Texas land linked to Marcos

By DARLA MORGAN
Harte-Hanks News Service
CORPUS CHRISTI — Ownership of property on this resort city's bayfront and on Mustang Island has been linked to a close associate of deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and will be investigated by the government of President Corazon Aquino. Most of the land, whose total value is $19.2 million, was purchased by a Dallas real estate broker between 1981 and the summer of 1985, the Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported today in a copyrighted story. The property is owned by several corporations based in the Netherlands Antilles, a tax haven. They are controlled by Jose Y. Campos, described by officials of the new Philippine government as a close associate of Marcos. Richard A. Gray Jr., a Dallas real estate broker, acted as an agent for Campos, according to deed records at the Nueces County Courthouse. Pedro Yap, one of four members of the Presidential Commission on Good Government in Manila, told the Caller-Times this week that the commission plans to investigate land purchases made by Campos through Gray in Corpus Christi and in Fort Worth and Tarrant County. Yap said his commission is planning to investigate land purchases in the United States made by several close colleagues of the Marcos family. "This is covered by our authority to investigate assets abroad. I do

Falling mortgage rates fuel sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declining mortgage rates are sending home sales climbing and producing a wave of loan refinancings, an economic surge that promises to ripple through housing and home improvement industries.

"It's a real bright spot on the economic horizon. It's good for construction, appliances, landscaping, you name it — anything that goes into a house," said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

With interest rates on conventional fixed-term mortgages dipping below the 10 percent level for the first time this decade, homeowners with double-digit mortgages have been flocking to renegotiate their loans.

"Based on a quick survey that we did, about a third of all the loan applications taken by mortgage bankers over the last week were for refinancing," Lasko said.

That's good news for home-improvement and manufacturing industries as well as for those homeowners who refinance, because some of the cash resulting from lower monthly payments is expected to be funneled into home improvements.

Still, many economists contend that, despite action on Friday by the Federal Reserve Board to further lower interest rates, the slide in rates will likely level off in the coming months and then begin a gradual rise.

These economists say home mortgage rates may yet fall to around 9 percent, but not go below that level.

Financial analysts say it generally makes sense to renegotiate a mortgage if current market rates are at least two percentage points below the loan's face rate — in other words, just about everyone who has financed a home in the first half of the 1980s.

New closing costs charged by financial institutions to renegotiate a loan will eat up some of the savings, generally making it not cost-efficient to renegotiate a loan if the difference in rates is less than 2 percentage points.

Conventional fixed-rate mortgages within the past few weeks have fallen below 10 percent in some areas while rates on mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Veterans Administration (VA) have declined to 9.5 percent, their lowest rate in seven years.

Teachers take test; students get rest

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Monday is a holiday of sorts — students statewide take the day off and their teachers take a test.

As part of the Texas Education Agency's new licensing effort, an expected 210,000 teachers and administrators will be asked to take the state's new competency exam. Armed with No. 2 lead pencils and some form of identification, the teachers will sit down at 850 test sites for a test mandated by the reform-minded 1984 Legislature.

Another 300,000 or so former or retired teachers who want to keep their teaching certificates can take the exam on April 12.

The $4.7 million effort involves three, 4½-hour shifts of tests starting at 7:30 a.m. at most locations and ending at 9 p.m.

And it could go down in the record books as the largest attempt to test a group of professionals in a single day, says Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Terri Anderson.

That will be a big headache for the TEA staff, which plans to have a plane waiting to fly state officials to any test site with problems. For teachers, the biggest problem may not be in taking the test, but in passing with a grade of 75, up from the originally planned 70.

"I always fretted about every test I ever took," Gov. Mark White says, "and I think probably every teacher feels the same concern."

"I know that they are very concerned about it, and there is an enormous amount of pressure brought to bear on them because of the test. But they are going to do very well," White predicts.

Those who don't pass Monday can take a makeup test June 28. After that, anyone who hasn't passed won't be allowed to teach — except in certain emergency situations — and cannot take the test for another year, Anderson says.

Dealing in drugs

Undercover agent says role is tough

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

So far more than 25 Big Spring residents have been arrested this year on charges of dealing narcotics, and police promise more arrests — many more.

The person behind most of those arrests is woman undercover agent, a seasoned pro.

Her name is Kimberley Phillips and she has the goods on 51 people in town who, she says, sold her drugs.

"Back in May the police chief, Rick Turner, contacted me," she said. "He'd asked a couple a times before about me, and I agreed to meet with him."

Phillips said she told Turner that she was looking for more permanent work, and he agreed to let her stay on as a detective after the undercover operation was over.

Her work as an undercover cop began in the early '70s in Austin after she watched Drug dealers are found in all strates of society, from teachers and housewives to bankers and doctors, says Big Spring undercover agent Kimberley Phillips.

A Big Spring man was killed and three other persons severely injured in an accident Saturday morning involving a pickup and four motorcycles.

Joe Harold Rountree Jr. of Sterling City Route Box T27B was dead on arrival at Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Rountree and three others motorcycle-riders were stopped at a red light in the 300 block of W. Fourth when they were struck from behind by a pickup, according to police reports.

The driver of the pickup, David Ray Wayman, 22, of 704 E. Third was arrested at the scene for involuntary manslaughter, according to police reports.

Stephanie Poincy Rodriguez of Lubbock also was listed in stable condition Saturday, said the spokesman.

Texans embrace independence

Journey through Texas

March 2, 1986 — The time has come. If Texas is ever to control its destiny, now is the moment to start. That is the feeling of the 51 delegates who assembled yesterday at Washington, a small, new settlement on the banks of the Brazos River, to declare Texas' independence and draft a constitution for the republic.

In a frame house with cotton cloth over the windows and across the doors to keep out the cold winds, shivering delegates took the first step toward controlling destiny by approving the first draft of the Texas Declaration of Independence in a businesslike manner. Aside from Sam Houston's speech praising the document and calling for its unanimous approval, there was no argument or debate over the document.

Today, the delegates will start signing the declaration. It is expected that the late delegates will also sign the document upon arrival.

This is the fourth such meeting of Texans since 1832. As recently as last year, these conventions held out hope of some agreement with the Mexican government. Just last fall, in San Felipe, the delegates declared their faithfulness to the Mexican government in return for the establishment of Texas as a separate state within Mexico and the repeal of the Bustamante provision prohibiting U.S. immigration to Texas.

As hope of settlement with Mexico fades, delegates in 1836 sign their Declaration of Independence and begin framing a constitution to create the Republic of Texas.

But that was several months ago. In the meantime, the likelihood of conflict has increased. In fact, while the delegates work on a declaration of independence, Santa Anna and his army have crossed the Rio Grande and are laying siege to the Alamo and Bexar, only Sources at the convention, including E.M. Pease, assistant secretary of the convention, suggest that the declaration may have been written long before this meeting. George Childress, chairman of the declaration committee and a lawyer recently arrived in Texas, actually may have written 140 miles to the southwest.

It is in this atmosphere that the delegates work today, knowing that from here, most would return to their homes and enter the conflict for Texas' independence.

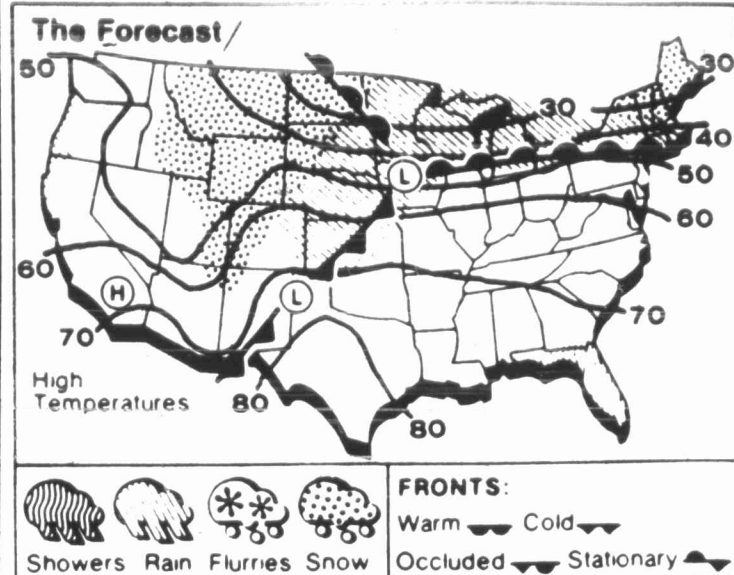

and brought the document with him. Mr. Childress wouldn't comment on that rumor, but he and his committee of James Gaines, Edward Conrad, Colin McKinney and Bailey Hardeman made short work of their task and returned overnight with the large document.

The document cites many differences between the Texans and their Mexican rulers, but the entire argument can be boiled down to the preamble. There, the Texans state that the Mexican government "has ceased to protect the lives, liberty and property of the people from where its legislative powers are derived."

