Censorship Is Removed from Cuban Papers

Full Liberty of Press Being Enjoyed for First Time in Fifteen Days After Guarantees Suspended

(By The Associated Press)
HAVANA, Nov. 27.—Cuba today enjoyed full liberty of the press for the first time in fifteen days. Censors were removed from cable offices to permit newspaper correspondents to transmit what information they wished concerning the political situation prevailing in the republic.

The censorship, imposed November 13, came at a time when talk of revolution reached a point where drastic measures were considered necessary by the government to maintain order, and constitutional guarantees were suspended.

On November 16, trouble broke out in Santiago, several hundred citizens participated in the demonstration and one was killed. The revolutionary movement quickly spread to other parts of the island.

On November 11 and 12 were marked by a series of disturbances in Havana, Santa Clara, Matanzas, Cienfuegos and other important Cuban cities. Seven persons were killed and an undetermined number wounded.

President Machado ordered suspension of constitutional guarantees November 13 and troops took the place of police on the streets, groups were not allowed to form, theaters and other amusement places were heavily guarded, and numerous arrests of alleged communist agitators were made.

Censorship on all telegraph and telephone lines, radio and other means of communication was imposed to halt what the government was said to have believed was a well organized campaign on the part of agitators in the United States to obtain American intervention under the Platt amendment.

News coming into the republic also was submitted to censorship.

Ten Known to Have Died in Central Area

Unseasonable Cold Spreads Over Mississippi Valley with Even Lower Temperatures in Store for Today

Exposure Is Fatal

Holiday Activities of Many Restricted as Mercury Drops Below Normal; Chicagoans Endure Zero Weather

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Unseasonable cold spread over the central states today bringing death to a few and restricting holiday activities to many. Ten were known to have died.

Some of the Thanksgiving day football games were cancelled, while others were played before reduced crowds, and the players were hindered by numb fingers and icy fields. Most of the populace elected to remain home, eat the traditional turkey dinner and watch thermometers outside flirt with zero.

Cold to Continue
Temperatures were expected to be even lower tomorrow in the southern portions of Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and to be slightly higher in the upper Mississippi and middle Missouri valleys.

Temperatures today were far below normal in the Great Lakes region and the Ohio valley, with zero readings as far south as Indianapolis and freezing as far as the Gulf of Mexico.

Chicagoans endured zero weather for the first time this season. The minimum registered by the weather bureau thermometer was 4 above, but other parts of the city and the suburbs experienced a low as 6 below. It was clear and calm in most midwestern states, but a brisk northerly wind at Duluth brought predictions of 19 below before morning.

Deaths Reported
The usual quota of deaths from exposure, accidents and freezing were reported. Ohio counted a total of six as the result of the heavy snowstorm of the last two days. Two unidentified, homeless men died of exposure in Chicago; two others were found in a barn in Minneapolis, one frozen to death, the other dying. A Milwaukeean was killed as he stepped into the path of an automobile from behind his own stalled car.

There was not much snow in the Chicago area, but Indiana and Michigan were still digging away the heavy fall of the last two days.

Declare Mistrial In Cooper's Case

BOSTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—A mistrial was declared today in the murder trial of Lester Cooper, 21, charged in the slaying of his roommate and friend, Paul Hunter, 21, in a Texarkana undertaking establishment last April. Cooper's first trial also had resulted in a hung jury.

After deliberating since 9 P. M. Wednesday, the jurors reported at 4:30 P. M. today they would not agree and were dismissed by District Judge George Johnson. The jurors reported they favored conviction but could not agree on a sentence, eight voting for a three-year sentence and the others for a two-year penalty.

In the first trial last June, all members of the jury favored conviction but could not agree on a sentence, the votes ranging from a suspended sentence to 25 years.

Free Bridge Between Oklahoma And Texas To Be Finished

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27. (AP)—A free bridge parallel to the toll structure between Terral, Oklahoma and Ringgold, Texas, will be completed before the first of the year, Lew Weston, chairman of the state highway commission said today.

The free bridge between Marietta, Okla., and Gainesville, Tex., on U. S. highway 77 will be completed in the spring.

Both bridges are being built under the supervision of the Oklahoma Highway commission.

Frank Kellogg Awarded Nobel Prize for 1929

Former Secretary of State Selected for Creation of Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact; Dr. Soderblom Awarded

(By The Associated Press)
OSLO, Nov. 27.—In recognition of the creation of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, today was awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1929.

At the same time the prize awarding committee of five announced the peace award for 1930 had been given Dr. Nathan Soderblom, archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, and pro-chancellor of the University of Upsala since 1914.

Each of the two awards carry a grant of 175,000 kroner (about $38,000). It is understood here both Mr. Kellogg and Dr. Soderblom will arrive in Oslo Dec. 16 to receive their awards in person.

Peace Awards Since 1927
The peace awards are the first to be made since 1927 when the prize was divided between Ferdinand Buisson, of France, and Ludwig Quideke, of Germany. The prize previously had been awarded four Americans, Theodore Roosevelt in 1906, Elihu Root in 1912, Woodrow Wilson in 1919 and Ambassador Charles C. Dawes in 1925.

The selection of Mr. Kellogg as a recipient of a Nobel peace award had been freely predicted for some time. He is at present a judge of the world court to which he was elected last September after a distinguished career in American statecraft.

Advocate of Peace
Dr. Soderblom is a strong advocate of the cause of world peace and is the author of many learned works. He was formally nominated for the prize a year ago by a group of Swedish parliamentarians. He has been principally identified with the work of international peace through a union of churches. He is the principal organizer of the Christian unity conference held in Stockholm five years ago. He visited the United States in 1924.

The United States has been significantly honored in the Nobel prize awards this year. Karl Landsteiner, of the Rockefeller Institute, awarded the prize in medicine, while the literary award was given Sinclair Lewis.

Antarctica Remains Unconquered and Challenge To Man, Byrd Says In Record of His Expedition

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Antarctica, the south polar bleak and barren base, remains unconquered and a challenge to man, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd says in "Little America," the record of his expedition to the bottom of the world.

There remains the last trace of the ice age, out of which emerged life, the admiral says in the volume which will be published tomorrow on the first anniversary of his flight over the second pole.

"At best," writes the commander of the band of eighty men who lived for months on the ice of Little America, "we simply tore away a bit more of the veil which conceals its secrets. In its larger aspects it remains, and probably will remain for many years to come, one of the great unknowns of the world."

