Seeking Harsh Penalty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-A red-eyed district attorney, shaken by the killings of San Francisco's mayor and supervisor, says he will seek the harshest possible penalty for Dan White, the former supervisor charged with murder - death in the gas chamber.

White, 32, was to be arraigned today on two counts of first-degree murder "with special circumstances" in the slayings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, the city's first avowed homosexual official.

Survivors Returning

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP)-Seven over-60 survivors of the Peoples Temple death ceremony are returning to the United States today after getting clearance from Guyanese police investigating the suicide-murder in which the Rev. Jim Jones and more than 900 of his cultists died.

There was no indication yet when the other 72 survivors of the Jonestown colony would be allowed to leave.

The seven were due at New York's Kennedy Airport by Pan American jetliner at 5 p.m. EST.

Ruling Against AMA

WASHINGTON (AP)-The American Medical Association illegally restrained competition among physicians and has caused substantial injury to the public, a Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today.

The AMA, the nation's largest association of doctors, adopted and enforced a "code of ethics" that banned physician solicitation of business, severely restricted physician advertising and took other steps that constituted unfair methods of competition, Judge Ernest G. Barnes said.

The AMA's practices have the effect of placing "a formidable impediment to competition in the delivery of health care services by physicians in this country," the judge said.

Chinese Demonstrate

TOKYO (AP)-More than 10,000 Chinese demonstrated for freedom in Peking's main square as the wall-poster campaign around Mao Tse-tung and senior Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping continued and the Communist Party's central committee was reported meeting.

MESSAGE FOR SANTA--Petey Perez, 5, had a message for Santa Claus during a visit here. Petey and his mother, Mary Perez, of San Angelo took advantage of their visit to Snyder to make a shopping tour and talk to the white-haired gentleman from the North Pole. Santa is scheduled to be back on the Snyder square Thursday night as local stores downtown remain open after regular business hours for the convenience of Christmas shoppers. (SDN Staff Photo)

Grid Tickets Going On Sale To Public

Tickets to the Class AAA high school football playoff game between Snyder and Lubbock Estacado scheduled here Friday night will go on sale to the general public Thursday.

So far, the adult tickets have been offered only to season ticket holders. Those that have not been claimed by closing time today will be up for grabs tomorrow.

The tickets are being sold at the school administration building. Adult tickets are priced at $4 each. Student tickets also are on sale there, prices at $1.50 each during the advance sale. All student tickets at the gate Friday night will cost $2.50 each.

The kickoff Friday night is set of 7:30 p.m. in Tiger Stadium.

Santa Due Again Thursday Night

Santa Claus is scheduled to return to Snyder tomorrow evening.

Thursday will mark the first of a series of weekly extended retail business days in the city as local merchants arrange schedules for the convenience of Christmas shoppers.

A retail merchants committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce has urged local stores to remain open evenings on Thursday from now to Christmas so that persons who must be on their jobs during regular business hours will have an opportunity to shop.

Santa Claus made his first appearance downtown last Friday when he arrived by plane at Winston Field and later visited with youngsters on the west side of the courthouse square.

Santa is scheduled to be back in the downtown area Thursday night.

On other Thursday evenings between now and Christmas, Santa Claus will visit in Varsity Square, in the Snyder Shopping Center and in the Highland Shopping Center.

Davis Jury Sees Photo Of Pistol

HOUSTON (AP)-A criminal investigator testified today he recovered a pistol, a silencer and a night vision scope from a car belonging to millionaire defendant Cullen Davis.

District attorney's investigator Rodney Hinson said the objects were found in the trunk of Davis's car Aug. 20.

Prosecutors introduced a dramatically blown up photograph of the 22-caliber Ruger with the illegal silencer attached.

It was wrapped in a white towel lying across a water ski in the car trunk.

State attorneys also blacked out the courtroom to permit jurors to see for themselves how the scope permits a person to see through the darkness.

There has been only fleeting reference to the high-priced scope and the lens attachment in the four weeks of Davis' murder conspiracy trial.

Exports Decline, Trade Deficits Up

WASHINGTON (AP)-U.S. exports declined by the largest amount in 10 months as the nation's trade deficit with other countries grew larger in October, the Commerce Department said today.

The news followed by a day a report that inflation is running at about 10 percent, worse than the administration previously admitted, and a statement by President Carter's chief inflation adviser that it may be months before there is any improvement.

The 29-month trade deficit has worried administration economists, who have said it is contributing to inflation in this country and the decline of the dollar in foreign trading.

The $2.1-billion deficit for October was about average for the year. It compared with a $1.7-billion trade gap in September and a $1.6-billion deficit in August.

U.S. businesses sold $13 billion in products to other countries, but that was a decline of 3.1 percent from September. Exports of food, chemicals, gold and other commodities declined sharply.

The drop in exports was the largest since a 9 percent decline last January.

Imports rose 0.1 percent to $15.1 billion in October as Americans continued to buy more imported automobiles and electronic equipment.

It appeared certain that the trade gap for the year will surpass last year's record $26.5-billion deficit, because it has already reached $24.8 billion in the first 10 months of the year.

The administration expects the trade deficit to decline substantially, perhaps in half, next year as other countries are able to buy more U.S. products and oil imports decline.

The October trade report did show a $125.7-million decline in oil imports after a $270.3-million increase in September.

The United States consumed $3.5 billion in foreign petroleum last month, more than the entire trade deficit.

