Meet Mr. Bradley—Also Poet—Here's How—For Snake Bite—

T. A. Bradley, who retires today as president of the Advertising club of Wichita Falls, can look back over a year of accomplishment by that comparatively small but active group of men. In the membership of the Advertising club are the experts of this city not only in advertising, but in salesmanship and merchandising on a grand scale. And they turn their abilities to the city's benefit, witness the work in the community chest drive, as willingly as to their own problems.

Most of Wichita Falls knows Mr. Bradley as the advertising manager of the Perkins-Timberlake department store, but not so many know him as Thomas Andrew Bradley, poet and collector of newspaper "extras." In his newspaper collection are found editions telling the first news of important events—everything from Villa's dash across the border to championship prize fights and deaths of presidents. The editions, going back more than a decade, probably cannot be duplicated in the city, not even in newspaper offices where the custom is to file only the "home" edition of each day's issue.

One of the best pieces of descriptive writing it has ever been our privilege to publish came from Mr. Bradley last year in his poem welcoming the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to Wichita Falls. The poem was a little more than 100 words in length—about like two telegraph "night letters"—but it caught the spirit that has transformed West Texas. Most of Mr. Bradley's verse, however, is written merely for his own pleasure, and is stored away in a heavy brief case along with the newspaper "extras."

The shipment of a car of wool to Kansas City from the Wichita county ranches of J. A. Kemp must come as a surprise to a great many residents of Northwest Texas. The wool output of West Texas has become a major product of the section, but little of the shipment has come from this area. Mr. Kemp for some time has been advocating the growing of sheep in the valley, and has been constantly increasing his herds. It is a good thing for any community to have men who preach diversification, progress, new products and new methods. It is an even better thing when such men demonstrate what they advocate.

Anti-snake bite serum is now prepared in small cases, convenient for carrying about on any expedition in the country, according to Dr. William M. Harper of Dallas, southern medical expert of the H. M. Mulford company. West Texans should read the story about Dr. Harper and the snake serum, carried elsewhere in this paper today. Then they should buy their snake kit and be prepared to foil all 11 varieties of the rattler found in Texas. If that's page one advertising, make the most of it.

According to Dr. Harper, there are three kinds of poisonous reptiles in this country: The rattlesnake, copper head and moccasin. The serum, perfected under the direction of a Brazilian physician, is made equally effective against the bite of any of these reptiles. Not so many years ago when a man was bitten by a snake you gave him a bottle of whiskey and prepared for the worst. Now you give him a hypodermic needle and a serum from the blood of a horse and he can do his own doctoring. Another triumph for science—and prohibition. —H. C. F.

DENIAL COMES AFTER DISPLAY OF RECORDS

Republican Treasurer In Georgia Exhibits Card Index

NEGRO CHIEF QUIZZED

Ben J. Davis Says He Knows Little of Job Bartering

ATLANTA, Ga., July 9. (AP)—Records that many Democratic postal employes have paid regular monthly sums into the treasury of the Georgia Republican central committee and testimony by two officials charging money had been levied or exacted was presented today before the senate sub-committee investigating Republican patronage in the state.

A card index, offered by John W. Martin, treasurer of the central committee, showed that postal employes, among others, have paid sums varying from $8.50 to $12.50 monthly. Martin declared insofar as he knew all payments were made voluntarily. He said he had solicited none and knew of no others who collected funds paid into his hands.

Negro Testifies

Ben J. Davis, negro former national committeeman, preceded Martin on the stand and asserted that he also knew nothing of alleged levying on postal employes. Davis said, however, that he had heard complaints that funds had been collected.

Martin said all contributions received by him were disbursed to meet expenses of the committe and on orders of the committee. He estimated monthly expenses of the organization, including salaries and office rent, averaged about $1200.

Record Assailed

Senator Cyrus Locher, Democrat, Ohio, member of the sub-committee, and Senator Walter F. George, Georgia, who is assisting the inquiry, assailed the record of payments shown on the card index.

"Do you mean to tell this committee that all this money is voluntary? It just all comes in?" inquired Locher.

"Yes, as far as I know," Martin answered.

"Don't you know these payments are not voluntary and that most of the postmasters who contributed to the Republican party are themselves Democrats?" George quizzed.

"I presume that most of them are Democrats," said Martin, insisting that he himself had not solicited any funds.

Hope For Saving Arctic Victims Abandoned

Becomes Spirit Bride

Waitress, Who Quarreled With Lover Before War, Keeps Troth By Taking Slain Man's Name

Ruth Grassit Wilson

By MATT WEINSTOCK
Staff Writer for Central Press and Record News

LOS ANGELES, July 9.—A flood of memories her companion and the starched apron of a waitress her trousseau, Ruth Grassit Wilson has embarked on her honeymoon here.

There was no strain of "The Wedding March," no flowers, no bridal veil, when she espoused her husband, dead a decade now. Instead she stood in a court of justice, before the bench of a superior court judge, alone, and became a spirit bride.

Ruth Grassit was young when she met George Wilson in a Minneapolis restaurant. That was in 1916, and Wilson's career as an engineer had been cut short by failing eyesight. He was, she whispers, "at outs" with his parents in Silver Lake, Minn., and work in a quick-lunch kitchen enabled him to forget, in a measure.

Quarreled as Lovers

They loved each other. There came the inevitable lovers' quarrel, and when he marched away to fight for his country in 1917, she sniffed—then wept.

Three months in France and the message of death came back: "Killed in Action." But the telegram said more than that to Ruth Grassit. It said: "Remember our troth. Remember I asked you to bear my name always, if something should happen to me. That something has happened. Be Ruth Wilson forever, for me. It's as much as can be done, it's all I ask."

But Ruth Grassit was still young. She would forget. So she married another. But the marriage was annulled eventually. She had room only for memories of George Wilson in her life.

So the urge of 10 years caused her to journey alone to the court house. She stood before the judge and asked that he change her name from that of Ruth Grassit to Ruth Wilson.

"I'm so glad, and so excited," she says. "It was no use trying to forget—even if I wanted to. It seems as if we've come very close together again."

And so she smooths her white apron and goes back to work in her restaurant.

Allred, Bralley Back Statements With Offer to Withdraw Names

Ben Allred, candidate for judge of the 78th district court, and Sheriff W. G. Bralley of Wichita county offered to withdraw from their respective races, in speeches made Monday night at the Clara school house, if their statements and challenges to their opponents were not true.

Mr. Allred charged that Judge W. W. Cook, incumbent, failed to properly instruct a recent jury as to its duty in staying together, and asked the judge, who was in the audience, if it were not true. The judge did not answer. Mr. Allred also criticized the judge severely for his conduct of the office.

Bralley Cites Fees

Sheriff Bralley, after listening to H. L. White, another candidate for sheriff, give figures on fees, cost of operation of the department and feeding prisoners, challenged the figures, presented another set of figures and said:

"There will be one less candidate in the race for sheriff tomorrow if Mr. White will accept my challenge of his figures. If I am wrong I will quit the race. If you are wrong, Mr. White, will you quit? Answer, yes or no."

Mr. White did not give a direct answer, but attempted to explain further his figures. However, it was the sheriff's speaking time, and the explanation was never heard by the crowd.

300 Hear Talks

About 300 persons heard an exciting evening of political speaking which was well spiced with old fashioned mud slinging. N. M. Matthews was chairman of the meeting.

Sam Spruiell, a third candidate for the office of sheriff said that officers themselves are largely to blame for the dislike of a large part of the public for peace officers. He advocated a more gentlemanly treatment of prisoners, the abolition of the kangaroo courts and more cooperation.

Judge Cook in his appeal for re-election, said that he has done his best and that as most of his cases have been civil cases, he is not to be blamed for criticism of the district bench for the handling of criminal cases.

Ben Allred said that if elected

TEXAN SHOOTS WIFE AND SELF

Dallas Man Shoots Mate Near Their Home

DALLAS, Texas, July 9. (AP)—Mrs. Ida Pierce, 38, was instantly killed, and her husband, William Pierce, 41, was probably fatally wounded in a shooting here tonight.

Witnesses said Pierce shot his wife as she alighted from a Fort Worth interurban, about a block from her home, then walked a few steps and turned the pistol on himself. He had one bullet wound in the head.

She was shot through the heart. Two letters were found in Pierce's possession, in which he stated he was going to kill himself and gave orders regarding the disposition of his property. He made no mention of planning to kill his wife.

Banker's Son Killed

DALLAS, Texas, July 9. (AP)—Leslie Waggener Jr., 24, son of a Dallas banker, was shot and fatally wounded here tonight by a Dallas attorney, at the latter's home. The shooting was thought to have been accidental. Waggener was taken to a Dallas sanitarium where he died about 30 minutes after the tragedy.

Disaster Looms As Certain For Lost Explorers

VIRGO BAY, Spitzbergen, July 9. (UP)—Hope for seven of the 20 explorers and rescue workers lost on the arctic ice following destruction of the transpolar dirigible Italia was definitely abandoned today.

The group of seven, swept away in the hull of the airship when it raked the ragged ice and shattered its gondola, May 25, could not have survived to this time, Arctic experts are convinced.

Hopes For Three

Slight hope is held out for three others—Prof. Fenn Malgrem and the two Italians who left Gen. Umberto Nobile's ice camp to trek to land. They would still have food for eight days, but they were without weapons and were inadequately clothed. In addition, life on the ice has been made hazardous this season by ravenous bears.

The four men at Nobile's old encampment are sick and despondent, Capt. Einar-Paal Lundborg, Nobile's rescuer, said today. He recently was brought off the ice by a friend, Lieut. Birger Schyber, after he had crashed there while attempting to rescue the men.

Unable to Use Food

These men possess provisions for two months but their illness has restricted their use of food.

Condition of the ice makes rescue by plane now improbable and chief hope is placed in the rescue ships Krassin and Braganza. The Krassin has had its rudder repaired and managed to reach Cape Platen.

Airplanes could land on the ice only when the temperature is below freezing and hence the castaways must wait until an ice ship plows its way through the berg-laden sea to their encampment.

Belated Motion Filed To Stay Execution

AUSTIN, Texas, July 9. (INS)—A last minute attempt to save J. R. (Bob) Silver from the electric chair for his part in the robbery of the Majestic theater in Fort Worth last year was made today when Virgil Parker, Silver's attorney, filed a second motion for a rehearing in the court of criminal appeals.

Olin A. Finger, clerk of the court, declared, however, that the motion came too late as the court is now on vacation and the motion could not be considered.

Roscoe Wilson, cashier of the theater, was killed in the holdup. Silver is a former resident of Kansas City, Mo.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 9. (UP)—Chief Justice Fred P. Branson of the Oklahoma supreme court, returned from a visit to his home judicial district, declined to comment today upon the alleged controversy between himself and Carl C. MaGee, editor of the Oklahoma News.

Chief Justice Branson told The United Press today: "I never make comments upon MaGee."

OWSLEY SAYS FARM PROBLEM MAIN ISSUE

Senate Candidate Speaks To 1,000 Wichitans At Park

FOR DEM. PLATFORM

Tariff to Protect Texas Farmers Urged In Address Here

Alvin Owsley, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the United States senate, offered voters of Wichita county the farm problem as the paramount issue of the present senatorial campaign in an address at Bellevue park Monday night.

He declared for extension of federal credit to the farmer; he announced opposition to the manipulations of the nation's finances for the benefit of the few.

He pledged himself to a tariff which would protect the Texas producers; he assailed the Republican system which protects the manufacturer and the cotton broker.

Without hesitation he endorsed the platform of the Democratic national convention, endorsed the nominee of the party and swore eternal fealty to the principles of Thomas Jefferson.

State Sovereignty

He declared himself to be opposed to the rule of the cotton market by Wall street brokers; he denounced the centralization of power in the national government, pleading for the states' sovereignty. He pledged to fight any move for cancellation of the war debt of European nations and advanced a "hands off" policy in European affairs.

Colonel Owsley was introduced to his hearers by Luther Hoffman, H. R. Wilson presided. More than 1,000 persons heard the address.

Reviews Life

In the opening of his address, Col. Owsley reviewed the days of his boyhood and early political life in Denton county, where he opposed and defeated Luther Hoffman for county attorney after he had worked as assistant county attorney under H. R. Wilson.

"I've come to make a covenant with Wichita county tonight," he said. "I want to pledge certain things, to make certain definite promises to you. I want to give you my plan of conduct if I am made your senator.

"I have not come to your city to talk down any man; I have come to offer a program that will be of benefit to the people of Texas. I don't know my opponents, I've never had 15 minutes conversation with any of them.

Paramount Issue

The paramount question of the day is, 'What is the attitude of the government to the farmer?' That

PARNELL OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN

Wichitan Assails Tom Love And Barry Miller

Special to The Record News.

DECATUR, July 9.—Assailing Tom Love and Barry Miller, his opponents, for what he termed their violation of the principles of democracy, former State Senator J. D. Parnell, of Wichita Falls, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor opened his campaign here Monday night before an enthusiastic audience of North Texas citizens.

"Love," Senator Parnell said, has violated a principle of his party by repudiating the candidate for president, Al Smith, and Miller has violated a principle in that he is requesting a third term to an honorary office."

Parnell Is Prohi

Senator Parnell during his address asserted that he still claimed allegiance to the "prohibition cause"—that he had fought for the placing of the Volstead act in the constitution, and that he was of the opinion that if the national Democratic officers are elected that they will adhere to the plank in the party platform adopted in Houston "to enforce all laws."

"And," said Senator Parnell, "the enforcement of all laws includes the Volstead act and I cannot understand why Love, who claims to be a staunch Democrat can repudiate Al Smith, who has stated that he does not favor the prohibition law but that as long as it is a law that he will see that it is enforced. And I would rather trust an honest 'wet' than a dishonest 'dry.'"

Senator Parnell, during his address, accepted the challenge made by Love, a short time ago, that "every citizen should let his conscience be his guide."

"My conscience is clear," declared Senator Parnell. "I am not requesting my fellow Democrats to elect me to an office and at that time repudiating other members of the Democratic ticket. I am not attempting to literally "bite the hand that's feeding me.

Democrat Always

"I am a Democrat, first, last and all the time—always have been and always will be an dwhether I am selected as the nominee for lieutenant governor or not I will vote for every man on the Democratic ticket in the November election."

Senator Parnell pointed out that

AL PROMISES ACTION BEFORE INAUGURATION

Nominee, If Elected, Will Call Conference On Farm Problem

Conference Fails to Name Manager for Eastern Territory

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith announced today that if he is elected president in November he will call a conference for the study of the farm problem at once without waiting for his inauguration, so that he will be ready to transmit to congress at its opening session a definite program of farm relief.

"As to agriculture," he telegraphed W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation, who had wired for the governor's "personal position" on the agricultural plank in the Democratic platform, "I stand squarely on the pledges given by the Democratic party at Houston. I understand and sympathize with the objects which organized agriculture is struggling to attain and which our party has promised to help them secure.

Early Conference

"If the election returns disclose that I have been chosen president, I will not wait until I am inaugurated before acting on this problem. I will, immediately after the election, call a conference of leaders to commence at once and continue work to assist me to develop a concrete plan embodying the principles of the Houston platform so that I may transmit to congress at its opening session a definite program accompanied by suggestions for the necessary legislation to make it effective."

The telegram from Seattle, which brought forth the governor's reply, follows: "The executive committee of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation of which I am president will meet in Indianapolis next Tuesday (July 10). Will you wire me at once your personal position on the agricultural plank in the Houston platform and state the procedure you will follow if you are elected president. The farmers are looking for assurances of relief from the economic servitude in which they have been held for seven years."

SMITH STRENGTH PUZZLES REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, July 9. (US)—The Republican directors of Herbert Hoover's campaign are in a quandary as to how to meet what they call "the Al Smith menace" along the Atlantic seaboard, from Maryland to Massachusetts.

This was conceded on all sides today as the eastern leaders of the party cleared out of Washington after two days of conferences which failed to develop a clearly defined policy for this important section of the country.

