Gore, Bush float names for Cabinets

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

While the nation's highest court considered who will serve in the nation's highest office, advisers for George W. Bush and Al Gore on Friday floated the names of candidates for two Cabinets — only one of which will ever see the light of day.

From the splendor of their raised wooden dais, nine U.S. Supreme Court justices heard arguments on a narrow question of Florida election law while, hundreds of miles away, the Florida Supreme Court and a circuit judge denied Gore's petitions for immediate recounts.

Florida's high court also refused to order a new election in Palm Beach County where a "butterfly ballot" drew protests from Democratic voters. Gore was not formally involved in the case, but a new election would have thrown the contested election into turmoil.

A senior Gore adviser acknowledged it was a bad day for the vice president, though Democrats remained hopeful. His team was pointing toward a trial today in Florida on the central issue: Should the state's official election results showing Bush the winner

Speculation over secretary includes former Midlanders

As George W. Bush, Dick Cheney and other confidants huddle to consider Cabinet appointments, speculation abounds in the oil industry about the next secretary of energy. Midlanders were on the list.

Whoever is named to the Cabinet post will have the task of formulating a national energy policy. State Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, has made it clear a Bush administration would have a comprehensive energy policy, which would focus primarily on keeping energy prices low. It is expected that Bush, if elected, will make it a top priority to achieve a comprehensive national energy policy, designed to decrease America's overdependence on foreign oil.

Among the names mentioned for secretary of energy are: Don Evans, Bush's longtime friend and campaign manager; Denise Bode, former president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America and present member of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. Democrat John Breaux, a U.S. senator from energy-producing Louisiana, and a leader on energy issues has also been mentioned for the post, as have Texas Railroad Commissioner Michael Williams, former Texas Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson and Ken Lay, Enron chairman and CEO.

"Each one of these candidates would bring a wealth of expertise to the Department of Energy," said Mor-

Judge Bunton bids farewell; comments on election fight

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

In bidding farewell to his West Texas home and to the Midland-Odessa area, U.S. senior District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton III on Friday said he was "very surprised" the U.S. Supreme Court got involved in the dispute of Florida's presidential ballots.

"Your guess on that is as good as mine," Bunton, 76, said of the court's impending ruling on whether to intervene in the dispute over the validity of hand-counted ballots in the Florida vote.

Bunton on Friday, his 76th birthday, rounding out his 21st year as a federal judge, announced that he and his wife, Mary Jane, would be moving to Austin Dec. 14 because of their "health situation" and to be near their family in an assisted-living home.

Bunton, who is on supplemental oxygen, will continue his senior judgeship status. However, he will not be trying cases because of shortness of breath but can try less demanding work such as empaneling juries or taking verdicts in criminal cases.

Manor Park defends official with financial problems in Iowa

By Leslie Burleson
Staff Writer

An official at Manor Park Continuing Care Retirement Community allegedly mishandled funds totaling $23,284 while he was working at an agency in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, according to the findings of the Iowa State Auditor's Office.

Tom Miskimen, who is director of operations at Manor Park, was suspended from his job as executive director of Heritage Area Agency on Aging on Oct. 12, 1999, and his resignation was accepted on Oct. 28, 1999.

The 52-year-old Miskimen has worked at Manor Park for three months. Manor Park Executive Director Alan Hale staunchly defended Miskimen, whom he described as "a good man" who fully disclosed his problems in Iowa before his hiring.

Miskimen attributed his troubles to political enemies in the city of 120,000, the second largest town in Iowa. "You always get criticized when you're a leader," he said, adding, "I've cried over this. It just makes me sick."

Miskimen

The Heritage agency is under the control of Kirkwood Community College in Cedar Rapids, which requested an audit for the period of Aug. 16, 1993, through Dec. 30, 1999.

Linn County (Iowa) Attorney Denver Dillard criticized the Iowa State Auditor's Office after the audit was released, noting that the three-year statute of limitations had expired on several of the allegations. He added that the state auditor's office should have contacted law enforcement officials early in its investigation.

Iowa's Chief Deputy Auditor Warren Jenkins disagreed with Dillard's contention, saying he believed Miskimen should be considered a public official, which would allow his prosecution for three years after his resignation date. "His paycheck (came) from the community college, which is a public institution, he was in their retirement system, which is public," Jenkins said.

When asked about the current status of the case, Dillard said it is under investigation and said he couldn't say anything else about it.

Miskimen's successor, Heritage Executive Director Elizabeth Selk, said she has known Miskimen since their high school days in Cedar Rapids. "He left in October and I came in January," Ms. Selk said. "There were alleged improprieties at that time, and the investigation took a year." Heritage fully supported the audit, she added.

Midlanders observe World AIDS Day with candle-lit ceremony

By Johnnye Montgomery

About 100 Midlanders gathered at the First Presbyterian Church Friday night in remembrance of a cum laude graduate, great dancers, good cooks, friends without peer and well-loved family members who had died with AIDS, as they marked World AIDS Day, organized by the World Health Organization. This was Midland's seventh annual observance of the day.

The theme this year was "We, mankind, can make a difference."

At the service officiated by the Rev. Steve Wilkins of First Presbyterian and Judy Warren, director of Midland Area AIDS Support, Inc., Sharae Buskirk who served as visiting pastor, led a meditation around the New Testament story of the blind Bartimaeus, who begged Jesus to "have pity on me."

Shooting near Odessa College being investigated as aggravated assault

By Timothy V. Kreitz
MRT Correspondent

ODESSA — A shooting near the Odessa College campus Thursday night seems to have been sparked by a skirmish involving Odessa College students and a group of non-students who had been engaged in several verbal altercations throughout the course of the day, according to police reports and OC officials.

At approximately 10:22 p.m. Thursday, Odessa police responded to a call of shots fired in the 200 block of West University. According to the Odessa Police Department, the responding officers were advised of a possible gunshot victim while en route to the call. But upon their arrival at the scene, no victim could be found.

Approximately 10 minutes later, OPD was advised that a 16-year-old male had arrived at the emergency room of Medical Center Hospital by private vehicle with a gunshot wound to the shoulder and chest area.

Odessa College Media Relations Officer Cheri Dalton said no students were hurt in the incident, nor is it believed that any of the students involved in the altercation was the shooter. "We're not even sure at this point if the gunshot victim who showed up at the hospital was involved in this particular situation," she said. "Although it does seem likely, all things considered."

Preliminary information supplied by the Odessa Police Department and Odessa College seems to indicate that a group of three non-students entered onto the Odessa College campus and "crashed" a school sponsored dance, where they became involved in a verbal altercation with a group of OC students. The argument stemmed from a previous confrontation between the same group of students earlier in the day.

"Several of our dance sponsors then made the three young men leave the party," Ms. Dalton said. "As they left, a group of several students followed them across the street to a parking lot off campus. That is apparently when the shooting occurred."

Witness reports said the arguing and posturing continued for a short period of time before the shots rang out, as both groups walked north, seemingly taunting one another. At this time, it is believed that one of the non-students fired a hand gun in the direction of the campus as he got into his car.

"Four to five shots were fired," said Ms. Dalton. "But the initial reports that the shooting had happened at the campus sports center were wrong. The parties were all off campus at the time."

Ms. Dalton said there has not been a major crime reported on the Odessa College campus in several years, and such an occurrence is highly unusual. "We have a quiet campus," she explained. "Everyone was really shocked by this."

Members of the Odessa Police Department's metro homicide and crimes against persons units responded to the scene and are currently investigating the shooting as an aggravated assault. As of 1:30 a.m. Friday morning, the gunshot victim at Medical Center Hospital had been listed in stable condition.

JUDGE: Bunton hailed as one of the 'great trial lawyers in America'

(From 1A)

ing of Florida ballots to push him ahead of Gov. George W. Bush with a majority of the nation's 538 electoral votes.

Bush, 54, wants Florida's popular vote to stay where it is so he can hold on to the Sunshine States's 25 electoral votes that are crucial in deciding the nation's 43rd president.

To date, there is a 537-vote difference in the 5.8-million votes that Floridians cast for Bush and Gore for president.

"I was very surprised that they (justices) even took the case," Bunton said in his chambers in the U.S. Courthouse in Midland. "I didn't think they would, so that shows how much I know about it. They did."

Generally, after the U.S. Supreme Court justices take a case, "They don't render an opinion for several months," Bunton noted.

"They decided to do that (Bush-Gore Florida hearing at once) in this case, which they have a right to do," Bunton said. "It really is going to throw things in a bind. So, I imagine they are going to change their procedure somewhat and hand down an opinion pretty quickly."

At age 55 in 1979, Bunton, a Democrat who names President Franklin D. Roosevelt among his heroes, assumed the federal judgeship following his appointment by President Jimmy Carter. At that time, he was practicing law in Odessa and was active in Democratic Party politics.

His appointment to the judgeship is "still awfully fresh on my mind," Bunton reflected. "I don't think anybody ever set out as one of their ambitions in life to become a federal judge. He may want to be a judge. There's just not that many of us around." There are about 625 federal judges.

Of moving from the Midland-Odessa area, Bunton said he and his wife "hate to leave.

"I hate to leave the courthouse here. I hate to leave my home, my friends, and the church — all these sort of things.

"You make a lot of friends," Bunton said. "You get used to rooting for your high school football team, used to going to the same grocery store. We are going to miss it."

Bunton, a World War II U.S. Army infantry veteran in Europe, and his wife moved to Odessa in 1959 from Marfa. He was raised on a ranch southwest of there.

They have lived in the same house for 37 years in a quiet neighborhood of Odessa.

"It is quite a thing to just pick up and move," he said. "We think it is necessary because of our health situation to go a little bit closer to our family."

Their son, Lucius D. Bunton IV, practices law in Austin. Their daughter, Cathryne Avis "Cay" Bunton Warner, is a school principal in Pampa.

"One of the hardest things I am going to have to give up is coming to Midland and holding court at this courthouse," Bunton lamented.

His investiture as a federal judge was Dec. 7, 1979.

Bunton, who in 1979 became the first-resident judge for the Midland-Odessa division of the federal court system's Western District of Texas, took senior status several years ago.

In the mid-1990s, U.S. District Court Judge Royal Furgeson became the division's resident judge and "has done a wonderful job.

"Our docket has increased here," Bunton said. "It has exploded in Pecos because of problems with controlled substances. So, he (Furgeson) has more than he can say grace over. He is doing a good job; it's a hard job, and I'm sorry that my health precludes me from giving him any assistance.

"But I'm tethered to this (supplemental) oxygen, and I just run out of breath," Bunton said. "When it comes to trying lawsuits, you can't do that as a judge," Bunton said. "A lawyer can always make excuses. But the judge has got to be in control, so he has got to be able to talk."

Bunton, who earned the reputation of running a "rocket docket" due to his relatively rapid movement of cases by limiting lawyers' redundancy and repetitive rhetoric, said that the federal staffs in Midland and Pecos "have had the ability … and hard work to keep the docket current, as Judge Furgeson is doing now," and trying lawsuits in "quick time. I'm proud of those accomplishments" in effectively moving cases.

Of Bunton's retirement from the active federal bench, Furgeson said, "We greet his retirement with the proverbial mixed emotions.

"The reason is, of course, we want him to enjoy his retirement. But we will miss his leadership and his counsel and his help."

Furgeson characterized Bunton as "one of the great trial lawyers of America" and a judge who has "compiled a record that is really unequaled in his time.

"You can't have someone like Judge Bunton hang up his spurs and not miss him and feel a gigantic void," Furgeson said. "But he's going to do what he needs to be doing. We are fully in support and wish him the best in his retirement."

Bunton's chambers in Austin will be on the first floor of the old courthouse there.

"It is with sorrow that I make this announcement," Bunton said of his move from West Texas. "There comes a time in everybody's life when you have to do something that you'd really rather not do. But you know, for you own good that you have to.

"It's not easy for us to pick up and go," Bunton said. "We have nothing but fond memories of working with the people here in this courthouse and with the people of Odessa and Midland."

Marfa shootings leave two men dead, one woman hospitalized

From staff reports

An employee at a commercial tomato greenhouse south of Marfa shot two fellow employees before turning the gun on himself Thursday, a sheriff's deputy said.

About 7:30 a.m. Thursday, as a 36-year-old woman arrived to work at the Village Farms hydroponic facility, a 60-year-old male employee pulled into the parking lot, got out of his car and shot the woman twice with a .357 Magnum revolver, Presidio County Chief Deputy Rusty Taylor said.

The man then walked through the main building to one of the greenhouses and shot a 58-year-old male employee once, fatally before shooting himself in the head, Taylor said.

Both men were dead at the scene, he said.

The woman is in fair condition at Big Bend Regional Hospital in Alpine, according to reports.

None of the suspects were related, Taylor said, and no identities were being released pending notification of next of kin.

"The most important thing is whether or not they count the ballots," Gore campaign chairman William Daley said in a phone interview.

Daley is in line for a top White House job if Gore wins, most likely chief of staff if he wants it, according to several Gore advisers.

Housing Secretary Andrew Cuomo also is a candidate for chief of staff, according to two senior Gore advisers who have discussed the potential transition with the vice president. The two sources also say:

- Labor Secretary Alexis Herman is a candidate for several Cabinet posts, though some friends are urging her to go into the lucrative private sector.
- Former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell and Richard Holbrooke, the U.S. representative to the United Nations, are the leading candidates for secretary of state.
- Former Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., are under consideration for defense secretary, as is the current Pentagon chief, William Cohen, a Republican. Retired Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman John Shalikashvili has been mentioned as a possibility, though the officials said Gore is unlikely to put a former military leader in the Pentagon's top civilian post.
- Treasury Secretary Larry Summers might keep his post if Gore wins, but the vice president also is looking at former budget chief Franklin Raines. He has asked transition chief Roy Neel to include GOP businessmen in his search for candidates.
- Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer has emerged as a candidate for attorney general.

For Gore and Bush, the talk of transition is a political tool designed to give voters the impression they are ready to serve. Bush hopes to cement the perception he is most likely to prevail in Florida, while the vice president is trying to fight back with his own leaks and transition team photo ops.

A poll conducted for the Pew Research Center showed the percentage of Americans who think Bush will be the next president rose from 58 percent last week to 66 percent in polling conducted since Sunday. The percentage of Americans who believe Bush won and Gore should concede increased from 36 percent to 45 percent in the same time frame.

White House Chief of Staff John Podesta met with top aides to Gore and Bush, agreeing to put in place a process allowing both camps to work with the FBI on background checks for potential appointees.

While Gore is devoting most of his time in search of a quick legal victory, Bush is making more progress on his transition.

He has already settled on two Cabinet posts — retired Gen. Colin Powell as secretary of state and Condoleezza Rice as national security advisers. Andrew Card would be his chief of staff.

Senior Republicans are circulating scores of other candidates, both to tip Bush's hand and to pad his list with women, minorities and Democrats for political purposes. Just on Friday the top Republicans said:

- Montana Gov. Marc Racicot is the top contender for attorney general, though other possibilities include two female lawyers who have worked for Bush: Harriett Miers and Terry Lacie.
- Kay James, who worked in the administration of Bush's father, is a prospect for the Health and Human Services posting. Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson also is under consideration.

Rep. Jim Talent, R-Mo., who lost a bid for Missouri governor, has been mentioned as a potential transportation secretary. Some Bush advisers say Gov. Tom Ridge of Pennsylvania is a top candidate for defense secretary, but others minimize his chances.

None of this matters unless the courts uphold Bush's winning margin in Florida.

"Why should the federal judiciary be interfering in what seems to be a very carefully thought-out scheme" for electing people in Florida, asked U.S. Supreme Court Justice David H. Souter — his just one in a series of questions about the high court's jurisdiction.

The scene outside the courtroom in Washington was less solemn. Hundreds of people from both camps demonstrated alongside those hoping for a taste of history or a dose of attention. Anti-abortion groups, feminists, the Falun Gong religious group — all sharing the street scene with a man dressed as Uncle Sam. Darth Vader was there, too, rubbing elbows with a Roman soldier.

Then there was the man who drove past the menagerie, yelling out his car window: "No president! We don't need no president!"

And yet, the courts labored long to find one — the closest White House race of the century was the subject of 42 lawsuits in Florida alone.

The biggest one is in the courtroom of Circuit Judge N. Sanders Sauls, who is holding a hearing Saturday on the Gore petition to overturn Florida's results. Secretary of State Katherine Harris, a Bush partisan, has certified the Texas governor winner by 537 votes out of 6 million cast.

Florida's 25 electoral votes would give Bush one more than the 270 needed to claim the White House. If Gore wins in the courts, GOP state lawmakers were preparing to call a special session to appoint a slate of Bush electors.

Gore wants Harris ordered to accept manually recounted ballots in three Democratic-leaning counties, where he hopes to pick up votes.

Gore's team was preparing allies for a potential defeat in the Supreme Court, circulating word that the real battle is in Sauls' court. If Gore loses there he will certainly appeal, Democratic lawmakers on Capitol Hill were told, and the nation's highest court could get another crack at the case.

Aides said the vice president plans to lie low this weekend while the legal proceedings dominate the news. His surrogates are being primed to step up criticism of Bush's brother, Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, and the Florida Legislature. Gore hopes to convince Americans the Texas governor is using his brother, his party and his legal team to delay the vice president's appeal and ensure a victory regardless of how the courts rule.

Bush and running mate Dick Cheney attended a Christmas party at the governor's mansion in Austin, on Friday. Bush also called lawyer Ted Olson, thanked him for making his case in the Supreme Court and commended the legal team for its work, aides said.

Bush and Cheney were to return to Bush's ranch in Crawford early this morning for a meeting with House Speaker Dennis Hastert and Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott.

ENERGY: Bush choices include Democrat

(From 1A)

ris Burns, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

From a leadership standpoint Lay is a top candidate in everyone's book. Financial Intelligence, in 1999, called him one of the 50 top CEOs in the nation. One of the top executives in the energy industry, Lay is responsible for establishing Enron as the leading U.S. marketer of electricity and natural gas and for "taking the company into the red-hot communications industry." As secretary of energy, he would bring extensive experience in critical areas that must be factored into a national energy policy including oil, natural gas and electricity.

Industry leaders say Lay's leadership, inventiveness and business philosophy allowed Enron to evolve from a small natural gas company in Houston to one of the world's largest integrated electricity and natural gas companies.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Michael Williams, another Bush friend and former Midlander has done a credible job at the Texas Railroad Commission insiders say and would bring an ethnic balance to the Cabinet. They also point out he has only a few years experience on the energy scene, and that may work against him.

Sen. John Breaux, a Democrat not only hails from neighboring Louisiana, an energy-producing state, but he has been a leader on many critical energy issues in Congress. The fact that he is a Democrat would help Bush build a "coalition Cabinet" of Republican and Democratic members.

Denise Bode, a commissioner on the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, former president of the Independent Petroleum Association and an aide to former Oklahoma Gov. Davis Boren is already being promoted by some in Oklahoma as a possible choice for the Cabinet job.

In a letter to George W. Bush, Harold Hamm, chairman of Save Domestic Oil Inc. and president of the National Stripper Well Association has urged Bush to consider Ms. Bode for the position. He described her as a "problem-solver who is always able to get the job done."

At a recent meeting of the National Association of Royalty Owners, in Oklahoma City, where she presented an award to retiring founder Jim Stafford, Ms. Bode said she was flattered to be mentioned as being considered for the Cabinet position.

Evans, chairman of Tom Brown Inc. and Bush campaign manager, also has been mentioned as a possible candidate. Evans and Bush are close personal friends. As an oil and gas executive he has achieved an admirable leadership record, in making Tom Brown Inc. a major independent player in the Rocky Mountains, and is more than qualified to fill the post, but others say he may opt for an advisory post a little closer to the possible new president.

Another Midlander with potential for the post is Barry Williamson, former Texas railroad commissioner. Williamson served in the U.S. Minerals Management Service of President George Bush's administration, before being elected to the Railroad Commission. Williamson has energy experience at the state and federal levels, and probably will have his name put on the candidate list. Williamson dropped his seat on the Texas Railroad Commission to run for attorney general in 1998. He was defeated by John Cornyn.

Burns, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said logic should make Williamson a candidate for the post. Burns also noted that Bush is fortunate to have a stellar lineup of candidates to fill the post. "Anyone of those being mentioned for the job would make an excellent secretary of energy. I don't think the oil industry would be disappointed if any one of the five mentioned so far got the job."

IOWA: Manor Park defends Miskimen

(From 1A)

Ms. Selk described the audit results as "pretty damning — it spells it out pretty clearly." She charged that the alleged money misuse included taking funds meant for the elderly, including such programs as Meals on Wheels, and using them for personal purposes, including improvements to Miskimen's house and those of his mother, his sister and a friend.