Six copies of the document will be prepared, with the original being sent to Washington, D.C., and the five copies going to Bexar, Goliad, Brazoria, Nacogdoches and San Felipe. Some 1,000 handbills of the Declaration will be distributed across Texas.

"Journey Through Texas" is a sequential project of the University of Houston—University Park Office of Media Relations. This piece is based on material housed in the Special Collection Department of the university's M.D. Anderson Library.

Undercover

ched a lot of her high school friends in the late 60's "go down the tubes" after using drugs.

Phillips said the final push in that direction came when she was giving a guy a lift home whom she thought was drunk. "The guy just started nodding over on me and I asked him if he had taken something. He said, 'yeah.' And I said 'what?' And he said, 'I don't know. A friend of mine gave me a whole bunch of pills and they were all sorts of pretty colors so I took 'em.'"

"Suddenly, it just hit me," she said. "This is stupid. So I walked into the Austin police narcotic unit and said, 'Hi, you guys need my help.'"

Phillips worked narcotics undercover on and off in the Austin area from 1972-78, she said. In 1981 she was asked to work for Caldwell

County and made busts there and in surrounding counties. Two years ago, she did some work for San Angelo.

All told, she estimates that she has racked up more than 500 cases in her years as a mole in the arcane world of narcotics.

Cases, she said, that weave through all stratas of society — teachers, bikers, roughnecks, truckers, housewives, bankers and doctors.

Her main targets in Big Spring were the street dealers, she said. These people, she said, are the most vulnerable to arrest.

Narcotics trafficking can be seriously crippled when enough low-level dealers are swept or scared away from selling drugs, she said.

"They're the ones that give it to the kids. You can make them afraid because they're more apt to get caught than the big boys is."

People forget that kids don't have money to buy large quantities of drugs, Phillips said. "Kids can come up with $10 for a hit of LSD. They can come up with $25 for a bag of marijuana. They can come up with $25 for a quarter gram of speed. But they cannot come up with $1,200 to buy a half ounce of speed."

Despite focusing on street dealers, Phillips said she was slowly penetrating the city's drug network and was nearly to the inner circle of dope dealers when the effort was halted.

She estimates that there are five to 10 drug kingpins operating in Big Spring who distribute marijuana, cocaine, amphetamines, LSD and heroin.

She warned of some area dealers who sell as amphetamines a concoction called "bathub crank."

"It's a trash drug" made from crystallizing nose inhalant, she said. Often it's cut with acetone, the active ingredient in nail polish remover.

Phillips said of working undercover: "It's not an easy job."

An undercover cop goes through several emotional phases. "You start out gung ho. You got a cause, a purpose; you honestly believe you're helping the kids and doing something."

"You go from that stage — after they blow you out of the courtroom — to a stage of depression where it starts getting rough on the family. You get tired of hanging out at bars with people that you don't want to be around. You get tired of seeing children neglected and sometimes abused and you start withdrawing."

Phillips said a lot of undercover agents have gone "off the deep end" and wind up divorced, become alcoholics or have nervous breakdowns.

She has watched parents trade food stamps for drugs while their children rummaged through garbage cans for food, she said. Then there's the time she remembers a mother making her 8-year-old smoke a joint after he complained of being tired and hungry.

If a cop makes it though that stage, she said, he or she develops a detached, professional attitude — an "it's just a job way of thinking."

Of the people she meets, gets to know, takes into her confidence, then ultimately busts, she said it's nothing personal.

"They take a chance of getting caught and I take a chance on somebody finding out who I am and getting hurt. It's just part of the game. Most of your dealers understand the ground rules and they take (getting busted) maturely. I have nothing against these people. A lot of them, if they ever needed help, I'd be more than happy to help them any way I could."

Some people, however, don't take kindly to being arrested. Some threaten revenge.

Phillips said there was a time in Austin when a couple of men were "gunning for me." And she said the threat of retaliation is always present no matter where she goes. She has received several phone threats in Big Spring, she said.

"Most of it is that they're mad, and they're going to make threats. But I hope most of them have the common sense to realize that killing a police officer is not like killing an informer. ... They stand a better chance by going to court and let their attorney handle a narcotic charge than they would by going to court for murdering a police officer."

Of the drug problem in Big Spring, Phillips said it's no worse than a lot of towns she's worked in. But then, "I've never been called in if there wasn't a problem," she said.

Commissioners to consider overtime policy for county

Howard County attorney Tim Yeats will present an overtime pay policy for county employees when county commissioners meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

Yeats prepared the written policy at the commissioners' request Feb. 10 during a regular meeting.

No uniformity existed among county departments regarding an overtime policy, Yeats said then.

County Judge Milton Kirby suggested at that meeting that approval for overtime should lie with department heads.

Yeats said Saturday morning his proposal suggests paying time and a half for hours exceeding 40 for county employees and time and a half for hours exceeding 48 for county law enforcement employees.

Elected, administrative, executive and professional employees working for the county would be exempt from overtime pay, Yeats said.

His proposal further suggests that overtime be approved only for emergency situations and that final approval would lie with the department head and county judge.

Commissioners also will discuss repairs to the air-conditioning system in the county clerk's office and a request to reserve the county fair barn for the Fair Association Sept. 7-27.

not know at which priority we will approach this, but we will look into these land purchases," Yap said in a telephone interview from Manila. The committee also is investigating land acquisitions in New York and California, he said.

Yap said the commission has documents that indicate Campos has conducted business dealings for Marcos in the past.

President Aquino has entrusted that commission with determining whether Marcos and several of his business associates used money from the Philippine treasury to purchase land investments in the United States.

Campos, who heads one of Asia's largest pharmaceutical firms, United Laboratories Inc. in Manila, is known in the Philippines as a close friend of the Marcos family.

"He is quite close to Marcos. We have received information that he is the godfather of Marcos' only son," Yap said.

Reagan warns Congress

WASHINGTON — President Reagan warned Congress on Saturday that rejecting his plan to arm Nicaraguan rebels means caving in to "a powerful Soviet bloc challenge ... to spread communism throughout Central America."

The president, in his weekly radio address from Camp David, Md., delivered another broadside of tough talk designed to counter congressional resistance to his proposal to send $100 million in aid to the Contras battling Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

With his plans getting a cool reception on Capitol Hill, Reagan announced Friday that he was sending diplomatic troubleshooter Philip Habib to Central America to try to seek a negotiated settlement of the region's conflicts.

Testimony shifts blame

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The presidential commission probing the Challenger explosion believes much of the testimony it is hearing from NASA and its contractors is self-serving, a source close to the inquiry said Saturday.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the commission is especially irritated with testimony from officials of NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, the Huntsville, Ala., facility which manages the solid rocket booster program.

In their testimony last week, these officials seemed to be trying to shift the responsibility to the contractors who made and assembled the right rocket booster believed responsible for the accident that killed seven crew members, the source said.

Cities losing federal aid

WASHINGTON — The loss of federal revenue sharing money this year will force cities to raise property tax rates by an average 25 percent if they are to maintain services, a survey of city leaders said Saturday.

Officials in 58 percent of the 655 cities surveyed said they anticipate a combination of tax increase and spending cutbacks because of the scheduled end of general revenue sharing.

The National League of Cities released its survey as some 3,500 mayors and council members from across the country were opening their three-day congressional conference in Washington on Sunday.

Credit crunch worsens

WASHINGTON — Agriculture officials are saying this year's spring credit crunch will be somewhat worse than the one farmers lived through a year ago, when it took a frenzied last-minute scramble to get loans in time for crop planting.

Even then, about 5 percent of producers who wanted to plant crops were unable to get the financing they needed, and money for the most risky borrowers will be much tighter this year than in 1985, financing spokesmen say.

To meet the demand a year ago, farmers borrowed from relatives, states put money into emergency lending programs and many commercial banks grinded their teeth and threw good money after bad.

Clint for mayor

Victory at the polls could make his day

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Calif. (AP) — The biggest little mayor's race in the country is in full swing, and actor Clint Eastwood is campaigning door to door, unarmed, smiling and talking more than he ever does in his films.

The world's top box office star, the macho, fast-shooting hero of westerns and Dirty Harry detective flicks, also is hitting the coffee klatch circuit, chatting softly over fine china and lace doilies.

He's hitting on the big issues: public toilets, parking, water shortages and the "negativity" of incumbent Mayor Charlotte Townsend toward business people and development in this tourist magnet.

"There have been hundreds of people who have been sent away in tears or in shambles due to the cruelty of this administration," Eastwood said. "I want to bring this community together."

The election isn't until April 8, but Mrs. Townsend, 62, says she's already "tired and resentful" because she's prevented from doing her work by calls from reporters around the world, including some who want to leave messages for Eastwood.

Female tourists press against Eastwood in the street and in restaurants, begging for kisses. Television crews and reporters follow him. Even in the comics, Doonesbury's Joanie Caucus dreams about him.

