4,000 Dry Soldiers Open Great Offensive

29 MILLIONS OF DOLLARS BEHIND GREAT DRY ARMY

ANDREWS OPENS LARGEST CAMPAIGN YET TODAY WITH MANY AIDES

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Prohibition's largest army of 4,000 men was mobilized today—the first day of the government's new year—for the most extensive campaign planned against liquor in the seven years of national prohibition.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, West Virginia, in charge of prohibition enforcement, planned the campaign on the Police and Assistant Secretary of the Interior and the largest appropriation ever granted for dry enforcement in one year—about $29,000,000.

Land And Sea Campaign
The campaign will be waged on land and sea, within two years General Andrews promises not only more effective prohibition but reduced costs and more popularity for the law. Increased popularity will result, he holds, when it is proved that "we can protect the legitimate business from illegitimate competition."

The dry war will be carried on principally against smuggling and diversion of industrial alcohol and the "flood of high-powered beer." The territory East of the Mississippi and North of the Potomac Rivers will be the main battle ground, although the regular prohibition staff will be maintained throughout the country. The additional forces of 300 men necessary to carry out this program probably will not go into action until next week, when the appropriation carried in the deficiency bill now before the Senate, is expected to become available. These forces have been mobilized, however, and are awaiting the word.

Mobile Squads Feature
The new fighting units organized by General Andrews will include mobile squads of 35 men each to combat industrial alcohol and beer leaks. John A. Foster will direct the former squad, which has been ordered by Andrews to plug the leak of 15,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol getting into bootleg trade annually. Thomas E. Stone will supervise the beer squad with the task of getting "the beer" off the market by Christmas.

Other additions to the prohibition army will include 235 new men for border patrol, 318 new inspectors, 28 new smuggling investigators, 51 "under cover" men, and 62 men for an assessment squad to collect liquor taxes. A large unit of the new border patrol will be stationed at Detroit, where 37 men will be added to the staff of three. General Andrews considers this point the principal "leak" from Canada. Texas will get ten of the new inspectors.

Wife Sues Husband After Auto Smashup

KENOSHA, Wis., July 1. (AP)—Charging her husband with negligence and reckless driving, Mrs. Edward Wick has filed suit for $7,500 damages for injuries suffered by herself and her child in an automobile mishap in February, 1925, while Wick was at the wheel.

Carl Kublick, occupant of Wick's car when the accident occurred, also is suing the husband, seeking $2,500. Wick is suing Philip Tice, a truck driver for $2,500, charging him with blame for the mishap.

If everybody wins, Wick only loses $7,500—and that will still be in the family.

Overstreet Elected Director of Ass'n.

R. E. Overstreet, field representative of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association in district 18, of which Lubbock county is a part, has been elected as a member of the State board of directors of the organization, according to information received here.

Heavy Protection Is Given King of Spain

LONDON, July 1. (AP)—Extraordinary police protection has been thrown about King Alfonso of Spain for the duration of his fortnight's visit to England, in consequence of the discovery of a plot in France to assassinate him.

In addition to the Spanish police agents who always travel with the monarch, special Scotland Yard officers officers have been assigned to guard him. The precautions taken are unusual, compared with the protection generally accorded royal visitors. One of the greatest difficulties encountered in protecting Alfonso in his own disregard for danger. He is well aware of the activities of the terrorists in Spain, but takes all sorts of chances in public, particularly while abroad.

PLANS LAID FOR BANNER FAIR IN CALLED MEETING

ALEX McDONALD IS MADE DIRECTOR WHEN BEAN CANNOT SERVE

W. A. Myrick, Jr. was elected President of the Panhandle South Plains Fair Association for 1926 at a meeting of the Board of directors of the organization in the chamber of commerce rooms at the municipal building here Thursday. Dr. I. E. Barr and H. W. Stanton were elected vice Presidents, and E. L. Robertson Treasurer.

A. E. Davis, last year Manager of the Fair, was retained to manage the exposition this year.

The meeting opened in charge of Geo. E. Benson, retiring President, who was given an unanimous vote of thanks by officials of the organization for his untiring efforts on behalf of the Fair last year when one of the most successful expositions in its history was carried on through the leadership of Mr. Benson.

The resignation of Geo. R. Bean, recently elected director of the association, was accepted, this action being taken by Judge Bean due to the press of other matters that he said would make it impossible for him to give the required attention to the work. Alex McDonald was elected to fill the place vacated by Judge Bean.

The Board laid preliminary plans for one of the largest expositions ever attempted here, and announced that several departments will be expanded this year, especially in the livestock division. In this particular division, will be offered.

It was decided that the plan used for the past year or two in offering automobiles will again be used this year, and committees were named to look after this.

Others matters discussed were more or less of a routine nature, including retaining the committee that has been in charge of disposition of the City Auditorium recently donated to the fair by the chamber of commerce. This committee will see to proper storage of the material being taken from the auditorium pursuant to additions of more buildings on the fair grounds if such is considered necessary.

Officials are looking forward to one of the biggest and most colorful fairs in the history of the association, it was said. Contracts for the carnival and fireworks display already have been entered into, and other attractions will be booked in the near future.

LUNCHEON—Jellied salmon, cucumber sauce, whole wheat bread, rice soufflé, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled mutton cutlets, creamed potatoes, kale in lemon butter, stuffed escarole salad, snow pudding, oatmeal bread, milk, coffee.

A vegetable soup should be provided for children under six years of age to take the place of the fish in the luncheon menu. The jellied salmon is well worth keeping in mind as it makes a good picnic or "company" dish during the hot months. It looks expensive but does not make too big a hole in one's pocketbook.

Jellied Salmon

One and one-half cups flaked salmon, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 egg, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ tablespoon mustard, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup milk.

If canned salmon is used remove fish from can and pour boiling water through fish. Remove any skin and bones and separate into flakes. Mix and sift flour, mustard, sugar, salt and paprika and add to melted butter. Add egg slightly beaten with milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture is perfectly smooth and thickened. In the meantime soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Remove sauce from heat and stir in gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved and fold in fish flakes. Pour into individual molds and let stand several hours to chill and become firm. Serve on lettuce.