Heritage's association with the community college is the only one like it in the country, Ms. Selk said, adding that Kirkwood is the third largest community college in the United States.

Hale suggested that politics in the Iowa state auditor's office might have brought about the investigation. "There's some politics in there," Hale said. "It's easy to shoot holes in somebody when they're not there to defend themselves."

Miskimen agreed with the political hypothesis. "State auditors are always looking for something to do," he said, adding that Heritage was audited every year without earlier problems.

Miskimen said he did allocate money to relatives. "I did help my mother and my sister and 14,000 other elderly people, but they received no favorable treatment. My mother's now dead, but she would roll over in her grave" over his current plight, Miskimen added.

He characterized himself as an innovative leader. One of his programs, called Dashboard Dining, involved the use of a Burger King drive-through to deliver nutritionally balanced meals to mobile seniors. The program won a governor's award for innovation, Miskimen said.

Ms. Selk holds a grudge against him because they were competitors for the executive director's job at Heritage, Miskimen contended.

In May, a Midland County jury awarded Faynelle Slaughter and her family $1.1 million, finding Manor Park partially responsible for the 1998 rape of Ms. Slaughter. The 84-year-old Alzheimer's disease patient was allegedly raped by Manor Park janitor Clifton Orphry, then 41, and the jury in 385th District Court found the nursing home should pay about $600,000 of the total sum.

Orphry, who was using the name Adolph Donnell Douglas, had been convicted of forgery, auto theft and drug abuse, and according to the defense at his May trial, Manor Park's screening processes might not have precluded his hiring, since he was convicted of nonviolent offenses. Manor Park did not check Orphry's references, his background or his criminal record, according to the lawsuit in the Slaughter case.

"We were duped," Hale said of the Orphry hiring. "It's common in the industry to have a very high turnover" because of the stress of the job.

But Hale expressed no doubt of the wisdom of hiring Miskimen. "His credentials are wonderful," he said. "I hope he stays here."

WORLD: AIDS victims lauded as 'modern-day heroes'

(From 1A)

"May we, like Bartimaeus, with courage and hope leave our dark places," she said.

During the ceremony, several Midland families remembered their dead of AIDS and Ms. Warren presented Deborah Hawkins, a person living with HIV, with the second G. Thomas Harlow Outstanding Volunteer award for her work to increase public awareness of how the virus spreads, and to disseminate the facts on prevention, by speaking in the schools of Midland. The award was first established last year to honor Harlow for his work in AIDS prevention education. Harlow moved to Austin last year.

In her address at the service, Ms. Warren said persons living with AIDS and HIV, and those who have died, are modern day heroes.

"The persons living with HIV and AIDS today are the ones who are paving the way for the future, of life with this disease. But let us never forget the ones who have already lost their brave battles," Ms. Warren said. "They are the ones who paved the way for life today with this disease. We must always remember the ones who were the pioneers with AIDS. Because of them and their struggles with AIDS, we have better medicines today that are giving new hope to many people living with this disease."

In an interview before the service, Ms. Warren said that the U.S. is the only country in the world where AIDS is referred to as a "gay disease."

"This is not a gay disease," she said. "It never was. The people of our country are at a great disadvantage in believing this, because they think that if they're not gay, they won't get AIDS.

"This is a disease of youth. The young people of today are living in a world more dangerous than there has ever been before. We've never before had anything in this world that, if we made one mistake, would cost our very lives.

"Young people today have to be smarter than they've ever had to be in the history of the world. It's going to take all of us to come together and help our kids, who still look to us to guide them."

Ms. Warren said one of the big problems she sees when she visits the schools is that AIDS is not a subject most adults feel comfortable talking about.

"The main guidance they're getting from adults is from movies and videos and it just leads kids to draw their own conclusions.

"Kids are worried about the world they live in. They don't get the information they need from us, and they know that they have to have information in order to stay alive.

"People need to understand that AIDS statistics don't take into account the people who are HIV positive. Only 10 percent of those people know that they have it. That's why education is so important.

"When I talk to young people, I always say that I cannot tell them that if they don't do certain things, they will never get cancer. But we know what causes AIDS. We can tell them how to prevent AIDS."

Ms. Warren said she finds renewed hope for the youth, however, in a movement known as "secondary virginity."

"More and more, kids are beginning to realize that just because they make a mistake, they aren't doomed to continue making that same mistake."

Former Odessa attorney named in rustling scam

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

A former Ector County District Attorney's prosecutor, C. Miller Wallace Jr., is implicated in a multistate cattle-rustling scheme, law officers said. Wallace has been released from jail in Odessa on a $50,500 bond.

"He was arrested in Odessa on a Louisiana warrant," according to Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who said Wallace also faces a theft charge.

Wallace, who was an Odessa prosecutor in the mid-1990s, was released from jail in Odessa on Nov. 20, according to a jail spokesman.

Painter said "four or five people were involved in a situation where some hot checks were written for upwards of over a half-million dollars for cattle, horses and equipment."

Investigators in the case include Alan Thompson, a Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association investigator who formerly was a deputy sheriff under Painter.

Wallace, 44, is in good standing with the State Bar of Texas, according to a spokesman. However, since 1993, he has incurred eight charges and reprimands from the State Bar, which listed his most recent address as Midland.

"A cop can have any little thing (lodged against him or her)," Painter said. "They (officials) will jerk his license — make sure he never does law-enforcement again. But a lawyer can do anything and get by with it."

Prison escapees arrested crossing border in El Paso

EL PASO (AP) — Two escapees from a Colorado prison were arrested without incident Friday morning as they tried to cross a bridge over the border into the United States.

Mario Pinedo, 20, and Jose Rodriguez, 19, escaped from the Buena Vista Correctional Complex on Nov. 13.

Pinedo, who was serving a four-year sentence for possession of a controlled substance, was indicted Thursday in Denver County, Colo., on four charges of first-degree murder. Rodriguez was serving four years for drug abuse and another two years for trespassing.

Both were booked into the El Paso County jail, waived extradition in a hearing Friday and are expected to be returned to Colorado to face charges associated with their escape.

U.S. Customs agents also recovered a 1992 Jeep Cherokee that the pair allegedly stole and used as a getaway car shortly after their escape.

The men, who were unarmed, were arrested by Customs agents as they tried to cross the Bridge of the Americas as passengers in a car at 1 a.m. Friday.

The agents had been alerted that the pair were in the area and might be crossing the border. Colorado Department of Corrections officials were in El Paso and arrived at the bridge moments after the arrest to confirm the suspects' identities.

Woman sentenced to nine years for injuring infant son

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A San Antonio woman was sentenced to nine years in federal prison on Friday for removing a medical tube from her premature son while he was at a federal hospital.

Hicks, 26, pleaded guilty in April to injuring her son, Cameron, while he was undergoing treatment at Wilford Hall Medical Center in San Antonio.

Hicks was alone with her baby when she intentionally removed a tracheal tube from his throat, causing the infant to suffer three cardiac arrests, investigators said. A hidden video camera placed in the room by Air Force investigators caught Hicks tampering with the infant's medical equipment.

Army reviewing favorable treatment for soldiers accused of misconduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Army commander has ordered a review of personnel actions that benefited 82nd Airborne Division members who were disciplined for their roles in abuses against ethnic Albanians during peacekeeping duty in Kosovo.

The actions that could be withdrawn include unspecified "favorable assignments" and selection for promotion or advanced schooling. The names of the individuals were withheld, but Army officials speaking privately said they include Lt. Col. Michael D. Ellerbe, commander of the 82nd Airborne's 3rd Battalion.

The Army on Friday released a five-page memo from Gen. John W. Hendrix, commanding general of U.S. Army Forces Command, who reviewed the results of an internal investigation of the misconduct in Kosovo last winter.

Hendrix concluded that the crimes and abuses committed by some members of the 3rd Battalion's A Company "were the direct result of failures in leadership and a lack of personal discipline." Hendrix cited no names, but he referred by job title to Capt. Kevin Lambert, who was commander of A Company.

"Junior leaders — both commissioned and non-commissioned — beginning with the A Company commander, participated in misconduct themselves and condoned the misconduct of their soldiers," Hendrix wrote in the memo to Army chief of staff Gen. Eric Shinseki. The memo was dated Nov. 6.

"In their actions, these leaders clearly failed to set the proper moral and ethical tone for their unit although their training had provided them the tools to act in accordance with Army values and the Law of Armed Conflict," Hendrix wrote. The Law of Armed Conflict, an international convention, protects civilians against "outrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment."

Some members of A Company's 1st Platoon were found by investigators to have slapped, threatened and verbally abused ethnic Albanian civilians while on patrols in Kosovo last winter. The investigation report, released in September, said some soldiers "experienced difficulties tempering their combat mentality. It also said their overly aggressive tendencies were manifest in their unit's slogan: "Shoot 'em in the face."

Hendrix said the vast majority of peacekeepers performed their duties faithfully and honorably.

The investigation was ordered after Staff Sgt. Frank J. Ronghi, a member of A Company's 1st Platoon, was accused of raping and murdering an 11-year-old ethnic Albanian girl last January in Vitina, Kosovo. Ronghi was convicted and sentenced in August to life in prison.

In addition to Ronghi's conviction, nine members of the 3rd Battalion were given administrative punishments as a result of the investigation. The Army chose not to court martial any except Ronghi.

In his memo to Shinseki, Hendrix said those disciplinary actions were appropriate.

"However, subsequently several of those responsible received favorable assignments or selections for schooling or promotion," he wrote. "I recommend that all of these favorable personnel actions be reviewed."

He asked that the Army Suitability Evaluation Board review the original investigative report. Officials said his action meant the board would decide whether to include the information in the nine soldiers' permanent personnel files. If it is included, their selection for promotions or favorable assignments likely would be withdrawn.

Hendrix said the 3rd Battalion suffered from a lack of comprehensive training on the Kosovo mission before it left Fort Bragg, N.C. It did not conduct what is called a mission rehearsal exercise, in which the soldiers and their leaders work out the details of how their mission will be performed before they arrive on the scene. Now that will be a requirement for all Army units assigned to peacekeeping in Kosovo or elsewhere.

Companies ordered to pay $99.2 million in crane collapse

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A jury ordered two companies Friday to pay $99.2 million to the widows of three ironworkers killed when a crane collapsed at the construction site of Milwaukee's new baseball stadium.

Under the verdict, all but $157,500 of the award must be paid by Mitsubishi Heavy Industries of America. The company was held responsible along with Lampson International Ltd. for the July 1999 accident that killed William DeGrave, Jerome Starr and Jeffrey Wischer.

Mitsubishi was building the stadium's retractable roof, using a crane called Big Blue and a crew leased from Lampson.

The ironworkers were guiding a 450-ton roof piece into place from a safety basket held aloft by another crane when Big Blue smashed them to the ground.

The jury reached its verdict after nearly three days of deliberations. Each of the widows will receive $1.7 million for pain and suffering. The verdict also includes $94 million in punitive damages, to be paid entirely by Mitsubishi.

Lampson attorney Donald Carlson said the company will not have to pay any money because of an indemnity agreement between the two companies that was signed before the accident.

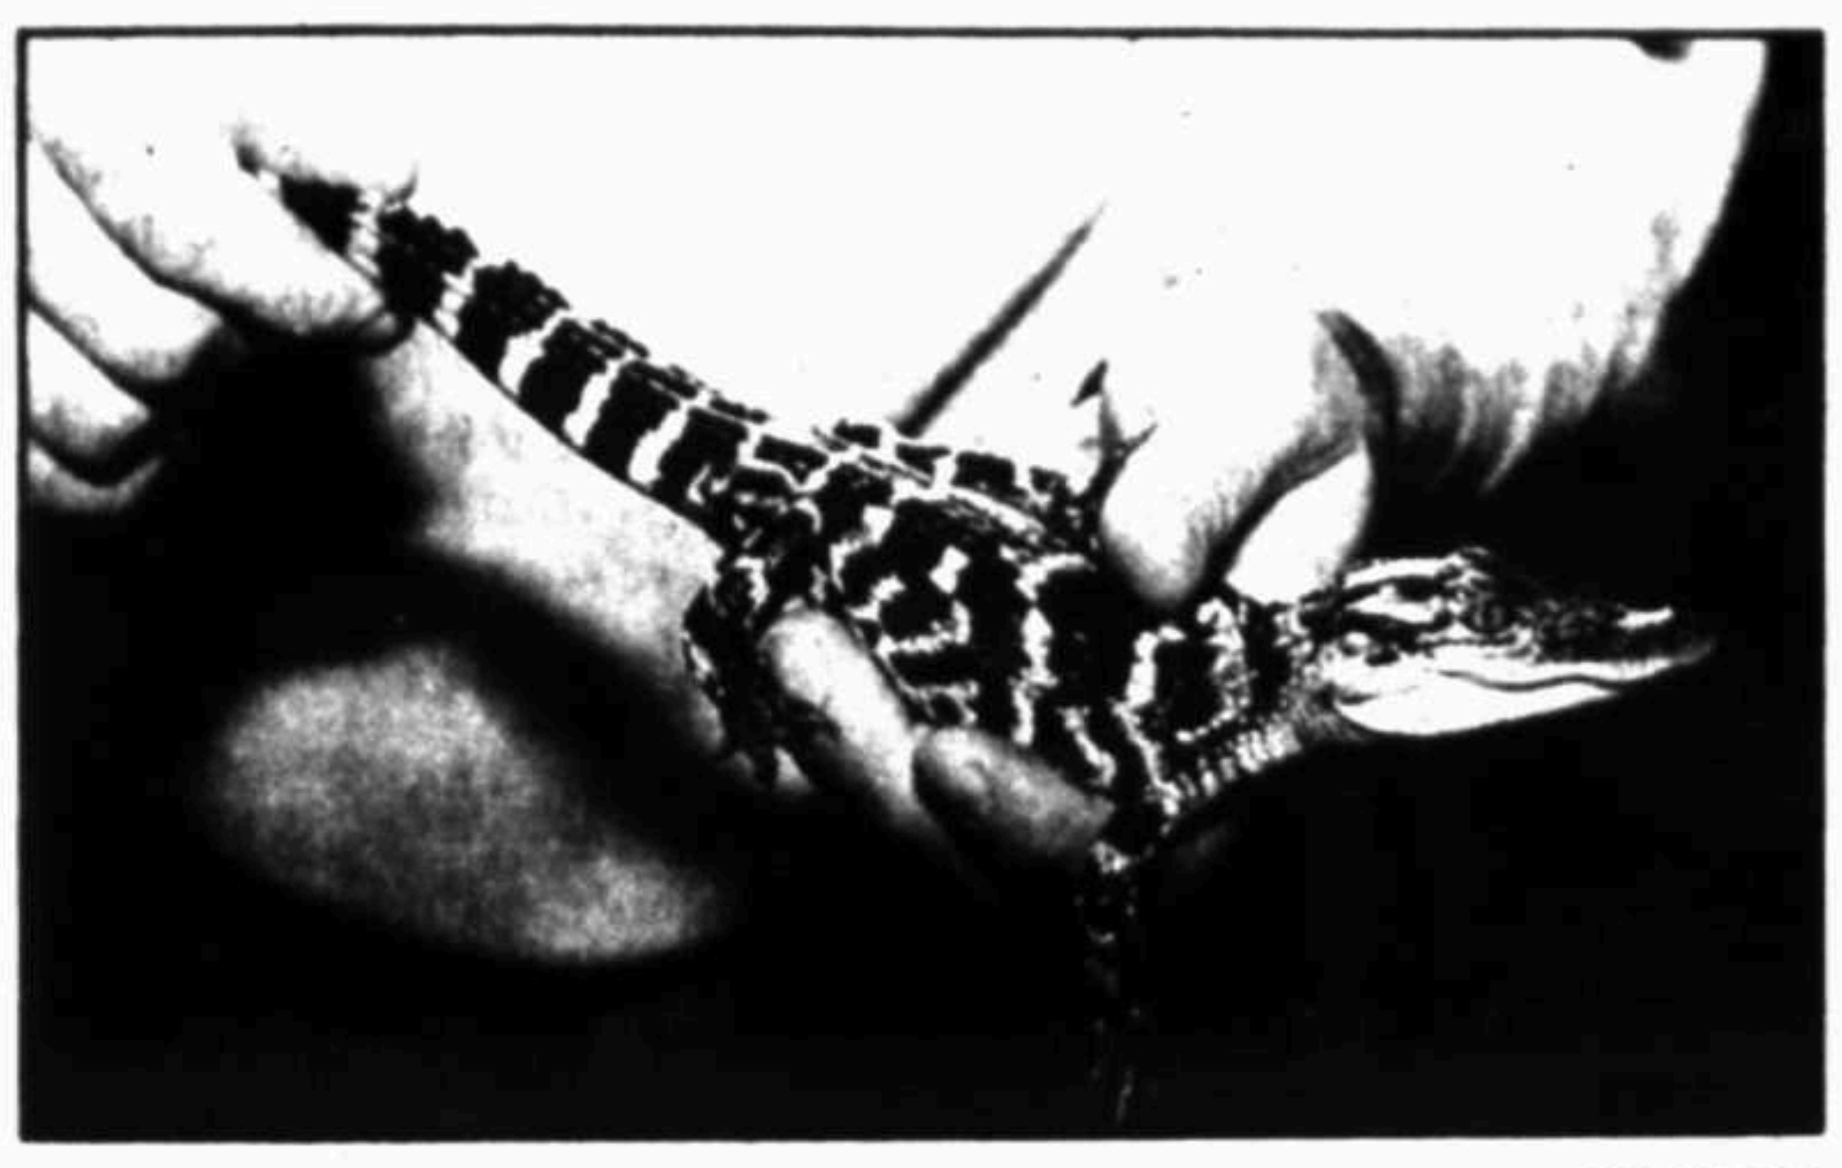
Food chain: Farmers are raising both gators, chickens



AP Photo

Alligator farmer Mark Glass holds a hatchling at his farm near Camilla, Ga., last month. Glass says growth of alligator farming in the South may be limited by the number of hatchlings and eggs available from Florida and Louisiana. Those states permit a limited number of eggs and hatchlings to be taken from the wild. Other Southern states do not.

CAMILLA, Ga. (AP) — Is it any wonder they say alligator tastes like chicken?

Across the South over the past few years, chicken farmers have begun raising alligators, too, as a source of extra cash and a cold-bloodedly efficient way of getting rid of the many birds that die before they can be sent for slaughter.

Alligators have proved to be chicken-disposal machines.

Gator farming has been a good move for Mark Glass, even if it has been a lot more dangerous than raising chickens.

"If you are in the alligator business, you're going to get bitten," he said. "I got bitten by a 4 1/2-footer. I was lucky. He didn't like the taste and he let go. If he had held on, I would have been in trouble."

About 5 percent of chickens raised for slaughter die of natural causes. But the disposal of dead chickens is tightly regulated by most states. Many poultry farmers use mass graves or incinerators, but those methods are subject to a myriad of regulations and can be expensive.

It is not feasible for many farmers to truck dead chickens to an incinerator or an approved burial site, because the dead birds must be disposed of quickly and few farmers have enough each day to fill up a truck. And generally, any vehicle carrying dead birds must be leak-proof and be driven by someone with a license to carry dead livestock.

Alligators are prized not only for their appetite but for their meat and their hide, which is used to make belts, bags, wallets and shoes. A 4-foot alligator yields 4 to 5 pounds of meat that sells for about $6 a pound, and its hide can bring about $80.

Alligator farming has grown in the South in the past six years because of the realization of what they could do for chicken farmers.

Florida and Louisiana have raised gators long before chicken farmers figured out the advantages, but interest has spread as far north as West Virginia, where the Legislature provided $60,000 this year to combine chicken and alligator farming on an experimental basis.

Glass began raising gators in 1995 at his farm near Camilla, about 250 miles south of Atlanta. He has about 10,000 of the reptiles and slaughters about 4,000 a year, making him a minor player in the industry. He also has about 500,000 chickens.

Glass initially kept his gators in a pond, but they didn't grow as fast as he wanted, so he built four heated houses. He gives them a 90-degree environment and feeds them ground-up chicken, a dry animal feed and vitamins.

His alligators can reach the 4-foot harvest size in about 18 months, compared with three to six years for wild gators.

So far, Glass said, he has used all the earnings from his alligator farm to expand and upgrade.

"I can honestly say I haven't made any money yet, but I hope that's about to change," he said. "I've developed relations with customers that I expect to be doing business with for years to come."

Red Cross seeks mediator in dispute

By Philip J. Hilts
N.Y. Times News Service

The American Red Cross is asking a federal court to appoint a mediator in its long-running dispute with the Food and Drug Administration over how best to monitor the safety of Red Cross-supplied blood.

