

Anonymous Callers Continue To Crack Crimes

LAW ENFORCEMENT officers scored another victory last week when a tip from an anonymous caller cleared a felony case.

The latest felony brings to seven the number of cases cleared through anonymous Crime Line Inc. calls, police Detective Doyle Nelson said.

Cash rewards for the seven callers have been paid to the informants, said Mayor Dirk West, who initiated the program just six weeks ago.

This week, a $500 cash reward is being offered for information on an abduction and aggravated rape that occurred during the early morning of May 28.

On that day, the Lubbock County Sheriff's office received a call to a truck stop east of the city, where deputies met the victim.

She told them she left a local bar about 2 a.m. to go to a friend's house. But when she stopped at an intersection, she said, a black man about 5-foot-9 with a slender build opened the door to her car, pointed a short-barreled dark pistol at her and forced her into his car.

She said the clean-shaven assailant forced her onto the floorboard of his car, described as a medium-sized, four-door, yellow vehicle, while he drove. After they drove for some time, the woman told deputies, the man stopped the car and told her not to move.

The victim said her attacker got out of the car and a few minutes later returned, holding a Mexican-American woman about 25. He then forced the second woman to the floorboard of the vehicle.

After driving for a while, the suspect stopped the car outside the city and forced her from the car and to the ground, where he raped her. During the attack, the victim said, the Mexican-American woman tried to fight the suspect, but he turned, grabbed the other woman and began beating her.

At that point, the victim said, she ran, and once reaching the truck stop, called authorities.

Her abandoned car was found at 25th Street and Avenue T, but the woman's rings and purse still are missing.

The woman, who sustained bruises and had one of her fingernails torn off, was treated at a local hospital.

The Mexican-American woman, however, has not been located. Authorities fear that because she was being beaten when the woman who reported the attack escaped, the second woman may be held hostage or dead.

The victim said she thought the rape occurred north of the city. The suspect, she added, had a short Afro haircut.

A $300 reward is offered for information on the May 12 burglary of 1917 25th St. Burglars kicked open the door of the residence and took a Pioneer receiver, Cona cornet, Pioneer speakers, a Bach trumpet, Yamaha guitar, an HBO unit, a Remington shotgun, two Holton trombones, a clarinet and a BIC turntable and two speakers.

In a county burglary of a habitation case, a $300 cash reward also will be given to the person providing information. Deputies received a call to Route 1, Lubbock, where they found $6,700 in property stolen, including a built-in mahogany china cabinet, a complete banister and rails with square posts, two iron gates, and a lamp fixture.

A $300 reward has been posted in connection with wanted fugitive Cecilia Munoz Richardson, a 5-foot-2 Mexican-American female. Miss Richardson, 24, has brown eyes and black hair, but has been

THE TEXAS Tech University School of Medicine graduated its fifth class Sunday, with 41 candidates awarded degrees of doctor of medicine and one a degree of master of science in anatomy.

After the ceremonies, one graduate remarked he was "too scared to look" at his diploma. Others still had not rid themselves of tears that welled up during the end of the ceremonies, although their faces were lit by broad grins.

Dr. Cecil Mackey, president Texas Tech and of the School of Medicine, congratulated the graduates and their guests before introducing the chairman of the Board of Regents, Robert L. Pfluger.

Pfluger extended the board's "deep sense of pride" in the graduates' accomplishments and thanked the families for their "emotional and financial support which was so essential in this long, demanding educational process."

Essential To Society

Calling the class the "tangible product of the efforts which went into this institution," Pfluger said the graduates "have chosen a profession essential to our society."

Dr. Robert A. Good, president and director of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research in New York City, gave the keynote address, reminiscing about the limited success doctors in his day encountered when dealing with malignant and infectious diseases.

Good said the scientific revolution today "is just the beginning of a logarithmic growth curve to develop means of prevention and effective means of treatment of the lethal diseases."

"We're only beginning to understand the diseases of aging, vascular system and many malignancies," Good said, adding he believes that if the scientific revolution is to succeed, it must be based on

Oil Executive Says Prices Must Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline prices will have to hit around $1.50 a gallon before U.S. oil companies will embark on an all-out effort to develop coal and shale resources and draw oil from old wells, the chairman of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana said Sunday.

John Swearingin, who also serves as chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, also said he expects the price of gasoline to rise 10 or 15 cents in the next year, depending on the actions of the oil-producing nations.

He said that before domestic oil producers could afford to make an all-out effort to increase production, prices would have to rise to the world price level, which he said would boost the price of gasoline to around $1.50.

In an interview on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program, he said he expected that more gas will be available in June and July than there was in April and May, but noted consumption also goes up during vacation periods and therefore supplies will be even tighter.

Education Agency Faces Last Hurdle

Bill's Opponents Vow Last Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan for a separate Education Department is approaching its last major hurdle this week as the House decides whether to create a 13th Cabinet-level agency.

The legislation squeaked through the House Government Operations Committee by a one-vote margin. Opponents have vowed to put up a last defense when the bill comes to the floor on Wednesday.

The Senate already has given an overwhelming endorsement to a similar version of the legislation.

The bill would shift most of the education responsibilities from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare into the new department, as well as many education functions now performed by other federal agencies.

Some Programs Excluded

But many controversial activities — such as Head Start, child nutrition and education programs for Indians and veterans — would remain where they are. Opponents of the department cite this fact as one of the best reasons against setting up the new agency.

They also maintain that an Education Department would have too limited a focus and would become the creature of the education establishment in this country.

They have warned that a separate department would be a significant step toward federal control or domination of education. And they insist that setting up a department would not assure an improvement in the quality of education or learning.

But backers say the department won't encroach upon the states' turf in setting educational policy and direction. They contend that a separate department will improve accountability and lead to better management.

Campaign Promise

President Carter first promised to push for an Education Department while he was a candidate for office. This pledge won him an endorsement from the National Education Association, the largest teachers' group.

In other congressional action planned this week, the House plans to vote on legislation extending the lives of the major federally assisted housing programs. The bill covers five years at a cost of $6.5 billion.

Among the programs affected by this legislation is the controversial Urban Development Grants initiative, which is designed to stimulate private investment by giving communities up-front money with which to initiate projects.

The bill includes the subsidy program for low-to moderate-income homeowners and one for low-to moderate-income renters.

Meanwhile, the Senate Ethics Committee will hear more from Daniel Minchew, the chief accuser of Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga. Minchew faces three days of questioning by Talmadge's lawyers as they attempt to clear the senator of charges that he converted campaign contributions to personal use.

On Wednesday Sen. Harry Byrd, I-Va., is expected to urge his colleagues to adopt a plan giving Congress veto power should a president decide to cancel a mutual defense treaty with another nation.

Byrd's action was prompted by the U.S. decision to sever formal ties with Taiwan and move toward more normal diplomatic relations with China.

The House also is due to consider spending authorizations for the CIA and other intelligence agencies. But the totals, as is customary, won't be made public.

War Threatens In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza says he may declare war on Costa Rica if the Organization of American States fails to stop Sandinista guerrillas from operating there.

"I'm not ruling out the possibility of declaring war on Costa Rica," he told a news conference.

The statement came as heavy fighting was reported along Nicaragua's northern and southern borders in what the guerrillas have described as the major offensive to overthrow Somoza, whose family has controlled Nicaragua for 42 years.

One of Somoza's military commanders near the southern border with Costa Rica told reporters Saturday that heavily-armed guerrillas had crossed from Costa Rica and pushed four miles inside Nicaragua where they dug in atop five hills on the southwestern coast.

Defensive Lines Set

"This is not a guerrilla-style attack," said Col. Ernesto Jacoby. "This is conventional warfare. They have taken positions and are holding them. They have established defensive positions and are fighting back."

"These are not just guerrillas," he said. "This is an army, the so-called International Brigade with soldiers from Cuba, Colombia and Panama." There was no independent confirmation of Jacoby's claims. He also said civilians had been evacuated from the town of El Ostional which was reported under guerrilla mortar attack.

Fighting also was reported in the northern town of Chinandega.

"Perhaps 50 guerrillas could cross the border as revolutionaries," Somoza said. "But when groups of 300 guerrillas, carrying 50-caliber machine guns and automatic weapons and mortars arrive in jeeps and trucks, there is no doubt about Costa Rican complicity," the president said.

He claimed wounded Sandinistas were being evacuated from the border area by helicopter and flown to hospitals in northern Costa Rica.

Charges Denied

In San Jose, Costa Rica, Security Minister Juan Jose Echeverria denied there were guerrilla bases on Costa Rican territory. "We have always respected Nicaragua and we have never interfered in its internal affairs," he said.

Neither Nicaragua nor Costa Rica has an army. Somoza has a relatively well-equipped 10,000-man national guard, which serves as both the police force and army, and has become battle-wise in nearly a year of fighting. Costa Rica's security force is a 7,500-member civil guard that handles police functions and traffic control. Most of its members are armed with World War I rifles and it is divided into a 3,500-man main force, a 3,000-member rural force and about 1,000 specialists in traffic, detective work and narcotics control.

Somoza had threatened to invade Costa Rica last December, saying it was giving refuge to border-raiding guerrillas.

Both Nicaragua and Costa Rica are members of the OAS.

Costa Rica broke relations with Nicaragua last November after a border incident in which two Costa Rican civil guardsmen were killed.

The Somoza government says about 300 guerrillas entered Nicaragua from Costa Rica last Monday to support rebels who had seized Rivas, about 60 miles south of Managua on the Pan American Highway.

Spelling Bee Contestants Gather Today

INTEREST builds as spelling bee winners from across the United States arrive in Washington today to participate in a week of National Spelling Bee activities.

Newspapers will be represented by 100 spellers in the competition.

Representing The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal is Michelle Evatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Evatt of Ralls.

Michelle, who has participated in the spelling bee for five years, placed third in last year's regional competition. She defeated 18 county winners this year to win the Lubbock Regional Spelling Bee and a chance to go to Washington.

Various sightseeing tours and other activities have been planned for the young spellers. A barbecue in Maryland will kickoff the National Spelling Bee Week today.

Michelle also will visit U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, who represents her area of Crosby County.

Spelling competition will begin Wednesday and continue through Thursday morning. Winner of the National Spelling Bee will receive $1,000 cash, an engraved trophy cup and plaque and two special prizes from Encyclopaedia Britannica and Zenth.

An awards banquet Friday night will end the week's activities.

Prince's Training At Reese Speeded After Monarchy Started To Crumble

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AS HIS father's government was collapsing in Iran, Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, then in flight training at Reese Air Force Base here, "was mature enough to accept the fact that he had to get the hell out of here," Col. Richard A. Ingram, wing commander at Reese, recalls.

Ingram, reminiscing about the crown prince's stay here, told a recent meeting of the Lubbock Press Club, "Reza was a bright, mature young man. At that time his life was in jeopardy. There was a tremendous bounty on his head... It was a volatile, tense situation."

Telegram From Khomel

Ingram reported he received on February 28 a "personal telegram" from Iranian Ayatollah Khomeini, ordering him in the name of the Revolutionary Islamic Government of Iran, to "cease and desist" the prince's flight training immediately.

The telegram was forwarded from Reese through U.S. government channels to the State Department, which, Ingram said, never responded to it.

At the time the telegram was received, however, the prince's flight training already had been accelerated at his own request. When the young monarch received his wings March 9 in a private ceremony at Reese, it was a "legitimate" graduation, Ingram said.

After the prince decided he should complete his training as early as possible, he was flying seven days a week in good weather, the colonel said.

"He progressed and we flew him harder than I've ever flown a student," Ingram said of the prince's last weeks in training.

Regulations Waived

"We waived all regulations on crew duty and how many hours he could fly. He was under a lot of pressure, constantly flying with a check pilot. He was an exceptional pilot."

Iran's former crown prince also was a source of tremendous public curiosity from people all over the world, when it became known that Lubbock was his destination.

Ingram, first as information director for Air Training Command in San Antonio, then as wing commander at Reese, was responsible for dealing with a press and public hungry for details about the royal trainee.

Release of information about the prince, however, was controlled by the State Department, which proved a jealous guardian of his privacy.

Always mindful of "well-organized, well-financed terrorist groups" and other potential threats to the prince's safety, Air Force officials at Reese followed strict State Department instructions to the letter, Ingram said.

Before he arrived in Lubbock, all details pertaining to Pahlavi's flight training was "classified." The project's title was "CPX," which stood for "Crown Prince X," revealed Ingram.

The 15-month project began in November 1977, when, Ingram said, "the Shah of Iran decided his son should become a pilot."

Ingram said he thought the Shah also wanted to expose his son in a controlled environment to the American public, and also to the discipline of the American military.

Preparations began secretly in November 1977 for the crown prince's arrival at Reese in July the following year.

For most of the months preceding the prince's arrival in the United States, only 10 officers in the U.S. Air Force knew the reason for the many improvements and staff changes being made at Reese, Ingram said.

Air Force personnel labored quietly to beef up the protection system at Reese.

A new, stronger guardhouse was constructed, security lights were installed

Iran's Courts On 'Full Speed' Schedule

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Tehran's revolutionary courts will speed their work to dispense with the trials of more than 2,000 persons charged with crimes during the shah's regime, officials said Sunday.

