Clinton offers tax cuts, balanced budget by 2002

Most deficit savings would follow his term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton sent Congress today a $1.69 trillion spending plan that cuts taxes for the middle class, provides billions of dollars to upgrade education and still claims balance in 2002. A key Republican said it wasn't a bold step, but perhaps a first step toward a balanced budget.

Balancing the budget after three decades of red ink is the top priority of Clinton's second term, and he portrayed his plan as a good-faith offer to Republicans to achieve that.

"I urge Congress to help me finish the job and balance the budget by 2002," the president said in his budget message.

Under the president's spending blueprint, the deficit would rise this year. And nearly two-thirds of the $388 billion in deficit savings Clinton envisions would not occur until 2001 and 2002, after he has left office.

The GOP has already let it be known it will insist on tax cuts double Clinton's $98 billion. They also want steeper and quicker reductions in spending and more power shifted from Washington to the states.

For the 1998 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, Clinton proposes spending $1.69 trillion, up 3.5 percent from projected spending of $1.63 trillion this year.

The new budget projects that the deficit, which posted a fourth-straight decline to $107.3 billion in 1996, will rise to $125.6 billion this year before starting to decline again. It would achieve a $17 billion surplus in 2002.

Those projections are based on economic assumptions significantly more optimistic than those used by Republicans, although neither side is forecasting a recession between now and 2002. Such an event would derail both spending plans.

The biggest chunk of savings in Clinton's plan — $100 billion over five years — would come from Medicare, the big government program that provides health care to the elderly.

On taxes, Clinton's budget would honor his campaign promise to offer a $500 tax credit for children 12 or younger, a $1,500 tax credit to pay for the first two years of college and tax deductions covering up to $10,000 in education expenses for many families.

On other programs, Clinton proposed:

—Expanding Medicaid, the state-federal health program for the poor, to cover unemployed workers and children not now eligible. Total Medicaid spending would be reduced, however. The expanded coverage would cost $13 billion more, but there would be $22 billion in cuts, principally through caps on expenditures per recipient.

—A trigger that would automatically reduce spending and eliminate certain tax cuts if the deficits exceeded projections in 2001 and 2002. Republicans have objected to this trigger mechanism.

—Restoring $21 billion of the $55 billion in savings from last year's welfare overhaul legislation, as he promised during the campaign. Most of the increases would go to restoring legal immigrants' eligibility for benefits.

—A 4.9 percent increase to $12.8 billion for the National Institutes of Health, with increases going to research on AIDS, breast cancer and spinal cord injuries.

—A 1.1 percent increase in law enforcement programs to $24.9 billion to continue Clinton's program of putting 100,000 new officers on the streets by 2000.

Budget offers billions for state programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The yearly dance between the White House and the Congress over spending priorities officially kicked off today, with release of President Clinton's fiscal 1998 budget.

The nation's second most populous state has a huge amount riding on the outcome of the federal budget discussions.

The most recent Consolidated Federal Funds Report, reflecting 1995 spending, showed Texas received nearly $84 billion in total direct payments from Washington. That spans everything from federal employees' salaries to food stamp payments, crop assistance, Social Security payments and defense contracts.

Clinton's budget proposes restoring billions of dollars to help legal immigrants cut off from food stamps and Supplemental Security Income payments under the Republican-crafted welfare bill he signed last year.

Congressional Republican leaders thus far haven't given any sign they're willing to revisit that issue in great depth, despite a call by some Republican and Democrat governors to do so.

Welfare aside, in another budget arena Congress is likely to take Clinton's request and add more money. During Clinton's term, Congress has boosted his defense spending requests. This year, the president is proposing a $247.5 billion defense budget.

The Pentagon's continued focus on air power and procurement of a new generation of fighter jets bodes well for the North Texas defense establishment.

