TRADES DAY PLANS WILL BE CHANGED

New Set Up To Be Announced In Near Future

Only a fair sized crowd was here Trades Day this week. It seems that the interest in Trades Day has waned. For this reason merchants have decided to recess giving Trades Day tickets for a while.

Therefore, under the old set up, Trades Day will be discontinued for a while. There will be no tickets given away by the merchants, therefore do not call for them. But business men do not mean to discontinue Trades Day and First Mondays. Bargains will be advertised for First Mondays only. Please note Bargains for this day only and be here to take advantage of it. You cannot get them any other day.

Again—there will be lots of trading, swapping, visiting, meeting of friends and a general social good time.

First Mondays will be continued. A dollar saved on Trades Days in Lamesa is a dollar made.

Homer Simpson and Paul Morgan also went along as chauffeurs and chaperones. The main purpose of the meeting was to center the District behind some particular thing or cause as a Centennial project. It was unanimously agreed and a resolution adopted in support that the most practical way in which this territory could spend any funds that might be made available would be in establishing a memorial museum on the campus of Texas Tech. It was also decided that markers, costing from $150 to $250 each, would be asked for the most historic points of interest in the territory. Those having information of historic points of interest in Dawson county are asked to get in touch with Mrs. R. R. Townsend, Chairman of the Historic Committee for this county, or J. D. Truitt Child Drowned In Lake Near Key Sunday

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Key for Ira Taylor Truitt who drowned Sunday afternoon in a lake near his home in the Key community.

I. T. with two companions went in swimming in the lake in the early afternoon and was apparently feeling fine. The boys missing I. T. thought that he had gone to his home and later went there to find him. Searchers going to the pool discovered his body some time later.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. C. Shipley at the Baptist church at Key at 2:30 P. M. Burial was made at the Lamesa cemetery.

I. T. was the 12 year old son of Mr. H. E. Truitt but made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Dyess.

The Courier joins with the family's many friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved ones.

For the consideration of those who grow wheat in the Lamesa country, and wheat growing has proven to be both successful and profitable, the following from the Hereford (Texas) Brand, relative to 1400 acre wheat field of Frank Williams may be interesting and his methods worthy of emulation.

"Williams' wheat is said to be about the best in Deaf Smith county. It is estimated the yield will average around 20 bushels for the entire tract. Most of it will be sold for seed wheat at the farm. Williams figures it will be ready for harvest by July 1.

"Efficient farming methods coupled with fair rains at opportune times are considered responsible for this success on the Williams farm. The land was summer tilled last year and the seed bed prepared by careful workings. The wheat was put in early, being planted in September.

"For the greater part the grain was listed in with a new row crop machine. The part that is drilled in is in wide rows and deep furrows. The lister rows are 28 inches apart and the furrows are ten inches wide. After the wheat came up it was harrowed five times, the harrow being used after the grain was several inches high. In addition the field was listed several times around the edges to prevent its blowing."

Can you conceive what a wonderful thing is the kingdom of dust, and that the air carried away as much soil as the waters do, and that the winds keep up a constant interchange of soil between the different sections of the continent. From the Bureau Farmer we clip the following which is both interesting and instructive, and it will be well if Courier readers keep it for future reference: "Some of the earth in which the Indiana farmer grows his crops originally served the farmers in a distant place—perhaps Texas or Manitoba. This interchange of soils has been more obvious than usual during the recent dust storms, which picked up the soil in the Great Plains and deposited it in a wide path all the way across the continent to the Atlantic. From the dust count made by the Weather Bureau in 1934, Dr. W. J. Humphreys calculated that 5000 tons of Western soil were constantly drifting over Washington, D. C., on the 10th day of May, 1934 when the most spectacular dust storm of that year was on its way to the eastern coast. Another American meteorologist, the late Prof. J. A. Udden of the University of Texas, once estimated that dust storms west of the Mississippi carry, on an average 850,000,000 tons of soil 1440 miles a year. The annual dust transport in that region reaches the stupendous figure of 1,225,000,000,000 (one trillion, two hundred and twenty-five billion) "mile tons". The solid material suspended in the air during these storms ranges from 160 to 126,000 tons per cubic miles of air."