At least 256 persons have been executed by firing squads throughout Iran since the February revolution that removed the monarchy of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Justice officials said some court investigators will be replaced, due to unspecified "criticism" of their work, and the Islamic courts will carry on their duties "without holidays, and without stoppages." Some 2,500 prisoners are believed held at Tehran's Qasr Prison, the site of most court activity in the capital.

Last April 26, the officials announced another speed-up, saying the trials were being held on a 24-hour basis at Qasr, after revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini complained about slow court proceedings.

In Khuzestan, angry Arab rebels eased demands for autonomy in their oil-rich province. Leaders modified an ultimatum to the government, asking only for the provincial governor-general's replacement instead of his arrest and trial for the deaths of a number of Arabs in clashes last week.

The Arabs, who are an ethnic minority in this Persian nation, fought to take over the port city of Khoramshahr but were defeated by revolutionary guardsmen loyal to Khomeini's government. The Red Cross said 37 were killed and nearly 200 wounded.

Sunday's ultimatum did not say what action the Arabs would take if their demands were not met.

Aides of Ayatollah Sheik Mohammed

Taber al Shobeir Khaghani, a local Arab religious leader, said he delivered the new ultimatum to Col. Mohammad Haghighi, Khuzestan province's military commander, Saturday night.

The conflict also is affecting Iran's Arab neighbors, despite Khomeini's repeated declarations of support for the Arabs as Moslem "brothers."

Rear Adm. Ahmad Madani, head of the navy and the governor-general the Arabs want replaced, charged that the Arab rebels were receiving illegal arms shipments from Iraq.

The Tehran newspaper Ayandegan also quoted Madani as saying the Kuwait state radio is inciting Arabs of Khuzestan "to revolt against the Islamic regime in Iran."

It said Madani told a group of Arab tribal leaders the Khoramshahr fighting was not between "Persians and Arabs, but ... corrupt and unwanted elements, servants and spies of Eastern and Western imperialism, cause problems which are fueled by our neighbors' unkindness."

In Tehran, company sources said all seven directors of the National Iranian Oil Co. submitted resignations to express support for the company's chairman, who last week criticized Khomeini.

Chairman Hassan Nazih said last Sunday that political, judicial and economic affairs of Iran can't be forced into an Islamic mold.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is moving its European military command headquarters underground, the Belgian Defense Ministry reported.

Iran Oil Firm Directors Resign

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The board of directors of the National Iranian Oil Co. resigned to protest Moslem clergy attacks on NIOC chairman Hassan Nazih, but officials Sunday denied oil production slipped below four million barrels a day.

Justice officials said some court investigators will be replaced, due to unspecified "criticism" of their work, and the Islamic courts will carry on their duties "without holidays, and without stoppages." Some 2,500 prisoners are believed held at Tehran's Qasr Prison, the site of most court activity in the capital.

Nazih is a prominent lawyer and president of the Iranian Bar Association. The 79-year-old Khomeini currently is in seclusion in Qom to recover from "extreme tiredness."

However, he declared June 5 a day of public mourning and an annual holiday to mark "the start of the struggle by the clergymen against the former corrupt Pahlavi regime."

Khomeini said in an announcement the holiday had been declared in memory of the about 15,000 people killed by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's forces on June 5, 1963.

"I call this day as the mourning day forever and will sit in Feyzieh school (his religious seat in Qom) to mourn and honor the martyrs," he said. "I hope that colonialism will be eradicated in Iran and that the Islamic republic can be exercised on the basis of the holy Koran."

The anti-shah demonstration on that day led to the exile of Khomeini to Turkey, Iraq, and finally France before his return in January to overthrow the Iranian monarchy.

Industry experts expressed fear that the repercussions on Iranian oil industry operations could be "at best unsettling, at worst, lead to chaos."

A company spokesman denied Iranian press reports that oil production had dropped below four million barrels a day and said production from the Khuzestan oil fields and offshore wells totaled four million barrels Saturday.

The surprise resignations came after two of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's aides, Ayatollah Beheshti and Mohammed Mofatteh, demanded that Na-zih be tried for his outspoken criticism of the "Islamic solution" advocated by Khomeini.

The Tehran Times newspaper said Sunday that Nazih submitted the resignations of the board members, whom he had named last March, to the Cabinet for approval.

In their letter of resignation, the directors said, "Conditions at present are such that no real service can be rendered by us."

The directors' move appeared to have been caused by speculation that Nazih himself might not be able to keep his post through the raging controversy, industry sources said.

At the root of the controversy is a current debate between the clergy leaders and intellectuals over the future shape of Iranian government.

Bus Accident Fatal For 52

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A gasoline truck smashed into a loaded bus with party-goers in southern Thailand and exploded killing 52 people and seriously injuring 13 others, police said Sunday.

The fiery crash Saturday on a curving mountain road in Phang Nga province, 450 miles south of Bangkok, was described as the worst traffic accident in Thai history.

Police said a chartered bus with 68 party-goers aboard was moving at high speed around a sharp curve through sea-coast mountains when it smashed head on into the fully loaded gasoline truck. Both vehicles immediately burst into flame and it was more than four hours before firemen could extinguish the blaze.

Police said 49 of the victims died at the scene and 3 others died while undergoing treatment at a hospital.

Another 13 persons were reported in serious condition.

The bus had been chartered to take people to a farewell party for a local civil servant, police said. The civil servant and his family were reported among the victims, they said.

Unbeatable Lawyer Found To Be Fraud

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — In the 30 years Mohammed Amin Heiba practiced law in Cairo he never lost a case. He won 50 civil and criminal judgments in one year alone and built a reputation among his colleagues as an unbeatable foe.

Trouble was, the Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported Saturday, Heiba wasn't the lawyer he was cracked up to be. In fact, the paper said, he wasn't a lawyer at all.

Al-Ahram said the government fraud squad, acting on an anonymous tip, discovered that the 60-year-old man was really a village headman who had never gone to elementary school.

According to the paper, Heiba, who was arrested and charged with practicing law under false pretenses, told authorities he had joined a law firm as a clerk, "discovered in himself the extraordinary ability to draw up legal briefs and memoranda" and went into business for himself.

About 1,500 years before Columbus proved it, Greek philosophers had concluded that the earth was round.

Single Father Helps Others Get Custody

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Ken Lewis bucked court tradition to win custody of his two toddler daughters, and is building a career helping other fathers to do the same thing.

The chances of a father winning a child-custody fight are slim in a court atmosphere that favors 96 or more mothers in every 100 divorce cases, said Lewis, who holds a doctorate and taught social work for six years at the universities of Nebraska and Kansas and East Carolina University.

He operates Child Custody Evaluation Services here, which arranges for professionals, or Lewis himself, to assist fathers seeking child custody.

"Fathers winning custody is tough enough," he said. "Holding onto it is even tougher."

In 1972, Lewis won custody of daughters Misha and Amylove, now ages 9 and 7, in Nebraska. A year later, that state's Legislature eliminated the legal doctrine that automatically had been placing children with their mothers except in incompetency cases.

He says he showed the court he had provided much of the "mothering" for his daughters while his wife was in medical school and that he would be a better parent for them. The girls' mother tried unsuccessfully three times to reverse the ruling.

The number of single fathers in the country is relatively small — about 500,000 compared to about 18 million single mothers, he said. About half the men reached that state because their wives died; others were abandoned by their spouses.

Lewis says experience tells him the number of single fathers is increasing as more mothers leave home and more men with blue-collar jobs learn they have a chance at caring for their children if their marriage breaks up.

Can Be Elected President, Bush Tells GOP

AUSTIN (AP) — George Bush told county Republican chairmen from throughout the state Saturday that he can be elected president because he has the experience and the motivation.

"I think I want to be president more than anyone else running for the presidency," Bush told a luncheon meeting of the Texas Republican Chairman's Association.

John B. Connally, also a candidate for the GOP nomination, had been scheduled to speak earlier but sent word he was unable to appear because of bad flying weather from Houston.

Bush made no direct comment about Connally but had sharp words about the presidential primary bill that was supported unsuccessfully in the recent Texas Legislature by Connally's supporters. The bill would have had a presidential preference poll in March in addition to the regular party primaries in May. Supporters said it would help Connally gain strength in the early primaries.

"I endorse and strongly support the fact that legislation was not gimmicked around to serve special interests," Bush said. "We want to build a Republican Party ... It irks me to have special interests say let's just change the law."

There was loud applause from the approximately 200 persons at the meeting.

Leaders of both the Texas Republican and Democratic parties opposed the co-called Connally primary bill.

Bush stressed that during his campaign he would be talking about his record, "not tearing down any other candidate."

"I know that I can help change things," Bush told the chairmen. "I think that I'm the luckiest person in the world to have this shot I've got at the presidency."

Nonetheless, a father's custody battle is still uphill.

"Everybody blames the courts. I think you have to back it up to the legislatures," said Lewis, who has testified as an expert witness in fathers' custody fights in 10 states.

In 14 states, divorce courts are bound by the 19th century "tender years doctrine," which automatically places a young child with the mother unless the father proves her unfit.

In addition, despite rapidly changing American life styles producing more working mothers and child-care by fathers, most judges' rulings reflect the attitudes of their child-rearing years when mothers generally maintained care of the children, he said.

He says "judges think the worst case are the contested custody cases," and would like to see them resolved elsewhere.

"I think custody should be taken out of the adversary system and put with a panel of experts," he said. "Until then, we're stuck with the adversary system and should polish it up."

Although not all men — or women — seeking child custody actually are willing to change their life styles to provide good care, he said, "many of the men who come to me seriously are willing to do whatever is necessary."

'Sesame Street' Now Showing At Museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The innovative children's television program "Sesame Street" has achieved museum status at the age of 10.

The Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology is displaying the set and some of the best known characters in an exhibition which opened this weekend and will continue through Labor Day.

The show's millions of pre-school fans may see the familiar brownstone buildings from the show along with original signs, props, costumes and the Muppets.

Big Bird perched beside his nest and Oscar the Grouch in his trash can will be the star attractions, along with costumes from some of the show's human characters: Bob, Susan and Mr. Hooper.

Muppet favorites such as Grover and Kermit the Frog and human characters will appear in videotaped highlights from the past decade, which will be shown on television monitors. Lessons in letters, numbers, shapes and simple words will be included.

Since the show started 10 years ago, it has undergone many curriculum revisions. Its target audience now is children aged 3-5 with emphasis on the disadvantaged.

More than 9 million households tune in the show regularly, either through Public Broadcasting Service stations or commercial stations not served by public television.

Translations or coproductions of the program are regularly seen in 50 nations around the world. The latest additions are Spain and Kuwait, in Spanish and Arabic.

For the opening days, children from the area were invited to chat with Bob McGrath, who plays Bob; Alaina Reed, who plays Olivia; and other characters from the program. Joan Ganz Cooney, president of Children's Television Workshop, which produces the program and "The Electric Company," was also on hand.

Carl Scheele, museum curator of community life who helped arrange the exhibition, outlines the concepts the program teaches.

"Oscar the Grouch, with his unconventional tastes and hot temper gives children a chance to think about the differences in others and themselves and helps them perceive that being 'different' isn't necessarily bad," Scheele says.

"Big Bird, on the other hand, is like a friendly 3-year-old without the skills to solve ordinary problems — but his cheerful persistence and positive attitude usually win the day."

The set and Muppets are here for the summer while the program is not being filmed. Some of the signs and costumes have been donated to the Smithsonian. Two Muppets were given to the museum several years ago by their creator, Jim Henson.

Murder Trial Begins Today

PLAINVIEW — Clifford John Clark, 22, of Tulla goes on trial this morning in the 242nd District Court here in connection with the December 1978 shooting death of Mario Alberto Alejandro of Lubbock.

Clark was indicted for murder by a Hale County grand jury.

Alejandro, 27, was shot six times at a west Plainview nightclub Dec. 23, and about $2,000 in cash was taken from his dead body, according to police reports.

Also wounded in the incident was Rene Zuniga, 16, of Lubbock. He was shot in the shoulder.

A pistol, believed to have been used in the incident, was recovered near the shooting scene.

Clark, identified by witnesses at the scene, was arrested Dec. 24 in Tulla. He has been free on $10,000 bond.

Arson Suspected In City Hall Fire

PETERSBURG — A Petersburg police officer was treated at a Plainview hospital for smoke inhalation about 3 a.m. Sunday following an apparent arson attempt in the Petersburg City Hall.

Troy Walker, who was released from the hospital following a brief stay, discovered a fire in the city hall shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday while on routine patrol. He tried to extinguish it but was overcome by smoke.

The fire apparently was set in several locations, according to reports. Plainview fire marshal Joe Ferguson, called to the scene to investigate, discovered wall calendars and desk drawers had been set on fire in various parts of the building.

Ferguson said the damage, most of which occurred to a piece of paneling and a desk, was minimal.

Hale County sheriff's officers questioned a 17-year-old Petersburg youth in connection with the fires.

AN EDITORIAL:

Controls Are Cause, Not Cure

A FEDERAL JUDGE has delivered President Carter a very basic, and much-needed, lesson in government: A "guideline" is not voluntary if there are penalties for not complying with it.

Carter exceeded his Constitutional authority, Judge Barrington Parker opined, when he threatened to withhold federal contracts from violators of his wage and price guidelines.

It was a victory for the AFL-CIO, which had sued to keep the administration from penalizing companies which caved in to union demands for wage increases above the 7 percent "voluntary" limit set by the President.

