U.S. Ambassador Killed In Cyprus

United Press International

U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies was shot to death today when rioters stormed the American embassy in Cyprus screaming against the U.S. failure to halt the Turkish invasion of the island.

The British foreign office announced a new Anglo-American approach to both Turkey and Greece to resume the Cyprus peace conference.

Eyewitnesses said Davies was killed in a burst of automatic weapons fire by gunmen who stormed the American embassy in the Cyprus capital of Nicosia under cover of a riot by 700 Greek Cypriots screaming "Kissinger, Kissinger."

However, the Greek news agency ANA, in a dispatch from Nicosia, said Davies was killed by a stray bullet which came through a window and hit him as he was standing in a corridor.

Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides said a U.S. Marine guard also was killed and ANA said a Greek Cypriot girl, Antonietta Varnava, believed to be a stenographer in the embassy, also died.

Greek Premier Cnstantine Karamanlis denounced the shooting and said it would only add to Greece's current troubles over Cyprus. Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes said the shooting helped justify Turkey's military offensive on the island.

Eyewitnesses said the gunmen wore the military-style uniforms favored by EOKA-B, the Greek Cypriot guerrilla organization that has fought for years to unite Cyprus with Greece.

Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides sai an unidentified U.S. Marine guard also was killed in a burst of submachinegun fire.

Clerides rushed to the embassy to try to help and issued a statement deploring "this heinous crime." In Athens, Greek Premier Constantine Glafkos Clerides said an Karamanlis denounced the shooting of Davies and said it will only add to Greece's troubles over Cyprus.

On the military front, Turkish forces with American-built tanks slashed across the southern approaches to Nicosia in a drive to cut off the landlocked capital from the sea despite U.S. criticism that the Turkish offensive has gone too far.

In Nicosia, UPI Correspondent Michael Keats said Davies was killed when a mob of 700 Greek Cypriots descended on the embassy at midday screaming "Kissinger! Kissinger! Get your Turkish friends to help you now!"

The mob burned Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in effigy and set fire to at least five cars in the embassy compound. The cars blew up when flames reached their gasoline tanks, darkening the embassy area with clouds of thick black smoke.

The demonstators burned the American flag, shouting, "burn them down, as they burned Cyprus down."

Greek Cypriot policemen hurled tear gas grenades at the demonstrators in a futile effort to hold them back from the embassy building.

Still the mob came on, carrying banners reading "Murderers, your mask has fallen" and "NATO murderers of Cyprus."

Gunmen sprayed the embassy with submachinegun fire. The rioters cheered.

U.S. Marine guards inside the building fired over the heads of the demonstrators and they broke and ran. Under the cover of the demonstrators, the gunmen stormed into the building.

Fighting has continued, however, and with the outgunned and outnumbered Greek Cypriot National Guard in constant retreat. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger hinted Sunday at a possible cutoff of U.S. military aid to Turkey.

State Department spokesman Paul Hare said Davies, 53, a career foreign service officer, died of gunshot wounds in the chest fired from an automatic weapon.

In London, the British foreign office spokesman said Great Britain and the United States have drafted a plan to try for a new Cyprus peace conference.

While the plan does not encompass a final settlement, diplomatic sources said a federal solution involving dividing Cyprus into self-governing Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot enclaves appeared inevitable.

Officials said they doubted they could get peace talks going this week.

The new effort was agreed on during talks in Washington this past weekend between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and British Ambassador Sir Pete Ramsbotham.

Both governments have begun sounding out Athens and Ankara as well as the Greek and Turkish Cypriots about resuming peace talks, the foreign office spokesman said.

The Kissinger - Ramsbotham understanding was reached before the fatal shooting today of Rodger P. Davies, the American Ambassador on Cyprus. It was not immediately known whether this grave incident would affect the peace effort.

Turkey's American-equipped armor struck south of Nicosia today in a drive to isolate the Cypriot capital in defiance of the United States. The Greek-led defenders reported 16,000 casualties in a month of fierce fighting.

A government spokesman in Nicosia said an estimated 4,000 Cypriots of Greek origin have been killed and 12,000 wounded since Turkish troops invaded the island a month ago.

THOUSANDS OUT OF WORK

Auto Industry Problems Cause Production Delay

United Press International

Strikes at two key parts suppliers and other auto industry labor problems left thousands of auto workers out of work today and forced a delay in the production of 1975 model cars and trucks.

Some 16,000 General Motors employes were idled at six GM truck plants in Michigan, Maryland, Wisconsin, Georgia and Canada and a GM auto plant in Massachusetts as the nation's largest automaker postponed the start of new model production.

The postponement was triggered by strikes against two Milwaukee, Wis., plants. A. O. Smith Corp., which makes suspension parts and frames, and Briggs & Stratton Corp., which manufactures door and ignition locks.

Some 4,300 workers at GM's Chevrolet plant in Indianapolis, Ind., also have been laid off because of the strikes.

GM was particularly hard hit, since the strikes at Briggs & Stratton and A. O. Smith come on top of lingering strikes at GM plants in Lordstown, Ohio and St. Louis, Mo. Those strikes affect some 13,500 workers.

Some 3,800 workers at the Chrysler truck plant in St. Louis, Mo., were also idled because of the strikes and American Motors said it may have to close its Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant Aug. 26 if the strikes are not settled.

But while the auto industry grappled with its growing problems, New York grocery stores got back into operation.

A&P food stores reached agreement during the weekend with some 18,000 striking employes and stores began to reopen today.

There also was some encouraging news from the striking National Football League Players' announced Sunday that it had sharply reduced its contract demands, including the controversial "freedom issue" in an effort to end the long football strike.

Striking Buffalo, N.Y., grain elevator workers also returned to their jobs today after voting Sunday to accept a new contract.

NOMINATES VA HEAD

Ford Pledges More Aid For Veterans Programs

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Ford, saddened by the shooting death of the U.S. ambassador to Cyprus, today pledged help for Vietnam veterans and said he would nominate former Rep. Richard Roudebush to revitalize the much-criticized Veterans Administration.

Ford's first out of town trip as President was marred by the news that U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus Rodger Davies was shot to death by anti-American rioters in Nicosia. Ford expressed his shock and said he was "deeply saddened."

"This tragic incident emphasizes the urgent need for the end to the violence on Cyprus and an immediate return to negotiations for a peaceful settlement," Ford said in a statement released en route to Chicago.

In a speech prepared for the 75th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Ford promised that "during my administration the door of my office will be open to veterans as it was in the Capitol."

"The veteran is a human being and not just a 'C' number to be processed by a computer system," Ford said. "The government knew your name when you were called to service. This administration is going to see to it that we still know your name and your problems."

Ford's choice of Roudebush, a former Indiana congressman, to head the VA was widely expected and had the backing of most major veterans organizations. Criticism of VA inefficiency from those organizations forced Donald Johnson to resign as head of the agency about two months ago.

Roudebush has been Johnson's deputy at the VA. Earlier he served in the House as a GOP representative from Indiana before failing to win a 1972 bid for the Senate.

Ford said he was "deeply concerned" about continuing high unemployment among former servicemen, especially those who served in Vietnam, and expressed determination to improve various assistance programs, particularly those involving education and medical care for he disabled.

"This adminstration puts a high priority on aiding the men who bore the brunt of battle," he said. "If we can send men thousands of miles from home to fight in rice paddies, certainly we can send them back to school and to better jobs at home."

But the President gave no details and coupled his promises to a clear warning that he would veto big money bills for veterans just like any other legislation if he decided they would undercut the battle against inflation.

Specifically referring to veterans education bill still awaiting final congressional approval, Ford said: "America is fighting for its economic life. I will not hesitate to use the veto to control inflationary excesses."

On Sunday night, Ford set aside "thinking time" in order to review his final list of vice presidential candidates, a White House official said.

VP Announcement Expected Tuesday

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Ford, nearing a final decision on his vice presidential nominee, will formally announce his choice Tuesday, a White House spokesman said today.

Another White House official said the candidate would be a Republican.

White House Press Secretary Jerold terHorst told reporters aboard Air Force One that Ford would make the announcement promptly after he makes his decision for the No. 2 spot. TerHorst said it was possible the announcement could come Tuesday afternoon.

On Sunday sources said Ford narrowed his choice down to two names. Former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was widely believed to be one of the choices.

When he returns to Washington after addressing the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention here, Ford will spend more time on his final selection.

Counselor Robert Hartmann said Ford plans to talk to several candidates about the job.

Ford told reporters after a round of golf Sunday that he had been thinking about the vice presidency "very seriously" and that "we're getting close to a decision."

Other sources said his list of prospects had been narrowed to two or three candidates — and still included former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. The other leading contender is George Bush, the GOP national chairman. Both men are vacationing in Maine.

Newsweek magazine reported today that Bush had "slipped badly because of alleged irregularities in the financing of his 1970 Senate race in Texas."

Ford originally intended to make the nomination by this weekend but economic problems, the on-again, off-again war in Cyprus and the state visit of Jordan's King Hussein diverted his attention.

Ford said Saturday that Rockefeller was still under consideration despite attempts by a "right wing extremist group" to link the former governor to a plot to finance "dirty tricks" at the 1972 Democratic national convention.

Presidential Press Secretary Jerry terHorst said that an investigation by Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had failed to turn up any evidence linking Rockefeller with the schem.

AFTER EXPLOSION

Bomber Rumors Hit Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A wave of telephoned bomb threats rippled throughout the city Sunday, one day after police ruled out the possibility that the "alphabet bomber" caused a devastating chemical explosion in an industrial district.

Police evacuated the Delta, Pacific Southwest Airlines and Hughes Air West passenger terminals at the Los Angeles International Airport Sunday after receiving telephone calls of planted bombs.

The evacuation was a precautionary measure, spurred by a bomb explosion at the Pan American passenger terminal at the airport Aug. 6 that killed three persons and wounded 35 others.

The Greyhound bus terminal, where a police bomb squad found a planted bomb in a locker Friday night, was also evacuated during the day after police received a call that another bomb had been planted there.

No bombs were found at the airport or the bus station.

Police said hamburger stands, newspaper offices, sporting arenas and theaters were also targets of bomb hoaxes.

The Saturday explosion at a trucking company injured five persons and caused an estimated $5 million damage. Early speculation was that the "alphabet bomber," a man who telephoned police and took credit for bombing the airport and planting the bomb at the bus station, had struck again. But police later ruled this out.

The bomber identified himself as "Isaa Rasim," self-professed "chief military officer" of "Aliens of America." He has threatened to "spell out in blood across America" the lettered sequence of his organization to press demands for repeal of all immigration laws.

Rasim's first target was the airport, representing the letter "A" in the word "aliens."

Officials Issue Statement On Rape Incidents

Local police and sheriff's officers said this morning they had uncovered no new leads in their continuing investigation of sexual assaults reported in Gray Count in recent weeks.

Pampa Chief of Police and Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan issued this joint statement today:

"We realize the anxiety such incidents create and we are doing everything in our power to apprehend the person or persons responsible.

"But it should be borne in mind that law enforcement officers have to proceeed carefully in order to protect the public and the people directly involved.

"Women living alone do have a special problem and we want to assure them that we are checking every lead in order to put a stop to this criminal activity.

"Any information provided by a victim will be acted on immediately."

A spokesman for the state Highway Patrol said this morning that, so far as he knew, state troopers had not been involved in the search for the sex offender.

Lake Accident Claims Victim

Lake Meredith claimed its fourth victim of the year Saturday when Sam Roberts, 43, of Amarillo died as a result of a boating accident in Sanford - Yake Canyon.

A National Parks spokesman said Roberts was operating a boat pulling a water skiier at about 8:50 p.m. when Roberts fell from the boat as a result of making a sharp turn.

He was struck by the propellor, suffering severe injuries. Taken to Lake Meredith Marina, he was pronounced dead from loss of blood before an ambulance could arrive.

He is survived by the widow, Beverly Roberts, and three daughters.

Graveside funeral services are scheduled for today at 2:30 p.m. in Llano Cemetery, Amarillo, with Lyndon Latham, minister of West Amarillo Church of Christ, officiating.

NO TAKERS — Students who perhaps weren't too enthusiastic at the prospect of returning to school may have been the ones who placed "For Sale" signs on the Pampa High School grounds over the weekend. The ploy didn't work, however, and classes for the new school year started as planned today. No offers were made for the campus.

School Traffic Caution Urged For Motorists

Pampa Chief of Police Jim Conner today cautioned motorists to be especially careful for the next few days in view of opening of schools in the city.

"Many of these children will be going to school for the first time and many of them will be riding bicycles, so we should all keep that in mind."

He also reminded motorists that the speed limit in school zones is 15 miles per hour, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Students returned to the school rooms today after registration conducted last week.

