Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

The Salvation Army is back with the community chest, to the satisfaction and benefit of all.

Right here Talker would like to pay whatever tribute he can to a group of unnamed men whose efforts to bring the Salvation Army and the community chest board together after a breach had been made were finally rewarded with success. At the time this group began its efforts there seemed only the faintest hope that the two organizations could be brought into agreement. Yet with that hope this group of men set about to do what they could. It was only on the eve of the opening of the community chest campaign that they could announce an understanding and agreement under which the Salvation Army remained in the chest and did not undertake a separate campaign for funds.

It is not always that differences between individuals, and between organizations and associations can be composed. Yet sometimes they can and Talker has seen this happen in a number of instances where disinterested persons with unselfish purpose came forward in a sincere effort to iron out differences. More differences could be ironed out than we think if there are mediators willing to make the personal sacrifices involved in bringing men together. Does not the Holy Writ tell us: "Blessed are the peacemakers?"

This is Wichita Falls day at the Wichita county fair at Iowa Park. A Wichita Falls parade is to be given in Iowa Park this evening. This parade and the program that will follow it will be the culmination of Wichita Falls day rather than the whole of it. The whole day is Wichita Falls day from early morning until the lights are turned out at night. Drive up any time during the day and see the exhibits and meet old friends.

Talker isn't going to wait until there is a new fatality at one of the highway-railway crossings to urge consideration of elimination of the grade crossings on the highways in Wichita county. If funds can be found for the work, now would be a good time to start it, when it can be done economically and when so many laborers need employment. About as large a percentage of the money expended would go for labor right here in Wichita county in an underpass or an overpass as in any other improvement that could be made.

On the following day her charred body was found in the furnace of the building.

Assailant Leaves Wichita Woman Unconscious After Attack Near Home

Man Flees as Victim, Struck Down With Heavy Weapon, Screams; Robbery Suspected as Motive for Attempt on Life

Within a few doors of her home, Miss Olive Olson, 1418 Twelfth street, was knocked in the head and left in a semi-conscious state by an unknown assailant who attacked her across the street from the Reagan junior high school shortly before 9 o'clock Thursday night.

Miss Olson told police who investigated the affair that before becoming unconscious she was able to scream, causing the man to run. She was within a few doors of her home, she said, when she noticed a man half a block behind her who seemed to be following. She quickened her pace, but the man, catching up, struck the woman from behind with a heavy blunt instrument. Officers said that the blow was on the lower part of the head, cutting a gash on her neck.

Neighbors who called police said that they had talked to two boys who stated that they had seen the man running across the Reagan school yard. When officers arrived, the boys could not be located. The man was described as of small build, wearing overalls.

Police were told by Miss Olson that she thought the motive of the attack was robbery.

FIRST TEST OF OIL PRORATION RULE IN COURT

Danciger Company Wins Temporary Restraining Injunction

VALIDITY QUESTIONED

Outcome of Litigation To Decide Statewide Measure

AUSTIN, Sept. 25. (AP)—The first test of the validity of the state railroad commission's order for statewide curtailment of oil production was instituted in district court here today, with issuance of a temporary injunction restraining enforcement of the order against the Danciger Oil company.

This company, operating in Carson, Gray and Hutchinson counties, owns and operates a refinery near Pampa. It alleged the curtailment program had made it impossible to supply the demands of this refinery and consequently caused it to lose money.

Panhandle Question

While declaring the proration order unconstitutional as applied to all the state, the company particularly attacked its validity as applicable to the Texas Panhandle.

No date was set for hearing on the injunction. While only the Danciger company would be affected, the ultimate outcome of the litigation will decide validity of proration over all the state.

The company set out that the railroad commission in its order found the market outlet for Texas oil was 750,000 barrels daily. This was erroneous, it was declared, since "the world is the market," and the figure was arrived at by computing only the pipe line nominations, without regard to other outlets producers might find for their crude.

"Economic Measure"

It was claimed that while the commission entered the order as a conservation measure it was in fact an economic measure, on the theory that the proration scheme simply contemplates "parition" of oil within a pool among operators in that pool. This scheme, the brief said, was based on the presumption that a pool is the common property of all operators.

The company also questioned the authority of the commission to enter the proration order, and declared that if the legislature had exceeded its power to delegate. It was stated there was no waste by the company in its production of oil, and that the only waste was an economic waste, world wide in scope.

Danciger Oil company representatives were protestants at the proration hearing, their protests being based chiefly on the need of supplying their refinery with crude.

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 25.—Ira Lefever, 50, died at 3:15 Thursday afternoon at Eldorado as the result of a wound from an automatic pistol through his forehead.

Lefever, at his home in Eldorado in the afternoon with a daughter, Jessie, 18, is said to have handed her several notes and walked from his house to the garage. Neighbors found Lefever in his garage unconscious with a bullet wound in his head, and consciousness never returned before his death.

He was an engineer for the plant of the U. S. Gypsum company of Chicago in Eldorado and had resided here about 11 years. He came to Eldorado from Ideal, Okla., shortly after the death of his wife there. Friends stated that Lefever had been despondent over financial affairs for some time.

(AP)—An enormous oil well at the edge of the Oklahoma City limits and only a mile from the business district was brought under complete control late today after cutting connections had threatened to let it blow wild. The well had sprayed oil over a wide area and fire precautions had been taken.

The well, which was completed late today with an initial flow at the rate of 82,000 barrels a day, greater than any well previously completed in the field, was equipped with a control head with double flow lines. The shut-in was effected by shifting pressure from the one flow line on which the master gates were being damaged by cutting, to the other.

The well is the No. 1 John Hurt, owned by the Skelly Oil company. W. G. Skelly of Tulsa, president of the company and Republican national committeeman, witnessed the closing-in operations.

Before the well was closed in, city firemen were dispatched to the nearby city dump, where refuse smoulders continually to extinguish the fires. Oil field fire fighting equipment was concentrated at the well, fires of nearby drilling wells were shut down and roads blocked for a half mile in all directions.

Farm Specimens Good

Both irrigated and dry land farm exhibits are attracting attention, and receiving favorable comment. Dry land cotton is called extra good; there are also nice stalks from the irrigated district. The heavy quantity of bolls and sturdiness of stalk are noticeable. Stock and sugar beets make a good showing. Heavy clusters of pecans added interest to the fruit section. There were good peaches and pears.

Entries in the poultry department represented many different breeds. Ira D. Brown, director of this department, said judging will start at 9 a. m. Friday. C. P. Van Winkle of Dallas, an A. P. A. judge, and publisher of the Poultry News, will make the awards. Mr. Van-Winkle will explain to all interested his reasons for his selection and it is expected that many breeders will take advantage of this information.

Poultry exhibits include numerous breeds along which are silver spangled hamburgs, single comb black minorcas, s. c. Rhode Island reds, buff orpington, dark cornish, and a bantam collection of golden seabright, rose comb, black bantams, dark cornish, and black cochin bantams. Augus' Lohoefner of Burkburnett, president of the Burkburnett Poultry association, and breeder of s. c. Rhode Island reds, has many entries.

Dairy Judging Today

Judging in the dairy department will start Friday morning at 9 o'clock. J. W. Ridgeway of Fort Worth, a former judge at the national dairy show at St. Louis, and head of the dairy department of the A. & M. college, College Station, will explain his reasons for making awards. He will point out the weak as well as the good points, and will suggest points in breeding that will strengthen a herd.

Swine exhibits, under the supervision of W. L. Hodges, are making a creditable showing, with Hampshires in lead, closely followed by Durocs. One group that attracted particular attention was a Duroc mother sow, with six 2-months-old pigs. Mr. Hodges, who has been watching the exhibits for the past two years, said more and better hogs are on exhibit than in either previous fair. He attributes this progress to increased pride of hog owners and careful breeding. Judging of hogs will start Friday morning. P. C. Colgin of Seymour, county agent of Baylor county, will judge swine. Sheep will also be judged Friday morning. Guy Powell of Decatur county, agent of Wise county, will judge the sheep.

A sweeping sand storm Thursday evening caused the old fiddlers' and harmonica players' contests to be postponed. The rodeo was also halted by the wind and sand just as the performance was ready to begin.

Junior C.-C. Crowds Many Events Into Program for County Fair

Plans for making Friday, Wichita Falls day, the biggest of the Wichita county fair have been completed, according to Milburn Nutt, chairman of the Junior chamber of commerce fair committee.

At 7:45 o'clock in the evening a program, consisting of popular Wichita Falls talent and a well known vaudeville star, will be presented on the bandstand. Plenty of seats for every one has been provided and the program is free, Mr. Nutt said.

The program will be opened by an address by Walter Nelson Jr., mayor of Wichita Falls, bringing greetings of the city to all visitors of the fair. Following, George H. Hodgins, master of ceremonies, will present the program proper, which will include several numbers by the Paul Seeds band, a dance by little Miss Phyllis Seeds, songs by R. E. Shepherd, an original tap dance routine by Charles Doran, Martha Withers in "Aunt Dinah From Carolina," the Pitts Fiddle band, a comedy monologue by the famous Billy Van, veteran trouper formerly with the Al G. Fields minstrels and the Jim Corbett vaudeville combination, Miss Marian Mendenhall in a comic tap dance, comic readings by Mrs. J. S. Pitman, piano selections by J. S. Pitman, L. R. Thurman, popular local ballad singer, George Tayor and guitar in old cowboy songs and Riggs Marshall, tenor, in songs. The program will close with an ensemble by the band.

Entertainment for the afternoon has also been provided, consisting of a band concert by the Paul Seeds band from 3 until 5 o'clock.

An airplane of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company will be on the field and will take up passengers, it was announced.

The Junior chamber of commerce county fair committee will be on hand all day Friday to welcome visitors. The committee is composed of Milburn Nutt, Don Haynes, D. A. Kahn, J. Paul Montgomery, Dick Carpenter, Virgil Childress, Harry Duren, Ernest Robertson, Frank Wolf, J. H. Sommerville, J. W. McVay, Russell Kolp, C. A. Spragins, Jerry Stewart, Otho Evans, Bill Swint, Temple Shell and W. A. Teinert.

DANCE GRIND TAKES TOLL

Lakeside Contestants Show Signs of Strain

With the dance marathon at Lake Wichita park passing the 180th hour at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, many of the dancers had begun to resort to cold towels and smelling salts in order to bolster up failing strength and to hold off the urgent call of Morpheus, according to H. F. Sullard, director of the contest.

Eight couples now remain in the dance, Sullard said, with a keen rivalry blossoming between couples from Iowa Park and Wichita Falls.

With the contest now more than a week in progress, crowds are increasing daily to watch the dance and cheer their favorites, expecting at any hour to see the tired dancers give up and leave the floor to an equally fatigued winning couple.

Contestants visibly respond to the cheers of the crowd, Sullard said, stating that the interest shown by the onlookers was a great factor in keeping many of the couples still going.

A rare bit of sportsmanship was shown Wednesday, it was announced, when one girl massaged her opponent and "arch enemy" in order that the latter might remain in the contest.

Credit Grantors Hold Meeting at Hotel

The Wichita Falls Credit Grantors association held its weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel Thursday night. A large attendance was recorded. Several bad checks and accounts falling under the head of "C" were discussed. It was decided to take up accounts of "J and K" at the next meeting.

reserved even to bashfulness, but when a question of right was raised, he stood four-square."

"He has inspired men with whom he came in contact with a better faith in God; he is a full expression of the ideals ministers preach; his life was an eloquent sermon and true testimony for the things that Christ stood for," was the Rev. John Daniel Barron's tribute.

Dr. Claude M. Simpson led the opening prayer, while Dr. S. S. McKenney opened the services with the reading of the 23rd Psalm.

Burial was in Riverside cemetery, under the direction of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Negress Jailed After Attempt To Shoot Hubby

Following an attempt to shoot her estranged husband, a young negro woman was arrested Thursday afternoon on a charge of aggravated assault and carrying concealed weapons.

The negress shortly before noon Thursday appeared at a hospital where the husband was employed and drawing a .32 caliber revolver attempted to shoot the man, according to a report given police. The husband and a white man struggled with the negress and succeeded in taking the gun away from her.

From a description of the woman, A. L. Stubblefield, city detective, found her after a search at Eleventh and Baylor streets. She was turned over to county authorities and charges filed.

STOMACH TROUBLES MADE HER PHYSICAL WRECK IN 1923

Tanlac Made Her Well Then and Has Kept Her Well Ever Since

What she said in 1923

Miss Mildred Rachac, telephone supervisor of 809 Enid St., Houston, Texas, wrote:

I suffered so with gas on the stomach I would almost scream out in the night. I was on a diet but the little I did eat made me suffer terribly. On top of that I was so nervous I was on the verge of a breakdown. The first bottle of Tanlac gave me a fine appetite and made my nervousness disappear and after a few more bottles I feel so well and could eat so well I forgot I ever had stomach troubles.

What she said in 1930

On August 29, 1930, this same woman wrote us:

I feel as though I owe my fine health this last six years to Tanlac where I used to be so restless and nervous I couldn't sleep. I rest fine all night now and my stomach never gives me any trouble. I always use two or three bottles of Tanlac every spring as a tonic for its the best medicine I know of to make you feel good.

If you suffer from gas and stomach troubles, why don't you try Tanlac? Tanlac has a wonderful record of success in cases of stomach disorders even those of years' standing. It must help you or money back.

First Baptist Sodalitan Class Elects Officers

Mrs. Wyett Parrish was hostess at her home on Alma street Thursday afternoon to members of the Sodalitan class of the First Baptist Sunday school in the first meeting since June. Mesdames Bert King, J. H. Stanfill and H. E. Bradley were associate hostesses. Mrs. Parrish's attractive home was prettily decorated with garden flowers.

With Mrs. J. M. Baber, the retiring president, in charge, the meeting opened with the class song. Inspiring reports were made by the group captains and Mrs. H. E. Bradley gave a review of the splendid charitable work done by the class in the past year. The president made a gracious talk of appreciation of the work done by the vice presidents and the group captains.

Mrs. A. F. Kimmell, chairman of the nominating committee made a report and the following officers were selected for the coming season: president, Mrs. M. Mitcham; first vice president, Mrs. Bert King; second vice president, Mrs. David Erickson; third vice president, Mrs. Ed Maag.

A most interesting program was given following the business meeting. A lovely vocal number was sung by Mrs. Solon Featherston with Mrs. Baber at the piano and Mrs. Baber accompanied when Arthur Davis played two pretty violin numbers. A group of readings by Billy Ralph Hyer closed the program.

Mesdames King, Stanfill and Bradley served a lovely salad plate to Mesdames Fred Morris, C. H. Foley, W. E. Beck, T. A. Garnet, J. L. Fooshee, J. M. Baber, Fred C. Barron, Solon Featherston, Ed Maag, O. L. McCormick, Dave Shepherd, May Berry, Bert King, Ray Black, M. B. Johnson, W. L. Ponder, J. H. Stanfill and H. E. Bradley; Billy Ralph Hyer, Arthur Davis and the hostess, Mrs. Wyett Parrish.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We have struck for good on noodles in any cafe or cafeteria or public eating place. Long ago we wrote of having asked for chicken and noodles and receiving noodles and . . . chicken.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then, with ever reviving faith in mankind, we looked with approbation on "giblets in casserole with noodles," and inquired of the waitress if the giblets were really gizzards and livers and she told us they were. We ordered the dish and everything concealed beneath the neat little pile of noodles in our neat little casserole, was nicely chopped up chicken neck.

◇ ◇ ◇

At this point, an irreverent young man remarked "Well, all the jellies want is neck," and we had to announce with dignity that we were far beyond the age of "jellies."

◇ ◇ ◇

Now according to the dictionary, giblets are livers, gizzards and hearts. If they came canned, they would have to come as those organs of a fowl or an explanation be printed on the label. Uncle Sam took that much care of us in the pure food laws.

◇ ◇ ◇

But we are at the mercy of a bill of fare. We have decided it is best never to order a mixture. We know at least what ham and eggs and bacon and steak must be—though at some places one is never sure of their quality.

◇ ◇ ◇

Eating is much easier for one who is not a cook. There's almost as much pleasure in the preparation of a delectable dish as in any artist's feat.

◇ ◇ ◇

Like William Allen White however, we strike at one thing and that is the squirting of mashed potatoes around a ready to serve plate.

◇ ◇ ◇

Wichita Falls, however, is fortunate in her cafes and cafeterias. There are few places of the same size that have restaurants equal to her's and with prices as just. So that's that.

◇ ◇ ◇

We had a letter from Clarksdale, Miss., Wednesday that told of a strange happening. Hundreds of people are coming from far and near to see a face of Christ that has miraculously, it seems, appeared in the plaster in the Christian church.

◇ ◇ ◇

Negroes in the locality, we understand, are leading better lives.

◇ ◇ ◇

What a pity we haven't more plastered edifices in this country!

◇ ◇ ◇

Luncheon was served after the game in one of the private dining rooms where the pink roses in the center of the table with the clear white crystal made a springlike setting.