ALTHOUGH APPEALING the district court decision, Carter knows that the judge was correct in saying that the sanctions on government contracts made the guideline program "a mandatory system of wage and price controls, unsupported by law."

If the decision stands, it will be a mortal blow to the controls effort, notwithstanding Inflation Fighter Alfred Kahn's bravado in arguing that the guidelines still can be made to work through the weight of public opinion.

To make them work, the President would have to get Congressional approval of mandatory controls. While he might be able to do this, implementation of such a program would be a sorry approach to fighting inflation.

If mandatory controls were to be kept in place too long, they would destroy the American economic system. As most recently proved by President Nixon, even a temporary mandatory controls program creates so many distortions and pressures in the economy that inflation is worsened rather than moderated over the long haul.

TO FIGHT INFLATION, the President and Congress need to learn another very basic lesson: Rising wages and prices are the result of inflation, not the cause of it.

Inflation is caused by government spending, monetary and regulatory policies. If government will put its house in order, American consumers and taxpayers will see an end to double-digit inflation within a short time.

In the absence of responsible government action, there is severe danger in the federal court ruling which holds that the voluntary guidelines are illegal.

Labor union bosses will use the decision as a basis for insisting on bigger and better wage settlements, which will transfer more of the impact of accelerating inflation from the union members to others, including the poor and the fixed-income elderly.

Finally, while we're on the subject of guidelines, there is another lesson to be learned from the federal court ruling:

If penalties are illegal when applied to "voluntary" wage and price controls, then they're also illegal when applied to other "guidelines" such as those applied to other federal programs which are among the root causes of inflation because they add to the cost of goods and services.

AN EDITORIAL:

Rhodesian Puzzle In Pieces

IF PRESIDENT Carter thinks he's having difficulty coming up with a new policy on Zimbabwe Rhodesia, he can't blame it on a shortage of possibilities from which to choose.

There is his own policy of the past two-plus years to maintain diplomatic and economic sanctions against the Salisbury regime hoping that this eventually will pressure it into widening black participation and powers in the coalition government.

Then there is the policy of the U.S. Senate, which is on record as overwhelmingly favoring the immediate lifting of sanctions.

AND THEN there's the policy the new British Conservative government is cautiously sidling up to.

The new regime is trying to deliver on pre-election promises to its own rightwingers to loosen the screws on Salisbury without distancing itself too far from U.S. policy, whatever that may turn out to be.

Each possibility involves risk. To continue the hard line would mean U.S. rejection of the black majority government resulting from the recent elections and ending whatever chance there may be of its effecting changes in the white-written constitution and coming to terms with guerrillas based in Zambia and Mozambique.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Crazy-Quilt Regulation No Cure For Gas Pain

WASHINGTON—Motorists who think the recent shortage of gasoline is somehow artificial and contrived are in major part correct.

In fact, there is no shortage of petroleum or other energy reserves in the United States, at least in the sense of natural depletion.

As Rep. Steve Symms of Idaho points out, we have, at current rates of consumption, "enough crude oil to last us for 84 years. Enough natural gas to last us for 400 years."

"Enough coal to last us for 600 years. Enough oil shale to last us for 300 years. Enough uranium to last us for 120 years. Enough geothermal energy to last us for 200 years."

With these reserves awaiting us, it's obvious that we have no natural shortage. It follows that our problems are contrived. The only error in the popular assumption of conspiracy is in identifying the culprit.

IT IS NOT the oil companies who have created the shortage, but the federal government.

The basic error of federal policy, of course, is the imposition of price controls.

When the Nixon price guidelines were removed from everything else, they were maintained on domestic crude oil production and the pump price of gasoline (and, for slightly different reasons, on natural gas).

It is no accident that petroleum shortage has become a chronic problem in the United States since the imposition of controls, although it had never been a problem before.

The result of controls that hold the price of a commodity below its market level is twofold: To encourage consumption, and to discourage production. That is a perfect formula for shortage.

THE MIDEAST oil embargo and price manipulations of the past few years are not the causes of this condition, but the symptoms of it. Having choked off our own ability to produce, we are increasingly dependent on the Arabs.

On the other hand, instant recognition, Senate-style, may win friends in Salisbury but is certain to lose them throughout the rest of black Africa.

Understandably, the temptation could be strong to take the third option and just go along with the British, letting them take the lead again in a policy that was, after all, originally designed to support them when they were invited out of Rhodesia back in the 1960s by the white minority's unilateral declaration of independence.

THE PROBLEM is that there is every indication British policy will be slow in developing, or at least in being revealed, London having no desire to stir up things in the area before Queen Elizabeth's scheduled attendance at a Commonwealth conference in Zambia in August.

Washington can't wait that long. Under terms of the congressional authorization, the President must determine by June 15 whether the conduct of the Rhodesian election and the character of the new government warrant lifting or continuing the sanctions.

It is a real test for the Magnolia Administration policy-makers, and nobody ever said multiple choice was easy.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Submarines Accrue

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The appearance of a second Soviet submarine in Cuban waters has been definitely established by U.S. intelligence within the past two weeks, raising the question of just what the Soviet Union intends to do with its growing military power 90 miles off the coast of Florida.

With final agreement on the new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II) expected momentarily, Carter administration strategists are maintaining sealed-lip silence to avoid any new U.S.-Soviet hassle.

But at high levels of the Pentagon, this question is being asked: Is Moscow just "paying off" Fidel Castro for his expeditionary corps in Africa and elsewhere, or is Cuba being surreptitiously converted into a Soviet base for future operations in Latin America?

ANDREW TULLY:

Share Is Not Fair

WASHINGTON—You may find this hard to believe, but it is a fact that an agency of the predominantly black city government of the District of Columbia is considering a venture into racism—a venture that would discriminate even against certain blacks.

A proposal before the city's Minority Business Opportunity Commission (MBOC) would eliminate a number of local ethnic groups from special minority status in the granting of D. C. government contracts.

That status was established by a 1976 D. C. law that entitled local minorities to 25 percent of the city's contracting dollars. Facing the axe are all Hispanics born in Europe and South and Central America.

BUT, GET this: Also eliminated from minority status would be persons born in Vietnam, India, China, Korea—and Africa.

The problem seems to be that some minorities are getting what is considered more than a fair share of city contracts. For example, four local Hispanic-owned companies have won a total of more than $20 million worth of the city's minority contracts in the last year.

That's 40 percent of the entire minority share of the city market.

The deciding factor would be whether or not a minority company's owners were "historically disadvantaged" in the U.S. American-born blacks have always qualified under this rather broad guideline, and the rules have been expanded to include other racial minorities.

WELL, PUERTO RICO is part of the U.S., so immigrants from that island presumably were "disadvantaged" in this country? But Mexico?

But the kicker is the inclusion of Africa among the countries whose natives would no longer get special treatment. Surely most of the immigrants from Africa are black.

Would the MBOC really decide that an immigrant from, say, Nigeria is less equal than a black from Alabama. Yes it would, and the devil take all that stirring talk about black "unity."

I suppose Col. Milton Carey has a point. Carey, president of the Minority Contractors of America, representing primarily black contractors, had this to say:

"THERE ARE Spanish who have culturally lived as white persons all their lives and in recent years found it profitable to consider themselves a minority to take advantage of business in the minority community."

For long years, Italians and Poles were sentenced to ditch-digging and other menial jobs. They were "culturally" and, more important, financially "disadvantaged." How come their children don't qualify for special privileges today?

The MBOC seems to be saying racism is respectable so long as it's applied selectively to the greater good of a majority bloc in the nation's capital.

model, was delivered to Cienfuegos Feb. 7, along with two hydrofoil patrol boats.

U.S. specialists believe the sub will be used to train Cuban submarine crews.

Submarine No. 2, tentatively identified as a W-2 ("Whiskey Two"), is also a diesel-powered boat with conventional torpedo tubes and no nuclear weapons.

Although its precise purpose is a mystery, the proven existence of another lethal, snorkel-equipped sub in U.S.-controlled Caribbean waters may force the Pentagon into analytical studies that are dangerously overdue.

THE "CONSOLIDATED guidance" which, under top secret cover, is sent to the services each year from the office of the secretary of defense has utterly ignored the future possibility that Cuba might pose a threat.

Some responsible and skeptical specialists think they know the reason for this: If Secretary of Defense Harold Brown ordered up contingency plans on how to deal with hostile Cuba in a global conflict, hard answers would be absolutely essential to questions now being ducked.

Among these questions: what conceivable purpose does Moscow have in supplying Castro with submarines, no matter if they are new or old, powered by nuclear or conventional engines and possessing nuclear or conventional armaments? What purpose do the Soviets have in supplying Cuba with a squadron—or possibly more—of MIG-23 late-model attack aircraft, whether or not armed with nuclear weapons?

Does the Soviet Union plan to support Cuban forces, armed with those Soviet weapons, for future Africa-style exercises in Latin America?

THESE ARE real questions, not to be ducked any longer. There is solid new evidence, for example, that Soviet fishing fleets will soon make their first appearance on the Balboa or Pacific Ocean side of the Panama Canal.

Their presence will enhance Soviet intelligence-gathering just as the U.S. begins to phase out total control of the canal under the new U.S.-Panama treaties.

We reported last Nov. 15, about Brown's private warning to President Carter that MIG-23s being delivered to Cuba posed a problem of "high political sensitivity."

Brown was reminding Carter of the Soviet pledge to President Kennedy during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis not to send offensive weapons to Cuba.

Carter's response, never publicly explained, was that the MIG-23s were not offensive weapons and therefore violated no Soviet pledge.

SUBMARINES NOW have been added to the list of weapons being supplied to Cuba, for a purpose never made clear to Congress or the American people.

The administration appears to have decided the submarines are not "offensive" within the meaning of the 1962 Soviet promise.

Yet, even old submarines pose grave dangers to the security of U.S.-controlled sea lanes into and around the Caribbean, particularly if the Cubans do today what the U.S. was strong enough to forbid them from doing almost 10 years ago.

In 1970, the U.S. successfully delivered what amounted to an ultimatum against Soviet-Cuban construction of submarine pens equipped to service nuclear Soviet submarines.

THE PREPONDERANT nuclear margin the U.S. then held over the Soviet Union has vanished. A similar ultimatum today would be horse-laughed out of the Kremlin.

Nothing at all is being said about Cuba's two submarines or about the strong probability that some kind of sub base is being built for them. To Moscow, that might look like appeasement and an invitation to continue what one eminent U.S. naval authority privately told us was "the creeping escalation of Soviet power in the Caribbean using the Cuban proxy."

The real Cuba story may be switching from the jungles and deserts of Africa and Yemen to the backyard of America. That would be a chilling change of climate.

JAY HARRIS:

A Deadly Threat...

AS BAD AS the recent Wichita Falls tornado was, a "properly aimed" hurricane could cause many times as much damage and hundreds of more deaths.

That grim warning has been sounded by insurance officials in Texas and the National Weather Service as another hurricane season opens for the nation.

The odds are "very high" that a killer storm will devastate some area of the Gulf or South Atlantic seaboard of the U.S. some time in the next four months, Richard Frank of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said as the season got underway Friday.

It has been several years since the U.S. mainland has been the target of such a major storm, and the massive population and industrial growth along the long coastline make the area very vulnerable for a disaster.

"SOON, VERY soon perhaps, a hurricane will kill hundreds, if not thousands of Americans," Frank says.

Such a storm could "cause billions of dollars in property damage..."

"Look up and down any beachfront and compare it with a dozen years ago," Frank notes. "The population of coastal areas is growing at three times the national rate..."

"We know a certain number of hurricanes hit land in a certain number of years," the NOAA official adds. "The chances of this happening in Florida, or anywhere along the Gulf or South Atlantic coast, are very high. The only thing we don't know is when and where..."

The major concern of officials, along the Texas Gulf coast and elsewhere is "public apathy." Fewer than one of today's four coastal dwellers has experienced a major hurricane which has led to an attitude of "it can't happen here..."

AS A RESULT of the potential for a catastrophe which some fear could approach the all-time record Galveston island death toll of 8,000 lives lost, extra precautions are being taken to warn residents.

In addition to the warnings from the NOAA, the Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Assn., has issued a number of advisories for Texas Gulf residents.

Ironically, while most coastal area people regard the treacherous Gulf blows as "almost as dangerous" as a tornado, the truth of the matter is that they get both.

It is not unusual for a major hurricane, especially along the Gulf area to spawn up to a dozen or more tornadoes as its 100-mile-an-hour or higher winds drive ashore. This was the case when Hurricane Celia devastated the Corpus Christi region only three months after the May 11, 1970 Lubbock Tornado.

In 1967, the greatest one-day number of tornadoes in history—115—was spawned from a single system following Hurricane Beulah.

THE U.S. mainland was hit in 1972 by Hurricane Agnes, which left 122 dead and $2.1 billion in property damage.

It has been 14 years since Hurricane Betsy brushed the South Florida coastline, killing 75 and causing $1.2 billion damage in an area usually raked by the winds every seven years.

Since that time, not only have Florida coastal areas seen cities and other sections boom with thousands of new residents, but massive building of homes and businesses. Today, thousands could be stranded and perhaps drowned if warnings are not heeded.

Residents of the Florida Keys and other low-lying sections are especially vulnerable, Frank says. But, Texas officials note that much of the Texas coast, from Brownsville to Port Arthur-Orange, also has been blessed with a burgeoning population growth in the past 10 years. The potential for disaster here also is very great.