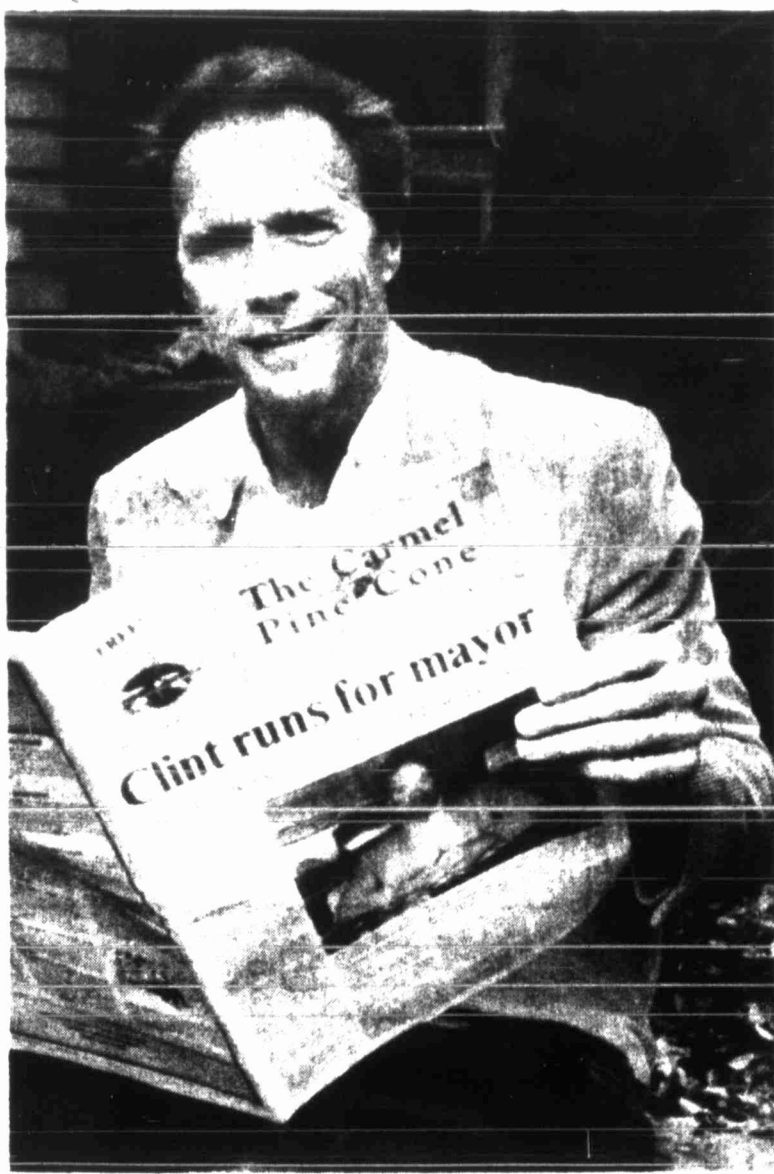

There aren't many babies to kiss. Most folks are retired or semi-retired, like the gray-haired, 55-year-old Eastwood. He hasn't made a film in more than a year and says he "may make one down the line."

Much to the dismay of his agent, Eastwood says the time-consuming, $200-a-month mayor's job "is my top priority and I'll spend as much time on the job as it takes."

The man Newsweek magazine called an "American icon" is just another Monterey Peninsula multimillionaire who likes to play golf at Pebble Beach and drink beer with friends at his Hog's Breath Inn or Bud's Pub in Carmel. He speaks as softly in person as he does in the movies, but he doesn't conceal his anger about the five-member City Council, led by Mrs. Townsend.

"The old Sicilian saying, 'It rots from the head,' is true," Eastwood said, sounding a little more in character for a moment during an interview outside the small, wood-shingled City Hall.

"One of the things I am against in this administration is the negativity," he said. "It's the kind that breeds the great ice cream flap and makes the city an international joke. It's the kind of publicity that has the Los Angeles Times writing 'Scrooge City' articles on Carmel."

A man of few words on the silver screen, actor Clint Eastwood is now talking more than ever, taking his mayoral campaign from door to door in the seaside community of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif.

The square-mile village of 4,825 residents south of San Francisco refused to allow an ice cream shop because of concerns about water usage, litter, toilets and parking. It has strict rules about signs, awnings and paint colors.

Paul Laub, a T-shirt shop owner also running for mayor, said the city "tried to get me for criminal Christmas tree lighting" when he put up lights too early.

Carmel has long been regarded as one of jewels of the California coast, filled with charming houses, charming shops and people who cherish privacy.

It has been the home of photographers Edward Weston and Ansel Adams. Charlie Chaplin used to visit. Salvador Dali painted here. Eastwood moved in 14 years ago and lives with his two teenagers in a house across town from actress Kim Novak.

But the town may be too charming for its own good. The population doubles every summer and during events like the Monterey Jazz Festival and major golf tournaments. The streets are jammed most weekends with tourists shopping for art, antiques and imports.

Mrs. Townsend, seeking her third two-year term, says Eastwood, Laub and others running against her and two incumbent council members represent business interests, not residents.

"I'm against what they call progress," said Mrs. Townsend, a former librarian, recreation director and journalist. "If Clint Eastwood is elected, the first thing that will happen is tourism will increase, much to the sorrow of our residents."

No role left for Marcos

MANILA, Philippines — A top political strategist for Ferdinand E. Marcos said Saturday the deposed president fled without leaving instructions, and he sees no clear way Marcos can still play a role in Philippine politics.

Leonardo Perez, who was Marcos' political affairs minister, said he thinks that new President Corason Aquino should declare a revolutionary government and write the kind of constitution she wants.

"Sometimes we are guided by that proverb that beggars cannot be choosers. We have to accept the situation," Perez, 61, said in a telephone interview.

Satellite passes Halley's

TOKYO — A Japanese probe sent to Halley's Comet made its closest approach Saturday, passing within 89,500 miles and taking pictures of hydrogen atoms surrounding the comet's core, officials said.

The Japanese satellite, one of five international probes scheduled to pass the comet over a nine-day period, is sending back data on the corona of hydrogen atoms which surrounds the comet's core of ice and dust, said Kunihiko Uesugi, chief engineer at Japan's Institute of Space and Astronautical Science.

He said a camera on board the satellite sensitive to ultraviolet light is measuring the brightness of the corona at different distances from the comet. The data will be used to construct pictures and graphs of the corona's shape and size, Uesugi said.

German gets new heart

BERLIN — A 39-year-old man received West German-made artificial heart after he suffered a heart attack during a coronary bypass operation, the doctor who designed and implanted the device said Saturday.

The recipient, an interior decorator, was in intensive care Saturday and connected to a respirator, said Dr. Emil Buecherl. He implanted the artificial heart Friday at West Berlin's Charlothenburg University Clinic, where he is chief surgeon.

"The lung and kidney functions of the patient are still unsatisfactory," said Buecherl, who refused to identify the artificial heart recipient.

Black Hebrews barred

JERUSALEM — Israel has denied entry to 26 members of a black Hebrew group from the United States who arrived at Ben Gurion Airport outside Tel Aviv, an Interior Ministry spokesman said Saturday.

Spokesman Yitzhak Agasi said the travelers were turned back after arriving Friday "because they are members of the black Hebrew sect" that is not recognized by Israel.

"We are very careful about black visitors, especially black Hebrews," Agasi told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

He said the group was scheduled to have returned to the United States late Friday. Reports from New York said the travelers were from the Bereshith Cultural Institute in Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

Beirut car bomb kills 5

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb explosion Saturday killed five civilians near an office of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party, police said, and random shelling by Christian gunmen killed two more in Beirut's Moslem sector.

Police said 42 people were injured by the car bomb, the eighth in Christian east Beirut since Jan. 15, when Gemayel loyalists crushed rival Christian forces. Most of the bombings have been aimed at Phalange offices.

Christian and Moslem militiamen meanwhile battled with artillery across the Green Line, which divides the capital into sectarian halves. Police said the shelling killed two civilians and wounded at least three in Moslem west Beirut.

Girl Scouting is beneficial to all

If you see Girl Scouts in uniform this week, it's for a reason. It's to remind everyone of Scouting during this, Girl Scout Week. Wednesday is the day for uniforms, but every day of the week will offer some special event to promote Scouting in the community.

If we wanted to tell you about all the great things Girl Scouting offers girls, adult volunteers and the community, we could say things like:

"Girl Scouting provides a wholesome environment for girls to learn new skills and develop self-confidence." Or "Girl Scouting helps girls make friends and prepares them for the future." Or perhaps even, "Girl Scouting is unique in its commitment to bringing out the best in each and every girl."

While these statements are true, they leave out one of the best things about Girl Scouting — the fun! The world can be a pretty serious place for girls growing up today. That's why they need Girl Scouting more than ever — to help them experience the fun and joy of all that life has to offer. And if they learn a useful skill or two, so much the better.