Responsibility For Happy Home Rests On Man, Says Dix

How women got a monopoly of the job of keeping the home fires burning wished off on them, nobody knows. Perhaps it is the result of men's superior intelligence and foxiness. Perhaps it just happened that way. Anyhow, that's how it is. The sole responsibility for making a happy home and keeping its temperature at pleasant summer warmth and the sun always shining is laid upon the wife, and when anything goes wrong and the domestic machinery slips a cog and ceases to function without a hitch, she is the one who is blamed for it.

Reams of advice are given to women on the subject. In season and out of season they are urged to be diligent in making their families comfortable; to keep themselves looking pretty and vampy; to be tactful in dealing with their husbands; to be gay and bright and chatty and entertaining, and generally to diffuse an atmosphere of sweetness and light in order to make their homes attractive to their husbands and children.

So sold is the entire feminine sex on the proposition that the welfare of the family is in the wife's and mother's hands that millions of women work themselves to skin and bones trying to put into practice all the provisions of the schedule for making a happy home. Millions of women literally make burnt offerings of themselves on the kitchen stove cooking the special dishes their husbands and children like and millions of women get facial paralysis wearing the smile that won't come off, trying to be human rays of sunshine in their homes.

Yet, cynically enough, in spite of all of the strenuous efforts that women put forth to make happy homes and in spite of all of the crushing responsibility that they feel in the matter, the supreme homemakers, like the supreme dressmakers and milliners, are men. This may seem a bold statement and one that hurts the vanity of women. But for its confirmation, look about among your acquaintances and you will find that every unusually successful home has at the head of it a domestically minded man.

All of us know a few homes that are a little bit of heaven on earth. Homes in which there is never any wrangling nor quarreling, but peace and good will. Homes in which there is love and companionship between the husband and wife and comradeship and sympathy between the parents and children. Homes in which there is always laughter and good cheer.

Sometimes these homes are lordly mansions. Just as often they are humble cottages. Sometimes the man at the head of the house is waited on by a retinue of servants. Just as often he cuts his own grass and waters his own lawn. It doesn't matter, for money doesn't buy happiness, and it isn't what a man brings home with him that makes its happiness. It is what he puts into his home.

And these happy homes invariably have a husband and father in them who is affectionate and genial and kindly and understanding and who feels that it is just as much up to him to help make his wife and children happy as it to feed them.

He is not one of those men who consider that their whole responsibility toward their homes consists in paying the bills. He knows that no woman, even though she were a whole League of Nations rolled into one, could keep the peace in a family in which the husband snapped and snarled like a surly dog and was so ill-tempered that no one dared even speak to him.

He knows that no woman, no matter if she could pull off as many stunts as a vaudeville team, can make a house pleasant and cheerful if there is a grouch sitting around with his thumbs turned down who never does anything but knock her performance.

He knows that if a man wants his wife to keep on her tiptoes and to think it worth while to work and worry making him a comfortable home and saving his money, he has got to do something to make her glad she married him and that if he wants to keep the children at home and off the streets, he has got to offer some counter attraction to the night club and the roadhouse.

Therefore, he pals up with his wife and children. He enters into their hopes and plans. He talks things over with them and makes as much effort to entertain and amuse them as he would strangers whom he wished to please.

Whenever you find a woman who doesn't have to think twice before she tells her husband anything for fear of starting something; whenever you find children who think dad is the supreme authority on every topic in the universe, and who consider it a treat to go out with him anywhere, there you will find a happy home.

And only there will you find a happy home, for no woman is miracle-worker enough to make one when she has to work against the adverse influence of a man who considers that his home is a place where he can exercise all the little tyrannies and vent all the temper and irritability that he has to suppress in the outside world.

So it is well for men to realize that if they want happy homes they must quit passing the buck to their wives and lend a hand themselves. It is a job that no woman can pull off alone and unaided.

LADY SEEMED TO HURT ALL OVER

Had Constant Headaches, Pains in Back and Side, Restless, Couldn't Sleep

Jacksonville, Fla.—In telling recently how she was benefited by taking Cardui, Mrs. W. M. Jackson, of 2245 Main street, this city, wrote:

"Six years ago, my health was not a bit good. I had constant headaches, pains in my back and side. I was restless and could not sleep at night.

"At times, I suffered from weakness. It seemed like my body hurt all over.

"My mother had used Cardui and thought it would be good for me to take. She had taken it and it had helped her, so she told me to get a bottle and start taking it.

"I found Cardui a great help. I improved so much after I began taking it. I took five bottles. I soon got all right, and I didn't have any more aches or pains.

"I gladly recommend Cardui to women who are run-down and weak, for it is a very good medicine. I found myself in much better health after I had taken it."

Charles Stedman Buried in Carolina

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 25. (UP)—The reuniting of a once divided nation was symbolized today as the body of Maj. Charles Stedman, 89, last Confederate veteran in congress was borne to its resting place.

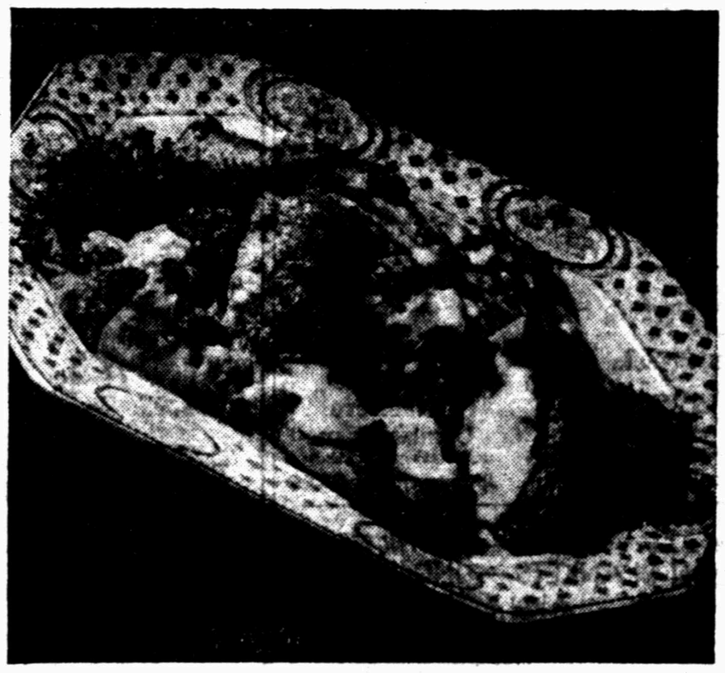

The caisson which carried the body of the venerable legislator to the grave was provided by the 16th field artillery, a regiment against which Major Stedman, as a member of the Fayetteville independent light infantry, fought in the battle of Bethel, one of the first engagements of the civil war.

At the grave a salute of three volleys was fired and taps sounded by the bugler of Major Stedman's old regiment.

LAX-ANA DOUBLE STRENGTH

"Buddy—that chicken don't need no fancy name!"

In its new air-tight can—as fresh and sweet as the day it was made!
A product of the Southwest—made right here.

A FEW weeks ago, when I was sizzling in Texas, I shot up to a roof-garden restaurant swept by a heavenly breeze.

I was so happy until I found that the menu was peppered with mysterious French names. My, it was like finding an old friend when I finally read—"Southern fried chicken"!

As I overheard someone nearby say, "that chicken don't need no fancy name." Every mouthful was juicy, tender goodness sealed in a sweet, golden brown crust.

When I visited the kitchen, the chef turned out to be a Frenchman. "This chicken," he explained, "must be cooked beautifully in Crees-co. When brown, I add milk and put on the lid and simmer very slowly. Even if the chicken is somewhat aged, then it will taste young!"

Have you ever tasted Crisco? Then you know that it tastes as sweet as new-churned, unsalted butter. And you know how fluffy and creamy it is from the top to the bottom of the can—never any yellowish color nor tallowy layers such as I've found in pail-fats. No rancid odors, either—Crisco stays fluffy and fresh, when the mercury is near the top of the thermometer!

Like the chef, I know that you can't be sure of good results unless you use good tasting ingredients. That's why, though I like to save my pennies, I'm always willing to pay Crisco's price for Crisco's finest quality. So do use Crisco if you want to know Southern chicken at its best. No heavy smoke if you fry with Crisco. No waste either! Strain Crisco through cheesecloth and use it again and again. For Crisco doesn't absorb odors or tastes. It keeps its fresh, sweet flavor!

SMOTHERED CHICKEN

1 roasting chicken, flour, salt and pepper, 3 tablespoons Crisco, ½ pint (or more) milk

Clean and cut chicken at joints as for frying. Dredge in salt, pepper and flour. Melt Crisco in heavy frying pan and when hot, add chicken. Cook slowly, browning on both sides until crust is formed. Add more Crisco, if necessary from time to time. Pour excess Crisco back into can through cheesecloth. Then pour sufficient milk over chicken to cover it. Cover with lid and cook slowly over fire until tender or place skillet in moderate oven (350° F.) and cook until done. You may have to add milk, or water, during this time. Serve chicken in this gravy.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL — Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Company.

MANY STORIED SCHOOLS SEEN

Skyscrapers of Future To House Students

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. (US)—Skyscraper schools, with large elevators to carry the students from class to class, and all appointments of modern office buildings, are predicted for the near future by Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

As a step in this direction, Paul Gerhardt, architect for the board of education, is working with other architects on details of a city ordinance aimed at modification of the city's building code. Present regulations are too binding as far as the construction of school buildings are concerned, it has been pointed out. Modification of the laws will place the building of many storied school buildings within the reach of the board of education's building funds.

Other large cities have long ago constructed their buildings with many stories, to take advantage of the high cost of land in certain sections, Mr. Bogan said today. Pittsburgh and New York are pioneers in construction of school skyscrapers.

The city municipal college, which has long been planned by Mr. Bogan to augment the higher learning offered in the school system at Crane Junior college, will probably be the first of the Chicago buildings to reach more than four stories in the air.

Roof tops of the high school buildings may be adapted for use as playgrounds and recreation spaces under the plan. Valuable property in congested districts may be made to supply greater educational facilities than with the present buildings.

BEAUTY PARLOR PLOT HALTED

Gangsters Force Solons With Bomb Threat

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. (UP)—A plot to extort thousands of dollars from Illinois beauty parlor owners was believed frustrated today by assistant state's attorneys, who are leading Judge John P. McGoorty's drive against racketeers.

The attorneys, Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury, declared that the arrest of four men and a confession by one of them formed the most important step ever taken in Chicago to break up gangs of hoodlums who have reaped enormous profits by use of violence to gain control of labor, business and professional organizations.

The plan was, prosecutors said, to force, by threats of bombings, all of Chicago's 3,000 beauty parlor owners to join the organization. Six thousand others in the state were to be "enrolled" later. Each owner was to be assessed $10 as an initiation fee and pay $2 a month thereafter. If they didn't pay, their shops were bombed. Six such bombings have occurred within the last 10 days.

Miniature Radio Sets Threaten To Usurp Proportions of Baby Golf

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A nation which got a large share of its summer's golf on courses no bigger than a city lot apparently is to adapt the same idea to radio.

That, at least, is the reaction of the casual observer viewing the receivers on display at the seventh annual radio world's fair at Madison Square garden. There is every indication the miniature trend has taken a real hold on the radio industry.

17 Inches High

Some of the small sets are a counterpart of their bigger brothers, the elaborate consoles—but requires less floor space. Others look somewhat like mantel clocks, with a cabinet averaging around 17 inches high that houses both receiving apparatus and the reproducing speaker.

While the entire show is not devoted to these small receivers, enough of them are present to indicate what may be the future trend.

In general, receiving equipment shows the engineer's effort toward improvement. There were better automatic tuning devices, speakers, and amplifiers, new-fangled cabinet designs, and many other advancements.

Battery for Year

One of the improvements was a battery, designed for the new low current radio tubes, giving a year's service with average use.

Television, while not having as prominent a place this year as last, made up one display. It comprised various types of receivers, including kits and completely assembled outfits for both sound and picture.

Radio was not alone, for mingling among the exhibits were ice boxes, vacuum cleaners and other electrical appliances.

There also was a booth where short wave signals could be heard and in others were demonstrations of the variety of things that vacuum tubes can do, including the operation of an automobile without a driver and the control of a mechanical man.

Broadcasting Anniversary

The opening ceremonies, which went on the air via National Broadcasting company, China, observed the 10th anniversary of broadcasting. They included talks by M. H. Kettleman Fields Clog Federal Oil Unit Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (AP)—Secretary Wilbur today said the most troublesome problem confronting the interior department was the difficulty of getting all oil operators in the Kettleman fields of California to enter the government's "unit plan" to reduce production.

The secretary, who has just returned from a two months trip in the West, expressed the belief, however, that agreement would be reached among all the operators eventually.

"If the lid was taken off the Kettleman wells, all the other wells of California would be forced to shut down," he said. "Public opinion will soon force the others into line to limit production."

Under act of congress, the authority of the secretary to effect oil conservation agreements expires in January, 1931. He intimated he would ask congress to extend the authority if necessary.

America Agrees With England

Cigarette Causes Big Stir In England—Sensational Benefits to Sufferers From Nasal Troubles

Give the English credit. They may be slow to act, but that's because any new thing or idea must be proved to have great merit before they accept it.

They discovered astonishing results come from smoking a cigarette. Their climate is cold and damp, leading to nasal and bronchial troubles that cause chronically clogged up heads, buzzing and singing in the ears and constant discharge. After experimenting with sprays, salves, inhalers, ointments and "snuff up" preparations, they wholeheartedly accepted and continue to use in large quantities this modern warm smoke method of treatment.

Druggists almost everywhere in the United States dispense this medical cigarette to sufferers. Here's your chance to try them. Ask for Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes. No substance to chew—just a special combination of medicinal herbs. Their warm soothing vapor goes through all the new, sore air passages and depositing medication that most starts them to healing. But the nearbable thing is the way it opens up your head in just a few moments and starts to clear "them" right out. There's a reason why Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are the biggest selling inhalation remedy in England. Why don't you discover it for yourself?

Second Shortage Found In Tax Officer's Books

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25. (AP)—Authoritative reports from city hall today placed a reputed shortage approximately $40,000 against the account of William Kleinfieldt, formerly employed in the delinquent tax office.

A case charging embezzlement against Kleinfieldt is pending in criminal district court on an affidavit filed about 60 days ago. Kleinfieldt at the time was alleged to have embezzled about $15,000 by manipulation of receipts in "fixing" back tax payments for delinquent tax payers.

The audit of books was held up temporarily during the recent political campaign in which audit reports showed that the city was facing a deficit of $3,500,000.

BEAUTIFUL
New Ford De Luxe Bodies
NOW ON DISPLAY

NEW FORD CABRIOLET (CONVERTIBLE)

THE WORDS DE LUXE are a fitting description of the beautiful new body types now on display at the showrooms of Ford dealers. Everywhere they have met with distinguished favor because of their striking lines and colors and the quiet richness of the upholstery, trimming and appointments.

These new de luxe bodies are offered in addition to the standard Ford line and include the De Luxe Roadster, De Luxe Phaeton, De Luxe Sedan, De Luxe Coupe, Town Sedan and Convertible Cabriolet.

The De Luxe Roadster and De Luxe Phaeton are upholstered in genuine Bedouin grain leather, in tan harmonizing with the swagger tops. The spare wheel is carried forward on the left. The new colors for these two types are Raven Black, Washington Blue, and Stone Brown. The wheels are finished in a complementary color.

The De Luxe Sedan, De Luxe Coupe and Town Sedan are upholstered in soft luxurious mohair or Bedford cord, optional with the purchaser. Wide, comfortable rumble seat is standard equipment in the De Luxe Roadster and the Convertible Cabriolet.

Plan to see these new de luxe bodies this week and arrange for a demonstration. You will find much to admire in their sprightly appearance and the high quality so evident in every detail.

Grafting on the Sick
The X-Ray Monopoly
Modern Jean Valjean
Our Crime Rulers
Mencken's Married Life

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Almost every day in this age of selfishness you read in the newspapers of huge bequests and donations for the advancement of science, industry, public health and education. There are at least a half dozen foundations, each with millions at their disposal, dedicated to the furtherance of human welfare. But all this does not prevent graft and monopoly from stepping in and "queering the works."

The X-ray monopoly is a case in point. Dr. Edwin C. Ernst, addressing a session of physicians and surgeons in Baltimore, declares that greed of a certain firm enjoying the X-ray tube monopoly has retarded effective beneficial research of radiology "by filing away useful patents which could and should be employed by others in the interest of humanity for the treatment of cancer and other ills."

Physicians will tell you that a monopoly in the production of radium also exists. No greed should be stigmatized more severely. No crime against society could be greater than the crime of holding from it the benefits that science has discovered through the unselfish labor and sacrifice of our noblest minds.

Victor Hugo would have found another Jean Valjean in the person and story of Casper Rosenberg.

Rosenberg has been living for six years in a small Michigan town, where he is a leading citizen, honored and respected. Eight years ago, along with eight others, he robbed Arthur D. Cutten, broker, of $20,000 and then locked Cutten up in his safe. Cutten almost died from suffocation and swore vengeance.

For years the robbers were hounded. One by one they were rounded up and imprisoned. At last Cutten found Rosenberg. But Rosenberg was no longer what he was in the old days. He had reformed. He was living in the fear of God, a useful citizen.

