Personal income rises

Increase fuels boost in consumer spending

■ Crucial economic signs show marked improvement, government says.

By John D. McClain
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Personal incomes shot up 1.1 percent in February, the biggest leap in three years, the government said Friday. The gain helped support a 0.9 percent increase in the consumer spending that will be crucial to any economic recovery.

"The consumer will be the main engine" for the rebound, said economist David Wyss of DRI-McGraw-Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting service.

"This was largely a consumer recession," he said. "It will have to be a consumer-led recovery, and that is what we have been seeing since Christmas."

February's strong figures "may overstate the underlying strength of the economy . . . but there is an indication that the recovery process is under way," said economist Lynn Reaser of First Interstate Bancorp of Los Angeles.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the spending increase in February and a similar one a month earlier meant "real consumption" is rising at a solid 5 percent to 6 percent rate in the first quarter.

Noting that consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, he said the gains "represented a significant positive contribution" to overall growth.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, in remarks prepared for a New York Savings Bond luncheon, also said there are signs "the economy is returning to a pattern of growth."

But he also said that if the Federal Reserve fails to provide enough money to sustain the recovery, the economy could falter again as it did last fall.

It was the latest call for monetary easing by an offi-

Rough weather hits W. Texas, spares Midland

Staff Report

Several severe weather warnings were issued for the Permian Basin Friday night and while some areas received hail and high winds, Midland County was spared, officials reported.

However, Midland County was under a tornado watch and severe thunderstorm warning most of the night. But although rain and high winds were recorded here, it was not considered severe, a spokesman with National Weather Service said.

The most severe weather in the area occurred between Patricia and Andrews, where golf-ball sized hail was reported, the spokesman said.

Pea- to marble-sized hail, heavy rain and winds of 30 to 40 mph were reported in surrounding areas.

Severe winds clocked at about 60 mph rolled through Crane and Lamesa, where a small trailer overturned, officials said.

The independent petroleum industry is finally making progress in getting its message across, said Independent Petroleum Association of America chairman Gene Ames.

Speaking to the annual meeting of Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientists Friday, Ames said the association had recently had articles about the devastation of the domestic oil industry published in Time Magazine and the New York Times.

In addition, he said, the Wall Street Journal was planning a similar approach

Panel delays Tyson ruling

Dershowitz

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Three appellate judges said Friday they want to read transcripts from Mike Tyson's rape trial before deciding whether to free him from prison during his appeal.

The decision means the former heavyweight champion will remain in prison at least until the Indiana Court of Appeals panel reconvenes. The judges didn't say when that would be, but an official said it could take several days to prepare the transcripts.

Superior Court Judge Patricia Gifford, who sentenced Tyson to six years in prison Thursday, denied him bail, saying she feared he might flee or rape again. His appeal could take a year.

Alan Dershowitz, the Harvard University law professor handling Tyson's case, told the judges his client is too well-known to flee.

"Mr. Tyson is the most famous or notorious convicted rapist in the world. He wears a scarlet letter on his forehead," Dershowitz said.

Deputy Indiana Attorney General William Daily countered that Tyson is rich enough to leave the country easily, even though he has surrendered his passport.

"If a person with $10 million in assets wants to live in another country, fight in another country, I don't know any rea-

'Lambs' moves to forefront in Best Picture competition

By Larry Swindell
N.Y. Times News Service

When the race began, when the contenders were "off and running," not much attention focused on "The Silence of the Lambs."

There was almost an element of surprise that it could be a contender for Best Picture honors. After all, "Lambs" was a January 1991 release that might easily have been forgotten at nominations time 13 months later.

But nominated it was; and although the early smart money was on "JFK" and "The Prince of Tides," the bandwagons for both of those entries appear now to have broken down. "Bugsy's" stock has made an even sharper decline, with the result that "Lambs" now rates as favorite to carry home the Big One.

Why? Because in a close race among steeds rated more or less equally, the least disliked entry is most likely to reach the finish line first. Unpleasant it may be, but "Lambs" has few if any detractors. It was an emphatic critical success and is widely respected.

Beique drops out

Midland resident Louis Beique apparently changed his mind about running for mayor, cutting the field of eligible candidates to four.

Beique, a consulting geologist, withdrew from the race late Friday afternoon, according to City Secretary Bill Clanton.

Beique said he would make a public statement on his withdrawal today.

Those remaining in the race include At-Large Councilman J.D. Faircloth, Robbyne Fuller, founding president of the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, pilot Don Kyser and restaurateur Michael Trost.

Trost announced Friday that he will have an 11 a.m. new conference today in reaction to Beique's withdrawal.

The race, one of a number that will be decided May 2, prompted several residents to file for the job after incumbent Mayor Carroll Thomas announced he would not seek re-election.

Rig count falls

HOUSTON — The number of working oil and gas rigs in the United States sank to another record low Friday with Baker Hughes Inc. reporting its weekly national rig count had slipped by four to 639. A year ago, the count was 910. The tabulation has set records for the past three weeks. Last week, the count dropped by six rigs to 643 while the previous week it had dropped by 11 to 649, exceeding the previous low mark of 653 set Jan. 31. Ike Kerridge, who keeps the count for Houston-based oilfield toolmaker Baker Hughes, has said he does not believe the bottom has come yet. During February, the count had been making an uneven recovery after the fall at the end of January. Depressed oil and gas prices and a shift in exploration by domestic companies to foreign countries have been blamed for the decline in recent months.

Hammer's deal

SAN FRANCISCO — A former Navy buddy of rap superstar Hammer says in a lawsuit that Hammer owes him 2.7 percent of all his past and future earnings under a deal the two made five years ago. Vincent Williams said he gave Hammer $5,000 in 1987 in exchange for 2.7 percent of all royalties, concert receipts and other earnings from his entertainment career, but Hammer never honored the contract. A notarized copy of the agreement was filed Wednesday with the lawsuit in U.S. District Court. Lawrence Blake, Hammer's attorney, denied the charges.

Cap Rock Electric seeks injunction against TU Electric

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Cap Rock Electric is seeking a temporary injunction to halt TU Electric from allegedly blocking the delivery of power to Cap Rock from a third company.

Two days of testimony concluded Friday in Judge John Hyde's 238th District Court. The hearing is expected to continue within the next two weeks.

The dispute stems from a 1990 agreement between Cap Rock Electric and TU Electric.

Cap Rock contends that TU Electric agreed to "wheel" power to Cap Rock if power was purchased elsewhere, according to Cap Rock spokeswoman Teresa Kelly.

Currently, the Stanton-based Cap Rock Electric buys all their power wholesale from TU Electric and has since 1963.

"If they won't wheel it, we won't get it," Ms. Kelly said.

Bill Griffin, western region manager for TU Electric, said the 1990 contract specifies notification and time requirements that Cap Rock must meet before getting alternate power.

"They did not give us any notice and the contract says you (Cap Rock) can take off 30 percent of the load in two years and the remainder in three years," Griffin said.

But Cap Rock wants to take off all the load supplied by TU Electric now, Griffin said.

"We are willing to give them another source of power, wheel it for them but with proper notice," Griffin said.

In November, Cap Rock Electric agreed to purchase alternative power from West Texas Utilities in Abilene and Southwestern Public Service Co. in Amarillo, Ms. Kelly said.

Cap Rock Electric doesn't have the resources to transfer the power and would require the services of TU Electric.

If an injunction is granted, Cap Rock Electric claims a savings on electricity for their customers of about 10 percent a year or about $3 million annually. Cap Rock serves about 20,000 customers in a 17-county area.

But the savings to Cap Rock Electric customers may be at the expense of TU Electric customers, Griffin said.

"It would increase our costs of doing business which eventually gets back in our rates," he said.

U.S. will purchase technologies from Russia, White House says

By William J. Broad
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In a departure from policies that had restricted East-West trade, the White House on Friday announced it had cleared the way for the U.S. purchase of major high technologies from the former Soviet Union.

The go-ahead for the space and nuclear purchases, which total $14 million, was characterized by the White House as a bold first step in what would be a substantial aid package to beleaguered Russia.

While this was presented as a major objective, it was also clear that the goods being acquired were extremely valuable and were being offered at bargain prices.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Thursday delivered to the president his proposal for an omnibus bill that would put together all of the administration's ideas for supporting free-market reforms in the Commonwealth of Independent States.

President Bush is now considering the proposal, and Baker is consulting with congressional leaders on how best to get it approved at a time when foreign aid is unpopular.

The high-technology action comes after rising criticism of East-West trade barriers and charges of administration foot dragging on aid to Russia, including pointed statements by such prominent cold warriors as Richard M. Nixon and Ronald Reagan.

Friday's announcement represented the cheapest and least politically painful part of the overall aid package. It left the administration still facing the most difficult decisions, from the standpoint of both policy and politics, including how much to contribute to a proposed fund to stablize the ruble.

Under the action announced Friday, the Pentagon will purchase a Russian Topaz 2 nuclear reactor for space power and four Hall thrusters for moving objects in space. Both devices are to be studied on the ground. The reactor comes without nuclear fuel. Hall thrusters use electricity rather than chemical fuels for generating thrust.

In addition, the Energy Department will buy plutonium-238 to build nuclear batteries for a new generation of deep-space probes.

The Topaz 2 is about 12 feet long and generates about 6,000 watts of electricity, or slightly less than the amount used by a half-dozen kitchen toasters. That power is enough, however, to energize many types of spacecraft.

Hall thrusters are tiny but powerful engines, the smallest ones being able to fit into the palm of a human hand. They have been used by the Russians to adjust the orbits of satellites already in space, and are too weak to be of any use in lofting spacecraft into orbit from the earth's surface.

Such purchases were unthinkable a few years ago, and Western intelligence agencies at one time would have probably paid billions of dollars to get their hands on a Topaz 2, which is similar to ones used to power Soviet spy satellites.

"These transactions clearly signal our desire to normalize trade with the new states," Fitzwater said.

On high-tech trade, private experts and some federal officials have argued that the U.S. acquisition of Moscow's best technologies could save Washington and industry many billions of dollars in development costs, ease Russia's economic woes, aid a fledgling democracy and discourage Russian scientists, engineers and technologists from taking jobs with third-world tyrants.

Previously, the administration had worried that high-technology sales could also help keep Moscow's military-industrial complex alive.

As a result, it quietly blocked the U.S. purchase of rocket engines, space reactors and other aerospace goods from the former Soviet Union in order to cripple the complex and reduce future threats to the United States.

Friday, White House officials said the move to buy a limited number of high technologies from Russia was meant to show political boldness during an election year, although opponents noted the modest action came only after considerable prodding by a chorus of prominent critics.

It was not clear from Friday's announcement whether the end of the prohibition on purchases applied to all high-tech Russian goods or just select ones. However, Marlin Fitzwater, Bush's spokesman, said at a White House briefing that the United States was "moving to eliminate restrictions that prevented normal trade during the Cold War."

"The remarkable changes occuring in Russia and the other new states of the former Soviet Union offer the U.S. government and the private sector unique opportunities to expand trade with these countries," he said, "especially in the high technology areas that have not before been readily available to us."

He said the purchase of the Topaz 2 reactor, for some $8 million, "will give us access to new technology at a significantly lower cost than if we were to try to develop it ourselves." Private experts have estimated that such a program would cost several hundred million dollars.

In recent months, virtually the entire Russian arsenal and space program has gone on the auction block, often at fire-sale prices.

U.S. experts have been particularly tantalized by high-technology items relating to rocketry and space, in which the Soviets often excelled. Many of these Russian items, such as space reactors, are not even made in the West.

Other Russian space technologies are often seen as superior in quality, making their purchase a high-tech bonanza.

Fitzwater downplayed the idea of a fire-sale bonanza, instead characterizing the purchases as the opening of a new era in East-West relations.

"It's not a handout or a windfall to anybody," he said. "It is a beginning of a serious examination by both countries of ways in which we can buy their technology and they can benefit."

Steven Aftergood, a senior analyst with the Federation of American Scientists, a private group based in Washington, said the White House action was more important for what it symbolized than it did.

"It's the first opening in the exchange of high technology and hopefully a beginning of the normalization of relations," he said, adding that the administration had apparently taken some two years to make up its mind about buying the Topaz 2.

"It's disturbing that it's taken this long for what should have been a simple transaction," he said.

Like the Topaz, the U.S. purchase of Soviet plutonium-238 had been under consideration for years, mainly by mid-level federal officials. Discussions began in 1989 and were all but completed in 1991 when the deal came to an abrupt halt.

cial of the Bush administration, which is hoping for interest rates to remain low and for the recovery to be solidly in place by the time President Bush goes head-to-head with the Democratic nominee in presidential campaigning this summer and fall.

In a separate report Friday, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages declined this week for the first time in nearly two months. Rates averaged 8.98 percent, down from 9.03 percent last week.

Consumer spending rose 0.9 percent in both February and January, the sharpest gains since back-to-back advances at the same pace in February and March last year, the Commerce Department said.

Spending totaled $4.03 trillion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate last month, up from $3.99 trillion in January. The department had reported on Thursday that personal consumption had remained flat through the final quarter of last year.

"The increase in spending is critical because there had been a buildup of inventories last year," Reaser said. "That had caused a reduction in orders from factories and a cut in production. That seems to be reversing now."

Incomes reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.97 trillion, up from $4.92 trillion in January. The increase was the largest since a 1.3 percent advance in January 1989, the department said.

But it also reported that January's revised 0.2 percent drop in incomes was a bit steeper than the original 0.1 percent estimate.

The report said income growth was driven by a $33.2 billion jump in wages and salaries, an increase in farm subsidies and a speedup of life insurance dividends to veterans.

The 1.5 percent advance in wages and salaries, excluding government payrolls, was the biggest since a 1.7 percent gain in December 1987. The Labor Department had reported earlier that 164,000 new jobs were created in February and the average workweek increased by 0.4 hour.

Disposable incomes — incomes after taxes — rose 1.0 percent after slipping 0.1 percent a month earlier.

Americans' savings rate — savings as a percentage of disposable income — rose to 4.7 percent in February, up from 4.6 percent a month earlier but down from 5.6 percent in December.

When government payrolls are included, wages and salaries jumped $36.1 billion, more than wiping out the $16.9 billion loss in January.

The income and spending figures were not adjusted for inflation. When adjusted, disposable incomes rose 0.7 percent after falling 0.2 percent in January.

Inflation-adjusted consumer spending grew 0.6 percent in February, slightly slower than the revised 0.9 percent advance a month earlier.

ACADEMY: 'The Silence of the Lambs' leads race

(From 1A)

Indeed, "The Silence of the Lambs" has been such a lively stepper in the stretch drive that it has created satellite favorites. Jonathan Demme, its jockey, may take the Best Director citation, although "JFK's" Oliver Stone could force a photo finish. And Jodie Foster, the top-billed star of "Lambs," has emerged as frontrunner in the Best Actress sweepstakes.

So why isn't Anthony Hopkins, whose chilling portrayal of Hannibel Lecter in "Lambs" is nothing less than historic, also illumined as favorite among the lead actors? For two reasons primarily.

Some of the Academy voters may believe that Hopkins enacted a supporting role rather than a lead. Mainly, though, Hopkins faces much stiffer opposition than does Jodie Foster. Having won only three years ago (for "The Accused") may penalize Foster, but probably not. Her most formidable competition is from two actresses likely to split their vote for having been in the same hit picture — Geena Davis as Thelma and Susan Sarandon as Louise.

Nick Nolte, consistently praised for a dominant starring role in "The Prince of Tides," and further advantaged by a second hit picture ("Cape Fear") in the same year, has been a solid favorite in the Best Actor category from the word go. Of the six "favorites" identified here, Nolte seems the best bet to justify that rating.

The 1991 supporting races almost lack of luster, so Jack Palance is tabbed almost by default for his turn as the philosophical old trail driver in "City Slickers." It matters little that Palance did less "real acting" than any of the other competitors for Best Supporting Actor. He should waltz in as the sentimental choice, applying what may be called "the Don Ameche principle."

Mercedes Ruehl is tabbed for Best Supporting Actress simply because "The Fisher King" made a generally stronger impression on Hollywood folk than did "Rambling Rose," whose Diane Ladd is Ruehl's foremost challenger. Their respective work was equally fine.

Over most of Oscar's history, the award-winning picture usually has carried in the award-winning director. It can happen again, and there is some general agreement that "The Silence of the Lambs" is a "director's picture." But so is "JFK" a director's picture, and its director is the vaunted Oliver Stone, already a two-time winner.

That may be in Stone's favor, or it could work against him, if a sufficient number of voters believe that Stone is not yet the equal of John Ford or William Wyler or Frank Capra — the only directors to capture Oscar three or more times. Demme's chance is at least as good as Stone's, and may be better.

STORMS: Spring weather appears

(From 1A)

The storm, which covered a solid north-south line in Texas traveled easterly and affected the Permian Basin, the South Plains area and the southwest part of the state.

The outlook points to clearer skies.

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the upper 70s and westerly winds at 15-25 mph.

Tonight is expected to be fair with a low in the mid-40s.

Sunday will be sunny with a high between 70 and 75.

STATE

Gulf moisture flowed across Texas Friday, increasing cloudiness and the chance for thunderstorms in the path of a dry line in West Texas.

Temperatures rose into the 50s to 70s. Readings at 3 p.m. ranged from the lower 50s in the Panhandle to near 80 at Wink.

Winds were generally from the southeast at 10 to 20 miles an hour.

Light rain and isolated afternoon thunderstorms were reported between Waco, Abilene, Wichita Falls and Fort Worth.

NATION

Rain, snow and blustery wind pelted the Northeast Friday, and rain and snow also fell across the Southwest.

Low pressure centered over upstate New York produced rain from Pennsylvania to Maine, while snow extended from West Virginia and eastern Ohio to western and central New York state.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Midland statistics

Today: Becoming mostly sunny, breezy, high in the upper 70s, westerly winds 15-25 mph and gusty.
Tonight: Fair, low in the mid-40s.
Sunday: Sunny, high between 70-75.

RAPE: Appeals panel wants trial transcripts

(From 1A)

son why he couldn't get on a private plane, fly there and live out the rest of his life," Daily said.

David J. Dreyer, special counsel to the Marion County prosecutor's office, said it could take several days to prepare the transcripts requested by the appeals judges.

They asked for transcripts of testimony from Tyson and his accuser, Desiree Washington of Coventry, R.I.; a transcript of a trial hearing about three witnesses excluded from testifying at trial; and copies of the jury instructions.

Tyson met Miss Washington, then 18, during festivities for the Black Miss America pageant last July. She said Tyson lured her to his hotel room and raped her, ignoring her pleas to stop. Tyson said she agreed to have sex.

Dershowitz promised Tyson would obey any terms of bail, including house arrest at his Cleveland home, if the appeals panel freed him.

"If I hear he leaves his house, I will resign the case," Dershowitz said. "If Mr. Tyson breaks his bail, we will drop our appeal. That's how strongly I feel."

Daily contended Gifford, as the trial judge, was best suited to decide the bail issue. "Should this panel second-guess an extremely competent and qualified trial court judge?" he asked.

Tyson — now inmate No. 922335 — was assigned to a single cell Thursday at the Reception-Diagnostic Center in nearby Plainfield. Prison officials will evaluate him and assign him to a prison within 45 days.

He was locked up alone because of "a propensity for temper outbursts and mood swings," said Department of Correction spokesman Kevin Moore.

"We want to be able to get him in the system and see how he adjusts before assigning him a cellmate," Moore said. "That's not unusual."

The intake center has an outdoor basketball court but no running track or weight room, he said. Tyson jogged regularly during his two-week trial.

POLITICS: Clinton zeroes in on New York primary media and toured an exhibit about discrimination against blacks and Jews. The Arkansas governor apologized at both events for golfing last week at a Little Rock club that has no black members.

(From 1A)

"Small things and large send big signals to people," the Arkansas governor told about 200 people at The Jewish Museum. "I didn't think about it as I should have. I as a candidate and as a public official should not have been there."

Brown, the only remaining Democratic challenger, has hammered Clinton on the issue in an effort to make inroads among black voters. By huge margins, blacks have supported Clinton throughout the primary season and they will be a pivotal constituency in New York's April 7 primary election.

Campaigning Friday in Wisconsin, which votes the same day as New York, Brown dismissed his rival's front-runner status, saying, "Clinton is not going to get the nomination. You can put that in your tape recorder and ask me in a couple of months."

Clinton coupled his apology Friday for the golfing incident with an appeal to end racial divisions. He said his civil rights record was "unparalleled by any public official in America" and criticized the Reagan and Bush administrations for deliberate racial politics.