Adults need fun, too, and that's why so many of them give unselfishly of their time to work — and play — in Girl Scouting. Our community needs Girl Scouting, too, so let's join in wishing our Girl Scout friends the very best during Girl Scout Week.

Bonilla takes a step backwards

Most Texans in their lifetimes will probably never run for elective office. But of the ones who will, they probably would not want their ethnicities to become campaign issues.

Decency and fairness — and the future of Texas — demand that campaigns be free of ethnic controversy. In a year in which two Mexican-Americans are hoping to be elected statewide, the absence of ethnic partisanship should be of paramount importance.

That, however, does not seem to be a major concern for Ruben Bonilla, chairman of the Mexican-American Democrat organization, MAD.

Up until the past weekend, only two Hispanics — Raul Gonzalez and Roy Barrera Jr. — were going to be the major players in an interesting unfolding of the Texas political year. Gonzalez, a Mark White-appointed Supreme Court judge, and Barrera, a San Antonio state district judge, are candidates for statewide office — the first Hispanics in Texas with serious chances of making political history. Gonzalez is a Democrat, Barrera a Republican.

But Bonilla blundered last week when he unleashed a highly personal attack on Barrera — an attack reported statewide from Amarillo to Brownsville. In making his move, Bonilla may have made ethnicity a campaign issue.

Barrera, Bonilla said, is a Mexican-American being used by Republicans to elect Bill Clements governor. Bonilla charged Barrera with waging a racist campaign based solely on an ethnic appeal to Mexican-Americans. Finally, Bonilla branded the population of the Texas Panhandle as "rednecks."

Ought not Bonilla as head of MAD be fighting the use of such categorizations instead of using them? It would be difficult to imagine San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros resorting to such tactics.

Bonilla's comments would ordinarily be easy to dismiss. But they come from a Democrat who aspires to higher positions of leadership. Perhaps they are the opening salvos of what may be a nasty rematch between White and Clements.

Bonilla's outburst seems strange in light of the role the Mexican-American vote will play in the primary and general elections in May and November.

The Gonzalez and Barrera campaigns most likely will generate record turnouts among Mexican-Americans — most of them staying within the Democratic party and giving Bonilla a chance to claim them as his own.

Consider that this political year is tailor-made for Bonilla to increase his political visibility. Of the five seriously contested Democratic races for the Texas State Senate, three are being waged in heavily Hispanic districts. Of 34 contested House of Representatives races in the Democratic primary, 12 are in Hispanic areas.

These political contests — along with numerous ones at the county level and the absence of hotly contested races at the top of the ticket — could boost the Mexican-American vote in the Democratic primary to as much as 25 percent of the total vote. Two years ago, Mexican-Americans cast 15.9 percent of the vote in the Democratic primary.

Were Bonilla to concentrate on producing a Gonzalez victory by master-minding a massive Mexican-American turnout which exceeded expectations, Bonilla would have made a significant contribution to Texas in its sesquicentennial year, and he could justifiably aspire to political prominence in his own right.

Several weeks ago, Bonilla seemed to have started up that road. He wrangled the state's top elected leaders to attend or endorse MAD's political fundraiser in Austin. With Gov. White and Gov. Bruce Babbitt in attendance, Bonilla was able to underscore the growing importance of the Mexican-American vote and maybe his own.

For Bonilla, then, who must master the craft of coalition building for future political victories, to open the door to ethnic name-calling is nothing short of amazing.

Bonilla — demanding, clamoring, pushing for Mexican-American inclusion — is necessary in Texas, for we have a long way to go.

But let's not start by going backwards.

Every parent's nightmare

It's a dream that makes you pull up straight, muscles taut, flushed with adrenalin from a flood of unjustified guilt. It's a nightmare of the afternoon nap, when buzzing distractions create the low din that keeps sleep light.

It's a dream about your child running into the street in front of a car. Or maybe it's the one where the child topples from a bicycle out of control and bangs hard into the concrete. No matter which, you are an observer but helpless to intercede. The shouted warning does no good.

Maybe it's the worst one of all. It's the one where a nondescript van, windows tinted like night, pulls up alongside your child playing innocently in the yard or walking from school.

In an instant, the child is gone. For most of us, it's a distressing dream or waking nightmare. Like when your wife suddenly pulls up from conversation, consternation gripping her face, to ask, "Where's the baby?" even though you looked just a minute ago and she was right where she was supposed to be.

Tragedies too terrible to contemplate, the nightmare intrudes. For nearly all of us, it is only a nightmare. For a tragic few, it is reality. Those spared are lucky, because usually the warnings aren't enough to prevent a sick and determined kidnapper.

For former Big Spring Laura Proctor, the awful nightmare is real. On the streets of Dallas, in broad daylight, 22 days ago, 9-year-old Christie Diane Proctor disappeared.

Greg Brooks of Big Spring, Christie's uncle, says the investigation into Christie's disappearance has the police stumped. Psychics have been consulted, neighborhood searches conducted, and still no clues.

There have been no demands for ransom.

Last week, an envelope crossed my desk stamped in red with capital letters, "IMPORTANT." Opened, it spilled out its contents: a photo of a little girl, smiling face. A flyer headlined "KIDNAPPED" from the City of Jackson, Michigan. And a photocopied letter from a distraught mother:

"Dear Editor: Please, please put my daughter's photo in your newspaper. I have spent thousands of dollars and sleepless nights. And still no word, no clues, no suspects. I have four other children and we miss her dearly. Please don't refuse us, I am now below poverty level and I desperately need your help."

The letter was signed Susan Shanes of Jackson, Mich. And it concerned her daughter, Natasha, age 7.

The Jackson, Mich., police confirmed the letter's authenticity: "Natasha 'Tashia' Marie Shanes, born Jan. 23, 1979, missing since May 8, 1985, when she was kidnapped from her house while sleeping. Not a custody case. Natasha is an epileptic with blackout spells and is emotionally impaired." The Jackson police number is 517-788-4100, or 1-800-843-5678.

Christie Proctor, missing 22 days; Natasha Shanes, missing 10 months from a state all the way across the nation. The common denominator: parents single-minded in their search.

Brooks says the Dallas police are "going back over everything. Everybody's a suspect."

The case thus far doesn't fit the modus operandi of known child-kidnapping rings operating in Dallas, Brooks says. "They (the police) can't figure out what the people want with her that took her."

Christie, now 10, was born in Big Spring and moved to Dallas last fall with her mother and younger brother Adam, 5. She was waiting home Feb. 15 from a friend's house to her apartment complex when she disappeared. Police theorize she was within a block of her apartment.

Christie's disappearance prompted full-scale searches by foot, horseback and by air. Nothing.

When Natasha was reported missing a "citywide search was conducted," said a Jackson, Mich., police spokesman. "No results. The mother has been going throughout the country searching. We have no leads."

It's every parent's fear but a living nightmare for Laura Proctor and Christie's other relatives here and in Dallas, and for Susan Shanes in Michigan.

The prospect that reprinting Christie's photograph will help solve the puzzle of her disappearance is almost as remote as thinking the Michigan girl's picture could possibly help in her case.

Yet the Shane woman hasn't given up any possible avenue of help; she continues to scour the country in person and by mail. So too for the Proctors and Brooks and for others who together have offered $16,000 in rewards for Christie's safe return.

These parents and relatives won't give up. So we'll try to help, too, by publishing the girls' pictures and the accounts of their disappearance. And maybe, somehow, it will turn out all right for them. I, the father of three, am hoping against hope that it will. The nightmares are unsettling; the reality would be devastating.

Baby contest isn't for baby

By ROBIN WARD

The audience is hushed; the contestants jittery with anticipation. The emcee walks across the stage, picks up the microphone, begins to speak: "And the new Miss Rhode Island USA for 1986 is ..."

Just as the winner's name is announced, the mother of a losing contestant storms the stage, trying to wrestle the microphone from emcee Elizabeth Covel, charging that the pageant is fixed.

The emcee suffers torn ligaments in three fingers of her right hand and various sprains in her battle for the microphone. She says she will miss at least three weeks of work because of the injuries and files a police complaint against the mother.

The scene, played out last week in Newport, R.I., is quite unusual for a beauty pageant. But the case of a mother becoming so tied up in whether her child wins or loses is probably more common than most pageant mothers or fathers would like to admit.

At a teen-age level or higher, beauty pageants have some merit. Contestants must develop poise and learn to be at ease in front of an audience and judges. They may earn scholarships or an opportunity to travel. And most importantly, they are old enough to decide whether they want to enter the pageant or not.

Not so with the new and quickly growing phenomenon of "kiddie pageants." Babies and toddlers are paraded across a stage to be judged winners or losers because they smile at the right time or look "cute" or seem to be photogenic.

Who is benefiting? It can't be the child, who is too young to understand why he or she won or lost. So it must be the parents who vicariously live the triumph through their children — a shallow victory at best.

