Rate Of 72 Cents Is Carded For Lubbock; Allowance Of 13 Cents Per 100 Pounds On Compression Made

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 22. — The Texas railroad commission today issued a supplemental order to its recent authorization given railroads to reduce their freight rates on cotton in bales to meet truck competition, the latest schedule including points in West Texas and the Plains section not included in the original draft.

The original order stipulated that points not covered in the first tariff would be taken care of as soon as the railroads could work out schedules.

Points Are Listed

Some of the points included in today's order and the new rates per 100 pounds to Houston, Galveston and Texas City effective at once were: Lamesa, Slaton, Lubbock, Littlefield and Brownfield, 72 cents; Plainview, Quitaque, Lockney and Memphis, 75 cents; Midland, 76 cents; Odessa, 81 cents; Quanah, 66 cents; Sudan, 78 cents.

Rates for Sweetwater, Big Spring and Chillicothe will be 61 cents, 66 cents and 63 cents, respectively, but will not become effective until Monday.

An allowance of 13 cents per 100 pounds for compression was authorized.

Reduced Rates To Effect A Saving

Reduced freight rates on cotton shipments from Lubbock and other South Plains points to Houston, Galveston and Texas City will mean a saving to farmers of from $1.25 to $1.50 per bale, cotton brokers and railway officials said Thursday.

E. Kancher, division freight and passenger agent for the Santa Fe here, estimated last night that more than 5000 bales of cotton were held in warehouses at the immediate vicinity of Lubbock awaiting a reduction in the rate schedule.

Floydada World War Veteran Asks $14,000 In Suit With United States Government As The Defendant

Alleging he was totally and permanently disabled as the result of illness, gas and shell-shock suffered in France during the World War, James W. Teal of Floydada Thursday filed suit with Mrs. Olive Fluke deputy U. S. clerk here, against the United States for collection for his war risk insurance policy, which he says now amounts to $14,000.

In his petition, Teal says he entered the army January 2, 1918, and was honorably discharged with a surgeon's certificate of disability on July 8, 1919. He says he spent several months in the war zone and was gassed and shell-shocked. While in France he also suffered an attack of influenza and pneumonia, he said. During the last few months he was in the army his physical condition prohibited him from participating in the active duties of his detachment. Since leaving the military service he has developed pulmonary tuberculosis as the result of injuries suffered overseas, he says. The petitioner alleges his condition

Al Capone Faces Prison Sentence

Genial Capone Smile Is Taxed As Trouble Piles Up; Fate Will Be Decided Today

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—The genial smile was severely taxed tonight as Alphonse, the scar-faced millionaire, awaited the word of a federal judge as to how long he must remain in prison and worried about a possible new contempt charge and seizure of his property.

Tomorrow morning he will go before Judge James H. Wilkerson to hear the penalty assessed for his evasion of income taxes, to hear his attorneys jockey for an arrest of judgment and a stay while he appeals to the higher courts.

A maximum of 17 years in prison and a $50,000 fine may be his lot. But that is only one of the annoyances of the gangster whose worries have multiplied in the passing months as had his riches in the heyday of his lordship over racketeering and bootlegging and gambling.

Today Judge Wilkerson added another concern for public enemy No. 1 with a hint that maybe Al had guilty knowledge that Phil D'Andrea, his bodyguard, toted a loaded pistol into the federal court room on October 10.

"Is there evidence that the defendant, Capone, had knowledge of D'Andrea being armed?" inquired the court as D'Andrea emerged from his cell for another continuance. There was no such evidence offered, and the court took no further action than to defer

Premier Laval Is Greeted On Capital Visit

French Official And Hoover Prepare For An Important Conference On Problems Of France And U. S.

Declines Response

Deeper Understanding Of This Country's Position Will Be Sought; Cooperation Of Two Nations Studied

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — A smiling but earnest little Frenchman, Premier Pierre Laval, came visiting to America today, seeking the light of a new understanding to guide the world to better days.

In a breath-taking whirl of ceremonials he was welcomed noisily by New York City's millions, whisked to Washington by special train, and presented with all the pomp of his rank to President Hoover, with whom he will discuss tomorrow what America and France can do for world stability.

Hints Are Seen

In his first words of greeting, reassurance of friendship were coupled with a hint of France's desire for guaranteed security. He did not speak specifically, but he did arouse greatly the curiosity of American officials who had heard beforehand he might propose a treaty for American help to France in case of war. No such step is in the minds of President Hoover and his advisers, who expect the conference to relate rather to war debts and other affairs of economic dislocation.

Twice in the late afternoon and evening White House limousines, with their escort of motorcycle police, carried the premier and his aides to the White House. The first time he merely went through the brief formalities of presentation to the president. Later he sat next to the president at a dinner in the state dining room, attended by many French and American dignitaries.

Preliminaries Made

A preliminary mutual basis for the coming conversations was laid in the private car which carried the premier to Washington, with Secretary Stimson as a fellow-passenger.

The secretary later reported to President Hoover that the French statesman would seek first, Franco-

Texas Judge Defies Court Order Of A Fellow Jurist

Court Contempt Is Charged Against Bryan Judge

(By The Associated Press)

GROESBECK, Oct. 22.—Courts of this section were in conflict tonight with Judge W. C. Davis of Bryan, of the 85th district, cited to appear before Judge M. S. Kirby of the 77th district court here for contempt in dissolving injunctions against enforcement of the truck regulatory law by peace officers.

Judge Davis said tonight he did not recognize any authority Judge Kirby might have in law to cite him for contempt. T. L. Tyson, county attorney of Robertson county, and V. C. Box, sheriff of Robertson county, who also were named in the contempt citation by Judge Kirby indicated they would answer the summon to appear tomorrow morning.

Operators Arrested

Sheriff Box and County Attorney Tyson have arrested and prosecuted a number of truck operators here for purported violation of the truck law, recently passed by the state legislature. On Tuesday truck owners obtained an injunction in Judge Kirby's court which restrained the Robertson county officials from enforcing the law. Judge Davis dissolved the injunction yesterday and followed it with another injunction which restrained the truck operators from interference with Robertson county officers in enforcement of the truck law.

Judge Kirby today contended Judge Davis was in contempt as he said a 10 day notice must be given before an injunction can be dissolved.

As far as could be learned here tonight it is the first test in Texas of the right of a district judge to cite another district judge into his court on a contempt charge.

Accomplice Is Being Sought In California Trunk Deaths

Hills Of Southern California Are Being Scoured; Nation Is Aroused And Reports Of Fugitive Are Numerous

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Meager evidence pointing toward an accomplice in the slaying of Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Le Roi was sifted by Arizon authorities today while Los Angeles police searched the cave-like recesses in the hills of Beverly Glen for traces of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, suspected killer.

A policeman found a blanket and a small quantity of food in one of the holes adjacent to a cabin where Burton J. McKinnell, Mrs. Judd's brother, resided while he attended a university here. An officer had been detailed to watch the region in belief Mrs. Judd may have taken refuge in the semi desolate region.

Others Sought

While the hunt was confined to Southern California for Mrs. Judd, suspected of having slain her two companions in Phoenix and sent their bodies here in two trunks, Phoenix authorities sought two men and a woman who attended a party at Mrs. Judd's home the night before the women were slain.

An affectionate scene involving Mrs. Le Roi, Miss Samuelson and a man in the party was related to Phoenix authorities by a woman who attended the party. Her name was not revealed. It was established J. J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumberman, had attended the party but police made it clear Halloran was not a suspect. He was questioned concerning the attitude of Mrs. Judd toward the two women.

The theory of jealousy continued paramount throughout investigations. Authorities said they were

Both Texas And Arkansas Are Claiming Strip Of Land On North Bank Of Red River In Texarkana Vicinity

(By The Associated Press)

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 22.— A boundary dispute that has been hanging fire for years burst into the limelight today when Texas rangers and game wardens occupied a tract of land adjacent to the Red river and defied Arkansas game wardens to enter the area.

The tract lies on the north bank of the river about 20 miles northwest of Texarkana. Texas officers claim that at one time it was undisputed Texas territory on the south bank, but meanderings of the river moved the stream bed.

Issue Warnings

The rangers, acting under order of Gov. Ross S. Sterling, and the game wardens, under instructions from the state game commissioner, posted "no tresspassing" signs around the area today and issued warning that Arkansas authorities violating the notices would be arrested for tresspassing.

Their action came as a result of the announcement last Friday that Attorney General Hal Norwood of Arkansas had declared the land a part of Arkansas.

The controversy was brought to public notice Oct. 26, 1930, when Game Warden George Taffe of Little River county, Ark., arrested six members of the Applewhite Hunting club on charges of hunting out of season.

Charges Dismissed

The defendants claimed they were hunting in season under Texas laws. Arkansas authorities, however, claimed they were hunting in the disputed area and that under Arkansas laws they were violating game ordinances.

The hunters were arraigned at Ashdown, Ark., Nov. 15 and managed to have the charges dismissed. At the hearing they presented aerial photographs showing the location of the land. They claimed that the river changed its course in 1913 and returned to its old boundary chan-

Much-Discussed Brooks Proposal To Divert One-Cent Of Four-Cent Gas Tax For Bond Retirement Vetoed

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 22. — The much-discussed Brooks bill proposing to divert one-cent of the four-cent gasoline tax money to retirement of county and district road bonds was vetoed by Governor R. S. Sterling today.