That Americans are an inventive and prosperous people is shown from the fact, according to Henry Ford's Publicity Man, that five-eighths of the wheels that turn on the earth are in the United States. This includes the wheels in clocks, railroad engines, automobiles, factories, farm machinery, and other mechanical devices that are in the heads of political that use wheels.

This does not include the wheels cranks who fain would run the government on new fangled and Euto- pian ideas.

There are two classes of farmers—the home-owning and the proxy farmer classes. The former is interested in his home, and in everything on it, and it is reasonable to expect more of him than of the other class that is not so directly interested in soil preservation, buildings and the general upkeep, as he is in what he can produce in crops. The care of the land and improvements come second to him. That this class—the proxy farmers—should be encouraged and enabled to become homeowners should be the first care of a wisely controlled government.

"Production and consumption are two factors which must be considered in the final analysis of a well balanced trade condition," says an exchange which comes to our table. "If an excess supply, prices fall; if over consumption, prices rise. Man-made laws and regulations can keep these two factors in approximate balance. But weather conditions often upset the calculations of men and then the desired balanced trade conditions are thrown out of balance."

Of those who wore the "Grey" and marched to the tune of the "Bonnie Blue Flag" and fought under the "Stars and Bars of the Southern Confederacy" now but a few remain. Associated Press of the 22nd reports the passing of Leste Jetts, aged 91 years, a member of Hood's famous brigade of invincibles, who fought more battles and won more victories than any other Texas army, responded to the Reville of Death at Laredo, Texas, on Friday evening of last week.

Every reader of the Courier should wire or write Congressman Mahon, and to Senators Sheppard and Connally, to support and use their influence for the measure introduced by Congressman Dies of Texas to deport 6,000,000 aliens who are in the country, as solution in part to the unemployment problem confronting the nation. The adoption of the Dies Measure and the deportation of these aliens, would retire 6,000,000 Americans, would retire the Dole of the relief rolls and give them positions and salaries now given to these aliens.

"Sound Money" advocates demand a return to the Gold Standard. Sane economists with sound sense answer: "How can this be done when there is not enough gold in the entire world to pay even the one-half of the debt of our national government?"

It seems that the world becomes more of a puzzle every day. Nations and individuals quarrel, and even in the animal kingdom quarrels are continually raging. One of these days the quarrel between some of the nations is going to flare up and another war of unequal proportions in the annals of civilization will start.

Some Don'ts For Celebrating July 4th

Austin, July 1.—It would be a glorious Fourth of July if no accidents occurred to mar the joy of celebrating our one hundred and fifty-ninth anniversary of independence declared Dr. John W. Brown, State Health officer. It is most unfortunate that a day of joy and celebration leaves in its wake one of sadness and sorrow in many homes.

It is not alone the wounds received from explosives that increase our death toll. Injuries from automobile accidents, splinters, nails, and other penetrating wounds in which dirt may be carried into the skin, heighten the hazard of tetanus, or lockjaw as the disease is commonly called.

Tetanus is fatal in a large proportion of cases. Fortunately we have tetanus antitoxin as a means of combating the disease. Antitoxin must be administered promptly following the accident. Treatment after the disease develops is rarely successful. Preventive measures include: the avoidance of such wounds and proper medical treatment.

A few don'ts for the 4th of July celebration would not be amiss.

