at the start of the winter heating season in parts of the country.

For the year, the Labor Department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods has risen at an annual rate of just 0.6 percent, virtually assuring that the pace for all of 1983 will be well under the 3.7 percent of 1982.

Indeed, economists say the final tally for the year will be about 1.5 percent, which would be the smallest increase since the 0.5 percent advance of 1964.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, in Tokyo with President Reagan, called the October figure "a significantly low rate of inflation" and added that "in recent weeks we have seen a remarkable string of indicators of a flourishing economy. The October producer prices showed the foundation for the recovery is strong."

Indeed, over the last 12 months, wholesale prices have risen a small 1.3 percent, the lowest full-year gain since the 1 percent increase posted over the November 1966-November 1967 period.

Detailing last month's price activity, the Labor Department said:

—New car prices jumped 0.8 percent after falling a sharp 2.1 percent in September, when dealers offered customers special deals to close out the 1983 model year. Light truck prices shot up 10.8 percent after tumbling 5.6 percent in the previous month.

The department noted that "the October advances reflected price hikes for 1984 model-year vehicles by domestic producers."

—The 1.1 percent food price increase was well ahead of the 0.7 percent advance of September and matched the gain recorded in April. Vegetable prices rose 5.3 percent and poultry costs rose 0.3 percent. Bakery goods rose 1 percent.

Pork prices last month, however, were off 2.5 percent and dairy product costs fell 0.2 percent.

—Gasoline prices fell 0.2 percent, slightly better than the 0.1 percent decrease of a month earlier. Fuel oil prices jumped 4.2 percent. Those prices had risen 2.5 percent in the previous month, when natural gas prices were up 0.5 percent.

The energy price calculations reported today were for September. That component of the wholesale price measure lags a month because energy companies report their prices too late for inclusion in the most recent index.

—Capital equipment costs rose 0.3 percent after falling 0.3 percent in September. Those costs are for machinery and transportation equipment used by business.

All the price changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

Wholesale prices rose a seasonally adjusted 0.4 percent in August and 0.2 percent in September.

In all, the Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 287.9 in October, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $28.79 last month.

If last month's 0.3 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 3.8 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure made public.

The bright price picture has been widely attributed to the lengthy recession, worldwide oil glut and bountiful crops of last year.

But with the economy improving, energy prices stabilizing and crops damaged by the summer heat wave, prices are certain to rise more in 1984.

Forecasters are placing the expected increase in the range of 4.5 percent to 6 percent and predicting especially sharp gains in meat prices once supplies shrink as producers end the herd liquidations they have undertaken in the face of rising feedgrain costs.

In advance of today's announcement, Kathleen Cooper, senior financial economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles, said, "It's time for inflation to start picking up again."

Parents won't end life support

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Although her heart still beats, doctors say a 6-week-old infant has been "legally, morally" dead for a week and should be allowed to rest in peace. But her grieving parents, waiting for a "miracle," have vowed to keep her on life-support.

"We feel it's up to God to take her life, not the doctors," said Adrian Roberts, 31, father of Starla Roberts. "We don't feel it's the doctors' or the judge's decision."

"We're believing in God for a miracle," said Ginger Roberts, 20, the infant's mother. "My response to the doctors who believe in their tests is: Why can't they accept our faith as Christians? ... Why can't they accept someone who is stronger than all of us?"

Starla remained hooked up to life-support equipment Wednesday at Memorial Medical Center where doctors said no decision had been made as to when it should be shut off.

"There's no question, morally, legally, that the child is brain-dead," said Dr. Carlos Maggi, associate director of the pediatric intensive care unit of Memorial Medical Center.

Roberts said doctors at Memorial threatened to seek a court order to disconnect Starla's life-support system unless the couple agreed to such action. But he said the physicians backed off after his wife contacted a local television station Tuesday afternoon and told reporters of her plight.

Starla's doctors denied threatening court action.

"We are respecting the parents' feelings," Maggi said. "In many other hospitals, the child would have already been disconnected from the ventilator, but because we always try to work with the parents to understand their feelings and respect them, we haven't done that."

Mondale 26-point favorite over Glenn, indicates Gallup Poll

DALLAS (AP) — Former Vice President Walter Mondale is a 26-point favorite over U.S. Sen. John Glenn, his nearest rival for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, according to a Gallup Poll commissioned by The Dallas Morning News.

The poll, taken during October showed Mondale favored by 45 percent of Democrats polled nationally. Glenn, D-Ohio, followed with 19 percent.

The poll showed Mondale leading Glenn in all of the 10 largest states, except for Glenn's home state of Ohio. In Texas, Mondale led Glenn by 50 percent to 19 percent among Democrats.

Officer burned while rescuing dog

HOUSTON (AP) — A police officer was treated at a hospital for third-degree burns on his hands Wednesday afternoon while rescuing a police dog from a burning police car.

Officials said the officer ran outside and found the interior of his car in flames. Officials said he pulled the dog, named Hart, from the front seat, suffering burns on his hands.

Officials said the car apparently was set ablaze when someone tossed a Molotov cocktail through a window left open so the dog could breathe fresh air.

Cities getting share of taxes early

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas cities are getting their share of sale tax collection a week early because many tax payers paid their bills by the 20th of last month, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Wednesday.

All payments of sales taxes will be required by the 20th of each month from this month on, instead of by the last day of the month.

Bullock said this change, by the recent Legislature on his recommendation, will bring in $500 million more for the current state budget without a tax increase.

Greyhound receives fare increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission refused Wednesday to grant a 15 percent rate increase sought by Greyhound Lines Inc. and approved a 6.4 percent increase instead in all fares and rates.

The new charges will apply to most bus companies providing the same services in the state, the commission said.

Greyhound originally asked the 15 percent rate hike in passenger fares and express rates plus a 25.7 percent increase in charter coach charges.

Ruling halts house reconstruction

AUSTIN (AP) — A temporary restraining order will protect the state's interest on Galveston beaches until a full court hearing is held Monday, says Attorney General Jim Mattox.

The restraining order prohibits Robert L. Matcha, first defendant in the open beaches cases, from continuing any reconstruction on his hurricane-damaged house on West Beach in Galveston.

Mattox said that, as a result of Hurricane Alicia, Matcha's property now lies within the area between the line of low tide and the line of vegetation which makes it on a public beach and in violation of the Texas Open Beaches Act.

Barefoot execution date set again

Thomas Barefoot

BELTON (AP) — A prosecutor who won a Dec. 14 execution date for an oilfield roughneck convicted of killing a police officer says the early date will "keep the heat on" the Supreme Court to decide whether Texas' death penalty statute is constitutional.

State District Judge William Black set the execution date Wednesday for 38-year-old Thomas Andy Barefoot after turning down a defense motion for an evidentiary hearing.

Defense attorney Will Gray said he will appeal the ruling to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Bell County District Attorney Arthur "Cappy" Eads vowed to fight the appeal again.

"They really want the evidentiary hearing so they can retry the case," Eads said. "We will continue to answer each and every one of their allegations until the Xerox machine breaks down."

The district attorney said he had considered asking for an execution day in February or March, but decided against it.

"We're going to continue to keep the heat on until he (Barefoot) is either executed or the death penalty is declared unconstitutional," Eads said.

The U.S. Supreme Court is currently considering a California case that may affect the Texas death penalty statutes. At issue is a principle called "proportionality."

The California case contends that before a death sentence is given, there should be a review of the sentences given for similar crimes. Another Texas inmate, James Autry, received a last-minute stay from Supreme Court Justice Byron White last month on the proportionality issue.

Eads said he asked for a December execution date for Barefoot, even though the California case may not be decided by then.

"If we don't press the issue, then this case will just be allowed to drift along," he said. "Delay is the only weapon that they've got left. We're going to go full steam ahead and force the Supreme Court to rule on the proportionality issue. And if the Supreme Court justices decide that he should be given a stay while they consider proportionality, then so be it."

Eads added, "Frankly, we're tired of fooling with it. I feel obliged to pursue this case. Whether they like it or not, we're together (with this case) until death do us part."

Barefoot was saved from death just 12 hours before his scheduled execution last January.

Barefoot, a former oilfield roughneck from New Iberia, La., was convicted of the Aug. 7, 1978, killing of a Harker Heights police officer. He has received three earlier execution dates and has been granted a stay each time. The last came as he waited in a holding cell just a few feet from the death chamber.

Gray and Carolyn Garcia, Houston attorneys who have represented Barefoot during his appeals, filed a motion before Black Wednesday asking for a hearing to review the evidence in the trial.

The lawyers claimed that Barefoot's trial counsels, Gerald Brown and Steve Blythe of Temple, were ineffective and improperly failed to call psychiatric witnesses to rebutt statements made by two state psychiatrists.

Girl says she killed father who beat, raped her

RICHMOND (AP) — A 15-year-old girl told a jury she killed her father because he frequently raped and beat her, but jurors and attorneys refused to reveal the verdict they reached during a closed court session.

Jurors deliberated the fate of Pamela Christine "Christie" Martin, for less than an hour before returning with their verdict at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The girl was also accused of killing her stepmother in the Sept. 26 shootings at their home in Guy, about 60 miles southwest of Houston.

Fort Bend County Court-at-Law Judge Thomas Culver III closed the hearing Wednesday following the appearance of news reports of the first day's proceedings.

Court-appointed lawyer Fred Felcman and Assistant District Attorney John Healy refused to reveal the six-member jury's verdict. Jurors declined to talk about the verdict or their deliberations.

If she was found guilty, the girl could be placed in custody of the Texas Youth Council until she is 18.

Miss Martin, who was 14 when the killings occurred, testified Tuesday that her father repeatedly raped and beat her for more than a year. She said Martin raped her as often as five times a week and frequently beat her with a leather strap to which a handle had been attached.

The girl testified that she killed her stepmother, 27-year-old Connie Jean Martin, and her father, Middie Emory Martin, 36, after the factory foreman attempted to rape her.

Miss Martin testified Tuesday she managed to discourage her father's advances late the night of Sept. 25, but was afraid he would attack her the next day.

The girl testified she shot Martin and her stepmother with a .38-caliber pistol as they lay sleeping about 2 a.m. She said she had tried twice to tell Mrs. Martin about the sexual abuse, but the woman slapped her and refused to listen.

The Space Shuttle orbiter "Discovery" rides piggy-back atop a 747 jet with a canopy of storm clouds overhead as it lands at the Kennedy Space center Wednesday.

Jet with Continental Airlines president aboard makes landing in wrong place

DENVER (AP) — Two Continental Airlines pilots working during a strike were reported "very, very embarrassed" about mistakenly landing their jet — carrying the airline's president and its chief spokesman — on a taxiway instead of a runway.

An official of the Federal Aviation Administration called Wednesday's errant landing "a matter of concern" and said the agency would investigate.

No injuries resulted when the DC-9, carrying Continental President Frank Lorenzo and 74 other passengers from Houston to Denver, set down on a deserted, 75-foot-wide taxiway that lies between and parallel to two 150-foot-wide runways.

But the Airline Pilots Association, which struck Continental on Sept. 27 after the financially troubled airline reorganized, cut salaries and imposed new work rules, said the incident demonstrated "a degradation of safety" because of pressure on pilots.

A taxiway landing can be dangerous because "very often there can be an aircraft on the taxiway that would be virtually invisible to the landing aircraft," said John Houser, a union spokesman.

"It's very conceivable that you wouldn't see the guy until you were down and starting to stop."

Continental's chief spokesman, Bruce Hicks, who was on the plane, said, "It was a beautiful, bright sunny day and the glare off the snow washed everything out" when the plane approached the airport at 9:30 a.m.

The pilot "saw three strips of black concrete and he landed on the middle one," said Hicks. He said the jet rolled gently to a stop, with other passengers unaware of the mistake until later.

Hicks would not identify the pilot and co-captain, describing them as "very, very embarrassed about it."

However, he said both were experienced and had flown into Denver many times. The captain has flown commercially for 13 years and the first officer has more than 7,000 flight hours, both mostly with Texas International, he said.

"I suspect they're (the FAA) going to find that the glare from snow in the approach to the airport was at that moment in time very, very difficult," said Lorenzo, who was in Denver for meetings.

The FAA's public affairs officer in Seattle, Judy Nauman, said that the incident "is a matter of concern. The office in Denver is awaiting an interview with the flight crew and we'll do an investigation."

Bob Westoff, head of the FAA's air carrier district office in Denver, said the agency considers a taxiway landing "a serious incident."

An investigation could result in no action, a reprimand or a change in Continental's certification, FAA officials said.

The same mistake had been made at the airport a year ago by a commercial jetliner and more recently by a twin-engine private plane, Hicks said.

But airport spokesman Dave Scherer said, "It doesn't happen often at all. In the last 15 or 20 years, we've had maybe three incidents with (small private aircraft), but never in our knowledge has it happened with a commercial aircraft."

The pilots association struck the airline after Continental filed for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy law, dropped some routes, laid off more than half its pilots and flight attendants and cut salaries in half.

Voters approve anti-smoking law

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One of the nation's toughest bills championing the rights of non-smokers narrowly won approval from city voters, officials said Wednesday night after a final count of absentee ballots.

However, a controversial plan to control urban growth was defeated, said Registrar of Voters Jay Patterson following a careful check of more than 12,000 absentee ballots.

The anti-smoking measure was passed 80,740 to 79,481, according to the final tally. The urban growth plan was defeated 78,529 to 76,610.

Those were the two most hotly contested issues among many propositions on Tuesday's ballot. Voters backed policy measures asking the federal government to halt military involvement in El Salvador, and also voted to repeal bilingual ballots.

Polling was so close on the smoking and urban growth measures that mail-in votes tipped the balance. Patterson said his staff had to open each of the envelopes by hand Tuesday night and all day Wednesday, verify the names and addresses and tabulate the votes by computer before the results were known just before midnight, nearly 28 hours after the polls closed.

Proposition P, which asked voters whether the city should enforce an ordinance regulating smoking in private workplaces, won with just over 50 percent of the total vote. It had been ahead 74,624 to 73,546 before the late absentee ballots were counted.

The law requires employers to accommodate smokers and non-smokers in the workplace. But if non-smokers are dissatisfied, their wishes must prevail. Employers can be fined up to $500 a day for non-compliance.

San Francisco became the 14th California city to pass an anti-smoking ordinance. It is similar to one in Palo Alto which calls for an employer to write a smoking policy within 90 days and restrict smoking to certain areas.

San Diego and eight other cities in San Diego counties have anti-smoking bills, as do Ukiah, Los Altos and Los Gatos.

Los Angeles' city council also is considering a tough anti-smoking bill.

House debating telephone bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, split along party lines and facing a huge lobbying campaign by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., is debating a bill designed to hold down local telephone rates.

Work on the measure began late Wednesday night but after an hour of discussion, the House voted 249-149 to set aside 10 hours for further debate before a final vote.

That debate was to resume today, although House leaders said there could be delays because of the need to consider a continuing budget resolution that would keep much of the federal government in operation past midnight.

Simply by starting debate, however, the House passed a milestone of sorts. The measure is the first significant piece of telephone legislation to reach the House floor in 49 years, when Congress passed the Communications Act of 1934 and first adopted the goal of "universal telephone service."

The new bill is sponsored by Reps. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., and Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo. It would overturn a regulatory plan adopted by the Federal Communications Commission that requires consumers to begin paying monthly "access fees" — initially $2 a month — to their local phone company.

That fee would be in addition to regular local service charges, and would replace subsidies that are now paid indirectly to local phone companies by persons placing interstate long-distance calls.

Dingell argued Wednesday the bill was essential to support the goal of universal, affordable telephone service. The imposition of access fees, he said, would eventually price phone service out of the reach of millions of Americans.

The FCC's plan, which calls for long-distance rates to fall as the access fees are paid, also lacks safeguards to prevent AT&T from gaining a windfall of profits, Dingell continued. AT&T has already spent more than $2 million lobbying against the bill simply because it wants "to reach out and touch everybody in their wallet," he added.

Opponents, led by Reps. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., Matthew Rinaldo, R-N.J., Thomas J. Tauke, R-Iowa, and Don Ritter, R-Pa., countered the bill would keep long-distance rates at artificially high levels, perpetuating an unworkable subsidy system that would stifle innovation and eventually, do serious harm to the nation's phone network.

By keeping long-distance rates high enough to continue producing subsidies, they added, the bill encourages large corporations to build private phone systems that will siphon off revenues needed by local phone companies.

Those same arguments were cited by the Reagan administration, which on Wednesday said the bill "would be a major step backward for consumers."

Officials search prison for documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embarrassed State Department officials, investigating a bizarre security breach, are directing the search of a nearby prison for missing top-secret documents stored in a safe mistakenly delivered to the prison.

The documents, which included highly sensitive daily intelligence reports for Secretary of State George P. Shultz, were not missed until they were discovered late last month by prison officials. But some of the documents fell into the hands of prison inmates and investigators said they were still being recovered from the prison late Wednesday.

"It's possible, if not probable, that we do not" have all the documents, said a high-ranking State Department security official, who insisted on anonymity. "What we really are concerned about now is whether we have all the documents."

The papers were in a four-drawer cabinet safe mistakenly taken from a State Department office in early August along with unused filing cabinets that were to be refurbished by inmates at the Lorton prison in nearby northern Virginia.

The documents presumably included data supplied by the Central Intelligence Agency, U.S. embassies and other highly sensitive sources. But officials said there was no reliable record of all the documents and it was difficult, if not impossible, to determine all of what was in the safe.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., who viewed some of the documents Tuesday and arranged for their return, said, "There were classified documents, some extremely high, as high as any I have seen as a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee."

Another classified document was found in a search of the prison late Wednesday, and officials said the search would continue.

While officials were treating the incident as a bizarre mistake, they said "appropriate disciplinary action would be taken as the facts warrant."

Embarrassing in any circumstances, the incident was all the more embarrassing for the security-conscious Reagan administration, which uses lie detectors to try to plug leaks and is seeking to impose lifetime muzzling of government employees who have access to secret documents.

Officials privately acknowledged that one of the most incredible aspects of the incident was that the safe was not missed from the time it was picked up at the State Department in early August until it was discovered by a Lorton official on Oct. 25. The safe was held in a department warehouse for a month before it was sent to the prison.

No attempt was made to disguise the extremely sensitive nature of the documents or the damage to national security that would ensue if they fell into the wrong hands. But officials refused to discuss them in detail.

Shultz was with President Reagan on a visit to Japan today and did not immediately comment publicly.

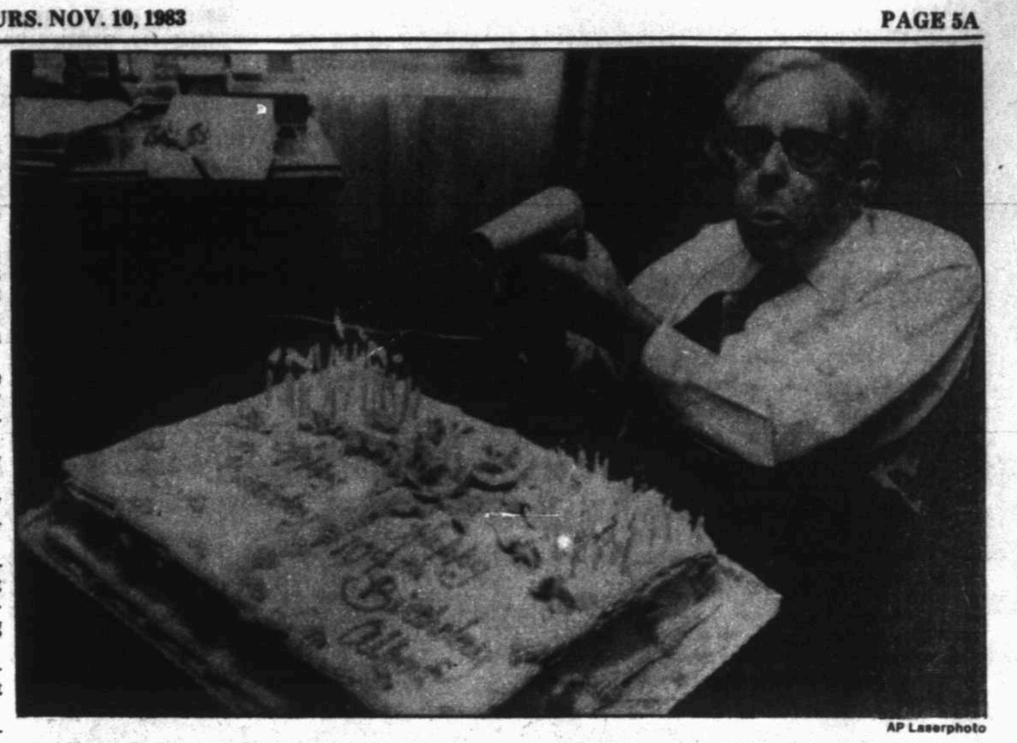

Officials at the city-owned prison were searching the facility and questioning the prison's 2,800 inmates about the documents.

Romberg said all of the documents were current and sensitive, dated from January through March of this year, and that they include daily intelligence reports given to Shultz. Occasionally red-faced in answering reporters' questions, Romberg acknowledged the department was embarrassed.

"It is a serious matter," Romberg said. "The fact of the matter is that those were sensitive documents that were in that safe."

He said some of them were stamped "top secret" and a damage assessment is under way to learn whether any of the nation's intelligence and diplomatic secrets were compromised.

But another official said "there is no indication that any of this has found its way to a foreign intelligence agent."

Wilson gets maximum sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — Former CIA agent Edwin Wilson faces 42 years in prison after his latest conviction — for plotting to kill two prosecutors, five witnesses and an inmate who told the FBI of the plan.

U.S. District Judge Edward Weinfeld, in giving Wilson the maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $75,000 fine Wednesday, rejected a defense plea that Wilson was "a product" of 20 years doing tasks ordered by the CIA. Wilson already had been sentenced to 17 years in prison for selling explosives to Libya.

None of the intended victims, seven of whom were involved in prosecuting Wilson in the explosives case, was killed.

Official makes no plans to move

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. George Deukmejian says he still has no plans to move into the never-used governor's mansion, even though the businessman who bought it for $1.52 million has dropped the monthly rent to $5,000.

Matt Franich, saying he "really wants the governor to live there," cut the rent Wednesday from the $24,000 he had been seeking for the 10-bedroom, 8-year-old estate. The state built the mansion during Ronald Reagan's administration, but it was never occupied and the Legislature ordered it sold in October to save money.

Deukmejian said the house, which Franich hoped to rent back to the state, needed more work to make it habitable than "the state or anyone else" would be willing to finance.

Honda will not recall cars

DETROIT (AP) — Honda Motor Co. has no plans to recall Civic or Accord cars despite reports of owners' complaints about rust, failing brakes and faulty seat belts and headlights, a spokeswoman says.

Toni Harrington said Wednesday that the company would respond by January to a report by the private Center for Auto Safety of more than 700 complaints about severe rust and unreliable head gaskets.

Meanwhile, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says it is analyzing 112 complaints of brake failures in 1979-82 Accords and Civics, 18 of seat belts that stick on 1979-81 models and seven of headlights that go out when the high beams are switched on. Spokesman Bob Boaz said he knew of no reports of accidents and that "we're still trying to determine whether there's a problem."

Protesters leave after meeting

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Twenty-six students who occupied a University of Michigan radiation laboratory for two days to protest defense research marched out chanting "We shut it down."

"I can't disagree with them," professor Thomas B. Senior, who runs the lab, said Wednesday as the protesters left after meeting with university President Harold T. Shapiro.

The students said Senior's research — developing sensors to judge lightning's effect on aircraft — had military implications. Senior, noting he bombards models of fighter-bombers with electromagnetic radiation, said the research could be applied to nuclear detonations but called the sit-in "damaging" to the students' cause.

Third drought warning issued

EWING TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Four months of sparse rainfall have prompted the third drought warning in four years for users of Delaware River water, and New York City must cut its consumption by 120 million gallons daily.

The warning Wednesday by the Delaware River Basin Commission is precautionary but triggers a reduction of water flow to New York City, the biggest user, said spokesman Dawes Thompson. Parts of upstate New York, western New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania and northern Delaware also draw from the river. New York officials are asking the public to cut water use voluntarily.

Tycoon's son pleads innocent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 20-year-old son of Texas tycoon Henry Harrison Kyle was freed on $100,000 bail after pleading innocent to charges of killing his father for fear of being disinherited.

Henry Harrison "Rick" Kyle Jr., whose father made an estimated $60 million in real estate and oil-drilling equipment, entered the plea Wednesday to one count of first-degree murder. The father, 60, was fatally shot July 22 at his mansion in Los Angeles' Bel-Air section.

Police said they found a substantially revised copy of the elder Kyle's will in his briefcase after the shooting, but the document was neither signed nor witnessed and details have not been released. An original will left Rick Kyle and a brother most of the estate.

Jet lands safely after warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Florida Boeing 737 landed without incident at National Airport after the pilot, heeding an oil pressure warning signal, shut down one of the engines.

Flight 118 landed safely Wednesday, although emergency fire equipment was dispatched as a precaution, said Jim Kastner of the Federal Aviation Administration. The flight had originated at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Displaying photographs of the mythical creature they encountered in Shenandoah National Park recently are Steve Evans, left, and Keith Hallam.

Unicorn roaming in park?

By SCOTT KRAFT

NEW YORK (AP) — Leonardo Da Vinci drew them. Pablo Picasso painted them. Julius Caesar once reported having seen one. And now Keith Hallam and Steve Evans say they have photographs of one.

The unicorn. So shy, so pure, so mythical. Like the tooth fairy, Santa Claus,and the Easter Bunny, it doesn't exist.

Or does it?

Keith Hallam and Steve Evans, friends who went hiking in Shenandoah National Park in Virginia last weekend, aren't so sure. They took five color photographs of an animal with a horn sprouting from its forehead and a mane and tail.

"An ugly-looking mess, pretty mangy," Hallam told The Washington Post. "If we hadn't had the pictures, we wouldn't have told anybody."

Park rangers are investigating the sighting, one of two reported over the weekend. But they suspect a prankster added a gold mane and horn to a horse and then turned it loose in the park, home to such animals as black bears, deer, rabbits and other small mammals.

"Parks are full of wonderful discoveries, so who knows?" Karen Wade, park spokeswoman, said Tuesday. "If I were a unicorn, I'd probably hide in a 197,000-acre preserve, too.

"We don't have any basis for believing that there's a real, live unicorn in Shenandoah National Park, but if we find one we'll put it on our list of rare and endangered species."

The unicorn of ancient legend was generally part horse, part stag and part lion, with its horn considered to have magical powers as an antidote to poison. The creature is found woven into tapestries, painted on shields and mentioned in ancient writings from the Bible to Aristotle.

"I've totally suspended judgment," Hallam said. "I don't believe in unicorns, though."

But Robert Vavra does.

"If you want them to exist, they exist," said Vavra, a photographer and animal behavioralist who has published 120 color photographs of the white horse with spiraling horn in his book, "Unicorns I Have Known."

