PRESS POINTS Joe Bennett, Publisher

—J—
Congratulations to the seven Panther football players who were named to the 8-A All District teams. Some were named at two different positions, either on offense or defense. Some were on the second team list. This is an honor for the Gorman players and they have our sincere congratulations for a very good season. Personally, we think all the Panthers are "All Everything" in our book.

—J—
The weatherman has sure sent us some crazy weather the past couple of weeks. One thing for sure - if you do not care for the weather, just wait a minute and it will be changing to suit you. We had reports of up to 7 inches of snow in the area. And with the continued rain and wet weather, it sure is soggy around here. Some of the hunters are complaining that it's almost too wet to get to their hunting grounds. Some didn't even make it to the hunting grounds because of the soggy ground.

—J—
We will be publishing the paper early this next week as we will be taking a holiday on Thursday, December 25th and will have to get the paper in the mail on the afternoon of Tuesday, Dec. 23 in order for folks to get their paper on Thursday before Christmas day. All news articles and advertising must be in by Monday noon so that we can get everything set up by press time at noon Tuesday. If the news don't get in to us in time, we will carry it over to the next paper on January first. Also this edition will be put out early for the New Year holiday with the same schedule as the Christmas edition.

We will appreciate your cooperation so we can get out in time.

—J—
Don't forget the Big Day on Saturday, December 20th when Santa Claus will be in Gorman to hear all the children's wishes for Christmas and to hand out some goodies for the kiddies. Save-On-Foods will be furnishing the candy for Santa to hand out and we appreciate them for this. This makes the second year in a row that Save-On has furnished the candy and the Chamber of Commerce expresses their thanks.

Also this Saturday is Gorman's Third Saturday Tradin' Days and the Business Alliance will be selling hamburgers, chili and beans, and other goodies for your enjoyment. Booths will open at 8 a. m. and will stay all day, so come on out and check the buys in Gorman.

Santa Claus will be visiting with the children at 2 p. m. at the Senior Citizens Center. He will arrive on the Fire Truck.

—J—
It looks at the present time that the Progress will be forced to again raise our subscription rates the first of the year because of the continued increase in the cost of mailing the paper. This increase is totally due to increase in postage for mailing the paper and not for any other reason. We regret having to do this, but as it looks right now, we will be forced to raise the rate in January. We will have more on this as we go along.

—J—
And remember to smile - because God Loves You!

SANTA COMING TO GORMAN SATURDAY

Santa will arrive at 2:00 p.m. on the Fire Truck and will go to the Senior Citizens Center where he will hand out candy to all the kids, donated by SAV-ON FOOD. Santa is anxious to see all of the boys and girls. Please make an effort to come see him, and enjoy the tradin' day sale

Gorman's 3rd Saturday Tradin' Day

Trading Starts at 8:00 a.m.

The Business Alliance will be selling Hamburgers, Homemade Chili and Red Beans
Starting at 11:00 a.m.

have head lice at some time. Head lice are nothing to be embarrassed about, nor should they be ignored. They do not carry any disease. The spread of head lice have nothing to do with cleanliness or lack of it.

Lice spread through direct physical contact, contact with infested items such as combs, brushes, bedding, hats, coats and scarfs. Itching is the most common symptom of lice infestation, although not always present. Head lice move fast, so the best way to confirm an infestation is to look for knits. They are small, grayish-white eggs.

These will be attached with a cement like substance to the base of the hair shaft at skin level and is most visible at the nape of the neck and above the ears. You could mistake them for dandruff, except they cannot be easily brushed away.

Your family physician can help you begin prompt treatment. Every druggist sticks the products with which you can eliminate head lice. Follow directions for the product used, and the procedures necessary to keep these crafty little creatures out of your family's hair.

Wasn't the snow beautiful? No one but God could create anything so beautiful. We received about 6 inches in our community on Thursday night, but by Friday night most of it had melted.

Carol Adkins of Dallas rendered the special music at the Kokomo Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

Other visitors were Doug Adkins of Dallas, Mrs. Estelle Erwin of Gorman and Jerry Gibbs.

The Kokomo Baptist Church presented a program of Christmas carols with J. L. Morrow leading the singing and Wynelle Brown at the piano at the Canterbury Villa nursing home in Gorman on Sunday after-

Following the service, Juanita Fuller played favorite Christmas music including White Christmas, Jingle Bells, Silver Bells and I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day on the piano.