Opinions Differ

Differences of opinion arose and prevailed throughout the two-day session, and it was because of

First Car of Wool Shipped Here In Many Years Produced by Kemp

The first car of wool that has been shipped from Wichita Falls in recent years was forwarded by J. A. Kemp to Kansas City over the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad, Monday.

It will be cleaned and concentrated in Kansas City and then shipped to points in the East.

The car of wool was clipped from approximately 3000 head of sheep on Rancho Vista, Kemp's Roller farm and the Mesa farm, three of Mr. Kemp's Wichita valley ranches.

This is first car of wool that has been shipped this year from the Kemp ranches according to J. Will Gray, Mr. Kemp's secretary, who handled the shipment.

Shearing began on the Kemp farms May 23 and was finished June 1. Clippers operated by electricity were used, Mr. Gray said.

TWO SURVIVORS OF SHIP FOUND

Suffering Youth Saved From Storm

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 9. (UP)—The search at sea for possible survivors of the Chilean army transport Angamos, destroyed on the rocks Saturday morning with the loss of nearly 300 lives, was held up today by terrific gales which forced ships to put out to sea to ride out the storm.

Two additional survivors were found on the beach at Punta Chimpel today—two young men who had been badly bruised, were suffering from exhaustion, and the rigors of the severe winter weather.

Numerous corpses were found strewn along the rocky shore, and it was apparent some of them had died after reaching land where they lay exhausted and exposed to the intense cold. Only six persons are known to have survived of the 296 or more aboard the vessel. The exact number aboard was not known as the ship had picked up a number of passengers in South Chile, some of them exiles who had been permitted to return home.

COMPANIONATE PLAN DISLIKED

Vanderbilt Jr., Prefers Divorce to Marriage Idea

CHICAGO, July 9. (US)—Although divorce may be more annoying, and it may not be quite so pleasant, it is certainly more honorable than companionate marriage.

Thus did Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., discourse today as he lolled luxuriously at his suite in the Drake hotel.

The scion of one of America's oldest and most aristocratic families, erstwhile publisher of a string of tabload newspapers, and a benedict arrived in Chicago this morning and attempted to escape the members of his own profession—the fourth estate—but he failed.

He knew he could not escape them all day, he said.

Recently Married

Of course he was asked about his recent marriage to the former Mrs. Waldo Logan.

Then he was asked about companionate marriage.

"I don't think so much of companionate marriage," he declared.

"It may be all right, but what's wrong with divorce? I think divorce is much more decent. In this modern age there are doubtless numbers of married folks who wish they were separated, but haven't the moral courage to face the notoriety.

"I know that many of them, not loving each other, but still occupying the same homes, sneak around and play with other men and women. They think divorce is a disgrace, but is their action decent? Personally, I'd rather be frank and open about the matter. Get a divorce and marry again."

Satisfies Creditors

Mr. Vanderbilt revealed that it was unnecessary for him to sign away his heritage as he did last week to satisfy his creditors. "But I feel better about it," he said. He said his creditors have no legal claim on him.

He has written two novels, he announced. These are in the hands of his sales agent. He revealed that his writings would net him well into the six-figure column for the present year.

The young Mr. Vanderbilt was in a mood to soliloquize on marriage, et cetera. He continued:

"A second marriage is more often like a sober second thought.

"Your first marriage may be the result of some light love or youthful flare, or it may be from parental arrangement. Often it is but an experience which aids in sound judgment the next time."

Powerful Beacon Light Ordered For New Airport at Kell Field

An 8,000,000 beam candlepower revolving beacon light has been ordered for Kell field, according to an announcement made Monday by C. W. Cahoon Jr., president of the Wichita Falls Municipal airport.

The light is the newest type of airport light manufactured by the General Electric company, Mr. Cahoon said, and will revolve six times a minute. It has a 24-inch silvered mirror and uses a single 900 watt, 30 volt, T20 Mazda lamp.

At first it was intended to use the revolving beacon light that is now on top of the City National bank building. However, it was later decided to use the newer beacon light, which has just been ordered.

A guest register also has been installed at the field in accordance with the government suggestions for a class A flying field. The register shows the license number of the plane and its model, the owner, the pilot and his license number, the time of arrival and departure, the number of crew and passengers, and also has a blank space for remarks. It was first used at the formal opening of the airport on the Fourth of July.

Jolesch to Handle Only Women's Shoes

The Jolesch Shoe company of 709 Indiana avenue is discontinuing the sale of men's and children's shoes in a sale this week and will open around August 1 with an exclusive line of women's shoes and hosiery under the style of the Jolesch Slipper shop.

There are 10 stores in the Jolesch chain, in other Texas cities and I. Jolesch of Dallas, general manager, who was in Wichita Falls last week, declared that the Wichita Falls store had done an excellent business during the last few months despite the seemingly hard times over the state.

Purchasing agents are already in eastern shoe markets securing a line of shoes for the new Wichita Falls Slipper shop.

The same policies will be continued in the new shop according to H. H. Thomas, who will remain as manager.

SHOOK MAKES $1,500 BOND

Former Electra Chief Released From Jail

Tom Shook, former chief of police at Electra, was back home Monday following his release from the county jail on $1500 bond. Shook is jointly indicted with Ed Pryor, constable at Electra, and Henry Shumake, on a bill charging burglary on three counts, as principal, as accomplice and as accessory after the fact.

The indictment grew out of the burglary of the King News stand at Electra the last of May.

At the time the indictment was returned last Tuesday, Pryor was out of jail on $1000 bond on charges of "concealing a criminal." He was given service on the warrant Saturday, according to Sheriff W. G. Bralley. He made new bond of $1500.

Pryor, Shook and Shumate were arrested two weeks ago, a day after Shumate had escaped from the county jail.

SMITH GREETS RUNNING MATE

Robinson Sees Al After Four Years

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9. (US)—To the strains of "The Sidewalks of New York" and "The Arkansas Traveler," Governor Smith and his running mate on the Democratic ticket, Senator Joe Robinson, met here this afternoon for the first time in four years.

"Hello, Joe, how are you?"

"Hello, Al, I'm fine, how are you?" This was the way Al and Joe greeted each other as the former's train came to a stop in the Union station shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Along with Senator Robinson came Jesse Jones of Texas, the man who took the national convention to Houston. They were on their way to the national committee meeting in New York on Wednesday and stopped off here for an hour and a half to pay the governor a friendly visit.

The governor took his guests directly to the executive mansion. Recognizing the vice presidential candidate with the governor, the crowds along the streets leading to the mansion cheered as the executive car sped by.

A brass band had been engaged by Mayor John Boyd Thatcher and other city officials to give Senator Robinson and Jones a rousing reception at the station.

After Robinson and Jones had left for New York the governor said: "We didn't talk politics; we just had a real friendly visit."

Anti-Snake Bite Serum Now Packed For Fishermen

Emergency Kit For Use of Layman Being Distributed Here

Anti-snake bite serum, which offsets the poison which may be injected into the blood stream by the bite of a snake, is now being manufactured in such quantities that it is available in small kits for hunters, fishermen and all others who may come in contact with poisonous reptiles, it was revealed here Tuesday by Dr. William M. Harper of Dallas, southern medical expert of the H. K. Mulford company.

Distribution of the serum, several emergency calls for which have been supplied here in the last few months, has been placed in the hands of the Wichita Falls Drug company for a large part of West Texas. Many drug stores are beginning to stock the serum for treatment of persons bitten by snakes, according to officials of the drug company.

There are three types of poisonous snakes in the United States, according to Dr. Harper, and the serum is equally effective against the bite of any of the three. The three poisonous snakes named by Dr. Harper include the rattlesnake, of which eleven varieties are found in Texas, and the moccasion and copper head.

The use of the serum has been so simplified, and its work so carefully tested, that any person may give the treatment in case medical aid is not immediately available, Dr. Harper said. This is particularly advantageous in the case of persons who might find it difficult to reach aid within several hours, or for all residents of isolated sections, it was pointed out.

A hypodermic needle, a small amount of the serum and directions constitute the new "anti-snake bite kit" exhibited by Dr. Harper. The serum is manufactured from the blood of a horse, which is given successive injections of snake poison until the blood of the horse is able to withstand enough snake poison to kill 100 horses under ordinary conditions. The blood is then drawn off, purified, and the serum packed. It will retain its power for five years if kept in a refrigerator, and for more than a year if left at room temperature.

"Contrary to popular belief, the poison of a snake is not primarily a defensive or offensive weapon, but is a powerful digestive chemical," said Dr. Harper.

"The poison which issues from the fangs of a snake is injected into his food (small animals and rodents), where it breaks down the cells as the first step in digestion. The poison has the same effect when injected into the human system—it breaks down the cells, and death is certain if sufficient poison enters the blood stream. Fortunately, it usually takes from eight to 24 hours for the poison to be completely absorbed. The serum is absorbed much more quickly, and in time to prevent death.

"Each 'dose' of the serum is sufficient to offset enough poison to kill two persons. It is very rare that more than this much poison is injected into the wound by the snake, but in case it should be, the patient will be aware of the fact that the pain has NOT subsided by the fact in about eight hours. Another injection can then be given."

The first serum was perfected in Brazil by a government physician there, and the first brought to this country was manufactured in Brazil. The services of this physician was finally secured in America, however, and he supervised the tests and the development of the serum now being manufactured.

OWSLEY GIVES ADDRESS HERE

Candidate Pledges Support To Nominees

is a thing which concerns Texas and Texas people.

"There are more signs upon the posts of the farms along our highways of Texas farms for sale than there have ever been. During the past few years more than 100,000 farmers have left their farms in Texas. There were more hungry people in the state of Texas in 1926 and 1927 than in any other period of five years.

"The two great measures of the past two congresses which might have relieved this condition have been defeated by a Republican congress and a Republican president.

"The Republican president, however, had a great deal of encouragement from a Texas man. Tom Connolly voted against the farm relief measure in congress. I'm not talking about him; I'm not trying to talk him down; I'm merely submitting a part of his record to you.

Disfavors Plan

"No doubt Mr. Connolly submitted his platform on farm relief to you. He wants to create a federal board or commission and establish a revolving fund of billions of dollars to pay out three cents per pound to exporters of cotton. I am not in favor of such a plan, but am opposed unalterably to the creation of any more federal boards or commissions to take away the rights of the states in government.

"Mr. Connolly would put the secretary of agriculture at the head of this federal board of his. And that secretary of agriculture is Jardine, the man who shifted millions of dollars from the people of Texas to his gambling friends on the cotton exchanges of the country.

"There isn't a single farmer who would get one dollar under Mr. Connally's plan. He would have to send the cotton to Houston or Galveston to export it, and who of us here are exporters?

"I repeat that I am opposed to any boards or commissions. I am not going to make new jobs for anybody.

"I favor an extension of credit to the farmer under the federal reserve system. The manufacturers of the east and north all are financed by the federal reserve system, and the farmer is as much entitled to such consideration as they.

"The federal reserve system is financing every manufacturing concern north of the Mason and Dixon line. Last year the brokers and stock market gamblers were loaned over four billions of dollars by the federal reserve system.

"I am a lawyer and am not a farmer. But I have spent a great deal of time studying everything available on the problems of the farmer and I know that I understand the problems you have to face.

Cotton Exchanges

"Another problem which confronts us, the people of Texas, is the operation of the cotton exchanges throughout the country. The largest in America is in New York, operated by men who have never seen a bale of cotton. They manufacture millions of bales on paper, cotton which never existed, to enable them to lower the price.

"They sell that which never existed to lower in price that which so acutely exists for the farmers of Texas. I pronounce as illegal their practice of gambling in the products of the soil. I pronounce it immoral to gamble in the products of the soil.

"The first measure that shall ever bear the name of Alvin Owsley, United States senator from Texas, shall give provision to aid all the farmers of Texas. That done I shall propose a bill which will say to the brokers, 'you shall not steal away that which rightly belongs to my people in Texas.'

"Everything bought in Texas from the farmer is purchased on a protected market and everything sold is offered on the open market. The buyer sets the price on the protected market and the seller on the open market. This order should be reversed.

"If we are to have a protective tariff, its protection should be extended to all alike, to the producers of the raw material as well as to the manufacturers.

"I shall propose a tariff on meats that the cattlemen of Texas may be protected from the cheaper meats of the Argentine.

"I intend to offer a tariff on wool and mohair which will give the goat and sheep raisers of Southwest Texas the same chance the one-sided tariff has given the manufacturer.

"I'll protect the Texas onion grower from the flooding of the market by the cheaper Egyptian product; I'll tax the Mexican tomato and corn so that the East Texas farmer will have the opportunity to obtain a reasonable price for his products.

For Texas Only

"I'm running for senator from Texas and for Texas alone will I work. The other states have senators of their own.

"I oppose the federal inheritance tax which takes from the states another of their inalienable rights. I believe only those powers which are absolutely necessary should be delegated to the federal government.

"I am a Democrat. I pledge myself to the active support of the platform made by the Democrats in Houston. I believe that every loyal Democrat will welcome the opportunity which is given us to 'turn the rascals out.'"

Col. Owsley continued his address with a praise of the founder of the party, Thomas Jefferson, pointing out that the first president who was a Democrat had opposed the views of Alexander Hamilton, who would have placed the control in a central power and in the hands of a minority.

"I am the youngest candidate asking for this high office of senator from the people of Texas," Col. Owsley concluded, "and when you send me up to Washington I pledge my youth and my honor to work for the people of Texas along the lines of the platform I have outlined to you."

Moody May Speak Here on Night Bolters Hold Meet in Dallas

Governor Dan Moody will not attend the ultra-dry meeting to be held in Dallas on July 17, he said Sunday night before leaving Olney for Austin.

"I didn't get invited to the party," he said.

The call for a meeting of Democrats opposed to the election of Governor Alfred E. Smith as president was issued last Sunday by V. A. Collins, once defeated for governor and more recently defeated, at Beaumont, for chairman of the state convention. Mr. Collins' call was signed by a number of prominent Texans including Atticus Webb, erstwhile minister and now president of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas," and B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls.

Governor Moody said, however, that it is possible that he will speak on behalf of his candidacy in Wichita Falls on the night the constitutionals plot against Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic nominee. Definite date for his appearance in Wichita Falls was not given by the governor, however.

He has announced that he will speak at 17 Texas centers before the primary of July 28. Wednesday night he will address voters of Corpus Christi. Other dates were not given.

Other places where Governor Moody plans to speak before the primary include, Del Rio, Port Arthur, Wichita Falls, Sulphur Springs, Brownwood, Big Spring, Amarillo, Lubbock, Paris, Nacogdoches and Waco.

Nominee Agrees to Call Meet After Election

these that for the first time in many years it appears probable there will be no recognized single eastern Republican campaign manager. Whether one will yet be selected remains to be seen; meanwhile, the question has been temporarily bridged by the announcement that the eastern end of the Republican campaign will be handled by "a board of directors" consisting of the national committeemen from the states affected, aided by a few Republican senators.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire declined to accept the directorship of the east unless he was assured of "a free hand and full responsibility." Dr. Hubert Work, the national chairman, was reported unwilling to consent to that. Even the personal urging of Secretary Hoover himself, however, was insufficient to move Senator Moses from his position.

East Big Question

There was some exceedingly frank and blunt talk behind closed doors during the two days' conference here, it was reported today. Almost all of it related to the east, and how to meet the challenge of Gov. Al Smith's strength in the territory that has shown itself opposed to prohibition in almost every election—New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Efforts to get from Dr. Work a statement outlining the Republican position on prohibition in these states—in the face of Gov. Smith's open advocacy of a change in the Volstead act—have been met only with the statement:

"Prohibition is not, or should not, be an issue in this campaign. If the Democrats raise it, we will meet it."

How it will be met, however, Dr. Work declined to say.

Issue Raised, Claim

The eastern leaders who sat in the conferences here are understood to have pointed out to the chairman that as a matter of practical politics the Democrats "do not have to raise the issue—it's already here, in the shape of Gov. Smith's telegram to the Houston convention."