To make the cucumber sauce—pure and unripe cucumbers. Drain through cheesecloth. Beat by cup with cream until stiff with ½ teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Slowly beat in 1 tablespoon vinegar. Chill about three-quarters of an hour. When ready to serve fold in drained cucumber. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

White Kid Slippers For Summer Costumes

White kid is the edict of the smart woman for her mid-summer footwear. In the early season, there are many shades from which to choose, but despite the efforts of the shoe designers to offer something new—first in pastel daintiness, then in delicate tinted linen and several varieties of beach cloth, the plain slipper of white kid is invariably the choice of the chic woman both here and abroad.

All that is smart about the Rivera is universally reflected in our own Palm Beach season, later becoming the established mode for summer. Since both of these smart colonies have sponsored the all-white ensemble we may just as well heed the trend.

The woman of decided chic and smartness shuns anything that shows the slightest semblance of showiness or questionable taste. A simple slipper of white kid is not only flattering to the foot because it is so sleek and trim, but it is the only light shoe material that can be kept spotless and fresh so easily.

The slipper of white kid is usually designed along the lines of classic simplicity. The white kid opera pump, one-strap slipper and spike heeled oxford rank in equal importance. The one-strap slipper shown in the photograph is worn with a two-piece frock which combines printed silk and cut-out linen.

Qualifications For Voting In Primaries And General Election Given Out As Time Nears First Democratic Primary July 24

With the first primary now only about three weeks off, and conditions pointing to one of the hottest political encounters in West Texas, especially in Lubbock and nearby counties, the question of who can vote and how and when has been repeated time after time. In order that voters may better inform themselves as to how to proceed, the Journal has investigated the matter, and through the assistance of Leslie F. Moore, District Clerk, the following qualifications were found necessary:

The following classes of persons shall not be allowed to vote in this state:

1. Persons under 21 years of age.
2. Idiots and lunatics.
3. All paupers supported by the county.
4. All persons convicted of any felony, except those restored to citizenship and right of suffrage, or pardoned.
5. All soldiers, marines and seamen employed in the service of the army or navy of the United States. (Acts 1st, C. S. 1905, P. 520.)

Qualifications For Voting

(Art. 2555) (1925.)

Every person subject to none of the foregoing qualifications who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this State one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he or she offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector. The electors living in an unorganized county may vote at an election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes; provided that any voter who is subject to pay a poll tax under the laws of this state, shall have paid said tax before offering to vote at an election in this state, and holds a receipt showing that said poll tax was paid before the first day of February next preceding such election; and, if said voter is exempt from paying a poll tax and resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, he or she must secure a certificate showing his or her exemptions, as required by his title.

If such voters shall have lost or misplaced said tax receipt, he or she shall be entitled to vote upon making and leaving with the judge of the Election, an affidavit that such tax was paid by him or her, or by his wife, or by her husband before said first day of February next preceding such election, at which he or she offers to vote and that said receipt has been lost or misplaced. In any election held only in a subdivision of a county for the purpose of determining any local question or proposition affecting only such subdivision of the county, then in addition to the foregoing qualifications, the voter must have resided in said county for six months next preceding such election. The provisions of this article as to casting ballots shall apply to all elections, including general, special and primary election. (Acts 1921 P. 217; Acts 1923 P. 218.)

If the right of such person to vote is challenged on the grounds of non-age, if such person shall make affidavit that he or she has attained the age of 21 years on the day of such election, such person shall be entitled to vote at such election, upon filing such affidavit with the judge of election. NEW TALENT IS BROUGHT IN BY MAJOR LEAGUES

ROOKIES APPEAR IN THE LINEUPS AND TRADES ARE PLENTIFUL

(By the Associated Press)

New faces are appearing daily with the major league baseball clubs in their efforts to overtake or keep down their foes.

Joe Bush now is a Pirate. Pittsburgh hopes for better pitching from him than Washington got. Jimmy Johnston has made his first appearance in a Giant uniform as a pinch hitter.

Nels Goes to Buffalo
Nels has been sent to Buffalo by the Braves and the Giants have sent Cote, this year's Holy Cross captain, to Toledo.

Taylor, Washington's outfielder, from Buffalo, hit a home run and two singles in his first appearance with the Senators yesterday. Goose Goslin made a homer and three singles. So the Red Sox were beaten, 5 to 5.

Enabling the Macks to beat the New York Yankees, 5 to 4, Jim Poole got a homer in the sixth and in the ninth doubled with bases filled.

Spurgeon and Joe Sewell led a slugging attack that gave Cleveland an 11 to 3 verdict over Chicago, each registering a double and two singles.

Ed Wells Wins
Ed Wells, serving for Detroit, distributed eight St. Louis hits carefully and won, 4 to 1.

Fifteen innings were required for the New York Giants to down the Boston Braves, 7 to 3. Fred Lindstrom made a homer which tied the count in the thirteenth. He started the final inning rally with a single.

In Brooklyn when the Dodgers defeated Philadelphia, 11 to 9, Brooklyn got 17 safeties and the Phils sixteen.

Four of them were home runs, one by Herman of Brooklyn and two by Harper and one by Wrightstone—of Philadelphia. Herman's homer followed a long protest over what the Phils claimed was his third strike. And the homer was due to the ball bouncing into the bleachers.

Reds-Gubs Split
Cincinnati defeated a doubleheader with Chicago, permitting the Cardinals, who defeated the Pirates, to gain half a game. The Reds captured the first contest behind Luce, 3 to 2, but bowed to superior hitting in the second, 5 to 4.

The Pirates' loss by a score of six to two was their sixth straight, and the second set back for Lee Meadows. The bespectacled moundman walked two in the ninth just before Lester Bell unleashed a homer.

Drive For Baseball Funds Today To Decide Fate Of Hubbers; Money Now Needed To Keep Crack Team Intact

Baseball fans of Lubbock today are being given their chance to say in dollars and cents (dollars preferred) whether or not they will permit disbandment of the amateur club here. Committees of business men went out from the chamber of commerce this morning in an effort to raise the much needed finance, and though the number that reported for duty was probably not in keeping with the magnitude of the occasion, those who are on the committee believe that success will crown their efforts.

It will require approximately $3,800 to finance the club during the three months season, and an effort is being made to gain this amount by monthly pledges. Seven men only are on the payroll of the club, the other five depending upon other means for remuneration.