The $2.1-billion deficit was the largest since a $3 billion gap in July but was smaller than all of the deficits in the first five months of the year.

The U.S. trade deficits have contributed to the steep decline in the value of the U.S. dollar in the last two years. Large deficits mean more dollars are flowing out of the country than in - constantly adding to the estimated $500 billion in U.S. currency already held abroad.

The quantity of foreign-held dollars has become so great in recent years that the overseas supply has outstripped demand.

However, Alfred Kahn said Tuesday recent actions by the administration to support the dollar probably will result in a smaller increase in world oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries than previously anticipated.

Land Subsidence Damages Upheld

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court ruled today that persons and corporations who cause land subsidence by negligently withdrawing ground water in the future must pay for the damage.

But it refused to apply the new doctrine to past withdrawals and specifically declined to force Exxon Corp. and its subsidiary, Friendswood Development Corp., to compensate landowners in the Seabrook and Clear Lake aer of Harris County.

Those who withdrew ground water in the past relied on supreme court decisions adopting the English rule that "if a man digs a well on his own field and thereby drains his neighbor's he may do so unless he does it maliciously," the high court said.

"Even though good reasons may exist for lifting the immunity from tort actions in cases of this nature, it would be unjust to do so retroactively," said the court's majority opinion, written by Justice Price Daniel Sr.

The court, however, issued a new rule for cases arising from "future subsidence proximately caused by future withdrawals of ground water."

"It appears that the ownership and rights of all landowners will be better protected against subsidence if each has the duty to produce water from his land in a manner that will not negligently damage or destroy the lands of others," the court declared.

BRENDA TARTER

Acting City Manager At C-City Named

COLORADO CITY-In a called meeting last night the city council named Brenda Tarter as acting city manager until a permanent replacement can be found for James Campbell who is leaving this week.

Mrs. Tarter is currently city clerk and will continue to hold that office. Campbell, city manager since 1975, announced his resignation in October. He has accepted the position of city manager for the City of Corsicana.

The council is currently taking applications for a manager and is expected to make a selection in January.

Football season is going on longer in Snyder this year than most folks can remember and we are enjoying it more than ever because so far our team is playing at home.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said Monday that Estacado fans were upset because their Matadors were going to play two games in a row out of town.

Down here in Snyder, we are just happy to be playing two playoff games in a row. However, we feel that the law of averages has put the two games in Tiger Stadium. Our boys never had such a luxury before, having traveled to Garland, Graham, Abilene (twice) and Brownwood to play bi-district games in the past 25 years.

Tiger stadium has been a busy place since the football playoffs started. In addition to the Tigers' own games, Jayton and Wilson played their zone playoff game here and last Saturday night Colorado City and Slaton hooked up in as good a football game as fans could ask for in their Class AA bi-district game.

And C-City and Slaton actually had more fans in the stands than Snyder and Burkburnett had the night before. Of course Burkburnett fans had a greater distance to travel----some 190 miles---but they still didn't sell as many tickets up there as they expected to. And if some of those unsold tickets on the Burkburnett side had been available earlier, more probably could have been sold in Snyder.

Estacado is much closer. However, they haven't been able to generate the following up there that Monterey has. Hopefully, they will bring a big delegation here Friday night. But if you don't get a ticket in advance on the Snyder side and want to see the game, go to the stadium before game time Friday. There probably will be a few tickets left on the east side.

C-City and Slaton reaped $3,185 each from their game here Saturday night after game expenses were taken care of.

Carols Added To WTC Yule Event

Christmas carols will add to the festivities in the Scurry County Museum Sunday afternoon as the annual Old Fashioned Christmas exhibit opens.

The museum will open at 1 o'clock and the faculty art show in the gallery of the Fine Arts Building will also open at 1. A Christmas program in the planetarium and a film, "The Spirit of Christmas," are scheduled for showings at 2:45, 3:45 and 4:45.

The Christmas music in the museum will be furnished by the WTC Choir under the direction of Jane Womack. Members of the choir are Jan Holley of Pecos, Allen Young of Hamlin, Carol Barnes of Colorado City, David Galvan of Loraine, and Gary Miller, Janet Moseley, Peggy Highfield, Lynn Wimmer, Kathi Burk, Teresa Edmiaston, Vickie Greenfield and Eddie Skains, all of Snyder. The choir is to sing at 2 p.m. and again during the afternoon.

Santa Claus will be in the museum from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, and he will be giving candy to the younger visitors. Refreshments will also be served others.

The public is invited to visit the campus and to enjoy all the activities without admission charge.

Ask Us

Q--Why don't we have public pay phones on the square? Many towns have pay phones either in the shopping malls or in the downtown square.

A--Pat Rice, supervisor the Southwestern Bell's office here, says you have a good point and she will see if some additional pay phones can be arranged. There were two pay phones on the courthouse square prior to the remodeling and re-landscaping a few years ago, but no sites have been designated since then. There was an outside pay phone in the Highland Shopping Center for several years, but it succumbed to vandalism. The closest outside pay phone to the square now is in the 1300 block of 25th St.

Day Care Center Director Resigns

Vivian Dyer, director of the Snyder Child Day Care Center for the past six years has resigned.

In a letter of resignation which was submitted to the board of directors of the center last night, Mrs. Dyer said that she planned to continue her education at Western Texas College and Texas Tech University.

The resignation, which is effective Dec. 22, was accepted with regret by the board.

