Food drive

BIG SPRING — Members of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship (UMYF) groups of the First United Methodist Church will be sponsoring a food drive Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. "The Great American Food Challenge" came to life as a result of the Mid High youth challenging the senior high to a food drive, according to Director of Christian Education and Youth Ministries Bryan Fink.

"In response to the mandate of Jesus Christ to serve and care for the needy and homeless, these youth will be going door to door throughout Big Spring asking for food donations," Fink said. Canned food and other non-perishable items are acceptable according to Fink.

The collected food will go to stock St. Vincent De Paul's food bank in the Immaculate Heart of St. Mary's Church.

The youth groups will have credentials and church stationery to identify themselves as members of the group.

Big Spring brothers face death penalty

By INGER SANDAL
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX — An Arizona prosecutor says he plans to seek the death penalty for two Big Spring brothers found guilty of first-degree murder Thursday in the shooting death of a sheriff's deputy.

The men's brother and father still face trial in the killing.

Leaving a courtroom filled with off-duty sheriff's deputies, Deputy County Attorney Noel Levy told reporters Thursday he planned to seek the death penalty for both Mickel Herrera, 19, and William Herrera Jr., 20, when they are sentenced by Superior Court Judge Norman Hall on Nov. 12.

The brothers showed little emotion when the jury found them guilty of first-degree murder, aggravated robbery and kidnapping.

Still to face trial on the same charges are the men's brother, Ruben Benjamin Herrera, 17, and the brothers' father, William Herrera Sr.

The Herrerias are accused in the June 30, 1988, slaying of Maricopa County Deputy Vernon Marconnet, 51, who had stopped to question the men as they drank beer along a canal bank near South Mountain.

Leaving a courtroom filled with off-duty sheriff's deputies, Deputy County Attorney Noel Levy told reporters Thursday he planned to seek the death penalty for the Big Spring men when they are sentenced for the murder of an Arizona deputy.

Appeals would be automatic if the brothers were sentenced to death.

Levy said he also would seek the death penalty for William Herrera Sr. if he were convicted of first-degree murder. His trial is scheduled to start Oct. 16 before Hall. A tentative trial date of Oct. 18 is set for Ruben Herrera, who could not be sentenced to death if convicted because he was under the age of 16 when the incident occurred, Levy said.

Levy said the murder was especially heinous because the deputy was surrounded, beaten, held on the ground at the point of his own gun, and then shot once through the right eye as he pleaded for his life.

The prosecutor said because any of the Herrerias could have stopped the murder, each is as guilty as the one who actually pulled the trigger. Marconnet had stopped to question the Herrerias after a motorist hailed him and told him he'd seen two vehicles parked as if one had forced the other off the road. The Herrerias allegedly became confrontational when Marconnet asked them for identification, testimony showed.

According to Levy, William Herrera Jr., who had an outstanding burglary warrant from Texas, said he didn't want to go to jail and pushed the officer.

Mickel Herrera then went for the officer's gun, and he confessed to shooting the deputy, telling officers he'd held the gun on Marconnet for several minutes before firing, the prosecutor said.

Mickel Herrera's attorney maintained during the trial that it was William Herrera Sr. who pulled the trigger.

General: Women vets seek progress

By JAMES FLEEHR

BIG SPRING — Times are changing for women in the military, according to a woman who was one of only 40 female brigadier generals ever named to that post.

Women's Veterans Day was celebrated today in Big Spring at the Veterans Administration Hospital with Brig. Gen. Wilma L. Vaught, United States Air Force (Retired), hosting the day's activities. Vaught also will be a featured speaker at the 6th annual Women's Conference Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

At the conference, sponsored by the Blue Blazers women's division of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Vaught will give the keynote address: Motivated to Achieve.

At the Women's Veterans Day event, Vaught said although women continue to make positive strides in the military, she envisions a future when American military women will be able to claim the benefits of their service to their country.

That is not always the case, she said, calling some of the treatment to military women a "sad spot" in history. Steps are being taken, she said, to educate and inform the women in military of their deserved status.

"The problem," she said, "was they served, and came home and didn't consider themselves veterans. They didn't seek the benefits. And they didn't seek them when they really needed it."

"We don't really have a clear definition when we say 'women should not be in combat,'" Vaught said.

When confronted with the question of women in combat, she explained she always remembers to ask "Which is more precious, a daughter or a son — they all are civilians."

Hand-to-hand combat has never been a part of the American military women's role, but women have been close to combat, she said.

"No one should be serving where they can't do what they are required to do," she said.

"Women have always been close to combat lines. Women have Arrested on charges of selling heroin were: Sammy Hernandez, 37, and Tony Hinojas, 29. Hernandez is also facing an indictment in Midland for the sale of cocaine.

Lawsuit details will be released

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — City officials say that terms of a settlement between flood victims and the city's insurance company could be disclosed today.

City Manager Hal Boyd said he expects to receive today a package "with information concerning ing the settlement," of the $1.75 million lawsuit. Boyd said he will review the material, brief Mayor Max Green, then release the information to the media. However, Boyd said he did not receive the package in Friday's mail.

The Herald filed a written request with the city manager's office Sept. 28 seeking the terms of a settlement made recently between the victims of an August 1986 flood and the Texas League of Municipalities, the city's insurance company. The City of Big Spring was sued in March by 10 parties whose homes and businesses were damaged by flood waters after a partial breach in the Comanche Trail Dam.

However, the city manager's office was not able to release the terms of the settlement, Boyd said, because attorneys for the insurance company had agreed with the flood victims to keep information about the out-of-court settlement confidential.

An attorney with the TML, Terry Rhoads, told the Herald he felt disclosure of the settlement terms might be excluded from the Open Records Act. The Herald, however, requested the information under the Freedom of Information Act.

Boyd said he learned yesterday that the Texas Municipal League has decided to release that information.

"I received a phone call from the attorneys for the Texas Municipal League advising me that the Texas Municipal League made a decision not to expend any more legal fees concerning the Comanche Dam Case," Boyd said, "and that Mr. Rhoads told me he was forwarding

S&L: Retirement community plans haven't been scrapped

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Plans for a retirement community in Big Spring haven't been scrapped, according to the savings and loan that owns property which might house the facility.

Officials with Southwest Savings of Dallas said today the S&L is continuing with plans to lure the St. Francis Retirement Community. On Thursday, the manager of Hillside Properties, the housing complex being considered by St. Francis, said he felt the project would be dropped "for reasons I really can't go into."

Bruce Frederick became the manager of the housing complex after Hillside Properties replaced the team which managed the complex, formerly known as Greenbelt Manor.

Frederick was quoted in Thursday's Herald as saying that locating the Catholic-affiliated retirement community at Hillside Properties was no longer being considered by Southwest Savings of Dallas.

"That's not true at all," said Stan Wright, senior vice president for single family real estate owned by the bank. That real estate includes about 2,000 properties including the Hillside Properties.

"I don't know where he got his information," Wright said.

Although local management is responsible for the upkeep of the property, "I am the one in charge of the property," Wright said.

The savings and loan did change the management and the name — in an effort to create a "fresh image," Wright said, but has made no decision to scrap negotiations with officials from the retirement community.

"It had been Greenbelt for years; we didn't want anybody to think it's part of that same group," he said.

"Nothing has changed with that," Wright said in reference to discussions with St. Francis officials. Wright said he spoke with St. Francis officials about 10 days ago concerning the possibility of he and St. Francis officials jointly inspecting Hillside Properties.

Wright said there is no reason for the savings and loan not to sell to the Chicago-based retirement community some of the about 285 units it owns. The savings and loan could probably sell the St. Francis community as many of those as they would want, he said.

"We don't want to hold on to them," he said of the properties. "A retirement center would be perfect for that property."

Because the units are solidly constructed, require little upkeep and are single-level homes without stairs, they make the homes "perfect" for a St. Francis community, he said.

One item still lacking from the properties for the seniors is a community center, and savings and loan officials have been considering the situation, he said.

Q. Is there a law allowing grandparents visitation rights with their grandchildren?
A. Yes, according to Wayne Burns, a local attorney, but it's largely determined by the courts. Grandparents have to make an application with the court, either at the time of the divorce or afterwards, and ask the court for visitation rights.

President appeals to Senate for capital gains cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush pushed anew today for Senate approval of his capital gains tax cut, saying the tax relief was "not an extraneous matter with me."

Leaving a Capitol Hill meeting with Republican senators, Bush said he told the lawmakers the House had "acted decisively" in approving a capital gains tax cut last week and he wanted them to follow suit.

It wasn't immediately clear whether the White House would support a proposal to remove the capital gains tax proposal from a budget-balancing reconciliation bill so that it could be considered separately.

Asked about criticism from some Democrats that the budget-reconciliation bill is weighted down with the issues not related to cutting the deficit, Bush told reporters that the capital gains cut was "not an extraneous matter with me."

Capital gains, which are profits from the sale of investments, now are fully taxed at the same rates as other income. Under the House-passed bill, the top rate of 33 percent would be cut to 19.6 percent until 1992, when it would be raised to 28 percent and "indexed" to avoid taxing gains arising solely from inflation.

Republicans have supported

Bush on the tax cut, while most Democrats have opposed the idea.

The president also met with Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

After the meeting with Mitchell, Bush walked onto the Senate floor briefly, shaking hands with a few of the lawmakers there. He left just a few seconds later. Presidents normally appear only in the House chamber for State of the Union speeches or other formal addresses to joint sessions of Congress.

Associate Senate historian Don Ritchie said he had no record of any previous chief executive casually strolling onto the floor.

Bush's appearance on Capitol

Hill came as Republican senators worked with the administration to devise a capital gains tax cut that could win enough Democratic support to pass the Senate this weekend.

Packwood already had begun soliciting support for his own capital gains plan. That proposal, which failed in the Senate Finance Committee on a 10-10 vote earlier this week, is expected to be the starting point for whatever plan the Senate considers.

Under Packwood's proposal, the longer an investment was held, the less of its profits would be taxed when sold. Packwood seeks to add the plan to a giant deficit-reduction bill as a substitute for a Democratic saving incentive that would expand tax-deductible Individual Retirement Accounts.

The House on Thursday passed its version of the deficit bill that included the capital gains reduction.

Mitchell said so much has been tacked onto the budget bill that it will be impossible to complete congressional action on it in time to prevent automatic across-the-board spending cuts from being triggered on Oct. 16.

Those cuts are required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law when Congress cannot agree on revenue increases and spending reductions.

Prison short list

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Twenty-six sites, including Big Spring, were chosen as possible locations for six new prisons being built, a prison official said.

The 26 sites were selected Thursday from 46 proposals submitted July 31, prison spokesman Charles Brown said. Final selection will probably be made at a Nov. 13 prison board meeting in Austin, he said.

"Each of these 26 sites will be visited by subcommittee members of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice in the next few weeks and then the list will be shortened further," Brown said.

The six new prisons will be of both maximum and medium security, he said.

Those included in the list were Abilene, Angelina County, Beeville, Bell County, Big Spring, Breckenridge, Childress, Dalhart, Dilley, Eagle Lake, Eastland County, Freestone County and Hondo.