Bro. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson, Lowell and Cynthia, were in Stephenville on Sunday afternoon for the Stephenville Schools Band concert. Lowell is a member of the high school band. Lowell just recently won 1st chair in trumpet in the Regional Band. Our congratulations to Lowell.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Comanche County Telephone Co., Inc. in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas hereby gives notice that it is filing with the Commission the necessary revisions of its tariffs to detariff the installation of simple premise wiring and the maintenance of both simple and complex premise wiring provided to its customers.

Detariffing means that these services are no longer regulated by the Federal Communications Commission or the Public Utility Commission of Texas in compliance with an order adopted by the Federal Communications Commission under Docket No. 79-105 ordering the detariffing of the Installation and Maintenance of Premise Wiring on January 1, 1987.

Customers may secure the services of outside parties to install and maintain premise wiring after January 1, 1987. Such installations must be in accordance with Part 68 of the Federal Communications Commissions Rules and Regulations.

For the convenience of its customers, Comanche County Telephone Company, Inc. will perform the installation and maintenance of both simple and complex wiring on a detariffed basis after January 1, 1987 upon customer request.

The proposed tariff changes will cause insignificant changes in revenues. Persons with questions or who desire more information about the requested rate changes are encouraged to contact the company by telephone at (817) 893-2003 or in person at the business office, Hwy. 16 South, De Leon, Texas during regular business hours.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter or the hearing impaired.

We are thinking of you today
Because it's Christmas
And we wish you joy,
And tomorrow
Because it's the day after Christmas
We shall wish you joy.
Perhaps we can't tell you about it
From day to day
For you may be far away
Or we may be entangled
With the things of life
But it makes no difference.
Our thoughts and our wishes
Will be with you.
Whatever joy or success comes to you,
We shall be glad clear through the year.

Without pretense
We wish you the spirit of Christmas.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

87 FARM INCOME TO BE UP SLIGHTLY SAYS TAES

Agricultural income may increase slightly in 1987 from the depressed level of recent years, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist.

"Higher livestock prices, reduced production expenses and large government payments are expected to support a moderate rise in farm and ranch incomes," points out Dr. Carl Anderson. "Export levels during the new year will be a key factor in determining the final outcome."

Farm exports should increase considerably due to the sharp drop in the dollar, much lower crop prices and the Export Enhancement Program, says Anderson. Adding to prospects for more trade are improved global economic conditions, slow rates of inflation and increased economic activity in developing countries. Softening the demand, however, are debt problems in several countries, insulation of many importers from changes in world prices, and increased productive capacity in key markets.

"Abundant crop supplies continue to dampen the likelihood for any sustained rally in prices," notes Anderson. "Feed grain and soybean harvests will probably increase world crop supplies even though wheat, rice and cotton stocks may decline slightly. In the U.S., the crop harvest is expected to be almost a tenth smaller than the year before."

"Livestock producers are expected to fare a little better in 1987," says the economist. "The outlook is for sharply lower beef output and slightly more pork. Total meat production in the U.S., however, may remain large as poultry output expands."

Livestock producers should experience increased returns in the first half of 1987 as supplies tighten, demand strengthens and feed costs decline. The U.S. cattle inventory and breeding hog numbers in 1986 are at the lowest level in more than 20 years, Anderson points out.

For 1987, cattle and hog prices should average above '86 levels despite continued increases in poultry product output. Crop prices likely will remain at reduced levels during the first half of 1987, with prices in the second half depending on crop production and trade activity. However, prospects for abundant agricultural supplies suggest continued pressure on farm incomes, according to the economist.

"Managing the farm and ranch business to reduce financial exposure while realizing maximum income remains central to maintaining economically viable business," says Anderson. "Success depends largely on careful management of capital by spending money where returns are highest and using marketing skills to benefit from price rallies. Stretching operating expenses, evaluating farm program options for maximum benefits, and taking a close look at highest returns from alternative enterprises are critical to protecting the financial position of agricultural operations." County Extension agents can provide further information on managing for profitability.