School officials expected about the same enrollment as for last year, with a total of approximately 4,400 students in public schools.

Final figures on enrollment won't be ready until next week, after some students register late.

Enrollment in private schools is expected to bring total student population in Pampa to near 4,800.

Red Gunners Cut Approach, Seize Village

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners today cut a key northern approach road to Saigon and captured a large village seven miles from the provincial capital of Tay Ninh in the heaviest Communist attacks in two years, South Vietnamese officers said.

The Communist offensive across South Vietnam is more intense than at any time since the 1972 Easter attacks in which the Viet Cong overran much of the country, military officers said.

Heavy fighting was reported on at least six major fronts throughout South Vietnam today and military spokesmen listed 203 Communist attacks between dawn Sunday and sunup today.

In the escalating Communist offensive, now in its second month, the Saigon command also officially declared Minh Long distrit capital, 305 miles north of Saigon, lost to Viet Cong attackers.

AT CONVENTION

Pampan Objects To AL Giving Kissinger Medal

There's at least one Pampan who doesn't go along with the plan of Robert E.L. Eaton, national commander of the American Legion, to present the Legion's Distinguished Service Medal to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the Legion's national convention tomorrow in Miami Beach, Fla.

He is John S. Skelly, Jr., 916 N. Somerville, who sent the following letter to Legion commander Eaton:

"Your planned presentation of the American Legion's Distinguished Service Medal to Henry A. Kissinger at your national convention to be held Aug. 20 in Miami Beach, Fla., is breath - taking by implication.

"First point I would make is that this honor is premature, since it is quite evident that the many so - called 'successes' of Dr. Kissinger in foreign affairs may soon come tumbling down around our ears, or favor our avowed enemies rather than the U.S.A.

Another consideration backed by documentary evidence is that Henry Kissinger has been a Soviet agent and that his involvement with Soviet intelligence was made known to agencies of our government even before his rise to prominence;' quote by Frank A. Capell, editor of 'The Herald of Freedom.' A former general of Communist intelligence, Aleksei Nicholaevick Romanoff, reports that Henry Kissinger was a member of a K.G.B. group known as ODRA, while in Germany with the U.S. Armed Forces.

"Having at hand much information of a derogatory nature concerning our Secretary of State, I am amazed that the American Legion, long noted as being a super patriotic organization, should abandon an 'America First' stance to honor such a person.

Yet another concern of true Americanists and brave taxpayers is Kissinger's proposed treaty with Panama to give them our canal. Don't give Panama our canal, give them Kissinger instead!

"Please reply with reasons for your decision."

IN NEGOTIATING MOVE

Soft Coal Miners Begin Memorial Work Walkout

United Press International

Eighty thousand soft coal miners stayed off the job today for a five-day memorial work stoppage that the coal industry said was actually a ploy to bolster the Unied Mine Workers' bargaining position in upcoming coal negotiations.

UMW President Arnold Miller said the walkout, the first such memorial since the 1969 commemoration of the late union president John L. Lewis, was to protest "the terrible slaughter that day after day turns miners' wives into widows." More than 100,000 workers have been killed in the pits in this century.

The shutdown will close as many as 1,200 mines.

A spocesman for Consolidation Coal Co. said, "what they're doing is trying to whittle down the stockpiles to place themselves in what they feel is a better bargaining position.

"I think it's wrong for the UMW to state that it's a memorial for those who died of black lung and in the mines when it's obvious it's a negotiating move."

The current contract covering the w'S soft coal miners expires Nov. 12, and the union has threatened to stage a protracted strike to win its demands.

The coal industry's chief weapon in negotiations and in event of a strike is stockpiing. Thisshutdown, company officials said, will only decimate already dwindling stocks.

"We're well below what is desirable inventory on coal," said a spokesman for WheelingPittsburgh Steel Corp., owner of some mines. "Any loss of coal is going to have its impact later on."

Under the 1971 bituminous contract, the UMW has the option to call up to 10 days of nonpaid memorial periods during which no coal can be produced by operators covered by the agreement.

A charge of unfair labor practices filed by the coal operators against the union to stop the memorial was dismissed last week by the National Labor Relations Board.

The memorial was to begin with services at Mannington, W. Va., to commemorate the 16 men killed in 1954 and the 78 miners killed in 1968 at Consolidation Coal Co.'s Farmington, W. Va., No. 9 mine.

Another rally will be held Tuesday at UMW International Union Headquarters in Washington with other rallies scheduled for Harlan County, Ky., Birmingham, Ala., West Frankfort, Ill., and Ludlow, Colo.

A spokesman for the Tennessee Valley Authority said it has a 23-day coal supply at its widows Creek Generating Plant in North Alabama.

The West Virginia Coal Association said thinks most steel companies have stockpiles of coal to last between 25 and 28 days, while utilities have accumulated reserves for 60 to 65 days.

Accident Kills Dumas Student

DUMAS — Kenny Dale Harris, 20 - year - old Dumas student at Texas Tech University, was killed and three Dallas men were injured early Sunday in a two - car head - on collision north of Amarillo.

Injured were Dale K. Sxhreiner, 23, Arthur Cline, 22, and Lawrence M. Mankoff, 23, all of Dallas. They were taken to Northwest Hospital in Amarillo.

Highway patrol officers said the accident occurred about eight miles north of Amarillo on U.S. 87 when Harris' northbound car collided head - on into a southbound car driven by Cline. Investigating officers said Cline's vehicle apparently was traveling south in the northbound lane of the divided highway.

Harris reportedly was pinned beneath the wreckage for about half - an - hour.

Firemen were called at 8:55 p.m. Saturday to 427 Hill.

The un - occupied, one - story and basement building suffered damage to the basement. Cause of the fire was not determined. It was the fourth run to the same house in the past few weeks.

The only fire run on Sunday was to a small grass fire a mile west of town on Highway 60.

Man Reports Break-In Try

John T. Williams, 216 E. Kingsmill, reported to police that upon returning to his apartment shortly after 8 p.m. Sunday, he encountered a man attempting to break into the apartment.

Williams was struck on the head with an object he believed to be either a stick or a length of padded pipe.

Williams told police he was knocked unconscious and fell down a flight of stairs.

Upon regaining consciousness, he went to Highland General Hospital, where he was treated and released.

He gave a description of the assailant, who is being sought by police.

Local Officials To Attend Meet

Several Pampa city officials will attend a meeting of Region II of the Texas Municipal League Thursday night in Amarillo.

Ben F. McDonald, director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, Austin, will be the dinner speaker.

City officials from Texas Panhandle cities and towns will be guests of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission at the affair scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in the Amarillo Civic Center.

City manager Mack Wofford said the list of local officials planning to attend had not been completed today.

Nations Discuss Population Plans

BUCHAREST (UPI) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim called on delegates from 149 nations today to coordinate a global plan to deal with the population explosion and the growing food shortage.

"Population matters demand action and solution," Waldheim said at the start of a two-week population conference.

He said the conference marked "a turning point in our attitudes," but warned delegates the population issue is "sensitive and controversial" involving "one of the most intimate areas of human life."

Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu also stressed the significance of the conference but said solutions to population and development problems must be worked out on the basis of national sovereignty and mutual respect.

U.N. sources said China asked the U.S.-sponsored conference to delete all references to Chinese population from official documents submitted to the talks.

The sources said China, the world's most populous nation and architect of a highly successful birth control program, preferred to release the data itself.

On arrival Sunday, Waldheim said the meeting was "one of the most important conferences the U.N. has ever organized. I hope this conference will make an important contribution to the problem of the discrepancy of the growing population all over the world and the growing food shortage."

But delegates said widely differing viewpoints and priorities of the 149 participating nations could prevent the so-called "world plan of action" from being any more than a very loosely worded document. A 23-page dradt provides only guidelines for future action and leaves specifics to be spelled out.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger, chief of the American delegation, said the United States would press for "better formulae and stronger language" in the plan.

"We are seeking some specific goals," Weinberger told an informal briefing.

Another U.S. delegate said he hoped the conference would not develop into a confrontation between the wealthier and the less developed nations.

British Troops Searching For IRA Escapees

BELFAST (UPI) — Thousands of heavily armed British troops combed the countryside today for 19 members of the Irish Republican Army who bombed their way to freedom from the Irish Republic's top security jail near Dublin.

Although an Irish security official claimed the Irish had "sealed off all the escape routes," a spokesman at the Lisburn Britsh army headquarters for Ulster said "an immediate tightening of security was ordered on the frontier."

Most of the escapers were from the north and the others from border areas.

Within minutes of the Sunday mass escape from Portlaoise prison, 60 miles southwest of Dublin, troops at the Curragh military camp, headquarters of the Irish army, were mobilized.

British troops boarded Dubin-to-Belfast trains at the border for intensive searches and long lines of automobiles formed at border checkpoints where soldiers looked for the jailbreakers among returning weekenders.

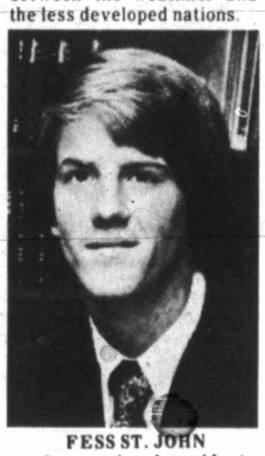

In south Belfast, jubilant demonstratrors tossed gasoline bombs into a lumber yard and an electrical appliances warehouse Sunday night in a mixed Protestant-Catholic area.

Irish police sources said the breakout came while most of the prisoners were recreation inside the 100-year-old gray brick prison.

The excapers overpowered prison guards, stole their uniforms and keys and blew holes in the inner and outer prison walls with sticks of gelignite.

Outside the prison, the IRA men roared off toward the main Dublin highway in two stolen automobiles and a van. Two of the vehicles later were found abandoned.

All of the hard-care IRA prisoners were transferred to Portlaoise prison after the dramatic helicopter escape from Dublin's Mountjoy prison by three top Provisional IRA leaders last October.

Job Order Appear Discriminatory

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A local newspaper has charged that job orders, issued by the Washington offices of 19 U.S. congressmen and a Republican senator from Virginia indicate possible illegal racial and religious discrimination in their hiring practices.

The Fort Worth Star Telegram, in a copywrite article published Sunday, said the job orders to the Congressional Placement Office carried such demands as "no minorities," "no blacks," "white only," and "no Catholics."

The newspaper quoted an unidentified senior Justice Department official as saying the practice was "the most incredible, grossest example of overt discrimination." He said the offenders might be prosecuted for conspiracy to deprive persons of their civil rights.

According to the Star Telegram, the job orders were issued from the offices of Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va.; Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the new chairman of the House Budget Committee; and Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Wis., a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

According to usual congressional procedure, congressmen and senators will send their job needs to the Congressional Placement Office which handles reguests for the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations.

"We try to get as close as we can to what they want," a placement office official told the Star Telegram.

He told the newspaper the placement office tries to "greatly discourage" discriminating requests from the congressmen but if a congressman says "no minorities" on his order form, the office does not send minority applicants to be interviewed.

When contacted about the suspect phrases found by the newspaper on the recently submitted job forms, most senior assistants responsible for calling them in to the Congressional Placement Office denied any knowledge of discrimination and generally declined to discuss the matter.

Jack Mellon, administrative assistant for Rep. McEwen, said the allegations were "an absolute, malicious lie."

Mellon said he was told a congressional intern from Galveston, Tex., had photostated copies of the personnel order forms mentioned in the story and then had given them to the Star Telegram reporter.

Rep. Ullman, contacted in his Portland, Ore., office, said he was considering a lawsuit against the newspaper.

"It's absolutely irresponsible news reporting," Ullman said. "I have a totally open policy on hiring and my staff knows it."

Administrative aide Loren Cox, who handles Ullman's staffing requests, said the Congressional Placement Office might have made a "clerical error" with some job applications.

In addition to those requesting that no members of minority races be sent as job applicants, the job orders revealed that some congressmen specifically asked for minority workers.

What Does Future Hold For Sonny And Cher?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — What's to become of Sonny Bono without Cher?

The same question was asked about Dean Martin when he was cut adrift from Jerry Lewis.

When the comedy team split in 1958 it was predicted Jerry would go on to greater heights while Dean would end up in Steubenville, Ohio, dealing poker hands.

Wrong. Dean is still going strong. Jerry is hurting.

Now the wise acres predict superstardom for Cher and the soup lines for Sonny.

Chris Bearde, a bright young English producer has something else in mind. "The Sonny Comedy Hour," starring Bono every week via ABC-TV in the fall.

Bearde produced "The Sonny and Cher Show" and predicts Sonny will continue to blossom as one of the tube's top comedians.