"We have been carved up now for more than a decade at election time by race, by gender, by region," Clinton said. " . . . The division of America into us and them is, in the end, the death knell of everything America means."

Clinton's internal polls show the New York race virtually tied after Brown's upset win Tuesday in Connecticut. Looking to reverse Brown's momentum, Clinton is attacking the former California governor's proposal for a 13 percent flat income tax and a 13 percent national sales tax, saying it would worsen the deficit and pummel the middle class and poor.

Clinton flew to Wisconsin later Friday and hit Brown's tax plan in an address to the state Assembly, saying it would "triple taxes on the poor and hit people with children hard."

From Wisconsin, he was traveling to Indianapolis to raise money and pick up the endorsement of Gov. Evan Bayh.

Clinton polling shows Brown, as he did in Connecticut, making inroads among more affluent voters who likely would have supported former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, who dropped out of the race.

But Clinton advisers say voter discussion groups indicate that upscale liberals turn away from Brown when the flat tax is explained. The campaign plans to air a television spot attacking the proposal as early as this weekend.

Clinton denies exempting himself from ethics law

NEW YORK (NYT) — Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas denied Friday that he had acted to exempt himself and his wife, Hillary, from the provisions of a state law requiring disclosure of certain personal financial matters.

Clinton said that he sponsored the original ethics legislation that would have placed disclosure requirements on the governor and that he agreed to the weaker bill in 1988 only to enhance its chance of passage.

Clinton said any implication that he worked to escape the new disclosure requirements that were being applied to state lawmakers was "just dead false."

In the chain of events described Friday in The New York Times, Clinton participated in the removal of certain elected and appointed officials, including the governor, from the measure.

That version became law after being approved by the voters.

Clinton said that the exemptions for the governor, other elected officials and appointed officials in state agencies and commissions were provided to simplify the measure and give lobbying interests less ammunition to mount a campaign against it.

He said it was the "consensus of all the people who worked on the issue" that if the original measure were put on the ballot "there would be a real effort by the lobby groups to defeat it."

Clinton said the initiative that ultimately passed was drafted by Sam Brtton, his former legal counsel; Ark Monroe, then a member of the State Ethics Commission; Scott Trotter, chairman of Lobby Watch, an Arkansas public interest group; Betsey Wright, who was then Clinton's chief of staff, and Webb Hubbell, a friend of the Clintons who is a senior partner in Mrs. Clinton's law firm and who served at the time on the Ethics Commission.

Clinton also took part in the drafting process, as did five state lawmakers and two members of the Legislature's staff.

The original legislation would have required legislators and "public servants," including the governor, to report every time they took an action that might affect their family's personal finances.

It applied to decisions involving a business or firm in which a member of the official's family was employed or a partner.

Hillary Clinton is a partner in the Rose law firm, which does business with the State of Arkansas.

Hoopla '92 tips off Friday

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Some Midlanders took a few warm-up shots Friday evening — the premiere night of the movie "White Men Can't Jump" — in preparation for Hoopla '92.

Basketball shooters — some as young as 2 years old — paid a dollar for three throws to win prizes in the parking lot of the North Park Cinema.

"It's publicity for us to get people to sign up for Hoopla and publicity for the movie too," said Lucy Woodside, program director for the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness.

Hoopla '92, a three-on-three basketball tournament benefiting the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, will be April 11 in the Clay-Desta Parking Lot.

"We are expecting 800 players this year. It's going to be a big tournament," Ms. Woodside said. "It's going to be a whole day of basketball."

The tournament — using 26 courts — will begin at 8 a.m. and last until approximately 6 p.m.

Each team must put up $100 to play, or $25 per player which includes a substitute.

"You don't have to be a good player. We have divisions for all players," said Jeannette Bryant, executive director for the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness.

Divisions include: competitive, recreational, couch potatoes, guys and gals, gals only, over 40, or under 17. Anyone 13 and older can play.

About 200 teams are expected to compete, Ms. Bryant said.

"For some reason the three-on-three is the hottest thing going on — it's fun," she said.

Winners will be recognized during the National Junior College All-Star game the night of the event at the Chaparral Center.

In addition to the three on three, Hoopla will have dollar contests for long distance shots, the most continuous free throws, and the most three-point shots. A variety of prizes will be given for those events including tickets from Southwest Airlines.

"And we're going to have lots of food and radio stations playing out there all day long," Ms. Bryant said.

Money raised will go to benefit the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, a non-profit voluntary organization aimed at preventing blindness. Services provided by the agency include free pre-school vision screening, free glaucoma screening, and eye health and safety seminars for schools, organizations and civic groups.

The first Hoopla tournament last year raised about $20,000 for the cause.

Friday night's pre-Hoopla coincided with the premiere of the movie "White Men Can't Jump," a comedy about two basketball hustlers.

The film stars Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson and was directed and written by Ron Shelton.

OIL: Independents sending message

(From 1A)

in an upcoming article.

"We need a massive media campaign to tell about the plight of this industry," said Ames, a San Antonio oilman, "and in the next few months I think we will see it."

He said the recent publicity was helping the domestic industry get its message across on Capitol Hill and was making a difference in the battle against what he called environmental extremism.

"The results of positive publicity have been nothing less than remarkable," he said.

"Publicity about the loss of 300,000 jobs in the petroleum industry is even causing President Bush to begin moving in the right direction," he said.

He noted that in his State of the Nation address, Bush did not even mention the environment, and that Bush is now going about the country expounding on the evils of the Alternative Minimum Tax.

The president, Ames said, has called it: unfair, and says it serves no good purpose, but to destroy the domestic oil industry.

"It appears that many politicians have finally awakened to the fact that this industry is in a state of collapse, and that America's reliance on cheap foreign oil is an insidious problem." Ames added.

Ames noted that there is still plenty of oil to be found and produced in America, but "environmental extremism" is making it impossible. "But we are even seeing some signs that many politicians and some of the media are beginning to recognize environmental extremism for what it is."

Given its recent successes in getting its message across, Ames noted that IPAA planned to launch a massive public relations campaign that would invite the participation of the entire domestic industry. "We have to do something to save this industry and this nation, and we don't have long to do it."

Police arrest man, seize stovetop still

HALE CENTER (AP) — A 67-year-old man has been released following his arrest for using a pressure cooker to brew some moonshine whiskey.

Oscar Gibson said he didn't get much sympathy from law officers when he told them that the moonshine he was making in a stovetop still was just for easing his aches and pains.

Midland's housing task force faces decision

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

When it comes to developing affordable housing for the impoverished and working poor, Midland has plenty of options.

Just what avenue the Midland Introspective Housing Task Force decides to select may or may not involve outside expertise.

According to Peter Werwath, director of special projects for the Enterprise Foundation, much of what task force members have identified is not an "insurmontable problem."

Enterprise Foundation is a nonprofit project launched in 1982 aimed at giving the country's poor an opportunity at affordable housing within a generation, moving them out of poverty and into the American mainstream.

Through 1990, the foundation has helped make possible more than 17,250 new and rehabilitated units of housing for the poor.

Following a three-day visit, Werwath said the next step, as far as the task force is concerned, is to decide what direction it wants to take.

Midland — which has a number of active programs ranging from Christmas in April to the Midland County Housing Authority — must now make a decision relevant to an action plan aimed at determining a working direction on affordable housing.

For his part, Werwath will deliver a final report to the task force in about a month.

Werwath said his initial findings were not surprising, given the fact, that like other cities, Midland has a certain impoverished segment which depend on the community for assistance.

He said topping the list among those interviewed was the need to revitalize the city's east side — including rehabilitation of older homes as well as affordable rent for those seeking decent housing.

In a 1988 Midland Introspective study of community needs, task force members found that many homes did not have complete bathroom or kitchen facilities, electricity, heat, or hot and cold running water.

Survey responses at that time, showed one in 10 households had a problem with housing quality and/or housing safety.

Werwath said although there's been no significant building activity since the boom, the task force might also consider what could occur if housing units are filled and rentals begin to increase.

He also identified what he called "transitional housing" which is needed for those with chronic ailments, battered women, substance abusers and others who are "down on their luck" who need short-term assistance.

"I think that's another area you might want to explore," he said.

As for Midland's homeless, according to Werwath, it appears the city has enough bed space to handle that situation, at least for the time being.

Werwath said much of the technical assistance his group can offer will depend on what the task force decides.

"If it's something we're (the foundation) good at, we'd probably want to participate," he said.

Youth kills tutor

COLUMBIA, Md. (AP) — A 16-year-old has been accused of strangling his tutor after an argument over his school work, police said.

Alton R. Young of Columbia was charged as an adult Thursday in the death of Shirley Mullinix, 57, of nearby Dayton.

Ms. Mullinix's body was found Wednesday behind a store in Columbia, said Howard County police. Sgt. Gary Gardner said police believe the slaying occurred in her home Wednesday.

Police were led to Young after finding some of Ms. Mullinix's possessions in a trash container along with the suspect's school papers.

Board adopts rules on patients' rights

The State

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation on Friday approved new rules outlining the rights of patients in state-licensed private psychiatric hospitals, as well as public facilities.

It is the first time one uniform set of rules on patient rights will be applied both to Texas' 87 state-licensed private hospitals and eight state hospitals, said Linda Logan, director of policy development for the MHMR Department.

A bill of rights for patients in private hospitals first was added to the state's licensing rule in December, in an emergency action, Ms. Logan said. State board rules on the rights of patients in public facilities have been in effect in various forms for 20 years, she said.

Cindy Hopkins, executive director of Texas Mental Health Consumers, an advocacy group, applauded Friday's action, saying that it provides "a consistent document to look at to determine whether or not there were rights violations."

Everyone will be afforded the same protection under the rules "regardless of what type of institution they were in," she said.

Carole Szpak, director of communications for the National Association of Private Psychiatric Hospitals in Washington, said her group has its own patient rights guidelines for its members and that it supports such state guidelines.

"There is good patient care available ... Anything that helps to restore the public confidence is a needed step," said Ms. Szpak, whose group includes about 50 Texas hospitals.

Rights for private hospital patients have been set out in other places, Ms. Logan said. The state mental health code includes them, but they had not been put into board rules, she said. In addition, an accreditation organization set out a number of rights for patients, she said.

Friday's action, she said, "underscores this department's commitment to articulating and enforcing rights in the private setting by establishing a uniform rights standard for all people receiving mental health services under the aegis of this department."

It also specifically gives to private hospital patients some rights expressed in a settlement agreement in a lawsuit concerning state facilities, she said. Among them are such basic rights as the ability to go outdoors, with or without supervision, and to use personal possessions.

Town of 7,000 sends thanks to Governor Richards

MEXIA (AP) — When Gov. Ann Richards rejected a task force's recommendation to close the Mexia State School, she rescued a community and earned lifelong supporters, residents said Friday.

"I think it's the best thing to happen to Mexia. It saved (the city's) life," said Donald O'Connell, a post office clerk.

"She's the most popular person (in Mexia) today, and I imagine for a long time to come," he said.

Richards announced Thursday that the Travis State School in Austin would have to be closed as part of a long-running lawsuit.

Another school — which the task force recommended to be Mexia — was supposed to be shut down, too.

But the governor spared Mexia, saying closing the school — the town's largest employer — would destroy the community's economy.

Instead, she suggested the Fort Worth State School be converted to a drug rehabilitation clinic for prisoners.

"This is a great day for us. We're very, very excited about it," said Barbara Rader, whose son Johnny has spent four years at the Mexia State School.

"We feel like our child is in the best school in Texas, maybe the whole United States. He's been in four different places and I know they've helped him more than any other," Ms. Rader said.

Richards' announcement, televised live in Mexia and rebroadcast on cable TV Friday afternoon, set off a series of celebrations.

Many "Thank You Governor Richards" signs were erected around town and a radio station suggested a thank-you note writing campaign.

A celebration banquet was planned, with the governor to be the guest of honor. There even was a suggestion to rename a road Ann Richards Way.

At the Drillin' Rig, a popular restaurant at the intersection of two state roads, the governor's decision was the main conversation topic Friday.

"I was hoping because she was a woman that she would have more sympathy for our community. Without the State School, all of us would have to close our businesses," said Mablene Curry, co-owner of the Mexia Pawn Shop.

Ms. Curry said the school's employees often use her store as "their small bank in between paydays."

Vickie Beard, manager of Mexia's Guaranty Federal Bank, said the school was vital to her work because of administrators, doctors, and other professionals it employs.

"We're really just glad she made the right decision," Ms. Beard said. "I've always felt that politics were not the way they should be. She's proved to me that things can be done the correct way."

'We feel like our child is in the best school in Texas, maybe the whole United States. He's been in four different places and I know they've helped him more than any other.'

— Barbara Rader

Several Mexians said Richards' decision could help the city in other ways.

"We're hoping maybe some other will look at us now and see what we can do when we want to," Ms. Curry said.

Mexia prospered during a 1920s oil boom. It is located 40 miles east of Waco, where the governor attended Baylor.

The Mexia school employs about 1,800 of the town's 7,000 residents.

Groups attack Public Utility Commission proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer groups charged Friday that a proposed Public Utility Commission rule would drive up local telephone charges, but a PUC spokesman disagreed saying the plan would cut long-distance rates.

The rule, to be voted on April 1 by the commission, would cut the fees long-distance companies pay local telephone companies to connect in-state calls through the local network.

Several groups — including Consumers Union, the Texas Consumer Association, Texas Citizen Action, Texas Gray Panthers and Public Citizen — said that would shift costs to local telephone customers.

"Wednesday's commission action will be an April Fool's joke on the public," said Tim Curtis, director of Texas Citizen Action. "Some call this move a rate reduction, but in fact rates will only be reduced for high-volume long-distance callers. The rest of us, especially low-income families who make few long-distance calls, will see higher local rates."

PUC spokesman Guillermo Garcia said that's not the case. He said if local telephone companies lose money under the rule, they could draw from a new fund. That pool of money would initially be funded by long-distance companies, then local companies would begin contributing.

If the local companies were losing more money than could be made up through the fund, they could initiate a rate case, and the PUC still would have control over rates, Garcia said.

Curtis said there is no requirement for long-distance companies to pass on their rate reduction to customers.

Of the long-distance companies, the PUC only regulates the rates of AT&T, Garcia said. He said AT&T would be required to pass on savings, and that other companies would follow suit in order to compete.

"If this rule passes, long-distance rates in Texas will drop," Garcia said.

Father was primary target in fatal attack

FORT WORTH (AP) — A wealthy woman beaten to death in her home was not the primary target in a murder-for-hire scheme police have linked to her stepdaughter, a friend of the suspect has said.

Jack Koslow, not Caren Koslow, was the intended victim of the attack, John Okray told The Dallas Morning News in Friday editions. Okray, a friend of the couple's stepdaughter, said Kristi Koslow wanted her father dead so she could inherit at least $1 million after his death.

"The father was the main thing. She didn't like Caren, but it wasn't the point to kill her," Okray, 17, said. "They (attackers) might have killed her because she was there."

Mrs. Koslow, 40, was beaten to death with a tool in her home March 12. Her 48-year-old husband, who was beaten and stabbed, survived the attack and was recuperating at home.

Miss Koslow, 17, her 19-year-old boyfriend Brian Dennis Salter, and Jeffery Dillingham, 19, have been arrested and charged with capital murder.

Miss Koslow, Koslow's adopted daughter by a previous marriage, was arrested Wednesday on a charge she offered her boyfriend and Dillingham $1 million to stage the attack so she could collect an inheritance.

All three remained in jail Friday in lieu of $500,000 bond each. A bond reduction hearing for Miss Koslow and Salter is to be held on Monday.

Arrest warrant affidavits described Miss Koslow has having masterminded the hired-killing plot that went awry when Salter and Dillingham mistakenly thought they had killed her father.

Dillingham admitted he and Salter had planned the attack for several weeks, said Fort Worth Police Lt. Burton Poe. Miss Koslow has also given a statement.

"This case is solved," Fort Worth Police Chief Thomas Windham said Wednesday. "We believe we have a motive established."

Findings from Mrs. Koslow's autopsy show that she may have died earlier — between midnight March 11 and 3:30 a.m. March 12 — than reported by police, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Friday.

Police reports had said the attack occurred about 3:30 a.m. March 12 and that officers were notified about 3:40 a.m.

An unidentified source also told the newspaper that her husband may have lain unconscious for several hours before awakening and calling for help.

Spring break business doesn't match last year

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — It seems even spring break may not have been immune to the recession.

Island merchants said Friday they've seen less business this year and that college students have reportedly done less spending.

Spring break was forecast as the biggest ever, with about 100,000 students expected to visit South Padre Island over a six-week period. But while the numbers have been there, the money apparently has not.

"I do know that the students that came down this month were a little more conservative in their spending," said Javier Rodriguez, a spokesman for the Convention and Visitors Bureau. "I think it's a sign of the times."

The T-shirt shop owners and beachwear store managers who do business almost shoulder-to-shoulder on Padre Boulevard, the island's main drag, didn't blame the dropoff on a solitary factor.

Many said recession, some said there was too much competition and others blamed the students' spending priorities.

"Basically they weigh spending money on clothes to how many cases of beer they can buy," said Don Monroe, owner of Tropical Traders, a shop dealing mostly in T-shirts and beachwear.

Whatever the reason, shopkeepers expecting at least four good weeks have only seen one. This week saw the season winding down, with only "trickles" of breakers coming in, Rodriguez said.

Spring break hit its peak last week as most Texas colleges went on vacation.

"I think that the last week (Texas week) more than met our expectations," said Jennifer Porter-Davis, assistant to the Radisson Resort's general manager. "We were just jammed last week."

But in the first and last weeks of March, "we did not do as well as we have done in the past," she said.

Rodriguez said that when the season wraps up in early April, the island will probably have seen 20 to 30 percent more students than last year.

However, some said they won't top 1991 in revenue.

"Last year, there were six weeks of pure business," said Dave Oldham, an airbrush artist selling custom-designed T-shirts.

Added his partner, Vince Dronek: "Last year, they were doing $1,000 a day (in business). This year, only $400. That's on the good days."

Committee hears about gang violence

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Reaching out to troubled youths before they turn to crime and expanding the juvenile justice system are key to curbing a growing wave of gang violence, legislators were told Friday.

Judges, elected officials and community activists from San Antonio testified before the Texas House subcommittee on gangs. The panel is gathering information for possible legislation on gang violence.

San Antonio Mayor Nelson Wolff said youths are turning to gangs because of problems in their families.

"Unfortunately, it's the gang that reaches out to them and offers them a home — albeit not a good home — but a home," Wolff said.

Law enforcement officials have estimated there are about 1,300 youths involved in gangs in San Antonio, a city of about 1 million people. Others have estimated the gang number is as high as 5,000.

Wolff said the two ways to battle gangs are by offering community programs that give youths alternatives to gangs and by beefing up the juvenile justice system so that young criminals are punished.

The city is funneling more money into its parks and recreation department to maintain community centers and other programs to keep youths off the streets, Wolff said.

The mayor also suggested something be done about the number of handguns available on the streets. Some small pistols are as cheap as $13, Wolff said.

"They're made for only one thing — they're made for killing other human beings," said Wolff, who has asked San Antonio citizens to voluntarily turn in guns that could end up being used in crimes.

State Rep. Eddie De La Garza, D-Edinburg, the subcommittee chairman, said holding public hearings is the best way to learn how to battle gangs. The subcommittee already has held hearings in Edinburg, Houston and Beaumont.

Indian court requests extradition of American

Court wants former exec to face homicide charges in Bhopal case

BHOPAL, India (AP) — A court on Friday requested the extradition of a retired American executive to face homicide charges for the 1984 Bhopal gas disaster that killed thousands of people. His company condemned the action.

In addition to the extradition request, which must be approved by India's government before being forwarded to the United States, the court issued an arrest warrant for Warren Anderson, formerly of Union Carbide Corp.

Union Carbide responded that Anderson, the company's chief executive at the time of the gas leak, had nothing to do with the operation of its Indian subsidiary in Bhopal, which it said is 49.1 percent Indian-owned.

"Anderson's only connection was after the tragedy when he attempted to bring aid and relief to the victims in Bhopal," the company said in a statement from its Danbury, Conn., headquarters.

"Any attempt to extradite the former chairman of the company to India would be disgraceful."

At least 4,037 people have died from inhaling the poisonous methyl isocyanate gas that was released during the accident at the Bhopal pesticide plant, according to Madhya Pradesh state's minister for gas relief, Babu Lal Gaur.

About 1,500 of the deaths occurred within three days of the accident, the rest in intervening years. About 20,000 people were injured in the accident, the world's worst industrial disaster.