Cutten's Christian charity asserted itself. He left vengeance to the Lord. The charge of robbery was wiped off the record. Rosenberg is a free man today, without blemish.

A list of the nation's "dictators" is interesting. A list of the nation's gunmen, racketeers and vice czars would be just as interesting, if not more so. Here are the best of Chicago's list: Al Capone, Ralph Capone, Mops Volpe, Machine Gun Jack McGurn, Bugs Moran, Joe Aiello, Spike O'Donnell, Klondike O'Donnell, Red Barker, Threefingers White, Danny Stanton and Dago Mangano.

Warrants are out for 26 of these as "public enemies." New York would do well to emulate the example of the Chicago crimes commission and publish its own list of cutthroats. Everyone can then write to them for their autographs.

The world's "most adamant and articulate bachelor," H. L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, has become the perfect husband. He has even become Victorian, according to Wife Mencken. That shows the value of criticism.

Of course, the iconoclast is married only three weeks, and, as is popularly known, a test of marriage isn't final until the whole of the first year goes by. So the world will have to wait.

Unless Mencken repents of his bargain and goes back to his theoretic heresies, marriage, it is very much feared, will again come into its own as a worthy institution, and cease to be considered the refuge of babbits and morons.

"I've jest murdered my husband, but don't disturb me till mornin' for I'm tryin' to get a little sleep," phoned Mrs. Joe Kite's sister, Caddie, to Constable Plum last night. A fine rain Sunday laid the dust for barbecue hamburger.

"Mighty glad to see you backs," as any football coach might be saying this time of year.

A more appropriate name for those black shirt patriots in Berlin, to some people's way of thinking, would be Farce-ists.

Racing in the Old Days

NOW that Sir Thomas Lipton's final effort to put the world's fastest yacht under his own flag has failed, and the glittering creation of American dollars has triumphed once more, it can hardly be treason or heresy to remark that these sea-going contests would have seemed excessively tame to both Americans and Englishmen of a former generation.

Consider this last yacht race, for instance; millions of dollars were spent, and hundreds of thousands of carefully chosen words were spattered over newspaper pages throughout the world—merely to discover that one delicate and costly contrivance of steel, wood and canvas could cover 30 miles in some nine minutes less than another similar contrivance.

This knowledge may be worth having; but an earlier day saw races under sail that were races, and knew how to glory in them. The deep sea skippers of the 'fifties of the last century reached the all-time high water mark in nautical contests, and it is hardly the fault of Sir Thomas and Mr. Vanderbilt if one's mind automatically deserts their gay regatta for the titanic combats of the old days.

There were the tea clippers, for instance; slim, long-sparred cargo vessels built for speed, that raced all the way from China to Liverpool, and dared death to do it. Once six clippers set sail from a Chinese port for Liverpool, resolved to make a race of it. They slid down the China sea, past Java Head and down into the Indian ocean, sailed around the Cape of Good Hope and came cracking up the Atlantic—and, at the end, the winner had a margin of precisely 12 minutes over the ship that came in second!

Then there were the races in the California trade, with American clippers striving to beat one another on the long run from San Francisco to New York. Their skippers had world-wide reputation for their daring; they cracked on sail in a gale of wind with the slogan, "what she can't carry she may drag"; they rounded Cape Horn in midwinter, with the sea full of floating ice cakes and a 60-mile gale blowing for weeks at a time; and now and then the victor, reaching New York, waited in vain for his opponent to come into port.

There were great speed records then, too; a ship like the Sovereign of the Seas, for example, could reel off 20 knots, hour after hour, and did it as part of the job and not just as a stunt. All of those races, in fact, were in the line of duty. Speed was essential, and the ship-designers and ship-masters provided it without counting the cost.

All of that is over, now, and has been for decades. But the struggle between the Enterprise and the Shamrock recalls it, somehow—and makes one long for the old days.

A Defect Somewhere

SENATOR DAVID A. REED of Pennsylvania complains that "the greatest material need of civilization is a solution of the distribution problem"; and it is not hard to see why he should think so.

The world today is suffering from a tremendous economic depression, in which all countries are faring poorly.

Yet, at the same time, there never was a time in the world's history when it had the capacity to produce so much at so little expense.

There is—either actually in existence or immediately available—a great plenty of everything that men all over the world need.

Yet, because of some defect in the machinery somewhere, this very surplus, this skill with which humanity can meet all of its wants, simply operates to make a bad situation worse, and a great many people, scattered all the way from the United States to China and from the Argentine to Scotland, do not have nearly enough of anything.

The American farmer finds himself going bankrupt because there is a "surplus" of wheat—and hundreds of thousands of Chinese are dying of starvation.

American automobile manufacturers cut down their schedules because of overproduction—and countries like Russia suffer acutely because they are not able to mechanize their transport fast enough.

Cotton growers and textile manufacturers are hit by a supply that exceeds demand—but in every city in the world you could find dozens of people who do not have enough clothing to keep them in good health.

Nor is that all. Producers of various kinds, from farmers to manufacturers, complain that they are not able to make money—but retail prices remain high. The price of bread, for instance, has not followed the price of wheat down the toboggan. The farmer's hard luck is not the consumer's gain.

Somewhere back of all of this there would seem to lie a major defect in our machinery of distribution. From foodstuffs to radios, from blankets to sewing machines, mankind at last is able to produce far more than enough to go around; but this ability is beginning to look more like a curse than a blessing.

What is the answer? As Senator Reed remarks, "It is a question which demands the best brains not only of our country but of the world."

Suppression and the Press

THE action of the government of Ontario in placing a news ban on the Toronto Star as a measure of reprisal for the Star's action in refusing to retract a certain news story about the cabinet's reorganization will interest newspaper editors below the border as well as in Canada.

Just how great the provocation was in this case is not clear, at this distance. Nevertheless, it can be said that any government—national, provincial or municipal—that tries to gag a newspaper is taking a serious step, a step moreover which can hardly end in anything but failure.

The thing has been tried before, and it has never worked. A live newspaper will get the news regardless of opposition; and in the end the agency that tries to suppress it suffers from a recoil of its own autocratic methods.

Queries

Ever so often I think of you—
What are you doing to pass the days?
Who's your captain and who's your crew—
Are you still possessed of enchanting ways?
How were the lads who followed me—
Were their phrases soft—were their kisses sweet?
And did they waken an ecstasy—
And was it lasting or was it fleet?

Do you still possess that delicious drawl—
Does your phone still ring as it did of yore?
And now that summer has swung to fall—
Do you bid good night at your little door?
Do you still affect that indifferent pose—
Which trips a lad—be he dull or clever?
And one more question before I close—
Are you still—are you still as drab as ever?
—Young Man of Manhattan.

Nifty

When those nude adagio dancers appeared at the opening performance of "Vanities" a few months ago, and "Artists and Models" also featured a similar duo in their undersea ballet, some of us who would rather wisecrack than eat tried hard to think up a quip about the undersea ballets in which all the gels appeared peeled—in the raw.

It remained for Ashton Stevens, critic for the Chicago Hurld-Exam to supply the appropriate gag. In reviewing the "Artists and Models" troupe in Chicago, Stevens wigled: "20,000 Legs Under the Sea!"

And This!

When Tannen was master of ceremonies in one of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," he also officiated at Mr. Carroll's Sabbath night concerts, which usually were dull entertainments made up of second and third rate actors.

On one Sunday evening, when the bill was unusually poor, a tough guy in the gallery started to kid Tannen. "Say, Julius!" yelled the heckler, "tell me something. Is dis amachoor night?"

When the laughter subsided, Tannen replied: "Yes. Do you want to go on?"

Substitute

David Murray reports that a Broadway press agent announces that he has never worn a hat in his life. He talks through his nose.

Gag

Loney Haskell had an arm shattered in two places after a cab crash the other week-end. He told the story of the accident in the Friars club to Jack Lait and other listeners. "My arm was broken twice," concluded Loney, "but my watch wasn't!"

To which Lait chirped: "You should have bought your arm where you bought your watch!"

Haw!

Claude (Variety) Binyon overheard the most caustic of the sarcasms in Hah-hah-hahlywood. It follows: "I saw all your friends riding in a baby Austin car which also contained two bass drums!"

A Form of Criticism

One of the dramatic critics, whose daily assignment includes the preparing of a column of Broadway night life, was asked by a show producer: "When on earth do you get your sleep?"

"At the first nights," was the reply.

Add Double Negatives

Far be it from us to Rudy-valice our contempt-orary. Mark (my words!) Hellinger, but when we are the victim of sour proof-reading (Mr. H.'s "monkies" was hardly a typographical error) it should be remembered that we do not know any better, anyway. We were expelled from P. S. 184 (from 6B) for being a dunce.

But! Ah-ha! Gladys Glad's husband is a high-schooled boy! Oh, it is no sin to be a pediculous speller. Washington, Bonaparte and other greats couldn't spell.

And while it is the height of something or other for us to find flaws in anybody's English, get a load of this reverse English from a recent Hellinger "Unsung Hero" dep't: "She said she wanted $50,000 in a lump sum and would not ask for no allmony."

The score is now 4 to 2.

Imagine!

Stories such as this one make it less difficult to believe what you hear about the Hollywood movie impresarios. One of the newspaper game's intellects recently shelved the profession for movieland because of the heavier wage.

After three weeks of idleness (at pay!) he was finally given Wasserman's two volume tome, "The World's Illusion," to read. He stayed for four nights and read it. When he finished, he went to his superior officer.

"What sort of a picture do you want me to make out of it?" he asked.

"We ain't making no picture of it," was the reply, "we just wanted you to read a little."

The Morning Mail

"Dear Walter," writes the comical Izzy Elinson, "I know who started it. The guy who designed the night club dance floor wanted to do something big. So he invented the Tom Thumb golf course, which is a big hit with the Broadway mob. To one just off a night club postage stamp-size dance floor a junior golf course looks like the wide open spaces!"

"Aw!" as someone has already said, "go sit on a Tom Thumb tack!"

One Good Reason

A local department store has asked several citizens to explain what makes New York great? A contemporary facetiously retorts: "One hour in any other town!"

A better and saner answer, we think, was recently reported by Beverly Smith, who told about John Kalogeras, the Greek shoe shine man of 40th St. John, it appears, held forth for an hour on the mellow glories of his home in the Isle of Chios. He painted an idyl. "Why in heaven's name," asked Smith, "Don't you go back there?"

"Because," replied John, "you can buy things in New York so late at night."

The AGE of YOUTH

A New Serial by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Hopeless because of her failure to make a decent living in New York City, pretty Donna Raynor writes to Randolph Granby, a wealthy bachelor: "I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?"

Intrigued by the girl's personality and her unconventional ideas, Granby accepts her proposal. Through his brokers Donna receives $25,000; Granby prepares to sail for France, and Donna leaves her shabby hotel for a more flash-fifties.

Shortly after she retires, a handsome young man, intoxicated, enters Donna's apartment. "Believe I'll marry you," says the youthful visitor, who, Donna learns, is none other than Frank Gardner, wealthiest and most sought-after bachelor in America.

Next morning Gardner sends orchids. Donna refuses to speak with him. She arranges to take singing lessons from Mademoiselle Galere, whose pupils include most of the Junior League.

In a few weeks she is in the midst of the social swim. At the Fairleigh home she meets Granby again, also Frank Gardner, who asks: "How would you like another proposal from me?"

Gardner displays jealousy. Granby, quietly is evidently more than ever in love with Donna. The situation is tense.

Then the bubble bursts. At Mme. Galere's Donna picks up the paper. In the society gossip column is an unmistakable reference to her—with the insinuation that Donna confides her troubles to Mme. Galere. Others in the "set" remain loyal to her.

Mrs. Fairleigh extends an invitation to dinner. Granby is Donna's escort. After dinner and bridge Donna and Granby go to the embassy to dance. Gardner appears. He has been drinking and loudly exclaims: "Why, it's old Ran Granby and the li'l girl he's keeping."

Now Continue the Story

An Unexpected Kiss

The orchestra had chosen the moment of their arising to cease playing. Two things Donna had often noticed. One was that no matter how loudly people have been talking during the music they automatically are silent for a fraction of a moment following the cessation of the orchestra's blare. The other was that if any one happened to break this unconscious habit of silence, the speech he uttered was invariably embarrassing. It might not be axiomatic, this rule, but it was rarely honored in the breach.

How many times had she heard girls scream giggling protest from another room just as the piano in the living room became silent? How many times, in darkened movie theaters, had she heard the unmistakable sounds of kisses as the organ ceased its bray?

Now it seemed that Gardner's voice was a roar. The drunken leer upon his face seemed a sneer of deadly malice. He was a tall youth, but not so tall as he now towerингly seemed. She felt within her a fury of which she had not known herself capable. She knew, self-revelatorily, that she could have killed him at this moment. Also, she knew—and later would take pride in the knowledge—that no one, observing her and hearing Frank Gardner's words, would know that she beheld her house of cards tumbling about her.

She believed that, while she might be white of face, she presented the appearance of one who, hearing the incredible, does not believe that she has heard aright. And this is exactly the effect her marble pallor, her slightly parted lips and her incredulous eyes did create.

Granby's arm had been about her as the music stopped. It remained about her for a moment. His eyes, on a level with hers, had lost that expression of triumphant ownership which the companionship of a pretty girl brought to them. Their blue was not vacuous now. Icy sparks showed where ordinarily was soft self-satisfaction. She had been surprised dancing with him at Mrs. Fairleigh's to realize that his arm was steely-strong; now it gripped her so it hurt. She suddenly comprehended that here was a defender who could give a good account of himself even with a man a dozen years his junior.

And for a brief moment she thought that Granby would give that account here and now. There were, she recognized, only two things Granby could do: He could endeavor to knock Gardner down, or he could ignore the younger man's drunken insult. There were men, of course, who could find it possible to enter into wordy argument at such a time as this, but she prayed to her God that she would never be in the company of such a one.

She was not in that company now. The tightly compressed lips of her companion were sufficient proof that wordy retort to Gardner was not in his mind. But exactly which of the two possible courses he would have taken she was never to know, for two things happened simultaneously:

The orchestra burst into sound, exactly as though some one were making conversation to cover an embarrassing moment and its consequent pause. And a headwaiter appeared from nowhere. At the music dancers began to move. A couple unintentionally jostled Gardner. And the headwaiter took the young man by the arm. He did so in a paternal fashion that was not deceiving to whoever felt that grip.

As dancers intervened between Gardner and the couple whom he had so grossly assailed Donna saw the youth yield to a whispered word. He began shambling away from the tables. Then, as Granby guided her away, she lost sight of the young man.

She danced, as always, well, but mechanically. The hazel eyes into which Granby looked were wide and dark, almost gray. The lithsome body which he clasped was not rigid as might be expected of muscles held strainingly, and she followed without faltering.

Granby, looking at her, felt surging admiration. This was a great person, this girl whom he had taken from poverty and financed. Only by the darkening of her eyes could it be told that she had just passed through emotion, was in its grip still.

"You brave—brave—" he whispered.

She felt a score of eyes upon her. Every whispered word that the dancers exchanged was comment, she was sure, upon herself, upon Granby, upon Gardner, upon the scene that had just occurred. She saw heads together at the tables; she could feel, although she could not hear, the buzz of gossip that spread about the room. Gardner could hardly have chosen a more unfortunate place—for Donna—in which to make his assault.

Here were people, many of whom she knew, more of whom she wanted to know. Here were people who represented the citadel which she was assailing, whose outer bulwarks she had already stormed. These were the people in whose minds no suspicion of her must ever arise.

This morning's printed innuendo—tonight's direct accusation—how many of them would consider that Gardner was a filthy cad? How many, rather, would prefer to believe that Gardner spoke the truth, and because of his truth forgive his own contemptibleness?

"Brave? What should I do? Weep?" she asked.

Hardly a soul who saw her but assumed that she was responding to some light jest. They knew—those who were aware of Gardner's charge—that she couldn't be lighthearted, but her manner was almost convincing.

"Any other girl would," he said. "Perhaps I'm harder than other girls," she said.

His arm tightened, ever so slightly, about her.

"You're not," he said, not hard a bit. You—you're just—wonderful."

Incoherence became Granby. He led a careful life, a life in which he preferred saying the right thing to doing it, seeming the right thing to being it. And one who is careful does not often become incoherent. But now he was not careful. He felt—more credit to him—a

Thousands of government experts are working constantly for the benefit of all citizens of the United States. They will work directly for you if you will call for the fruits of their labors through our Washington bureau. State your inquiry briefly, write clearly, and, enclosing two-cent stamp for a personal letter in reply, address The Record News Information bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Please differentiate between comedy and tragedy.—E. S.

A.—Drama is a composition in prose or in poetry, usually intended to be acted upon the stage, presenting a story by means of characters, speaking and acting in situations contrived to develop a plot, with such accessories as scenery, etc. Tragedy is that form of drama or of dramatic composition in which the theme is solemn, lofty or pathetic, being a great action or series of acts. Comedy is that branch of dramatic art that portrays laughable incidents or characters, or the ludicrous, the satirical, or the gay, in a familiar or humorous style; it is opposed to tragedy, or ceremonial drama.