Asked if the unicorns in his book are real, he would only say:

"The issue is not whether unicorns exist — or can be proven to exist — in the natural world. It is the right of beauty and imagination to exist."

VETERANS DAY

NOVEMBER 11, 1983

America's veterans are a valuable resource in time of war and in time of peace. These men and women who suffered on yesterday's battlefields are also leaders in today's battles with unemployment, inflation and crime. Today, America salutes all veterans and acknowledges their contributions to our American way of life. The uniform may be gone but the service goes on. The American Legion, too, salutes all America's veterans.

Schools across the nation look at arms race, prospect of nuclear war

By The Associated Press

Pupils in Paradise, Calif., are writing letters to Soviet children and schools in Oakland, Calif., are holding an essay contest on how to avoid nuclear war, as 2,000 schools in 25 states join a week-long look at the arms race and the horrors of nuclear war.

Ithaca, N.Y.'s, school board will discuss whether to make nuclear education a part of the curriculum. In Eau Claire, Wis., a shopping mall is displaying children's art with the theme, "Creating Our Future: A Work to Be Thankful For."

The "Week of Education," sponsored by a coalition led by the Union of Concerned Scientists, began this week in an expansion of the anti-nuclear teach-ins that have become a Veterans Day fixture on many college campuses since 1981.

Kathleen Gilroy, national coordinator of the effort, said the activities spread this year because of controversy over deploying new U.S.-built NATO missiles in Europe, and because of a highly publicized TV movie about how a small Midwestern city copes with nuclear attack.

Teach-ins were held on 150 college campuses in 1981 and on 450 campuses in 1982, according to Ms. Gilroy.

This year, she said, "We decided to broaden the number of participants and extend it to a week." She estimated more than 2,000 public and private schools, mostly high schools, would participate, along with 700 college campuses.

Many activities will focus on the movie "The Day After," to be broadcast Nov. 20 by ABC.

The TV film "affected the focus of our activities. We are very concerned about the impact of the movie. We think there must be appropriate followup discussion in the classroom," said Tony Wagner, executive director of Educators for Social Responsibility. The group, consisting mainly of teachers, helped sponsor the anti-nuclear week.

Among film-related activities, the Portland, Ore., school system plans to cable-cast a talk to teachers dealing with student reactions to the film after it appears, said Wagner.

Schools in Buffalo, N.Y., plan a panel discussion on the movie, and teachers in Oakland are being briefed in Oakland on how to help children cope with its scenes and message.

The Union of Concerned Scientists itself has been a subject of controversy. President Reagan and the American Federation of Teachers have in the past challenged the group's distribution of "classroom propaganda" through its anti-nuclear materials.

But Ms. Gilroy said organizers see their goal as providing "local groups with basic information to make informed decisions."

Materials being distributed by the scientists' union include information on the European missile basing controversy: its history, where various leaders stand, and basic facts about the missiles. It also discusses strategic systems like the Trident submarine missile launchers, and the cruise missiles.

War film could hurt students, educator says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of an organization that promotes classroom discussions about nuclear war says an upcoming television movie about atomic devastation could have a very destructive affect on young children.

But Tony Wagner, executive director of Educators for Social Responsibility, says the ABC-TV movie, "The Day After," may also settle once and for all the debate about whether teachers should raise the controversial topic with their students.

"As an educator and a parent, I think the potential damage that can be done to children by this film is immense," said Wagner, who has viewed the film that depicts the aftermath of a nuclear war with the Soviet Union. ABC will show it on Nov. 20.

Wagner's organization and five other peace groups have declared this a "Week of Education" on the theme of "The New Arms Race? Or New Ways of Thinking." The group estimates that schools in more than 2,000 communities will be holding seminars and other activities.

"We have spent a great deal of time preparing materials for the day after 'The Day After,'" said Wagner, who recommends children under 12 not watch the movie, and those 12 to 16 watch it only with adults. The television network also advises parental guidance.

"For parents, for teachers, what are you going to do Monday morning in your classroom at 9:30 when you look around and your kids seem very depressed and unresponsive?"

"We're trying to provide a context so students can discuss these issues and their concerns and fears," he added.

"ABC Television may have really settled the question once and for all whether children should be taught about these issues, because they're going to show that film and millions of kids are going to see it," Wagner said.

"Our view is that students must be taught to think critically about the crucial issues of our time, that controversy belongs in the classroom, that responsible education about the issues belongs in the classroom," said Wagner, 37.

Wagner said that with children in kindergarten-to-grade 4, "we don't think anything about nuclear war and nuclear weapons should be taught in classrooms at all."

But he added his group believes "you can teach students that age a great deal about how to understand conflicts, how to find alternative ways of resolving conflicts," whether they occur in a classroom, on a playground or in an international setting.

"And we also think it's very important to affirm students' concern for justice, concern for fairness. So there's a lot of important education that can go on at the elementary level without ever mentioning Hiroshima or Nagasaki."

Cheryl Guyett, the group's national program coordinator, said the threat of nuclear war has emerged as a theme in rock music, "and children as young as five years old know all the words to those songs...We are living in the nuclear age, and it's time to start encouraging discussions about it."

Former cop first black to serve as head of New York City's police force

NEW YORK (AP) — Benjamin Ward — cop, prison administrator and doctor of law — says he's honored to be "where one can tell the good guys from the bad guys" as the first black to serve as police commissioner for the city's 23,000 finest.

The 57-year-old Ward was appointed earlier this week by Mayor Ed Koch to head the police force in the nation' largest city. The honor came 40 years after he won a citywide essay contest and was appointed "police commissioner for a day."

A city police officer for 22 years, Ward said returning to lead his hometown department was "the highest honor I could be accorded."

When he left a job as head of the state Department of Correctional Services in 1978 to become chief of the city's Housing Authority police, he said, "It was time to return to the police field, where one can tell the good guys from the bad guys, at least with more certainty than in corrections."

"My whole background is police," Ward said as Koch announced the appointment. "It's just fortuitous that I happen to be black...It's a funny thing about the police department. They really see themselves as all blue."

"I think it's his best appointment to date," said City Councilman Frederick E. Samuel, a black Democrat from Harlem, as he congratulated Koch and Ward.

"Police officers of this city are not going to be concerned about his race (but) about how he handles the problems they have, the sensitivity that he demonstrates to their needs and safety," said Phil Caruso, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

During three years as state corrections chief, Ward weathered an outbreak of inmate unrest at the Attica state prison and was viewed as flexible by the Fortune Society, the ex-convicts' organization.

Guards, however, accused Ward of being insensitive to their problems and too lenient toward prisoners.

The same accusations were aimed at him during his four years as city correction commmissioner, when Phil Seelig, president of the 3,500-member Correction Officers' Benevolent Association, blamed him for assaults on guards and "inhumane overtime demands."

Ward leaves in the midst of a court-ordered release of inmates from crowded jails, as prison populations have increased by 50 percent.

One of 11 children, Ward was born in Brooklyn on Aug. 10, 1926, and attended the borough's public schools and the Brooklyn High School of Automotive Trades.

He served with the Army in Europe from 1944 to 1946, then returned to jobs as an auto mechanic, warehouseman and sanitationman before joining the police in 1951.

While advancing through police ranks, he also received a bachelor's degree and two law degrees from Brooklyn College.

He initiated the block watchers program, which enlisted doormen and other citizens who observed the streets to serve as "eyes" for the police.

Safety comes first

Deer season opens in most Texas counties Saturday and a large number of hunters from Midland and other Permian Basin communities will join thousands of other sportsmen throughout the state in the fields and forests of the state trying to bag that big buck.

For those who get enjoyment from the sport, it's a great outlet for energy. It also can be extremely dangerous, evidenced by the fact that in the 1982 hunting season 97 hunting accidents occurred and 23 fatal hunting accidents occurred, according to statistics compiled by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission.

Those statistics reveal some sobering facts, not the least of which is that 59 percent of the accidents logged last year involved hunters between the ages of nine and 29 — "young" hunters in the commission's view.

Of those mishaps, 33 were what the commission calls "safety violations." That category involves such occurrences as hunters putting weapons into or taking them out of vehicles. In eight of those 33 accidents, hunters inflicted wounds on themselves.

In another 32 of the 97 accidents, "hunter judgment" was the culprit, says commission analysts. That involves hunters swinging their weapons on game and, unfortunately, mistaking other hunters for their quarry.

The skill and aptitude of hunters came into question in the other 32 of last year's accidents, events such as hunters falling in the field or getting the trigger of their weapon caught on objects they were passing.

That's regrettable because every hunting accident is avoidable. The key to avoiding the accidents, though, rests with individual hunters. Since it was instituted in 1972, 110,000 sportsmen have been certified as safe hunters after completing the commission's hunter safety program. Commission spokesmen note proudly that no accidents have resulted which involved graduates of the hunting safety course.

Meanwhile, the commission's game specialists predict hunters will have an average white-tail deer season or slightly better; mule deer hunters will have less chance, with the season for that species expected to yield a little less than average results. Overall, they note, Texas continues to have an overpopulation of deer herds.

It should be a good deer season for sportsmen. It will be particularly good if accidents are kept to a minimum. As the commission has said in the past, hunter safety is no accident.

Argentina's future

The election of Raul Alfonsin as Argentina's new president is a hopeful sign that democracy can still take root in that troubled nation.

Despite Argentina's severe economic problems and the fact that last weekend's national elections followed a decade of political turmoil and violence, voting was peaceful. And Alfonsin's overwhelming victory over Peronist Party candidate Italo Luder was a sign that more Argentines want political moderation than some political observers knew.

Alfonsin's victory was a stunning defeat for the Peronists who have dominated Argentine politics since the party was founded in 1945 by Gen. Juan Domingo Peron. The key to Peronism's appeal was not just the charisma of Peron but also his willingness to give the nation's large and powerful labor unions almost anything that they wanted — usually big wage increases. While those policies guaranteed political success, they also paved the way for the financial debacle now facing Argentina. Alfonsin must try to control runaway inflation, currently estimated at more than 900 percent a year, and also pay off a foreign debt of more than $40 billion without bankrupting the nation.

The new president also must firmly reassert civilian control over Argentina's military establishment, which has ruled the country through a series of juntas for the last seven years. It will help that Argentina's generals and admirals are discredited in the aftermath of their disastrous defeat by Great Britain in last year's war over the Falkland Islands. But they are also fearful of widespread civilian demands that someone answer for the death or disappearance of several thousand persons during the military's years in power. Alfonsin's most sensitive challenge will be trying to bring military and police personnel to justice despite the cynical amnesty that the last military junta handed down when it became clear that a return to civilian government was inevitable.

The greatest danger to Alfonsin's new government is the possibility that disgruntled Peronists might join with the military to overthrow him if he moves too fast against the generals, and not fast enough for the labor unions. This is where the United States and the international banks — both with stakes in a stable, democratic Argentina — can be of assistance to Alfonsin.

Despite domestic political pressure to repudiate Argentina's foreign debt, Alfonsin has pledged to repay it. But he could use some leeway — more time to stretch out the repayments, and some easing of the austerity measures required by the International Monetary Fund. Those are reasonable requests, especially if they allow Alfonsin to grant minimal wage concessions to the labor unions, concessions that could help keep the Peronists on the side of civilian rule and democracy.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

DeLorean 'mystery tape' fills gap

WASHINGTON — There is a curious gap in the telephone calls that federal agents recorded to make their case against automaker John Z. DeLorean. I have a tape of what may be the missing telephone conversation.

Jack Anderson

DeLorean is now facing trial on criminal dope-dealing charges. He allegedly participated in a cocaine transaction to raise capital, which he desperately needed to save his foundering auto company in Northern Ireland.

But he insists he was pushed into the deal, then tried to back out of it but was threatened by the government's chief informer, James Hoffman. The mystery tape that was delivered to me, if it is authentic, would support DeLorean's story.

It is a recording of a telephone conversation supposedly between Hoffman and DeLorean on Sept. 15, 1982. A voice alleged to be Hoffman's is heard threatening to smash the head of DeLorean's 5-year-old daughter unless the automaker agrees to the cocaine scheme.

I had the tape checked by experts, who agree it is almost certainly authentic. But it was impossible to make a voice print because of the background noises. I am left, therefore, with no scientific evidence to back up the opinion of the experts.

But there is one more jigsaw piece I can add to the puzzle. How did the mystery tape fit into the other conversations that the government had secretly recorded? The threatening telephone call not only fits into the sequence but fills a strange gap. Here's the sequence:

Sept. 4, 1982: In a videotaped conversation, Hoffman is the first to bring up the subject of dope. He makes a reference to "kilos" and a projected profit plan. He also assures DeLorean he can pull out of the deal.

Sept. 15, 1982: DeLorean calls a banker, known to him as James Benedict, who had offered a $10 million loan to finance the dope transaction. In fact, Benedict was an undercover government agent. DeLorean tries to back out of the deal. The agent complains angrily: "Well, you really put me in a bad spot ... you just screwed up a helluva deal."

Later the same day: Hoffman places a call to DeLorean, who repeats his desire to pull out of the cocaine deal. Hoffman tries to persuade him to stay in.

Still later that day: At this time, the mystery call allegedly was made. Hoffman supposedly gets tough, threatening the life of DeLorean's daughter if he tries to renege on the cocaine deal.

Sept. 16, 1982: In the next recorded call, Benedict tells DeLorean that he has talked to Hoffman. Then Benedict quotes Hoffman as saying "he has discussed some matters with you that might possibly change."

Here's the crunch: On Sept. 15, DeLorean wanted to pull out. On Sept. 16, he agreed to stay in. What caused the change? The government's tapes give no clue. The mystery tape, however, would explain why DeLorean changed his mind.

The auto magnate has been kept from the media by his attorneys, but my associates Indy Badhwar and Tony Capaccio got through to him. He described several conversations with Hoffman including the one of Sept. 15:

"He made a lot of threats," DeLorean said. "He said that it was going to be very bloody ... He said that he would send my daughter's head to me in a shopping bag ... I was paralyzed after that happened .... My concern was not my life, but my family."

DeLorean then explained why he had gone ahead with the transaction. "I decided that there's no such thing as being a protected witness when you're a guy like me. What you've got to do is just keep acting like you're trying, but you can't do it ... You try to bore them into leaving you alone, instead of confronting them, which is what position I got into after the threat."

Prosecutors claim that all of Hoffman's calls to DeLorean were taped, and copies were turned over to the defense. But telephone toll records show at least 16 phone calls from Hoffman to DeLorean were not recorded.

BOONDOGGLE OF THE WEEK: In a pale imitation of Flip Wilson's "the devil made me do it" line, Adm. James Watkins, the chief of naval operations, has complained about my disclosure of the Navy's last-minute, end-of-the-fiscal-year purchase of 4,800 softballs for the Norfolk Naval Base. I suggested that the Navy just didn't want to turn money back to the Treasury, so bought softballs to use up unspent funds.

Here's the explanation that the admiral gave Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., for the softball boondoggle:

"The Special Services Department at Naval Base, Norfolk, sponsors over 200 softball teams for all activities in the Norfolk area. These teams play in leagues sanctioned by the American Softball Association, whose rules specify that new softballs must be used in each game in league play ... In addition, for the 1983 season, ASA rules specified a new standard for balls used in league play. This standard was not met by softballs ... in the existing stock."

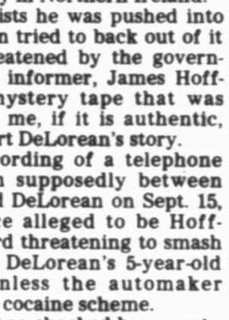

Uh huh.

Jack Anderson writes for United Feature Syndicate.

GEORGE F. WILL

'Sigmund Freud, call Damascus'

WASHINGTON — A tape of a Syrian television broadcast, which I unwisely played while having breakfast in my sun-room, shows Syrian ceremonies last month commemorating the tenth anniversary of the Yom Kippur war. Assorted civilian and military officials attended. There is martial music on the tape, but no narration. None is needed.

George F. Will

Girls in uniform stand in a row holding live snakes. Suddenly the girls begin killing the snakes by biting through the snakes' heads. Snakes are sinewy and the biting is not easy and the girls, although eager, do not seem to enjoy this. The audience of older men does. Sigmund Freud, call Damascus.

Next, young soldiers tumble out of moving trucks, pounce upon puppies and stab them repeatedly. One soldier seems to drink a puppy's blood, perhaps symbolizing the drinking of an enemy's blood, as the PLO gunman did in Cairo in 1971 after shooting Jordan's prime minister.

Few Americans have seen any of the Syrian tape (a portion of which was shown at an early morning hour by NBC). Networks should not invariably show such stuff. They certainly should not while many children are awake. But this glimpse of Syrian reality would be a useful antidote to a liberal society's sentimental belief in the efficacy of split-the-difference negotiations in places like the Middle East. It would drive another stake through the heart of the notion that the world is run by people "just like us" and that the path to peace is through "understanding" them. It would dash cold water on the recurrent nonsense about Israel being an impediment to peace because it is insufficiently forthcoming in dealing with neighbors like Syria.

Long after Granada is just a pleasant memory, Syria will be threatening vital American interests, including Israel's security and a region's stability. Hence Americans must disenthrall themselves. The conjunction of the attack on the Marines in Beirut and the Grenadian invasion could mean that the signal sent by the invasion soon will not be seen as an unambiguous signal of strength.

In Beirut, America suffered a serious military defeat, the significance of which is growing as the weeks pass without an American response. Against the background of Beirut events, the Granada operation may be construed as evidence that the United States is just a regional power, prepared to act vigorously only in its front yard.

Now, the perception of the United States as a regional power would be an improvement over the perception of U.S. weakness that spread during the late 1970s. And it might even serve some U.S. interests if Nicaragua were to perceive the United States as ready to act only in this region. But that perception would be disastrous elsewhere, and it is encouraged by the failure of the United States to respond to the attack on the Marines.

Gen. John W. Vessey, Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says "justice" will be administered to "those who directed" the attack. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker says there may be retaliation if the persons responsible can be identified "with precision and exactness."

What is this, the Warren Court conducting foreign policy? Who will read the suspects their Miranda rights? This is the scrupulosity and individualism of our criminal justice system misapplied to power relations between collectives — between nations. It would be proper and cathartic to administer retribution to the individuals directly involved in the attack. But catharsis should not be a controlling aim of policy, and great nations are not obsessed with meting out justice to persons who are instruments of other nation's interests.

Israeli aircraft rose on retaliation raids against some of Syria's clients almost before the dust had settled at the site of the attack on Israelis. The aircraft rose before Israel found out who drove or loaded the truck or bought the explosives, because all that is beside the point. The point is that the attack on the Israelis, like the attack on the Marines, serves Syria's interests; such attacks probably could not have occurred without the knowledge of Syria, which controls the road by which the truck had to approach the attack sites; Syrian occupation of Lebanon is a necessary precondition for such attacks.

Syrian President Assad today resembles Michael Corleone at the moment in "The Godfather" when Michael decides to hit all his rivals simultaneously. Assad is striking at the multinational force, Israel, the Lebanese government and the portion of the PLO that is not entirely subservient to Syria. The United States and Israel must make Assad an offer he can't refuse.

George Will writes for the Washington Post Co.

ART BUCHWALD

Endorsement proving disastrous

The Newspaper Guild has endorsed Fritz Mondale as its presidential candidate. Actually, the leaders of the Newspaper Guild endorsed him — the membership was not consulted. Many members of the guild are very angry that their leaders took a position in the presidential campaign.

Art Buchwald

I thought there would be jubilation in the Mondale camp when the Newspaper Guild gave the nod to their man. But it was just the opposite.

"This is an absolute disaster," said one of Mondale's people. "We've been blindsided."

"How can you say that? The Newspaper Guild is a powerful union and its members control much of the news fit to print. You should be thrilled they came out for your boy so early."

"The members didn't come out for our boy — the guild officers came out for him, and the rank and file are mad as hell. Do you know what is going to happen? The members will clobber Mondale just to prove they haven't gone in the tank."

"I didn't think of that. You don't believe they would purposely slant their stories against him, just to assert their independence?"

"They could do something worse — ignore him. And if they do write about him they'll be harder on Mondale than anybody else. If they are not, their editors will think they're following the Newspaper Guild party line."

"I think you're right," I said. "I frankly don't believe a Newspaper Guild should support any presidential candidate. After all, what can a president do for the press, anyway? The worst candidates have given us our best stories, and the best ones haven't given us any stories at all. Why do you think the guild officers stuck their necks out?"

The Mondale man said, "We suspect someone from the other side was behind it."

"When you say the other side are you talking about Mondale's Democratic rivals or the Republicans?"

"In a presidential primary everybody is on the other side."

"Perhaps you're overreacting."

The Mondale aide said, "The last time the Newspaper Guild supported a presidential candidate was in 1972 when they came out for McGovern. Look what happened to him."

"I forgot McGovern. Funny enough after they endorsed him, McGovern complained he never got a decent story in the papers again."

"It isn't funny. The same thing could happen to Mondale."

"I guess your best bet would be to repudiate the guild endorsement. After all, you don't have to take every political blessing that comes along."

"It may be too late. We should have turned it down when it was first offered to us. Now it's going to be hard to get the rank-and-file guild members to stop leaning over backwards to show they don't support Fritz."

"I notice where many guild members have already notified their leaders that they don't support Mondale. Isn't this a good sign?" I asked.

"Yeh, but those reporters will go even farther out of their way to show they mean it. No matter which way they go now, it's a no-win situation for us."

"There must be some way you can get a fair shake from the newspaper people, in spite of the fact they endorsed you."

"Any ideas?"

"How about this one? Why doesn't Mondale announce 'If I am elected president, I will let the press go to Grenada'?"

NED'S IS DELIGHTFULLY DIFFERENT

For those who are looking for an unique and exciting place to eat lunch or dinner, Ned's, in downtown Midland is the place you are looking for. Ned's has been serving the Midland public with delicious deli-type sandwiches for the past 7 months.
But Ned's is definitely not a new sandwich shop just trying out their recipes.

Ned's of Midland is patterned after the original Ned's in Alberquerque, which has been a favorite for over 20 years. The staff at the original Ned's in Albequerque hand-trained the staff at Midland Ned's with their years of trial and error already behind. All recipes used at Ned's were developed over the past 20 years through customer suggestions, and the trial and error process. The result is a wonderful assortment of fine deli sandwiches, suited to the taste of West Texans. Ned's also offers a peaceful, relaxing atmosphere that really adds to the enjoyment of your meal.

Specials are abundant at Ned's. For example, Sports Specials. If you visit Ned's on Monday night, you can take advantage of the Monday Night Football Special. This consists of various drink specials, hot dogs, and delicious green chili stew. And as you enjoy your meal, enjoy the football game as it is being shown on tv at Ned's. This sports special also applies for college football on Saturdays. There are a variety of other Fall soup and sandwich specials. Stop by Ned's for more information on Fall specials. Fall happy hour is from 4-7, with free appetizers.

Lunch is served at Ned's from 11-3, Monday through Saturday. There are different drink specials at lunch, and daily sandwich specials as well. Ask for the special of the day when you visit Ned's. Ned's does serve specialty drinks as well.
Ned's location may be a little bothersome to get to, but it is well worth the small trouble. They are located in the basement of the Building of the Southwest, Texas and Big Spring Streets in Midland, This was once a magnificent stateroom which was a favorite Midland watering hole. Ned's gave this stateroom a facelift and a new lease on life. You owe it to yourself to try Ned's. You won't be sorry you did.

If you have never been to Ned's, you just don't know what you are missing. So come on down to Ned's this evening, or even for lunch tomorrow. Discover the pleasant atmosphere and the magical charm at Ned's. Dine on delicious specialty sandwiches which are even better than homemade. See what years of trial and error, and recipe development can mean to you. And look for a new Ned's to open later this year in Dellwood Mall. One trip is all it takes. Visit Ned's of Midland tonight and see what they have to offer.

Jews observe 'Crystal Night'

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — West German Jews held memorial services across the country to mark the 45th anniversary of "Crystal Night," when Nazi thugs smashed windows and burned synagogues in a murderous rampage that launched the Holocaust.

The services Wednesday night at synagogues in the 70 Jewish communities eulogized hundreds of victims. There were lectures about the pogrom at museums and youth centers.

"Crystal Night" refers to the smashed window glass that littered city streets after Nazi Party members and troops raided Jewish shops, synagogues and homes on the night of Nov. 9-10, 1938.

Ninety-one people were murdered, 7,500 businesses destroyed and dozens of synagogues burned in an orgy of violence triggered by a speech by Nazi Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels.

Goebbels urged the pogrom in retaliation for a Jewish man's assassination of a German diplomat in Paris. It marked the start of destruction of German Jews who had resisted Nazi pressure to emigrate.

Some 500,000 Jews lived in Germany before the Third Reich, but only 30,000 remain today — many of them postwar immigrants from Eastern Europe.

Authorities break up protest

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Mounted police and anti-riot forces used clubs and the sides of saber blades to break up a demonstration by thousands of union members.

The demonstration Wednesday night was organized by the outlawed Interunion Plenum of Workers, a leftist-dominated federation of about 100 unions. No injuries were reported, but witnesses said some demonstrators were arrested.

The federation is seeking restoration of civil liberties curtailed by the 10-year-old military regime. The rallies coincided with a 10-minute work stoppage during each shift at most factories and banks.

The police calvary units and riot squads broke up a crowd of about 2,000 protesters chanting anti-government slogans outside the city fire department headquarters. About 500 protesters rallied four blocks away and chanted "The military dictatorship is going to fall!" for about 20 minutes before being dispersed.

The government has promised elections in November 1984 and the transfer of power to elected authorities in 1985.

President cancels campaign rally

LIMA, Peru (AP) — President Fernando Belaunde Terry's party has canceled a final campaign rally scheduled for today, blaming an upsurge of guerrilla violence.

Popular Action secretary Ricardo Burga Velasco said Wednesday the rally was called off "for safety of party members."

A Popular Action spokesman, who declined to be identified, said earlier the governing party had received several anonymous telephone threats.

Church, government meet in Nicaragua; Children find nine Salvadorans slain

By CHRIS ANGELO
Associated Press Writer

Nicaragua's Roman Catholic bishops and the leftist Sandinista junta agreed during a meeting on tense church-state relations that the country should have an "autonomous, nonaligned" government.

The bishops and junta coordinator Daniel Ortega issued separate but similar statements after the meeting in Managua, and Ortega said the discussion dealt with problems "caused by political attitudes on both sides." The bishops have blamed pro-government mobs for recent attacks on clergymen and churches.

In El Salvador, a group of schoolchildren Wednesday found the strangled bodies of nine people, including two pregnant women, kidnapped from a cooperative farm.

U.S. special envoy Richard Stone arrived in Mexico City from Caracas, Venezuela, and met with Mexican Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda. Stone has been traveling throughout Latin America to discuss possible diplomatic solutions to conflicts in Central America.