The extradition order for Anderson, 70, was issued by India's chief judicial magistrate, Gulab Sharma.

India's magistrates court earlier in the year charged Anderson with "culpable homicide not amounting to murder," the equivalent of manslaughter, and ordered him to appear in court Feb. 1.

He did not appear.

"Enough opportunity has been given to Anderson," Sharma said in his order Friday. "The only way to get (him) is to initiate extradition proceedings."

A State Department official said Friday that the United States and India have an extradition treaty, but it is unclear whether it could be applied in the Union Carbide case.

In its statement, Union Carbide said the Bhopal tragedy occurred in a plant "owned and operated by an Indian company in which Union Carbide Corp. held 50.9 percent of the stock, and the government of India institutions held 25 percent of the stock.

"As chairman of Union Carbide Corp., Anderson had no involvement with the operations of the Indian company. To persist in continued harassment of Anderson, who retired in 1986 and is now 70 years old, would send a signal to the world that the Indian government is permitting those who favor local political expediency to dominate its policy-making."

U.S., Russians cooperate on MIA, POW issue

MOSCOW (AP) — Russians handed over death certificates of eight Americans held in Soviet prison camps following World War II on Friday as a U.S.-Russian commission on POWs and MIAs ended its initial session.

The commission said it has not yet found any evidence of American POWs or MIAs from the Vietnam or Korean wars in the former Soviet Union.

But the fate of the eight imprisoned Americans "until now was unknown in the United States," said Dmitri Volkogonov, President Boris Yeltsin's defense adviser.

"We have found their graves, death certificates, burial sites."

The group's main work in its first two-day session was to provide the Russians with specific information on missing U.S. servicemen so their archives could be searched, said Rep. Pete Peterson, D-Fla.

"They didn't even have a list of our missing in Vietnam, so they couldn't have done any research on that," Peterson said in an interview.

The commission's joint chairmen — Vokogonov and Malcolm Toon, the former U.S. Ambassador to Moscow — praised the new cooperation between the United States and Russia, which they said would not have been possible even a year ago.

"The river of time flows in just one direction, and there is nothing we can change from the past," said Volkogonov, a historian and former general in the Red Army. "But every person has a right to be remembered, because oblivion is the precipice of history."

Volkogonov said at least 74 Americans were imprisoned in Soviet camps immediately after World War II. Some had Ukrainian, Russian or Jewish surnames and were believed by the Soviet secret police to have been fighting with a group of Soviet soldiers who helped Germany fight the Red Army, he said.

Haitian Supreme Court rejects OAS plan

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The Supreme Court on Friday rejected an Organization of American States-backed plan for the creation of a new government to work for the return of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

The ruling represented the latest setback for the embattled plan, brokered by the OAS to resolve the country's five-month political crisis.

The high court, which was purged of Aristide appointees after a violent Sept. 30 military coup that sent him into exile, declared the OAS plan illegal.

It said the interim president installed after the takeover, Joseph Nerette, was the legitimate chief of state. The OAS plan, signed by Aristide and members of parliament in Washington a month ago, has no official standing, it said.

Alexander Medard, president of parliament's chamber of deputies, said the chamber's leadership would meet Monday to discuss what new course to take.

Aristide's return is opposed by the military and a powerful conservative elite. He has vowed if reinstated to replace the army's commander-in-chief, Gen. Raoul Cedras.

The plan's opponents, including Nerette, favor new elections to replace Aristide.

Under the OAS-backed plan, moderate Communist Rene Theodore, a political rival of Aristide, would become prime minister and run a "national unity government." He would collaborate with Aristide while the ousted president remained in exile, and work for Aristide's eventual return.

Once Theodore was in charge, the OAS would lift a trade embargo imposed after the coup.

The plan also envisions an OAS peacekeeping mission to protect human rights and professionalize the military.

Aristide, a 38-year-old activist Roman Catholic priest, was swept into power by December 1990 elections but held office just seven months. Coup supporters accused him of fomenting mob violence.

Theodore pleaded Thursday for an end to stalling on the OAS plan. He accused its opponents of "holding the country hostage" and leading Haiti into "a suicidal adventure."

French Socialists face new setbacks

By Alan Riding
N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS — France's Socialist government, still shaken by a major setback in regional elections on Sunday, faced a new embarrassment Friday when two Cabinet ministers won election as regional presidents apparently with the support of the extreme rightist National Front.

The scandal is expected to bring new calls from within the badly bruised Socialist Party for President Francois Mitterrand to replace Edith Cresson as premier as the only way of demonstrating that the government is ready to make a new start.

The vote in the regional councils of Burgundy and Lorraine prompted angry protests from the conservative opposition coaliton, the Union for France, which had publicly pledged to reject any alliance with the National Front.

"The Socialists have behaved scandalously," Alain Juppe, a coalition leader, said.

Laurent Fabius, first secretary of the Socialist Party, insisted that "the Socialists do not and will not accept any National Front votes," adding, "Where there is any doubt, there should be a new vote to eliminate all doubts."

Jean-Marie Le Pen, the National Front's leader, refused to confirm that his party had secretly backed the two Socialist candidates, but he hinted that his followers might have carried out "justified reprisals" against the Union for France for its attacks on his movement.

In Sunday's elections for 22 regional councils, the Socialists won just 18.3 percent of votes, compared with 33 percent for the Union for France.

But almost half of the 25 million voters turned away from those traditional parties, with the National Front winning 13.9 percent of votes and two ecological parties sharing another 13.9 percent.

In Friday's elections for regional presidents, 15 councils picked conservative members of the Union for France, while three — including Burgundy and Lorraine — chose Socialists. In the other councils, votes were postponed until Monday.

Priest documents killings from land, labor disputes

NEW YORK (AP) — Pictures neatly taped to the wall showed scenes that were anything but tidy — corpses. Mutilated, burned, hacked, all murdered in land and labor disputes in Brazil, said the priest who showed the photos.

Rural Brazilians who anger wealthy landowners by organizing labor unions or squatting on land may face death, said the Rev. Ricardo Rezende.

He said dozens of people have been killed in recent years in his parish in Rio Maria, in the eastern Amazon state of Para, 1,200 miles north of Rio de Janeiro.

Human rights organizations say rural violence claims hundreds of lives annually.

Rezende described the violence Tuesday to a packed hall at Hunter College, part of the City University of New York. His lecture was part of the third annual Amazon Week.

The event is sponsored by numerous businesses and foundations from nations sharing the 2-million-square-mile Amazon basin. The environment, pollution, Amazon Indian conditions and other topics are among the topics.

Rezende said rural violence continues because of government inaction. He accused police of failing to investigate killings and filing death certificates to cover up suspicious circumstances.

The Brazilian government denies any involvement.

"We don't have state-sponsored violence. We do have violence sponsored by individuals in the country," Marcia Donner, environmental and human rights adviser at the Brazilian Embassy in Washington, said in a telephone interview.

She said the government has established a commission to investigate rural violence and is working on agrarian reform to give land to peasants.

The priest said the government has been unable to protect people threatened by landowners.

Amnesty International said in a report last December: "With very few exceptions, the gunmen who carried out these killings and those who contracted them have not been brought to trial."

Rezende emphasized the importance of international pressure, saying the killers of environmentalist union leader Francisco "Chico" Mendes in 1988 were convicted only because of the case's international prominence.

"To achieve change, we need international solidarity," he said.

Rezende's activism has made him a target. He showed pictures of his parish house bearing six bullet holes.

U.S., Britain warn China on Libya sanctions vote

■ More world news/6C

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — After voicing opposition to a plan to impose Security Council sanctions on Libya, China has been warned by the United States, Britain and France that it will risk losing U.S. trade preferences and seriously damage its relations with the other two countries if it vetoes the sanctions resolution.

Because of China's opposition and a desire to drum up maximum support within the 15-nation Council, the vote, originally expected Friday or Monday, might not take place before Tuesday, diplomats said.

But as a result of the warnings, delivered here and in Beijing, diplomats from the United States, Britain and France said they were now confident that China would abstain in next week's crucial Council vote, allowing them to impose a mandatory air-travel embargo against the government of Col. Moammar Gadhafi.

The sanctions vote is being taken because of Libya's refusal to surrender two secret agents accused by Washington and London of playing a role in the blowing up of a Pan American airliner over Lockerbie, Scotland, in 1988 with the loss of 270 lives.

In addition, France wants Libya to send four men for questioning by a judge investigating the bombing of a French airliner over the Sahara in 1989 with the loss of 170 lives.

The stiffest resistance to the sanctions proposal, diplomats say, has come from China, which says it opposes such Security Council sanctions against individual countries on principle.

As a permanent Council member, Beijing has a veto on all decisions. Whether it would have used its veto to defend Libya is a subject of debate among diplomats here.

Many diplomats call that unlikely, since China has cast only three vetoes in the history of the United Nations, and the last two of those occurred 20 years ago.

Nevertheless, to make sure China does not block the sanctions plan, diplomats say, Washington warned Beijing the result would be an explosion of anger in the United States and pressure on President Bush to hold back the most-favored-nation tariff treatment that he has just gotten through Congress over sharp opposition.

As a result, the three countries backing the sanctions plan are now reasonably certain at least 11 of the Council's 15 members will vote for moving against Libya on Monday, with China abstaining and Morocco, Zimbabwe and perhaps India following suit or voting against.

Last summer, Congress tried but failed to cancel China's favorable trade status. Earlier this month it failed again to find the votes to override a presidential veto cast against a bill imposing conditions on renewal of those low tariffs when they expire later in the summer.

The campaign to impose an air embargo on Tripoli has also been helped by Gadhafi's erratic response to the Security Council's call for Libyan cooperation, which seriously embarrassed the Arab League and Morocco.

Kohl's meeting with Waldheim draws Jewish condemnation

BERLIN (NYT) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl met with President Kurt Waldheim of Austria in Munich on Friday and then angrily criticized prominent Jews who had deplored the meeting as inappropriate.

In a nationally televised news conference after the meeting, Kohl said he alone would decide with whom he was to meet in Germany.

"I don't need any advice," he said in response to leaders of Jewish organizations who had scorned him for becoming the first Western leader to receive Waldheim since his election in 1986.

The Austrian leader has been widely shunned since then for having concealed his role as a German army officer in World War II.

In New York, Elan Steinberg, executive director of the World Jewish Congress, said Kohl "brought dishonor to Germany." He contrasted the chancellor's behavior with that of Germany's president, Richard von Weizsacker, who, he said, "by not meeting with Mr. Waldheim defended Germany's honor."

German Jewish groups also denounced the meeting.

At the meeting with reporters, where he was accompanied by Waldheim, Kohl said he did not understand such criticism. He lashed out in particular at the World Jewish Congress, accusing its leaders of having tried to derail efforts toward German reunification after the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Visibly annoyed, Kohl declared: "I ask the gentlemen of the World Jewish Congress for a reply to a request for information about an occurrence in November 1989, when they sent an emissary to East Berlin, where he polemicized in an outrageous manner against German reunification, and thereby against Germany's right to self-determination." Kohl said he had not received a reply to a request for an explanation.

Answering Kohl's charge, Steinberg said in a telephone interview that the organization's president, Edgar Bronfman, had been informed of the charges last year in a letter from Kohl, in which the allegations were attributed to a report based on information contained in East German government files.

Contradicting the chancellor, Steinberg said the World Jewish Congress had denied the charges in a letter sent by Bronfman to Kohl in October.

The encounter and a luncheon in Munich's elegent Prinzenpalais, which was attended by Bavaria's prime minister, Max Streibl, also drew criticism from the opposition Social Democratic Party, which accused Kohl of currying favor with conservative supporters by welcoming Waldheim.

Leaders of the Free Democratic Party, the junior partner in Kohl's coalition government, said the meeting displayed "lack of sensitivity."

The 72-year-old Waldheim, who served as United Nations secretary general from 1972 to 1982, has been treated as a virtual pariah by Western leaders after disclosures during his 1986 presidential campaign indicated that he had covered up his service in a German army unit that was accused of atrocities in the Balkans in World War II. His six-year term as president ends in June.

Officials in Kohl's office have been careful to describe the visit by Waldheim to Bavaria, where he received an award from a conservative foundation for contributions to freedom, as a private visit. He was accompanied by Austria's foreign minister, Alois Mock, a supporter of Waldheim and one of the major proponents of Austrian entry into the European Community, a goal Germany supports.

Angels in the red

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels lost $3.6 million last year and face a projected loss of $8.5 million by the end of 1992, team executive vice president Jackie Autry said Friday.

The wife of owner Gene Autry said that given those numbers, "it doesn't make sense, from a financial standpoint" to own a baseball club today, adding she and her husband will sell the franchise if the outlook doesn't improve.

■ Texas-El Paso's dream of a Final Four appearance is dashed by Cincinnati, 69-67.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cincinnati made big plays early and late to beat Texas-El Paso 69-67 Friday night and move within a game of its first Final Four in two decades.

The Bearcats (28-4) outscored UTEP 10-0 in the first few minutes, then got two crucial free throws from Erik Martin with 20.2 seconds left to seal the victory and advance to the Midwest Regional final.

No. 12 Cincinnati will meet Memphis State on Sunday in an all-Great Midwest Conference title game. The Bearcats have already beaten Memphis State three times, and another victory would send them to the Final Four for the first time since 1963.

The loss ended a great tournament for the Miners (27-7), who hadn't gotten past the second round since 1966 when they won the national championship as Texas Western College.

UTEP, seeded No. 9, had advanced to the Sweet Sixteen by knocking off top-seeded Kansas 66-66 last weekend. Coach Don Haskins used the delay game to frustrate the Jayhawks, but Cincinnati had the answers this time.

Fourth-seeded Cincinnati stretched a seven-point halftime lead to 55-41 five minutes into the second half. But UTEP used its defense to twice get within three points and finally within two, 67-65, on a shot by Johnny Melvin with 54 seconds left.

Martin was fouled on the Bearcats' next possession, and the 55-percent free throw shooter promptly swished both shots. He wound up with 10 points.

Marlin Maxey made two free throws for UTEP with nine seconds left, but then Cincinnati was able to dribble out the rest of clock.

Herb Jones scored 24 points for the Bearcats, who shot 48 percent against a team that had been allowing opponents to shoot just 41 percent. David Van Dyke had 18 for the Miners.

Cincinnati rattled the Miners in the first three minutes, using pressure and halfcourt traps to force three turnovers while taking the 10-0 lead.

Owls hold early lead

SAN ANGELO — Odessa Permian and Converse Judson entered the San Angelo Relays Friday carrying the distinction of not having lost a team title in a meet this year.

One surely must fall today when the bulk of the finals unfold and the meet resumes at noon.

In fact, Permian and Judson could both fall by some stiff challenges from North Garland and Temple, both of which qualified some quality during Friday's preliminaries.

The Temple Owls jumped to 18 points in two field event finals Friday while Permian scored one point and Judson none. North Garland got 10 points by winning the long jump with Milton Mallard.

Temple, however, was disqualified in

Mr. Robinson out with sore thumb

Robinson

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson says he won't play any more on the San Antonio Spurs current road trip as he ponders surgery on his thumb that could sideline him for six to eight weeks.

The All-Star center headed back to San Antonio today and will miss the Spurs' next three games.

"It's a day-by-day, game-by-game situation," Spurs spokesman Matt Sperisen had said Thursday.

Robinson has not decided whether to have surgery to repair a torn ligament in his thumb, Sperisen said.

As his teammates suited up Wednesday to face the Charlotte Hornets, Robinson decided to sit out because of soreness and swelling in his injured left thumb. It was the first time he had missed a game because of an injury during his pro career. Robinson previously had played in 232 consecutive games.

The 7-foot-1 Robinson wore street clothes as he sat on the bench in Charlotte, where the Hornets defeated the Spurs 113-108.

A ligament in the thumb's socket was torn last week when the left-handed Robinson collided with another player in a loss to the Hornets in San Antonio.

Baylor fires Gene Iba

Associated Press

WACO — Baylor basketball coach Gene Iba's contract for the 1992-93 season will not be renewed, President Herbert H. Reynolds announced Friday.

Gene Iba

Iba's cousin, Texas Christian coach Moe Iba, meanwhile, received a three-year contract extension Friday.

"We appreciate the work coach Iba has accomplished over his seven years at Baylor," Reynolds said in a released issued Friday. "However, we have decided that it is time for a change in the leadership of our men's program and I am asking Dr. James S. Netherton, vice president for the administration affairs and chief operating officer, to negotiate with coach Iba the completion of his service here."

Iba was in a meeting and couldn't be reached by The Associated Press for comment.

Baylor spokesman Mike Bishop said the school decided to replace Iba because of his lack of success.

"It is the (won-loss) record and our feeling that Baylor ought to be nationally competitive and that the program would benefit from new leadership at this time," Bishop said.

Iba had a 98-106 record in seven seasons, including 13-15 this year, and was 41-69 in the Southwest Conference. His 1989 team struggled to a 5-22 record, but it improved to 16-14 the next season despite using several freshmen.

AL East Preview

In a division where players, managers, management and stadiums change like no other, one thing is still the same this season in the American League East: the race for the title is between Boston and Toronto.

It's been that way since 1985 when, with only one exception, those teams began swapping championships. The Red Sox win in even years, the Blue Jays win in odd (just how good these clubs are is another question — only the 1986 Red Sox got past the playoffs).

Anyway, the pattern would seem to make it Boston's turn, plus a little history going against Toronto, namely that not since the 1980-81 New York Yankees has anyone repeated in the division.

The Blue Jays, however, aren't content to do business the old way. General manager Pat Gillick, called "Stand Pat" for the way he refused to make deals, broke the mold last year, losing George Bell, Fred McGriff and Tony Fernandez and getting Joe Carter, Roberto Alomar, Devon White and Tom Candiotti.

Those moves helped Toronto win the division by seven games over Boston and Detroit. This winter the Blue Jays were at it again, signing big-name free agents Jack Morris and Dave Winfield. The Red Sox, meanwhile, responded by getting free agent Frank Viola after missing out on Morris.

The additions might help Toronto more than Boston. The Red Sox, though, might benefit from some new, young players. They also have a new manager in Butch Hobson, one of five managers in the division to have changed since the start of opening day 1991.

Toronto's Cito Gaston and Detroit's Sparky Anderson are the only managers intact from the beginning of

Chap linksters win fifth straight

DENNIS — The Midland College men's golf team did Friday what no such team had done before.

The Chaparrals captured a school-record fifth straight team golf title, posting a two-day total 612 to walk away with the Sugartree Invitational here by eight strokes over McLennon College and Grayson College.

Grant Thomson paced the MC attack, using 147 strokes to finish second in the medalist race behind McLennon's Steve Ward, who finished at 144. And Stephen Dundas of MC was the No. 3 medalist at 75-77—152.

Guy Redford (78-77—155), David Downie (84-78—162) and Shaun Bishop (80-86—166) also came through as the Chaps conquered the 12-team field at the Sugartree Golf Course.

MC held a three-stroke lead over McLennon after the first day of action, 307-310, as Thomson, Dundas and Redford posted sub-80 rounds of 74, 75 and 78, respectively. Grayson was third with a 312 after the first round.

While the Chaps came back with a 305 on Friday, McLennon repeated its 310 from the previous day and Grayson's 308 was not enough of an improvement to catch MC, which earned its fifth-stright title.

The Chaps return to action next weekend with a trip to Scotsdale, Arizona.

Team Totals

1. Midland College 307-305—612; 2. (tie) McLennon 310-310—620 and Grayson 312-308—320; 4. Temple 314-307—621; 5. San Jacinton 319-307—626; 6. Bulldog golfers in second place after round 1

SAN ANGELO — Midland High stands three stroke off the pace at second place in the team totals, as the first round of the District 4-5A boys golf tour was completed here Friday at the San Angelo Country Club.

Playing on its home course, San Angelo edged in front of MHS for the early lead in the tour, which will play the second of its four stops next Friday at the Abilene Country Club. Abilene High is in third place at 323, while Odessa Permian is fourth at 330 and Midland Lee fifth at 336.

Jeremiah Luttrell of MHS scorched the San Angelo likns for a round of 75 to earn a first-place tie with AHS' Jody Crow in the medalist standings. Lee's Mitch Spence is just one stroke off that pace, recording a 76 of his own.

Friday's results from the first round of the District 4-5A boys golf tour at San Angelo Country Club:

Team Totals: 1. San Angelo, 316; 2. Midland High, 319; 3. Abilene High, 323; 4. Odessa Permian, 330; 5. Midland Lee, 336; 6. Abilene Cooper, 337; 7. Odessa High, 370.

SOCCER: Rebels have given only 10 goals this season son Herrera nor center fullback Chris Ulibarri eligible to play in today's contest.