Contract On Park

At the opening of the season, five men, all of whom are active participants with the club, entered into a lease contract with M. E. Merrill, owner of the park that bears his name, and in the meantime they have expended several hundred dollars in improving the park and arranging to maintain it in the best condition in which it has been since it was opened.

The five men who entered into this agreement are now playing with the club without salary, depending entirely on the gate receipts to reimburse them for their improvement expenditures, and to remunerate them for their services with the club.

In addition to this these men agreed to care for out of the gate receipts, the guarantee to the visiting club, upkeep of the park baseballs and other miscellaneous expenses.

They Enter Agreement

Now, these men have gone one step further, and have agreed to turn over to the general fund all receipts at the gate in excess of a stated amount, and that if the receipts do not reach this amount, they will take the loss, not calling upon the general fund to make up the deficit to them.

When it is considered that these men were willing to take the chance on leasing the park under conditions upon which they secured it, and now they are willing to go even farther, it could hardly be disputed that they are behind the movement for the good of baseball, and not for personal gain, as some have seemed to indicate they think they are.

In an effort to clear up any possible misunderstanding that may have arisen over the proceedings to date, especially as relates to the lease contract, the five men Thursday filed with officials of the association, who read at the meeting, a statement of the total collections and disbursements since they took over management of the park.

Small Sum Collected

This statement shows that $1,997.97 has been collected, including the cash received on fence signs, concessions, and net receipts of games played at home. Disbursements during the time total $2,229.50, or a little more than $231 than has been received. Disbursements include guarantees to visiting clubs on games played here, repair and maintenance of the park and grounds, cost of the fence signs, and other miscellaneous expenses that accompany games on the home grounds.

Whether or not Lubbock wishes to hold intact the winning team that has been assembled will be reflected by the reception that the committee at work receive.

The NUT CRACKER

by Joe Williams

Georges Carpenter took another ear-trimming the other night, which makes him three behind the Phils in the matter of aggregate losses.

The French Flop will be remembered by the American yokelry for his versatility and finesse in finishing second to some of the world's best and worst fighters in this country.

More than 50,000 specimens of the boxing bacilli, paid official dough to see Carp bounce up and down on the canvas while dodging leather salamis from Tommy Loughran of the fifth-rate Philadelphia Loughrans.

This is more people to the square inch than you could persuade to attend a free barbecue, a scientific discussion of the home life of the large-mouth bass, or an outdoor demonstration of mustache waxing.

"Willie, run down to the drug store and fetch me a T-bone steak, a coal skuttle, three yards of pink crepe de chine and a pair of hip boots!"

Only victory the Orchid Man ever won in America was when he bowled Battling Levinsky over by leading lightning fast from to society boxes and following with terrific right lower to press row.

On strength of this beautiful tableau Carp was matched with Dempsey Battle of the Sundry. Main idea of this match, as we look back on it with watering eyes, was to teach fight fans difference between Marseilles, the march, and mayonnaise, the dressing.

Still you gotta hand the Frenchman credit. He's only broke known to the racket that has made a losing business a winning business.

It's no trick at all to sell Standard oil stock in open market but it takes rare salesmanship to peddle worthless paper in a Doc Cook polar expedition.

Carp came over here with a dime's worth of fighting ability and a million dollars' worth of color, showmanship, acting skill and press-agentry.

This was just the place to come with it, too, for no country places higher or more idiotic premium on side show hokum than our own wide-eyed, trusting Nordics.

As a butt morsel, Carpenter was rather peculiar proposition. . . . It being necessary on occasions to bust a bank in order to pay him for taking a smearing.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

If the third out of an inning is caused by a player letting improperly, what batter starts the next inning?

I will explain this situation by offering a concrete example of such a happening.

We will assume that Jones is the third baseman in the lineup and Smith is the fourth. Through a mistake Smith bats improperly and it is discovered that Jones should have been the proper batsman. An appeal is made to the umpire.

This calls for the proper batsman, Jones to be called out. Smith, who batted improperly and follows Jones in the regular batting order, should start the next inning.

In other words, when a man bats improperly and the mistake is discovered, the proper batsman being called out to end the inning, the first batter in the next inning should always be the man who follows the proper batsman.

12 MATCHES WILL MAKE UP ANNUAL PISTOL SHOOT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 1. (AP)—Twelve matches will comprise the annual pistol shoot of the Texas State Rifle Association, which is to take place here, July 4 and 5.

All the matches will be shot on the municipal range at Brackenridge park, and this pistol competition will conclude the year's program for the state organization. Rifle matches were held at Austin, June 14-17.

Heading the July list is the state pistol championship team match. Prizes to the winning group will be possession of the San Antonio Light trophy for one year and distinctive medals. This event is open to four man teams from any club, school, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, Citizens' Military Training Camp company or regiment, affiliated with the association. The course will be: 50 yards, 10 shots, slow fire; 25 yards, 10 shots in two strings of 5 each, in 20 seconds a string; 25 yards, 10 shots in two strings of 5 each, in 10 seconds a string.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded respectively to the men who place first, second and third in the shooting for the Capurro trophy, emblematic of the state pistol championship. A year's possession of the trophy also is to be allowed the winner, who will be the man with the best total score for four matches—the individual slow fire, individual time fire, individual rapid fire and individual competition. In each of these events there will be awarded trophies and medals.

One match has been set aside for the "tyros," a tyro being an individual who never before attended a national or state match, corps area or divisional shoot.

Another event of interest will be the "mad minute" match, in which contestants will be permitted to fire for 60 seconds with any pistol or revolver and any type of ammunition. The person making the highest aggregate score will be declared the winner.

SECRETS OF STARS INSIDE BASEBALL

By GROVER ALEXANDER

Proper temperament is an ideal asset for every pitcher.

No player on the ball field is subjected to as many unpleasant situations as the pitcher.

If he is prone to worry over the breaks of the game he will have plenty to fuss about. When a player causes the breaks it generally affects his work.

No player has more tense situations put up to him than the pitcher. In every game there are at least a half dozen spots where the outcome hangs on a single pitch.