What message does it send a child to know she won because she was "the prettiest one there" — something over which she had no control? And if she doesn't win next time, will being told "it's all right" override the message of failure?

Why not teach children instead that success is learning to get along with people and developing their God-given abilities and being the best people they can be? Why not teach children that it's what you make of your life, not what you're born with that counts in the long run?

Today's highlight in history:
On March 9, 1862, during the Civil War, the first battle of the ironclads took place as the Union ship Monitor clashed with the Confederate vessel Virginia (formerly the "Merrimack") at Hampton Roads, Va. Neither won; but the confrontation heralded a new era in naval warfare.

On this date:
In 1661, Cardinal Jules Mazarin, chief minister of France, died, leaving King Louis XIV in complete control.

In 1796, Napoleon Bonaparte married Josephine de Beauharnais.

In 1860, the first Japanese ambassador to the United States (Niimi Buzenokami) and his staff arrived in San Francisco.

In 1916, Mexican raiders led by Pancho Villa attacked Columbus, N.M., killing more than a dozen people.

In 1933, Congress, called into special session by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, began its 100 days of enacting New Deal legislation.

Teacher holds to professionalism

To the editor:
On Monday, thousands of teachers across Texas will be taking the Texas Examination for Current Administrators and Teachers. I am insulted at having to take this test which was designed to prove that I am a competent teacher. A test cannot measure teacher competency; only complete, fair, and continuous evaluation can measure a teacher's ability to teach.

Nevertheless, I will take the test with a positive attitude and with complete confidence that I will pass. As a teacher I test students daily, and feel that I must show a prepared and confident manner to my students and to the public. I am embarrassed by my professional peers and by administrators who are feeling in confidence, are exhibiting a bad attitude and are suffering from an inferiority complex. As a teacher I feel I should be able to face the TECAT test, no matter how insulting it is, with a professional attitude.

The dope capital of West Texas

To the editor:
Welcome to the crossroads of West Texas. Is this really the slogan that Big Spring should use, or should it read, welcome to Big Spring, the dope capital of West Texas? The new concise Webster's Dictionary defines cancer as a malignant tumor; an evil likened to a poisonous sore, as the illegal drug trade is a social cancer. It seems as though Big Spring has this social cancer and we are dying a slow death.

I just cannot imagine how the great so-called pillars of our community can try to chastise our police department for arresting people who are suspected of selling drugs to our community.

I can assure you that if this same situation had happened when I was a child, that the parents would have taken a stand, and it sure would not have been for the person who was selling drugs to the youth of our community.

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Big Spring

As most of you know, if you have been in Big Spring for any length of time, our city is not what it used to be. It is very evident to me that the methods and rationale that have been used are just not working. It is imperative that we have a change of philosophy and a different approach by our leaders if Big Spring is to retain her rightful place among the other communities in West Texas.

I did not need to send out a questionnaire to see what the problems are in our community. The problems that are staring us in the face are basically three fold: (1) our economy; (2) a lack of qualified leadership; and (3) our self image. I have walked the streets of Big Spring and you have told me that you also recognize these problems. It doesn't take a genius or a computer to identify them.

Big Spring is in one of its darkest hours right now, but there are some corrective measures which can be taken to put us on the right course and to recapture the pride in our city that we once enjoyed. Just changing the names at City Hall will not get the job done. There must be a change of attitude and philosophy to get us on the right track.

This is what I hear from you, the people of Big Spring. You want honesty and integrity returned to City Hall. As your mayor, I will work to restore your faith in city government. You want to see an end to wasteful and unnecessary spending of your tax dollars. I agree and will work to make sure you are getting full value on every tax dollar spent. You want more businesses and more jobs for our city. We have seen very little progress made by our present and past leadership. I believe we need to seek a number of smaller businesses with growth potential rather than going after one or two big industries. You want an improved image for our city. This will require a clean-up of our physical appearance which can be accomplished by enforcing existing city ordinances. Honesty and integrity must be restored in city government so that our people can once again have full confidence in city leadership.

I hear you talking Big Spring, and with your vote for mayor on April 5, I will go to work to see that you get what you are asking for.

HONESTY INTEGRITY CREDIBILITY

These Three Words Have Made The Most Wanted List At Big Spring City Hall.

VOTE FOR D.W. OVERMAN

An Independent Thinker

FOR CITY COUNCIL, DIST. 2

On April 5th and Help Restore Public Trust and Confidence in City Government.

Pol. Adv. Paid by D.W. Overman, 2719 Larry, Big Spring, Tx.

To The Editor:

paid adv.

It never ceases to amaze me how we, including myself, are so quick to point out faults and forget positive aspects of people and institutions. Have the people already forgotten all the good done by Mr. Don Davis? His leadership is outstanding in the settlement of LULAC suit, improvements of the streets, water-sewer system, Downtown Development Project, set up the first bailer for trash disposal in the state, police department fleet program for better law enforcement, improvements to our parks and golf course not to mention personal qualities such as sincerity, uprightness, conscientiousness, integrity, honesty, and the list goes on.

Also, hats off to a man who sincerely apologizes and to them who have never apologized "cast the first stone".

Personally, I remember the times Mr. Davis helped the Y.M.C.A. start the youth soccer league. Despite his heavy schedule, he was setting up fields, refereeing and coaching a team. His sense of responsibility to children is highly commendable.

I'm sure there are many in the City who also have high regards for Mr. Davis. I'm tired of mostly reading letters to the editor that scrutinize him. Please don't let these minority voices drown out the rest of us; inform the public of all the good he has done as a 16 year old girl has done in this poem below:

UNFAIR CIRCUMSTANCES

You're a victim of circumstance, and that is so unfair.

There are so many Big Spring citizens, who really do care.

You don't let people call your shots, and that's the bravest thing to do.

You know how people are,
and you can't let their rumors destroy you!

You've fought it out, long and hard,
and now your decision stands.

But, please know there are people like me, ones who are your fans.

I wish you would reverse your decision, and give it one more try.

I know it would be hard,
and at times you would just want to cry.

These people have hurt you — in more ways than they'll ever know.

Instead of acting like a two year old — hopefully, their maturity will begin to grow.

For now, we must live with their mistakes, and also their every lie.

Forgive them,
no matter how hard, you must try.

You have been a terrific city manager, this we know is true.

Let me give you a tip,
we'll never stop loving you.

The time is coming to say goodbye, and that is the hardest thing to do.

But always know your family and friends will never stop supporting you.

Mr. Davis, may you remember the good you have done. To the youth of today, the policymakers of tomorrow, may you remember the harm that comes from focusing in on a few negative issues while forgetting the many positive. To the public, let us be an example to these youth.

Steers rally for split with Snyder

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Big Spring Steers and Snyder Tigers hooked up in an exciting two-game set here yesterday at Steer Field. When it was all said and done, with dusk settling in, the teams ended up with a split.

The Tigers won the first game of the doubleheader 13-4, behind a masterful pitching performance by Jimmy Velasquez and faulty Steer errors.

Velasquez, no relation to Steers coach Jim Velasquez, went the distance and was pretty much in control of things after yielding three first inning runs. He allowed 10 hits, struck out 13 and walked only three.

Meanwhile his teammates touched Big Spring starter Mike Dodd for 11 runs and 11 hits in six innings of work. Carey Frazier pitched the last inning for Big Spring and gave up a two run homer to the ever-present Velasquez.

In all fairness to Dodd, the senior hurled a respectable game, striking out six and walking three. Six Big Spring errors accounted for six unearned Snyder runs.

Dodd was shaky in the first inning, where he issued all of his walks. Snyder scored two runs off one hit, a single by third basemen Chris Fryar. Fryar got three hits in five trips to the plate.

Big Spring came out smoking in its first turn at bat. Leadoff man Felix Olivas started things off with a hard single up the middle. First baseman Eli Torres followed with a double over the right fielder's head, scoring Olivas with Big Spring's first run of the game. Aaron Allen got a break when he fanned and the Snyder catcher couldn't hold on to the ball and Allen beat the throw to first.

Meanwhile Torres, who had moved to third on a passed ball, scored on the play, tying the game at 2-2.

Randy Hayworth followed with a double and Dodd, who had three singles in as many bats, singled; scoring Allen.

But the Steers 3-2 lead was short-lived.

Snyder came back with three runs in the top of the second, thanks to two Steer errors and a double by Steve Parker and a single by Justin Webb.

Snyder put the game away in the fifth with four runs, padding its lead to a comfortable 9-3. Again it was poor fielding that got the Steers in trouble. Snyder got three hits in the stanza, but it was three Steer errors that did the real damage. Reserve Tigers catcher Todd Odom doubled and Fryar and Michael Long singled. Long had a good game with three singles in four trips to the plate.

Snyder got two more runs in the sixth behind singles by Mike McWilliams, Brad Holcomb and Long.