Also on the list were Jasper, Jefferson County, Karnes County, Lamesa, Pampa, Polk County, San Jacinto County, Seymour, Stamford, Starr County, Trans-Pecos (Fort Stockton), Wichita Falls and Woodville.

the information on the case for my disclosure or whatever I wish to do with it.

"As far as the city of Big Spring, we have no problem releasing that information if it's given to us."

Boyd said it wasn't clear whether the TLM decided to release the settlement terms to avoid fighting the Herald's request for the information.

The city has been unable to release the settlement terms because TLM attorneys have provided almost no information on the case, Boyd said. After the city was sued, the suit was turned over to the TLM, he said.

"They handled all the case because they have all of our liability insurance," except health, Boyd said. "The defense of the case and everything was under the direction of the legal staff of the Texas Municipal League."

Boyd said he received a call from the TLM in late July or early August telling him the suit was tentatively settled pending final approval by all of the plaintiffs. Boyd said he was told then the terms would be confidential and that information would not be given to the city.

He said he was told then that he receive notification of the settlement when it was finalized.

Although the settlement terms are still undisclosed, Boyd said the city will not spend any money as the TLM made the settlement.

"The settlement of the suit was at no cost to the City of Big Spring whatsoever," Boyd said. "We're just happy the suit is settled and it's over."

Drugs

Williams, 19, on one count.

Arrested and charged for being an accomplice in the sale of marijuana are Glee Holcombe, 28, and Joe Cantu, 21.

A juvenile was arrested on a charge of the sale of cocaine.

All those arrested were residents of Stanton.

Bonds were scheduled to be set this morning.

Tom Finley, commander of the drug task force, said a series of undercover drug buys were made within the city of Stanton during the investigation.

More indictments are expected to follow, he said.

"There's not a whole lot but we've made some more cases," he said. "We've done some work out in the county and in the city too."

"The chief of police got us kicked off over here," he said of efforts. "It was our investigators that made all the buys."

"The sheriff's department and the police department helped us (identify) everyone."

Stanton Chief of Police Michael Adams considers last night's arresting spree, which began at 8 p.m. and netted nine suspects by 10:40 p.m., a signal to drug dealers.

"The days of selling drugs openly without being bothered are over," he said.

He gave most of the credit to the drug task force.

"Due to the difficulty of working drug cases in a small town with the personnel that we've got and lack of money, they (dealers) haven't been bothered in years," he said. "I think this is the real meat in the gravy for the task force, in helping small towns."

In a press release, Adams stated, "There has never been an operation of this type, completed with such success, in the history of Stanton."

"Besides the persons indicted and arrested in this investigation, we were able to gather much information on other dealers and other illegal activities. We do expect that more arrests will follow."

Adams also said that more cases have been made since the indictments were handed down. "We know we've missed a few and some have sprung up since this investigation," he said during an interview Thursday.

Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders, who has been sheriff since 1952, described the arrests as "probably the biggest drug bust at one time since I've been in office."

"Maybe we made an inroad into it," he said of drug trafficking in the county. "We're going to continue to pursue it vigorously."

Finley echoed that statement. "We're going to continue working in Stanton but a little harder now," he said. He estimated that his office has made close to a 1,000 cases in West Texas since its inception Feb. 15, 1988.

Assisting in last night's arrests were nine officers from four different law enforcement agencies. Three were from the police department. Two were from the Martin County Sheriff's Department. Two more were reserve sheriff deputies.

One officer was from the Texas Highway Patrol in Stanton. Two were from the drug task force. And one was from the Howard County Sheriff's Department.

The amounts of confiscated drugs has not been tallied yet, Saunders said. He noted the drug buys were typically in ounces. "They weren't large buys," he said.

House passes broad child-care bill

WASHINGTON — House lawmakers approved a broad package of child-care laws Thursday after narrowly fighting off Texas Rep. Charlie Stenholm's amendment to scale back dramatically the federal government's role in setting child-care standards.

Stenholm, the unofficial spokesman for conservative Democrats in the House and the representative for most of the Crossroads Country, offered the amendment as a last-ditch alternative to the $22.7 billion program being pushed by the House leadership. That amendment was defeated 230 to 195 after the Democratic leadership lobbied hard to keep Democrats from supporting Stenholm.

"This doesn't end the fight," Stenholm said after the vote. "This vote serves notice to both the House and Senate that there are big problems in this legislation."

The Senate has already approved a similar bill, but the significant differences between the two proposals will have to be worked out in a conference committee.

Stenholm and other critics said the biggest problem is that the legislation puts the federal government in charge of overseeing child care standards at day-care centers across the nation. For example, among the proposed requirements is all day-care providers would have to take 15 hours of child-care training.

A bigger issue, however, is that the legislation would prohibit any child care service that conducts religious observances from receiving federal funds. Although the bill's sponsor, California Rep. Augustus Hawkins said, the bill would be amended to remain "silent" on religious issues, critics said too many church-operated day-care centers would be excluded from the program.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, angrily told the House: "Yes, a church could still have a child care facility in the basement, but this legislation would prevent them from saying a prayer before a meal."

Rep. Charles Hayes, D-Ill., denied that allegation, saying many day-care centers in his district are church operated and would not be affected by the House plan.

"We need more money for child-care and this bill provides it," he said.

Unlike the House leadership package, Stenholm's proposal would have allowed states to set their own child-care standards. Also, it would have simply granted parents an earned income tax credit per child that would provide money for child care services rather than additional federal grants.

Stenholm said Congress does not have the money to pay for the additional $1.7 billion program.

"When are we going to stop promising people the moon when we know we aren't going to appropriate the money?" he said.

The House package is actually two bills in one. Both call for the federal government to provide extensive grants to the states for child care services, but tie those grants to establishing advisory councils and additional inspection services. Hawkins and other supporters urged lawmakers to support the package, saying differences would be worked out in the conference committee with the Senate.

Stenholm and other critics argued the House plan would essentially force families to use federally sanctioned day-care facilities rather than the services of their choice.

"If you vote for my amendment, you're saying the family is the best determiner of child care, not the federal government," he said.

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., and other supporters ridiculed the criticism, saying the federal regulations are only guidelines.

"Is it unreasonable to require states to set some standard on the number of children one provider can care for? There have been cases where one person was providing day-care to 47 infants at a time! Is that safe? Is that what we want?" Downey asked the House.

Stenholm's amendment had received the backing of several national organizations, including the National Governors' Association and the Association of Christian Schools. He expected a closer vote Thursday and in fact, the tally was dead even through the early minutes of the voting, but once the leadership plan pulled ahead, some lawmakers changed their ballots.

"We lost some votes today that were solid for us yesterday," Stenholm said, adding the leadership was still smarting from recent losses. "It goes to show that every now and then, even Goliath wins one."

With the new age of war, the style of war has changed, Vaughnt said. Now women and children are not evacuated from the battle zone as they were in World War II.

"As the fighting has changed, the children are there," she said.

With the rights of women changing, the opportunities within the services for women to serve is incredible, Vaughnt noted.

Now the right of spouse and dependents benefits have been added to the military women's corner. Along with the benefits, comes new jobs, such as pilots and aircraft crew members.

Vaught is a living example of the legislated changes. She was promoted in 1980 when the senior grades were offered to women following a law change in 1967.

She is one of only 40 women brigadier generals to ever serve. "There has just been enormous progress made in the time I have been an observer, a little over 20 years now," she said.

Vaught joined the Air Force in 1957 and served in Spain, Florida, Alabama, Vietnam, Guam, Ohio, the Pentagon and the Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana is her most recent assignment, she recalled.

But Vaughnt's dream is to have the Women in Military Service for America Memorial completed. The memorial is unfinished at the spot set aside for construction at the gate of the Arlington Cemetery.

The memorial's purpose is to pay tribute to the women who have been and are in the American armed forces, and will include an education center, she said. A computer register will record all of the names of those that have served, giving women a lasting place in the history of the country they worked to defend, Vaughnt said.

Track given go-ahead to begin racing

BRADY (AP) — Horsemen appeared more concerned with a nepotism rule, but the Texas Racing Commission warned about track safety as G. Rollie White Downs prepared to usher in the return today of pari-mutuel wagering in the state.

Racing commissioner Glenn Blodgett said the panel gave the track the go-ahead to open after he and inspectors walked around the complex Thursday morning and ordered a last-minute repair along parts of the inside back stretch.

Soil from the nearby infield had been removed, causing a troublesome slope that could affect horses' footing, Blodgett said. Material to pack down soft areas was being brought in, and workers would be attending to the problem areas Thursday night and this morning, he said.

Despite his warning, horse trainers said they were not worried about their animals' safety.

"I haven't seen anything to be concerned about," said trainer Jim Hodges of Bandera, who works with several horses. "The track's going to be slow because it's been so dry here."

Kenneth Farquhar, part-owner of the thoroughbred Devilkin, said he was not worried either.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with it. I've galloped horses all around it," he said. "I ain't got but a $450 horse."

Mel Pugh, the other owner of Devilkin, said he and his partner do look out for their horse's safety even though his purchase price was low. "But we're not worried about the condition of the track," Pugh said as he petted the large gray thoroughbred.

Horsemen were, however, complaining to Blodgett and his staff about a state racing nepotism rule.

The racing commission regulation prohibits an owner or trainer from participating at the same track where a relative is a track veterinarian, jockey, apprentice jockey, horseshoer or race track employee.

Blodgett and Walter Smith, president of the Texas Professional Horse Trainers Association, told a group of horsemen that the racing commission would take up the matter Monday.

Meanwhile, presiding track steward Roy Manfredi said he had told the approximately 40 people affected at G. Rollie White Downs that only one of the family members could participate this weekend.

"It's not fair," said Hodges, whose son, Jamie, works the horse gate at the track. "We know what we're doing. We've been training horses for years."

Hodges said other states where his family races have no such rules and said both he and his son were planning to take part as planned at the Brady track.

Smith urged the trainers and jockeys to circulate petitions opposing the rule and said he believes the commission will change the regulation, which he claimed has been taken out of context.

"As long as we've got some communication between the commission and the horsemen, there's nothing that can't be worked out," Smith said, attempting to calm the trainers and jockeys.

John Hendley, track marketing director, said workers would be at G. Rollie White Downs throughout the night Thursday to have it ready to open.

NAACP accuses welfare agency of discrimination

AUSTIN (AP) — The NAACP's Austin branch threatened to file a federal complaint against the Texas Department of Human Services if discrimination charges cannot be resolved through negotiations.

The Texas Department of Human Services is an agency that impacts the lives of over 1 million Texans every year. It also employs thousands of Texans, including blacks and Hispanics," Gary Bledsoe, branch president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Thursday.

"However, there is widespread discrimination practiced within the agency to the obvious detriment of these groups," Bledsoe told a news conference.

The NAACP branch said that blacks fill none of the 75 highest positions at the welfare agency, and that 75 percent of all agency employees terminated for insubordination are black.

Twenty-three agency divisions or sections have no black representatives, except for support staff, Bledsoe said. He said complaints have been made to the NAACP branch from Austin, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Abilene and Bryan.