Part of his story, in the form of a diary, shows a busy man literally burning midnight oil in the writing of his journal. Harbored escapes from crevasses and ice packs, from blinding gales, and from crashing on the very flight to the pole itself against a mountain pass are described but simply. The reward was sight of the pole in the center of a limitless

Maple Lawyers Refused Delay For Execution

Confessed Slayer of Houston Policemen Scheduled to Die in Electric Chair Early Today at Huntsville

Petitions Denied

Last Avenue of Escape Closed for Paper Hanger Who Pleaded Guilty When Judge Refused Habeas Corpus Writ

(By Associated Press)
HUNTSVILLE, Nov. 27.—His lawyers balked at every turn in their efforts to obtain a postponement, Jess J. Maple, the confessed slayer of two Houston policemen, was made ready tonight for execution in the state prison here early tomorrow. He had the Thanksgiving dinner given all prisoners. The court of criminal appeals, in refusing a writ of habeas corpus, apparently had closed the last avenue of escape. Others, including two petitions to the Houston trial court for insanity hearings, already had led only to failure.

The paper hanger, who pleaded guilty and adopted an attitude of outward unconcern during his trial, was to have been electrocuted ten days ago, but was granted a stay by Governor Moody just before the scheduled hour.

Sought In Robbery
Authority moved swiftly after Maple's pistol cut down Motorcycle Officers W. B. Phares and Edward Fitzgerald on a Houston street the night of September 20. Phares and Fitzgerald were advancing on Maple to arrest him for participation in robbery of a furniture store which had occurred a short time before, when he fired on them.

Only a few hours after the officers fell, Maple was arrested. He made a statement, later admitted to evidence in the trial, that he "didn't give them a chance," and when the death verdict came in he told the judge he did not care to appeal the case. His counsel, however, busied itself in his behalf, but vainly.

E. F. Grimes, who accompanied Maple in the furniture holdup, but had nothing to do with the killings, drew life time sentences in that robbery case and in another robbery of a restaurant.

Surprise Witness In Hefner Trial

PAMP, Nov. 27. (AP)—Testimony of a surprise witness, Mrs. C. Alexander of Lefors, was introduced by the state today before it closed its case in the murder trial of Carl Hefner, charged in the slaying of Homer Crabtree. Mrs. Alexander testified she saw the killing and saw Crabtree try to defend himself from Hefner.

Hefner's boots splashed with blood, were introduced in evidence as proof of the charge that Hefner kicked Crabtree, inflicting fatal injuries. Dr. R. M. Bellamy testified that hair clinging to the boots was human. Sheriff E. B. Graves testified he took the boots from Hefner and a similar pair from Emmett Thompson, indicted for murder for the same offense.

A meeting of the joint committee will be held next December 23 at which time the rules will be perfected.

Quiet and Leisure Mark Thanksgiving Observance

Worship, Dances, Football Game Feature Lubbock's Program; Tech Alumni Return

THANKSGIVING day in Lubbock was one of comparative quiet and leisure with a composite program of events ranging from union worship to dances and a football game.

Alumni and other former students of Texas Technological college, returning to the alma mater on Homecoming day, and the Simmons university contingent which came here to attend the Tech-Simmons football game added color. Stores, offices, banks and other marks of business were closed throughout the day.

There were the customary holiday dinners at homes, hotels and cafes, and at least one fortunate crew of highway workers was served turkey dinner by their superintendent as they remained on the job. Captain Walter Wilson, of the Salvation Army, reported that the Army served dinner to 120 men, women and children Thanksgiving noon at the post headquarters, 1402 Texas avenue.

Preview, Dances Held
A theater preview which lasted into Thanksgiving morning and a "German" dance from 4 o'clock until after daybreak began the round of holiday entertainment.

Formally opening the day by paying homage in worship, more than 500 members of Lubbock's Protestant churches assembled for union services which began at 8 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. J. O. Haynes, pastor of the First church, presided at the service.

One-Time Terrorist Bandit Of Houston Buried In Prison Cemetery; Shot To Death In Attempt To Escape From Pen

(By Associated Press)
HUNTSVILLE, Nov. 27.—As Thanksgiving's sun approached its meridian, all that was mortal of Tony Corona, one time terrorist bandit of Houston, was buried in the state penitentiary cemetery one mile east of the walls today.

Alone, save for the eyes of the curious, without friends, save for the prayers of the prison chaplain, the Rev. W. E. Miller, Corona's body was interred in the shadow of the whispering pines of East Texas.

Burial of the bandit wrote "finis" to the last chapter in a life, which during a few short years, ran the gamut of crime and terrorized Houston for weeks.

Corona and Wheeler McCully, another convict, were killed yesterday when they attacked guards in an attempt to escape. Tom Shook, former chief of police at Electric, Texas, serving a sentence for murder and robbery, and also implicated in the fight, was seriously wounded. Jim Talley, a fourth convict involved, was slightly injured, as was F. O. Ross, one of three guards who subdued the prisoners.

A justice of the peace today investigated the affray, which took place eight miles from Huntsville while 27 convicts were returning from a wood-cutting excursion, and gave a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Amputate Shook's Arm
Shook, who was shot in the arm with a load of buckshot, was taken to the prison hospital immediately and later in the night it was found necessary to amputate his arm about two inches below the elbow. Reports from the prison today indicated his condition was somewhat improved and a good chance was held out for his recovery.

Warden W. W. Waide, was in telephonic communication with Corona's mother in McAlester, Okla., and was advised to bury the dead convict at Huntsville.

"I expected him to go that way," the strapping bandit's mother was reported to have told Warden Waide, "I am glad that he was killed instantly and did not suffer. I do not hold any hard feelings toward you or any person in Texas."

DROWNS IN CREEK
Ten-Year-Old Dies at Picnic Near Santa Anna

ASILENE, Nov. 27. (AP)—Bill Jack Garrett, 10, only child of Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Garrett, Santa Anna, was drowned in Jim Ned creek, 12 miles north of Santa Anna today.

The boy went into the water to swim after he and other children on a Thanksgiving picnic party had wandered away from the adult group.

The body had been in the water 15 minutes when recovered.

Will Not Seek Advantage for Party, Claim

Representative McDuffie of Alabama Says Democratic Leadership Has Unselfish, Broad National Vision

Plan To Cooperate

Patriotism Will Be Placed Above Partisanry, Solon States; Says Party Not One of Opposition

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The assertion that regardless of causes and responsibility for existing distressing conditions in the country, the leadership of the Democratic party "is more interested in the national welfare than in seeking party advantage," was made today by Representative McDuffie of Alabama.