Dr. Work is understood to have pointed out, with some asperity, that the Republican candidate cannot be dry in the west and wet in the east.

DEATH TRACES PATH OF HEAT

East Suffers as Mercury Still Climbs

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—First general heat wave of the year continued to grip the east today.

Extending as far west as Manitoba, Can., torrid weather caused more than two score deaths and many prostrations, in the last 48 hours.

Thundershowers predicted for tonight and tomorrow along the Atlantic seaboard and Great Lakes and showers in the prairie provinces of Canada promised relief.

Vagaries of the weather disrupted telegraph communications between the east and west with an appearance of the aurora borealis.

In Jamestown, N. Y., record breaking hot weather caused one suicide and ended a marathon dance in its 178th hour.

Ramblin'
with
Marie Theresa

WE ARE willing to pay for professional sympathy.

In case you do not know what professional sympathy is, the next few lines might prove enlightening.

During a brief conversation with a local physician, well known for his almost uncanny results in the medical field, Marie Theresa learned how greatly the human heart needs sympathy. And women are more likely to be susceptible to sympathy from an understanding person than is man, according to this physician.

A person who is not well will become more or less morose and in need of sympathetic understanding and a genuine friendliness, thus the rush to a physician whose cures are probably 5 per cent medical and 95 per cent psychological.

The entire world is thirsting for genuineness and a true spirit of friendliness, yet it takes the average person a lifetime to understand that, and some of us never quite let that fact penetrate.

And where does the work of the physician come in, and judging that profession from the standpoint mentioned, are they as a profession, hypocritical? Not at all. It occurs to me that the real worth of a physician's attentions would be in ascertaining whether the cure should be with medicine or with just the correct amount and type of understanding and friendly counsel.

A competent physician is first of all, proficient in making "snap" judgments, and since he knows that a person with imaginary ills requires medicine to ease the mind if not the body, would he not be doing that patient a wrong by refusing treatment?

AS I SAID before, we are willing and given to paying for professional sympathy and even now, armed as I am with the acknowledgement from one of the profession, I would not have it otherwise.

For who but a close student of human nature, equipped with medical knowledge, could determine when to prescribe medicine and when to pour on a few doses of sympathy and full understanding?

Just Among Us Girls

What Makes Life Worth Living? Let Dorothy Dix Tell You That

Dorothy Dix Tells What Makes Life Worth Living. How Can a Girl Revive Her Fiance's Waning Love? Chastising Boy Friend Who Takes Girl for Granted.

Dear Miss Dix—I am of a quiet, studious nature. I love books and music. I have a few friends, a rather lucrative position and most of the things I want. But lately I have come to the conclusion that there is nothing really worth while in life. If you study and read, all you obtain is a smattering of what other men have known. If you save money, it buys none of the things that are lasting. If you marry, you may expect the disappointments that one finds all around in other married couples. If you have children, they may grow up to be a curse to you.

What do you think makes life worth living?—J. G.

Answer—I think that the only thing that makes life worth living is to have some purpose in it, and to have as your main object a sincere desire to help others, and to make the world a better and a cheerier place because you have lived in it.

I do not believe that any selfish person can ever be happy and satisfied, because selfishness grows by what it feeds upon. It is always reaching out after more and it never gets all it wants. Nor do I believe that any self-centered person is ever happy, because if you think only of yourself your own desires and pleasures, and hopes and ambitions, you can always find something the matter, something wrong, some crumpled rose leaf under your 40 mattresses of ease.

It is eternally true that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and it is only when we put others before ourselves and think of their happiness before our own, and when we absorb ourselves in some labor bigger than ourselves that we ever find true contentment and make life worth living.

But it seems to me that your trouble is that you are a spoiled child who has wearied of her pretty toys because she has always had them and knows nothing else. Fate has given you too soft a deal and you need a good hard jolt to wake you up and make you appreciate your blessings. Then you would find out that friends and money and a cultured mind make life worth living.

Also, you would discover that we get out of life just exactly what we put into it, and that if we find it dull and boresome, it is because we have gone about living in a lackadaisical, half-hearted manner and have not put into it any of the enthusiasm that comes back to us in thrills.

Also, you would find out that life is pretty much a fifty-fifty proposition, and that things succeed just as often as they fail.

If there are, as you say, many marriages that fail, there is likewise the chance that your marriage will be a glorious success. There are husbands who quarrel and fight and whose home is a hell on earth. And there are other couples who love each other more dearly as the years go by, who find a perfect comradeship in each other, and who make marriage an earthly Paradise.

And if there are children who are wild and turbulent and uncontrollable and who bring their parents' gray hair in sorrow to the grave, there are also good and dutiful and loving children who honor their fathers and their mothers, and are a crown of glory to them. If parents have children who are jailbirds, there are other parents who have Lindberghs.

If money doesn't buy the things you want at present, and automobiles and trips to Europe are not to be despised, and if books bring us only other men's thoughts, thank God we have geniuses to fill our minds with wit and wisdom and singing verse.

So what is there to be so pessimistic about?—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My fiance and I have been sweethearts for nearly five years. During that time he has been in school and I working to help him and waiting until we could be married. While he was at school he would spend the week-ends with me and was an ardent lover, very impatient because we could not be married. Now he has finished school and is making a good salary, and our wedding day is set, but I sense a great change in him. He sometimes tells me he loves me, but, although he comes to see me every night, it seems to be just a habit. He is no longer thrilled over being with me. When he kisses me goodnight, it seems to be because he feels it a duty, not because he wants to, and he wants to sit with the family when he calls and never be alone with me to talk over our future.

I love him dearly and I will be the most miserable woman living on earth without him, but I don't know what to do. Would it be best for me to talk the matter over with him and ask him to postpone our wedding day until he can wake up and find out whether he really wants me enough to be enthused over the future a little bit, or will it be best for me to go ahead and forget his nonattention?—MAE.

Answer—I should certainly advise you to call a halt until the young man can find out whether he has lost his taste for you or not. From your account of the situation, I should say that you are due to suffer the all too common tragedy of the long engagement, which almost invariably wears itself out for one, or the other, of the high contracting parties.

You see you have become an old story to the young man. He doesn't notice how you look because he has seen you so often. Your kisses do not thrill him because he is fed up on them. He doesn't crave to be alone with you because in five years he has talked out all the sentiment that is in him. He doesn't feel romantic toward you because romance is the mist of the morning—it vanishes before the noonday sun.

Probably the young man is still fond of you, and grateful to you for all you have done for him, but he feels toward you like a husband, not like a lover, and you don't want that kind of settled, commonplace affection. So there is the rub. But, after all, roast beef is not to be scorned when you can't get angel's food.

But before you marry this young man, find out if he really does love you and wants to marry you, or whether he is just marrying you from a sense of duty because you have been engaged so long and you have helped him through college.

And if he has tired of you, let him go. No woman is so miserable as the wife who is married to an unloving husband who marries her because he feels bound to make good on a long engagement.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—The boy friend and I are quarreling. I care for him and like a silly sap let him know it. He has come to the point where he thinks seeing me once a week is aplenty and also has the nerve to break dates. What dose of medicine is good for boy friends who take their girls for granted?—ROSITA.

Answer—Give him a dose of his own medicine. Treat him as he treats you.

The next time he calls up get somebody else to answer the phone and say you are out. When he makes his weekly visit have a pressing engagement elsewhere. Make a few dates with him and break them and you will bring him to time if he really cares for you, and if he doesn't care, you will at least know where you stand.

When you see a man getting tired, beat him to it and get tired first.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Mary Lucile lacks only three ounces being a perfect baby, and what young lady would not rather be slightly underweight than overweight?

Besides a perfect figure, Mary Lucile has the most attractive set of large blue eyes you ever saw, and one single dimple, located in the softness of her left cheek. Other accomplishments include one 6-year old brother, Skeen Junior, who looks just like Mary Lucile, and a daddy that has a Mary Lucile complex.

The little lady has not yet invented a name for her brother, but has named all other members of the family. She can say "light" and "drink," which terms should not be considered significant in a flapper only 10½ months old.

Mary Lucile is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Skeen Staley of 1809 McGregor. Her mother was previous to her marriage, Miss Grace Tancred and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tancred of Elizabeth street.

LIGHTNING BUG STILL PUZZLE

Scientists Learn That Males Only Are "Airmen"

WASHINGTON, July 9. (UP)—Nature's most common phenomenon, the lowly lightning bug, has baffled the government's learned scientists.

For 20 years, wise men of the bureau of standards and the Smithsonian institution have attempted to reproduce the chemical light of the fire-fly, but today they are as far from a solution as they were the day they started.

With the season for lightning bugs now on, scientists have renewed their efforts to solve the mystery of the simple mechanism which causes a continuous flow of "cold" light.

Some believe the mystery will be solved and future lighting systems of the world patterned after the tail light of the summer insect. Others are pessimistic. They believe, after years of study and experiment, that to solve the lighting system of the fire-fly will be as difficult as creating synthetic life itself.

Chemicals Named

Scientists have classified the chemicals which cause the fire-fly to glow into two components, called luciferin and luciferase for lack of better names. What luciferin and lucerferase are composed of is what baffles them.

The mechanics of the lighting bug are known to many scientists. Explained in a simple manner, the tail of the insect contains two cells, one with luciferin and the other with luciferase. By a nervous action, the fire-fly draws the luciferin through a minute tube into the luciferase. The two materials are immediately oxidized and a glow results. The oxidization turns the luciferin and luciferase back to their oraginal states, ready for another twinkle.

Light for Lady

The tiny flashes of light are set off by the male fire-fly strutting for the benefit of his lady friend. The female fire-flies never leave the ground. In fact, they are not flies at all, but they glow worms. Their light is minute, scarcely discernible to the naked eye. At dusk the male fire-fly leaves his lady love and soars aloft, sending back reassuring twinkles from time to time in order that she may keep in touch with his progress.

Dr. Coblinz, of the bureau of standards, who has measured the temperature of fire-fly light, placed it as similar to the heat from a candle at 600 feet, which is practically negligible.

London Assures Speed In Anti-War Note Reply

LONDON, July 9. (AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, assured the house of commons today that there would be no unnecessary loss of time in replying to the latest American note on the anti-war pact. When Ernest Thurtle, laborite, intimated what he termed the government's procrastination was causing considerable disappointment throughout the country, Sir Austen replied that this appeared to be rather an expression of opinion than a fact.

Office Girl Escapes; Flees to Mountains

Outwits "Enemies of Women"

"I was a poor, deluded working girl, toiling in a hot, stuffy office," confided a pretty but tired-looking girl to her seat-mate in the Pullman. "It seemed I just couldn't go on. Every day I'd do my best to keep up with my work, but it kept piling up. Then these hot, sultry days came, and each morning I felt more tired and worn out than when I went to bed. Finally I just told my boss that I couldn't stand it any longer, and he very kindly allowed me to take my vacation two weeks earlier than he'd planned—he's awfully considerate that way. I'm going to play and sleep and eat in Colorado's mountain air until I get some color in my cheeks and some flesh on my bones." Such was the monologue overheard by a conductor on the Fort Worth & Denver during a recent trip.

"You'd be surprised to see 'em when they come back," related the trainman. "These white, pale girls come back looking like peaches and cream after a few weeks in Colorado."

Hundreds of working women will benefit this year by the low fares and quick, direct service of the Fort Worth & Denver to Colorado resorts—thus outwitting the most deathly "enemies of women": office fag, sleepless nights and sultry, hot devitalizing days. Even two weeks is enough to make a remarkable change.—Adv.

France Ready To Sign Peace Pact Any Time

—PARIS, July 9. (AP)—The pact outlawing war can be signed any time Secretary of State Kellogg wishes, official circles intimated today. The 14th of July, the great French holiday, has been suggested in Paris, but there has been no discussion of this detail with Washington. The impression is abroad here that Secretary Kellogg himself would come over for the ceremony, but the foreign office is unaware of any definite plans concerning this.

Hectic Hunt For "Lions" Proves Dud

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 9. (UP) Reports that a man-sized lion hunt was in progress in Garfield Heights, a suburb, spread through Cleveland yesterday, causing a general rush for the neighborhood and added jam to the already crowded streets.

The reports declared reserve police and Garfield Heights citizens were massing for a drive to capture eight lions which escaped when a circus truck overturned.

When they reached the scene, it was found that a small group of men had succeeded in rounding up the "eight lions"—which turned out to be one very much frightened lion cub.

Okla. Youth Held After Shooting

CHICAGO, July 9. (UP)—The partnership of Fremore Dexter, of Galesburg, Ill., and Lyman Moore, of Oklahoma City, Okla., Northwestern university students, ended in tragedy here.

Dexter is in a serious condition from a gunshot wound in the back and Moore is being held by police, pending an investigation of the shooting.

The youths, who were roommates, had worked out a system to win on the races, Moore told police. They had won $3000 in three weeks, according to his story, and were accosted in the hallway of their rooming house yesterday by a holdup man when they returned from Lincoln Fields racetrack. Moore said he took the weapon from the robber, but not until after his companion had been shot.

Police are inclined to believe the boys were seen with a roll of money at the racetrack and were followed to their room by the robber.

Police were hunting a north side bookmaker who, Moore said, owed the boys $2800, but whose name he did not know.

Actress Rescued From Explosion

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 9. (AP) Her life saved in a boat explosion by William B. Leeds, son of the late tin plate king, Adele Astaire, actress, was in a hospital today. When Leed's $75,000 speedboat, Fan Tail, burned to the water's edge at a pier here yesterday, both were severely burned.

Leeds and Miss Astaire who, with her brother and dancing partner, Fred Astaire, was a week-end guest at the Leeds' Long Island home at Cove Neck, had just entered the boat to take a trial spin. He started the motor, when the backfire ignited gasoline seepage in the hull of the craft. The boat almost immediately was enveloped in flame.

Leeds picked up Miss Astaire, who had collapsed, and lifted her to the landing stage. Then, climbing out himself, he pushed the Fan Tail out into clear water. An explosion occurred a moment later.

Mrs. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia of Russia, and Fred Astaire were standing on the pier waiting to get into the boat when the accident occurred.

Miss Astaire last February announced her engagement to William Gaunt Jr., son of a Yorkshire woolen manufacturer, and announced that on her marriage she would retire from the stage.

Giant Trans-Ocean Zeppelin Is Christened

FRIEDERICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 9. (UP)—A giant Zeppelin dirigible, designed to fly to the United States and back this summer was christened today, and was named Zeppelin in honor of the 90th anniversary of the birth of the late Count Zeppelin. Officially the dirigible is known as the LZ-127.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9. (UP)—First Ballot, month old spotted fawn now a privileged member of Governor Smith's back yard zoo, is going back to a crippled little boy at Indian lake—"and I'll give him another deer and a dog to boot," said the governor.

The fawn, yet a bit wobbly on its feet, was presented to the governor by the state conservation commission.

A mild controversy was precipitated, however, when Charles S. Carroll of Indian lake, hotel proprietor, said the fawn was taken from his crippled 8-year-old boy who had made of it a pet, by conservation department inspectors "to carry favor with the governor."

Conservation bureau officials denied they had given Carroll permission to keep the fawn permanently after he had found it straying near his home.

Bumper Kansas Wheat Production Predicted

WICHITA Kan., July 9. (INS)—With one-fourth of the wheat crop already harvested O. M. Stevens, superintendent of the Wichita division of the Missouri Pacific railroad today predicts yields for the community about Wichita to average 18 bushels per acre while near Kingman the yield should be near 40 bushels.

Stevens believes little damage was done to the crop by rains and winds during the ripening season.

Kansans Seek Special Road Legislation

TOPEKA, Kan., July 9. (UP)—Gov. Ben S. Paulen was asked to call a special session of the Kansas legislature to submit a constitutional amendment good roads proposal to the voters at the next election in an open letter today by Senator M. B. V. Van de Mark.