Both sides say that the current supply of blood is safe, that no units of contaminated or mislabeled blood have recently been released or have harmed patients. But both sides also say that the Red Cross system of collecting, storing and distributing blood for transfusion has had problems in which contaminated blood was almost sent to hospitals for transfusion. Such problems were detected by FDA inspections.

But the Red Cross has balked at one FDA proposal — to levy fines against the Red Cross if it has been warned about a problem and still has been unable to correct it. "We are in debt," said Dr. Bernadine Healy, head of the Red Cross, in a telephone interview Friday, adding that the Red Cross could have trouble paying fines.

The FDA and the Red Cross have been working together since the mid-1980s to build an efficient and safe system for collecting, screening and distributing blood for transfusion. Since 1993, the Red Cross has been under court orders to improve its blood-handling systems.

Instead of computers, holiday shoppers opt for electronic accessories

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The personal computer seems so '90s this holiday season, with shoppers drawn instead to handheld computers, digital cameras and other newer, hipper gadgets.

"Right now, we have all the features on our computer that we need. There's nothing really new that's out there," Diana Poston, 19, said while shopping this week for a DVD player at a Circuit City in Glendale.

The stocks of computer manufacturers took a nosedive this week as Gateway, Micron, Hewlett-Packard and others warned that sluggish domestic demand would mean lower profits. Those warnings also dragged down other computer industry stocks, including Microsoft.

The trigger for the profit warnings was lower-than-expected sales over the Thanksgiving weekend. But computer makers have been worried about weaker sales for months, especially as the economy has shown signs of slowing and rising oil prices have eaten up more of people's disposable income.

"Macroeconomics have caught up with everybody after a decade-long party," Roger Kay, an analyst with International Data Corp, said Friday. "Consumers with fewer disposable dollars are looking to throttle back their holiday purchases and buy lower-ticket items, such as things that plug into PCs and other devices."

Sales of desktop computers fell 10 percent in October compared with the same month a year earlier, following three months of slow or no growth, according to PC Data.

"The heady, carefree days of double-digit growth are over," Kay said.

In contrast, sales of digital cameras rose 30 percent in October, while flat panel monitors showed a 150 percent increase and even standard 19-inch monitors rose 50 percent. Sales of handheld computers and personal digital assistants, or PDAs, were up more than 100 percent.

> 'Consumers with fewer disposable dollars are looking to throttle back their holiday purchases and buy lower-ticket items, such as things that plug into PCs and other devices.'
> — Roger Kay, analyst

Adding to computer makers' woes is a feeling that the PC market is saturated and won't pick up again for at least a year.

"Everybody's got a PC," said Martin Reynolds, an analyst at the Gartner Group. "About 60 percent of homes have a PC and many of those have a second PC."

Brett Miller, an analyst at AG Edwards, said that unlike past years, when fast new computer chips or feature-packed software programs combined with offers of rebates to boost PC sales, there is no compelling reason this year for computer owners to upgrade.

"There are not applications out there that I can't run on the PC I already have," Miller said. "The PC is getting kind of old in terms of what it does. People are spending money on home networks, PDAs, digital cameras, consumer electronics. There are a lot of things getting people's attention."

Corporate sales of computers are expected to pick up late next year as companies upgrade to more powerful machines than can run the new Microsoft operating system, Windows 2000.

But bad news for computer makers may mean good news for people who wait a few months to buy: Some companies may cut their prices, even before the end of the year.

New camera, new sibling in store for Elian

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Elian Gonzalez turns 7 next week, he'll find a camera among his gifts.

"So many pictures were taken of him, I want him to be able to take some, too," the Rev. Joan Brown Campbell, the American minister who helped return the little castaway to his Cuban home last summer, said Friday.

Campbell is going to Elian's birthday party Wednesday in his hometown of Cardenas, a two-hour drive east of Havana — carrying a new camera and film as her gift.

It will be Campbell's first visit with the family since Elian left America in late June, ending a tumultuous seven-month battle by his Miami relatives to keep him from returning to the communist-ruled country.

Campbell said that in frequent phone calls since Elian went home, his father, Juan Miguel, has reported the family's life is returning to normal.

In his latest call two weeks ago, he said he and Elian's stepmother, Nersy, are expecting another child.

"They're adding on to their house because they're going to have a new baby," said Campbell, former head of the National Council of Churches, who is writing a book about Elian's international custody saga and other foreign work she's done.

"The baby is due in April. Juan Miguel is back in his job," she said. "These are the ordinary things that people do."

It's a far cry from the boy's extraordinary past.

On Thanksgiving 1999, Elian was found adrift and lashed to an inner tube in waters off Florida after his mother, Elisabeth Brotons, and 10 others died in the crossing. He spent the next five months in the spotlight, cheered and adulated by Cuban exiles in Miami's Little Havana neighborhood as relatives there refused to return him and fought to get him U.S. asylum against his father's wishes.

Elian was showered with toys and gifts and photographed day and night. He regained his privacy April 22 after federal agents snatched him from Miami in a raid and whisked him to Washington, where his father, stepmother and infant half brother, Hianny, waited for him.

"He still has some fears from being lost, from being adrift for two days," Campbell said of the boatwreck that took his mother. "And they are still trying to get him to talk about that.

"But now that he's back in Cuba with his mother's mother, being back in that house with her has helped him with his memories about his mother."

She said Juan Miguel and Nersy also have had time to read the boxes of letters from Americans who supported sending Elian home.

Sam Ciancio, one of two cousins who found Elian and plucked him from the water, is visiting the family in Cuba now, she said.

The 41-year-old roofer and avid fisherman supported Elian's reunion with his father, while his cousin Donato Dalrymple, sided with Miami relatives.

Campbell traveled to Cuba several times during the battle after being asked by Cuban church officials to help.

U.S. senator makes perilous journey in Colombia to push for human rights

BARRANCABERMEJA, Colombia (AP) — Hard-eyed men with Uzis stood guard as Sen. Paul Wellstone stepped out of a helicopter and into a bulletproof car and drove to a meeting with human rights activists. Hours earlier, police discovered a bomb along the airport road.

U.S. and Colombian authorities Friday downplayed the possibility that Wellstone and U.S. Ambassador Anne Patterson, who accompanied the Minnesota Democrat, were the intended targets of the bomb. Their visit marked the first time a U.S. lawmaker or ambassador had come to the deadliest town in all the Americas — a sweltering cluster of cinderblock homes on the banks of the muddy Magdalena River.

There was heavy security for the U.S. officials during their three-hour visit Thursday. But Barrancabermeja's 195,000 residents have no such protection: this year alone, 470 of them have been slain in politically motivated attacks, human rights workers say. Massacres are commonplace, and the killers are rarely caught.

Wellstone said he made the perilous journey to show support for the human rights activists, who face immense risk.

For Wellstone, a former civil rights activist and college professor, his two-day visit to Colombia also was aimed at making a stand against Plan Colombia, a drug-eradication effort being funded by $1.3 billion from Washington. Under the plan, dozens of U.S.-donated combat helicopters will ferry U.S.-trained Colombian troops into cocaine-producing plantations to seize them from insurgents.

But while the military is being strengthened, Wellstone says there is no firm plan to provide coca farmers with alternative livelihoods. He fears they will then be driven into the ranks of leftist guerrillas or the rival right-wing paramilitary group, the United Self-Defense Forces of Colombia, or AUC.

Moreover, Wellstone is concerned that President Clinton authorized delivery of the aid even though the Colombian government has not met all the human rights conditions set by Congress. Among outstanding concerns is that the Colombian military has not severed its links to the AUC. The paramilitaries, responsible for numerous massacres of suspected guerrilla sympathizers, remain allied with the army in the field in anti-guerrilla operations. Many AUC gunmen are former government soldiers.

"If we continue to waive the (human rights) provisions of the aid package, then the message we are sending to the paramilitaries and the military is that human rights is not important to us," Wellstone told The Associated Press as he flew to Barrancabermeja.

Wellstone said he asked President Andres Pastrana on Wednesday for the government to bring paramilitary leaders to trial and protect human rights workers. Human rights workers whom Wellstone met with said the AUC was responsible for most of the killings in Barrancabermeja, 155 miles north of the capital, Bogota.

There were questions, meanwhile, about who was the intended target of the bomb found on the road from Barrancabermeja's airport to the town.

The White House said it did not view Wellstone and Patterson as targets and State Department officials said it wasn't unusual for such devices to be found in Barrancabermeja. Colombian police said first that it appeared to be an assassination attempt, and then later said it did not. Police said a man they arrested in connection with the case, whom they identified as a member of the rebel National Liberation Army, was not telling them who the intended target was.

Many residents of Barrancabermeja knew of the planned visit by the U.S. delegation. But security forces had kept confidential plans to transfer the party from the airport to the town by helicopter.

Earlier Thursday, Wellstone and Patterson flew aboard a Black Hawk combat helicopter to observe a raid by heavily armed Colombian national police on a plantation near the village of Taraza, 220 miles northwest of Bogota.

Huddled on the mountainside, 32 coca harvesters — itinerant workers who pull the leaves off the bushes and work in a rudimentary processing lab for $4 to $5 per day — watched as police torched the lab. It was quickly enveloped in flames, sending a plume of black smoke over the jungle-covered mountains and a blast of intense heat that could be felt 100 yards away.

Jorge Perez, a 24-year-old father of two, took a deep drag off his cigarette and shook his head.

"Now we'll be without work," Perez said. "Working the coca fields is the only way to make money around here."

Mexico enters new era as Vicente Fox becomes president

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A towering businessman in custom cowboy boots strode into Mexico's presidency Friday, ending a seven-decade political dynasty and thrusting his nation into a new, democratic era.

Raising his right hand and swearing to uphold the Constitution "for the poor and marginalized people of this country," Vicente Fox brought to a close a political system that dates to the Mexican Revolution.

"What is at stake over the next six years is not just the change of a party in power," Fox said. "What is at stake is much more significant and profound: the hopes of millions of Mexicans."

> 'Imagine someone blindfolded you for 70 years. Today, they suddenly took off the blindfold and said, '"Look, there's the sea. There's the sun."'
> — Mirel Orozco, who lives in Mexico City

Thousands of those Mexicans lined the streets of the capital, wanting somehow to be a part of what Fox calls simply "the change." Even the earth shook and a volcano erupted as the new president began his term.

"I've never lived under any other system. Neither has my mother — or my grandmother," said Mirel Orozco, a 27-year-old college student who went into the streets with her mother to catch a glimpse of Fox passing.

"Imagine someone blindfolded you for 70 years. Today, they suddenly took off the blindfold and said, 'Look, there's the sea. There's the sun,'" she said. "Now let's see if the sea is blue, like they say it is."

Fox took the oath of office before a joint session of Congress, breaking a 71-year string of presidents from the Institutional Revolution Party. Fox, a member of the National Action Party, won the election July 2.

The inauguration was the first event in a three-day series of celebrations in four Mexican cities, during which Fox planned to meet with peasants, Indians, artists and intellectuals.

On Friday, he showered the nation with populist promises, and pledged "to demolish all vestiges of authoritarianism."

He appealed for national dialogue — something he will need as he works with the most divided Congress in a century — and vowed a government of tolerance for all viewpoints.

After naming a Cabinet heavy with conservative businessmen, Fox's speech seemed intended to assure Mexicans he will attack poverty and social injustice and that the fight against crime, drug-smuggling and corruption would go beyond muscle.

"No police force can stop hunger and unemployment," he said.

In contrast to the stiff delivery of past presidents, Fox showed touches of humor. Often accused of overly grandiose promises and famed for his cowboy boots — he had a pair custom made from goat and ostrich leather for Friday's events — Fox playfully assured Congress: "I have my boots firmly planted on the ground."

His first act of government was to send to Congress an Indian rights bill drafted in peace talks with the Zapatista rebels, and which his predecessor had rejected.

Zapatista leader Subcomandante Marcos, hunkered down in the jungles of southern Chiapas state, had wary hope for Fox, writing in a communique: "The nightmare ends today. Another could follow, or it could be a new dawn."

Fox answered him in a speech Friday, assuring him: "Today a new dawn begins for Chiapas."

Fox began the day unlike any president in well over a century — with a visit to the Basilica of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint. All Mexican presidents had shunned religious displays since 18th-century struggles against the Roman Catholic church's privileged role in the country.

Fox spent several moments kneeling at the altar in silent prayer, often gazing up at the image of the Virgin, before leaving to shouts of "Viva Vicente!" from other worshippers.

His motorcade threaded slowly through crowds of people waving from the sidewalks, and sometimes had to stop as police cleared the way.

Fox then had an open-air breakfast with street children in Mexico City's tough Tepito neighborhood. Wearing a blue work shirt and jeans, Fox chatted and laughed with children, handing out tamales and pouring cups of atole — a traditional drink based on corn starch — as mariachis played.

He ducked into a slum apartment to change into his suit before heading to Congress for the inauguration, where guests ranging from Cuban President Fidel Castro to U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright awaited him.

After his inauguration, Fox gave another speech to the nation, pledging "a revolution of hope," then traveled to Mexico City's central Zocalo square where he was to have lunch with prominent guests and address the masses gathered outside.

As the sun rose over Mexico City, a mile-high plume of ash could be seen billowing from the Popocatepetl Volcano. Hours later, while Fox was heading to church, buildings swayed when a magnitude-5.1 earthquake struck. There were no reports of damage.

"We are leaving purgatory and entering heaven," said political analyst Primitivo Rodriguez, who said he didn't vote for Fox. "Whether Fox governs well or poorly, Mexico is entering a fantastic, new and beautiful era: the era of democracy."

Chilean judge orders house arrest for Pinochet

By Clifford Krauss
N.Y. Times News Service

LIMA, Peru — A Chilean Appeals Court judge ordered the house arrest of Gen. Augusto Pinochet on Friday for the kidnappings of political opponents after he overthrew the Socialist government of Salvador Allende in 1973.

The former dictator, who recently turned 85 and is ailing, remains many legal steps away from spending any time in prison. And before any trial can begin, he will have to undergo medical tests and probably months of defense appeals.

Nevertheless, Friday's decision by Judge Juan Guzman to charge Pinochet marks a major embarrassment for the man who has long claimed to have saved Chile from communism. It is the most important legal action ever taken against the 17-year Pinochet dictatorship by a judicial system that remained controlled by military-appointed judges until the last few years.

The arrest announcement came suddenly, without an expected interrogation of the former dictator and before a medical examination to assure that he is fit to stand trial. But an arrest order had been widely predicted ever since Chile's Supreme Court stripped the general of his senatorial immunity in August. The action was cheered by human rights advocates but greeted by silence by the high command of the armed forces, who still support their former commander, although more in words than in action.

"This decision is a huge step forward in the attempt to make Pinochet accountable for atrocities committed under his rule," said Jose Miguel Vivanco, a Chilean lawyer who heads the America Division of Human Rights Watch. "It helps reestablish the credibility of the Chilean judiciary and it will help push forward other cases."

There have been more than 170 criminal complaints lodged against Pinochet in the last several years by human rights groups, families of people who disappeared and torture victims. But the case against him only began to gain currency in Chile after Pinochet was arrested two years ago in London on a Spanish arrest warrant. In March, he was allowed to return to Chile on grounds that he was not healthy enough to stand trial, but he has been besieged by legal problems ever since.

The central case under investigation by Guzman, who serves as a prosecutor under Chilean law, involves a death squad known as the Caravan of Death led by a key aide to Pinochet in the months following the [illegible] supported 1973 coup that overthrew Allende. The helicopter-borne squad traveled around northern Chile, picking up political prisoners from various military installations. The prisoners were never seen again. Most victims were either functionaries of the Allende government, members of the Communist or various socialist parties or trade union leaders.

Guzman has concentrated on this case because it offers a loophole in a amnesty decree which Pinochet was in power to cover the most violent years of repression. The bodies of 19 of the 75 people seized by the Caravan of Death have still not been recovered, leaving Guzman with the argument that the missing persons might still could be alive as the victims of a kidnapping. As a continuing crime, at least theoretically, the 19 kidnappings cannot be covered by the Pinochet government's amnesty, Guzman has argued for the last two years.

Guzman's creative legal interpretation was affirmed by various high-level Chilean courts last year, while Pinochet was still under house arrest in London. Pinochet's supporters say the loophole is based on a lie, since they say it is clear that the 19 victims have long been dead, and that it signifies a politicization of justice.

"This is an aberration of jurisprudence," said Fernando Barros, a lawyer who has defended of Pinochet on a local radio program. "Without even questioning him, Pinochet is being put on trial."

Pablo Rodriguez, a lawyer for Pinochet, accused Guzman of overstepping his powers and ignoring due process, saying the arrest "expressly contravenes legal processes that he cannot ignore as a judge of the republic."

Guzman did not speak at length about his arrest order, but he told reporters he would also press a case that Pinochet was the "intellectual author" of the deaths of 55 people picked up by the Caravan of Death whose bodies were found in mass graves around northern Chile.

A government report has documented that 3,197 people died or disappeared in political violence during the Pinochet years. Apart from 90 members of the security forces, all are considered victims of the army, police or paramilitary death squads. Tens of thousands of other leftists were tortured by the security forces.

The house arrest came a week after Pinochet released a partial and diffident admission of responsibility for excesses committed during his rule. "As a former president of the republic," he said in a taped message released on his birthday, "I accept all the facts that they say the army and the armed forces did." But he said that many of the criticisms of his rule were based on propaganda.

The statement was part of a recent effort by the former dictator to appeal to the estimated one-third of the population that still supports him.

The next legal step will probably be an effort by Guzman to have Pinochet examined to see if he is mentally fit to stand trial. Pinochet family members say that a mental test would be humiliating. They say he is physically unfit to stand trial after suffering a series of strokes while he was being held in London. The general, who recently recovered from pneumonia, also suffers from diabetes and has a history of heart problems.

But Guzman has argued that under Chilean law, only mental disability can be cause to avoid a trial.

Pinochet faces other legal problems outside Chile. This fall Argentina requested that Chile extradite him on suspicions that he was involved in the 1974 car-bomb murder of a retired Chilean general in Buenos Aires. President Ricardo Lagos, the first Socialist to govern Chile since the 1973 coup, said from Mexico, where he was attending the inauguration of Vicente Fox, that Friday's decision was "an expression of the strength of our democratic system."

Time to dance with Duncanville

Region powers knock helmets in high-profile 5A quarterfinal

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

LEE

Region I-5A Big School Quarterfinal Midland Lee vs. Duncanville, 4 p.m., Irving's Texas Stadium. Radio: KODM (FM 97.9), KCRS (AM 550).

IRVING — Midland Lee head football coach John Parchman doesn't need anyone to tell him things are getting serious in the Class 5A football playoffs. The telephone takes care of that.

"It's a never ending series of calls," Parchman said.

Papers, radio stations, internet sites — when the third round of the playoffs roll around, so do the phone calls. It's enough that the Rebels' head man could use another phone line and a third ear for his Lee Fieldhouse office.

This year is no different. Actually, it may be worse. Lee is a two-time defending state champion, and today's 4 p.m. Big School state quarterfinal versus Duncanville is as a big as any game Lee has played short of a state title game.

"There are no weak teams left, and Duncanville is one of the top ones," Parchman said.

Lee is 10-2. Duncanville is 11-1.

The Rebels finished ranked eighth in the Associated Press' final Class 5A poll. Duncanville is looking down at the Rebs from its sixth slot.

Lee has its two state titles. Duncanville won the Big School title in 1998.

The resumes are impressive enough that superstitions were broken in anticipation of the meeting between the two juggernauts could happen.

"I was looking at the brackets, I know we try to keep from doing that, but out of curiosity, I glanced at it, and knew Duncanville would be in the path of going to the big game," Lee center Brad Stovall said. "I knew if we executed things right against El Paso, we would be facing them."

So, yes, this matchup is more than high profile. It is the biggest in the state.

"I would pay to see this game," Duncanville head football coach Bob Alpert said. "This will be a war."

The winner of today's game will face The Woodlands, a 27-7 winner over North Mesquite. If Lee wins today, the state semifinal would be played at 2 p.m. next Saturday in Austin.

If you ask Alpert, today's victor can start ordering championship rings.

"Region I is the toughest of all the regions," Alpert

COLORADO CITY — When Stanton plays Hamlin here today at 2:30 p.m. in the Class 2A Small School region playoff game, Buffaloes' head coach Mark Cotton will probably run into a few old buddies.

Cotton got his first head coaching job at Hamlin in 1978 when he was hired to be the junior high football coach. He stayed at Hamlin until 1984 but still knows a few people from his early coaching days.