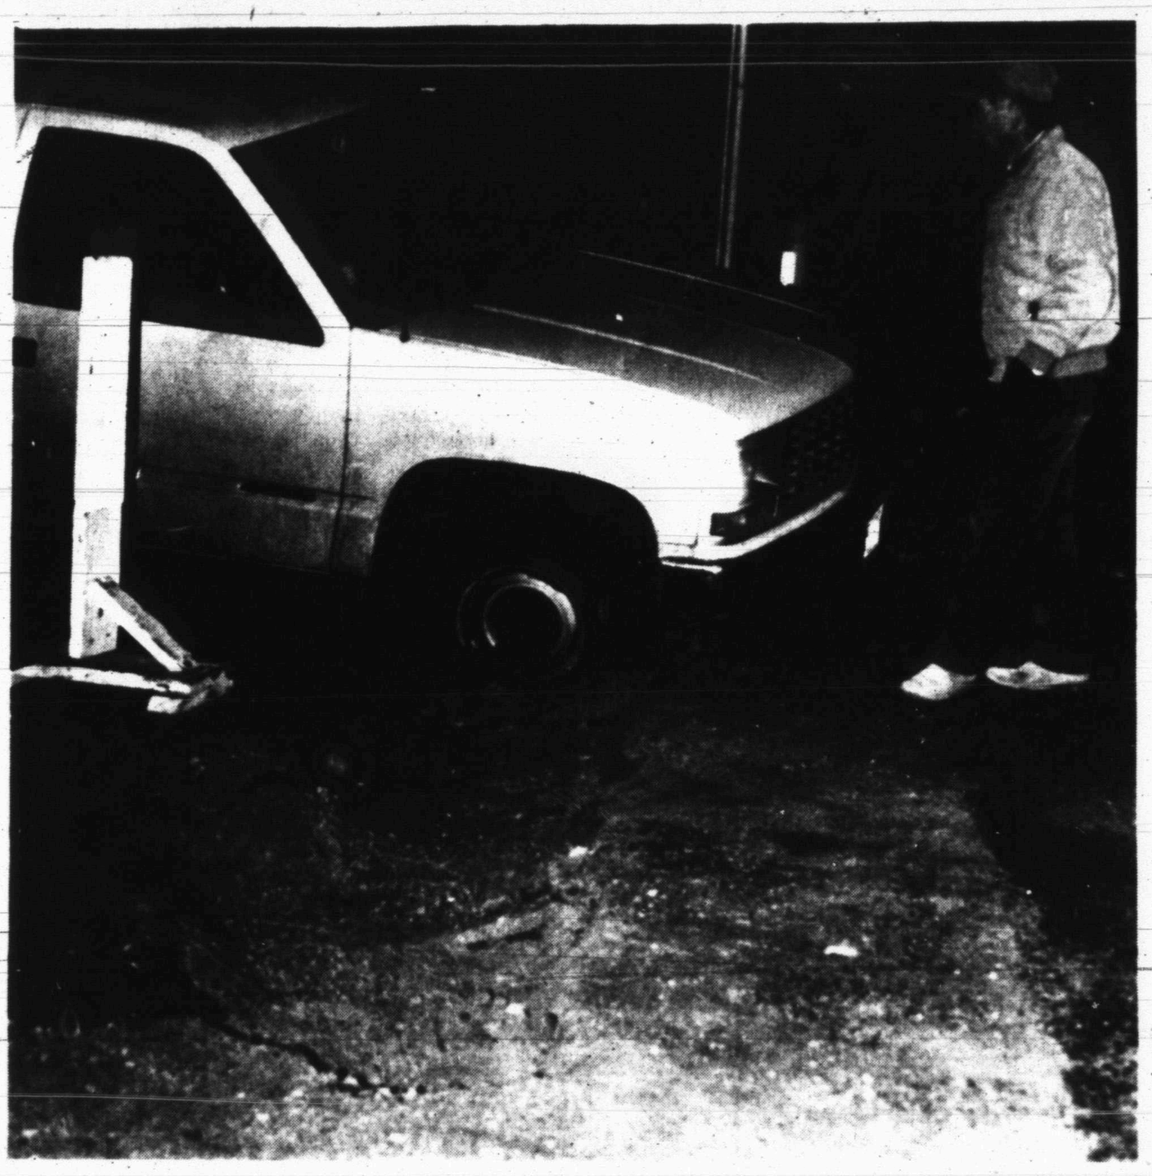

The budget includes billions of dollars for procurement of the V-22 tilt-rotor, combat helicopters, high-tech missile systems and continued development of the F-22 advanced tactical fighter.

While it doesn't include any money for procurement of the F-16 fighter manufactured in Fort Worth by Lockheed Martin, the budget does request $339 million to upgrade existing F-16 copies.

It also requests $2.1 billion for continued development of the next-generation F-22 advanced tactical fighter, which is being designed by Lockheed Martin at its Fort Worth and Georgia plants. Low-rate production is to begin in 1999.

Military leaders also are earmarking $1.1 billion for continued development and initial procurement of the V-22 Osprey under development in part at Bell Helicopter Textron in Fort Worth.

Texas also stands to benefit from the $2.4 billion earmarked for procurement of nine C-17 cargo planes. Northrop Grumman's commercial aircraft division in Grand Prairie is a major subcontractor on the huge C-17 program.

THE SDN COLUMN
By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's amazing. You drive over 70 on the highway, you get a ticket. You drive 70 in the city, you get run over."

It was profound — even for ole what's-her-name. She said she had never seen so many people wanting to be somewhere else.

We're always amazed driving into a large city on a weekend. It seems like everybody in the country is trying to get in, and everybody in the city is trying to get out.

Rural folks visit the city to find more to do, and city folks go to the country to find less to do. Billy Ray Browning has probably hit on a winner trying to get city slickers to experience life at the Wagon Wheel Ranch.

Everybody has said, "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

We found a book by that title that gave some insight on towering cities:

--Big [illegible] are quickly evolving into [illegible]rd World countries.

--A city [illegible]not a concrete jungle, it's a human zoo.

--City life is millions of people being lonesome together.

--It is a colossal opportunity to escape from life that brings yokels to the city.

--If you want to be known, and not know, vegetate in a village. If you want to know and not be known, live in a city.

The same book had some thoughts about country life:

--Anybody can be good in the country, there are no temptations there.

--Country life is very good; in fact, the best for cattle.

--I am not the type that wants to go back to the land. In fact, I want to go back to the hotel.

--Suburbia is where the developer bulldozes the trees, then names the streets after them.

The book offered this quote about Big D:

"Everything looks as if it's been built in the last 30 minutes. Dallas can drop a glass office tower on a field of mesquite while you're stuck on the freeway...if the Alamo had been in Dallas, it would be the Hyatt-Alamo."

Guess it takes all of us, but there's sure more of them.

County gets needed rainfall

From local, wire stories

Scurry County received its first significant rainfall of the year Wednesday and it may be followed by some winter-like weather tonight.

A winter storm watch has been issued for western sections of North Texas through Friday morning and a snow advisory has been issued through tonight for the Panhandle.

Locally, the weather service calls for the possibility of rain mixed with snow and subfreezing temperatures. The chance of rain is listed at 40 percent, with the estimated low at 30 degrees.

That wintery mix is expected all over the Panhandle, South Plains and low rolling plains through tonight.

Forecasters say 1-3 inches of snow is possible along the Red River Valley.

The rest of West Texas east of the mountains should have rain through tonight. Clouds will be decreasing on Friday with rain ending in most areas by late morning.

It will be cloudy across North Texas tonight and Friday with rain mixed with sleet in extreme northern sections. There is a chance of rain and thunderstorms in southern areas. Clouds will be decreasing by Friday night.

Highs Friday will be in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s, 50s and 60s across the rest of West Texas, the 40s and 50s in North Texas and in the 50s and 60s in South Texas.

Wednesday's rainfall was officially listed as eight-tenths of an inch at the Snyder water treatment plant.

Whitewater decisions said near on first lady, president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutor Kenneth Starr's staff has compiled a memo of several hundred pages summarizing the evidence involving President Clinton and his wife in the three-year Whitewater investigation, lawyers familiar with the probe say.

The document will provide the framework for an upcoming meeting in which Starr's lawyers in Washington and Little Rock, Ark., will weigh whether indictments or other actions are warranted, the lawyers said.

Whitewater prosecutors said for the first time Wednesday that one of their cooperating witnesses, Jim McDougal, has provided "new and important information" and requested a postponement of his scheduled Feb. 24 sentencing.

Probationers make restitution

Adults on probation in Scurry and Borden counties paid almost $108,000 in restitution to victims and performed nearly 18,000 hours of public service over the past two years.

The information comes from a report released by the Community Supervision and Corrections Department, otherwise known as the adult probation office.

The report tracks restitution and community hours of defendants who are under direct community supervision by the department. Included are felony and misdemeanor residential program participants and individuals probated in another county but who are working and residing in Scurry County.