"I would like to request that you take the bull by the horns and remedy past discrimination in your agency immediately and adopt some policies that will allow qualified blacks and Hispanics to move up in your agency," Bledsoe said in a letter to Human Services Commissioner Ronald Lindsey.

Lindsey, who was named commissioner in July, did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press. DHS spokesman Bill Woods said he was confident Lindsey would meet with NAACP representatives.

Thirty department employees have filed discrimination complaints with the NAACP, Bledsoe said. Several of the workers appeared with him at the news conference.

The discrimination complaints involve hiring, promotion, treatment on the job, discipline and retaliation, Bledsoe said.

In order to give Lindsey time to respond, the NAACP branch said it will wait one week before filing an administrative complaint with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"This alternative is being offered because the employees have all expressed views that Mr. Lindsey seems to be a person who wants to do the right thing and should be given a chance to do so," Bledsoe said.

If the response is not satisfactory, a complaint will be filed under a provision of the U.S. Code that prohibits federal funding to any entity that discriminates, Bledsoe said.

"We are ... greatly concerned with the very low numbers of blacks in authority positions in your agency," he said in the letter to Lindsey.

FBI agents arrest church-slaying suspect

DALLAS (AP) — FBI agents in Ohio have arrested a Dallas man suspected of fatally shooting two fellow church deacons and wounding a third, authorities say.

Woody Specht, an FBI agent in Dallas, said Gerald King, 30, was being taken Thursday night to the Montgomery County Jail in Dayton after being arrested about 6:30 p.m. at his relatives' home in Dayton.

FBI agents obtained an arrest warrant charging King with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution after learning that the murder suspect may have fled out of state following the Sunday afternoon shootings at the Living Testimony Baptist Church, Specht said.

King is accused of shooting three fellow deacons after an argument erupted among the men in the church's finance room.

Investigators assigned to the case have not disclosed what prompted the argument.

The Rev. Robert Simmons, the church's pastor, said Thursday night he still doesn't know what prompted the shootings.

Simmons was informed of King's arrest in Ohio by his son, who serves as the church's associate minister. He said word was spreading quickly through the small congregation.

The minister said he has not discussed the shootings much and will not talk about them at all on Saturday, when he presides over the funerals of Jack Earl Ray, 51, and Artis Weaver, 60. Services are scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday at the church.

"It's too close — too much so," he said. "I won't be trying to say anything in regard to any incident. It will just be a normal funeral."

The pastor said he will try to convey a sense of the two men's history and he hopes he can find proper words to console their families.

The funeral will be the first meeting at the church since the shooting last Sunday. He canceled a Sunday night service, and activities planned for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Billy Weaver, 39, the deacon who was wounded, was released from Parkland Memorial on Monday. He had been treated for a gunshot wound to his lower back.

The federal charge accusing King of unlawful flight probably will be dismissed once Dallas County officials prepare state charges, Specht said.

C.J. Ferguson, a civilian employee at the Montgomery County Jail, said King was on his way to the Dayton facility, in the custody of the FBI.

"Until we get him and get him booked in, I don't know much more," Ms. Ferguson said. "They just called and asked if we could take him, and we said yes. They said he was going to be an extradition (case) to Texas. That's all I know."

Suffer the little children

The figures and conclusions are depressingly familiar, but their restatement — this time in a comprehensive report from the House Select Committee on Children, Families and Youth — makes them no less urgent. Despite what's billed as eight years of uninterrupted economic progress, 1 in 5 American children — and half of all black children — live in poverty.

Nor has there been progress in increasing the proportion of pregnant women who receive appropriate prenatal care; equally troubling, the proportion of low birth-weight babies — babies much more likely to suffer developmental handicaps — has increased. Young children are the largest poverty group in the country.

No one quarrels with those figures — not the committee's chairman, Rep. George Miller, a Democrat from California, nor its ranking Republican, Rep. Thomas J. Bliley Jr. of Virginia. The quarrel is about the causes: "To say that kids are victims of our economic system or of government policies," Bliley says, "is wrong." The causes, says the committee's Republican minority, are broken families, single-parent households, illicit sexual activities and drugs.

There's some truth in that. But what is a child to do about it? Pick better parents? Find another home?

Whether or not they are victims of government policies, the children of poverty urgently require government intervention. That's something they will get either in the form of good nutrition, housing, education and the kind of family planning policy that seeks to reduce the chances that they will continue the cycle of poverty as teen-agers by having children of their own. Or they'll get it, as a last resort, as welfare and the criminal justice system take over.

Increasingly, the country becomes a society divided: At the one end, a growing number of increasingly affluent people; at the other, an increasing number of the poor, many of them young children; and in between, a shrinking middle class. Three days before the select committee report was released, the House voted a capital gains tax cut, pushed by the president of the United States, for the richest 600,000 taxpayers.

Americans, said the political commentators after the House vote, don't respond to "a class warfare political argument." But by whatever name, handing tax windfalls to the rich and the chronic neglect of poor children are government policy, and its results are to create, on the one hand, still more rich people who can afford $80,000 automobiles and $300 hotel rooms, and still more children who will logically judge that their only chance to make it is to sell the drugs that people like Bliley say is the cause of all their problems. "When," asked George Miller, will the constituency of poor children "be strong enough to be heard?" When, indeed?

Trashcan with drawers

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I took a long look at my desk the other day and realized it had finally gotten completely out of hand. I subsequently abandoned all hope of ever rescuing it from its chaotic state.

I had the feeling this would happen. First, there was the mail I was going to answer. It started out as a little pile to the right of my typewriter.

Then, it began to grow and reached ceiling level. I stuck my hand under the pile and pulled out the bottom letter. It was dated 1982.

That makes me seven years behind in answering my mail and, worse, when I reached under the pile to get to the bottom letter, the stack sort of disintegrated and a lot of the mail fell down under my desk. Unfortunately, that's where it will remain because my doctor told me not to bend over and do any heavy lifting.

Then, there is the matter of the coffee cups. I bring in a cup of coffee from the kitchen each morning as I begin my work day.

I get involved in what I'm doing and forget about the coffee. By the time I reach for it, it's cold. So it just sits there. I counted recently and there were 11 cups of cold coffee on my desk.

Some of these cups date back to June, and there is green stuff growing inside them. If I had any children, perhaps they could use the cups, and whatever is growing inside them, for a science project.

Since I don't have any children, I have called an exterminator, and he said it would be two weeks before he could come over and spray my coffee cups. "In the meantime," he said, "don't get too near any of the growth. You never know what you could catch from something like that."

There also are a lot of newspapers on my desk. I'm convinced if you leave two newspapers on your desk they will engage in the mating process and produce other newspapers. I distinctly remember leaving a copy of USA Today on top of the Wall Street Journal and now there are all these newspapers all over the place with color photographs of those involved in the HUD scandal.

Here's what I found on my desk:

A yoyo. It was underneath a stack of paperback books I was going to read but never did. The books, included, "Lonesome Dove," "Bitter Blood," "Winds of War," and "A Confederacy of Dunces," and they were sitting next to a golf shoe.

I can't explain how one golf shoe got on top of my desk, and I don't know where the other one is, either. Perhaps it was eaten by some sort of mutant newspaper.

I also found a key to the city of Waco, Texas, given to me when I made a speech there 10 years ago, a 1984 copy of the magazine Editor & Publisher, a yearbook from my senior year in high school, a photograph of me drinking a hot Pepsi in Russia, an autographed photo of legendary Western movie star Lash LaRue, a letter from an old girlfriend, detailing how much an improvement her new boyfriend was over me, a road map of Idaho, a fossilized doughnut, an obscene bumpersticker, some rubber bands, two socks that didn't match, a dead mouse and a nail.

Two more weeks before the exterminator comes. If I turn up missing between now and then, first check inside the coffee cups.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Quirk: I'm a professional catcher

By GEORGE F. WILL

TORONTO — Concision and simplicity can be elements of eloquence, as Jamie Quirk showed when he said, "I'm a professional catcher." Those words in context revealed one reason why it is right for grown-ups to play, and care about, baseball games.

With one out in the eighth inning of their 160th game, the Baltimore Orioles were leading the Toronto Blue Jays 1-0 and were five outs from tying them for first place in the American League East. But a Blue Jay runner was on third. The Orioles' pitcher was a rookie who has, as baseball people say, a knee-buckling curve. Quirk called for a curve low and away. It was too much of both. It went in the dirt, bounced to the screen, the runner scored. The Blue Jays won in the eleventh.

The official scorer called it a wild pitch. Quirk called it a passed ball. "A major-league catcher has to block that ball . . . I should have blocked it . . . I'm a professional catcher." Maybe he should have, maybe not. Two things are certain. One is that America would be immeasurably improved if more Americans — teachers, workers, journalists, everyone — had Quirk's exacting standards of craftsmanship and accountability. The other is that Quirk, who will be 35 this month, did a manly thing in trying to block blame from reaching a 22-year-old pitcher.

In the hours before D-Day, Gen. Eisenhower drafted a statement to be issued if the invasion failed. First he wrote: "Our landings in the Cherbourg-Havre area have failed to gain a satisfactory foothold and the troops have been withdrawn." But then he struck the last six words and wrote instead: " . . . and I have withdrawn the troops." By replacing the passive tense with the first-person pronoun, Eisenhower stepped up to the pitch: He took responsibility. Quirk was like Ike.

Quirk is, in baseball's evocative language, a journeyman. His travels took him to the Royals, Cardinals, White Sox, Indians, Royals again, Athletics and Yankees before he arrived in Baltimore in mid-season, in time to vivify the axiom that sport reveals as well as builds character. He may not be back in Baltimore next year, but he is a nice emblem of this year.

After beginning the 1988 season with a record 21 consecutive losses and going on to lose 107, the 1989 Orioles relied heavily on hungry rookies and some veterans who had been given up on by other teams. (Quirk had been released nine times.) The 1989 Orioles, who were in the hunt until the last weekend of the season, are called "overachievers." Meaning what?

George F. Will

They achieved more than they were "supposed" to? Who are these supposers who lay down the law about other people's limits?

Baseball teams often reflect their cities. The Cubs have the edgy insecurity of The Second City. The Mets and Yankees are pure New York: Chaos leavened by recriminations. Baltimore is just a nice town built around basics — a harbor, some manufacturing. The Orioles rebuilt around baseball's basics, speed and defense.

Frank Robinson — Hall of Famer, 1989 Manager of the Year (surely) and all-star aphorist — says: "Speed comes to the ballpark every day. The three-run home run does not." Speed serves defense, which improves pitching. Pitchers become aggressive, putting the ball in the strike zone, counting on fleet fielders to catch it.

Defense is baseball's underappreciated (by fans, not baseball people) dimension. Players spend more time with leather on their hands than with wood in their hands. The 1989 Orioles were the second team in history to have fewer than 90 errors. Their fielding percentage (.98602) was the best ever.

"When you've been around seven or eight years," said Cal Ripken, the shortstop, during this his eighth season, "you might think twice about making a diving catch on gravel and sliding into the wall. But at this stage of our young players' development, they don't think about it."