There are many occasions when some fluke hit, that possibly should have been caught, beats the pitcher out of a tough ball game. Such a happening doesn't tend to make the twirler smile but that is the time he should make it a point to recall some game where a sensational play by some of his teammates cut off what seemed certain to be a base hit and defeat.

On the whole, I find the breaks about even up during the season and it is folly to take the adverse ones to heart. It is best to figure you had them coming to make up for some of the good breaks.

One point I want to stress, is that a pitcher will never get very far if he has a habit of criticizing his teammates when they err.

When a player makes an error, particularly a costly one, nobody in the ball park feels tougher than he does about it. To publicly denounce a player for such a slip breaks down the morale of the individual and club and kills the fighting spirit that every successful team must have.

Take the breaks as they come. A smile is always better than a frown.

Start With the Mashie

The best results will be obtained by the beginner if he will start with a mashie, playing short chip shots first. Lessons along this line ought to be kept up two or three times a week for at least two months.

By belief is that in this way the player acquires a better sense of distance and hence better control. Also he is more likely to acquire a smooth swing than he would if he starts trying to play full shots from the first.

I have noticed that players who begin by trying to play full shots may acquire some skill in hitting the ball with wooden clubs but they are invariably bad when it comes to anything like control, and this applies both as to distance and direction.

There is another angle. In spite of the important part the short game plays, the average golfer takes a much keener pride in his long game, and if he neglects the shorter shots in starting, he will find it harder and harder to concentrate on the shorter shots.

The ball may often run up to the hole very prettily and stop outside. (Copyright, 1925)

Howard Kinsey and Miss Mary K. Browne entered the final of the mixed doubles by defeating Captain A. Berger and Mrs. Brown, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Vincent Richards and Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated J. E. Gilbert and Miss E. H. Harvey in the mixed doubles, 6-6, 6-3, thus reaching the semi-finals.

Billy Evans Says

"Lefty" Grove has succeeded Walter Johnson the strikeout king of the American League.

Walter Johnson, after 20 years of campaigning in the junior circuit, no longer gives a thought to striking out a batter, except in the all-important pinch.

Johnson, who once was figured as having pitched an ordinary game when he failed to strike six or more of the opposition, is content to coast along.

Walter is now pitching with his head far more than his arm. He admits he didn't go to the gray matter stuff seriously until his arm began to fail him. Says he is sorry he didn't take up the so-called smart stuff sooner.

In the National League, Dazzy Vance still holds sway, despite the fact that a crop of bolts and a sore arm handicapped his work during the early stages of the race.

A fan writes me asking what chance either Grove or Vance has of breaking the strikeout record of the major leagues?

I might say that both have a chance but it is rather remote. Grove, I believe, has greater possibilities than Vance, since he has youth, enabling him to work much oftener than the Brooklyn star.

The strikeout record of the majors is held by the late Rube Waddell, who in 1904 whiffed 343 batters. Waddell was a left-hander.

The nearest approach to this record in the majors was made by Walter Johnson in 1910, when he sent 313 of the opposition back to the bench on strikes.

I am positive that if Walter Johnson had been a record-seeker he could have broken Waddell's mark that season. Johnson only worked when pressed. If his team gave him a three or four-run lead he was willing to take things easy.

I umpired a number of ball games for Johnson that season in which he would cut down on his speed the moment his teammates gave him a safe working margin.

Johnson won 25 games in 1910, so it is easy to figure there were a smattering of spots where Walter was not forced to put forth his best efforts.

I believe it is conservative to say he could have added from 30 to 50 more strikeouts that season had he purposefully sought the record.

The old "stage door Johnnie" stuff isn't what it used to be and the competition for the company of the dancing darlings is keen in these days of super clubs.

Here's the latest wrinkle!

A modiste, who caters to the showgirl trade, displays creations that take their breath away and capture their desires.

"Oh, I would like that, but I have the money," sighs the girl.

"That's all right," smiles the modiste. "If you wish I can introduce you to a nice man—a very nice man with money—a very generous, nice man."

And she can. This modiste, they tell me, has a directory of at least a dozen "sugar paps" ready to purchase a gown for an introduction.

Many of the girls get the gown,
agree to the introduction, and then
"give him the air."

For a long time New York had a
"professional hostess" bureau.

A stranger, or a lonesome man had merely to call up and agree to pay so much per hour for the service of a companion and he would be provided with a chatty agreeable, good looking young lady.

One could hire a companion for a dance or for a theatre or for a stroll.
There were many types to be had.

Apparently there are fewer lonesome men, or other sources of companionship have been found.

At any rate the bureau recently closed after losing money for some time.

I am told that the "hostess" dance halls and cafes have been largely responsible.

A stranger can wander into one of these and by paying an hourly rate can have the companionship of a
"hostess" for dances, drinking or chat-ing.

One of these places hired 140 girls.
Several of these dance halls cater to Japanese, Chinese and foreign trade.
Here there is a great demand for pretty American maids and tips are high.
One place catering to Orientals at one time had 200 white girls as dancing partners.

THE GOD OF HARVEST

Out in Kansas the machines of the harvest are hymning a mighty psalm to the god of harvest. The great wheat valleys are redolent with riches. Millions of stalks are giving to the world their fruits.

In Kansas alone, one hundred and thirty-three million bushels of wheat!
That's a rippling surface of gold in the southwest is cheer and food and wealth to the nation. Pessimism is one, and it is a time for smiling, harvest time.

New wheat was listed the other day at $1.55. The indication is that the price will rise higher rather than lump. With this the prospect, Kansas should be enriched by at least 200,000,000 through her fertile fields.
It is an augury and a thrill for the nation.

WASHINGTON
LETTERCERTAIN PEOPLE THROW A WRENCH INTO THE WELL KNOWN PARTY SOLIDARITY

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Congress had finished up everything that President Coolidge wanted it to finish up. He wanted it to adjourn.
When it was announced that the leaders had decided to adjourn June 30, the president was glad of it.

At best Congresses are a pest to presidents—necessity, but an evil.

This Congress has been particularly obnoxious to Coolidge. It has left undone a lot of things he wanted done and it has done a lot of things he would have preferred otherwise.

The worst of it is that it is a Congress of the president's own politics.
Democratic and insurgent republican majority against him in the Senate. It hampered him in carrying out his policies, but, at any rate, he could disavow responsibility. At present his party has a clear majority in both houses. When it votes against him it implies insubordination in his own political family.