MONSIGNOR PABLE ANTONIO, president of a Nicaraguan bishops' conference, said after the 2½-hour meeting Wednesday, "We agreed with the governing junta that Nicaragua should be autonomous, non-aligned and that the people should be the subject of the revolution, not the object of the revolution."

The three-man ruling junta called the meeting after the bishops protested the expulsion last week of two foreign priests and attacks by Sandinista mobs who beat up a bishop and a priest and forced the closure of several churches on Oct. 30.

The mobs were reacting to a bishops' statement opposing a new military draft law, which requires the registration for conscription of about 200,000 people by Jan. 1.

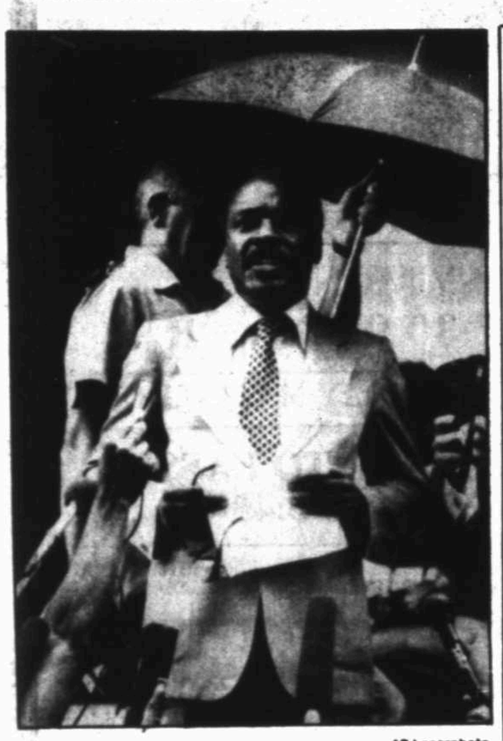

THE BISHOPS, WHO HAVE lobbied for negotiations between the junta and rebels fighting the government, said the law smacks of totalitarianism. The junta said the registration is needed because of what it says is an imminent U.S.-backed invasion. It expelled the two priests for criticizing the law.

Meanwhile, Eden Pastora and Alfonso Robelo, leaders of one of the rebel groups fighting the Sandinista government, said in New York on Wednesday that President Reagan would be making his "worst mistake" if he ordered a U.S. invasion of Nicaragua.

Pastora is military leader of the Costa Rica-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance and Robelo is its political leader. They were in the United States to raise support for their group, but denied reports that their group receives assistance from the CIA, which is known to support another rebel group, the Honduras-based Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

In El Salvador, schoolchildren cutting firewood Wednesday near Zaragoza, 12 miles south of the capital, found the bodies of nine people in burlap bags. Officials said the victims, who were strangled, included two pregnant women.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the killings, which followed a pattern used by rightist death squads.

Grenada Gov. Gen. Sir Paul Scoon announces to members of the press in St. George's Wednesday the names of the nine-member council that will govern Grenada until elections are held.

Snipers fire at U.S. soldiers

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — A group of snipers fired at U.S. soldiers from a cliff and then eluded helicopter and ground search teams who swept through the hills in southeast Grenada, the Army says.

The sniping attack, the first fighting reported in four days, occurred Wednesday, a few hours before nine Grenadians were appointed to run the island until a government is elected.

Army spokesman Maj. Douglas Frey said U.S. soldiers were manning a roadblock when five or six Cubans or Grenadians fired on them from a cliff. He said the soldiers were not hit and fired back.

U.S. troops landed on Grenada on Oct. 25 and seized control of the island from a Marxist military junta which had taken power the week before from Maurice Bishop, the pro-Cuban prime minister who killed during the coup.

In Washington, the chiefs of the armed services said Wednesday they hope to remove U.S. troops from Grenada in two or three weeks.

Sir Paul Scoon, the island's governor general, appointed an advisory council of nine Grenadians to serve as a provisional government. He said none of the appointees had known political views or business ties which could cause "a conflict of interests and far-reaching embarrassment."

Scoon said a major task of the provisional government will be preparing for elections. No date for the voting has been set.

Several of the council members have been living abroad.

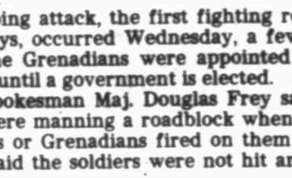

The chairman is Alister McIntyre, deputy secretary-general of the United Nations and head of the U.N. Council on Trade and Development. Nicholas Brathwaite, an educator, will act as chairman until McIntyre is given leave from his U.N. duties.

Brathwaite was given the portfolio of health, education, youth and community development.

A college professor, Patrick Emmanuel, will head foreign affairs.

In charge of island development will be Arnold M. Cruickshank, a financial expert formerly with the Caribbean Development Bank.

The permanent secretary of Jamaica's civil service, Allen Kirton, was put in charge of Grenada's civil service, and a retired school headmaster, Christopher Williams, was named a member without portfolio.

Lee's Garnett

Isaac first 1,000-yard rusher

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee fullback Isaac Garnett has been so successful on Friday nights that he is moving his bowling game to Saturday afternoon at Lubbock's Jones Stadium. The next clashing of pins to be heard will really be the cries of Amarillo High's defensive unit.

Actually, Garnett doesn't bowl. He plays football for the Lee Rebels. In fact, he has played that position better than any student who has ever walked the halls at Robert E. Lee High.

Garnett is the first Rebel back to ever crash the 1,000-yard barrier in the school's history. And he didn't just break the 1,000-yard mark, he shattered it with 1,397 yards in 10 games. If Lee does well in the playoffs, Garnett could conceivably bust the 2,000-yard barrier.

HE IS averaging almost 140 yards per outing and gains almost seven yards every time he touches the ball. He also knows where the goal line is. Garnett has scored 17 touchdowns this season for 102 points. That's 10.2 points per game, and since the Lee defensive unit has given up only 7.2 points per game this year, Garnett alone makes Lee a winner.

What is strange is the fact that Garnett runs from Lee's no frills Wishbone attack. You know he's coming at you.

"You know what Lee is going to do on offense. They are going to run Garnett right at you, but stopping him is something no one has done yet," said Odessa Permian coach John Wilkins. "I think he is a great back."

Odessa High coach Jerry Millsapps said, "Garnett is just a man among boys. You won't see a back any stronger than he is."

And now Lee puts its offensive hopes on the line in bi-district action at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock's Jones Stadium against Amarillo High. Garnett will again be the center of attention.

BUT CENTER stage is not something Garnett seeks. His praise, and for good reason, goes elsewhere.

"Yeah, I know that I have gained more yards than anyone at Lee, but I'm not that great a back. No way," says Garnett. "This is just the first year we've had a line like we have. That line is so aggressive that there is always a hole. I just run through them. And if I didn't do it, then Walter (Jones) and Tyrone (Thurman) would."

Garnett makes a good point. Lee's offensive line has been awesome this season. If you look at some of the Lee game films, Lee line coach David Browning could point out some holes that are unbelieveable.

Center Allen Bell (225) is a major key. Bell has been rock-hard in the Lee center. Guards Coy Stewart (240) and Devoe McMillen (210) are mobile and quick with great size. Tackle Tracey Sherman (210) has power while tackle John Bick (180) is the best tackle per pound in District 4-5A, according to Browning.

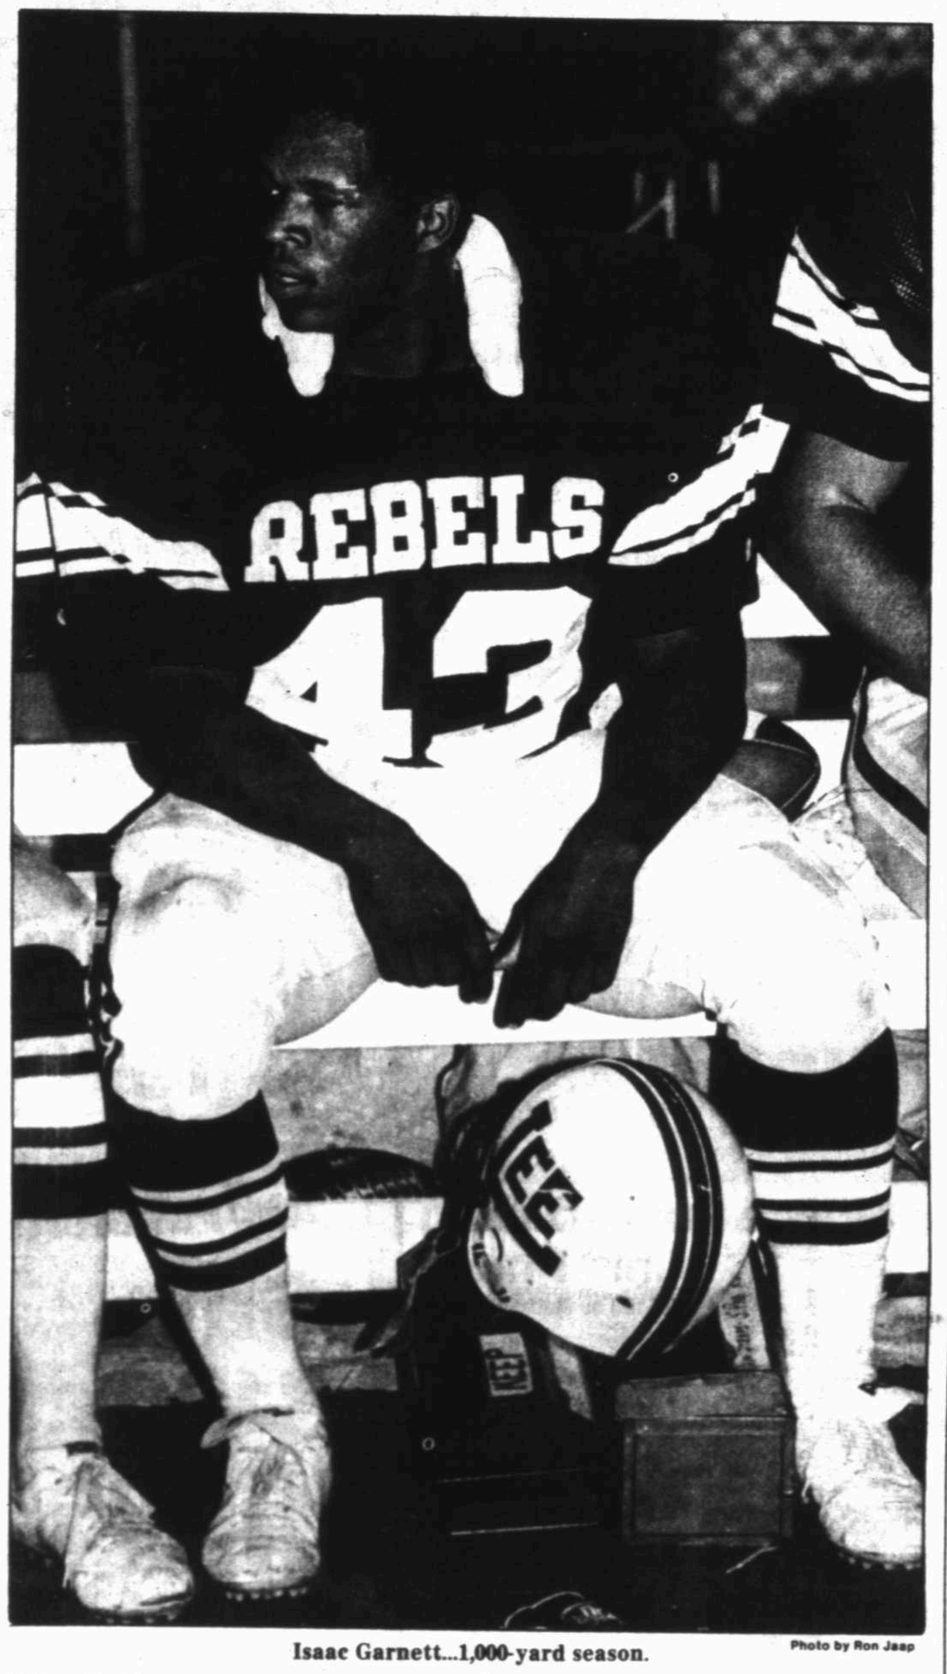

"I think we've done a good job this year," says Bell. "I just hope we get the opportunity to open a lot more holes before this season is over."

Amarillo High coach Larry Dipple also sees Lee's line as a big key. "To run the wishbone, you have to have the great fullback and Garnett fills that bill. But Lee probably has the best offensive line in high school football. That's the key."

Stewart, who never played football until he was a sophomore at Lee, grew up in England playing rugby. But he likes his experience in the offensive line. "Football is much more of a team game than rugby and I like that. Our line plays like a team and I've really enjoyed playing here," said Stewart, who is also an honor student.

IT'S EASY to see that Garnett is not a one-man show in the Lee scheme of things. But the fact that he is an exceptional back should not go unnoticed. How many fullbacks can outrun secondary backs on a regular basis? Against Big Spring, he raced 93 yards untouched for a touchdown. Of course, his line opened up a hole wide enough to cross the Grand Canyon, but Garnett's speed is almost unbelieveable for a kid who stands 6-feet-0 and weighs 215 pounds.

"Of course, Isaac is a great running back. He has power and speed, all the things you need to be a good running back," says Lee coach Spike Dykes. "But the important thing is that Isaac is a great individual. He's one of the most coachable people I've ever been around. You don't run across one like him very often, and when you do, you better realize when you're working with something special. This team has special people on it and that's why this team has been a joy to coach."

Dykes, as all high school coaches, would prefer that media representatives not question his players about college prospects during the season. However, it is widely known that Garnett will be highy recruited by major colleges when the playoffs end.

But right now, Saturday's 1:30 p.m. date with the Sandies is the No. 1 concern for all involved. Garnett is no different.

"Last year we had a chance to be in the playoffs and didn't make it. That hurt and I didn't forget that," Garnett said. "My goal all three years has been to go all the way and now we have that chance.

"This team has great potential and I think we can win the whole thing. That's the way we are approaching this thing. I think everyone feels we can do it."

ASKED IF the Rebels could avoid slipping like they did in a 23-21 loss to lowly Abilene Cooper, Garnett replied, "We may get beat by someone, but that situation like Cooper won't happen again. Now we are in a do or die situation every week and we have responded to that kind of challenge all year. We beat Permian when we had to and we beat Midland High when we had to. And we have to win them all from here on out."

Grid playoffs arrive in WT

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

State playoff action gets underway this weekend with three area teams involved.

District 7-A winner Greenwood, and second place finishers Crane (district 6-AAA) and McCamey (8-AA) all begin playoff forays Friday.

Only three other area teams are in action in regular season games. Rankin hosts Fort Davis and Lamesa visits Andrews to wrap up their respective regular slates.

Greenwood begins post-season competition at 7:30 Friday in Stanton. The Rangers are facing Klondike, a 5-5 team that finished second in the 7-A North Zone.

"They're a good football team or they wouldn't be where they are," said Greenwood coach Joe Longley. Longley's team is on a roll, and they have an eight-game winning streak going. Leading the Rangers has been a ground-based attack. Fullback Roger Smith has nearly 1,500 yards this year. Todd Foris, however is the speediest Ranger at tailback and he is out for the Klondike game. Foris has an ailing right knee.

"It's not the best of news," said Longley, "But Bill Franks came in last week and had 110 yards. He doesn't hurt us a bit."

CRANE'S GOLDEN Cranes have had a Cinderella unbeaten' year at 9-0-1, but a major obstacle is in the way of the Crane championship drive.

Friday, Crane hosts another unbeaten, 10-0 Kermit. The game should be a classic battle of strength against strength. Crane's power has stemmed from the explosive rushing force of Jim and Joe Vasquez, and Kermit has been one of the areas' best defensive teams.

Kermit has surrendered only 27 points all season. The Cranes realize that it will be difficult to score their average of 23.4 per game. Kermit is lead by defensive back Mike Muniz, who has nine interceptions.

The Cranes' combo of Vasquez and Vasquez has produced over 2,000 yards of offense and over 20 TD's. The confrontation should be a hot one.

THE AREA'S other playoff date pits McCamey against 7-AA champion Marfa Friday night in Alpine. The Badgers have grown into a consisitent offensive unit, but face a stingy Shortorn defense Friday. Badger coach Buster Leaf, in his first year at McCamey, lead the team to a 7-3 record. Leaf's option offense is geared by quarterback Ray Zarate, an All-District choice last year and a likely repeater. The Badger attack has rolled for 261 points in ten games, and that includes one game in which McCamey couldn't score.

Marfa, however, has a strong defense that has stopped eight of ten opponents.

Game time in Alpine is 7:30.

Other area games for week eleven:

Fort Davis (3-5, 2-3) at Rankin (2-7, 2-4): This game is not likely to be a sellout. The only shred of reason for this game as far as the standings go is to see who finishes next-to-next-to-last. District 6-A champion Wink built its' lofty reputation on the likes of Rankin and Fort Davis, a fact that will explain Wink's early departure from the state playoffs.

Lamesa (2-7, 1-5) at Andrews (5-3-1, 2-3-1): The Mustangs already blasted Lamesa once this year, 39-0 at Lamesa. But now the teams meet again, and under very different circumstances. Lamesa knew they were at least a year from contention, and have played accordingly. Lamesa has been greatly improved, but 2-7 is realistically on schedule.

Andrews has a disputed record stemming from an ineligible player discovered early in the year. The Mustangs are 5-3-1 on the field, 4-4-1 by law. Andrews once was a 2-AAAA contender, but the Mustangs stumbled from the gate and began 0-2. That was the death stroke, and the Mustangs are playing now only for pride.

Chap Classic gets underway

The Chaparral Classic discards the old dance-around-the-Maypole format of the past and introduces throat-cutting tournament play as the annual three-day tournament gets underway today at the Langford Chaparral Center.

Four games are scheduled with Odessa College tipping off hostilities against McLennan County Community College at 3 p.m. In the second game, it will be Howard College against Barton County from Great Bend, Kan.

Midland College plays St. Philip's College of San Antonio at 7 p.m. and Garden City, Kan., meets Ranger in the 9 p.m. contest.

On Friday, consolation round games are scheduled for 3 and 5 p.m. and semifinals will be played at 7 and 9 p.m.

In the Classic days, Midland College, OC and Howard would have avoided one another like the plague while playing a round-robin against the non-Western Junior College Conference teams in the tournament. The tournament winner would be decided by who did what against whom.

This year, there will be one survivor after Saturday night's final and it will be the only team to progress through the brackets undefeated.

OC opened its season with a 20-point win over Cisco Junior College and a 60-point win over Sul Ross. MC defeated Cisco Monday by 12 in its opener.

Mike Mitchell, who guided Western Texas College to a national title in 1977, is back in the league, this time at Howard College, where he is expected to produce another formidable WJCC entry.

McLennan is a perennial contender for Region V honors and, in fact, knocked Midland out in the championship game in 1980 at Brownwood.

Barton County and Garden City are traditionally strong in Kansas JC circles.

The tournament concludes Saturday with the seventh place game at 1, the fifth place game at 3, the third place game at 5 and the championship tilt at 7 p.m.

Spud big hit in Carolina

North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano has decided to start Spud Webb for the NCAA national champions when the Wolfpack opens the season against Houston in the Nov. 19 Hall of Fame game at Springfield, Mass.

If he didn't he'd be risking a lynching. A crowd of 6,500 went wild everytime Spud touched the ball in an intra-squad scrimmage at Raleigh Sunday night...

Coaches' Musical Chairs: Emory Bellard from Mississippi State to Rice...Lou Holtz from Arkansas to Notre Dame...Barry Switzer from Oklahoma to the Houston Oilers...Danny Ford from Clemson to LSU. Rumors or wishful thinking?...

Jackie Sherrill's hairbrained 12th man kickoff team idea...has allowed an average of 12.3 yards per return and a long of 28 yards. Not bad for a bunch of students...or a bunch of football scholarship athletes...

DID YOU know that baseball returned to Sul Ross State after an absence of 15 years when the Lobos played the University of New Mexico at Kokernot Field a couple of weeks ago? Helping to revive the sport are Midland pitcher John Denton, Greg McGage, firstbaseman from Midland Lee; second baseman Ted Leps, Midland Lee; shortstop Scott Bingham, San Angelo; third baseman Judd Ryan, Midland High; infielder Tony Rice, Odessa...

In tonight's fight, you've got to figure that Marvin Hagler has the punching edge on Roberto Duran, who is moving up in weight to the middleweight class. You never know what effect that might have. Several years ago, Bobo Olson could handle any middleweight around, not to mention a couple of families, but the lights went out when he tried to move up in weight against light heavies...

BARRY SWITZER had his detractors when he was winning. Now, after three losses, he is probably feeling the heat at Oklahoma. Last year, there were suggestions that he move on after the Sooners lost the Fiesta Bowl. Winning a bowl bid is supposed to be the season's goal. Whether you win or not, in most places, is gravy...

Eddie Sutton heard the criticism of "weak non-conference" opposition and signed up North Carolina and Villanova. Maybe he thought he was signing up their football teams...

"If they had been wearing Penn State or Pitt uniforms or Georgia or Texas, the stadium would have been full and this would have been the biggest game in UM history. They were that good." University of Miami Coach Howard Schnellenberger after his team eased by East Carolina in the Orange Bowl last Saturday.

ECU coach Ed Emery isn't too happy over the loss. He's especially upset that Hurricane followers fired a cannon just as his kicker tried a field goal...

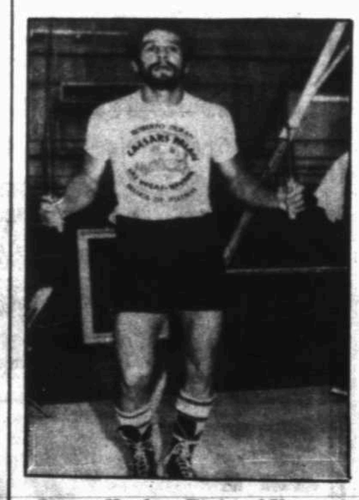

ST. LOUIS Cardinal field goal kicker Neil O'Donoghue is 2-for-2 in tries from over 50 yards this year. He's also 0-for-3 in overtime field goal attempts. All three misses in one game and one from 19 yards...

For the fan who asked, counting pre-season games, the Oilers have lost 21 in a row...

Dallas quarterback Danny White was 21-of-24 against the Eagles last Sunday and all three incompletions were dropped balls. Even a Texas Stadium crowd couldn't boo that performance...

Injuries ravage 'Jersey' Giants

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — For quite a while, New York Giants Coach Bill Parcells says his team suffered from Murphy's law — If something can go wrong, it will. But it's gone beyond that. He says what now applies is Parcells' corollary — If two things can go wrong, the worst of the two will.

Parcells said Wednesday his corollary fit the Giants' current state after he announced that fullback Rob Carpenter and center Rich Umphrey will be lost for the remainder of the National Football League season.

"That's my corollary ... or coronary," Parcells said. "Murphy's law — I haven't been able to avoid that at all."

Carpenter, the Giants' leading rusher with 624 yards on 170 carries, will miss the remaining six games of the season with a sprain of a ligament in his right knee. He sustained the injury in the third quarter of Monday night's 15-9 loss to the Detroit Lions and will be in a cast for about a month.

Umphrey was hospitalized Wednesday morning with appendicitis and also was expected to miss the rest of the season. Umphrey, a second-year player, underwent surgery to remove his appendix at Pascack Valley Hospital and was listed in excellent condition after the one-hour operation, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Armstrong first in HSBC tourney

BY RODNEY RIEHLE

The High Sky Bass Club of Midland held its November club tournament at Lake Stamford last weekend. The tournament headquartered at the Anchor Lodge.

T.E. Armstrong took first place in the men's division with a total weight of 14.08 pounds. Fred Nobles won second with 13.74 and Dow Scott took third with 4.78.

The big bass Saturday was taken by Charles Erck, a 2.81 pounder, and Scott won Sunday with a 3.81.

The tournament drew 24 members. Some 98.02 pounds of fish were taken.

The December tournament on the Dec. 3 will be a Roadrunner type competition.

COOL, DAMP weather slowed fishing on area lakes, but there was fair traffice on Lake E.V.Spence where black and striped bass were biting.

Fishing at Lake J.B. Thomas was at a minimum, but there were a few good strings of crappie and channel cats.

Winner of the October contest for black bass fishing at Paint Creek Marina at Spence was Fred Salmon with a five pound, 12 ounce specimen worth $50. Others were L.W. Palmer, 4 1/8; and Robert Dewoody, four pounds. Prize for best striped bass went to Dell Parker, 26 pounds, five ounces, followed by Allen Williams, 18 1/8; Forrest Hutto, 16 3/4...

Don Lawrence, Odessa, caught a six pound black to take the early lead in the November contest. Tommy Walker, Midland, landed a 4 1/8 pounder, and Darrell Sorey, Midland, took a 6-14 striped...

At Gas and Grub, Buddy Mauldin, Midland, took 20 catfish to five pounds and five stripers to 14. Pat Underwood, Midland, took a five-pound black...

Texas hunters load up for Big Game season

As hunters load up for the start of the season, deer numbers are down from Pecos to El Paso after a dry summer reduced the fawn crop of both whitetail and mule deer, but recent rains have helped mature animals gain some weight.

The gradual decline of mule deer continues, but aerial surveys show that those left are good shape.

State biologists note that deer numbers are off 42 percent in Glasscock, Sterling, Howard and Mitchell counties as well as in portions of Coke and Tom Green Counties. Further east in the Possum Kingdom domain, where there has been rain, numbers are slightly off.

In the Edwards Plateau, range conditions are good in the heart of the Hill Country—Llano, Kerr, Kendall, Gillespie and Blanco counties. Deer numbers are about the same as last year, but hunting may be tougher because of the readily available forage.

In all, about 35 million deer will be roaming Texas when the big game season begins Saturday. Based on the past, about one out of 10 will will come home lucky. That's a deer harvest of about 300,000.

Of course, success will vary according to location. Six or seven of every 10 hunters will bring home a deer from the Edwards Plateau area. Less than 10 percent will find luck west of the Pecos where the season is Nov. 26 to Dec. 4.

Mule deer in the Panhandle may be taken from Nov. 19-27. The Whitetail season is Nov. 12-Jan. 1.

Hagler-Duran: Fight or Hype of Year?

By Bill Center
Copley News Service

LAS VEGAS — Marvelous Marvin Hagler vs. Roberto Duran. Fight of the year? Or, hype of the year?

Is Duran all the way back from "No Mas" only 363 days after losing a fight to Kirkland Laing? Is he capable of standing in against Hagler, who is fighting on the home ground of his 160-pound weight-class?

At Caesars Palace tonight there will be the hard-etched fact of Hagler standing in against the questions represented by Duran, only the third fighter to ever seek four world titles.

The first two, Henry Armstrong and Alexis Arguello, failed. "I will not fail," says Roberto Duran. "I cannot."