"In this crisis," the assistant minority leader in the house said, "a broad national vision rather than a local or selfish one is needed and Democrats will, as they have in the past, put patriotism above partisanship."

McDuffie said he could not construe the statement of a group of Democratic leaders and more recently by Jettie Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, as being "in any wise indicative of suggestive of an inclination to shrink or to avoid a single responsibility."

"Not Apologetic"
"Nor do I think the statements were intended to be apologetic for Democrats never apologize for victory," he said.

The leadership of our party is proud of, and will gladly seize the opportunity to serve the country. They have done well in the past.

"In this time of nationwide distress, and trying conditions of course the leadership of the Democratic party is more interested in the national welfare than in seeking party advantage."

Regardless of the responsibility and the causes for these conditions, Democrats are now, as they always have been, ready to uphold and support every sound and constructive measure for the quickest possible relief.

McDuffie said there are those who would have the American people believing the Democratic party is one of opposition but that an analysis of the record "clearly refutes such an unwarranted charge."

Asserting Democrats were willing to "be of every assistance in an effort of the nation," McDuffie said he would like to see all controversial matters settled, all possible measures for immediate relief, and all regular appropriation bills passed before March 4.

Teachers Meet In Houston Conclave

HOUSTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—With a registration of more than 1,000 at the close of the first day's session, the fifth annual convention of the Texas State Teachers' association opened here today.

Formal opening was in Sam Houston hall where exhibits of the work of school children from 53 school districts of Texas are on display. Clarence Wharton of Houston welcomed delegates to Houston, the "cradle of education and the Texas republic," and H. D. Fillers, president of the state body, responded.

CHAMBER TO MEET

Commercial Delegates Will Gather in El Paso

CORPUS CHRISTI, Nov. 27. (AP)—Ray Leeman, manager of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce and president of the central chamber of agriculture and commerce, announced today that the latter organization would meet in El Paso, Tex., Dec. 12.

Representatives of various commercial and business groups from California, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas would attend the meeting, Leeman said, pointing out that the central chamber's objective was protection of Mexican farm labor and proper control of any stringent immigration policy with regard to Mexico.

Young Airman Lands Safely In Parachute

Gerald Nettleton Forced to Leave Plane at Altitude of 10,000 Feet in Attempt to Set Transcontinental Mark

(By The Associated Press)
SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 26.—Gerald Nettleton, young Toledo aviator, trying to establish a new junior transcontinental record, landed by parachute in Pine Valley, about fifty miles east of San Diego this afternoon, according to word received here by telephone. He left his plane at an altitude of 10,000 feet and landed safely.

Reports received at Lindbergh field said Nettleton after reaching a telephone at Pine Valley, said he was going on to San Diego, with a rancher who had taken him to Pine Valley by automobile.

Douglas Kelly, aviator who flew toward the mountains in the vicinity of Pine Valley this afternoon, reported on his return the visibility in that section was good enough. He expressed opinion Nettleton had used up his gasoline and had taken the parachute leap for that reason.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THE other day I read an article written by a doctor in which he said that powder protects the skin rather than harms it. I was reminded, particularly, of the tendency of several years ago for parents to attempt to keep their daughters from using any cosmetics because they were supposed to ruin the complexion.

There is less talk of this now, but occasionally some one attempts to prove to me that women who do not use cosmetics have much more beautiful skins than those who do. Naturally, I'm not convinced of anything like that.

Make-up should be applied with some discretion, to be sure, and I'm not convinced that one should spend hours daily in applying creams and lotions and powders. But every sensible woman will provide a certain amount of protection for her skin if she values her looks—and we all do. In this country, particularly, one must protect the skin as much as possible from the wind and the sun and cold, skins which will remain soft and smooth in other seasons suffer out here unless they are protected.

Excepting the very young girls who are having their introduction to rouge, very few women use the garish make-ups which have caused much of the criticism toward the use of cosmetics.

THE NEW SWEATER
SWEATERS, to be really new, must have amusing patterns crocheted or knitted into their main body, according to a fashion note from Paris. Patterns take the form of outlines of collars, of yokes and of drop shoulders. Belts are knitted where outside belts would naturally go. Pockets are pictured in the pattern where they do not actually exist.

SOME MORE THANKS
IN LISTING my Thanksgiving thanks the other day, I overlooked the fact even newspaper reporters sometimes have things done for them to be grateful for. For instance, there was the dinner the Chamber of Commerce heads gave the other evening to which I was invited and went. One day, too, Mrs. Chester Hubbard brought me some Christmas greetings that she had made and which are so lovely that I'm thinking of keeping them instead of sending them off to someone else.

SIDEGLIMPS
SOME more sideglances—I always have to spell out the words "side" and "diary" to identify them and when I read in a hurry, I'm apt to mispronounce them. . . . the managing editor comes by to tell me some new words he picked up at the managing editor's convention and which he expects to use at the earliest opportunity. . . . some body brings a cat into the office. . . . he's a beauty and tame—too tame, because he thinks he must sleep in my lap and is in my way while I try to write. . . . the editor worrying over how he is to hold the loving cup at the football game when he presents it to P. W. Cawthon. . . . the men at our house trying to pave the buck on killing the Thanksgiving turkey. . . . no body want to go out and face the gobbler with an axe. . . . somebody finally compromises by taking him one last meal and promising to kill him after lunch. . . . Freeland Groce telling about some war experiences. . . . on the ship returning to America after the war, they ran out of fresh water and used red soda-pop for everything, including shaving. . . . I find an ex-rancher who won't eat canned tomatoes and learn that he and a companion ran out of food, except canned tomatoes, while freighting once years ago and that their fare for several days consisted of this single food. . . . he hasn't cared for it since.

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS
TODAY'S recipe is for parker house rolls: One cup scalded milk, one one-half tablespoons butter, one tablespoon sugar, five cups flour one teaspoon salt, one-half yeast cake soaked in one-eighth cup lukewarm water. Soak yeast cake in lukewarm water in which the sugar has been dissolved. Add butter to milk; when lukewarm, add dissolved yeast cake and about one and one-half cups of flour. Beat thoroughly, cover and let rise until light. Cut down and add remaining flour. Let rise again, toss on slightly floured board, knead, set and roll to one-third inch thickness. Shape with biscuit cutter. Press over with melted butter, fold, and press edges together. Place in greased pan, one inch apart, cover, let rise, and bake in hot oven twelve to fifteen minutes.