"Sonny won't change his image on the show," Bearde said. "He'll be the same downtrodden sad sack. The format will be changed somewhat but we'll keep the same six regulars will be with us that were on the old show.

"We've got a new idea, Bono's Brigade with guest stars playing a top sergeant every week to harass Sonny. They'll be putting him down just like Cher used to do."

Bearde and his partner, Allan Blye, will make no attempt to replace Cher with another leading lady.

"We won't hide the fact the divorce on the show," Bearde said.

"We won't hide the fact of the divorce on the show," Bearde said.

doing man-woman relationship sketches with guest stars like Jill St. John, Twiggy, Joey Heatherton and Dyan Cannon.

"There's going to be plenty of glamor on the show with beauty queens and dancing girls."

Bearde, of course, would have preferred to have Cher return. He doesn't give up easily. He's seeking to sign Cher as one of the guest stars on Sonny's new show.

The Bono's daughter, Chastity, was a regular performer on her parents' show. Now Sonny wants Chastity to make occasional appearances because of her popularity with viewers.

"Even now," Bearde said, "we'd welcome Cher back into the old format with the same show we've had for the past several years.

"I don't know what Cher's future will be without Sonny. She's signed for some specials with CBS, and there is talk of a new series for her a year from now."

According to Bearde, who also worked on "The Andy Williams Show" and "Laugh In," television hasn't produced any major stars in the 1970s.

"Here we are, halfway through the decade, and there's nothing new," he said. "No Beatles, no new musical sound, no new Presleys or Gleasons coming up. I think Sonny is the guy who can do it — alone."

Prosperity Makes Hong Kong Happy

HONG KONG (UPI) — Its worst food shortage in 27 years, Japan's inflation increases at an alarming rate and the rest of Asia still feels the energy crunch, bustling little Hong Kong prospers and its people show it.

All this prosperity makes Hong Kong a happy place. The colony is far from inflation-free but wages appear to be keeping pace with rising prices and the crowded streets and department stores are filled with smiling faces.

A beggar on a Hong Kong street would be a surprise. They simply don't exist. Labor strikes are a rarity. With much of Asia still poor and economically backward, Hong Kong almost takes on the appearance of an outsider, something that doesn't belong.

Under this economic halo stride the young Chinese man and woman in their Western clothing with plenty of leisure time on their hands to jam the marketplaces, movie houses and ferries churning across the harbor to the Kowloon peninsula and its shops and nightclubs or hydrofoils jeting across the water to Macao and its plush gambling casinos.

Chinese girls are pretty enough at the outset with their slim figures, blushing oval faces, shapely legs and shining long black hair. But put them in a pair of platform shoes, a mini-skirt or bell-bottom jeans and a halter-top—it's the current fashion rage sweeping the colony—and you've got a veritable marvel.

Formal attire for the young Chinese woman also follows Western lines but you still see— and when you do it's hard to stop looking—a shapely girl in the traditional Cheung Sam, the long Oriental dress with the slits sneaking up both sides to hiplevel. Any intelligent girlwatcher will tell you no woman in the world looks as good in a Cheung Sam as a Chinese maiden.

The young Chinese man wears strictly Western apparel. Longgone are the days of the pajamas or Mao jackets. Now it's wide-lapel sports coats, flared trousers, brightly colored, wide-collared striped shirts and — more and more as the fad catches on with the girls — platform shoes.

The main topics of conversation in this colony of 4.3 million persons is money, China, money, Peter Godber, money, and 118 illegal South Vietnamese refugees.

The China issue is probably the most discussed issue as many here have friends and relatives on the mainland, where reports of violent clashes and bloodshed are beginning to filter down to Hong Kong.

China specialists here and in Peking aren't sure how much of the fighting is related directly to the giant country's current campaign criticizing Lin Piao, the late defense minister, and the ancient sage Confucius. But clashes are being reported by wall posters in several Chinese cities and one series in Peking told of 200 people allegedly killed in Kiangsi Province.

Age Makes Bush Top Contender

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Fred Agnich, Republican national committeeman, believes Texan George Bush is the leading contender for vice president in the Ford Administration and his age is one reason why.

"I would say as of right now that probably George Bush is the front runner," Agnich said. "There is one immediate advantage of course — George is 50 years old, and I believe Gov. (Nelson) Rockefeller is 65.

"So I think that with the appointment of George Bush you would be building for the future obviously."

Agnich, speaking Sunday on the weekly television show "Capital Eye," said Bush had support of Republican conservatives and moderates. Bush, the GOP national chairman, is a former Houston congressman and ambassador to the United Nations. Rockefeller is the former governor of New York.

Agnich, who represents a Dallas district in the Texas legislature, said Democrat Gov. Dolph Briscoe had hedged on the controversial right-to-work issue and faces a tough challenger in Republican Jim Granberry.

"I think that the big issues in the race are going to be the question of a do-nothing governor that does not have a firm hand on the wheel of this state and Briscoe's position on right-to-work," Agnich said.

"The governor says he's for right-to-work but he doesn't think it's a constitutional matter. That's a dodge. That is simply his way of trying to get out of publicly saying he's against right-to-work because he is if he takes that position."

Agnich said Republican polls show Briscoe with only a 10 percentage point lead — 38 to 28 — over Granberry, former mayor of Lubbock.

"Yes, we've got a horse race," he said. "I think it's going to go down to the wire and I think it's going to be extremely interesting."

2,400 Pounds Of Marijuana Found

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI)—Two deputy game wardens searching for illegal antelope hunters Sunday discovered 2,400 pounds of marijuana and six Texans.

Larry Turner and Tom Moody were on a dawn patrol and saw some spotlights and a small aircraft in the Red Bluffs Ranch area northeast of Roswell.

They rushed to the scene and stopped six El Paso, Tex., men in a pickup truck and an auto pulling a trailer. The airplane had left.

The deputy wardens began searching the vehicles for possible antelope carcasses, but instead found a kilo of suspected marijuana in a sleeping bag in the rear of the pickup.

A further search of the trailer by Chaves County sheriff's deputies and state police narcotics officers turned up 2,400 pounds of marijuana, authorities said.

The six Texans were jailed under $20,500 bond apiece on charges of possession with intent to distribute marijuana and illegal use of a spotlight—a game violation.

Two sisters, one of them identified as the wife of one of the men in custody, were arrested later in the day at a Roswell motel and charged with possession of more than an ounce but less than eight ounces of marijuana.

The suspects were William Russell, 31, and his wife Judith, 26; Jack Stricklin, 29; Terry Johnson, 29; William Harris, 28, John Franklin, 30; Jerry Shankles, 27; and Susan Jean Schweidel, 27, all of El Paso. The women were held under bonds of $5,000 each.

Tower Sees No Quick Relief

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Americans should expect no quick relief from inflation, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said Sunday.

"I personally believe that the rate of inflation will continue to be very high throughout this year and will begin to moderate only very slowly," Tower said.

"Politicians do not like to make such gloomy predictions but I personally would find it unconscioable to intentionally mislead the American people. We are in for a bitter dose of inflation."

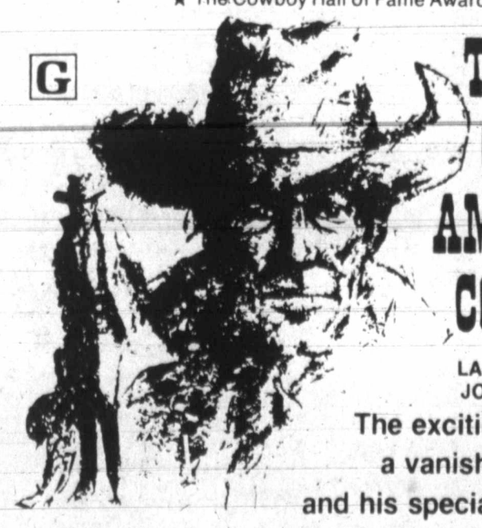

Tower, in remarks before the annual Texas Bankers Conference, blamed today's economic troubles on government spending authorized in decisions made in the early 1960s.

"Our political bodies superimposed massive social costs upon the normal workings of our free enterprise system during that period," Tower said. "Such costs are only now coming home to roost with the ultimate buyer — the consumer.

Mamma's boy gives her migraines

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If I were DEAR ABBY for ten minutes, I would tell every woman in the world not to marry a mamma's boy. One of the tip-offs is a man who is between 30 and 40 and not married.

I married one of these Yo-Yos and it's the dumbest thing I ever did. Although he's a steady worker, that's all he knows how to do. I have to get him up in the morning, tell him what to wear, and even when to change his clothes. He's so childish and helpless.

He doesn't even know how to kiss. He clamps his lips together and presses them on my lips. I've tried to teach him how, but even after five years, he hasn't improved.

He doesn't know the first thing about how to make love, either. It's whim-wham, and that's it. So for the last two years, an hour before he gets home I start to getting a "migraine."

I'd go to a marriage counselor, but he won't go, and no woman can save her marriage alone.

Mamma's boys just want a cook and housekeeper and a bed partner for two minutes once a week. If I could get a job and support myself, I'd leave him.

STUCK IN PEKIN, ILL.

DEAR STUCK: Nobody is stopping you from trying. One woman's leftovers are another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a small one, but on second thought, are bad manners ever a small problem?

My husband and I would like your opinion of this situation: We know two different families whom we invite to our home for dinner occasionally. (Not together.)

The minute we sit down at the table, both fathers of these families ask one of their children to say the grace.

Abby, am I out of line to think this shows extreme bad manners on their part? I always thought it was up to the host and hostess to decide if grace was to be said at their table. And if so, by whom.

Please print your reply. Perhaps these men or their wives will read your column and learn something. Or I may learn something if I am wrong.

SOCIAL GRACE

DEAR SOCIAL: You are not wrong. It's the host's or hostess' prerogative to decide if grace shall be said at his (or her) table, and if so, by whom.

DEAR ABBY: I have a unique problem. I have been married to Elmer for six years. We are both in our late twenties.

All my life I have been extremely overweight, but this last year, through a friend's inspiration, I was motivated to lose 120 pounds. (Yes, one hundred and twenty pounds!)

Throughout my diet Elmer never indicated that he approved or disapproved, but now that my life has changed as much as my figure, Elmer has decided that he doesn't like the "new me," and he wants me to regain the weight I sacrificed so much to get rid of.

Perhaps I should mention that Elmer is fat, and we used to have a lot of fun together eating all the things we shouldn't but those days are gone for me. Now Elmer feels betrayed, and I feel guilty, because when he married me he really liked me the way I was.

I am torn between staying thin, which I am so proud to be, or letting myself go to please Elmer.

FORMERLY FAT

DEAR FORM: For heaven's sake, stay thin! Join Overeater's Anonymous and let them help you. And take Elmer with you. They are a great, loving, caring fellowship. If Elmer doesn't flip for them and their program, I'll eat my calorie counter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ALIMONY POOR" IN BEVERLY HILLS, CAL.: That's the high cost of leaving; also it's the next thing that should be "Nadarized." But ask yourself, would you rather have your wife back? That should offer some comfort.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

A thought for the day: English politican Oliver Cromwell said: "A few honest men are better than numbers."

South Carolina was the first state to secede from the Union, Dec. 20, 1860. The first shots of the Civil War were fired at Ft. Sumter in Charleston, April 12, 1861.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

An old anecdote that had been going the rounds this past spring concerns itself with the two experts whose bidding had gone: one heart, one spade, two hearts, two spades, three hearts, three spades, four hearts, four spades. The four - spade contract suffered a three - trick set. Had the hand been played at hearts, eight tricks were all that could have been made.

The four-spade bidder apologized to his partner, explaining: "I wouldn't have kept on bidding, but the lady on my right showed me her entire hand. I knew where every card was."

"Do you think I'm blind?" inquired the heart bidder.

An expert who usually knows the location of the outstanding high cards (without peeking) is Pietro Forquet, of the famous Italian Blue Team, perennial World Champions. Here is an example of Forquet in action.

♣ K 10 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Forquet's one-club opening showed a minimum of 17 high - card points. North's one - heart response denoted at least 6 points. The rest of the bidding was natural.

After winning the opening lead with his spade ace, Forquet cashed the ace and king of diamonds. When both opponents followed, four diamond tricks now became a certainty. At this point, most experts would have led a club to dummy's queen, which would have been captured by East's ace. Upon winning East's spade return with the board's queen, a club would be led next, with South's ten being finessed. West's jack would take this trick, and a spade would be returned. South would now have to sweat out the fulfillment of his contract.

But Forquet, after cashing his two top diamonds (at trick two and three) made the "abnormal" play of laying down his king of clubs at trick four. East won this with his ace, and continued the attack on the spade suit, dummy's queen winning.

The club queen was cashed next, felling West's jack. The board's remaining club was then led, South's eight - spot being finessed. Eventually, Forquet also made dummy's heart king, and scored two overtricks.