In fiscal year 1996, offenders paid $60,156.51 in restitution to victims. According to the report, 240 individuals on probation worked 12,162 hours of community service.

Community service can be performed for any non-profit organization, including Scurry County Boys & Girls Club, Noah Project and churches. Community service time can also be performed in other locations, such as the city landfill and recycling center.

Individuals convicted of a misdemeanor are required to perform 80 hours of community service. Those convicted of a felony crime are directed to complete 180 hours.

In fiscal year 1995, victim restitution collected amounted to $47,671.87. Some 143 probationers worked 5,734 hours of community service.

Kerr County tough place for criminal trials

KERRVILLE (AP) — Darlie Routier's fate may have been sealed the day her capital murder trial was moved to Kerr County.

"This is the wrong place to try a case like this," defense attorney Richard Mosty said after the Rowlett homemaker was sentenced to death Tuesday for killing her 5-year-old son.

"Kerr County is just too conservative for this," said Mosty, a Kerrville lawyer.

"All this did was send out a message to the nation that if you want to send an innocent person to jail and put them on death row, try them in Kerrville, Texas," added Mrs. Routier's mother, Darlie Kee.

Kerrville has a history of being tough on crime. And if questions are raised about the defendant's lifestyle — as they were about Mrs. Routier's — it could spell doom, experts say.

Jurors have said they do not want to publicly discuss the case.

Mrs. Routier, 27, was accused of stabbing to death her two young sons June 6, 1996, at the family's suburban home near Dallas. Prosecutors alleged she cut herself and staged a crime scene so she could blame an intruder.

A seven-woman, five man jury convicted Mrs. Routier of killing 5-year-old Damon Routier. A separate charge for the death of 6-year-old Devon Routier likely will be dismissed, prosecutor Greg Davis said.

Mrs. Routier arrived at a state prison reception center in Gatesville for processing Wednesday afternoon.

Her sentence was imposed just a day after the American Bar Association, meeting 60 miles away in San Antonio, urged a nationwide moratorium on the death penalty.

Mrs. Routier's original court-appointed lawyers wanted her trial moved from Dallas County because of publicity in North Texas, and the judge selected Kerrville.

After Mrs. Routier's family raised enough money to hire a high-powered defense team, her new attorneys tried to return the case to Dallas. But Judge Mark Tolle refused.

Kerrville has a large population of retirees, and even young people in Kerr County tend to be conservative, explained 198th District Attorney Ron Sutton, whose territory covers Kerrville.

"We have had, generally, excellent success in Kerrville," said Sutton, who was not a prosecutor in the Routier case.

Likewise, Robert Hirschhorn, lead consultant with Cathy Bennett & Associates, a jury and trial consultant firm in Galveston, said Kerrville is considered conservative and punitive.

Requesting a change of venue is not always a good move because the trial could be relocated to a less favorable place, Hirschhorn said. He noted that Susan Smith, the South Carolina woman convicted of drowning her two children in 1994, was tried in her own hometown and given a life sentence.

In Kerrville, Mrs. Routier "was infamous, but not attached, and therefore it's much easier to want to take the life of that person."

Kerr County jurors sentenced Scott Panetti of Fredericksburg to death in 1995 for fatally shooting his wife's parents.

In 1994, in another case moved to Kerrville, Donald Aldrich was sentenced to death for taking part in the abduction, robbery and slaying of a gay man in Tyler.

Prosecutors in Mrs. Routier's trial urged jurors to imagine the murders happening in their own town and to send a message to the community.

"Say, 'You cannot have our children. If you kill our children, we'll come after you,' " prosecutor Davis said.

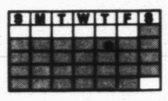

Defense attorneys claimed prosecutors were trying to "trash" Mrs. Routier because they disliked her lifestyle.

Court testimony indicated marijuana was found in the Routier home and that Mrs. Routier gave marijuana and alcohol to a 16-year-old baby sitter.

Witnesses also testified Mrs. Routier had breast implants; she had "sex toys" in her home; she often wore no undergarments; and on Mother's Day weekends she and several women friends had partied and watched male strippers.

Public interest group says...

Tax plan may raise federal income tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The governor's plan to replace rising school property taxes with a new business tax and a higher sales tax will cost Texans more in federal income taxes, according to a public interest group.

Bush has proposed a new, 1¼-percent tax on business revenues over $500,000. That would replace current business taxes and would allow business owners to deduct the cost of goods and capital investments.

The governor also wants to raise the 6¼-cent sales tax by a half-cent.

The additional state revenue would go to fund public schools and are part of Bush's plan to lower local school property taxes by about $2.8 billion. That includes a $1 billion to be paid from the state's current cash surplus.

The Center for Public Policy Priorities on Wednesday estimated that Texans will save $1.4 billion in property taxes but will pay an additional $112.4 million in federal income taxes in 1999, the first full year of the tax changes.

That's because property taxes can be deducted from federal income taxes but sales taxes can't be deducted.

Dick Lavine, an analyst for the center, said the new business tax and the increased sales tax together will eat up the savings from property tax cuts.

"I strongly disagree," Bush said. "It's a huge assumption for these people who want a personal income tax, who are fighting this proposal on behalf of an income tax, to make these grand assumptions that our consumers will pay X-Y-Z because we have a business activity tax."

Bush said not all of the business taxes will be passed on to consumers because of competition. For example, he said, accountants who raise their fees to pay the new tax could lose business to accountants who don't raise fees.

"To assume that every business tax is going to be passed on means we don't have a competitive world," Bush said. "Public policy should not be based on deductibility of taxation."

Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland and chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Texans who itemize their federal income taxes will lose some deduction. But he said the majority of Texans don't itemize.

And Craddick said there's little chance that savings from lower property taxes will be completely eaten up by the higher sales tax and lost federal income tax deductions.

"I think you're going to have to look at each individual person," said Craddick, who will cosponsor Bush's plan in the Legislature.

Former top news network facing trouble from all sides

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News is losing in the ratings, losing in the courts and losing some key correspondents. Will it also be losing its leader?

Troubles at ABC, the longtime king of network news divisions, have led to the beginning of questions about the future of news chief Roone Arledge, a legendary TV executive.

Arledge, 65, says he has no retirement plans, but the string of bad news would make a permanent trip to the golf course tempting. According to Fortune magazine, a provision in his contract would allow his bosses to kick him upstairs in June and leave day-to-day management of the news division to someone else.