Silver Key Affair Ushers In Season and Dancing Club Event Follows Last Evening

Midnight Suppers Special Features of Entertaining Here During This Week as Clubs Sponsor Occasions

Dances have been outstanding events of the Thanksgiving holiday season in Lubbock.

Last evening, members of the Dancing club were guests at a supper dance at Hotel Lubbock. A turkey dinner was served to the group at mid-night, following dancing during the early evening.

Silver Key club members ushered in the holiday season with a dance on Wednesday evening at the Hilton. The Silver Key is a men's club on the campus of Texas Technological college.

Rose and silver, colors of the club, were fashioned into stipe decorations in the Matador ballroom for this event.

The club banner was suspended behind the orchestra and programs for the dance carried the club colors. Music was furnished by the Canadians.

Following the dancing about forty couples, including Silver Key members and their dates, were served a midnight supper in the E. B. Adcock home at 2601 19th st.

More than one hundred collegians and other guests were at the dance.

Club members and their dates included Joe Leaverton and Miss May Tom Simmons, Red Huff and Miss Dorothy Rushing, Edwin Spack and Miss Dorothy Griffith, Mose Witherspoon and Kathleen Harman, Olen Purcell and Miss Gertrude Standerfer, Red Harman and Gladys Towns, Bill Fry and Miss Mary Lois Gamel, Julius Bergfeld and Miss Vonelle Gilkerson, Clayton Reed and Miss Cheville Whitehill, Brooks Penney and Miss Camille Stobough, Johnnie Keathley and Miss Kate Boyd, Dr. W. Legionnaires Are to Attend District Meet

Wellington Post to Play Host to District 18 Convention December 13 and 14; Local Members to Attend

Lubbock Legionnaires will journey to Wellington December 13 and 14 for the convention of the 18th district, with the Frank King Post No. 249 as host. A large number of former service men are reported planning to make the trip.

Hal Brennan, department commander of the Texas department, with R. O. "Bob" Whiteaker, adjutant, are to be visitors at the two day meeting. Mrs. F. H. Carpenter, state president of the American Legion Auxiliary is another distinguished visitor expected.

Clint C. Small, state senator, whose home is at Wellington, will be the principal non-Legion speaker. Raymond Berry, Hollis, Okla., one of the popular humorists of the Oklahoma department, is to be another speaker.

C. Ward Moody, assistant executive committee member for the district is helping with arrangements for the convention. The post there has advised all posts in the district that the "fatted calf" has been fattened up and will be killed for the occasion.

The 18th district led the state last year in membership. Plans to maintain the lead will be made at the meeting for the 1931 drive. Already many members for next year have been signed in the district which includes the entire 18th congressional district.

Legion Attack On Store Is Probed

The Ohio department of the American Legion has announced an investigation of the action of members of the St. Clairsville, O., post, led by Nelson McQuillan, above, in hurling tear gas bombs into a grocery store that failed to close on Armistice Day. McQuillan remarked afterwards that he was sorry it was "necessary to impose patriotism on an American concern."

Johnnie Regan, Simmons University's Band Leader Has Interesting Career

Johnnie Regan, Simmons University's imported band leader, who has worked as a cowboy on three continents and who has played in musical organizations on four continents, was a guest of Lubbock Thursday during the visit of the Simmons Cowboy band here, to attend the Simmons-Tech football game.

Born in England, Johnnie, a little over five feet tall and with a typical English speech broadened somewhat by contact with Americans, Australians and Europeans, is as erudite as any world traveler. He lacks the traditional Englishman's inability to see through a joke at first, and he can stage a snappy comeback as any of Sir Harry Lauder's famous countrymen.

Worked in Australia
"I was born in England, at Windsor, where the king's palace is," Johnnie said, "I went out to Australia as a lad and worked there as a cowboy."

Made Good Offer
"They made me a good offer to come with them and here I am," he added, "I have been here about four months."

Besides acting as drum major of the university band, Johnnie has a bit of a chance to do some fancy riding, roping, etc. "I have been in three rodeos this fall," he said, "I have just returned from a three weeks roundup on the T-Bar ranch down in Winkler county."

Plan Campaign Against Crime

Reorganization of Chicago's Police Department Demanded by Nov. Grand Jury in Counter Offensive Move

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. —(P)—Reorganization of the police department was demanded today by the November grand jury as the first step in a counter offensive move against what it described as a "super-government" of crime.

Reporting on its activities, which included an investigation into the police department, the grand jury finished its work by reiterating statements on the crime-police-politics alliance made by two preceding grand juries, and upholding Municipal Judge John H. Lyle in his campaign of high bonds for hoodlums.

The grand jurors charged that Chicago was in the grip of a super-government of "unscrupulous politicians and their criminal associates" who dominate the police by monthly payments of large sums to unnamed department officials. The report included a request that a special grand jury be impaneled for December with its only mission to investigate police relations with politicians and criminals.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Two Planes in Search Crash

Pilots Escape Injury When Ships Crankup During Hunt for Missing Canadian Airman and Companions

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 27. (P)—Two planes en route to join the search for the missing Canadian flier, Capt. A. J. A. Burke, and his two companions, crashed at Telegraph Creek, B. C., yesterday. The pilots escaped injury.

A machine piloted by Harry Hunt crashed into a tree and was demolished when the flier attempted a quick landing because of motor trouble. The other plane, piloted by W. J. Barrows struck a soft spot in the ice and was saved from submersion by its wings.

Meanwhile, Pilot E. L. Wasson arranged to make a second flight to the Burke plane which he sighted Monday in the headwaters of the Liard river. Unfavorable weather has prevented his return to the scene.

Burke was lost October 11 while returning from a prospecting flight. From Ketchikan, Alaska, and Prince Rupert, B. C., two United States navy planes and two Canadian machines planned to continue the search for Pilot Robin Renahan and two companions, lost October 28 while flying to aid in the Burke search.

HAS HARD TIME
MADRID, Nov. 27. (P)—A bull fighter named Alfonso Reyes had a hard time today convincing police that he was not the army officer of the same name who walked out of a military prison with Major Ramon Franco, Spain's premier aviator. He was one of several who have been arrested and liberated in the country-wide search for the two fugitives which thus far has been fruitless.

THREE SLAIN
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27. (P)—Albert Tario, his wife, Florence, and their 13-year-old daughter were found shot to death in their home here today. Preliminary investigation, police said, indicated that Tario had shot the mother and daughter and then turned the pistol on himself.