Even if he doesn't fail, the biggest question remains. Can Duran beat Hagler? Some believe the Marvelous one ranks right there with the greatest middleweight champions of all time. He holds both the WBA and WBC titles. Not one of his seven defenses has gone the distance. Hagler has not lost in seven years, swelling the faces of his opponents and his record to 57-2-2. Forty-eight of those victories have been by knockout.

Hagler. The man of the shaved head and sculptured body, fighting for the first time in the spotlight of the million-dollar fight that has eluded him throughout an otherwise memorable career.

Duran. Hands of stone, or feet of clay. A distinguished career has been possibly forever blemished by that one monent in New Orleans three years ago when he turned his back on Sugar Ray Leonard and walked toward his corner and degradation. If Duran could take back two words in his lifetime, they probably would be "No Mas."

If he can't make people forget, at least he has a chance to make them remember him for something else. If Duran beats Hagler in this scheduled 15-round bout, he will become the first fighter to have won four different weight titles. He won the world lightweight title in 1972, the WBC welterweight title in 1980 and the WBA junior middleweight title last June when he capped his long climb back to respectability by knocking out previously unbeaten Davey Moore in the eighth round at Madison Square Garden in New York.

That got Duran his date with Hagler. That fight also gave Hagler his shot at a moment in the sun. He was at the threshold once before. A match between Hagler and Leonard was sealed when the king of the welterweights and box offices retired abruptly with a detached retina.

"I felt robbed when I lost the Leonard fight," said Hagler. "It was millions of dollars gone. I also lost a chance to show people how good I was. That's why this fight is so important to me. It will make my family rich ($5 million will be his minimum share of the purse) and a lot of people will see Marvin Hagler."

When Duran bullied Moore last June, the happiest man in the ring afterwards was the Marvelous one.

"I thank Roberto for giving me this chance," said Hagler recently. "Now I'm going to beat him."

Marvin Hagler is a tough man. His home-town training camp at Provincetown, Mass., is not a Cape Cod hideaway. Hagler calls the place "the prison." He likes it. "At Provincetown I can concentrate on my body and on boxing," says Hagler.

One of the fight game's hardest trainers, Hagler likes the self-imposed exile of camp. He is an eager jogger and has been known to fight a career's worth of rounds in sparring. "I love to fight," he says. He also runs through sand dunes wearing army boots.

On the other hand, Duran's disdain of training is of what legends are made. Once he was secreted away on an island used as a Panamaian penal colony to keep his mind on training. The exercise failed. Two months before he fought Leonard at 147 pounds, Duran was said to have weighed 185. After a starvation diet to make weight, he is said to have eaten two steaks and drank a quart of orange juice the morning of that fight. He claimed of stomach cramps. That was his excuse for "No Mas."

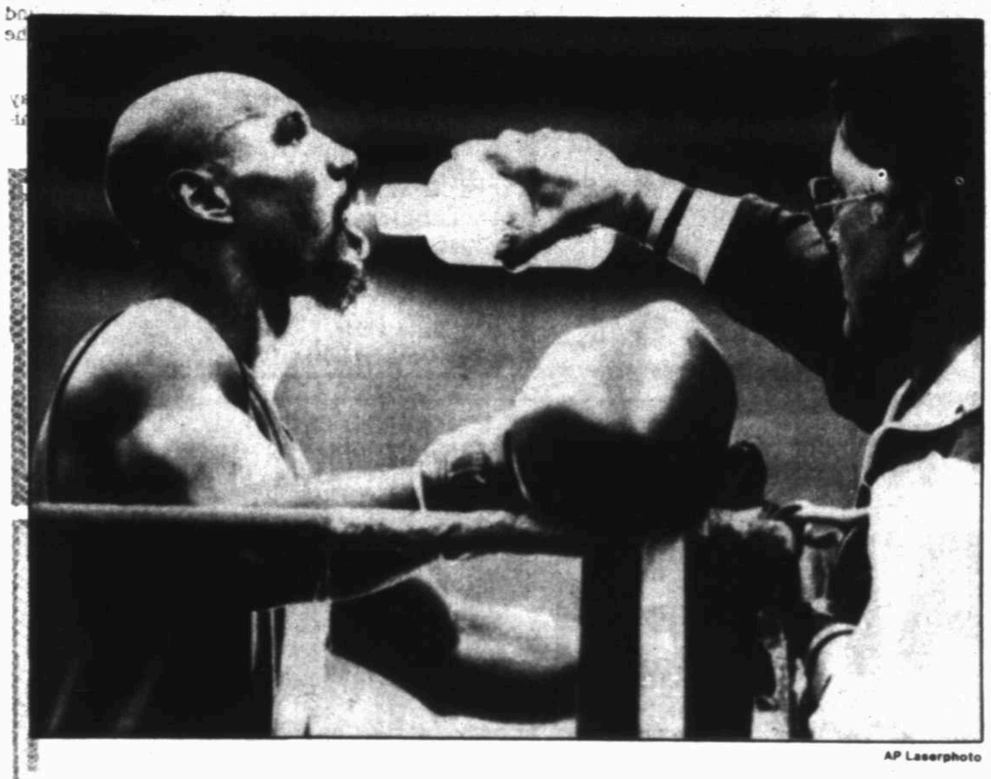

"I want a great fight," says Hagler. "I don't want 'No Mas.' I want to beat Duran in the ring. I don't want a decision.

Rebels reach must win stage

Garnett, who has 15 brothers and sisters, was born in Los Angeles, but moved to Midland at the age of three. All of his football growth has come in Midland.

"I started playing YMCA tackle football in the fifth grade. I played junior high football at San Jacinto and Midland Freshman. Even back in the fifth grade, I was playing fullback and linebacker."

What many Lee fans forget is that Garnett played mostly on defense last year. As a junior, Garnett gained a little over 200 yards rushing, using most of his skills at linebacker on defense.

Dykes, however, has no players going both ways this year and that has been one of the Rebels' main strengths. And Dykes' linebacking corps of Reggie Ellis, Michael Johnson, Billy Cornelius and Scott Hicks isn't exactly a weak spot for the Rebels this season.

"Isaac is a tremendous defensive player, but I don't think he would have been as effective on offense this year if he had to play on defense too," said Dykes.

MANY THINK Garnett may play defense in college, much like former Lee fullback Jeff McGowan has at Texas Tech. McGowan was Lee's previous rushing leader, gaining just under 1,000 yards at fullback during his senior year at Lee.

Prior to a 14-9 loss to San Angelo, Bobcat coach Jimmie Keeling said, "The one thing we can be grateful for is that Lee doesn't use Garnett at linebacker too. When you play against Lee, you have to be thankful for small things."

Now it's time for Amarillo High to be thankful for small things. But the Sandies can count on seeing Garnett at least 25 times Saturday. And that could be 25 of the longest moments in AHS history.

Buried Plunkett now praised

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Tom Flores of the Los Angeles Raiders buried quarterback Jim Plunkett, so to speak, last month. Now, he's praising him.

Flores decided after the Raiders dropped a 38-36 decision to the Seattle Seahawks on Oct. 16 that a change was needed at quarterback, so he promoted Marc Wilson to the starting position and sat Plunkett down.

Wilson was brilliant as the Raiders topped Dallas 40-38 on Oct. 23. He was so-so the next week in a 34-21 Los Angeles loss to Seattle. He was so-so again last Sunday in the first half of the Raiders' game at Kansas City.

Shortly before the intermission of that game, Wilson suffered a broken bone in his left shoulder while tackling a Kansas City player who had made an interception.

Wilson played three series of the second half before the pain became too great; the severity of the injury wasn't diagnosed until after the game.

In came Plunkett, and he was the sparkplug as the Raiders rallied for a 28-20 victory over the Chiefs. Plunkett guided his team to two touchdowns, completing five of his nine passes for 114 yards.

"Jim is a remarkable guy," Flores said Wednesday at his weekly meeting with reporters. "Talk about picking yourself up and coming back. I thought he was almost flawless in the second half (against Kansas City). He just directed the team very professionally. He did the job."

Wilson is expected to be sidelined for somewhere between four and six weeks. Flores was asked what he would do when Wilson returned.

"Ask me in six weeks," he said with a smile. "If we went 6-0, would you make the change? I wouldn't.

"A veteran very seldom loses his job because of an injury, but you have to measure the circumstances. If we're in the middle of the playoffs and Marc Wilson hasn't thrown a ball in six weeks...

"I'm not thinking about six weeks. I'm thinking about the Denver Broncos."

The Raiders lead the AFC West with a 7-3 record. The Broncos are tied with Seattle for second place at 6-4. Los Angeles and Denver square off this Sunday in the second game of the year between the teams.

"This is a big game," said Flores. "If we can beat them, we're two games up on them. If they beat us, they tie us for first place."

USC losing best California kids

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Think of college football powerhouses and certain names come to mind — Notre Dame, Nebraska, Michigan, Oklahoma, Alabama, Ohio State . . . Southern Cal.

Most of those schools are having a fairly successful season — all but Southern Cal, which is struggling at 4-4-1.

It's not as if the Trojans have played a particularly tough schedule. They have faced just one opponent currently ranked in the nation's top 20, No. 14 Florida, which they tied 19-19 in their season opener.

Two of Southern Cal's losses have come at the hands of relative weaklings, Kansas and South Carolina. And the Trojans sure to be underdogs in their last two games, against 18th-ranked Washington on Saturday and cross-town rival UCLA on Nov. 19.

Taking the criticism for the team's difficulties is first-year Coach Ted Tollner.

"Obviously, it (the criticism) hurts," he said earlier this week. "I think a guy would be dishonest to say it doesn't hurt. But honestly, I've felt very little heat. The heat I feel is the disappointment that our team hasn't played to the level that I had hoped.

"I've had a lot of support from people I have a lot of respect for, coaching friends and other people. That's made it easier. Really, I haven't had a lot of time to get caught up in the negative."

Not only is Tollner in his first year as Trojan coach — he succeeded John Robinson, who now coaches the Los Angeles Rams — but he has five first-year assistants on his coaching staff.

Also, the talent level on the current Southern Cal team is down from what it has been.

"We knew we were going to be young," said Tollner. "We may not be at the same level of explosiveness of some of the past USC teams, but I believe we're a better football team than the level we've played at, that's what's disappointing to me."

How can talent be measured? One way is the National Football League draft. So next year, when the draft of collegiate talent is held, there will be some answers, at least as far as the Southern Cal seniors are concerned.

The Trojans' problems aren't just on the field. Sanctions for NCAA rules violations have made them ineligible for the Pacific-10 Conference championship and post-season action.

With all their difficulties, victories over Washington and UCLA would give the Trojans the best Pac-10 league record. They are currently 4-1 in conference action.

Sporting News picks LaRussa, Phils' Denny

From wire reports

BASEBALL—The White Sox' Tony LaRussa was named baseball Manager of the Year by The Sporting News, a St.Louis-based weekly, while the Phils John Denny was named as National League Comeback Player of the Year and Detroit shortstop Alan Trammel won the same honor in the AL. Denny, the Cy Young winner, went from 6-13 in 1982 to 19-6 in 1983. Trammel batted .258 in '82 and .319 last season with 14 homers and 66 RBI...

BASKETBALL—Larry O'Brien, who guided the NBA through 8½ years of the free agent era's increasing financial complexity, resigned Wednesday as NBA commissioner. O'Brien, 66, gave no single reason for resigning, although he said he has taken a new position that will be announced at a forthcoming news conference — "not necessarily of interest to sports writers." There was speculation that he might go to work for a Democratic presidential candidate, perhaps Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, an former associate...

Wichita State, Tulsa and Illinois State will be the cream of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball crop this season, league coaches and media predict in the pre-season polling of the nine Valley coaches and 33 sports writers and broadcasters. In the coaches' poll, Wichita State received 60 points to 59 for Tulsa and 51 for Illinois State. Wichita State and Tulsa each had four first-place votes while Illinois State had one. In the media poll, the Shockers received 22 first-place votes and 283 points to nine first-place votes and 269 points for Tulsa.

The University of New Mexico signed 6-7 Bobby Arnold, center from Oswego, Ore., and 7-foot Robert Loeffel, Banning, Calif., to letters of intent. Arnoled averaged 13 points and nine rebounds last season for a 20-4 team. Loeffel averated 18 points and 13 rebounds...

FOOTBALL—Former Dallas Cowboys linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson was charged Wednesday with five felony sex and drug counts in an alleged assault on two teen-age girls last week. Henderson, arrested at his apartment at 1:30 a.m. last Thursday and free on $16,000 bail, would face 16 to 17 years in prison if convicted of all the counts and if all the sentences run consecutively...

Carnegie-Mellon has advanced to the eight-team small-college playoffs with a simple offensive philosophy — run the ball a lot. "We think anybody who passes is a sissy, so we run the ball," Coach Chuck Klausing joked in discussing his 9-0 team...

Detroit offensive guard Larry Lee said he was embarrassed after accidentally hitting referee Dick Jorgensen in the face during the Lions' 15-9 victory over the New York Giants. Lee received an automatic $200 fine for being ejected from Monday night's game for unsportsmanlike conduct. It was not known if any further action would be taken against the 6-foot-2, 260-pound third-year pro out of UCLA. "I apologized to him after the game. He told me there were no hard feelings, that he knew it was an accident." Lee was wrestling with Giants' defensive end Casey Merrill after a play. When Lee swung his right elbow back, he hit Jorgensen in the mouth and the official went down...

BOXING—Eddie Mustafa Muhammad was suspended by the D.C. Boxing Commission for one year and fined $1,000. The suspension will date from Oct. 17, when the commission issued a preliminary finding. Commissions around the country have generally honored each others suspensions in the past, and some commissioners have already said they will recognize the D.C. suspension and prevent Muhammad from fighting in their states...

Auburn, Georgia for all the Sugar

By H. NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

November stretch drive? Important games? Tell it to the oddsmakers, who apparently think that seven of this weekend's college football games involving members of th Top Twenty are such mismatches that they have refused to quote a line.

However, there is one contest where the line is as thin as they come — No. 3 Auburn at No. 4 Georgia in a pick 'em Southeastern Conference showdown.

If Georgia wins, the Dawgs go to the Sugar Bowl for the fourth year in a row. But if Auburn wins, the Tigers must at least tie Alabama on Dec. 3 to clinch the SEC crown outright.

If you think the bowl picture has been confusing in the past, get this: If Auburn beats Georgia but loses to Alabama, those three teams will tie for the SEC title . . . and Tennessee can make it a four-way deadlock. The choice would then be left to the Sugar Bowl committee, which has raised a few hackles in the past and would be faced with alienating no fewer than three teams.

How important is the Auburn-Georgia game? It even has Georgia Coach Vince Dulley — er, Dooley — excited. "The world championship," he calls it. This corner calls it . . . Auburn 14-10.

Last week's score was 35-17-1 for a percentage of .673; for the season, 325-123-6—.725. Against the line, last week was 16-12-1—.571; on the year, 110-108-4—.505.

Kansas at No. 1 Nebraska (no line): Tom Osborne is tired of people accusing him of running up the score. He says the Huskers have more players than points . . . Nebraska 56-21.

Texas Christian at No. 2 Texas (no line): Nebraska does it with offense, the Longhorns with the biggest 'D' in the nation . . . Texas 28-3.

Indiana at No. 5 Illinois (no line): Everything's coming up roses for . . . Illinois 42-14.

No. 6 Miami, Fla. (favored by 1) at Florida State: The Hurricanes have allowed only eight touchdowns during their nine-game winning streak. A Bobby Bowden special . . . Florida State 24-17.

Texas Tech at No. 7 Southern Methodist (19): The Mustangs don't embarrass anybody, they just keep winning, possibly right into the Sugar Bowl . . . SMU 31-7.

Colorado State at No. 8 Brigham Young (no line): BYU quarterback Steve Young is a New York Giants fan. They could have used him Monday night . . . BYU 49-35.

No. 9 Michigan at Minnesota (no line): The Wolverines are still peeved over losing to Illinois two weeks ago . . . Michigan 63-7.

Northwestern at No. 10 Ohio State (no line): The Buckeyes still have a shot at a New Year's Bowl . . . Ohio State 56-14.

No. 11 Maryland at No. 17 Clemson (3): In the last four years, Georgia has lost one regular-season game and tied one, both against . . . Clemson 21-17.

No. 12 Iowa (16) at Michigan State: Hawkeyes are still an attractive bowl team . . . Iowa 35-14.

No. 13 Boston College (13) at Syracuse: The Fiesta Bowl is looking at the Eagles. First, a regular-season fiesta . . . Boston College 34-13.

Kentucky at No. 14 Florida (18): The Gators bounce back after two heart-breaking losses . . . Florida 27-14.

Rutgers at No. 15 West Virginia (22): The Mountaineers want to go bowling . . . West Virginia 35-7.

Southern Mississippi at No. 16 Alabama (12 1-2): Revenge for last year . . . Alabama 27-13.

Southern California at No. 18 Washington (6): The Trojans are getting better, but not this much . . . Washington 24-17.

No. 19 North Carolina (14 1-2) at Virginia: Virginia pays for the Tar Heels' two-game losing streak . . . North Carolina 42-14.

Army at No. 20 Pitt (no line): If anyone else caught the Panthers between Notre Dame and Penn State it might be different . . . Pitt 38-7.

Oklahoma State at Missouri (8): The Cowboys rebound from a low and catch Mizzou coming off a high. Upset Special of the Week . . . Oklahoma State 20-14.

Campbell sticks to trade demand

HOUSTON (AP) — The latest attempt to resolve the unhappiness of Houston Oilers running back Earl Campbell has ended in failure.

Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzeg, trying to get at the reasons for Campbell's request to be traded, sought a meeting with the former All-Pro on Wednesday. He was refused.

"I talked to Earl today with the intention of having a face-to-face discussion regarding his publicly expressed feelings of yesterday," Herzeg said. "He informed me that he would prefer to delay the discussion until a later date."

Campbell made overtones about wanting to be traded after he was lifted from Sunday's 55-14 loss to Cincinnati. He clarified his desires during the taping of a television show on Tuesday.

Campbell declined further comment following Wednesday's practice about his trade request or why he declined to talk with Herzeg.

There was speculation that Campbell is seeking an agent to represent him in contract negotiatons although his contract with the Oilers extends through the 1985 season.

According to salaries released by the National Football League Management Council, Campbell is the second highest paid running back in the NFL behind Chicago's Walter Payton, who earns $500,000 annually.

Campbell and Dallas' Tony Dorsett earn $400,000 and Campbell reportedly could earn another $100,000 if he fulfills certain incentive clauses.

"My personal reaction to all of this is one of perplexity," Herzeg said. Herzeg declined to say, however, if the Oilers would honor Campbell's request to be traded.

The trade deadline for this season has passed and any deal would have to be made after the Super Bowl in January.

McEnroe gets 'relief'

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — An Australian tennis official says he has been banned from working any of John McEnroe's matches for one year, but the administrator of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council (MIPTC) denied that is so.

Ian Basey said Wednesday he has lodged an appeal of his 12-month ban from officiating matches involving John McEnroe.

Basey, one of Australia's leading umpires, said he sent a letter of appeal to the MIPTC in New York, denying he had made a comment about McEnroe attributed to him in a newspaper report.

"I didn't make the quote to start with, so it's a matter of personal pride and it would be nice to have a clean slate again," he said.

The report appeared after Basey umpired last month's Australian Indoor Championships final in Sydney, where he gave McEnroe a code of conduct violation for calling a net court judge an obscene name.

McEnroe, who defeated Henri Leconte in the final, was subsequently fined $1,500 and banned from tennis for three weeks.

Basey, a detective sergeant in the South Australian fraud squad, was quoted in a Sydney newspaper as having said after the match: "I've dealt with hardened criminals, so I wasn't about to have him put anything over me."

It was claimed he had breached a clause of the code of conduct, which stipulates officials must not hold a news conference or discuss with the press anv calls or decisions from the match.

"The quote is totally incorrect. I didn't make the quote. There was no press conference held, so the rules haven't been breached in my opinion," Basey said.

Marshall Happer, administrator of the MIPTC, denied reports that Basey had been banned from officiating at McEnroe's matches.

"I issued a notice of probation," Happer said at the Benson and Hedges tournament here after McEnroe had won his first match since serving the three-week suspension.

Jonas captures Penick

AUSTIN (AP) — Lamar's Philip Jonas outlasted Texas' Brandel Chamblee in a marathon nine-hole sudden-death playoff to win medalist honors in the 14th Annual Harvey Penick Intercollegiate golf tournament Wednesday and Lamar won the team title.

Lamar started the day five shots behind Houston and two behind Texas but shot a even par final round 360 on a cold, wet and windy course to win the championship with a 54-hole total of 1,064.

Jonas and Chamblee finished regulation with identical 54-hole, 10-under-par totals of 206.

Terrorists a danger

NEW YORK (AP) — Acknowledging that terrorist acts aimed at athletes competing in the 1984 Summer Olympics Games were a possibility, Peter Ueberroth says the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee has taken "every precaution" to see that it doesn't occur.

"Terrorism is one of the problems in the world," the LAOOC president admitted. "The Los Angeles Games will be as safe as possible. We've been taking every precaution.

"But we can't run away from it (the possibility)," Ueberroth said Wednesday night.

Later, Ueberroth said that security for the Games "is the biggest item in the budget," but he refused to say how much is being spent. "We've been asked not to," he said. "But the Los Angeles Games will be held in 29 cities in nine counties.

"Obviously we'll watch very closely," he said. "But the interesting thing that happens in this country is that the people feel it's their event and they don't want anything bad to happen to it.

"Look at the New York City Marathon. You have more than 15,000 competitors running through all parts of the city — through the better neighborhoods and through neighborhoods that are not the better ones. But everyone accepts it as their event and you don't hear of any problems."

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, and Ueberroth said the IOC's medical comittee would decide today on drug testing for the 1984 Games. But the decision, they said, will not be made public until later. They refused to say when.

THE BETTER HALF

"Money talks . . . At this rate it'll be 10 years before ours even learns to say 'goo-goo!' "

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, November 11, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY First Lady Abigail Adams, Russian author Fyodor Dostoyevsky, WW II leader Gen. George Patton and mobster "Lucky" Luciano were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: writer Kurt Vonnegut. Recommendations mean more than you realize in your bid for business or financial success. Be sure your reputation is a good one. An act of kindness is repaid at a time when your spirits could be low. A hunch is right on target. Ask for the money you deserve. Good luck accompanies you on a trip. A family situation improves. Recognize that compromises help everyone. Romance is a source of strength.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Postpone making a decision until you have all the information you need. Otherwise, you miss out on a golden opportunity. Attend social events alone if hoping to find a new romantic partner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Payment for past work is delayed but will arrive. Money from a relative tides you over. Romance blossoms. Those in electronics, computer technology and aerospace make good progress.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If unfulfilled by your present work, launch an active job search. You thrive in competitive situations. Romance moves in mysterious ways. Pampering mate will bring bid dividends this weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Doubts linger. Conduct your own investigation. A scholarship is possible for next semester if you act now. You respond poorly to ultimatums. Give romance higher priority. Call an old friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review your bills and budget before purchasing that luxury item! Even the sale price could be too high. Listen to what someone is trying to tell you. You discover a new romantic interest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Devote more time to your family. Too much work makes you a dull date. Savor a business triumph without gloating. Billing mistakes are possible. Share financial responsibilities with partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do what you can today and plan to start afresh on Monday. If considering a career change, focus on the fringe benefits connected with a new job. They are worth a lot.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Innovative proposals win widespread approval now. Top management may bypass the middlemen to get your idea moving. Protect your flank. A blind date gives your ego a boost.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The emphasis today is on being a good listener. Let a friend cry on your shoulder. Someone has a suggestion that could mean big money. Give it a hearing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You must get your work under better control in order to be happy. Find a more subtle way of saying "no" to people. You learn something about yourself you did not suspect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not let jealousy eat away at you. Be honest with mate and let the chips fall where they may. You lose a battle or two but win the war.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An unreasonable relative may be doing you a big favor. Take a spur-of-the-moment trip. Parents find their children sympathetic to financial problems once they have all the facts.

Strauss returns to TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Having been stung in a 3-D movie flop, Peter Strauss is happy to return to television — the medium that has awarded him fame, honors and artistic satisfaction.

On Dec. 4, Strauss stars in an ABC-TV Theater presentation, "Heart of Steel," which deals with a subject theatrical film producers wouldn't touch: chronic unemployment in the steel industry.

The show is Strauss's baby. He devoted two years to developing and filming the project for his Beowulf Productions. He worked in an Ohio steel mill, often at risk to his safety. He kept the cast and crew together despite threats of mutiny. No wonder he is proud of "Heart of Steel," coming on the heels of "Spacehunter," his latest venture into theatrical movies.

"Spacehunter" was one of those summer films that was supposed to win audiences back to 3-D films. But moviegoers discarded their 3-D glasses in dismay, and "Spacehunter" quickly vanished.

What happened?

"A lot of talented people were misused," said Strauss, who still finds the subject painful. "I had been getting a lot of pressure to make a feature, but I hadn't found any good scripts. I am at a difficult age (36) for features. I'm not a Timothy Hutton, I can't do the 'Rumblefish' kind of film. And I'm not considered mature enough for other films.

"I accepted 'Spacehunter' on the strength of promises that were never kept," he said. "The cast, the script, the talent and the money — none showed on the screen."

Since scoring as Rudy Jordache in "Rich Man, Poor Man," Peter Strauss has spent his television life on ABC. The result has been three Emmies — for "Rich Man, Poor Man," "The Jericho Mile" and "Masada" — as well as other memorable performances in "Young Joe, The Forgotten Kennedy," "Angel on My Shoulder" and "A Whale for Killing."

The actor was surprised when ABC suggested that he develop a script about unemployment.

"I thought it was impossible," he recalled. "If you treated the subject realistically, it would be depressing. If you tried to make it entertaining, you'd be dishonest. How to do it? 'You'll find a way,' they told me."

Strauss found a script by Gary DeVore about a steel worker caught in the shutdown of a mill where his family had worked for decades. The story didn't have the element of triumph that Strauss sought in his television films. He and DeVore struggled through five drafts until they arrived at the final script.

After some years in the wilderness, France has again emerged as a major bridge power. They are current holders of the World Olympiad Teams title, and this year they won the European Championships by the huge margin of almost three matches with a team that included three young newcomers to international bridge.

One of the newcomers, Philippe Cronier, became declarer at six clubs on this hand from his country's match against Luxembourg. The bidding was rather aggressive, but dummy might have been better.

The spade lead effectively killed the only entry to the table. Declarer took the ace and crossed to his hand with a spade ruff to force out the ace of trumps. East returned the queen of hearts. Declarer won, and it now seemed that he could get to dummy with the jack of hearts for the diamond finesse. But declarer wanted better odds than 50 percent.

He ran all his trumps but one, reducing the hand to this:

Declarer cashed the king of hearts, and East discarded a spade. Next came the last trump. West smoothly blanked his king of diamonds, dummy pitched a heart and East parted with a diamond. Now declarer crossed to dummy with the ten of hearts, and East let go another diamond.