Neither Arledge nor ABC President David Westin responded to inquiries about the situation.

Arledge's headaches, in a nutshell: NBC has overtaken "World News Tonight" in the ratings; several defections have followed ABC's decision to shelve an all-news cable channel; "Good Morning America" has slipped into a regular No. 2 slot behind NBC's "Today;" and a jury's order that ABC pay Food Lion more than $5.5 million has triggered a national debate about undercover reporting.

"ABC's problems are like the Clinton scandals — they keep dribbling out and people expect there to be more problems," said Robert Lichter, head of the nonprofit Center for Media and Public Affairs in Washington.

Arledge's stable of stars, such as Peter Jennings, Ted Koppel, Diane Sawyer, David Brinkley and Barbara Walters, helped ABC cultivate an aura of invincibility for nearly a decade, and the news magazines "PrimeTime Live" and "20-20" are still going strong.

No one, however, can stay on top forever.

Ask Jennings, whose flagship "World News Tonight" has tied with or lost to NBC in the weekly ratings for seven of the past eight weeks after being virtually unchallenged since the crumbling of the Berlin Wall.

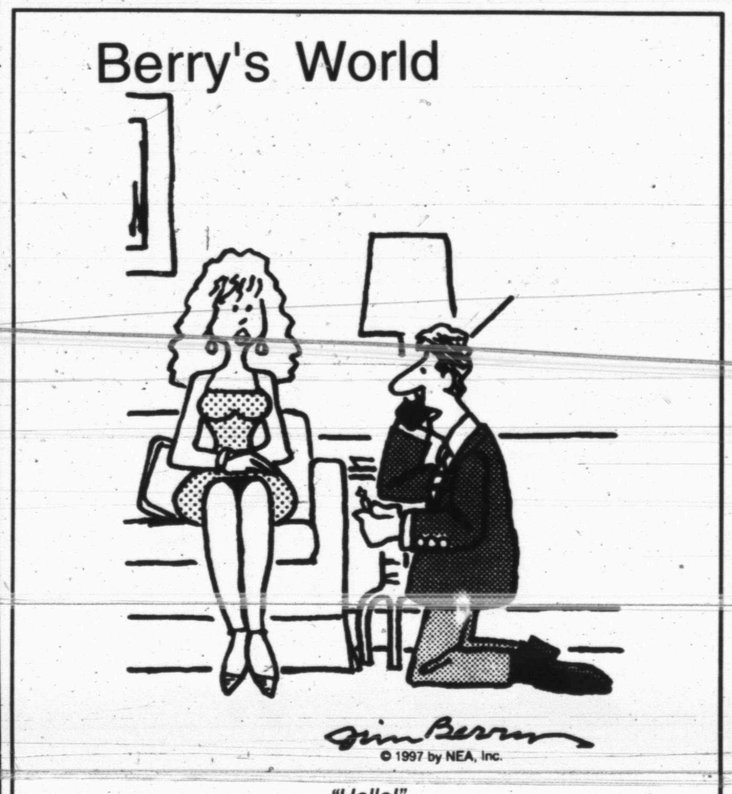

Critics lately have noticed some drift as the show, perhaps mindful of NBC's success, experiments with a softer approach.

But ABC executives, while admitting NBC's nightly news program has improved, blame the rating problems of "World News Tonight" on ABC's slumping entertainment lineup, which has caused many viewers to change channels.

ABC did score a victory Tuesday night, narrowly beating NBC in the battle for viewers during the double-barreled coverage of the O.J. Simpson verdict and President Clinton's State of the Union speech, according to preliminary results. CBS was third.

Internally, morale at ABC was dealt a blow in May when the Walt Disney Co., the network's corporate parent, postponed plans for a cable channel that was to begin operations early this year. NBC and Fox have their own cable news outlets, and CBS' Eye on People debuts next month.

Activists stress early mammograms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Breast cancer activists disagree over the significance of a scientific advisory panel's finding that women should decide for themselves whether to start having mammograms in their 40s.

"Women in their 40s ought to be tested with mammograms," Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said Wednesday as he opened an Appropriations subcommittee hearing Wednesday.

A National Institutes of Health-appointed advisory panel last month failed to decide whether the government should reissue an old guideline calling for periodic mammograms for women in their 40s, tossing the matter back to individual women and their doctors. The National Cancer Institute now recommends mammograms for women 50 and older.

Specter maintained that if women at earlier ages are told they do not need mammograms "it's hard to get them back on the mammogram trail" when they are older.

The furor has exasperated Frances Visco, a breast cancer survivor and president of the National Breast Cancer Coalition.

"I am appalled at the resources we continue to devote to this question," she told the subcommittee. "We have to save our outrage for the fact that we don't know how to prevent this disease, how to cure it, how to detect it truly early, or what to do for an individual woman once we do find it."

Dr. Marilyn Leitch of the American Cancer Society found the NIH panel's conclusion "at variance with the data presented, and therefore did not offer women and their physicians the best guidance." The society next month will consider urging annual mammograms for women in their 40s, up from the current guideline of one to two years.

Diana Rowden, a breast cancer survivor and chair of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, said the NIH panel wrongly sent "a message to women in their 40s that they need not be concerned."

"The panel was not asked to recommend whether there should be screening as a national policy," said member David Hoel of the Medical University of South Carolina. While the panel was only asked about the mammograms' benefits and risks, the meeting's title was: "A Consensus Conference on Breast Cancer Screening for Women Ages 40 to 49."

The National Cancer Institute's director, Richard Klausner, denied news reports that he disagreed with the panel's finding, then reiterated his criticism that the report "overly minimizes the benefits of mammography and overly emphasizes the risks to that population."

Dear Abby

"Pay as You Go' Is Wisdom Mostly Ignored by the Young

DEAR ABBY: I strongly disagree with your response to "Too Trusting in Delaware" last summer. You stated that most parents are repaid money they lend to their children. In my experience (and that of 97 percent of my friends and acquaintances), parents of today are not repaid.

You missed the sad point of the letter: that the children are not "dishonest" or "bad" — they are financially irresponsible. Young people starting out today want everything; they never want to wait. The terms "budget" and "save" are meaningless to them. Borrowing money to buy a computer and Christmas presents is typical of their mentality.

We were brought up to see food, shelter and basic clothing as the only essentials. Today, young people believe that television sets, computers, answering machines, pagers, CDs, videos, microwaves, etc., are required items. Their credit cards are "maxed" out and they need cosigners on loans — but they continue to buy, buy, buy.