ONE THING which worries officials in the sprawling Houston-Galveston areas is the fact that the land mass in that section has sunk in recent years.

The massive pumping of water has lowered some sections one to three feet, it is claimed.

Any major hurricane, especially at high tide, could send huge waves roaring over low sections, inundating literally hundreds of homes, highways and escape routes.

Four-foot tides could cut off residents of Galveston, South Padre and Mustang Islands, as well as Bolivar Peninsula as far as 26 hours in advance of the hurricane's landfall, Texas Transportation Institute Research official Thomas Urbanik says.

Under the best of conditions, a Texas A&M storm study shows, almost 13 hours would be needed to evacuate Galveston island alone. This does not take into consideration the thousands of tourists who visit the barrier islands and nearby coastal areas during the summer.

IF ONE IS to believe in "the odds," then it might be wise to take precautions now...

The populous Houston-Galveston areas has been spared for 18 years since Carla hit. It has been 12 years since a major storm, Beulah, hit Brownsville, and nine since Celia ravaged Corpus Christi.

And although all three storms caused death and damage, none of them was rated as "most severe."

Actually, a "severe" hurricane as measured by wind scales—of more than 180 miles an hour—has not hit the Texas coast since 1916. It is this factor alone, plus the fact many families who have never lived through one may ignore early warnings, that concerns those charged with protecting lives and property.

On a lighter note, should the "big one" strike this year, it may not bear a woman's name. This season, NOAA yielded to years of pressure from women's groups and has given every other hurricane a male name. The first one will be Ana, followed by Bob, Claudette, David, Elena, Frederic and so on. If one does land, it's more grim name may indeed be Death...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

IT WAS in Dublin, Ireland, about 180 years ago that a bright fellow bet his associates he could coin a word that would wind up in general use just about everywhere.

You're on, he said, or words to that effect. So he manufactured a four-letter little gem totally without any meaning at the time. He wrote it in public places. He distributed it on handbills. He published it in periodicals.

Nobody understood it. It caught the national and even the international curiosity. And finally acquired a definition, too. The word was "quiz."

Italy Voting Starts Quietly

ROME (AP) — Italians from the northern Alps to the island of Sicily voted peacefully on the first of two days of Parliamentary elections Sunday in balloting predicted to deal Italian Communists their first setback.

Soldiers and police maintained close surveillance of the country's 76,466 voting districts. Only a few minor disturbances were reported, despite terrorist threats to disrupt the national election.

Polls before the election indicated that the big Communist Party, which won 34 percent of the vote three years ago, would lose a few percentage points when the final results are in.

The ruling Christian Democrats, whose popular vote slumped to 38.7 percent in the last election, were expected to gain and go over the 40 percent mark, adding force to their pledge to keep the Communists out of the government.

A check of some voting stations in Rome showed that security was heavy but involved only a few more agents than in previous elections. The army usually provides security in election districts.

Polls opened at 7 a.m. under clear skies, and millions cast their ballots without major disturbances.

Voting places were to close at 10 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT) Sunday and reopen Monday at 7 a.m. until 2 p.m. (7 a.m.). Definitive results are expected late Monday evening.

An explosive device went off Sunday in front of a newspaper office in Catania, Sicily, causing no injuries and only minor damage. An anonymous telephone caller to the newspaper said the leftist revolutionary Red Brigades claimed responsibility for the blast.

A knife-wielding youth carrying fire-bombs was apprehended near a voting station in Brescia, in the north, while cement was sprayed on a voting booth in Ascoli Piceno in central Italy. In the northern city of Cesena, bundles of the Communist Party newspaper L'Unita were set afire. Police reported no injuries.

Last month the caretaker government of Premier Giulio Andreotti called in thousands of soldiers to guard public buildings and party offices to combat terrorism that claimed 30 lives last year, including that of former Premier Aldo Moro, president of the Christian Democrat Party, who was kidnapped and killed by the Red Brigades terrorists.

Terrorists, many of them claiming to be from the Marxist left, staged attacks during the 40-day campaign in an attempt to disrupt the election process. Various groups, including the Red Brigades, claimed responsibility for killing policemen, wounding party officials and bombing public and party buildings. Christian Democrats have been the main targets, but on Saturday a Communist Party headquarters in Sardinia was bombed.

Summer weather apparently has lured many potential voters to vacation spots, causing voter turnout to lag in many districts.

The electorate of 42 million, 23 million of them women, are choosing 630 members of the Chamber of Deputies and 315 senators for Italy's eighth postwar Parliament.

The deputies choose the president, whose duties are largely ceremonial. He nominates a prime minister, who chooses a cabinet, subject to parliamentary approval.

The election, fourth in the last 11 years, was called when the Communist Party demanded cabinet seats and pulled out of an accord with the Christian Democrats.

Spray Liability Disputed

MONROE, La. (AP) — Monroe officials say land sprayed by paraquat which drifted off-target onto nearby homes was under agricultural lease to a man whose insurance will have to pay for trees, crops and gardens destroyed by the poisonous cloud.

But the city commissioner in charge of the municipal airport says Ray Wright, the man identified by Mayor Bob Powell as leasing the land, was spraying it under contract to the city.

"The property is not under lease to anyone," Commissioner of Finance and Utilities Harlan Prestridge said Saturday night. "The property is owned by the city of Monroe. We had engaged a crop sprayer to spray this area of the airport."

He said the land is in the landing path to the airport and the city wanted to keep it free of trees and underbrush to keep birds from nesting there.

"As city attorney, our position is that the city of Monroe had a contract with Ray Wright to do this spraying for the city," said Patrick H. Wright, city attorney.

Energy Crisis Ranked With Inflation

NEW YORK (AP) — Faced with long lines at service stations and soaring gasoline prices, Americans now say energy is as serious a national problem as inflation, a new Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

The events of recent weeks have convinced the public that the nation's energy situation is important. But attitudes toward those energy problems are contradictory.

—The public continues to blame higher prices and shortages on the oil companies, saying the gasoline shortage is a hoax contrived by the companies to raise prices and profits.

—As a result, there is no national consensus on what to do to solve the current gasoline situation. The public splinters on that point, with a threatening stance toward the oil-producing countries and reductions in driving getting the most support.

—Most Americans have not personally faced problems getting gasoline in the past month. Only one out of four reports they have waited in a service station line, hunted for an open station or been limited in how much gas they could buy.

For more than a year, the soaring cost of living was the undisputed top concern of the American people.

As recently as the first of May, the AP-NBC News poll found a third of the public naming inflation the top national problem, with energy a distant second at 18 percent.

But the latest poll, taken May 29, found inflation and energy in a virtual tie for the dubious honor of being the nation's top problem.

The cost of living was named by 32 percent of those interviewed, but energy had jumped to 29 percent. Because of the margin of error inherent in a sample survey of 800 adults nationwide, there is no significant difference between those two figures.

Crime was named by 10 percent and mortality by nine percent. The remainder were scattered among other issues or were not sure.

Finder Says Arkansas Gem Worth $20,000

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A retired carpenter from Arizona who prospects for gold and diamonds has found a diamond he thinks is worth $20,000. He found the gem while prospecting at Crater of Diamonds State Park.

Jim Cannon, park superintendent, said Saturday that the diamond found by Jim Williamson, 57, of Black Canyon City, Ariz., weighed five carats, eight points, one of the 10 largest found at the park.

The park covers several acres where diamonds were mined earlier this century.

Of course, concerns about energy and inflation cannot be completely separated. The soaring prices paid for gasoline and other petroleum products are a major facet both of the nation's energy problem and the rising cost of living. For example, the 1.1 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index in April was due in large part to higher gasoline and energy prices.

As has been true for more than a year, the public thinks gasoline shortages are a hoax. Sixty-five percent call the shortages a hoax versus 25 percent who say they are real. Ten percent were not sure.

By an even higher 71-24 margin, the public agrees that "the oil companies have created the shortage of gasoline so they could raise prices and increase their profits."

But the public has no clear idea of what to do about the gasoline situation.

—Thirty percent say we should get tough with the oil-producing countries:

—Twenty-one percent think consumers should cut back on driving;

—Thirteen percent say the government should order increased production of gasoline;

—Nine percent say oil companies should be allowed to raise prices to encourage production;

—Eight percent say the government should take over the oil companies;

—Seven percent back gasoline rationing; and —Twelve percent were not sure.

Although there has been heavy coverage of gasoline problems when and where they have occurred, most of the public hasn't faced a long line.

Seventy-four percent said they have experienced no problems getting gasoline in the past month. Twenty-six percent said they have faced long lines, closed service stations or restrictions on the amount of gasoline they could purchase at one station.

As might be expected, the greatest difficulties in finding gasoline were reported in the Western states, with the East reporting a higher level of difficulty than average. Drivers in the South and Midwest were less likely to say they had faced problems.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 800 interviews, the results should vary no more than five percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than five percentage points.

Rain Leaves South Plains Area

The seemingly endless parade of rain that dampened the South Plains and much of Texas for nearly a week finally has passed over, leaving the area with partly cloudy skies and welcome sunshine.

Today in Lubbock, the weather will be partly cloudy and about ten degrees warmer than Sunday's high of 76. The low tonight will drop to about 65 degrees, and the wind is expected to blow from the south at 10 to 15 mph.

Tuesday's high will be 85 degrees.

The chance for rain remains in the forecast through Tuesday. The National Weather Service says scattered showers and thunderstorms could develop across West Texas during the late afternoon and early evening hours.

The cloudy, dreary weather pattern that had stalled over the South Plains early last week has been forced to the Texas-Louisiana border area by a high pressure system in the west. That system should continue to push big, billowy clouds over the area, but the most severe weather from the clouds is expected to occur south of the South Plains.

The most recent bouts with the rain left reports of moderate precipitation across the area; but no location reported more than one-third of an inch.

Plains topped the area charts with .28 of an inch recorded in the last 36 hours, and was followed by Levelland with .24. Brownfield had .21, and Big Spring charted .19. Lubbock recorded .06 of an inch during that time.

It rained cats and dogs in Nacogdoches over the weekend — or so it seemed.

BOYS STATE TO ASSEMBLE

AUSTIN (UPI) — More than 900 high school students will assemble at the University of Texas Wednesday for the 1979 session of American Legion Boys State. The program, by the American Legion of Texas, is an annual event designed to teach boys the responsibilities of citizenship in a "do yourself" type program. George H. Skelley, the legion's state commander, said this year's motto would be "Learn by Doing."

Newspaper Says 'Operation Condor' Finances Torture, Murder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Operation Condor," a $12 million-a-year federal program to help Mexico fight the narcotics trade, also has financed the murder and torture of suspects by Mexican police, according to The Village Voice newspaper.

Federal officials, responding to charges raised by the Voice's six-month investigation, would not rule out the possibility that Mexican police may have beaten hundreds of suspected narcotics traffickers.

But they told United Press International the administration has "no evidence" of the alleged human rights violations — mainly because U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents are required to leave the scene once Mexican police make an arrest.

"There may be some blinders to knowing everything that's going on," said Ed Coor, a deputy assistant secretary of state for narcotics matters.

The Voice, a New York City weekly, published a lengthy account by reporter

Craig Pye, who investigated the Mexican narcotics operation with help from the Fund for Investigative Journalism.

His report said Mexican bar associations have documented "no less than 18 different forms of torture used by Mexican narcotics agents" during interrogations.

It said one man's legs were amputated, three prisoners "disappeared" and five died.

While Pye found no evidence linking U.S. agents to the torture, he quoted

Mexican police as saying DEA agents "knew about these practices and on occasion were present and witnessed the interrogations."

Robert Feldkamp, a DEA Spokesman in Washington, said, "Nobody's suggesting we're involved in brutality and we're certainly not commenting on what the Mexicans are doing."

"We haven't witnessed them," he said. "We leave before the interrogations take place. That's part of the guidelines for us when we operate outside the country."

DEA Administrator Peter Bensinger has credited "Operation Condor" with reducing the flow of heroin from Mexico to the United States and cutting U.S. drug overdose deaths by 1,000 a year.

U.S. law, however, bars aid to countries that engage in a consistent pattern of human rights violations.

Asked about the Village Voice disclosure, Coor told UPI: "We don't have any information here that would substantiate those charges."

Moynihan Claims U.S. Wants United Ireland

LONDON (AP) — The United States wants strife-torn Northern Ireland united with the Irish Republic and cannot be expected to be "endlessly patient," U.S. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan said Saturday night.

The New York Democrat's remarks were expected to increase British annoyance at a spate of recent comments by Irish-American politicians about the British-run province.

Guerrillas of the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army recently have been stepping up their decade-old war aimed at driving Britain out of the predominantly Protestant province and uniting it with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

In the Northern Ireland town of Armagh, Saturday, two unidentified gunmen shot and killed a police reservist and a civilian, bringing the toll in 10 years of sectarian strife to at least 1,913.

Moynihan, speaking in a television interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., denounced the IRA's militant "Provisional" wing as a "band of sadistic murderers."

But he said: "Ireland has a right to expect that it will be a unified country."

He said Britain was using U.S. efforts to reduce American support for the IRA as an excuse to be less concerned about the Irish issue than in the past.

"We hope to see Ireland united. We hope to see a successful democracy there and a multireligious, tolerant, successful country," Moynihan said. "I would hope it would not be supposed that we will be endlessly patient."