Everybody was down to two cards. Declarer knew that one of West's cards was a heart and that one of East's cards was a spade. Therefore, each defender held just one diamond. So declarer continued with a diamond to the ace to fell the king and land an excellently played slam.

Note that it would not necessarily have beaten the hand had East returned a diamond after winning the ace of clubs. Declarer can rise with the ace and squeeze West in the red suits.

National Supply chief encouraged

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the world's largest manufacturer of oilfield drilling and production equipment says stability of oil prices and drilling activity makes him think the industry has hit the bottom and will rebound next year.

J. Rob Walker, president and chief operating officer of the National Supply Co., said Wednesday a study by his company shows "it's time for us to be encouraged about what the future holds for the petroleum industry."

"I'm not wildly or deliriously optimistic," Walker said. "We must be brutally realistic for the short term. But in the last 30 to 90 days, I have seen more reason for encouragement than I've seen in the last 18 months or two years."

Among those good omens, he said, are:

— The stability of oil prices. "Nothing is on the horizon that should disturb the current $29-a-barrel price," he said.

— The decline in drilling has halted "after an 18-month free-fall."

"It appears that we have bottomed out," said Walker. "That's a significant factor."

Walker acknowledged the industry "has been through hell" but predicted a recovery which would be "nothing spectacular, but a whole lot better than 1983."

The domestic oil and gas drilling industry experienced one of its most spectacular booms from 1979 to 1981, then went through a catastrophic bust. The National Supply annual study is watched closely by industry experts as a clue to the drilling future.

Walker said the severe decline in the oil business caused a "shake out" which drove many inefficient firms out of the oilfield supply industry.

"The oilfield industry will never be the same again," he said. "It will be leaner, tighter and strong, and sure as hell meaner."

Robert E. Harris, chief executive officer for National Supply, said the company expects that active drilling rigs will average about 2,600 weekly during 1984, up from the 1983 average of about 2,200. Footage drilled is expected to increase to 330 million, up about 10 million from 1983, and total wells completed is expected to increase by about 600, to 76,600, in 1984.

Harris said the gains are not significant, and certainly not a boom, but they do represent a turnaround.

Internationally, Harris predicted that drilling would remain at a stable level, with increased activity in only a few areas, such as Canada's East Coast, the British sector of the North Sea, and offshore China.

Harris and Walker made their comments during a luncheon for oil industry figures here Wednesday.

NAM chairman speaks against governmental control of industry

By The Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

STAMFORD, Conn. — The chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, speaking out against a national industrial policy, said Wednesday the government should set an economic policy that encourages growth and let consumer demand determine industrial growth.

James B. Henderson, who was in Stamford to meet with local members of the Washington-based lobby, said in an interview that federal subsidies and incentives for particular industries would harm the nation's ability to compete in the international market.

"Government is better as a catalyst rather than a reagent," the chemical engineer said, adding that government assistance to certain industries is likely to be misdirected. "I do not believe that government has the wherewithall to determine who the winners will be and who the losers will be. Consumers must do that. They must be the acid test."

Some members of Congress have proposed to offer government assistance to industries that are suffering from foreign competition, and to subsidize the growth of new industries. Advocates claim the Japanese economy is evidence that government intervention in industry can work.

Henderson, however, said he thinks it is "a myth" that the Japanese government's involvement with industry is responsibile for the country's economic strength.

"IF YOU LOOK at Japan's MITI, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, their attempts at targeting industry have been, in the main, entirely unsuccessful," he said. "Much more important in Japan is the certainty with which business and industry can plan to do their own thing because of a constant governmental policy."

He said the United States government should concentrate on lowering the budget deficit and interest rates so that businesses will be able to expand and create jobs.

Henderson, an executive vice president of Shell Oil Co., was elected in late September to a one-year term as chairman of the manufacturers association, which represents 13,600 companies that are responsible for 80 percent of the country's industrial output. The association is generally regarded as one of the three most powerful business lobbies in Washington.

Henderson said the way to reduce the $195 billion deficit is not to raise taxes on corporations, "because it might stop the recovery dead in its tracks." Instead, he said, "we should look at some sort of consumption tax as a way to develop revenues."

"The question is how raise the money," he said. "Should it be applied to business, which means less money for investment, which means fewer jobs, or do you find ways to tax consumers — because if people spend, that means they have the money."

AT THE SAME time, he said, "we have to make sure we don't penalize those who are in straitened circumstances. It's a very delicate balance."

Henderson said he thinks United States industry can compete in the world market without federal protection as long as other nations "play by the same rules."

"We in the NAM and I, Jim Henderson, stand four-square for open markets conducted fairly, and for a very stong federal government policy that defends U.S. industry when we are unfairly competed against," he said. "We have a lot of clout that we haven't used."

He said the government should use that clout to pursuade other countries to abide by international trade rules so that it can avoid limiting imports.

Henderson said the government's trade policy has been the "residue of whatever happens because of internal policy. Let's get it up front in the national priority scheme."

FROM VISITING with members nationwide, Henderson said, he is encouraged to find that labor and management are beginning to realize they must cooperate to insure the survival of industry in the internationally competitive market. But he added, "we've got a long, long way to go."

Marketers seek sporting propositions

By WILLIAM K. RASHBAUM

NEW YORK — Tennis fans may have been struck by a rather odd sideline at the U.S. Open last summer: all of the linesmen and umpires looked strangely alike.

In fact, all 240 who officiated at the Open wore the same sunglasses. What's more, commentators Pat Summerall and John Newcombe wore identical glasses inside the broadcast booth throughout the telecast of the event.

Strange? Perhaps, but effective if you manufacture sunglasses.

The Open provided over 34 hours of exposure on network television for Bausch & Lomb, which manufactured the glasses, and laid the foundation for an advertising or publicity campaign.

The United States Tennis Association was approached before the tournament by World Sports Group Ltd., representing Bausch & Lomb. WSG explained that the glasses were ambermatic, darkening automatically in sunlight, and would increase the contrast between the ball and the court. The umpires liked the idea and found the glasses so effective that they even wore them during night matches to reduce glare from the lights.

WSG is a sports marketing firm that specializes in taking advantage of what its executives call the universal appeal of sports to help sell products. And, says WSG president Rey Olsen, "a company should be as professional in its use of sports as with all of its other marketing tools."

Pointing to Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company's involvement with the New York marathon and Xerox's sports-oriented advertising campaign for its new Marathon copier. Olsen noted that large corporations' use of sports to set themselves apart from their competition suggests that smaller companies can do the same.

"The public is becoming much more sports-minded in terms of participation," Olsen said. "There is a whole marketing shift — whereas 10 years ago people would be concerned with the clothes you wore and the car you drove and other exterior signs of who you are, today people are concerned with physical well-being."

The range of opportunities afforded by sports marketing is broad: from associating the name of a company with a sports event, such as the Volvo Masters or the Mercedes Benz Tournament Champions, to using sports and sports personalities to promote sales.

AT&T plans to close, consolidate offices

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. will close its Midland operator services unit Dec. 30 and consolidate the operation with the Odessa operator services unit. Between 43-45 employees will be affected by the move, however, no one will lose their job, said company spokeswoman Pauniece Oglesby.

It was rumored earlier that AT&T would be laying off approximately 60 employees in the Midland area. Oglesby said some employees will be taking early retirement but the remaining employees will be moved to the Odessa unit, keeping their seniority.

The decision to consolidate operations came as a result of the downturn in business due to the economy in the city, Oglesby said.

"We don't have the business that will justify having this unit in Midland. This is a much smaller unit. We like to have a range between 80-100 operators per unit," Oglesby said.

The move, she said, will be economically advantageous for AT&T because the company owns the building in Odessa. If they had stayed in Midland, she added, they would have had to lease space from Southwestern Bell, the owner of their present facility.

Oglesby said customers will not notice any change in service. The unit provides long distance assistance service as well as local directory assistance in the 915 area code, excluding El Paso and all of the 806 area code which includes Lubbock and Amarillo.

Oglesby said that AT&T had no further plans to consolidate or layoff any employees in this area. She did say that AT&T had plans for further consolidation in the state but she did not know exactly where or when.

Oglesby said the Midland office could re-open if business in the area picked up.

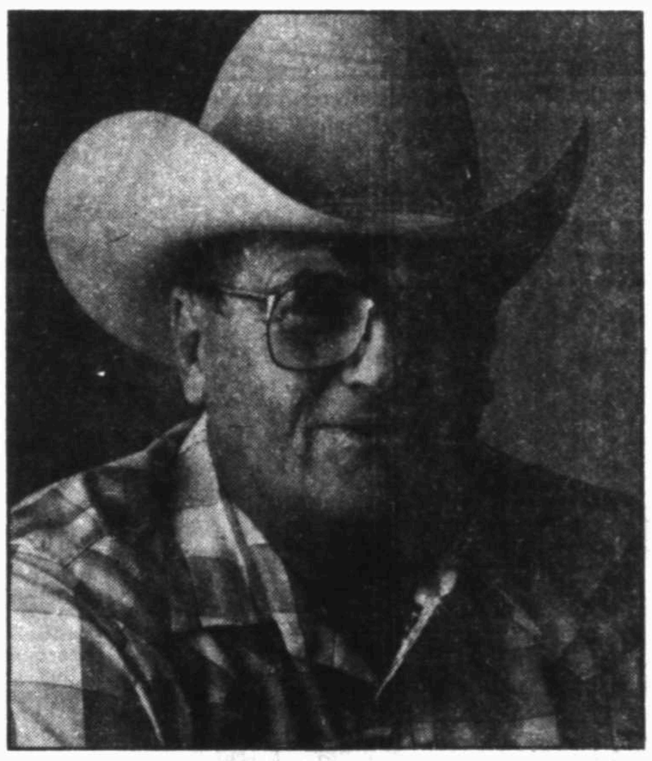

"If there is a need later on we could open up another office in Midland, however, it would not be our decision. The decision would have to come from upper management," she said.

Sources at Southwestern Bell's offices in Dallas said the company had no plans to layoff anyone in Midland or in Texas.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR THE SHAREHOLDERS OF GULF OIL CORPORATION

By now you should have received Gulf's Proxy Statement for its Special Meeting of Shareholders to be held on Friday, December 2, 1983 to approve your Corporation's plan of reorganization. Your Board of Directors unanimously recommends this proposal as being in the best interests of Gulf shareholders.

You may also have received soliciting material from several shareholders calling themselves "Gulf Investors Group" and headed by T. Boone Pickens, Jr. of Mesa Petroleum. You should know that this Pickens-headed opposition group did not own a single share of Gulf stock until three months ago. Now, this group wants Gulf shareholders to keep cumulative voting, which would make it possible for the group to elect one or two members to Gulf's Board without the need for the favorable vote of any other shareholder. In the opinion of Gulf management, directors elected that way are likely to become representatives of a particular interest group.

By voting FOR your Company's proposed reorganization, you can help protect against a divided Board of Directors and expect that each member of your Board of Directors will continue to act in the interest of all Gulf shareholders.

To abstain from voting is the same as a vote against the proposal since it is necessary that more than 50% of the Company's outstanding shares be voted FOR the proposal for it to be approved.

We emphatically urge you to reject the Pickens opposition group. A closer look at Pickens' past statements and actions would seem to indicate that his interests and that of his group are not the same as those of the rest of Gulf's shareholders.

Indeed, as recently as October 19, 1983, on a Cable News Network interview, Pickens flatly stated: "I just work for one crowd; that's the Mesa shareholder."

THE MESA GROUP: HIT AND RUN?

Why is the Mesa group opposing your Board's proposal? In answering that question it is important to consider the following:

- Newsweek reported on October 31, 1983 that "most experts guessed that Pickens was out for a quick killing in Gulf stock," using "hit and run methods" to force "Gulf management to buy him out at a steep premium."
- The Wall Street Journal of May 2, 1983 referred to Mr. Pickens' "image among some observers as somewhat of a corporate raider and profiteer" and then quoted Pickens,referring to a different situation involving other Mesa investments, "Sure, we're opportunistic. We're out to make money for [Mesa's] shareholders."
- According to The Wall Street Journal on November 2, 1983, "Mr. Pickens' biggest credibility problem is the suspicion that he will hit and run — leaving those who followed him into the stock high and dry." Indeed, the Mesa group has borrowed so heavily to buy their Gulf shares that, in the opinion of Gulf management, it is questionable whether they can afford to be more than a short-term investor. The same Wall Street Journal article reported that Mesa itself faces net annual interest costs of $24,000,000, or $67,000 a day, to hold its Gulf shares.
- The Economist said in its October 29, 1983 issue, "Mr. Pickens' best hope is to make such a nuisance of himself that Gulf, like Superior Oil, will grow weary and buy him out at a handsome profit." Speaking of Pickens' use of such a "strategy" in the past, an article in the San Francisco Chronicle on October 18, 1983 referred to it as "corporate blackmail".
- The Mesa group has hired investment bankers for a retainer fee of $1,000,000 as part of its campaign against Gulf. But under another part of the same arrangement those bankers will be paid a fee of up to $7,500,000 (including the retainer) if Mesa sells out its Gulf shares at a profit or a takeover bid is successfully made for Mesa itself. In the opinion of Gulf management, this may mean that there is substance to the Washington Post's speculation on October 30, 1983 that Mesa wants to pressure Gulf into making an over-priced bid for Mesa in order to get rid of a nuisance.

We believe that Mesa group's actions lead to a simple conclusion — the Mesa group is trying to protect its own "right" to disrupt Gulf's affairs by calling meetings, proposing charter amendments and placing its own special representatives on the Gulf Board.

Remember, Pickens' duty is to Mesa shareholders and his group — not to you.

MESA'S INCONSISTENCY

Consider whether the Mesa group is acting to further your interests in this opposition.

- Mesa has always been a Delaware corporation and has never elected its directors under cumulative voting.
- Sunshine Mining Company, a member of the Mesa group, eliminated cumulative voting in 1980, when it chose to reincorporate in Delaware after spending 62 years incorporated in the state of Washington.
- In fact, Sunshine told its shareholders:
"the general corporation law of Delaware affords a modern, flexible legal framework for conducting corporate affairs. Among other things, the Board of Directors believes that Delaware law provides greater flexibility than Washington law respecting the activities and management of the Company."

In the opinion of Gulf management, Pickens and the management of Sunshine Mining Company owe you an explanation of how they can oppose the reorganization of Gulf on the grounds they stated when the shareholders of their own companies do not have such "rights".

Pickens' double-standard is evident: According to him Delaware is the right choice for Mesa and Sunshine — but not for Gulf. Ask yourself: Is Pickens really acting in your interests?

- Finally, on March 31, 1976, in his annual report letter to the Mesa shareholders, Pickens stated:
"The various proposals for breaking up the major integrated oil companies are ill conceived and, in the long term, would be extremely detrimental to the energy situation."

Today, Pickens is beating a different drum. In the press and elsewhere he advocates spinning off assets, establishing royalty trusts and liquidating assets. Such actions, as applied to Gulf, would, in the opinion of Gulf management, be to the detriment of reinvestment in exploration and would inevitably lead to a reduction in reserves.

Certainly, we believe Pickens should tell you why the proposals were "ill conceived" in 1976 and why he now advocates such proposals to Gulf's shareholders in 1983. In our opinion, Pickens' sole purpose is to further the aims of the Mesa group, not yours.

We do not trust the motives of Pickens and his so-called "Gulf Investors Group". We do not believe you can afford to trust them either.

Your Board and management is making solid gains, taking bold actions and enhancing your investment.

Don't you agree that Gulf should continue on its strategic path and not be sidetracked by schemes intended to serve the short-term goals of a select few? Your Board and management are not only open to, but continue aggressively to search for actions to further the overriding objective of enhancing share value. The shareholders of Gulf Oil Corporation should have a Board of Directors that can act in the best interests of all of the Company's shareholders.

Indonesia has wildcat worries

HOUSTON — Although oil exploration is at a relatively high level in Indonesia, the Indonesian government is concerned that little exploration by foreign companies is being done in frontier areas, Petroleum Information International reports in its latest issue.

The weekly publication that reports on worldwide oil and natural gas developments says the foreign companies are concentrating on prospecting in established oil-producing regions because of the high cost and high risk associated with looking for oil and gas in frontier areas.

The Indonesian government says there are 50 sedimentary basins in Indonesia, but only 13 have been explored to some degree. PI International says the government would like to see more intensive exploration of such relatively unexplored areas as Iran jaya, a most mountainous and jungle-clad province bordering on Papua New Guinea.

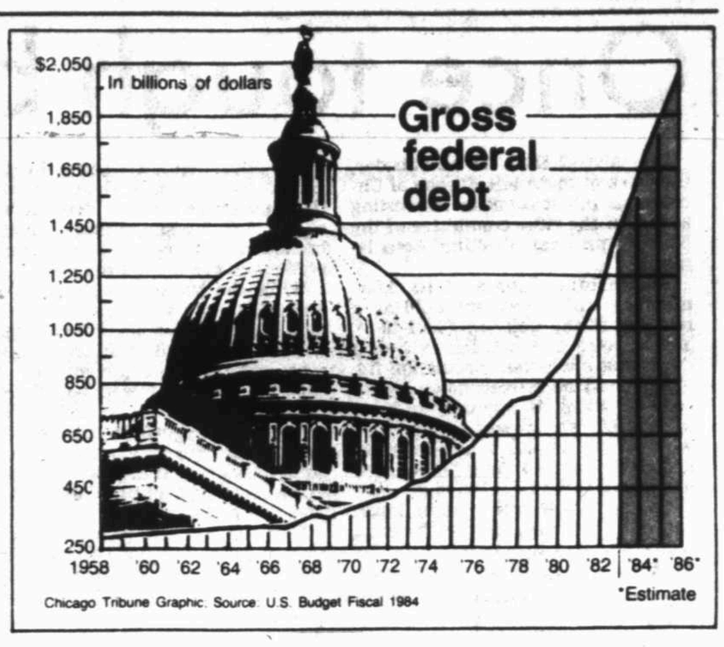

With reports of crude oil accounting for about 75 percent of Indonesia's export earnings, the government is hoping that frontier exploration will result in new discoveries and an increase in the country's proved crude oil reserves which are estimated at about 10 billion, PI International says.

However, foreign companies haven't shown much enthusiasm for frontier exploration in Indonesia because many of the country's unexplored basins lie in deep water or difficult terrain. As a result, exploration would be relatively expensive.

PI International also points out a lack of success in some frontier areas has discouraged other companies from prospecting in them.

Even though the government has sought to encourage foreign exploration in Indonesia by accepting lower bonuses when contracts are signed, PI International reports that most foreign exploration is still being carried out near earlier oil discoveries.

PI International is a publiation of Petroleum Information Corporation, a subsidiary of A. C. Nielsen Company.

When the Bell System splits up, your phone bill won't.

Beginning January 1, different companies will provide different parts of your phone service. It's due to the break up of the Bell System.

But you'll still get only one bill each month at your home or office.* Because all of the services previously provided by the Bell System will be billed through Southwestern Bell Telephone, except for purchases of new telephone equipment from AT&T.

So you'll continue to make just one payment each month to Southwestern Bell Telephone as you now do. But the way your phone bill looks will change. It'll have more pages.

For example, local service from Southwestern Bell Telephone will be on one page, long distance from other companies will be on another page and leased equipment on an additional page.

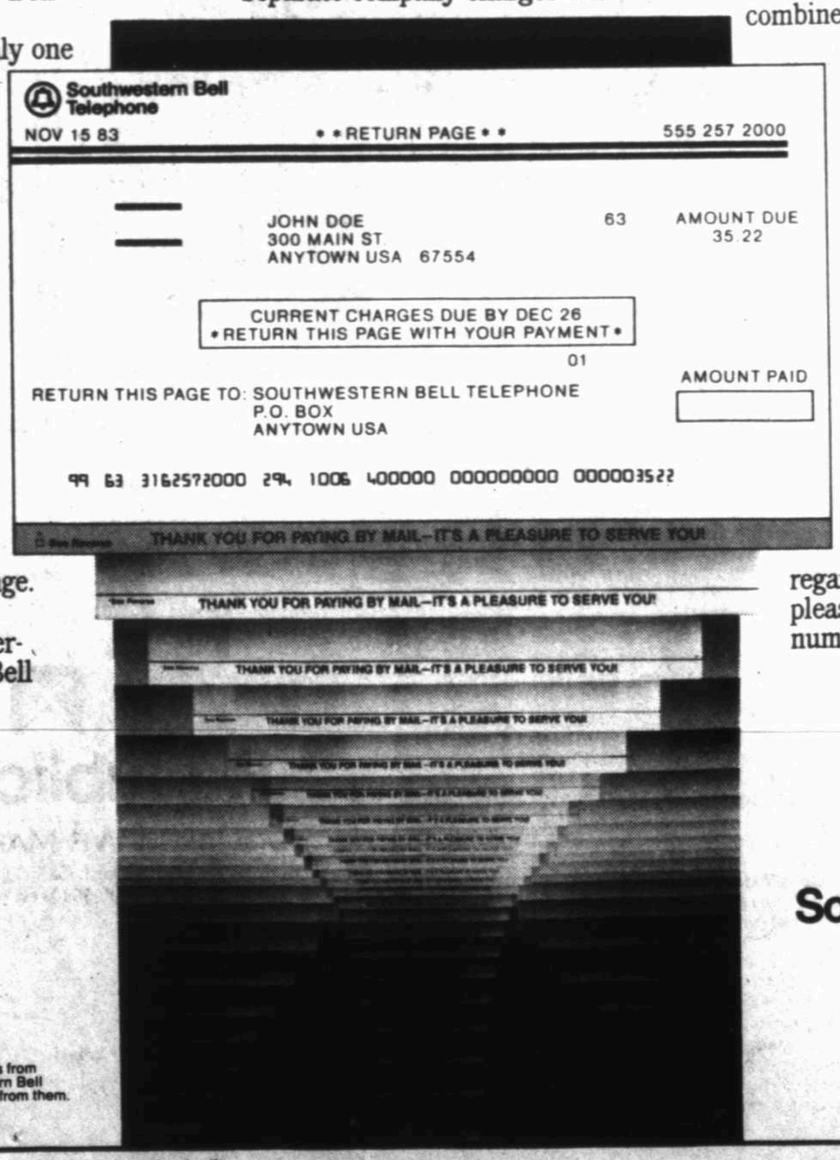

You'll also see a separate page for some long distance charges from Southwestern Bell Telephone. These would be for long distance calls made within your surrounding area which Southwestern Bell Telephone will continue to handle. Outside that area, though, long distance will be provided by other companies. And all long distance calls and charges will be itemized as always.

Separate company charges will show you exactly what each service costs. There also will be a special phone number on the first page of each company's section that you can call for questions about that part of your bill. That's important, because each company will be responsible for handling questions concerning its services.

Southwestern Bell Telephone has combined all of these separate service charges into one bill to make it easier for you. And to show you exactly how much each part of your total telephone service costs. It's one more way we're working to keep your telephone service, even with all the changes, what most people think is the best in the world.

If you would like to find out more about your new bill format, call 1 800 555-5000, toll free. We'll be glad to answer your questions. For questions regarding specific charges, please refer to the phone numbers on your bill.

*If you have long distance or other services from companies other than AT&T or Southwestern Bell Telephone, you will receive a separate bill from them.

Once tough business now simple as ABC

LOS ANGELES — To an outsider, the work of the Audit Bureau of Circulations might seem as interesting as that of the rules committee of the North American Curling Association.

For instance, some of its 5,000 members this week are holding a meeting at the Century Plaza here, and among the questions being debated are whether circulation figures should be broken down by zip code — which is opposed by most metropolitan newspapers, and whether the copies a hotel distributes to its guests should be counted in a newspaper's circulation totals.

Neither is a burning public issue, but what this organization lacks in pizazz it makes up for in power. Its work is the basis for the major share of all advertising spending in the United States. Although its circulation figures are not as widely known as the A.C. Nielsen ratings for the broadcast industry, they are considered much more conclusive.

While the Nielsen ratings are, by definition, only an estimate of how many people watch a program, ABC's audited circulation figures represent the exact the number of copies sold by a newspaper. Their reliability is recognized by courts, government agencies and postal authorities. Perhaps more importantly, they are recognized by the advertising and publishing industries that ABC serves.

That was not always true. In the brawling newspaper wars of the 1880s, publishers often believed those figures were nobody's business but their own. But advertisers, who were being charged on the basis of circulation, disagreed.

To get a clue as to actual circulation, they hired agencies to spy on the papers. In turn, the agencies hired people to stand with an ear against a newspaper window in hopes that by the changing sounds of a press they could estimate how many papers were being printed. Some tried to bribe printers and others hired people to follow deliverymen and count the papers being distributed.

These agencies evolved into brokers who bought space in the newspapers for advertisers; they later developed creative functions. Some of the nation's biggest advertising agencies, including J. Walter Thompson in New York and N. W. Ayer in Chicago, began as space brokers.

In 1914, advertisers and the ad agencies forced publishers to form the Audit Bureau of Circulations to establish ground rules for circulation accounting, to act as a scorekeeper to enforce those rules and provide reports of verified circulation data.

As ABC spokesman Charles O. Bennett, who wrote a book about the organization, says, "The ABC is a non-profit, industry self-regulation organization paid for by 5,000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers of daily and weekly newspapers, business publications, magazines and farm publications. It audits approximately 75 percent of all print media in the United States and Canada."

Each member is audited every year except for the the tiniest of publications, and those are audited every two years. An ABC auditor has the right to all financial documents, Bennett says, and that includes the publisher's expense account.

"It is not unknown for such things to be used to buy newspapers, thus driving the circulation figure k2y' he says blisher pays for his own audit by the ABC but has no say over it. The publisher may protest to the group's directors, but the majority of members on the board come from the advertising and agency sectors. And the figures the audit comes up with are published for all to see.

ABC figures show that despite the demise of many afternoon newspapers, consolidations and acquisitions, the circulation of the nation's newspapers remained remarkably steady in the last two years.

In 1981, total daily newspaper circulation was 62,238,346. In 1982, total daily newspaper circulation was 62,157,655. There were 1,721 daily papers in the United States in 1981, there were 1,718 in 1982.

The number of Sunday papers actually increased during that period from 720 in 1981 to 732 in 1982. "We find that if one newspaper dies in a competitive area after awhile its readership moves over to the remaining paper," Bennett says.

Pressures robbing children of childhood, panel says

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Recall the easy, carefree days of youth. Days full of hope and promise. Times of barefoot freedom and Tom-Sawyer-like adventure.

Those days don't exist, if they ever did, said panelists at a recent parent education night sponsored by Rusk Elementary PTA.

The speakers — composed of educators, administrators, counselors and PTA representatives — discussed pressures on children today. They covered such stress-causing factors as homework, extracurricular activities, peer pressure and expectations of parents and teachers.

"We need to be careful to provide children with time to play, time to be children," began moderator Joe Rubin, coordinator of reading and language arts for the Midland Independent School District. The program was entitled "Time for Work. Time for Play."