Bob Clifton, chairman of the Day Care Center's board, said that he was sorry to see Mrs. Dyer leave "because of the great job she has done at the center.

Clifton said that applications for the position of director are now being accepted at the center, which is located at 31st St. and Avenue B.

$3 Million Award In Phone Case Reversed

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The 4th Civil Court of Appeals today reversed a $3 million award to former Bell executive James Ashley and the family of the late T.O. Gravitt, another Bell executive.

Ashley and the Gravitt family had filed a $29 million slander suit against Bell following the suicide of Gravitt and the firing of Ashley. Gravitt headed Bell's Texas operations until he died in October, 1974. A state district court jury awarded damages following a lengthy and sensational trial in September 1977.

The suit claimed the parties had been slandered in an internal Bell investigation in the fall of 1974. The jury said the investigation had been a "proximate cause" of Gravitt's death.

The appeals court reversed the award and sent the case back to the lower court.

Ashley, fired from his $55,000-a-year executive post in San Antonio Oct. 31, 1974, has also lost a $1 million award in another appeals court.

He and his wife filed suit against Bell for invasion of privacy, claiming their telephone was tapped.

The Texas Supreme Court last July agreed with a lower appeals court decision overturning the award.

The trial which resulted in the $3 million award brought out allegations of improprieties and by Bell officials and sexual misconduct by Ashley and Gravitt.

Bell claimed on appeal the district court erred because of alleged jury misconduct and because of alleged "prejudicial conduct" by the plaintiffs' lawyers.

Bell also contended the trial should have been moved from San Antonio.

Ashley had been awarded $1.5 million and the Gravitt family shared the other $1.5 million.

reds want censorship

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization severely damaged its credibility four years ago when it adopted a resolution equating Zionism with racism. This year, UNESCO has an opportunity to further tarnish its reputation while it considers a proposed declaration on the mass media that amounts to nothing less than an assault on the free press.

While adoption of the declaration is not yet a foregone conclusion, it currently enjoys the support of the Communist and Third World blocs that together constitute a majority of UNESCO's 144 member states.

The declaration urges governments to enforce a journalistic code of conduct intended, supposedly, to "strengthen peace and international understanding and combat war propaganda, racialism and apartheid."

In practice, implementation of the declaration would spread a veneer of international legality, even morality, over the suppression of a free press by governments unwilling or unable to tolerate uncensored reporting.

It comes as no surprise that the initial draft of this declaration was drawn up and proposed by the Soviets six years ago. The declaration's theoretical underpinnings rest on a totalitarian concept known as "information sovereignty." Under this principle, governments not only have the inherent right to control the flow of information across their borders but might even be said to own news generated inside their countries. It's a concept that dovetails neatly with Communist theory on the role of the press as an arm of the state and an official spokesman for government.

But what gives the declaration a genuine chance for adoption is its popularity within the Third World. In Africa, Asia and Latin America, the dominant international influence of the unfettered European and American news organizations is widely resented.

Most of the Third World's unelected potentates prefer a tightly leashed domestic press and would welcome the opportunity to curb critical reporting by foreign correspondents. The declaration provides a justification for both.

Conveniently, by reducing the access of Western journalists to Third World states, implementation of the delcaration might also serve to improve the competitive position of a government-controlled Third World news service envisioned by some African and Asian leaders.

Plainly, this declaration is thoroughly incompatible with the role and values of a free press, not to mention the free-flow-of-information principle inscribed in UNESCO's own charter. Should it be adopted, the United States ought to immediately discontinue providing its share of UNESCO's operating budget - currently 25 percent of the total.

beat goes oriental

China's leaders may be interested in a lot of things Western these days, but they still draw the line at one point - rock music.

A report from Peking notes a recent press attack on rock which may or may not be connected with the return to official favor of dancing at Chinese social gatherings.

Without directly commenting on the beat Chinese dancers might be moving to - the attack was ostensibly on scandalous goings-on in Soviet night spots - a youth newspaper denounced this "strange and crazed music" which it saw as not only contrary to all worthwhile values of "hard work (and) noble character" but conducive to "drunkeness, brawling, outrage at decent morals and crimes like theft..."

The words could have been taken right out of the mouths of multitudes of Western parents.

And look where it got them.

I don't understand the anatomy of children's legs.

The same legs that will bend double and apparently have no bone when you put a boot on it, can, in the next minute, kick the back of a car seat with the force of a wrecking ball.

The same legs that turn to liquid after an hour of shopping and will no longer support their bodies will, at bedtime, be capable of scaling walls and running a marathon.

I discovered this phenomenon with my first child. One day when she was about two, she simply collapsed on the floor and refused to stand. When I put her on my lap, she flexed her legs, her knees locked, and she pushed herself into a standing position right under my chin, nearly severing my tongue.

Every mother who has ever tried to thread the legs of a toddler into a grocery cart seat will know what I am talking about.

My children's first words were an entire declarative sentence. "Carry me!"

"I can't see the parade. Carry me!"

"I'm sleepy. Carry me!"

"The grass tickles my feet. Carry me!"

"I'm running away from home. Carry me!"

I lugged those kids around so much that by the time they were ready to enter school, I had a stomach like a snack tray. People at cocktail parties used to set glasses on it.

The legs continued to be a phenomenon. They weren't long enough to climb on a chair, get a drink of water or scale a toilet seat. On the other hand, they could leap over playpens higher than the child's head, get cookies on the top shelf or throw the cat in the dryer and turn the dial to damp dry.