Ann Allison Named Home Economist of the Year

Home Economics has been good to Ann Allison and the Tarleton State University senior is returning the favor by promoting the benefits of a curriculum that has come under scrutiny lately.

A native of Carbon, Ann was named recently as one of two state Home Economists of the Year by the Texas Home Economics Student Section (THESS). She was selected for the honor during the state convention held in October on the campus of Texas Tech. Student chapters throughout the state were allowed to nominate one individual for the honor and selection was made by a committee based on academic achievement, leadership activities, professional awareness and an interview.

"Anytime this type of award is presented, there are always a number of very qualified people who don't get chosen," said Ann. "I felt that I had done the best that I could (during the interview) but I make it a point to never feel I have anything clinched." THESS by-laws provide for the presentation of the award to more than one person if necessary.

Ann, who was the 1985-86 president of THESS, served as chairman of the convention so she had plenty to occupy her time other than the Home Economists of the Year interviews. "The vice-chairman of THESS also received the award," she explained. "And although we tried to act concerned about other things, we both felt a lot better after the selection was announced at the Friday night banquet."

Being selected as a recipient of the THESS highest honor shouldn't come as too much of a surprise to Ann. She has been active in Home Economics since high school. "Cooking and sewing, the very concepts of Home Economics, have been my hobbies since I was a little girl," said Ann. "But I didn't really think of it as a career until I was a junior in high school."

At that time Ann was selected as a Texas delegate to the national Future Homemakers of America convention in Atlanta, Georgia. "It was then that I really began to realize what Home Economics could offer. Before that I was ignorant of all the things Home Economics involves and didn't know how diversified it was."

Now she is proof of the type of benefits Home Economics can offer a student and she has become the field's most avid defender. "Home Economics has an influence on everyone's life, whether they realize it or not," she said.

Still fighting the "homemaker" image, Home Economics now covers a variety of subjects dealing with all aspects of everyday life. The importance of courses in Child Development, Nutrition, and Marriage are immediately apparent, but even classes involving interior design, fabrics, and patterns contribute to the esthetic beauty in homes and businesses.

"One of the major items of discussion at the state convention was developing some sort of promotion that would help us change the 'image' of Home Economics," said Ann. "It was agreed that a name change wouldn't do that much to help. What we need is a nation-wide publicity campaign."

It is also hoped that local efforts, such as the Home Economics Awareness project at Tarleton this fall, will help make students aware of courses available through Home Economics which will make beneficial electives.

At Carbon High School, Ann was editor of the yearbook and newspaper, class president, head cheerleader and a captain of the basketball team. She also had time for FHA, serving as chapter president, delegate to the state and national conventions, and was an FHA area scholar.

Her interests in Home Economics continued at South Plains College and Sam Houston state University. She was president of the local American Home Economics Association and secretary of the Vocational Home Economics Teachers Association.

Arriving on the Tarleton campus in the summer of 1985, Ann quickly became involved in the Home Economics Student Section on the state and national level. She served as president of Rhi Iota Delta, the Home Economics Club at TSU, and was voted Outstanding RID member.

Besides her term as president of THESS, Ann was on the board of directors of the Texas Home Economics Association, on the Planning Committee of the Northeast District of THEA, and was a voting delegate to the National American Home Economics Association meeting.

Ann will graduate from Tarleton in May and she plans to teach Home Economics, first in secondary schools, but later on the collegiate level. "Home Economics in high school is a good experience for anyone," said Ann, "but on the university level it has so much more to offer students because of the diverse career opportunities."

There seems little question that Home Economics will continue to be a strong factor in Ann's life. She will be married in May to, who else, an assistant extension agent in Midland.

If a national campaign is needed to update the image of Home Economics, it will likely be started on the local level with students and teachers developing trends and setting examples. Home Economist Ann Allison will be sure to be leading the "new wave."

Sheriff can't serve warrants

No room in Eastland County jail for over 25 prisoners

By MAYBELLE TROUT
Correspondent

EASTLAND — Because of overcrowding at the Eastland County Jail, Sheriff Don Underwood said Monday he has between 300 and 325 outstanding warrants that he cannot serve.

Between 50 and 75 of those warrants are for felonies, he told Eastland County Commissioners. The remainder are misdemeanors.

The jail couldn't accommodate the prisoners if he made the arrests, Underwood said.