Q.—Who is now at the head of the Pullman company?—J. K.

A.—J. Frank Drake is chairman of the board of the Pullman corporation.

Q.—If there a language known as the Afrikaans?—B. M.

A.—Afrikaans is the name given to the language spoken and written by the descendants of Dutch, French and German colonists who settled in South Africa prior to the British occupation of 1806. Q.—Was Hugo Stinnes a self-made man?—R. E. L.

A.—Not in the usual acceptance of the term. He was educated as a mining engineer and entered his grandfather's firm in 1890. Two years later he went into business for himself with a capital of 50,000 marks. At the time of his death in 1924, he was possessed of an enormous fortune. A.—The building activities of Pope Pius XI include a new railroad station, an electric power station, picture gallery, and other works of lesser importance. The picture gallery covers approximately one-half of an acre. Its principal facade, 350 feet long, consists of two floors, each about 35 feet high. Subdivided into large halls, it will house the most famous pictures in the vatican collection which will be grouped according to the various schools. The principal hall will be reserved for works of Raphael. Many other large buildings are being erected on ground which is not actually part of the vatican city, but which enjoys the right of extra-territoriality in accordance with lateran treaties. Among these is the new seat of the Congregation Propaganda Fide situated on a hill high above Rome.

CATTLE THEFT CASE AT OLNEY

Young County Man Held On Charge at Graham

OLNEY, Texas, Sept. 25. (AP)—Claud Guess is in custody at Graham charged with cattle theft. He was arrested last night on the Richardson ranch, near Olney, by a Texas ranger, R. H. (Cowboy) Mumford, and Chas. S. Richardson, who said Guess was butchering a yearling at the time.

Early today Guess made a statement concerning the theft to Assistant District Attorney Wyley of Archer City.

Mumford is in the employ of the Richardson ranch as a special officer investigating cattle stealing.

Scottish Rite Chief In Speech at Dallas

DALLAS, Sept. 25. (AP)—An admonition to degree masters to adhere to the ritual, which he praised for its literary value as well as its content, was made by Col. John H. Cowles, grand commander of the supreme council of the 33rd degree Scottish Rite Masonry for the southern jurisdiction, in today's session of that body.

The general session was held after an executive meeting, where it was said the advisability of election of a lieutenant grand commander was discussed.

Irresistible Yen For Reform Rules John Raskob

'Substitute Temperance For Prohibition' Is Motto

By FRASER EDWARDS
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—All men are born reformers, but few have such a tremendous urge for reform as that of possessing John Jacob Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

When Johnnie Raskob accepted the managerial reins of the Democratic party to the utter amazement of the political world in 1928, it was bruited about that he did so because of his affection for Al Smith. That may have been a factor, but something deeper than friendship stirred his soul. It was reform.

Nothing short of an irresistible yen for reform could have induced Johnnie Raskob to jack-up a good job with General Motors and go into politics. In the first place, he knew nothing about politics and he still may have something to learn. But he had discovered after a non-partisan existence of 48 years that politics offer a medium for reform.

Reformers want to make the world better by taking some joy out of life. Dry reformers were trying to make America a safer and sadder place to live in prohibition. So when Raskob saw what a kick the drys got out of prohibition, he set out to take it away from them.

Raskob was blind to the delights of drinking in speakeasies. Nor did he take into consideration the fact that he might ruin the thriving industries established by bootleggers, beer-runners and hijackers. He simply got a curious notion that the experiment was not so noble after all, and that prohibition must be reformed and temperance substituted.

Since Al Smith was just as keen about reforming prohibition as Raskob, Johnnie took the job. First, however, he was forced to reform himself of all Republican tendencies. He had occasionally voted for a Republican for president on the theory that the best man should win.

He decided definitely that henceforth Democratic candidates for president invariably would be the best men. And during the campaign of 1928, he became convinced the Democratic party was the greatest and most useful instrumentality for reform in the political and economic life of America.

Johnnie Raskob is perhaps the most modest man who occupies a position of prominence in America today. His modesty amounts almost to shyness. He instinctively shrinks from the limelight. How he must have suffered at press conferences in the early days of the campaign no one will ever know. But he is a determined and sincere reformer and he did not shirk.

Moreover, Johnnie had the naive notion that Al was going to win and the consummation of his pet reform was only a matter of time. He giggled like a schoolboy at the Smith meeting in Philadelphia as he passed down to the press row a paper covered with Chinese characters. It looked like a Chink laundry ticket until folded, then it formed letters which read downward:

"Put your roll on Al Smith."

During the campaign, it was predicted that Raskob would become the greatest secretary of the treasury since Andrew Mellon if Smith was elected. These predictions almost frightened Johnnie into quitting his post. He believed that Smith could not lose, so he went to Al and begged him not to force him into public office. The sun shone again when Al promised.

What Johnnie does not know about politics, he more than makes up in a knowledge of finances, men and organization. He can juggle a set of figures in a fashion that would make the experts who figured out the watch schedule of the tariff bill grow dizzy. Hence, it was no job at all to this man who is reputed to have made a hundred millionaires to dig up the dough to pay off the $1,500,000 deficit left in the Democratic treasury at the close of the campaign.

Instead of deserting after Smith's disastrous defeat in the electoral college, Johnnie decided that reform should be organized on a business-like basis. So, he selected Jouett Shouse as the official "brains" of the Democratic party and conferred full authority in reference to party matters upon him.

That was an admirable solution for everybody concerned but the Republican party and the prohibitionists. Shouse spends $65 days per annum keeping the Republicans up worrying every night in the year. And Raskob devotes all his time to reform and raising 11 children.

Spot on Jupiter May Be Iceberg

PARIS, Sept. 25. (UP)—Abbe Moreux, famed director of the Bourges observatory, after a month of study of Jupiter under abnormally clear conditions, announced to the United Press today that another mysterious red spot is forming on that planet, and that the spot may really be an enormous iceberg continent, 30,000 miles long and 7,000 miles wide.

The red spots of Jupiter have not gone unobserved by astronomers of history. Cassini, using crude instruments, sighted the red spot in 1665, but inscribed in his records that the spot turned later to rose and then disappeared.

"The red spots of Jupiter have never been more plainly visible through telescopes than they are now," Abbe Moreux said.

"We can now say as a fact that Jupiter is a planet in process of formation.

"The red spots are like floating islands and we advance the suggestion that they may be icelike solidified chemicals. Astronomers for centuries to come will have plenty to worry about."

New Walkout Threatens Just as Workers End Strike

LUGO, Spain, Sept. 25. (AP)—Workmen of Lugo had scarcely returned to their jobs this morning after a general strike that had paralyzed the city's industry and commerce for a week, when labor leaders threatened another walkout tonight as a protest against the killing of a striker at Santiago de Compostella.

In a clash between civil guards and a group of strikers at Santiago de Compostella, Angel Antel Solar was killed yesterday and four other men were wounded. Labor union officials throughout the province of Galicia are protesting against what they term "the too stern measures" taken by the provincial governor in suppressing demonstrations of strikers.

Three Passengers On Boat Drown

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 25. (AP)—Passengers on the United States transport Saint Mihiel, bound for New York, told here today how three persons aboard the ship had been drowned shortly after the vessel left Porto Rico San Juan, Porto Rico, for Christobal.

Actions of an unnamed soldier led to suspicions of his sanity and he was thrown in the ship's brig. Later his reason apparently returned to him and he was released. He immediately went to the side of the ship and dived into the ocean and was not seen again.

The vessel stopped and circled the spot and some of its crew started to lower a boat. The davits jammed causing a small delay but eventually the craft was freed and it sped toward the water out of control. Three seamen plunged into the sea and two of them were drowned.

'BLACK-SAND' SKULLS FOUND

Human Life Advanced By Many Ages

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. (AP)—Nine skulls, recently found near Lewiston, Ill., are thought by Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago to date human presence into the Mississippi valley several thousand years earlier than it has been hitherto believed.

The skulls, in contrast to Hopewell men and others found to date are long and narrow, while the Hopewell skulls are broad and short. Professor Cole said. The tentative name given them is "black-sand men," from the glacial gravel layer in which they were found.

"I am satisfied they lived since the last glaciation," Professor Cole said, "which was 10,000 or 12,000 years ago and before the Hopewell culture, which is about 2,000 years old."

The skulls were found by an expedition of university students, headed by Professor Cole.

Southwest Shippers To Meet in Houston 1931

FORT WORTH, Sept. 25. (AP)—Houston was selected as the next meeting place of the southwest shippers advisory board in session here today.

Hopeful notes for a speedy return of business to normalcy were sounded in reports at the meeting attended by more than 400 shippers and carriers.

The reports cited resumption of shipping in farming sections hit by drouth and an increase in market prices as among the principal factors needed for improvement of business conditions.

It will require a co-operative and stubborn effort on the part of shippers and carriers and business leaders in general if present depressions are to be corrected by the first of the year, the reports stated.

BUFFALO BILL'S PAL DIES, 86

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 25. (AP)—Harvey S. Faucett, 86, an associate of Buffalo Bill, Kit Carson and other scouts of the early 70's in the West, died in a hospital here today from injuries received in a fall, Sept. 6 at the city market.

The aged Indian scout, whose body bore marks of tomahawk, hunting knife, arrow and bullet, suffered a broken hip when he was knocked to the pavement by two men in a friendly scuffle.

Known as "Arapahoe Harve, the eagle of the trail," he served as a scout for General George H. Custer. Faucett had a forewarning of the massacre of Custer and his 276 men on the little Bighorn river and rode frantically to give the warning but his pony died after galloping 20 hours over the prairie.

Peter B. Kyne in First Interview Declines to Air Views on Women

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (US)—A good-natured Irishman with a yen for story-telling sat in his workmanlike hotel room and talked of life and love, race horses and feminism.

Peter B. Kyne, whose novels and short stories of the West have made him a beloved national figure for 20 years, is unique among the celebrities.

First Interview

Until today he had never been interviewed.

"I have declined to give my views on whether women should bob their hair or wear long skirts," said Mr. Kyne. "I didn't consider that my opinion would alter their customs one way or the other. And why should it?

"Women should do just as they please. They will, anyway. So why argue about it?"

Mr. Kyne, who has left his California ranch for a few days to visit his New York doctor, and, incidentally, to talk with his publishers, who will release next week his latest novel, "Outlaws of Eden," is far from the conventional figure of the genus literatus.

He might be a western lumberman or a banker, a shipper or a rancher.

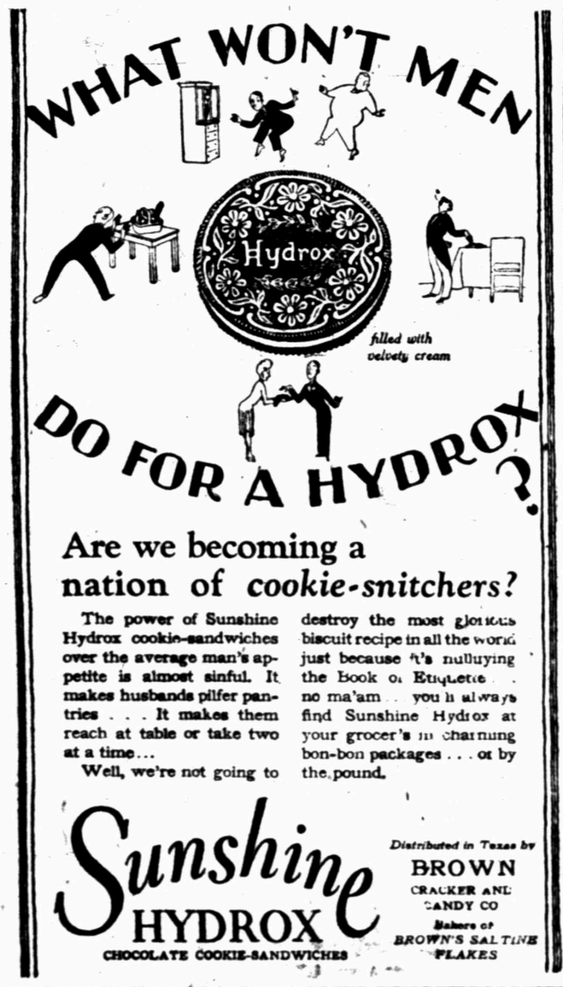

Has Been Everything

In fact, he has been.

"It's no great distinction to make money," said this jovial Celt, puffing his cigar smoke toward the ceiling. "If you concentrate on nothing else, if you think in terms of six per cent, if you are willing to slave and deny yourself the pleasantries of life, to live in a mean house and have your shoes cobbled, and save, save, save, you can die with a million dollars. But who wants to die with a million dollars?

"What's the use of living, if you can't have a little fun as you go along?

"I've done about everything in my life. I've milked cows, broken broncoes, kept books, been a stenographer, raised wheat, gone to sea, been a shipper, a newspaper man, a lumberman."

RAIL PROJECT FINDS DISFAVOR

I. C. C. Report Opposed To Port Arthur Line

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today received an adverse report from one of its examiners on the proposed project of the Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe railroad system to extend their services by new railroad construction and purchase of existing lines into Port Arthur and Beaumont, Texas.

O. D. Weed, after investigation, said he could not find any urgent need for another line of railroad in the district. He found that "carriers now in the district are functioning well and seem to be serving the industries therein with reasonable expedition and in satisfactory manner." He advised dismissal of the petitions of the two trunk line carriers relating to the project.

The commission will give opportunity to all of parties to the proceedings for argument and presentation of further necessary evidence. Thereafter a final decision will be announced.

Under pending proposals the trunk lines would organize the Sabine Basin railway which would buy the Eastern Texas Electric company and thereafter build about 22 miles of line joining the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western railroad and Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe system. The Missouri Pacific and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe systems would thus acquire, joint ownership of a route into Port Arthur.

Woman's Body Claimed By Prominent Family

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25. (AP)—A body of a young woman found on a farm in Chester county, 25 miles west of Philadelphia today, has been identified by authorities as that of Miss Grace Delancey V. Newlin, 30-year-old member of a prominent Bryn Mawr family.

Nearby was found a bottle and a glass that apparently had contained poison. An automobile was also found nearby. Miss Newlin disappeared from her home in Bryn Mawr Tuesday morning, in a touring car.

Science Adds More Than 50 Years To Span of Existence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (US)—Modern science has increased the average span of human life in the last 20 years from 48 to 58 years. The public health service reported today.

And the remarkable gain has been made by concentrated fights against only six main enemies, diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid fever, yellow fever, bubonic plague, and scarlet fever. The loss of life from rabies and measles has also been wiped out, but this is considered a less important factor, as the death toll never was great.

Smallpox and diphtheria are now virtually controlled by vaccine methods, and typhoid fever has been fought by sanitation improvements. Yellow fever and bubonic plague were driven out by destroying the mosquito and the rat. Modern methods of treating scarlet fever have made it little more than an indisposition.

The new fields for science to conquer are tuberculosis, cancer and heart ailments, if the span is to be further increased.

Unemployment Over U. S. Shows Decrease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (UP)—Improvement in the business situation was indicated today by unemployment figures compiled by the American Federation of Labor.

Reports from trade unions in 24 cities showed unemployment to have dropped from 22 per cent during July and August to 21 per cent during the early weeks of September, President William Green announced.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 25. (AP)—A coroner's verdict of suicide and murder was returned yesterday in the deaths of David C. Manson, 52, construction engineer, and his 22-year-old wife. Their bodies were found Tuesday in their apartment. Manson was believed to have killed his wife and himself Sunday. Mrs. Manson formerly lived in Dallas, Texas. Neighbors reported to police that the couple had quarreled bitterly during the last several months. They were married a year ago at Albany, N. Y.

Good Foods' Largest Market

The miracle wrought by low prices

"Chain stores are of real benefit not only to the consumer, but also to the grower of foodstuffs . . . The chain store is raising the standard of food products at lower costs to the consumer."

No friend of chain stores said this. It was addressed by Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy at Cornell University, to a recent meeting of the Farmers' Marketing Conference in the University of Maryland.

Dr. Boyle, like everyone else who has studied the subject without prejudice, puts his finger on the point of vital importance to customers of A&P. They enjoy the highest standards of eating at lowest cost to themselves.

They raise the standard of food products by their steady buying of the best. So, too, their buying encourages ample supplies of the high grade food they demand and can afford to pay for in A&P stores.

That is why A&P stores are the largest market in the world for food only the few could buy if A&P did not cut the cost to the bone.

TEXAS GIVEN FEDERAL FAVOR

Government Will Aid Drouth Relief Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (AP)—Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth, chairman of the committee appointed by the West Texas drouth relief organization to confer with government officials on relief plans for certain Texas counties, said in a statement today that the delegation had been assured of cooperation by Washington officials in its proposal to organize credit corporations.

Talks With Hyde

The statement follows:

"The committee which came to Washington in behalf of drouth relief measures for certain counties in West Texas has had conferences with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, with Mr. Eugene Meyer Jr., governor of the federal reserve board, with Farm Loan Commissioner Paul Bestor, with members of the farm loan board, with Chairman Legge and members of the federal farm board and with Mr. Lynn Talley, governor of the federal reserve board at Dallas. All of the government agencies gave assurance of their sympathetic attitude and accorded the committee a cordial and courteous hearing.