Extension Economists Meet In Austin

AUSTIN — Upcoming energy problems, a nuclear power plant in Texas, land use, women and legislation were talk topics during the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists (TAEHE) in Austin this week (Aug. 7-9).

Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Texas Rep. Dan Kubiak were among speakers for the event.

Other speakers were Dr. Margaret Berry, University of Texas director of development programs, Ben Baisdon, Texas Department of Agriculture marketing division head, and Toby Rives, Texas A&M University dean of women.

Mrs. JoAnn Thompson of Dallas, Texas Power and Light Co. home service director, discussed plans for the Comanche Peak Nuclear Plant near Glen Rose, Tex.

James M. Rose, director of the Governor's Planning and Coordinating Board addressed the group on "The Consumer and the Energy Crisis."

Other activities during the three - day meet included a river boat ride, a tour of the LBJ Library and a reception at the Governor's Mansion.

The group also awarded the Ann Sonner Sonner Scholarship to Marilyn Sue Shirley of Hereford, Tex., and Carol Tutt of Nacagdoches.

TAEHE includes county extension agents (home economics) from almost every county in Texas.

HOMEMAKERS NEWS

By MRS. ELAINE HOUSTON
County Extension Agent

We have a chart for freezing fruits in the office and will send you a copy if needed. Also we have a small supply of the Extension bulletins — Home Canning Fruits and Vegetables and Freezing Fruits and Vegetables. If you would like a copy drop us a card or stop by when you are in Pampa.

We have been getting a number of calls for pickles so we decided to include some recipes for you.

DILLED OKRA

3 lbs. uncut and washed young okra
celery leaves
6 small hot red peppers
cloves of garlic
1 qt. water
1 pt. white vinegar
½ cup salt
large heads of dill and stem or ½ teaspoon dill seed per pint

Pack okra into hot pint jars with a few celery leaves, pod of pepper, clove of garlic and head of dill or dill seed in each jar.

Make brine of water, vinegar, and salt, heat to boiling. Pour over okra, close jars. Process in boiling water bath 20 minutes. Start to count processing time as soon as hot jars are placed in actively boiling water. Makes 6 pints.

PICKLED JALAPENOS

Wash jalapeno peppers. Pack tightly in hot jars. For each cup of vinegar, use ¼ cup water, ¼ cup olive oil, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon pickling spices. Heat mixture to boiling. Pour over peppers to cover. Close jars. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Start to count processing time as soon as water in canner returns to boiling.

CATSUP

1 gallon ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped
2 medium-sized onions, chopped
1 cup chopped sweet red pepper
1 clove garlic, chopped
2 cups vinegar
1 tsp. celery seed
3 stick cinnamon
¾ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. paprika

Combine chopped vegetables and simmer 30 minutes. Press vegetables through fine sieve. Boil vegetables rapidly about 1 hour or until they have cooked to half the original amount. Tie spices in thin cloth bag; add with sugar and salt to vegetable mixture. Cook slowly about 30 minutes, stirring frequently. Add vinegar and paprika; cook until think. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour into hot jars or bottles. Close. Process in boiling water bath 5 minutes. Start counting processing time as soon as water returns to boiling.

These are a few recipes taken from the Extension bulletin "Pickles and Relishes No. B-188" which may be obtained from the Extension office for a quarter. We are always interested in obtaining good recipes. If you have a good or unusual pickle recipe, let me know about it.

DWANE TAYLOR

Many of Dwane Taylor's paintings carry you right down "memory lane". They often contain memorabilia of earlier days the old buckets, cisterns and rock wells, weatherbeaten houses and bars, flower gardens, old bushel baskets and country side landscapes.....Things that make one have a happy nostaligic feeling.

Almost every weekend finds Dwane flying to Florida, California, Texas or elsewhere to settle in for a show or art festival.

RICE

Economical rice makes an excellent meat extender, according to Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System. The blandness of rice is ideal to absorb the flavors of meat sauces, gravies or natural juices and helps make full use of all the nutrients in the meat or seafood main dish, she said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, AUGUST 20

Your birthday today: Opens an orthodox year of normal, natural growth, which includes the usual challenges and problems. You are more apt to take on too many different activities at once and to scatter energy needed to master a few. Today's natives dream big dreams, are active scholars, usually eager to learn about almost anything.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You're at the minimum in your energy cycle, although there's much to do. Get help. Let others share responsibility for the day's achievements.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Keep your affairs and resources separate from friends, even if it takes a disagreement. Relatives are unlikely to understand your feelings. Forgive them.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Although you are tempted to spend money, hold on to it and stick with budgets already set. Clear up questions about what to do and how, then go ahead.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You can add to your reserves by thrift and close estimates of your expenses this coming week. Home and family matters are favored; travel is not.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: From almost any stimulus or impulse, you spend money frivolously. Learn more about your health and caring for it today.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Few obvious explanations are realistic today. Do some investigating to realize unspoken wishes of those you care about. Advocacy is natural for you now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: People who avoid publicity have a larger part in events. Personal plans advance through a strenuous day's work. Avoid overdoing and the urge to squander.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Friendships are tested. Make a distinction between your needs and those of others. Find a way to mind your own business.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It's best to remain superficial for now. Day is highlighted by sharing sports and pastimes with companions, and possibly romantic incidents.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Business proceeds a bit more vigorously than usual, although only details are new. Experiments shouldn't involve extra outlays. News from distant places is encouraging.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Reach out, seek contacts in distant areas, design long-range plans. You are characteristically thrifty. Rearrange your household for better security.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Examine differences between you and associates to reconcile views and sums. It's a complex day of diverse events.

NATTS Accredits Vocational Schools

Private, profit - seeking, vocational schools serve approximately 3,288,000 students in 8,439 schools. More than seven out of eight of these schools are not accredited by a recognized agency, though the majority of students enrolled in these schools attend the little over 12 percent of schools which are accredited.

Unlike most other countries of the world, the United States has no ministry of education or other centralized authority which exercises national control over educational institutions.

The states and other political units assume varying degrees of control, but permit institutions of higher education to operate with considerable autonomy. As a consequence, institutions vary widely in the character and quality of their program.

In this country, private educational associations of regional or national scope have established criteria to evaluate institutions or programs to determine whether or not they are operating at basic levels of quality. This voluntary, non - governmental, peer evaluation in education is known as accreditation.

For purposes of determining eligibility for United States Government assistance under certain legislation such as for student loans or financial assistance, the U.S. Commissioner of Education is required to publish a list of nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations which he determines to be reliable authority as to the quality of training offered by educational institutions and programs.

All recognized accrediting agencies and associations are evaluated by the Commissioner of Education at least every four years to guarantee that these organizations "perform no function that would be inconsistent with the formation of an independent judgment of the quality of an educational program or institution."

The National Association of Trade and Technical Schools (NATTS) is an approved accrediting body for private trade and technical schools and has accredited more than 400 schools.

The accrediting procedure maintained by NATTS involves four steps: 1) the establishment of standards, 2) the evaluation of the institution by competent authorities, 3) the publication of a list of institutions meeting the criteria, 4) and periodic reviews to determine whether institutions continue to meet the standards set.

NATTS publishes a Directory of Accredited Private Trade and Technical Schools annually in September. Single compies are free and may be obtained by writing to NATTS Directory Distribution, Room 449, 2021 L. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new eruption of fighting on Cyprus pushed the stock market down further and investors worried that foreign problems would divert the Ford administration's efforts from solving domestic ills, says E.F. Hutton & Co. "How far this decline will carry would seem to fall into the realm of guess work rather than any rational analysis," the firm observes. But it says that a brief trading bounce seems due since "every market movement is periodically punctuated by pauses."

"The country can expected a concerted and more closely coordinated effort by President Ford's administration and Congress to hold back spending within present budget projections," says Continental Bank of Chicago. The bank notes that the new president favors tight fiscal and monetary policies. "Over the long run, it seems probabe that a new system of spending priorities wll have to be developed," the bank adds, "since the current rapid inflation will take considerable time to be resolved."

Youth Center Report

HEALTH CLUB FACILITY — In conjunction with the Youth Center proper there is a health club facility for those interested in physical activity or losing weight. This physical building was completed in 1969 and has been an integral part of our program ever since.

Included in the health facility is a sauna, two handball and racquetball courts, sit - up boards, barrell rollers, bicycles, four - way bicycles, exerow machine, sun lamp, multi - press machine, leg press machine, barbells, dumbells, health walker, box platform, incline bench, supine bench, leg and thigh curl machine, vibrator belts and the six station jungle pulley machine along with other machines. The center has one of the best equipped health clubs in the state. They also plan out a program of physical exercise for you if you so desire.

The unique program we have in the health club is for both women and men. The time of use for the women is from 9 - 11:45 a.m. Monday thru Friday and also Tues. and Thurs. nights from 7 - 10 p.m. On Saturday morning both male and female are allowed to come from 9 - 12 noon. This gives a husband and wife an opportunity to come at the same time and play racquetball. The men's hours are from 11:45 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and 11:45 a.m. to 7 on Tues. and Thursday. Also from 12 noon till 5 on Sat.

The cost of the program is very reasonable. An individual fee for six months is only $68. We allow you to pay this out at $18.50 down and $10.50 per month. A husband - wife combination membership is only $96. This would be $29.87 down and $13.87 each of the other five months. For full details call or come by the health club. The first visit is on us.

NEW OPEN HOURS — Now that school is starting there will be a new schedule of opening hours. The Center will be open on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 4-10 p.m. Pool will be open from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday open 1 - 5, pool 1 - 4::30 p.m. and Sunday 2 - 5 p.m. with the pool open from 2 - 4:30 p.m. Swim lessons are taught from 4 - 6 p.m. and the Dolphin Swim Team works out from 6 - 7:30 p.m.

Memberships in the Youth Center for use of the gym, recreation hall and swimming pool with free swim lessons are very economical. Individuals cost only $8 for six months and family $15.

SWIM LESSONS — The starting lessons for the school year 1974 - 75 are listed below. Some of you parents did not get your children enrolled in time to get in the summer swim lessons, so now would be a good time to sign up early. Swim lessons during the school year is after school from 4 - 5 or 5 - 6 p.m.

All classes will meet as scheduled usually on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. However, the first session will meet two straight weeks including Tues. to finish up before Labor Day holiday. All classes will be taught by oy our qualified water safety instructor, Ruth Carter. Enrollment is free to members or $5 to non - members.

FALL VOLLEYBALL LEAGUES — The fall volleyball leagues are now forming teams to participate in the beginning competition Sept. 16. Three leagues will again be offered this year, women's, men's and mixed. A mixed team consists of three men and three women on a side.

The Youth Center does not form the leagues teams, but only sponsors the league. However, if you are interested in playing on some team, please call Director Smith and he will help you get in contact with the team captains. There is also the possibility that enough new players are interested to form new teams.

The organizational meeting for the fall volleyball league will be Sept. 5 at 8 p.m. in the Youth Center building. Entry fee is still $20 per team entered in any league or leagues. All out - of - town teams are also invited to participate. If you are planning to enter the league, please send a representative to the Sept. 5 meeting.

NEW ALL AGES SWIM TIME — When school starts in August the Center will honor a new time when everyone may swim. This is called our all ages swim time. New hours will be from 7:30 to 9:30 each Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Saturday hours are from 1 - 4:30 and Sunday from 2 - 4:30 p.m.

This change was brought about by the need of additional time for the Dolphin swim club. The Dolphins will workout from 6 - 7:30 each day.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wide sampling of secretarial attitudes shows that the typical one no longer is expected to be a "go-fer", running errands for the boss.

Especially her role has changed as a "go-fer" coffee for the man in the executive suite. It is no longer a "coffee, tea or" policy to insure the job.

Most secretaries, however, are quite willing to "go-fer" once in a while. Some 90 per cent answering a questionnaire considered such occasional favors a normal part of the job.

As one executive secretary commented to me when I showed her the national survey results, "Sure. I bring us both coffee in the morning. It's no big deal. He gives me the money. That helps.

But another said, "Let them get it for themselves. I was hired to be a secretary and not a wife."

Coffee procedures have changed to the point that now many executives see nothing degrading about bringing secretaries a cup of coffee or tea when the press of work gets too hard, the researchers found.

And one secretary to whom I talked recalled her days with a Chicago advertising agency where the boss often brought his two secretaries doughnuts and coffee, took them to lunch occasionally, and if the day's work were long and stressful would take them out to didinner.

The study was made by the General Foods Institutional Food Service Division, which markets foods in restaurants, plant cafeteras, hospital and health care facilities, colleges and universities, hotels and motels, vending companies and mobile caterers.