1. Don't be careless in the handling of explosives.

Only flies at the age of 5 days are used to test the kill-power of Sinclair P. D. Insect Spray

Five-day-old flies, carefully reared and properly fed are the toughest of all household insects to kill. None but five-day-old flies raised on the Sinclair Fly Farm in East Chicago are used to test the killing power of Sinclair P. D. insect spray. A carefully measured sample from every batch of Sinclair P. D. manufactured must kill 1,000 flies under conditions more difficult than those in your own home. Unless the insect spray you buy is properly death-tested you can never be sure that you are getting full strength with every can you buy. Be sure to ask for Sinclair P. D., the death-tested insect spray. It's sure death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, bedbugs, roaches, ants—in short, any insect that creeps, crawls or flies. Harmless to humans and animals, non-staining, sweet with the wholesome odor of cedar.

THE MAN FROM YONDER

by HAROLD TITUS

Half a Mile Down the Track the Local Puffed in Toward Him.

edged around the curve at the millpond, out onto the siding and to a full stop.

Ben, dropping down, ran across to the main line and held up his hand. Half a mile down the track the local puffed in toward him. The whistle sent up its cloud of steam at his signal, he heard the engineer shutting off and in minutes the train slid in, brakes grinding.

"That stuff go?" the conductor called, swinging down from the way car.

"That stuff goes!" Ben said almost reverently and turned to face Tim who was filling his pipe with unsteady hands.

It was a moment for the right word, but Tim Jeffers was not a man of words; not of many words.

"Well, you done it," he said simply. "Yeah, With your help."

"Still needin' a camp boss?" "Badly!"

"S'pose I'd do?" "Do! Lord, Tim, if—"

"All right, I'm hired to get out logs again. Guess I'll hit Mr. Buller for a cuppa carfee. I've rode trains now 'nd again, Ben, but of all the rides I've ever took that was what you might call th' dangdest!"

In a Minnesota lumber town a bearded man sat near the stove in a small hotel and heard the story of what was happening in distant Tincup.

"Know him?" another listener asked the narrator.

"Not the kid. I know Brandon, 'nd I know Tim Jeffers. Top loaded for him three winters. If Tim's back there's a hot scrap on and . . . gosh! but I like scraps."

"Mean you're pulling for Tincup?" "I'll say I am!"

The bearded man cleared his throat. "You think, then, that the lad's got a chance of making it against Brandon?" he asked.

"I sure looks as if he had a chance. With old Tincup shanty boys hitting back for their stamping grounds his chances are getting better. Ever been in Tincup, Martin?"

The other closed the blade of his pocket knife and pulled at the lobe of his left ear with his right hand.

"I've heard of the place," he said quietly.

"Better hoist your turkey and come along with me. Likely he could find a place for a good bookkeeper."

Martin smiled oddly but made no other response.

In far flung camps and mill towns the story was being repeated, just such men were leaving jobs and turning their faces toward Tincup, known through the Lake states for the tyranny that Nicholas Brandon had exercised there so many years.

Ben, sitting with his feet on Able's desk in the justice's office, grinned broadly as he told of the latest developments on the job.

"Sixty days been in camp this morning," he said. "Over thirty of 'em new and the best looking bunch of loggers I've seen since I was a kid."

Able glanced at a letter he had been holding.

"And with the Milwaukee people standing ready to finance us it looks as if you might, maybe, perhaps be getting ready to find it all down hill and shady, Ben. I think that interesting this particular bank is the best piece of work you've done yet."

"Nothing, Able. All I had to show was what we were doing. They can't lose with the lumber behind their notes."

"Unless Brandon finds a way. You've got to watch every loophole, Benny. And you've got too much for one man to do."

"Oh, it's not that bad. Things are straightening out. Tim's a wonder; Buller isn't missing a bet. We ought to keep right on stepping."

Ben rose to go and, as he did so, the door opened and Dawn McManus stepped in out of the tightly falling snow.

"Oh!" she cried in surprise. It was the first time she had seen Ben since that morning a month ago when he took the veneer logs on their mad ride to save the Hoot Owl operation from immediate insolvency. "Am I interrupting?"

"Come in, Dawn," said Able, rising. And Elliott said: "If you are, it's nice to be interrupted."

She looked at him and, at first, her eyes held that coolness which was almost hostility but this melted and she smiled.