Stress can be caused by positive as well as negative events and situations, family counselor Linda George explained. An outstanding personal achievement can produce more stress than moving to a new city. "Stress is defined as pressure from outside that makes us feel tense inside," she said.

"Our children are so rushed and so hurried they seem older than they are," she added. "Children are entitled to be children and to have a childhood."

Although the panelists had no magic answers for helping children deal with pressure, they said parents need to recognize and understand it. There will be as many solutions as there are children and problems.

Bobby Williams Sr.

"Peer pressure has got to be the greatest amount of stress a child can receive," ventured Bobby Williams Sr., president-elect of City Council PTA. "This is a tremendous problem and parents have to learn to cope with it at home."

"You have to encourage kids to be themselves and do what's right," added Ron Hunt, coordinator of physical education, health and driver education for MISD.

Bill Sherman, principal at Rusk, said parents, teachers and children need to communicate more and agree on social and academic expectations that are neither too high nor too low for the student. "You must get a hold on what a child is capable of doing. If we can keep it within realistic bounds we can keep the child from suffering intense stress."

Hunt said sometimes parents and coaches put undue pressure on children competing in extracurricular activities. He said athletics should be emphasized as a means of physical and social development.

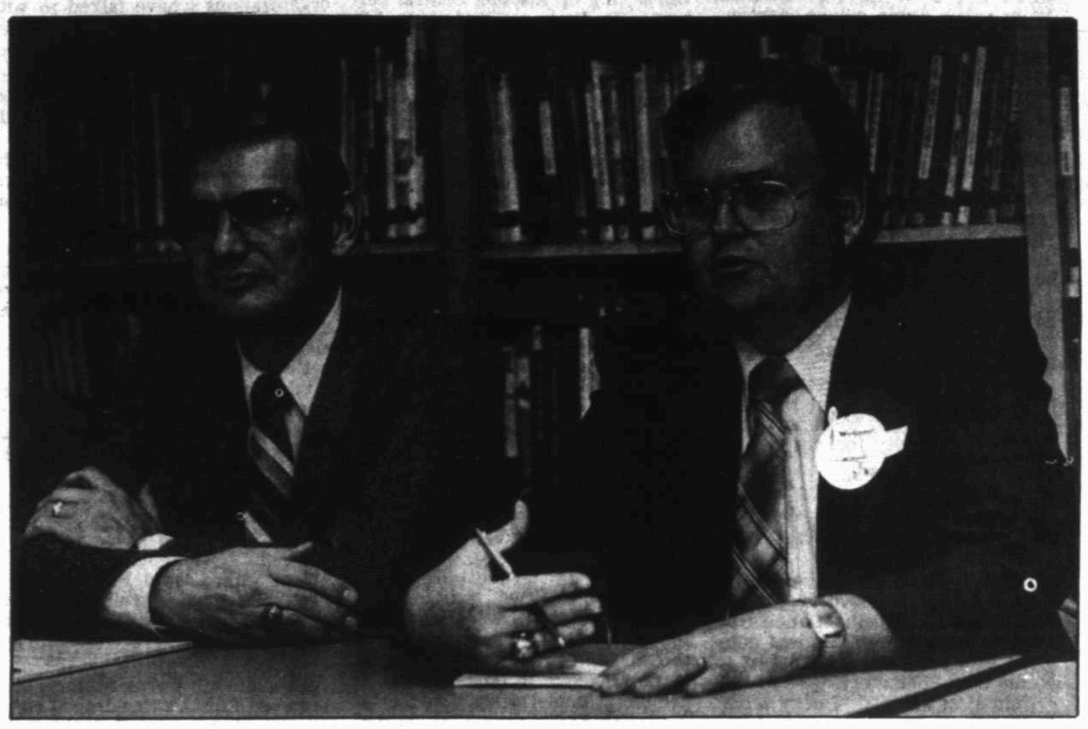

"They need to play. Not just the good ones — everyone. They need experience both in failure and success. The emphasis shouldn't be on winning.

"These championships are adult inspired, not kid oriented," he said.

Tommie Hicks, a third grade teacher at Rusk, said it is important for parents to work with children, delegate responsibility, teach time management and utilize the child's skills in everyday life. Reading with them or allowing them to compare prices while shopping are some positive ways parents can help teach their children, she said. Doing their homework for them is not.

"I would never ask them to take anything home that they didn't know how to complete themselves," she told them, adding it was not the parents responsibility to teach.

One spectator asked if some stress wasn't necessary for children. "Stress isn't all bad," Ms. George answered. "Some learn from it and weather it and grow."

Former Midland officer testifies to police misconduct

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Allegations of police misconduct and coverups dominated testimony Wednesday in the trial of seven officers accused of violating the civil rights of two men following their arrest at Hogan Park on May 16, 1982.

In attempting to establish a pattern of brutality in the department, attorney Bob Evans called several officers to the stand, including former officer Paul Love.

Love, now a deputy sheriff in Lufkin, told jurors it "was common practice" on the Midland force to unjustifiably charge people with the "catch-all charges" of disorderly conduct and public intoxication.

He further testified that there were contests to see who could write the most tickets or make the most arrests, and that he had personally witnessed incidents where prisoners were unnecessarily roughed up.

He also said he knew of one officer who carried a switchblade for use as a "throwdown weapon, if needed."

Love said on one occasion a prisoner's head was "slammed into a typewriter three or four times" during the booking procedure. Another time, according to Love, canine officer Ed Nicks and former canine officer Terry Lowe "put their dogs on a subject who was not a threat at the time."

Love said it was Nicks who carried the throwdown knife and that Nicks once told patrol officers at a briefing session that he "would pay $5 to any officer who found a burglar in a building so his dog could get on him."

Under questioning by Evans, Love said a letter he wrote to his supervisor about one incident "was thrown back in my face because he said it would get too many officers in trouble."

Love testified that he "was ostracized" over the letter and later resigned his four-year tenure, partly because he "was scared" by some of the things he said he witnessed in the department.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Charlie Tighe, Love admitted having been suspended for 30 days "for lying to the chief" over a brutality allegation made against him.

He also said there were times when he unjustifiably charged people with disorderly conduct. But he denied having an "axe to grind" against Chief of Police Wayne Gideon, saying he "liked and respected the chief" and thought he was doing "a good job."

"(It) was common practice" to unjustifiably charge people with the "catch-all charges" of disorderly conduct and public intoxication...(There were contests to see who could write the most tickets or make the most arrests, and that he had personally witnessed incidents where prisoners were unnecessarily roughed up...one officer who carried a switchblade for use as a "throwdown weapon, if needed.")

—Paul Love, former Midland police officer

Former canine officer Lonnie Payne testified that in 1982 he saw current canine officer Pat Bostick hit a handcuffed prisoner "four or five times in the face."

Payne said he told Bostick: "Pat, that's enough. Leave him alone." Payne also testified that his supervisor "more of less shrugged off" the incident when Payne apprised him of it.

Bostick admitted hitting the prisoner, but said he did so only "once in frustration" after exchanging gunfire with the man prior to his arrest.

Payne was fired earlier this year on an excessive force complaint and faces both criminal and civil charges over the incident, which occurred during a shoplifting arrest at the M System Food Store on Scharbauer Drive.

Refuting allegations of condoned misconduct and perfunctory internal investigations were Gideon, City Attorney Joe Nuessle, and City Councilmen Jesse Hatfield and Tom Sloan.

Gideon recounted times when officers were either fired or suspended after allegations of misconduct were borne out by internal investigations.

He also noted that a formal internal affairs division, which reports directly to city officials, was set up about six months ago. Prior to that, investigations were assigned to various detectives in the department.

In response to questions by Evans, Gideon said the canine division works from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. "That's when the most crime occurs," he noted. "They have more activity than the other (shifts)."

He further testified that the only time he had heard the word "Gestapo" used to describe the canine division came "when I used that term in anger one day. I said I wouldn't tolerate Gestapo tactics" in the division.

Gideon went on the describe the physical and psychiatric testing that takes place when officers are hired. He also said that "there is no way" of knowing if any one of the 160 or so officers in the department is carrying a prohibited weapon on any given day. "We won't tolerate misconduct," he added.

Nuessle testified that he had never heard the term "Gestapo Squad" used "until this moment." He also outlined procedures set up to investigate complaints, saying: "We have more disciplinary action taken in the police department than in any other department because it's so sensitive."

In describing the police force, Nuessle said: "I'm proud of 'em."

Sloan and Hatfield also defended the department. Asked if the city discourages misconduct, Sloan said: "There's no question about it."

Hatfield noted that he periodically rides with the police to see how they operate: "I just show up, unannounced. While we've got some problems, mainly with young officers, I'm proud of the department. Overall, they're doing a good job. They work effectively and professionally."

Hatfield admitted that four former officers came to him with complaints two years ago, but he said they did not name any names or make any specific charges.

"I felt like there was some animosity toward Chief Gideon and that they had an axe to grind," said Hatfield. "I suggested that if they had proof, they should take it to the grand jury."

The seven officers named in the federal suit, along with Gideon and the city, are accused of beating and kicking Burt and Marvel Garcia during their arrest on illegal drinking and resisting arrest charges.

In testimony Wednesday, police said the brothers provoked a fight, but that no unnecessary force was used in the arrest.

In testimony Tuesday, Burt Garcia admitted lying under oath in a statement about the incident. He could be charged with perjury when the civil rights trial ends.

Testimony was to resume in U.S. District Court at 9 a.m. today.

Couples sue over use of formaldehyde

From Staff and Wire Reports

Two Midland couples, claiming formaldehyde used in the construction of their home caused bronchial and respiratory problems to their children, filed a $1.6 million lawsuit against the mobile home manufacturer and distributor.

Plaintiffs Danny and Donna McDaniel Edwards and Charles and Nancy McDaniel Williams, who lived in the same mobile home at different times, claim in the federal lawsuit their infant children Denise Marie Edwards, 2, and Kassandra Williams, 16 months, developed the problems while they lived in the home.

Breck Homes Inc. of Breckenridge and D&C Sales of Big Spring were named as defendants in the lawsuit.

Houston attorney Arnold Vickery, who filed the suit Nov. 2 in U.S. District Court, stated formaldehyde contained in wood particle board and other materials used in the home caused the children's respiratory problems.

"We don't have any standards, frankly, by which to build our homes at this time," Breck Homes General Manager Bud Ledingham said Wednesday, but he said he had not seen the lawsuit and could not comment directly on it.

Ledingham did say, however, that the Texas Manufactured Housing Association is "addressing this whole issue (use of formaldehyde) very seriously."

Glenda Wilson, office manager for D&C Sales, said she had not seen the lawsuit and declined to comment on it.

The suit claims the mobile home was purchased from D&C Sales by Donna Edwards's parents about Nov. 3, 1979. The Edwards family lived in the trailer from the birth of their daughter Denise Marie in November 1979 through July 1982.

According to the suit, the child developed respiratory problems during the 11 months that she lived in the mobile home with her parents. She since has been diagnosed as having asthma.

After the Edwardses moved out of the mobile home, Mrs. Edwards's sister and brother-in-law, Nancy and Charles Williams, moved into the home.

The suit alleges the Williams' daughter Kassandra, born July 1982, also experienced similar problems.

The suit states the parents also experienced similiar medical problems, but they were not linked to the mobile home.

Although the home is unfit to be occupied, the suit claims, the Williams still live in it.

PBRPC OKs plan to widen roads

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

The widening of two streets and the 1983-84 Regional Alcohol Plan were given favorable comment Wednesday by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission board.

The commission approved the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation's proposals to widen FM 1788 and Yukon Road in Odessa.

The state department's $1,538,000 construction project will convert 1.1 miles of FM 1788 from a two-lane highway to four lanes. The project will require the widening of the overpass structure at Interstate 20 from 28 feet to 68 feet, according to Jerry Tschauner, PBRPC director of planning. Tschauner said Midland County will finance the curb and gutter cost.

A formal application for the project should be submitted in April 1984, according to Tschauner.

Grain still won't be released

Strake blames Tip O'Neill

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Texas State Republican Chairman George Strake said Wednesday that the biggest hurdle to releasing stored grain to drought-stricken ranchers is House Speaker Tip O'Neill, who has three times shut the door on West Texas by vetoing release legislation.

Last week, for the third time, O'Neill would not allow the House Rules Committee to consider an amendment by U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, that would have authorized the release of grain in 28 drought-stricken counties, according to Strake.

The amendment would have been attached to the second continuing resolution which Congress must pass by Nov. 18 to keep certain government agencies afloat.

"Like a New England gale, the cold hand of Tip O'Neill has swept down over the drought-stricken plains of West Texas with a callous disregard for those who supply meat for dinner tables and sweaters for backs of New Englanders," Strake said.

The Republican chairman noted, however, that there was hope since Loeffler has pushed another bill through the House Agriculture Committee which would call for release of the grain.

A spokesman in Loeffler's office said it was being tied to the spending bill and might have a better chance of passing.

"Again, that bill is awaiting the debate schedule from Tip O'Neill," Strake said. "But do the ranchers of West Texas have time to wait?"

U.S. Agriculture Department officials said Tuesday in Lubbock that Secretary John Block would not oppose legislation to release the grain and that his department has already drawn up plans for that release as soon as the legislation passes.

To help push the legislation through Congress, Strake called on Jim Hightower, state agriculture commissioner, for assistance.

"Hightower and our attorney general (Jim Mattox) should use their influence on their fellow Democrats to help us. That's a lot faster than filing a suit which takes months to hear." Last week, the two state officials filed a suit in Midland's federal district court that would force Block to release the grain. A hearing has been set for Dec. 1 in El Paso.

Strake also urged Hightower and Gov. Mark White to begin preparations for moving the grain to West Texas ranchers whenever the legislation passes. Bills pending in the House and Senate call for means other than federal funding to transport this corn. According to USDA figures, there are about 15 million tons of 4, 5 and Sample Grade corn in storage at Plainview as of March 1982 that ranchers would be eligible for under the pending legislation.

Strake said he had written to Block on behalf of the Republican Party of Texas and had urged the secretary to expedite planning for the eventual release of the grain for West Texas.

But with the recent rains and lateness of the season, Strake also admitted the grain might be coming a little late.

Election Central had problems

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has a new computerized operation in the secretary of states office to speed accurate counting of votes, but it also has some small-town county clerks who do things in their own good time.

Despite a Tuesday voter turnout of only 10 percent, the new Election Central did not have final totals until the next day, at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Some clerks, particularly in smaller counties, locked up and went home Tuesday night without calling in their vote results.

"They have to report," Secreteary of State John Fainter said of the county clerks, "but there's no real enforcement mechanism on it."

Fainter said the small-town clerks "are more independent in many regards. They're kind of laid-back. They're used to doing business and they are going to continue to do business their own way."

The secretary of state said the new Election Central law requires clerks to report their totals, but there's no deadline.

"It would be our responsibility to try to run it down. It's the responsibility of the clerk to report, but there's no penalty for not reporting," said Fainter.

Election Central, a computerized operation in the secretary of state's office, replaced the Texas Election Bureau, a private, nonprofit organization that did election night vote-counting since 1916. It got its first preliminary test in the 1982 statewide elections.

The 1983 Legislature approved a bill setting up Election Central permanently. Early versions of the bill made it a misdemeanor offense for clerks to fail to report to Election Central. But an amendment pushed by county clerks took out the penalty.

The final version of the bill requires the clerks to report to the secretary of state before reporting to anyone else.

"Some of the counties closed down before calling us," Fainter said.

He made it clear he does not intend to pressure clerks who were late in reporting.

"I think we have a good relationship with the counties," he said. "We may not have had enough incoming lines and we're working on our intake procedures, which will be substantially improved for the primary next year."

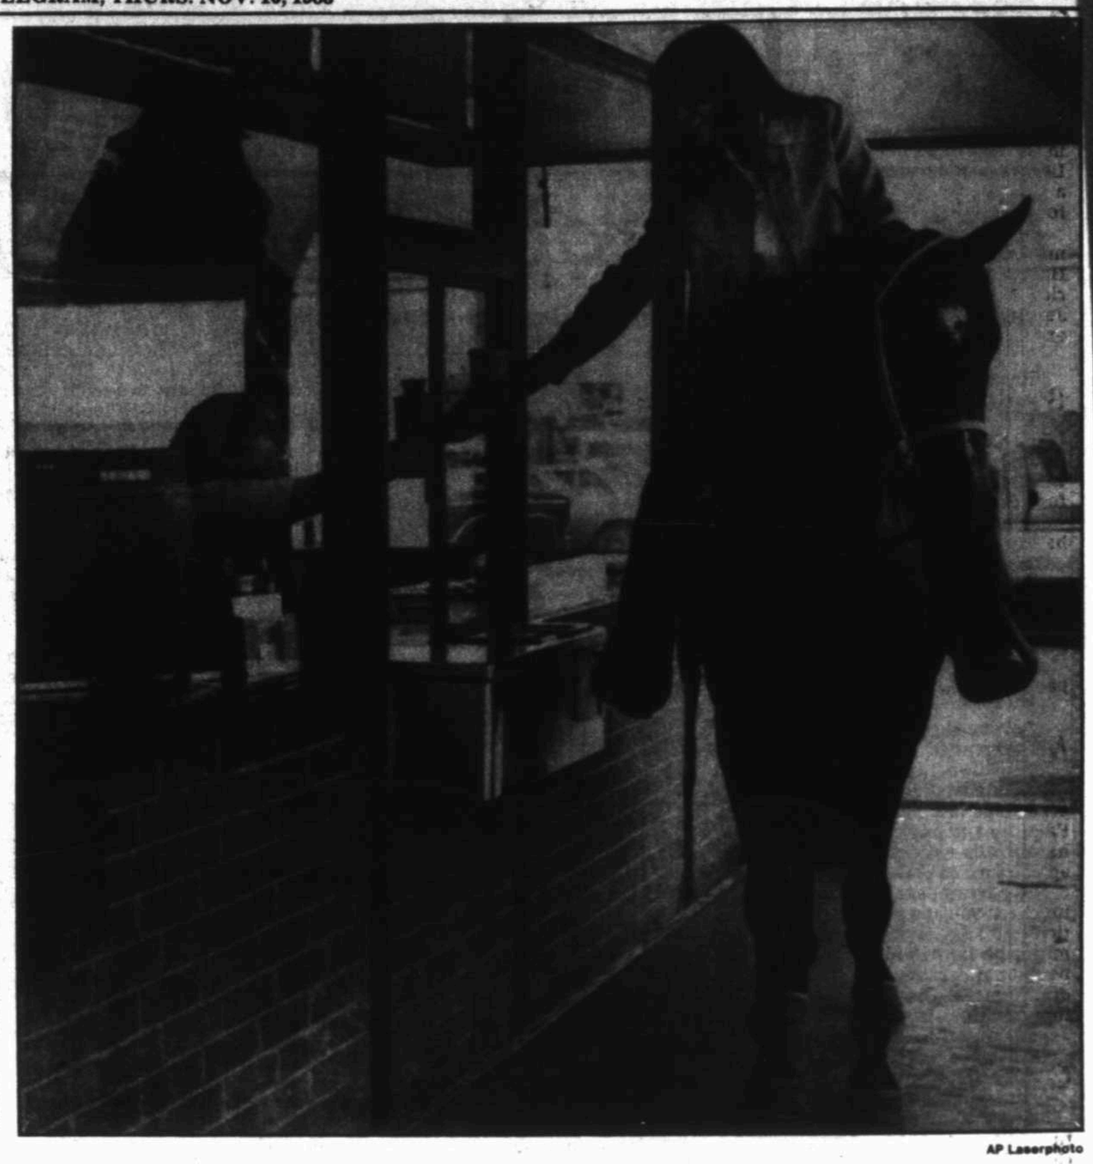

Dallas Morning News Assistant Managing Editor John Cranfill, who chairs the news media committee that advises the secretary of state on how to operate Election Central, said he had asked Fainter to meet with the panel soon to discuss the problems.

"There is concern among the news organizations I have talked to with the way Election Central conducted its business," Cranfill said. "They object to the system's being shut down at midnight. We plan to meet with Secretary Fainter soon and discuss the problems."

Some newsmen complained the computer system "crashed" several times, especially late in the evening, slowing down the operation.

Cranfill, who observed the operation Tuesday night, said the computer worked well "most of the evening — but we saw problems develop after 10 o'clock, and then election returns were shut off compelley at midnight.

"Our objective will be to smooth out the problems before we enter 1984 and face a larger voter turnout in a presidential election year," he said.

Victim of Beirut bombing buried

FORT WORTH (AP) — As a flag flew at half staff above the Doughboy Memorial, Marine Lance Cpl. Michael Scott Fulton, 21, was eulogized as a hero and laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Fulton, nicknamed "Lucky Mike" during his stint with U.S. peacekeeping forces in Lebanon, was among the 230 U.S. servicemen killed when a terrorist drove a bomb-laden truck into the American command post at the Beirut airport on Oct. 23.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God," Chaplain Stan Scott of the Dallas Naval Air Station read from the Bible as a Marine honor guard stood by during the graveside service Wednesday.

Funeral services were scheduled today for another Texas victim of the suicide bombing, Army Spec. 4 Marcus Coleman of Dallas.

Funeral home officials said Coleman, like Fulton, would be buried with full military honors. He was to be buried in his family's plot in Lincoln Memorial Park Cemetery in southeast Dallas.

About 100 people, including a few in uniform who had graduated from boot camp with Fulton, attended the ceremony in the gray cold.

Chief Warrant Officer J.D. Brown of the naval air station, who led the honor guard, said Fulton died a hero. "He made the ultimate sacrifice for his country. He died in the line of duty."

The Marine Corps honor guard removed Fulton's flag-draped coffin from the hearse and placed it on the bier.

Three volleys of rifle fire followed the eulogy. Then the haunting strains of Taps drifted across the cemetery.

Fulton joined the Marines in 1980. He arrived in Lebanon in May and was due to come home before Christmas.

Cardiologists establish clinic for children

ODESSA (AP) — Javier Garcia Jr. proudly lifts his blue T-shirt to display a row of black stitches that descend from the top of his chest to just above his navel.

In June, surgeons at Fort Worth Children's Hospital opened the 5-year-old Odessan's chest to close a hole the size of a quarter between the upper chambers of his heart.

Two days after the operation, Javier was walking through the hospital's halls, looking for someone to play with.

"He hasn't stopped being active since," his mother said.

Mrs. Garcia and her shiny-eyed son were waiting at Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa to see Dr. Hudson Allender, a Fort Worth pediatric cardiologist.

Allender, 33, has joined his associate, Dr. Ralph Tierney, who has been conducting bi-annual pediatric cardiology clinics at Women's and Children's since 1976.

"You couldn't pay me enough to treat adults... Children don't have "hang-ups" on body image, as many teen-agers and adults do.

— Dr. Hudson Allender, pediatric cardiologist.

Those clinics now will be every three months since there are no pediatric cardiologists between El Paso and Fort Worth to meet the rising number of children being diagnosed with cardiac problems, Allender said.

"There's lots of kids in this area with heart disease," Allender said, noting that pediatrics is getting "more sophisticated" in recognizing such ailments in children.

"It's like that cigarette commercial, 'We've come a long way, baby,' " Allender said.

Of every 1,000 babies born, six to eight will have a heart defect of some kind, he said. Twenty percent to 30 percent of those with heart defects will undergo surgery.

Altogether, 55 children from throughout the Permian Basin were seen by the specialists in one visit. Allender examined 46 of them.

"Heart disease in kids generally involves a plumbing problem," he said, explaining that tiny holes in the heart can get larger as children grow older.

But, the doctor said, "Heart attacks and sudden death are very uncommon in kids," who recover quickly from surgeries.

Children usually can be discharged from the hospital within 10 days of most heart surgeries, Allender said, while most adults who undergo open-heart surgery are hospitalized for at least two weeks.

Allender said heart diseases in children are congenital — present at birth — while heart diseases in adults usually result from "living too well."

Although dealing with children presents some unique challenges, Allender said he would much rather treat youngsters than oldsters.

"You couldn't pay me enough to treat adults," he said.

Children, the doctor said, don't have "hang-ups" on body image, as many teen-agers and adults do.

Most children, he said, adapt well to heart disease. The hardest part of the diagnosis is trying to explain the problem to a child, especially if the patient has no symptoms.

Javier Garcia had no symptoms. His mother said the hole in his heart was the size of a pinhead when he was born.

VFW post plans memorial service

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7208 will conduct a memorial service at 10 a.m. Friday on the south lawn of Midland County Courthouse to commemorate Veterans Day.

"The memorial service is to honor the veterans of all wars and those in the conflicts going on now, like in Beirut," said Barbara Blocker.

The colors will be posted and a wreath will be placed on a war memorial set on that south lawn. Speakers will be County Judge William Ahders and the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Baptist Church.

After the ceremony, refreshments will be served at Post 7208, 1306 E. Taylor Ave.

Nurse's aid stabs four elderly residents

DALLAS (AP) — Four elderly nursing home residents were stabbed by a nurse's aide who earlier had tried to poison a younger man she was caring for at his home.

Administrators at Doctors Nursing Center in northeast Dallas said the 34-year-old woman had been employed there for about two weeks.

PBRPC OKs road-widening plan

In Odessa, the state department is proposing to reconstruct 1.1 miles of Yukon Road from U.S. 385 East to Ector Avenue. Tschauner said the $388,000 project will widen the two-lane highway to four lanes.

According to Tschauner, Odessa's Comprehensive Development Plan in 1980 designated Yukon Road as a major east-west urban thoroughfare.

In other business, the PBRPC board adopted the 1983-84 Regional Alcohol Plan. Objectives in the final draft include a speaker's bureau, an intervention program and a treatment and rehabilitation program.

According to Cathy Clayton, PBRPC director for alcohol and drug abuse, most of the programs are a continuation of existing ones. She said the 1984 plan stresses information and education about drugs and alcohol for minorities and women.

"We need to try to get more women and minorities into counseling," Ms. Clayton said. "We tend to be treating middle-class, white males."

Bond set in drug possession case

Two men who were arrested Tuesday night after landing a plane filled with marijuana at Midland Air Park were arraigned Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Darrell Smith, but bond was set on only one man.

Gregore Byron Shelton, about 43, also known as Jerry Macoy, was charged with possession with intent to distribute. Bond was set at $1 million.

The other man, George B. Bevens, about 36, was given the same charge. Bond will be set this afternoon.

Both men are from California, according to an FBI spokesman.

U.S. Customs agents had followed the Beechcraft Kingair 200 since it crossed the border at Mexico and headed north. When it landed at Midland Air Park officers from the Midland Police and Sheriff's Department were waiting and arrested the two men. Sixty bundles of marijuana, weighing approximately 999 pounds and sealed in brown paper were unloaded from the plane and placed in storage for evidence.

Investigation of the case is continuing, said a spokesman with the FBI office here. He also noted this was the first time in his six years at Midland that a plane carrying marijuana had landed at Air Park.