Leader's Religion Is Questioned

PEKING, July 9. (UP)—The question of whether General Feng Yu Hsiang, so-called "Christian general," still is a Christian is being asked with considerable interest of late.

It is certain that Feng—who recently came into Peking to attend the memorial services for the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen—is not the militant Methodist he was for many years. He no longer attempts to convert his troops to Christianity, and most of the Methodist chaplains have departed from his army.

The spotlight of international interest was turned on Feng when he became a professed Christian after attending meetings conducted by Dr. John R. Mott, head of the International Y. M. C. A.

In following years he rose rapidly to power. After holding important positions in Anhwei, Szechwan and Honan provinces, he became inspector general of the national army in 1923, with headquarters in Peking and with the rank of a general and later of marshal.

Why saddle yourself with a 3rd mortgage?

NEEDLESS repairs and replacements—large fuel bills—high-rate insurance, these expenses make up the permanent, ever-increasing THIRD mortgage that the average homeowner finds so difficult to meet.

Don't saddle yourself with a costly THIRD mortgage. Build with concrete and forget it. Concrete costs but little, if any more, than ordinary materials in the beginning. And much, much less in the long run. Repairs are few; depreciation, negligible. Concrete cannot burn. Insurance is lower. Concrete requires no paint. It is cooler in summer; warmer in winter. Less fuel is needed. It is sanitary and adaptable to almost any architectural treatment.

And the better the cement the better the concrete. Before you buy cement, ask your Building Material Dealer these four questions—the same questions engineers, architects and contractors ask when they buy cement. We give you the Lone Star answers.

1. Does the Cement exceed U. S. Government standards?
   Every shipment of Lone Star Cement is guaranteed in writing to exceed U. S. Government standards. The Lone Star dealer, in turn, guarantees every bag to you.
2. How is the cement made?
   Lone Star Cement is made by the famous International Wet-Blending Process, a process which has made cement-making an exact science and has established a new high standard of cement quality.
3. Is the cement uniform, bag for bag?
   The chemical content of Lone Star Cement varies less than 2/10 of 1% in millions of bags—a new high standard of uniformity.
4. Are you certain to get delivery when wanted?
   The 13 mills of the International System, with a capacity of 20 million barrels a year, assure "on-time" delivery, no matter how great the emergency.

It will pay you to buy cement on the basis of this comparison. Concrete will save you money. Lone Star concrete will save you more.

The facilities of our Research Department, directed by Prof. Duff A. Abrams, are available to all users of cement. Write us your problems.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Edgar Allan Poe should have written about the life which goes on obscurely in the shadows of the four great East river bridges. What subjects they would have made for the fantastic art of Dore!

Night and day the great spans that connect Manhattan and Long Island harbor a curious collection of human beings. Thousands go to the bridges for amusement—to see life after a fashion. There they loaf and loiter when the sun is shining, and even in gloomy weather; and kill time with that marvelous aptitude which seems to be the particular talent of such a host in New York.

They spend hours from the middle of the morning until the late afternoon watching the ceaseless flow of life back and forth. If you go to the Queensboro bridge or the Williamsburg or the Manhattan, or Brooklyn, you will note the same phenomenon.

But for many hundreds the four great bridges are a shelter as well as a pleasure resort. Unfortunate human beings actually live and find some sort of protection against the elements deep down under the arches of these immense connecting links between the boroughs.

A visit to the gloomy and mysterious caverns of the Manhattan approach of the Brooklyn bridge on a summer night is an experience not easily forgotten. The vast structure rears itself skyward and is silhouetted against the pale reflection of the sky. There is a chorus and medley of sounds—a deep murmur of the city's life—a persistent rumble of which one is always conscious, yet which never annoys. All around is the dark obscurity of the life of the cave dwellers—for that is what they are, these homeless ones who make shift to find the home under the dark, damp arches of the Brooklyn bridge.

What a sudden surge upward there has been in the price of liver! Even the pets of the stock market list have little more in the nature of a spectacular rise to show. The sudden discovery that liver is good for something that ails us has caused an unprecedented demand, but just what that something may be is at times rather hazy to the man in the street.

"I hear Joe Dumby has anemia, and they're feeding him nothing but liver," says Jones to his friend.

"Why don't they hit him on the head again?" asks the friend. "Sometimes another shock brings the fellow's memory back."

"Listen," says Jones. "You're all mixed. You're thinking of amnesia."

"No, I'm not. That's the fizzy stuff you take when you can't stand castor oil."

"No, no, no! That's citrate of magnolia . . . mag-mag-something . . . Darn it! Now you've got me all balled up. What this lad has is anemia. Don't you see?"

At this point Jones, if he has any sense at all, falls in a fit to avoid further controversy.

The youth who runs around town for an advertising agency boarded a car in the midtown section and fumbled in his coat pocket. He fished out five pennies and handed them to the conductor, whose face slowly assumed a sour expression. He took the five pennies brusquely and handed the youth a nickel. The youth dropped the five-cent piece into the coin box. The conductor, with a flip of his hand, tossed the five pennies through an open window to the street. Then he darted a surly glance at the youth, muttered a bit and rang up the fare. The youth smiled brightly. The car went on.

One-Minute Sermon

Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me: for all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

Yea, I hated all my labour which I had taken under the sun: because I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me.

And who knoweth whether he shall be a wise man or a fool? yet shall he have rule over all my labour wherein I have laboured, and wherein I have shewed myself wise under the sun. This is also vanity.—Ecclesiastes, ii, 17-19.

Why He Killed Her

A NEW JERSEY man walked into a police station the other day and confessed he had killed his wife.

"Ever since we were married my wife wanted pleasure, pleasure, pleasure," he explained. "She wanted to go to the movies all the time but I could not afford it. She wanted me to go to dances but I don't dance. Today she insisted that I take her to an amusement park, though I told her I had no money for such things."

Doubtless the man's wife may have been a bit insistent. Yet it does seem as if a man could take the trouble to learn a woman's tastes in such matters before he marries her. Once the ceremony is over it is time to make the best of it. Rushing into matrimony on the basis of a passing infatuation, without stopping to learn whether tastes and likes are at all suited, is sure to lead to trouble. It is a bit hard to work up very much sympathy over this wife murderer, even if his complaint is true.

Michigan's New Income

A GENERATION or so ago Michigan was a great lumber state. Mighty pine forests covered her hills and river valleys, and the cutting of them poured a great stream of wealth into the pockets of Michigan's citizens.

Now most of the lumber is gone, although the upper peninsula still does a good bit of cutting each year. But Governor Green believes that the summer tourist and vacation business will, in the near future, give Michigan an even greater annual revenue than the lumber business ever did in its palmiest days. He warns citizens that if they do not kill the goose that lays the golden egg—if, in other words, summer visitors are treated courteously, given good accommodations and are not overcharged—Michigan will speedily find her lakes, her sunshine and her beaches far more valuable than her old-time pine forests.

Probably he is right. It is amazing that Michigan's development as a vacation center has not been more rapid. Climate and scenery are superb. Nature has provided a magnificent vacation ground there.

Yugoslavian Earnestness

SOME people don't deserve parliaments. They take things too seriously, too earnestly.

There have been times in our congress when representatives or senators have been so wrought up in their arguments with each other that it looked as if they were going to jump at each other's throats. And then a half hour later they were to be found in one of the congressional restaurants peacefully sitting side by side eating ham and—. That's civilization!

The other side of the picture is this. In Yugoslavia a Serb deputy got so violently angry at some Croatian opponent that he pulled a revolver, killed two and wounded four others.

That's the reverse of civilization. It is being earnest with a vengeance. Imagine what would happen in Washington if the Republicans took the Democrats thus seriously. Or vice versa.

Extinction of the Automobile "Tourist"

E. P. ANGUS, general sales manager of the Magnolia Petroleum company, is the leader of a movement by the company to sell the southwest as a vacation land to the people of the southwest. Says Mr. Angus:

"The people of the southwest, while proud of their territory, do not fully appreciate its claim as a vacation spot. The beauty of the Ozarks, the Wichita mountains, the marvelous caverns near Carlsbad, N. M.; hundreds of delightful places along the Gulf of Mexico and many other places less famous, have become rather well known to some southwesterners who have ample means to go where they like when they like. But the great number of people who probably have a family car and take a vacation once a year for a few weeks do not yet know what delightful vacations can be had within easy driving distance of their homes."

The words of this petroleum official should be clipped out and pasted on every windshield. We not only do not know our section as a vacation area, but few of us make any effort to visit the scores of places of interest which could be toured over the week-end. Many Wichitans do not know how to locate the Pecan-Fruit orchards and have never seen Lake Wichita. Scores couldn't find Frederick, Okla., Fort Sill or Medicine Park without a road guide and official information from the chamber of commerce.

Modern motoring has become chiefly a business of getting between two given points. Where once we rolled along at a fairly leisurely pace and viewed the country, we now speed by at 40 to 60 miles an hour and see nothing. Our impressions secured from a 200-mile "tour" are chiefly of gravel or asphalt roads and other automobiles. While the motorist has gained much in the last decade in ease, comfort and dependability of travel, he has lost practically all that made him a "tourist." He might as well travel by train at night as by the new method.

POLITICS WAX WARM

Politics is, without doubt, the absorbing interest of the American people. There is witnessed, however, often in these contests an absorbed belligerent spirit which causes bad feeling and spoils friendships of years' duration.

The News can see no reason why two men in Bellevue or two women, cannot disagree upon the advisability of voting together, without becoming so violently partisan as to exchange uncivil greetings. Just what it is that makes a political supporter of a candidate think that he has to convert the world or else beat the recalcitrants, is unknown to the present writer.

ROADS MADE OVER

A perfected surface is being put on the famous Columbia Highway in Oregon. Sharp rock screenings are mixed with thick asphaltic oil, and heavily rolled into the existing paving, with clean, dry screenings loose on top. This makes a surface on which wheel slippage is practically impossible, but which is safe for rubber under all conditions.

Thousands of miles of old roads are being remade and widened in this manner into perfect modern highways.

Forlorn Figures

By CLIFFORD McBRIDE

The Divine Spark

By GEORGE ADE.

One Evening at a Concerted Rink known as the Grand Opera House, a flock of intrepid Amateurs put on A War Drama.

Lila, principal Child of the Egg and Poultry King, played a Daughter of the Southland, with her Hair shaken out and Lamp Black on her Eye-Winkers, so as to look like Pola Negri.

All of her Relations and the other Members of the Pocahontas Bridge Whist and Pleasure Club were in Front, and they gave her a Hand every time she stepped out from behind a Tree.

She was a Riot.

At 11 P. M. she was up on a lonesome Eminence, right between Sara Bernhardt and Julia Marlowe, waiting for a Telegram from N. Y. to come on and tackle any Role that was too Heavy for Mrs. Fiske.

The proud Parents awoke next Morning to discover that Lady Macbeth was boarding with them.

When she moved from one Room to another the Portieres had to be spread the entire length of the Pole so as to make Room for her Head.

A local Haberdasher, who had been plotting to surround her with a new Bungalow and a lot of Mission Furniture, went to call as per Usual and found her away up Stage, trying to look like Margaret Anglin in the Big Scene.

She was too busy to Hold Hands, for she was mapping out a Career which terminated with an Electric Sign on Broadway and the Street jammed with up-town Limousines.

So the Gents' Furnisher moved down the Street to a Brick House, the unmarried Inmates of which would begin burning Greek Fire and sending up Ballons every time a Live One Slammed the Front Gate.

Lila had the Bacillus Theatricus gnawing in every part of her System.

She could see the magnificent Playhouse crowded from Pit to Dome, just as the Producing Manager sees it every August when the Pipe is drawing freely.

She could hear the Leading Man in the Dress Suit say, as he pointed up the Marble Stairway, "Ah, here comes the Countess Zika now." And then She would enter trippingly, wearing $900 worth of spangled Raiment, whereupon the Vast Audience would stand up and Cheer.

Wilst enjoying this Trance she wore a Yellow Kimono and had her Meals sent to the Room.

Father saw that he was Hooked, so he loaded her into a Parlor Car and took her up to a School of Dramatic Art to have her searched for Talent.

The Head Crimp of this refined Shakedown watched her do the scene in which Ophelia goes Dotty and picks the imaginary Dandelions and when it was all over and Shakespeare hed been reduced to a Pulp, he slapped Old Ready Money on the Back and told him his Daughter was a Phenom.

She had the Dramatic Instinct and the Fire of Genius and that indefinable Something which enables Eva Tanguay to earn more than the President of the United States.

With a couple of hundred Lessons in Correct Breathing, and the Vocal Chords loosened up with a Glove-Stretcher, and a row of Scallops put on the Technique, Mary Anderson would be right back in our midst.

So Lila got ready to fill the Vacancy caused by the Retirement of Ellen Terry, while Papa went back to the little Office in one corner of the Ware-House and began to sign Checks.

It took many an Egg to have Lila properly Conservatoried.

At last she came home With a Diploma showing that she was an Actress.

After that, she merely needed a Play and a Company and a lot of Scenery and a Manager and a Theater and the soft old Public buying of the Scalpers in order to realize her modest Ambition to become a Real Star.

She took her Diploma and the Local Press Notices up to New York to see what she could get on them and found 10,000 other Incipient Modjeskas hitting the worn Trail that led from one Agency to another.

Artistic Temperaments were more Abundant than Lamp Posts and getting an Audience with a Big Gun was just as easy as Opening a Time-Lock with a Hat Pin.

She had an offer at the Hippodrome to walk in front of an Elephant waving to prop Palm, but she spurned it, because she was ready to do Desdemona at a Moment's Notice.

As for the Laudatory Article written by a would-be Willie Winter of the wild and wooly West, she couldn't find any one in the neighborhood of 42nd Street who had even heard of the Tank Town in which her Folks were so Prominent.

In order to get Experience, she signed up with a No. 4 Company, playing the Part of the deaf-and-dumb lady who crosses the Stage and removes the Tea Things early in the Second Act.

When the Troupe went on the Rocks at Mauch Chunk, Penna., the erstwhile Favorite of the Pochahontas Club found herself seated on a Trunk marked "Theater" standing off a Deputy Sheriff and waiting for an Answer to her Wire.

The First Old Woman, who remembered Edwin Booth, came and sat beside her.

"Do not be discouraged Honey," said She. "Go right back and start all over, and possibly some time Next Year you will again have the blessed Privilege of going up a neglected Alley twice a Day and changing your Clothes in a Barn. Any Girl with your Looks and Family Connections can curl up in a Four-Poster at night and then saunter to the Bath over a soft Rug in the Morning, but only a throbbing Genius can make these Night Jumps in a Day Coach and stop at a Hotel which is operated as an Auxiliary to a first-class Pool-Room. It will be Hard Sledding for the first 15 or 20 Years but, by the time you are 45, you may reasonably count on getting 20 weeks out of every 52, running around in front of a Camera."

Lila pulled into the Scene of her Early Triumphs with a mere suggestion of No. 2 Grease Paint still lingering behind the Ears.

As the Train rolled through the Yards, the Foreman of the Section Gang narrowly escaped being hit in the Head with a tin Make-Up Box hurled from the rear of the Observation Car.

Next day she had a strip of Red Carpet spread for the Haberdasher and was learning to prepare Food in Fireless Cookers.

Whenever she hears of a Good Show coming to Town she invites all her Friends to come out to the Bungalow and Play Rhum on the Mission Furniture.

Official Denies Oil War Is Extended

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—An official of the New England Refining company today denied that contracts signed by his concern with a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell company are to be construed as an extension of the petroleum war between the Royal Dutch and the Standard Oil companies.

"We have entered into an ordinary commercial contract with the Asiatic Petroleum company," he said, "the same kind of contract we might make with any other company for the purchase of gasoline for our requirements in excess of that produced in our own refineries."