"You say nice things, Ben Elliott!" "How can anyone help saying nice things to nice people?"

She made a playful mouth at him and Ben, watching her as she advanced to Able's desk, thought again that he never had supposed women grew to such loveliness.

Her errand with the old justice was brief. She and Ben went out together, Dawn on her way home, Ben to finish his errands in town.

At the corner where their ways parted they stopped and Dawn hesitated in what she had been saying. Then, looking into his face, she asked:

"Does Mr. Ben Elliott ever take tea with a young woman? You know, I am beginning to think that I like to talk to you!"

"Then the risk of having it reported that I'm a lounge lizard is as nothing." The house where Dawn lived was the house in which she had been born, a sprawling white frame structure beneath whispering hemlocks. She led Ben into a long, low room, with wide, low windows, where a fire burned on an open hearth.

The fine odor of baking bread permeated the place and as they entered Dawn lifted her voice in a light call:

"Oh-ho, Aunt Em!" Sounds came from the rear; a door opened and closed, and then another door opened which gave into the room where they stood, and an ample woman in a checked apron, her face flushed as by stove heat, entered hastily.

"Yes, dearie— Well!"—stopping in surprise.

"Aunt Em, this is Mr. Elliott."

"How d'y do?" Her voice was full and deep, like a man's. "I've seen you, young man, and if I was a hand to say what most folks say I'd tell you that I feel like we're old friends." She shook hands vigorously. "You're a big young feller, Ben Elliott!"—eyeing him up and down.

Dawn laughed again as she drew off her coat.

"Don't you tell a soul, Aunt Em, but we are going to have tea! If his doorway, "Good-by. I guess I'll have to call you Aunt Em. That's the only name I know you by!"

As Ben passed out beneath the hemlocks and turned into the street, amazed at Brandon's manner, he brushed against a man who, he thought afterwards, must have been standing there. In the twilight he could not be certain but he believed that he had never seen that heavily bearded face before. He looked over his shoulder, later to see the man, who had started on in the opposite direction, return and pass slowly before Dawn McManus' house again.

CHAPTER VIII

Nicholas Brandon was a man of forty-five. He was rich, he was powerful, he had achieved much of what he held to be desirable.

But his experience had been empty of things that most men crave above all else. He had not seen Dawn McManus in three years until she came back to Tincup that November. He had known her always. He had watched her grow from infant to child; from child to a wistful, shy girl, living under the cloud of her father's tragic disappearance; but the transition from girlhood to womanhood had been made during her longest absence from the town that had been her only home. And so when he saw her, after her arrival, instead of the young girl he remembered, toward whom he had always been gentle and kind while he sought to pilfer her heritage, he encountered a lovely, compelling young woman. She charmed him, stirred in his heart long neglected and now twisted and distorted wants which, given liberty in his youth, might have been fine and open and clean. He wanted Dawn McManus as he never had wanted anything before.

Slowly a clear understanding of that desire struggled through to his consciousness. In the beginning it was only an unidentified, disturbing urge but when the realization finally took shape he proceeded deliberately and methodically toward the formulation of a plan, as was his way in attaining any goal.

He saw Dawn frequently, dropping in to visit briefly in passing, taking her in his cutter on a drive to a camp once, casually asking her to do this or that with him. But he could not interest her despite his persistent efforts, and now another element was injected into the situation. When he encountered Ben Elliott that afternoon in friendly conversation with Dawn it required all his resourcefulness to retain a show of self-control. Inwardly he seethed with a hatred which now had the element of jealousy for an embittering alloy. He hated Ben Elliott with all his soul and mingled with his passion for Dawn McManus was a species of hate as well. He hated her for her cleanliness, for her sweetness, for her power to attract young men to her.