Ripken is not exactly Methuselah. He will be 29 on opening day, 1990. This is awfully far away. Today, baseball, the sport that combines, better than any other, team play and personal accountability, is coming to its autumn crescendo, beyond which stretches . . .

Jonathan Yardley says there are only two seasons, baseball season and The Void. When, toward the end of this season, George Bush was asked who he thought would win the American League East, he said, "I've given up on the Rangers." Good thinking. The Rangers are in the AL West.

Mr. President, read Baltimore's lips: The 1990 AL East champions open at home, 40 miles from your front porch, April 2, the end of The Void.

Exxon deserves positive press

To the editor:

Enough is enough. In the last two weeks, the Herald has run no less than three negative political cartoons the subject being Exxon and the Valdez oil spill. Surely, there are more important issues much closer to home that warrant the attention of that media and the public. But, of course, Exxon is such a highly visible, easy target for the press. Doesn't take much thought, just a 'get 'em again' mentality by those who produce the cartoons.

I noted in the Herald a few weeks ago that Exxon is one of the largest taxpayers in Howard County. Perhaps it is time that you helped to restore a more positive image to an organization that is a major contributor to the financial stability of this area.

Mayor keeps his promise

To the editor:

It seems to me that something is not quite right in Mrs. Deanda's petition for recall of Mr. Green. Mrs. Deanda loudly proclaims her constitutional rights while denying Mr. Green his constitutional right to vote as he sees is justified.

Mr. Green in only voting like he stated in his platform while running for Mayor. He said he would not raise taxes and tried not to do so. Few politicians are so steadfast in this day and age.

JANE THOMAS

DeAnda is doing her job

To the editor:

Please correct me if I am wrong, but I have always been under the impression that each member of our city council has the duty to serve the community by voicing the needs of the people. It seems to me that this is what Pat DeAnda is trying to do and she is being called a "troublemaker" for doing her job!

I am a native of Big Spring and I also lean in favor toward Mayor Green's side of the argument. My grandfather owned his own business for over 50 years and my parents were among those small business people who had to shut their doors because of our economy. Nevertheless, I don't feel that I have the right to call Ms. DeAnda a "troublemaker" and stoop as low as racism just because she is not voicing my particular opinion.

It does my heart good to know we have dedicated, concerned citizens like Ms. DeAnda on our city council who are not afraid to speak up when they feel an issue should be addressed. Perhaps we should elect more so-called troublemakers to serve; then, maybe we could rid some of the apathy that has plagued our city. Frankly, I am ashamed and embarrassed to learn that, even as we approach the 90's, racism is still so evident in our town. It is this kind of ignorance that is keeping Big Spring from dedication and prosperity; not the dedication and concern of people like Ms. DeAnda.

God bless you, Ms. DeAnda — there are still a lot of white people

Apology to Chip in order

To the editor:

"Call me a pessimist" were your first words in your article Sunday, referring to Chip Moody. That is a somewhat optimistic observance of yourself, don't you think?

"Who is Chip Moody?" you ask. Well if you had taken the time to do a little research in previous additions of the Big Spring Herald, you might have discovered a little something about Chip Moody and WFAA-TV Dallas. Many people remember the time we thought we would lose Channel 8, and all the controversy surrounding that possibility. During October and November of 1985 there were no less than 15 articles in the Big Spring Herald in reference to this.

Chip Moody took time from his busy schedule to come spend a few hours here in Big Spring and meet a few of his many viewers. He had absolutely nothing to gain from his trip other than to make a few friends. I, as well as many others, appreciate the time he took to visit our city.

Chip represents excellence in broadcast news and deserves something a little better than being ridiculed in the local paper. You say a key to the city should be reserved for someone who does something productive for our town. Well he did!

I think an apology to Chip Moody and your readers is in order.

An opportunity to shine

To the editor:

Anytime Big Spring gets a chance to shine in front of powerful media, especially one as powerful and prestigious as WFAA-TV in Dallas, we as a community should feel honored. When our hometown paper discounts a man's importance or position, it is a poor reflection on the city.

We need positive news stories about positive events. It is a responsibility that comes with your position. Please refrain from expressing your personal jealousy of Chip Moody and the electronic media he represents.

When your newspaper wins awards of excellence in journalism, let KBST know so we can brag on you, too.

West Texas generosity

To the editor:

We would like to publicly commend two of our fine citizens.

On Sept. 16, about five minutes out of Midland, our niece and her friend had a one-car accident in which the driver lost control and the car rolled over twice, totaling the car.

Sandy and Fred Park were right behind them, saw the accident, and were the first to reach the girls. Another "angel" car phoned for an ambulance and police. The Parks not only kept the girls' belongings while they were treated and released from the hospital in Midland, but kept the girls and the dog traveling with them over the weekend until it was safe to travel on. All this with loving concern and encouragement.

It renewed our belief in West Texas hospitality and generosity and certainly impressed the parents in California and New Jersey.

Governor critical of court decision

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Florida Supreme Court ruling that lets teen-age girls have abortions without their parents' consent was criticized by Gov. Bob Martinez as a blow to the sanctity of the family.

"I'm going to work to make certain that somehow parental consent comes back," Martinez said Thursday. "If the Florida Supreme Court will not protect children, and parents cannot, then the Legislature must, by passing new abortion clinic regulations."

In a majority decision Thursday, the court struck down a 1988 law requiring girls under age 18 to get the consent of a parent, guardian or judge for abortions. The state's constitutional guarantee of privacy outweighed the law, the court said.

"The challenged statute fails because it intrudes upon the privacy of the pregnant minor from conception to birth," the court wrote. "Such a substantial invasion of a pregnant female's privacy by the state for the full term of the pregnancy is not necessary for the preservation of maternal health or the potentiality of life."

Nine dead in nursing home blaze

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A fire that struck a nursing home while patients were going to sleep killed nine people and injured nearly 100 as rescuers rushed dazed patients to safety through halls flooded with choking smoke.

The elderly evacuees, some in bedclothes and some of whom were naked when they were saved, were helped down halls and down ladders as firefighters tackled the blaze, reported at 10:30 p.m. Thursday.

Patients huddled early today on lawns of houses near the 160-bed Hillhaven Rehabilitation and Convalescent Center, attended by paramedics and neighbors.

The fire was mostly contained to a room on the second floor of the four-story brick home, but smoke spread throughout, and many of the injured suffered from smoke inhalation, said Norfolk Fire Chief Thomas E. Gardner.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but authorities ruled out foul play, Gardner said this morning.

Gardner said the nursing home did not have any sprinklers, but said they were not required when the home was built in 1969.

Commercial rocket fails at launch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As the countdown reached zero and the rocket rumbled to life, Jim Bennett's emotions hopped from anxiety to elation to puzzlement and, ultimately, to sickening disappointment.

Bennett, president of American Rocket Co., watched on a video monitor Thursday morning as his company's product — billed as the nation's first commercially developed and built rocket — went up in flames on the launch pad.

The failure of the launch from Vandenberg Air Force Base left Bennett and his 90-some employees with an emotional hurdle to overcome as they look to the next launch attempt. The Camarillo, Calif., company will wait six months to a year before trying a second launch.

"It's just a sick feeling. We worked so hard, and it meant so much to us," Bennett said.

The rocket was to have soared on a $2 million, 15-minute suborbital flight, conducting two experiments.

In a test of satellite sensors being developed for the Star Wars missile defense system, the rocket was to release a cloud of inert gas. The idea was to see if the gas would shield the rocket from detection by sensors aboard the military's Delta Star satellite.

The rocket also was supposed to deploy a 390-pound test model of an 8½-foot-wide "ParaShield." Designed by Massachusetts Institute of Technology students, it is a combined heat shield and parachute that someday might be used in a new type of re-entry vehicle, such as an escape system to allow space station astronauts to return to Earth.

Opposition leader escapes prior to raid

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Soldiers stormed the building where opposition leader Guillermo Endara was holding a hunger strike, but a colleague said he was safely spirited away before the raid.

A nearby resident said the troopers fired tear gas in the raid late Thursday. It came hours after Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who survived a coup attempt Tuesday, told the nation that the government would get tough with its opponents.

Endara, the former opposition presidential candidate, "is now in a safe place," a colleague, Willie Cochez, said later Thursday. He would not elaborate.

Endara is in the 16th day of a fast. He wants Panamanians to delay tax payments and boycott government lotteries and casinos, thus depriving the government of needed revenues.

In Noriega's televised speech, he ridiculed Endara's hunger strike and said he had evidence that the United States had planned to install Endara as president. Noriega annulled May 7 national balloting that international observers said Endara was winning by a 3-1 margin.

Noriega compared the coup attempt with the failed U.S.-backed Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in 1961 and said he would propose a package of "war laws" dealing with national security.

Brandishing a rifle given him by supporters and quoting a Spanish proverb, Noriega promised "blows for the undecided, lead for the enemy and silver for the friend" in a speech from Santiago, 150 miles west of Panama City.

Calling the coup attempt another Bay of Pigs, Noriega said the United States "had left in the lurch those it had bribed."

He said American troops from the Southern Command military installations along the Panama Canal tried to block loyal forces from coming to his rescue when soldiers took him hostage in the Defense Forces headquarters building.

"They should not be hypocritical," Noriega said referring to the United States. "They were involved."

In Washington, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said the rebels contacted U.S. military officials in Panama and requested possible blockage of routes leading to the headquarters building. He said, however, President Bush never gave the orders.

Celebration amid refugee exodus

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev arrived today to help East Germany celebrate its 40th anniversary, while hundreds of East German refugees joined nearly 50,000 others who have fled West in the past month.

Communist authorities also closed three major border crossings between East and West Berlin, and West German television showed new clashes in Dresden between police and protesters hoping to join the exodus of refugees.

Gorbachev arrived from Moscow to join other East bloc leaders for a two-day show of unity, despite fractured relations over the refugee flight and East Germany's reluctance to try the type of political reforms he has championed.

Gorbachev was welcomed by East German leader Erich Honecker at East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport, the state news agency ADN said. Gorbachev then visited war memorials before addressing Communist Party dignitaries.

Late Wednesday, 10,000 young, would-be refugees battled riot police at Dresden's train station, just before one of the trains taking East German refugees to the West was to pass by. The clash left dozens of windows broken.

There were efforts to avoid further embarrassment to the East Berlin government. Authorities closed three of the nine busiest border crossings into the city, turning back hundreds of tourists and West Germans since Thursday, said Werner Thronicker, a spokesman for the West Berlin government.

Students hijack Burmese airliner

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — At least two Burmese students hijacked a Burmese airliner with 85 people aboard today and demanded that their country's military government release all political prisoners.

The students forced the Fokker 28 aircraft to land at a Thai military airfield and held the passengers hostage, said Col. Somchai Dhanarajata of Thailand's Supreme Command Joint Operations Center.

They insisted on a response to their demands by midnight. It was unclear whether they had made any threats if their demands are not met, Somchai said.

The hijackers also demanded more freedom in their country and that Burma's military reduce its role in running the country, Somchai said.

Thai marines surrounded the aircraft of Burma's national airline, Myanmar Airways, and a U.S.-trained, anti-hijacking unit from the Thai air force was en route to the airfield, he said.