"The plan inaugurated at the drouth relief meeting at Haskell, Texas, to organize a number of agricultural credit corporations in the drouth area for the purpose of making production loan for 1931 crops, through the intermediate credit bank at Houston was heartily approved by all federal agencies consulted. Assurances were given the committee that the intermediate credit bank and the federal reserve bank would heartily cooperate in making available their resources to such credit corporations in all proper cases consistent with their well-established policies.

No Fund Available

"At the present time there is available no federal relief fund which can be directly distributed in the drouth area or loaned directly to farmers for production purposes. It is generally believed that when congress convenes in December legislation will be enacted to provide an emergency appropriation for the purchase of seed for planting purposes and for such direct emergency relief to the various drouth areas throughout the United States as may seem to be necessary at that time. We have received reasonable assurances that the attitude of congress will be sympathetic.

Will Further Plans

Members of the committee were returning to Texas to pursue the organization of credit corporations and to work out other features of their plans, pending the enactment of any legislation which may be provided by congress.

19 COUNTIES LISTED FOR DROUTH RELIEF

AUSTIN, Sept. 25. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody was advised by the federal department of agriculture today that 19 more counties had been added to the drouth area entitled to reduced freight rates on livestock and feed.

The counties certified were: Archer, Brown, Clay, Coke, Concho, Eastland, Irion, Kerr, McCullough, Mason, Menard, Runnels, San Saba, Schleicher, Sterling, Sutton, Tom Green, Wichita and Young.

Farmers in these counties would be entitled to one-third reduction on livestock moving out to pasture and on feed moving in for feeding purposes.

Fascist Chieftain Alarms Germany With His Plans for 'Third Empire'

Hitler Speaks of "World Revolution" as Part of Scheme to Set Up Entirely New State Opposing Peace

LEIPSIC, Germany, Sept. 25. (AP)—Adolf Hitler, chieftain of Fascism in Germany, took advantage of a ready-made platform in the Leipsic supreme court today to tell Germans and the world how he would set up a German "third empire."

The plan he sketched while a witness in the trial of three German Reichswehr officers on charges of subversive activities involved tearing up the Versailles treaty with such consequences as might follow that action, and intimation that blood would flow at home once his "revolutionary tribunals" were set to working.

Millions of Fascists

With all of the conviction and confidence of a man who stakes his all on a cause, he asserted that 35 or 40 million German voters soon would rally under the Fascist banner.

The court at intervals exterted a modulating influence on the Fascist leader and the boerse, ever sensitive politically, reacted downward.

The trial itself, occupying public attention for several days, lost its own prominence in the light of Hitler's personality. While he testified in the courtroom swarms of his followers remained in the streets before the building, lustily voicing their slogan, "Germany, awake!"

Hitler was outspoken. He said just as soon as German Fascists by legal means had attained political ascendancy they would disrupt the peace treaty, if necessary by means looked upon by the world as illegal. He said his party did not regard Germany's international post-war agreements as law but as something "forced upon us."

War Guilt Denied

He asserted Fascists did not acknowledge Germany's war guilt, "especially not the guilt of future generations." He said, his party intended to oppose Germany's post-war treaties "both diplomatically and by completely evading them."

Hitler declared after two or three more elections his party would be in the majority in Germany.

He made frequent use of the world revolution. Asked by the court why he did so he replied promptly:

"New Germany"

"What other name can we give to a movement which aims to overturn the present state and construct a new Germany on entirely new lines?"

The Fascist chieftain's opportunity to expose his revolutionary program came in the trial of Lieutenants Richard Scheinger, Hans Ludien and retired Lieutenant Hans Friedrich Wendt, before Judge Baumgarle. He was called as a witness and reminded he had the right to refuse to give evidence incriminating himself.

CHARGE HOLDS WIDOW IN JAIL

U. S. Commission, Shot By Woman, Improves

ENID, Okla., Sept. 25. (AP)—Mrs. Dollie Douthitt, prosperous elderly widow who boasts of descent from a signer of the declaration of independence was held in the Garfield county jail today on assault charges growing out of a shooting rampage in the state district courtroom here yesterday in which H. Z. Wedgwood, United States commissioner, was seriously wounded.

Charges of assault with intent to kill District Judge Arthur Sutton and Roy Elam, whose clothing was powdered-burned by wild shots, were filed to hold Mrs. Douthitt pending the outcome of injuries to Wedgwood, in a critical condition at a hospital.

Attendants at the hospital said Wedgwood showed improvement overnight, but that the crisis of his condition would not be reached until noon tomorrow. He was shot through the intestines with a soft-nosed revolver bullet.

Woman Tried in 1904

Mrs. Douthitt, acquitted in 1904 of the murder of her husband, W. T. Douthitt, prosperous cattle man and farmer, on a plea of self-defense, displayed a repenant atiitude today, and interviewers said she promised to "get" the county attorney and sheriff. Court officials were investigating a report she had told a girl in a restaurant Monday that "they are going to force me to do something awful."

The shooting followed a decision by Judge Sutton unfavorable to her in a case in which Wedgwood was attorney for the opposing party. The suit was brought by a roofing company which was attempting to evict her from her house on a judgment obtained because of her alleged refusal to pay a bill of $100 for re-roofing her house.

Handles Own Cases

Mrs. Douthitt has acted as her own attorney in a maze of litigation instituted both by and against her, and was sitting at the counsel table yesterday when the shooting occurred.

In her cell at the county jail, she related that John Hart, a signer of the declaration of independence, was her great-grandfather, and that her grandfather, Martin D. Hart, was a prominent attorney in the pioneer days of Texas. She said she was a native of Greenville, Texas, and a graduate of Kingston college at Kingston, Texas. Her late husband "made the run" when the Cherokee strip was opened in 1893 and homesteaded a farm that now is included in the Enid city limits.

Douthitt was shot as he left the door of his farm home to milk his cows. Mrs. Douthitt was acquitted on the plea that her husband had beaten and kicked her. She has two daughters.

CHURCH CLUB OPENS SEASON

Floral Heights Men Resume Programs

Eighty members of the Floral Heights Men's club attended the first fall meeting held Thursday night in the basement of the Floral Heights Methodist church. A banquet was served by the Womans' Missionary society.

Preceding addresses of the evening, invocation was offered by Dr. C. A. Spragins, presiding elder, and resolutions paying tribute to the late J. A. Deaton were adopted.

The chief talk on the program was made by Frank Jaynes, educational director of the community chest campaign on the topic, "Changing Channels." His address was comprehensive and enlightening on the subject of human analysis.

Dr. S. A. Barnes, former pastor of the Floral Heights church, now with the Oak Cliff Methodist church, gave a brief talk, as did Dr. C. M. Simpson, present church pastor. Visitors from Grant street Methodist were introduced, and Edward Raeder sang appropriate solos, accompanied by Miss Thelma Adams. Violin solos by Mrs. Flora Greenwood, accompanied by Lucile Brooks Huff, were other musical numbers on the program.

John M. Bland, church layman, discussed progress of the church the past year, commending the general cooperation shown, and the state of finances, which, he said, was the best since the organization of the church. He pointed out the addition of 235 new members in the past year.

Frequent similar meetings of the club will be held during the coming season.

Fire Destroys Home In Hillcrest Area

A small brick house in the 1200 block on Thirty-seventh street in the Hillcrest addition outside the city limits, was destroyed by fire Thursday night about 9 o'clock.

Fire equipment which answered the alarm was unable to check the blaze due to the fact that no water mains or fire plugs are in the district. Firemen remained, however, until all danger to adjoining structures had passed.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Allison Drug store with their guarantee of money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.—Adv.

WINTER

Wyoming Highway Choked by Icy Drifts Of First Snow

LARAMIE, Wyo., Sept. 25. (AP)—Heaping drifts three feet feet across the 11,000-foot spine of Snowy range, winter today had clamped an icy padlock on the Laramie-Saratoga highway through the mountains.

The forest service office here reported a blizzard raging at Brooklyn lake. No snow has fallen here, although rain fell intermittently all night. The surrounding hills are white.

He is being treated at his home and will be confined for several days.

Murder Charge Filed In Melon Patch Shooting

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Sept. 25. (UP)—A murder charge was filed here today by County Attorney J. F. Devine against Paul Roberts, 16, in the fatal "watermelon patch" shooting of Ted Shore, 22.

Roberts is alleged to have killed Shore when he and four companions visited a watermelon patch in Osage county which Roberts and two companions were guarding with a shotgun.

ACCUSED MAN RETURNS FUNDS

State Money Repaid By Ross M. Houston

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 25. (AP)—Voluntary return of $35,000 of state money and bonds with which he disappeared in February, 1928, has been made by Ross M. Houston, 56, former cashier in the state treasurer's office, George M. Calliban, county attorney, said today.

At the same time, John Tomerlin, attorney for the American Surety company, Houston's bondsman, announced that full restitution had been made to it, and that the company had signed an agreement absolving Houston from any further civil liability. The company paid Houston's losses after a long search for him had failed.

As a result, Tomerlin said, the company signed an agreement with D. B. Eades, Dallas attorney and relative of Houston, that the settlement was satisfactory and that it has ended its private search for Houston.

Callihan said no promise of immunity from prosecution had been made by his office.

Two charges against Houston, one alleging embezzlement of $5,000 cash and another the alleged theft of $30,000 in bonds, still are pending.

Vaught Disqualified In Proration Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 25. (AP)—Judge Edgar S. Vaught of the western Oklahoma federal district certified his disqualification today from hearing the case brought in federal court here by the Champlin Refining company of Enid, attacking constitutionality of state regulation of oil production. Hearing is set for Monday, Sept. 29.

Judge Vaught gave as his reason that he is a stockholder in a company that has interests in the Oklahoma City oil field. His certification set out that the case will be heard by Judge John H. Cotteral, of the United States circuit court of appeals and Judges R. L. Williams and Franklin E. Kennamer of the eastern and northern Oklahoma districts respectively.

The case is an injunction action brought by the Champlin company in an effort to bar the state corporation commission from enforcing its orders prorating the production of oil in the Oklahoma City and Seminole fields.

Distinguished Committee of 17 Launches New Soap Discovery

Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Cecil B. de Mille, Ethel Barrymore, Anne Morgan, in group to judge new soap for fine fabrics

Distinguished member of the Committee of 17—Ethel Barrymore, America's most noted actress.

A TINY bead of soap, no larger than a pinhead, yet it holds the secret of 20% longer wear for silk stockings! Science proved this recently to the entire satisfaction of the Committee of 17, a group of distinguished women who met at the Ritz Hotel to give "the woman's viewpoint" on this revolutionary new soap that promises to upset utterly all previous conceptions of how silks and fine fabrics should be washed.

Watch soap test at Ritz

Social leaders, home economics consultants, the wife of a distinguished cabinet member, eminent university authorities... women representative of every type of American femininity ... members of the Committee of 17 watched authorities test soaps ordinarily used by women for washing silks. They heard chemists tell how modern washbowl laundering of silks demanded an entirely different kind of soap from any of those formerly employed, one that would dissolve instantly ... work in water as cool as 85 degrees F. and rinse away completely. Could soap really be improved? Could the ideal soap for silks be made?

Science says "yes," and before the skeptical eyes of 17 women tested a revolutionary new soap that performed miracles never witnessed before. It dissolved like a flash, cleansed in water 20 degrees cooler than required by any existing soap, and rinsed away like magic.

Distinguished Committee approves new soap discovery

So perfectly did the new soap meet every requirement that the Committee of 17 went on record as "unanimously approving the new soap as perfect for the washing of silks, woolens and all fine fabrics."

"The name of the new soap, 'Palmolive Beads,' reveals the secret of why it gives such vastly better results," said the chemists who made this important discovery.

Palmolive Beads are the first soap for fine silks ever made in the form of tiny, hollow, instant dissolving "beads." The only fine fabric soap ever made of olive and palm oils ... oils hitherto reserved exclusively for complexion soaps.

Palmolive Beads are for sale everywhere at 10c the box—no more than you pay for ordinary flakes and chips. Get a box today.

Famous Silk Manufacturers unite with Committee of 17 in endorsing Palmolive Beads

Cheney — Kayser — Stehli
Corticelli — Luzite — Vanity Fair
Holeproof — Phoenix — Van Raalte

The above manufacturers analyzed Palmolive Beads in their own laboratories. They tested them again and again in washing tests on the silks they manufacture. And now all recommend Palmolive Beads for safe washing of silks.

Adenoids and Mouth Breathing

Everyone has adenoid tissue. It is only when it becomes enlarged that it is dangerous to health. Enlarged adenoids often accompany enlarged tonsils or swollen neck glands. The causes of these troubles are usually similar, and the three together constitute the most common of children's disorders.

Due to the location of the adenoid tissue, when it becomes enlarged it may cut off the breathing through the nose so that the child is forced to breath with the mouth open, and usually sleeps in this position.

The adenoid tissue is a lymphatic tissue similar to that of the tonsils, but since it is situated in the upper back part of the nose, cannot be seen from the outside. Mouth breathing is the outstanding symptom that the adenoids have enlarged. A mouth that hangs open, the dull expression, a lack of pep, are al lindications that the adenoids need attention. If the trouble continues for a long time, it may result in a deformed facial expression. As the teeth may become misshapen, the bony framework of the upper dental arch does not form properly and the teeth do not meet in a bite. The roof of the mouth becomes narrowed and the base of the nose broadened.

The enlarged adenoids thicken the child's lips and give him a dull, stupid look. Often the children are victims of night terrors, as the interference with breathing causes them to feel suffocated. They often snore while sleeping, or are restless and may breathe in loud snorts.

When enlarged tonsils are present the child will suffer from other catarrhal troubles, and are especially predisposed to colds and bronchitis. In some cases, the adenoids may become infected and the infection spread to the ear, causing deafness.

For many years I have claimed that adenoids enlarge mostly from too liberal a use of the carbohydrates, but many physicians who know more of surgery than they do of diet have ridiculed my theory; however, I am pleased to note that no less an international authority than Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the distinguished English surgeon, points out that, "In England and America, where children are fed plenty of starches and sugars, adenoids are more prevalent than elsewhere."

The treatment for adenoids should not be delayed after having been discovered, as they not only endanger the child's health, but may lead to incurable malformations of the jaws, palate, nose and face.

In most cases, enlarged adenoids will be reduced to normal by short fruit fasts followed by a non-starchy diet, but if the adenoid tissue has greatly enlarged it may sometimes be advisable to use surgical measures. However, before an operation, the thymus gland should always be examined under the X-ray, for if this gland is too large, an anaesthetic may be dangerous.

After the adenoids are corrected, the child should be trained to use the nose for breathing, and be given systematic breathing exercises.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cereals and Fruit

Question—Mrs. H. B. asks: "Are cereals with sliced fresh fruit a good combination?"

Answer—Cereals should never be combined with acid fruits. However, a glass of orange juice taken about an hour before a cereal breakfast is all right, as this fruit juice leaves the stomach almost entirely within that time.

Warts

Question—John N. writes: "I am troubled with warts growing on my fingers which are increasing in number and size. Have tried many remedies including acid, but with no permanent results. What do you advise?"

Answer—There is no doubt that the tendency to have warts appear on the skin is due to a condition of acidosis, from wrong food and improper combinations. They can be easily removed with the electric needle or by burning them off with acid, but until you learn how to eat correctly you can expert to have a return of these unsightly growths.

Pain in Back and Leg

Question—E. L. B. writes: "I have a constant pain in my back, which pains me in any position. I cannot lie for long in any one position in bed without a sharp pain coming in my back and going down my right leg. I have taken several osteopathic treatments, but do not see any improvement. Do you think a fruit fast would benefit me?"

Answer—Of course it is not possible for me to diagnose your trouble by mail, but I would suggest that at the same time you are taking the osteopathic treatments that you take a short fast, using plenty of water and five or six glasses of orange juice daily. Take two enemas each day to keep the bowels cleansed from any impurities, and you can find out in a few days whether or not your trouble is caused from the rheumatic toxemia, as the rheumatic poisons will be sufficiently eliminated in four or five days through this fasting.

Galloping Consumption

Question—T. A. asks: "What are the symptoms of galloping consumption?"

Answer—This form of consumption more closely resembles pneumonia, and runs an exceedingly rapid course. At the onset there is a severe chill, followed by a rapid pulse and high fever. Pain is felt in the chest, and the expectoration from coughing is white and frothy. Within a month the disease is very well developed, with a great loss of flesh and strength. If this disease is recognized quickly enough, it is possible to stop it, if taken before it reaches the danger stage. Since it is tuberculosis of an acute form, it is more dangerous than the chronic form that comes on gradually.

Earthquake Swallows Up Many in Soviet Area

STALINBAD, Tadjikistan, Soviet Republic, Sept. 25. (AP)—An earthquake which wiped out seven villages and badly damaged 10 others, killed 175 peasants, injured more than 300, and left about 1,200 families destitute in this region early today.

A special relief commission headed by vice Chairman Gluichak, of the Tadjikistan cabinet, has gone into the devastated region to render assistance.