An eight-page questionnaire went to 20,000 secretaries across the country. Response rate was approximately 10 per cent, or 2,000.

The questionnaires showed that businessmen worried about the women's liberation movement as it affects their secretaries' work could relax. Secretaries were a surprisingly contented lot. Only 12 per cent said that women's lib had affected their jobs.

And even this 12 per cent mentioned such positive effects as better pay, more opportunity for advancement and general improvement in bosses' attitudes, rather than a general stirring up among themselves of some latent militancy.

But the women's movement may have had more effect on bosses than the secretaries realize. Nearly 90 per cent said their bosses recognize their abilities beyond typing and shorthand. Over half had their own offices.

Women seemed to have no objection to working for other women. Less than 20 per cent said they would not work for a woman and 67.3 per cent said they'd be as willing to do personal chores for a female as well as a male.

"Human" attributes, rather than work-related characteristics, seemed to hold the most weight in the secretaries' ideals of the "perfect boss."

Nearly half wrote in "considerate", "understanding", or "tactful" when asked to describe the perfect executive. That he be "Honest", "fair" and "loyal" was paramount to 15.3 per cent.

More Students Turning To Technical Schools

While college graduates are searching the boondocks for jobs, more and more students are turning to trade and technical school training in preparing for a career.

According to Federal Trade Commissioner Chairman Lewis A. Engman, "American consumers are becoming increasingly attracted to the promising value of vocational education. Along with this growing popularity there is an increasing need for prospective students to make a careful evaluation of a specific vocational course or school before they make any financial commitment.

The essential criterion for that evaluation should be the value of the school's training in helping students get a good job."

The process of selecting the right school can be an exciting bargain hunt, well worth careful effort. After all, it's probably the most important purchase a person makes in his lifetime. The following information suggests a path that is bound to lead to a bargain.

The first step is to develop a list of possible schools To do this, you must decide what kind of training you want and where you want to take it. Check the Directory of Postsecondary Schools with Occupational Programs which was published by the U.S. Office of Education in 1971. To purchase a copy, write to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The price is $3.95.

This directory lists over 8,000 public and proprietary postsecondary schools which give trade and technical training. They are arranged by state and city with indexes for programs and for schools. Information given in the directory for each school includes name, address, and telephone number type of school, control or affiliation, enrollment (for public schools only), accreditation and eligibility.

Make a card file of the schools that give the kind of training you want where you want to take it and put the information in the directory about the school on each card.

The next step is to gather all the information you can about the school. Call the school or write for descriptive material which the schools all have available. Examine these materials to find out about courses, faculty, facilities, and costs.

Also talk to people who have had some experience with the schools. Sometimes guidance counselors in the public schools are helpful.

Counselors working with rehabilitation programs know even more about local trade and technical schools usually. If possible, contact some former students who attended the school and ask them about it.

Inquire from area employers what their experience is with people who have had the training. Questions suggested by the Federal Trade Commission which prospective students should ask employers are:

Would you hire graduates of the school? How many have you hired in the last year? Were they hired because of school training? Did training make any difference in starting salary??

The next step is to visit the school itself if at all possible. While you are there, look around and try to get a feeling about the school from the way people are behaving. Talk with students, recognizing while you are doing this that some are likely to be somewhat critical. Examine some of the course materials, and observe the facilities that are available.

After gathering all the information you can about the possible schools, develop some kind of a system for comparison. A simple chart might help to summarize the information which could include such categories as cost, ratings, facilities, general atmosphere, courses, etc. Rate each of the schools on a rating scale for each of the categories using numbers or words such "good," "poor," "excellent," etc.

By the time you get your chart compiled, you should be able to make your decision. If your decision still is not clear, a couple of indicators should hold special weight.

Accreditation is an important factor. It certainly should not be the ONLY factor because the accreditation process has not been under way for proprietary schools very long and most of them have not yet been through the process.

If a school is accredited, however, it probably is a reliable school. Accreditation is given in the directory described above. If you do not have that directory, a Directory of Accredited Private Trade and Technical Schools is available free of charge from the National Associaiton of Trade and Technical Schools at 2021 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

The other most important factor is the attitude of employers. Good schools provide good training. In this employers are the best judges.

Federal Trade Commission Consumer Education Director A. Herbert Ressing stated, when the FTC initiated a nationwide consumer education campaign to help students select good vocational schools, "Unfortunately, some private vocational schools are using false and deceptive practices to lure students into schools, where the education they receive is of little or no value for getting a good job. The students may end up spending hundreds of dollars on a completely worthless education."

To control such practices, the FTC promulgated guides for private vocatinal schools in 1972.

If you shop carefully, you should have no problem.

Gorilla Birth Cuts Record

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Zoo broke its own world record Friday with the birth of its eighth gorilla in captivity.

A 12-year-old lowland gorilla, Mahari, gave birth to the baby, fathered by Hatari, 15, a zoo spokesman said. The gorilla couple has had three other offspring born at the zoo.

Baby's Birth Helps Biggs

— The birth of a baby to Britain's great train robber Ronald Biggs and his Brazilian girl friend will make it impossible to expel him from Brazil, a source in the Ministry of Justice said Saturday.

"The baby will add another barrier to the difficulties the Brazilian government is facing to enforce the expulsion or deportation ordered against Biggs," the source said, because Brazilian law bars the expulsion of the father of a Brazilian child.

The baby was born Friday to the 44-year-old bandit and his 27-year-old Brazilian girl friend Raimunda Nascimento de Castro.

Biggs has successfully thwarted Britain's efforts to bring him back to a British jail to finish his 30-year sentence for the spectacular $5.7 million train robbery in 1963. He escaped from Wandsworth prison in 1965, one year after he was sentienced.

Biggs told newsmen the child will be named Michael Nascimento de Castro.

Biggs has been living in Brazil under the alias Michael Haynes since March 1970 and worked as a carpenter-decorator until his arrest last February.

He recently announced he had produced a record album titled "Mailbag Blues" which he described as a "musical interpretation of some of the highlights of my life since 1963."

After his arrest in Brazil, Biggs was ordered deported but a federal appeals court ruled that he could not be deported to England or any country which has an extradition treaty with England.

TV In Review

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Along with handmade clothes and cheap little restaurants, the future of another cherished institution of France — female television announcers — hangs in doubt.

On two of France's three channels, smiling beauties with gleaming teeth, lacquered hair and inextinguishable happiness announce program schedules.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in July ordered the state-operated TV to break up into six systems by year's end.

Whether the reorganized television will retain the 27-year-old custom of lady announcers "depends upon the new program director," said Jacques Planche, supervisor since 1953 of his stable of girl announcers.

"The girls may disappear with computers taking over. They are artisan work."

The third channel which opened in 1972 uses computerrun printed announcements to identify the channel and announce programs.

Female TV announcers have appeared elsewhere in Europe but Planche said France holds the record of nine girls for the two channels.

The lady announcers came into being "as a human, charming touch" when Channl One opened in 1947. In line with orders from the French academy to keep English out of the French language, the girls are supposed to be called "presentatrices". But Planche and the public still call them "speakerines" in Franglais.

When the second channel opened in 1964, Planche chose three more speakerines out of 10,000 applicants.

Of his nine girls, all are married, most have children and one—the eldest and the wife of one of the TV executives—is a grandmother.

Down the years one girl quit to go on radio, another to become a photographer. Planche fired one when she made the front pages by biting two policemen and another was dismissed for posing virtually nude for a magazine.

The girls' sing-song introductions are mimicked mercilessly by stage comedians. But Planche said the public regards them as friends, showering them with fan letters, propositions and proposals.

One day speakerine Catherine Langeais got caught in the rain outside the studio and had to pull her hair back from her face.

"The minute she got on TV the telephone calls started, 100 at a time, demanding to know why she changed her hair style," Planche said.

Ford May Not Know It, But He's An Irishman

DUBLIN (UPI) — President Gerald R. Ford may not know it, but he is an Irishman—and up in County Longford they have his ancestral home to prove it.

According to the locals in the small village of Newtownforbes, the ruins of the home of President Ford's grandmother are still to be seen about one mile off the main Longford Road.

In addition to an ancestral home, the American President has a crop of Irish cousins. Three County Longford men— Patrick, James and Frank Kenny—have laid claim to him as their third cousin.

The way they tell it in Longford, about 100 years ago President Ford's grandfather, Hughie King, emigrated from Tully, near Newtownforbes, about 50 miles northwest of Dublin.

He settled in Michigan, trained as a journalist and then became a millionaire through selling real estate at the turn of the century.

One of Hughie King's sons, Leslie, a wool merchant, married Dorothy Gardner. They had one child Gerald King, the future U.S. president. After two years the marriage broke up and Dorothy King married one Gerald R. Ford, a pint salesman who adopted her child and gave him his own name.

President Ford's newly found Irish cousins, three bachelors in their 60s, say they remember their grandmother speaking of her brother Hughie King.

"Granny used to tell us that she always knew Hughie would go far," Patrick Kenny said.

James Kenny, who works with the local county council as a road worker, said his newfound fame would not interrupt the even tenor of his life.

"I hope Jerry will drop in and see us some day," he said, casually.

Little now remains of the Ford ancestral home, a two-room thatched cottage. The walls have collapsed, but the foundations still show the kitchen and hearth where Hughie sat in the 1860s.

There is not much left to show—but there is enough to give Longford the answer to Dunganstown in County Wexford—the ancestral home of the Kennedy clan.

Proprietary Trade Schools Successful With Dropouts

Proprietary (profit - seeking) trade and technical schools are successful in training dropouts and slow learners for jobs which take these individuals out of the disadvantaged category. This facthas important implications for vocational education.

An illustration of this is the Culinary Institute of America. In an experiment, this school accepted randomly thirty students ranking near the bottom of their high school class.

At the end of the training period, the results of the experiment indicated that a substantial percentage of the students were average or better in their class.

A few students even took honors, and only three of them dropped out. Some students who were below average could often perform well in the practical phases of cooking and baking, even though they had trouble with cost control and management courses.

Although it is unlikely that these students will become executive chefs, they can look forward to successful careers in less responsible jobs.

A study conducted at the Center for Research and Development in Higher Education at the University of California, Berkeley found a clear tendency for the least advantaged student to choose the relatively expensive private profit - seeking schools over the nearby inexpensive community colleges and technical schools which were publicly supported.

An examination of the elements involved reasserts the validity of the profit motive on the American scene. These schools survive because of their students' performance in the marketplace. If the students do not perform well, the schools soon fold. Why do they succeed?

Proprietary schools have tunnel vision. They are concerned only with training the student for a specific job and ignore nonemployment - related course work to enrich the "whole" person, a basic part of the philosophy of most public school educators.

If punctuality is needed to succeed on the job, a portion of the student's grade is based on how punctual he is. On the other hand, if the student does not need to read to do the job, he will get no remedial reading as part of his training.

The course length is short, usually lasting from four months to a year. Similar training in a public junior college is a minimum of two years. Also frequent registration for classes permit students to start soon after they decide to do so.

So the disadvantaged student is always conscious of why he is enrolled in a proprietary school — to learn to do the job.

The market encourages private schools to use new methods in training. The breakdown of a course into short, sequential units or topics is one of the effective methods they have developed.

One school in electronics technology has a program consisting of 150 assignments. The longest segment of a two - year course in culinary skills is only two weeks.

Thus student motivation develops through a constant flow of positive feedback, giving the student a sense of achievement.

The training is also direct. Eighty percent of National Association of Trade and Technical Schools (NATTS) surveyed in a study of proprietary vocational schools indicated that a typical full - time student spends a minimum of 41 percent of each day in direct training.

The private schools simulate shops, laboratories, hotels, department stores, whatever is needed to give the student actual experience with the job he will be expected to do when his training is completed.

Proprietary schools do not tolerate failure. They screen students before they accept them and accept only those students who have the potential to learn to do the job.

This is to the advantage of the disadvantaged, however, because these schools screen them only for the skills needed to do the job and admission policies in practice are often more liberal than in other postsecondary schools.

One reason they can be generous is that these schools often offer training at various levels within their occupational group. For example, schools teaching automotive mechanics often have programs for automobile mechanics, body fender repair work, mechinist, and machine operator, as well as other related occupations.

Students are placed, after their screening tests, into notches where they are most likely to succeed. Marginal students may be given a probationary period and terminated early in the course if they re not succeeding.

Proprietary schools do not wait until the end of the course to tell a student he is a failure. Frequent, often daily, checks are made on student progress. Teachers provide individual assistance to wobbly students because they are not on tenure and their continuous employment depends on the level of skills their students achieve.

What are the implications of these facts for vocational education? With focus on the skills needed, these private vocational schools find the task the student can learn to do, and see that he learns it.

Whatever basic changes are occurring in our society, one truth persists. Nothing succeeds like success, and success does turn the disadvantaged around.