Even today, the legs of children confuse me. I've seen virgin feet of children that never touch the floor. They are either dangling from car seats, strollers or hips. Yet the moment they touch the floor there is 30 pounds of mud on them.

They can run a mile in less than four minutes, yet it'll take them three days to get the garbage from the sink to the can outside. Their only mobility is riding around in a car... yet they can run through 30 pairs of shoes a year.

Is a puzzlement.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—With the biggest head count in American history little more than a year away, the U.S. Census Bureau is wrestling with a $50 billion question—how to insure the most accurate tally possible.

Although the average individual probably couldn't care less whether he's counted or missed by the 1980 census takers, the stakes—for him, his community and his state—are actually enormous.

The federal government alone allocates an estimated $50 billion a year to state and local governments on the basis of population figures. Revenue sharing, employment funds, education money, housing and urban development grants—all these and many more are doled out on the basis of demographic data compiled by the Census Bureau.

Once the 1980 census is completed, seats in the U.S. House of Representatives will be reallocated among the states to reflect population shifts since 1970. State legislatures will be reapportioned, and even local governing bodies will be redistricted. All of which translates into power gained and power lost for political parties, localities, ethnic and interest groups.

Although the decennial census does not actually commence until April 1, 1980, the bulk of the preparation for it has already been completed. The test runs are over. The dress rehearsals have been analyzed. The final questionnaires are being drawn up and will go to the printers this January.

From now on, the Census Bureau will be concentrating on one overriding objective—obtaining an accurate tally of every man, woman and child living in the United States as of April 1980.

"Our major emphasis this time is on eliminating the undercount that has plagued us in the past," said Census Director Manual Plotkin. "Twenty or 30 years ago, nobody cared if we were off by a few percentage points in our count. But with the growth of government largesse over this past decade, it makes a difference now."

In 1950, the census missed an estimated 3.2 percent of the population. In 1960, the undercount was about 2.8 percent and by 1970, it was down to 2.5 percent. But among blacks, the undercount last time was almost 8 percent—which translates into an awful lot of lost money and government help for people who might need it most.

For 1980, the Census Bureau is undertaking a massive effort to improve its coverage of minority populations—blacks, Hispanic-Americans, Indians and others. Through its own community service representatives, advisory panels drawn from the minority groups themselves, use of indigenous enumerators and a variety of other techniques, the Census Bureau hopes to build trust and cooperation that will lead to an accurate count.

It won't be easy. Despite the absolute confidenitality of individual census forms, people who have reason to fear government attention—illegal aliens, criminals, welfare cheats and the like—usually try to avoid the enumerators.

There is some concern among Census Bureau officials that public suspicion may be spreading, in fact, possibly as a result of the general anti-government sentiment that has been so evident at the polls in these past few elections. Both special surveys taken during the 1970s and the test runs for 1980 have been plagued by incomplete returns.

But the Census Bureau will go all-out with its publicity and educaiton campaign for the 1980 count, which will rely heavily on mailed questionnaires to be completed and returned by recipients. Enumerators will be used only in sparsely populated rural areas, and to seek out households which do not return the mailed questionnaires.

The trick for the census takers will be to convince everyone in the country that an honest headcount is important, and that it is, a matter of self-interest, not merely a means of satisfying Big Brother's curiosity.

two foundations

NEW YORK (AP)—With the polarizers and the popularizers of one-issue political themes on the rise, Arthur Okun, the economists, offers an explanation, a reminder and a perspective worth reading.

The American society, he observes, is built on two differing foundations. The capitalistic foundation stresses efficiency. The democratic foundation gives top priority to humanitarian values.

"By grasping at either the market or democratic value system and ignoring the other, one can readily indict our society for grave defects and grievous crimes," he says. It is happening today.

And so, in a lecture co-sponsored by Columbia University and McGraw Hill Inc., the former chief economic adviser to President Lyndon Johnson sought the unifying principles rather than disruptive factors.

It may not have received the immediate publicity afforded lesser commentaries, but time, the strength of analysis and the clarity of presentation almost certainly will correct that oversight.

A summary of the Okun principles:

—The market and government need each other.

"The government needs the marketplace in two distinct ways. As a support for government in a capitalistic system, the private economy is the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"As a counterweight, the decentralization of power inherent in a private enterprise economy supplies the limitation of government that is essential to the survival of democracy.

"On the other side, the marketplace depends critically on the government and on the exercise of its legal powers to make and enforce the rules of economic activity." It is the referee.

—The competitive marketplace is generally the best system for organizing production.

"In the competitive marketplace, economic self-interest becomes an engine of social welfare. When competition works, it creates values for the consumer far greater than the wealth it bestows on successful entrepreneurs and their financial backers."

—Our democracy should mitigate inhumane penalties of the market.

"The unmitigated verdict of the marketplace would condemn millions to deprivation. The cases of serious deprivation cannot be accepted passively or justified complacently in a democratic society."

—Government actions must be subjected to the test of efficiency.

"The record of performance on the additional tasks that the federal government has undertaken in the 1960s and 1970s is candidly disappointing....

"Many conservatives see a confirmation of their convictions about how little the government can do constructively and a demonstration of the need to abandon some social goals.

"In contrast, to liberals and many centrists the record is a keen disappointment but also a challenge for reforms to improve government efficiency."