Two groups claim credit for slaying

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — About 3,000 people today attended the funeral of a Jewish leader who was gunned down in Brussels, and an unknown group claimed responsibility for the slaying in the name of a "free Palestine."

Wybran, 49, was shot Tuesday evening outside the Brussels University Hospital, where he headed the immunology department. He died early Wednesday of a gunshot wound to the head.

In a letter to several newspapers, a group calling itself "Young Palestine. Proud and Free," claimed responsibility for the shooting and said more attacks would follow.

"Our demands are simple: a free Palestine for a free people. The first victim was Wybran," the letter said. The group said it was made up of "young revolutionaries, trained and supported by the PLO."

It was the second claim of responsibility for Wybran's slaying.

On Thursday, an underground group in Lebanon calling itself Soldiers of Justice said it killed Wybran and claimed he was a spy for Israel.

'Only Christ can change our hearts'

By BILLY GRAHAM
DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am 59 years old and I've left behind me a wasted and useless life, full of regrets for all the mistakes I made.
Is it too late to change? I would like to, but I don't think I can because my habits are too deeply ingrained.
— S.H.

DEAR S.H.: No, it's never too late to change — and the reason is because it's never too late to turn to Christ.

The reason I stress that is because only Christ can really change our hearts and make us into the people we ought to be. We cannot do it ourselves by our own strength, as I suspect you've discovered. But the Bible underlines what countless Christians have discovered in their personal experience: "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come! All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:17-18).

This can be your experience if you will turn your life over to Jesus Christ. How will He change you?

Billy
Graham

For one thing, He will give you a new purpose for living — living for Christ and not for yourself. He also will give you a new strength through the Holy Spirit who will take up residence within you. In addition, when you give your life to Christ you will find other Christians want to help you and encourage you.

The only person who is beyond God's reach is the person who refuses to accept his love and grace and forgiveness. And there can come a time when we become so hardened to God that we no longer will respond. But your concern shows it is not too late for you. No, you cannot remake the past; what is done is done.

"For thou wilt light my candle: the Lord my God will enlighten my darkness." — Psalm 18:28
By L. JEFF HARRIS
Special to the Herald

We live in a hurting world! A world filled with the darkness of hate, greed, war, famine and the shedding of innocent blood! Often, we are made to feel that, "There is no hope; it's no use; or my life could never have any influence on anybody."

Yet, when we turn to the word of God, we are able to behold the true concept of life, and the purpose for which we were placed in a dark and unfriendly world. God placed us here to shine! The flame of our candles will provide both light and warmth to those about us.

The 18th Psalm represents David's hymnic retrospect of a life crowned with many mercies. The verse we have stated above is but the affirmation of comfortable hope for an uncomfortable circumstance. David possessed an undiminished confidence that God would not suffer the light of his candle (or lamp) to be permanently extinguished, but would revive and rekindle the sacred flame of love, peace, and honor to him, that he might minister to others. With this hope before him, David could joyously write, "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalm 27:1) The Lord, then, is the light and our heart is the candle. Due unto the adverse winds of life, from time to time our flames go out. We find ourselves groping in the darkness of despair and discouragement. What can we do? We can, by God's grace, return unto the source of light. Jesus said, "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12). When we return to the Lord, he not only "lights our candle," but also "enlightens our darkness." The inward light of Christ reveals our own faults and failures, and thereby does not allow us to dwell upon the delinquencies of others.

In the ancient Olympic games of Athens, the Marathon runners were required to run with a torch in one hand. At such a time the flame went out during the race, the runner had to return to the starting line, and relight his torch. The winner of the event would be the one who could run swiftly with the skill of keeping his flame alive. Today, we see many Christians running a hard, fast race, but the flame is missing from their torch!

We must go back to the starting line, friends, and to the one who is able to "light our candle."

Shine on — (Matthew 5:16)

Watson to sing

Johnny Ray Watson, musical ambassador for Priority Living, an outreach ministry to the business and professional community based in Southern California, will sing Sunday during the 10:50 a.m. worship service and the 6 p.m. service at First Baptist Church, Big Spring.

Raised in Lorenzo, Watson was the only surviving child of a black family living in a predominantly white, segregated community. When the civil rights wave hit Lorenzo, he became a prime player on the newly-integrated high school basketball team.

Picked to be on the Texas All-State Team, he had athletic scholarship offers from 32 different colleges. Despite the 83 percent white majority, he was named "Mr. Lorenzo High School" by his classmates in his senior year.

He attended McMurray College, Abilene, where his skill on the basketball court distinguished him quickly. In 1971, he was All-Conference, and was the league's leading rebounder and scorer. The prospects for a professional career with the Seattle Super Sonics was cut short with a knee injury that ended his competitive career.

His Christian faith, held since childhood, was severely tested in the following years. A spiritual renewal resulted in Watson's commitment to serve God through his singing gift.

His musical gifts have been utilized by some of America's great ministries, according to a news release, including the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, the Professional Athletes Outreach, Prison Fellowship, the America for Jesus rallies, and numerous churches and smaller organizations.

Special services

Northside United Methodist Church, 600 N. Goliad, will conduct special evangelistic services today at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Juan G. Martinez, pastor of F.L.A. Trinidad United Methodist Church, Lamesa, and Emmanuel United Methodist Church, Snyder, will be the guest speaker.

Before becoming a Christian, Martinez was a drug addict for more than 13 years. Since his conversion, he has held evangelistic crusades in several cities.

He is a recent graduate of the Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University.

Martinez is an accomplished accordionist and singer, and has composed more than 50 religious songs, some of which he will present during the services.

The public is invited to attend.

Film series continues

First Church of the Nazarene invites the public to view the fourth film in the "Turn Your Heart Toward Home" film series.

The film "The Family Under Fire" will be shown Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in the church sanctuary.

A "civil war of values" is underway in today's society. Get involved to preserve what you care about most — your family. A frank look at the effects of governmental interference, abortion and pornography... and a stirring call to action. NOTE: This film contains explicit information regarding the pornography industry. Not recommended for young audiences.

Abilene religious broadcaster enters sixth decade on the air

ABILENE (AP) — Three $1 bills changed the course of Dr. Joe Temple's life.

You might say it was a gift he'll never forget.

Those three $1 bills, along with a plaintive plea — "Please stay and preach for us!" — led to the foundation of Temple's "Lest We Forget" radio program which recently celebrated 50 continuous years on the air in Abilene.

The gift, and Temple's acceptance of it as God's leadership, also led to the foundation of Abilene's largest denominationally unrelated church — now known as Abilene Bible Church — and to a flourishing tape and publication ministry which reaches around the world.

Along the way, the transplanted Pennsylvanian has become Abilene's longest-running television preacher, too — appearing every Sunday for more than 23 years now.

Not bad for a man who didn't meet Christ until he was 17. He'd gone to a Methodist revival in East McKeesport, Pa., to make fun of the worshippers and their beliefs, he said. Instead, he was convicted by his sin.

"I went to an old-fashioned mourners' bench and told the preacher I didn't know anything about Christ but I just knew I needed to get to Him," the 72-year-old Temple said, his eyes glistening with the memory.

"The next day I asked the pastor, 'Now what do I do?' I have no doubt the Lord told him what to tell me: 'You need to go to school and learn to preach.'"

"I just hit the ground running and I haven't stopped since," he said.

After Temple graduated from Bob Jones College in 1939, he didn't have to wait long for the Lord to "show me what He wanted me to do."

"I'd been invited to preach at an old time cowboy meeting at Sango, in Coke County," he said. "They barbecued a steer and people came from miles around to hear the preaching and fellowship together."

Impressed by the young Pennsylvanian, a group of Abilenians asked him to stay in Texas another two weeks and preach in Abilene. Temple said he was already committed to preach in Nashville, but when that meeting was suddenly cancelled, he believed the Lord was steering him to Abilene.

"During those two weeks I preached wherever the Lord opened a door," Temple said. For a week, he preached a revival on the lawn of First Methodist Church, at the request of its legendary pastor Dr. J. H. Hamblen.

Also, E.P. "Doc" Mead, prominent bakery owner, purchased a week of time on Abilene's radio station KRBC, and provided it to Temple. "He said while they had me here they were going to use me all they could," Temple said with a laugh.

It was near the end of that week in August 1939 that Temple received the letter with the dollar bills. Temple said he read the letter, which recalled the blessings of the radio program, on the air.

"I was young and probably didn't think it through as thoroughly as I should have. I rather flippantly said, 'Well, okay, send me the money and I'll stay here and preach,'" he said.

"Sometimes the Lord takes our foolishness and makes something of it," he added, winking.

Little did anyone know at the time Temple was beginning a 50-year radio ministry.

But it almost died aborning, however, because KRBC officials wisely recognized the dangers inherent in evangelists soliciting money on the air and didn't take kindly to young Temple's impulsive remark.

That wasn't what Temple really wanted, either, and he quickly convinced KRBC officials of his sincerity.

"Since then we've never said anything about money like some other radio preachers. We make mention that the programs are made possible through gifts and offerings of the listeners, and that's it. The Lord takes care of the rest."

In the beginning, Temple had to do the radio programs live, from studios atop the Windsor Hotel. "I went up there five times a day at first," he said. Later, technology permitted him to preach over phone lines from his home.

WCG members host meeting

Women of First Church of God met recently for their monthly meeting.

Betty Reagan, Missions Resource coordinator, directed the second study on South Africa, titled "Questions for the Church," written by Kay Shively, national associate secretary for the Women of the Church of God.

Objectives of the study were to learn more about South Africa's people, to recognize the challenge facing Christianity in the country, and to discover the church of God's presence there.

It was noted that the total population figures of South Africa are approximately 31 million of which 24 million (persons of African descent), 4,500,000 whites; 2,400,000 colored (mixed race), and 720,000 Asians.

Every year, according to the club report, 1,000 people apply to have their race reclassified.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A joint commission of Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians will focus on Scripture and tradition in the next round of ecumenical dialogues.

The teams of 10 Catholic and 10 Lutheran theologians decided on the next topic while wrapping up six years of work on "The One Mediator, the Saints and Mary."

The eighth statement of the dialogue, scheduled to be voted on in February, deals with the two traditions' differences regarding the practice of involving saints in prayer and the doctrine that Mary was conceived free of original sin and taken bodily to heaven.

The ecumenical commission will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the dialogues next September in Erlanger, Ky.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal tax collector praised high ethical standards set by the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability but warned that violations by some fund-raisers may prompt legislation affecting all charities.

"Know the rules, educate your donors, make necessary changes in your practices, and view the requirements as an ethical obligation," Robert I. Brauer, an assistant commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, told a recent conference marking the council's 10th anniversary. "Don't force us at the IRS to have to report to Congress that there is a problem and remedial legislation may be needed."

DEAR ABBY: You requested opinions from readers in response to a question posed by the mother of a child with a repaired cleft lip. This mother asked if displaying the "before" photos of her daughter in the family album was appropriate now that the defect had been corrected by surgery. Her husband felt they should not be displayed, and you said, "Display them only with the daughter's approval."