"We went scouting (Hamlin) Saturday and I had two ex-players come up and I talked to them and quite a few adults," said Cotton, whose team last played against Hamlin in the 1995 area round of the playoffs with the Pied Pipers, [illegible].

Lee drops close game with fifth-ranked squad in state

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Midland Lee split games in the Northside basketball tournament here Friday, but new Lee head coach Mark Coffman came away very pleased with the Rebel effort.

Lee won its first game, 52-49, over San Antonio MacArthur, but lost 84-80 in its second game to No. 5 state ranked San Antonio Jay.

"We made only one of eight free throws in the fourth quarter against Jay, and that probably cost us the game," Coffman said. "But it was nice to see that we could play with the big boys."

Coffman added, "We had played earlier in the day, it was the first game for Jay, and we just didn't shoot free throws, hitting only nine of 21 for the game."

Against MacArthur, Lee got the victory when Art Garcia hit a three-point shot with 20 seconds left in the game to give Lee a 50-49 lead and Kyle Shatzer hit two free throws with eight seconds left to ice the win. Garcia had 14 points in that game while Shatzer had 12 and Wendell Smith 11.

Against Jay, the Rebelsgot a huge 24 points from Shatzer and another 12 from Ben Webb. Jay, 6-1 on the season, placed all five of its starters in double figures.

Lee is now 4-2 on the season and will play Mikki Rowe for fifth place today 10:30 a.m.

MHS falls to Cypress Springs

Staff Report

PEARLAND — Midland High had a rough outing in the opening round of the Pearland Rotary Classic Friday night, falling to Cypress Springs, 94-65.

The Bulldogs, 2-4 on the season, didn't shoot well, hitting around 20 percent from the field.

"We've got to grow up," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "We knew coming in to this year that we weren't very experienced and we played like it against a very good team tonight. Cypress Springs shot 10 threes and we just didn't shoot at all."

Lucquente White scored 18 points for the Bulldogs, but was the only player in double figures. Cy-Springs got a game high 29 points from Carl Bradley.

MHS will now play host Pearland today at 10:30 a.m.

JACKS: Odessa takes over first with victory over rival Scorpions

three times in shootouts.

"New Mexico's been giving us trouble all year," said Odessa's Scott Campbell, who scored two goals Friday. "Every game has been close, but they seem to come out on top. It's good to beat them to catapult us into first place."

Odessa (11-5-4) moved a half-game ahead of the idle Amarillo Rattlers (11-6-4) in the Western Division of the Western Professional Hockey League. The division is packed tight; only six points separate the six teams.

The Jacks won by scoring first — getting two goals from Jason Heywood and Trevor Allman in the first period — and staying even in the high-scoring second period. The teams scored three times each in the second period, alternating goals. The Scorpions pulled within one goal three times, but they could never tie the game.

"We came out in the first period and took it to them," said Campbell, whose goals both came in the second period. "It seems like we'd been spotting them goals (in the previous games), and they'd be up 2-0 before we got started. Tonight, we got the lead early and played solid from then on.

"Every line contributed with goals, and we did well on the power play," Campbell said. "It was a total team effort."

McKee echoed that sentiment.

"It was a good performance by all three lines. That's what we need: balanced lines," said McKee, although he had special praise for the line of Campbell, Allman and Donnie Margettie. "They're playing great hockey."

New Mexico scored on two of three power play opportunities in the second period, but Odessa made some adjustments at the intermission, and the Scorpions went 0-for-3 in power plays in the third period.

"We took away the middle of the ice, and we didn't let them have the blue line," McKee said. "And we made line changes. We like to use four lines over the two minutes (of the penalty), so nobody gets tired. (In the second period) they caught us tired, and when you're tired, you lose faceoffs. We lost a faceoff, and that just shouldn't have happened."

All three of New Mexico's third-period power play opportunities came in the first 10 minutes of the period. After Odessa killed all three penalties without giving up a goal, the Jacks held a 5-3 lead. Goals by Mike Sanderson at 9:14 and John Bossio at 17:00 padded the lead, making a late New Mexico goal by Peter Ambroziak meaningless.

"We've been working hard at making this team competitive," McKee said. "We've got to come back (today, when Odessa hosts the Eastern Division-leading Austin Ice Bats), and we hope we get more people out. It's unbelievable how (a big crowd) helps the players."

NOTES: Thursday's game benefitted Joe Beene, the Odessa Permian football player who was paralyzed by an injury during practice last month. The Jacks raised $7,190.50 for the Beene family through ticket sales and the efforts of fans, boosters and sponsors.

RANGER: Greenwood advances

(From 1B)

U. Frank Williams Jr./Reporter-Telegram

Greenwood quarterback Brandon Smith cuts past Lake Worth's Rodrick Perry (21). Smith gained 121 yards on 16 rushing attempts Friday night in the regional game.

Everywhere you turned there were smiles, congratulatory hugs and high fives. This win was truly special.

"We're making history," Smith said. "This is the first time we get 10 wins. I can't really explain the feeling right now."

"It feels great," said Greenwood's senior lineman Sam Skidmore. "I haven't known this feeling in a long time."

Greenwood coach Bob Purser just doesn't know what to think of these Rangers. They just continue to surprise him with every win they get.

"That was pretty good, wasn't it?" said Purser after the emotional win. "They played their britches off. They just keep blowing my mind."

The turning point of the game came after Lake Worth's first drive of the contest. The Bullfrogs (9-4) took the ball from their own 20-yard line and went on a methodical drive all the way to the Greenwood 10. A holding penalty moved the Bullfrogs back to the 18, and they faced fourth and 14 from there. Lake Worth decided to go for it, but a pass by Aaron Castillo fell incomplete, and the Rangers took over on downs, ending an 18-play, 10-minute drive.

The Rangers then took the ball and drove it the opposite way, culminating in a 3-yard touchdown run by sophomore running back Cody Hollums up the middle of the highly-touted Lake Worth defense. The extra point kick failed for the Rangers, but they gained the momentum for the rest of the game.

"That was the turning point of the game," said Smith on stopping the Bullfrogs on that long drive. "We then took the ball, shoved it right down their throats and scored."

Aside from Lake Worth's first drive of the game, it was the Rangers who controlled the ball and the clock for most of the game.

"I felt that the more we had the football, the more that we had the momentum," Hollums said. "I also felt the defense stepped it up and stopped their offense."

"The big thing I thought was us being able to move the football," Purser said. "That's what I was most concerned with. When we started moving the ball on them, we just kind of lit up."

The Rangers made it 14-0 late in the second quarter when Justin Outlaw took a pitch from Smith and scored from six yards out to end a 17-play, 75-yard drive. Hollums added the two-point conversion run.

Greenwood's score, however, came with 44 seconds left in the half. That proved to be just enough time for the Bullfrogs' offense to execute. The Bullfrogs went to the air and scored on a 34-yard pass from Castillo to Willie Douglas with no time left on the clock to cut Greenwood's lead to 14-7 at the break.

The Bullfrogs had several opportunities to get even closer to the Rangers in the second half, but interceptions by Kolt Harrison and Doug Wohleking thwarted Bullfrog drives.

The interception by Wohleking set up the game-clinching drive as Outlaw scored on a two-yard run for a 21-7 lead.

To those who had doubted Greenwood this year, Skidmore had just one message: "I just would like to say, 'How do they like us now!'"

Ranger Notes: The Rangers defense held Lake Worth running back Mark Patino to just 61 yards on 18 carries. Patino came into the game with more than 1,700 yards rushing for the season... The leading rusher in the game was Smith with 121 yards on 16 carries. Smith was also 6-of-7 passing for 61 yards... The Rangers' victory didn't come without a price, however, as freshman tailback Jeremy Audas went down with a knee injury in the first half and is likely out for the year.

Lady Bulldogs win, Lady Rebels fall

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

The results differed dramatically, but it could be said that both Midland girls basketball teams got something positive out of their games at Chaparral Center Friday night.

Midland High got the best result on paper, hammering Andrews for the second time this season, 54-23 in a return home from a long road trip. Midland Lee, which hadn't played a home game until last Tuesday in the Lee gym, made its Chap Center season debut with a respectable effort against always strong Lubbock Coronado, coming back from a big deficit before losing 67-58.

The closest Midland High (8-3) came to any danger was in the opening minutes, when Mandy Roberts scored on a drive to the hoop for Andrews to make it 2-0. But that was the only score of the game for Roberts, as the Lady Dawgs went on a 10-0 run and Andrews (6-2) was unable to pull any closer than six.

"I thought it would take us a couple of minutes to get going and execute like we could," said MHS coach Terry Gray. "Our defense was very good starting the second half and that created some easy baskets."

So effective was Midland High's defense that the Lady Dawgs made almost as many shots from the field (22) as Andrews scored points. The win wasn't the first time this season that Midland High had routed the Mustangs by 31 points, since the Lady Dawgs hung Andrews with its only other loss, a 68-37 rout at the Crossroads Tournament in Big Spring.

Still, with Midland High coming off a five-game tournament in Lovelady last week, Gray insists that Andrews was a team worth taking seriously.

"They're a good team," said Gray. "They're 6-2 and they've beaten two of our 4-5A opponents this year."

That might bode well for Midland High later in the season, as will the fact that routing Andrews gave the Lady Dawgs a chance to give everyone some action. They didn't even need their season's leading scorer Edrea Rogers, who didn't play the second quarter and wound up with only four points.

Laura Koch and Jenny Jones led the Lady Dawgs with 14 points apiece and Koch had 10 rebounds. Katie Fariss led Andrews with eight points.

The week wasn't without some turmoil for MHS. Valerie Wootan, a 6-foot-1 transfer from Borden County who was expected to contribute mightily this season, has withdrawn from Midland High and is transferring, according to Gray.

Meanwhile, the young Lee team got a huge early season test from Coronado, whose wall-to-wall press was effective in causing 34 turnovers by the Lady Rebels. But Lee (4-7) kept fighting in the second half to make things a little interesting in the last two minutes.

"This is our best game of the year," said Lee coach Elise Kail despite the loss. "We played a full three quarters and we haven't even been playing two quarters. This was a barrier we broke through."

Although the Lady Rebels never led, Coronado (7-1) was never able to comfortably pull away. Lee only trailed 30-25 at halftime, but the Lady Mustangs took control of the game in the third quarter, and increased the lead to 16 in the fourth quarter.

Lee went on a 9-0 run to cut it to 59-52 in the final two minutes, but the Rebels couldn't cut it to any lower than seven points.

The Lady Rebels stayed in the game thanks to the play of their only returning letterwinners, seniors Shamera Bryson and Shandi Neatherlin, who scored 19 and 16 respectively. Bryson, the point guard, led Lee with 13 rebounds, most of them in the first half.

"Shamera had an awesome game," said Kail. "We were asking in the locker room at halftime why our point guard was leading us in rebounds."

Candace Clenney came off the bench to lead Coronado with 16 points and nine rebounds. D'Nika Romero had 11 points while Paige Diggs added 10.

champions.

In improving to 10-1, the Lady Chaps also handed Trinity its first loss of the season, knocking the Lady Cardinals down to 11-1. The highly anticipated contest didn't turn out to be much of a contest at all, although the enthusiastic home crowd didn't seem to care.

"I wasn't expecting a blowout," said MC coach Ron Jones. "What happened was that we started aggressive in breaking their press and hit our shots at the end of the breaks."

MC only shot 40 percent on the night, but the Lady Chaps did most of their damage when it really counted, in the first half. It was a furious game early as the teams exchanged baskets and a thrilling contest seemed inevitable.

With MC leading 40-36 late in the first half, though, things changed dramatically. The Lady Chaps scored the next 18 points, thanks to several shots near the basket, and at halftime led 62-38.

Trinity got as close as 16 with a little over five minutes left in the game, but the Lady Chaps simply put the Lady Cardinals in too deep a hole to recover from. The fact that Trinity had five players foul out also told the story, even though the foul disparity against Trinity (32-27) wasn't that lopsided.

"I think (the Lady Cardinals) have depth, but I think we were a little more intelligent about avoiding fouls," said Jones.

Depth certainly showed in balanced scoring for the Lady Chaps. Four players scored in double figures, led by freshman Chanie Sutherland, who had 19. Delfiah Gray added 16 points while Amisha Carter had 15 and Chanovia Rhodes added 12.

Trinity also had four players in double figures as Basheba Mays came off the bench for a game high 20 points. Charissa Green score 16, Natasha Starkes added 14 and DeKedria Johnson scored 10.

On short rest, the Lady Chaps will see what they have left when they host another powerhouse in Trinity tonight at the Chap.

Vikings' owner willing to listen to San Antonio bid

Associated Press

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Minnesota Vikings owner Red McCombs plans to meet with San Antonio officials to discuss a proposal to move the team to Texas.

McCombs, who is from San Antonio, said he would give the proposal his full attention, though he indicated that his primary interest is to keep the Vikings in Minnesota.

"The Vikings are the Minnesota Vikings," McCombs said.

San Antonio Mayor Howard Peak plans to draft a proposal that will attempt to lure teams such as the Vikings or New Orleans Saints to San Antonio, a spokesman from the mayor's office said.

The Vikings maintain that, because of the Metrodome's limitations, they are among the lowest revenue-producers in the NFL. They believe they will fall to last when a new stadium is built for the Arizona Cardinals.

"We will not survive in the Metrodome," McCombs said. "We have to (reach an agreement to) be out of the Metrodome in a year or so. Hopefully, we can find a place here. That's the way it should be."

Because the NFL has placed a moratorium on expansion, Peak has made the recruitment of another team to San Antonio a priority before his term runs out in June.

Peak is seeking opinions on how to make the 7-year old, 65,000-seat Alamodome more attractive to NFL teams, McCombs said. Also, the Alamodome will be without a primary tenant when the NBA's Spurs move to a new arena in 2002.

Mustangs put three on TAPPS Class 4A all-state honor team

Beeghley

Feeler

Turnbough

■ Jamie Beeghley, Chase Feeler and Colby Turnbough receive first-team honors. Six more MCHS players bring more accolades to the state championship program.

Staff Report

DALLAS — When you win a state football championship, expect more honors to come your way.

Midland Christian found that out after winning the TAPPS 4A state crown this year, landing three players on the 4A All-State team and six more either on the second team or as an honorable mention selection.

Junior quarterback Jamie Beeghley, 6-2, 190; and senior wide receiver Chase Feeler, 6-1, 180; were the Mustangs' first team picks on offense. The only first team selection on defense was Colby Turnbough, a 6-0, 185, free safety.

The Mustangs had five players selected to the second team, headed by J.D. Machacek, who was second team as an offensive lineman and as a defensive lineman. Machacek is a junior, 6-0, 240.

Also on the second team were offensive lineman Roan Moreno, 5-11, 240, Sr.; senior running back Josh Gunter, 6-0, 175; and junior linebacker T.J. Midkiff, 6-0, 190.

Senior tight end Nick McAdams, 6-0, 180, was an honorable mention pick.

The Mustangs posted a 10-3 record on the way to its first 11-man state championship. MCHS had won five state titles while playing six-man football before moving on to the 11-man game.

Big Spring's Jason Choate hands off during the Steers' bi-district win over Canyon. Big Spring plays No. 1 Wichita Falls today.

STEERS: Big Spring takes on Wichita Falls

(From 1B)

34-7 in the area round.

But the Steers (8-4) aren't exactly in foreign territory against Wichita Falls. They've already played two top 10 teams in Wolfforth Frenship and Hereford, and scrimmaged two-time defending Class 5A champions Midland Lee in August.

"We've already played some very good teams," said Butler. "I don't think they (the Coyotes) are any better than Midland Lee."

Be that as it may, Wichita Falls is still plenty good. The Coyotes are primarily a running team who operate from a variety of offensive formations, ranging from the wishbone to only one back in the backfield. They have three runners who have either surpassed or are in the neighborhood of 1,000 yards.

Butler says there's not much secret as to how the Coyotes will try to attack the Steers' defense.

"We're getting as prepared as we can get," said Butler. "They (the Coyotes) are going to try to run over us. We've seen some bigger offensive lines, but none who are more athletic."

Quarterback Greg Henderson leads the ground attack for Wichita Falls, rushing for 1,198 yards and 20 touchdowns. Halfback Detrick Cade isn't far behind with 1,145 yards and 16 touchdowns and fullback Joseph Aboussie (930 yards, 10 TDs) only needs to have a respectable game against the Steers to give the Coyotes the rarity of boasting three 1,000-yard rushers.

That trio will run behind a solid front which includes three players (Michael Bailey, John Carroll and Jeff Penny) who weigh over 250 pounds, presenting a challenge for the Big Spring defense.

This game figures to be more a meeting of similar styles than a clash of opposites. The Steers are also ground oriented, if less dramatically so than Wichita Falls. Big Spring ran for 412 yards in last week's 46-12 area round victory over El Paso Riverside.

Jason Woodruff led the way for the Steers against Riverside with 259 yards and three touchdowns, and leads Big Spring with 1,343 yards rushing this season. But running the ball against the Coyotes doesn't figure to be an easy task.

"I think what's been lost in this whole thing is their defense," said Butler of the Coyotes. "They haven't given up more than 14 points in any game all year."

A big key to Big Spring's ability to move the ball against Riverside was the offensive line's dominance of the line of scrimmage. Bryan Giles, Benito Hilario, Cody Rubio, Keith Newton and Justin Nichols blew open big holes for Woodruff to move through.

Butler is hoping his line can turn in a similar, if not necessarily as dominant, an effort against Wichita Falls.

"It's pretty cut and dried," said Butler. "If we block well, we'll make a lot of yards, and if we don't, it's going to be a long day."

A little bit of good fortune also wouldn't hurt. That means not giving the ball away carelessly and taking advantage of those opportunities if the Coyotes do so.

Brownwood found out the hard way what can happen when it made mistakes against the Coyotes.

"We can't turn the ball over," said Butler. "That's what Brownwood did on the opening kickoff, and before they knew it, they were down 21-0.

"I'd say we have to play our best game we've played all year if we're going to win it, without a doubt."

Midland Lee's Cedric Benson fights to get every inch he can in the Rebels' game with Odessa Permian earlier this season. Today, Benson will have another tough battle on his hands against the Duncanville defense when the two teams battle at Texas Stadium.

LEE: Rebels take on No. 6 Panthers said. "Region II is down. Region III is a cakewalk for (Aldine) Eisenhower and (Region) four is always Region IV.

(From 1B)

"I am picking the winner of this game to win state."

Winning state would make Lee the first school to win three straight state titles at the University Interscholastic League's highest classification since Abilene High did so in the mid-1950s. Parchman, though, is focusing on beating Duncanville for first time. This is the first-ever meeting between the two teams.

If looking for a key to this game, there is no need to look farther than the player who has starred on Lee's previous two trips to state glory.

Cedric Benson, who is 124 yards short of 8,000 career yards, is the player all eyes will be focused on, including the 11 sets on Duncanville's defense.

"I have seen a lot of good running backs in my career, but this kid is special," Alpert said. "He is the best running back I have ever seen."

And as Benson goes, so goes the Rebels. When Benson rushes for more than one touchdown, the Rebels win. That is true this season as Lee is 9-0 when Benson rushes for multiple touchdowns. That record is 19-0 since Benson stepped on campus in 1998.

Running the ball against Duncanville is no easy task though. The Panthers give up 162 yards and eight points a game, and their team speed makes them especially tough on the ground.

"They are fast," Lee tight end Eric Winston said. "They are a lot like Waco High and like Aldine (Eisenhower). They have a lot of athletes who use their hands well and run around you. They might make a mistake, but recover easily with speed, great team speed."

That team speed has some people comparing Duncanville to West Monroe, a team which defeated Lee, 36-8, earlier this season. In that game Benson rushed for 151 yards and one score.

"Duncanville is probably the best team we've seen, including West Monroe (La.)," Parchman said this week. "They've got it all, speed, size, the whole bundle."

Alpert remarked, "He (Parchman) can't be saying that."

Still, the Lee rushing attack versus Duncanville's rushing defense is the key matchup.

"We will take it to them every down, five yards a play," Winston said. "I will be hitting people. I know that. I'm sure they will come after us."

Lee's ability to stop Duncanville's option offense is a close second.

"They may [illegible] which is assignment football," Parchman said. "They run so many sets and looks and hope to get somebody out of his assignment or do whatever they can to make a big play."

But like Duncanville [illegible] Many touchdown [illegible] ners [illegible] Lewisville [illegible] someone [illegible] pected which plays a big part.

Maybe it will be a player like Lee quarterback Nick Hand, who has been overlooked all season long but delivers when the Rebels need him most.