Last week Margaret Thatcher's new Conservative Government reacted sharply to a statement by House Speaker Thomas O'Neill that America's sale of pistols and rifles to the mainly Protestant Northern Ireland police force would be construed as taking sides.

Humphrey Atkins, Mrs. Thatcher's secretary for Northern Ireland, responded sharply, saying the province's police force is legally constituted, has borne the brunt of nearly a decade of terrorist warfare and needs modern weapons to defend itself and the community from "mindless assassins."

O'Neill also angered both the Conservatives and the Labor Party — now in opposition — when he said during a visit to Ireland last April that British political parties treated Northern Ireland as a political football. Spokesmen for both parties accused O'Neill of using the issue of Northern Ireland to try to win Irish-American votes.

Twins' State Still Stable

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Separated Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen remained in critical but stable condition Sunday, their doctors checking for signs of infection, a hospital spokesman said.

"We are in a very cautious, wait-and-see period. There can be no quick answers concerning the twins," said John Dwan, University of Utah Medical Center spokesman.

The 19-month-old girls — joined at the tops of their heads at birth — were separated in a 16½-hour operation last Tuesday that is described as the first surgery of its kind to be successful.

"The attending physicians continually remind us that it may be weeks or months before a definitive prognosis can be made," Dwan said. "The skin flaps and grafts on the girls' heads have taken, however, and are being received by the recipient areas."

The areas where the girls once were joined are covered by folds of skin taken from their heads and legs.

Doctors have said they may need additional plastic surgery, but will have normal foreheads with a hairline. However, they probably will have to wear wigs.

"The major danger continues to be infection," although there were no signs of any infection Sunday, Dwan said.

He said their eating and sleeping habits are progressing.

"They are receiving all of their nourishment — including baby food, fruit juices and milk — by mouth. Medical officials caution again, however, that these signs should not be taken to mean the danger has passed," Dwan said.

The twins' parents, David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, continue to spend a lot of time with their daughters, he said, but aren't staying at the hospital.

An estimated 100,000 wild turkeys will be bagged this year in the 29 states that have hunting seasons for the birds.

Treasury Chief Sees No Evidence For Recession This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans face "difficult months ahead," but there is no evidence the nation will suffer "a major recession of any kind," Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said Sunday.

He acknowledged, however, that unless productivity is improved, Americans' standard of living won't rise as rapidly as it did during the 1960s and early 1970s.

er, while others expect even higher joblessness before the year ends.

Blumenthal told his interviewees that despite an unabated rise in inflation and an election next year, Carter won't take dramatic action just to be dramatic. "He won't slap on wage and price controls."

Blumenthal, interviewed on the CBS television program "Face the Nation," said that despite signs of an economic slowdown, he doesn't expect negative economic growth in any quarter of the year.

The secretary said the economic slowdown will gradually increase unemployment, but not to "anything near" the eight percent level of 1976.

The secretary said revised anti-inflation guidelines that "make sense" and assure "mutual sacrifice" among business and labor will be recommended to Carter by late summer or early fall.

Blumenthal said oil deregulation, which began on Friday, is even more important in light of continued price increases by world oil producers.

—Last year's $15 billion tax cut was "the right thing to do." While acknowledging that it may have been inflationary, the secretary said the decrease stimulated business investment, which would help improve productivity — one way to cut inflation.

And labor will cooperate, despite many unions' tough words to the contrary, the secretary said. "They will recognize that no one can get ahead of this (inflation) game."

—If Congress wants to help the president beat back inflation, it should enact the administration's hospital cost containment proposal.

Blumenthal said the extra costs decontrol will have on Americans, particularly the elderly and low-income families, will be "very gradual."

Florida Inmate Wants Another Legal Counsel

On other points, Blumenthal said: —Carter is "keenly aware" of the burden that increased Social Security taxes impose on employers and workers. He said he anticipates some sort of roll-

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Theodore Robert Bundy learns Monday whether a judge will grant him new legal counsel in his murder case, a move that could further delay the trial.

Circuit Judge Edward Cowart Jr. previously said he would grant another continuance in Bundy's case only in extraordinary circumstances.

Bundy's case, however, took another unexpected turn last week when the 33-year-old former law student asked Cowart to remove public defender Michael Minerva as his attorney. Bundy claimed that Minerva thinks he may be guilty of killing two women at the Chi Omega sorority.

Bundy told Cowart that Minerva had a conversation with him in which he expressed both his reservations about Bundy's innocence, and his belief that there is no way Bundy could avoid conviction.

Minerva and several of his assistants who have been helping with the preparations for the trial, scheduled to begin June 11, filed a motion of their own Friday which asked that Cowart relieve them of their responsibility to defend Bundy. They cited "irreconcilable conflict."

Bundy has made his preference for legal counsel clear on repeated occasions. He wants controversial Atlanta attorney Millard Farmer to handle the case. But Farmer is not a member of the Florida Bar. He needs permission from the trial judge to represent a client — permission he has been denied repeatedly.

In his motion for new counsel, Bundy also asked that his trial be delayed at least three months to give his new attorneys time to prepare for the case. In the alternative, he told Cowart he wants to defend himself if new counsel is not appointed.

Bundy is charged with first-degree murder in the Jan. 15, 1978 beating deaths of Chi Omega sorority sisters Margaret Bowman and Lisa Levy, both of St. Petersburg. He also is charged with assaults that same night on three other women, two of them members of the sorority.

He is scheduled to stand trial in September in Lake City, Fla., for the abduction and murder of Kimberly Dianne Deach, 12, a schoolgirl.

When arrested in Pensacola, Fla. he was a fugitive from Colorado, where he had been awaiting trial for the 1975 killing of a Michigan nurse who was slain while on a skiing vacation at Aspen, Colo.

Marchers Protest U.S.-Cuba Dialogue

MIAMI (AP) — More than 2,000 members of the Cuban exile community marched to protest the treatment of prisoners in Cuban jails and to reaffirm their disapproval of any dialogue with the communist regime.

The march Saturday — from the Orange Bowl to the Jose Marti monument in Hialeah — was the largest human rights demonstration here in recent weeks.

It focused primarily on the treatment of "plantado" prisoners — political prisoners who have not accepted any rehabilitative programs offered by the Castro government.

Letters brought here from Cuba recently allege that Eloy Gutierrez Menoyo had been put in solitary confinement for having opposed the dialogue that began last year between some factions of the exile community and the Castro regime.

The talks have brought about the release of many prisoners. Most have come to the United States, while some have gone to Venezuela, Panama and Spain.

Gutierrez Menoyo and his followers have been steadfast against any dialogue with Castro. They want "liberty without conditions."

Cubans here learned that Gutierrez Menoyo and an estimated 20 other "plantados" began a hunger strike in the Combinado del Este prison early last month as a protest against the treatment they receive. Saturday's demonstration was in support of Cuban prisoners who refuse rehabilitation under Castro guidelines.

UNDERGROUND AGENT — Herbert O'Dell Smith, known as "Digger O'Dell," waves from the vault in which he says he will remain buried until the price of gas comes down. O'Dell, who went underground Friday in front of his Phenix City, Ala., mobile home, has written letters to President Carter and the governors of all the states protesting the cost of gas. (AP Laserphoto)

Human Mole Goes Underground Until Gas Prices Come Down

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP) — Digger O'Dell says he is sick and tired of the high cost of gasoline and so decided to do something about it — he had himself buried alive and says he will stay there until prices fall.

It is the 158th burial in a long career of publicity stunts for O'Dell — working name for Herbert O'Dell Smith — who will be 63 on June 10. He says he is coming out of a 10-year retirement to protest gasoline prices "the only way I know how."

Since Friday he has lain flat on his back, six feet underground, in the front yard of Mack's Mobile Homes at Phenix City, in east-central Alabama.

His grave is 32 inches wide, 32 inches high and 6 feet long — he is 5-foot-11 and 200 pounds. The temperature, despite an electric fan, is around 84 degrees during the day.

He says he will stay there "until gasoline prices come down" — he says he once stayed down 79 days — and in the meantime he talks to visitors about the gasoline problem.

"Might as well stay here, since I can't afford gasoline to go anywhere," he told spectators during the weekend.

Digger, who says his only pay is contributions, has performed in nearly every state, providing publicity for everything from car dealers to amusement parks by being perched on flagpoles, encased in glass, sealed in a car and submerged in water inside a steel vault.

University Receives Donations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antioch University, in the throes of a fiscal crisis, has obtained enough emergency donations to allow it to open this fall. Antioch President William M. Bierbaum said the university received $700,000 during the past three weeks, and trustees had formulated plans to bridge cash-flow problems this summer.

A Dayton, Ohio, bank had given the school until Monday to come up with enough money to bring all defaulted loans up to date. Antioch's main campus is in Yellow Springs, Ohio, with branches in nine other cities, including a law school in Washington.

Ala., mobile home, has written letters to President Carter and the governors of all the states protesting the cost of gas. (AP Laserphoto)

"There is no gasoline shortage, only gasoline wastage," he says.

To go along with his protest, he says he wrote to President Carter and the 50 state governors letting them know what he is doing and why.

He also asked Carter to make it illegal for students to drive to school. "You can drive by any big high school and the teachers can't get a place to park for the students," he says.

"If those students would leave those cars at home for 30 days, imagine the millions of gallons you would save."

Visitors can look through a glass window in the top of his underground cell and talk to him through an intercom.

He talked about "truck drivers who waste fuel by letting their 18-wheelers idle in front of truck stops, students who waste gasoline driving to and from school, and if we can prove to the OPEC nations we don't need them, prices will come down."

Digger says he is convinced the people of Phenix City and nearby Columbus, Ga., never sleep — they are constantly calling him or stopping by to visit.

He has two telephones, one on which he can talk to the public and one unlisted for emergencies and calls from, he hopes, the governors or the president.

He also has a small television set and a radio. He uses a board for a bed and has a small toilet. Food and water are lowered through a trapdoor.

A doctor checks on him regularly. In a burial in South Carolina in 1976, Digger says, he had to be brought up abruptly when he suffered a heart attack.

A widower for several years, Digger remarried a couple of years ago and moved to a farm at Cumming, Ga., so firmly retired that even his new wife did not know about his career in publicity stunting.

He says it wasn't until plans were under way for what he calls his "next-to-last burial" that she learned she was married to the famous Digger O'Dell. "But she understands and approves," he said.

Accused Mass Strangler Was Reserve Policeman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man accused of five of the Hillside Strangler murders took part in a "ride-along" program for Los Angeles Police Department reserve applicants, according to published reports.

One of Kenneth Bianchi's two trips was two days after the body of one of the victims was discovered, the Los Angeles Times said in its Sunday editions.

Bianchi, being held in the state of Washington for trial in the slaying of two coeds, rode in police patrol cars twice in 1977, and once asked to be shown where the Los Angeles-area strangler's victims had been dumped, the newspaper said.

During their investigation, police said the Hillside Strangler had knowledge of police procedures — after repeated rumors that the killer could be a policeman.

"I'm sure he is a very good student of police operations," said Chief Daryl Gates at a Dec. 22, 1977, news conference.

Bianchi has been charged with 16 felony counts related to five of the Hillside Strangler killings, which took the lives of 13 girls and young women between September 1977 and February 1978.

The Times said the 28-year-old Bianchi participated in the ride-along program the first time for about two hours with Sgt. John Rogers. After the ride, Rogers noted in his log that Bianchi was planning to become a police reserve officer.

"I feel he is an excellent candidate and should prove to be an asset to the reserve program," Rogers wrote.

On Dec. 14, 1977 — two days after the nude body of a 17-year-old strangler victim was discovered — Bianchi rode for more than four hours with Sgt. Arthur Lopez, the paper said.

Lopez later recalled that he and Bianchi had discussed the series of strangulation murders and said Bianchi expressed a desire to be shown the sites where the bodies had been found, the Times said.

Lopez did not comply with the request, although he noted that Bianchi told him about a short-cut through the hilly area northeast of downtown Los Angeles where several bodies had been dumped.

Records indicate that Bianchi discontinued reserve activity shortly thereafter, but it was not known why he dropped out.

After he left California and moved to Washington, he joined the Whatcom County sheriff's office and was a reserve deputy until his arrest Jan. 13 — two days after the bodies of two Western Washington University students were found in the trunk of a car.

Defaced Paintings Studied By Experts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Experts at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art examined eight vandalized paintings Sunday to determine if the artworks — including two Picassos — could be restored easily.

The paintings were defaced Friday with an unidentified object, authorities said.

In a preliminary examination, museum experts described the damage as "largely superficial," and said the paintings "all can be readily restored."

The museum declined to reveal the exact nature of the damage, but unofficial police reports said some of the paintings were cut, and some were marked with a substance similar to crayon, said Wilshire Division Sgt. Randall Lloyd.

Pratapaditya Pal, acting director of the museum, said the paintings "were damaged with a sort of a key or something metal," he said.

It was also unofficially reported that someone had marked X's on the surface of the paintings, which were part of an exhibit of early 20th century European and American works.

A security guard discovered the damage after the museum closed Friday, Pal said.

Officials declined to place any estimate on the damage until experts have thoroughly assessed the paintings' conditions.

"Regrettably, assaults upon artistic treasures are an international sickness," Pal said in a statement. He noted incidents of vandalism have occurred in recent years at other museums, and said the incident Friday was "the first such at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art in over a decade."