The bill, written by Representative Ben F. Brooks of Bagwell, directed that the one-cent allotment be placed in a suspense fund with the state treasury to be applied proportionately to the principal and interest of bonds proceeds of which were used in constructing links in the state highway system.

Governor Sterling said the money would not have been available, as far as relief from the tax burden was concerned, before January, 1933 and that depriving the highway department of the $6,000,000 annually represented by the one-cent withdrawal, would throw "hundreds or thousands" of persons out of work who otherwise could be employed in road construction and prevent the placing of a great sum into circulation through purchase of materials.

No Change Seen In Field Order

TYLER, Oct. 22. (AP)—No change in enforcement of the 165 barrel per well conservation order in the East Texas field during the coming week was foreseen at military headquarters here tonight as the result of the citation of General Jacob F. Wolters, commandant of the martial law zone, for contempt of a federal court decree.

In citing General Wolters, Judge Randolph Bryant indicated that probably there would be no action taken on the case until October 29 when the question of the right of the state to prorate oil in a martial law zone comes before a three-judge federal court at Beaumont.

In the meantime it was made clear at military headquarters that orders of Governor Ross S. Sterling to disregard the federal court decree of October 13 and to keep the wells of the Brock-Lee Oil company within the conservation limitation would be enforced.

PREPARING for the Tech-Colorado School of Mines football game tonight, Texas Tech football fans and rooters will have their final workout this afternoon in the form of a parade through the downtown district shortly after 4 o'clock.

More than 900 students attended the first workout last night, a pep rally, at the college gymnasium. Jay Timmons, chief coach of the rooters, announced his section would be in tip-top condition tonight, judging from the showing made at the practice.

The meeting was termed as "the biggest and best pep rally in the history of Texas Tech."

ARRIVE AT NOON

Due to snows in their section of the country, the Colorado Miners, who were scheduled to arrive in Lubbock Thursday, were delayed in making the trip to Lubbock and will not arrive until noon today over the Santa Fe railroad. Coach P. W. Cawthon received a message last night from Miner officials stating that planned use of busses on the trip had been changed because of inclement weather. Coach Cawthon said the Colorado team probably would work out this afternoon at Tech field.

The Matador band furnished the music. Inspirational talks were made by Coaches Pete Cawthon, Dutchey Smith and Weir Washam, Jack Durham, captain of the football squad, George W. Dupree and C. C. Lindsey.

Cheer Leader Timmons and his assistants, Joe Harter and Rob O'Hair, directed the activities, which included a "Double T" stunt, which is to be presented on the football field tonight. The stunt was presented by an all-freshman cast.

The optometrist is the first person in Lubbock to be prosecuted under the sign provision of the new building code, which became effective April 1, of this year, city officers said. The sign provision stipulates that no swinging signs were to be erected over sidewalks after the ordinance went into effect. It also provides that persons or firms must obtain permits for the erection of signs outside of buildings. City Prosecutor Jess Levens told the jury Thursday.

Schlag Is Witness

D. J. Schlag, city building inspector was the chief witness for the city. He testified that Woods erected the sign in July without obtaining a permit to do so. The defendant was accused of failing to remove the sign after city officials had repeatedly asked him to comply with the city ordinance.

The defendant testified that the building officials were discriminatory in the enforcement of the law. He contended that other firms near his establishment had been allowed to erect swinging signs and had not been molested. He said he was willing to take down the board when his neighbors did likewise.

Levens On Stand

Levens took the witness stand to testify about an agreement with the defendant. A compiaint was filed against Woods two weeks ago in connection with the alleged offense, but was held in abeyance when the defendant promised to remove the sign he said. The article was taken down at that time but was replaced a few days later, he said. Levens denied that the officers were being discriminatory in the enforcement of the ordinance. He said all others approached had agreed to comply with the measure, but in case the other offenders failed to remove signs after a reasonable time complaints would be filed against them in corporation court.

Breweries Of Baron Listed

One Brewery Continues Operation Despite A Government Lien; Ownership Disclosed In Court Hearing

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP) — Four breweries, one operating in spite of a government lien against it, have been listed among the possessions of Terry Druggan, supposedly retired beer baron.

Druggan's alleged ownership of breweries was disclosed casually in a hearing before Circuit Judge Michael J. Feinberg by Andrew H. Dressel, who was president of the West Central Savings Bank and banker to the gangster. The institution closed last January and the hearing was todiscover assets to aid its depositors.

Thousands of dollars were loaned Druggan, Dressel revealed, including $16,000 on an unsecured note. Besides this the beer purveyor obtained $12,000 from Dressel personally for which a three-story apartment house was put up as security.

"Druggan has plenty of assets and he'll make good," Dressel told the court when he was questioned about the wisdom of the unsecured loan. "He has the Standard brewery, Stege's brewery, and Gambrinus brewery, and the Mutual brewery," he added.

Last week when he passed the Mutual brewery, it was "going full blast" though the government has a lien against it for unpaid income taxes, Dressel said.

Robert P. Neely, acting collector of internal revenue, said liens would be filed immediately against the Standard, Stege and Gambrinus breweries, if the investigation of agents disclosed Druggan owned them.

The hearing on the bank's affairs, which brought out that loans outstanding when the institution closed amounting to $479,000 were valued at less than $10,000 by the receiver's attorney, will continue.

Title For Rich Lands At Stake

AUSTIN, Oct. 22. (AP) — Title to 560 acres of rich oil land in the Pecos county field was involved in the case of Mrs. M. A. Smith et al vs. Fred Turner, jr., et al, and three companion suits argued before the supreme court.

The principal issue involved constitutionality of a legislative act permiting filing on tracts claimed to be vacant unappropriated school lands.

The final decision, when made by the supreme court, will affect rich holdings in the Yates pool area.

The main suit was undertaken to establish that there exists and to require a survey of an unappropriated area in Pecos county.

The companion cases involving the same issues were R. H. Barrow vs. J. S. Boyles, from Harris county; W. O. Work vs. Ernest Cockrell, Chambers county, and Van Camp vs. Gulf Production company and others, Crane county.

3 RULES
big help to BOWELS

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Beguiling Dress For The Blonde

The beguiling charms of black velvet for the very blonde are illustrated in this picture of Marian Marsh, film star, who wears the 1931 version of the Second Empire afternoon gown. The velvet is fitted closely to the figure with a cinched-in waist line. The full sleeves of heavy white lace give a demure Victorian accent. The Empress Eugenie hat is trimmed with ermine tails. The necklace combines pearls and rhinestones.

Lectures Will Glorify Tasks

Most Prosaic Work Is To Be Made Interesting Here In Miss Christeen Chitwood's School Of Cookery

The most prosaic tasks will be made to seem thrilling at the lectures given by Miss Christeen Chitwood next week at the annual school of cookery and charm fostered by the Avalanche-Journal publications. The choosing, preparation and cooking of even commonplace foods will seem interesting. For Miss Chitwood does her work with the enthusiams and interest and with the understanding her years of study and practice have given her.

Next Tuesday marks the opening of the school when Lubbock women will assemble at the Uptown Dance palace at 2 o'clock. Lectures will follow on three consecutive afternoons.

Lectures Are Free

Miss Chitwood imparts her knowledge and gives of her experience greely and gladly.

She will answer any question you put to her which will tend to enlighten you on some point of home-making. She is always vivacious, happy, entertaining and helpful. Her lectures are never monotonous. Her classes are alert and eager throughout the sessions, thirsting after the information she gives them on subjects so near to them.

You will not want to miss a single class of the annual cooking school, for fear you will miss something interesting and valuable—which you will, should you fail to come daily. There are going to be prizes and souvenirs and refreshments and everything free at the cooking school; you'll want to "get in" on these things.

No one attending the lectures will be under any obligation whatsoever. The entire course of lectures and demonstrations is absolutely free to all who care to avail themselves of this oportunity.

It is suggested that those attending bring a notebook and pencil with which to make copious notes, both on the lectures and the demonstrations. These may be preserved for future reference. The public is cordially invited by the Avalanche-Journal, Miss Chitwood and the cooperating firms, to attend the cookery school.

Today's Events

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Huckabee, 2307 16th street, are to entertain at bridge in their home at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Assembly is to dance at 9 p. m. at the Hilton hotel.

Free Samples At Druggists Of Two New Vick Products

Every User of Vicks VapoRub Entitled to a Free Trial of Its New Allies—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops.

INTRODUCES NEW IDEA

Discovery Makes Possible New Vick Plan of Better Home-Control of Colds

TO REDUCE 'COLDS-TAX'

Following years of research on the problem of colds and their increasing cost, Vick Chemists announce a new discovery — Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in preventing colds, it is a perfect ally to Vicks VapoRub, the modern and better method of treating colds. Together, they make possible the new Vick Plan of better Control of Colds in the home —and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax" of time, money and discomfort.