Chiropractors offer spinal problems screening

Several Midland chiropractors will be offering free screenings for problem conditions of the spine during November, which was declared Spinal Health Month by Gov. Mark White.

According to Dr. Don H. Handley, president of the Texas Chiropractic Association, "There is a shocking number of people who have spinal and postural defects and do not know it."

He estimated that three out of four people in the state have spinal health problems of which they are not aware. Unless there is pain or an impairment of mobility or performance, most often these problems go undetected until they become severe, according to a news release from the TCA.

"I get so many patients that think it'll wear out that they just let it get worse," said Midland chiropractor Dr. M.S. Knisely. "Sometimes it'll only take one treatment to correct it."

Dr. Joe T. Boyd, another Midland chiropractor, agreed: "This primarily is to make the public aware that yes, this is a serious problem and it often can be corrected."

Boyd said children especially should be brought in for spinal examinations.

"If you can catch it in the early stage, like from infancy through 14- or 15-years-old, we usually have good results in preventing problems in the future."

Many parents, who are concerned their child will need a brace or surgery to correct a problem, don't bring their children in for screenings, he said. Often, a manipulative treatment is all that is needed to relax muscles and soft tissues which may be pulling the vertebra out of alignment, he said.

"We know what we can correct and what we can't," Boyd said.

He suggested parents be aware of shoulder or hip pain because that often is "a good indicator" something is amiss with the spine.

More than 1,300 chiropractic doctors in the state have agreed to provide the complimentary screenings this month.

Officials delay selection of waste disposal site

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Five consulting firms, originally scheduled to submit technical proposals before November on environmental work needed for a proposed low-level radioactive waste disposal facility, have been notified of delays in selection of the site, a spokesman for the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority says.

The "prime site" won't be selected by the authority until early next year, reports manager Rich Jacobi.

"We probably won't start environmental work until March 1984," Jacobi said. "We can't ask for a technical proposal, unless we know where the parcel of land (for the prime site) is."

While negotiations have been under way for land owned by the University of Texas system in Hudspeth County and for land owned by private citizens in Dimmit and Baylor counties, Jacobi said, "We're still looking at 16 counties."

Other counties under consideration for a site are Borden, Garza, Frio, Haskell, Howard, Knox, LaSalle, Maverick, Mitchell, Throckmorton, Webb, Scurry and Zavala, he said.

Jacobi said they hope to have two or three "candidate sites" selected by Dec. 1.

Original plans called for the prime site to be selected by Oct. 1.

The five firms asked to submit technical proposals are based in Houston, Philadelphia and New York City.

Jacobi noted the authority, which was created by the 1981 Legislature to select, prepare and operate a waste site for disposing radioactive wastes generated in Texas, is searching for a 400-acre site.

State Supreme Court reverses divorce decision

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court changed its mind about a woman's right to a portion of the increase in value of her husband's business.

In a 5-4 vote, the court Wednesday threw out its July 6 decision and ruled that Burlene Parks Jensen of Dallas won't share in the jump in value of Robert Lee Jensen's printing business. This decision took away the money originally awarded Mrs. Jensen.

Although Jensen bought the business before his July 21, 1975, marriage, his wife claimed the divorce decree should have given her a portion of the substantial increase in value of the business accumulated during the marriage.

Jensen, former president of the Dallas Times Herald, bought 48,455 shares of RLJ Printing Co., for $1.56 per share.

New FM roads will be built

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation has authorized construction of 194 miles of new Farm-to-Market roads totaling nearly $50.2 million, including 7.5 miles in the district which includes Midland County.

Total estimated cost of the district work is $1,372,000, according to Richard Vander Straten, program engineer with the department.

Actual construction of the proposed roads in District 6 must await acquisition of right of way, which the department notes is the responsibility of local officials in the 64 counties where the 68 new projects have been authorized. Acquiring right of way could take several years in some areas of Texas, according to the department.

The project in District 6 includes work in Ector County, from State Highway 158 and Hollyhock Street in Gardendale, south to East Loop 338 and Grandview Street.

While funds for new construction, which come from the state's general revenue fund, are roughly the same as in previous years, the department says a decrease in inflation over the last three years is allowing highway engineers to get more miles of work out of the budget.

During the highly inflationary 1979-80 budget period, the department authorized only about 60 miles of new FM construction per year, but currently about 97 miles per year are being authorized.

No project is scheduled in Midland County.

Burglars take clothes

Burglars made off with more than $38,000 worth of clothing from High Chaparral Western Wear, 3116 W. Front St., according to Midland Police Department reports. The theft took place between closing time Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Entry was apparently gained through a door that had been pried open. A nearby window was also chipped. No arrests have been made in the case.

The home of Josephine Reyes, 1123 E. Pecan, was also burglarized Wednesday between 7:30 and 11 a.m. According to reports, a stereo system, cassette radio, black and white television and ring valued at $400 were taken.

Computers give children head start on learning

By BARBARA O'NEILL
Copley News Service

OCEANSIDE, Calif. — By the time he turned 2, Joey Flores knew his alphabet and his numbers and the names of shapes and colors.

Then he turned to his mother and begged her for more instruction.

NOW, AT 3, Joey spends his Saturday mornings contentedly sitting in front of a computer.

He's completely absorbed by the glowing screen, the keyboard full of letters and the words and numbers he helps create.

In turn, the computer is helping Joey learn to read, construct sentences and perform basic mathematical functions.

Recently, with a little adult assistance, he wrote his first computer program — one that flashes his name on the screen, on command.

"The only thing that's holding him back now is his gross motor coordination," said Mary Gleisberg, Joey's computer teacher.

She noted that Joey's chubby little fingers sometimes have trouble finding the right computer keys, and she has to help.

Still, all in all, "This is a perfect age," she said.

SO, PERFECT, FELT Gleisberg, a reading specialist with the Oceanside schools, that last spring she designed a computer class just for the preschool set.

Her "Kinder Computer" classes debuted at the Computer Scholar Center in Oceanside in June.

Now she and the owners of Computer Scholar — a franchise of computer learning centers for all ages — are on the verge of marketing the program nationally.

Using the limited number of computer programs now available for their age group, the 3- to 6-year-old "Kinder Computer" students are able to learn the workings of the computer at their own speed.

Some must first memorize the alphabet and then the positions of the letters on the keyboard, but such skills are acquired rapidly.

"Young children, especially around 3, are intent on learning," Gleisberg said. "They absorb everything at an incredible rate. Why not expose them to computers?"

CNS Photo

Joey Flores, who had learned his alphabet and numbers turning 2, now — at age 3 — is getting into computers in a big way. One problem: the machine takes too long to warm up.

HER CLASSES ARE not just for the gifted, either, she insists. Rather, they are meant to "bring out the giftedness in all children."

The results of the program, which is taught with a Montessori approach, have been "very exciting," she said.

"We haven't found a child yet who isn't interested."

At a recent Saturday morning session, 5-year-old Eryn Simmers spent about 30 minutes totally engrossed by a program that helped her learn how to spell the names of the days of the week.

Stacy Brant, who just turned 6, eagerly bounded from program to program, seeking new computer challenges.

AND JOEY — WHO, like many 3-year-olds, still has trouble pronouncing "computer" — nearly cried when his parents came to take him home.

Which is not to say that all of the young "Kinder Computer" students are able to spend a full two-hour class session sitting still in front of a computer screen.

The youngest students, especially, may start squirming in their seats after 15 to 20 minutes.

"We work individually with each child," said Gleisberg, who has several other teachers working with her. "Some can take more computer time than others."

So, between computer-learning segments, Gleisberg has sandwiched music and art appreciation, with the children listening to the works of composers such as Bach and Mozart, and studying paintings by such artists as Picasso.

THERE ALSO IS a story time included, as well as free time for drawing and a juice break.

Even so, the students often request to go back to their computers before it's time.

"What can I do next?" asked young Joey, as he waited impatiently for his computer to warm up at a recent session.

His mother said she is delighted with the program. "He's learning things I don't even know," she said.

Gleisberg notes that many of her students have computers at home or parents who work with computers. However, some of the other parents, who at this point know even less about the machines than their preschoolers, have signed up for lessons, too.

Home office best of both worlds

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q.I am moving my office to my home because I'm an accountant and in semi-retirement. I will have a few clients coming to my home-office which has its own entrance from the side of our home.

I want a warm, traditional look yet it must be functional. What considerations are there in creating a room like this and what kind of furniture would you suggest I buy? — W.V.

A. Planning a home office can follow the principles of planning any office — decide on the image you wish to project, equip the office with what works for you considering the demands you will have, create an efficient floor plan and finally, light and accessorize the office well.

Certainly a desk is usually a prerequisite but a desk can take many forms — from the traditional type to a simple table allowing you to spread out your papers and charts.

Think about the need for a credenza or a small set of bookshelves with cabinets to conceal some of your materials.

Don't overlook a table or working space for a home computer and typewriter near your desk so you will be working in the 20th century. And plan conveniently for your telephone.

Most home offices use a desk chair on casters to allow you easy access to various parts of the office. In addition, you'll probably want to provide a chair or two for your guests. A lounge chair and ottoman would give an informal look where a pair of small wingback chairs would give a more formal one. Or a pair of club chairs would fit into a formal or informal scheme.

Q. I have a large, naturally lighted living room because several walls are glass. I want a very subdued feeling and am wondering how I might accomplish this.

My favorite color is blue and I'd like to do it throughout in perhaps a monochromatic way or with other colors.

I am buying new furniture to go with some nice English wood pieces and an accent or two of Oriental. Please give me some ideas. B.B.H.

A. A dull teal blue and off-white print could be lovely on a pair of sofas or a sofa and loveseat or even a sofa itself. A solid dull blue carpeting would be pleasant as would a slightly lighter or darker blue in a solid fabric on a wooden arm chair or chairs.

Accessorize with brass or chrome as well as Oriental items and plants. This should give you a calm, cool room.

Q. What would give my windows the most tailored and least obtrusive look?

I have a sliding glass door and two windows in my living room which I don't want to call attention to. But I need some light control during the day and privacy at night. W.B.

A, My guess is that vinyl louvers hung vertically would be the least obtrusive. They blend well with nearly any decor and are easy to open and close. The vertical blinds are more functional than horizontal ones because they tend to collect less dust.

Fear of dentists common phobia

By DON CARTER
Hearst Feature Service

SEATTLE – Fear of dentists is a common phobia that ranks right behind fears of snakes, heights, storms and flying.

Being terrified of dentists ranks as a fear for 198 persons out of every 1,000, and as such is well behind fear of snakes – 390 persons out of 1,000 – but well ahead of such fears as injury, illness, death and being closed-in, according to researchers here.

That adds up to nearly one-fifth of the nation's population being terrified of dentists. In the past two years, the University of Washington's School of Dentistry's Dental Fears Research Clinic has treated about 100 people and learned enough about their fears to write a book, which will be published early next year.

The researchers conclude there are no simple answers to the dental fear problem because no two "dentalphobics" are alike. Some have had bad childhood experiences, says UW dentist Dr. Peter Milgrom, "and others have had bad experiences recently – they were treated when they weren't numb or had their fears belittled, put down."

Dentists often dismiss their fearful patients as "uncooperative, irresponsible," says Tracy Getz, one of the program's psychological counselors. Fearful patients also are viewed as expensive because they tend to cancel appointments at the last minute.

Ironically, few of the dentalphobics are elderly people who can remember the days when dentists drilled on patients without the benefit of anesthetics. "It's much more common in young people," says Milgrom. "Fears tend to go away with time, just as a child is no longer afraid of the dark when he gets older."

The majority of the UW's fearful patients are 25 to 45 years old, and Getz says they typically comment that "the last time I went to a dentist was when I was 17 and my mother made me."

Often, dental work has been put off for purely practical reasons; the young person wants to land a job with a dental insurance plan before he or she sees the dentist.

When things are put off, either for economic reasons or basic fears, "the fears are always exaggerated," Getz says. "They have more time to anticipate, to dread. When they finally come in, they think their teeth are all going to fall out or that they're going to need a general anesthetic to have all their teeth pulled."

One of the complications is that going to the dentist is something that can't be put off forever.

"It's fairly easy to structure your life to avoid snakes or flying," Getz says. "But with teeth, there's going to be a confrontation (a serious toothache) someday."

Unfortunately, the painful "confrontation" is likely to fuel dental fears. Milgrom says that this "is a very trying situation for the dentist" because the suffering patient is the most difficult to treat. "Usually, they're at their worst – not eating, not sleeping. And, paradoxically, it's very hard to numb someone who's infected and swollen."

People who go to the fear clinic receive an initial interview with a psychologist-counselor who explores the nature of the fears and ways to overcome them. Since the counselors aren't dentists, Getz says, the patients "feel they have an advocate."

Then the patients are introduced to a dentist, who makes an assessment of the dental problems. Milgrom says that patients usually are relieved to find that things aren't as bad as they thought they were going to be.

From there, the dentists and psychologists use a whole bag of tricks custom-tailored to the individual's fears. The dental fears program has options that parallel current "fear of flying" classes. Education (very few people die in either airplanes or dentists' chairs) is followed by a gradual introduction to the dental work.

For those who simply don't trust dentists, there is a slower, proceed-at-your-own-fully-informed-pace program. Emphasis is on the upbeat accomplishment of each step. "Dentists often stress the bad news," Milgrom says. "They say, 'Here's a list of bad things, and it's going to cost you $6,000.' "

For those with specific fears, such as a fear of needles, there are alternative anesthetics. Nitrous oxide (laughing gas) is a good alternative for some patients, Milgrom says.

For those who believe they are allergic to Novocain, there's information (Novocain hasn't been used commonly in dentistry since the 1950s) and testing. Usually, the person is found not to be allergic to modern anesthetics. Many patients, Milgrom believes, have been misdiagnosed as allergic "because the panic reaction – fainting, racing pulse, difficulty in breathing – has been labeled an allergic reaction. It's not. It's plain old anxiety."

Bar soap may be hazardous

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It's the very symbol of cleanliness, but that innocent bar of soap may hide enough germs to make you sick, a Michigan State University researcher says.

While noting that the germs won't necessarily infect a person who uses a soap bar, professor Jon J. Kabara said Monday his finding was especially significant to health professionals who wash frequently and use bathrooms that are widely exposed to disease.

"You think of soap as a cleansing agent, but it could be worse than anything else," said Kabara. He recommends use of liquid soap dispensed from containers and believes laws should be enacted banning bar soap from public washrooms.

Kabara, who teaches biomechanics, and research assistant Mary B. Brady conducted a study for Minnetonka Inc.

Birth centers grow in popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — "Birth Centers," considered neither hospitals nor clinics, have expanded so rapidly in recent years that the Bell Yellow Pages has created a new heading for them.

Depending on the publishing schedule of individual Bell companies, the new heading will begin to appear in telephone directories in 1984.

Birth centers provide a homelike environment in which women with low-risk pregnancies can give birth as well as receive pre- and postnatal care.

The New Mexico Birth Center in Santa Fe, N.M., the first in the nation, was opened in 1945.

Today, more than 100 independent centers are operating nationwide.

DEAR ABBY

Girl rushing relationship

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who is seriously in love with a boy who will be 14 soon. I will call him "Matthew." He is gorgeous, sweet, kind, polite and a lot of fun. My problem is that I can never get him alone. Matthew always comes over with another kid or several other boys, but he never comes over all by himself.

I would like a close and loving relationship with him, but how do I get into one the way things are going? He knows how I feel about him because I told him. (Was that a mistake?)

When I asked Matthew how come he never comes to see me alone, he said his mother told him it was "dangerous." Abby, where is the danger? I'm not going to hurt him.

Answer soon because I want this guy to like me so bad I am going crazy. — POUNDING HEART IN DENVER

DEAR POUNDING: Slow down, honey. Girls mature earlier than boys, and you are moving too fast for Matthew. And yes, it was a mistake to tell him how you feel about him. (Boys, and girls too, know when someone "likes" them - they don't have to be told.) Matthew sounds like a normal boy his age. Don't try to get him alone or you may never see him at all.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired Chicago policeman now living in Arizona. I am constantly amazed at these retired people who open their wallets in public and expose large sums of money and a string of credit cards. Don't they realize that they are asking for trouble? I see this done at every checkout counter.

After the victim was robbed, this is what we used to suggest:

—Carry only as much money as you can afford to lose.

—Carry only the credit card you will be using. Leave the rest at home, and be sure the cards and a list of their numbers are in separate places.

—Keep your house keys and your ID in different places on your person. If a purse snatcher or a pickpocket gets both, he can rob your home anytime. If you do happen to lose both, have your locks changed immediately — I mean the same day!

Almost none of the victims had obeyed any of the above rules. — C.R. HALEY, PHOENIX, ARIZ.

DEAR MR. H.: Your rules are helpful for everyone — not only retired people. Thanks for reminding us.

DEAR ABBY: A man from Toronto was visiting friends in Florida last winter. Being handy around the house, he offered to repair a loose shelf for his friends. The shelf was lined with an old newspaper, and when the Toronto visitor looked at it he noticed that it was The Toronto Sun!

Face up was a "Dear Abby" column he knew he had never read, and being a fan of yours, he promptly scanned it right there on the shelf.

That column had a special meaning for him because he was a transsexual who had never had any help with his problem. In your column was a letter from Christine Jorgensen, suggesting that you publish addresses of places around the country where transsexuals could find help. Our friend quietly pocketed the column before he fixed the shelf.

Today he is a patient of "Confide," a personal counseling service in New York, one of the places you named, and he is well on his way to fulfilling a lifelong dream — to become a woman.

I thought you would like to know that you helped a very desperate man who was afflicted with the feeling of having been born into the wrong sex. — NO NAME, PLEASE

Transplant preferences charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recipient of a kidney transplant says patients from foreign countries in U.S. medical facilities to get kidney transplants could be getting preferential treatment for paying more.

Barbara Lindsay, representing the Patient Action Committee for kidney patients, told the panel there is no financial incentive for a physician to recommend an American over an alien because he can get immediate and full cash payment for his services from the alien, whereas he must wait, and then receive only partial payment from Medicare.

She testified Monday at a hearing by a House investigations and oversight subcommittee about whether foreigners are being charged more and given preference over Americans needing transplants in U.S. hospitals.

Medicare, the federal health insurance agency for the elderly and disabled, pays for the vast majority of kidney transplants in the United States.

Ms. Lindsay said there is no way to verify if a U.S. patient is displaced by a foreigner, "but there is a strong feeling among patients that that is the case." She said patients are afraid to say.

Warren T. Reich, professor of bioethics at the Georgetown University School of Medicine, told the subcommittee: "My examination of the ethical aspects of organ procurement and transplantation in reference to the non-resident, non-immigrant alien leads me to conclude that the issues are extraordinarily important, even potentially explosive,"

Reich said any "absolute standard that U.S. citizens should always come first is archaic." He suggested some sort of quota system for aliens and said it should include "a good Samaritan quota ... for the benefit of the destitute alien."

Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., chairman of the subcommittee, said he believes that "because of the system of organ allocation, some non-immigrant aliens are receiving kidneys that could be used in Americans."

"To the best of our knowledge, there is no preferential treatment being accorded foreign nationals in the distribution and allocation of kidneys for transplant," Carolyne K. Davis, administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration in the Department of Health and Human Services, said in a statement submitted to the subcommittee.

Transplant specialists testified that foreigners are not charged more or given preference over U.S. citizens at American medical institutions.

Dr. Peter Ivanovich of the Northwestern University Medical School, who helped place 75 Saudi Arabian transplant patients at U.S. medical facilities, said they were charged the standard rates assessed other patients. And he said, in answer to a question, that he knows of no grant to a U.S. hospital by a Saudi following a transplant operation.

Ms. Davis said HHS figures show there were 5,358 kidney transplants performed in 1982 in the United States. "The 326 non-Medicare patients on whom we received information included 137 non-immigrant aliens, 17 foreign citizens residing in the United States, 130 U.S. citizens, and 142 were of unknown resident status."

Dr. Nicholas J. Feduska, associate professor of surgery at the University of California in San Francisco and chairman of the Committee on Organ Sharing and Preservation of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons, said a questionnaire sent to 82 U.S. transplant centers showed 3.5 percent of 4,030 transplants performed in 1982 involved non-resident aliens. Feduska said 72 of the centers reported U.S. citizens get priority for transplants from cadavers, while 11 said they give equal consideration to foreign patients. One said the issue had not arisen.

Ernest T. Bauer, chairman of the Patient Action Committee, said about 10 percent of kidney transplants performed nationally are on non-resident aliens. He said in the Washington, D.C., area, that figure was 25 percent in 1982.

Cancer cells researched

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers who have discovered that some cancer cells are able to elude the body's defenses say the finding overturns accepted notions about the workings of the immune system and may hold the key to preventing rejection of transplanted organs.

The cancer cells apparently "turn off" the gene for a substance that causes the body to recognize a cell as an invader and destroy it, one of the researchers, Rene Bernards of the State University of Leiden in the Netherlands, said.

"Nobody expected that such a gene could be turned off," Bernards said in a telephone interview.

They are also responsible for the rejection of transplanted organs, and the discovery that they can be suppressed suggests that it may be possible to manipulate them to prevent such rejection.

Ruler wrote book on hair

Roman Emperor Domitian ascended the throne in A.D. 81 at age 30 and rule 15 years before he was stabbed to death. He was plagued with baldness, which caused him to publish a book, "On the Care of the Hair." In it he remarked, "Nothing is more pleasing than beauty, but nothing shorter-lived."

Young actress finds exceptional success in Hollywood

By LEE GRANT
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

ENTERTAINMENT

VAN NUYS, Calif. — Some come from Dubuque, Iowa, alighting at the Greyhound bus terminal in Hollywood with stars in their eyes — and disappointments in their futures. Others spend years bouncing from acting classes to workshops to classes straining to catch the eye of an ever-elusive agent.

And then there are those like Ally Sheedy from New York City, who shows up as a freshman drama student at the University of Southern California, and soon there are a multitude of TV roles (including a three-part "Hill Street Blues") and two major motion pictures — "Bad Boys" and "WarGames."

Sheedy was, it should be noted, an accomplished teen-age model and commercials actress in New York before making her trek West. So, she came prepared. She grew up on Manhattan's Upper West Side in an environment inundated with writers, poets and political figures. Her mother, of Russian-Jewish heritage, is a literary agent; her father, an Irish-Catholic, is an advertising executive.

The richness of that mix influenced the children, Ally (a nickname derived from Alexandria), a sister, Meg, 19, a freshman at Skidmore College in upstate New York, and a brother, Patrick, 16, a high school student and an aspiring rock musician.

"By the time I graduated high school, I knew I had to get away from New York," Sheedy said. "A month after my 18th birthday I took a plane for Los Angeles." Her new city took some getting used to. "I mean I flunked my driving test three times," she said, "but I love it here."

Now, just turned 21 and about to begin her senior year at USC, Sheedy is building a substantial career as an actress with performances as the nice girl getting mixed up with a bad boy in "Bad Boys" and as the perky high school companion of a computer whiz who nearly ignites World War III in "WarGames." She was also an exceptional presence on a three-part "Hill Street Blues" that ran in February playing a precocious high school kid who, while on a tour of the police station, attempts to seduce J.D. (the cop portrayed by Kiel Martin).

On a warm morning recently, Sheedy was nestled barefoot on a couch in the suburban home here she shares with two other aspiring actresses. Her Jeep with the bumper sticker "Clean & Serene" was parked in the driveway.

There were music cassettes scattered about and a poster ("Rebel Without a Cause") and framed magazine covers, one of Sheedy as Young Miss in 1981.

"At first," Sheedy said, contemplating her hometown, "I missed New York, but now I feel settled. I have a house and I have school." She was wearing a full white skirt and blue pullover short-sleeved sweater, her long hair swooping over an angular face reminiscent at one moment of Meryl Streep, at another of the freckled Sissy Spacek.

"New York could make me crazy, and it was just that I grew up so long in one place. I knew L.A. would be different, a change."

The first things she noticed? "Everybody drives. I mean kids 16 driving. And I couldn't fall asleep here; it was too quiet. And there were no seasons." Now, however, she feels comfortable on the beach or the freeway.

Sheedy has found a nest at USC in the academic milieu. The drama department has focused and refined her training. She has been acting since she was a pre-teen-ager, writing fairy tales with her friends and performing them for the neighbors. She was also a child ballerina, dancing with the American Ballet Theatre in such productions as "Petrouchka" and "Les Sylphides."

"I still take dance class," she said, "but I don't have the drive and the technique to make a career in ballet. I love to dance. I love (choreographer) Twyla Tharp, how she patterns people." Sheedy is passionate about university life. "I'm doing such a broad stroke of plays — Ibsen, Shaw, Shakespeare, the Greek tragedies. I was Electra in 'Electra.' I've taken a million classes in voice and performance.

In Hollywood, Sheedy is becoming a young actress in demand.

Lone Star Brass Quintet, Thouvenel Quartet set concerts for Saturday

The Lone Star Brass Quintet and the Thouvenel String Quartet of Midland have concerts slated for Saturday at 8 p.m.

All of the members of the Thouvenel String Quartet, which is funded through the Midland Symphony Chorus Association, are principal players with the symphony. The Thouvenel will perform Mozart's Quartet in E flat major, Schumann's Quartet in A minor and a short piece by Boccherini.

The Thouvenel performance, the second in the quartet's subscription series, will be held in the auditorium at the Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College. Single admission tickets, priced at $5 for adults and $2.50 for children, may be purchased at the door.

The Lone Star Brass Quintet's Saturday performance is set for Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway at Cuthbert Street.

The program includes works by Mussorgsky, Tull, Grainger, Presser, Suppe and two 16th century Flemish songs. This program will be repeated Sunday in Odessa at the First United Methodist Church at 3:30 p.m. Both performances are free and open to the public.

The Lone Star Brass Quintet is an official ensemble of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and is funded in part by grants from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation and the Houston Endowment. All members of the quintet are players with the symphony.

Director debuts with 'The Being'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jackie Kong, who makes her directorial debut at the age of 26 with "The Being," says that it's talent and not money or fame that impresses her.

That's not just a brash statement. Miss Kong is the daughter of former actress Anita Loo and grew up amid such celebrities as Marlon Brando and Roman Polanski.

She started making 8mm films at Beverly Hills High School.

Her first movie, a horror film, stars Martin Landau, Jose Ferrer, Ruth Buzzi and Dorothy Malone. She couldn't reach Landau to offer him the role, so she posed as a prospective candidate for his theater workshop. She handed him the script and said she wanted him in her film. But she recalled afterward, "I was shaking."

Landau said, "Her straightforwardness appealed to me and you don't get anything unless you go after it."

Organists' guild presents service

A "Service of Hymns and Readings" will be presented by the American Guild of Organists, West Texas Chapter, today at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church, 305 N. Baird St.

The service, a celebration of the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth, will feature organ music based on Martin Luther hymns.

Area musicians participating in the service include Judy Congdon, Brad Kisner, Darryl Knapp, Robert Poer, Keith Ross and Marilyn Wilson.