The Steers scored their last run of the contest in the bottom of the inning. Right fielder Matt Garrett singled and scored on a double by Allen.

Velasquez's homer off Frazier in the seventh was simply icing on the cake in the Tigers' victory.

Hits: Big Spring 10; Snyder 13; LOB — Big Spring 12, Snyder 5; Errors — Big Spring: Hayworth (3) Ogle, Ontiveros, Rogers, Wash; Snyder: Webb, Hunter; SB — Snyder: McWilliams, Holcomb; 2B — Big Spring: Torres, Allen, Hayworth, Snyder; Parker, Odom, HR — Snyder: Velasquez, WP — Velasquez, LP — Dodd; Time: 2:48; Snyder 230 042 2-13; Big Spring 300 001 0-4

Morelioni headed to state

LUBBOCK — For the first time in six years, a Big Spring High School swim team member will be competing at the state meet in Austin.

Steer diver Louis Morelioni pulled off the feat as he placed second in the diving competition at the regional swim meet at the Texas Tech University pool. Morelioni, a senior who finished sixth at the meet last year, rose in the occasion this time as he finished second to Amarillo High's John Beck.

Beck won the one-meter diving competition with a score of 430.00. Morelioni finished with a score of 365.00, edging out Midland High diver Mike Neatherland who scored a 360.00.

Big Spring other participant, Cade Loftin, finished sixth in the 100 yard butterfly. The junior swam a 58.5 in the prelims and swam a 56.5 in the finals. This breaks his own school record by one second.

Big Spring High swim coach Martin Smith said he was happy with both of his swimmers' performance. "I'm very proud of both of them," said Smith in a phone interview from Lubbock. "Cade has done an excellent job for me all year and he still has next year. The Midland High kids beat Louis at district, but Louis beat him when it counted the most. He did a great job today."

The last Big Spring swimmer to make it to the state meet was 100 backstroke Morgan Wise in 1979.

Lemon: 'Hardcourt Minister'

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

He is commonly known as the "Clown Prince of Basketball," but Meadowlark Lemon might be more comfortable with "Minister of the Hardwood." After 22 years as the ringleader for the Harlem Globetrotters, Lemon hung up his sneakers and found the Lord.

Lemon was in town recently promoting his new comedy basketball team, the Shooting Stars, which will appear at the Big Spring High School gym this Tuesday for a game with in-house rivals, the California Lasers.

Lemon still maintains his dynamic court presence while performing ball handling wizardry and unfathomable trick shots, but off-court he is engaged in a much more important game. The game of life.

Lemon and the Shooting Stars have joined forces with Nancy Reagan in a nationwide effort to educate youth on drug awareness. In addition to performing their comedy routine, Lemon and the Shooting Stars have lectured all across the nation on the perils of drug abuse.

"One of the main reasons I started the Shooting Stars was to help people," said Lemon, during an interview at Big Spring's Park Inn. "During the past year and half I have been preaching to groups all across the nation and particularly in Texas. And I figured what better way to reach the people than with my God-given talent for basketball. It's good, clean family entertainment."

...still making crowds laugh

Lemon believes the current drug scandals in professional sports can be controlled. "There are a lot of good people in professional sports who are not going to allow a few irresponsible athletes to jeopardize the whole system. They're starting to make examples of these players,

I think they are on the road to controlling the problem."

He admits that there were drugs in sports even in his early years. "There was a problem somewhat but not like it is today. But I was so naive that I guess a lot of things were happening that I didn't see. The difference today is that professional athletes are earning the kind of money where they can afford drugs such as cocaine."

Though Lemon maintains a harrowing schedule between practice, performance, road time and preaching, the pace is one that he is comfortable with. "I keep some pretty long hours these days. I start each day at 4 a.m. with an hour or more of prayer. Sometimes I have to go to bed at 5 in the evening to keep this routine but this is what I want to do. This gives me the life I want to lead."

bugs out of the program."

Though ex-Globetrotter stars Fredrick "Curly" Neal, Larry "Gator" Rivers and Jerry "Love Bug" Venable are with the Shooting Stars, Lemon sees no need in comparing the two teams. "The Globetrotters are an institution. I gave 22 years of my life and it's a name that I love very much, but the Shooting Stars are different. This is not bragging or putting anybody else down but our team represents the finest comedic basketball team in the world and I see us going only upward."

Neal, one of the most popular Globetrotters with clean shaven head and incredible dribbling skills, will join Rivers and Venable in the most skilled ball-handling backcourt combination ever assembled.

Joining Lemon on the wing is Pistol Pete Maravich, the former all-American from LSU who led the nation and NBA in scoring.

Unfortunately neither Neal nor Maravich will be on hand for the Big Spring performance. "Curly and Pete have other commitments at this time so they haven't been able to give us a great deal of time as of yet. But as time goes on I expect it will be a lot of fun to play with these guys."

Goliad, Runnels fare well in Optimist Relays

The Goliad and Runnels track teams fared well but the Steers freshmen team found the going rough in the annual Boys Optimist Relays held here yesterday at Blankenship Field.

The Goliad Mavericks fared the best of all local teams by finishing a strong third with 65 points in the seventh grade boys division.

Neal Mayfield led the way as he anchored the winning 400 meter relay team, finished second in the long jump and won the 100 meters and high jump.

The Mavericks 1600 meter relay team finished fourth.

Also scoring valuable points for Goliad were: Mike Williams, fourth in the discus; Greg Green, third in the 400 and Allan Baker, fifth in the high jump.

Goliad also picked up points from a fourth-fifth finish by Fermin Gutierrez and Lamont Jajola in the 300 low hurdles.

Midland Alamo won the seventh grade division with 90 points. Midland San Jacinto was third with 70 points in the 15-team division.

The Runnels Yearling also turned in a strong performance in the eighth grade division.

The Yearlings finished fifth out the 12-team division with 43 points. The top three teams were all from Midland. Goddard won the meet with 124 points, Alamo followed with 107 points and San Jacinto was third with 56 points.

The Yearlings' top performer was Chris Cole who anchored the 400 relay team to a third place finish while finishing second in the shot put and sixth in the 100.

Other top performances were turned in by Peter Buske who finished second in the discus and Junior Carrillo and Juan Hogan who placed fourth and fifth in the discus. Chris Minter was sixth in the 1600 and Trey Smith was sixth in the high jump.

Rangers, Hawks bats' go wild in double-header

It was a hitter's game yesterday at Jack Barber Field as the Howard Hawks and Ranger Junior College Rangers battled in a double-header.

When all the fireworks were over, Ranger had won the first game 10-4 and the two teams battled to a 15-15 deadlock in the second game of the region clash.

It was all Ranger in the first game as the Rangers bombed

Howard starter Thad Webber for 15 hits. It was not one of Howard's better performances as Howard coach Bill Griffin said, "They just wore us out."

The second game started out like another Ranger rout as the Rangers jumped out to a 7-1 lead after the first two innings and stretched it to 11-2 in the fourth inning.

But the Hawks made a comeback of their own, behind the hot bats of Frank Medina and Bruce Smith. Smith blasted two homers, a solo shot in the second and a three run shot in the fifth.

The Hawks trailed 15-12 going into their final at bat. Medina tied the game up with a three-run blast, leaving the game at its final outcome.

The Hawks also ran wild on the base paths, swiping 8 bases.

Richard Messer, Joe Cuellar and Webber all stole two bases each.

Howard's record is now 0-5-1 in region play and 9-9-1 overall. Ranger is 4-0-1 in region play and 19-4-1 overall.

Howard will be in action today in a double-header versus Longview Community College, Missouri at 1 p.m. at Jack Barber.

Steer tracksters make strong showing 2nd meet

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Steers finished fifth yesterday in the Mustangs Relays with 61 points.

Brian Mayfield led the way with a career and school record 6-8 first place leap in the high jump. Phillip Matthews won the long jump with a leap of 21-10, also a career best. Mayfield placed sixth in the long jump (20-0). Dax McCracken was second in the 800 (2:01.20) and De-wayne Sherman was third in the 100 (10.80).

The Steers 400 meter relay team of Brian Reid, Charles White, Matthews and Sherman ran a season-best 43.2 for fourth place. Odessa Permian won the event in 42.1 and Odessa High was second in 42.7 Abilene High ran a 42.8 for third place.

The Steers scored more points in the 400 when Sean Jackson (52.9) finished fourth and Reid (53.0) placed fifth.

The 1600 relay team of Wimley White (52.44) McCracken (52.17), Jackson (52.80) and Chris Hill (52.16) placed third in 3:29.65.

Midland Lee won the meet with 134 points followed by Abilene High's 118 points. Odessa High was third with 112 points.

Steers coach Randy Britton said he was pleased with his team's progress in its second meet of the season. "The kids competed well," said Britton. "We had some that I thought should have done better but overall I'm pleased with their performance."