Another player, Paul Gonzalez, comes in limping after taking a brutal shot to his knee in the final moments of Tuesday's win. And Hanks, which has just three seniors, left its leading scorer at home with a case of the chicken pox.

"Losing some key players hurts, but that's the name of the game," Hanks coach Sergio Santillano said. "We're going to have to stick some other people in there that don't have much experience.

"It may take some time to get into the flow of the game."

But the Rebels will not be underestimating the Knights. Hanks, with 79 goals on the season, can score.

Brian Forrester and Jerry Ceniceros have 26 goals between them and both will see action today.

"Hanks is a very balanced team. They play emotional soccer and they're fundamentally sound," said Lee coach Eddie Bull, whose Rebels last met Hanks in the final game of the El Paso Tournament in 1991. Hanks won the game 4-1.

"The good thing for us is we don't have to travel," Bull said. "We can sleep in our own beds and stay focused on one thing.

"I think we can stay on the grass with them."

The Rebels embarked on their second-straight postseason venture with a 2-0 bi-district win over Burkburnett last Monday in Abilene. It was the first-ever playoff win for Lee, and it was decided in the second half.

"We didn't play very good in the first half (against Burkburnett). I think it was because we beat them the first time," said Lee midfielder Jason Meyers, referring to the Rebels' 5-0 win over Burkburnett in the regular season.

"It's going to take playing hard all game long to beat Hanks, and a big crowd is going to help. I'm real hyped up about this game. I'm going to shoot a whole lot more than I did the last game, and hopefully everybody else will, too. If we shoot a lot, some of them are bound to go in."

Not many have gone in against either Lee or Hanks this season. The Rebels and keeper Freddie Silva have given up just 10 goals all year. They posted their 10th shutout of the season in their bi-district win.

The Knights have allowed 15 goals to date. And Santillano, whose team lost last year to El Paso Austin in the first round of the playoffs, says this year's squad has yet to play its best soccer.

"We've been playing well the last four or five games, but we're still climbing toward our peak," he said. "We were struggling at the beginning of the season, but last year we peaked too early."

The highest peak for Hanks came in the 1989 season when the Knights reached the region tourney with an area-round win over Abilene High. AHS was the last member of District 3 to take the field for a try at a regional berth, but Hanks claimed it, then fell in a shootout to Irving.

Lee, unlike Hanks, has plenty of seniors to take the field today. Tim Tucker has 11 goals to lead the offense, and Todd Meade has scored nine for the Rebels. Other seniors include Jason Brown (five goals), Dennis Ehler and Matt Perkins (four); Leo Daud (three) and Pablo Rodriguez (2). Seniors Cody Welch and Matt Lawrence are the starting fullbacks. Derrin Brown, Daniel Hansen and Vijay Gollopudi round out the senior membership at Lee.

Tickets for today's game are $3 for adults and $2 for students.

RELAYS: Midland High' Stricklin qualifies in 800

the sprint relay preliminary and that will hurt the Wildcats for today.

Permian bit a big bullet in the sprint relay when Gerrod Bergen, running the second leg, came up lame and could barely get around the track. Still, the Panthers qualified for the finals in the event, giving Mojo opportunity for points in the relay if they can come up with a replacement for Bergen.

That Temple miscue did bring good results for Midland High as the Bulldogs qualified for the sprint relay finals with a 43.90 without Thomas Acrey.

Acrey, who won the 110 hurdles two weeks ago at the West Texas Relays in Odessa, has not run since because of a pulled leg muscle.

"In a meet of this size and quality, you have to be thrilled to just get into the finals," said MHS track coach Farris Strambler. "We'll also be in the two-mile relay Saturday with a good shot at placing."

MHS' Freddie Stricklin also qualified in the 800 meters with a 2:03.46.

But that was about the extent of luck for local runners. Midland Lee's youthful runners failed to qualify any individuals for today's running events.

"As young as our team is, this meet is a little much for us," said Lee track coach Mike Quimby. "I seriously considered taking our team to Hobbs (N.M.) this weekend. We need to be in a smaller meet where the kids can have some success. They could have run a lot more at Hobbs. We scored 91 points at Carlsbad (N.M.) last weekend. The kids got to win some medals and have some success. I think that does more for us at this stage."

Lee's Scott McLeod, a Region I qualifier last year, will be in the shot put today with a chance to give the Rebels some points. Lee's Jovan Tellez, also a Region I qualifier last year, is not with the team anymore.

Stanton's Jeremy Stallings, a two-event state champion last year, qualified in both the Division IV 800 and 1,600 events, but with less than impressive times. Of course, runners of Stallings' caliber don't waste energy in preliminaries.

He had a 2:03.46 in the 800 and a 4:51.27 in the 1,600.

Stanton also qualified both relays and Kenny McCalister in the 400 with a 52.58. Andrews' Robert Seals took third place in the Division II discus with a 158-6.

Friday's medal winners and 4-5A results in the finals at the San Angelo Relays:

Division I

BASEBALL: Lee hosts Frenship

(From 1B)

Abilene Cooper invades Odessa High. Cooper and Permian are tied for the lead at 2-0 in district play, while surprising Abilene High is ½-game off their pace at 2-1. San Angelo is 1-1, Lee and MHS are both 1-2, while OHS brings up the rear at 0-3.

Brian Rounding is expected to get the pitching start for MHS today, as the Bulldogs could take their second straight victory in a triumph. MHS defeated OHS 7-1 Tuesday in Angels Stadium for its first 4-5A win.

Rounding, a right-handed senior, has thrown 10⅓ innings in district play for an ERA of 4.74, though his season record is 1-4. He hopes to be able to shut down the Bobcats as well as Abilene High did Tuesday, when the Eagles defeated the 'Cats in San Angelo, 3-0.

The Leading hitter in 4-5A play for MHS is first baseman Jimmy Stanton, who has been on a two-game tear. Stanton, who hit .316 in league play last season in his junior year, was 2-for-3 with a pair of RBI in MHS' victory over OHS.

Last Saturday in a wild 17-16, eight-inning loss at AHS he went 5-for-6 with three RBI and four runs scored. Those two games have pushed his batting average in three district games to .583.

Other Bulldog hitters averaging .300 or better over that span are Richie Greth and Mario Rodriguez (.500), Jeremy Burton (.400), Dewayne Culpepper (.357), Adrian Mills (.333), Mike Melzer (.308), and Todd Tredaway (.300).

The Rebels will surely use today's twin bill — which will begin while the Lee soccer playoff against El Paso Hanks is under way just to the east of Johnson Field — to take out some frustration on the Tigers.

Lee dropped a 10-9 decision Tuesday at Odessa Permian and may still be stinging from a 24-7 defeat at the hands of Cooper last Saturday at Johnson Field.

The Class 4A Tigers may feel the brunt of Lee's disappointment and have already been swept by a Midland team, as MHS double dipped them in a Feb. 27 season opener.

Leftfielder Smily Hinojos is Lee's leading hitter in 4-5A play with an .833 average, while Jake Krautsch's 3-for-4 performance against Permian gives him a .750 mark. Jimmy Patton is hitting .600, while Sean McIntosh (.500), Allen Chase (.455), and David Galvan and Julian Urquidez (.429) are all above the .400 mark.

Pitching for the Rebs today could be a question mark, as Lee coach Jesse Benavidez may opt to rest Patton (2-1) and Urquidez (3-0) and save them for Lee's return to district play Tuesday, when the Rebels host OHS.

U.S. takes Davis Cup lead over Czechoslovakia

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Pete Sampras and Andre Agassi scored straight-set victories today, giving the United States a 2-0 lead over Czechoslovakia in their quarterfinal Davis Cup match.

Sampras boomed 17 aces and beat Karel Novacek 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. Agassi, trying to shake a yearlong slump, then swept an erratic Petr Korda 6-2, 6-4, 6-1 at the Sonesta Sanibel Harbour Resort.

The Americans can clinch a victory Saturday when John McEnroe and Rick Leach take on Korda and Cyril Suk in doubles. The singles pairings will be reversed for Sunday's conclusion of the best-of-five tie, as Davis Cup events are called.

In other quarterfinal action today, Sweden won both its singles matches against Australia, Switzerland took the opening match from defending champion France, and Brazil played host to Italy.

Sampras' big serve and successful charges to the net on the hard-court surface were too much for Novacek, a clay-court specialist who rarely left the baseline and was inconsistent with his groundstrokes.

Sampras, 3-0 in Davis Cup this year, held every service game and broke once in each of the first two sets for leads of 3-1 and 3-2. In the final set he won five consecutive games.

Agassi played conservatively from the baseline while Korda, ranked 10th in the world, made 55 unforced errors. The tone was established in the opening game when Korda double-faulted twice and lost his serve.

Agassi has failed to reach the quarterfinals in each of his five tournaments this year, but he improved his career Davis Cup record to 15-4.

Sweden-Australia

In Lund, Sweden, Magnus Gustafsson and Stefan Edberg scored straight-set victories to give Sweden a commanding 2-0 lead over Australia.

Gustafsson overcame a shaky start before his home fans to win the opening singles over Wally Masur 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Edberg, the world's top-ranked player, scored an easy 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 win over Richard Fromberg on the Victoria Hall's fast carpet surface. It was the 21st singles win in 29 Davis Cup matches for Edberg.

France-Switzerland

In Nimes, France, Jakob Hlasek outlasted Arnaud Boetsch , 3-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 7-6 (7-4) as Switzerland took a 1-0 lead over the defending Davis Cup champions.

Hlasek saved four set points in the fourth set before winning the opening singles match.

Brazil-Italy

Surprising Brazil, which shocked Germany in the first round, is being led by Luiz Mattar and Jaime Oncins against Italy in Maceio, Brazil.

Mattar faced Italy's Omar Camporese in the first match, followed by Oncins against Paolo Cane.

NCAA: Memphis State moves to region finals

(From 1B)

The Bearcats, who hit eight of their first 13 shots, widened the lead to 19-6 on a 3-pointer by Anthony Buford with 13:58 left in the half. Then the Miners began to close the gap after switching to a zone and getting better shots at the other end.

The Miners went on a 14-4 run, capped by a Prince Stewart 3-pointer, to come within 23-20 with 9:12 left. Cincinnati only got three shots during the surge and turned the ball over three times.

After the Miners fell behind by 14 in the second half, Van Dyke scored eight points to lead an 18-7 run. Cincinnati hit just two of nine shots during the 8½-minute stretch.

No. 15 Michigan 75, No. 11 Oklahoma St. 72

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Jalen Rose, picking up his foul-plagued teammates, scored 25 points, including a backbreaking 3-pointer with four minutes left as No. 15 Michigan beat No. 11 Oklahoma State in a Southeast Regional semifinal.

The Wolverines (23-8) meet Big Ten rival Ohio State (26-5) on Sunday for the right to advance to next week's Final Four. Third-ranked Ohio State beat Michigan twice during the regular season.

The outcome was in doubt until Michigan's Jimmy King knocked away Sean Sutton's pass into the middle with one second left.

Michigan lost Chris Webber to fouls with seven minutes left, but that was offset by the subpar perfformance of Oklahoma State star Byron Houston, who was limited to four points on 2-for-14 shooting. Corey Williams led the Cowboys (28-8) with 25 points.

Memphis St. 83, Ga. Tech 79

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Score one for shorty in the latest battle between good big men and good little men.

Guard Tony Madlock sank six free throws and grabbed a key rebound in the final 98 seconds Friday night, boosting Memphis State to a come-from-behind 83-79 overtime victory over a taller Georgia Tech in the semifinals of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

In Sunday's finale, the Tigers (23-10) will meet the winner of the Texas El Paso-Cincinnati game.

The 6-foot-1 Madlock sank two free throws with 1:38 left in overtime, putting Memphis State on top 78-77 for the Tigers' first lead since 36-34. He then made two more free throws with 32 seconds remaining after rebounding a Georgia Tech shot, and then made it 82-77 with 16 seconds to go on two more foul shots.

Jon Barry, with his Hall of Fame father Rick Barry looking on, had 29 points for the Yellow Jackets (23-12), but only one in the final 9:44, including the overtime.

The Yellow Jackets, despite a rash of turnovers, seemed to have the game in hand when Matt Geiger's basket and subsequent free throw put them on top 74-70 with 36 seconds to play.

Anthony Douglas' short bucket made it 74-72. Then Anferenee Hardaway rebounded Geiger's missed free throw with 13 seconds remaining and fed to Billy Smith, whose 5-footer tied it 74-74 with 11 seconds remaining.

The Yellow Jackets, who eliminated USC on James Forrest's buzzer-beater in the second round, tried unsuccessfully to get the ball to Forrest for a final shot and were forced into overtime.

Despite a decided height advantage along the front line, the Yellow Jackets outrebounded Memphis State only 41-35. But Georgia Tech also had 21 turnovers to just 12 for Memphis State.

Barry's free throw and a bucket by Forrest put Georgia Tech on top 77-74 in the opening minute of overtime, but then Douglas hit two free throws when Geiger fouled out with 2:04 remaining, and Madlock began his march to the free throw line.

Hardaway, who made one of seven shots in the first half and scored but four points, ended up with 24 points and seven assists. Douglas had 16 points and Billy Smith had 15.

Forrest had 16 points for Georgia Tech and Malcolm Mackey and Best had 13.

The Yellow Jackets seemed to be pulling away early in the first half when Forrest's bucket capped a 20-6 spree that turned a 34-30 Memphis State lead into a 50-40 advantage for Georgia Tech. Barry had 13 points in the run.

The Tigers immediately answered with a 14-4 spurt. Hardaway, finally finding his shooting touch, hit 10 points in the run, including a long 3-pointer that knotted it at 54-54.

Then back came the Yellow Jackets with a 9-2 run, getting a short bank shot from Forrest and then going up 63-56 on a 3-pointer by Best.

Memphis State, after leading by as many as six points in an up-and-down first half, collapsed in a rash of bad plays and decisions as Georgia Tech used a 12-2 run to lead 42-36 at intermission.

With the score knotted 36-36 and about 20 seconds remaining in the half, Hardaway took the ball at the top of the key and threw it right into the hands of a Georgia Tech defender, who dished off to Barry streaking downcourt.

Hardaway fouled him hard under the bucket, and then drew a technical foul, apparently for a comment to the official.

Barry, who had 19 points in the first half, sank both shots for the foul, and then dropped in both free throws for the technical to give the Yellow Jackets a 40-36 lead. Then Georgia Tech inbounded the ball and Barry sank a 14-footer at the buzzer.

Ohio State 80, UNC 73

LEXINGTON, Ky. — North Carolina coach Dean Smith knew Ohio State would go to Jim Jackson in the second half. Stopping him was another matter.

Jackson, who had sub-par performances in his first two games of the tournament, scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half as third-ranked Ohio State advanced to the final of the Southeast Regional.

"We knew they were going to go to him, but we couldn't do much about it," Smith said.

Jackson, who made only two of seven shots in the first half, hit his first three in the second half as Ohio State overcame a five-point deficit and wore down the No. 18 Tar Heels in the final minutes.

"I was taking shots within the realm of the offense," said Jackson, who was only 10 for 39 from the field in the first two rounds. "It's funny to see the ball go in and out like that.

"In the second half, I was taking the same shots and they seemed to fall. It's good to have teammates who have confidence in you and tell you to keep shooting the ball."

Jackson hit six of 10 in the second half.

"Jim is going to step it up a notch no matter what the situation," said teammate Chris Jent, who scored 15 points.

North Carolina (24-10) trailed only 69-67 when Brian Reese sank two free throws with 3:01 remaining in the game.

After both teams missed shots on their next possessions, guard Jamie Skelton pulled up on the left side and hit a 3-pointer to give Ohio State (26-5) a 72-67 edge.

North Carolina's George Lynch came back 21 seconds later with a rebound basket off Hubert Davis' missed jumper to slice the margin to three points. But Skelton, who finished with 14 points, drove inside for another basket after a rebound with 1:20 to go as Ohio State went back up by five points.

North Carolina's Henrik Rodl scored on a rebound basket with 48.2 seconds left to cut the lead to 74-71, but that was the closest the Tar Heels could get as Ohio State hit six of nine free throws down the stretch.

Lawrence Funderburke led Ohio State with 21 points. Eric Montross and Davis each had 21 points for North Carolina, which was making its 12th straight appearance in the round of 16.

"I really did believe we were going to make Minneapolis," Smith said. "I really did. This was one of our better games."

North Carolina got off to a promising start in the second half before Jackson took over.

Montross scored on a left-handed hook from the baseline 16 seconds into the second half to extend North Carolina's lead to seven points. Then Jackson made a rebound layup, went inside for a dunk and hit a 3-pointer from the corner to tie it at 39.

Ohio State took a 44-43 lead on Jent's 3-pointer from the corner with 17:10 to go before North Carolina came back and took a 61-58 lead on Davis' 15-foot jumper.

Slowed Scott sits in UNM loss to UVa

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Bryant Stith's sore neck wasn't as bad as Will Scott's back spasms.

As a result, Scott mostly watched from the bench as Stith scored 24 points to lead Virginia to a 76-71 victory over New Mexico in a National Invitation Tournament semifinal game Friday night.

Stith, still sore from a nasty fall he took against Tennessee on Monday night, got off to a slow start. He had only six points at halftime.

But Scott, former New Mexico Junior College forward and now the Lobos' leading scorer and defensive stopper, played only six minutes because of back spasms.

"We worked hard on Stith," New Mexico coach Dave Bliss said. "Scott usually takes the best player. Ike Williams did a good job but got in foulouble. Willie Banks is not expected to guard a player that strong or tall."

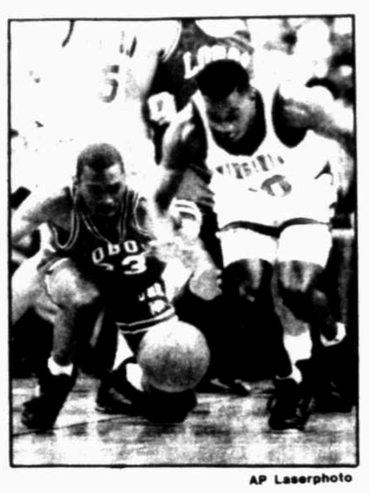

Despite what the box score says, Virginia coach Jeff Jones said the 6-foot-5 Stith wasn't himself.

"Bryant was affected by what happened against Tennessee," Jones said. "He was a little rusty."

There was nothing rusty about Virginia's free throw shooting. The Cavaliers (18-13) made their first 21 foul shots and hit 24 of 26 for the game, their best performance of the season.

"We played the free-throw shooting team of America tonight," Bliss said.

The Cavaliers broke from a 32-32 halftime tie to take a 46-38 lead on Stith's three-point play with 14:49 remaining.

Virginia's Anthony Oliver (10) and UNM's Khari Jaxon.

New Mexico (20-13) closed the gap to two when Banks hit two free throws with 8:18 remaining.

But Virginia pulled away again as Stith scored six points in an 8-1 spree to make it 64-55 with 6:12 remaining. The Lobos could get no closer than five points the rest of the way.

The Lobos scored four points in the first five minutes but trailed only 8-4. They rallied to take the lead 13-10 on a 3-pointer by Williams with 12:59 remaining and did not trail the rest of the half.

Junior Burrough had 18 points for the Cavaliers and Ted Jeffries added 14.

"I can't say enough about Ted Jeffries," Jones said. "He did an outstanding job defensively."

UCLA looking for a little respect

N.Y. Times News Service

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — It is about more than just a Final Four berth, although that is a big part of UCLA's rematch with Indiana today.

It is about respect, something the Bruins feel they received little of after their season-opening victory over the Hoosiers in November. A second win, however, in this NCAA tournament West Regional final, might just do the trick.

"You always hear that thing, Bobby Knight doesn't prepare his teams for early games in the season. They always peak late," UCLA guard Darrick Martin said. "We beat them, but it was still like we weren't getting credit."

The top-seeded Bruins (28-4) won the first meeting, 87-72. Today's game should have a different feel. Both schools have adjusted their lineups since and both have matured as the season has progressed.

"I had a sense walking away from that first game that UCLA was a much better team than we were," Knight said. "If they're still that kind of team tomorrow, the game isn't going to be much better."

After losing their opener, the second-seeded Hoosiers (26-6) won 15 of their next 16 games. Like UCLA, Indiana has grown into a different team. Here's how both have changed, by position:

Guards: In the first meeting, UCLA was clearly the strongest team at this position. Harrick rotated four players — Gerald Madkins, Shon Tarver, Tyus Edney and Martin — and they were simply too quick for the Hoosiers' Damon Bailey and Greg Grahman, who combined for just four assists.