Here is the Plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds — (crowded indoor places — stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms — sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes

Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day — anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vick Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vick product — Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Packages Free

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new Vick products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. If, by any chance his supply is exhausted, send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail free samples direct to you, together with a folder on the new Vick Plan for Control of Colds in the home. Prominent Tulsa Oil Leader Dies

TULSA, Oct. 22. (AP)—After showing considerable improvement from an attack of pneumonia a few days ago, William H. Gray, 54, old time oil man and attorney of Oklahoma and Texas, died here today.

Gray suffered a relapse last night and his condition grew rapidly worse. He had been thought out of immediate danger only last week.

As a lawyer in Texas in the early part of the century Gray achieved more than local notice because of his intense activity against the original Standard Oil company, and his local friends credited him with obtaining much of the evidence that later was used to oust the Standard from the Lone Star state.

More recently Gray had led a fight for sustained high prices for crude oil and was president of the National Association of Independent Oil Producers which he organized in 1921.

DALLAS, Oct. 22. (AP)—A fortune teller and a television stock salesman whom Mrs. Francis N. Ward accused of swindling her out of telephone company stock valued at $6,000, were under arrest here today.

Mrs. Ward said the fortune teller persuaded her to trade her telephone stock for television stock which he assured her was worth no less than $50,000.

She said he arranged the transaction in such a way that the telephone stock was turned over to the salesman in exchange for television stock, which later proved to be worthless. Police were trying to recover the telephone stock.

Littlefield Runs Into Allerdice

(By The Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22.—Coach Clyde Littlefield, en route to Cambridge, Mass., where his University of Texas football team will play Harvard Saturday, today met the man here who taught him to play football.

Dave Allerdice, who coached Texas from 1911 to 1916, inclusive, was among those who greeted Littlefield and his Longhorns when they stopped off here several hours this afternoon for a workout on the Butler University gridiron.

Littlefield played halfback and fullback for four years under Allerdice at Texas. Allerdice now is in business. He has not coached football since leaving Texas.

"Littlefield was the best passer I ever saw," Allerdice said. "I know he will be busy the little while he is here, but I hope to get a few minutes of his time to talk over old times."

District Three Holds Spot In High School Grid Race This Week; Pampa Established As Favorite After Win

Complete Standings Announced For All State Districts

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 22.—Football in the Texas Interscholastic League last week saw the two finalists of 1930 defeated. The Pampa Harvesters opened their district one race with a 13 to 6 victory over Amarillo. This game was the outstanding football attraction in the League. Amarillo went to the championship finals last year after beating Pampa for district honors with a 2 to 0 decision.

Playing a non-district game, the Tyler High School Lions, 1930 champions, lost a 6 to 2 game to Marshall High Mavericks. An intercepted pass by Hadlock, who raced 80 yards for a touchdown, dropped the champions for their first loss.

Two Outstanding Games

Scholastic football this week offers two outstanding games in district three. Ranger against Abilene, and Cisco opposing Breckenridge. These four teams are favored to fight it out for the district three championship.

Competition in district eight starts Friday with Marshall at Paris.

Tyler Meets Lufkin

The Tyler Lions will inaugurate their district ten race Friday against Lufkin. The game will be played at Tyler. Lufkin recently beat Athens, and promises to give Tyler a hard fight.

It Is Possible For The Offensive Center Or Guard To Score Touchdown For His Team

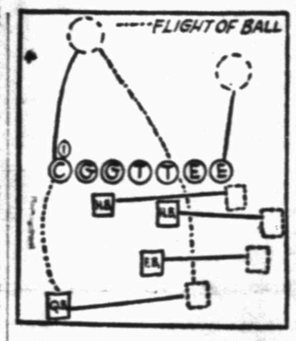

Ninety-nine out of 100 football fans, if asked to name the greats of any football era, would readily recall the Thorpes, Hestons, Eckersalls, Gipps and Granges. The one-hundredth might possibly enumerate a few Heffelfingers, Hinkeys, Kecks and Mullers.

The answer is simple Ball-carriers score the spectacular touchdown runs and make the headlines. Players in the line remain out of sight.

Perhaps it never occurred to you that eight players of the offensive team are always eligible to carry the ball from scrimmage. Only the snapper-back and the two players on either side of him may not run with the ball until it has passed from the hands of an eligible ball-carrier.

On forward pass plays, five men are eligible receivers. They are the two end men on the line of scrimmage and three of the four backs. The fourth back of course is the passer. In the accompanying diadram it is shown how even the center is eligible to receive a forward pass.

A legal ball-carrier may at any time pass the ball in any direction except toward his opponents' goal and any other player of his team may catch the pass, may recover it if muffed or fumbled, and may run with it, pass it backward or kick it.

All players of the defensive team may legally intercept passes thrown by the offensive team and run with the ball. They also are eligible to recover fumbles and may advance the ball if they recover it before it strikes the ground.

TOMORROW: Safety and Touchback.

Harvesters To Meet Lions Of Brownwood Hi

Strong Oil Belt Team Coming To Pampa As "Practice" Go Before Lubbock Game; Harvesters Point To Lubbock

(Special to the Avalanche)

PAMPA, Oct. 22.—The Brownwood High school football will take the place of the Childress Tigers on the Pampa Harvesters' schedule here Friday, Oct. 23 This game with the powerful Oil Belt team was scheduled over long distance telephone at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. When the news reached Harvesters on the playing field they would play at home this week after all, the boys went to work with a new spirit, glad of the chance to get in a hard game before the Lubbock Westerners arrive Oct. 31.

Gene Taylor, coach of the Brownwood Lions, is well known in the Panhandle as a producer of powerful teams. Last year his class B Spur team almost held the Harvesters at bay in the first game of the season and then swept through an undefeated season.

This year Taylor has built a hard fighting team at Brownwood, the former home of the doormat team of the Oil Belt. Cisco just managed to defeat Brownwood two weeks ago and last week the Abilene Eagles had their hands full to beat them.

The Harvesters came out of the Sandie game last week in good shape with the exception of an injury to Joe Freeman, tackle. Freeman will not get in the Brownwood game. Coach Odus Mitchell preferring to let his knee heal completely for the Lubbock battle. Fullback Hill, Martindale and the rest of the boys who nursed minor injuries before the Sandies game are back in shape and will be ready to go Friday.

Picadors Register Three Touchdowns In Fourth Period

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Oct. 22. — The Texas Tech freshmen unleashed a belated offensive and galloped through the shadows of night for three touchdowns in the fourth period of their game with Terrill School of Dallas this afternoon but lost, 31 to 19.

When Tech's offensive began clicking with reckless abandon the handicap was too much although the freshmen crept to within five points of Terrill.

Darkness Shrouds Field

When the final whistle sounded players were unable to recognize their teammates in the darkness.

Gastmeyer broke the crust for Terrill as he took a looping pass and skirted the left wing for 30 yards and a touchdown.

Long passes gave Terrill two more counters, Heaves to Harris and Meyers, a substitute back, being good.

Gilmore Scores

Gilmore accounted for two Tech touchdowns in the fourth period. He nabbed a pass to count his first one and then knifed through the Terrill line to recover a bad pass behind the goal line.

Gastmeyer then grabbed a kick-off and scampered through for 80 yards and a touchdown.

The Aggies began tapering off today, After a short kicking and passing practice the Cadets sharpened their offensive with signal practice and dummy scrimmage.

Overcast skies caused A. and M. officials to order Kyle field covered with canvas.

Aggieland expected between 8,000 and 10,000 persons at the game.

The University of Alabama football team will meet nine foes this year, eight of which are within the southern conference.

Odessa Sends Team Here To Play Lubbock

Westerners Meet Strong Class B Unit Tomorrow Afternoon At 3 O'Clock On Tech Field In Important Practice Game

The Lubbock High School Westerners, in the midst of a campaign of preparation for their first major game next Saturday when they meet the powerful Pampa Harvesters, will halt long enough tomorrow to play a practice game. They meet the Odessa High school eleven at 3 o'clock on the Texas Tech field.

While they are naturally due to win over the Class B club from further West Texas, the Westerners expect no set up realizing that the Odessans would take great pleasure in knocking off a strong contender for Class A honors, and they will be set for a game that may call out quite a bit of strength and strategy.

Handicapped by a schedule that called for no hard games until they run up against a Tartar, the Westerners will go to Pampa next week armed with a desire for vengeance, a lot of spirit, a bid for District 1 honors and the support of a Lubbock populace. On paper, the Westerners do not look quite the equal of the Harvesters, and that is the only way they may be judged thus far. Pampa is conceded the upper hand next week and a victory for the Harvesters will cinch the district championship for them. They were all-powerful in their 13 to 6 victory over Amarillo last week, and they were pointing to Lubbock even before the Amarillo game.

With all his men in good shape physically and mentally, Coach Weldon Chapman has stressed blocking and tackling in this week's practice, Defensive work, rightly applied, will stop the Harvesters, but it will take plenty of it. Apparently satisfied with their offense, though it, too, is coming in for considerable consideration, the Westerner coaches have dwelled especially on blocking and tackling plays.

usiness Men Rest When ney Won't Buy," Wails Ye Shop Keepers ootball Crowds Swarm

BY GAYLE TALBOT
ociated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—College football, for all its fanfare d swirling, falls considerly short of the popular no- n that it is a boom to bus- ss in university towns.