Conclusion: "I expect capitalism to survive and thrive in the United States. And I expect us to continue to pursue the goals of democratic capitalism."

by jo ann nunley

We have one day remaining in the 11th month of the year sandwiched between autumn and winter. Thanksgiving has been observed in its traditional way preceeded by Armistice Day and before that election day.

The Anglo-Saxons called November the blood month probably because during this month animals were killed and prepared so the people would have meat during the hard winter months.

We might call it this for another reason. The horrible deaths connected with the Jonestown ordeal and most recently, the two California citizens holding public office.

On the lighter side of November, it is the month for preparing yards for wintery days ahead.

To insure the best care for the roses, which have just produced their loveliest "last rose of summer" we should work bone meal into the ground around them before covering for the winter.

Garden ferns are easily divided and transplanted at this season.

Thoroughly soak evergreens, especially newly planted ones, before the ground freezes so their roots will not dry out during the winter.

After the leaves have fallen is a good time to compare the view of the landscaping with the midsummer look. Pleasing views may be opened by removing trees or unattractive objects hidden by unsightly plantings in the spring.

Mulching flower beds is necessary, being careful not to overdo with hollyhocks, iris, coreopsis and shasta daisies.

Pruning of small wood on trees and small bushes can be done now.

When hardy crysanthemums have finished flowering, cut them back to within a few inches of the ground.

Tulip bulbs may be planted for early spring beauty.

As for the houseplants brought in from the cold, we are told to fertilize very little during the dormant winter growing period.

When planting inside, use eggshell halves filled with loam. Place shells in the 12 compartments of the egg carton. When the plants are established they can be transplanted shell and all. The roots will break through as the eggshells decompose.

These days can be filled with readying plants and trees for winter and then be forgotten in December.

Opening lead: ♠ 10

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is a really interesting hand from Popular Bridge monthly. West opens the 10 of spades against South's six notrump. He is allowed to hold the trick and plays a second spade. Now declarer takes his ace of spades and proceeds to run off the rest of the tricks by the simple expedient of cashing four hearts and four diamonds. His last three cards are the ace-king-10 of clubs while dummy is on lead with queen-six of spades and seven of clubs. Poor East has to unguard the queen-jack of clubs to hang on to the king of spades.

What is so interesting about the hand?

Once West holds the first trick he can break up the squeeze by leading a club. South just won't be able to get East into the meat grinder.

Even more interesting, is that South can't be beaten if he grabs the first spade and cashes all the red cards. He is left with the ace-king-10 of clubs and five of spades. East holds king of spades and queen-jack-small of clubs. A club lead forces him to split his honors. South wins, throws East in with the spade king to force him to lead a club. So East and West were just dead from the start as long as South knew where all the cards were.

Music Hall Still Open

NEW YORK (AP)-Because the state of New York has demonstrated how Radio City Music Hall could make money, operating control has been returned to Rockefeller Center Inc., the theater's owner, a state official says.

Richard Kahn, president of the Urban Development Corp., said Sunday that the famous Art Deco Theater is operating at a small profit under the rescue plan that kept it from closing last April. The UDC was the instrument through which the state moved to keep the Music Hall, with its world-famous Rockettes dancers, open after Rockefeller Center announced that it was closing down the theater as a losing proposition.

Of Texas Government...

Proposes Drastic Reorganization

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas government would resemble the federal cabinet system under a drastic reorganization proposed by a newly elected legislator.

Ray Keller, a Duncanville Democrat, filed HB55 in advance of the Jan. 9 opening of the Texas Legislature. An additional 69 House and 20 Senate bills also were pre-filed by Tuesday.

Appointed boards and commissions now control most state agencies. Keller would replace them with 16 major departments headed by cabinet level officers, most appointed by the governor.

Cabinet members would be designated department secretaries, such as the president's inner circle of advisers.

Existing agencies would be modified, consolidated or abolished.

Proposed departments would be: state, judicial agencies, higher education, public education, administration and personnel, institutions and law enforcement, health resources, social services, labor and employment, regulatory agencies, natural resources, local affairs, highways and public transportation, military affairs, welfare and state planning and budget.

Other legislation on file includes companion proposals SB14, HB64 to allow employers to view prospective employee's arrest records.

Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, and Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, proposed making the Department of Public Safety responsible for making records available. A person's criminal history could include charges filed, disposition, sentencing and release records.

Individuals and agencies seeking criminal records would have to sign statements agreeing to use the information only for "evaluation of individuals or persons involving access to sensitive or valuable information or property."

Improper release of arrest information would be a Class A misdemeanos, subject to one year in prison and a $2,000 fine.

"Nothing in this law shall be construed as defining criminal history record information or criminal justice activity as public information," the bill reads.

Rep.-elect Lloyd Criss, D-La-Marque, wants to make more people eligible to serve on juries.

Jury pools would be selected not only from voter registration rolls, but also lists of vehicle owners and property tax payers under Criss' HB47. However, if a citizen is a registered voter, owns a car and pays property taxes, his or her name would be thrown into the pool only once.

Honeymooners Sue United Airlines

NEW YORK (AP)—A Manhattan couple has sued United Airlnes for $2.5 million, claiming their "once-in-a-lifetime" honeymoon to Hawaii was ruined when the airline lost their luggage.

Martin Siegel, 37, of Manhattan, and his wife, Laura, 31 said they spent their two-week honeymmon waiting for their luggage and buying clothes to replace lost items. The luggage was returned without explanation two days after they returned home, the couple said in a suit filed Tuesday in Manhattan Supreme Court.