As the mother of a 13-year-old daughter born with a cleft lip and palate, I personally feel that the pre-surgery pictures should be included among other family pictures. To exclude them would make the child feel that you were ashamed of the way she looked at birth.

However, I think your suggestion of honoring the child's wishes when she is sufficiently mature to express them is a valid one.

Abby, please let your readers know about the National Cleft Palate Association. This organization is dedicated to advancing the health, welfare and education of children and adults with cleft palates and craniofacial irregularities. There are chapters and support groups all over the United States. (I am president of the New Orleans chapter.)

Dear Abby

about this non-profit organization. — LUCIENNE D. SIRAGUSA, NEW ORLEANS

DEAR LUCIENNE: Thank you for writing. My mail contained some diverse opinions concerning whether the pre-surgery pictures should be placed in the family album. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I feel I must write about the little girl who was born with a birth defect that was corrected by surgery. I had a tumor on my pituitary gland when I was very young. Because of this tumor, my growth was stunted and as a child I was short and fat.

My mother took a lot of pictures of me as a child. I was not a very pretty sight. Fortunately, surgery corrected this condition and enabled me to grow normally. I am 18 years old now, and all the misery of my stunted growth and fat body is now a thing of the past.

Last year, I went through our family album and removed all the pictures of me when I was a short, fat and miserable child. Then I tore them into little pieces. Why should I have to relive all those painful memories? Once was enough! Thank God they are over. — HAP- PY IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: I'm so mad I don't know where to begin. The lady's daughter was born with a cleft palate and had corrective surgery at 4 months old. You said to put the pre-surgery pictures away until the girl was old enough to decide whether she wanted them in the album or not.

Abby, do you really think in a few years the child will feel comfortable putting those pictures back, when her parents weren't comfortable with them to start with?

My youngest son was born cross-eyed, but he had corrective surgery when he was 8 months old. I love my children for who they are — not what they look like. And I'm certainly not going to yank eight months' worth of pictures out of my family album.

I also hope parents of children born with irreversible defects don't feel ashamed to display pictures of their kids. — A PROUD MOM IN TACOMA

DEAR PROUD MOM: My mail ran 20-to-1 in favor of leaving the pre-surgery pictures in the family album. Most said to remove them would be attempting to deny reality. Many children wrote to say that they were glad they were shown pictures of themselves before their surgery. Some thought they looked "funny"; others said they appreciated the wonderful work their doctors had done.

A Mini Page Guide to Who's Who Pro Football Players

Offensive Team

The team with the ball includes these players:

Center

saps the ball to the quarterback, protects him and helps other linemen.

2 Offensive Guards (left and right) protect the runner or passer and also create holes for the runner.

Tight End blocks for ball carrier and catches short passes. He's bigger than most receivers.

2 Wide Receivers have "good hands" for catching long passes.

Fullback often runs with the ball when the team needs to gain only a few yards. Must also be a good pass receiver and blocker.

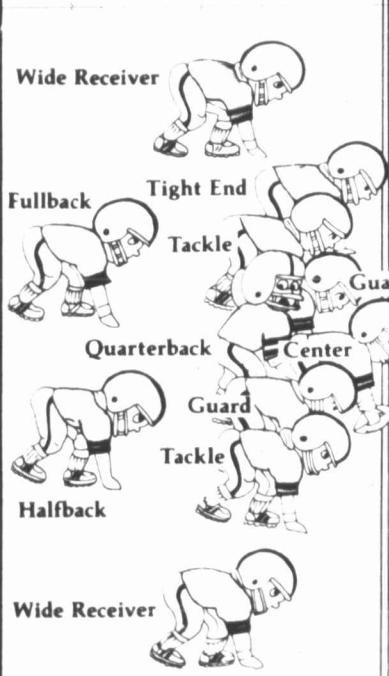

Quarterback is the brains of the team. He's also the main ball handler, and he must be a good passer. Sometimes he runs with the ball.

Halfback is the all-around player who must run, block, receive and throw passes.

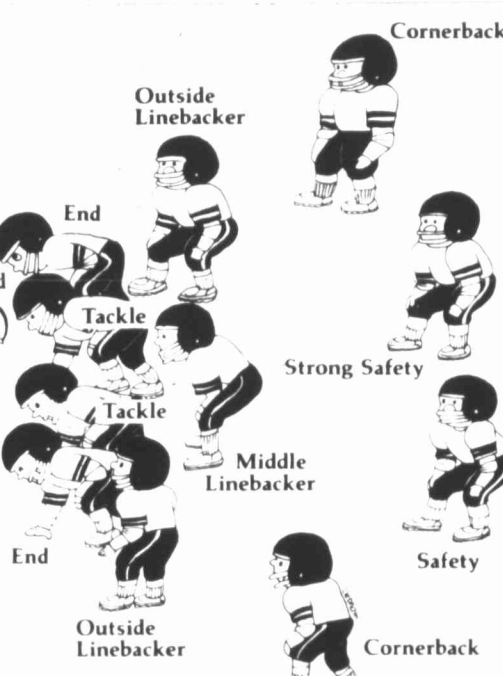

Object of the game: Two teams, each made up of 11 players, try to carry or pass the football across the other team's goal line for a score (called a touchdown) of 6 points. In Canada, there are 12 men on a pro football team.

Offense

Defense

This is one of the many formations teams might use to line up at the line of scrimmage (an imaginary line where the ball is placed and where most plays start). The offensive team goes back into a huddle and the quarterback calls the play. Often the coach sends in the play by using a substitute or hand signals.

Numbers help

To make it easier for us to follow the game, players who play certain positions wear special numbers.

- 1-19 Quarterbacks and kickers
- 20-49 Running backs and defensive backs
- 50-59 Centers and linebacks
- 60-79 Defensive linemen and interim offensive linemen
- 80-89 Wide receivers and tight ends
- 90-99 Defensive linemen

I AM A QUARTERBACK

Defensive Team

This team does not have the ball. It defends the goal line and includes these players:

2 Defensive Tackles (left and right) rush the passer and try to stop running plays.

2 Defensive Ends rush the passer and stop running plays.

2 Outside Linebackers stop runs and defend against short passes.

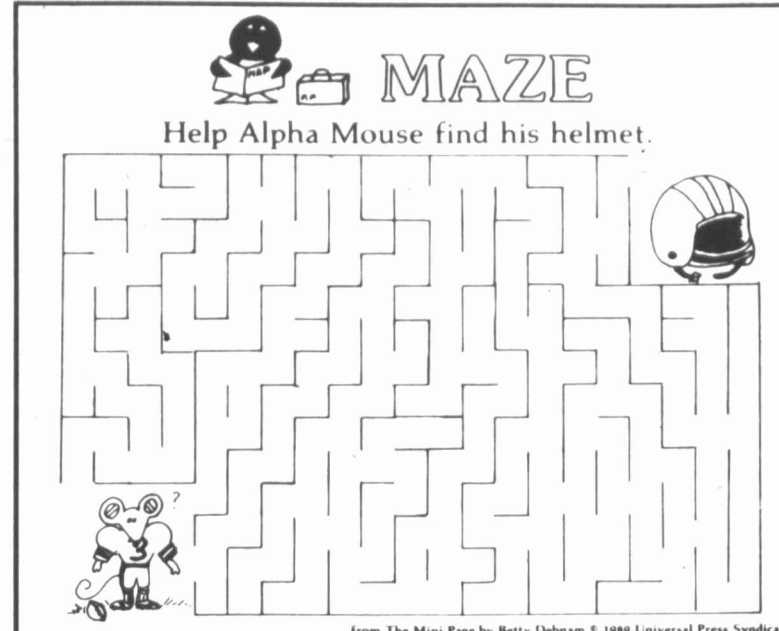

Middle Linebacker stops the run, defends against short passes and is usually the leader of the defense.

2 Cornerbacks try to block passes and stop runs. They usually cover the wide receivers. Often they're smaller than other defensive players.

Strong Safety covers downfield runs and passes, and especially the tight end.

Safety roams the backfield while covering runs and passes.

The pro football season has started. Super Bowl XXIV will be played on Sunday, Jan. 28, in New Orleans, La.

The pro teams

There are 28 teams in the National Football League.

They are divided into two conferences of 14 teams each.

Each team plays 16 regular-season games.

In January, the top winners in each conference meet in the Super Bowl.

Scoring

6 points for a touchdown.

1 extra point after a touchdown if the offensive team kicks the ball through the goalposts or runs or passes the ball across the goal line.

2 points for a safety, which is scored when a player with the ball is tackled behind his own goal line.

3 points for a field goal, a ball kicked through the goalposts.

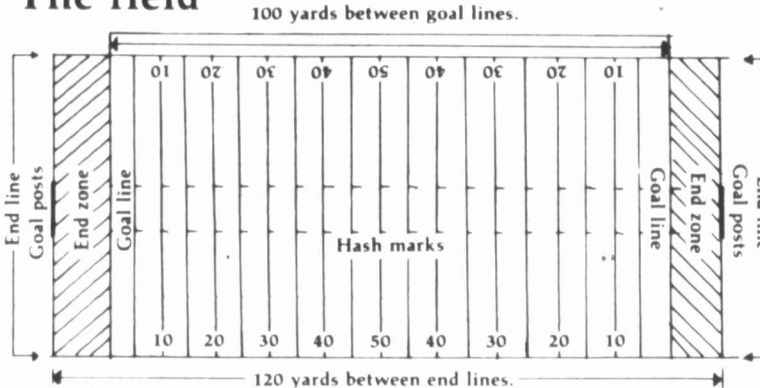

Downs

A team has four downs, or chances, to move the ball 10 yards or the other team gets the ball.

Time

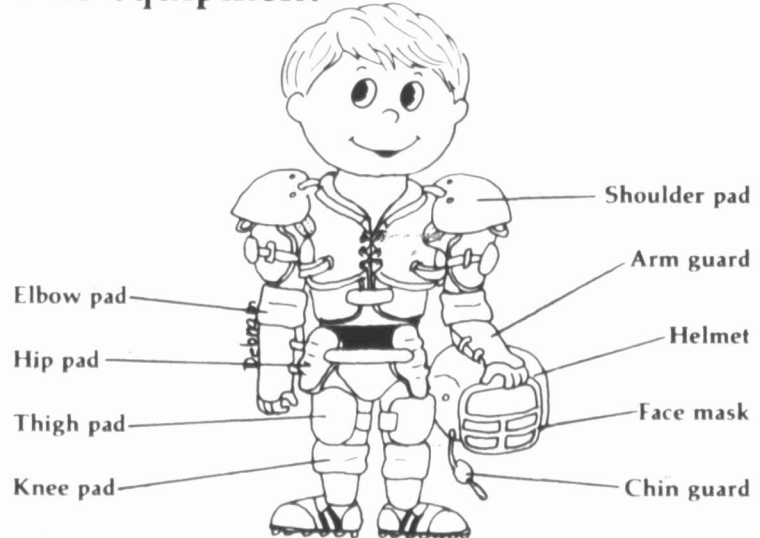

A pro game is made up of four 15-minute parts, or quarters. The first two quarters are in the first half; the third and fourth quarters are in the second half. Playing time is 1 hour, but the game takes much longer than that because the clock is stopped when the ball is out of play.