Reports received by the Asiated Press from typical tern centers of gridiron acity indicate the financial nefits, running well into milns, are confined mainly to transportation business and college treasuries.

"We Get Vacation"

"What we get," college town rchants replied, in substance, inquiries, "is a day's vacan. We stand in the door and ch the crowds go by. They 't even hesitate, much less anything. The railroads the filling stations get ty all the money that isn't for tickets at $4 and $5 e."

typical complaint came New Haven, home of the Bulldog. A crowd of 70,000 already has witnessed one game there this season and almost that many are expected to enter the bowl for Saturday's tilt with the Army. Yet the city's business men can work up no enthusiasm about it. One of them said:

"You're touching a raw spot with us. Games nowadays with the automobiles and special trains bringing in the crowds are a huge loss to business. The police shut off downtown streets to traffic, residential streets are jammed with machines from out of town, traffic is blocked for hours and the stores might just as well declare a holiday.

Committee Studies Plan

A committee is studying the situation to see if some plan can be devised to hold the visitors in town long enough for them to spend a few dollars.

A steady rain in the day of the game, however, boosts the slicker and umbrella sales in college towns.

Dairy farmers of this locality are receiving the best price over feed costs that they have realized for years and proves that the dairy cow is the most profitable animal that can be kept on the farms of the Plains.

let's all go to Turkey

When Turkish tobacco comes from Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

In every important tobacco-growing center of Turkey, Chesterfield has its own tobacco buyers on the spot

XANTHI . . CAVALLA . . SMYRNA . . SAMSOUN . . famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf — Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna — go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

Winter Relief Plans Talked

Red Cross Workers Of Western Texas Gather In Abilene On Thursday; Annual Roll Call Will Be Staged

ABILENE, Oct. 22. (AP)—Red Cross workers of West Texas gathered here today to map plans for its winter program and to complete organization preparatory to the annual roll call membership drive.

Henry M. Parker, field representative, discussed practical methods of family relief work, and a review of Red Cross accomplishments in 1930 was given by Miss Mary Parr. Baker was to address the meeting this afternoon on "forward Texas."

D. A. Bandeen, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, told the workers the relief program this winter would be taxed "because of the attitude of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde in refusing to deal leniently with crop production borrowers."

Bandeen said Hyde had agreed to extend collections in necessary cases, "but later changed his attitude. You may rest assured that the government intends to collect these notes if it takes the last bale of cotton a farmer has," Bandeen said. "Such an attitude violates the intent of congress, which was to rehabilitate the drouth sufferers, and will leave many farmers nothing with which to make another crop."

West Is Disappointing To Three As They Gaze Out From Jail In Denver

DENVER, Oct. 22. (AP)—The west has disappointed three young adventure seekers from the east.

Andrew Targin, 17, Tony Miasky, 16, and John Budawick, 17, all of New York, expressed a protest against the country from the city jail today.

For one thing the natives hadn't taken seriously the cowboy outfits and revolvers they purchased before leaving home. The supply of both cows and Indians was declared to be inadequate. They were run off several ranches they had proposed to purchase.

Officers listened sympathetically and awaited word concerning the robbery of a Manhattan department store by which the youths said they had obtained $280 to finance their trip. Heavy spending here led to their arrest.

Mammoth Parade Of Vets Planned

DALLAS, Oct. 22. (AP)—World war memories will be reviewed Saturday when veterans of the Thirty-sixth division gather here for their first reunion since th armitice.

Military officials plan the biggest parade the city has seen since disbanding of the famous unit. Gov. Ross Sterling and staff; Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of West Point Military academy; Maj. Gen. John A. Hulen and other officials will ride in the first section of march.

The American Legion, national guard, other veterans' organizations, school cadets and affiliated organizations will participate in the parade.

Col. L. E. McGee, Marshal of the parade, will have Charles A. Oosborn, Col. W. E. Talbot, Col. Arch Allen and Col. James Ronayne as assistants.

The reunion will continue through Sunday. Veterans from Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico have signified their intention of being present.

If She Were Not French, Young Mlle. Laval Would Like To Be An American

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—If Mlle. Josette Laval were not a French girl, she'd like to be an American.

"I want to see the American theaters; I'm very much interested to see how American girls dress; and I think, if it were possible, I'd like to go to school here for awhile," said the daughter of Premier Laval as she reached here today.

The beautiful 19-year-old girl, who combines a taste for the arts with a sharp intellect, was as cool during today's tremendous ovation as if she were merely going to one of her classes at the Faculte De Troit, where she is studying to be a lawyer.

Mlle. Laval confided a belief that her father wanted her to come along all the while, although at first there were reports that he had to be won over to her viewpoint. She denied with an emphatic shake of her head that she acted as her father's secretary during the voyage.

Asked if she would get married, she smiled and said, "maybe" but she declared she was not engaged now.

A tall, rather slender young woman, with tanned skin and bright eyes, results of tennis and horseback riding, Mlle. Laval was clad in a light blue suit of newest corduroy and wore a knitted hat of the same shade.

Graciousness characterized her every motion.

Young Oil Field Worker Is Shot To Death By Officer

HENDERSON, Oct. 22. (AP)—Arthur Riley, 25-year-old oil field worker, was shot to death last night by Deputy Sheriff Ralph Watson.

Watson said he and Deputy Lawrence Jackson sought to question Riley on the highway seven miles west of Henderson. Watson said Riley drew a pistol as they approached.

Watson said he fired at Riley with his pistol, hitting him in the head, neck and chest. The officers said they found six gallons of liquor in Riley's car.

This "Jill Of All Trades" Put Aside Pen And Needle To Sing Her Way Up To Stardom

Ruth Etting Might Only Have Been Modiste In Home Town Instead Of A Noted Star Of Stage And Radio

BY HARMON HALE
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK. — If things hadn't been difficult for Ruth Etting in her childhood she might be the leading modiste in David City, Neb., today instead of the radio idol of millions of home folks.

"A Jack of all trades never becomes master of one," her friends and family cautioned when they observed Ruth flitting from sketching to sewing, from sewing to dancing. Once in a while she would oblige with a song, but it was the joyous singing of a youngster rather than warble for a livlihood.

Ruth Etting, the blue eyed, blond-haired prairie girl, has made good in a big way. In spite of the fact that she has been a "jill of all trades."

Ruth always had a yen for drawing. This yearning grew with the years, and because she could wield a mean pair of shears and turn a few yards of gingham into something of a creation, she decided that costume designing was to be her life's work. She visioned a fine establishment arising in her home town with the simple announcement: "Ruth Etting—Couturier."

Earned Tuition in Chorus

She discussed the matter at length with her family. And it was decided that when she graduated from high school she would make her home in Chicago and study at the Academy of Fine Arts. But after one semester there was no money for the next term's tuition. Some of the girls were earning expense money by dancing in the chorus of neighboring night clubs, so Ruth joined them.

Still intent upon that art career, Ruth returned to school when she had saved sufficient money from her salary as a dancer. When the cash gave out this time she joined another troupe. Ruth was an enterprising miss. For when the management discovered her talent for sketching and designing, she was put on the payroll to design the costumes of the ensemble numbers, and for the principals.

As a member of the chorus, Ruth had to sing as well as dance. One night a "plaintive something" in the voice of the prairie girl reached the discerning ear of the musical director. It came straight from the heart and ended in a full-throated throb. He had her sing a solo number to fill in for one of the principals who was ill. That song went over beautifully and Ruth advanced to the principal class, singing blues songs as if her very life depended upon it.

The stage lured Ruth Etting, shown here in her most recent portrait, away from her early ambition to become a costume designer and artist. She, still, however, practices drawing, and upper right is a sketch which she made of herself as she appeared in a recent musical production.

The next art school semester began. But this time Ruth Etting was conspicuous by her absence. Her newly discovered voice was bringing her the first taste of fame. She was in demand for stage appearances in the great Chicago movie palaces, and eventually radio reached out for her talents. Her mellow voice also registered uncommonly well on records.

Drew Ziegfeld's Attention

When a beautiful girl wins the plaudits of a big city, it doesn't take long for Flo Ziegfeld to hear about it. So when "Whoopee" opened on Broadway, with Eddie Cantor as its star, the slim, shy girl from David City held the center of the stage and sang her way into the hearts of a hard-boiled first-night audience.

She has been singing ever since. Today Ruth Etting is one of the highest-paid stars on the stage and on the air. When she isn't appearing in the Ziegfeld Follies or broadcasting, she is making records or talking picture "shorts."

But this "Jill of all trades" who has mastered one, still loves to sketch, sew and dance. And her hands fairly itch to plant some flowering shrubs in the cool, moist soil as she did in her childhood days. Ruth's one ambition now, like the one that Marion Tally realized, is to save enough money to buy a farm in Nebraska and return there when the footlights have lost their lure.

Mack Not To Give Up A's, Says Young Mack In El Paso

EL PASO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia club of the American League, today denied reports his father would relinquish management of the Athletics to Eddie Collins, his assistant.

Mack was in El Paso with a group of Major league players for a baseball game with a local club.

"My father has no intention of retiring," he said. "Why, he looks as young as I do. Whoever circulated those reports was wrong. He also denied reports that the elder Mack would break his club as he did the famous aggregation of 1914.