A Pregnant Question

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: I am a young married woman. During a job interview today I was asked, "Do you plan to start a family in the near future?"

I was flabbergasted. I never dreamed that such an inquiry would be made in this day of equal rights, working women, postponed parenthood, etc.

Abby, my husband and I are a family. And besides, I invested a great deal of time and effort in earning a college degree and, right now, my career is of paramount importance to me.

I am certain that a male applicant would not have been asked a question like that. In your opinion, is that a proper question to ask a female applicant? Or am I getting all shook up about a legitimate request for information?

K IN PONTIAC

DEAR K: When a new employee is hired, the employer makes an investment in time and training. He therefore has a right to know if the applicant plans to have a family or not—and if so, when.

Some women take a leave of absence from their jobs to have children and raise them. Men do not.

DEAR ABBY: No names please. If anyone knew I wrote this I'd die of embarrassment.

What is the difference between a mule, a donkey and a jackass?

I have heard that mules are sterile. So if a mule can't reproduce how come we still have mules? Thank you.

OLD ENOUGH TO KNOW BETTER

DEAR OLD ENOUGH: A mule is the offspring of a jackass and a mare. When a male horse mates with a female donkey, the offspring is known as a "hinny." A hinny is capable of reproducing, but the mule is almost always sterile.

An ass is simply a donkey, and a jackass is specifically a male donkey.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem very important to you but it's important to me. Our dog snores. Although he sleeps in the kitchen, we can hear him all over the house.

Don't suggest we put him outside. It's too cold. He's only a pup but he snores so loud he sounds like an old man. Sometimes his snoring interferes with my sleep. Any suggestions?

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.

DEAR C.R.: Dogs, like people, can have a nasal obstruction which causes them to snore, so do yourself (and your pooch) a favor and take him to the vet.

If that doesn't help, try earplugs (for you). I wouldn't suggest putting a dog out in a Cedar Rapids winter.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Rain, Snow Help Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)-Timely rains and snow have helped winter wheat in some areas of the southern Great Plains where parched soils have held back growth this fall, says the Agriculture Department.

"Texas winter wheat showed excellent response to improved soil moisture," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather review.

In Oklahoma, wheat was rated "good" as of Nov. 26, with about 7 percent of the acreage being used to graze livestock. About 5 percent of the Kansas wheat was being used for livestock, only about half the average, the report said.

Nebraska and Missouri wheat was rated "fair to good" and snow helped protect the crop in much of the northern plains. Winter wheat in the Pacific Northwest was also helped by protective snow cover, the report said.

Workers Comp. Rate May Be Cut

AUSTIN (AP)-State Insurance Board statisticians today recommended a 5.3 percent average reduction in workers compensation rates, the first such cut in nine years.

The board expects to put new rates into effect on Jan. 1, 1979.

If it adopts the proposal made by rate actuary Charles Porter of its staff, the board will have reduced premiums paid by Texas businessmen by about $60 million in 1979.

The last rate cut ordered by the board took effect Dec. 1, 1969. It reduced premiums by two-tenths of one percent.

Porter's recommendation included reductions for all major industry groups.

Included were 4 percent for manufacturing, 7.6 for contracts, 8.8 for oil and 4.3 for all other industries.

Five Cosmetology Students Graduate

Five students who have completed the cosmetology course at Western Texas College will go to Austin Dec. 6 for state board examinations, Judy Border, cosmetology instructor, said.

The students are Kelly Travis and Gloria Dennis of Snyder and Helen Bolin, Betty Fuller and Laura Garcia of Colorado City. Ms. Fuller will operate The Style Shack in Colorado and Ms. Bolin and Ms. Garcia will be employed there.

The new class which will be starting in December is already filled, Ms. Border said, and she is now accepting applications from students who would like to enter the program in March. She is also interested in talking with a student instructor or a part-time instructor. She may be contacted in the cosmetology lab on weekdays.

Advanced cosmetology students offer a full line of beauty services and appointments may be made by calling the lab at 573-8511, extension 267.

Jury Levies 2-Year Term

A six-man, six-woman jury deliberated about 45 minutes before assessing James Edward Neblett a two-year term in the Scurry County Jail on a driving while intoxicated charge.

Neblett had been arrested on the charge Sept. 21 by city police officers.

His trial in 132nd District Court began Monday morning with jury selection. The guilty verdict and sentence were delivered Tuesday afternoon.

Neblett is to return for final sentencing Dec. 15.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two traffic accidents have been reported to police Tuesday afternoon and this morning.

The traffic mishap reported to police yesterday actually occurred Nov. 27 at the Cuttery Beauty Salon. Involved in it, records show, were a parked 1974 Buick owned by Leroy Key and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Geneva White Williamson. The collision resulted in minor damages.

The wreck today occurred at 7:50 a.m. in the 2800 block of 2nd St. It involved a 1974 Oldsmobile driven by Reba Beck and a 1971 Chevrolet driven by Faustino Ramirez. It resulted in moderate damage.

Jury Acquits Defendant

Mike Mahon was found innocent by a jury yesterday in county court to a charge of running a red light.

The case was tried on an appeal from city court. Mahon, reports show, had been issued the traffic citation Nov. 19 by city police officers for allegedly running a red light at the intersection of 37th St. and College.