The male yellow throated sand grouse waters its chicks by soaking its belly feathers and returning to the nest. The chicks then use their beaks to strip the water from the feathers.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

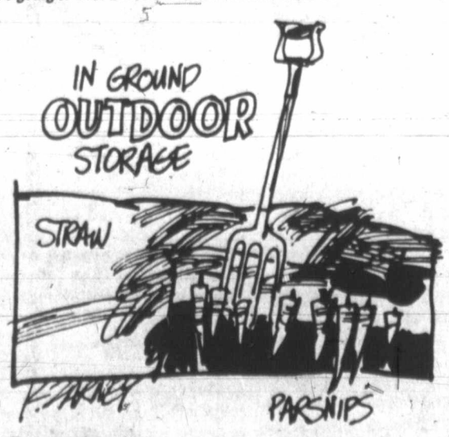

This is the season when home gardens and roadside stands overflow. Prices of produce are currently running as low as they're likely to until next summer. If you ever expect to stock the family larder with inexpensive fruits and vegetables, now's the time to do so.

But how will you preserve those bushels of edibles until you can use them? In any one of a half dozen ways!

If you have a freezer, fill it. If you don't, rent a box in the nearest cold-storage locker. Or how about getting together with a neighbor or two for a traditional canning party? Such work always goes easier when you have someone to share it with.

And have you forgotten that most fruits and some vegetables can be sun-dried? Or that kale, collards, parsnips, salsify, leeks and Brussels sprouts—to name a few crops—can be left right in the ground where they grew until you're ready to eat them? Or that most root vegetables and a few fruits can be safely kept in a storage cellar or a barrel buried in the backyard?

There are many ways to carry this season's harvest over for consumption next winter. If you've never tried them before, ask someone older and wiser to show you how to preserve the summer's bounty. Or check a few books out of the library. It's a shame to let all that food go to waste . . . especially since everyone knows that it's going to cost a lot more a few months from now!

For a mini-manual of instruction in the arts of canning, sun-drying and root-storing fruits and vegetables, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 77, HOW TO PRESERVE PRODUCE.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Loss Of Control Not Inevitable

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am going on 64, and while my health is good and I try to preserve it, I am worrying about the fact that old people lose control of their kidneys and bowels.

Is this inevitable? Are there things I can begin doing now to delay or prevent this?

It happened to my mother when she was about 77 and is one of the most distressful things I know about old age. — Mrs. A.T.

You are in error — I'm happy to tell you. Such incontinence is not a "fact of old age."

You had the experience with your mother; I can hardly deny it has been a distressing problem in nursing homes and elsewhere, but it is most decidedly not an inevitable event that comes with age. I could cite any number of people in their 80s and 90s to prove the point.

When the problem arises, it is usually associated with some other disorder — a stroke, certain neurologic diseases, prostate problems, a "fallen bladder" which might better have been repaired surgically in earlier years.

In some instances there may be nothing you can do now to forestall such troubles, but there are more situations in which something can be done. For men, attention to prostate trouble if it begins to evidence itself; for women, surgical repair of cystocele and rectocele if they are present; for either sex, control of high blood pressure which can cause strokes. Even today too many people aren't aware that their blood pressure is above normal because they haven't had it checked.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please tell me in plain English what pyelonephritis is? — S.A.M.

Sure. It means infection in the kidneys and the pelvis of the kidneys (the pelvis being a sort of collecting chamber). It's usually a stubborn sort of infection and not to be trifled with. When you think you have the infection under control that's when you should not get overconfident. Keep on with treatment after you think you have it whipped; otherwise it has an ornery capability of flaring up again.

That's the plainest language I can think of.

Meantime if you want more detail on the kidneys and how to treat them, I suggest my booklet, "Your Kidneys: Facts You Need to Know." Send me in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, 25 cents and a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope for a copy of the booklet.

Lest I sound unduly flippant, I want to emphasize it: kidney infection is a stubborn ailment, and not to be taken lightly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there anything beneficial from using a rocking chair other than the relaxation derived? I recall President Kennedy used one, and I wondered if for a special reason. — T.Y.

I don't know that the President had any special reason — except that he liked it.

Physically, there's probably some small benefit. You usually keep rocking and the gentle muscular action would benefit circulation a bit.

But the main thing you gain is the relaxation. That's not to be sneezed at, as any doctor will tell you after he's spent years seeing patients who were nervously tense.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are water beds safe to sleep on? I have heard that some people get arthritis from sleeping on the water. — Mrs. W.M.

That's another of the silly rumors about water beds. No, they don't cause arthritis.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Liz Hasn't Lost Sex Appeal

NEW YORK - Liz Taylor has lost none of her sex appeal.

Slim and sexy in her silken pants outfit, Elizabeth and good - looking young boy friend Henry Wynberg brought out all the papparassi (just like in the old days) when they limousined to "Candide," to Gallagher's for dinner, back to the Waldorf, and then next day to Kumpelmayer's for brunch.

"Don't panic!" Liz said to daughter Maria Burton as the picture - punchy photographers rushed their car. Wynberg, who's hardly left Liz for weeks, smilingly elbowed them aside assisted by bodyguard Gino and a policeman.

Publicist John Springer joined the flying wedge and arranged to pull me in so I would get Liz Taylor's only kiss of the evening (well, the early part of the evening, anyway).

Much mystified was teen - age friend of Maria's, Celia Mastroianni. Throughout the scene in Gallagher's Liz kept smiling. She told me, "I'm going to do my own singing in "The Bluebird," the $20 million movie she'll film in Leningrad.

"Don't forget she's often sung in films, remember she used to be Mrs. Eddie Fisher," somebody said. Henry Wynberg gave NY its first real look at him. I mentioned to couple of girls that she picked a young - looking guy and do you know what they said? They said, "WHY NOT?"

Richard Burton, kidding around with Sophia Loren on London set of "Brief Encounter," said "We're secretly married. I got my divorce - I'm waiting for her to get hers." (A joke - I THINK!)

Beautiful Joyce Mathens, who was married twice to Billy Rose and twice to Milton Berle and once to a couple of other guys, tried it again with actor Don Beddoes in Newport Beach, Cal. Dtr. Vicki Berle matron - of - honored.

Shirley MacLaine brings her exciting act to the Concord Labor Day. When she opened at the Las Vegas Grand, I wrote up the $800 - a - day suite assigned me as I'd never bedded down in a $34 - an - hour pad before. Shirley later said, "Earl came to see my show but he reviewed his suite."

Recording star Genevieve Waite threatens to cause a scandal about the way one critic reviewed her record because his friend couldn't get into a party . . . The illness of VIP is the hush - hush project of major woman's magazine . . . Dick Conlon, mgr. of Gallagher's, has a cataract. A woman customer was so solicitious that he was stand - offish till she said, "You idiot, I'm your kid sister!"

Comedians speak truth in jests: At the Nixon 1968 Inaugural Gala, Buddy Ebsen told Doc Severinsen, "If we don't get this music together, they won't invite me back for the impeachment."

Luchow's, bringing back Sunday celebrity crowds, had lyricist Sammy Cahn, Congresswoman Elizabeth Holtzman, and Composer Jule Styne who said he took an option on Anita Loos' "Kiss Hollywood Goodbye" and got Jack Haley Jr. fascinated. (Maybe for Liza Minnelli?) . . . "With Ford as Prez, they need a military man for V.P.," says Karl Bernstein. "How about General Motors!" . . . Ex - fighter Jake La Motta announces his engagement to Debbie Florsheim "You deceived me, you made me think you were rich," he told her. "You deceived me, you made me think you were Rocky Graziano," she said. Jake gets a lot of girls telling them he's Rocky.

Connie Francis lost her baby . . . Hugh Hefner and Barney Cornfeld, and a few gals shared a table at "LMPC" . . . The Stage Deli sent Mryon Cohen, at Mt. Sinai Hospital, salami, pastrami and corned beef - and a get well card.

Show Biz Quiz: Who won the most Oscars? Ans. to yesterday's: Carroll Baker and Carol Lynley starred in Jean Harlow films.

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "To be overweight" says a menu at Seafare of the Aegean "is a fat worse than death."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A football player said "The money they offered me as a pro was less than I was getting as an amateur."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The greatest pleasure I know is to do a good action by stealth and to have it found out by accident." (Charles Lamb).

EARL'S PEARLS: "Little Nudist" jokes are in, the cornier the better. Hear about the little nudist who gave it up because he got a raw deal?

Goodman Ace reports that an immigrant youth boasted he learned "The Star Spangled Banner" and recited it: "O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave Play Ball" . . . That's earl, brother.

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL
Executive Secretary ARC

The Red Cross Board met in the Red Cross office Tuesday morning August 13th with 19 members and one guest, Mrs. Euna Lee Moores from Franklin, La. present. Mrs. Moores was on the Red Cross Board 14 years ago and has kept up with our work during the years she has lived away from Pampa. Reports from the standing committees were given with Mrs. Louise Sewell reporting the Hospital Volunteers gave 200 hours of Voluntary service during the month of August and the Volunteens giving 94 hours of service. Jack Chisum, Water Safety chairman complimented the WSIs for their good work during the summer months. He told of the swim meet at the close of the summer season and stated that we would be having classes at the Youth Center during the fall and winter months. The next meeting will be in the Red Cross office September 10th.

Mr. Bill Jean, Western Oklahoma Division of the American Red Cross, came by to see us this past week. We were so glad to see him and to know that he is continuing his work with Red Cross. Bill was a Field Representative three years ago for the Panhandle of Texas and was living in Amarillo.

Mrs. Virginia Etheredge, WSI, assisted by Betty Casbier and Sally White, both WSI, completed a Beginner Class August 9th with Brian Katora, David Dodson, Kathy Cook, Brent Colwell, Michael Treadwell, Steve Sokolosky, and Shannon Loter completing the course. They also completed an Advanced Beginner Class the 9th of August with Jackie Reed, Shane Etheredge, and Susan Savage completing the course.

We will be having Multimedia First Aid Classes soon so, if you need to take such a course, please call our office and register for it. Several of our instructors need to teach before December 31st as their card will expire then. This is a great course and we will teach it at night or an all day session on Saturdays. First come, first served.

We are all so concerned over Anastasia Mama, the Greek exchange student who lived in Pampa last year. Anastasia lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis and all Pampa fell in love with her. She had returned to her home in Cyprus just before the fighting broke out. All students and friends be assured that the Red Cross is working to find out if she is well and happy.

Smith's Sentence Lifted

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — An appeals court has lifted an indeterminate jail sentence for contempt on C. Arnholt Smith, a long time friend and campaign contributor to former President Nixon.

Smith was found in contempt June 14 by Superior Court Judge Paul E. Overton for refusing to answer questions in the trial of a man accused of trying to extort money from Smith. He was free on appeal.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal agreed with Smith's argument that he might be unconstitutionally forced to incriminate himself if he answered the questions. The appeals court annulled the senence, it was revealed Friday.

Smith is currently engaged in a number of legal actions due to the collapse of his financial empire under the onslaught of federal regulatory agencies. His Westgate-California Corp., had to file for bankruptcy and his U.S. National Bank folded, the biggest bank collapse in the history of the United States.

Smith, a high school dropout, was an election eve companion when Nixon was first elected President in 1968. Smith aided Nixon since his first campaign for Congress in California.

Smith was called to testify in the trial of Robert Daggett, 49.

"Any answers Smith might give might conceivably strike a link in a chain of potentially incriminating evidence to be used against him," his attorney, Robert Hinerfeld, argued at the time.

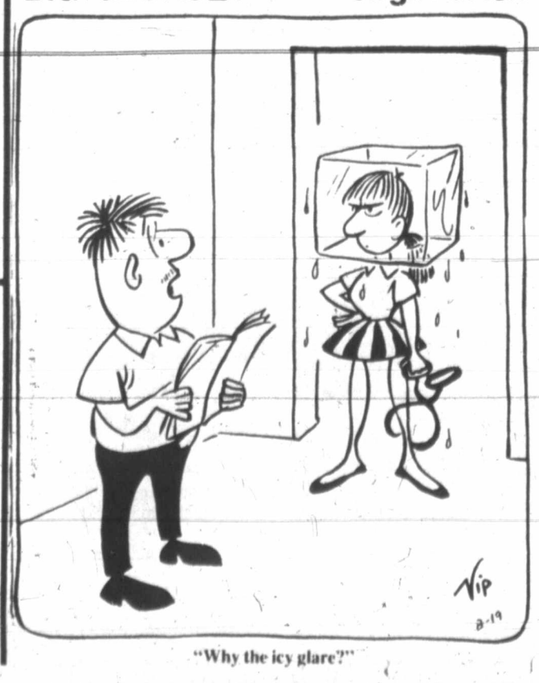

The judge disagreed even though it was known a federal grand jury was investigating Smith's financial dealings at the time.