RAIN HALTS WORKOUT

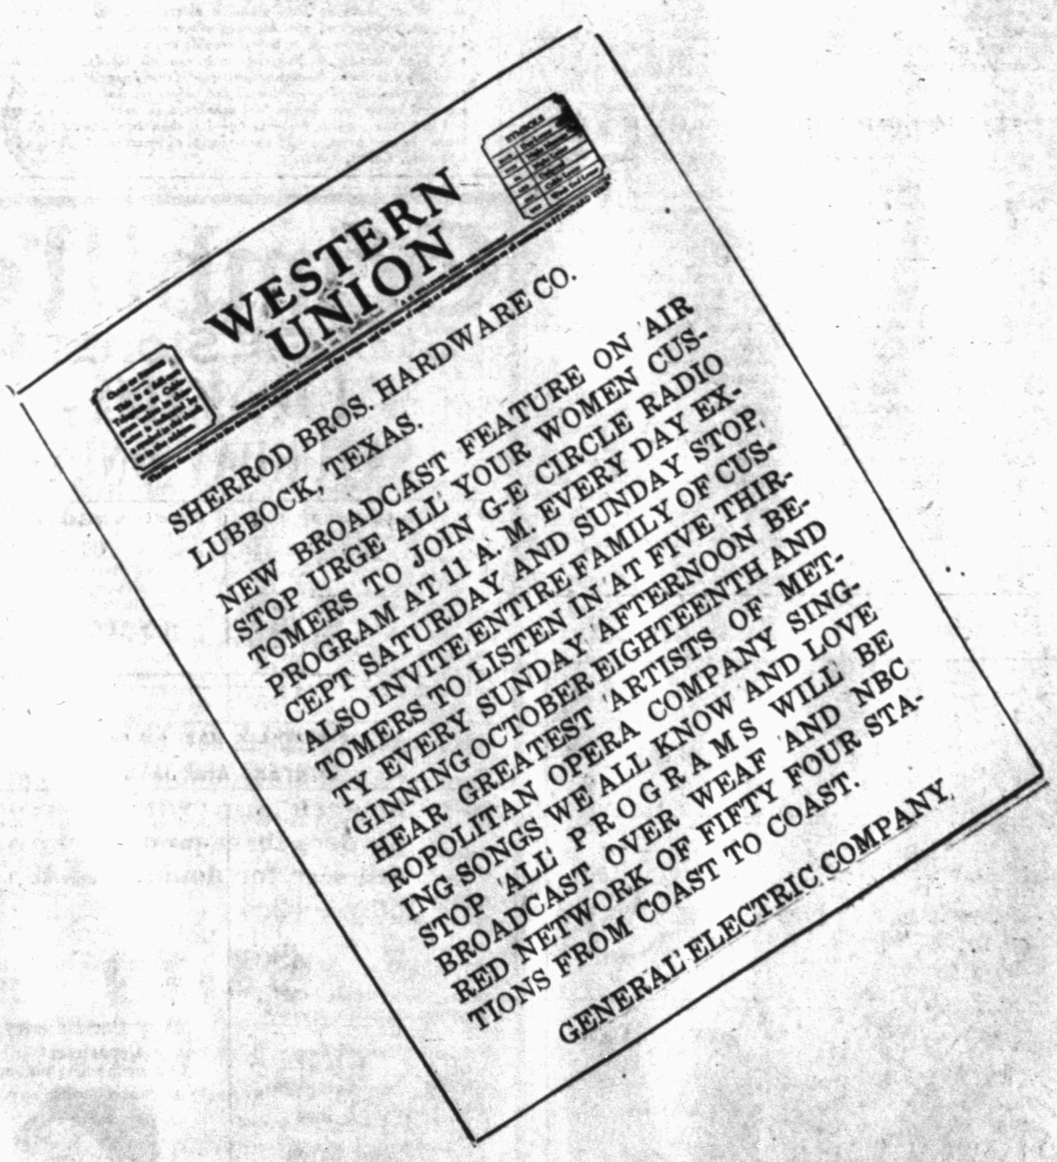

ABILENE, Oct. 22. (AP) — Heavy rain, still falling here tonight, washed out the scheduled warmup of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs under the lights of Parramore Field, where tomorrow night they are to meet the Simmons University Cowboys.

The excessive moisture brought up recollections of the 1930 game between the same teams, a scoreless tie played in a downpour at Breckenridge.

THE TIME TO ADVERTISE

BY SHELLY E. TRACY
President, Tracy-Locke-Dawson, Incorporated
In The Texas Commercial News

"Every business man shares the responsibility of doing his part to speed general business recovery. Let's go! Individually, we can help by thought, example, conversation and action. Best of all, this will help make profits as is indicated by definite experience of those who are applying this formula.

"It is a striking fact that the firms who are going after business aggressively ARE GETTING IT.

"I know of dozens of firms who increased their advertising budget during 1930 and 1931. Every one of them is showing sales increases. More aggressive advertising has a tonic effect on the organizations of these advertisers that seems to pull them out of the 'dumps.' They are too busy to talk about hard times. They find that the business is here if we go after it with intelligence and with a will and determination. Firms like Dr. Pepper Company, Continental Oil Company, Duncan Coffee Company, Philco Radio Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, and dozens of manufacturers and hundreds of retailers have increased advertising and have shown substantial sales increases. There is one retail store in Texas where the sales for the first quarter this year are more than 20 per cent ahead of the sales of any previous first quarter.

"Such results, which are legion from one end of the country to the other, come from intelligent merchandising based on alert, adequate buying, plus a basic policy of aggressive advertising. Visit these establishments. You will observe nothing to indicate the abnormal or subnormal. Everyone is busy, cheerful and optimistic. All employees are hard at work and most of them apparently quite happy on the job. There is no talk of hard times; none of the negative suggestions that lead to the postponement of the consumer purchase because of fear of the future or lack of confidence in the present. The whole atmosphere of the store or the factory is cheering, confident and happy. And that fact alone is quite vital in improving general conditions. The time when the majority of establishments maintain such an internal condition for a reasonable period will mark the end of the depression.

"Economists tell us that the difference in total volume of business done in depression is only about 15 per cent less than in periods of 'good times.' If through more aggressive advertising and more intelligent merchandising, a majority of merchants and manufacturers increase their sales 15 per cent, the collective effect will automatically end the depression. This has been done by many firms during the worst of the present period and can be done now by many more. In some instances the increased volume maintain or improve the net profit results. In others the net may decrease. But if the aggregate effect hastens the return of a saner and more normal attitude on the part of the public, the investment in money and net profit will be returned many fold in the near future."

ractical Health Problems

NHALATION OF DUST CAUSES DISEASES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

E most widespread group of industrial diseases is that in which inhalation of dusts developed ing the processes of the work is the basic cause. scientific name for such diseases is pneumonoco- —a word developed from two Greek words meanlung and dust. The dusts inhaled are of various s. For instance, it is possible for a worker to in- germs or parasites which once in the lung attack tissues.

ecently newspapers carried an account of a girl had developed pulmonary anthrax. Anthrax is a ase caused by micro-organisms from the hides of le and sheep which usually attack the skin of body. When inhaled this germ can set up inion in the lungs which in the majority of cases is l. Anthrax is known as wool sorter's disease and lso associated with any worker who handles fresh es.

n Paris there are men who raise pigeons and who them by holding the grain in their own mouths forcing it down the throats of the pigeon. Such infrequently inhale organisms which set up ubles in their lungs.

Weavers of cotton cloth sometimes develop a cough t is due to the inhaling of mildew present on the on threads. Conditions of climate affect the ng of the threads before they are placed on the ms, favoring the growth and development of mil- . The weavers inhale the fungi, which are thrown the cotton threads in the process of weaving. fungi develop in the lungs, producing a feeling constriction of the chest with difficult breathing, associated with this, expectoration of thick, yel- -green sputum. As the infection goes on other ms attack the weakened tissues, producing the inquently secondary attacks of tuberculosis. This gs about, of course, general weakness, aching bs, aching back, severe headache and perspira- as well as prostration.

The condition does not occur so frequently as to be constant menace, but cases have been recognized ficiently often to give the disease the special name weaver's cough.

Treaties Embarrassing

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—International peace agreements are all right until trouble starts.

So long as no dispute arises betweeen any two or more of the signatories of such a document as the Kellogg treaty, for example, the convenant presents a very attractive appearance on paper.

H. L. STIMSON

However, let one member of the group launch a military campaign against a fellow member, as Japan (a Kellogg pact adherent) recently did against China (a second adherent) and an exceedingly embarrassing situation immediately confronts the bargain's bystander adherents, bound as they are by their mutual understanding to intervene pacifically in the quarrel, yet quite aware that the country which launched the campaign will resent being asked to cease its martial activities; otherwise it would not have begun them.

This is just the dilemma which did, in fact, confront Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson upon the outbreak of hostilities (perhaps not actual warfare, but sure-enough fighting) between Japan and China in Manchuria last September.

China, indeed, being hopelessly out-classed by Japan except in point of undisciplined, ill-armed numbers, far from objecting to outside intervention, has clamored loudly for it—under the Kellogg treaty, by the League of Nations or from any other source—but Tokio has given the world plainly to understand that the Japanese will not take kindly to interference, no matter from what quarter.