Serving on the jury were Allen Grimmett, Kelly Robin Boots, Mrs. C.W. Howell, Terry Joseph Allen, Irma Dean Haddox, and V.A. Stone.

Tigers Notch Upset Over Midland High

The Snyder Tigers nailed down perhaps their biggest win of the season here last night, edging the heralded Midland High School Bulldogs, 66-65.

The Tigers, now 6-2 for the season, had to rally from behind by as much as 17 points during the game, and were down 20-7 after the first quarter. Sparked by the efforts of Sid Everton and Greg Hinton, however, the home team trimmed the margin by halftime to 37-27.

The third period was when the Tigers began to show some authority. Brad Richardson, 6-2 sophomore, filed in 13 points to pace the Cats as they shoved ahead of the opponent for the first time in the ball game. An effort of 22 points to Midland's 11 in the third period put Snyder ahead momentarily, 49-48, but the Bulldogs bit back early in the final stanza.

With 1:11 in the game and the score 63-60 in favor of Midland, Hinton dropped in two points on a one-and-one free shot situation. With 33 seconds left Everton added two more, and put Snyder ahead 64-63.

Then, with only 10 seconds remaining in the game, Richardson scored another pair of free shots to sew up the victory.

"I'm extremely happy with the win," commented Coach Jack Stephenson. "They (Midland High) are a super team, and for us to beat them is really something."

Everton finished the game with 15 points, while Hinton had 12 and David Jackson noted 10. Charles Johnson led the Bulldogs with 13 points, followed by Tim Spirling with 12, Daryl Loudd with 11 and Roy Lee Jefferson with 10.

Turnovers Could Be Key Friday

Turnovers - or the lack of them - could well be the deciding factor here Friday night when Snyder and Estacado go to battle for a state quarterfinal crown. Just ask Canyon...or Fort Stockton...or maybe even Burkburnett.

The third-ranked but going nowhere Fort Stockton Panthers will tell you that six fumbles do not a victory make. And Estacado - in the tradition of this year's Nebraska team - is more than capable of taking advantage of such a situation. Just ask Canyon. That's just another team that dropped a half-dozen fumbles in the Matadors' lap.

Even Snyder coaches will tell you that picking up an occasional fumble or interception here and there will do wonders for a team. Ask Burkburnett. If a Tiger field goal late in the game didn't stop Snyder's bi-district opponent last week, its certain that Mike Hicks' interception and touchdown run did.

Nobody's expecting either team to shell out many mistakes here Friday. In fact, scouting reports indicate that the Matadors have played almost flawless ball during their last two games. Snyder's biggest give-away was during the Brownfield game, and committed by a second unit that was perhaps a little over-eager.

What was it Coach Mike Jenkins said? Something about all of the teams in the playoffs getting there because they're good. The mental aspect of the game, he relates, is the key when you've come this far. The physical side is probably as developed as it will get.

And for the most part, its the mental mistakes that cause the turnovers. A bad snap, a muffed exchange behind the line, holding the football on the hip, or out in the open in a crowd.

Oh yes, there are times when a solid hit will shake the ball loose. But just as many times, the solid hit is a game of mentality...or lapse of it, expected, but missed block, for instance.

Turnovers? At best, they mean loss of field position or the tragic end of a long march downfield. At worst they lead to touchdowns and loss of momenteum. Just ask Canyon...or Fort Stockton...or maybe Burkburnett.

Belated Day Of Thanks

by Bill McClellan

COACH NOLAN Richardson and the Westerners didn't exactly celebrate Thanskgiving in the traditional way, but then, it wasn't an ordinary turkey-weekend for them.

Lodged aboard an ailing bus, the Westerners treked to Independence Kansas on Wednesday of last week, the day before the Independence Classic. Plans were for the team to stop and practice in Tulsa about 5:30 p.m. for some light workouts, but those thoughts were forgotten when the chugging vehicle arrived there at 10...four-and-a-half hours late.

It took until 3 a.m. for them to get to Independence - only about an hour and a half away by normal transportation.

The missed workout and lack of rest probably had something to do with Thursday's loss to Northeastern Oklahoma, a team ranked third in the nation, but one Richardson feels the Westerners should have beaten.

"We were just going through the motions on the court," he later commented. "I guess the bus ride and not being able to workout took too much out of us.

It all paid off, Saturday though, when the Westerners defeated Independence on its court - marking the Pirates' first loss at home in 53 games. Along with the win came another Classic trophy, the Westerners second in two weeks.

But getting the victory wasn't easy, according to Richardson.

"You remember when the United States played the Russians (in the 1972 Olympics) and they kept giving them one more second?," he laughed. "Well, it reminded me of that. If there was anyway they could have won, they'd have won it."

He cited an example late in the game when a referee called a technical on the Independence coach, and later withdrew the foul as a case in point. "It was unbelievable," Richarson mused.

Thanksgiving dinner at home had to be put off until Monday. The team got in late Sunday, traveling in cars because the bus - still sitting in Kansas - finally gave out altogether.

"I haven't heard anything from anybody (family). I'm going home this afternoon and have Thanksgiving dinner," he said from his office Monday. "And hope my family still recognizes me."

Thanksgiving dinner in Kansas?

"Oh, we all went down to the motel restaurant and had dinner...about two little pieces of turkey. But on the way back, we stopped at a buffet and loaded up. I'll bet they went broke on us," he laughed. "But we're just glad to be home now. And we got the best Thanksgiving we could have, winning the classic and beating Independence on its home court. We were awful tired after the trip, but it was worth it."