ANXIETY RELIEVED

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 27. (P)—The nautical station here today received a telegram from the Alfred Wegener Greenland expedition, the first word from the explorers in nearly two months. The message, stating that all members of the party were well, relieved anxiety which had been felt for the scientists within the past week.

TWO BADLY HURT

LAKE CHARLES, La., Nov. 27. (P)—Miss Irene Heard of Lake Charles and Seymour P. Garnet, Jr. of New Orleans were seriously and possibly fatally injured today when their automobile crashed into the eastern approach of the Calcasieu river bridge. Francis Moss, a youth of Lake Charles, was slightly hurt while Mrs. P. S. Perkins of Sulphur escaped injury.

CRICKETED DEAD

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 27. (P)—J. T. Tyldesley, 57, the famous Lancashire cricketer, died suddenly today. He played for England in 31 test matches, most of them against Australia.

Konjola Ends Seven Years Of Suffering

Dallas Citizen Glad to Recommend This New and Totally Different Medicine

MR. E. W. HICKMAN

"Liver trouble and constipation gave me constant trouble for seven years," said Mr. E. W. Hickman, 1448 Glen avenue, Dallas. "I was subject to frequent dizzy spells and always felt sluggish. My system was weakened to a great extent for my bowels did not function properly and I was always taking a laxative of some sort. This seemed to make my condition worse."

"Konjola has helped me greatly. I am much better generally. My improvement is marked as the days go by. I am no longer bothered by dizzy spells, my bowels have been regulated and I have gained in weight. I recommend Konjola for it has done me more good than any medicine I ever tried."

Taken regularly, after meals, this great medicine has made an unparalleled record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Lubbock, Texas at Bowen's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

That Thing Environment

THE old dispute whether environment or heredity is the determining factor in shaping men's lives will not down. In one form or another scientists are helping to throw light upon it.

In the study of the influence of climate on mankind, new investigations have brought out new facts. For example one scientist arrives at the conclusion that there is a southward decline in the production of leaders. At first glance the cause for this might seem to be climatic, but detailed studies of various sections show that in regions with similar climate there may be great disproportions in the production of notables.

The yield of eminent men depends chiefly upon the characteristics of the population, especially their ideals, holds another scientific conclusion. But better buttressed is the assertion that "the yield of notables in proportion to population is greatest in the select suburbs or residential sections of large cities, followed by college towns, and then by smaller county seats. It is smallest in the less productive, more isolated rural localities of any section and in the portion of cities inhabited almost exclusively by the manual laboring classes."

These "findings" fly in the face of the tradition that country boys and the products of city slums furnish us most of our leaders. While opportunity is still open to these and the incentive is there, the youth surrounded by the best in environment and educational opportunities seems to be forging ahead.

DOLES UNPOPULAR

The American theory of government is based on the assumption that the people can and will take care of themselves. Paternalism has never been welcomed in the United States, although demagogues in politics sometimes use it for vote-winning purposes. Sometimes it becomes necessary for governmental units to help the people help themselves, but the rights of the individual are valued so highly that any attempt to introduce socialistic schemes meets with opposition from the people.

For these reasons such socialistic institutions as doles, old-age pensions, government unemployment insurance and government workers' insurance have not taken a strong hold in the United States. They do not make even good sugar for catching political flies, for they drive away more votes than they attract.

The old and indigent are not neglected in America. They are not even crowded into almshouses in great numbers, the population of such institutions in the United States being surprisingly small. And the government is constantly seeking ways to reduce this population.

Old-age pensions with the government (the taxpayers) bearing the bulk of the burden are not the universally accepted remedy. Old-age insurance built up from the earnings of the worker while he or she passes the productive period is the real solution. The one would encourage shiftlessness, the other thriftiness.

Afghanistan, it is revealed, has had prohibition for 400 years. But maybe it only seems that long.

Practical Health Problems

DILUTION MAKES COW'S MILK MORE DIGESTIBLE FOR BABY

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The process of digestion takes place in the stomach and in the intestines. When cow's milk is fed to an infant, the gastric juice increases in acidity in order to take care of the difference in reaction between the cow's milk and the human milk.

In order to bring cow's milk to the optimum acidity for digestion, three times as much acid must be added to a given amount of milk as is necessary with ordinary human milk.

When one part of cow's milk is diluted with two parts of water, the diluted milk, in its reaction, is more like human milk. Therefore, in order to make cow's milk more digestible for an infant, it may be diluted before feeding. There are, however, other means of accomplishing the same purpose, such as the addition of acid or the use of heat.

Fat undergoes little digestion in the stomach of the infant, and sugars are not acted on by the gastric juices except slightly. Little absorption of the food takes place in the stomach. The food, after being acted on in the stomach, goes through an opening called the pylorus into the intestines.

The pylorus, which is at the lower end of the stomach, opens and closes at intervals, so that only small quantities pass through at one time. The intestines are not, therefore, overwhelmed with food in excess of the ability to digest.

The complete emptying of the stomach depends, of course, on the amount of food that is put into it. In the case of the child fed at the breast, the stomach usually empties itself by the end of two hours. In the case of infants fed with dilutions of cow's milk mixed in various ways, from two and one-half to three hours or more may be required. If the cow's milk is treated so that the curds are very small, the mixture will leave the stomach more quickly than in instances in which the curds are very large.

Sugars are likely to leave the stomach before the proteins and fats. If there is an excess of fat in the food, the emptying time from the stomach is likely to be longer.

There are, moreover, certain disease conditions affecting the pylorus, the point at which the food passes from the stomach into the intestines. In cases in which spasm or contraction of the pylorus occurs, or in cases in which the pylorus is greatly narrowed because of some form of disease, the time required for food to pass from the stomach into the intestines may be greatly lengthened.

It is also well to know that the force of gravity may be employed in encouraging the emptying of food from the stomach into the intestines. Thus the food passes more quickly from the stomach into the intestines if one lies on the right side and, in the case of the infant, if it is held erect.

Wets Seek Bi-Party Help

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The wets are mighty hopeful of 1932.

They reckon that the Democratic convention is sure to name a wet presidential candidate, the southern delegations acquiescing. And it does sound like a reasonable forecast—assuming the choice of such a nominee, for example, as Franklin Roosevelt, who certainly appears to be overwhelmingly the strongest Democratic probability, at the present writing.