The field

- A pro football field is 120 yards long.
- It is 160 feet across.
- There are two goal posts at each end.
- All play must start between the hash marks in the center of the field.
- A pro football field in Canada is longer. It is 160 yards.

The equipment

The players have their ankles wrapped with tape before each game and practice.

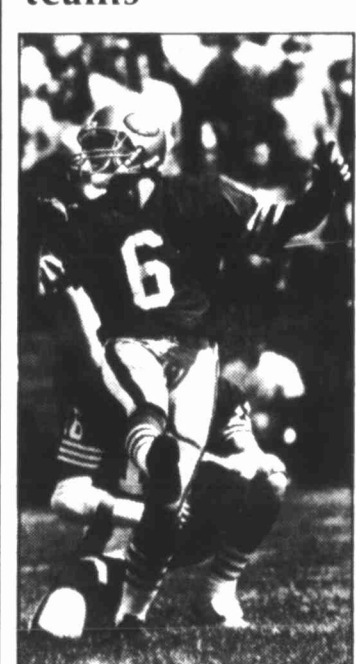

The coaches

"My job is to evaluate players and the mood of the team, as well as making sure everybody is in sync, knowing what their responsibilities are."

That's George Seifert speaking, the new head coach for the 1989 Super Bowl champions, the San Francisco 49ers.

Each head coach in the NFL has several assistants. During the game, some of them sit high in the stands and use telephone headsets to talk to the coaches on the field.

The special teams

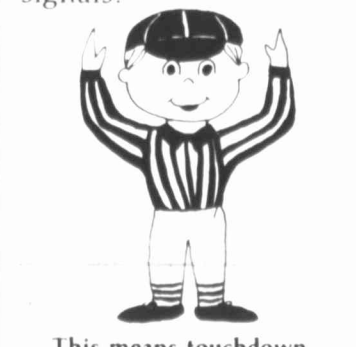

Mike Cooper is the special kicker for the 1989 Super Bowl champions, the San Francisco 49ers.

A pro team can have 47 players. There are special players for special situations. There are also special teams. Both the offensive and defensive sides use special teams at kickoffs, punts, extra points and field goals.

The officials

Officials on the field enforce the rules of the game.

They use hand signals.

This means touchdown. When an official sees a rule being broken, he tosses a yellow flag.

Monahans (2-1) at Big Spring (1-2)

A very big game anyway you look at it. The electricity is in the air for this one. Both teams are fresh after an open week, relatively injury-free and picked at the top of the district.

Monahans is a ground-oriented team, and Big Spring will try to be a ground-oriented team Friday night. It's going to turn into one of those knock-down, drag-out, hard-nosed defensive games.

Although it's going to be a running game, it will all boil down to which team has the best passing attack. Big Spring gets the nod in that department.

Rance Thompson will find Jason Davis on a big-gainer pass play, setting up "Designated Scorer" Jermaine Miller's winning touchdown plunge. Big Spring won't need the extra point.

BIG SPRING 20, MONAHANS 14

Stanton (2-2) at Forsan (1-3)

The Battle of the Buffalo.

Both teams have inexperienced squads and started out slow. Both have gained steam and improved every week. Stanton will be gunning for its third consecutive win, while Forsan won its first game of the season last week.

Records and past history really don't mean that much in this game. These two will stage a gala war. But the odds say some of that bad luck Forsan has been having will go the other way.

Stephen East will make his dad happy with a last second field goal. The Upset Special of the Week.

FORSAN 17, STANTON 14

Wilson (1-3) at Sands (4-0)

Although they haven't played that tough of a non-district schedule, the Sands Mustangs are looking more and more like a playoff contender each week.

The Mustangs play hard-core defense, and that's going to keep them in every game.

The Wilson Mustangs don't have enough experience, not to mention enough offensive weapons for their opposing task. Sands is definitely the better Mustang. Homecoming will be a blast.

SANDS 58, WILSON 12

Colorado City (2-2) at Crane (1-3)

The Crane Golden Cranes got their first win of the season last week against Coahoma. Meanwhile C-City was getting shut out by Sonora. Both Crane and C-City have had problems getting their offenses generated. This week C-City's problems will continue. The Golden Cranes will break a couple of big plays and soar in front of the home crowd.

CRANE 21, COLORADO CITY 7

Trent (3-1) at Grady (2-2)

If this game doesn't get the Grady Wildcats ready for district — nothing will. The Trent Gorillas have an very solid team. They probably could win district, if No. 5 Loraine wasn't in it. Still the Gorillas return 9 starters from a team that went 11-1 last year.

Grady, which also made the state playoffs last year, will put forth its best effort tonight. But Trent is just too big and too strong. This will be a fan's delight.

TRENT 48, GRADY 40

Coahoma (2-2) at Ozona (3-1)

The Coahoma Bulldogs need this win badly to gain momentum for district play next week. The Bulldogs have been playing well the last three weeks.

They face a worthy opponenet in the Ozona Lions, who are one of the better Class AA teams in West Texas. The Lions have a superb quarterback in Chris Denman and a strong runner in George Ybarra. The line is big and their defense is solid.

The Bulldogs drop below the .500 mark.

OZONA 24, COAHOMA 14

Klondike (2-2) at Wellman (2-2)

The Klondike Cougars are few in numbers, but have a lot of heart. The Wellman Wildcats had high hopes at the start of the season, but the program was hurt, when a few key players decided not to play football this year.

Coach Tom Ham and his Cougars will have a few surprises for Wellman. Klondike will win this cat fight.

KLONDIKE 48, WELLMAN 32

Ira (2-2) at Borden County (2-1-1)

The Ira Bulldogs have the making of a good team. They have two big-play performers in running back Greg Box and wide receiver James Sturdivant. But the missing link is a quality quarterback.

The Borden County Coyotes have a consistent offense and a very stingy defense. It could make life miserable for an inexperienced QB.

BORDEN COUNTY 36, IRA 20

Roscoe (1-3) at Garden City (3-1)

The Roscoe Plowboys have the unfortunate job of playing the Garden City Bearkats homecoming night with the Bearkats coming off an upset loss to Stanton.

No. 1 — the Bearkats are mad. No. 2 — the homecoming crowd will get them even more pumped. No. 3 — Roscoe doesn't have the horses to run with the Bearkats anyway.

This will be a romp.

Cubs whip Giants, 9-5

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants are even — in number of routs, number of ace pitchers clobbered and in number of victories in the National League playoffs.

After an embarrassing 11-3 loss in Wednesday night's opener, the Cubs came back with a vengeance, beating the Giants 9-5 Thursday night to square the best-of-7 series at one game apiece.

Just as the Giants had battered Chicago's 19-game winner, Greg Maddux, in the opener, the Cubs pounded San Francisco's 17-game winner, Rick Reuschel in Game 2. Chicago set a playoff record by scoring six runs in the first inning, then ended any San Francisco hopes for a comeback when Mark Grace doubled home three runs in the sixth inning.

"We got beat good last night," Manager Don Zimmer said. "It looked like we didn't belong on the same field with them. But the series is tied and we're 7-7 (for the year) with them. The first team that wins four will go to the World Series. I only hope it's the Cubbies."

The next three games will be played at San Francisco's Candlestick Park, beginning Saturday.

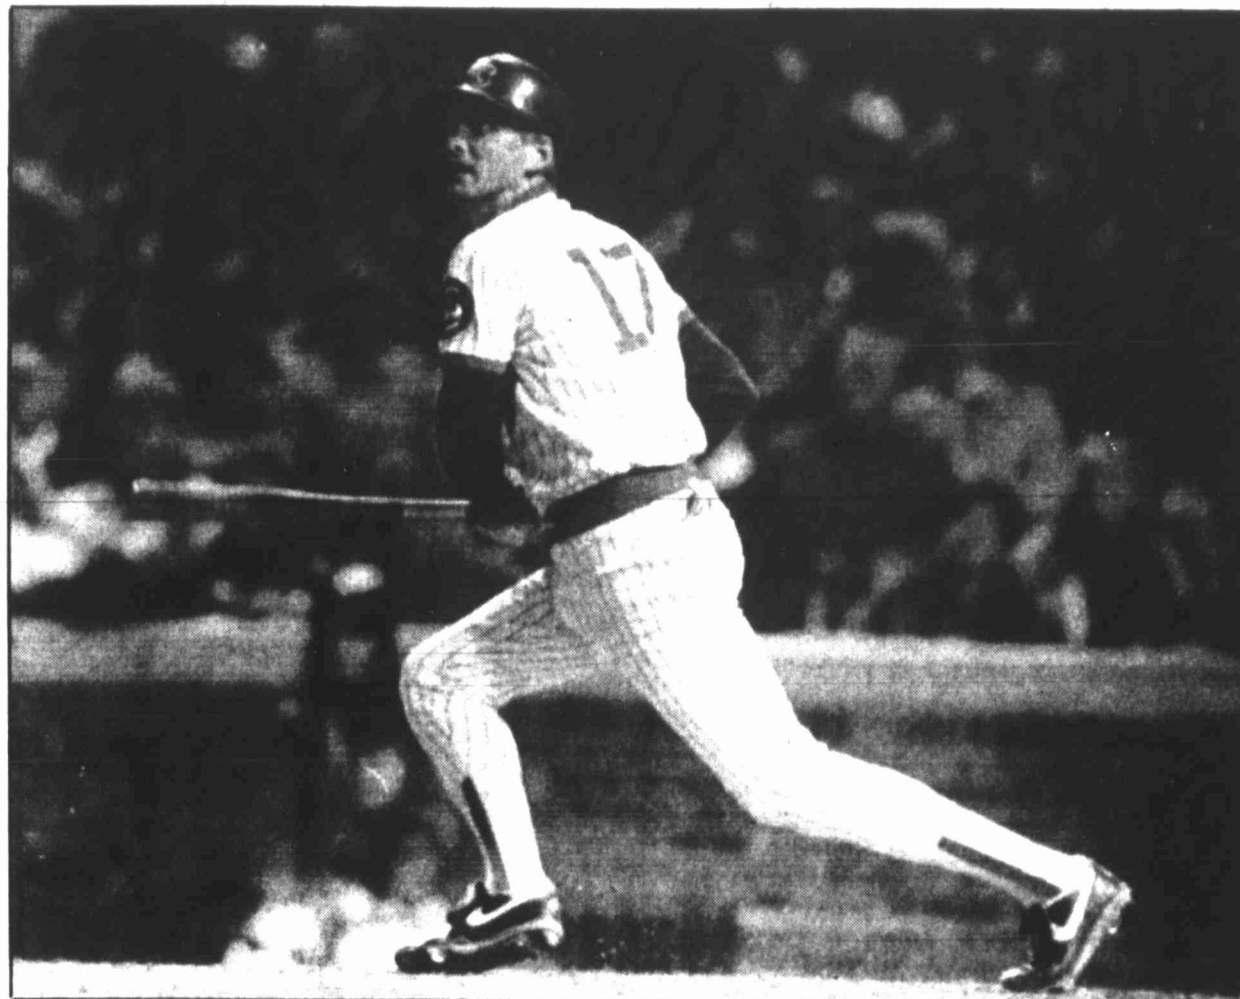

Jerome Walton opened the game with a single on Reuschel's first pitch. Before the 40-year-old veteran knew what was happening, Ryne Sandberg tripled, Grace doubled, and Luis Salazar and Shawon Dunston each singled. That finished Reuschel. Kelly Downs relieved, and Cubs starter Mike Bielecki tagged him for a two-run single.