The earthquake occurred at 4:15 a. m. Many of the victims were buried in the ruins of their homes where death overtook them in their sleep.

The Dude . . .

Not many years ago the man who took pride in his personal appearance was characterized as a "DUDE"—the wearing of a wrist watch immediately stamped the wearer as a fop—to appear on the street with spats—well it simply wasn't done that's all.

However, the late unpleasantness knocked the wrist watch fallacy into the limbo of forgotten things (as the writers put it) and strong headed thinking business men in a business like way with concerted, well planned, educational advertising elevated the erstwhile "DUDE" to his proper position—the forerunner of the well-groome l man.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS RENEW FOOTBALL RIVALRY IN GAMES TODAY

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Well, in the language of the top hats, I've been indisposed, but between you and me, I've been darned sick, with one of these summer colds.

Worrying about the doctor bills made me sicker than ever and I thought I never would get up, but when I finally staggered downtown yesterday I heard something on the way to work that made me see what real patience is.

There was a farmer who was talking about his cotton. He had just sold two bales, and I asked him how much he cleared of each bale. He said he made about $15 a bale, plus the seed, which brought the total profits to about $25.

At that rate a farmer must pick about 25 bales of cotton to make anywhere near a decent profit off the year's work, but this farmer had raised only a very few bales. Still he seemed contented, and he wasn't chewing the end off his shoes in worry.

But imagine all the work that goes into one bale of cotton, and to get only $25 profit for all of it!

In these days when baseball players and most everybody else are having a hard time making a living, it is good to learn that there are some people able to plug along without fretting too much.

Out of the Dawn

Came a card from Milt Steengrafe. It was written in Fresno, Calif. They had stopped there overnight en route to Oakland. Fresno is about 175 miles from Oakland, so I guess they're ensconced at home by now. With Steengrafe and his wife was Art Bradbury. They said they had a pretty good trip, but encountered bad roads in Arizona.

Football on Hosses

Polo has been one of the main topics of conversation here this week, the Junior chamber of commerce tournament in progress on Clinerowe field being the stimulus.

Polo has always been played in class A form in this city, and the sport has always deserved more comment and publicity than it has received. I might as well break down and confess that the reason Wichita Falls' team hasn't got a break on this page was, mainly, that the Rambler didn't know anything about polo; and second, the past baseball season took up a good deal of time.

Some of the polo players here are trying to pound a few points of the game into my head, and with a little more pounding I should get onto what it's all about.

I'm already certain of this much, that the Wichita Falls squad can stage a riotous spectacle when they bear down and play the game. There are many thrills in the sport world, but the thrills that come from a fast game of polo are not to be compared to the others.

The round robins tournaments this week drew fairly good crowds. A larger crowd should attend the Sunday matches, in which the tournament winners will be selected. There will be only a moderate charge, 25 cents per person, or a $1 fee for each automobile, no matter how many persons ride in it. And this charge is not made with the idea of making money. The fund will be used to defray expenses of keeping the horses. If more than 2,000 people don't turn out to see those Sunday matches it is proof that there are a whole lot of people in this town as ignorant of polo as I was up until the first of this week.

Incidentally, a plan is afoot to groom a new polo field. It will be located on the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club's golf greens just across from Clinerowe field, the present scene of polo maneuvers. The deal is now in a tentative stage, but might materialize shortly.

COYOTES MEET TEMPLE HERE

Vernon and Childress To Play Saturday

More than a score of football teams in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma will go into action this week-end, some of them entering district competition, while others continue the training process.

In the latter classification is the scheduled match here between the Wichita Falls High school Coyotes and the Temple, Okla., eleven. The game is to be played at Athletic park, beginning at 3:30 o'clock. It will be the second practice game of the season for the Pack, and will be their last chance at practice competition before meeting the Lubbock Westerners in the first conference game of the season here Oct. 4. Coaches Holton and Bill Morris kept up a steady practice grind all week, culminating in a light workout Thursday, in preparation for the contest.

Lions Play Saturday

The Vernon Lions Saturday will play their first conference game of the season, with the Childress Bobcats. The game will be played at Childress. Childress' victory over the Quanah Indians last week-end has thrown a scare into the Vernon camp, according to reports, with the result the Lions have been working overtime preparing for the opening league battle. Coaches Weir and Binnion the past week used every spare minute for practice, sending their first team against the second squad, which was drilled in Childress formations. The Lions expect to enter the battle with their full strength, with the exception of Beck Lawrence, who is out of the game temporarily with an injured leg.

Other games scheduled Saturday include Electra's game with the Cubs at Olney, and the contest between the Norman, Okla., and Amarillo teams at Amarillo.

Today's Contests

BRECKENRIDGE MEETS ANSON TEAM TODAY

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Sept. 25.—Four Oil Belt teams will engage in district contests this week, while the remainder of the teams resume their warming up exercises.

At this stage of the district race, Ranger and Big Spring are leading the pace, since they won the only district tilts played last week. Ranger defeated Brownwood and Big Spring triumphed over Mineral Wells.

San Angelo, Sweetwater, Cisco and Eastland are scheduled for district contests this week, both games being played on Friday afternoon. Sweetwater entertains the San Angelo crew and Eastland goes to Cisco for a night game.

San Angelo is scheduled to take on the Eastland Mavericks.

Injuries Hurt Breck

The Buckaroos engage the class B Anson Tigers here Friday in their second grid contest of the 1930 season. The Shotwell-coached club defeated Comanche here last Friday in the season opener, 52 to 6.

The Buckaroos have had more than their share of hard luck so far this season and it appears that injuries are determined to weaken the 1929 co-champions to such a degree that it will be impossible for them to repeat their 1929 record this season.

The latest hard luck that hit the Shotwell camp was the loss of Garland Carey, 1929 all-state end, who was permanently crippled in the game with Comanche here last week. Carey had a shoulder cracked up. The loss of Carey left Coach Shotwell only two of his 1929 regulars to build his 1930 machine around.

TIGERS PREPARE FOR BATTLE WITH CUBS

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 25.—After weeding out some of the faults brought to light in the game with Chillicothe last week-end, Coach Harvey Stanford sent his proteges through a rough and tumble scrimmage Wednesday afternoon which illuminated several unheralded prospects. Roger Golden, who has heretofore been a backfield scrub, showed up well in the scrimmage and will likely be used as a first string sub ere the schedule gets under way. Horace "Treetop" Birdsong, tackle, proved to the mentors that he was about just as good as the best, breaking through the line for many nice tackles.

The Tiger roster received a shock Wednesday, when it was disclosed that two likely first string substitutes would be lost to the team. Estill White, who has proven his worth as a speedy and shifty ball carrier up to date, will move to Odessa, and Arthur White, a scrub end, who has been showing some stuff, will leave for New Mexico. Keith Chunn, a light fast man, reported for practice Wednesday afternoon and it is thought that he will prove a valuable halfback.

Heavier Team

In determining the weight of the main squad of the Tigers this year it was found that the average weight of the team has increased approximately 15 pounds over last season, the 29 squad averaging 145 pounds and this year's team 160 pounds. The backfield will average 145 pounds to each man while the line boasts a 169-pound average.

New plays have been added this week to the list of the Electra's tricks and lots of time has been devoted to rehearsals of old plays and formations.

The Tigers play the Olney Cubs at Olney Saturday.

Twenty-two players will be taken to Olney and will leave early Saturday so as to have time to rest before the game as it will start at 2:30 o'clock.

In these days of high school football, when most of the smaller towns have to depend upon several members of one family or relatives for material, it is very seldom that three sets of brothers are members of the first string squad as is the case with the Tigers. Capt. Aubrey Smith, halfback; Cloyd Smith, fullback; Coye Sandefer, halfback; Eual Sandefer, quarterback; Roy Curfman, tackle, and Leonard Curfman, guard, compose the three pairs of brothers.

Starting Lineup

Following is the probable starting line-up for Saturday's game: Cloyd Smith, fullback; Capt. Aubrey Smith and Coye Sandefer, halfbacks; Eual Sandefer, quarterback; Monty McDannald, center; Leonard Curfman and Brooks Adams, guards; Joe Smith and Roy Curfman, tackles; Cecil Eaton and Millard Welch, ends. Others who will make the trip are: Roger Golden and Pete Delashaw, halfbacks; Pat McNamara, fullbacks; Robert Clonginger, quarterback; Maynard Stoud, center; Ben Rippy and Paul Groves, guards; Horace Birdsong and Clarence Keorth, tackles; Ross Head and C. W. Sanderlin, ends.

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 25.—Fans are anxiously awaiting the opening of the football season next Friday night when Lawton plays its first conference game with Weatherford under the floodlights recently installed at the fairgrounds.

One of the main attractions of the opening game and of the Cameron college game to be played Saturday night is the announcement that both games will be refereed by one of the best recognized authorities of the football world, "Biff" Jones, of army football fame, the man who was associated with the famous West Point teams for 11 years as player and coach. Captain Jones is attending the field artillery school at Fort Sill. Hundreds of fans of this section are anxious to see this famous player and coach.

Practice under the floodlights has been engaged in nightly by the Cameron college aggregation of gridiron warriors, 50 in number, a regular squad of whom will be given a grueling test in the opening game here Saturday night with the Texas Tech freshmen. As the team rounds into shape hopes are being entertained for another junior college championship this year. Teams are being coached again this year by Penn O. Dickson, who piloted the team to victory last season.

The Saturday night game has been widely advertised throughout Southwest Oklahoma and North Texas and a record crowd is expected to attend.

A scheduled five game series between the Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Phillies ran to 72 innings. There were two tie games, 11 and 16 innings.

Triple Golf Champ Rallies To Gain Semi-Final Round

Bobby Starts Badly but Afternoon Spurt Defeats Young Californian

MERION CRICKET CLUB, ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 25. (AP)—It isn't news when the ordinary golfer drives out of bounds, slices into a trap or takes three putts. It is not news when Bobby Jones does these things, but after a day and a half of embarrassing moments, the great Georgian suddenly snapped out his slump this afternoon, applied the par crusher to Fay Coleman, 23-year-old Californian, and swept into the semi-finals of the national amateur golf championship.

Jones, after an erratic morning round in which he looked like anything but a triple champion, staged a characteristic return to form to wallop Coleman by 6 and 5, in the 36-hole quarter finals. As a result Bobby has only two more all-day battles between him and the goal that no other golfer has ever approached—a clean sweep of all four British and American championships in one year.

Meets Sweetser Today

Tomorrow Jones will play an old rival, Jess W. Sweetser, Kentucky-bred New Yorker who shared with Jones the distinction of having held both the American and British amateur titles. Sweetser who had to engage in a playoff to qualify in this tournament, put on a comeback himself today to beat the youthful iron-man, Maurice J. McCarthy of New York, conqueror of George von Elm in a record breaking 28-hole second round match. Sweetser captured his quarter final match 5 and 4.

Two other semi-finals tomorrow bring together two youngsters who have been upsetting golfing dope by the wholesale in this tournament—19-year-old Charles Seaver, thick-set Los Angeles youth, and Eugene V. Homans of Englewood, N. J., 22-year-old, frail-loking former Princeton golf captain.

In the only other time they have met in the national amateur, Sweetser walloped Jones by the lopsided margin of 8 and 7 at Brookline in 1922, the year that Big Jess won the tournament. But the Georgian has become the giant of the links since then, holder of more national titles than any other man in golfing history.

Bad Morning Round

Had Coleman been able to do any consistent work at all with his putter today, the Californian might have given Jones an unpleasantly close call for Bobby was clearly off his game throughout the morning round. On the fourth hole, 595 yards, the Georgian topped his second shot and put his third in a trap but he got a half in six. He three-putted the first, but so did Coleman. He three-putted the sixth and lost it. He drove out of bounds on the 15th and lost the hole, but nevertheless he finished the round 2 up on a youngster who was unable to answer old man opportunity's knock at the door.

Before he started the afternoon round, Jones did something unusual for him by practicing 15 minutes with the wood and it paid immediate dividends. Despite two more lapses on the part of "Calamity Jane" his famous putter, Jones became six up at the 27th and played the last six holes in one under par to beat Coleman by 6 and 5 on the 31st green.

The schedule for the semi-final matches tomorrow calls for the Homans-Seaver contest at 8:30 a. m. (eastern standard time) and the Jones-Sweetser match at 9.

S. M. U. MAULS HOWARD PAYNE

Methodists Register 26-7 Victory

DALLAS, Sept. 25. (AP)—Sticking to straight football and using an army of reserves, the Southern Methodist university Mustangs steamrollered the Howard Payne Yellowjackets, 26 to 7, in their opening game here today. Approximately 12,000 saw the tilt.

Coach Ray Morrison started his strongest array against the Jackets but pulled them after three touchdowns had been scored in the first period. He sent them back in again late in the final quarter, when they quickly shoved across another score.

Howard Payne scored its only touchdown in the third period against a full list of Pony reserves. A pass, Gibbs to McQueen, carried to the one-yard line, from where McCarver plunged it over. It was the Jacket's only scoring threat of the game.

From the opening kick-off, which Weldon Mason carried back to Howard Payne's 35-yard line, the contest was one-sided. On the second play from scrimmage, Ray Johnson circled left end 31 yards for a touchdown.

Mason returned the next kick-off 50 yards to the Jackets' 26-yard mark, and it took only four plays for Hopper to plow across the goal. Another touchdown followed when Long, Mustang end, blocked a punt and downed it on the one-yard line. Hopper was allowed to take it over.

The final touchdown, made in gathering dusk, had its inception when Mason took a pass from Gilbert and galloped to the Jacket 20-yard line. Kattman took the oval through and across in two tries.

METHODISTS PLAY DURANT TODAY

DALLAS, Sept. 25. (AP)—Southern Methodist university will play an unscheduled football game with the Durant Teachers Saturday at Durant, Okla., it was learned tonight. Coach Morrison will take his entire squad.

It was understood the Mustang mentor desired to try out several plays to be used against Notre Dame next week. A Notre Dame scout was in the stands at today's game with Howard Payne college and the Methodists used only straight football.

The Brooklyn Robins continued to get first rate pitching all during the slump that carried the club from first to third place in the National league pennant race.

FIGHT POSTPONED

Threatening Weather Puts Stop to Campolo's Bout With Gob

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (UP)—The Sharkey-Campolo fight, scheduled for tonight but postponed because of rain, will take place Oct. 3, indoors, at the Madison Square garden.

Uncertain weather conditions led the decision to put the fighters inside rather than trust to the stadium climate.

Sharkey will remain in New York, to continue his rtaining here, while Campolo will leave tomorrow for Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg.

'OLD PETE' IN TROUBLE AGAIN

Former Star Admits Booze Charges

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Sept. 25. (UP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, a gaunt old man of baseball stood bare-headed before a country police judge here today and acknowledged his waywardness.

Alexander, who in his happier days made baseball history as a big league pitcher, told the judge he was guilty of operating an automobile while intoxicated, of possession of liquor and intoxication. Further he admitted he had attempted to flee from the scene of an accident and that he had only submitted to arrest after a six-mile chase.

The gaunt Nebraskan who was born in St. Paul, a rural farming community in the western sandhills, has had a disheartening career since his release by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards released "Old Alex" after he had failed to turn in victories and after his breaking of training rules had partially disrupted the team. They did this, club officials said, despite the fact that Alexander had been one of the greatest pitchers of all time.

A short term with the Dallas team of the Texas league ended in "mid-season after the "grand old man" had failed to abide by club orders.

James O. Hazard, mentioned several years ago for Walter Camp's All-American football team, has been made state forester in Tennessee.

WICHITANS WIN POLO BATTLE

Tulsa and Crowell Lag In Second Round Robin

The Wichita Falls polo team carried off top honors in the round robin event played Thursday on Clinerowe field and squared accounts with the Tulsa team which won first place in Tuesday afternoon's play. The Wichitans made seven goals in the nine periods played, while Tulsa tied with Crowell with a total of four goals. Both Tulsa and Crowell were spotted one goal at the start.

Horrace Robbins was the star of the day in scoring, accounting for four of his team's tallies, three of them being made in play. The fourth he shot unmolested from the 40-yard line on a foul by Jim Minnick Jr. C. H. Featherston, E. R. Fain and Hubert Stringer each made one goal for the Wichita Falls team.

Jim Minnick Sr. scored all of Tulsa's goals. Bill Berry scored two for Crowell, and Glen Orfield one.

The round robin events over, the teams now await the Sunday clash, in which winners of the Junior chamber of commerce trophies will be selected. The Wichita Falls Blues will play the Crowell team in the upper bracket for top honors, while the Tulsa team will play the Wichita Falls Whites for second place honors. Trophies will be awarded the winner of each match, the cups being donated by local merchants.

Play will start at 2:30 o'clock, it was announced.

To assure a good field, sprinkling will be started early Sunday morning, and by afternoon possibility of the field being too dusty should be eliminated. Tuesday's games were played in a high wind and in clouds of dust.

Admission of 25 cents per person, or a maximum of $1 per car will be charged, the funds to be used in paying for upkeep of the visiting teams' horses.