A double motive impelled him, therefore, to plot and scheme and strive to possess the Hoot Owl. Without that timber and the tiny fortune it might some day represent Dawn would be

ARMY NEEDS NEW MEN; TO HAVE MANY VACANCIES

The army post at Fort Bliss is expected to secure all its soldiers from the states of Arizona, New Mexico, and West Texas; an area known as the Fort Bliss Recruiting District. In normal times, during recent years about seventy men per month have been required to replace wastage caused by transfer, death, retirement, etc. These men have been secured at recruiting stations scattered throughout the district.

Last Spring Congress authorized an increase in the strength of the Army. Fort Bliss will get about 900 of these new men. After they have been added to the garrison, the monthly demand for recruits to replace wastage is expected to amount to 100. The job now is to get the 900 new men and get them at once.

On July first four large recruiting parties will go out from Fort Bliss to tour areas that are distant from the regular recruiting stations. Each regiment at the post sends out a party; also the armored car troop. They go out to advertise the army and to secure as many recruits as possible. Each party is made up of selected men and commanded by an old experienced sergeant. There will be considerable competition among the regiments to send in the greatest number of good men.

Government reports received here indicate that Texas handled wheat contracts covering 3,674,186 acres which, by October 1, 1934, had brought first rental payments of $3,726,395.44 to producers.

The average local cost of handling the work in Texas was 1.2 cents per bushel. For the United States as a whole the cost was 1.42 cents.

Parker county with a cost of 4.2 cents per bushel, Ellis with 4.3 cents, Fannin with 4.6 cents, and Hockley with 5 cents, are the highest for the State.

Sherman is lowest with .7 cents per bushel. Next are Bell, Briscoe, Knox, Jack, and Ochiltree counties with costs of .8 cents per bushel.

Close to them are Grayson, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts, and Runnels counties with a .9 cents.

Texas has handled AAA programs in which the aggregate payments totaled to about one-seventh of the total for the United States. Texas expenses in connection with this work amounted to only one-thirteenth of the total expense for the United States.

without resources. And a girl without property, he believed, would be easy prey.

But complications rose to stir his ire and chagrin. And so this night—it was very late—he sat in his office, with Lydia on the other side of his flat-topped desk.

Lydia. Just that. She needed no other name for identification in Tincup. The women who, with her, occupied that short and bleak and isolated row of houses across the tracks—Section Thirty-Seven. It was called by the town—needed none but a given name. He had summoned her and she had come according to instructions, furtively and alone, long after the rest of the town slept.

She sat, a bit tight lipped, her button eyes on Brandon's face, and listened to him talk, crisply and incisively. The man finished, calm and assured in his dictatorship, and from his manner he might have been issuing an order to a subordinate which had to do with a commonplace detail of his business affairs. But after he had stopped the woman leaned just a bit further forward.

"It's a rotten deal!" she said in a quick, nervous manner. "Why, she's only a girl, Brandon; and the boy, he's as clean as a hound's tooth. It's rotten!"

Brandon shrugged and looked away. "I don't care to be mixed up in this," she went on. "I don't fancy playing any such game."

Defiance was there, and it struck the man's temper. His dark eyes swung back to focus on her face and about his lips was the beginning of a malicious smile.

"You refuse?" "If I do, what?" He leaned quickly against the desk edge.

"One word to the immigration people and you go back to Canada. Do you think they forget . . . the Canadians?" Lydia blinked rapidly and bit her lips.

"You wouldn't turn me up!" she said sharply.

Brandon leaned back, laughing comfortably. "Wouldn't I though! Wouldn't I? If you refuse . . . Try it, my friend, and then try Canada's memory. You've been safe from their law for three years. In twelve hours I could and would toss you to them and have the satisfaction of a duty done."

For a moment they sat in silence. Then Lydia spoke with a bitter shake of her head.

"I know when I'm licked," she said crisply. "It's rotten; a foul blow—but I'll have to go through with it."

"How Does Chiropractic Apply to the Disease from Which I May Be Suffering?"

Is the question nearly every reader asks. The nerves that radiate from the spinal axis of the backbone, reach every organ of the body. It follows then, that misalignments affecting any of these nerves, when corrected by chiropractic adjustments, will affect favorably any organ of the body reached by these nerves.