Possibly there is no better reason why the United States should interfere, by virtue of the Kellogg pact, in the Chino-Japanese difficulty, than why the League of Nations should interfere in it, on general principles—but certainly there is as good reason for the one to interfere as for the other to do so.

Nevertheless, it evidently seemed judicious to Secretary Stimson to yield precedure to the League of Nations. That was the course he pursued, anyhow.

No one questions the wisdom of his policy.

Some folk refer to it as a case of buck passing, but all concede that the buck was red hot, and that it was sound judgment, if not the highest quality of nerve, to get rid of it in a hurry.

Of course the United States, Japan and China are not the only countries included in the Kellogg agreement; there are many others.

For all that, it essentially is an American treaty. It was the brainchild of an American secretary of state—Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary Stimson's predecessor. It was through American diplomatic efforts that Japan, China and all the remainder were induced to sign it. American statesmanship always has claimed credit for it.

Thus, had Secretary Stimson seen fit to make representatives to Tokio and Nanking under the terms of the Kellogg pact, they would have been conspicuously American, rather than intersectional, representations, and Washington would have had to accept responsibility for them.

On the opposite hand, America takes no direct responsibility whatever, for the League of Nations' representations, not being a member of the league.

True, the Washington administration has announced itself as heartily in support of the league's peace efforts in Manchuria, but supporting the league's efforts is decidedly less dubious a proposition than initiating its own.

State department officials are unusually candid, in admitting that the department did not fancy the idea of reminding Tokio of Japan's obligations as a Kellogg pact signatory, at the risk of being told, in effect, "Mind your own business"—an answer it would have been hard for Uncle Sam to swallow with a pleasant expression.

Washington knows this by actual experience, for it tried the experiment a couple of years ago on Moscow, at a time when friction over Manchuria existed between the Russians and China. The United States received a snappy response from the Soviet government and had to make the best of it—not having any other recourse short of declaring war, which naturally was out of the question on any such issue. Just the same, the state department did not like it.

To be sure, present indications are that the League of Nations will not have much better luck with Japan than Uncle Sam had with Russia, but there are so many countries in the league that, if they have anything disagreeable to swallow, they can divide up and it will not rest quite so heavily upon any individual national stomach.

What worries the state department now is the problem whether, if the League of Nations falls down utterly on the job of intervention, America will not, after all, finally have to attempt it.

The suggestion already is being advanced that, supposing Japan bears down world opposition to the extent of forcing a free hand on the Asiatic continent, the necessity for powerful armaments scarcely can be regarded as having been so completely relegated to the past as to justify further reductions by other nations.

On this ground, members of the Washington diplomatic colony are going so far as to predict that next winter's naval conference will be called off unless a Manchurian compromise is arrived at.

That President Hoover would regard his disarmament plans' collapse as immeasurably worse than a mere disappointment is fully recognized. His whole program for international economic rehabilitation is bound up in pending negotiations for the curbing of militarism.

In the event that the Kellogg pact should prove the last thing to fall back upon, in an effort to prevent such a catastrophe, Washington diplomacy is not even yet certain that it will not have the Manchurian case to deal with.

The Hoover administration is reported considering an increase in the tax on cigarettes, which is already 45 per cent of the price the consumer pays. Perhaps the politicians have forgotten a certain tax on tea.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty NORMA KENT, 20-year-old secretary, marries MARK TRAVERS, son of a millionaire, in spite of the father's threats to disinherit Mark.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon and he and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs. After two weeks their money is gone. With $500, borrowed, the couple return to Marlboro.

Mark gets one job and loses it. Then he becomes a floorwalker in Blosomdale's department store. In spite of poverty the young couple are happy. After a few weeks Mark's father sends for him, offers to take him back into his business organization if Mark will prove he can make good. His first task involves a business trip to France. Norma is to remain at home. In spite of her protests Mark departs.

Norma, treated rudely at her father-in-law's home, slips away leaving no trace of her whereabouts. She takes a room in a lodging house and CHRIS SAUNDERS, her former roommate, helps her find a job.

Travers employs detectives who find Norma's name in police files and evidence that three years previous she was convicted on a vice charge. HOLLIS STONE, relative of Travers, who was Norma's lawyer at that time, declares the case was framed and the girl entirely innocent but Mark's father will not listen. He sends his lawyer to Paris with documents that will enable Makr to secure a divorce. Late in January Norma, who knows nothing of all this, receives a special delivery letter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Norma read the letter a second time—each word clear, standing out with photographic exactness. The words followed one another neatly on the typewriten page. There was nothing wrong with them. The words were all right. It was the meaning what she had thought that first time—oh, but it was impossible—

Her lips tightened in sudden fright. It couldn't—oh, it couldn't be!

They stared up at her from the harmless white page. Those terrible, unbelievable words! They arranged themselves in two brief paragraphs and at the end was Mark's father's signature. The letter read:

"Dear Miss Kent: Word has just come to me that today in Paris my son was granted an absolute divorce from you without alimony.

"Evidence in the case—taken from police records here in Marlboro—will be withheld from newspaper announcements. This precaution was taken through consideration for you. You will understand that hereafter you have no legal claim whatever on my son. Since Mark's stay abroad has been extended it will be useless for you to attempt to see him.

Very sincerely.
F. M. TRAVERS."

It couldn't be. No, no! "Absolute divorce," "police records," "no legal claim"! The phrase hurled themselves at her. "Useless to attempt to see him!" Oh, dear God, it couldn't mean what she thought it did!

The girl was on her feet now. Her eyes burned too brightly. Her lips were drawn and their color faded. She crossed the room, leaned against the wall and pressed her palms together.

"Divorce." "Divorce without alimony!" Norma closed her eyes attempting to shut out the memory. She could not shut out the sight of those words, dancing on the typewritten page.

Somehow she got a wrap about her, went down the stairs and found herself in the street. The wind had grown colder since nightfall. It blew her skirts, tossed her hair back. It did not occur to Norma that she was hatless and that her hands were bare. Pulling the coat more tightly about her she ran.

CHRIS SAUNDERS drew the door back. "What in the world—? Here—come on in!"

Norma Travers did not speak. She entered the dimly lighted room, almost stumbling.

"What's happened?" Chris demanded. "You look like a ghost! Sit down in this chair here and get your breath. Didn't you wear a hat? Why, Norma, you shouldn't—"

Suddenly the younger girl had thrown her arms about Chris' shoulders and was sobbing with great, shaking sobs. She clung to Chris as a child might. The sobbing continued—broke off—then went on again.

"Oh, but Norma, darling! Please! You mustn't let yourself go on like this." Chris was patting the other girl's shoulders, trying to be comforting.

Dorothy's head emerged from the bathroom. She looked at the two girls but before she could speak caught Chris' warning signal and retreated.

"Honey, there's nothing in the world to cry about this way. Try to stop it, won't you, so you can tell me what's wrong?" Chris' efforts to still the onslaught were useless. It was several minutes before Norma raised her head and accepted the handkerchief the other girl gave her. It was longer before she could even try to speak. When she did the words would not come.

"Chris—oh, Chris!" was all she

Prisoner Is Shot Attempting Break

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 22. (AP) Robert Roe, young Oklahoman who told officers he was responsible for the killing of a Kansas policeman, was shot and wounded seriously in an attempt to escape while he was being brought to state's penitentiary here, it was learned today.

Under a 20-year sentence for robbery with firearms, Roe leaped yesterday from the window of a motor car driven by Sheriff H. H. Isham of Noble county, about 12 miles north of McAlester, after freeing himself from handcuffs. Sheriff Isham said Art Went, his deputy, opened fire and Rot was recaptured. He was brought to the prison hospital here where authorities said he likely would recover.

Although Roe admitted at Perry that he killed Melvin Howe, Lawrence, Kan., policeman, last April, Oklahoma officials held he should first serve his sentence in this state.

managed to say. There was a fresh burst of weeping.

Suddenly from her purse Norma drew the crumpled sheet of paper that was the letter. "Read it, Chris!" the girl moaned. "Mark's father. He says—he says there's been a divorce!" She buried her face again in the handkerchief.

Chris unfolded the letter. She read it slowly. Her arm slipped about Norma again and held her closely. "Poor darling!" she sai dtenderly. "Oh, you poor darling!"

"Do you think it's true, Chris?"

The other girl shook her head slowly. "Maybe he's only trying to frighten you," she said, striving to make her voice sound helpful. "The old devil! Maybe I wouldn't like to tell him what I think of him though! When did you get this?" she demanded, holding up the letter.

"Just before I came over here. It was sent special delivery. Did you read it, Chris? Did you see what it said? I mean about—the police? That means they know everything."

"Wait a minute! You can't give up so easily. I tell you the whole thing may be bluff!"

"Oh, if I could only believe that! Tell me it isn't true, Chris! Tell me it can't be. Mark wouldn't do a thing like that to me! He—he couldn't!"

"Had any word from him at all since he left?"

"No. But he didn't know where to write to me. Oh, I'm sure he's sent letters to his father's home only I couldn't get them! I'm sure that he's written! Even if he did know about—about Mount Florence how could there be a divorce when I didn't know about it? It—it isn't fair! They' ve told him lies, Chris!"