Advice from parents is unwelcome. They only want gifts or "loans." If parents refuse, they are considered selfish. "You have everything and/or lots of money" is the lament. I have learned to respond, "I didn't have everything at your age. I have acquired my possessions (or money) through years of working and saving. Try it!"

HAPPILY SELFISH PARENT,
HAYWARD, CALIF.

DEAR HAPPILY SELFISH PARENT: You said that you were brought up to see food, shelter and basic clothing as the only essentials, but apparently that message wasn't taken to heart by your own children.

Of course, it's never too late to learn to be financially responsible, so you are not wrong to deny them money for luxuries. But please go a little easier on the young people of today, many of whom were never taught the importance of living within their means.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who says she despises bumming rides: Did it ever occur to her to put a couple of dollars in an envelope and give it to the driver?

I drive, and I never refuse a ride to anyone from our church who asks, but the cold hard facts are it costs me money to drive my car. My insurance is $900 a year. Last year I spent about $800 on repairs, plus gas, oil and parking. There are a few folks (very few) who will slip a couple of dollars into my purse. These people are picked up at their door, rain or shine, and returned there.

For years, my mother lived in Florida. She didn't drive, but she always gave the driver $2 for gas.

Abby, please tell these people to "wake up" — I am living on a limited income.

No name, please. Sign me ...

DEAR CHICAGO: I'm printing your letter with the hope that those people who are given chauffeur service routinely will see themselves, and reward the driver appropriately.

Calf pain calls for testing

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When I walk any distance, I get terrible cramps in my calf muscles. I'm 75 and in good health, except for a heart attack 10 years ago. What kind of specialist should I see?

DEAR READER: Calf pain brought on by walking is called "claudication." This is usually a sign of peripheral vascular disease (arterial blockage), which prevents an adequate blood supply from reaching the legs; during exercise, when the muscles demand more oxygen, the body is unable to supply it.

Cramps and achiness result. The pain subsides when the muscles are rested.

You need special testing, either a Doppler ultrasound study or an angiogram, and X-rays to determine the state of circulation in your legs.

If, as I suspect, the tests reveal vascular blockages, you have three options.

One, you can ignore the cramping (very difficult to do) or rest until the pain disappears.

Two, if there is a single obstruction in one of the arteries to your legs, a vascular surgeon may be able to perform either a balloon angioplasty or laser therapy, both of which may reduce the blockage and re-establish blood flow, by breaking up arterial plaque or burning it away.

Three, if there is a diffuse narrowing of one or more arteries, the surgeon will probably advise bypass surgery, a more serious procedure than the two mentioned above. In my experience, this operation — which bridges the arterial occlusions — is almost always successful.

Given your history of heart attack, I think it's safe to assume that many of the arteries in your body are partially blocked by artherosclerotic plaque. With respect to your legs, surgery may be your best option. In any case, the surgeon can offer advice after testing you.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A while back, you discussed a common condition called "restless legs syndrome." At that time, you gave the address of the Restless Legs Foundation. I've lost it. Please help.

DEAR READER: Restless legs syndrome is marked by uncontrollable twitching and restlessness that affects the legs, especially in older people, at night. The cause is unknown, but the condition can be torture for those who suffer from it.

There are several drugs used to treat the affliction, including Sinemet and others.

The address of the Restless Legs Foundation is 4410 Nineteenth St., N.W., Suite 201, Rochester, MN 55901.

By Phillip Alder

Yesterday, I mentioned the excitable Patrick Jourdain. He has played internationally for Wales more than 50 times, and twice for Scotland when on a job assignment in Glasgow. Now he runs a bridge club in Cardiff and edits the monthly Bulletin of the International Bridge Press Association.

Jourdain is a keen analyst who loves complex endings. However, this deal from the 1989 match between Wales and England features a single-suit combination. How should you play a trump suit of K-3 in the dummy opposite A-10-8-7-5-4 in your hand for only one loser?

With everything else solid, South could afford one heart loser. If the five missing cards were splitting 3-2, anything would work. But Jourdain produced a beautiful safety-play: He led the 10 from hand.

If West had played the nine or an honor, declarer would have won with dummy's king and returned the two, covering East's card as cheaply as possible. When West played low, though, Jourdain called for dummy's three.

When East contributed the singleton nine, Jourdain leapt from his chair with a cry of triumph!

At the other table, in the same contract and after the same opening lead, the English declarer, David Burn, missed his moment of glory by failing to run the 10. However, after being taken to task by his erudite partner, David Price, Burn claimed that he was hoping to make the contract even if East had started with Q-J-9-x of hearts, via a trump coup. Fair enough, but I guess Burn is still kicking himself.

Rodman's behavior will be closely watched by Stern

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dennis Rodman will be back in the spotlight — and under a microscope — when he returns to the Chicago Bulls.

NBA commissioner David Stern has warned him that another incident, such as the episode when Rodman kicked a courtside cameraman last month, could end his NBA career.

Rodman, 35, has been suspended nine times since 1992 and three times since last March.

Chicago coach Phil Jackson said Rodman must realize he has to behave.

"Dennis has to understand that the league is watching him. He has to be on his best behavior," Jackson said.

The Bulls' Scottie Pippen said he's glad Rodman is returning, although he doesn't approve of his teammate's antics.

"I have a problem with it," Pippen said. "It's pretty stupid. ... But he's not going to change for me. He's just going to have to deal with the consequences whenever he gets caught."

Stern, who lifted Rodman's suspension on Tuesday, effective after the All-Star break, said he was satisfied that Rodman recognizes that his behavior in the camerman-kicking incident on Jan. 15 was unacceptable.

Rodman, whose aggressive play has made him the NBA's top rebounder for the past five seasons despite the fact he's only 6-foot-8 and 220 pounds, said he doesn't intend to change his style.

"I just live life day-to-day. I'm not going to change the way I am. My goal is still to contribute and be on one of the greatest teams of all time," Rodman, sporting dark nail polish and sunglasses, said Tuesday night as he sat courtside at halftime of the Lakers-Clippers game at the Anaheim Arena.

Rodman, who is eligible to play next Tuesday night against the Charlotte Hornets at the United Center, is eager to go back to work, even if he's going to be giving away his paychecks. He's donating his salary for his first 11 games back to charity.

"I could say I'm sorry until I'm blue in the face, and it wouldn't prove anything. But I'm going to play for free. That shows that it isn't all about money," he said.