Pre-service music will begin at 7:10 p.m. The public is invited.

Pickwick Players stage 'Flashback'

The Pickwick Players of Midland Community Theatre will stage Alice Wilson's "Flashback" Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Tickets, priced at $3, may be purchased at the theater. For reservations call 682-4111.

Daily newspaper circulation up

Daily circulation of U.S. newspapers, which dipped from a high of 63.1 million in 1973 to 60.7 million in 1975, was up to 62.4 million in 1982.

Sunday circulation rose from 51.1 million in 1975 to 56.2 million in 1982, according to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau Inc.

Star fights Christmas movie glut by having film released in October

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can anything be done about the Christmas movie glut?

"I hope so," said Sean Connery, who campaigned to have his James Bond comeback, "Never Say Never Again" released in October instead of late December.

Warner Bros. had originally scheduled the film for last summer, when it would have gone head-to-head with MGM-UA's Bond movie, "Octopussy," starring Roger Moore. That confrontation was averted by production delays of "Never Say Never Again."

"I argued for an October release," Connery said recently. "I think it's insane for all of the companies to throw their big attractions into the theaters at Christmas. Some are bound to be losers.

"A few years ago, 'Private Benjamin' was released in the fall when there was no competition in the theaters, and it was a big winner. I thought 'Never Say Never Again' could do the same," he said. "I'd like to see the usual ratio of the Bond pictures reversed. Whereas most films earn 2-1 domestic gross vs. foreign, the Bonds have always been 1-2."

Warner's strategy appears to have succeeded. After 24 days in release, "Never Say Never Again" had grossed $40 million in U.S. and Canadian theaters, by far the biggest money-maker of the fall.

Columbia Pictures has also done well with "The Big Chill," a film that might have been crunched amid the multiple attractions of summer and Christmas. After 33 days the film had collected $21.5 million.

The returns aren't in yet on the fall release of "The Right Stuff" by Warners and the Ladd Company. The first weekend's gross of $1.6 million in 229 theaters was considered disappointing by the trade, in view of the massive hoopla surrounding the astronaut epic.

"Of course, you always hope for more," said Ashley Boone, marketing chief for Ladd. "But I'm encouraged that we had only a 2 percent drop in the second week; most pictures drop 15.

Students learn about logic by computer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Most of the students in professor Patrick Suppes' philosophy course never see him, but they love his class — and his assistant.

Suppes uses a computer to teach his "Introduction to Logic" at Stanford University. Students work at 14 computer terminals available around the clock.

The computer offers hints when students are stuck for an answer, grades tests instantaneously and explains why an answer is incorrect.

Artist fixes personalities on film

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A photographer recently arrived to take pictures of photographer Yousuf Karsh at his Beverly Hills Hotel suite.

The photographer suggested that the best light was beside the window, but the furniture was in the way.

"Then we will move the furniture," the 75-year-old Karsh announced. "Always follow your first instinct."

For 50 years Yousuf Karsh has been following his own instincts, and they have made him the era's greatest portrait photographer. His pictures of Winston Churchill, Helen Keller, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Ernest Hemingway are indelibly etched in the public consciousness.

Almost 200 portraits have been collected in "Karsh, A 50-Year Retrospective," recently published by Little, Brown and Co. As if to show that he doesn't restrict himself to historical figures, the cover features a stunning study of the mature Sophia Loren.

The Armenian-born, Canada-based Karsh was here with his American wife, Estrellita, to help publicize the book. He is no stranger to these parts, having photographed many of the film stars of the past half-century.

"I started out photographing in the studios," he recalled. "Whenever I tried to change a light, I was told, 'Mr. Karsh, you can't do that; it's against the union rules.' So I began photographing stars in their homes.

"That was much better. So many times, actors have favorite images of themselves, usually based on a favorite character they have played on the screen. They are good actors, and it is difficult to penetrate their own images, especially at the studios where they work. But they are human beings first, and that is what I want to photograph."

Karsh talked about some of his favorite Hollywood subjects: Humphrey Bogart, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff — the famed bogeyman with whom Karsh discussed the growing of roses.

"But the greatest actor I ever photographed was John L. Lewis," the portraitist reflected, referring to the leader of the United Mine Workers of America and founder of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

It was during World War II, he recalled, and Life magazine assigned him to photograph eight of the nation's leaders. The only turndown was Lewis. He finally agreed to a half-hour in his office, but tried to call a halt after the first shot. Karsh proceeded with a still life of the office.

Lewis inquired what Karsh was doing, "then he sat down like a good boy and gave me 45 minutes."

He's had other subjects he couldn't penetrate. "But I'm not going to parade my failures in public," he said.

Karsh emigrated to Canada when he was 15 years old.

"I came from the oppression and massacres of the Armenians by the Turks," he said. "I cannot forget those times, but I have no hate in my heart. That is something my mother taught me. She also taught me the impeccable manners of politeness, and that has helped me in my work. When I am in the presence of high personages, I am full of reverence and admiration."

He has photographed every U.S. president since Franklin Roosevelt and President Reagan three times.

On one occasion, he told Reagan: "I'm sure you take the direction of a portrait photographer just as you did from directors when you were an actor."

The President's replied: "I couldn't have said it better myself."

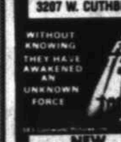

Norwegian hard to learn

Only one of five immigrant pupils in Norway's primary school is as proficient in Norwegian as an average Norwegian of the same age. And many know very little about the language even after several years in Norwegian schools. A study shows that 60 different languages are spoken in the pupils' homes.

E.G. Marshall straightforward actor

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — There is a story that E.G. Marshall, whose face and voice over the last 25 years have grown as familiar as a next-door neighbor's, likes to tell about the late British actor Sir Ralph Richardson.

"Sir Ralph was onstage emoting one night," Marshall related, "when he suddenly stopped, faced the audience and asked, 'Is there a doctor in the house?' A man in the audience promptly rose from his seat. 'I'm a doctor,' he said.

"Whereupon Sir Ralph looked the man square in the eye and said, 'Doctor, isn't this an awful play?' "

With that, Marshall threw back his head and laughed. And one reflected that it is not at all common to see E.G. Marshall in a mood of levity. E.G. — and do not ask what the initials stand for as he will not tell you — is a model of sobriety and, often as not, the picture of straightforward integrity.

He is simply loaded with credibility. E.G. Marshall isn't sure why it is, exactly, but when he speaks, people believe him — audiences believe him. He remembers being tested by a company that wanted him to be its spokesman. He scored very high in terms of believability.

"Maybe my credibility has something to do with me being a simple Norwegian and very literal minded. I don't want anything murky. As an actor, I want to see the dramatic line and I want to see it clearly.

"Maybe," Marshall said, "it has something to do with growing up in a small town in Minnesota — Owatonna, Minnesota. Maybe credibility starts with growing up in the Depression in Minnesota and all those 25-below-zero winter days with the stinging cold that causes red flashes in front of your eyes and running two miles to school over the snow with its dry squeak on every step.

Fort Worth chamber group to perform in Big Spring

BIG SPRING — The Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra performs Friday at 8 p.m. in the Big Spring High School Auditorium. The performance marks the opening of the Big Spring Symphony Association's fourth season.

Featured soloist will be Robert Davidovici, concertmaster. He will perform the Mozart A-Major Violin Concerto on the "Davis" Stradivarius violin.

The Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra, founded in 1976 as the Texas Little Symphony, is a 35-piece ensemble designed after the compact orchestras of the 18th and 19th centuries. The style showcases the principal and forward-chair musicians of the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra.

Conducted by music director John Giordano, the orchestra presents annual subscription series at The University of Texas at Arlington and Texas Christian University. This chamber orchestra is a participant in the statewide Texas Touring Arts Program of the Texas Commission on the Arts.

The program for Friday's concert features works by Rossini and Mendlessohn.

The concert is made possible in part by grants from the American Petrofina Foundation and a Tour Grant jointly funded by the Texas Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Single admission tickets will be sold in advance at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, in the credit department at Dunlap's Department Store and the Copper Kettle in the Big Spring Mall. For more information call 1-263-7641 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Tickets also will be available at the door. Price is $7.50 for adults and $4 for students. Tickets from last season's canceled third concert of the subscription series will be honored at the concert.

'Happy Days' to surpass world's longest running war road show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Happy Days," the longest running prime-time series on television today, will set a milestone in mid-November with its 252nd episode.

The show will surpass the mark set by "M*A*S*H," which ended an 11-year span on CBS this year.

"Happy Days" made its debut on ABC in January 1974 with Ron Howard and Henry Winkler in the starring roles. Howard has since left the show.

Sewage-eating worms put Lufkin on the map

LUFKIN (AP) — Believe it or not, a bunch of worms munching on sewage at the city's waste water treatment plant may put Lufkin on national television.

"If you just think about it, worms are eating our excreta," said Mark Wolper, a researcher for TV's "Ripley's Believe It or Not" show. "Visually it's humorous to see (sewage) being thrown out of a machine into a pile of worms."

Wolper was in Lufkin recenty to tour the city's experimental project where worms are eating a portion of the city's sewage. The city had received national and international attention about four years ago when it started the project.

"Our purpose was to help get the waste water treatment plant in compliance," said supervisor Bobby Mott. City officials had planned to have enough worms to eat up 10 percent of Lufkin's sewage, thereby reducing the amount which would have to be treated by the plant.

But Mott said it took more worms than the city could get to reach that goal, and even at their peak, the worms could only eat 1 percent of the sewage. The city was unable to get a federal grant to expand the project, he said, so the project was reduced and continued only for experimental purposes.

"It's a process that's still in its infancy," said Mott. "It has some problems that have to be overcome."

One of those problems apparently has not been publicity, as the city's sewage-eating worms were written up in newspapers and magazines across the country, and Lufkin was visited by researchers for television's "That's Incredible."

Now, the bright lights and glamour of a California television production crew may once again bring fame to the hungry worms.

"We go for the factual things that are incredible," said Wolper, checking out the tent-like structures holding thousands of worms. "The unusual, the strange — something you wouldn't believe."

Texas school districts want to nip growing 'mum mania' in the bud

HOUSTON (AP) — Mums is the word, but it's almost an understatement for the flowers adorning homecoming belles these days in Texas high schools.

While corsages for football homecoming used to be something simple, now they're apt to be made of a half dozen flowers, 6-foot streamers, balloons, bells, miniature plastic goal posts, megaphones, helmets, glitter, lace, feathers — and may even be lit with battery-operated flashing lights. Florists are delighted.

With the homecoming mums — as traditional in Texas as homecoming queens, pep rallies and high school football — bigger, flashier and a lot more expensive than ever, some high school officials think "mum mania" has to stop.

Peking museum opens its doors onto 15th century

PEKING (AP) — Each year in late autumn, when the drenching humidity of the Peking summer is past, the curators of China's treasury of silk and scroll paintings put together an exhibit that affords modern-day Chinese a glipse of their ancient past.

This year's exhibit in the museum of the Peking's Forbidden City, China's 15th century Imperial Palace, is on works from the Sung and Yuan dynasties, covering a period from the 10th to the 14th centuries A.D.

The Northern Sung dynasty was destroyed in 1127 and its capital, Kaifeng, was sacked and the emperor's court smashed.

But before the devastation, painter Chang Tse-tuan had recorded in pen-and-ink a kaleidoscopic vision of what the prosperous center of 12th century Chinese civilization was like.

His 15-foot-long scroll painting, "Ching-Ming Festival on the River," depicts in vibrant detail camel trains, the rich in sedan chairs and poor with their utters, a barbershop, archer's shop, two-storied restaurant, river traffic and much more.

The works on display are part of a collection of 10,000 ancient paintings in the Palace Museum in the 250-acre Forbidden City.

"Most were taken from individual owners after liberation," one of the curators, Xu Zhonglin, said in an interview, referring to the victory of Mao Tse-tung's communists in 1949.

Xu pointed to a self-portrait by Emperor Hui-tsung (1082-1135) which depicts the emperor dressed in Taoist robes and playing the zither.

He said half of China's art masterpieces, handed over by the last emperor, Puyi, in 1912, were taken to Taiwan by Chiang Kai-shek's defeated Nationalists, the Kuomintang, after the communist takeover.

But Xu said that with the Hui-tsung painting, "we were very lucky. Many Kuomintang people thought it was a fake, so they left it."

The painting bears Hui-tsung's signature and seal, with calligraphy by one of his ministers. The emperor, one of the most celebrated patrons in Chinese history, left a catalogue of 6,396 paintings by 231 artists in his imperial art collection.

Yang Xin, a professor in the research department at the Palace Museum, has claimed that millions of Chinese scroll paintings are scattered in Japan, the United States, Britain and France, some taken during invasions of China in the 19th and 20th centuries.

Curator Xu did not have exact statistics but said many works were looted from Peking during the 1937-45 war against Japan.

The oldest scroll on view this year is "Women of Virtue," a silk painting believed to be the work of Ku Kai-chih during the Jin dynasty around 400 A.D., although its provenance is uncertain.

A feather-brush scroll in vivid pastels by Chan Tse-chien during the Sui dynasty in the early 7th century is the oldest verified painting in the collection, Xu said.

Congress invokes divine aid for speedy adjournment

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, Congress is beginning to show signs of its perennial affliction, recess fever, that incurable itch to beat a hasty retreat before the year's first snow falls on the capital.

Lawmakers have set a Nov. 18 adjournment date, but already some slippage is being rumored. Usually Congress misses its late-fall recess target, often by weeks.

Leaders are trying their hardest to get things wrapped up by Thanksgiving. Even Senate Chaplain Richard Halverson has rushed to the aid of legislators, seeking some help from above.

"Father in Heaven, Thou knowest the frustration which seems to build as the Senate nears the end of a session," the Rev. Halverson began his morning prayer the other day.

"Senator (Howard) Baker and Speaker (Thomas P.) O'Neill have expressed a determination to adjourn Nov. 18, yet few believe it will happen and disbelief is mixed with cynicism.

"Dear God, move in our midst to make this desire of leadership a reality...Prove Thy relevance to the hard business of legislation. Do it Lord."

Baker, the Senate Republican Leader, expressed appreciation for the appeal for divine intervention. "If there is anything I need, it is help to get this place adjourned," Baker said.

"Not even I had thought to invoke the help of the Lord," Baker added.

* * *

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., like many senators running for re-election, scarcely misses a chance to show the folks back home that he's in Washington pulling for their interests. This time, Domenici took mocking umbrage with a newspaper account that extolled the delights of New Mexican "chili."

Humbug, protested Domenici. Spelling the spicy concoction with an "i" at the end instead of an "e" is tantamount to "New Mexican's definition of original sin," Domenici contended in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record.

Volcanic particles mar windows

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — NASA scientists say particles from a volcanic eruption in Mexico last year are damaging the acrylic windows of airliners flying northern routes.

Jets flying over northern Canada, Greenland, Iceland, part of Scandinavia and the northern regions of the Soviet Union are likely to be damaged, said M. Pat McCormick, a scientist at National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center.

The windows become marred, reducing visibility markedly, when they are pelted by sulfuric acid droplets in the upper atmosphere.

"You just can't see through the windows, which would be all right for the passengers but not in the cockpit," McCormick said.

Front cockpit windows, which are protected by glass, are not affected, McCormick said. But side cockpit windows and passenger windows are being damaged.

Cardin to open Maxim's

Pierre Cardin

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Pierre Cardin, known for his creations of high fashion, seems bound to open a maximum number of Maxim's restaurants, and he's hoping the latest addition will be in Bombay.

"Yes, negotiations are on to open a branch here," the 61-year-old Cardin, who recently opened a Maxim's in Peking, confirmed Wednesday.

He's got five more locales in mind: New York, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Tokyo, Singapore and London.

As for how the restaurants will look, "Of course," Cardin told a news conference, "I will be in charge of the decorations."

Issac Singer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Writing doesn't come easy, admits award-winning author Isaac Bashevis Singer, who's still cranking out the words at age 79.

"Every new story is a new challenge," said the author whose stories richly portray simple, fallible people stumbling toward the meaning of their lives.

"You could write 20 good books and there is no guarantee that the 21st will be good; it could be terrible. The danger is always there."

Singer's stories, written in Yiddish, have been translated into more than 20 languages and won the 1979 Nobel Prize in literature.

He puts words on paper with either a fountain pen or a rickety Yiddish typewriter which is sometimes uncooperative.

"The typewriter is 50 years old and it thinks it is a critic," says the author. "It if doesn't like a story, it stops working."

Singer was in town to attend a conference of the Midwest Federation of Library Associates.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jazz musician Aaron Neville may soon be wearing a "Who Dat?" hat, as enthusiasm builds for the New Orleans Saints football team and a "Who Dat?" song recorded by Neville and several of the Saints.

The upbeat adaptation of a football cheer is getting plenty of play on New Orleans airwaves. It goes like this:

"Who Dat? Who Dat? Who Dat sayin' dey gonna beat dem Saints? Who Dat? Who Dat? Who Dat sayin' dey gonna beat dem Saints? Who Dat?"

The cheer is chanted enthusiastically by offensive guard Brad Edelman, cornerback Dave Waymer, guard Louis Oubre, defensive end Reggie Lewis and center John Hill. Blended around the cheer is Neville's rendition of "When the Saints Go Marching In."

For fans of a team that could make the National Football League playoffs for the first time in its 17-year history, "Who Dat?" is catching on.

And plans are in the works to produce not only "Who Dat" hats, but bumper sticks and other "Who Dat?" paraphernalia.

Paul McCartney

LONDON (AP) — Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney says he's sorry he didn't get along better with John Lennon, and if he had known that Lennon's life was going to be cut short, "I wouldn't have been so stand-offish as I was."

When Lennon would criticize him, said the 41-year-old McCartney,

"I wasn't prepared to say 'you're quite right.' I am human...."

Lennon was gunned down in December 1980 outside his apartment building in New York.

McCartney, quoted in Titbits magazine, also said it was only after Lennon was killed that he learned that Lennon's father had left him at the age of 3.

"I never knew how much it must have hurt ... so after he died, I could see and say, 'No wonder we used to argue.'"

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — James Carroll Booker III, a rhythm-and-blues pianist, died Tuesday of intestinal bleeding and heart and lung failure. He was 43.

Booker mixed themes from classical composers such as Chopin and Debussy into the blues of Professor Longhair and Huey "Piano" Smith. Booker played with such greats as Lionel Hampton, B.B. King, Ringo Starr, Ray Hamilton and the Coasters. Booker's first hit record was "Gonzo," in 1960 and his most recent album, "Classified," appeared last spring.

Asner re-elected as union president

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Asner's re-election to a second term as president of the Screen Actors Guild is an "empty mandate," says fellow actor Charlton Heston.

Although Asner is generally at odds with conservative members of SAG such as Heston, that faction did not run a candidate against him in the election. Votes were counted Wednesday.

Asner won 9,997 votes, or 73 percent of the 13,648 votes cast. Contender J.D. Hall, a member of the SAG board of directors who plays a union organizer in the play "The Cradle Will Fall," received 2,787 votes, and the other candidate, stunt driver Charles Holden received 864, said SAG spokesman Mark Locher after the vote count.

"I'm pleased at my plurality," Asner said of the outcome. "Now we can start getting some work done that is awfully pressing," including mergers with the Screen Extras Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, and improved stunt safety and finding new ways to put the membership to work.

The liberal Asner, who played the title role in the cancelled series "Lou Grant," has frequently clashed with conservatives led by Heston, who called the victory an "empty mandate."

The faction, Actors Working for an Actors' Guild, urged members to boycott the election.

"I would be very surprised if there was much of a voter turnout," Heston said Wednesday, conceding that Asner would win. "He in effect is running unopposed."

Heston and his allies oppose such actions as SAG's donation of $5,000 to help striking air traffic controllers two years ago. The group has also objected to such remarks as Asner's outspoken criticism of President Reagan's Central American policy.

Peggy Lee rehearses a number from her Broadway musical memoir "Peg" Wednesday in New York City. The show opens Dec. 14 at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre.

Carroll O'Connor opens in 'Brothers'

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a warm evening in late summer. The leaves are just beginning to fall in the backyard of this house in an East Coast working class neighborhood, but the plastic kiddie pool is still filled with water and the cooler still has enough beer to keep everyone happy.

It could be Queens, because there's Archie Bunker. Oops. Sorry about that. It's Jim McMillan, or rather Carroll O'Connor playing the role of a Scottish labor leader with a brogue so bad it could fade a black watch plaid to pink.

And that's just one of the problems with "Brothers," the new play by George Sibbald that opened Wednesday night on Broadway at the Music Box.

O'Connor, who made Bunker a legend for 13 years on television, stars in and directs this two-act play about a splintering family and its domineering, manipulative father whose veins flow with "the union" and not blood.

It is a drama dappled with tired one-liners, such as jokes about pork belly futures. But the tension that should be built into the first act never arrives. And Sibbald does not give his characters sufficient motivation to define their conflicts.

O'CONNOR, A FINE, sturdy actor, reduces his blustery Jim McMillan to a shadow crawling around in the past glories of labor union history. The accent gets in the way and even he seems to have trouble handling it, often slipping into a voice that sounds more Lower East Side than Scottish Highlands.

All action takes place in the backyard, a wonderful set designed by Thomas A. Walsh that is easily recognizable to any one who ever lived in Brooklyn or Queens.

The play opens on the eve of a crucial union election McMillan might lose. It also is the night before his youngest son, Tommy, is to have a kidney transplant. The donor is Tommy's brother, Harry, the only one of the four sons to slip McMillan's grip and find a profession and home away from the shipyard and the union.

Harry, played by Frank Converse, is a prosperous lawyer in Boston. The other brothers are Jimmy — a 45-year-old reformed alcoholic who has just graduated from college, and Earl — a failure who's big on muscles and small on brains.

Tommy, played with great pallor by Dennis Christopher, wants to leave the shipyard, and hence the union, and open his own cabinet business. But McMillan will have none of that. "People like us don't take risks," he says. "We don't have to.

"WITHOUT THE union, we're nothing, we're nowhere," McMillan says.

The family resents Harry because he no longer is "working class." And Harry, when he arrives at the end of Act I, makes it clear that he wants no part of the McMillan clan. He announces that he's changed his mind: He's not going through with the surgery.

Why? Here's where the writing gets wacky. Harry says he won't give up his kidney because he doesn't know Tommy well enough, and even though they're brothers, he doesn't love him.

"Tommy's always been a stranger to me," Harry tells Jimmy, the only brother he likes. "He was 10 when I went away."

THE CONVERSATION dissolves into a confrontation. Old family hurts are reborn. But the scene is blocked so superficially that the natural tension that should be there isn't. And the empathy that should build, doesn't.

The fault is not with the actors. Gary Klar is well cast as Earl the bankrupted failure.

Jackie Onassis sues over advertisement

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has gone to court to kill an advertisement showing a Jackie O. look-alike rubbing elbows with critic Gene Shalit, actress Ruth Gordon and model Shari Belafonte.

The Christian Dior ad — running in publications such as Harper's Bazaar, the New Yorker and Women's Wear Daily — does not name anyone. But the suit filed Wednesday in state court in Manhattan contends that because the ad shows the real Shalit, Miss Gordon and Miss Belafonte, it implies the model is Mrs. Onassis.

The advertisement showing the double peeking over Shalit's shoulder was "an embarrassment and ... injurious to my reputation, because it makes it appear that I am acting as a photographic model," Mrs. Onassis' suit said.

It seeks a preliminary injunction to halt the advertising campaign, and seeks to stop the model, Barbara Reynolds, from appearing in any more ads as a look-alike for the former first lady.

"I have never permitted the public value of my name, likeness or picture to be used in connection with any commercial products," Mrs. Onassis said in court papers.

Named as defendants in the suit were Dior, Lansdowne Advertising, photographer Richard Avedon, the firm Celebrity Look-Alikes and Miss Reynolds.

Justice Donald Sullivan issued an order directing them to show why they should not comply with Mrs. Onassis' demands.

High cost forces show's cancellation

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowing to the reality of "life as it's lived here at the network," news anchors Linda Ellerbee and Lloyd Schechner today gave early eulogies to "NBC News Overnight," slated for cancellation Dec. 2.

"NBC says its studies show there are not enough people watching TV at this hour of the night for a news program to make money," Ms. Ellerbee said on the hourlong broadcast, which begins at 1:30 a.m. EST Monday through Friday. "And money is the reality of television."

"A good show it was and is and will be for another three weeks until Dec. 2, and after that it'll be a memory," said Schechner. He said the decision was "life as it's lived here at the network, and it's too late."

He also quoted a statement released Wednesday by NBC News President Reuven Frank: "It was our finest hour of news and remains the model of an hour news program, but being the best is not enough."

Earlier in the broadcast, Schechner promised viewers "a surprise ending" to the show.

Ms. Ellerbee made good on the tease, with the rueful wit that often characterizes the newscast: "Here comes the surprise ending we promised. I don't want to say this any more than I wanted to hear it. NBC has canceled 'Overnight.'"

High production costs, low ratings and low ad revenues killed the 17-month-old show.

Senior Geophysicists

ARCO Exploration Company is one of America's leaders in domestic oil and gas exploration. We are managed by explorationists and will have an exploration program approximating $1 billion per year. Much of this activity is centered in the Gulf Coast, onshore and offshore.

We are renowned for our policy of promoting from within. However, our sustained growth has created more challenging positions requiring the expertise of creative, aggressive geophysicists than we can fill internally. There has probably never been a better time to join our exploration team.

You will become part of the team effort as you work daily with land and geology professionals in the implementation of exploration programs.

Excellent technical support will be provided in the areas of computer application, data acquisition and processing.

Specifically, you will be responsible for total geophysical evaluation for onshore/offshore programs. You will:

- Generate exploration programs.
- Apply data acquisition knowledge to help establish acquisition parameters.
- Apply processing knowledge to help establish processing parameters.
- Interpret geophysical data, properly relating the data to geological setting.
- Utilize state-of-the-art geophysical exploration techniques and tools.
- Participate in the development and evaluation of prospects.
- Deliver oral presentations and written reports to management.
- Assist in the training and development of less experienced personnel.

To qualify, you must have a BS in Geophysics or related discipline and at least five years experience in seismic data interpretation.

These positions are available in Midland, Anchorage, Dallas, Denver, Houston and Lafayette.

The New Car is here.

Newly arrived: the Honda Civic CRX. And Civic CRX 1.5.

They sweep away all preconceptions. Just as the original Civic did a decade ago. With innovative aerodynamics. A two-seater design. And, for the CRX, the best gas mileage in America.*

The Civic CRX 1.5 blends performance and fuel efficiency* with an ambitious 1.5 liter 12-valve engine.

It also offers an optional automatic transmission with torque converter lock-up. And both the CRX and CRX 1.5 provide torsion bar front suspension, a 5-speed manual transmission and a lockable stowage compartment behind the seats.

The 1984 Civic CRX and Civic CRX 1.5. Totally new cars from Honda. But then, that's nothing new.

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"