"Of course they have, lamb. No doubt of it."

"Then if they did that isn't there something I can do?"

"Law's a funny business, Norma. You know that. Especially when people who have money start out to get what they want. I've heard of Paris divorces but I don't know much about them. You say you haven't heard a word from Mark since he's been gone?"

Norma shook her head negatively. "I know he'd have written if he could!" she insisted. She stared at Chris and suddenly a frenzied look came into her eyes. "What am I to do?" she cried hysterically. "I can't live without Mark. Oh, what am I to do?"

She fell back in a fit of tempestuous sobbing. It was useless for Chris to try to comfort her, to reassure her that the whole thing was a trick. Chris said these things with a lack of conviction but she kept at her task. She begged Norma not to believe the letter, to keep up her courage. She made rash promises and predictions.

At least she saw all this was ineffectual. Norma had not even heard what she said.

"I've got to go now!" Norma said. "I've got to—to do something!"

Chris put a hand on her sholder. "You can't go anywhere tonight, Norma. It's too late! You're going to stay here. I'll make a bed on the davenport and you can take mine."

"I've got to go!" Norma insisted. "But you can't! It's nearly midnight and it's storming out. There's nothing the world that you could do until morning."

The younger girl looked vaguely troubled. "Midnight?" she repeated.

Dorothy, clad in a yellow striped flannel robe, came into the room. "Hello, Norma," she said casually. "Going to spend the night with us?"

"I—I'm just going."

"Oh, don't do that! Why it's foolish. We have plenty of room."

"Norma doesn't feel very well," Chris said pointedly, "and I've been telling her it's ridiculous for her to leave. Won't you make some coffee, Dorothy? I believe it would do us all good."

"Of course." Dorothy disappeared behind the screen that concealed the gas stove.

It was this other girl's presence as much as anything that quieted Norma. Somehow she could not bare her troubles before a stranger. When the coffee was served she scarcely tasted hers but consented to remain in the girl's apartment for the night. She even docilely took Chris' bed when the other girl arranged blankets for herself on the davenport.

Just before Chris extinguished the lights she paused beside Norma. "Try to get some sleep now, honey," she coaxed. "Things will be a lot better in the morning."

She heard a sob, bent down to the other girl.

Norma whispered convulsively, "Chris—do you think he—doesn't love me any more?"

"Of course he loves you! Everything's going to be all right tomorrow."

In spite of these assurances none of them got much sleep. Norma, whose eyes had not closed until the sky was graying, was the last to wake. She sat up, startled to find herself in the old apartment, and then remembered.

The fragrant odor of breakfast reached her nostrils. Dorothy was putting dishes on the table. Splashing in the bathroom indicated that Chris was having her shower.

"Good morning!" Dorothy said brightly. "Breakfast's almost ready."

Norma arose. In ten minutes she had washed and dressed, and came to the breakfast table. There was an argument about whether or not she should go to work. Norma insisted she was going.

"You ought not to leave this house!" Chris objected. "You're sick and anyone would know it to look at you."

"Anyhow I'm going," Norma said firmly. "I'm not sick. I couldn't stand it to stay around here all day—I've got to be doing something."

"I don't think you're well enough," the other girl repeated.

"There's no use trying to stop me. I'm going!"

All three set out together half an hour later. Norma bought a morning newspaper but she did not open it. Chris watched her uncertainly. The younger girl was paler than usual.

"Remember," Chris said as they separated on the tenth floor of the office building. "I'll talk to Brad as soon as he comes in. He'll know the best thing to do. Promise me you won't do or say anything about the letter until I see you at lunch."

"I'll promise."

"See you at 12:30, then," Chris flung over her shoulder as she hurried down the corridor.

She was far more serious half an hour later when she faced Bradley Hart in his private office.

"Then its true!" Chris said heavily. "There isn't any way to fight back?"

Hart shrugged. "Nothing much you can do without money," he said carelessly. "I'm sorry for the kid. Heard about it at breakfast. Norma's had a tough break."

"But it's unjust! It's not right!"

There was a rap on the door and a boy appeared. "Miss Saunders," he said. "There's a call for you to come over to Room 1016. They want you right away."

Chris flew down the corridor. The door of the office was open and she rushed in.

Frederick Stuart met her. He said anxiously, "Miss Travers fainted. She's in there and I've called a doctor. Will you see if there's anything you can do?"

Boys---with Pimply Faces

Here's Quick Help For You

Here's the way to get rid of those embarrassing pimples in short order.

Just bathe your face with soap and hot water—just as hot as you can stand. Then apply Moone's Emerald Oil. Massage it gently into the skin. Leave a little of the oil on your skin all night.

In the morning, repeat the treatment, but not quite so strenuously.

In a few days you'll see an amazing difference—not a pimple on your face.

But don't waste any time just thinking about it—get right after those ugly, disfiguring pimples today. Get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil from Bowen's Drug Store, Bowen's Hilton Pharmacy or any other first-class druggist. He will give your money back if Emerald Oil doesn't clear your face.—Adv.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22. (AP)—Cotton was less active today, but there was a fair volume of trading prices following an irregular opening turned easier due to a lower opening of stocks and later to hedge selling against purchases of spots. Although this hedging was absorbed by trade buying on the scale down, the close showed net losses for the day of 17 to 24 points. Liverpool is due tomorrow 12 to 15 penny points down on New Orleans.

Liverpool cables came in 1 penny point worse than due and Sterling was easier. Private cables stated that although the continent bought, there was covering and hedging and Sterling was easier.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—A steady opening was followed by declines in cotton prices today under a little more southern selling combined with liquidation or reselling by recent buyers.

December contracts, after selling up to 7.81 at the start broke to 6.57 and closed at 6.59, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 13 to 21 points.

The opening was steady 1 to 3 points higher on some overnight buying orders which appeared to be inspired by the steady showing of yesterday's late market. There was also some buying for the trade, particularly in the near months, but the demand was quite readily supplied by some southern selling and realizing.

Lamesa Tornadoes Point To Contest With Brownfield

LAMESA, Oct. 22. (Special).—The Lamesa High school Golden Tornadoes, strong contender for Class B honors this season, are looking forward to and practicing for their engagement next Friday with the Brownfield Cubs. The game will decide the championship of the southwestern portion of District 2.

Tomorrow the Tornadoes meet the Andrews team here.

Remembering the overwhelming defeat suffered at the hands of Brownfield last year, the Tornadoes are going in for revenge next week. A masterful aerial attack by Coach Hayhurst's Cubs swept the Tornadoes off their feet last season. A victory for Brownfield next week will mean the second consecutive championship of the sub-district.

Although light, Coach F. T. McCulloms Tornadoes have been able to hold all comers to comparatively low scores this season. They have been deefated only by the Class A clubs of Lubbock and Big Spring, have held Slaton, another Class A school, to a 7-7 tie, have deefated Hobbs, N. M., 45 to 0, and Rotan, 26 to 0.

Stocks Decline Slowly Thursday By Unwillingness Of Buyers To Reach

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—Stocks declined slowly today, more because buyers were unwilling to reach for them than because of unfavorable happenings in the news.

Domestic corporation bonds also sagged, with rails heavy. However, both markets were dull, stock sales totaling only 1,307,180 shares.

The firmer tone of United States government securities plainly indicated that the market did not anticipate a change in the rediscount rate, and there was none. The dollar's position against several foreign currencies improved, while for the first time in several weeks there was a net gain in gold. Financial circles, inclined to sit back and await the Hoover-Laval conferences, were hopeful that the Washington discussions would accelerate whatever improvement has already appeared in world confidence.

Texas Rangers

nel in 1918. Arkansas authorities contended the 1913 channel marked the state boundary.

In dismissing the charges the court held that the hunters had not intentionally violated the Arkansas laws.

Inspection Made

Last December former Attorney General R. L. Bobbitt of Texas, and Attorney General Norwood met in Texarkana and inspected the area.

Norwood informed Bobbitt Dec. 28, that further investigation had shown the land to be in Arkansas.

Meanwhile, Arkansas game wardens had agreed to permit members of the club to hunt and fish in the area unmolested.

The land is regarded as worthless except as a hunting and fishing preserve. A small lake is located on the tract.

The party of Texas officials guarding the area today, composed of two rangers and five game wardens. They planned to patrol it constantly until the dispute was settled.

Attempts Arrest

Several years ago an Arkansas game warden attempted to arrest a Texas district judge and a deputy sheriff in the area. They threatened the warden with arrest for impersonation of an officer.

On another occasion a Bowie county citizen forced an Arkansas officer to leave the area at the point of a gun, claiming the officer was out of his jurisdiction.

Arkansas officials said the land is owned by D. C. Hudson of Foreman, Ark. Hudson, they claim, has been paying taxes on it. Texas officials assert it is owned by Hoch brothers of Chicaro, Penn.,

The rangers and game wardens spent the night in Texarkana. They said they had formally taken possession of the disputed area and had returned here to confer with District Attorney Elmer Lincoln of Bowie county in accordance with instructions. They said they would establish quarters on the land tomorrow.

"We may be here two days and we may be here six months, but we'll be here until this thing is settled," the rangers asserted.