Furthermore, the wets calculate that the Republican candidate will be so scared at the Democratic candidate's wetness that he, too, will declare himself pretty wet. This also is conceivable. It is unimaginable that the G. O. P. will select any dryer standard bearer than Mr. Hoover, and he is no so irrevocably committed to prohibition as to make it inconsistent for him to endorse modification.

NOW—IF MY dry readers will bear with me for a moment—I am not trying to make out a case for the wets, but to point out what seems to me to be an error in their mathematics.

Let us suppose, then, that both of the old line presidential candidates do take the wet side in 1932—cautiously, of course (they will do plenty of qualifying, that's a foregone conclusion), but too unimpeachably to justify conscientious bone dries in voting for either one of them.

On such a supposition, the wets argue that nothing will remain for the dries but to put up a third, prohibition ticket—which the wets are confident will make only an insignificant showing, as in the pre-Eighteenth amendment days.

BEFORE accepting this theory 100 per cent, however, let us do a little more supposing.

Supposing that a third party presidential candidate runs in 1932, as a dry and nothing but a dry, he undoubtedly will not only be elected, but hopelessly distanced.

Vice President Curtis (mentioned as a dry presidential possibility) would hardly carry Kansas. Senator Simon D. Fess (similarly mentioned) would be lucky to carry anything. George White, Ohio's newly-elected dry Democratic governor (likewise mentioned), sounds about equally unpromising.

BUT SUPPOSE Gifford Pinchot should be nominated—as a progressive, just as the late Senator La Follette was nominated in 1924—and as a dry merely incidentally.

The western states are the progressive states—and dry also. La Follette ran in a poor year for a progressive; we had "property" with us then. And La Follette was a wet. Two years hence may be a better time, progressively speaking—plus the prohibition issue.

Supposing Mr. Pinchot to be a presidential candidate, it must be recognized that his dryness will handicap him in the populous eastern states—but we are supposing that, in these states, a wet Republican and a wet Democrat are splitting the wet presidential vote between them.

Or, instead of Mr. Pinchot, let us suppose the 1932 presidential nomination of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho as a third party progressive—and incidentally as a dry.

IN ALL THIS supposing, we are assuming that the third party dry has two wet (or wetish) rivals in the field against him.

The assumption that both old line parties will be pro-modification in 1932 is the wet assumption and they like to assume it, because they figure that repudiation of prohibition by both of the orthodox political parties will relegate the dry cause to its pre-Eighteenth amendment status of impotency.

The point I am attempting to make is that it does not seem that any one of the wets looks as if it will be much better off if one of the old line parties stays as dry as possible.

ENTHUSIASTIC wets refer to the country as overwhelmingly wet and enthusiastic dries refer to it as overwhelmingly dry.

My personal opinion is that it is not sufficiently either the one way or the other for the majority element (whichever one it may be) to split its vote without being defeated.

So I would say that a strong presidential campaigner, like Gifford Pinchot or Senator Borah, could not ask anything better than to have all the wet Republican voters for a modification Republican candidate and all the wet Democratic voters for a wet Democrat, while he scooped in all the dries from both groups.

A "SWAN SONG" SESSION

The approaching "lame-duck" session of congress will be the lamest of the lame, with more than the usual number of the "crippled" politicians singing their congressional swan songs. Moreover, this fine engagement of the seventy-first congress will see more than the usual number of midterm changes.

Due to deaths or resignations there will be six midterm changes in the senate and nearly a score in the house of representatives.

Secretary of Labor Davis will replace Senator Grundy, of Pennsylvania, who by appointment, has been filling the vacancy left by the rejection of Senator-elect Vane. Davis was elected at the recent election to serve the remaining two years of the Vane term.

Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, will take the seat from which Senator Edge resigned to become ambassador to France. Senator Baird has been occupying it during the interim. Robert D. Carey will supplant Senator Sullivan, who has been serving by appointment since the death of Senator Warren a year ago.

Senator-elect Bulkley, Democrat, of Ohio, will fill the seat of Senator Willis, Republican, who died in 1928. Senator Cyrus Locher, Democrat, succeeded Willis by appointment and was in turn succeeded by election by Theodore E. Burton, Republican, who died last year. Roscoe McCulloch, Republican, has been filling the vacancy by appointment since Burton's death.

Didn't someone suggest scrapping the Democratic party just about two years ago? There's many a come-back twist the wreck and the scrap heap.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

THANKSGIVING DAY WAS ORIGINALLY A FAST DAY.—The stern pilgrims, until the year 1631, celebrated their annual day of Thanksgiving by rigorously abstaining from food and drink. In that year, at Charlestown, the annual Thanksgiving Fast Day (Feb.-uary 28th) was changed into a Feast Day for the first time by order of the Governor, to celebrate the long awaited arrival of a ship with provisions from Ireland. Once again did the American Government revert to the custom of celebrating Thanksgiving Day by fasting. The FAMOUS CLIPPER SHIP "LIGHTNING," of 2004 tons, built by Donald McKay of New York, sailed for Liverpool from Boston on February 18, 1844. On March 1st she made the fastest 24-hour run of any vessel propelled by wind and canvas that ever sailed the seas. Her average speed was 18 1/2 knots an hour for that day, and in the hulls and puffs of the prevailing strong gale she had spurs of 30 knots an hour, making 502 3/4 miles for the day. Tomorrow: "ANOTHER PHANTOM OF THE GRIDIRON."

Heart Hungry

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN, AUTHOR OF "DASH ROMANCE" © 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. MITCHELL, a girl of Celia's age, introduces her daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOD JORDAN, a fascinating but of dubious character. Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. LISA DUNCAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan. Realization that it is really Shields she loves comes to Celia when the young man is imprisoned in a burning building. He escapes unhurt except for a broken arm. Mrs. Parsons, who pretends to be friendly to Shields, goes to Mitchell and tells him Celia is meeting the young man surreptitiously. That afternoon Celia and Shields are strolling together when Mitchell appears. He dismisses Shields and takes Celia home where they have a heated argument. Mrs. Parsons arrives and denies she has ever met Shields. Celia rushes from the room. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVII It was Evelyn Parsons' fault as much as Mitchell's anger that sent Celia running from the room. Hot, indignant tears coursed the girl's cheeks and she shook her shoulders. After she was calm enough to think she knew exactly what she must do. There was a telephone in the room. Celia lifted the instrument and gave the operator a number. Before the call was answered she changed her mind and set the telephone down. It was after six o'clock. In another part of the apartment preparations for dinner must be going on. Evelyn must be dressing and the maid would be helping her. There was no sound of life, however, outside the door of Celia's room. The girl made her preparations swiftly. She dried her eyes and tried to erase her swollen redness. Then she got out her traveling bag, opened it and tossed in garments and toilet articles. She changed to a plain dark frock and pulled a felt hat over her head. She barely glanced at the mirror, as she threw the things on. Speed was what counted!