It has done so too often to be pleasant.

And now Congress has refused to adjourn when it said it would.

And again the ring-leader among the insubordinates is one of the crowd that supposed to be behind the president—not a "radical," like La Follette or Norris, but a strict "regular"—Representative Martin B. Madden of Chicago.

Madden didn't propose to go home until he got action on his bill to empty out the Great Lakes, through the Chicago drainage canal and the Mississippi river, into the Gulf of Mexico.
So he got together with Representative Haugen, another "regular," who objected to adjournment without any farm relief legislation and they marshaled their forces behind them, and sat on the scheme for a June 30 termination of the session.

If it had been the Senate that blocked adjournment it wouldn't have been so surprising. "Regular" isn't in so large a majority there. Presidential preferences have been kicked and cuffed about the Senate floor considerably in the 69th Congress, and even some very "regular" senators, such as Curtis, the majority floor leader himself, have participated in some of the kicking and cuffing.

But the lower house has been fairly manageable.

Now it appears that White House wishes aren't respected among the representatives either, when it comes to a definite show-down.

The intractability of congressmen like Madden and Haugen is especially significant.

These two are a pair of the republican wheelhorses—very old-timers.

That type of partisan doesn't kick over the traces unless he feels very strongly. When they do it's also an exceedingly bad example.

Adjournment on June 30 was desired by the administration for a very concrete reason.

Legislation was pending which the administration didn't like, and yet did not like to turn thumbs down on. The simplest solution was to have it unavoidably lost in the jam at the last minute.

Now a wrench has been thrown into the machinery by Madden, Haugen and their cohorts. It's very embarrassing, and bad for party solidarity.

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern";

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose marriage is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how John, in love with his wife but a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting NEIL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

When Fay took JUDITH, the baby to Houston to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returns, gossip has related some of John's doings and greatly magnified them. Sharp quarrels between him and Fay follow. She is always fearful that he will get into trouble, but he thinks she just misunderstands him.

One of these quarrels drives him "out on a tear," and when Fay learns that he has again been out with other women she threatens to leave him if it is repeated. He begins to think that Fay dislikes him.

He becomes aware that he is being talked about. DICK MENEFEE, his best friend, gives him some advice, and NAT GRAHAM, his business partner, is sharply critical. John is filled with resentment, feeling that the whole world is suddenly against him.

Fay breaks with a neighbor because of a piece of malicious gossip, and John is so loyal that it looks as if they had again reached an understanding.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

In John's defense it must be said that he came home from work the next day feeling irritable and out of sorts. Otherwise it might not have happened.

Fay was feeding Judith a bowl of cooked cereal when he arrived home. "To honey," he said briefly, kissing her, and bent over to kiss Judith's fat little cheek.

Fay regarded Judith tenderly. "This little lady got me in trouble today," she remarked lightly.

Something far more serious underlay her words, and if he had not been preoccupied he would have noticed it.

"Yeah?" he remarked.

"I was out to see Georgia McAvoy this afternoon."

"Yeah? Nice couple, the McAvoy's. How's their youngster?"

"Charles? He's fine." She was silent a moment, then, "John," she said, "I don't think I'll ever have anything to do with Georgia McAvoy again."

"Now what's the matter?" he burst out in annoyance. "Can't you succeed in remaining friends with anyone?"

"John!" Her lips quivered.

"Well, what's the matter? By golly, the way you women carry on over trifles makes me disgusted."

"What's come over you? You didn't act this way last night."

He didn't answer. Instead, he stuck his hands in his pockets and looked moodily out of the window.

"Aren't you interested?" she asked.

"Sure. What happened?"

Fay, wearing a hurt expression, said, "I never saw such a frightful temper in all my life as Georgia exhibited this afternoon."

"Oh, come now, Fay, she's all right. You've been upset; that's what's the matter with you."

"John, why don't you let me tell you what happened?"

"Well, for heaven's sake go ahead and tell me. I'm listening."

He was still staring out of the window.

Fay looked at him doubtfully, an expression of pain in her eyes. Then she said, "Judith and Charles were playing together on Georgia's lawn and Judith pushed Charles over. She didn't mean any harm, but if you'd seen the way Georgia turned on her, John, it was positively saving her."

Fay turned around to look at her. "What do you mean?"

"She grabbed hold of Judith and said, 'Look here, don't you ever do that again! You need a good spanking, that's what you need.' As if Judith knew any better. She's just a baby. John—she didn't mean any harm."

"Well, what did you do?"

"I scolded Judith—told her she shouldn't have pushed Charles down. Then I took her home."

"Why didn't you give Georgia a piece of your mind?"

"Thank goodness, I have better control of my temper than she has. If she wants to make an exhibition of herself, all right."

"Oh, you didn't handle it right, at all. Why don't you strike back at people if they hurt you?"

"Well," said Fay tearfully, "what could I say to her? I never saw a person lose control of herself the way she did. I hadn't say idea she was so hot-headed. Honestly, I thought for a moment she would strike Judith down."

John laughed. "Oh, it wasn't that bad, Fay."

"It was," she cried.

"Well, why didn't you tell her she ought to be ashamed of herself for talking to a little baby that way? You know what I'd have told her—if it was really as bad as you say it was."

"What?"

"I'd have said, 'Well, Georgia, Judith can't protect herself. Go ahead and hit her.'"

"You never see my side of things at all," Fay said bitterly.

"Don't see your side of things? Why don't I? But by golly, if I ran to you every time something came up during the day to annoy me I'd be running to you all the time."

"Well, just the same I'm through with Georgia McAvoy."

"And I can only say I'm darned sorry to hear it. She's a good scout, and so is her husband. I suppose you want me to refuse to speak to Fred if I see him on the street after this."

She had wanted his comfort, his support. Instead, she found him unsympathetic, scoffing. She said, angrily, "I suppose it would have been all right with you if she had struck Judith."

"Oh," he answered impatiently, "you exaggerate things, Fay. We all say things we're sorry for. Doubtless Georgia feels pretty mean over it, if she really lost her temper. I think it's downright silly to get in a row over a couple of babies."