The Texas force included Rangers M. Burton and L. V. Hightower of company B, and Game Warden Hugh Ashford of Bowie county.

Universal Prohibition Is Held Up As Methodism Goal

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 22. (AP) — Universal prohibition was held up today as the goal of Methodism.

The sixth ecumenical conference of the followers of John Wesley adopted a resolution, committing the denomination throughout the world unequivocally to a program of education, legislation, and law enforcement to "protect society from the ravages of the liquor traffic."

Both the United States and Canadian sections of the conference presented separate reports on the subject, which, with the resolution, received unanimous approval by the conference.

Big Spring Man Is To Face Murder Trial In Oklahoma

D. Moncrief, justice of the peace, denied Meeds a bond.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Oct. 22. (AP) — Cash grain demand continued good.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered group three or Gulf ports (export rate), freight paid:

Wheat, No. 1 ordinary hard milling 54 @55c; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein 55@56c; 14 per cent 59@60c; 15 per cent 63@64c; 16 per cent 67@68c.

Corn, No. 2 mixed 37 1-2@38 1-2c; No. 2 white 38 1-2@39 1-2c; No. 2 yellow 46@47c.

Barley, No. 2, 38@40c.

Basis delivered Texas group three points: oats, No. 2 red 23 1-2@24 1-2c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Reversing conditions which had prevailed of late, sellers outnumbered buyers in all grain pits today. The wheat market appeared unable to digest freely the immense load of profit taking sales put forward the last week. Besides downturns of securities, together with Russian wheat exports larger than expected, gave at least a temporary advantage to bears.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5-8 to 7-8 cents lower; corn 3-8 to 5-8 off, oats a shade to 1-4 to 3-8 down, and provisions at 2 to 5 cents.

Premier Laval

American cooperation to secure a solution of the world economic difficulties; secondly, a mutual understanding to smooth all questions which have arisen or may arise between the two countries.

The dinner tonight, attended only by men, was in honor of the official guests to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebrations last week. It gathered into the White House nearly 100 outstanding figures of the nations, including cabinet members, senators, representatives and leaders in finance and industry.

Speaks On Arrival

It was within an hour after he had landed on American shores that the premier spoke these words at a welcoming reception at the New York City hall:

"France is peace loving. Our history, our past both impose prudence. We do not wish to impinge upon the dignity of any other nation. Our only desire is peace. But we set great store by our security. Governments and peoples should understand that security can not be expressed merely in words of hope; it should be organized. If France and the United States can agree to unite in an ever increasing cooperation we may look forward to better things."

and Mrs. Robert F. Bacon, offered to present a plaque of Robert E. Lee to Texas Technological college, the gift to be presented through the Texas division of the organization. The body voted to place a wreath of flowers on the grave of the late E. P. Earhart, Confederate veteran who died here recently. This wreath had been made of red and white flowers during the memorial service.

Woman Introduced

Mrs. Fred Snyder of this city, daughter of Col. R. A. Sneed, a past commander of the United Confederate Veterans, was introduced to the assemblage.

In addition to the discussion of scholarships and loan funds that the organization holds in Texas schools, amounting to approximately $3,000, there were reports of other activities of the organization Thursday, principally the marking of the Jefferson Davis highway and the creation and naming of state parks.

Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo made the principal talk at the evening program, observing historical evening and presided over by Mrs. A. L. Ridings of Sherman, historian for the state organization. He spoke of the glory of Southern heroes and of the principles for which they fought, saying that these principles, states' rights, are receiving favor again. He added that "we have a common country now and think not in terms of the North and South."

Medals for poems, essays and the collection of manuscripts were awarded earlier in the evening by Mrs. Ridings. Prize poems were read by Mrs. C. C. Cameron of Dallas.

Four Indictments Returned Against Oklahoma Official

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 22. (AP) —Four indictments against County Commissioner John W. Williams and accusations looking toward ouster of Williams and Commissioners F. G. Patterson and O. C. Ball, were returned last night by a Tillman county grand jury, it was disclosed today.

Williams posted bond today on the indictments, which charge accepting bribes and driving a motor car while intoxicated. The accusations filed against all three are returnable in district court November 2, but denials were not made public. There were no indictments against Ball and Patterson.

Happy Little French Girl Laughs Way To Welcome

Josee Laval Skips And Waves Through Capital Welcome And Almost Misses Her Meal On Train But She Doesn't Mind—"Oh, I'm So Happy! It's All So Very Wonderful"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. (AP) — Mlle Josee Laval skipped and waved and laughed her way through a capital welcome today—and finally exclaimed "Oh, I'm so happy!"

Of all the big party of her premier father, the merriest and one of the most self-possessed was the 19-year old girl who almost missed her lunch enroute from New York.

Once through the mounted soldiery and the grinding cameras, she paused to confide that she wants to see and do "everything American." She was on her way to exchange brief bows with the President and Mrs. Hoover. Then she hurried back to change from one vivid blue ensemble to another for evening.

Prepares For Dance

She had just about time to prepare for a dinner dance for which her partner was a handsome Belgian nobleman-diplomat.

"All French girls want to come to America. I was so excited because I thought it would be wonderful—and I see that I was not deceived."

Joette — her father calls her—shook her head for emphasis until a wave of black hair poked out from under her pert little Angora hat that was not a Eugenie. Her dark eyes were flashing. She has a brilliant smile. Gesticulating, she made it evident that, though all unofficially, she would be a hands-across-the-sea factor in the French visit. And she was discreet.

French Work More

"French women are always working more," she said when she was asked whether her countrywomen were going in more, recently, for activities beyond the home.

"Am I my father's secretary? No, no; not when there is anything official. Of course, when there is someone there who does not speak French, I translate."

Would mademoiselle go back to her studies, seriously working at law?

"Oh, yes," she smiled, "but I just do that, you know, for a—what do you say—an aim?"

There she went skipping along to fling her arms through those of two other French girls who will be her constant companions—Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French ambassador, and Mlle. Jeanne Guimier, whose father is an important French publisher.

Story Is Revealed

Foreign correspondents revealed the story of Josee's lunch. She bumped into Secretary Stimson when she went to join her father in his private dining room, and found their serious conversation still in progress. So into the regular diner came the three girls—flurried while they waited for a table in the crowded space. They had time for just a bite.

But there was banquet fare tonight in the French embassy—with about 30 young guests to enliven the evening. The Belgian chosen to escort Josette was Count Francois De Buisseret, second secretary of the embassy. He is a handsome, stalwart blond, who has been helping Prince Charles of Belgium, son of the king, to remain incognito while visiting the United States.

Breach Of Contract Is Charged In Case

Suit for a judgment of $2,928.50 for alleged breach of contract was filed in 72nd district court Thursday by A. L. Brannon and J. K. Rogers against B. H. Ashley, H. A. Weir and S. A. Weir, cited as partners in the Penn-Sentinel Oil company of Dallas.

The plaintiffs allege they entered into an agreement with the defendants in 1928, whereby Brannon and Rogers were to be wholesale distributors in West Texas for Penn-Sentinel oil products. The defendants defaulted in the payment of $2,928.50 allegedly due after the plaintiffs had lived up to their agreement, the petition says. A judgment for that amount was obtained in 99th district court against the Penn-Sentinel Oil company on January 23, 1930. After the judgment was granted, the plaintiffs found that the company had no permit to operate in the state of Delaware, which necessitated the filing of a suit against the operators of the co-partnership firm, the petition says.

Party Leaders Plan Revision

Regardless Of What President Hoover Recommends, Leaders Now Plan An Upward Revision Of Federal Taxes

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
(Copyright by Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. (AP) — Conservative and progressive leaders of both political parties in the house are planning an upward revision of federal taxes regardless of what President Hoover recommends to the next congress.

The chief executive is expected to base his proposals for meeting the treasury deficit on an exhaustive study being made of the budget and revenues by the treasury department. Results of this survey probably will be made public next month before his annual message to congress.

Probe Is Started

Months ago, however, it was learned today that both Republican and Democratic members of the house ways and means committee which formulates all revenues raising legislation began a quiet investigation of taxation problems.

With the assistance of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation, Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democratic member of the ways and means committee, accumulated information from the treasury and the federal reserve board, and court decisions bearing on the revenue situation.

Garner's study, made last spring with a view to offering a concrete plan for the stabilization of the revenue flow and for more equal distribution of the taxation burden, was undertaken about the same time Representative Hawley of Oregon, chairman of the last house ways and means committee, announced he was surveying taxation legislation.

While the Texan, recognized as one of the outstanding tax legislators in congress, has not divulged the scope of his study, it is known he directed it toward increasing the inheritance tax.

In addition, Garner has made a complete scrutiny of court decisions on big tax cases with a view to offering amendments to the income tax law to stop evasion of payments by the wealthy.

In the meantime, a separate study of tax laws is being made by a group of Republican members headed by Representative Bacharach of New Jersey, another ways and means committee member.

An entire program for the raising of about $750,000,000 annually in revenue through sales taxes on certain luxuries and by increasing taxes on the higher incomes, inheritances and the levying of a gift tax has been submitted to the progressives of both parties by Representative Laguardia, progressive Republican, New York.