"I wanted to do something to thank the fans who have been so supportive of me. ... I think it's unfortunate for the fans and everybody else that it (the incident) occurred. I'm glad I can come back and play like I do again."

Manley said that his client will donate his pay from each of the 11 games to a different charity, on "behalf of the Chicago Bulls, myself, and Dennis."

When Rodman's suspension ends, it will have lasted 11 games. The salary lost for those games plus the donated money will total some $2 million. Rodman also paid the cameraman $200,000.

Asked why Rodman decided to make the charitable donations, Manley said: "Because he'll be the first person to say, 'I deserve more money and pay me more money,' and when he makes a mistake, he'll be the first person to say, 'I don't deserve the money,' and he wants to thank his fans for sticking with him."

The charities cover a broad spectrum, from the Y-Me Breast Cancer Awareness to March of Dimes to the Magic Johnson Aids Foundation.

Final regular season cage game for SHS Tigers

The Snyder Tiger cagers will play their final game of the regular season Friday night in Levelland.

The Tigers are 6-3 in District 2-4A and are in a three-way tie for first place along with Plainview and Estacado. The Tigers were upset by Lamesa, 68-52, Tuesday night, dropping Snyder into the tie.

The Tigers edged the Lobos, 48-43, in their previous district meeting, but the Lobos are sitting in the fourth spot in the District 2-4A rankings with a 4-5 record, and a slim chance at the playoffs, should any of the top three teams lose.

The playoff picture is unclear since there is a three-way tie at the top, but things will clear up after Friday night's games.

The JV will tip-off at 6:30, and the varsity will get underway at 8.

Coliseum to host 5A playoff game

The Scurry County Coliseum will host a girls' Class 5A playoff game at 7:30 Friday night. The San Angelo Central Lady Bobcats will take on the Midland Lee Lady Rebels. Tickets are $3 for children and $5 for adults.

The Lady Bobcats finished their regular season with district record of 10-2, and a season mark of 26-5. The Lady Rebels were 10-2 in loop play, and 15-11 for the season.

Little League umpires needed

Snyder Little League is in need of umpires for the upcoming season. Umpires are needed for all levels of play such as Farm League, Senior League and Girl's Softball. If you are interested, contact Phil Robinson at 573-7985 or 573-7970.

Senior LL manager needed

Snyder Senior Little League is accepting applications for a manager for a Little League team. Applications will be accepted until Feb. 10 and can be picked up at McDonald's.

Girl's fast-pitch clinic

A fast-pitch clinic for girl's softball is scheduled for Feb. 14-15. The clinic is open for girls ages 8 and up, and scheduling will be set up according sign-ups. For further information, contact Herman Martinez at 573-0390 after 4 p.m.

Little Dribblers sign-up

Snyder Girls' Little Dribbers will sign-up players from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. until noon Saturday in the West Elementary cafeteria.

Late sign-ups will be accepted from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Feb. 14 and from 9 a.m. until noon on Feb. 15. Players must be accompanied by an adult and bring a copy of the player's birth certificate. Registration fee is $25.

The league is open to girls ages 8-12, with 8-year-olds in their own division. For more information, call 573-9437 or 573-3951.

WTC to face Lady Chaps

The Western Texas College Lady Westerners are set to do battle with the 5th-ranked Midland College Lady Chaparrals.

WTC is sitting in sixth place in the conference with a 2-9 tally, and a 5-14 season mark. Midland is holding the second spot with a 10-2 conference mark and a 20-4 season record.

Both teams will be looking to rebound from losses faced in their previous conference tilts. WTC fell to New Mexico Junior College, 64-57, while Midland was defeated by number 18 South Plains, 78-64.

With six conference games remaining, the Lady Westerners still have a shot at reaching the Region V tournament in March, but they must start their run with a win tonight. The top four teams in the conference advance.

Tip-off is set for 7:30 in the WTC gym on campus.

7th graders sweep C-City

The Snyder Junior High 7th grade boys' basketball teams ended their seasons Monday night by sweeping Colorado City.

The 7th grade A-team mauled Colorado City, 56-22, ending their season with an 11-5 record.

Chris McLeod led the Tiger scoring with 10, while Wade Pinson, Jase Alvera and Nathan Smith each bagged 8. Brooks Nunley added 7.

The 7th grade B-team destroyed the Wolves, 49-19, ending their season one win shy of perfect at 15-1. Their only loss came at the hands of Abilene Wylie's A-team.

"These boys had a great season." said coach Thance Springer. "They worked hard every day in practice and I have enjoyed working with them this season."

Cory Clay finished the night with 13 to lead the Snyder scoring. Wes Martin was not far behind, nailing 9, while Craig Bowen added 5. Michael Fennell bagged 4, and Stephen Ortegon and Ryan McKamie contributed 3. Jay Scott and Shea Franks ended the game with 2 apiece.

Date of Judgment: September 4, 1996

Date of Levy: February 4, 1997

Listed in the caption above are delinquent tax suits in which Judgments of Foreclosure have been rendered and Orders of Sale have been issued. The listing for each suit sets out; (1) the Cause Number; (2) the Plaintiff Tax Unit; (3) the Defendants; (4) the date of the Judgment; (5) the date of Levy; and (6) the Property Description.

Under the Order of Sale issued pursuant to each Judgment above listed, I did at the time specified for each suit levy upon each Property in such suit as described above as the property of the Defendants named or designated in such suit. On the sale date specified above, which is the first Tuesday of said month, I will offer and sell at public auction, for cash, each property described above, and all the right, title, interest and estate in and to each such property owned or claimed by the Defendants named in connection with each such property; PROVIDED, however, that no property shall be sold directly or indirectly to anyone other than a Tax Unit which is a party to that specific suit for less than the total amount of taxes, penalties, interest and costs due against that particular property or any adjudged value decreed, whichever is lower.

The Foreclosure Sales under this Notice will be held on the first Tuesday of said month, at the Courthouse door of said County, at the time set out above, by and through the LAW OFFICE OF HENRY GATES STEEN, JR., P.C., 3001 N. Lamar Blvd., Suite 306, Austin, Texas 78705, Telephone (512) 476-4688 and Telecopier (512) 476-0325, my authorized representative.