"Anything is possible," Winston said. "Sometimes coach draws a play in the sand out there. He (Hand) might drop back and launch one down field to keep them honest. You never know, but for the most part, we will run it right at them. Patience will be the key in this game."

Expect the expected — turnovers kill, special teams are crucial, and the team which wants it more will win. It's cliche, but today it's probably true.

Quoteable: "We haven't been the underdogs for a while. It's kind of fun," Lee linebacker David Dakil said.

4-5A vs. Duncanville Notes: Duncanville has ended the road for two other District 4-5A teams in this round — Odessa High in 1997 and Odessa Permian in 1998. Lee has won 13 straight postseason games. Duncanville has won seven.

Benson Notes: Cedric Benson is sixth on the state's all-time leading rushing list, according to Dave Campbell's Texas Football. Fifth on the list in Brandon Reese of Texas School of the Deaf. Reese rushed for 8,059 yards from 1996-99. Benson has 7,876 career yards, 106 career rushing touchdowns, 117 total touchdowns and 710 career points.

Duncanville Notes: Duncanville is playing its fourth game (third playoff game) at Texas Stadium. The Panthers' one loss came to Plano in Week 3. RB Daniel McLemore, a junior, has rushed for 1,653 yards and 21 touchdowns. QB Ricky Smith has thrown for 601 yards, [illegible] touchdowns and three interceptions. Coach Bob Alpert says he has no receivers with double-digit receptions. Duncanville is averaging [illegible] points and [illegible] yards a game.

Lee Notes: [illegible] Nick Hand has thrown for 584 yards, four touchdowns and seven interceptions. Winston is the leading receiver with [illegible] catches for 239 yards. [illegible] per game, while we've given up only two touchdowns per game. These two teams have a lot of similarities."

Game Notes: This is the first meeting between the two teams. [illegible]

It all starts with 5-foot-11, 220-pound running back Henry White, who has good speed and takes a big load of the offense. White has rushed for 1,800 yards this season.

The Pied Pipers also have a good quarterback in Clint Powell, a good fullback in Michael Barrera and a 6-3 tight end in Michael Green.

But probably the most dangerous weapon the Pied Pipers have is 5-4 Jared May, whom the 10-2 Buffaloes have nicknamed, "Justin Outlaw the Second" after Greenwood's diminutive and dangerous all-purpose back.

"Every tape we've seen him in, he's either run a punt or kickoff back, picked up a fumble and run it in, or intercepted a pass and run it in," said Cotton about May. "They list him at 120 pounds but I don't think he's that big. He is pretty special."

"I think he weighs 120 with a bunch of clothes on," said Scott about May, who also plays cornerback and has tallied 111 tackles, 10 interceptions and four fumble recoveries this year. Last week, May had an 85-yard interception return in the Pied Pipers' [illegible] win over Spearman.

No. 1 OU needs one more win to reach title game

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Football Writer

Once again, the Big 12 Conference title game can crush the national championship hopes of the best team in the league.

If No. 8 Kansas State (10-2) beats No. 1 Oklahoma (11-0) Saturday night, it will be the third time in the league's five years that the title game robbed the Big 12 of a national title shot.

And there's a bunch of Big 12 coaches who aren't happy about it, including Nebraska's Frank Solich.

"If they didn't have to play another game, they would automatically be in the national championship game," Solich said. "We'd have a representative there. If they end up losing the game, they are not in the national championship bowl. Neither is Kansas State."

In 1996, the first year of the Big 12, Texas upset No. 3 Nebraska 37-27 and prevented the Cornhuskers from playing Florida State in the Sugar Bowl. In '98, No. 2 Kansas State lost its perfect season in a double-overtime loss to Texas A&M and fell from a title shot to the Alamo Bowl.

The Wildcats would like nothing more than to beat the Sooners, who defeated Kansas State 41-31 Oct. 28 at Manhattan, Kan. But first, Oklahoma quarterback Josh Heupel must be stopped.

"Obviously, we're going to have to play much better than we did in the initial game," Kansas State coach Bill Snyder said. "I don't think we could make a lot of wholesale changes defensively. We have to do what we do."

In the first game, Heupel threw for 374 yards and two touchdowns and ran for a score. Kansas State quarterback Jonathan Beasley, meanwhile, scored three TDs but was only 14-of-36 for 211 yards with two interceptions.

Since then, the Wildcats scrambled to a 10-2 record. There was a 26-10 loss to Texas A&M, a team that nearly beat Oklahoma before losing 35-31, and close calls against Nebraska (29-28) and Missouri (28-24).

The Sooners followed their win over Kansas State with a dominating 31-14 victory over Nebraska, then beat Baylor, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and closed with a shaky 12-7 win over Oklahoma State.

The stakes couldn't be higher in this rematch: Oklahoma plays for a chance at its first AP national title since 1985 with a win, while Kansas State will clinch its first Bowl Championship Series game with an upset.

Should the Wildcats win, they would likely play in the Fiesta Bowl, leaving the Sooners to play in the Sugar Bowl.

The game will be played outdoors for the first time, with a sellout crowd of 80,000 expected at Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium.

ative to TCU whatsoever for me.

"It's just the University of Alabama," Franchione said, speaking in Fort Worth, Texas.

Franchione

He said he hoped to coach the 13th-ranked Horned Frogs (10-1) through the Dec. 20 Mobile Alabama Bowl. He inherited a 1-10 team at TCU three years ago and has taken the school to bowl games each season.

Franchione will fly to Tuscaloosa, Ala., on Sunday after TCU's practice. Moore said Franchione had already begun phoning Tide recruits.

The Horned Frogs' first practice for the bowl was cut short Thursday. As the team huddled after a 75-minute practice, Franchione told of his plans to talk to Moore, prompting some players to chant "Stay, Fran, stay."

Franchione rejected Missouri, where his close friend Mike Alden is the athletic director. His name has also been linked to several other jobs, including Arizona State, one of four schools that would only have a reduced buyout of the coach's current contract.

Alabama is not among those four schools, and would reportedly have to pay $1 million to buy out Franchione's TCU contract, which runs through 2005.

TCU athletic director Eric Hyman said a national search for a new coach will begin immediately.

"We appreciate the job coach Fran has done in his three years at TCU and wish him the best of luck at the University of Alabama," Hyman said.

In the 18 years since Paul "Bear" Bryant retired, Alabama has had four coaches. Only one, Bill Curry, hadn't played or coached under Bryant, and he resigned after three seasons.

"I just simply wanted to find (a coach) that, in my opinion, was capable and had had success as a head coach," Moore said. "He fit that requirement."

Horned Frogs already have list of candidates to replace Franchione

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Soon after coach Dennis Franchione took the Alabama job, Texas Christian athletic director Eric Hyman said he already had a list of potential candidates.

"This was anticipated. I have a list ... you always have to be ready," Hyman said Friday.

While Hyman wouldn't give any names, he said the candidates would include members of Franchione's current staff at TCU. Hyman didn't give a specific timetable for the search.

"We want this to be over as soon as possible, or however long it takes," Hyman said.

Defensive coordinator Gary Patterson and running backs coach Mike Schultz appear to be the most likely candidates from Franchione's staff. The Horned Frogs have the top-ranked defense in the nation and running back LaDainian Tomlinson is a top contender for the Heisman Trophy.

Other possibilities include Southern Mississippi coach Jeff Bower, Marshall coach Bob Pruett, Auburn offensive coordinator Noel Mazzone, Kansas State defensive coordinator Phil Bennett.

Franchione, who has led the Horned Frogs to three straight winning seasons and bowl games since taking over a 1-10 team, accepted an offer to replace Mike DuBose at Alabama. DuBose resigned Nov. 1, but coached through the end of a 3-8 season, the Crimson Tide's worst in 45 years.

TCU is 10-1 and ranked 13th. The Horned Frogs, 25-10 under Franchione, are preparing to play Southern Miss in the Mobile Alabama Bowl on Dec. 20.

Instead of practicing as scheduled Friday, the Frogs held a team meeting. That was when Franchione told players of his decision.

"There are no hard feelings. He came in like a man and told us," quarterback Casey Printers said. "It's a business, you've got to take it like that."

"Shocked? No. The guy's a brilliant coach," said senior linebacker Shannon Brazzell. "I actually would have been upset with him if he had stayed. This is a great opportunity."

Franchione indicated that he would like to "finish with them if I could" but was unsure exactly how things would work out concerning bowl preparations.

Garcia holds on to Challenge lead

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Spain's Sergio Garcia held onto the lead in the Williams World Challenge, matching Tiger Woods and Davis Love III on Friday with a course-record 8-under 64.

Love and Woods also shot 64s on the Sherwood Country Club course, leaving Love two shots behind Garcia and Woods three back midway through the tournament.

Garcia, who opened with a 65, began the second round with three consecutive birdies, and finished with seven birdies, an eagle and a bogey to go to 15-under 129.

Some bands find 'Jesus rock' doesn't sell

■ Musicians face challenge when trying to reach mainstream crowds.

By Kristen Wyatt
Associated Press

ATLANTA— Sing about Jesus at your own risk. That's the conclusion of some rock bands that perform Christian music and then seek crossover success.

They say they face constant questions about their faith, a tough road to mainstream acceptance and charges of selling out if they ever hit it big.

Just ask members of Sixpence None The Richer, who started on a Christian music label but broke into pop stardom with 1999's decidedly secular "Kiss Me."

The group — whose name comes from a C.S. Lewis essay on religion — has faced the question that nags many mainstream performers who sing about spirituality: "So are you a Christian band or not?"

The answer: No. Well, sort of.

"We don't consider ourselves a Christian band," said Jay Swartzendruber, publicist for the five-person band. "But we do see life through that Christian lens."

Cue confusion among fans and the media.

On the Web site for the hard-rock band Creed, band members devote much of the "frequently asked questions" section to addressing whether they're a Christian band.

Lyrics on the group's 1997 debut album — "My Own Prison" — contain frequent references to God and faith. But they insist they aren't a Christian band and have so tired of the question they decline most interview requests (including one for this article).

"People want to put that label on them," said Creed manager Jeff Hanson. "Creed's not running away from that, but they are doing their own thing. There are so many bad role models, I think Christians are probably happy to get what they can."

So why is it such a big deal whether musicians call themselves Christians in a country where most people say they identify with the faith?

"That's a good question," said Frank Breeden, president of the Nashville-based Gospel Music Association. "America no longer acts like a Christian nation. Today's approach toward religion is very postmodern. Most Americans do believe in God but don't want to endorse one religion. They prefer the cafeteria plan: Christianity is one of many faiths."

In other words, "Jesus rock" doesn't sell.

"When people are confronted with that, it puts them face-to-face

Parishioners' hand-held fans serve as place for advertising

By Tatsha Robertson
N.Y. Times News Service

BOSTON — It's 1 p.m. on a cool Sunday afternoon. Inside the St. Johns Missionary Baptist Church in Roxbury, the Rev. Carlton Jones is preaching, and working up a sweat.

The spirited young minister's sermon gets so heated that an usher wearing a starched white dress rushes over to an excited parishioner and cools her off with furious waves of a hand-held cardboard fan. The scene raises no eyebrows in a church where waving arms and shouts of "Yes, Jesus," from the crowd are the marks of a good tell-it-like-it-is sermon.

What is peculiar, though, is what is printed on the fan — an employment advertisement for the US Census Bureau. A few blocks away at Charles Street African Methodist Episcopal Church, the hand-held fan of choice features the glossy picture of a suave gospel singer on one side, and an ad for his new Motown-debut compact disc on the back.

For decades, the simple church fan has been a staple in predominantly black churches across the nation. For most of those years, the fans came with one of three faces on the front: Martin Luther King Jr., Jesus, or a little girl praying. On the back of each was usually a subtle ad for a local black-owned funeral home. Now, fans supplied by politicians, loan companies and, yes, even McDonald's, have found their way into the pews. Leading up to the presidential election, the snappy slogan "Take your souls to the polls" was plastered on church fans across the country.

For pennies a fan, businesses are able to turn the faithful into standing, swaying billboards. Ministers and experts say the reason the church fans have become so popular with mainstream businesses is that they make good business sense: Increasingly, the black churches are the economic engines of their neighborhoods as well as the centers of worship. Fortifying them with a healthy supply of fans promoting their business or cause can help tap a largely untapped market.

"Oh yes, it worked for us. We got a tremendous response," said Brenda August of the US Census Bureau.

Last year, census officials faced the daunting task of quickly finding about 800,000 workers. They knew they needed to find workers who live in the communities and who were trusted, since many African-Americans were known to be wary of census workers.

"We knew that in many, many churches across the country that church people still fan; even some that have air conditioners. So we knew this would be the perfect item to distribute to churches," she said.

The census fans were a hit at the churches, said Craig McMullen, associate pastor at Dorchester Temple Baptist Church. "They came and disappeared into people's homes as soon as they arrived — which is the end goal of those developing these marketing strategies," said McMullen.

Most ministers say they allow businesses and agencies to drop off fans at their churches because they are of use to the congregants.

But there are limits. And not everyone is happy about these sometimes blatant, sometimes subtle marketing tools seeping into the house of God.

"Next thing you know they will try to bring porno in," said Bishop Samuel Anderson of United Emmanuel Holiness Church in Roxbury.

People gather from across nation to help renovate church

By John Gutierrez-Mier
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — For 75 years, the rock-solid and dignified looking church tucked deep in the West Side barrio has served as a house of worship for the nation's oldest Hispanic congregation of the Christian Church Disciples of Christ.

Like any sophisticated lady well past her prime, the iglesia madre, or mother church, had managed to retain most of her beauty and all of her charm amid the elements and the decades.

But the time had come for a serious makeover.

Men, women and children from all over the United States gathered recently at the Mexican Christian Church to roll up their sleeves for a daylong renovation and cleanup.

The Rev. Sharon Ginn of Snow Hill, N.C., her hair pulled back tightly, her sweatshirt and hands already soiled two hours after the 8 a.m. start time, was delighted that she and about 150 other like-minded people were able to participate in Miracle Day 2000, as the effort was dubbed.

"It's very exciting to see church members from all over working together. It helps us understand that our church is not just where we worship, but it is much bigger nationally and globally," said Ms. Ginn, a member of the Church Relations Task Force of the denomination's National Benevolent Association, which met in San Antonio earlier this month.

Every year, each U.S. geographical region of the denomination gauges the needs of its churches, explained Amy Madison, who helped coordinate the work for the San Antonio-based Bluebonnet and Lower Rio Grande District of the Disciples of Christ. The region includes all of its churches in South Texas.

"This church is the mother of all our Hispanic churches, so it was kind of a no-brainer," Ms. Madison said of the decision to select Mexican Christian Church, which celebrated its 101st anniversary in April.

All the building materials, including paint, plus labor for the electrical work was paid for by the district office. Volunteers did the rest.

Luz Sanchez, a fourth-generation member of the church, said the restoration was an answer to prayer.

"Our church members have included immigrants from Mexico and Central and South America," she said.

The congregation was formed in 1899 and met in various places on the West Side, including small businesses and homes.

Ms. Sanchez said Anglo missionaries established the first worshiping body in the heavily Hispanic and poor West Side neighborhoods.

In 1901, Ignacio Quintero, according to church historians, became the first Hispanic pastor of the church. On Sept. [illegible] 1925, the church building was dedicated, and since then its sanctuary has witnessed hundreds of baptisms, weddings and funerals.

But Ms. Sanchez said the church has seen better times. Today, the number of active members has dwindled to [illegible] and visiting pastors provide bilingual services each Sunday at [illegible] a.m.

In midst of holiday happenings, remember baby in the manger

Williams

Advent is the church season that singes my hair. Let me explain. One of my friends in high school used to leave her electric rollers on 24 hours a day because she never knew when she'd need them. Becky burned out a lot of rollers, but she was always prepared.

This Sunday begins the season that burns out my hot rollers. Before the Grinch stole Christmas, he stole Advent by declaring that every organization, every church group, every school class, every committee, every professional group, every ad hoc coterie must throw a party between Dec. 1 and Dec. 24. He added guilt trips as a corollary for those who do not get out Christmas cards or presents on time. These diversionary tactics guarantee that we aren't focusing on the birth of Christ and that many of us are so exhausted by Christmas Eve that we're too ill to function, much less worship.

Every year I make an Advent resolution, and believe me, I've tried everything, including the attempt to make Christmas a year-round affair. I buy gift bags and ornaments the day after Christmas for the following year. I buy family presents in the summertime. I aim to get a picture card made by Thanksgiving and out-of-town presents wrapped by Dec. 1.

I have never accomplished these deadlines, but every year I try.

Prayer, of course, works better than any contrived plan for survival. During Advent, I pray a lot — to get out of the mall alive, to have patience when the tree light cord balls up and refuses to string nicely, to savor each moment with the children even if they are quarreling, to keep my grumpy mouth shut, to put front and center the reason for the season — the birth of Jesus in a chaotic world.

Advent celebrates three different arrivals of Christ — the original birth in Bethlehem, the entering of Jesus into our hearts, and the Second Coming some time in the future. One of my seminary professors described the period between the first and second comings as similar to the period in World War II between the invasion of Normandy and V.E. Day when Germany surrendered. By the time the beach head was firmly established, we knew the war was won, but there were still battles to fight before the victory was complete.

Though not perfect, [illegible] God landed on our shores [illegible] us with its spiritual [illegible] He will come again [illegible] tory. But we don't know when.

In the meantime, we fight [illegible] traffic snarls, overcrowded schedules, [illegible] and the blues. In the midst [illegible] a baby is born. Through [illegible] background music [illegible]

Bishop who challenged governor on abortion takes over doctrine panel

By Claude Marx
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Name a hot-button issue in contemporary religion and chances are that Bishop Donald W. Trautman is at the center of it, often taking hits from both left and right.

Liberals have faulted the Roman Catholic bishop of Erie, Pa., for taking on Catholic politicians who support abortion rights, including one considered a GOP vice-presidential prospect.

Conservatives have criticized him for wanting to make the language of prayer more gender neutral.

"I am not afraid to take positions that are necessary for the future of the church. I am not afraid to fight for what is important," said the 64-year-old prelate, who wrote his doctoral dissertation on the biblical understanding of celibacy. "I want to be involved in these issues only if I can clarify things and serve as a balancer."

Now, he will be involved even more prominently.

Trautman recently took over as chairman of the Doctrine Committee of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"Its job is to ensure doctrinal integrity," Trautman explained during a break in the conference's recent annual meeting here.

In the next few months, the seven-bishop committee — whose members are picked by Trautman — will help implement a Vatican document that governs how theology is taught at Catholic colleges. The document's requirement that faculty be approved by local bishops has brought protests that the church is treading on academic freedom.

Another issue the doctrine panel will take up is clarifying the church's definition of the Holy Eucharist.

Trautman says he is "proud to be a centrist because 'in the middle stands virtue,'" a phrase he translated from Latin.

A Buffalo, N.Y., native, Trautman has been Erie's bishop since 1990.

He made national headlines when he said Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge would not be allowed to speak at church events because Ridge supports abortion rights. The prelate's action came after the bishops' conference issued a statement in 1998 called "Living the Gospel of Life."

"I have to fulfill my role as the shepherd of the diocese," he said earlier this year. "I think we have to point out that there is a higher law, which is the law of God, and no human law can contradict the commandment 'Thou shall not kill.'"

Ridge had been on many people's short list of possible running mates for George W. Bush, but some conservatives cited his disagreement with Trautman as potentially alienating Catholic voters.

"It's obviously pretty difficult for me because it puts me at odds with my faith community," said Ridge, a former altar boy who attends Mass regularly. "I realize the church hasn't created the problem. I have, because I've parted company with my church on this."

While chairing the bishops' conference Liturgy Committee, Trautman pushed to change the language of prayers to make them more gender inclusive. He criticized the Vatican for not being sufficiently sensitive to the needs of a more modern, diverse church.

Conservatives maintained that Trautman's efforts contradicted the church's liturgical tradition.

Trautman has long been involved in reform efforts within the church.

In graduate school at the University of Innsbruck in Austria, he studied under theologian Karl Rahner and liturgist Josef Jungmann. Their work provided much of the intellectual basis for the 1962-'65 Second Vatican Council, whose pronouncements have shaped the modern church.

The meeting, known popularly as Vatican II, introduced liturgical changes that were controversial at the time but have since been largely accepted. These include permitting Mass in the language of the people and granting a greater role to lay people.

Trautman was a junior staff member at Vatican II and on the floor during most of the deliberations. He strongly defends the reforms as "inspired by the Holy Spirit" and sees part of his job as a committee chairman as "keeping the spirit alive of Vatican II."

The Rev. Thomas Reese, who has written a book on the politics of the bishops' conference, says Trautman has the right combination of intellectual and political skills to implement his goals.