Chiropractic releases the power inside. It is simple and easy to understand. It is a FOUNTAIN OF HEALTH toward which the world is turning.

DIRECTORS OF P. C. A. TO MEET IN STAMFORD

Roscoe Holton, director of the Sweetwater Production Credit association at Sweetwater will leave Wednesday for Stamford where he will attend a group meeting for directors of Production Credit Associations to be held there July 10. The directors will meet with the officers and field representatives of the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, the parent organization, which provides the capital and supervises the operations of Production Credit Associations in Texas.

According to Mr. Holton, it is believed desirable to bring boards of directors and secretary-treasurers of Production Credit associations together in groups during the summer in order to make them more familiar with the Farm Credit Administration the operation and capital structure of the Production Credit Corporation and to review the operation of the associations during the first part of 1935.

General discussion of production credit problems, comparison of operating methods and exchange of mutually helpful ideas will be the order of business at the meeting, and plans will be made to take care of the production credit needs for farmers and ranchers during the next producing season.

Associations to be represented at the Stamford meeting will include the following: Sweetwater, Wichita Falls and Stamford. Similar meetings of other groups will be held at Amarillo, San Angelo, San Antonio, and Corpus Christi, during the month of July for the directors in the territory surrounding these key cities, Mr. Holton said.

PAUL WILHELM CONTINUES SCHOOL; MAKES GOOD RECORD

Time and years play a small part in the life of Paul Wilhelm as he determines to continue in school until he has become master of his intentions. He was graduated from high school in Vernon at the age of seventeen.

Later the Wilhelm family, moving to Dawson county, Paul felt that he could not enter college, so he employed his time in a profitable work on the farm, never giving up his plan of entering college. Ten years after he finished high school his college days began.

At college he worked after school hours. His parents, not forgetting their responsibilities, sent him groceries for his use, and encouraged him in his determination to stay in school and to be economical and dependable.

At the close of his first semester at Texas Technological College he was one of twelve students who made a straight A card.

He is majoring in chemistry and continues to make A's though at times taking six subjects. At present he is a student grader in chemistry, being chosen because of his special ability.

He has been elected to membership in the Alpha-Chi Fraternity. The Administration Council chooses this membership from the highest ten per cent of the Junior and Senior classes.

Paul expects to continue to make his way for the ensuing year, when he will be given his degree.

RURAL TEACHERS GET SALARY HIKE BY BOARD

Minimum salaries required for paid teachers in Texas rural public schools was boosted last week, by $5 to $10 monthly, by the board of education.

Basic pay for rural aid schools was set at $80 monthly in the 1935-36 rural aid rules. The maximum would be $95, paid on an eight months basis. Principals' salaries would range from $85 to $100 bracket for one-teacher schools to $120 to $135 for eight teacher units. In partially affiliated schools would range from $85 to $95, payable on a nine-month basis, and superintendents from a bracket of $125 to $135 for seven to eleven teacher schools and $155 to $165 for 20 or more teacher units, on a 12-month basis.

Those from Lamesa attending the curriculum conference for teachers held at Lubbock Friday were Misses Pauline Bulsterbaum, Gertrude Jones and Opal McKay and Eunice McReynolds.

Texas Schools Given Additional Funds

The State Board of Education announced Monday that it had definitely set a per capita apportionment of $17.50, the statutory maximum, of state school aid for approximately 1,600,000 scholastics during 1935-36.

Augmented by income from special levies, the school fund overcame the usual four to eight months deficit the board said, predicting a cash balance of $2,500,000 on August 31, the fiscal year end.

Only once before in 1929, was the apportionment $17.50. It was $16.50 for the current school year and $16 for the year prior. Except for the statutory limit, the board said the apportionment could have been $19 or $20.

Prospects that the apportionment would not consume all of available school funds heightened likelihood of a reduction of the present 35 cents per $100 ad valorem levy for school support. It was estimated a rate of 32 cents could be set by the automatic tax board in July that would yield a balance in 1936-37.