CARDINALS NEED ONLY ONE MORE GAME TO WIN PENNANT

GRIMES BLANKS PIRATES, 9 TO 0

20,000 Red Bird Fans See Leaders Win

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25. (AP)—Cheered on by more than 20,000 home town fans, the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 9 to 0, here this afternoon and now need only one more game to clinch the 1930 National league pennant.

Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer, pitched superb ball to bring the Redbirds victory, while his hard-hitting teammates blasted Ray Kremer, Pirate right-hander, from the hill in the second inning.

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, big Redbird first baseman, sent the noisy fans into a frenzy of joy early in the first inning with a long home run over the right field pavilion, scoring Adams and Frisch ahead of him. Just before this Douthit, who had doubled when the inning opened, had scored on Frisch's single.

Spencer went to the mound for Pittsburgh in the second, but the confident Cards kept on hitting, scoring two more runs in that inning, one in the third, and two in the sixth.

Manager Gabby Street and his Red Birds were happy men tonight and vowed they would go out to clinch the pennant by taking the second game from the Pirates tomorrow. Since the Chicago Cubs won today from the Cincinnati Reds, the Cardinals must win one more game to assure them the National league championship and the chance to battle the Philadelphia Athletics, American league champions, in the world's series. Hornsby Steers Cubs to 4 to 3 Win Over Reds After McCarthy Resigns

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. (AP)—Rogers Hornsby snatched the Chicago Cub reins as they dropped from Joe McCarthy's hands today and steered his charges to a 4 to 3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. The victory enabled the Cubs to remain mathematically in the National league pennant race for at least one more day as the St. Louis Cardinals needed two triumphs, including today's game, to clinch the title.

McCarthy, deposed in favor of Hornsby 48 hours before with the understanding he was to finish the season, suddenly requested he immediately be relieved. His request was granted by President William L. Veeck, who handed the club over to Hornsby shortly before game time.

The contest was a battle of home runs and came very close to becoming Cincinnati victory in the ninth inning. Leading by 4 to 1 as he went into the ninth, young Bud Teachout, who had pitched effectively, saw Tony Cuccinello crash his second homer of the game over the left field wall and Harry Heilmann, the next batsman slam one over the same barrier.

Ford followed with a single and Hornsby stuck his head out of the dugout and motioned Pat Malone to the mound. Malone ended the rally quickly disposing of two pinch batters. Score:

Success of Oklahoma U. Team May Depend on Group of Sophomores

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 25. (AP)—Oklahoma has less veteran football material this year than any other big six school, except Missouri, and the outlook is just as uncertain as it is in the Tigers' camp.

Ten lettermen, and only half of the 21 who received the varsity "O" last year. Five others were squadmen a year ago. The others of the varsity squad have been untried in conference competition and the success of the season may hinge on these sophomores.

Of the sophomores who have shown marked ability, Ab Walker, quarterback and Richard (Hunkie) Phillips, tackle, are outstanding.

Robert Fields, center, is captain. Hilary Lee, guard, previously was a tackle and Darrell Ewing, end, was a guard last year. Other lettermen: Curtis Berry, tackle; Harold Roberts, end; Raymond Stanley, guard; Guy Warren and Colonel "Bus" Mills, halfbacks; Clyde Kirk and Ernest Massad, fullbacks.

The Sooners will have played one game before opening their conference season Oct. 11 with the 1929 champions, Nebraska. The initial struggle is a non-conference affair with New Mexico, where Tom Churchill now is assistant coach. Following Nebraska the Oklahomans meet Texas in Dallas as a feature of the Texas State fair. Their remaining five games are with four conference foes and their state rivals, Oklahoma A. & M.

First Amarillo College Team Whips Decatur

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 25. (AP)—The first football team to represent the new Amarillo Junior college launched its career today by defeating the Decatur Baptist college, 38 to 0, at Butler field.

Sophomores must bear the brunt of Duke's 11-game football schedule this fall. The Blue Devil ranks have been depleted of upper classmen.

Newcomers to Get Trial In Saturday's Game

Special to The Record News

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 25.—Three men, all of them backs, whose names are comparatively new in the Southwest conference football circles will be in the lineup of the Texas Aggies when they meet the Southwestern university Pirates in the opening game of the season at Kyle field Saturday, according to tentative lineup announced by Matty Bell, head coach of the Aggies.

Bob Harling, Houston, was announced as the choice for the quarterback berth, the position which is probably giving the Aggie coaches more worry than all others combined. Like the brilliant Tommie Mills, captain of the Aggies last year whom he succeeds as field general, Harling is a product of the intramural football league at A. & M. He is a former Milby High school (Houston) athlete, and is an excellent passer and ball-toter and fair punter.

Newcomers to Play

Jimmie Aston, sophomore from Farmersville, and William Wolf, Corpus Christi, who saw slight service as reserves last year, are the other two newcomers in the backfield. Both are good ball carriers and interference runners and Aston is exceptionally good as a passer and punter. Capt. Graceton Floyd, Rosewood, completes the backfield selection at fullback, the position he filled capably last fall.

The starting lineup announced by Coach Bell gives A. & M. a forward wall made up entirely of veterans, all of them, except Paul McFadden, scintillating wingman from Cleburne, having been lettermen last year. The linemen are Adrian Tracy, Houston, left end; Byrom Magrill, Marshall, left tackle; Jack Christian, Abilene, left guard; Dan Abbey, Del Rio, center; Roscoe van Zandt, Fort Worth, right guard; Carl Moulden, Cisco, right tackle; McFadden, right end.

Four Men Injured

With the exception of four men, the A. & M. gridsters are in the best of physical condition for the opening game, and it is believed that Saturday afternoon these four men will be ready to go. Jimmie Aston, named to start at half, was nursing an injury to his foot early in the week and may not be ready for service Saturday. In case he is forced out of the lineup, either Harry Stiteler, 137-pound back from Smithville, or Robert Earnwalt, sophomore from Shreveport, will likely go in at left half. Earnwalt, too, is bothered with an injured leg, as is Oliver Guseman, guard, from Houston. W. W. Hewitt, Groesbeck, back, is the fourth man on the injured list. He is also suffering from an injured foot.

Harry Phillips, McKinney, squadman last year, will likely be the second choice for quarterback Saturday while about 40 members of the Aggie squad will see duty if the game goes decidedly in the favor of A. & M. Coach Bell said.

Old Gold most Appealing Cigarette

By ROBERT RIPLEY

"OLD GOLD seems to me to be one of the biggest 'believe-it-or-nots' to be found.

"That's why I accepted OLD GOLD'S challenge to conduct a series of taste-tests in public places, with the distinct understanding that they would publish the results . . . WIN, LOSE OR DRAW.

"I've just completed the first test at the New York Athletic Club. Fifteen guests each smoked the four leading brands of cigarettes, with names concealed. Each picked one as best and I removed the masks.

"And, believe it or not . . . OLD GOLD won! Picked by 7 smokers to 3 for the next brand.

"'Believe it or not' fans know I prove my facts. I'll gladly send you an auditor's report of the score."

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

MELLOWED A HUNDRED MILLION YEARS

Long, long ago in PENNSYLVANIA

MILLIONS of years ago in the Devonian Age—while the world rocked with earthquakes and mighty, armored fish swam the seas—Nature stored away in the Bradford-Allegany District of the Pennsylvania field her most valuable crude oil.

Bradford-Allegany crude owes its superior quality to earth conditions in the Devonian Age—an age when heat, pressure and materials were more favorable to the forming of oil than they ever were in the oil-forming ages which went before—or came afterward. And Bradford-Allegany crude has mellowed and filtered for a hundred million years—long enough to bring the crude to the point where its lubricating quality commands the highest price in the Pennsylvania field!

Nothing but Bradford-Allegany crude is used in making Sinclair Mobiline Motor Oil. But before Bradford-Allegany crude becomes Mobiline Motor Oil it goes through an exhaustive refining process in the big, new Sinclair refinery at Wellsville, N. Y. Here it is triple-filtered, de-waxed at as low as 60° F. below zero and tested to flow freely at zero.

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Mobiline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication. Examine this Mobiline after long, hard driving. Note how it stands up—how it comes out of the crankcase almost as good as it went in. Note, especially, how little has been used up—positive, visible proof that this rich, Devonian oil protects the last mile as well as the first!

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—Advances from an irregular opening were followed by renewed weakness in cotton today, with prices making new low ground for the movement in the market here.

The new October contract after selling at 10.59 during the early trading, broke to 10.44 late in the afternoon, or 7 points net lower and to the lowest price touched by any contract in New York futures since the earlier years of the world war. Closing quotations were at the lowest of the day with the market barely steady at net declines of 5 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 3 points with near months relatively easy under liquidation incident to the issuance of October notices. There was some buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool, which was reflected in the later months, while the near month selling was readily absorbed by trade buying or buying by spot houses against sales of later deliveries.

Liverpool cables said hedging in that market had been absorbed by covering and continental buying, but that business in Manchester was less active with fear of lower prices checking the demand. Port receipts today 43,547. U. S. port stocks, 2,427,199. Exports, 29,419, making 996,622 so far this season.

Futures closed steady, 5 to 11 points lower; spot steady; middling 10.55.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25. (AP)—The cotton market was active today with comparatively narrow but frequent fluctuations. Today was first notice day for October deliveries and notices for 6,500 bales were issued here and 31,700 bales in New York. The notices were responsible for opening irregularity but prices soon became steadier as it was apparent that spot interests were stopping the notices at prevailing differences and prices rallied 7 to 8 points from the opening lows.

After mid-session prices reacted owing to considerable liquidation of October and hedge selling, declining 14 to 15 points from the highs. The market continued to decline in the final trading and made new lows right at the end, 21 to 22 points under the highs and closed at the lowest showing net losses for the day of 11 to 17 points.

Liverpool came in 2 to 3 points better than due but first trades here were 3 points down to 1 up. After easing off a few points in early trading on October liquidation the market rallied on the stoppage of the notices, October trading up to 10.57, and December to 10.85, or 7 to 8 points above the early lows.

After mid-session the market reacted under pressure of liquidation and hedge selling, October dropping to 10.46 and December to 10.68, down 14 to 15 points from the highs.

The market continued to decline in the late trading due in a measure to bearish statements from Washington officials as to rain and made new lows near the end with October at 10.36 and December at 10.63, down 21 to 22 points from the highs. The close was at the lowest with October 17 and December 15 points net down.

Port receipts 43,047, for week 285,095, for season 1,951,456, last season 1,514,236. Exports 25,969, for week 130,541, for season 971,863, last season 759,385. Port stock 2,431,467, last year 1,118,718, combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston totaled 81,971, last year 120,042. Spot sales at southern markets 61,357, last year 72,629.

Futures closed steady at net decline of 11 to 17 points:

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Sept. 25. (AP)—The wool market is quite active, with demand covering all grades domestic wools from fine to common and braid. The finer grades including 58, 60's and above are receiving bulk of demand although demand for lower grade is better and appears to be expanding in a moderate way. A fairly good volume of late repeat orders on heavy weight goods which may account for the more active demand on medium wools, is being reported in the trade.

Stocks Slump Again but Market Presents Altered Appearance

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (US)—Stock prices slumped again today, but the market seemingly was of a changed character from that of recent sessions of weakness.

It was obvious that concerted professional attacks were primarily the cause of the weakness that developed, although considerable new liquidation was induced in many issues. On the averages, all groups declined into the lowest area since the extreme bottom of the June break.

In a few pivotal stocks, however, there was displayed a more powerful resistance than had heretofore been apparent. In few instances, however, was the buying in volume except at new low prices. Generally speaking, external news of the day exerted only minor influence on stock quotations, although renewed weakness in grains failed to help sentiment, particularly since the grain selling followed a bearish forecast from Washington sources which had attempted previously to stimulate optimism on grain prices. Volume continued above 3,000,000 shares, indicating more than anything else the continued activity of professionals on both sides of the market, the public remaining only a minor factor.

The bears singled out General Electric as the principal target for the day and in this issue they had in their favor such fully recognized factors as the stock's high selling ratio to its earnings, over 30 to 1, and the relatively small yield. The stock slumped to a new low on the present reaction and recovered only partially. With General Electric yielding to highly concentrated pressure there was little disposition actively to oppose the bearish endeavors in other issues and the entire market suffered a relapse, but the setback was more orderly than that experienced the previous day. A rally developed from the low levels but closing prices represented additional sizeable net losses for the day.

Such news as the reduction of Anaconda's dividend to $2.50 from $3.50, omission entirely of the Greene Cananea Copper and the Inspiration Copper dividends, and similar developments were hardly cheering, particularly with the persistent talk of Copper breaking the 10 cent level. Maintenance of U. S. Industrial Alcohol's dividend on a $6 rate helped to dispel some of the pessimism engendered by the Copper action, but Alcohol proved a disappointment as a performer. Once short covering was completed the stock sold off to close with a net loss. The market is concerned more with continuance of the Alcohol dividend than with payment for the current quarter. Air Reduction, which is affiliated with Industrial Alcohol through ownership of a block of its stock, likewise sold off and the selling of this issue was considered well-informed. Decline in Chrysler to a new low for several years reflected nervousness over the dividend, maintenance of which presumably depends upon early resumption of automobile buying.

The market as a whole is now virtually at the levels prevailing in June, when really important buying developed from banking quarters in no way responsible for the excesses of the bull market. Thus, it is fair to assume that unless these banking interests have since reversed their view of the market, they might reasonably be expected to be substantial buyers of stocks on any further setback. Technically, the market is in position to enjoy a rebound.

It was reported that Steel common and International Nickel along with Can, formed a triumvirate highly favored by banking interests closely identified with market affairs. From an unbiased observation, the market today had some cheering aspects, although it would be difficult to form a strong bullish affection for the market under prevailing circumstances. Nevertheless, a rally is so lofig overdue that both bull and bear forces may temporarily agree on its reasonableness.

One hundred and eleven issues reached new lows for the year. Most of these were in the relatively low-priced groups in which public participation is particularly heavy. Oil stocks were under pressure and many of them reached new lows.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. (US)—H. C. Donovan wires Logan & Bryan: "Coming East from Creston, Iowa, went through the worst portion of this season's corn crop in Iowa; much of it scarcely promises 10 bushels per acre. This condition prevails fully 100 miles until better near Ottumwa, and continues fairly good for this season on through to Monmouth, Ill., from which place north to here saw many fields promising 50 bushels per acre. However, considerable down stalks in places promising damage if heavy rain comes before husking."

Weather is now becoming clearer in France after much rain and windstorms which delayed threshing operations and lowered the quality of some of the late-sown wheat. Farmers are offering more freely now owing to confirmation of competition from Russia.

Minneapolis arrivals of wheat were 349 cars, compared with 316 cars last week and 284 cars last year. Duluth received 196 cars, compared with 489 cars last week and 690 cars last year. Winnipeg arrivals were 1,236 cars, compared with 2,186 cars last week and 1,745 cars last year. Seaboard clearances were: Wheat, 876,000 bushels; flour, 28,000 barrels; wheat and flour combined, 1,002,000 bushels.

The AGE of YOUTH

A New Serial By Arthur Somers Roche

responsibility for what had just happened. He said as much to Donna.

"That's too ridiculous," she said. "How can you blame yourself? If you had sought me out, forced money upon me—my dear man, I sought you out; I begged—"

"It wasn't begging," he interjected.

"It would seem that to an unprejudiced judge," she dryly stated. "Just the same, it's sweet of you—"

"The filthy little beast," said Granby.

"He isn't little," smiled Donna.

"Little of soul," said Granby. She was surprised that he could frame so simple a phrase. "God, he ought to be barred from decent society, and if he isn't . . ."

"I'm more likely to be barred," said Donna.

"I'll see every one," began Grandy. She cut him short:

"That's exactly what you mustn't do. Don't you see? A man can't possibly defend a woman. From physical violence, yes; but from slander—never. Chivalry went out years and years ago. Not a pure spirit but a guilty conscience now impels men to the defense of a girl."

He made no response until they had completed a circle of the floor. Then he spoke:

"But, my child, don't you see? A lot of people heard him. It's the sort of thing that can't be ignored."

"It's the sort of thing that must be ignored," she told him. "Do you know how many people will know of—of what he said, by tomorrow morning? Hundreds." She answered her own question. Suddenly he was conscious of the specks in her eyes, saw that they were merriest hazel again. "Do you know, you'll have to be seen with me a great deal now?"

"I should think," he gasped, "that that would be—quite the wrong thing."

"The only possible thing," she insisted. "If you and I seem to be frightened at a drunken man's word——"

"You know," he interrupted, "there's nothing in the world I'd rather do than—than go everywhere with you."

"It's at least gallant of you to say so," she smiled.

"Gallant? Why, Donna, rather than let a whisper be breathed——"

"So he made the lady honest by marrying her, eh?"

"You are honest, and couldn't be made so by me," he protested.

"Still, that's the conventional viewpoint when a girl is—kept," she said.

"But—but you aren't—that," he objected.

"Why not? Your money is keeping me in my apartment, keeping me in clothing, in food. . . ."

"It was a gift from me, for which I exacted no return," he reminded her.

"And because I gave no return, I'm better than those girls who do make return?"