Side Glances —By George Clark

Wotta Man! He Doesn't Throw The Bull—But He Lifts Him Every Day

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 27.—Somebody once told H. E. Mann that if you take some animal when it is very young and small and lift it off its feet every day, and keep on doing it while the animal grows toward maturity and sophistication, you will be able to pick the animal up when it is fully grown, no matter how big it is. Mr. Mann, having an inquiring mind, decided to test this theory. He lives on a farm near here, and among the animals on his farm was a bull calf. This calf was, at the time, a clumsy little thing weighing only 50 pounds. Mann picked it up. It was easy. Next day he picked it up again. It was still easy. So he mapped out his routine. There after, day after day, he went to the pen and hoisted the puzzled bull calf up on his shoulders. Just to keep his hand in, he did it eight times a day, between his other jobs. Time passed, and the bull grew and grew. And every day it got picked up by Mann. It got heavier, and Mann got stronger. Now comes the climax. The bull today weighs 600 pounds—and Mann can still pick it up and put it on his shoulders. "I don't know what I will do if that bull gets to weigh a thousand pounds," he says. "I may not be able to lift it, but I hope I can."

Will Seek to Forget Prison

Louis Vargas Bound for Venezuela to Claim His Share of $1,000,000 Fortune; Pardoned by Governor

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (P)—Louis A. Vargas is bound for Venezuela today to claim his share in a fortune estimated at $1,000,000 and to forget three and one-half years in prison for a crime he did not commit.

Vargas, a Chicago restaurateur, sailed yesterday to settle his father's estate, shared by him and three other children. Eighteen months ago he was paroled from Joliet, Ill. prison, and Governor Louis Emerson of Illinois recently granted him a pardon to restore his citizenship.

Entering the country 10 years ago from Switzerland, Vargas took employment as a waiter in Chicago. On Christmas eve, 1923, a friend held up a cabaret without his knowledge while he was standing outside and Vargas was charged with police complicity. On advice of lawyers, he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to from one to 10 years in prison.

After his parole, Vargas married and founded a prosperous business, to take care of which, Mrs. Vargas remained in Chicago.

Captain Edward Sycamore, the noted yachtman who had charge of Shamrock I, Shamrock IV and Westward, died recently at Brightlingsea, England.

to speak to him, please."
"How do you spell the name, I said?"
"Shields—Shields!"
"One moment," the laconic soprano voice replied. "I'll see if he's in."
The air in the booth was stuffy. Celia's pulse was racing and she felt faint. She clung for support to the shelf on which the telephone rested.

Minutes seemed to pass before the soprano voice again answered. "I'm sorry, Mr. Shields is not here, madam. Will you leave a number?"

"He's not there?"
"No, madam. Would you like to leave a number for him to call?"
"No, thank you." Celia put down the telephone and stepped out of the booth.

She had to see Barney! That thought was uppermost in the girl's mind. She had to see Barney and tell him it had all been a mistake all the afternoon. She must apologize for having been so stupid. She could have had Barney Shields think she and her father considered themselves superior to him. Celia's cheeks flushed. There were other things the young man must be made to understand. Uncertainly the girl looked about her. The traveling bag was at her feet. She disposed of that first, leaving it at a checking stand.

Celia decided to wait half an hour and then telephone. Barney was probably out at dinner.

She made her way through the labyrinthine corridors of the station until she reached the street. Lights glared and the sidewalk was crowded. Men, women and children rushed past as though on some important mission. Celia wondered vaguely at their eagerness. Curious that all should have the same staccato tempo.

she became lost in the surge of traffic at a street intersection. By what seemed a miracle she reached the other side of the broad thoroughfare. The sidewalk was lined with a host of small shops, each with brightly lighted windows. Celia studied them as she passed.

It was the theater crowd which was sweeping her along. When she had reached Times Square she turned and retraced her steps. Neither the one-way nor store windows indicated her way any longer. Suddenly she saw that it was eight o'clock. She began to walk swiftly, then, realizing naively that there were no phones all about, she entered a drug store, found a booth and again called Shields club.

The same voice answered. There was the same spelling of the name and delay before the operator reported, "Mr. Shields is not in, madam."

Celia thought rapidly. There was no number that she could leave on way for Barney to reach her. Yet she must see him.

"Can I leave a message?" she asked.

"Certainly, madam."
"Will you tell Mr. Shields that Miss Mitchell telephoned and that she will call again?"

The girl at the other end of the connection repeated the message. She assured Celia it would be delivered.

It was a problem to know what to do after that. Although she had had no food the thought of eating did not occur to Celia. She wandered back to Grand Central Station, inquired about trains to Baltimore and was given a marked time table. Hurried for the last train checked departed at 10:40.

Celia walked out on the street again. A blase of electricity some distance up Lexington avenue attracted her. It was a motion picture theater.

Celia bought a ticket and went inside. An usher conducted her to a seat. The drama being unveiled was near its mid-point, quite unintelligible, but the girl felt comforted by the darkness and blessed release from noise and clamor.

She had not noticed the title of the film. Familiar faces of actors and actresses passed before her and she scarcely saw them. She remembered, though, from time to time, to glance at her watch.

When it was almost 10 o'clock Celia left the theater. She returned to the station and the booth from where she had first telephoned. It was a man's voice that answered. Again Celia asked for Barney. She tapped her heel nervously as she waited.

It came at last: "Mr. Shields is not in, madam."
"But—hasn't he been in? I called earlier and left a message. Do you know if he received it?"

"One moment, madam."
The clerk's voice came back over the wire. "There's no message in Mr. Shields' box. What time did you say you called?"

Celia told him.

Then he should have had your message. Do you care to leave any further word?"

"No, thank you."

She shut her eyes as she turned away from the telephone. There was nothing more that she could do. Suddenly Celia Mitchell felt herself a little less alone, less friendless, and greatly in need of comforting.

She longed for protecting arms about her and a shoulder on which she could rest her head and weep out her misery. She wanted the one person who always understood—her mother.