Bobby Knight

"We put a lot of pressure on them and got a few turnovers and some easy baskets," Martin said. "We played our game, and our defense was the key for us."

Since that game, however, Indiana's backcourt has changed. Chris Reynolds, who sat out the first meeting because he intended to redshirt, has since replaced Graham in the lineup. It has made the Hoosiers a faster team.

"UCLA's guards killed us," Bailey said. "Not having Chris hurt. They were a lot quicker than us. We're going to have to stop them this game or they're going to come in and kill us."

Madkins, who was 0 for 3 in that contest, has since returned to his favorite position, off guard, and is averaging 15.6 points a game.

Forwards: The Bruins won this battle, too, in the first game. Don MacLean and Tracy Murray combined for 39 of UCLA's 87 points.

Maybe most significant, however, the Bruins (primarly Madkins) held Indiana star Calbert Cheaney to eight points. The junior sat on the bench in Knight's doghouse much of the second half.

Thursday loss ends Lady Raiders' season

SEATTLE (AP) — Tara VanDerveer watched her young Stanford squad dominate in the first half like the Cardinal teams of previous years, then seemingly let up against No. 12 Texas Tech.

The Red Raiders ran off eight straight points to start the second half, cutting the Stanford lead from 14 to six.

"Tara called a time out and told us we needed to get more emotional on the court," forward Chris MacMurdo said.

Molly Goodenbour's 3-pointer sparked a Cardinal run, and Stanford led by at least 10 points over the last 14 minutes as they defeated Texas Tech 75-63 on Thursday night.

No. 3 Stanford has appeared in three consecutive West regionals, but carries only one senior on the squad. All-time Pacific-10 Conference steals and assists leader Sonja Henning was lost to graduation, as were first-team All-Pac-10 selections Julie Zeilstra and Trisha Stevens.

But Goodenbour, center Val Whiting and others have gradually filled the gaps, and the Cardinal were favored over Texas Tech.

"I'm really proud of the way they respond to pressure situations," VanDerveer said. "The bigger the game, the better they play. It's been like that all year."

Stanford dominated the boards, grabbing 43 rebounds to the Red Raiders' 25. Texas Tech had only two offensive rebounds.

"Stanford has an awfully good basketball team" Texas Tech coach Martha Sharp said. "Defensively they gave us the best pressure we've seen all season."

Rachel Hemmer led all scorers with 21 points, and Goodenbour added 19 for Stanford. Whiting finished with 17 points and 11 rebounds.

Texas Tech point guard Sheryl Swoopes, a 6-foot junior who was named both Southwest Conference player and newcomer of the year, led the Red Raiders with 17 points but shot just seven of 19 from the field. She tied Whiting for the game high with 11 rebounds.

Stanford, which finished the regular season at 26-3, shot just 41 percent from the field (26 of 63), but made 17 of 23 free throws. Texas Tech shot 49 percent but went to the line only seven times, making six free throws.

The Red Raiders, Southwest Conference champions who finished the regular season with a 27-4 record, were making their first appearance in the regionals.

Stanford was up 35-21 at halftime after allowing Texas Tech only six points over the last 11 minutes.

Stanford will face No. 23 Southern Cal in the West Regional championship game Saturday night. Southern Cal defeated Stephen F. Austin 61-57 in their semifinal game in Seattle on Thursday night. The winner of the Stanford-Southern Cal game advances to the Final Four in Los Angeles on April 4-5.

Playoff scene tight in NBA's Eastern bracket

Associated Press

BOSTON — Boston tied Detroit for homecourt advantage in their probable playoff series as Larry Bird sparked a late 16-6 run that carried the Celtics to a 106-87 victory Friday night.

The Celtics, winners of their last five games, and the Pistons, losers of their last four, are tied for the fourth and fifth Eastern Conference playoff spots with a 41-30 record. Each has 11 games remaining.

It's unlikely either will move up to third or down to sixth. The fourth-place team has the extra home game in a best-of-5 first-round series against the fifth-place team.

Detroit, trailing 71-57 midway through the third quarter, closed to 82-75 with a 6-0 run capped by Dennis Rodman's layup with 8:57 left in the game.

Bird, who hit three of his first 14 shots, then hit his next three shots, starting with a 3-pointer that began the 16-6 run. His tip-in made the score 87-77 and his next 3-pointer made it 92-79.

After two free throws by Orlando Woolridge, the Celtics closed the surge with six straight points, building the lead to 98-81 with 2:36 to go.

The Celtics were led by Bird and Reggie Lewis with 21 points each. Joe Dumars had 20 points for Detroit.

Heat 118, Spurs 101

MIAMI — Glen Rice scored 35 points and made a team-record seven 3-pointers as Miami took advantage David Robinson's absence to beat San Antonio.

Robinson, who has a torn ligament in his left hand, missed his second consecutive game after playing 232 straight in his pro career. Robinson is the only player in the NBA to rank among the top 10 in scoring, rebounding, steals and blocks this season.

Grant Long, averaging 27.7 points in his last three games, scored 27 for Miami, while the Spurs were paced by Terry Cummings with 26 points and Rod Strickland with 20.

The Spurs, who trailed 33-17 after one quarter, closed to 75-67 with 4:28 left in the third period. The Heat answered with an 11-0 run, featuring four points each by Rony Seikaly and Bimbo Coles and one of Rice's 3-pointers, giving Miami an 86-67 lead.

Cavaliers 121, Hornets 115

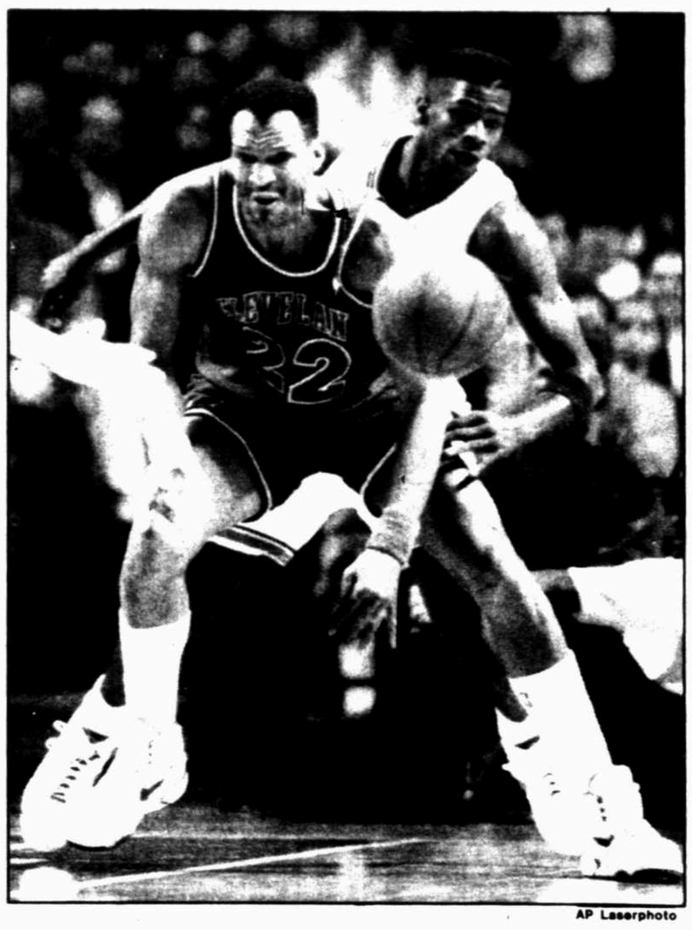

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Mark Price sank a 3-pointer and two foul shots in the final 44 seconds as Cleveland defeated Charlotte for its fifth straight victory.

Brad Daugherty led the Cavaliers, who have won 10 of their last 11, with 24 points and Larry Nance had 21 points and 13 rebounds.

The Hornets, who won 11 of their previous 15, were led by Kendall Gill and Dell Curry with 29 points apiece and rookie Larry Johnson with 26 points, including a steal and dunk with 1:32 left that tied it 115-115.

Price's tiebreaking 3-pointer came after Nance missed two foul shots, but the second miss was tipped back to Price, who swished his second 3-pointer of the game.

The Hornets turned the ball over on their next possession and were forced to foul Price, who has made 96 percent of his free throws. He made both with with 20 seconds remaining.

Cleveland's Larry Nance positions himself against Charlotte's Kendall Gill.

Warriors 125, Pacers 117

INDIANAPOLIS — Sarunas Marciulionis scored 23 points and Tim Hardaway and Chris Mullin had 22 each as Golden State snapped Indiana's 10-game home winning streak.

Hardaway hit four straight free throws as the Warriors held off a late threat by the Pacers, who got 27 points and 11 assists by Micheal Williams.

Detlef Schrempf had 25 points and 17 rebounds and Chuck Person scored 24 points for the Pacers, who closed an eight-point deficit to 104-103 with 5:20 left. Hardaway's four free throws then started a 9-4 spurt that gave the Warriors a 113-107 advantage with 2:25 left.

Hawks 105, Timberwolves 103

MINNEAPOLIS — Atlanta's Maurice Cheeks made a 19-foot jump shot at the buzzer, sending Minnesota to its 15th straight loss.

Kevin Willis paced the Hawks, who have won six of eight games, with 23 points. Doug West led the Timberwolves with 22 points.

With Atlanta leading 103-102, Maurice Cheeks fouled Minnesota's Pooh Richardson, who missed the first free throw and made the second to tie the score with 12 seconds left. Cheeks took the inbounds pass from Alexander Volkov, shook Richardson at the top of the key and drilled the game-winner.

Lakers 103, Jazz 92

SALT LAKE CITY — Terry Teagle scored 23 points and Sedale Threatt had nine in the final 6:23 as the Los Angeles Lakers handed the Utah Jazz just their fourth loss of the season at the Delta Center.

The victory solidified the Lakers' hold on the eighth and final playoff spot in the Western Conference. Their third consecutive win left them a full game ahead of the Houston Rockets.

Threatt, who finished with 19 points, led an 8-2 run with three outside jumpers, giving the Lakers a 90-82 lead with 5:10 left. He then hit a 20-footer from the baseline with 2:49 remaining and one of free throws with 1:13 left, keeping the Lakers in front 95-88.

John Stockton scored on a drive to pull the Jazz to 95-90, but that was they closest they got.

Karl Malone scored 31 points and Stockton had 17 points and 12 assists for Utah, now 31-4 at home, still the best in the NBA. Elden Campbell and A.C. Green each finished with 16 points for the Lakers.

Suns 117, 76ers 113

PHOENIX — Kevin Johnson scored 31 points and the Phoenix Suns survived going the final 5:10 without a field goal to beat the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Suns won their third straight, all at home, and sent the 76ers to their seventh loss in eight games although Phoenix didn't have another basket after Tom Chambers' shot from the corner put the Suns ahead 109-106.

Johnson got his last point with a free throw 55 seconds later, and the Suns led 110-106. Philadelphia came back to tie it 110-110 on a free throw and a three-point play by Armon Gilliam with 3:10 left.

Chambers, who had 18 points, started a 5-0 run of free throws with a pair with 2:31 to play.

Sonics 96, Bucks 95

SEATTLE — The Milwaukee Bucks lost their 19th consecutive road game when Michael Cage blocked Moses Malone's shot with two seconds left, giving the Seattle SuperSonics a win over Milwaukee.

Giants sign Snyder

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, satisfied by Cory Snyder's impressive spring, purchased the utility player's minor league contract and gave him a one-year, $500,000 pact.

The deal includes a $10,000 bonus for each game from No. 81 to 130.

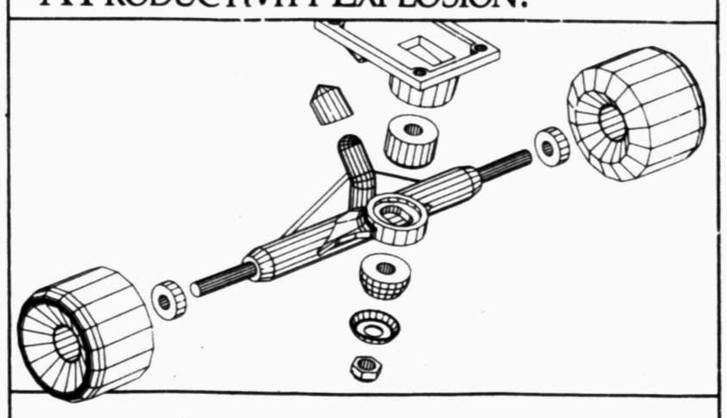

In other moves, the team optioned Eric Gunderson to its Class AAA affiliate in Phoenix and placed left-handed pitchers Trevor Wilson and Bud Black on the 15-day disabled list. Wilson had a benign cyst removed from a rib on March 19; Black has a sprained back.

Snyder, 29, initially was signed to a $250,000 minor-league contract by the Giants during the winter after being released by the Toronto Blue Jays. He batted .181 with three homers and 17 RBIs last year with the White Sox and the Blue Jays.

The Giants acquired Snyder to strengthen their bench. He has played six positions this spring. Snyder also has been impressive at the plate, hitting .304 and leading the club with three homers.

Snyder, a six-year veteran, was Cleveland's top pick and the fourth overall in the 1984 draft.

Daniel inches toward Shore title

Associated Press

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. — Beth Daniel, winner of 27 tournaments during a distinguished LPGA career, made a move Friday at a title that has eluded her.

Daniel shot a 4-under-par 68 to take the second-round lead in the Dinah Shore tournament, one of the LPGA's four majors.

The round put Daniel at 6-under-par 138 midway through the $700,000 event, which is considered the women's tour equivilent of the PGA's Masters tournament.

Dawn Coe, the LPGA's leading money-winner this year, also had a second-round 68 to go with an opening 71, leaving her one stroke behind Daniel after 36 holes at Mission Hills Country Club.

Juli Inkster, Dottie Mochrie, Patty Sheehan, Mary Beth Zimmerman and Tammie Green were in a group two shots off the lead at 140.

The first-day pacesetters all faded back into the pack.

Dale Eggeling, whose opening 67 gave her a one-shot lead over Liselotte Neumann of Sweden and Michelle McGann, struggled to a second-round 78. Neumann had a 76 and McGann a 74.

Daniel, a dominant player on the tour since her debut in 1979, has come close to winning the Dinah Shore a number of times, finishing in the top five three times — including a tie for second behind winner Amy Alcott in 1983. Daniel has finished in the top 10 in the tournament on six occasions.

AP Laserphoto

Beth Daniel

She carded her second-round 68 despite intermittent showers and one downpour that lasted about 20 minutes.

Daniel was paired with Inkster, who also shot a 68, and Meg Mallon, who had a 69 to go to 142. Daniel said all three golfers were relaxed and enjoyed the round.

"It was like a practice-round pairing," she said. "It was fun. None of the three of us played really well all 18 holes, but each of us would go on a streak at times, and we'd say, 'Here she goes.'"

Heavy rain began with the trio on the fairway at No. 8, then continued through the ninth hole. The rain, however, didn't seem to affect the course or the scoring.

Coe, who joined the tour in 1984 but hadn't won until her victory in the Kemper Open on Maui a month ago, has earned $151,097 already in 1992.

"I've been hitting the ball well," Coe said. "I'm really confident when I step up to the tee. I'm seeing the pin, the hole, and not seeing anything in my way to getting there."

Among those players within striking distance of the lead after two rounds were Muffin Spencer Devlin, JoAnne Carner, Brandie Burton and Ayako Okamoto of Japan, all at 142.

The defending champion and the only three-time winner of the Dinah Shore, Amy Alcott, had another forgettable day, with a second-round 73 to go with an opening 74.

She did make the cut, however, which eliminated players at 150 and higher. Among those who didn't make it was Nancy Lopez. Playing on the tour less these days so she can spend more time with her husband and children, Lopez had rounds of 76 and 75 to miss the cut by two strokes.

The Dinah Shore, sponsored by Nabisco, runs through Sunday. The winner will receive $105,000.

Olazabal, Brown tied at TPC

Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. — Jose Maria Olazabal was in big trouble on the fifth hole of the TPC at Sawgrass.

The young Spanish star had just taken a drop after bouncing a drive into the water on the par-4 hole and was looking at a 185-yard 6-iron shot.

He holed it.

The ball ran onto the green, curled off a slope and trickled into the cup for an improbable birdie that sparked Olazabal to a 7-under-par 65 and a share of the lead Friday at the halfway point of the $1.8 million Players Championship.

"I think I was very lucky on that shot," the 26-year-old Spanish star understated after he had gained a tie for the 36-hole lead with another three-name player, Billy Ray Brown.

Brown, who held a three-shot lead going into the day's play, could do no better than a 2-under-par 70 in the strong, gusty winds and matched Olazabal's 134 total.

AP Laserphoto

Billy Ray Brown

"When you get a day like this, mentally it just beats you down," said Brown, a Texan now in his fifth season on the PGA Tour.

"Coming off a high like I had yesterday, I really had to work hard — harder than I wanted to."

While Brown retained a share of the lead, the growing knowledge and grudging acceptance of the Pete Dey-designed course — with its humps and hollows, mounds and waste areas, sloping, contoured greens — by the European stars provided this event with a decided foreign flavor.

Nick Faldo of England and a pair of Australians joined Olazabal among the leaders in the tournament billed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros and carrying the largest purse of any full-field event.

And that is something of an upset on the course that is decidcedly American in nature.

Aside from Sandy Lyle's 1987 victory, the European Big Six — Lyle, Faldo, Ian Woosnam, Seve Ballesteros, Bernhard Langer and Olazabal — have fared poorly here the past.

AL EAST: Problems begin for once optimistic New York Yankees last season. Anderson interrupted the Red Sox-Blue Jays monopoly in the AL East by winning in 1987; Gaston, despite two championships in three years, was rumored to be on his way out last fall.

"You do wonder when you see some managers who haven't had as much success as you and no one ever talks about firing them," Gaston said, about no one in particular. "I think we've done well, and I think we'll continue to do well. But I'm sure some people will continue to talk. That never changes."

Predicted Order: 1) Toronto, 2) Boston, 3) Baltimore, 4) Detroit, 5) Milwaukee, 6) New York, 7) Cleveland.

Toronto Blue Jays

For the second straight winter, the Blue Jays identified their needs and quickly filled them. How well Morris and Winfield play probably will determine whether Toronto will get another chance to bring the first World Series to Canada.

Morris, 36, who beat Toronto twice in last October's playoffs, capped an 18-12 season for Minnesota by becoming the World Series MVP. The Blue Jays want him to fill the role previously held by Dave Stieb, still struggling to recover from a herniated disc that sidelined him last June, and offset the loss of Candiotti.

Winfield, 40, will be the full-time designated hitter, like it or not. Toronto's DHs combined for only five home runs and 56 RBIs last year, by far the worst in the AL and way below the league averages of 22 homers and 87 RBIs. The Blue Jays hope he can duplicate his 28 homers and 86 RBIs for California.

Toronto led the league with a 3.50 ERA, even more impressive because the Blue Jays play in one of the best hitters' parks in the majors. Juan Guzman (10-3, 2.99 ERA), Jimmy Key (16-12, 3.05 ERA) and Todd Stottlemyre (15-8) are solid as starters, and Tom Henke (32 saves, 2.32 ERA) and Duane Ward (23 saves, 2.77 ERA) are strong stoppers. David Wells (15-10) and Mike Timlin (11-6) can do both jobs, if necessary.

The acquisitions of Carter (33 HR, 108 RBIs), Alomar (.295, 53 stolen bases) and White (67 extra-base hits, 33 SB) made up for dips by Kelly Gruber (65 RBIs) and John Olerud, who slumped to .256 despite one of the sweetest swings in the majors. Catcher Pat Borders (5 HR) also dropped, and the Blue Jays are talking about trading him in a package for San Diego's Benito Santiago. On the way are outfielder Derek Bell (.346, 93 RBIs, 27 SB in Triple-A) and shortstop Eddie Zosky.

Boston Red Sox

The Red Sox wanted to give Roger Clemens some support last season, and shelled out millions for free agents Danny Darwin and Matt Young. For all that money, Boston got two sore shoulders, a combined 6-13 record and a 5.17 ERA.

Give the Red Sox credit, though. They plunged back into the market this winter and signed Viola. He always pitched well at Fenway Park, and besides, Boston needs a left-hander after letting Bruce Hurst and Bob Ojeda slip away in past years.

As usual, the Red Sox will depend on Clemens (18-10, 2.62 ERA, 241 strikeouts). Clemens has a .687 winning percentage and three Cy Young Awards in his eight-season career; in all other games during that span, Boston is only a .499 team.