Guess that's what Thanksgiving is all about. Taking the bad with the good. Even in sports.

Spikers Show Strength Into Regional Meet

Coach Joyce Elrod's varsity volleyball team - once again champions of District 3-3A - roll off two straight victories heading into Saturday's Regional Tournament in Lubbock.

The Tigers, who swept through district play unscathed, downed San Angelo Central here over the weekend, 12-10, 8-15 and 15-8, then popped Seminole last night in Seminole, 11-15, 15-8 and 13-9. Both Central, of class 4A, and Seminole, of class 2A, will represent their districts in upcoming regional tournaments.

"We have had some good competition and the girls seem to look stronger with each match," commented Coach Elrod, who leads her girls into the Saturday tournament at 11 a.m. against Borger. "We had an exceptionally good offensive game last night."

Cindy Koonsman and Sherry Neves each accounted for 9 points against the Indians, while Dana Elrod scored 8, Kathy Harrell and Kim Harlin noted 5 and Debbie Myers grabbed 3. The Tigers were playing without the services of starter Danna Myers, who has been out with a sprained ankle. She is expected in good form by Saturday.

The Regional Tournament, held at Lubbock High School gym, will pit Snyder against Borger and Monahans against Burkburnett in the first two matches, with the winners meeting for the finals at 3 p.m. The finals victor will advance to the State Tournament held Dec. 8-9 in Austin.

Spirit Rally Set For 2 p.m.

A pre-game pep rally will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the high school gym, it has been announced. Connie Poarch, cheerleader sponsor, points out that the time has been changed from later in the afternoon.

Dishonest Insurance Agents Bilking Elderly

WASHINGTON (AP)-In Kansas, a 94-year-old man bought 26 accident and health insurance policies in three years.

In Florida, an elderly couple delayed making needed repairs on their refrigerator, television and stove so they could keep up premiums of $2,882 a year on 19 policies.

And in Pennsylvania, an 80-year-old woman spent over $50,000 on 31 policies she bought over a three-year period, taking out a $3,000 bank loan to help her make the payments.

The House Aging Committee, going public after a six-month investigation, reported Tuesday that the nation's senior citizens fall prey by the thousands to unscrupulous insurance agents who make their living selling worthless or overlapping health insurance policies.

While saying that many agents deal fairly with senior citizens, the committee said some unscrupulous salesmen, coached by their supervisors, routinely use lies and deceit to high-pressure apprehensive elderly customers into buying more insurance.

The revelations prompted a call from the National Council of Senior Citizens for closer government scrutiny over the "medigap" policies, those sold to supplement benefits provided under Medicare.

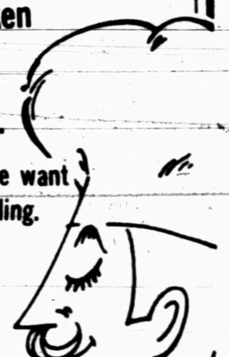

Council director William Huton proposed creation of a national standard to apply to such policies.

The federal government exercises little regulatory control over the insurance industry, an area left to the states to police.

Treating spastic colon

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am having trouble in my stomach and the family doctor had colon X rays taken and said there was nothing wrong. Everytime I have a bowel movement, I get an awful aching pain in the lower part of my stomach — sometimes on the left side.

The doctor says I must have a spastic colon. He prescribed liquid Donatol. I took it for a while but I started to get a dry mouth and throat and the doctor changed me to Librax. I understand Librax is a tranquilizer. All my friends tell me not to take tranquilizers and that it is not good for you.

Dr. Lamb, what do you suggest I take? Is the tranquilizer bad? I'm suffering so, I went to the health food store and they told me to take vitamin B-1. I am trying it but it is not helping either.

Do you think my case is all nerves? I'm 72 years old and I am nervous right now because my husband is sick. He has a bad case of emphysema and has to take oxygen so I worry about him. I would appreciate any suggestions you can make.

DEAR READER — You could have a spastic colon and very often it is associated with a normal colon X ray. If you don't see the spasm or the effect of it on the X ray, there isn't anything to see.

Let me say at once that nervous tension can aggravate a spastic colon, even if it isn't the primary cause. Donatol is sometimes used as it helps to block the nerves to the digestive tract that seem to stimulate the contractions that cause the spasms. It certainly can cause a dry mouth.

Now about Librax. It is a combination medicine. It contains a substance to help block the nerves to the digestive tract also, and it contains Librium which is the tranquilizer part.

If you are nervous, it might not be a bad thing for you to use it, particularly during this period of stress. It works very well in some patients with various digestive disorders who are subject to nervous tension. The excessive use of tranquilizers, and particularly using them in combination with an alcohol habit, is bad. There are good indications for them and your case may fully justify their use.

No, I am afraid that vitamins aren't going to help your condition whether you take vitamin A, B, C, D or E. I would suggest that you take a good look at your diet pattern and make sure you are getting enough bulk in your diet. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable Or Spastic Colon and Constipation, to give you more information about bowel function.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you are able to improve your bowel function, you may stop having these pains in your lower abdomen. Left-sided pain in the lower abdomen is often associated with improper function of the colon. This is frequently where the spasm is located.

There is more to training the bowel than just taking bulk. You need to develop a regular reflex pattern. This requires a good breakfast with plenty of liquids. This is explained in more detail in The Health Letter I'm sending you.