She blinked the tears back. Her eyes sought the big station clock and she nearly ran to the checking stand to get her bag. There was a line waiting before the ticket window, but she took her place and tried to master her impatience.

"You have two minutes to make it!" the salesman said crisply as he handed over the slip of pasteboard. A red-capped porter offered assistance. He led off on a run and Celia followed. Breathless she swung into the last remaining bus seat. With reckless gratitude she tossed a dollar bill to the porter as the driver set his engine throbbing.

Celia leaned back and closed her eyes. When it was time to transfer from bus to train she realized that her ticket was for the day coach. The conductor offered to see if she could transfer to a Pullman. After 10 minutes he returned. "It's possible there'll be a cancellation."

Celia thanked him and settled back against the dusty car seat. How very tired she was! Her eyes closed. Several times she stirred, frowned at the lights and twisted into greater comfort. She slept soundly. Then she heard the conductor trying to rouse her.

"This is Baltimore!" he said. Celia rubbed her eyes, sat up and gathered together her possessions. It was gray morning when she stepped out on the Mount Royal platform and hailed a cab. A tremendous sense of excitement stirred her as she rode through the familiar streets.

They reached her former home. Celia ran up the steps. Beaming, breathless, she rapped on the door of the third-floor apartment. She rapped a second time.

There was no answer.

Hardly Able To Walk Upstairs

"I Am Glad To Make This Statement Regarding Benefits I Have Derived From Argotane," Says Wichita Woman

"Argotane has certainly made me feel like a different person and I am glad to give this statement regarding the benefits I have derived from its use," was the statement made recently by Mrs. W. L. Nolen, living on the Iowa Park road, Wichita Falls, Texas, while talking with an Argotane representative.

"I've had stomach troubles for a number of years and haven't been able to eat hardly anything for food would not digest and gas would form and I would be very uncomfortable for hours afterwards. Sometimes my heart would palpitate so fast I was afraid that it would prove serious, for I had high blood pressure. I had severe headaches and was very weak and nervous and couldn't do my housework at all, and wasn't hardly able to walk upstairs. All of the work I liked to do I had to give up because I just wasn't able."

"Since taking Argotane I am completely relieved of all my stomach and indigestion troubles. My dizzy and bloating spells are a thing of the past now and I feel fine in every way. I am doing part of my work now and am enjoying life more than I have for a long time. I think Argotane is a wonderful medicine and I am glad to give this statement in order that friends may know about it."

Gravelling Argotane may be purchased at the Brown Drug Store.

Seen From The Top Of The Yellowhouse Windmill

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Field Correspondent

Fred Pitt, manager of the Higginbotham-Bartlett lumber yard at Shallowater, has a unique "three minute glass" attached to his telephone that tells the time for phone conversations. "You would be surprised how nearly accurate this glass is," Mr. Pitt said when asked about the little glass tube with two sections, attached to his telephone. "I have timed it several times and it takes minutes for the sand to go from one section of the glass to the other. The toy hour glass was distributed by the Western Sand and Gravel company, of Amarillo. Red sand is used, of a very fine quality, that shows it has been screened several times."

L. W. Clark, president of the Anton State bank, has been given a picture of the late J. P. Anton, former division superintendent of the Santa Fe, for whom the town was named. "I am going to have the picture framed some time when I get to Lubbock and hang it in the bank," Mr. Clark said. "I never met Mr. Anton when he was alive, but I have heard a great deal about him."

They are telling a story about the famous sand storm of Sunday, November 16, over in Ball, and what power the wind has. Some of the boys at the First National bank are responsible for the tale. It seems that on one of the farms where the bank has some stock, the caretaker watched the wind and its antics. The tumbleweeds were thick during the wind, almost as thick as the sand. Tossing and tumbling around in the wind, the weeds landed up against the fence around the field where the cattle were. "The wind and weeds were so strong that a post or two were blown out of the ground and the fence bowed out for about ten feet," one man said. "I would not believe it if I did not know from personal experience that weeds when driven by the wind against wires, do have a tremendous force."

Dick Hyatt has a following over in Ball, that keeps the editor of the Ball Banner well stocked with the fruits and vegetables grown on Crosby county farms. Not long ago Dick was presented with three big purple topped turnips that tipped the scales at five and a half pounds. Dick took them home and had them cooked. They made more than enough for a meal. "It just shows what can be grown right here in Crosby county," Dick said.

Spur's night watchman, who is also city marshal, has a female German Police dog that he is taking around with him on his night rounds. As a result, there are said to be few night prowlers in Spur who care to tackle the officer. The puppy, she is only about four months old, is very friendly. She makes up to persons with whom her master is on speaking terms. But let him meet up with some one he does not know and the dog is all ears and no greetings.

Dr. P. H. Mitchell, popular Ball physician, is telling a "hard luck" story that is hard to beat. The doctor has made a good many friends among the farmers of Crosby county during the year and a half he has lived there and they frequently bring him vegetables and fruits from their farms and gardens. The other day a farmer was in for a treatment and while talking to Dr. Mitchell said, "Doc, I had a grocery bill last month of $6.10. It was way too high. I've got to cut down on my bills." The doctor looked amazed and the farmer explained that his garden and his flock was supplying his table with plenty to eat.

"I maintain we can raise anything up here on the South Plains," the doctor said. "My father-in-law, up near Plainview, had some of the finest cucumbers, tomatoes, corn, beans and other vegetables I ever saw. He did not plant his garden until wheat harvest was over. We visited him and canned all we wanted to and so did his neighbors. He had a lot of stuff to go to waste after everybody had had all they could use."

ATTEMPT JAIL BREAK

DENISON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Three in the city jail desiring their freedom for Thanksgiving attempted to rush Jailer H. Y. Parrott with stove poker. Eleven sleepers accommodated by the jail with a bed for the night came to his aid and saved a delivery and possibly a severe beating for the pailer. The sleepers received commendation and the three prisoners received no turkey.

"HEART BALM" DENIED Suit for $5,000 Dismissed in Arkansas Court

TEXARKANA, Ark., Nov. 27. (AP)—A suit for $5,000 filed by Miss Mattie Hickey, 30, against J. W. McFadden, 76, in the Miller county circuit was dismissed without prejudice today. Miss Hickey alleged McFadden, aged grocer, made love to her in 1929, asked her to marry him and a date for the wedding was set, but in the meantime he met and married a young widow of Ogden, Ark., after a courtship of four days. McFadden's answer said Miss Hickey had mistaken friendship for love and had been deceived by her own imagination.