If Darwin and Young can bounce back and Joe Hesketh (12-4) and Greg Harris (11-12) can hold up for another year, the Red Sox will have a nice rotation. Jeff Reardon (40 saves) joined Dennis Eckersley as the only relievers to reach 40 saves in three seasons. John Dopson, who missed the season with elbow surgery; Dana Kiecker, also out with elbow trouble, and Jeff Gray, who had a stroke, are questionable.

Wade Boggs (.332) will bat third this year; he goes into the season with a .345 lifetime average, one point ahead of Ted Williams for the team's all-time best. Mike Greenwell (.300, 83 RBIs) made up for another disappointing year by Ellis Burks (.251, 58 RBIs), while Jack Clark (28 HR, 87 RBIs, .249, 133 strikeouts) did what was expected.

Baltimore Orioles

A new stadium and a new rotation might be enough to put Cal Ripken and Co. back in the first division. For any improvement on their 67-95 record, they can't afford to again lose 35 one-run decisions, the most in the AL in 23 years, and can't lose Glenn Davis for nearly the whole year.

Ripken (.323, 34 HR, 114 RBIs) finished his second MVP season by winning something he coveted even more, his first Gold Glove. His accomplishments were so impressive that they quieted, for awhile, all the talk about his consecutive-games streak — if he maintains his pace, he'll break Lou Gehrig's record of 2,130 straight games in mid-1995.

Davis (10 HR in 49 games) is back from a neck problem. Sam Horn (23 HR) and Chito Martinez (13 HR in 67 games), Mike Devereaux (19 HR) and Leo Gomez (16 HR) provide pop, but the Orioles have little other offense.

Baltimore's big hope is that Ben McDonald (6-8) will turn into the pitcher that he was projected to be, that Mike Mussina (4-5, 2.87 ERA) will pitch the way he showed he could, that rookie Arthur Rhodes will be brilliant, that Storm Davis (3-9 for Kansas City) will improve and that Bob Milacki (10-9) will get better.

Detroit Tigers

The Tigers would be a great team to watch in a college football bowl game. Cecil Fielder, Mickey Tettleton, Rob Deer and the rest can, as baseball players say among themselves, put a lot of points on the board, and they also give up a few.

Detroit was last in the AL with a .247 batting average last season, but led the majors by scoring 817 runs, further evidence why teams should be ranked by scoring, not batting.

Fielder (44 HR, 133 RBIs) already has hit some monster shots in spring training and Tettleton (31 HRs) repeated his odd combination of drawing 100 walks and striking out 100 times. Deer (25 HR) lost his starting spot because he batted .179 and fanned 175 times.

Milwaukee Brewers

The Brewers suffered all last season from losing Ted Higuera to a torn rotator cuff, and whether he is able to pitch well this year will be the key to how well they do.

Without him, they have Bill Wegman (15-7, 2.84 ERA), Jaime Navarro (15-12) and Chris Bosio (14-10), who is being dangled in trade talks. Ron Robinson could help if he comes back from elbow surgery that limited him to one game. Milwaukee lost rubber-armed reliever Chuck Crim to free agency and, with Dan Plesac (2-7, 4.29 ERA) a disappointment, will count on Doug Henry (15 saves) as its stopper. Julio Machado's status is unclear after he allegedly shot a woman to death in Venezuela during the offseason.

New York Yankees

Just when the Yankees look like they might make some strides toward improving their 71-91 record, something goes wrong. After signing free agents Danny Tartabull and Mike Gallego and trading for pitcher Melido Perez, they lost Melido's brother, Pascual, for a year after he failed a cocaine test.

Not exactly the way new manager Buck Showalter wanted to start his tenure. Plus, it's uncertain whether Don Mattingly (.288, 9 HR) will regain his strength or whether Kevin Maas (.220, 23 HR) will get any more confidence. With Steve Sax traded, the infield is not too productive.

Cleveland Indians

The Indians led the majors with 105 losses and there is no way that they're going to become the latest team to go from worst-to-first.

Greg Swindell and Tom Candiotti, Cleveland's only two good pitchers at the start of last season, are gone.

God must laugh when he sees church bulletin typos

By John Laird
Associated Press

EL PASO — Ever on the lookout for new and effective ways to enlarge the flock, Pastor Guy Jones recently invited people to come sin with the choir.

"I typed it myself," Jones, pastor at Fort Boulevard United Methodist Church, said with an embarrassed laugh. "I guess I just got in too big a hurry, but everyone at our church seemed to enjoy the typo."

There it was, for all to see in the bulletin given to everyone entering the church on Sunday:

"We are giving an open invitation to all members to come and sin with the choir."

Now, that sentence in itself would be considered a novel attempt to increase church membership. But Jones, like many columnists and other writers, simply did not know when to stop. The preacher just HAD to add one more sentence, which effectively doubled the laughs:

"The more the merrier!"

Was this true? Were the fine folks who live in that quaint section of El Paso around Fort Boulevard actually redefining the role of the choir in the modern Methodist church? Hey, I LIKE that. A progressive attitude should be considered a basic component of religion today.

Jones, though, could not stop with those two sentences.

He just HAD to add a third sentence, which served to triple the humor:

"Just make a joyful noise for the Lord!"

A church member asked Jones early that morning if he had seen the bulletin. "I said of course I'd seen it. I TYPED it." Then Jones was invited to scrutinize the bulletin more closely. "And when I saw it, everyone roared with laughter. What made it even funnier was that the choir had asked me to sing with them that Sunday and I agreed to try to help out."

So picture this: After his written invitation for everyone to come and sin with the choir, Jones stepped into the pulpit for his sermon titled, "True Identity." And then, as if to assert his true identity, he concluded his sermon and walked over to join the choir for the anthem.

Surely, God has a sense of humor. We are reminded of this every time a preacher wanders through a church unaware that his wireless microphone is still on and private conversations are being broadcast throughout the building.

God must roar every time a church newspaper publishes something like: "Sunday's sermon is titled, 'What is Hell?' Come early and hear the choir rehearse."

We are reminded of God's humor each time a preacher says, "It is kisstomary to cuss the bride." God's humor is alive in the face of a child who says her favorite Bible story "is the one where everyone loafs and fishes."

As long as good-sport preachers and inept typists such as Guy Jones keep humor alive in religion, even the harshest skeptics have reason to enter God's house.

God must roar every time a church newspaper publishes something like: "Sunday's sermon is titled, 'What is Hell?' Come early and hear the choir rehearse.'

Vatican rejects married priests proposal

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Vatican leaders have rejected a proposal that married men be ordained to alleviate the worsening shortage of priests, an archbishop wrote in a recent letter.

Rembert Weakland became the first American bishop to openly urge the church to consider married clergy.

Observers of the Roman Catholic Church predicted the suggestion would anger the Vatican because Pope John Paul II has said he would never drop the requirement that all priests be celibate men.

Vatican Secretariat of State Archbishop Angelo Sodano replied to Weakland that his suggestion was "out of place," Weakland wrote in a recent pastoral letter.

Sodano said the pope would address the priest shortage with other suggestions at a future date, Weakland wrote.

Archdiocesan spokesman Greg Bell said he didn't know if Weakland was given reasons for the Vatican's rejection and didn't know what solutions the pope might propose. Weakland wasn't available to comment, Bell said.

Vatican officials have rebuked Weakland in the past. They refused last year to let a Swiss university give him an honorary degree because of his views on abortion.

Weakland had suggested that church officials modify their approach to abortion, which is condemned as a sin. Although he doesn't disagree with the church's position, he urged more compassion for Catholics who support abortion and criticized some tactics used by abortion opponents.

FOCUSING ON THE PAST By: Billy Joe Walker

CHEROKEE WAR, JULY 15-16, 1839. After several brutal murders in East Texas were traced to the Cherokees and all other efforts to remove them from Texas by peaceful means had failed, troops were ordered into the field. Five hundred men commanded by Republic of Texas, General K.H. Doublas attacked the Cherokees numbering about 800. One hundred Cherokees were killed, including their famous leader, Chief Bowles. The troops lost 5 and 27 wounded. Most of the Indians who escaped crossed the Red River into Indian Territory.

THE REBUILDER OF A NATION!

NEHEMIAH, OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH, WAS OFFICIAL CUP-BEARER TO KING ARTAXERES OF PERSIA. THE JEWS, HAVING BEEN TAKEN CAPTIVE OUT OF JUDEA ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS BEFORE BY KING NEBUCHADNEZZAR, HAD RISEN TO HIGH PLACES IN MANY INSTANCES, BECAUSE OF THEIR TALENTS. NEHEMIAH, BORN IN CAPTIVITY, ROSE TO THE LEVEL OF CLOSEST ROYAL ADVISER IN THE ENTIRE KINGDOM. IN 445 B.C., HEARING OF THE DESPERATE PLIGHT OF THE FEW JEWS LEFT IN JERUSALEM—A RUINED CITY OF CRUMBLED WALLS AND BROKEN GATES, COMPLETELY AT THE MERCY OF ROVING BANDS OF CUT-THROATS AND THIEVES WHO TERRIFIED THE COUNTRYSIDE—NEHEMIAH GOT PERMISSION FROM HIS KING TO GO THERE AND TO REBUILD ITS WALLS SO THAT THE INHABITANTS WOULD HAVE PROTECTION AGAINST MARAUDERS. A PERIOD OF TWELVE YEARS ELAPSED, FROM THE TIME HE ARRIVED IN THE CITY, UNTIL THE DEDICATION OF THE REBUILT WALLS (432 B.C.). BUT BEYOND JUST REBUILDING JERUSALEM'S WALLS, NEHEMIAH COMPLETELY RENEWED THE JEWISH NATION AND REVIVED ITS RELIGION, THE TEMPLE, AND ALL THE ANCIENT CUSTOMS AND MOSAIC LAW! AN EXCEEDINGLY DIFFICULT TASK, WHEN ONE CONSIDERS THE MANY STRATEGEMS AND TRICKS EMPLOYED BY NEAR-BY PETTY KINGS TO PREVENT JERUSALEM FROM RISING TO ITS FORMER STATUS—ALL OF WHICH IS EXCITINGLY RELATED IN THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

First Baptist to offer seminar on parenting

First Baptist Church will emphasize its ministry to pre-schoolers and children during weekend activities, April 3-5. A parenting seminar will be held Friday evening, April 3, from 6:00-9:15 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Tim Johnson, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist Church in Denison. Johnson is a graduate of Baylor Univeristy, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He is a specialist in child development and parenting.

Supper will be served to parents at 6 p.m. Child care will be provided for children through sixth grade. Call 682-1646 for child care reservations.

On Sunday, April 5, children will be recognized during the three morning worship services.

Parenting course scheduled

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will present a course for parents entitled "How to Talk so Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk."

Kimberly

Leading the course is Marion Kimberly, licensed professional counselor. Ms. Kimberly has maintained a private practice in Midland for over 20 years and has worked extensively with families and their communications problems. Her methods affirm the dignity and worth of both parent and child.

The course presents specific techniques that will bring about more cooperation from children, than all the yelling and pleading in the world.

Topic include: how to listen-to and understand your child's concerns, how to build cooperation without nagging, how you and your child can deal with feelings, how to find alternatives to punishment, and how to help your child attain a positive self-image.

The four week course will take place on four successive Mondays, beginning April 6, from 7-8:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland located on the corner of Midkiff and Neely Streets.

Registration for this course is through the church office at 694-4308.

Child care will be provided.

Lenten Soup Supper slated

The Rev. Keith Adams, associate rector of the Church of the Ascension in Houston, will be the guest speaker at the fourth Lenten Soup Supper on Wednesday at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton. His topic will be "Every Member an Evangelist."

Adams

The soup supper begins at 6 p.m. and is $1 per person. The lecture begins at 6:30 p.m. A nursery and study hall will be provided.

A former school teacher and naval officer, Adams graduated from seminary in 1989. He has served as curate at St. John's Episcopal Church in Carlisle, Pa., co-chair of "Carlisle Clergy Against Pornography," and a board member of "Something's Happening" in Houston (an ecumenical youth movement).

While at seminary, he was a lay person in charge of small parish in Marietta, Pa., and a chaplain on a kidney ward at Hershey Medical Center.

While in the U.S. Navy, Adams served on three destroyers out of Maine, California and South Carolina in a variety of operations and intelligence functions.

Adams taught high school and social studies and remedial reading to seventh graders.

The public is invited.

Lone Star Brass to play

The Lunch Hour Music for Lent concert series will continue Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church. This week the concert will feature the Lone Star Brass Quintet from the Midland-Odessa Symphony. Members of the quintet are Robb Belcher, Alan Harvey, Michael Santorelli, Robb Tucker, and Richard Wellford.

The half-hour concert will begin at 12:05 p.m. Lunch is available for a nominal cost one half-hour before and after the concert. The church is located in downtown Midland at A Street and Texas Avenue.

Child care is available by calling 683-9589.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Church sets Evangelism Day

Sunday is Evangelism Day at Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring.

Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. and at 5:30 p.m. Bellview is offering a special one hour seminar on the "New Age Movement" led by Mark Stepherson, a former staff member of the church, who travels for the Southern Baptist Convention's Home Mission Board.

Both worship services will feature Southern Gospel Music by the Mason Family.

Church hosts parents seminar

"Great Secrets for Great Parenting" will be the topic of a one evening seminar presented by Golf Course Road Church of Christ. Dr. Jim Huggins, president of Family Services of Midland will be the presenter. The seminar is especially for parents of elementary age children to give parents additional skills in teaching love, respect, and self-esteem to children in a Christian-oriented style.

The presentation will be held in the church's Family Center, Room 100, to the west of the main building, from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, April 7.

All parents are encouraged to attend, regardless of church affiliation. For more information, contact the church office at 694-8836.

Teen to leave on mission

Lucas Daniel Belk, 19, will leave Midland on April 6 to serve a two-year mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Lucas is the son of Tommy and Nadine Belk of Midland. A graduate of Robert E. Lee High School, he plans to attend Texas A&M or DeVry Technical Institute following his mission.

His community involvement includes participation in Christmas in April for several years. A member of the Midland 3rd Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, he is a graduate of the Church's four-year early-morning Seminary program of scripture and study, and has participated in many service projects and youth activities at church during his high school years.

Fellowship meeting set

Cooperative Baptist Fellowship General Assembly will make decisions regarding the future direction of missions and ministry by participants.

The conference is scheduled for April 30-May 2 at the Tarrant County Convention Center in Fort Worth.

Cecil Sherman, former pastor of Broadway Baptist Church, Fort Worth, will be installed as coordinator of the fellowship. He will move to Atlanta to begin work Monday.

Since it was formed in Atlanta in May 1991, the fellowship has begun to structure its work in five areas: world missions, theological education, literature for Christian education, ethics and public policy and equipping the laity.

Midweek Lenten services set

Holy Cross Lutheran Church (Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod), 5023 W. Princeton #2, is holding Midweek Lenten Services every Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The public is cordially invited to attend. The regular worship service is at 11 a.m., Sunday school and adult Bible study is at 9:45 a.m.

Church to mark anniversary

Community First Missionary Baptist Church, 403 W. Pine Ave., will celebrate its sixth anniversary, Sunday at 3 p.m.

The Rev. Hadley Edwards, Pastor of Hollowell United Methodist Church will be the guest speaker.

Dinner will be served after morning worship services.

Emotions to be explored

Golf Course Church of Christ will be conducting a special series of lessons on emotions, such as depression, jealousy, fear, anger, and bitterness, that effect and influence people.

The series, Sundays at p.m. until May 3, will be conducted by Gary Grady, minister of family life and Tom Vermillion, minister of counseling and guidance for the church. The series will explore emotions in a biblical and practical way and will present coping skills.

Relationships video subject

Golf Course Road Church of Christ will present a series of videos by Gary Smalley and John Trent titled "Loving, Lasting Relationships" beginning April 1 and running eight consecutive Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m.

The public is invited and no contributions are to be taken. For more information, contact Grady at 694-8836.

Midkiff church has new pastor

The First Baptist Church of Midkiff is pleased to announce that Bro. Bill Penland, of Midland, will be its pastor.

A "Get Acquainted" luncheon is planned following Sunday's morning worship service.

Woman receives gold medallion

Krista Cleone Stanton, daughter of Robert and Marlene Stanton of Midland, received the gold medallion for achievement of the Young Womanhood Recognition Award at a recent ceremony at the Gateway chapel of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Stanton

In order to receive this award, Miss Stanton had to complete at lest eight goals in each of seven values: faith, divine nature, individual worth, knowledge, choice/accountability, good works and integrity.

Miss Stanton is to be the valedictorian of the 1992 Midland High School graduating class. A National Merit Finalist, she is president of the Science Club and Treasurer of the French Club, as well as New Member Coordinator for Amnesty International and an instructor at Bingham Dance Center.

Miss Stanton plans to attend Brigham Young University to major in chemical/biochemical engineering.

World in brief

■ Germany bans priest from celebrating Mass

PADERBORN, Germany — A Roman Catholic theologian who challenges the virgin birth and other basic church tenets has been banned from celebrating Mass, a church official said Friday.

Eugen Drewermann, a priest for 25 years as well as a psychoanalyst and best-selling author of 38 books, supports remarriage in the church for divorced Catholics, marriage for priests, and homosexuality. He also has refused to condemn abortion as a sin.

Drewermann has argued that the virgin birth was just historical symbolism and that Jesus did not institute any of the sacraments. He also has challenged the church teaching that Christ ascended bodily into heaven.

Drewermann's right to celebrate Mass was revoked late Thursday by the archbishop of Paderborn, Johannes Joachim Degenhardt, said Aloys Klein, the archbishop's assistant.

Klein said the action amounted to withdrawal of Drewermann's "right of exercising his priestly functions," but he refused to characterize it as a formal suspension and said it could be reversed if Drewermann changed his positions.

Drewermann, who has no telephone, could not be reached for reaction Friday. He has said in the past he would not appeal such a ruling to the Vatican.

The controversy over Drewermann has been building since 1986. Last October, Degenhardt removed Drewermann from his post on the archdiocese's theological faculty, and in January, he banned him from preaching in church.

Drewermann has argued that the church has split between a clerical elite and ordinary parishioners, and that he's trying to return it to the people.

■ Security Council maintains Iraq sanctions

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. Security Council decided Friday to maintain its crippling economic sanctions against Iraq because Baghdad has yet to satisfy all conditions of the Gulf War ceasefire, diplomats said.

The decision was made without a formal meeting or vote, they said. Every two months, the council reviews compliance with its demands that Iraq destroy all weapons of mass destruction and return Gulf War prisoners.

U.N. inspectors currently are in Iraq to verify Iraqi destruction of ballistic missiles and to destroy buildings associated with Baghdad's nuclear weapons program.

Talks are underway in Vienna about arrangements for a possible Iraqi oil sale to finance purchase of food and humanitarian supplies, but Iraq has not formally agreed to sell oil, saying the Security Council wants too much control over the sale.

■ South Africa reverses execution decision

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government on Friday suspended executions of death row inmates, reversing a decision earlier this week that drew widespread criticism.

Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee said in a statement no executions would be carried out until white and black leaders negotiating a new constitution considered the issue as part of a bill of rights.

He said judges could still sentence people to death, but "these sentences will not be carried out pending the outcome of negotiations on an interim bill of fundamental rights."

The government said Monday it would resume executions after a two-year moratorium imposed by President F.W. de Klerk in February 1990. It said it would proceed with the executions of 17 death row inmates, but that dozens of other prisoners sentenced to death had been reprieved by de Klerk.

Officials pay ransom; hostages arrive in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Two Americans and two Australians kidnapped in the southern Philippines earlier this month arrived in Manila Friday, two days after authorities paid a $16,000 ransom for their release.

The Americans — Carol Allen, 37, of Kittanning, Pa., and Tracy Rectanus of Richmond, Va., — arrived by private plane. Australian Lynette Cook and her 5-year-old daughter, Cheree, took a commercial flight from Zamboanga City.

The four were released Wednesday on the island of Jolo, 600 miles south of Manila, where they were seized by bandits March 17.

Tupay Loong, governor of Sulu province, which includes Jolo, negotiated with the kidnappers and said paying the ransom was justified.

"If I will not do that, I am closing the doors for the release of these hostages," Loong said.

He said he paid the kidnappers about $16,000. They had demanded $77,000.

The released hostages declined to talk to reporters in Manila. Mrs. Cook was accompanied by her husband, Steve, and a 3-year-old daughter, Elise. The Cooks are members of the Christian Missionary Alliance.

Loong said local police will file kidnapping charges against the bandits, who have been identified. The military has launched an operation to capture them.

Miss Rectanus told reporters in Zamboanga on Thursday: "We are very thankful to the military and the government, the civil authorities, the police and everyone. We thank the Lord above all."