Fay's angry eyes shot him a quick look. Then, gathered Judith up in her arms, she left the room. "I hope you'll enjoy your dinner," she called back to him. "You're going to eat it alone."

He stood regarding her retreating figure in blank amazement. "Now what in the hell have I done?" he said aloud.

xxx

Of such trivial incidents is trouble born. Fay had needed, had expected his sympathy and had not found it and of late things seemed to be working to put her temper on edge.

Pat and Marian Forbes invited them to a party at their summer place, and the evening was almost ruined for both of them because of the presence of the Boyds and Eleanor Mason. Paul Davidson was there, too, for which John breathed a sigh of relief, and later on the Ormes came in and at sight of Nell he felt a warm thrill running through him.

If he had not felt so guilty about Eleanor Mason he might have been amused at the restraint between Eleanor and Fay. He saw Fay stiffen at first sight of the fluffy-haired blond and heard Eleanor say, "Oh, Fay, it's so unusual to see you and John together."

Two tiny spots of red glowed in Fay's cheeks. "That's because I haven't thought he required watching," she retorted and passed on to talk to Marian Forbes. Eleanor Mason gave a careless little shrug of her pretty shoulders and then turned around to John.

"Fine one, you are!" she accused, but he murmured something about having to see Pat Forbes and went to John that worthy in the kitchen where much noise was being made over cracked ice.

"Lo, John, come to help me!" Pat greeted him.

"No, just to escape the Boyds and Eleanor Mason."

Pat grinned. "Don't know as I blame you. Cheer up though, Nell Orme will be over pretty soon." He watched John narrowly to observe the effect of this announcement.

"Glad to hear it. How are they getting along?"

"Rotten," he heard. Marian heard they had had a pretty bitter fight recently. I wouldn't be surprised to see them

"Neighbors' Wives"

John heard the front door open, and heard Nell Orme's low-pitched, laughing voice and presently observed her moving through the dining room with Marian.

"Hello there," he called, and at sight of him she walked over to the kitchen door way and extended her hand. He flinched at the pressure of her fingers, but she did not linger, being towed away by Marian.

Back on the front porch, John found himself stiffening slightly at sight of Nell Orme's critical grin, and Vera Orme regarding him with a sort of hang-dog expression in her eyes. Fay, he noted, had been taken over by Paul Davidson, and he heard her laughter coming from their corner of the porch, and noticed that Eleanor Mason kept saying, "Oh hoh," he laughed to himself, "Fay's paying the young lady back now. Seems her right."

"Why wait?" asked Eleanor Mason and Paul Davidson called over to her, "Hush, Eleanor, have you no romance about you?"

John slipped inside to get the package of cigarettes he had left in the kitchen. He heard a slight noise on the back porch and his heart gave a little jump; it was Nell Orme.

"What are you doing out here all by yourself?" he asked, slipping out beside her.

"I was admiring the moon," Nell answered with a smile.

"But I am luckier than you, for I have two things to admire," he grinned.

"Really, now, that's very bad," she reproached. "You're capable of much better. She turned away, gazing absently at the little lake shimmering in the lazy moonlight. She looked rather forlorn, and the recollection of the tight-lipped Howard Orme and what Paul had said about a quarrel moved him to sympathy. Things in his own household were getting on his nerves; he felt sudden companionship for this beautiful girl.

He stood for some time beside her without saying a word, mentally comparing her with Fay, wondering whether he and Fay were really in love with each other or whether, like Marian and Paul, they were sticking it out because of the child.

"I wonder," he said to her, "if you know what a beautiful picture you make out here beneath that moon?" He raised his hand toward the sky. "Forgive me," he added quickly at her frown. "I'm really not trying to flirt. It's just sort of hard to come out."

He brought his hand down to the porch railing and it accidentally touched her own. She gave no sign that she felt it and he let it stay.

"Are you going in swimming?" he asked her.

"Are you?"

"If you do, will you race me again?"

"Do you think you can beat me?"

"No, but it would be wonderful to try again."

She laughed—that mellow, full-throated laugh of hers, and the sound of it, like vibrant music, thrilled him to his very finger tips.

Suddenly he wanted to take this woman in his arms and press her to him. He felt his heart pounding against his ribs, felt that to hold her would be to ease both of their troubled souls. What right had Howard Orme, he raged inwardly, to crush this beautiful thing? What right had Fay to make him so unhappy?

Dairymen 100 Percent For Lubbock's New Milk Ordinance Which Protects Health Of Both Adults And Infants

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the sixth of a series of articles explaining the new city milk ordinance, which was placed into effect by the city commission to safeguard the health of the citizens. A. B. Slagle, a member of the Journal staff, is the author of the series.)

There are people in the city of Lubbock who have voiced disapproval of the milk ordinance passed recently by the City Commission in an effort to safeguard the health of the general public, and there are other people who have voiced approval of it. Every phrase and incident, but there are none perhaps who have so strenuously and wholeheartedly defended the ordinance and shown approval of its provisions than the dairymen who supply milk and milk products to the consuming public in Lubbock.

And it must be admitted that these dairymen are the ones, who in the most direct sense, must carry the bulk of the burden, especially from a financial standpoint, if provisions of the ordinance are adhered to, and to them and their progressiveness the City Commission and the people of Lubbock owe a debt of gratitude that is within their power to pay.

One has but to visit the various dairies in the near vicinity of Lubbock to be convinced of the constructive effects of the ordinance, for here you will find a hive of activity as heads of these institutions go about their work of improvement at their plants, not simply because they want to comply with provisions of the ordinance, but because they want to place a product on the market in Lubbock that will be worthy of the patronage given the several plants.

Improvements Permanent

These improvements are being made in keeping with the idea of the plant owners, but all are permanent improvements that make for more cleanliness, not only in production of milk, but in its distribution as well. One plant, whose advertisement may be found in another part of this paper, is now in the midst of an improvement program that will be completed shortly at an expenditure of nearly $250,000. This is probably the largest plant that serves customers in Lubbock, but others are in proportion.

Such, of course, is not required under provisions of the ordinance—in other words, city officials do not presume that they can tell a man how and when he may operate his business, except when this business is being operated to the detriment of public health, and if one is interested in what is taking place today to the extent that he or she will visit the various plants to see where their milk was produced before the advent of the ordinance, and where it is being produced now, it will certainly not take a great deal of argument to convince them that city officials are not in the least in the wrong, in legislating against impure milk products.