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

As she turned the key her ears were assailed by voices coming from a connecting room.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon the sudden death of her father after losing his fortune, goes to live with a girlhood friend, Clarissa Dean, and her father, in spite of the objections of her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, who distrusts Dean's motives. Becoming unhappy in her new home, Virginia phones to Niel's studio late one night and is surprised when his model, Chiri, answers. This causes a lovers' quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get Niel away, Dean has a company he controls offer him a high-salaried position in San Francisco. Niel begs Virginia to marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art study.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter decides to leave but Dean opposes her departure and asks her to marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to expose the fact that her father had cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, Virginia promises to earn the money to pay him in one year or marry him if she fails. Then she slips out of his house. She pawns a valuable ring for $125 and realizes that she must find a cheap place to live at once.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XVII

Virginia knew in a flash of anguished comprehension that she could not tell Nathaniel of her bargain with Frederick Dean. She could not rob him of his peace of mind—destroy his power to create or go on with his work. In all likelihood $100,000 was as far beyond his reach as hers, and if he were told that lack of it would spell unutterable heartbreak for both of them he would be as unhappy and as desperate as she.

And before morning Virginia knew to the fullest just how unhappy, how desperate her situation was. More surely than ever she realized that she must make her fight alone. She might fall beneath the Juggernaut of defeat, but until her last hope was dead she would spare Nathaniel the crushing knowledge of what might come.

She arose in the morning steeled with this resolve. And the fear of defeat helped her, too; it drove her on to battle against hopeless odds.

By telephoning she made an appointment with Mr. Gardiner at his office and when the time came she was there, waiting impatiently in the ante-room. He had suggested coming to her but she wanted it this way.

"You look too worn to have come out," he reproved her when she had sunk wearily into a deep leather chair by his desk.

"I didn't want to see you at my hotel," Virginia explained. Then, after a pause of startled silence: "I've left Mr. Dean's house," she added simply.

Mr. Gardiner emitted an exclamation of pained surprise.

"But, my dear Miss Brewster . . ." he began in protest. Virginia broke in quickly. "Please don't try to advise me," she begged breathlessly. "Clarissa Dean and I had some trouble and I couldn't stay. I'm at the Rits now but I'll have to find cheaper quarters. That's why I came to see you. Isn't there any money for me from my father's estate?" she asked almost prayerfully.

Mr. Gardiner shook his head regretfully. "Not yet," he told her. "There hasn't been time for a settlement. But I can arrange a personal loan for you," he offered, but not too warmly.

"No, thank you. I will not borrow money until I know how I can pay it back." Virginia refused firmly. "I have two strings of pearls; I can raise money on them."

Gardiner instantly became very grave. "I'm afraid you are going to be disappointed there, my dear," he sympathized. "Those pearl are unpaid for. I had intended advising you to return them to settle the claim as there is no possibility that the estate can pay for them."

A little cry of distress, like the dying wail of a cherished hope, escaped from Virginia's lips and brought a real pang of sorrow for her into Gardiner's deliberately hardened heart.

"But they're all I have," she declared hysterically.

"You must allow me to take care of your affairs," he said decisively. "For surely you realize that Richard Brewster's daughter cannot be permitted to flounder around as though she hadn't a friend in the world. But if you do not prefer to go to any of your friends I shall expect you to come to us. Mrs. Gardiner will be very happy to have you, I am sure."

Virginia heard him through without a word. Even when he had finished she did not speak at once, and he looked at her inquiringly. She saw an expression of doubt replace his assurance, and she knew that what he saw in her own face was responsible for it.

She tried to smile, but her features might as well have been stone. And her heart felt as set, as unalterable, as her fixed expression of resolution.

"Thank you very much," she said steadily. "I understand and appreciate your kindness, but you see I have made up my mind to accept my changed fortunes at once. It would only delay what I finally must face if I were to try to cling to the past. I'm afraid that Richard Brewster's daughter is now very much like any other penniless girl. She will have to go to work. That may shock my friends but it is better than accepting help until I am loaded with obligations which I may never be able to discharge."

"Nonsense! Your father had friends who would be glad to assist you without placing you under obligation."

"I'm sure of that," Virginia returned unhesitatingly, "but I will not risk humiliation in finding out who they are. No, I've got to go ahead by myself, Mr. Gardiner, but I shall not refuse your legal help if you will give it to me. I'll bring the pearls to you and a list of the few pictures and things I took from home. I want to keep what is honestly mine. And please let me know as soon as you can if I have anything that I can sell. I suppose there isn't any money in the bank?"

"None that we can touch. Haven't you an account of your own?"

"I'm going to find out what my balance is," she replied unhopefully.

Mr. Gardiner went to the door with her and urged her to reconsider her decision to refuse financial assistance.

"I'm no longer rich," she said. "Why should I live a lie? And borrowing enough money to keep me in luxury would be doing just that. There's only one honest thing I can do and that is to find work and earn my own living."

"Well, I admire your courage though I think you are quixotic," he told her, impressed in spite of his worldly judgment. "But I hope you will have an early marriage if you still intend to marry your young artist."

The last word clipped off abruptly in his amazement at Virginia's behavior. She had turned and for a second or two she swayed as if about to fall. Mr. Gardiner reached forth to support her but she moved on through the open doorway and then, seeming to gather strength from sheer force of will, she steadied herself and turned to smile reassuringly at him.

"I'll bring the pearls in soon," she called back from the outer door and then closed it quietly behind her.

There was an aching pressure in her head and the floor of the elevator seemed to drop from under her feet and leave her suspended in air as she was carried swiftly to the street level. Other passengers looked at her queerly and she was aware of it but did not care. There was so little to care about except the menace that stood in the way of her marriage to Nathaniel. That alone absorbed her. Other thoughts only nagged disagreeably at a tired mind.

Her only really valuable possessions, the pearls she loved, were not hers. Well, she had feared it might be like that. The shock of having her fears confirmed had passed. She felt dully that it did not matter; it would only hasten her search for work. After all, they wouldn't have helped much toward paying Dean his $100,000. It wouldn't have helped much to accept money from Mr. Gardiner, either. Perhaps there would be nothing at all for her from the estate. She did not want to be in debt, to be owing money on the strength of any hoped-for funds so uncertain as money from that source.

Out on the street she leaned for a moment against a plate glass window and tried to think what it was she had meant to do next.

Get the pearls? Yes, but there was something before that. It eluded her and she let it go. "I've got to find another place to live right away," she told herself. Up and down the street, cars of every description, except commercial, were seeking their tortuous way, and Virginia stood at the curb until a cruising taxi stopped at her signal. She told the driver to take her to the Ritz, but before they turned off Fifth Avenue she remembered what it was she wanted to do first of all. She must get her balance from the bank.

It did not surprise her to learn that her account was overdrawn. She had expected that as she had expected to lose her pearls, but there was no shock attached to this bit of news. Her emotions were chilled, insensitive. In the place where her heart had been there was a lump that pulsed to but one thought. Niel . . . Niel . . .

Well, she had enough money to take a room in a second-rate hotel. She hadn't kept her taxi waiting this time, so she walked. It was not far and she felt the exercise clearing her mind a little. On her way she bought a paper.

From the Ritz she telephoned to several hotels that were advertised in the paper and made a memorandum of their rates.

By the time she had finished packing she had decided upon the one she would go to.

To Virginia, when she was being shown to a room there, it was a depressing revelation of the difference in hotels. To have come to this!

When the bellboy was gone she promptly locked the door. As she turned the key her ears were assailed by voices coming from a connecting room.

"What the hell! Gimme that money or I'll knock you silly!"

ON SEEING A FRIEND'S NEW BABY

Aha, you sweet and precarious mite!
You have your mama's eyes all right;
Also you grow up to be as fair,
(Good gracious! What gourd-like head;
I never saw a kid so red.)

Yes, baby dear, you have a chin,
That shows you'll be a man 'mongst men;
Those hands of yours, it's plain to see,
Are fashioned most artistically,
You'll doubtless be a circus flunkey,
For you're the image of a monkey.

You start in life so well endowed,
With parents true, and fine, and proud.
You'll make your mark in worlds of men,
And be a model citizen.
(I thank the Powers most Divine,
That this kid's parents are not mine.)

You are most gentle and benign;
You are angelic and divine;
Your loving parents, good and true,
Have reason to be proud of you.
(I see, by this blank stare you've got,
You'll doubtless be an idot!
Oh, how I'd dolefully repine,
If fate had destined you as mine!

30 MURDERS IN CITY UNSOLVED

But New York's Crime In 1927 Decreases

NEW YORK, July 9. (US)—Thirty murders in New York from May, 1927, to June, 1928, remain unsolved, according to the annual report of the police department here. This is in startling contrast to London's Scotland Yard report where every one of 27 murders in 1927 were solved.

While murder and manslaughter cases decreased 3.8 per cent as compared with 1926, and 9.7 per cent as compared with 1925, investigation reveals at least 30 brutal major crimes which have never been officially cleared up.

Holdups Decline

Holdups (assault and robbery) decreased 19 per cent from 1926 and 35.8 per cent as compared with 1925.

Burglaries increased one-fourth of 1 per cent from 1926 and decreased 17 per cent from 1925. Felonious assault cases in New York decreased 4.4 per cent from 1926 and 3 per cent from 1925.

Grand larcenies decreased 9 per cent from 1926 and 14 per cent from 1925.

Two hundred and seventy-eight major crimes are listed for the year 1927. There were 951 assault and robbery cases, 3,380 burglaries and 2,174 felonious assaults.

The police department record states that "the continued reduction in holdups—the crime most feared by society—is one of the most striking accomplishments of 1927."

Gangs to Jail

No official reasons are given for the unsolved murders which include some of the most lurid and brutal crimes in the history of the local police department.

Holdups of gas stations increased 109 per cent in 1927. Restaurants and lunchrooms and clubs were the next worst victims of holdups.

Various gangs, responsible for burglaries and other offenses during 1927, are now serving long term sentences in prison. These include the "laughing, alias Charleston gang," involved in 16 holdups; the Hawkes payroll gang credited with five holdups; the "Harlem terrors;" "the alcohol gang;" the "speakeasy workers," of which one member was executed, and the "aspirin gang."

Last year sure was "easy pickin's" for writers of detective yarns. There are still those 30 mystifying unsolved murders lying around loose on the police blotters here—much to the discomfiture of New York's citizenry!

Wealthy Southern Broadcaster Known as Popular Radio Rebel

William K. Henderson of KWKH, Shreveport, La.

(For NEA Service)

SHREVEPORT, La., July 9.—From a well-lighted room in the top floor of his country home at "Kennonwood," 18 miles north of here, William K. Henderson, owner of station KWKH, salutes the world each evening.

"Hello, World," is his greeting. "This is KWKH, Shreveport, Louisiana, Shreveport on the Red, Shreveport everywhere, telling the world, don't go 'way."

Thus does a unique program by just one unique a broadcaster go out nightly to thousands of fans in America. Nearly every home in the South, where there's a radio set, has listened to him, and housands more in the rest of the country have heard him. Even those fans who have never succeeded in tuning in KWKH know of him by reputation, for Henderson is the man who has been the "bolshevik" of radio.

Henderson himself wouldn't like to be termed a "bolshevik," for he's a highly successful business man here and an official of the chamber of commerce. But he has rebelled furiously against the actions of the Federal Radio Commission and the asserted privileges of the high-powered northern broadcasting stations.

His Revolt Succeeds

He rebelled for a more equable distribution of lower and wavelengths, broadcasting on a higher power and the wavelength he thought he ought to have before he got the official permission, until he won. Now he has license to broadcast on 394.5 meters and a power of 3500 watts.

Henderson looks the fighter that he is. Tall, stately and firm of jaw, he carries out his appearance by his actions. His heredity is that of the pioneer and builder, which he maintains as one of the leading boosters of Shreveport and the South.

On the same spot where his grandfather built a log cabin in a wilderness, 63 years ago, Henderson has put up his spacious country home and his broadcasting station. He has spent almost half a million dollars on his estate here, a large part of it going into broadcasting. But he has never exacted a cent for its use, and he's determined not to put KWKH into commercial advertising service.

KWKH is his hobby. It started in 1924, when he bought an interest in a small station known here as WGAQ. Later he bought out his partners and had the call letters changed to incorporate his initials.

At the very beginning of his broadcasting career, Henderson showed a fighting spirit. He fought to have Huey P. Long, then chairman of the state public service commission, elected governor. Long, only 30 years old then, was popular with the people, but had no political backing. He was defeated.

This year, however, Henderson threw himself again into the thick of the fight for Long—and Long was elected.

Henderson's fight for his radio rights and his battle for Long for governor are typical of the man. He has thrown himself into the public service and he's able to do much for the people through KWKH.

There's the matter of broadcasting from records. This isn't permitted, but Henderson insists he'll put record music over the air and what will the radio commission do about it?

Opera for Mountaineers

"Why shouldn't station KWKH broadcast music from the world's opera singers and other famous artists who are far ahead of most of the entertainers who can be heard in person over the air?" he asks.

"Why should a family in the mountains of Tennessee, for instance, be deprived of hearing Marion Talley because they haven't the price for a trip to a grand opera concert? I believe we are serving a great need when we bring entertainment of that type to our listeners."

To be sure, Henderson provides personal entertainment, too. But he refuses to give up broadcasting the finer music from records.

Henderson is 48 and has been married 20 years. He has two children, Miss Kennon and Carter. Up to 1911, he was interested in the Henderson Iron Works, founded by his grandfather, and started a big garage business.

He has been vice president, then president and now again is vice president of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce. Recently he was elected presidential elector for Louisiana on the Democratic ticket, although that is as far as he has gone in politics.

That the people of Shreveport and the surrounding territory approve of Henderson is attested by the thousands of letters he gets weekly.

ABSENTEE VOTE OPENS MONDAY

Heavy Balloting Indicated In Petitions

A large number of absentee votes will be cast in the Democratic primary on July 28, according to indications at the office of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, Monday, the first date for application for an absentee ballot. Many persons asked for forms which will enable them to secure an absentee vote Monday.

The law governing absentee voting provides that persons planning to be out of Wichita county on election day may secure ballots by submitting their poll tax receipts to a Wichita county notary public and making application for the ballot. This application is to be mailed to the county clerk by the notary. The county clerk will then mail a ballot to the absentee at the address given, providing that address is out of the county.

A person planning to be out of Wichita county on election day, but not intending to leave until a day or so before July 28 can appear before the county clerk not more than 10 days nor less than three days prior to the election and vote at that time.

Miss Hall suggested that railroad men and others whose business might call them out of town unexpectedly on election day call at her office between July 19 and 25 and cast their vote.

KARNES CITY, Texas, July 9. (AP)—Norman Lunday, city marshal of Kenedy, went to trial here today in connection with the fatal shooting two weeks ago of E. B. Actress Out of Danger After Scalding in Bath

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—Miss Juanita Hansen, stage and screen actress, was reported "out of danger" today at the Murray Hill sanitarium where she was taken after being accidentally scalded in a shower bath at her hotel apartment.

The actress fell under the scalding water when she turned on the hot water full force by mistake, June 23.

Paris Tightens Up On "Easy" American Divorces

PARIS, July 9. (AP)—"Easy" American divorces in Paris have been the subject of a quiet investigation by the ministry of justice with the result that at least four officials and a number of lawyers are facing disciplinary action.

Just what form this action will take will be decided at a conference tomorrow between the minister of justice, Louis Barthou, and the public prosecutor, but it is taken for granted that the reins of the law, already drawn pretty tight where American divorces were concerned, will be further tightened.

PLANE FLIP THRILLS CROWD

Reliability Tour Planes Land at Marfa

MARFA, Texas, July 9. (INS)—Ten thousand persons from the Big Bend country were gathered at the flying field here today when the 34 airplanes participating in the national air reliability tour of 1928 landed here.

The spectators got a thrill when the tiny monocoupe, piloted by Mrs. Phoebe Fairgraves Omlie, only woman pilot in the contest, turned over in landing. Some damage was done the plane but neither Mrs. Omlie, nor Mrs. Eddie Stinson, her passenger, were injured. The plane will be left here for repairs but Mrs. Omlie will pilot plane No. 29 out of Marfa.