Big Spring's next meet will be Friday and Saturday at the West Texas Relays in Odessa.

Morton wins another state title

AUSTIN (AP) — Jerry Joyce poured in 26 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as Morton turned back a Dripping Springs rally for a 73-59 victory in the Class 2A title game Saturday at the state high school basketball tournament.

Morton, runnerup last year to Grapeland, led 37-21, at the half before the Tigers rallied in the third quarter. Pat Leonard, Dripping Springs' leading scorer, netted 12 of his 24 points in that period as Morton's lead dwindled to 48-43.

The Indians' pressing defense, which forced 33 Tiger turnovers, combined with Joyce's 10 fourth-quarter points to put the game out of reach.

Don Childs and Richard Hampton each scored 10 points for Dripping Springs.

The Tigers, making their first appearance at the state tournament, finished their season at 32-4. Tournament veteran Morton, in its 10th appearance, finished at 31-7.

Cleveland 57, Dimmitt 56

Cleveland erased a seven-point deficit in the final 7½ minutes and nipped Dimmitt 57-56 on Richard Johnson's shot with 10 seconds left to win the Class 3A schoolboy basketball championship Saturday.

Cleveland, winning its first title in its second tournament appearance, closed the gap after Dimmitt went ahead 47-40. Dimmitt, seeking its fifth championship in 13 trips to the tournament — a division record — missed a chance to seal the victory when sub Warren McDonald missed the first of a one-and-one free throw situation with 1:22 to go and again with only 22 seconds remaining.

Nazareth 53, Archer City 49

Darryl Hoelting hit seven of eight free throws in the final 2:05 Saturday as Nazareth ended seven years of frustration by defeating Archer City 53-49 for the Class A schoolboy basketball championship.

Nazareth first came to the tournament in 1980 but lost in the semifinals that year and also lost in the title game in 1984 and 1985.

With Nazareth leading 42-41, Robert Davis of Archer City was whistled for fouling Billy Steffens of Nazareth when it appeared Steffens had charged into Davis.

Steffens made both free throws, for a 44-41 lead and Archer City could not catch up.

TV ministry doesn't go for hype

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Lights. Camera. Action. Those are the familiar terms associated with the production of a TV show or film. But, the live Sunday sermons preached by Dr. Kenneth G. Patrick, minister of the First Baptist Church, use a more subtle approach.

"When we began it was our prayer to not have a worship service to be televised, but to televise a worship service. We have no desire to become a TV church," Patrick said.

One hour of air time on channel 6 has been given to First Baptist Church each Sunday from 11-12 a.m. An automatic switcher signal originates in the church from a microwave and is generated to the microwave at Big Spring Cable TV and the show automatically airs, Patrick said.

The cable company in Big Spring donates the time as a missionary endeavor, Patrick said.

The time is given freely, but the church furnishes the equipment. Over $45,000 was spent on production equipment which is run by three cameramen, two production managers (a production director and a production editor) and a sound technician. They produce the show.

Along with the production equipment new choir robes and lights were also purchased. "It was quite a missionary endeavor," he said.

There are at least 10,000 people who have access to the sermon, Patrick said. Anyone in the Big Spring area who has cable can receive it, he added.

"We're seeking to reach shut-ins, those who are unable to come to church; the unlisted, people who have no church home; and the unsaved," Patrick said. "We've had people who have joined our church because of the show," he added.

Patrick recalls the days when he used to broadcast a half hour show on Saturday mornings on an FM station where he would play gospel music and take requests.

"The Lord impressed me that this (TV) would be an opportunity to minister to more people," Patrick said. "First Baptist has a lot to offer and television enhances it," he added.

Patrick attributes the success of the behind the scene preparation of the TV ministry to Dr. P.W. Malone, chairman of the audio and television committee. "It was under his ministry, guidance, genius in technology and labor of love that made it all possible," Patrick said.

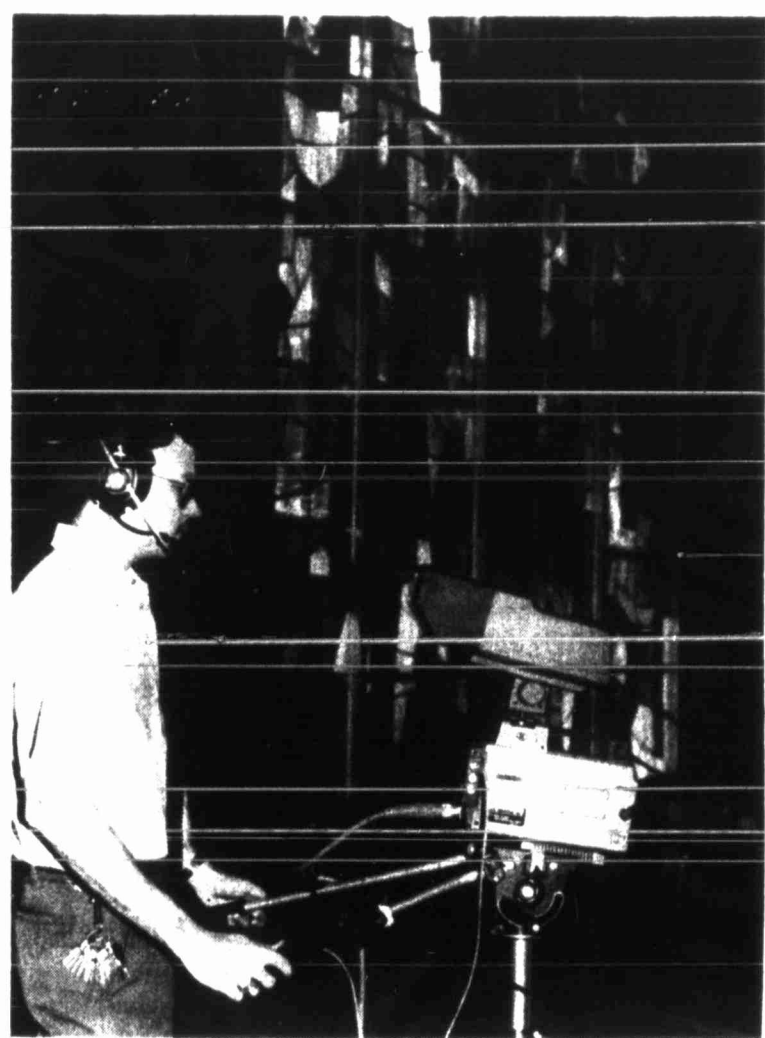

Dr. Kenneth Patrick ministers to the congregation and the TV audience from the pulpit.

First Baptist has produced its TV show for over a year now. "Big Spring people would like to get a local ministering. There are a lot of hurting people here — if we can help them we want to help them," he said, adding that he has become a pastor to the TV audience.

They would do the same things if they didn't have a TV show, Patrick said. "We don't go in for the make-up deal. We do not tailor the worship service. If it happens at church then it will be televised," Patrick said.

Patrick said that they want a TV show without the hype and the commercialization. There will never be anything about finances, he said. "We believe that if the people who watch receive a blessing and want to make a contribution — they can," Patrick said. "Whatever appeal is made, it's made to the congregation not to the TV people," he added.

Andy Couch works the television control switcher and monitors used for the production of the show.

A part of the show that Patrick especially likes is the "Pastor's Pal" segment. During this time Patrick interviews a child, ages 4 and above. This allows him to "get a personal insight to these children," Patrick said.

"My hobby is people and I enjoy the relationship with the children and their parents," he said.

Future TV plans for First Baptist are to videotape and televise its 100th anniversary on November 11 and to produce a live show for their sesquicentennial celebration.

Oldest spina bifida sufferer, 89, inspires others

Lillian Smith Ortiz, 89, poses with fellow spina bifida victim, 20-month-old Jason Albanese in Corpus Christi. Mrs. Ortiz is the oldest spina bifida patient in the United States and is a source of inspiration to young people with the disease.

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Lillian Smith Ortiz is a survivor.

From her earliest efforts to walk, struggling with a spinal handicap, to working for her room and board as a 9-year-old, she has literally won through.

Now 89, Mrs. Ortiz is a source of inspiration to young people with spina bifida and their parents.

"As far as the national office knows, she is the oldest spina bifida patient in the United States," said Tammy Albanese of the local Spina Bifida Association chapter, whose meetings Mrs. Ortiz regularly attends.

Until the 1930s, most babies with this spinal deformity did not live past infancy. "Spina bifida" is a birth defect which, in varying degrees, involves damage to the spine and nervous system.

Among the mildest types, which affect about 60 percent of the visible deformities, is spina bifida myelomeningocele. This is an obvious cyst-like lesion on the back, which results when the spinal cord fails to develop into a vertical structure during the fourth week of pregnancy.

Mrs. Ortiz's mother was told about her baby's defect at birth and predictions were that she never would walk.

"But Mama worked and worked with me, and I was walking by the time I was 5," she said.