Dairymen Back Ordinance

A survey of the field, conducted personally by a representative of the Daily Journal disclosed the fact that dairymen are practically 100 percent behind the ordinance, even though some of the smaller plants are being strained to the last straw in efforts of the manager to increase sanitation and purity of his product.

One rather amusing incident that is well worth repeating was found in the survey, and at this particular plant which is not yet under operation in its new quarters, there is improvement work under way that will place the institution among the leaders, especially for purity and sanitation. The plant is small in size having at the present only five cows, but its potential quality production will probably not be surpassed.

The owner of this plant, soon after passage of the ordinance, was approached by opponents of the ordinance with the statement that if he would give them $10, they would make a fight on, and repeal the ordinance, supplementing this with the statement that others would be called upon to do likewise. In his wisdom, this man figured a minute, then remarked that "I believe I will just take the $10 and buy ten sacks of cement toward improvement of my plant."

Believe in Permanency

If one does not believe that the dairymen believe in the ordinance, he has only to call upon them for a statement. They are convinced that permanent improvements are more economical in the long run, and at the same time assures them an opportunity to produce a product of the quality that should be the goal of every dairy owner or operator.

And they readily admit that they do not propose to use such a viewpoint as a plea for increase in the price of their product, but on the contrary they will tell you that under such conditions, milk can be produced more economically. It is the same principle as for a business man to argue that he can give just as good service with a little "one-horse" outfit as he can with a well equipped plant and organization, and the same will hold true from a sanitation standpoint. It is the natural inclination of a man to give better care to stock and equipment in a good plant than he would in one of the reverse type, whether it be a dairy business or a department store, and therefore there will be an automatic tendency for more sanitation.

PONZI HAS GOOD PLACE TO SHINE SPEAKING FOR 3 DAYS AT BONHAM

Wizard Needs His Ability To Make Money To Reach His Bond of $20,000

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, July 1.—If Charles Ponzi can bring his financial genius to work in short order, he may get out of jail here before Boston officers arrive with extradition papers, which might return him to Massachusetts to be re-sentenced to prison for "seven to nine years," as a "common and notorious thief."

Ponzi was granted bail of $20,000 late Wednesday by Campbell R. Overstreet, Justice of Peace. He believes $20,000 is pretty steep and is planning to sue out a writ of habeas corpus in District Court to get the amount reduced. He says he plans to get out of jail so as to better direct a legal battle against the granting of extradition by Governor Ferguson.

Ponzi's fight against extradition probably will be based on his manner of arrest and his return here from Louisiana.

BAILEY WILL CARRY ON IN CAMPAIGN; DAN AND LYNCH BUSY

(By The Associated Press)

BONHAM, Texas, July 1.—James E. Ferguson delivered one of the briefest addresses he has made during the present gubernatorial campaign after an introduction to a Bonham audience Wednesday. Immediately after completion of his talk, he departed for Houston where he has been called by the death of Judge W. G. Love, a friend since childhood.

He declared during his talk that "the Moody campaign has blown up." He asserted that he accepted "Fergusonism" as the issue of the campaign. Ferguson will not speak Thursday, Friday or Saturday. Joseph Weldon Bailey was to speak for him at Farmerville Thursday afternoon and at Cooper Saturday night. C. C. McDonald, of Wichita Falls, will speak for him at Denton Friday and at Weatherford Saturday.

Davidson Lashes Ferguson

SAN ANGELO, July 1. (AP)—Lynch Davidson declared a huge central institution would prove the solution of the State prison system in an address here Wednesday. He charged that the prison system, highway department and other governmental divisions have been grossly mismanaged under the administration of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

When interrupted during the attack on Fergusonism by a cry "Hurrah for Ferguson," Davidson asked "Where are you now making home brew?" Davidson was to speak at Sweetwater Thursday afternoon and at Abilene in the evening.

Dan Threatens Prison

HASKELL, Texas, July 1. (AP)—Attorney General Dan Moody varied his attack on alleged abuses in highway matters in an address here Wednesday by declaring that "I may sooner or later be able to get some of them in the penitentiary."

He referred, he said to alleged illegalities in the issuance of highway contracts during the administration of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson. He charged that James E. Ferguson had made a "complete gift from the state" of 20 miles of highway to his home county. Moody devoted considerable time to a defense of his war record, and to attacks on other phases of the Ferguson administration.

TINCHER BILL DENOUNCED

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 1. (AP)—The Tinchier $100,000,000 far credits measure, sponsored by President Coolidge, was vigorously denounced by William Hirth, chairman of the corn belt committee in a statement issued here today. The bill provides for the farmers loans for which they have not asked, and which they do not want. Hirth declared, adding that the farm organizations "don't want charity in the form of unsecured loans."

Proposed Freight Rate Changes Not Approved

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today disapproved proposed changes in freight rates in the mid-continent held in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, on raffle moving to and beyond Kansas City and St. Louis.

At the same time the commission prescribed a new scale of "reasonable and non-prejudicial rates or basis of rates" on gasoline and other petroleum products now taking the same rates from points in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas to destinations in Western trunk line territory, Illinois, Indiana and the Northern peninsula of Michigan. It also ordered established a basis of maximum reasonable rates on fuel oil and other low-grade petroleum products taking the same rates from and to the same points.

The rates on gasoline and other petroleum products as a whole were found not in excess of reasonable maximum rates, but an adjustment, providing for both increases and decreases was found to be necessary to remove discrepancies in the rate relationship as between the various origin groups and between various destination points.

ABILENE, Texas, July 1. (AP)—Abilene protests to placing the name of his opponent, J. R. Smith of Burnet county, on the democratic primary ballots in the nineteen counties of the 17th Congressional district were withdrawn yesterday by Congressman Thomas L. Blanton.

Stomach Remedy

Very Effective For Indigestion

DALLAS MAN'S DISCOVERY SAID TO WORK MOST EFFICIENTLY

Indigestion and its attendant ills, such as dyspepsia, heartburn, sour stomach, griping pains, dysentery, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and sick or nervous headaches are quickly relieved by Gordon's Antiseptic, a scientific discovery made by a well-known Dallas pharmacist after twenty years of research work in an effort to find a panacea for ailments emanating from the stomach.