The fliers were treated to a barbecue by the local chamber of commerce. Beginning at 3 p. m., the pilots began taking off for Fort Bliss, El Paso.

WHY SCHLITZ USES WINTER MADE MALT exclusively . . .

THE world-wide fame of Schlitz is in great part due to the continued use of winter-malted barley. Climatic conditions during the cold months of the year are the most favorable for the production of a positively "ripened" full-flavored malt. Schlitz "winter malt", because of the perfect quality of each barley grain, is made into the remarkably tasty, clear and brilliant malt syrup bearing the Schlitz name.

You will notice an unusual richness and wholesomeness when you first taste Schlitz. "Winter malt" — plus the exclusive Schlitz method of making malt syrup—produced that taste! It's brought to you only in the can with the famous Schlitz name.

district judge he will not have jurors "laying around" at the expense of the people, but will either discharge them or keep them busy.

George Smoot, candidate for the same office said that efficiency in office is his platform.

H. F. Weldon, the fourth candidate for the office, said that he was judge of the 30th district court for four years and has been practicing law for 30 years. He refused to criticize or praise his opponents.

Charging that there are things in any court to which a woman should not be forced to listen, Jesse I. Smith asked for nomination to the office of clerk of the district court. He said he had 35 years of mercantile and clerical experience.

Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, seeking re-election, said she has been in the office since the death of A. F. Kerr in 1926 and that for more than six years prior to that time she was Mr. Kerr's assistant.

Cecil Story, candidate for the Texas legislature, said he is going to work for lower automobile taxes. He also said there are too many laws and that he is opposed to the passage of a great number of laws.

E. Vandeventer and A. V. Grant, candidates for the same office, did not speak.

Heckling was charged against W. L. Scott by E. F. Fruechte, candidate for district attorney when Mr. Fruechte said erroneous figures had been given to the public by Mr. Scott as to the number of cases handled by the district attorney's office. Mr. Fruechte said that 308 criminal cases were handled by the office from the time he entered it as first assistant district attorney, and that 238 resulted in convictions. Mr. Scott, who was in the audience, jumped to his feet charging his word was doubted. Mr. Fruechte said that Mr. Scott has a memorandum of the cases in his pocket and asked Mr. Scott for them. Mr. Scott produced it, asked Mr. Fruechte to read it and said it showed a smaller number of cases.

Fruechte Cheered

Mr. Fruechte glanced at the top of the first page and held it up to the audience to see, saying: "This is only a partial report as it covers cases only from Jan. 1, 1927 to May 18, 1928. That is unfair as I served from Aug. 1, 1926. There are five full months which are not included in the report."

Applause and cheering greeted Mr. Fruechte as he said this and handed the report back to Mr. Scott.

Mr. Scott made a plea that "all the brains are not in town. I am just a plain country lawyer of Young county." He then referred as personal reference to a number of the leaders of the bar in Wichita Falls.

Sam Spence, candidate for the same office, made an earnest speech, telling of his work from the time he first entered the district attorney's office as special investigator July 1, 1925, through the time he served as assistant district attorney, up to his resignation in May to run for the office of district attorney. He reviewed his life and training, and promised to do his "dead level best" if elected.

A. C. Howard, candidate for tax collector, said that four years ago he and Guy C. Raley, present tax collector, agreed to accept only two terms in office. Mr. Howard was running for tax assessor then. He said he has lived up to his promise, and that Mr. Raley is seeking a third term.

Raley Replies

Mr. Raley spoke in direct reply, and said that he felt hurt that Mr. Howard was seeking to take his office away from him as he (Raley) has employed Mr. Howard's own sister in his office for a number of years at $175 a month.

"I don't think Mr. Howard should have announced against me," he said.

More fireworks exploded when Ralph D. Pittman, candidate for judge of the county court at law, referred to a plan suggested by Irvin J. Vogel, another candidate, to save the county money through a different system in handling the jurors. Mr. Pittman said the jurors are at the command of the district bench, but that Mr. Vogel has practiced law only two years, Mr. Vogel's youth excused him.

Mr. Vogel made a plea for support on the grounds of thorough preparation in school, practical experience in Wichita Falls, and a promise of hard work and a well run court.

Judge C. M. McFarland, present judge of the court, said he has handled 4,500 cases, and that less than one-half of one per cent have been reversed by higher courts.

At Valley View

VALLEY VIEW, July 9.—Candidates of group No. 1 for county and district offices of Wichita county gave their campaign addresses here Monday night before a crowd of about 50 voters.

Harry Bunnenberg, candidate for district judge in the 89th court, and R. J. Long, candidate for representative, seemed to be the most popular speakers of the evening as the crowd applauded both loudly when they were introduced by Chairman P. C. Jones.

Speakers were limited to three minute addresses.

The candidates spoke as follows:

For Commissioner

L. L. Kuntz: "I believe in taxing the things which are not taxed and using the money to promote education."

G. G. Burgess announced his candidacy and asked for the support of the voters.

For County Treasurer

Mrs. W. W. Gardner: "I feel that I can fill the place competently and I will appreciate your votes."

T. W. McHam announced his candidacy and asked the vote and influence of the voters.

For County Superintendent

J. A. Hood: "I am amply fitted in experience and scholastic training to fill the position."

Burl Bryant: "I think that you people know me and my record well enough to realize that I can take care of the office in a constructive manner."

Clyde R. Wofford: "I am a candidate for county superintendent of schools. I have spent a number of years in the rural schools and I know the life well enough to raise the standard of rural education."

For Tax Assessor

Everett Hughes: "This is my first time to ask for an office, but I have spent several years in the tax assessor's office and I am opposed to the high values of taxation in this county."

N. A. Moore: "I know values and I believe that I know taxes well enough to make a good tax assessor."

B. L. Trevathan: "I have handled taxes for the last six years and I know the office well enough to make you the best tax assessor that you have ever had."

Mark Banta: "I will manage the office to the best of my ability."

Robert Dunaway: "I am serving my sixth year in the office and I will appreciate your vote and influence."

For District Judge 89th Court

Harry Bunnenberg: "I am young as my opponent says, but it seems to me that age and time are not a fair yard stick with which to measure a man's ability. I can promise you that if I am elected that I will turn out cases with fairness and justice to all."

P. A. Martin: "If 24 years in the administration of the law have not qualified me, my life has been wasted. There is no question between my opponent and me except that of age and experience and youth and inexperience. I am going to take my time in trying cases and see that no man goes out of my court without justice."

For County Attorney

W. E. Wilson: "I have practiced law for 10 or 12 years and I feel that I am capable of making you one of the best county attorneys that you have ever had."

Wayne Somerville: "Decide who you want and devote your votes to the man who is most efficient and not to sympathy."

Bill Davenport: "I believe that all of my opponents are well qualified but I am also competent and I will be satisfied with your verdict on July 28."

Robert K. Crain: "Mr. Somerville has been in the office for a number of years and I do not think that his record warrants another term as your county attorney."

For County Judge

E. W. Nicholson: "I feel that it is my duty to look after my office and I have devoted my entire time to it. I have made you a good officer."

John P. Marrs: "I have practiced law for 22 years. This is a lawyer's job, a judical job, therefore, a lawyer should fill it. We need lower taxes and better administration."

P. B. Curd: "I am a candidate for a business administration and I am not a lawyer."

Representative, District 111

R. J. Long: "The best men in the county should fill this position but they will not have it. None of the three running for the office are fitted for the place and it is usually an office left to the scrubs to fill, therefore, pay your money and take your choice. I have studied economical problems and I believe that I am more capable of filling the place than are my opponents."

Wichita Negro Held On Robbery Charge

J. T. Searcy, negro, was charged with robbery by assault before Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn Monday morning upon complaint of two other negroes.

Searcy, the two negroes said, invited one of them into an alley and proceeded to rob him of $5. While the robbing was going on, they told police, the third negro appeared. They were unable to stop Searcy, however, and called upon the police to assist them.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Cramps and Neuroses

Many people suffer from occasional painful spasmodic cramps of their muscles, usually in the legs or abdomen, due to the presence of a toxic irritant, or poor circulation; but in some occupations, where a limited group of muscles are brought into play, there is an exceptional strain upon the nerves and an occupational cramp or neurosis results. This latter is a functional disorder of the nervous system.

There is always a predisposing autotoxemia present which is made worse by fatigue poisons. It is hardly possible for enough of the latter to form to alone cause the cramps. Those who are most subject to the nervous type of cramp are writers, telegraphers, musicians and seamstresses.

One who is afflicted in this way must realize that his nervous vitality needs recharging. He should change his occupation to one where there is plenty of fresh air, and use different sets of muscles. All nervous excitement and worry should be avoided, and the patient should engage in a general health building regime. Immediate relief may be obtained by immersing the affected limb in hot water or applying hot towels to the cramped area.

Other types of cramps are caused by poor circulation which allows the blood to almost stagnate, not washing the toxins out of the muscle. Old folks are particularly afflicted in this manner, and the condition is usually accompanied with varicose veins or hardening of the arteries. In chronic diseases like Bright's disease, where there is a failure to sufficiently eliminate, toxins accumulate and cramps result.

Curiously enough, although insufficient exercise is the most frequent cause of cramps, because of the poor circulation, there is another type of cramp that occurs to athletes that are over-trained with an over-straining of the muscles. Cramps also occur to swimmers, in cold water, who are toxic or who enter the water too soon after eating.

Remember that all cramps are due to some neglect of the body, either wrong food, overwork or lack of elimination. A squeezing massage, working the blood toward the heart is valuable. Observing the correct diet and rest periods and the right kind of exercise will cure most cases, but where there is a chronic form it is well to use a cleansing orange juice fast to precede the diet. In cases of abdominal cramps, it is usually advisable to use a warm enema and a mild cathartic like milk of magnesia or castor oil.

If the cramps can be traced to any particular disease, it would naturally be necessary to diet for the cause. I have written articles on almost every common disease, and if you desire specific information, just send me the name of the disease, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will be glad to send my advice on the matter. I cannot diagnose disease by mail, and when you are in doubt about your trouble you should have a local doctor give you his diagnosis, on the receipt of which I will be glad to send my advice regarding the appropriate dietetic measures.

Questions and Answers

Question—H. E. D. writes: "I have had psoriasis on the left leg for 10 years, perhaps 12 spots. At odd times I have spots on my face. A specialist told me just to let it go—that there was no cure for it. Would appreciate your opinion."

Answer—Every case of psoriasis can be cured through dieting, but seldom through the application of remedies to the skin. Send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a special article I have on the subject of psoriasis.

Question—W. L. writes: "I am following your menus in the paper and am somewhat puzzled about the use of liquids, as you never mention any drink with meals."

Answer—The only drink I advise with or near meals is pure water, and then only if you feel thirsty. Drinking with meals is to be condemned generally because of the tendency to wash down food not properly masticated.

Question—H. G. writes: "Have become interested in your health articles and am asking advice for a friend. He is an old gentleman in the seventies, never been sick in his life, and is as full of ambition as any young man. But for some reason the dentists cannot replace his teeth, all of which he has lost. Now he suffers at times with pains in his stomach after eating, and the action of his bowels is not as it should be."

Answer—I am sure your friend will be able to secure artificial teeth which will fit if he can only find a dentist who is skilled enough. Modern dentistry has progressed very rapidly in the last 10 years, and dentists using the newer methods are able to do wonderful things that they could not accomplish before. Until your friend finds a dentist who can fit him properly, he should live on an exclusive milk diet, supplemented with minced non-starchy vegetables. Three quarts of milk daily will give him enough nourishment if the vegetables are used.

Charges Filed After Raid Near Courthouse

Charges of possession of intoxicating liquors were filed in federal court Monday morning against Mrs. R. Ketchum after she had been arrested in a raid on a two-story house within a block of the courthouse.

Mrs. Ketchum was arrested by Jim Glenn, police captain; Charles Gant, deputy sheriff; Fred Fountain and E. H. Thornton of the city police.

A quart of alleged whisky was seized during the raid, officers said.

The charges against Mrs. Ketchum were filed by Mr. Gant. She probably will be examined by the grand jury which reconvenes Tuesday after a three-day recess, according to Gage McDermett, assistant district attorney.

BLAST VICTIM BETTER

John M. Jones, oil field worker who was painfully burned in a boiler explosion near Holliday early Monday morning, was reported to be in an improved condition at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Monday night. It was not believed that his burns would prove fatal.

An ambulance of the Burris-Shepherd Undertaking company made the run to Holliday after 2 o'clock Monday morning to bring the injured man here.

Vincent Richards, for several reasons, was an amateur tennis champion. Being in the "amateur" class meant that he could accept no cash reimbursements.

Perhaps Mr. Richards was playing merely for the "love" of the game. But as one can't live indefinitely on love, Vinney finally broke loose from Mr. Myrick's net and joined Mr. Pyle's cash register.

"There are two incidents," Richards told me, "that I always laugh over whenever they recur to mind.

"The first is about Helen Wills. While she was in England some members of the tennis committee asked whether or not she would like to go to the 'Test Matches'—which are the finals of England's national sport—'Cricket.'

"Helen, not thinking at the spur of the moment, replied: 'No, I don't care for mathematics.'

HOMERS BY JENKINS AND LAPAN HELP SPUDDERS BEAT STEERS

COBB EKES OUT WIN BY 5 TO 4

Lamb, Turgeon and Swenson Aid With Timely Hits

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

That old sock—such as possessed by Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey—brings results. And it is loved by the crowds. The punch is the thing—and our Spudders had the punch yesterday. The result was that Homer Blankenship was driven off the hill and Lefty Pierce was batted hard and Jim Galloway's men won the opening game of the two-day battle for second place.

Incidentally, the Spudders gained half a game on the pace-setting Houston Buffs, who were idle.

Thanks to the aforementioned sock and some fast fielding, the Spudders carried off the long end of a 5 to 4 score in a slow but exciting game. Pastimes in which the winner is uncertain are always interesting and yesterday was one of those games to delight the patrons, of which there were a goodly number.

Jenkins Scintillates

Thomas Jenkins and Peter Lapan smote home runs over the wall and though there was no comrade on base on either occasion, their smacks were the margin by which victory was achieved. Jenkins further distinguished himself by smacking a couple of other hits, one of which was for two bases and helped send a teammate home. Also and furthermore, the estimable Mr. Jenkins roamed far and wide to pull down six Steer drives, in a glittering display of fielding.

Lyman Lamb continued his hitting pace by smacking two blows and Pete Turgeon whanged a brace of doubles, one of which came with a runner on base and the other that resulted in his scoring. Wally Swenson also whacked two blows, one driving home a mate.

Of the 10 hits by the homelings, all but three figured in the scoring.

On the other glove, Herb Cobb gave up 12 hits. But the citizen of Pine Top, N. C., bore down when threatened and was aided, as noted above, by some sparkling support. Also, it must be said, that the Steers helped our side along by some very slow base running.

Pierce Falters in Eighth

Blankenship, who had won something like 11 or 12 games while losing one or two for the Steers, started on the hill. But the combination of Spudder bats and the heat was too much for Ted's brother and Bert Ellison kindly told Homer to call it a day in the fifth inning, with two runners on base and one out. Pierce, a recent Dallas acquisition, took up the mound burden then and allowed a runner to score that inning.

The southpaw held the Spudders runless for the next two innings but in the eighth yielded a brace of tallies and three hits that meant the ball game.

Ellison's club of dangerous hitters gave the fans a fright in the ninth round and came near tying the score. They did score one run in that frame and had two runners on bases with two out. Joe Kiefer was warming up again and Skipper Galloway fidgeted in the dugout, apparently about ready to summon Joseph to duty. But the next batter rolled out to Turgeon to end the suspense and perhaps save us the ball game.

Spudders Score in Second

The Spudders scored the first run in the second inning. Lamb led off with a single to center and flashed some fast base running to go to third on Jenkins' short hit to left which enabled Tom to reach second. Swenson hit to center, Lamb scoring.