In other kinds of defects, the spinal cord is on the surface of the baby's back, encased in a sac. Mrs. Albanese's son, Jason Lawrence, now 20 months old,

'But Mama worked and worked with me, and I was walking by the time I was 5.'

— Lillian Ortiz

had this type of birth defect. He underwent spinal surgery soon after birth to correct it.

But in 1897, this surgery wasn't possible so little Lillian Smith grew up with the myelomeningocele still in place. "I never walked very good. My sense of balance has never been the best," she said.

Despite that problem, she not only undertook to support herself but also her 2-year-old brother when her mother died in 1906.

Lillian's father had deserted her and her two brothers — a toddler and a teenager.

Her life then brought the opening verse of J. Whitcomb Riley's poem "Little Orphant Annie" to reality:

"Little Orphant Annie came to our house to stay, to wash the cups and saucers and brush the crumbs away; shoo the chickens off the porch, dust the hearth and sweep make the fire and bake the break and earn her board and keep."

Looking back, Mrs. Ortiz

said she's worked hard all her life, beginning then.

"I earned my way for myself and my little brother," she said. "First one family, then another. I'd do the cleaning, make the beds, take care of the children, get them bathed and dressed."

Her younger brother is now retired and lives in Springfield, Mass.

Like many spina bifida patients, she has problems with bladder control. "In high school, they let me sit by the door so I could leave quickly to go to the bathroom," she said. "But the bathroom was in the basement, and lots of times I didn't make it. So I always had a change of clothes with me."

After graduation from high school, she married and had four children. She was paralyzed from the waist down after the first baby was born but gradually feeling and movement returned.

This was the first of three times that she would be paralyzed; once it was for more than year, but then the paralysis gradually went away. One child died and she has never known why. "They just told me when she was born that she would not live very long," Mrs. Ortiz said. "She never grew and died a few months later. I had had the flu in the 1919 epidemic, and I don't know if that caused it or not."

Mrs. Ortiz' two sons now live in Corpus Christi, and her daughter lives in Rhode Island. None of the grandchildren have developed spina bifida though there is genetic component to the ailment.

Mrs. Ortiz came to Corpus Christi in 1938 with her second husband, Tony Ortiz, whose name was there.

One of the things she looks forward to is the last Thursday of each month, when the Spina Bifida Association meets at Ada Wilson Hospital.

Dear Abby

Woman's past promiscuity causes fear

DEAR ABBY: I am terrified of reports that heterosexual women who have had many lovers may have contracted AIDS as far back as 10 years ago. Following my divorce five years ago, I was very promiscuous. I caught herpes, which I have accepted as due punishment, but now the possibility of having caught AIDS during this time is making me crazy.

I've given blood regularly for the last six years and have never received an AIDS notice from the blood center. I am no longer promiscuous.

What are the facts regarding promiscuous and formerly promiscuous women and AIDS? How many years must I fear retribution for that phase of my life? And how would you define promiscuity?

WORRIED: A person who has a sexual relationship going with more than one person at a time is promiscuous. The more partners, the greater the chance for exposure to AIDS — particularly if you have had sex with promiscuous men, a bisexual or a person who has had sex with a bisexual, intravenous drug users or their partners.

Both herpes and AIDS are caused by viruses. AIDS is the result of a breakdown of the immune system, making one vulnerable to any number of diseases. While the incubation period of the virus is not known at this time, it is estimated to be as long as five years.

Herpes and AIDS are no more "divine retribution" than polio, multiple sclerosis, leukemia or chicken pox.

Nothing can be done to undo your past, but the best way to minimize the risk of getting AIDS is to use a condom religiously. If you're still concerned, see your doctor for a blood test.

of people who would send a scantily clad stripper to a family man's party where his wife, family and friends are celebrating his birthday?

As a wife who has had this experience, I can tell you it is unpleasant and embarrassing to watch another woman do a striptease dance for your husband.

Please help me send a signal to those insensitive, boorish people: Save the strippers for bachelor parties!

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for the photo to be submitted that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the announcement may be brought to the Lifestyle department, or may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 267-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

Wedding

Wilson-Newman

Catha Darlene Wilson of Colfax, La. and Ralph Robert Newman Jr. of Lake Charles, La., previously of Stanton, exchanged wedding vows Feb. 22 in Bentley, La. at the Assembly of God with a justice of the peace, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Fontenot of Jonesville, La. Bridegroom's parents are the late Ralph R. Newman Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tidwell of Big Spring.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with an archway of maroon and pink silk flowers and ribbon on a white lattice arch with ferns on both sides.

An organist provided the music. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an off white lace gown with seed pearls at neckline and a headband of white silk flowers attached to the veil.

She carried a bouquet of pink and maroon silk flowers and ribbons.

Matron of honor was Mary Jane Cross of Colfax. Flower girl was Danna Wilson, daughter of the bride. Best man was Mark Edgington of Houston who is cousin of the groom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Assembly of God Fellowship Hall. The bride's table was decorated with a fountain bride's cake with pink and maroon silk flowers. The groom's cake was chocolate topped with a model helicopter.

After a wedding trip to Alexandria, La., the couple made their home in Lake Charles, La.

Health services available at reduced cost

"What's new in the health field at Howard College?" was the program at the February 27 meeting of the Permian Basin Medical Society Auxiliary.

Dental hygiene services are available at reduced prices at Howard College. Barbara Holdamph, dean of the Allied Health program, said.

"Extremely conscientious" students clean, apply fluoride and x-ray teeth for costs from $2 for fluoride application to $15 for a complete set of x-rays, Holdamph said.

The services are available to anyone in the community between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. with an appointment, she said. Radiographs taken at Howard College are released to the patient for their personal dentist's use.

Cosmetology is another recent addition of Howard College's School of Allied Health. Holdamph said manicures, pedicures, bleaches, haircuts, shampoos, colors and facials are available to the public.

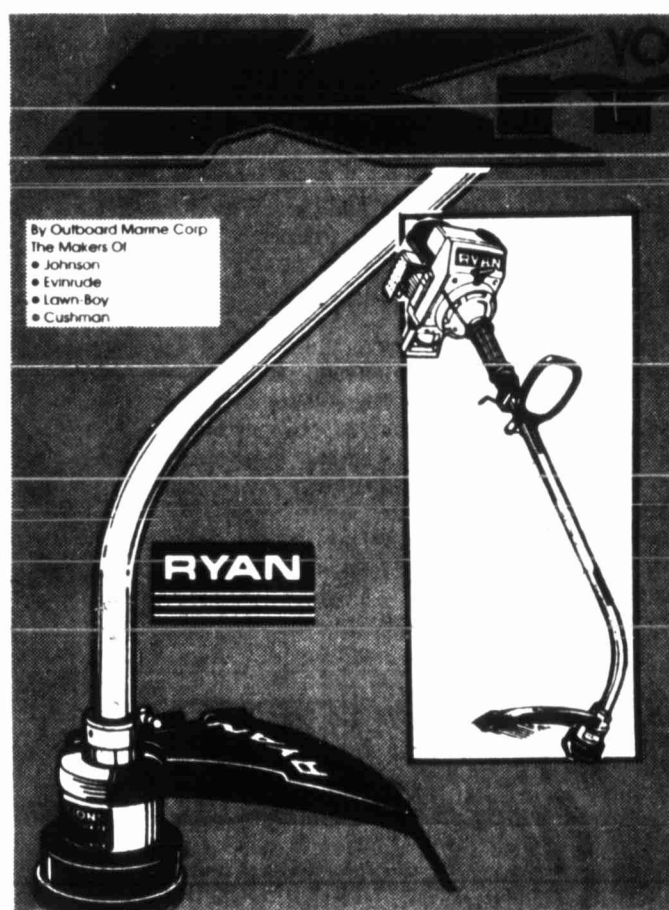

In other business, Jane Thomas, president, announced that the new president of the American Medical Association Auxiliary will be Mrs. Wylie Durham of Houston. The auxiliary now has 8,500 members.

Next function of the local auxiliary will be Doctor's Day which will be celebrated in March with a potluck salad supper for members and their husbands. Shirley Shroyer will present "Women's Impact on the Community" at the regular March meeting.

WOOD BE KING

In the world of kitchen cabinets, wood has been the perennial winner, outselling laminates by a margin of three to one. It is prized for its durability and natural look. Wood is also chosen by many homeowners for the warmth it adds to a room that is so often the nucleus of the household. In today's kitchen, oak is the preferred species largely because it is durable and moderately priced. However, other woods merit attention. They include maple, a tight-grained hardwood; ash, similar in color and grain to oak; and cherry and walnut, which are beautifully grained. Pine is a soft wood that, to some minds, acquires more character with every nick.

The warmth of wood makes the kitchen an even more homey and inviting place to be. For help with kitchen design, call BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK. We can design, build, and install your new kitchen from floor to custom cabinets. Our skilled craftsmen can handle any home renovation job.