This remedy proved so efficient that G. M. Gordon, its discoverer, received the sum of $50,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

Gordon's Antiseptic, in addition to its antiseptic properties, contains also the most effective digestants, so its functions have a twofold purpose—the antiseptic effect, which stops fermentation, and the digestive effect, which breaks the food on nature intended.

Gordon's Antiseptic contains no alcohol, no narcotic, no salts, no iron, no calomel, no soda—nothing that will in the slightest degree injure even the most delicate stomach.

One teaspoonful of Gordon's Antiseptic after meals will digest what you eat. Stops bloating, prevents gas formation on the stomach, stops indigestion and heals the ulcerated condition of the stomach and bowels.

The price of Gordon's Antiseptic is $1.50 a bottle of sixty-four doses—less than 3c a dose. Sold by good druggists.

RAPID GROWTH IS SHOWN BY LOAN ASSOCIATION

In October, 1921, a newcomer to Lubbock visualized the future of the city, and saw in this vision an opportunity to be of great assistance to the wage earner who is desirous of owning a home, and he immediately set to work on what is now one of the biggest institutions in the city of Lubbock.

The man was "Uncle" Joe Hess, and the organization is the Lubbock Building and Loan association.

The association was organized in October, 1921, with a capital stock of $9,021, and by the first of January, 1922, assets of the firm had reached $6,867.73.

Today the institution, through its policy of straight forward business dealing and assistance to the wage earner in his efforts to own his home, has tangible assets in the amount of nearly a half million dollars, and is reaching ever forward with a program of expansion.

December 31, 1925, assets of the firm totaled $366,833.16, and on July 1, today, assets total $465,425.27, the semi-annual statement shows. Of this amount, $343,059.51 was in real estate loans on December 31, and this has increased proportionally with the assets since the first of the year.

Horse Hitching Demonstration To Be Given Monday

A program unique in nature and very much out of the ordinary, especially during this modern age, is being arranged by County Agent David F. Eaton and Tech college officials for next Monday, when a representative of the National Horse association will be here to give demonstrations in various methods of hitching teams to farm equipment.

The demonstration will be held at the college, and horses of the institution for two or three hours. Those who bring horses are urged to have them at the college not later than 2 o'clock.

Mr. Peck, representative of the Horse association, through whom the demonstration is being carried on, will bring a teamster here from Dakota, who is experienced in such proceedings, and the program, according to Mr. Eaton, will be well worth the while of farmers to attend. Various methods of hitching to gain the greatest efficiency, both from the animal and the equipment being used, will be shown, and farmers and others interested are urged to be in attendance.

The program will begin about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and will last for two or three hours. Those who bring horses are urged to have them at the college not later than 2 o'clock.

$377,768,000 Surplus in U. S. Coffers At Close of First Six Months of Year

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The Federal government closed its fiscal year, ending last night, with a surplus of $377,768,000.

This margin although below the estimate of $390,000,000 recently made by President Coolidge is almost four times as large as was expected by the President earlier in the year. The surplus will be used to reduce the public debt.

Total Cost Given.

The total cost of the government for the fiscal year as disclosed today at the Treasury, was $2,584,957,000 while receipts for the year amounted to $2,962,725,000.

Both customs receipts and income taxes exceeded those of last year, the latter despite the reductions in tax rates made in the middle of the year.

TROOP FOUR "ALWAYS THERE"

Troop Four, of course, did not have its regular meeting Friday because of the Court of Honor meeting. We showed that we had been doing some good work by receiving 45 of the 78 merit badges awarded in the Lubbock Council. At that, some of us have been pretty busy.

In the Tree Ceremony given by the Eagles, Troop Four also showed up very strong, having five of the ten Eagles and holding the first five places in point of rank, with Earl Turner, our Senior Patrol Leader, being the highest ranking Scout in the South Plains Council.

On Tuesday at Post we will put on our exhibitions of Scouting at the Camp Jubilee. We will leave Monday morning and return Wednesday giving us a chance to see something of the new camp grounds. When we get back like this it pays us for the hard work necessary to be prepared to give this exhibition to do our bit to advance Scouting.

Trent Campbell got his Eagle badge at the last Court of Honor, and he ties with Eugene Adair for third place as the highest ranking Scout on the South Plains. He has been held out for some time because of his Life Saving Merit badge. He couldn't swim a lick this time last year and he has his Life Saving badge now. To get this Merit badge you surely have to know how to swim. This all goes to show what plugging will do.

Leslie Yates, a second class Scout from Martin, Texas, was taken into the Troop on probation. He's a nice boy, and he's going to make the other boys hump to keep up with him. He will be in the Lion Patrol.

—Henrie Mast, Troop Reporter.

TROOP FIVE

Troop 5 met last Friday June 25, at the Presbyterian church and got ready for God's of Honor, which was held at our regular meeting place.

The troop built a work shop last week. We have a few tools and other articles in it. It is at the home of Raymond Barber. We will soon have a good work-shop.

Arch King and Clyde Jones made a troop pool last week, which goes very good with the Troop. We are making great preparations now for the next Court of Honor.

TROOP SIX

On Thursday night, June 24, Troop 6 met at their regular meeting place, the Cumberland Presbyterian church, one hour earlier than usual on account of the engagement of our Scoutmaster and Senior Patrol Leader Lyons. We had roll call and announcements, and were then dismissed; but two first class scouts gave some scout-tests to the rest of the Troop, with the permission of the Scoutmaster.

Reported, in the absence of our regular reporter, Marvin Williams, by—Roscoe Bayless, Scribe.

(By The Associated Press.)

On motion of Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, the committee, was ordered to determine what had been done by these two committees.

The Montana Senator referred to a speech on the floor yesterday by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, in which an attack was made on the method of obtaining a consent decree in the government's recent suit against the continental baking corporation. French Franc Drops Due To New Cabinet

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, July 1.—The French franc today established another low record, being quoted on the bourse at 35.2 to the dollar and 170.80 to the pound. Bourse circles were inclined to attribute the slump to the uncertainty of the new Briand cabinet, the coolness with which the recent ministerial (clarification) was received and the persistent signs of conflict in Parliament over the pressing financial situation in France.