"His colleagues admire his prudent and thoughtful handling of the issues," said Reese, who edits America, a weekly opinion magazine published by the Jesuits. "He is someone who will listen to others and is not a lone ranger."

MUSIC: Bands try to stay away from labels

(From 1C)

with a lot of issues that are hard to deal with: hell, eternity, fall from grace. In this society we don't talk about that kind of stuff," said Jerry Williams, programming director at WVFJ-FM, Atlanta's largest Christian radio station.

But when Christian musicians score a crossover hit that doesn't mention God, the genre's faithful level charges of selling out.

"There's people who say they want to have their cake and eat it, too, walking the line and having it both ways," Hanson said.

Dabney Gordon, 14, listens almost exclusively to Christian pop even though most of her friends at a Christian private school prefer Eminem or Britney Spears. She complained that bands have to choose between morality and commercial success, and often they pick rock stardom.

"I don't think it's pleasing to God," she said of bands that downplay their Christian roots. "It's a little disappointing to me. But our world always wants to talk about sex and things like that. That's what people are interested in, so that's what they buy."

Swartzendruber said the Christian music industry itself is to blame for the difficulty Christian bands have reaching the mainstream. Managers want every song to be "a three-minute sermonette," he said, and artists are allowed little creativity.

Like many Christian bands, Sixpence was put on a church tour, but band members complained of pressure to give religious speeches after they played. Those expectations put up a wall between secular and religious acts and drove Sixpence from its first label.

"We're not preachers," Swartzendruber said. "But there are some very narrow-minded believers who think the message, not the music, is the only thing that's important. It's an inbred community, a small fish bowl."

WVFJ's Williams agreed, but said it's changing.

"There are people who want to count the Jesus-per-minute references, but I don't think that's the majority anymore," he said.

"Just because a band isn't as overtly spiritual on some albums, it doesn't mean they're turning their backs on their faith. Christian bands used to be called on the carpet if they got away from the message. Now some people are disappointed if the big hit doesn't mention Jesus, but they're more accepting. It just takes time."

ADS: Marketers using church fans as tools

(From 1C)

"Somebody will try."

Like Anderson and McMullen, the Rev. Gregory Groover of Charles Street AME said he screens all fans brought into the church.

"I think if the message is relevant or crucial to the black church, then I can embrace it," said Groover. "But I would have problems with the commercialization of fans to the extent of McDonald's issuing them."

But, like McMullen, Groover said the mass marketing of church fans reflects a change in the way black churches are perceived by mainstream businesses.

"For them to wake up and say, 'Oh this is a great place for marketing' — it's like — 'hello,' " said McMullen. "We have been knowing this for years but they just never looked at us."

Many black churches have become important economic powers in their neighborhoods. Some of Boston's largest have their own book and record stores. Many offer thousands in college scholarships for their young.

But none of these churches are making money off the increasingly tall stacks of fans often left in their lobbies.

The ones that are profiting most from the fans are white-owned ad distributing and manufacturing companies that are receiving an increasing number of orders for them.

"It has become an excellent advertising tool if you want your name out into a closed audience," said Everette Manchester of K.E.E. Distributors and Sales, an ad specialty company in Fall River, Mass. "It's very cost-effective. People leave them there for next Sunday."

And the Sunday after that. Although John O'Connor, a wealthy environmentalist and activist, lost his bid to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy II in 1998, every Sunday some well-dressed church members at St. Johns can be found waving fans that read "John O'Connor for Congress."

"We see everything in the world advertising in the back of these fans — loan companies, car sales. There is no limit," said John Hock, vice president of marketing and sales for Sanders Manufacturing Co., a Nashville producer of fans.

Black undertakers such as Floyd Williams of Dorchester, Mass., Lawson Riley of Mattapan, Mass., and Andrew Spears of Cambridge, Mass., say they still supply churches with boxes of fans, but they doubt the fans attract additional customers to an industry that relies heavily on word of mouth.

Back when undertakers were the only fan-suppliers in town, the printed cardboard sparked competition among them.

"When I first started, I really went on this fan campaign," recalled Williams. "I was getting fans and putting them in churches. But what we found was that some of them were taken out and (other undertakers) would put their own in."

Before air conditioning, the fans were used to cool down congregations packed in small churches. The little ads on the back of the fans were subtle but efficient enough to get the names of the funeral homes out without offending possible clients.

By the time most black churches became air conditioned, the fans had become part of the church's fabric just like the hymn book and the tambourine.

Groover remembers the ushers fanning down the church mothers who were stirred with the "holy ghost" when he was a young boy in New York.

Sitting in his dimly lit office, Groover explains that while he prefers not to have explicit advertising in church, he'll make exceptions for those that are tastefully done. He holds in the air his favorite fan, one featuring the face of BeBe Winans, a popular gospel singer who looks something like the 39-year-old Groover. Soon, the minister, grinning from ear to ear, is tapping his feet to the husky voice of Winans wafting from the CD player.

HELP: People join together to renovate church

(From 1C)

"After the Vietnam War, many church members moved out of the neighborhood and began going to predominantly Anglo churches," Ms. Sanchez said.

The church, a block west of the Guadalupe Cultural Arts Center, continues to operate several programs, including Disciples Barrio Ministries, which provides a free meal each Wednesday and clothing to the poor and those in crisis in the neighborhood.

"A lot of people have told us that we should sell our building and move, but we provide so much for the barrio," said Ms. Sanchez, 58.

Her son Ruben said the restoration and cleanup gave him and others hope for the church where he was baptized and married.

"Sometimes you just take it for granted that it will always be here," the 28-year-old said.

And if he and his wife have kids, they plan to bring them to the West Side landmark, where they'll worship as a family.

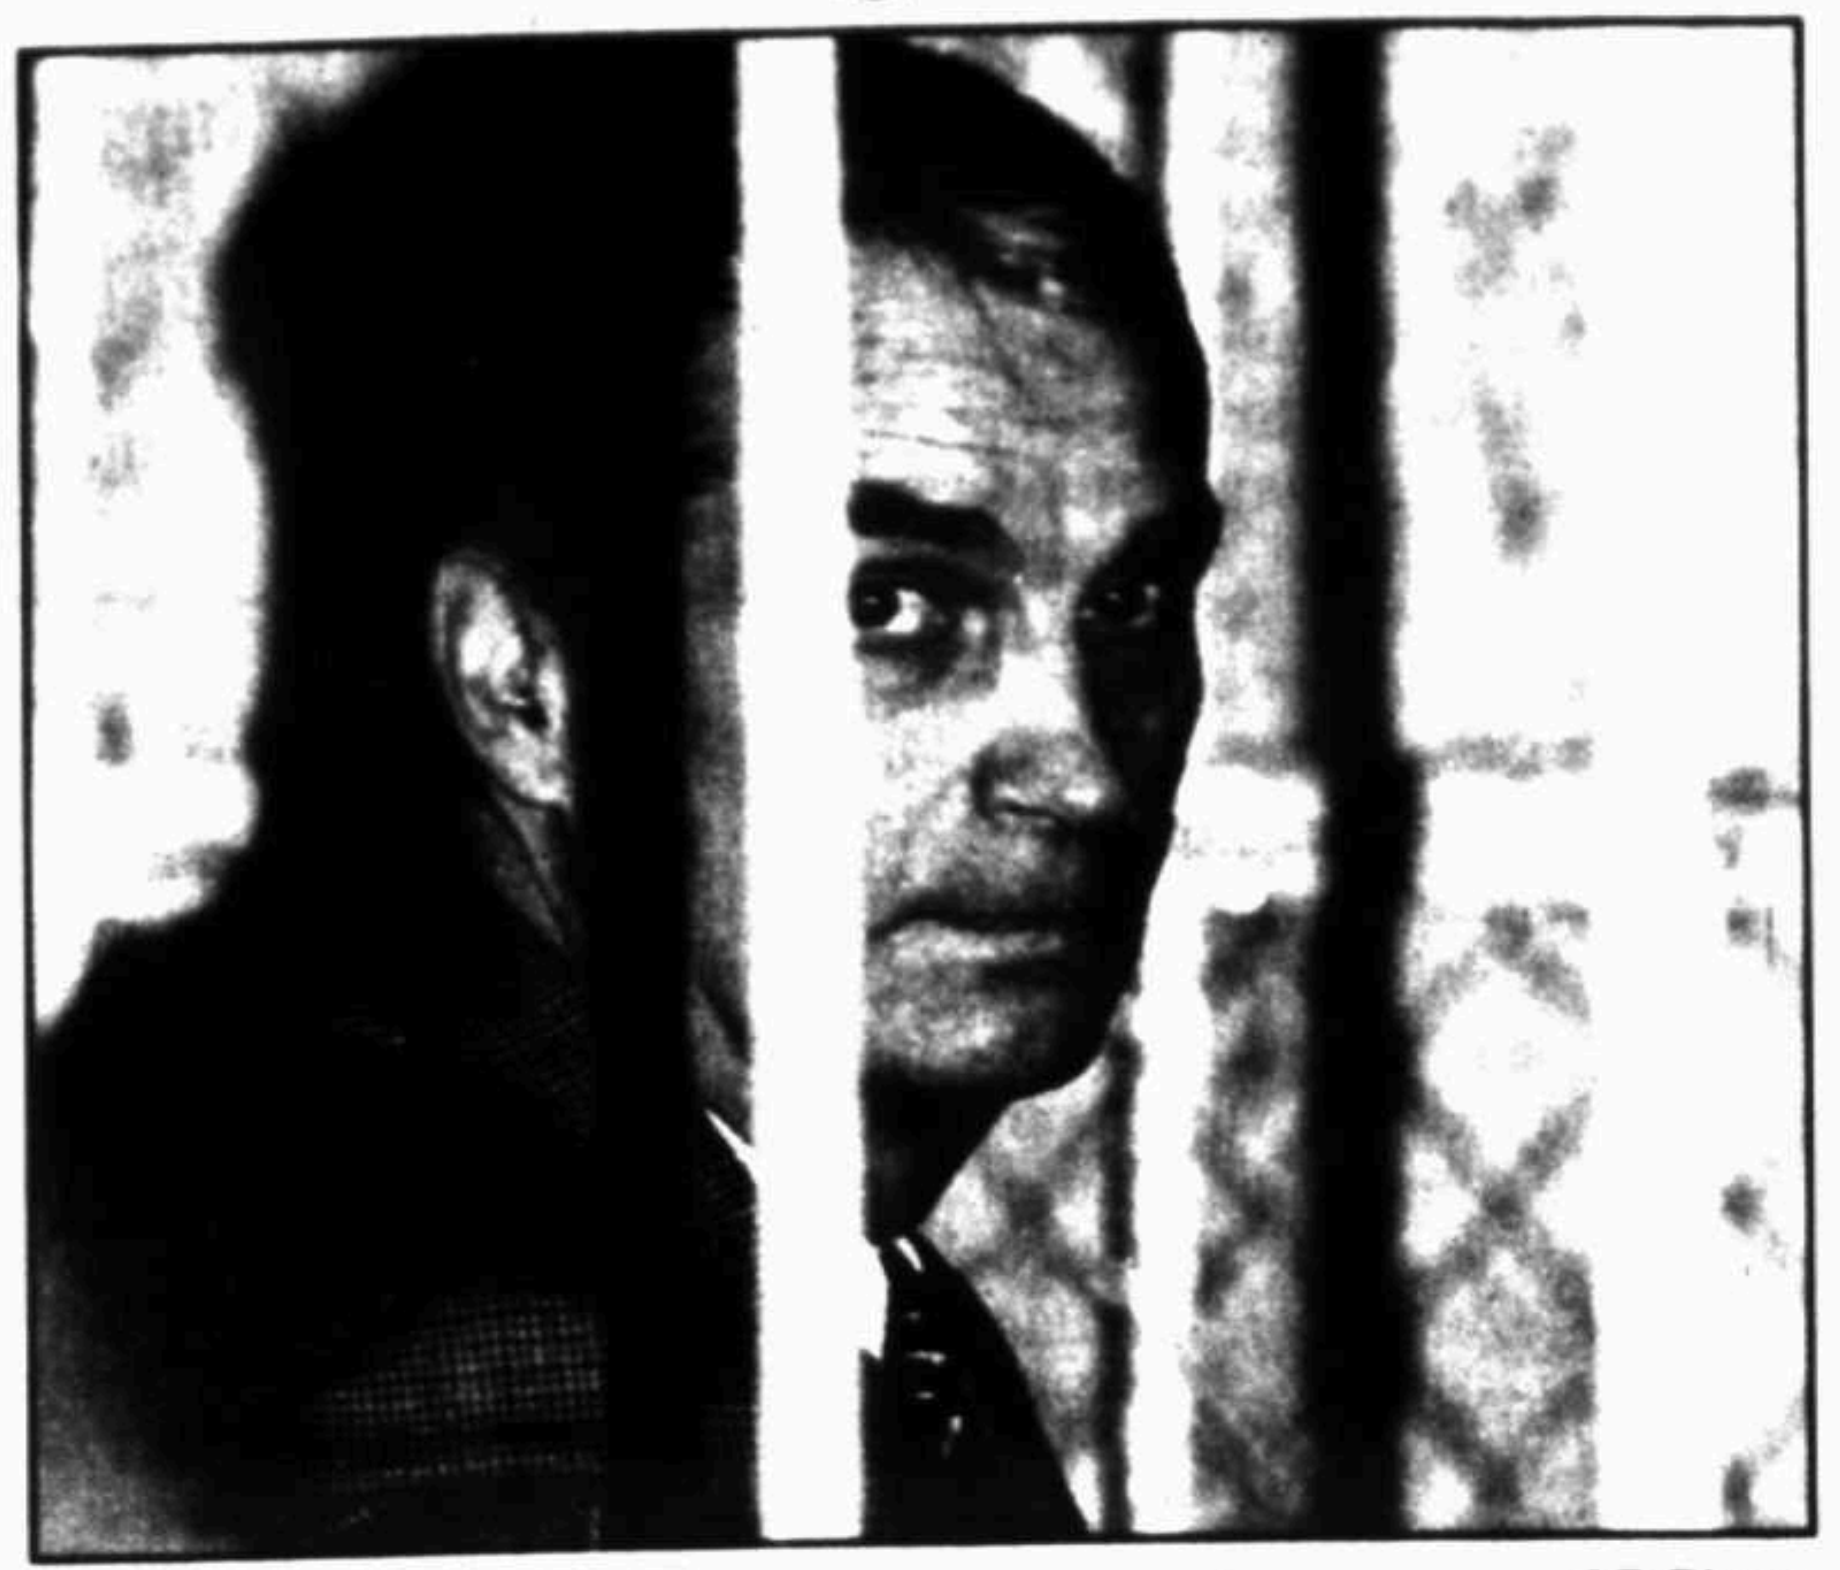
American's trial hinges on Russia's hazy definition of secrecy



AP Photo

U.S. businessman Edmond Pope sits behind bars during his espionage trial in Moscow, Friday. Pope's lawyer asked a Moscow judge Friday to acquit his client of espionage charges, saying in closing statements that prosecutors had failed to prove Pope did anything illegal.

MOSCOW (AP) — American businessman Edmond Pope has sat slumped in a suspect's cage in a dingy Moscow courtroom for seven weeks, the target of an espionage trial that centers around the question of what is a secret in today's Russia.

The verdict, expected within days, is of great interest not only to analysts trying to read the often-obscure signals of President Vladimir Putin's Kremlin, but to foreign investors nervous about whether Russia is a safe place to do business.

Prosecutors say Pope, a freelance defense contractor and former naval intelligence officer, bought classified plans for a high-speed underwater torpedo unrivaled in the West, deeply damaging the struggling Russian military.

Pope's attorney, who read his closing statement Friday, argues that the designs were widely available and not classified.

Observers guess acquittal is a long shot, despite recanted testimony by Pope's key accuser and his weak health, which has worsened after eight months in Moscow's dank Lefortovo jail. To the dismay of Pope's family in State College, Pa., U.S. government protests appear to have had no effect.

The sensitive case has fueled questions about Russia's stance toward its intelligence services and foreign investors, as Putin seeks to resurrect his country's diminished global clout while reviving the investment-hungry economy.

Pope was arrested in April, just a week after Putin was elected.

"It was symbolically important for Putin to show Russian firmness after his election," said Dmitry Trenin, a defense analyst with the Moscow office of the Carnegie Endowment. "But how far will this go?"

Some fear Putin, a former KGB agent, is reviving a spy war with the West that could scare away investors wary of Russia's hazy definition of secrecy.

Mere mention of the Pope case makes many American executives in Russia nervous, particularly small contractors in the defense sector. They said it has made them more cautious, and one said it prompted him to upgrade his legal counsel.

Pope's accusers from the Federal Security Service, the KGB's main successor, appear to have a weak case. But the trial is closed and prosecutors have been tight-lipped, so most news of the proceedings has come from media-savvy defense lawyer Pavel Astakhov.

Meanwhile, the 54-year-old Pope, who has had bone cancer that was in remission when he came to Russia, has been repeatedly denied access to English-speaking doctors. He has had severe fits of pain that interrupted the trial, and complains of constant headaches and dizziness.

His family fears the cancer has returned. Russian prison doctors say his only problem is too much coffee.

"It is certainly not an advertisement for best practices and due process in the judicial system," said Scott Blacklin, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Moscow.

Prosecutors want a sentence of 20 years in prison and an astronomical fine of $250 million for damages to the defense industry.

The torpedo Pope was studying made mouths water in U.S. military intelligence after its development by the Soviets in the 1970s, defense experts said. They described the Shkval, or Squall, as an underwater missile that glides on huge air bubbles at staggering speeds of up to 230 miles per hour.

The Russians have improved on the Squall and are trying to export it, the experts said. Pope's lawyers say that deflates the prosecution's case that the torpedo is a secret.

Over several trips to Russia, Pope arranged with Moscow's Bauman Technical Institute to purchase the torpedo plans for $30,000. An expert commission at Bauman ruled that Pope did not receive any classified materials.

But the prosecution ignored that ruling, in favor of a government commission formed after Pope's arrest that ruled the designs were in fact classified.

Meanwhile, Pope's key accuser, Bauman professor Anatoly Babkin, recently retracted a statement implicating Pope in espionage, saying he made it under pressure from investigators.

Pope, an Oregon native, has sat slumped glumly in a suspect's cage throughout the trial, an FSB interpreter standing nearby.

The case has strained U.S.-Russian relations. After a long initial silence, the U.S. government began urging Russian leaders to release Pope, saying the authorities had not proved wrongdoing and citing Pope's weak health. Some Congress members say the response is too muted, and want sanctions against Russia.

Russian media reports have speculated that Russia's Kursk nuclear submarine was testing a new Squall when it suffered explosions and sank in August, killing all 118 men aboard. Officials have denied the claim.

Mark Spellman, Pastor

"Therefore, brothers, be all the more diligent to make certain about His calling and choosing you..."
2 Peter 1:10

The word Peter uses here for 'choosing' is often translated 'electing.' It carries with it the sense of someone "picking out" or "selecting" based on something other than personal qualifications or preference.

The Scriptures tell us that God chose for Himself a people out of all the nations, not because they were strong and mighty; not because they were righteous; not because they were men of integrity (Deut. 7:6; 9:4). No, the source of God's choosing, His calling, was His grace.

Election and calling are and remain today God' redemptive acts as He graciously calls people to Himself through the preaching of the Word, the primary means of grace. God elects people to eternity (Eph. 1:4), but calls them in time (Romans 8:30). It is God alone who decrees our election and calling.

Yet, it is our duty to make that calling and election sure by applying all diligence, moral excellence, knowledge, self-control, perseverance, godliness, brotherly kindness and love (2 Peter 1:5-7) for these are external evidences of God's grace in our lives and validating proof of God's calling us for His own.

If the love of God stands as the heart of election, the power of God is seen in the mystery of it. Who can truly comprehend it! Through the Father's gracious call before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4), the Son's substitutionary sacrifice (Eph. 5:2) and the Spirit's effectual application the Triune God calls all to Him who will be saved. Not one who calls upon His name will be lost (Romans 10:9-10).

There's been much wrangling of late about who's elect and who's not. Those who are elect don't call themselves. They can't do anything to redeem themselves. That has already been done. Those who are called do have a responsibility to "set their minds on endorsing by their conduct the fact that God has called and chosen them" (2 Pet. 1:10, Phillips Translation).

We invite you to come worship with us each Lord's Day, every Sunday morning, at 10:50 a.m. where you will hear the Word of God preached verse by verse, consecutively and expositionally and where we joyfuly celebrate God's calling us to be His own.