It was calculated the $17.50 apportionment would grant $28,000,000 state funds to school. In addition, the state provided $5,000,000 for rural aid and school benefit equalization, the largest in its history.

Bankhead Bill Passes Senate

The latest plan for the benefit of tenant farmers and share crop farmers, the Bankhead bill which has as its purpose the proposal to use government money for financing tenant farmers and share croppers in the purchase of land and homes, was passed today by the Senate and sent to uncertain future in the house.

The bill would set up a corporation with an initial capitalization of $50,000,000 out of work relief funds, and an eventual borrowing power of $1,000,000,000 to make loans to farmers, farm tenants, share croppers of farm laborers to purchase small farms. They would have up to 60 years to repay the loans at low interest rates.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) who introduced the bill, said it had the administration support. Although no official word has come from the White House in regard to it, the administration leaders in the senate supported it.

CHEVROLET SETS SALES RECORD FOR ACCESSORIES

The Chevrolet Motor Company set a new all time record during May for total volume of parts and accessories sales. The previous record dated back to the boom year of 1929, when August sales reached a peak that stood as a record for nearly six years.

Announcement of the new record was made at White Sulphur Springs by M. D. Douglas, manager of the Chevrolet Parts and Accessories division, before a gathering of the leading field men of the division, guests of the company during a three days' stay awarded them in recognition of their success in rolling up regional and zone records contributing to the high May total.

According to Mr. Douglas, the May peak of sales can be attributed largely to a general resumption of touring for pleasure, a natural sequence to the increase in spending in the country.

"The curve of new car sales shows heavy gains over last year," he declared, "and new cars themselves create a demand for accessories—everything from insect screens to radios. However, our May record was far above what could be attributed to the sale of accessories for new cars, and it can be definitely concluded that much of the buying was for old cars."

"That means that motorists are taking to the road in larger numbers than during the recent touring seasons, and are equipping their cars with accessories that will contribute to their convenience, comfort and safety. They are making their old cars look new with seat covers, modernizing them with radios, equipping them with spot lights, visors, dual windshield wipers, and other articles that add to the convenience and pleasure of both the driver and the passengers."

MISS INEZ PAULK BECOMES BRIDE OF BERNARD DEAN

Miss Inez Paulk of this city and Mr. L. Bernard Dean of Lubbock were married Sunday morning at 7:30 at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Paulk.

The improvised altar was a mass of greenery and white tulle flanked by great baskets of pink and red roses and tall candelabra.

Miss Jaunita Paulk, sister of the bride, accompanied Mrs. Carl Roun tree as she sang the pre-nuptial solo, "Oh Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." She then softly played Lohengrins wedding march for the bridal party. Little Patsy Jo Rountree, in a dainty pink costume entered first to light the candles. She was then followed by Rev. E. B. Bowen, pastor of the First Methodist church, who read the sacred ring ceremony. The bride and groom entered together. She wore a white crepe wedding gown made on princess lines with a slight train and carried a brides bouquet of Maiden Hair fern and pink rosebuds.

After the ceremony the bride sliced the three tiered wedding cake which was served with coffee to the wedding guests. The table was spread with a lace cloth, centered with the cake. Pink candles in crystal holders burned at either end.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean left immediately after for a trip to points of interest in New Mexico. Mrs. Dean traveled in a suit of print crepe with white accessories.

Mr. Dean is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dean of Lubbock. He graduated from Texas Tech with the class of 1932 and since that time has been in the employ of the Texas Highway Department. It was during the time he was stationed in Lamesa through 1934 that he met the girl who became his bride. During that time he also endeared himself to those with whom he came in contact, proving his sterling character.

Mrs. Dean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Paulk, of time residents of Lamesa. She has been reared here, graduated from the Lamesa High School, and is loved by all those who know her. She is endowed with beauty, grace, and the personality that will insure a happy home.