"I won't let you talk this way about yourself," he said.

"You can't help me thinking this way," she said.

"But I can ask you not to."

The music ceased and they made their way to their table. As they sat down a woman approached. Donna knew her slightly as a Mrs. Blaine Curlew. Women like Mrs. Curlew, fat, unattractive, tiresome, with no possible charm, filled the society pages, filled the rotogravure sections of the Sunday newspapers. Women like Mrs. Curlew had made Donna feel that what they had achieved she could also achieve. Yet now, as she saw the smile of greeting on the fat, unprepossessing countenance, she realized that there were other reasons, perhaps, than wealth why some of the people whom she had envied occupied the positions which they did.

For Mrs. Curlew had overheard Frank Gardner. Unless she were totally deaf, she couldn't have failed to do so, and Donna had no reason to think the woman deaf. Yet she was approaching their table now. She had stopped. She was speaking:

"Miss Raynor, isn't it? I'm quite sure we've met. Hello, Ran. You two can't be permitted to sit by yourselves this way. I'm bored. I'm with a dull crowd. I insist that you join my table. Besides, several people want to meet Miss Raynor, and won't believe my boast that I know her. You'll come?"

"Why, we'd love to," said Donna.

Until she died, or Mrs. Curlew died, Donna would feel the obligation imposed on her by the other woman's kindly act. She had said, a moment ago, that chivalry had gone out years ago, that men could no longer defend women from aspersion. But if chivalry had vanished from the male heart, it was tonight present in the feminine heart of Mrs. Curlew.

For the fat old dowager was telling every one present in the night club that she thought Frank Gardner was an unspeakable cad, and that she didn't believe a word of his accusation against Donna. Not by words was she rallying to Donna's defense, but by deeds.

And if the cordiality her guests showed the new arrivals was slightly overdone, Donna set it down not to unwillingness to receive her, but to the natural wish on their part to make her feel that they hadn't noticed anything.

She danced once with Bob Curlew, once again with Granby, and twice with other men at the table. Then, as the party broke up, Mrs. Curlew asked Donna to lunch with her at Pierre's on the morrow.

In an anteroom outside the older woman spoke to Granby:

"I've paid a debt, Ran, that I thought could never be settled."

He stared uncomprehendingly at her.

"Your mother was nice to me, years ago, Ran," she said. "When people snubbed me, said I was a climber, your dear mother—well, she made it easy."

"You're a darling thing," said Granby, "and for two cents I'd kiss you."

"For less than that I'd let you," smiled Mrs. Curlew. "But save the kisses for the little girl."

Granby shook his head.

"I barely know her, Mrs. Curlew."

"Sorry; I shouldn't have said that. Come in to tea soon."

"I will," promised Granby, and meant the promise.

"She did more for you than any one else there could have done," he said, as they drove away. "She openly showed that she didn't believe——"

But Donna didn't hear him. The moment they were beyond the vision of the doorman she crumpled. There, in the back seat of the taxi, the pride that had thus far sustained her gave way, and the dignified young woman, whose bearing had won admiration from Mrs. Curlew's party tonight, was just an ashamed little girl sobbing out her humiliation.

Some inner spirit prompt Granby not to yield to the natural impulse. He didn't put his arms around her; he didn't stroke her hand; he did none of the things he wanted to do and shouldn't have done. Instead, he lighted a cigaret and stared at the shadowy back of their driver.

As the car drew up before Donna's apartment Granby touched the taximan on the shoulder.

"Over to Fifth, down to 46th and through to Park and then back here," he said.

A moment later Donna sat up and looked at him.

"Why?" she asked.

He colored.

"Didn't think you wanted to go in just then. Give yourself time to pull together, so to speak."

"I'm pulled together now," she said grimly. "Oh," she blazed, "if I could hurt Frank Gardner, hurt him, hurt him. . . ."

Now, without fear of misinterpretation, Granby took her hand.

"Mustn't let yourself go," he said. "Been a brick up to now. Mustn't get excited now that it's all over. Thing to do is forget that Gardner ever spoke to us at all."

"But I can't forget him," said Donna.

"Drunken rotter, that's all," said Granby.

"That's isn't all,' said Donna. "He—he told the truth."

"He lied," said Granby.

"You are keeping me," said Donna.

"Not the way Gardner meant—God, if he'd meant it, I'd find it in my heart to forgive him. But he didn't mean it. He knows better, Donna, any one, looking at you, knows instantly and forever that you're . . . I hate the word, but there isn't any other . . . pure. But because he's jealous, because he's a bully, because his money has kept him from responsibility . . ."

"You have money, too, but it hasn't prevented you from being decent," said Donna.

"I'm not excusing him." Granby laughed harshly. "God knows I'm not—I'm explaining him, if it's necessary. But—let's not think of him. Donna, there are things a woman can't fight alone. You said that she must fight them alone, that a man's aid was a hindrance. But if that man is her husband . . ."

"Are you asking me to marry you?"

"What else?" he countered.

"You're sweet,' she told him. "And generous, and—too utterly ridiculously chivalrous to a girl to whom you owe nothing and who owes everything to you. And tomorrow morning, when you awake from sleep, you'll be terribly grateful to me because I didn't take advantage of you. No, I won't marry you."

"You'd be much better off married to me than as you are," he said.

Delightedly, she saw that he was sulky about it, and sulky men are handled with slight difficulty.

"Explain to me how," she asked.

But he was conscious of mockery and they finished the ride in silence.

He paid off the taximan at the door.

At the doorway he paused.

"Did you mean that—about seeing a lot of me?" he asked.

"Of course," she said. "That is," she archly added, "if you don't mind."

"That," he told her, "is coquetry unworthy of you."

Again he surprised her by his phrasing. Not that he had said anything in the least bit quarrelsome—from any one else. But from Ran Granby anything that savored of a mental process was surprising. This was unjust. Why should she have assumed that Granby was stupid? With sudden clarity of thought she realized that she despised his mentality because of what he had done for her.

She yielded to a sudden impulse. She lifted her lips to his and kissed him.

The kiss was as swift as the peck of a bird. The merest touch of lip upon lip. It was the sort of kiss a child might give to a parent, the sort of kiss a sister might bestow upon a brother. Unfortunately, to the man lurking in the doorway, it was simply a kiss, and the participants therein were known to him to own no blood kindred to each other.

JONES PRAISES G.O.P. NOMINEE

Wichitan Tells of Career Of Col. W. E. Talbot

Enthusiastic endorsement of Col. William E. Talbot of Dallas as Republican nominee for governor of Texas was given here Thursday by Roy B. Jones, president of the Panhandle Refining company and prominent Texas Republican.

In a statement made here, Mr. Jones briefly reviewed the business career of Colonel Talbot, and expressed the wish that Wichita Falls residents consider his qualifications in the general election.

Business Man

"Bill Talbot isn't seeking a job, nor is he looking for political honors," declared Mr. Jones.

"Of the first, he has an executive position with a large insurance concern which pays him several times over the amount of the salary of the governor of Texas. The public has been generous in honoring him. The latest compliment of this sort was paid recently when he was unanimously chosen as commander of the American Legion, John W. Low post.

"Beginning as an engine wiper in the old Santa Fe railroad roundhouse at Cleburne, Bill Talbot moved along rapidly to his present position.

"When the war broke out in 1917 he was in the automobile business with headquarters in Dallas. He enlisted in the forty-second (Rainbow) division and served throughout the entire time in France and Germany. Returning to Dallas he, in 1922, built up the state organization of the Republican party and designed the political procedure under which it is now operating. In 1924 he was southern manager for Coolidge and campaign manager for Dr. George C. Butte. Then business for a few years. In 1930 he was drafted by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce to take the census of Dallas and Collin counties district and was called in by the national bureau in an advisory capacity on many other cities. His was the first district in the United States to close its count and to have its figures approved without change.

Talbot Is Salesman

"But Talbot is first of all things a salesman. If he were governor his whole program would revolve around selling Texas to the world.

"And it isn't just a theory with Talbot. He has studied economic conditions. He has studied production and marketing. It was Bill Talbot who was picked to develop the Rio Grande valley section. Before he put an acre of a section bigger than an average New England state on the market he had provided complete marketing agencies for every product that could be raised there, established experimental stations to develop the resources of this fertile valley and prepared it for those who were to come."

Barnes Damage Suit Goes to Jury Today

Arguments to the jury were completed at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the damage suit of Seaton A. Barnes against the Southwestern Bell Telephone company and L. W. Kelly before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court.

At 9 o'clock Friday morning the jury will receive Judge Cook's charge and will immediately begin its deliberations, it was stated. The suit has occupied the court since Monday morning. Mr. Barnes seeks damages exceeding $52,000 for injuries suffered in an automobile crash last January, alleging in his petition that the accident was due to a car belonging to the telephone company and in charge of Mr. Kelly being parked on the highway near Jolly after dark with no lights burning.

AIRPORT LANDINGS

Two landings were reported at the Municipal airport and three were recorded at Staley field Thursday. The landings at the city field included a Lockheed-Vega, belonging to the Moran Drilling company of Oklahoma City, piloted by Pop Moore and a Spartan plane from the Spartan school at Tulsa, piloted by Jack Brody, a student of the school. E. Z. Armstrong, an instructor, accompanied Mr. Brody.

Staley field landings included an Eaglerock, owned and piloted by Frank Shaw, who was en route from Fort Worth to Borger; a Travelair belonging to Bo Minick and piloted by W. S. Garrett, en route from Muenster to Archer City; a Travelair owned by the Miller Flying Service of Austin, piloted by H. Dulard, from Austin and return; a Ken Royce, owned by the Rearwin Airplane company of Kansas City and piloted by W. D. Goss, en route from Graham to Kansas City, and an American Eagle, owned and piloted by F. A. Lasage of Graham on a return trip from Graham.

STATE: "The Silent Enemy," record of the Ojibway tribe in their struggle against hunger. Grandland Rice sportlight, screen song and sound news.

STRAND: Gary Cooper in "The Spoilers." Comedy and sound news.

MAJESTIC: "The Last of the Duanes" with George O'Brien. Short subjects and news.

It is as important to preserve the record of a dying race—the first Americans—as to film the exploits of conquering explorers in the Arctic regions. The only reason why "The Silent Enemy" is not as popular as "With Byrd at the South Pole" is that the latter had the advantage of two years of front page headlines. There are no screaming banners about the fast-dying Indian life—only a couple of paragraphs in the history book.

◇ ◇ ◇

"The Silent Enemy" gives a vivid picture of a life which could never be fully understood by the white race in any other way. It is a permanent contribution to history, geography and science. School children should be compelled to see it.

◇ ◇ ◇

To come from a magnificent spectacle such as "The Silent Enemy" and find a letter such as the following is just the sort of letdown reserved for sunny afternoons:

"Eleanor Fleming,
"Care Daily Times.

"Miss Fleming:

"Allow me to congratulate you on having the dizziest conception of how to judge a presentation of the well-known 'flicker' film!"

"Your sarcasm and unfounded statements in regard to "The Sea God" prompts this letter. You are said to be a critic—and what a fine gob of baloney you turned out to be! Some of the greatest undersea pictures, combined with an intriguing plot made 'The Sea God' one of the greatest pictures that has shown here in some time.

"Some time ago you raved on about Ramon Navarro. You wasted a perfectly good column of space printing such a line of hokum about this "God's gift to the ladies" as we have never before seen—except between two sweethearts. Well, I may as well inform you that he is married, and I'm sure wouldn't be in the position to appreciate you. I happen to know of more theater owners who have lost more money on Navarro's pictures than almost any other actor.

"You're rotten! Go fade out somewhere, will you, and I'm quite sure the public will appreciate it.

"I DARE you to publish this letter, complete!!!! Let W. L. Underwood have that column back—he knows how to criticize pictures.

"—Disgusted.

"P. S.—You might get a job at the laundry."

◇ ◇ ◇

The letter is published, "complete!!!!" with all the extra exclamation marks, mispelled words and bad grammar intact. When anyone goes so far as to DARE The Record News critic, he gets his letter published, although it would be impossible to publish all letters "complete!!!!" Comment is unnecessary.

Hord Gives Talk At College Assembly

Bill Hord, member of the local Hi-Y organization who attended the international Hi-Y meet during the summer, was the principal speaker at the regular high school and Junior college assembly Thursday morning, when he reviewed for the students the Passion Play, which he saw while abroad.

Girl Reserves will have their first regular meeting of the year Friday morning at the 35-minute period, according to information received Thursday.

All high school and Junior college girls are invited to the opening meeting, according to Miss Juanita Kinsey, faculty sponsor for the club.

STORES SHOW NEW FURNITURE

Wichita Merchants Join In National Exhibit

With the opening of participating furniture stores in Wichita Falls Friday morning at 8 o'clock, the National Home Furnishings Style show will be in effect. Furniture stores all over the United States are taking part in this style show, realizing that modes in furniture need to be shown as much as modes in clothes.

Homes have their rooms furnished in this generation with due attention to the style of house, the size and exposure of the room and the pocketbook of the owner. Furniture men realize the difference between museums of old times and livable rooms of today and this show has been brought about for the help of the housewife.

John E. Butts of the North Texas Furniture company is chairman of the publicity committee handling the National Home Furnishings Style show in Wichita Falls and the following firms are participating: North Texas Furniture company, Freer's, Popular Furniture company, Micks Furniture company, Star Furniture company, C. O. Roark Furniture company, McConnell Bros. Furniture company, E. F. Riley Furniture company and the Deaton Furniture company.

These furniture stores will be open from 8 o'clock each morning until 6 each evening until Saturday evening, Sept. 27, when they will remain open until 8:30 o'clock.

Monday evening, Sept. 29, North Texas, Freear's, Popular, Micks, Star, Roark, Deaton and McConnell furniture companies will close at 6 o'clock and re-open at 7 o'clock, remaining open until 10 o'clock with a full staff to act as hosts. Band concerts will be given at each of the stores participating in the evening show. The public has been invited to attend.

BUILDING PERMITS

A building permit for $5,000 and a repair permit for $1,500 were issued Thursday by City Engineer F. M. Rugeley. The building permit was granted Leslie Howard who will erect a residence at 1910 Victory. The work will be done by the Mytinger-Walker Construction company.

Jury Debates 40 Issues In Auto Crash Suit

Following hearings which required almost two days, a jury in the county court at law Thursday evening took under consideration more than 40 issues involved in a many-sided suit growing out of an automobile collision which occurred near the Country Club Estates last May 12.

The original suit was brought by B. G. Ramey against B. M. Foster, E. A. Foster, Dunlap Patillo, and Dr. A. D. Patillo, the plaintiff seeking $400 for damages said to have been inflicted upon his car in the crash. A cross-action was entered by Dunlap Patillo, asking damages from the plaintiff, B. G. Ramey, for injuries alleged to have been suffered in the accident.

An instructed verdict was returned in favor of Dunlap Patillo, Dr. Patillo, and E. M. Foster, owner of the car which collided with that of Mr. Ramey, according to the evidence submitted. The case was given to the jury on the plaintiff's cause of action against E. A. Foster, and of Dunlap Patillo against Mr. Ramey. The jury was excused at 5 p. m. Thursday to resume its deliberations Friday morning.

BABY CONTEST FAIR FEATURE

Much Interest Shown In Young County Event

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 25.—Thursday at the Young county fair was spent in judging different departments. The better baby contest was held Thursday morning with Drs. W. O. Padgett and D. E. Winstead of Graham in charge, assisted by Dr. H. P. Ledford, baby specialist of Wichita Falls and two trained nurses. More than 100 babies were entered in the contest in which P. M. Nicollett Jr., 11 months old, was grand champion baby, and also winner of first prize in the 6-to-12 months class. Jo Anne Stevens of Bunger was winner of second place.

In the 12-to-18 months class, Andrew Wheat of Loving won first prize and Billy Ray Myrick of Graham, second. In the 19-to-24 months class, Sarah Beth Mayes of Graham, age 20 months, won first prize and Robert Bradford of Eliasville, 20 months, second.

In the livestock divison increased interest is shown in sheep and goats and dairy cows. Both departments have on display twice as many animals as exhibited last year. Poultry authorities state the poultry show is best ever exhibited in this section.

The program of entertainment includes rodeos in the afternoon and evening, and "battle royal" in the evening of each day. Friday is education day to which all school children in the county will be admitted free. Club boys' judging contest will be held Friday morning.

Throckmorton and Graham will match for a football game Friday afternoon. Friday night is "joy night" and clowns will contest for prizes. Saturday, the closing day, is Young county day.

Rotarians Hear Talk By Chest Director

Continuing his circuit among local civic organizations, Frank E. Jaynes, educational director of the 1930 community chest, spoke Thursday noon before members of the Rotary club in their weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel.

Urging club members to help make the chest movement a success so that provision for feeding and clothing worthy applicants during the coming winter may be made, Mr. Jaynes said that there is now an unusual need for organized welfare and educational work to combat the efforts of socialist and radical orators who try to capitalize upon the unrest caused by the recent financial depression.

Announcement of the Wichita county fair which opened Thursday at Iowa Park was made by Herbert Voelcker, president, who asked members of the club to give it every possible support.