The damaged works were: Picasso's "Courtesan" and "Woman Weeping," Rouault's "Christ," Baker's "Children," Lutz's "The Secret," Neal's "After the Hunt," Prentice's "Still Life" and Wood's "Arbor Day."

Lubbock Woman Raped While Tied To Chair

A 29-year-old Lubbock woman told police Sunday that she was beaten, tied to a chair and then raped during an incident at an apartment in the 2300-block of Avenue H Saturday night.

The victim said that about 7:30 p.m. a black man tried to enter her apartment but she fought him off, locking the door on him.

Police reports show that when the woman went outside later, four black males attacked her and began beating her and dragged her into their apartment, where they tied her to a chair.

The woman said the suspects were drinking and began making bets on "who would get me." She said one of the men approached her and raped her while she was still tied to the chair.

The victim told officers that when the suspects fell asleep, she freed herself and returned to her apartment, where she got her children and walked to the county jail to report the offense.

The woman was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital and released.

A 22-year-old Reese Air Force Base man was robbed of $65 after an incident about 2:20 a.m. Sunday at Seventh Street and Avenue X.

Steven Michael Pennington told police that he was giving four black men a ride from Uncle Nasty's and that when he stopped his car on Seventh Street, one of the men in the back seat grabbed his shoulders and the man in the front seat began hitting him.

Pennington said the men took his wallet and ran east on Seventh Street.

A 16-year-old youth reported that he and a friend were walking out of the DeCarlos Disco about 12:35 a.m. Sunday when four Mexican-American youths jumped them.

The victim said that one of the suspects held a switchblade on his friend while the other three youths beat him. The boy said his attackers were about 17 years old.

The victim was treated at HSCH and released.

A 16-year-old girl told police Saturday she was raped by her boyfriend's father at an apartment in the 5700-block of 50th Street Friday night.

The girl said she had gone to her boyfriend's house, found out that he wasn't home but stayed to talk to his father.

Reports show the man started kissing the girl, and that she told him to stop and went to sit on the living room couch. The girl said the man followed her to the room, began kissing her again and forced her down on the couch.

Reports indicate the girl tried to push the man away and began crying but that he raped her.

The girl was treated at HSCH and released.

Officers on routine patrol investigated a car fire at the DeCarlos Disco about 4 a.m. Sunday. Carlos Peres Jr., manager of the disco, said the car was worth $1,800. The fire marshal's office is investigating the fire's cause.

Police jailed a 17-year-old Lubbock man, whom they tried to stop for questioning in connection with the car fire at the disco, after a chase about 5 a.m. Sunday on Clovis Road.

Reports show that officers tried to stop the suspect for questioning at Cornell Street and Clovis Road, but that he sped off heading east on Clovis Road.

Police said the suspect, who was driving a 1971 Ford, struck a curb on the right side of Clovis Road, drove through a red light at Clovis Road and Avenue U, crossed the road and struck a curb in the 1700-block of Clovis Road before stopping.

An EMS ambulance took the suspect to HSCH, where he was treated, then released and taken to county jail.

Randy Wayne Thomas, 17, of 2013 Eighth St. said two white males got out of their car and assaulted him while he was at a red light at 50th Street and Slide Road about 11:00 p.m. Saturday.

Thomas told police a man got out of the car behind him, walked up to the passenger side of his pickup truck and kicked the fender. Thomas said he got out of his pickup, and hit the man in the stomach with a crutch.

Thomas said the man slammed the vehicle's door on his leg and that another man got out of the car and stabbed him in the leg.

The victim said he drove about a mile south of the city on Slide Road and turned around but his attackers continued pursuit. Thomas said that after the car stopped following him, he went to Methodist Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Thomas told police the men were 18 to 25 and tall and that one had black hair and the other blond.

A 26-year-old housewife reported that she and two friends were in the Blue Club about 11 p.m. Saturday and that her husband hit her in the back of the head with a glass.

The woman was treated at Methodist Hospital and released.

Two Littlefield women, Margarita C. Jasso, 43, and Barbara Trevino, 37, reported someone broke into their car and stole their purses while they were in a club at 1800 E. Broadway Saturday night. The women estimated their combined losses at about $215.

Two residents in the 2300-block of 26th Street reported break-ins that occurred sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

David L. Beards of 2324 28th St. said thieves took his stereo and 35mm camera, valued together at $2,600, while Jerry Loomer of 2322 28th St. reported that someone stole his $70 stereo system.

Two Killed In Car Crash

A-J Correspondent
CLOVIS, N.M. — A Clovis man and a Texico woman were killed late Saturday when the cars in which they were riding collided in a dense fog about 15 miles northeast of here, within a mile of the Texas border.

Emma Cassidy, 72, a passenger in one of the cars, was pronounced dead at the scene shortly after the 10:15 p.m. (MDT) crash by David Ash, New Mexico state deputy medical inspector. The driver of the car, Roy E. Ford, 70, of Broadview, N.M., is in guarded condition in Clovis' High Plains Hospital.

The driver of the second car, Timothy W. Smith, 21, died in the Littlefield Hospital several hours after the collision.

A passenger in his vehicle, 22-year-old Curtis Beachum of Clovis, is in serious condition in High Plains Hospital.

New Mexico State Patrolman Doug Ellis said Ford's car was northbound on State Road 108 when it collided with Smith's car, which was westbound on state road 77.

The crash's impact threw Mrs. Cassidy from Ford's vehicle, which then passed over her, according to reports.

Funeral services for Smith and Mrs. Cassidy are pending with Steed-Todd Funeral Home in Clovis.

Liver Cancer Claims Actor Jim Hutton

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jim Hutton, the boyish-looking actor who starred in a number of movies and the television series "Ellery Queen," is dead at the age of 45, Los Angeles New Hospital said Sunday.

Hutton's business manager, Murray Neidorf, said the actor died of liver cancer.

Hutton died at 1:45 p.m. Saturday, according to a brief statement by hospital spokeswoman Iby Corey. The hospital would not release details and Hutton's family was not available for comment.

Hutton's last feature role was in the Walt Disney television movie, "Sky Trap," which aired last month.

Hutton also appeared in "Hellfighters" and "The Green Berets" with John Wayne. Other film credits include "The Hallelujah Trail," "The Horizontal Lieutenant," "Where the Boys Are" and "Bachelor in Paradise."

In "Ellery Queen," which ran for one television season in 1975-76, Hutton portrayed the title character — a slightly bumbling but always successful detective.

His movie career began while he was in the army and stationed in Nurem-

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please write something about complete knee-joint replacement, which I am considering. What are the advantages? I have pain when walking and must use a cane for support or I don't get very far. I am only 57. Also, I am overweight. — A.J.M.

It would be nice to just replace "worn-out parts," but it's not as simple as pulling in to your nearest operating room to have it done. Complicated surgery is involved. But if you really need it, and it's available, and you can afford it, why not? Disabling pain is sufficient justification, the more so for a person in productive years who might suffer economically from disability.

The surgery is not always successful, and the results are better for some joints than for others. Hips and other "ball-and-socket" joints are easier to replace than complicated knee joints. Even finger joints can be replaced with the plastic prostheses.

In your letter, you tell me you are being treated for blood pressure. You have to bring that under reasonable control before surgery, and you might have to lose some of your weight. In fact, obesity can cause or contribute to weight-bearing joint problems. Nor do you mention arthritis, which at your age might be a factor. Are you trying to control that?

Generally, joint replacement surgery has improved greatly, and pain relief is expected in about 90 percent of patients who have it, depending upon which joint is involved, proper post-surgery therapy and other factors. Serious complications are reported in from 10 to 20 percent of cases of knee replacement (infection, rejection, loosening of the implants, etc.). It's an exciting field of medicine, but much has to be known about such things as long term 10-to-20-year results before it falls into the "routine" category. There's always danger of letting enthusiasm get ahead of performance.

Because of this and your anxiety you should set up an appointment. I don't want to scare the wits out of millions of women who have a few unwanted breast hairs. Many natural events can be involved, such as menopause in some women or, in young girls, puberty. It is the sudden, unexplained growth of such hair that I am concerned about.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 28-year-old married woman with two kids. A few months ago I noticed some hairs on my breast around the nipples. Now they have grown larger. I don't know what to do. Please advise me. I am really worried. — Mrs. K.

Growth of breast hair is almost always a matter of heredity, with little to do but remove the unwanted hairs. Everyone has hair follicles about the areola — the dark-pigmented area of the nipples and these may be more developed in some women than in others. But there are other matters to be considered in your specific case.

At your age, any sudden appearance of hair of this kind should be reported. Glands, such as the ovaries or adrenals, can affect such hair growth. Sometimes, a doctor can tell by other non-hair symptoms (and special tests) whether something more than heredity is involved.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I had two ectopic pregnancies, one in each tube. As of this writing I am seven and one half months pregnant with everything going good so far. My curiosity arises from a remark my doctor made: "This is a miraculous pregnancy, and should probably be reported." What do you think? — Mrs. C.P.

Th miracle is that the ovum (egg) was able to get to the uterus (womb) after such serious problems in both tubes.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have always been self-conscious about the appearance of the backs of my hands. They have large blue veins close to the surface. Is there anything I can do about them? I am 38. — Mrs. J.R.

Nothing to do and nothing you should want to do. At your age the veins represent nothing but healthy blood circulation. You probably are light-skinned, so your veins show more prominently than in darker-skinned individuals.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Just what is psyllium, which I find as an ingredient of a powdered bulk producer? Does it contain calories? — B.E.

The husks of the psyllium seed are used as the basis for some bulk-producing medicines. It's the seed of a kind of grain (Indian wheat) grown in the southwestern part of the country. There aren't enough calories in it to bother any weight restriction diet, only a handful per gram of mix.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader's questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

RASPBERRY SOUP
For a festive summer dessert, try this elegant and refreshing raspberry soup. Thaw and drain two packages (10 oz. each) frozen raspberries, reserving syrup. Add water to the syrup to equal two cups. In saucepan, combine berries, syrup, 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup lemon juice. Bring to boil over low heat, stirring frequently. Simmer gently, five to six minutes, until berries begin to break up. Cool to room temperature. Place half the berry mixture in container of food processor or blender; add 1/4 cup heavy cream. Cover and blend until pureed and frothy. Repeat with remaining berry mixture and remaining 1/4 cup heavy cream. Refrigerate several hours. Pour into chilled glass dishes or soup cups to serve. Makes about eight servings (one quart).

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag
Oswald: "The simple play with today's hand is for South to cash his ace of hearts, play three rounds of trumps ending in dummy, discard his losing spade on the king of hearts and lead dummy's queen of clubs."

Alan: "East takes his ace and forces South to ruff a spade with his last trump. Now South leads his king of clubs and winds up down two because clubs break 4-1 and the suit doesn't run."

Oswald: "Bad luck! All that South needed was a 3-2 club break. Expert South would have given himself a slight extra chance. He would play just two rounds of trumps before discarding his spade and attacking clubs. Then he could afford to let dummy's jack of clubs hold the second club trick, come to his hand with that third round of trumps and make the slam."

Alan: "This play would only succeed if the man with the singleton club held two trumps, but it risked nothing.

If club broke 3-2 no one would ruff the second round of clubs and the extra chance would pay off."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently my washer broke, so I had to go to the washateria. Instead of buying detergent there, I measured a cup of detergent for each tub of wash I had, put it in the separate bags and when I got to the washateria all I had to do was put my clothes in the machines, empty each bag of detergent into each machine and let them wash.

That way I didn't have to take that big old box, risk spilling it in the car and probably leaving it at the washateria. — Mrs. W. Mason

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint comes from an ex-bachelor! To make a "bachelor salad," cut a wedge of lettuce, hold it over the sink, pour on salad dressing and eat it like a piece of pie — no dirty dishes!! — Donald L. Jackson

DEAR HELOISE:

When I was growing up nearly every room of our house had a small wastebasket. As it wasn't my job to empty them I was never particularly concerned about how rapidly I filled them up. My father would always fish out the cardboard boxes, such as tissue boxes, and tear them into small pieces so they took up less space.

The baskets didn't need to be emptied nearly as often; a fact which I appreciate much more now that I have my own home and children.

This idea of my father's has proved to be very helpful through these past years. — Karen E. Kelly

DEAR HELOISE:

Another helpful hint you may add to your scores of ideas that save time, etc. is putting your combs and brushes in the washing machine with the towels. They all come out so pretty and clean and you have no extra pans, etc. to clean up. — Lucille Brombenk

DEAR HELOISE:

I just had to share this new-found idea with you and my other friends. I am an avid flower and plant lover. One day I discovered those little white mealybugs had attacked one of my favorite plants.

I didn't have any spray for plants, so I filled an empty spray-net bottle with rubbing alcohol and sprayed each leaf and also the trunk.

Sure enough, the next day all the bugs were dead and, better yet, none have returned. The plants seem to be doing even better than before. — A Faithful Reader

DEAR HELOISE:

What would we do without plastic? Yesterday I wanted to spread some lime on my lawn. I didn't have a spreader so I used one of those plastic flower pots with the four holes in the bottom. It worked beautifully! — Gertrude Harrison

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a 4-year-old boy who would not eat meat. It was very frustrating trying to sit through a meal with my husband or myself trying to prod him into eating.