That grand jury later indicted Smith on charges including conspiracy, misapplication of funds of a national bank, making false statements to bank officers and making false entries in books of a national bank.

Gridsters Start Fall Workouts

By PAUL SIMS

Pampa High footballers, most of who have been working out on their own recently, began official preparations for the upcoming season, which is less than three weeks off, this afternoon as fall practice began for state AAAA teams.

This morning, Pampa head coach John Welborn outlined the week ahead.

"We'll work on pass offense and defense and the kicking game today. We'll have one running series a day and work on different defenses this week. Thursday, we'll review what we're going to do in pads."

No AAAA teams will be donning pads and have contact work until Friday, according to University Interscholastic League regulations. This week, up until Friday, teams will mainly be getting in shape and working on technique.

Smaller classification schools had their no - contact workouts last week, putting on pads last Friday.

Pampa's first scrimmage will be against Vernon Aug. 30 in Harvester Stadium. There will be no intersquad scrimmage, according to Welborn.

Anticipation is at peak for most Pampa High gridsters, exemplified in that approximately 20 have been practicing and running on their own every evening at the high school. From five to six players have been running in the mornings.

"Everybody I've talked to is really enthused," said first team defensive right tackle Dane Rasmussen. "We've had 20 guys every night go up there and work out. We've been doing plays and we run and then we have a scrimmage (two - below)."

Rasmussen thinks a 3 - AAAA championship for Pampa is a strong possibility, despite most forecasters picking the team to finish last again. "We can win it; the only thing we might be a little weak in is our defensive backs. Tascosa and Palo are going to be tough."

Rick Leverich, who was moved from quarterback to running back in the spring to bolster Pampa's rushing offense which was weak a year ago, shares Rasmussen's optimism.

"Everybody's been down practicing to get in shape; we're working harder this year than we have in the past three or four years. And Welborn's a good coach, probably one of the most intelligent coaches we've had in a long time.

"If you got a question," elaborated Leverich, "he doesn't have to think about it — he's got an answer right away.

"A lot of people aren't giving us a chance to win district. That's good, we'll come through as a darkhorse."

Welbron talked about the upcoming season, which starts Sept. 6 at Hereford, at noon Friday during the weekly meeting of the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

In his talk, Welborn mentioned his plan to use the three - platoon system as a means of letting more boys play, get game experience and improve.

Welborn's sytem will be unique in this district. Only the Pampa coach and George Kirk of Plainview will instigate it in the Panhandle.

Fran Wilson City Champ

Mrs. Earl (Fran) Wilson fired a two - day 173 total and captured first place, edging Mrs. Gip Gipson by a shot, in the championship flight of the Women's City Golf Tournament, which ended Sunday at Pampa Country Club.

Mrs. Jim Simpson won low net honors in the flight with a 149, three shots ahead of Mrs. Hart Warren, last year's tournament champion.

Mrs. Warren did, however, win one title this year, capturing the putting championship in a special contest. Mrs. Eugene Reed and Mrs. Wilson were long drive and chipping champions respectively.

First flight winners were Mrs. Joe Gates with a 186 for low gross and Mrs. Richard Igua with a 156 low net. In second place were Mrs. Don Riddle, 188 gross, and Mrs. Bill Arthur, 166 net.

Other winners were:

Second flight — Mrs. Sherwin Cox, 202; Mrs. S.O. Dunnam, 215; Mrs. Glen Sanders, 166 (net), and Melba Wade, 169.

Third flight — Mrs. Tommy Hill, 123 (18 holes); Mrs. Richard Houseman, 131; Mrs. Robert Hill, 100 (net, second place).

Stockton Captures Win In Hartford Open Golf

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Dale Stockton was walking to the clubhouse after nailing down his victory in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open when the phone rang in the press tent.

Stockton was called over and picked up the phone.

"Hello, this is Jerry Ford," said the voice on the other end.

Stockton smiled childishly.

It was the end of a perfect day.

The 38th President of the United States, Stockton disclosed, had been his partner in a recent Pro Am Tournament at Pleasant Valley, Sutton, Mass., and the pair had struck up a friendly relationship.

Ford admitted to Stockton that one of his favorite pastimes was bringing his work home and watching golf on television. Stockton said Ford called to tell the 10-year tour veteran "how pleased he was that I won."

Stockton, who lives in Westlake, Calif., carded a final round of 69 Sunday to finish with a 16 under par total of 268 and virtually run away from the field at Wethersfield Country Club.

Stockton's total, which earned him $40,000, was four strokes better than that of second place finisher Ray Floyd. Floyd, on the strength of a 66, finished with a 272 score and collected $22,800.

Alone in third place was Bob Wynn, a 34 year old non-winner from Xenia, Ohio. Wynn, with a final day 70 compiled a 273 total, good for $14,200, his highest career purse.

Plagued by putter problems was Lee Trevino, the favorite of the estimated 31,000 who attended the final day of action. Trevino, unable to sink numerous birdie putts, managed only a 1 over par 72 to finish in fourth place. Trevino picked up $9,400 for his efforts.

Defending titlist Billy Casper headed a group of six at 275, while Gary Player, unable to solve the 6,598 yard par 71 Wethersfield course, finished well back in the field at 282.

Stockton, who led through all four rounds, started the final 18 with a three-stroke lead. He dropped a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole to take a four-stroke avantage and that's the way it stayed.

Cincinnati Just 2½ Out

United Press International

Playing the percentages and baseball's so-called law of averages both leave a little to be desired as far as the New York Mets and Los Angeles Dodgers are concerned.

New York and Cincinnati were tied 3-3 in the bottom of the seventh inning Sunday and the Reds had a runner on second base with two out when Mets manager Yogi Berra, playing the percentages, ordered an intentional walk to Tony Perez who had already driven in two runs.

That brought Dave Concepcion, Perez' roommate, to bat and the Venezuelan-born shortstop promptly ripped a three-run homer off Jon Matlack as the Reds went on to a 6-5 victory to move within 2½ games of first-place Los Angeles in the National League West.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles, which held a 10½ game lead over the Reds only five weeks ago, ran its current losing streak to six games by dropping a 10-3 decision to the Pirates at Pittsburgh. The loss meant the Dodgers finished the season with an 0-6 mark in Three Rivers Stadium and as first baseman Steve Garvey remarked, "kind of a bad record, isn't it?"

Bob Robertson drove in four runs, two of them with his 12th homer, and Richie Zisk slugged his 13th home run to pace the Pirates' attack as Pittsburgh remained tied with Philadelphia for second place in the East, 2½ games behind St. Louis.

In other National League games, St. Louis tripped San Francisco 4-1, Philadelphia beat Atlanta 7-4, Houston blanked Montreal 3-0 and Chicago whipped San Diego 14-6.

In the American League, Boston beat Minnesota 9-6, New York tagged Chicago 9-4, Baltimore blanked Kansas City 1-0, Oakland walloped Detroit 13-3, Milwaukee defeated California 5-2 and Texas shutout Cleveland 1-0.

Phils 7, Braves 4

Bill Robinson, Mike Schmidt and Willie Montanez homered to pace Philadelphia over Atlanta behind the six-hit pitching of Dick Ruthven. The Phillies, who tied the score at 3-3 on Schmidt's league-leading 29th homer in the fifth inning, broke the deadlock with three runs in the seventh thanks to a pair of bases loaded walks by starter Ron Reed and reliever Danny Frisella.

Gibson's Finishes 3rd In Skellytown Tourney

SKELLYTOWN — Western Brick of Amarillo rapped 16 hits, three by John Prince, and bombed Gibson's Discount of Pampa, 11 - 3, Saturday night in the Skellytown Softball Tournament. Despite the loss, Gibson's second, the Pampa team finished in third place in the competition.

Delbert Daniels, who lasted six innings, was the losing pitcher for Gibson's. Andrew Harris was the winner.

Leading hitter for Gibson's was A.J. Brewer, who went four for four. Jim Cotter got Western Brick out on the right foot, hitting a homerun in the first inning.

Western Brick earned second place in the tournament, behind Borger "B".

Gibson's edged J.T. Richardson of Skellytown, 9 - 7, Friday, which was Richardson's second loss in the double elimination affair.

Toddy Black and Gerald Owens each went four for four batting for the winners, followed by Brewer, three for four, and Rick Musgrave, two for three.

Al Gomez went three for four for the losers. Gibson's outhit Richardson, 15 - 12.

Winner and loser were Sammy Giddeon and Dale Patterson respectively.

Landry, Cowboys Work Out Sunday Following Bad Game

DALLAS (UPI) — If things had gone according to schedule, members of the Dallas Cowboys would have been settling back in their homes about now, having put the rigors of their Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp behind them.

But, as has been mentioned normal year in the National Football League.

So, after the Cowboys' 19-13 sudden death exhibition victory over Houston Saturday night, Landry packed up his crew and hauled them back to California for more training.

After the first half Saturday night, Landry might have had thoughts of keeping his team in camp through October.

"We just don't have it all together," Landry said in his typically understated manner. "We were just making too many mistakes."

The Cowboys squandered three scoring opportunities in the first half against Houston and the Oilers took control of the game in the second half only to have two costly blunders give Dallas a chance to tie the game in regulation and then an opportunity to win in overtime.

The bright spots for Dallas included quarterback Roger Staubach, who hit on 16 of 27 passes for 251 yards and two touchdowns, including a 23-yard, fourth-down scoring toss to rookie tight end Ron Howard with 20 seconds remaining in regulation that tied the game.

The Cowboy receiving corps also looked sharp, with Golden Richards catching six passes for 127 yards and Drew Pearson hauling in four for 59. But Howard, a free agent, looked as if he would make the ball club.

Howard played basketball for the Unversity of Seattle.

"He's the real bright spot for us thus far in camp," said Landry. "He is the best conditioned athlete we have and he was still going full speed in the final period. He's one basketball player who could really help us."

Even more surprising than Howard, however, is the overall play of Houston's group of rookies.

Players Reduce All Demands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leaders of the Players Association insisted Sunday they have reduced their "freedom issue" and economic demands to rock bottom in a new compromise bid to settle the marathon pro football dispute with the owners.

The NFL Players Association made public at a Sunday news conference details of a 16-point, one-year contract package which has been submitted to the owners.

"We've compromised on every one of the freedom issues," Ed Garvey, executive director of the association, told newsmen. "This is the bottom limit we can recommend to our members."

Meanwhile, the seven player members of the union executive committee, who have been bargaining with the owners, were headed for their training camps. They were increasingly concerned that they might be jeopardizing their jobs by failing to report.

Most of the striking veterans reported last week when the union announced the 42-day-old strike was being lifted for a two-week "cooling off" period.

Bargaining talks under the supervision of chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. were recessed late Saturday with an air of pessimism over prospects of a settlement. No further sessions are planned until later this week.

"The cooling off gesture by the players hasn't worked thus far," Garvey said Sunday. "Even though the owners have been seriously hurt.

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Boosted Their Own Pay

Now that Richard Nixon is out of office — replaced by a man he, himself, nominated for the office of vice president and for whom not a single American voted for either office — many have relaxed in the belief that a dangerous, cancerous growth has been cut out of the body politic.

That, putting it mildly, is wishful thinking in the extreme.

True, the man, Nixon, has departed, but the power he wielded, now wielded by another, remains. This, not Nixon the individual, was, and is, the dangerous growth in the body politic. And it is still there, intact. Not, let it be emphasized, just the power inherent in the office of the president and his administration, but the power running wild in every echelon of government bureaucracy from the highest to the lowest level.

An illustration of this power, and how it was used to rip - off the taxpayers to the tune of $1 billion a year, surfaced recetly in a General Accounting Office report obtained by United Press International.

According to UPI, the GAO report revealed that bureaucrats in the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics doctored a comparison of wages in private industry so as to give government employes an extra $1 billion a year in pay raises.

One government employe, interviewed by UPI, smiled sardonically and asked, "What would you expect when civil servants figure the raises paid civil servants? How would you like to figure your own pay raise each year?"

Commenting on the GAO report, Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the United States, was quoted by UPI as saying, "the methods used to translate private enterprise data into federal pay adjustments were not based on well - founded logical premises."

Nor should that be surprising. For, in reality, there just isn't any way to make a realistic comparison between a job in the voluntary market place and a job in government.

One, the job in private enterprise, and thepay received for doing that job, is based on the principle of voluntary exchange and the willingness of the consuming public to pay a given price for the product or service being produced and offered.

The Unbought Shoes

How easy it is to declare something as a civic "need" when you have access to someone else's pocketbook as a means of providing it, and how easy it is, in the civic zeal of the moment, to avert one's eyes from the plight of those harmed in the process.