Kidnappings are common in Jolo. After each kidnapping, authorities invariably maintain no ransom was paid.

But sources familiar with the area say ransoms are commonly paid under the guise of expenses for the upkeep of hostages during their captivity.

The two Americans had gone to Jolo from Manila, where they teach at a school for missionary children. Their release leaves only one American in the hands of Filipino kidnappers. California businessman Arvey Drown was seized in October 1990 by Communist guerrillas in the northern Philippines.

Chinese government considers legislation for women's rights

BEIJING (AP) — Acknowledging that 40 years of socialism have not ended sexism, China's government on Friday submitted a draft law to the legislature that declares women equal to men at work and at home.

"Because China is in the primary stage of socialism and there are economic and cultural limits, China still has a long way to go in realizing women's equality with men," the official Xinhua News Agency quoted Zou Yu, an official of the National People's Congress or legislature, as saying.

"Actual differences exist between men and women in terms of social and family status," Zou said, adding that change is not likely to come quickly.

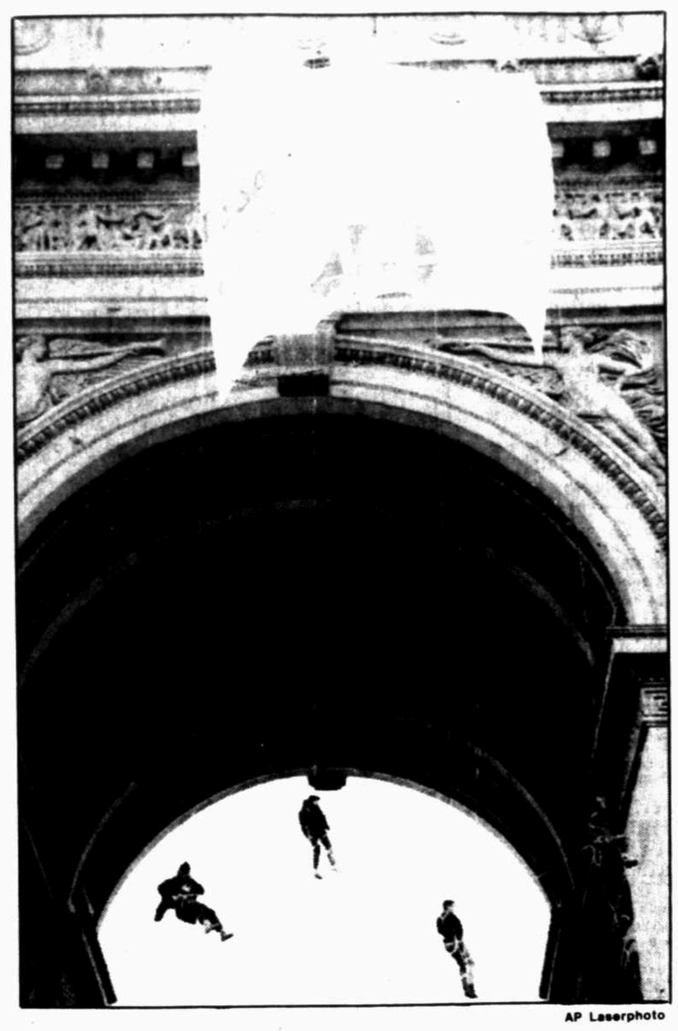

The law simply reaffirms past government pledges of sex equality, has no enforcement mechanism, and wasn't likely to have an immediate effect on women. But the government's admission that sex discrimination currently exists was unusual.

Such discrimination has been long regarded as a capitalist problem, and Chinese authorities have generally maintained that because most Chinese women work, they enjoy equal social status with men.

The women's law is expected to be passed by the rubber-stamp National People's Congress before it ends its annual session next week.

It was drafted partly in response to Western criticism of human rights problems in China. The legislature approved a law on children's rights last year, and the government points to it as proof that it protects the rights of all segments of the population.

The draft women's law makes broad promises of equality in politics, education and the workplace.

Greenpeace demonstrates

Members of the Greenpeace environmental movement descend from the Arc de Triomphe Friday in Paris after hanging a banner denouncing France's nuclear testing in the South Pacific. The protest followed the seizure of the Greenpeace flagship, the Rainbow Warrior II, as it attempted to enter French territorial waters near the nuclear testing site at Mururoa atoll in French Polynesia. Activists aboard the ship had hoped to set up a "peace camp" on the atoll. The ecology activists climbed to the top of the Arc de Triomphe and unfurled a banner reading "For Political and Ecological Safety, Stop Nuclear Testing." The original Rainbow Warrior was bombed and sunk by French government commandos in July 1985 in Auckland, New Zealand, while preparing a protest voyage to the atoll.

Parking shortage causes car sales to drop in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's once-booming auto dealers face a difficult roadblock: a lack of parking spaces.

The severe land shortage in Japan's major cities is hurting new car sales because of laws requiring car owners to have parking spaces, a report by the Tokai Bank says.

The report says sales have declined since early 1991, when the Garage Law was revised to require all new car owners in Tokyo and Osaka to prove they have spaces.

New car registrations this February were down 5 percent from February 1991, statistics show.

Meanwhile, prices of parking spaces have skyrocketed. In Tokyo, a monthly space can cost more than $225 and people may wait years for a space.

The National Police Agency says there are about 160,000 more cars than spaces.

Repeat violators face a $1,500 fine or up to three months in prison.

Dying infant's parents fight law preventing organ donation

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The parents of an infant born without a fully formed brain lost an emergency appeal Friday that would have allowed them to donate the girl's vital organs to other children.

But an attorney for the parents of Theresa Ann Campo Pearson said he would take the matter of declaring the infant brain dead to the Florida Supreme Court if necessary.

Attorney Walter Campbell Jr. filed the emergency appeal with the 4th District Court of Appeals in West Palm Beach, asking the three-judge panel to overturn a lower court decision.

Late in the afternoon, the panel upheld Thursday's ruling by a lower court judge saying state law didn't permit declaring the baby brain-dead while part of her brain still functioned.

"They said that it did not appear that the judge deviated from the law," Campbell said. But he said the panel's order stated that attorneys could ask for further review, although it did not make it clear whether attorneys could take the issue back to them or take it elsewhere.

Parents Justin Pearson and Laura Campo are racing against the clock, hoping to get Theresa Ann Campo Pearson declared brain-dead before her inevitable death. That would allow them to donate her vital organs to other children before they deteriorate.

Theresa Ann, born March 21, remained in critical but stable condition at Broward General Medical Center, hospital officials said Friday. Doctors say she has only days to live.

"Miraculously, it's doing quite well from a purely physiological basis," said Campbell. "Physicians this morning said for some reason this baby, this body is just fighting. The parents think it's a sign from God that this baby is going to be around until this thing is decided ultimately."

'I can't authorize someone to take your baby's life, however short, however unsatisfactory, to save another child.'

— Judge Estella Moriarty

Theresa Ann is a victim of anencephaly, a little-understood condition in which the brain fails to develop beyond the stem, which controls breathing and heartbeat.

She has no skull and wears a tiny surgical cap to protect the brain stem from infection and her eyes from the bright hospital lights.

When asked why the infant clutches at fingers and appears to have feeling, Campbell said, "That's only a spontaneous reaction that has nothing to do with any will, any power, any soul."

But because the bit of brain stem is functioning, a 1988 state law says the infant cannot be declared brain-dead and her vital organs cannot be taken from her before she dies.

"I can't authorize someone to take your baby's life, however short, however unsatisfactory, to save another child," Broward County Circuit Judge Estella Moriarty ruled Thursday.

But she ruled that that doctors could take organs not vital to Theresa Ann's life.

Gates criticizes manipulation of facts at CIA

By Elaine Sciolino
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Robert M. Gates told analysts at the CIA that he was disturbed by the widespread impression inside the agency that intelligence reports are tailored to please superiors, and he called for immediate remedies.

In the speech on March 16, Gates said he based his conclusions on a report by an in-house group that conducted a comprehensive survey of CIA analysts and managers.

But he seemed to go beyond the assessment of the group, which reported a few instances of "modest concern" that it said warranted "remedial action."

In his speech to the analysts Gates said, "Over half the respondents to the task force's survey said that forcing a product to conform to a view thought to be held by a manager higher up the chain of command occurs often enough to be of concern."

The director added, "I agree with the task force that this level of concern is disturbing, that it goes beyond the degree of frustration that is inherent in the review process, and that it demands the immediate attention of the agency's management at all levels."

Gates, who said he had accepted the recommendations of the research group, seemed to confirm what some of his critics described during his contentious confirmation hearings last fall: intense rivalries and an atmosphere of intimidation within the agency that contributed to self-censorship and the perception of "politicization."

But he stressed that while analysts may try to please their bosses, the research group also concluded that the politicization of intelligence for policy reasons or because of pressures from policy makers is "not perceived to be a pervasive problem by most" in the agency's directorate of intelligence, where analysis is done.

Gates's speech also included a blunt assessment of morale problems and the absence of team spirit in the process of drafting, editing and rewriting pieces of intelligence analysis on global problems for the president and his top policy makers.

"Somehow, some seem to have lost the ability to discuss the substantive or structural aspects of an intelligence product frankly and in an atmosphere of trust," he said, adding, "Apparently we have lost a sense of professional collegiality and find ourselves, in many instances, adopting a them-against-us mentality, which fosters perceptions of distortions in the intelligence process."

He also said he agreed with the research group's conclusion that the main source of the concern is "poor communication."

Gates defined "politicization" more broadly than even his own research group did, calling it "deliberately distorting analysis or judgments to favor a preferred line of thinking irrespective of evidence."

The group defined it as "changing, delaying or killing an analytical assessment to avoid offending a policy maker," said administration officials who are familiar with the report.

Slaying brings back bad memories for college students in Gainesville

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The slaying of a college student has brought back bad memories in this tree-lined college town. Students have seen it many times in the last two years — the missing student, the anxious search, then the grisly discovery.

Police searched for clues Friday in the death of 21-year-old Elizabeth Foster, whose body was found Thursday in a shallow grave, renewing students' fears. She became the eighth student slain here in the past two years.

"This town has seen so much tragedy," said Katie O'Donnell, a teacher at Sante Fe Community College, where Miss Foster was a student. "These kids are so young and alive, and when something like this happens, it makes it more unfair."

The University of Florida, with more than 30,000 students, and Santa Fe, with some 13,000 students, are in Gainesville.

Santa Fe students expressed fears that a new killer is roaming the north-central Florida city of 200,000.

"I'm more than a little concerned. I'm scared to go anywhere," said Becky Hanson of Gainesville. "I'm scared because there are more crazies out there."

Spencer Mann, a spokesman for the Alachua County Sheriff's Department, said authorities have found no connection between this death and the seven others.

Louisiana drifter Danny Rolling was indicted in the deaths of five students in August 1990.

Bush aims to reassure voters on Israel policy

By Andrew Rosenthal
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Disturbed by a letter from a prominent Jewish supporter who questioned his basic commitment to Israel, President Bush wrote a fervid reply that spoke of his "anguish" over Israeli-American tensions and acknowledged that his administration was not handling the relationship well enough.

The exchange of letters, in which Bush reiterated his opposition to the construction of any more Israeli settlements on the occupied West Bank, served to emphasize the difficulties the Bush administration has had with American Jews since the president began his battle of wills with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir over the settlements.

"Without assigning responsibility or blame, let me simply say that I am certain that we in the administration can and need to do better at making this relationship succeed," Bush said in his letter of March 19 to George Klein, the New York real estate developer who is chairman of the National Jewish Coalition, a Republican organization.

Although Bush made clear that he still will not approve an Israeli request for $10 billion in housing loan guarantees unless Israel stops building settlements, Klein, chairman of Park Tower Realty Corp., said Friday that he was pleased with the president's response.

"There are policy differences between Israel and the United States on the settlements," he said. "But the president's letter shows his warmth and commitment to the fundamental core relationship between the United States and Israel, and that is important."

That, clearly, was just the sort of reaction Bush and the aides who helped draft his letter had hoped for. Indeed, the release of the two letters Friday by a former government official who first obtained permission from the White House was the latest attempt by the administration to address Bush's problems with the Jewish community.

He is moving deeper into an already unsettled re-election landscape in which the votes of Jewish Americans could be important in states like New York, Illinois and Florida. The White House also was busy Friday denying news reports that it was putting pressure on the European Community nations to follow Washington's lead on loan guarantees, which are supposed to be used to build housing for immigrants from the former Soviet Union.

It remains to be seen whether Bush's assurances will put to rest doubts about his policies on Israel.

West Point agrees to award diploma to paralyzed cadet

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — A cadet paralyzed in a motorcycle accident will be allowed to graduate from the U.S. Military Academy although he can no longer meet the academy's physical fitness requirements.

The academy's superintendent, Lt. Gen. Howard D. Graves, has decided to let David Dickison graduate in May if he passes his remaining classes, Lt. Col. Bruce Bell, a West Point spokesman, said Friday.

Dickison, 21, a senior majoring in computer science, was injured in a March 16 motorcycle accident near his home in Westfield, N.J. His spinal cord was crushed, and doctors say he will be paralyzed from the waist down for life.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Trust your instincts about money and love. Sharing your ideas with a gifted partner will help you both become more productive. September could be the best time for a vacation. Give freely when asked to aid a worthy cause in October and you will reap a wonderful reward by Christmas. You may have to work overtime to get a big project off the drawing board early in 1993. Be prepared to make intelligent concessions to a family member next February.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Dirk Bogarde and Ken Howard, singer Reba McEntire, actress Diane Wiest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An excellent day to take care of correspondence and travel arrangements. Be swift and bold; you want to generate excitement! Mull over an important decision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Check maps and timetables to ensure smooth travel. You will feel more comfortable after a lighthearted chat with a new acquaintance. Be a pleasure-seeker tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The weekend arrives, bringing new peace of mind. Travel and parties link you to marvelous people or bargains. Be careful not to stir up a hornet's nest in romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be able to obtain a loan for a key purchase. Shop around for the best interest rate. Avoid shirking your domestic obligations. Do your fair share of shopping or child care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Now is the time to showcase your talents or product to influential people. Your drive and aptitude will impress someone in a position to help you. Passions are on the upswing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Mentally and emotionally, you feel in top form. Strike while the iron is hot. You will get what you request. In romance, abandon old habits for a new approach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may have to cut through a lot of red tape to advance your plans. Do not sit back and wait; get busy! Generosity will kindle the home fires tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could be riding the crest of popularity now. Your captivating manner and gift of gab make you the center of attention. Take your show on the road.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Trying out a new look could work to your advantge. It is high time that you cleared up a misunderstanding. Showing more compassion bridges a generation gap.

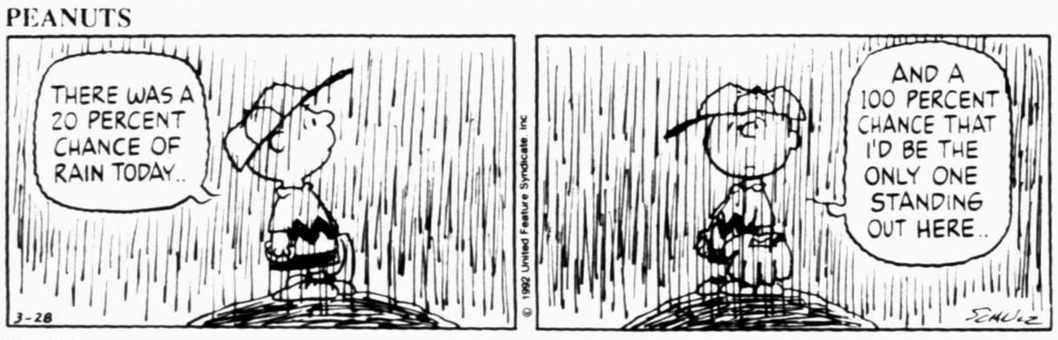

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid all authority figures today and forget about career pressures. Steal away to someplace new or unusual with a favorite companion. Focusing on spiritual values refreshes your soul.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a break from your domestic routine and have some fun. See the sights or do something out of the ordinary. An unexpected incident could shake up your love life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A busy pace seems to suit you now. Set out on a shopping expedition or work on a pet project. New job opportunities present themselves. Put romance on the back burner.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have high expectations and think that they must excel at everything they try. Although prone to jump from one venture to another, these Aries have excellent timing and often do reap the full benefits of each project or employment opportunity. Wise parents will help these ambitious children set realistic goals for themselves. Despite their outgoing and generous manner, these Aries are experts at keeping their own counsel.

Sammy Davis Jr. was big influence, Crystal says

NEW YORK — The world, says Billy Crystal, is a rough room.

The comedian-actor will host the Academy Awards on Monday night before an audience of a billion people. Live. Worldwide.

Crystal

"I've got to be the best I've been in my life," he said during a recent taping of the NBC program "First Person with Maria Shriver." The interview will be broadcast Saturday night.

"It's strange, not to mention pressured," Crystal said.

Crystal, who started as a stand-up comedian and went on to television and movies, credits the late Sammy Davis Jr. as a big influence because "he was someone my size doin' everything.

"God he was great."

NEW ORLEANS — Humorist Lewis Grizzard isn't sure why he was picked grand marshal for stock car races this weekend in South Carolina.

"I've never enjoyed going over 45 miles an hour. I get nervous," he said Thursday night.

He wasn't quite sure what he would do as grand marshal Saturday in Darlington.

"I think it means I ride around in a pace car. ... I think I sit there and wave at everybody."

Grizzard, reached in Atlanta, where he lives, will appear Tuesday at a benefit in Monroe.

LOS ANGELES — Bea Arthur bid farewell to her fellow "Golden Girls" during taping of the last episode of the NBC series.

Nearly 300 people attended a party after the Thursday night taping. Highlights and outtakes from the show's seven years were shown and signed scripts were passed out.

Rue McClanahan, Betty White and Estelle Getty will be featured in their old roles without Arthur on a new CBS show, "Golden Palace," which is scheduled for the fall and will have them running a hotel.

Saying goodbye was hard for Arthur.

"It was bittersweet for Bea; a tearful taping," said show spokeswoman Pam Ruben Golum. "It was an emotional farewell."

NAIROBI, Kenya — Brigitte Bardot and 73 other people were honored by the United Nations for environmental work.

The actress will receive a Global 500 Award from the U.N. Environmental Program during the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro in June.

Bardot, 57, is head of the Bardot Foundation, which is for the defense of animals. She has produced and starred in a series of French television programs on animals.

LANCASTER, N.Y. — They're not the great chefs of Europe, but Steven Spielberg, Vanna White and Elizabeth Taylor took their best shot at haute cuisine for a cookbook by fifth-graders.

Director Spielberg's matzos, game show hostess White's cottage cheese salad and actress Taylor's spicy chicken are among the recipes in "The Fabulous Fifth-Grade Cookbook."

The book was arranged by teacher Christine Krauss' class at Central Avenue Elementary School in the Buffalo suburb of Lancaster.

Students wrote to celebrities asking for favorite recipes. Other dishes featured in the 80-page book include singer Johnny Mathis' creamed potatoes, comedian Jay Leno's Uncle Louie's chicken wings marinara and Gov. Mario Cuomo's Long Island bluefish.

Buffalo Bills coach Marv Levy replied, but didn't send a recipe.

"While I hope I'm a good football coach, I know I'm not a good cook," he said.

CHICAGO — Oprah Winfrey has filed a $300 million libel suit against a tabloid newspaper that said her fiance had sex with a male cousin.

"There's no question that this story is false. The story is outrageous ... insulting and offensive," her lawyer, Steven Molo, said Thursday. The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court.

The March 24 edition of News Extra featured a picture of the TV talk show host and her fiance, Stedman Graham, under the headline: "I Had Gay Affair With Oprah's Fiance: Stedman's Cousin Reveals Shocking Untold Story."

The couple seeks damages for alleged character defamation, invasion of privacy and emotional distress.

NEW YORK — Leona Helmsley rues the day she posed as the queen of one of her New York hotels.

The ads "killed me," the Mrs. Helmsley, 71, said in an interview that airs on ABC's "20-20" tonight.

Each print ad for the Helmsley Palace Hotel featured a picture of Mrs. Helmsley wearing a crown and said "The only palace in the world where the queen stands guard."

Mrs. Helmsley says she dreads going to prison for evading $1.7 million in taxes: "Maybe I'll be lucky and die" before April 15.

■ Judge allows Dow Corning to offer payments

CINCINNATI — Dow Corning Corp. can proceed with its offer to pay $1,200 apiece to women who want to have the company's silicone gel breast implants removed, a judge said Friday.