One day I cut his meat into small cubes and had him count to four (his age) and eat every fourth cube. After counting to four several times, he even-

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

A mother wrote me the other day questioning the property rights of mothers. (Who has custody of the ice cubes, transparent tape and the piece of chicken in the condensed chicken soup.)

"Within minutes last weekend," she wrote, "I found my 19-year-old had taken my mascara to Michigan with him to keep his blond mustache noticeable. My 11-year-old had scrubbed the grass stains off his gym shoes with my toothbrush, and my four-year-old had taken my magic marker and made hex signs all over my heirloom bedspread. Do mothers have any rights at all?"

It all depends. Do you remember signing anything in the delivery room? Some women sign the MATERNAL VOW OF POVERTY while still heavily sedated. I don't remember signing it at all but when I awoke the kids had rights to the fillings in my teeth.

Would it shock you to know I have not found my comb in 15 years and comb my hair by running my fingers through it? Or that everyone has worn my white sweater except the dog? (And only because he looks lousy in white.)

At this point I am trying to outlaw the MATERNAL VOW OF POVERTY by introducing a Mother's Bill of Rights.

Visitation rights to the kitchen would be limited only to those either cleaning it or cooking in it. A mother would be able to "put by" a small, cold pork chop or a half bottle of cola without planting mines around it.

Persons lifting pencils, paper clips, rubber bands, typewriter ribbons, yardsticks, scissors, hairbrushes and other personal effects of mother would be prosecuted for trespassing.

Daughters pilfering soiled pantyhose would be detained, questioned, given a defense and a trial.

Daughters pilfering clean pantyhose would be shot on the spot.

Husbands returning your car with an empty gas tank are obliged to provide you a rental car and to try harder.

Birthday checks shall not be used to pay the phone bill and school lunches.

Wigs will not be borrowed for Trick-or-Treat and left to moulder in an old shopping bag.

And finally, mother will have one suitcase designated for her alone. She may need it.

Erma Bombeck is on vacation this week. This column is a repeat of one of her most popular columns. She will return next week.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠9532 ♥4 ♦Q765 ♣Q653
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Just because you made a raise on what some might consider sub-minimum values (we approve of the bid), you cannot get out of the auction now. You must give preference to three spades, partner's first suit. This is not another raise; it is merely a return to the agreed suit. Partner might not have a genuine club suit for his game try.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠63 ♥1043 ♦94 ♣KJ10765
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Possession of a six card minor suit is not sufficient excuse to keep the bidding open with fewer values than partner has a right to expect. Pass. Any action with your hand courts disaster.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J4 ♥J642 ♦K5 ♣AKJ76
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass 5 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If you think you hold a minimum hand, you have not listened to the auction. Your king of diamonds is of incalculable value. Partner has gone out of his way to show a strong hand with no more than one heart, and we can't see how there could be more than one loser in the combined holding. Bid six clubs. With the king of hearts instead of the king of diamonds, a pass of five clubs would be correct.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠954 ♥AKQJ64 ♦A32 ♣K
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass 6 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown first-round spade control and must surely have the ace of clubs to justify his cue-bid and jump to slam, especially since you know he does not have a high trump honor. Your king of clubs will fill in his suit, and you should be able to get all the discards you need. Bid seven hearts.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠754 ♥1083 ♦Q6 ♣A962
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—There is one absolute no-no—don't let a guilty conscience about the minimum nature of your first response make you pass now. Partner's bid is absolutely forcing. While you prefer clubs, partner should have a better chance at a ten-trick contract than at an eleven-trick one. Therefore, we would give preference to three hearts.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠643 ♥102 ♦965 ♣QJ963
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If you are playing weak jump overcalls, you have no problem—pass and hope that the opponents don't have a grand slam. But even if you are playing strong jump overcalls, you have a clear-cut pass. While partner is showing a good hand, it can't be strong enough for game-in-hand. He would have taken some other action (a double or a cue-bid) if he was that strong.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠932 ♥107 ♦J2 ♣AKQ97
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ ?

What do you bid now?

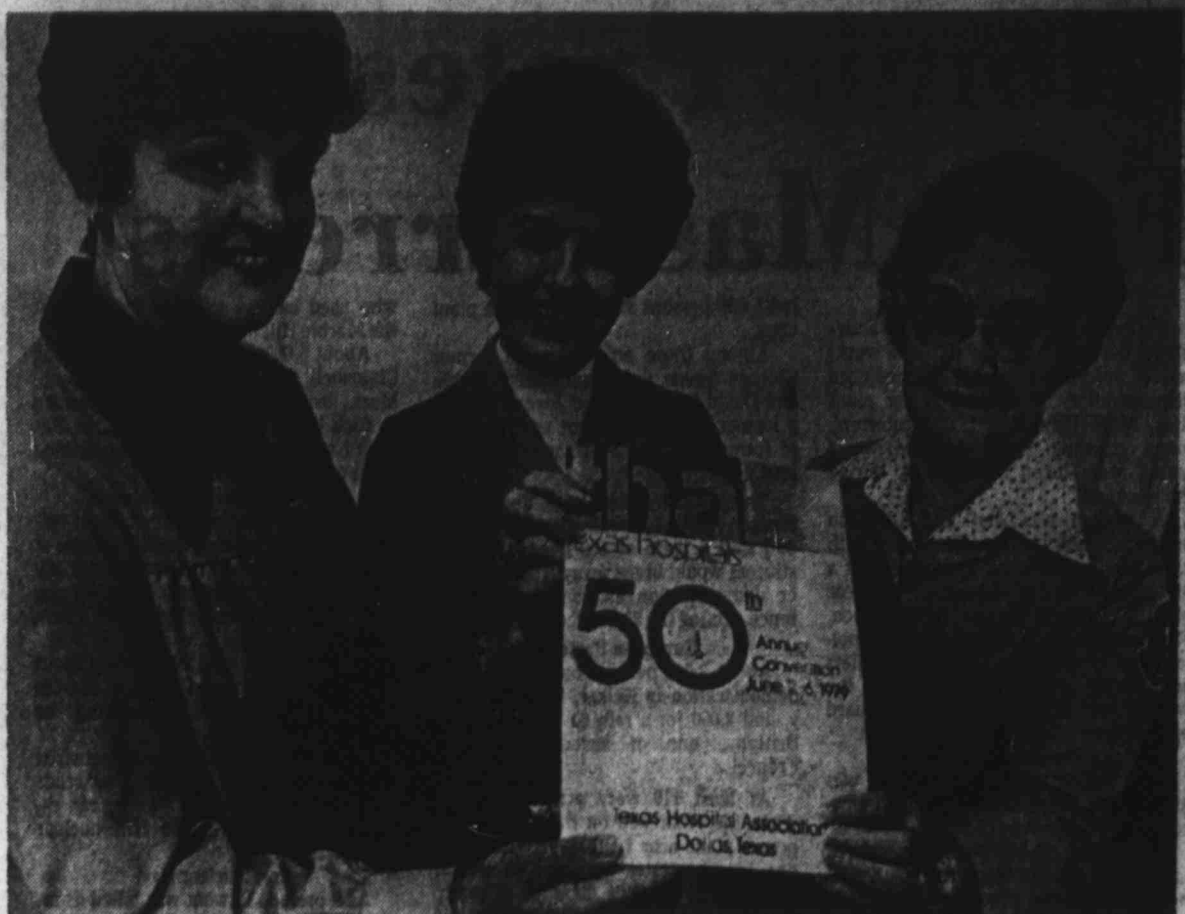

A.—In view of partner's vulnerable overcall, you should feel that your prospects of making a game are good. Partner needs to have no more than a king in either red suit and a spade suit headed by the ace, king to give you a chance. Since partner will not realize the full extent of your ambitions if you jump to three spades or bid three clubs, neither of which is forcing, your best shot is to leap to four spades.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠5 ♥A1032 ♦J107 ♣AJ953
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ 1 ♥ 2 ♠ 2 ♣ 3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If partner has a spade stopper, you should have play for three no trump; if he does not, you might be able to make five diamonds. You can get this message across by cue-bidding three hearts now to show your stopper. Partner must have a decent hand and a good suit because there was no need for him to act over two spades if he was weak.

ANN LANDERS

Ann Landers: Now that Masters and Johnson have come out and said homosexuality is normal, will you please change your stand?

I was especially pleased when Masters and Johnson said, "Homosexuals can teach heterosexuals a thing or two when it comes to making love." They also said, "Gay couples are better at communicating their sexual needs and desires."

It was gratifying to note that Masters and Johnson stated, "Homosexuality is a learned response just like heterosexuality." So many doctors have told us it is a matter of genetics — that we were "born wrong."

Several times in the past when readers have asked if it is possible to change from gay to straight, you have replied, "Yes, in some cases, if the motivation is very strong, but the therapist must be highly skilled and even then there are many more failures than successes." According to Masters and Johnson, some gays can be turned straight in two weeks. Now what do you say?

Do you have the nerve to answer these questions in the paper? If so, I will be very surprised. What's more, I'll send a check for $25 to your favorite charity. — A Student At The University Of Minnesota

Dear Student: Make out a check for $25 to either the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago or UNICEF. Here are the answers to your questions:
First: Masters and Johnson carefully avoid using the word "normal" in describing any kind of sexual activity. What they said was, "Homosexuality is natural." My position, however, is unchanged and I shall repeat it: I believe homosexuality is a dysfunction — a deviation from the normal. In my opinion, given a choice (this means the person is not in a penal institution or otherwise isolated), the "normal" person will select as the object of his sexual expression a member of the opposite sex. Those who prefer as sexual partners members of their OWN sex have a psychological problem. Many homosexuals, however, are well-adjusted, productive members of society. They are rarely molesters of children and should not be denied employment on the basis of their sexual preference.

Regarding Masters and Johnson's findings:
It should be remembered that laboratory sex is very different from bedroom sex. When I first read of their earlier work, I had serious questions about the "normalcy" of couples who would have sexual intercourse under kilg lights, while being photographed and monitored, not to mention the encumbrances of intrauterine cameras, tape recorders, devices to record blood pressure, muscle tension and lubrication.

To my way of thinking, individuals who would participate in such experiments are a little weird and the results, therefore, questionable.

There has been much controversy among many psychiatrists about Masters and Johnson's statement. "Both homosexuality and heterosexuality are learned responses." There is even more controversy regarding whether homosexuality is the result of a genetic problem. A great many scientists believe genetics are an important factor in some cases of homosexuality. Masters and Johnson say no.

The most disturbing statement that came out of the recent study is, "Homosexuals can be turned straight within two weeks." I believe this is an outrageous overstatement and will unquestionably give false hope to a great many homosexuals.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Research Shows Need Of Programs For Children

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

The gifted child is the forgotten child of our society, according to a team of researchers at Texas Tech University.

Rita Asher and Sue Gladden, graduate students in the department of home and family life of the College of Home Economics, working under senior faculty member Connie Steele, interim chairman of the department, hope to make a small beginning toward understanding the needs of these children.

They are concentrating their efforts on pre-school children for whom, they say, almost no programs exist anywhere in the country, and about whom, in fact, very little is known.

By the time a child reaches school age, a few programs may be available for him if he is unusually bright, talented or creative, they say, but many children, by that time, will already have had their enthusiasm for learning diminished in an educational system geared to meet the need of the "average" child.

The gifted child, according to these researchers, is most likely to be the one who drops out of school at an early age, and they cited a research project in the Haight-Asbury district a few years ago which revealed that many of these youngsters, dropouts from the larger society, were in fact exceptionally bright.

During the past year, the two women have been working with gifted children in the child development center of the College, identifying those who are gifted. They have developed a testing program, which utilizes both the child and his parents, which they hope will be useful in identifying such children at an early age.

This summer, those children identified in the program will be involved in a special program, taught by Miss Asher and Miss Gladden with the assistance of some college students, at the school. It is custom-made, designed to fit the needs of these children and to provide as much stimulation and interest as possible. Periodic testing, evaluation, and feedback from parents will be used throughout the program to see how effectively it is meeting the goals of the researchers.

The team is now looking for local children of pre-school age who are gifted, who can be used as a comparison group to see how effective the program is. They would like to hear from parents who believe that their children may be gifted, and will provide testing and evaluation of the children involved as well as some counseling on ways of meeting the needs of gifted children, who are not, the researchers point out, easy children to live with.

Parents, who usually are able to recognize giftedness in a child, may look at such qualities as unusual curiosity, advanced language ability, the tendency of the child to ask perceptive questions, the ability to consider abstract concepts and ideas.

Children from four and a half to five and a half are especially needed for the purposes of the research, they say.

Persons wishing more information about the project should call Sue Gladden at 744-6843, or leave a message at the departmental office, 743-3000.

Atomic Protesters Face Mass Arrests

By The Associated Press

Police rounded up anti-nuclear activists by the dozens Sunday during a week-end of international civil disobedience demonstrations at nuclear power plant sites. More than 1,000 protesters, many chanting "Hell no, we won't glow," were taken into custody during the weekend.

A woman was shot and killed in northern Spain when police clashed with 2,000 people protesting construction of a $1 billion American-supplied nuclear plant in the north Basque city of Balboa. The demonstrators hurled stones at police who retaliated with rubber bullets and smoke grenades. Police said the woman was killed when a civil guard opened fire with his submachine gun.

Environmental Alliance

The demonstrators represented various loosely allied anti-nuclear and environmental protection groups.