CHURCH OF MIDLAND
Wishing Midland a very Merry Christmas!

YOUR INVITATION
The news of the past three weeks has focused almost entirely on the Presidential election. At the time this article went to press, the presidency was still undecided, though George Bush has been certified the winner in Florida. However, the question of who is the Savior for mankind has been settled. The announcement came—not from an elected official—but from an angel from heaven. That announcement was first delivered to lowly shepherds: "Do not be afraid. I bring you good news of great joy that will be for all the people. Today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you; He is Christ, the Lord."
We at First Baptist Church would like to cordially invite you to celebrate the advent of the Savior with us. I hope you will take a closer look at this publication to find out the exciting and relevant ways we will be celebrating the Savior's coming. At this wonderful season of the year, we would be delighted to have you join with us.

Judge dismisses lawsuit challenging Cheney's residency

> 'We respectfully disagree, given all the evidence of how blatantly the Constitution was circumvented.'
> — Bill Berenson, plantiff's attorney

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge on Friday dismissed a lawsuit that challenged running mate Dick Cheney's status as a Wyoming resident and sought to block Gov. George W. Bush's election as president.

The lawsuit was filed last week by three Texans who claim that Cheney is a resident of Texas and that he and Bush, therefore, shouldn't be awarded the state's 32 electoral votes. The lawsuit cites the 12th Amendment, which prohibits the president and vice president from living in the same state.

U.S. District Judge Sidney Fitzwater, a Republican appointed by President Reagan, ruled that Cheney has proven he "has both a physical presence within the state of Wyoming and the intent that Wyoming be his place of habitation."

Fitzwater also said the plaintiffs failed to show they would prevail on the merits of their case or would suffer irreparable injury if the injunction was not granted. A similar lawsuit filed in Florida was dismissed Nov. 20.

Plaintiffs' attorney Bill Berenson said he did not know if his clients would appeal Fitzwater's decision.

"We respectfully disagree, given all the evidence of how blatantly the Constitution was circumvented," said the Fort Worth lawyer. "The legal definition of inhabitant is someone who actually and permanently lives in a residence. Mr. Cheney owns three households and we believe spends more time in Texas and D.C. than Wyoming."

"We're not at all surprised," Cheney spokeswoman Juleanna Glover Weiss said. "We've held all along that the case is without merits. No amount of lawyering is going to change that."

Cheney, a former Wyoming congressman, lived in Dallas while he was chairman of Halliburton Co. until he changed his voting registration to Teton County, Wyo., on July 21 — four days before becoming Bush's running mate.

He or his wife have owned a home in Dallas since 1993, but have entered into a contract to sell the property, which was listed for $3.1 million. Cheney, who was defense secretary under President George Bush, also owns property in McLean, Va.

In a motion filed Thursday, attorneys for Cheney told a federal judge that it doesn't matter where the vice presidential candidate lived earlier this year. The 12th Amendment applies only to where he will reside Dec. 18, when Texas electors cast their votes.

Cheney also obtained a Wyoming driver's license on July 21 and his Texas license was invalidated and perforated with the word "void," his attorneys said. They added that Cheney has listed his Jackson Hole, Wyo., home as a primary place of residence for the United States Secret Service.

The plaintiffs were Stephen E. Jones, a Texas Wesleyan University law student, Linda D. Lydia and Caroline Franco. It names Bush, Cheney, Texas Secretary of State Elton Bomer and the 32 Texas electors as defendants.

A similar class-action lawsuit listing 1,915 plaintiffs that was filed in Austin this week still is pending.

One man holds down the anti-Bush fort outside mansion

> 'I've had the finger pointed at me, I figure they're just waving hello.'
> — Wilson Leary

AUSTIN (AP) — Ever patient, Wilson Leary is determined to be on the scene when the presidential election reaches its climax.

He was the only one protesting outside the governor's mansion Friday afternoon, standing on an Austin street corner and bracing the wind that threatened to topple the triple-decker, homemade sign towering above him.

The mansion, home to Gov. George W. Bush for the past six years, has been swamped in recent weeks with political activists and others hovering close to the action that could, at any moment, produce a president.

Leary, 34, said he isn't one to follow the crowds.

"Lady liberty keeps me company," Leary said, a bent brown leather cowboy hat covering his sand-colored hair. "Sometimes it seems a lot of people doing the same thing — they must be right somehow. But I'm just one guy with a good sign. One man standing alone can make a difference."

His sign "Quiet coup d'etat in progress" is a collage of old cardboard and posterboard signs he has used since he began demonstrating Nov. 10.

Smaller signs that read "Votergate," "USA 4 Sale," "Remember the debate tape," and "We need a Texas Ranger," were nailed together on wooden stakes to create his opus.

"I think there's a very quiet overthrow of democracy going on right now," said Leary, an abstract, expressionist artist. "I just want all the votes to be counted."

Leary's presence provoked mixed reactions from passersby.

Some drivers strained their necks to get a look at Leary, who met their gawking with a single gesture. He put his finger to his lips as if to say: don't dare speak out.

A green Jeep Cherokee slowed down to offer words of encouragement. Another in a pickup truck waved and honked his horn. Leary welcomes any feedback.

"I've had the finger pointed at me," Leary said. "I figure they're just waving hello."

Leary said he was bracing for a long, cold weekend on the street.

Under an army-green rain slicker, Leary donned a pale blue button-down shirt and a peeling leather jacket, barely revealing rainbow suspenders clipped to his jeans. He had tied a sweater around his waist and layered two pair of socks under his hiking boots. He had stocked his pockets with gloves, candy and two nutrition bars.

"There's only a few days left until the coup d'etat is finished," said Leary, who can spew out his list of suspicions about Election 2000 at a moment's notice.

There's ballot tampering, racial intimidation and brotherly interference — all attempts by Bush to swoop in and steal the Oval Office, Leary says.

"There's a lot of dirty tricks in this campaign," he said. "It's a quiet coup."

Continental to discuss pilots' contract early

> 'We've helped the airline achieve industry-leading (passenger loads), profitability and customer loyalty, but we are significantly behind the rest of the industry in pay and benefits.'
> — Capt. Pat Burke, Independent Association of Continental Pilots

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines has agreed to begin discussing its next pilots' contract nine months early, responding to a request last month by the union.

The sides said Friday they will exchange written proposals Oct. 1, later than the May time the union suggested but sooner than the July 2002 time stipulated in the previous agreement.

Verbal negotiations would begin in January 2002, the airline said.

"We've helped the airline achieve industry-leading (passenger loads), profitability and customer loyalty, but we are significantly behind the rest of the industry in pay and benefits," said Capt. Pat Burke, president of the Independent Association of Continental Pilots, specifically referring to the industry-leading pay raise United Airlines pilots recently won.

Burke, who said he will pursue a contract that matches or exceeds the best in the business, said Continental's 5,400 pilots are paid about 39 percent below top levels and will be as much as 62 percent behind by 2002.

"Pensions and other benefits also are substandard," Burke said, noting the company's bankruptcy of 1983 battered its pension fund, meaning competing airlines have plans "five or six times" more lucrative than Continental's.

Both the union and the Houston-based airline say their goal is to have a new agreement in place by Oct. 1, 2002, when the next contract is scheduled to take effect.

"It benefits both Continental and its pilots to have a clear understanding of the path our talks will take," said airline spokesman Dave Messing.

Messing added that Continental remains committed to taking its labor negotiations in sequence, meaning the next group that will receive attention will be mechanics, whose new contract would begin Jan. 1, 2002.

On its Web site, the union had posted a clock ticking the days since its Nov. 13 request for the airline to "do the right thing."

Burke said he met with Continental chairman and chief executive officer Gordon Bethune on Nov. 20 to discuss the matter. Burke said he is "gratified" Bethune saw things his way.

Additionally, Burke said the nation's fifth-largest airline has agreed to begin arbitration next month on disputed interpretations of the current contract, which became effective in 1997.

It is unclear how the accelerated timetable might affect a proposal for the Continental union to merge or affiliate with the Air Line Pilots Association, the industry's primary pilots' union.

However, Burke promised the current negotiating team will remain on board whether or not the unions join forces.

The early negotiations apply only to "mainline" Continental pilots, not the 1,700 who fly the carrier's commuter arm, Continental Express. However, negotiations will open in April for 200 instructor pilots who recently joined the union.

Jury convicts Fort Worth couple on nearly 90 counts of child porn

> 'I hope it scares them into stopping, because police and prosecutors are getting smarter about this stuff, we're coming after them.'
> — Terri Moore, assistant U.S. attorney

FORT WORTH (AP) — A federal jury on Friday convicted a couple and their company on nearly 90 counts in an Internet child pornography case with international ties.

Jurors deliberated eight hours before returning guilty verdicts against Thomas and Janice Reedy and their home-based company, Landslide Inc., which netted more than $1 million between 1997 and 1999.

The Fort Worth couple's business gave subscribers passwords to access Web sites containing graphic pictures and videos of children engaging in sex acts with each other and adults.

The Reedys and their business were charged in April in an 89-count indictment after an extensive investigation by the FBI, Postal Service and Customs Service. The charges included sexual exploitation of minors, distribution of child pornography and conspiracy.

Jurors found Janice Reedy, 32, innocent of one count of possession of child porn but convicted her on all other counts. Thomas Reedy, 37, and the company were found guilty on all 89 counts.

The couple face from 20 years to life in prison. A sentencing date has not been set.

Authorities called it one of the largest Internet child porn cases in the country because three webmasters also were indicted. R.W. Kusuma and Hanny Inganata of Indonesia and Boris Greenberg of Russia have not been extradited to the United States.

The Reedys maintained their innocence, saying they thought the Web sites contained only adult porn. They said their company verified that customers were adults and was designed to make sure children did not have access to porn sites.

Janice Reedy testified Thursday that the computers were owned by her husband. She was Landslide's bookkeeper, where she handled billing forms with site names such as "XXX PreTeen," but said someone told her the names did not mean the site contained lewd pictures of children.

But authorities said the couple had an international clientele of more than 300,000 subscribers who paid from $14.95 to $29.95 a month for access to "Just Grow Up," "Lolita Hardcore," "Child Rape" or other sites.

Authorities said the Reedys kept 40 percent of the profits and gave the webmasters 60 percent.

During the five-day trial, prosecutors projected pictures and videos on a large screen. Some jurors looked away from the images.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Terri Moore said the couple served as a link between pedophiles and the webmasters who launched the sites. She said Friday's verdict sends a message she hopes others in the business will follow.

"I hope it scares them into stopping, because police and prosecutors are getting smarter about this stuff," she said. "We're coming after them."

Web site angers Byrd's sister

HOUSTON (AP) — A relative of James Byrd Jr. is outraged by a Web site posted on behalf of the first person convicted and sentenced to die for the East Texas man's dragging death.

Byrd's sister, Louvon Harris, said Thursday that she was stunned when John William King's Web page, posted through the Lamp of Hope Project, was brought to her attention.

"I didn't know that a death row inmate could have access to the Internet," Harris told the Houston Chronicle in Friday's edition. "I thought once you sent a person to death row, their freedom stopped."

Inmates who do not have access to computers provide the contents for Web sites to LHP volunteers, who donate space for Web pages and forward e-mail messages to inmates through the Postal Service.

"That's too much freedom," said Harris. "It's very offensive. It makes me wonder about the world. I will do all I can to see that this is stopped."

She said she will be in Austin in January to push for a tougher state hate crimes law, and plans to bring up the subject of death row inmates being allowed to solicit funds and support over the Internet.

A jury in 1999 sent King, a white supremacist, to death row for helping two friends chain Byrd to a pickup truck and drag him to pieces along a country road near Jasper. Lawrence Russell Brewer, 33, also received the death penalty. The third participant, Shawn Allen Berry, 25, was sentenced to life in prison.

Byrd was African-American and the men convicted in his killing are white.

The 25-year-old King's Web page solicits donations to the John King Defense Fund at First National Bank in Jasper.

But residents of the East Texas town are still sensitive about the publicity the town received following her brother's grisly 1998 death, Harris said, adding that most would be upset to know that King is asking people to send money to him.

Crown Prince Haakon announces engagement to live-in girlfriend

OSLO, Norway — There is one less eligible prince charming on the market: Crown Prince Haakon has become engaged to his live-in girlfriend, a single mother who could become Norway's next queen.

The wedding — set for Aug. 25 — will be Norway's first royal wedding since the prince's parents, King Harald V and Queen Sonja, married in 1968.

The popular 27-year-old prince revealed in May that he had a steady girlfriend, Mette-Marit Tjessem Hoiby, 27, who has a 3-year-old son.

The couple, smiling and holding hands, appeared at a packed news conference Friday in the palace after their engagement was announced.

Her diamond engagement ring is the same one the prince's father gave his mother and his grandfather, King Olav V, gave to his wife, Queen Martha.

Legal experts say Hoiby's young son could never be king, even if the couple married and Haakon adopted him.

DALLAS — The legal wrangling between country crooner LeAnn Rimes and her father is tied up in another lawsuit.

Wilbur Rimes has countersued LeAnn Rimes Entertainment Inc., alleging the company owes him money. In May, the singer filed suit accusing her father and former co-manager Lyle Walker of siphoning more than $7 million from her and her entertainment company over five years.

Wilbur Rimes has denied the accusations. In his suit, he claims the company owes him a 3 percent producer fee under an agreement made with his ex-wife Belinda Rimes in 1999. His attorney, Brad Rhorer, said the company refuses to honor the agreement.

J. Cary Gray, LeAnn Rimes' attorney, said Friday he had not seen the lawsuit filed Tuesday, but wasn't surprised.

"He's made a number of threats to file a complaint that he's owed more money," Gray said. "I don't know why it has taken so long."

LeAnn Rimes topped the country charts with popular songs such as "Blue" and "How Do I Live."

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Luciano Pavarotti is scheduled to perform an April Fool's Day concert in Rochester. Really.

The Italian tenor's first trip here on April 1 will be part of a U.S. springtime tour. Home of the Eastman School of Music, the city is a crossroads for classical music but hardly an opera hub.

"Pavarotti goes all over the world, anywhere there's electricity," said Chris Davis, the singer's promoter.

Pavarotti is planning a traditional opera program, with songs from Verdi and Puccini. Tickets for the event will range from $20 to $300.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Mel Gibson, Denzel Washington and Tom Hanks lead the nominees for the People's Choice Awards.

The three actors and their movies, "The Patriot," "Remember the Titans" and "The Green Mile," dominated the motion picture categories.

New TV shows starring Bette Midler and Geena Davis also fared well, as did Kelsey Grammer's venerable "Frasier."

Nominees were announced Thursday. The 27th Annual People's Choice Awards will be presented Jan. 7 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

Nominees and winners are selected by a Gallup Organization poll. The announcement did not specify how many people were polled.

BLUEFIELD, W.Va. — "Gilligan's Island" fans will be able to get rare mementos of the popular 1960s TV sitcom next week.

The items will be up for grabs during a Dec. 9 auction. Bob "Gilligan" Denver will be the host, with proceeds going to the Bluefield Union Mission.

"We wanted to give something back to the community that's been so good to us," said Denver's wife, Dreama.

Among the items being auctioned: original promotional "Gilligan" T-shirts, autographed photos of the cast and denim shorts worn by actress Dawn Wells on the show. Wells, who played Mary Ann, also is donating her "Gilligan's Island" cookbook.

Russell Johnson, who played the Professor, is donating a script.

"It's always fun to see how high the bids will go. It still surprises me," Bob Denver said.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Dec. 2, 2000:

You have a strong sense of direction. You might become quite involved in a commitment. Knowing what you want can make all the difference in the outcome. You sometimes push others away because you are so determined. If you aren't happy with your day-to-day life, change it, rather than taking it out on others. If single, you easily meet people through your commitments and activities. You also might be ready to settle down. If attached, learn to work as a team, despite a difference of opinion. PISCES provides an anchor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Your high energy directs you. You get unanticipated results. Friends surround you, but their behavior could be somewhat quirky. A financial request doesn't need to be taken as a demand. Don't put more energy into a problem than necessary. Confusion surrounds you. Tonight: A quiet night for two.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Take charge at work when another makes an unexpected demand or request. Your endurance and strength sometimes interfere with your real objectives. Be loving when dealing with others. Keep your eye on your long-term results. Make plans to join friends later in the day. Tonight: Have fun, finally!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Once more, unexpected developments toss you back to square one. Your creativity helps you resolve any issue, be it personal or professional. Don't let fatigue stop you from doing what you want. Think twice about a choice or a long-term objective. Tonight: You're a force to behold.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ One-on-one relating takes on a new perspective. You might want to consider a more effective way of clearing out finances with a partner. This person certainly has innovative and dynamic ideas. Seek out a different perspective and ask for feedback. Tonight: Adjust plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others seek you out. You find another's actions strong and direct, but he gets results. Make calls, ask questions and seek results. Others' expectations might be too high. Work through a misunderstanding late in the day. Tonight: Whatever another wants.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Dig in and clear out a project that has been weighing on your heart for way too long. Understand that you will feel re-energized as a result. Zoom in and make what you want happen. Tonight: Easy does it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Deal with a child or loved one directly. It really doesn't work to put this person on hold. Avoidance certainly will not help you here. Listen carefully and get feedback. Plan on making this as easy as possible. Tonight: Put your feet up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Get to the bottom of a problem. Call a spade just that and remain sure of yourself. Listen carefully to another's request. You might need to have a tiff so that you can get to the bottom of a problem. If you eye your objective, everything becomes easy. Tonight: Make nice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Think about your objectives before you go running in. Know when to say "enough." A friend wants to enlist you in a cause. Be sure that you want to do this. Take care of domestic and personal priorities. A partner might be cantankerous. Tonight: Stay close to home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Money matters prevail. You absolutely might not know what you need to do. Someone to whom you give a lot of power takes over. Be sure this is what you want. Confusion surrounds communication. Don't push too hard. Find another way to clear the air. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Listen to your instincts. Reach out for someone at a distance. You get unusual feedback and see situations far differently. Be careful when dealing with security and finances. Not everyone sees eye to eye with you. Pressure builds on the home front. Tonight: Having a good time doesn't have to cost.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★ Assume a low profile, especially if you're not comfortable with someone. Think carefully about priorities that involve a child or loved one. Until you are sure of yourself, the less said, the better. Hold your tongue if you must. Tonight: Do your own thing.

Vehicle plunges over cliff during chase, suspect dies

PLAINVIEW (AP) — A 24-year-old man being pursued by authorities died Friday when his sport utility vehicle plunged over a 150-foot cliff near the West Texas town of Flomot.

Raul Lucio Jr., of Plainview was reportedly driving through lawns about 3:30 a.m. when police spotted him and began their chase. The Plainview Daily Herald reports that police had received information that two pounds of marijuana might be inside Lucio's vehicle.

More than eight patrol cars and three agencies became involved in the chase, which began in Plainview and went on to reach speeds of 105 mph as officers chased the suspect 35 miles east of Plainview.

Officers fell back after the suspect turned toward Flomot because rough roads and mesquite bushes slowed them.

Police reports say Lucio barreled through a field and over three fences into a pasture before driving off the cliff. His vehicle landed nose-first, then rolled over on the driver's side, according to the paper.

Lucio was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police continued searching the vehicle for drugs Friday morning.

Lucio earlier fled police in August, when they arrested him after finding a 2-pound brick of marijuana and a stolen handgun in his garage. He was under indictment for those charges at the time of the latest chase.

Plainview is about midway between Lubbock and Amarillo.

Reopening of tramway delayed

The Franklin Mountains State Park Aerial Tramway was scheduled to reopen this month before construction and renovations forced a delay.

EL PASO (AP) — Texas' only publicly accessible tram, a vantage point for two nations and three states which has been closed for years because of liability concerns, is getting a facelift.

The Franklin Mountains State Park Aerial Tramway was scheduled to reopen this month before construction and renovations forced a delay.

"We're shooting for the spring of next year," Humberto Quinonez, Aerial Tramway manager, told the El Paso Times in Friday's editions. "We didn't foresee a lot of the construction we had to do."

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has been working on the tramway since June 1999. The opening date has been moved back several times, but people involved in the project are patient.

Built in 1955 as a way to transport workers to a broadcast tower atop the mountains, the tram opened to the public in 1960 and became a popular attraction. But rising costs of liability insurance led to its closing in 1987.

When the tramway opens in the spring, visitors will be able to hike on ridge-top trails and spend time on the observation deck.

State Rep. Pat Haggerty, R-El Paso, was one of the chief promoters who worked to get the state to take over the tramway.

"It's been closed for a long time," he said. "They're doing it and they're going to make it safe."