Michigan-based Dow Corning, which was the leading maker of those implants, faces hundreds of lawsuits nationwide by women who say they have suffered health problems because of them.

Stanley Chesley, a lawyer for seven Cincinnati-area women and two of their husbands, said he was concerned that Dow Corning may be pressuring women to sign away their rights to product liability claims.

U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin previously had ordered Dow Corning not to proceed with the offer, but said Friday Dow "has the right to talk with anyone it wants to."

■ Cache of undelivered mail leads to arrest

DENVER — A former mailman was charged with several felonies after postal inspectors found about 8,000 pieces of undelivered mail, including a $2,900 tax refund check, at his former home and in his car.

William F. Calkins, 43, was released on his own recognizance Friday pending an April 9 hearing on felony charges of secreting, destroying, detaining, delaying and opening U.S. mail.

If convicted, he could be sentenced to five years in prison and fined up to $250,000.

John Freeman, head of postal inspectors in Colorado and Wyoming, said Calkins had resigned after a career of more than 13 years.

Much of the undelivered mail was bulk mail, such as grocery store circulars. It also included cards and letters, bills, tax return forms and catalogs. Postmark dates ranged from April 1, 1991 to Feb. 24, 1992, and some of the mail had been opened, Freeman said.

■ Study: Petroleum jelly effective skin cream

CHICAGO — Petroleum jelly penetrates the skin's upper layer, moisturizes and helps repair tissue, according to a study suggesting the inexpensive product works as well as more expensive remedies.

Five human volunteers and specially bred hairless mice were treated with acetone, an irritant that dries out the skin. The affected areas then were covered with petroleum jelly to determine how well it moisturizes the skin.

The ointment penetrated the uppermost skin layers and helped speed the healing process, researchers reported in March's Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

The study was sponsored in part by Chesebrough-Ponds Inc., which supplied the Vaseline brand jelly.

■ Fighter loses practice bomb during training

SHELBYVILLE, Ind. — A training bomb accidentally fell off an Ohio Air National Guard F-16 during a routine practice mission over central Indiana, a military spokesman said.

The 25-pound training round posed no danger to the public, said Capt. Joe Drury, a spokesman for the Indiana National Guard. "They're pretty confident that when it hit the ground it went off," Drury said.

He said the fighter from the 180th Tactical Fighter Group of Toledo was was performing a training mission at Camp Atterbury, about 30 miles south of Indianapolis, when the pilot had trouble with one of the rounds.

"It wouldn't disengage from the wing, so the pilot decided to finish the mission, fly back to the base and let maintenance crews there check it out," Drury said.

But as the pilot was flying near Shelbyville, he noticed the bomb had fallen off.

The rounds contain a small charge that goes off when the bomb hits the ground, marking the pilot's accuracy. If the charge didn't go off, Drury said the device could cause burns if handled.

■ Government closes its case in Gotti trial

NEW YORK — The government wrapped up its case against John Gotti on Friday, telling the jurors that "murder is the heart and soul" of the Gambino organized-crime family.

"Murder played a central role in this enterprise," Assistant U.S. Attorney John Gleeson said.

He said Gotti, as head of the crime family, "did not go out and shoot people in the face, he had other people do it for him."

Defense lawyers maintain that the government's star witness, Salvatore "Sammy Bull" Gravano, is responsible for the murders and other crimes. They will present their final arguments today; jury deliberations could begin Sunday.

Gotti, who could spend the rest of his life in prison if convicted, appeared pale as Gleeson spoke, but wore a bemused, confident smirk.

Prosecutors charge that he ordered the Dec. 16, 1985, hits on Gambino boss Paul Castellano and Castellano bodyguard Thomas Bilotti to seize control of the nation's most powerful and visible crime syndicate.

Gotti, 51, and co-defendant Frank "Frankie Locs" Locascio, 59, are also accused of other murders, loan sharking, labor corruption and tax violations.

Workers say complaints cost them jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men said Friday they were forced out of their jobs after complaining about safety and environmental dangers at Energy Department sites in Washington and Idaho.

Geophysicist John Brodeur said he was fired after telling congressional investigators that the system used to monitor radiation leaks at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation is riddled with deficiencies.

And Jim Smith said he was forced from his engineering job at the Argonne National Laboratory within the DOE's Idaho National Engineering Laboratory after concluding that an experimental reactor may not live up to its claim of being "meltdown-proof."

Brodeur and Smith joined eight other DOE whistleblowers at a news conference.

"The system is ineffective for detecting all but the most massive leak," Brodeur, who worked for Westinghouse Hanford Co. in Richland, Wash., said about the reservation's monitoring system. "The managers whitewashed my concerns. They are only interested in covering up the serious dangers they discover at the most contaminated site in the United States."

Paul Grimm, a deputy assistant energy secretary, said Brodeur's firing had nothing to do with his criticism of the radiation leaks. Grimm also denies there are deficiencies in the monitoring system.

Craig Kuhlman, a spokesman for Westinghouse Hanford, said Brodeur was fired because he violated company rules by pulling a handgun on a person in an employee parking lot.

The Energy Department said last year that 66 of the 177 single-shell, high-level waste storage tanks at Hanford are known to leak.

FAA never saw crash report, spokesman says

NEW YORK (AP) — A report on a 3-year-old fatal crash contained data that might have averted a USAir crash at La Guardia Airport, a Canadian judge said. But the Federal Aviation Administration said Friday the agency never saw it.

"We didn't even know it existed," FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said. "We quite often don't get reports issued by other governments."

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said his agency never saw it, either.

But Gordon A. Haugh, a spokesman for the Canadian inquiry panel headed by Justice Virgil Moshansky, said its interim report on the March 1989 Air Ontario crash was sent to the FAA and all major U.S. airlines.

The issue of who saw the report was significant because the two crashes were strikingly similar and because recommendations in it, if heeded, could have prevented Sunday's crash, Moshansky said Thursday. Both crashes involved Dutch-made Fokker F-28s.

"If in fact a cause of the USAir crash is determined to be wing contamination, it is safe to say that the necessary information to have avoided that catastrophic event is contained in the evidentiary record and within the pages of the second interim report," Moshansky said.

He declined to comment further on the matter Friday at a news conference in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

"I really don't have enough information on the events in New York at this time to make any comment," Moshansky said.

The November 1990 report called for sweeping reforms in de-icing procedures, which was partially to blame in the Dryden, Ontario, crash that killed 24. De-icing remains a prime focus in the USAir crash that killed 27.

Flight 405 crashed and skidded into frigid Flushing Bay while taking off in a snowstorm at La Guardia Airport. Twenty-four people survived; of those, eight remained hospitalized.

Moshansky said that when he heard about the USAir crash, "My first reaction, in fact, was, 'My God, it's Dryden all over again.' "

"Obviously, we're not going to comment on that," USAir spokesman John Bronson said regarding Moshansky's statement that the disaster might have been avoided. Asked if anyone had seen the Canadian report, he said:

"This is a big organization. ... I'm sure our flight investigation unit was aware of it, whether they saw the report or not, I cannot say."

NTSB officials say it will be months before they determine what caused the crash.

Survivors said the plane appeared to be moving slower than usual as it moved down the runway and told how it suddenly tipped wildly to the left before crashing.

A plane cannot reach sufficient speed for takeoff if it has too much ice.

Philadelphia man with AIDS tells of sex with male teens

PHILADELPHIA (NYT) — A man who has AIDS has told the authorities that he paid for sex with several hundred male teenagers over the last several years, the Philadelphia district attorney said Friday.

The man was arrested earlier this week on several charges, including the statutory rape of a boy under 16 years old. Citing a Pennsylvania law that she said prohibits the release of names and other information that would tend to identify people stricken with AIDS, District Attorney Lynne Abraham refused to give the man's name.

But in a news conference Friday, she said that the man and his lawyer, who was also not identified, had agreed to allow the authorities to release his nickname, Uncle Ed, and a general description in publicly notifying people who may have had sex with him. Ms. Abraham identified him as a white man, about 50 years old, who lived in downtown Philadelphia.

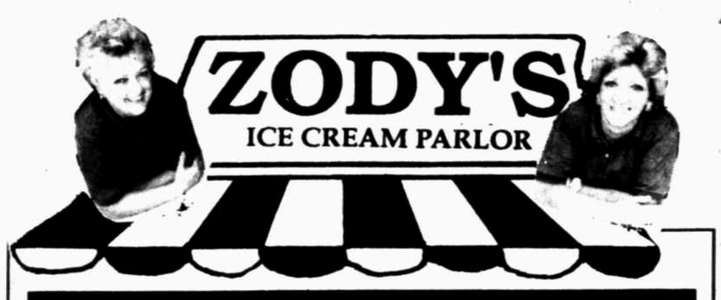

"The purpose of this announcement, which is made with the defendant's knowledge and consent, is not to create a panic," she said, "but is instead made with the express purpose of advising those young boys and men who may have had intimate sexual contact with this defendant that it is in their interest to take appropriate steps because of the fact that this defendant has AIDS."

Although no official information was made available on the name of the man arrested, the Associated Press carried a report Friday giving his identity as Ed Savitz, 50, a resident of an apartment building in downtown Philadelphia.

Ms. Abraham said Friday that the man was being charged in the cases of two minors with involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, sexual abuse of children, indecent assault and corrupting the morals of a minor.

The authorities said they believed there were a number of other sex partners, but they declined to provide any details. They said the man had had AIDS for at least a year and that he had carried HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, for at least one or two years before the onset of the AIDS symptoms.

Ms. Abraham said he was arrested on Wednesday and appeared at an arraignment on Thursday. He was being held on $3 million bail.

Investors say comic books are not funny business

By Lisa Bose
Associated Press

TEXARKANA — Some people say investing in comic books is not funny business — but big business.

Investors say it is no laughing matter — especially when it means major returns on investments.

John Fairless, comic book dealer and owner of Excalibur Comics, Cards and Games, said he was introduced to the comic book industry in 1979 while browsing through a flea market in Canton.

He said many of the comic books he saw were the same ones he had purchased as a kid. His own collection at that point was nil because all his comic books were thrown away while he was in college.

Fairless said he had six boxes of comic books when he really started collecting comic books for business purposes. Now, he hardly has room for them all — he guesses about 5,000 comic books.

"I quit a good insurance job," Fairless said, adding. "There's not that many people that get to work at something they really enjoy."

He says trading and collecting comic books keeps him busy traveling around the country. Fairless said many of his clients are doctors, lawyers and bankers. However, he said kids are still fond of the "funny books."

The local store has made a name for itself selling rare comic books. Last year, Fairless sold a rare Detective No. 27 comic book, which marks the first appearance of Batman, for $30,000.

He said the cost of the comics is tied to the condition of the books, and also the reputation of the authors and artists who produced them.

"Harlan Ellison (a noted author) writes for some comic books," Fairless said.

Fairless and comic book expert and co-editor of the "Comics Buyer's Guide," Don Thompson, said collectors prefer mint condition comic books as well as first appearance of characters.

Thompson said the difference between mint condition and near-mint condition may come down to a stress mark in the comic book and may cost the seller thousands of dollars. "A lot of people are really fussy about condition," Thompson said.

Fairless and Thompson said while there are a lot of comic book outlets, few of them sell rare comics.

Fairless said people interested in investing in comics need to be prepared to sit on the investment for about five to 10 years.

Just like the stock market, there are variables that affect the price of the books.

"When 'Batman' came out, we sold everything," Fairless said.

He said the movie "Dick Tracy" also spurred a little interest in the comic.

Fairless is skeptical, however, that the "Batman" sequel, due out this year, will ignite business.

Landmark editions that introduce popular characters are still among the best sellers.

Spider-Man made his first appearance in Amazing Fantasy No. 15 and it carries a value ranging from $5,000 to 10,000, Thompson said.

Pam Rutt, vice president of public relations at Marvel Comics, said there will be a reprint of Amazing Fantasy No. 15 this summer celebrating the 30th year of Spiderman.

Action No. 1, the first appearance of Superman, can cost a collector as much as $60,000 to $70,000 per book.

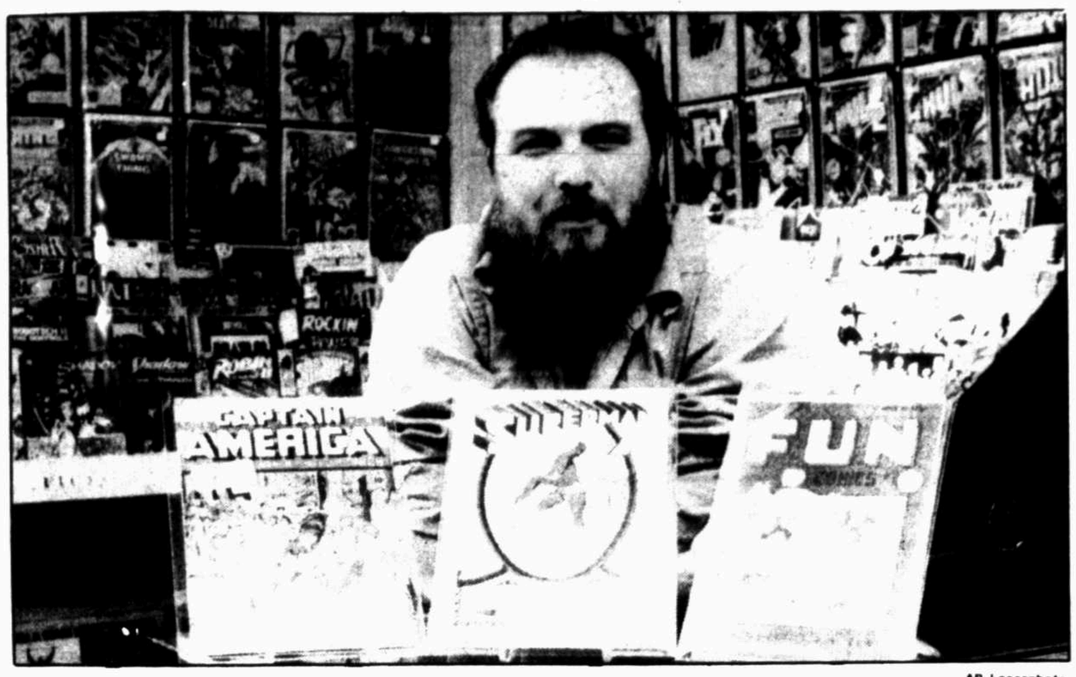

All American No. 16, the first appearance of the Green Lantern, sells for about $15,000 to $20,000.

Showcase No. 4, with the first appearance of the Flash, can run between $10,000 and $15,000. However, Thompson said probably as sought out as Action No. 1 is Marvel No. 1. It is the first Marvel comic and has the first appearance of the Human Torch and the Sub-Mariner. He said it is valued at $42,000, but has sold for $80,000.

"They (comic book prices) don't seem to have an upper limit," Thompson said.

Fairless has spent as much as $17,000 for a comic book and said he's not sure what his limit is. He said some comics are worth the price of a car, a year's salary, or a home.

"I don't know what my limit would be. I guess I could push it if I had to," Fairless said.

Film tests whether two nominations in film spell defeat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can a performer win the Oscar when a co-star is nominated for the same movie? The issue will be tested at the March 30 Academy Awards, for which Susan Sarandon and Geena Davis were both nominated as best actress for "Thelma & Louise."

History indicates the chances are slim. In 1935, Clark Gable and Charles Laughton were nominated as best actor for "Mutiny on the Bounty." Victor McLaglen won for "The Informer."

In 1944, Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald were named as best actor for "Going My Way." Crosby took the Oscar, but Fitzgerald got one as supporting actor. The rules now read that an actor can only be nominated in one category for a single performance.

Bette Davis and Anne Baxter competed with each other for "All About Eve" (1950). And the winner was — Judy Holliday for "Born Yesterday." Montgomery Clift and Burt Lancaster of "From Here to Eternity" lost out to William Holden in "Stalag 17" in 1953. Other double losers include Rock Hudson and James Dean for "Giant," and Anne Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine in "The Turning Point," 1977.

However, Maximilian Schell bested Burt Lancaster for "Judgment at Nuremberg," in 1961. And Peter Finch was awarded a posthumous Oscar for "Network" (1976) for which William Holden also was nominated. In addition, F. Murray Abraham triumphed for "Amadeus" over Tom Hulce in 1984.

Observers have cited "Thelma & Louise," in which two women enjoy a law-breaking spree through the West, proved the sleeper of 1991.

The nominees for best actress:

GEENA DAVIS and SUSAN SARANDON played free-hearted women intent on a payback for the indignities they suffered at the hands of men in Ridley Scott's "Thelma & Louise."

Davis, an Oscar winner for her supporting role in the 1988 "The Accidental Tourist," talked of her role as Thelma:

"One kind of great thing that she has in her life is the friendship with Louise. They're like best, total-best friends. Thelma really idolizes Louise and looks up to her as a hero. She kind of leans on her a lot, to help her out and take care of her. . .. It's a movie about women finding their power."

Sarandon was nominated once before as best actress, for "Atlantic City" in 1981. In a magazine interview, she denied that "Thelma & Louise" was anti-male:

"I hope it's not. What's great about the film is that it allows women to be outlaws and heroic. Nobody asked if 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid' was an anti-female film."

LAURA DERN makes her first entry in the Academy Awards as the free-spirited farm girl in Martha Coolidge's "Rambling Rose." She grew up in the movie business as the daughter of Bruce Dern and Diane Ladd, who was nominated as supporting actress for "Rambling Rose."

"She's never been raised in society," Miss Dern said of her character, Rose. "She comes from the back hills of Alabama, basically an orphan. She had no education and just entered society as the movie begins.

"Society has told her who she is supposed to be. That really doesn't jell with her own idea of herself. That creates conflict."

BETTE MIDLER has won best-actress nominations for her first movie, "The Rose" (1979), and her latest, "For the Boys." She plays an entertainer of the troops in three wars in "For the Boys," which she also produced through her All Girl Productions.

"For the Boys" bombed at the box office, and Miss Midler expressed her disappointment in accepting a Golden Globe as best actress in a comedy. Backstage, she commented:

"It was a wonderful picture, I had a wonderful time making it. I worked as hard as I ever have before. It was the top of the line, really an A picture. I'd wanted to do one for a long time, to finally get one going that we actually produced ourselves. It was a big, big thrill. Nobody can take that away from me."

JODIE FOSTER could win her second Oscar as the FBI recruit who matches wits with a maniacal doctor in "The Silence of the Lambs." She won as best actress in 1988 for her role as the victim of gang rape in "The Accused." As a youngster in 1976 she was nominated as supporting actress for her role as the child prostitute in "Taxi Driver."

"I think it's one of the first in a line of cinematic female heroes," Miss Foster said of her "Lambs" roll. "I don't mean it's the traditional heroine, the woman who is escaping the monster or the woman who emulates men by pumping up their muscles or something.

"I think this is a genuine female hero. I think it's one of the first times that a woman has had access to that myth, to a folklore connection with what a real hero is. I think it's a big step."

Creator plans to redesign 'Designing Women'

N.Y. Times News Service

The biggest potential change — although not a done deal — is eliminating snooty Allison (played by Julia Duffy), the character created to replace Suzanne Sugarbaker (Delta Burke).

"Designing Women" creator Linda Bloodworth-Thomason says she's redesigning the show for next season.

"Sometimes things work, sometimes they don't. I'm not sure this does," she says.

The biggest potential change — although not a done deal — is eliminating snooty Allison (played by Julia Duffy), the character created to replace Suzanne Sugarbaker (Delta Burke).

Bloodworth-Thomason says CBS, Duffy and the producers are talking and hope to decide by May 1 whether Allison will return next fall.

"Julia Duffy doesn't want to be part of something that's not working," Bloodworth-Thomason says. "Julia is faultless. She's acted her heart out."

Bloodworth-Thomason says Jackee may join the cast as a regular or recurring character as Anthony's (Meshach Taylor's) fiancee. The former "227" star will be introduced in the season's last episode in May. Whether she joins "DW" depends partly on the success or failure of CBS's "The Royal Family," which Jackee joined after Redd Foxx's death.

"Next season we'll get back more to the old 'Designing Women,' " the show's creator says.

She also says former cast member Jean Smart probably will return for several episodes and that Jan Hooks, added this season as Carlene Frazier, will definitely be back.

Who's Who For Service

130 Personals

3-28-1992

Today I wed the one I love,
the one I admire, respect, and elevate above all others.
Her goodness and beauty awe me; her humility and faith inspire me; her love sustains me and makes me whole.
I take Georgina Trevino to be my wife, and I praise the Almighty: today I am made a wealthy man.