Dallas tied it in the fifth. Tate, first up, singled to right. Seimer skied to Roetz. Blankenship doubled (his second of the game) to left, Tate stopping at third. O'Brien's bounder hopped over Swenson when Wally was all set for the ball, Tate scoring. O'Brien was trapped off first on Jenkins' throw to Turgeon and Pete threw to Lapan to catch Blankenship, Homer finally being run down.

Wichita Falls tallied two to take the lead in its half. Lapan, first up, hit over the left field fence for his home run. Cobb struck out. Mellano juggled Mann's throw on Roetz' grounder and Eddie was safe. Turgeon doubled past Tate, Roetz pulling up at third. Fitzgerald skied to O'Brien, Roetz scoring.

Steers Tie Score

The Steers tallied in the sixth and seventh to even the count. Rosenthal started the sixth with a double to right. Miller walked. Hack's third base on balls of the game. Mellano forced Miller, Swenson to Roetz, Rosenthal going to third. Mann singled to left, Rosenthal scoring.

Pierce opened the seventh with a single to right and continued to second when Lamb fielded the ball slowly. O'Brien sacrificed, Cobb to Turgeon, and Morse's fly to Lamb sent Pierce home.

The Spudders scored two in the eighth. Turgeon started it with his second double to left, a short lift that O'Brien came racing in for to spoil any chance Rosenthal may have had to field the ball. Fitzgerald advanced Turgeon to third with a well placed bunt to Tate, and Lamb's fly to O'Brien scored Pete. Up came Tut Jenkins and he smashed one over the center field wall, a mighty wallop.

Ellison's men rallied in the ninth. Gingiardi batted for Seimer after one was out and singled to left. Pierce's second hit to the same territory sent Gingiardi to second. Jenkins took O'Brien's lift. Morse singled to left, Gingiardi scoring. Turgeon threw out Rosenthal for the third out.

Morgan and Martin Set For Title Go Tomorrow

NEW YORK, July 9. (UP)—Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., junior lightweight champion, and Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, former bantamweight champion, will conclude training Tuesday for their 15-round championship match at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

Confident of victory, Morgan told Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy today to attempt to get him a match with Sammy Mandell for the lightweight championship.

KELLIO VICTOR IN ROUGH BOUT

Gus Beats Joe Parelli In Three-Fall Match

It was every man for himself last night on the card staged by Alec Ross in Spudder park and Gus Kellio, junior middleweight wrestling champion, was the best man. He manifested this fact when he threw Joe Parelli, "the rough and tough boy," for a duo of falls after a hard struggle.

It was a fast and furious affair from the start and conducted under New York Commission rules, which meant "everything goes except strangling an' shooting."

Parelli started off the evening by taking the first fall after "considerable mat argument" from Kellio. Parelli "made a good job" with a body slam.

After 28 minutes of more "mat argument" Kellio took the second fall with a body slam slip. Parelli started the slam but Kellio ducked from under his arms and Joe went the mat, shoulders flat on the canvas, with Kellio on top of him.

Moore's Foe Missing

Kellio took the final fall with an arm knuckle: Parelli's right "fin" was doubled in two or three knots and he tumbled to the mat with Kellio still holding the knuckle while Parelli took a "nap" flat on the roped arena.

Due to the fact that Private Walker, light heavyweight pug, did not make his appearance for his scheduled bout with Dempse Moore, the announcement was made by Ross that tickets would be returned which will be good for entrance to the next card. Walker in telegrams and letters informed Ross that he would be in Wichita Falls Monday night; however, he did not make his appearance and the bout was cancelled.

Paddock Cleared Of 'Pro' Charge

A. A. U. Rules Charley Is Eligible for Olympics

NEW YORK, July 9. (US)—Charlie Paddock, so-called "fastest human," is eligible to represent the United States at the Olympic games.

That was the verdict handed down tonight by the A. A. U. which has been investigating charges of professionalism against the California sprinter.

Notes of the Game

The break of the game that favored the Steers in the fifth inning was similar to a famous play that won a world series victory. O'Brien's bounder that hopped over Swenson was like the hit to Lindstrom that enabled the Washington Senators to beat the New York Giants a few years ago.

It was an interesting game—but the delaying of play by the Steers, particularly Blankenship's slowness in throwing the ball, annoyed the fans.

Once half a dozen Steers went into a huddle around Blankenship, imparting advice to the pitcher.

Then Ellison took him out.

Miller had a perfect day at bat—with one hit. He walked three times. On all four occasions that he reached first Hack was forced at second by Mellano.

Skipper Bert Ellison, out of the game yesterday with an injured leg probably will be back at first base today.

Mellano is an infielder acquired by Dallas from the Athletics when Billy Mullen hurt his trick knee here and was returned to Detroit.

Johnny Mann handled six chances flawlessly and banged a pair of hits.

Roetz had seven putouts, an unusual record for a shortstop.

Turgeon accepted eight chances without a bobble.

Runyon Commends Mother Hughes' Meals as Fare for Thomas Heeney

It Was at Her Table That Dempsey and Tunney Boarded Before Winning Championship of World

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 9.—In pastoral peace and quiet, not to say solitude, Thomas Heeney, the old rock of down under, makes ready for his encounter the latter part of the month with Mister Gene Tunney.

I believe they call this general vicinity Fair Haven. It is a couple of jumps from Rumson, the home of Mickey Walker, and about five miles from Long Beach, where both Jack Dempsey and later Mister Gene Tunney boarded with Mother Hughes.

I have suggested to the agile Mr. Francis Albertanti, of Mr. Tex Rickards publicity forces, who has arrived here to stoke up the feeble fires of ballyhoo under this Tunney-Heeney matter, that he ought to take Thomas Heeney over to Long Branch and load him up with one of Mother Hughes' meals.

They must be mighty potent, filled with calories, and good luck. It was at Mother Hughes' boarding house that Jack Dempsey lived and ate in the days when his flanks were thin, and his bankroll even more so. I recall I found him there with both feet under Mother Hughes' plethoric board before his fight with falling Fred Fulton at Harrison.

After that fight, if you could call it such, Jack Dempsey returned to Mother Hughes' to resume foddering up until he went west to fight Jess Willard. It was in Mother Hughes' modest little "parlor" one coolish night in 1917 that Dempsey gave me the details of his early hobo career for the first chapters of "A Tale of Two Fists," which was his life story.

I recall distinctly the pride of the rough and ready looking Dempsey in those days in those episodes that have since become an unpleasant memory to the millionaire.

His Early Training Camp

He had a little training camp in Long Branch then. Marty Burke of New Orleans, at that time a mild looking boy of about 18, was his chief sparring partner.

"What a great looking prospect that kid is," commented Mr. Ike Dorgan. "Reminds me of old Bob Fitzsimmons."

A great looking prospect Marty Burke was, indeed, but he left his pugilistic future in Dempsey's training camp, not only then, but down through the years that were to come. Jack Kearns was boarding with Dempsey at Mother Hughes, of course. They had mighty little money. It was a welcome haven to them.

In 1923, Dempsey, loaded with his championship honors, and but recently the conqueror of the wilted orchid of France, M. Georges Carpentier, again paid a visit to Long Branch for no other purpose than to get a square meal at Mother Hughes.'

Mr. Joseph Bannon, the debonair circulation manager, who had been Dempsey's timekeeper, and Mr. Joseph Benjamin, the erstwhile lightweight, who had been one of Dempsey's sparring partners and seconds, were with the champion on that visit.

I went along to see if Dempsey's report on Mother Hughes' victuals were well founded. They were.

After Him Came Tunney

Several years later, a new boarder shoved a brace of big feet under Mother Hughes' groaning board, the blonde Gene Tunney, then a modest youth with none of the airs and manners that he has since acquired and probably with more appetite.

He lived at Mother Hughes' for some time, and of an evening he would stroll around into Broadway, which is Long Branch's main drag and visit Meade's Strand theater to see the movies. It was to Read's that the picture called the "Dare Devil Jack," came in the course of cinema events and it was as "Dare Devil Jack" that Mister Gene Tunney saw the old boarder of Mother Hughes that he was to supplant as heavyweight champion of the world.

It is not of record that Mister Tunney ever returned to Mother Hughes as champion, or to the banks of the Shrewsbury hard by where he subsequently held forth for some time. Mister Tunney is not one who cherishes those old associations of the days of his pugilistic privations. In fact, he would rather forget them.

The House Still Thrives

And Mother Hughes' boarding house still thrives, and I insist that it might do Thomas Heeney a lot of good to wrap himself around some home cooking. Also it would give Mr. Francis Albertanti a touch of romance wherewith to embellish his naratives to the press, and Mr. Albertanti certainly needs a touch of something to keep the public prints interested in what goes forward here.

The spot selected for Thomas Heeney's training is in the heart of the Mike Jacobs district of New Jersey on the Rumson road. Mr. Jacobs is that big ticket man of the roaring forties whose name is sometimes anathema to the pugilistic clients, although Mr. Jacobs insists that he is sadly misjudged.

Mr. Jacobs tells me, confidentially that he is really a philanthropist, and that the world will retract that it has said of him when he is dead and gone.

Mr. Jacobs lives up the road a piece. Naturally, this is rather an inaccessible region. You don't suppose Mr. Jacobs is sucker enough to live in an easily accessible neighborhood, do you? If you do, you don't know Mr. Jacobs. He comes and goes to his residence via detours, in fact, the reason New Jersey has so many detours is to convenience Mr. Jacobs.

It's on a Dog Ranch

Thomas Heeney's camp is pitched on the estate of Mr. Raymond Hoagland, owner of the Rumson farm kennels, which produces some of the finest pointers and setters in the world.

One of the pointers was found this morning pointing on Paul Swiderski, the Syracuse light heavyweight, who is one of Thomas Heeney's sparring partners, and it required a lot of argument to shake the pointer off his stand. He probably thought he had found a new species of Chinese pheasants, although Mr. Swiderski has his own explanation.

"That guy knows I'm a game bird," said Mr. Swiderski, modestly.

In any event, Mr. Hoagland's dogs are even more interesting than the training activities of Thomas Heeney, that is, to a dog fancier. Mr. C. S. Ridge, the manager of the kennel, got out Rumson Farm Marex, his field famous trial winner this afternoon, and I was so busy examining the dog that I almost missed part of Thomas Heeney's work.

But of that anon, as the fellow said. I will report to you tomorrow on my findings, if any, after watching the old rock of down under at his labors.

Ritt's Riticisms

By BILL RITT

Ball players aren't the only ones who put on double-headers. The papers had Tex Rickard buying the Giants twice in the same week.

So many new records have been set this year that all the record books are now printed in a dead language.

A young wrestling phenom was thrown in his first big bout. He's probably just learning from the ground up.

Babe Ruth put his signature on 53 balls the other day. He used his pen for 51 and his bat for the other two.

Rumor says the Giants plan to play their games in the Yankee stadium. Probably in hopes that folks will mistake them for the Yankees.

Harvard has just announced tickets for the Yale game will be $5 each. Judging from the past performances Harvard won't get half that much fun out of it.

The office stenog reading the yacht news yesterday remarked she always thought a spanking breeze was wind caused by Dad's razor strap.

Gene Defies Heat to Box 10 Rounds at Speculator

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 9. (UP)—Gene Tunney defied the heat today and boxed the equivalent of 10 rounds, going three rounds each with Harold Mays and Billy Vidabeck. He punched the bags for the other four rounds. The champion did not roadwork.

Orrie Nobles of Seattle, Wash., an artist, arrived in camp for a few days' visit with Tunney.

ROBERTSON PITCHES

No-Hit Charley Opposes Spudders Today In Last of Series

Charley Robertson will oppose the Spudders today in the second and final game of the series with the Dallas Steers. Manager Bert Ellison of the Bovines last night announced he will send "No Hit" Charley to the mound today. Jim Galloway, boss of the Spudders, indicated George Payne will chuck for his nine.

Robertson was recently purchased by the Steers from the Boston Braves for $7500, a huge sum for a class A club to pay for an athlete.

Charley is an immortal of baseball. Several years ago, pitching for the Chicago White Sox against the Detroit Tigers, Robertson, then a rookie from Texas, hurled a perfect no-hit, no-run game. Not a Tiger reached first base in that remarkable game.

Herb Pennock shutout St. Louis with only six hits in the first encounter, but the Browns got revenge in the second by batting out 20 hits off the delivery of four Yankee pitchers. Score:

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

J. ALVIN GARDNER, master mind of baseball. Borrowing the appellation worn by John McGraw for the occasion, I am writing of the uncanny ability to discern baseball talent in a young player as shown by the president of the Spudders. It seems that it is only necessary for Gardner to say a rookie will deliver—and presto!—the rookie immediately becomes a star. For instance, the two rookies on the club last season were Wally Swenson and Herbert Cobb. Swenson took his place in the regular lineup and was a valuable factor in the Spudders' championship victories. Cobb showed enough in 110 innings to warrant the belief he would be a regular this season, an opinion that has materialized.

When Gardner disposed of George Lafayette and purchased Buck Stanton from the Virginia league last winter, there was the cry of some croakers that J. Alvin had shipped away an invaluable cog in the championship machine and acquired doubtful replacement. The wisdom of those deals became apparent before many days of the current Texas league season had passed. Lafayette was given his unconditional release by the Fort Worth Cats several days before midseason. Stanton is one of the most promising youngsters in the league and shows constant improvement. He is a potential major leaguer and a fixture as a high class minor league ball player.

JOE LUCIANA was retained with Stanton to comprise the two rookies required by Texas league rules. But Gardner was not satisfied Luciana would fill the bill. So he sent to Abilene and brought back Edward Roetz, retaining this kid in preference to the more experienced Luciana. Roetz is the newest sensation of the Texas league. His batting, marked by home run and other extra base drives, has been phenomenal. His fielding at shortstop still leaves much to be desired. But Roetz' batting more than compensates for deficiencies he has afield—and Ed is improving steadily in defensive play.

I DON'T BELIEVE Roetz is a morning glory. He seems to be one of those natural hitters, who will hit any pitching, anywhere. He apparently is without a weakness—or if he has a defect at the plate opposing hurlers haven't discovered it. A keen eye that passed up bad balls for the good ones, and a flexible wrist movement that gives the drive to his socks, enables Eddie to make frequent hits. He isn't a big fellow. But there is power in his arms and shoulders—and he has an easy, free style of meeting the ball that is beautiful to behold.

DEFENSIVELY, EDDIE isn't a star. At least he hasn't been at shortstop. This has been due to a tendency to fight the ball. But Roetz seems to be overcoming that habit. Too, he is of a phlegmatic temperament that refuses to worry, a great factor in his favor. He may be out of position at shortstop. Eddie isn't slow but he isn't exactly a speed merchant and won't cover a whole lot of ground at shortstop. Third base would seem his more natural position. With his superb throwing arm, Ed can knock down a lot of drives and throw out runners. However, I hasten to add that he isn't a woefully weak fielding shortstop—and reiteratte that he is improving steadily in playing that position.

Stanton is a finished first baseman. I think he is the class of the league right now in fielding his position. He hits the ball hard, too, and while his batting average isn't so high, it is creditable. But averages don't always tell a player's worth as a hitter and Stanton, be it noted, has clouted a flock of hard knocks this season that have been fielded. The luck will turn and those blows will go for base hits. Stanton should hit .300 consistently—and with his brilliant fielding that will make him a star in almost any league.

I KNEW STANTON would be a star when I saw him make one play. It was early in the season, the opening day game with Shreveport, I believe. A Shreveport runner was on second base and none or one out. The batter bunted to George. Without hesitation, showing flashing mental and physical coordination and finesse that would have done credit to a Chase or Sisler, Stanton pounced upon the ball and whipped it to third, a perfect throw retiring the surprised runner. That play was a sample of the Stanton fielding ability, which he displays every day.