Carolina Ramos, manager of the state parks in the El Paso area, estimated the co of the project to be about $1 million.

According to a TPWD web site, the Franklins are the largest sustained mountain range in Texas, with the summit of North Franklin Peak rising to an elevation of 7192 feet.

The state park is the largest urban park in the nation, covering some 37 square miles within the city limits of El Paso along the Texas-Mexico border.

San Antonio mourners pay final respects to Henry B. Gonzalez

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Many San Antonio residents who credit Henry B. Gonzalez with making their lives better gathered one last time Friday evening to honor the man they called "Henry B."

Mourners filed past a wooden coffin of the longtime U.S. congressman and prayed at the rosary at the San Fernando Cathedral in San Antonio.

Gonzalez, who retired in 1998 after 37 years on Capitol Hill, died Tuesday in a San Antonio hospital at the age of 84.

Three of Gonzalez's children gave eulogies at the service.

"Henry B. Gonzalez was a man of all seasons deeply committed to social justice," his oldest son, Henry B. Gonzalez Jr., said. Pointing to the audience, he said, "Dad loved and respected you. You (are) all a part of his family."

State Rep. Jose Menendez, former City Manager Lou Fox, Gene Rodriguez, George Castorena, Pete Garza and Lorenzo Carrillo were selected out of the crowd and rushed to carry the flag-draped coffin inside.

"Picking people from the crowd is how Henry B. would have wanted it," said Kathleen Doria, special events coordinator for U.S. Rep. Charlie Gonzalez, Henry B. Gonzalez's son.

Two deputies from the Bexar County Sheriff's Department stood guard beside the casket. They later were relieved by a color guard composed of local Army, Marine, Navy and Air Force service members.

Throughout the day, more than 200 people, some who had never met the congressman stopped at the Angelus Funeral Home to pay their last respects.

"I loved the man," Enrique Guerrero told the San Antonio Express-News.

The 84-year old and World War II veteran was accompanied by his wife, Elena. "He was responsible for so many changes in this country," he said.

Guerrero, using a walker, stood at attention before the casket at the funeral home and saluted. He sobbed quietly as he reached out to pat Gonzalez on the arm.

Another public viewing was scheduled to start before a noon funeral Mass on Saturday.

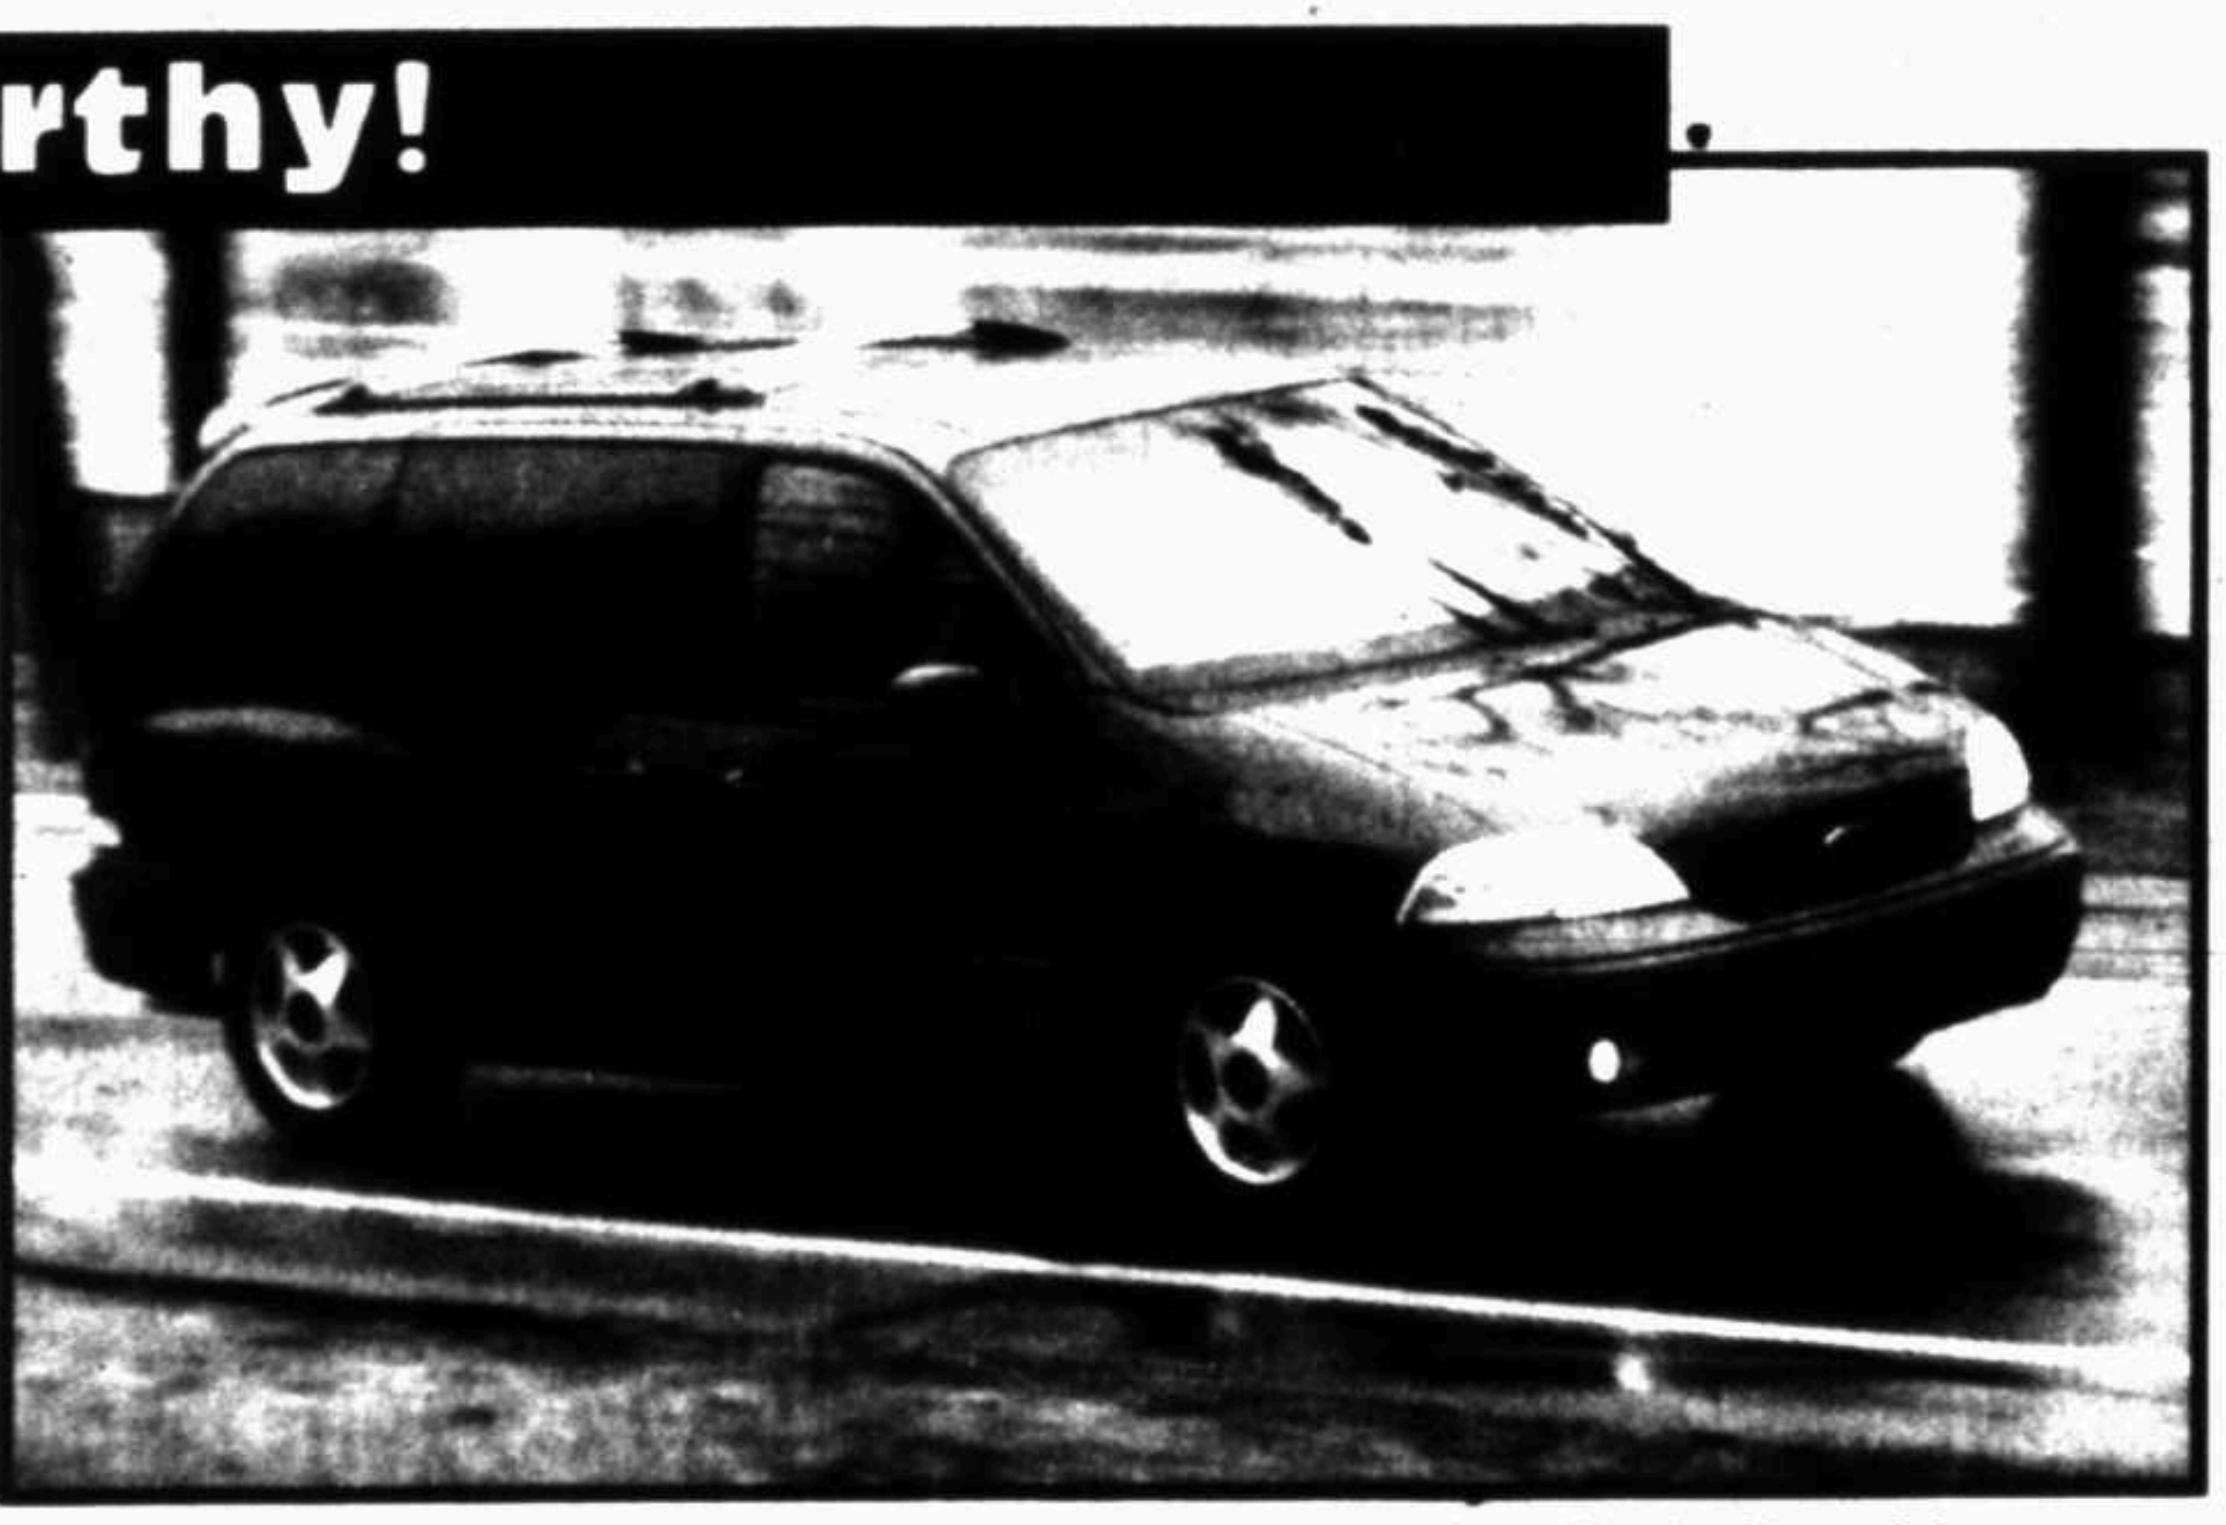
Family friendly transportation: 2001 Ford Windstar

RoadWorthy!



By Ken Chester, Jr.

Safety, comfort and convenience are the watch words for the Ford Windstar. A long list of safety features are combined with many "family friendly" features and options to make this entry in the hotly contested minivan segment an honest contender.

The Ford minivan sports a new look for 2001, with SE and SEL models now featuring a new chrome grill and 16-inch wheels. The 3.8L V-6 motor is standard for all Windstar models. The AX4N four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive lockout, the only gearbox available, is new and has improved shift quality with noise, vibration and harshness (NVH) levels reduced over last's year's model.

Built in Ford's Oakville, Ontario, Canada assembly plant, the Windstar is available in LX, SE Sport, SE, SEL and Limited models. Later this model year, the automaker will offer the AdvanceTrac interactive Vehicle Dynamics System. This interactive yaw control system will improve vehicle stability by sensing when oversteer or understeer in extreme driving situations may send the vehicle out of control.

In 1999 Windstar was the first vehicle in the industry to achieve a quadruple five-star rating in federal government front and side impact crash tests. The front and side rating are based on protection for the drive and front passenger, and side ratings for the second-row passengers. The ratings are based on four-door models with optional side-impact airbags.

On the road, the Windstar is smooth, powerful, quiet and nimble. Handling is predictable and never uncertain. An independent MacPherson strut front suspension, front stabilizer bar, coil springs and gas shock absorbers are combined with a twist beam axle, variable rate coil springs and gas shock absorbers at the rear to isolate the occupants from road imperfections. P215/70R15 (LX), P215/65R16 (SE, SEL) and P225/60R16 (SE Sport, Limited) tires work with the suspension components to deliver an exceptional ride.

Inside the cabin, the engineers lavished plenty of attention. This begins with the sliding doors. While just a manual right hand sliding door is standard for the entry level LX, the SE and SE Sport models feature dual sliding doors as standard. SEL and Limited models feature dual power sliding doors as standard equipment. Power sliders are a $900 option for SE and SE Sport models.

Displays and controls are straight forward, easy to see and operate. SE, SEL and Limited Windstars have power adjustable accelerator and brake pedals ($605 - SE Sport). This allows forward and rear adjustment of the pedals up to three inches from the standard position.

The driver enjoys good outward visibility and both driver and front passenger seats have built-in armrests for added comfort. Wide front doors and a low, flat floor facilitate entry and exit. A small center console between the driver and front passenger contains a cavernous storage bin. The dashboard features two cupholders and a powerpoint with an additional powerpoint convenient to the front passenger.

A very roomy cabin help second and third seat passengers enjoy good leg room, with cupholders built into the seats. The rear door opens wide with the opening flush with the cargo floor. A powerpoint located in the cargo area rounds out the versatility of this minivan.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers for the 3.8L OHV V-6 are 200 hp at 4,900 rpm and 240 lb/ft at 3,600 rpm. EPA fuel economy numbers are 18 city/24 highway using regular unleaded gasoline. Underhood fluids are generally clearly marked and easily accessible.

Properly equipped, the Ford Windstar has a maximum payload capacity of 1,200 pounds and can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 3,500 pounds.

Standard safety/security features include: dual front airbags, four wheel anti-lock brakes, Securilock passive anti-theft system coded ignition key and automatic power door locks. LX four-door adds remote keyless entry. SE Sport adds privacy glass. Limited adds all-speed traction control, perimeter alarm system, dual front side impact airbags, self sealing tires and full size spare tire.

The Limited model also features Ford's exclusive Reverse Sensing System. This system features four ultrasonic sensors in the rear bumper to detect certain obstacles up to six feet away from the rear of the vehicle.

Optional safety equipment includes: front side airbags - $390, Family Security Group 1 (LX 4 dr) - self sealing tires, perimeter anti-theft system and traction control - $455; Family Security Group 2 (SE Sport, SE and SEL) - self sealing tires, perimeter anti-theft system, reverse sensing system and traction control - $600.

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the 2001 Ford Windstar begins at $21,875 for the base LX three-door up to $33,455 for the top-of-the-line Limited. Destination charges add $630. Ford reports ample supplies of the Windstar, so choosing one should not be a problem. The automaker is offering $750 to $1,000 in customer cash that ends January 16, 2001.

SATURN KICKS OFF CUSTOMER COMMUNICATIONS CAMPAIGN; ANNOUNCES NAME FOR ITS ALL-NEW SUV

Troy, Mich. - Saturn is kicking off a multi-tiered communications campaign to tell customers about its all-new SUV, starting with an informative foldout that reveals the name of the SUV via 3-D glasses.

The name - Saturn VUE - floats out of a nature scene when viewed through red and blue lenses like those used for 3-D movies. The foldout will be the first in a series of creative communications that will introduce the Saturn VUE (pronounced "view") to prospective customers.

"We think the all-new Saturn VUE will help customers see sport utility vehicles from a whole new perspective," said Cynthia M. Trudell, Saturn chairman and president. "The Saturn VUE brings a number of customer-oriented features like polymer bodyside panels and a continuously variable transmission to the sport utility market, along with Saturn's industry leading retail experience. We think it will change forever peoples' expectations for sport utility vehicles."

The name announcement for the Saturn VUE kicks off a yearlong campaign using direct mail, the Internet, auto shows and other channels to tell customers about the newest member of the growing Saturn family. Customers who want more information on the Saturn VUE can sign up at Saturn.com, return postcards available at auto shows and Saturn retailers, or call 800-522-5000. Customers will receive a regular series of communications about the Saturn VUE, leading up to its arrival at Saturn retailers in the fall of 2001.

VIEWING THE SUV FROM A NEW PERSPECTIVE

Seeing the world in fresh new ways has been a key to the success of Saturn, a company created to change the way cars were built, sold and serviced. Saturn's all-new sport utility vehicle continues this revolution, bringing Saturn's tradition of product innovation and customer service to the rapidly growing market for compact sport utility vehicles.

The name VUE was selected after extensive research because it had a positive image and did not constrain customers' perceptions of the vehicle. "A name that already had a specific meaning might limit peoples' understanding of just how versatile the Saturn VUE is," said Jill Lajdziak, Saturn vice president, sales, service and marketing. "For example, an 'outdoor' name might shortchange the vehicle's flexible interior, its responsive on-road performance, or its versatility around town.

"With the name VUE, we can continue to use the strengths of the Saturn brand as the foundation and build awareness of the many features of the vehicle through activities like our pre-launch communications," said Lajdziak. "The name VUE also will help emphasize that the vehicle was designed with the customers' point of view first in mind."

A DIFFERENT KIND OF SUV

The Saturn VUE gives customers the benefits of a traditional sport utility vehicle, including space for five plus over 30 cubic feet of cargo space, in a vehicle that is fun to drive and as easy to maneuver as a midsize sedan.

The Saturn VUE includes a number of distinctive Saturn features not offered by competitors. Dent-resistant polymer bodyside panels and car-height bumpers help keep the vehicle looking newer, longer. Saturn's space frame construction incorporates full-length frame rails and a steel safety cage into a single welded structure. The Saturn VUE will also offer Saturn's head curtain air bags, which are designed to help reduce the risk of head and neck injuries in certain side-impact collisions.

The Saturn VUE will offer a choice of a powerful 138-horsepower twin-cam four-cylinder engine or a 181-horsepower dual-overhead camshaft V6. It will be available with either front-wheel drive or all-wheel drive. An advanced continuously-variable transmission (CVT), available with the four-cylinder engine, offers seamless performance with fuel economy comparable to that of a manual transmission.

Like all Saturns, the Saturn VUE will offer customers more than just a great product. It will be sold through a network of 440 dedicated Saturn retailers, who are recognized leaders in satisfaction with customers. Most recently, Saturn ranked as the number one nameplate in the J.D. Power and Associates Sales Satisfaction Study. Saturn has finished first in this study five times out of the last six years.