The declared "need," when finally constructed with coercively collected funds, will be clearly visible to all, and won't it be just grand? Not so visible and not so grand the plight of the widow, struggling to make ends meet, and others who may never make use of the "need," whose tax pennies were taken in order to provide it.

There is just so much wealth in the world at any given time and, when part of that wealth is taken from those to whom it belongs in order to satisfy the "needs" of others, there is just that much less left to satisfy the needs of those form whom taken.

A dollar, or a penny, cannot be spent in two places at the same time. Every dollar, or penny, used to satisfy an arbitrarily declared civic "need" must, of necessity, reduce the amount of satisfaction experienced by individuals.

But the civic zealot, enthralled by the grand design, must not let himself dwell on such things lest his sleep be troubled. The grand design, the clearly visible, must be kept constatnly in mind. The pair of shoes, the child's winter coat unpurchased, the satisfaction of all those hundreds of "small" individual needs, sacrificed to the consumation of the grand design, must not be permitted to intrude. Unseen and, therefore, inconsequential, they don't count.

OUTRIDER

Ten-Million Dollar Godfather

By GARRY WILLS

WASHINGTON — Those inscrutable Americans and their convoluted morality.

Can anyone around explain, so that a rational Martian visitor might understand, why it requires a decision by the United States Supreme Court to permit exhibition of the film "Carnal Knowlege" at a single theater in the state of Georgia, while one of the most explicitly indecent motion pictures ever made will be broadcast into 40 to 500 million homes this fall, with big - money sponsors standing in line to do the honors?

The answer, if my simpleminded Martian friend can fathom it, lies in the meaining we Americans choose to give the word "decency."

For example, had a major national network shelled out $10 million for the right to beam "Carnal Knowledge" into our living rooms, the Federal Communications Commission — spurred on by millions of moralists — would have put its foot down in righteous wrath. But a film that only glamorizes organized crime and murder? Well, that's different.

Not long ago it was suggested here that we, as a people, are guilty of conducting a hypocritical prime - time love affair with crime and voilence. In the daytime, we talk law - and - order morality. But after hours, we take vicarious pleasure in lawlessness and violence. The prime - time TV ratings for this past season, showing crime programs at the top of the heap (in the sheep's clothing of "detective" stories) were cited as evidence of this double - standard.

In case you're interested, that two - faced love affair shows no signs of waning for the 1974 - 75 network programming season. On the contrary, it's reached top - dollar prices. Consider:

"The Godfather," that award - winning artistic tribute to the Mafia (the only law enforcement officer who appears in it is on the take) has been scheduled for a two - part prime - time stand come November, at a cost to the exhibiting network of $10 million. Which, to keep our cultural priorities in focus, happens to be the largest sum ever paid out for rights to a single showing of any film "classic."

This, despite the fact that as an appeal to adolescent puerility, animal instinct and amorality, "Godfather" has few equals in film history.

Nevertheless, Sen. John Pastore and his subcommittee on communications really shouldn't take the news too hard. All those sessions they've held looking into the pernicious effects of TV violence on young viewers haven't been in vain.

Indeed, the TV producer who proudly announced his network's acquisition of "Godfather" has promised to edit out — now get this — a full minute and a quarter (no more) of the film's more offensive scenes. That, except for the squeamish, ought to be sufficient to tailor Marlon Brando & Co. into fit viewing for American family tastes. Sort of a "Godfather Knows Best," you might say.

None of which is a brief for either bigger and better porno films or FCC censorship of what the public wants to see on their home sets. It's only to try to see these things through the eyes of my Martian friend.

IRS Turns Guns On Rebozo

By C. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Through a series of stalls, Charles W. (Bebe) Rebozo has avoided producing records on his financial dealings with Ex - President Nixon, but Nixon's best friend is in serious trouble with the special prosecutor's office.

And the Internal Revenue Service, finally freed from the inhibitions of keeping the White House posted on all of its enforcement moves on the Miami real estate operator, now is prepared to seek prosecution of Rebozo for federal income tax frauds.

The possibility of perjury looms large in the testimony that Rebozo gave in executivte sessions of the Senate Select Watergate Committee in its exploration of the mysterious $100,000 in cash Rebozo received in 1969 and 1970 from representatives of billionaire Howard Hughes.

It is Rebozo's contention that he received the $100,000 in cash in two bundles of $50,000 each at some vague date in 1969 or 1970 as a contribution toward the 1972 campaign for Mr. Nixon's re - election.

This same cash was placed in a safe deposit box shortly afterwards and Rebozo contends that it remained there for three years until he returned it to Hughes in early 1973 at the suggestion of the President.

In his interviews with the Internal Revenue Service in 1973 and with Senate Watergate Committee investigators, Rebozo has told several different accounts of the times and places when he received the bundles of $100 bills.

Some of these stories have been inconsistent with the testimony of representatives of Howard Hughes and the physical circumstances corroborating the accumulation and delivery of the money.

Reports of the Federal Reserve Board on the serial numbers of the $100 bills that Rebozo says were kept in his safe from the time he received them casts doubt upon some of the first stories he told federal investigators. The record demonstrates that some of those bills had not yet been circulated at the time Rebozo had initially said he received the money.

Some aspects of the criminal investigation could result in rather rapid indictment of Rebozo, but the Special Prosecutor and the Internal Revenue Service are intent on trying to systematically unwind all aspects of his financial dealings with Mr. Nixon and others.

Many questions pending about Rebozo's financial affairs could be answered by Nixon and are spelled out in a 16 - page letter written on June 6, 1974, to White House Counsel James St. Clair by Senate Watergate Committee Chairman Sam Ervin (D-N.C.).

That letter is a starting point for Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's staff in its pursuit of the man who was a handy man with cash for any whim that Mr. Nixon had in mind, whether it was a swimming pool or a new roof at Key Biscayne, or the purchase of parcels of land adjacent to his seaside home at San Clemente.

The early pattern of Internal Revenue Service favoritism for the President's pal involved everyone from the IRS agents in Florida to such high officials in the Nixon White House as Special Assistant John D. Ehrlichman. Even after Ehrlichman left on May 1, 1973, the newly installed White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig, showed an unusual degree of attentiveness in seeing that Attorney General Elliot Richardson and then Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox knew that "the Internal Revenue Service was giving Mr. Rebozo a clean bill ... (after) the most thorough investigation in years."

There is evidence that the Cox investigation of Rebozo caused the President to fire Cox.

The Senate Watergate Committee and the special prosecutor have now reviewed in detail the IRS investigations of Rebozo and have established the following favoritism for Mr. Nixon's best friend:

1. For no good reason the investigation of Rebozo was postponed several times.

2. The reports on the investigation were handled through oral communications rather than the normal written reports.

3. Essentially every major move in the investigation included advance notice to President Nixon and to Rebozo.

4. No normal inquiry was made into irregular financial matters in the relevant periods of time when questions should have been raised on the basis of testimony and evidence available to IRS officials.

5. The tax agent permitted Rebozo's attorney, rather than the IRS, to obtain information that would corroborate or destroy the credibility of third - party witnesses.

6. There were no effors to conduct additional interviews with Rebozo even after the IRS had learned Rebozo had changed previous statements on dates and places of delivery of large sums of cash.

Watergate Angle That Has Not Been Covered

By VICTOR RIESEL

Ralph Salerno is more than a good friend. He is my idea of THE honest man. Certainly he is one of the land's most informed men — as compared with an agency — on the organized criminal syndicates which loot this nation of billions annually. For many years, young as he is now, he headed the famed New York City police "Mafia Desk." I asked him to look at the Watergate phenomenon and come up with an angle which has not been covered. Here's what he found, written exclusively for this column:

By RALPH SALERNO

NEW YORK — The number of words that have been expended in reporting and analyzing the Watergate case must total in the millions. Talk shows have had at it; print media has oversated the nation and transcripts of congressional hearings and released White House tapes have all come into the public domain. It seems remarkable that despite reporting from almost every angle a key aspect of the entire affair has escaped notice.

The minor matter of a break-in directed by political zealots exploded into much greater proportions when federal Judge John Sirica pried open the lips of James McCord, one of the conspirators. What has been overlooked, or at least insufficiently reported, is that to do so, the judge used for leverage the criminal sanctions of what had been a highly controversial piece of legislation only six years ago:

Title III of the Omnibus Crime Bill and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Title III is the federal wiretap law enforcement, under court control, and expressly forbids all other uses as a serious violation of law. In 1963, Robert F. Kennedy, then Attorney General and a major proponent of the statute, graphically described its need in testimony before Sen. McClellan's Investigating Committee. He pointed out, "The present statute (Sec. 605 of the Federal Communications Act) fails to protect the right of privacy over the telephone because anyone can listen without violating that statute. At present, to convict someone of illegal wiretapping, we must not only prove that a tap was made but also that there was unlawful disclosure of the conversation." In other words, just being caught in the basement of the Watergate as the burglars were would not have substantiated a wiretap charge under the old law. Sirica would not have been able to impose a sentence of six years and eight months of Gordon Liddy, and the threat of a one - year sentence for breaking in would probably not have swayed McCord.

The position of various key players in the ensuing drama with regard to the wiretap law that made it all possible is interesting. Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina does not favor wiretapping and has helped prevent enactment of such legislation in his home state. His chief counsel, Samuel Dash, was an outspoken oppnent of Title III. Ramsey Clark when Attorney General joined President Lyndon Johnson in violent opposition to the enactment of the statue. Leon Jaworski while serving on the President's Crime Commission voted against it. There are many people who challenged Kennedy's position who appear to be enjoying important roles in the situation his statute brought about.

It is a paradox then that "the Watergate mess in Washington" is serving to defeat attempts to get similar legislation enacted in Iowa, Texas, California and elsewhere. Watergate should have made the point that, in the hands of a judge with the backbone to use its sanctions, such a law serves to protect privacy. Its affirmative usefulness is made clear by the colossal goof committed by a central Watergate figure, former U.S. Attorney John Mitchell. The statute requires the Attorney General or an assistant specially designated by him to approve court applications. Mitchell was so busy seeking the reelection of the President he neglected to personally approve a number of wiretap applications and allowed them to be initialed on his behalf by an executive aide. Some 600 indictments, mostly against major organized crime figures and heroin importers, may be dismissed as a result.

In 1973 the federal government installed only 130 wiretaps, about 15 percent of the total. The remainder were by local law enforcement agencies in the states that allow wiretapping. It is easy to see that if 600 major indictments can result in a comparatively short period of time, even with limited use, the value to law enforcement is immeasurable. But the reaction to Watergate goes further than wiretapping. Several bills, including one by Ervin, seek to limit information that can be kept in police files. If these bills had been law a year ago, police material on the Symbionese Liberation Army would not have been available at the time of the Patty Hearst kidnapping. Criminal groups such as the S.L.A. who commit murder, kidnapping, bank robbery and extortion by cloaking themselves in political rhetoric can hold back investigation until after they have been proven to have committed criminal acts. If a group of heroin importers sends a cassette to the media stating they are a political movement we might have to destroy all files on them.

It would be a shame if we fail to realize that the statute that made Watergate possible is needed at the state level. Kennedy had asked for wiretapping and immunity because it would be helpful in fighting "organized crime and political corruption of Watergate may be the worst kind of organized crime ever discovered.

H. L. Hunt Writes

NO PEACE ABROAD

The fighting on Cyprus has illustrated how delicate the peace of the world is. Oil has been poured on the troubled waters of the eastern end of the Mediterranean but the national passions and naturl enmities of Greeks and Turks still run high there. Even as the great powers maneuver to put the lid on, some fighting continues. The world has not learned to live in peace.

Action on Cyprus came in the wake of a piecemeal solution of the war in the Middle East but a spark there could set off a conflagration. Vested interests of the great powers are even deeper in the Arab - Israeli area than on Cyprus but in these times it is difficult to isolate a war, and so Cyprus still poses a threat.

On the other side of the world, heavy fighting continues in Indochina despite the "peace" arrangements of the U.S. This is a continuation of the conflict that started in the 1950s and seems destined to continue forever. There seems to be no successful instrument of keeping the peace. Certainly the United Nations has not provided it anymore than did the League of Nations after World War I.

There are two things the United States can do to contribute to peace. It can keep open its good offices to other powers and aid in negotiations. It can keep its defenses honed. A strong American defense posture is the one factor in international politics the communists understand.

Saudi Arabia's 627 oil wells pump an average of 11,830 barrels a day each, says National Geographic.

The 1970 census showed 116 incorporated places with populations of 25 or less. The following had zero population: Bay City, Alaska; Ironton, Colo.; Ridotto, Iowa; Westfall, Ore., and Parker, Tex.