The sale of each property shall be subject to the rights of the Defendants named in connection with each particular property, and any successors in title, to redeem such specified property in the time and manner provided by law; and subject also to the rights of any defendants to have each particular property owned or claimed by such defendants divided and sold in less divisions than the whole as provided by law. The sale as to each property is to be made to satisfy the Judgment rendered against that particular property and the Defendants named in connection with that particular property. The proceeds of the Sale of each property are to be applied to the satisfaction of the Judgment against that particular property, and the remainder of the sale proceeds, if any, are to be applied as the law directs.

Dated at Snyder, Texas on this the 5 day of February, 1997.

Blanket disability for Gulf vets studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers exploring the cause of illness among Persian Gulf War veterans say they may propose blanket disability benefits even if no cause to the ailments is found.

Senior members of the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee said Wednesday such a plan may be the only way of dealing fairly with the tens of thousands of veterans who complain of a variety of unexplained ailments such as fatigue, muscle ache and memory loss.

"It may be that we have to come to the conclusion of presumptive disability as we did in the Agent Orange case," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the committee chairman.

Agent Orange, a chemical defoliant used by U.S. forces in Vietnam, was determined many years later to be linked to cancer and other ailments. The government now extends benefits to veterans and children of veterans suffering from diseases with proven links to Agent Orange exposure.

Scientists have yet to establish a single cause or even group of causes for the cluster of unexplained illnesses sometimes referred to as Gulf War Syndrome. Tens of thousands of veterans with various ailments have come forward for exams.

Both veterans and active-duty service members who served in the Gulf are already covered for medical treatment, regardless of their illness. Those with diagnosable ailments linked to their Gulf service, such as wounds, can receive disability payments.

The VA also provides disability payments to those with undiagnosed diseases, provided they can show they developed the ailment no more than two years after the war. The Clinton administration is considering extending that time. The measure Specter and others are considering would automatically extend disability payments even if an illness cannot be specifically linked to Gulf War service.

Leigh Tallas, national commander for the Redding, Pa.-based National Veterans Association, questioned the notion of blanket coverage for Gulf veterans. Based on the Agent Orange experience, he said, such a policy could mean years of waiting for veterans seeking disability payments.

"It's eyewash. It looks politically great but it doesn't say squat," said Tallas. "I guarantee this will be the weakest piece of legislation you've ever seen."

Members of the pro-veteran committee have argued that the Pentagon and Department of Veterans' Affairs have been slow to treat seriously the illnesses afflicting veterans. On Wednesday Specter announced appointment of Philadelphia attorney Michael Rotko as special counsel to the committee on Gulf War matters. The panel is seeking congressional funding for Rotko to investigate the government's response to the issue.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, ranking Democrat on the veterans' panel, said it was premature to speculate on whether Congress would provide a blanket disability.

"There's a lot of feeling we have to have a scientific foundation" for what caused the illnesses, Rockefeller said. But he also said he is becoming increasingly convinced that Gulf War ailments may be showing up in the form of birth defects.

Simpson verdict seen as black and white

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson is still welcome at the Blvd Cafe.

No matter the disdainful critics sipping cappuccino at the Starbucks coffee bar in his own Brentwood neighborhood, Simpson can still find safe haven at this comfortable diner in mostly black South Central Los Angeles.

"Where else can he go, really?" pondered Donald Walton, a black lawyer eating breakfast Wednesday. "It's a place where he could relax and have no one scream out 'murderer' or 'killer.'"

Reactions from blacks and whites after Tuesday's verdict further illuminated America's racial polarization, and echoed the response after the criminal trial.

"We go for years in a superficial level of niceties, waving at each other across the great divide," said the Rev. Herbert Daughtry, a New York City civil rights activist. "Then we have these cataclysmic jolts and still at a very visceral level we're divided."

But Joe Hicks, who runs a human rights group in Los Angeles, said little can be learned of race relations from the Simpson case because it became a "pop cesspool circus."

"It has become so distorted, so out of proportion, to use it to examine race relations in this country is to reach for the absurd," said Hicks, director of the Multicultural Collaborative.

Jeers greeted Simpson as he left the Santa Monica courthouse where a mostly white jury found him liable in the slayings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman outside Ms. Simpson's Brentwood condo.

But just 16 months earlier, cheers erupted outside the Los Angeles courthouse where a mostly black jury acquitted him.

An ABC News poll conducted after the verdict Tuesday found that 74 percent of whites agreed with it and 66 percent of blacks disagreed.

The poll also found that 70 percent of blacks thought the jury's mostly white composition was a major reason Simpson was found liable. Forty-four percent of whites thought the same, the poll found.

"This city's not going to let this guy get away with this whether he did it or not — they made sure of that when they got a white jury," Kevin Holmes, who is black, said while eating at the Blvd Cafe.

"There is racism in America. We would like to think it's getting better, but the fact remains this is a two-sided system," said Holmes, a construction foreman. "People that don't have O.J.'s money don't stand a chance in this system."

In Brentwood, as Starbucks patrons drank their morning cups of latte on the outdoor terrace, computer salesman Kirk Fabrizio emerged from a white Porsche and praised the verdict.

"I think the African-American community goes much more on emotion. I think a lot of it falls back on education, to be honest," said Fabrizio, who is white.

Joe Green, who was visiting Brentwood with his wife from Framingham, Mass., said: "I think we both feel that the first trial was a travesty. ... By now he can make believe that he didn't do it."

But back at the Blvd Cafe, many of the customers remain loyal.

After Simpson's acquittal in 1995, more than 300 fans quickly gathered when word circulated that he was eating breakfast there.

"He was well received, even though he hadn't been black for 25 years," said Frank Holoman, owner of the cafe. "He lived a white life. Even though he had lived that life, people tended to forgive him."

Accident sends one to Cogdell Memorial

Officers are investigating a two-vehicle accident in which one driver left the scene and the other went to the hospital.

Two people were also arrested Wednesday as local law enforcement officers handled a variety of calls.

Officers responded to a two-vehicle accident at 2:22 p.m. Wednesday in the 800 block of 26th Street. Involved were a 1988 Ford driven by Walter Chaney of 2605 Ave. J and a 1985 Ford whose driver left the scene. The accident is still under investigation as to who owns the 1985 Ford.

Chaney, 70, was taken by Snyder EMS to Cogdell Hospital where he was admitted to the coronary care unit. His condition was listed as good this morning.

A 36-year-old female was taken into custody at 10:18 a.m. in the 1300 block of 26th Street on outstanding city warrants for no driver's license and failure to appear.