It was the biggest first inning ever in the National League playoffs, topping the five-run first by Pittsburgh against Los Angeles in 1974.

Ironically, Bielecki didn't last five innings and the victory went to reliever Les Lancaster.

Bielecki gave up a two-run homer to Kevin Mitchell in the fourth. It was the second in the series for Mitchell, who led the majors with 47.

Then came the fifth. With two on and two out, up stepped Will Clark

CHICAGO — Chicago Cubs infielder Mark Grace watches as he hits a three-run triple in the sixth inning against the San Francisco Giants Thursday night in the second game of the National League Championship Series at Wrigley Field.

who had homered twice, including a grand slam, and driven in six runs in the opener.

Out came Zimmer. In a similar situation Wednesday night, he had stayed with Maddux, who gave up Clark's grand slam.

This time, Zimmer went to the bullpen for left-hander Paul Assenmacher, who retired Clark on one pitch.

Assenmacher didn't retire another batter, as Mitchell and Matt Williams each singled opening the sixth. In came Lancaster. Pinch batter Ken Oberkfell flied to center as both runners advanced, but Lancaster fanned Pat Sheridan and got pinch hitter Ernest Riles to fly out to end the threat.

The Cubs wrapped it up with Grace's base-clearing double off Craig Lefferts in the sixth. That blow negated Williams' two-run homer in the eighth and a solo shot by Thompson in the ninth.

Giants manager Roger Craig, himself a former pitcher, had no such problem.

"He got the ball up and got hit," Craig said. "He's funny that way. Either you will get to him quick or he'll go seven to nine innings. He has struggled his last two times out. He said he's not tired, but we're going to talk to him."

In any playoff, the visiting team usually is satisfied to split the first two games.

The teams appear just as evenly matched at Candlestick Park as they did in Wrigley Field. The Giants were 53-28 at Candlestick, the best home record in the league. The Cubs were 45-36 away from home, the best road record in the NL.

Rick Sutcliffe, 16-11, is the scheduled starter Saturday against San Francisco's Mike LaCoss, 10-10.

High-octane Coogs to test Baylor Bears

By The Associated Press

Baylor. You're next. Facing the Houston Cougars these days is like charging a Gatling gun. Andre Ware is the trigger man and what has been happening to the unfortunate opponents of the probation-stained Cougars hasn't been suitable for viewing by small children.

Part of the Cougars' NCAA probation includes no television. The way the Houston has been slaughtering opponents perhaps it's for the best the general public doesn't have to watch.

Houston is the top offensive machine in the country, grinding up Nevada-Las Vegas, Arizona State, and Temple in an average of 56.7 points per game. Houston averages 658 yards per game, including 548 passing.

No wonder the Bears, who upset Texas Tech 29-14 last week, are 18 point underdogs in their key Southwest Conference showdown in the Astrodome at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Ware had an SWC record seven touchdown passes against Temple in a 65-7 victory last Saturday.

"Houston is an offensive monster that gobbles up points," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "They are claiming to aim at making 1,000 yards on us and we accept the challenge. Some may think they are out of our league but we are going to give them the best possible game."

Although Houston's games count in the SWC standings the Cougars aren't going anywhere after the regular season for two years because of penalties incurred when Bill Yeoman was the coach.

"The key to Houston is Ware but running back Chuck Weatherspoon also concerns me," Teaff said. "He averages about 13 yards per carry. Against Arizona State, he made two long runs."

Houston won last year 27-24. In other games, seventh-ranked Arkansas opens defense of its SWC title in a 7:30 p.m. clash with the Texas Christian Horned Frogs at Amon Carter Stadium. Texas A&M travels to Lubbock for a noon (Raycom TV) clash with the Texas Tech Red Raiders, and Texas is at Rice for a 7 p.m. game.

Arkansas rated a 15-point favorite over TCU. Texas A&M was a 10-point pick over Tech, and Texas was a 15-point choice over the Owls, who last defeated the Longhorns 24 years ago.

Southern Methodist is idle this week.

TCU coach Jim Wacker has strung together back-to-back wins after a stumbling start.

"(Coach) Ken Hatfield has put together another great football team in Arkansas," Wacker said. "This week we will find out if these Horned Frogs can complete in the Southwest Conference this year."

Leading receiver

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Steers tight end Joe Downey turns upfield after catching a pass against the Plainview Bulldogs two weeks ago at Memorial Stadium. Downey is Big Spring's leading receiver, with 12 catches for 107 yards. The Steers will host Monahans in the district-opener tonight at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Rumors say Cowboys trying to trade Walker

IRVING (AP) — With few marketable players to use for bargaining to acquire fresh talent, the Dallas Cowboys have tried to trade All-Pro running back Herschel Walker, according to published reports.

Walker rejected a trade Thursday that would have sent him to the Minnesota Vikings for "a slew of draft choices," officials said.

The Cleveland Browns also expressed interest in trading for Walker, but the running back's veto of the trade to Minnesota apparently silenced talks with other teams as well.

The Vikings sought Walker's approval of the trade, even though he doesn't have a no-trade clause in his contract with the Cowboys, because he has talked frequently about retiring from football.

Rumors of a possible trade of Walker to the Vikings swirled Thursday, but Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, coach Jimmy Johnson and Walker refused to confirm them.

"I can't comment on that at all. You've got to tell me who tells y'all that stuff," Walker said after Thursday's workout.

Johnson was asked if it were possible that Walker could be traded. "I guess you could say nothing is completely out of the question," he said.

Meanwhile, a Cleveland executive said that the Browns are interested in Walker now that

Manager's job has few rewards

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Being manager of the New York Yankees is a tough job. So tough, in fact, that it's rare for one to make it through a whole season.

Recognizing that fact, two writers have come up with an award to honor one of the two or even three men "who serve as Yankee managers" each year.

The New York Yankee Manager Recognition Council, which consists of Hart Seely and Tom Peyer, has named Dallas Green 1989 Yankee Manager of the Year. Bucky Dent, who replaced Green when he was fired Aug. 18, was named first runner-up.

The award, given for the first time, will annually be given to the New York Yankee manager who "exemplified the conduct of a true Yankee manager," Seely and Peyer said.

"Competition each year is open to only the small handful of men who serve as Yankee managers," they said.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The trial of Grace Jones on charges of possessing less than $18 worth of cocaine was postponed for the fifth time since her April arrest, and the singer-actress said the delays are hurting her career.

"I had to go on television in Europe to refute newspaper reports which say I was a fugitive from Jamaica," she said, adding that Revlon commercials in which she appears have been taken off the air pending the outcome of the trial.

Ms. Jones, who traveled from Los Angeles to her homeland only to find the prosecutor failed to show up Tuesday, complained vehemently of the cost of returning to the Caribbean island for each new trial date. She traveled from Paris, Madrid and

Rome for previous trial dates that were postponed because prosecutors were not familiar with the case, judges failed to show up or witnesses were missing.

Ms. Jones is charged with possessing 0.007 ounce of cocaine while vacationing in Kingston. A new trial was set for Oct. 26.

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (AP) — Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh has adopted a new name — Osho — and given his followers a change of habit.

Osho is a Japanese word that means "the whole man, the fully awakened one and respectfully symbolizes a man of peace, grace and love upon whom Existence is showering all its blessings from every direction," according to a statement from the sect's Oregon press service dated Sept. 15 and received in the mail Tuesday.

Disciples also have begun wearing maroon robes during the day and white robes during evening meditations at the commune in Pune, India, the release said.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Archbishop Desmond Tutu, actress June Allyson, author Helen MacInnes, physicist Neils Bohr, poet James Whitcomb Riley.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look forward to a day when you can be both creative and loving. People will be putty in your hands. Comparison shopping should find wonderful bargains. Your social plans could hit a snag tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Today you will communicate with great confidence. Tune in to everything you read and hear. Fresh plans beckon. Focus on personal and romantic associations rather than work this evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A great time to buy things you need. A new outfit will give your spirits a big lift. Repay a debt to stay within the good graces of a friend. Follow a strong hunch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to projects already under way. A generous gesture does wonders for your popularity. Corresponding with someone who lives overseas could have a profound effect on your outlook.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Other people could be touchier than usual; this is no time to act aggressive or seek favors. A go-it-alone attitude is probably your best bet. A secret plan is right on target.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A friend or family member could act in an erratic manner. A message needs to be clarified before action is taken. Someone who brings bad news may be misinformed; refuse to panic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Learn to be more self-reliant and you will save yourself some big disappointments. Follow your instincts in an affair of the heart. A pending wedding could be distracting your mate or partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be receptive to suggestions from those who have more experience. New social contacts could lead to meaningful business associations. Follow your instincts where a romantic encounter is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may feel pressured to make a long-range decision. Relax a bit and talk things over with someone who cares. Do not neglect a lingering health problem. Stay home tonight and rest up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give your services willingly. Trust your business instincts and you can profit from someone else's mistakes. Romance is almost magical now. Spend more time with your partner. Family is supportive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You inspire others with your will to succeed. Latent talents come to the fore. Your popularity is at an all-time high. In fact, it may be difficult deciding which invitations to accept!

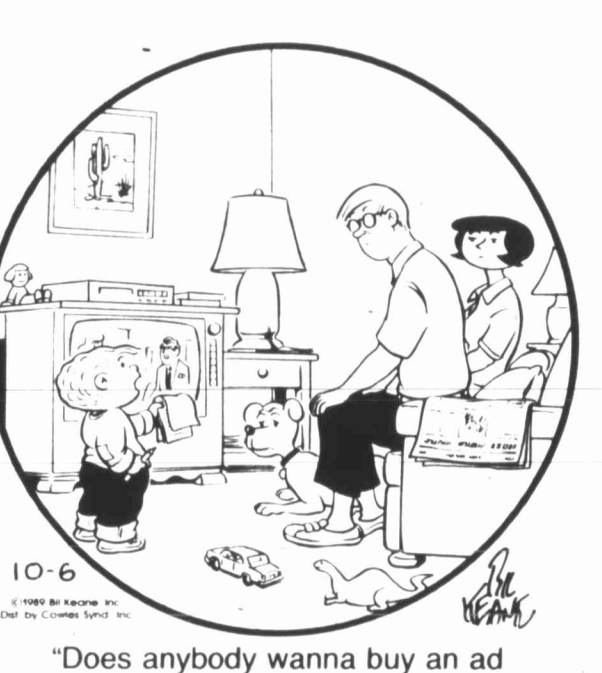

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Something may happen to make you the talk of the town. Try to do things right. Attention to detail is even more important than before. An improvement in your health boosts your spirits.