Stopgap measures to remedy the overcrowded jail were tossed around Monday by commissioners and an assortment of law officers. However, no decision was reached.

Officers did decide to meet again at 10 a.m. Wednesday to draft guidelines for curbing the jail's population. Commissioners will be briefed on the outcome of the meeting on Dec. 22.

Last week, the Texas Commission on Jail Standards ordered Eastland County to keep no more than 25 inmates in the jail and to segregate prisoners according to commission guidelines.

Records show the jail has averaged 27.5 prisoners per night for the past year.

Written notice of the commission's decision reached Eastland Monday. Now, the county must comply within 15 days.

Should overcrowding occur, Eastland County is ordered to transport prisoners at its expense to another county's jail and pay that county to house the prisoners.

Underwood explained the county's predicament and the stand taken by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards this way: "If we don't abide by their rules, they will have the authority to close our jail. And they aren't concerned about how much it would take to build a new jail."

The sheriff said prisoners must be segregated into nine classifications according to sex, offenses, suicidal tendencies and other considerations. Because of the way prisoners must be segregated, the maximum number of prisoners might be fewer than 25, the sheriff said.

On March 25, county officials must return to Austin and report on plans for expansion to the jail commission.

In the meantime, Underwood said, everyone from the district judge to the justices of the peace must be made aware of the overcrowding problem.

He said in some instances, a justice of the peace should inquire about the jail population before sentencing a person to spend time there.

Ideas for expanding the jail included renovating the old jail, building on to the west side of the present jail and constructing a bigger jail south of town.

Underwood said it would be no problem to accept other counties' prisoners and charge to house them if Eastland County had a large jail.

Financing a new jail was not discussed.

Uses for the present jail, which opened in 1980 and is scheduled to be paid for in 1990, included turning it into a facility to house juveniles or possibly to house federal prisoners.

For the present, compliance is the name of the game. In the near future, everyone at Monday's meeting seemed to agree, plans must be made for additional space.

Edna Smith Sunday School Met Dec. 9

The Edna Smith Sunday School Class of First Baptist Church met in the home of Louise Brown for our annual Christmas party and business meeting Dec. 9, 1986.

Christmas decorations of candles and poinsettias were prominent throughout the house. A bountiful supper was served from a beautifully decorated table. Sausage wheels, pickles, olives and a cheese ball and sorts of salads with hot cider was the menu.

Louise Brown presided over the business meeting, beginning with prayer by Gearldene Wright. All reports were given. The January meeting will be to eat out, honoring Marge Hudson as our guest.

Louise gave a Christmas devotion-al by reading several meditations from a book by Helen Steiner Rice. Each one told of some Christmas that stood out in our memory.

Gladys Chambliss dismissed the meeting with prayer.

We exchanged gifts from the Christmas tree, then had Black Forrest cake and coffee.

Five members were present: Hazel Smith, Gearldene Wright, Annie Curb, Gladys Chambliss, and Louise Brown, and a guest, Betty Kinser, was present.

CATCHING COLD, HAND TO HAND COMBAT

Recent research indicates it is more likely you will catch someone's cold if he shakes your hand than if he sneezes near you.

Coughing and sneezing do transmit cold viruses, but apparently not as effectively as hand to hand contact. When, after touching someone with a cold, you touch your own eyes or nose, the virus lands right where it can enter your system and cause misery. Handling objects recently in contact with a cold sufferer can also set you up for a hand delivered cold.

Your best protection is still to maintain a healthy lifestyle, remembering to wash your hands often.

If you do catch a cold, rest as much as possible and drink lots of fluids. To protect others, dispose of used tissues immediately, try not to touch people and, you guessed it, wash your hands alot.

tional nurses. It is currently involved in a campaign to develop a Center for Nursing Scholarship that will provide nursing information services for the public and for health professionals around the world.

Cathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.L. Clark of Comfort and granddaughter of Mrs. LaVelle Rodgers of Gorman.

Martha Ann Knowles was laid to rest in a Lubbock cemetery on Monday, the 13th. She was 110 years old and spent most of her younger life near Desdemona.

Martha Ann had been in a coma for the past few weeks, but passed away on to her reward.

This report was sent in by a cousin of hers, the Redwines, who live in Ranger, hoping someone would see it who cared.