Deputies arrested 19-year-old Joe Angel Garcia of Abilene at 4 p.m. at the sheriff's office for modification of probation for a felony offense.

In other activity, Kathy Ogburn requested to speak to an officer at 11:03 a.m. in reference to criminal mischief to her vehicle while it was parked at Walls Industries. An offense report for criminal mischief was submitted.

A 17-year-old female runaway was located in Colorado City at 1:53 p.m. and transported back to Snyder where she was released to the custody of her grandparents.

Officers were called to the campus of Northeast Elementary at 4:37 p.m. in reference to a fight between two juveniles. The two were released to the custody of their mothers and an offense report for disorderly conduct/fighting was submitted.

A deputy was requested at 4:56 p.m. by Tammy Shirley in the 1600 block of Preston Trail in reference to a theft at the Ira school earlier. An offense report for theft was to be submitted.

A person called the police department at 6:38 p.m. in reference to hearing a possible explosion in the area of 37th Street and College Avenue. An investigation revealed everything was in order.

Probated sentence given for forgery

A 19-year-old Snyder man pleaded guilty Wednesday afternoon in 132nd District Court to a charge of forgery.

Christoper Blaine Mills of 1354 North Ave. R, was charged with the Dec. 1 forgery of a check on the account of Shea Norwood of San Angelo.

District Judge Ernie Armstong sentenced Mills to two years in a state jail facility, probated for five years. Mills was also fined $500 and ordered to pay $85 in restitution.

Toll-free number plays tape of olympic bomber

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal agents have a new "888" toll-free number to let the public hear the voice of the man who called 911 to warn about the bomb in Centennial Olympic Park. But the business who has the same number, with an 800 area code, is less than thrilled.

The audio tape of the 911 call placed just before the fatal July 27 blast can be heard by calling 1-888-324-8404, federal officials announced Wednesday.

The calm, slow voice of a man is heard saying, "There is a bomb in Centennial Park. You have 30 minutes."

Martin VanMeter, owner of a Durant, Okla., real estate company, said he was forced to disconnect his 1-800-324-8404 number today after being besieged by calls. Apparently, many people are still more used to 800 numbers than the newer 888 numbers, first issued last year.

Your Birthday

Friday, Feb. 7, 1997

Explore your creative instincts in the year ahead, especially if you have a desire to be artistic. You will find several outlets for your talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Strive to be imaginative today, and focus on constructive objectives. If you just want to daydream, nothing will be accomplished. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone might offer you a tantalizing proposal today. It will sound good at first, but before you take the plunge, talk it over with a trusted adviser.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, try to find a way to contact people in high-ranking positions. You will have good luck when you team up with these people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) When others talk to you about their ideas today, keep an open mind and be a good listener, even if suggestions come from someone you think has inferior ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will be a good salesperson today, but you could also be an easy target for others. Do not let a smooth talker sell you something you don't need.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not rely heavily on others today, especially in regard to matters that affect your family. These people may not have your best interest at heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will have many good ideas today, but unless you enlist the help of others, you might not be able to implement your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, subdue the temptation to take a financial risk, especially if you know very little about the endeavor. Do not make a move before you have all the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should strive to be warm and receptive to everyone today, but do not let someone else make decisions for you. You must think for yourself at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to avoid flirtatious behavior today. Even if you think your behavior is innocent, your actions might be misinterpreted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep all of your receipts today, because something you will purchase might not be what it was supposed to be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Major accomplishments will be possible today, provided you remain focused and determined. After you establish your objectives, do not get sidetracked.

Mediators enter rebel compound

LIMA, Peru (AP) — In a first step toward negotiations to end Peru's hostage crisis, mediators met today with leftist rebels holding 72 captives at the Japanese ambassador's residence.

Scores of National Police officers with automatic weapons stood guard this morning as a leading churchman, a Red Cross representative and the Canadian ambassador entered the walled compound to meet with the rebels to set an agenda for talks with the government.

"This will help us define the eventual sequence of talks," President Alberto Fujimori, who has pledged to seek a peaceful solution to the crisis, said earlier.

A house across the street has been selected and furnished for possible negotiations.

Two of the mediators — Roman Catholic Archbishop Juan Luis Cipriani and Michel Minnig of the Red Cross — have been regular visitors to the residence since the standoff began Dec. 17 when the rebels ambushed a cocktail party, taking more than 500 hostages.

The third mediator, Canadian Ambassador Anthony Vincent, was among the original hostages.

Cipriani, a conservative friend of Fujimori, said Wednesday he has held informal discussions inside the residence with rebel leader Nestor Cerpa, exploring options for ending the crisis.

There has been no sign yet, however, that the rebels will give ground on a key issue — their demand for the release of hundreds of comrades from Peruvian jails in exchange for the hostages.

Gore hopes talks boost U.S.-Russian relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Al Gore is hoping two days of talks with Russia's prime minister will re-energize U.S.-Russian relations, which have stagnated in the six months President Boris Yeltsin has been sidelined with illnesses.

The two sides are still working on a precise date for a meeting between Yeltsin and President Clinton, which a senior U.S. official said today conceivably could be in Moscow for the convenience of the Russian president.

"There is no reason for us to believe they will not get together," said the official, who talked to reporters at the White House under rules shielding his identity.

Although the agenda of Gore's meeting today with Viktor Chernomyrdin is dominated by trade and technology issues, the key question that hovers over their conference table is political: Is Yeltsin really healthy enough to lead?

Also, Russia's anxieties with NATO's planned expansion eastward to the Russian border hovers over this eighth session between Gore and Chernomyrdin.

Another U.S. official, also briefing reporters on condition he not be identified, confirmed discussions are under way to bring Russian officials together with representatives of the United States and other major North Atlantic Treaty Organization powers to try to overcome differences over the alliance.

The official stressed the plan to begin expanding NATO this summer will go ahead, whatever separate accords are reached with Moscow.

Chernomyrdin, a Soviet-era technocrat who has survived more than four years as Yeltsin's prime minister, arrived Wednesday for the talks here. He is to see Clinton on Friday and fly to Chicago on Saturday with Gore to meet U.S. business executives.

The Gore-Chernomyrdin agenda includes preparing for a U.S.-Russian summit, but it is unclear whether Yeltsin is recovering quickly enough from pneumonia and his November heart surgery to travel to the United States next month as planned. Gore hopes to get from Chernomyrdin a specific date for the summit.