DEMAND FOR OIL GETS STRONGER

Seminole Seems to Have Hit Toboggan

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

Announcement made Monday of the advance in Pennsylvania and other eastern crude, the second and the past month, was welcome news to the operators and others in this section. While no raise is looked for at present in the Mid-continent price, these advances in the eastern market has given local oil operators a more optimistic feeling than they have experienced for some time, in as much as it shows there exists a limited amount of oil in the storage and lines throughout the eastern fields. This oil with its high lubricating content has been taken rapidly from storage and it is at present a case of demand versus supply, with the latter being fast exhausted.

But with the petroleum industry like other commercial enterprises which have their ups and downs, the one "bright cloud" right now that the operators can look to with a certain satisfaction is the fast decline of the output from Seminole in Oklahoma.

This field which nearly two years ago practically demoralized the industry by its wonderful production of 500,000 barrels per day, thrown on an already overloaded market, and which of late has shown a gradual decline each day, shipped more oil last week than the pool produced, and is still dropping.

Other factors in the holding down of Mid-continent prices is the fear of the West Texas counties with their millions of barrels of oil in storage, and the vast potential production that underlie that part of the Lone Star state.

However, the rapid falling down of the eastern pool, and Seminole in Oklahoma, it is only a question of time until a sharp demand will be made on the storage and stocks of the Mid-continent.

Shipments of Crude From Seminole Exceed Production By 8000 Bbls.

TULSA, Okla., July 9.—Shipments of oil from the Seminole field the past fiscal week averaged 249,000 barrels a day, being around 8000 barrels a day more than was production. Some of the shipments, moved from one tank farm to another and cannot be really regarded as a withdrawal.

A week ago the then 1088 wells in the field were producing as follows:

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—The government report showing an unexpectedly large increase in the estimated acreage, was followed by a decline of about $4 a bale in the cotton market today. After selling up to 22.54 at the opening, October broke to 21.59 in late trading and closed at 21.62, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 78 to 84 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 8 points on moderate demand, evidently promoted by reports of further showers in the eastern and central belts. This bulge met considerable liquidation and prices eased off several points, but on the whole held fairly steady on the unfavorable view of weather conditions and the continued bullish average of private crop advices.

The government report, however, placing the acreage under cultivation as of July at 46,695,000 acres, or 11.4 per cent increase, as compared with the revised figures of last year, was considerably above the average of recent private reports and proved the signal for heavy general liquidation. Prices broke very sharply, the market's first response to the report being a break of about 60 to 89 points. As this first flurry of selling subsided, prices stiffened up a few points on covering and trade buying, but almost immediately weakened again as circulation of the acreage figures seemed to bring in selling through wire and commission houses. Local and Wall street liquidation continued and while there were bulges from time to time during the afternoon, they invariably met increased offerings.

The lowest prices were touched in late trading, July selling at 21.40 and December 21.43 or about 78 to 89 points net lower on the general list. The close was within a few points of the lowest.

The trade generally had expected the government report to show an increase in acreage, but was not prepared for such large figures. Recent private reports on the acreage had placed the probable increase at figures ranging from all the way from 2.1 up to 9.1 per cent and averaging around 6 per cent. The official figures, pointing to an increase of 11.4 per cent made a correspondingly bearish impression on sentiment, although the effect was probably modified to some extent by the official comments stating that the reported stand of cotton is 6 per cent below this time last year.

Exports today 5,135 making 7,562,617 so far this season. Port receipts 5,932. U. S. port stocks 808,472.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 9. (AP)—A decline of $5 a bale followed publication of the government's acreage report in the cotton market today. The report showed an increase of 11.4 per cent in the acreage under cultivation July 1. The selling and liquidation that developed carried October contracts off from 22.00 to 20.99, 101 points down. The option closed one point above the low at a net loss of 91 points. The general market closed easier at declines of 91 to 93 points.

The opening was steady despite lower Liverpool cables. First trades were unchanged to 5 points up and prices continued to advance after the start under buying inspired by rains in the belt over Sunday and October eventually traded to 22.00 and December 21.95, or 6 to 9 points above the previous close.

These prices proved to be the highs of the day as immediately after the acreage report was issued the market sagged 85 points to 21.15 for October and 21.10 for December. The break brought out profit-taking by satisfied shorts and October recovered to 21.45 or 30 points above the low point.

The recovery was not maintained, however, as a renewal of liquidation carried prices off to new lows for the day, with October deliveries selling off to 20.99 and December 20.94, or 101 points under the highs and 92 to 39 points below Saturday's closing quotations. The close was at or near the bottom.

The session was one of the most active experienced here this season although in early trading the market was quiet owing to the unwillingness of traders to enter upon new commitments in advance of the acreage report.

Oils in Better Demand as Increased Call Rate Bolsters Stock Sales

BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 9.—Steel assumed more prominence in a quiet but slightly more irregular stock market, today. It was bought in big blocks at times and while the advance influenced some liquidation, it held part of its gain to the close. Selling was increased after noon when the banks called $15,000,000 in loans and the call rate jumped from a renewal of 5½ to 6 per cent.

Montgomery Ward and other chain store shares added to their advances with Montgomery Ward scoring one of the best gains for the day.

Although radio was tipped rather widely, it failed to hold against comparatively light selling. Wright and other airplane corners followed Radio down. Rails remained soft although St. Paul was helped by the special analysis of a leading firm.

Oils were in better demand with Sinclair taking the lead.

Commodities turned weaker on bearish weather news, wheat dropping quite sharply while cotton sagged under steady realizing.

Foreign exchange was irregular, also, with sterling and most other European monies losing fractionally for the day.

Steel was helped by reports of tax refunds and also by expectation of issuance of favorable tonnage report at noon, tomorrow. It developed during the afternoon that the corporation had filed suit claiming a $101,500,000 tax refund largely on account of 1927 payment. It is one thing to claim a refund from the treasury and another to get it. Before definite action is taken, there will be considerable work to go through and rather long drawn out litigation. The report showing unfilled orders as of June 30, is expected to show gain of about 100,000 tons in orders on the books. The increase, it is claimed, resulted from the greater amount of new business to make its appearance in the last half of the month. Increased demand to be shown in the report, it was maintained, was holding up well and promised a favorable third quarter. Steel earnings for the second quarter, to be announced July 24, are estimated at about $2.50 a share.

Allied Chemical responded further to talk of a split up soon, such as forecast some time ago exclusively in this column. As the corporation is a large holder of steel common, it also benefits from the strength of that stock and the more favorable outlook for the corporation. General Motors was churned in quite a lively manner, for the present bull leaders are keeping it as their favorite attraction to get the public back into the market so that they can cash in on the renewed outbreak of wild trading they expect to result.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 9.—Not in many a day have the grain markets presented such a sad spectacle as today when crashing prices left the pits a litter of wrecked optimism and shattered good things.

At the end wheat was down 3⅛c to 4c; corn was down 2⅝c to 4⅛c; oats were down 1⅝c to 5½c; rye was down 4⅛c to 5⅝c.

There was not a single bright spot for bulls—not even a startling explanation in the news to account for the sensational giving away of prices.

As a matter of fact the breaks in all the grains looked like belated liquidation. Longs, bereft of hope by fine weather, crop conditions and the lack of outside buying, began to let go of their holdings. Nobody but shorts appeared to want what was offered for sale.

There is, or was, a big long interest in September corn. Most of the "grain services" have been advising purchasing this and holding on to it. How this will turn out remains to be seen. The situation does not seem to have by any means clarified itself yet.

The nearby futures of corn are dangerous to trade in. December corn has been heavily sold on the prospect of a bumper new crop. That prospect, however, may change before this month is out. Already some observers are beginning to report that the new crop is not nearly so excellent as supposed.

It will be difficult, for a time at least, to make the trade believe that. Too many individual observers have been out in the country recently looking over the corn for themselves.

Wheat and rye appear to be being driven into a corner from which they eventually will fight their way out when the markets become sufficiently oversold. But right now, only brave traders will buy these grains.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1c off; corn was unchanged to 2½c off; oats were unchanged to 2c off rye was quiet; barley was 1c lower.

Cotton Prices Break On Rain Reports

Cotton dropped off from 90 to 115 points over last week's prices Monday, with middling quoted at 20.75 and 20.50 on the close of local markets. The drop was caused by general rains over the cotton growing section during the week end.

Poultry markets were unchanged.

REICH INFANT BURIED TODAY

Child Succumbs to Dose of Insect Powder

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, July 9.—Funeral services will be held at the First Methodist church here at 5 p. m. Tuesday for Carl Robert Reich, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Reich, who died from accidental poisoning late Monday morning. The rites will be in charge of the Rev. H. E. Anderson. Burial will be in the Electra cemetery.

The infant died about two hours after he had been given a dose of insect powder, which had been mistaken for medicine. Discovering the mistake, his parents rushed him to the office of a local physician where efforts to prevent death were unavailing.

The Reich family has lived about two miles from Electra for several years, and is well known in this vicinity.

This concern is one of the three largest manufacturers of safety razors and blades in the world. Its factories are operated in New York City, Newark, Toronto, Rio de Janeiro and London, and offices and agencies are maintained in various parts of the world.

The class A stock is preferred as to assets at $55 a share and accrued dividends, and as to cumulative dividends of $3 a share per year, payable quarterly. It is convertible into class B stock share for share, and has equal voting rights with the class B share for share.

Dividends on the preferred stock of the old AutoStrop Safety Razor company were paid at varying rates up to January 1928. On the common stock of the old AutoStrop company, a stock dividend equivalent to $169,356 was paid in January, 1927. On the class A stock of the present company, an initial quarterly dividend of 75c was paid October 1, 1927, and has been maintained since.

Start Your Want Ad With the Key Word

TO simplify and hasten the finding of particular offerings listed in the Want Ad columns—the ads should begin with the name of the article or thing or its location. That is, if you are advertising for help, and the particular kind of position you have to offer is a bookkeeper, start the want ad with "Bookkeeper wanted"; if you are selling an automobile, start the ad with the make—that is, if it is a Studebaker, make the name of the car the first word or key word of your ad.

THIS aids readers to find quickly the article or thing that they seek.

GUIDE yourself in selecting the proper key word from the following table.

Longest Rescue Trip Completed

In response to a call to Merritt, Chapman and Scott, they sent their salvage ship Peacock from San Pedro, Calif., to the scene. OFFICER FILES SECOND BOND

Wigley's Original Sureties Secure Release

Application of bondsmen of Grady Wigley, Iowa Park constable, that they be released from the personal bond which was given the county commissioners court early last year was approved by the commissioners court at its Monday meeting.

Mr. Wigley was notified that his bond was forfeited and was ordered to make new bond, forfeiting his office until this was done. Mr. Wigley's bondsmen were Earl C. Knox, R. E. Golden, E. H. F. Rathke.

Shortly before adjournment of the court at noon Monday, Mr. Wigley appeared before the court with a new bond on which E. H. F. Rathke, R. W. Harryman, J. R. O'Donohoe and Tom W. Carpenter were signers, and the new bond was accepted.

The commissioners also ordered the board of the Wichita General hospital to prepare a budget for the ensuing year, to be submitted to the commissioners on July 16. Dr. C. R. Hartsook is chairman of the board.

George Craig was ordered by the court to spray the 62 trees about the courthouse with lead arsenic, lime sulphate and oil soap. The shrubbery on the courthouse grounds was not included in the order. A payment of $30 was approved.

Mrs. Harwood Stacy Again Wins Texas Composers' Prize

Mrs. Harwood Stacy of Austin, formerly of Wichita Falls, won first prize in the Texas composers' contest sponsored by the San Antonio Musical club, according to word received here Tuesday.

Mrs. Stacy, well known in musical circles here, also won the first prize last year, and is now ineligible for competition for one year under the club's rules which provide against participation in the contest if the prize is won by the same person two years in succession.

The prize was awarded Mrs. Stacy by Mrs. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., who was judge of the contest. "Caprice Espagnole" is the title of Mrs. Stacy's winning composition.

A lone baboon wandered into the Lions club municipal zoo Monday, a day behind his comrades who were on a special car that arrived slightly more than 24 hours earlier.

The animal is a large galeda or bleeding heart. On its breast is the outline of a heart. In a few months this heart will become a brilliant crimson, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

The baboon is one of a number of animals being received here from the Horn zoological gardens in Kansas City.

KIWANIS TELL OF CONVENTION

Hospitality in Northwest Praised by Wichitans

The entire Pacific Northwest, not alone Seattle, Wash., scene of the gathering, was on tiptoe to assure delegates to the Kiwanis international convention a jovial time, according to delegates from the local club, who told their impressions to their fellows at Monday's luncheon. The convention was held last month.

J. L. Jackson, Jr., made the sweeping compliment to the Kiwanians of the Pacific coast, and went further to describe the new attendance provision adopted by the convention.

Other speakers who talked about the convention included Paul Pearson, who talked of the business sessions and remembered some of the speeches delivered; William E. Young, who sang before the convention, and who repeated that everybody had a real, good time; and Frank Moore, Kiwanian of Henrietta, who said that the scenery on the trip was beautiful.

Two-Hour Parking Limit for Trucks In Alleys Favored by City Council

An amendment to the city ordinance relative to parking in alleys was passed on its first reading at the meeting of the city council, Monday evening. A time limit of two hours was placed on parking delivery trucks, work trucks and other commercial trucks for the purpose of loading or unloading, provided that such trucks be parked parallel with the building and be bona fide trucks used by the business firm near which they are parked.

The amendment was drafted to read 30 minutes maximum parking time for trucks in alleys, but was changed following the hearing of a delegation of business men headed by E. F. Riley of the Riley Furniture company. Riley contended that 30 minutes parking privilege would not allow sufficient time for loading and unloading of furniture and that inasmuch as the company garages might be located several blocks from the business house, such short time limit might prove inconvenient and impracticable. Riley contested for a three-hour parking limit.

The council authorized the city clerk to advertise for bids for a city depository for the fiscal year beginning August 1, bids to be received until 7:30 p. m., July 16. The council also authorized the city clerk to advertise for bids on legal advertising.

"Anyone who does not know what to do with his weeds or who has not seen one of the trash haulers who cover the city, may call the city sanitary department office in the memorial auditorium, and we will be glad to see that some hauler calls."

J. A. HOOD
It is one of the great fundamental principles of a democracy that public favors should be distributed. In a choice between two persons for a public office where each is well qualified; which should be chosen, the one that has served at length as a public official or the one that has never served as a public official? The answer is evident.—J. A. Hood.

CONOCO-ETHYL REPLIES AS FOLLOWS:—

CONOCO ETHYL GASOLINE

1 Of what are you composed?
I am a combination of Conoco, the extra-miles gasoline, and Ethyl brand of Anti-Knock Compound, the fluid developed by General Motors after years of exhaustive research. Ethyl is the most effective Anti-Knock Compound yet discovered.

2 How do you stop "Knocks"?
The Ethyl Fluid controls the combustion rate of the gasoline. It keeps it from burning too quickly in the presence of carbon and at high temperature.

3 Do you increase power?
Yes. Carbon deposits increase the compression of the ordinary compression motor because they decrease the size of the combustion chamber and thereby furnish greater pressure against the pistons. Since Ethyl fluid neutralizes the heating qualities of carbon and maintains the normal combustion rate of gasoline, this increased pressure becomes increased power.
As for the new, specially designed high-compression motors, Ethyl made them commercially possible.

4 Why are you colored red?
So that you may know me when you see me. The color is an oil soluble—absolutely harmless. I must warn you, though, that some imitators are also colored red, so be sure to fill only at those pumps which display the Conoco Ethyl sign.

5 Why should a motorist pay slightly more per gallon for you than he does for ordinary gasoline?
Because in the long run I save him money. I more than pay for myself in (1) freedom from the expense of carbon removal, (2) elimination of engine wear and tear caused by knocking and (3) more power for every gallon.

6 To sum up—just what may the user expect from Conoco Ethyl Gasoline?
A smoother running engine.
More power—particularly on hills and heavy roads.
Quicker acceleration.
Less gear shifting.
No knocks—without retarding the spark.
More economical operation.