More than 15,000 protesters poured into Long Island community of Shoreham, N.Y., for a rally, and 500 policemen guarding a $1.5 billion nuclear plant under construction nearby arrested at least 400 persons who entered the plant area.

Among those arrested were former Chicago Seven defendants Jerry Rubin and David Dellinger, and Joyce Berland, a former county legislator and daughter of former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford.

The SHAD Alliance — Sound and Hudson Against Atomic Development — had said a team of 500 trained demonstrators would break away from the larger demonstration and scale the 8-foot fence circling the 80-acre complex.

European Protesters

About 8,000 persons turned out for a demonstration in Kalkar, West Germany, and 3,000 for a rally at a plant site in Brittany, one of several rallies in France.

At least 119 were arrested Sunday when they marched on the North Anna power plant near Louisa, Va., including one lone protester who arrived several hours early. Sheriff's deputies in southern Indiana collared about 100 of the 250 members of the Paddlewheel Alliance who used ladders to scale the fence at the Marble Hill facility.

About 5,000 turned out for a day-long Clamshell Alliance rally near Plymouth, Mass., listening to speeches and dancing to rock bands in the shadow of the Pilgrim I nuclear plant. There were no incidents or arrests.

Young People Predominate

About 500 people, most of them college age, had gathered the day before at a drive-in movie in Louisa and announced plans to converge on the plant, with some threatening to chain themselves to the fence.

The Indiana arrests came when about 300 persons converged on the Marble Hill plant on a bluff overlooking the Ohio River.

Some of the demonstrators released balloons with cards attached that read: "If this balloon reached you, so can radiation from the Marble Hill nuclear plant."

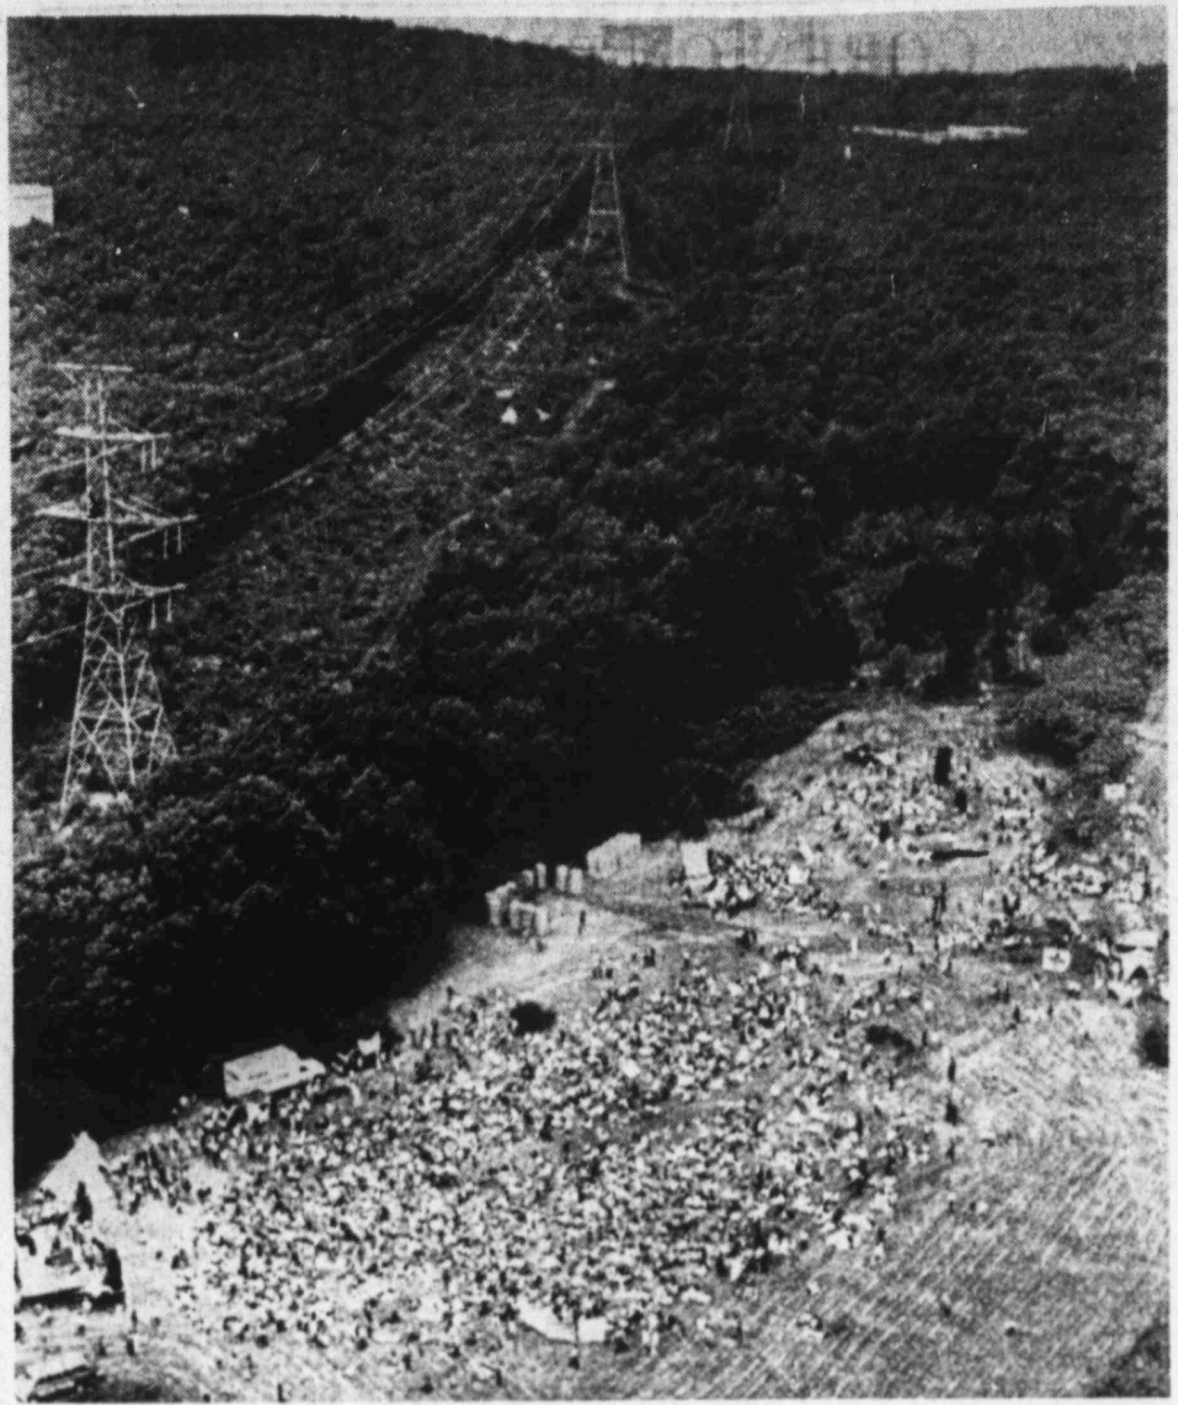

Anti-Nuclear Day

As a prelude to what was billed as International Anti-Nuclear Day by environmentalist groups, demonstrations involving upwards of 30,000 people were staged Saturday in 12 states, Canada, the Netherlands and Japan.

In northwestern Indiana, the Bailly Alliance planned a march and rally to protest construction of Northern Indiana Public Service Co.'s Bailly I nuclear plant near the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore.

Other demonstrations were staged Sunday at nuclear facilities near Moscow, Ohio; Limerick, Pa.; North Perry, Ohio, and Wiscasset, Maine. In Natchez, Miss., members of the Mississippi Alliance, another anti-nuclear group, gathered to hear lectures against the spread of nuclear plants, and in Buffalo, N.Y., speakers told an anti-nuclear rally it was time to stop dumping nuclear wastes in Western New York.

On Saturday, five skydivers leaped into the forbidden confines of the world's largest nuclear plant under construction near Darlington, Ontario, while a demonstration in the Netherlands drew a crowd of 20,000 people.

PROTEST NUCLEAR POWER — Nearly 3,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators gathered Sunday afternoon at a site about 2 miles from the Pilgrim I nuclear power plant at Plymouth, Mass., to protest the continued use of nuclear power. The demonstrators listened to various speakers and several rock groups. The demonstration was orderly and no arrests have been reported. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter Strategy Hits GOP Hard In Indiana

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, putting his unannounced re-election campaign back on the road, has hit hard at Republicans on behalf of his fellow Democrats and come up with what sounds like a new slogan.

Helping Indiana Democrats raise more than $100,000 for their party at an Indianapolis dinner Saturday night, Carter talked about "peace, courage, prosperity, trust."

If that fails as a campaign motif, Carter always can return to the punchier version in the written text from which he strayed: "Peace, trust and prosperity."

The president, who often neglected fellow Democratic candidates during his 1976 campaign appearances, at times seemed bent on naming all of the 3,000-plus fellow partisans at the Hoosier dinner. He did manage to name the most prominent and reportedly freest to superlatives in discussing their merits.

Earlier, Carter was the recipient of tributes offered by House Democratic Whip John Brademas and Sen. Birch Bayh, both pillars of the Indiana congressional delegation.

"I am tired of reading these polls about the health of Jimmy Carter politically," Bayh told the diners. "It sounds a good deal like what they were saying about Harry Truman in 1948."

Before the 1948 ballots were counted, Truman was widely seen as a sure loser — to the point where Republican candidate Thomas E. Dewey discussed his prospective Cabinet with reporters before election day.

Interrupted by applause after saying, "Jimmy Carter has been one of the outstanding presidents of the United States," Bayh completed the sentence: "after he has completed his eight years in office."

In defense of his administration, Carter told the crowd:

"Republicans talk about the dignity of work, but Democrats create jobs so people can work...."

"Republicans talk about cutting deficits Democrats cut them...."

Before getting around to specific appeals for support of his energy policy and ratification of the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, Carter pointedly suggested that office-holding Democrats should display greater unity.

He said the voters gave his party congressional majorities so they could find solutions to pressing problems.

"They did not give us majorities so we could vote down every solution offered just because it was not absolutely perfect," he continued.

Calling for enactment of an excise tax on oil profits and backing for the decontrol of crude oil prices he has ordered, Carter said: "Maybe it's not perfect. I don't claim it's perfect." But he said such actions must be taken.

The president, who has been at odds with many House Democrats on energy policy, declared: "We're not elected to hide or withdraw from the fight."

The audience responded with enthusiasm when he announced he will name a commission this week to look into exploitation of alcohol fuels made from agricultural products, wastes and other materials. He said Bayh will be chairman of the panel.

Biggest Roundup

The biggest Saturday roundup of dissidents was the arrest of 339 who breached a fence guarding the Black Fox plant under construction near Inola, Okla. Another 21 were taken into custody for blocking an entrance to the Yankee Atomic plant near Rowe, Mass., and 12 were nabbed by police waiting behind a barricade at the Arkansas Nuclear One plant near Russellville, Ark.

The five skydivers, launched by an organization called Greenpeace, landed on target at the Darlington plant and were quickly arrested along with 61 other people already occupying the site.

Other rallies and demonstrations were staged Saturday in Bay City and Glen Rose, Texas; St. Petersburg, Fla.; Sheboygan, Wis.; Brideman, Mich.; Braidwood and Byron, Ill.; Port Gibson and Luka, Miss.; Hartford, Conn.; and Atlanta.

In Louisa, Va., the protesters had sunned themselves on blankets in a hot sun at the Tallytown drive-in movie theater and listened to speeches.

"I say progress is shutting them (nuclear plants) down," said Michio Kaku, an associate professor of physics at the City University of New York. "That's progress in the interest of the people.... Nuclear plants at best are real lemons."

Lee Hauer of Falls Church, Va., a member of Potomac Alliance, one of at least three anti-nuclear groups staging the protests, had said he expected 100 to 150 people to be arrested Sunday for trespassing on the nuclear plant property.

He said his group, whose members live in Washington, D.C., suburbs, "trained in the neighborhood of 250 people in civil disobedience."

One man who identified himself only as a "concerned citizen" from the Louisa area paraded in a death shroud, wearing placards that said, "Don't worry, I'm in Charge" and "There is a Choice, Life or...."

Agency May Delay Disaster Aid Loans

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The Small Business Administration may have to delay making disaster aid loans across the country because of failure of Congress to provide the agency with operating funds.

Paul Lodato, director of public information for the SBA, said Friday that the agency is operating on between $40 million and $50 million a month it receives from persons making payments on their loans because no appropriations money is available.

around the base, standard glass was replaced with bulletproof glass, and a radio network to link security personnel was designed and implemented.

Ingram said that in what were to be the prince's "bachelor quarters," special sensors to detect noise and movement were installed under the bed, around the room and in its general vicinity.

The new features — all paid for by the Iranian government under the Shah — make Reese one of the most secure Air Training Command bases in the country, the colonel added.

Before affairs in Iran began to disintegrate, Ingram revealed, there had been "the possibility" that the crown prince's mother, Empress Farah, would visit her son in Lubbock sometime in December.

Shah's Visit Anticipated

Preparations had been made, too, for "the eventuality" that the Shah might also come to Lubbock, although Ingram said such a plan never materialized despite rumors to the contrary.

When three members of the Iranian royal family and their entourage did arrive at Reese in January, however, Ingram said he had no idea they were coming.

"We just didn't get the word is all I can say."

His first indication that the crown prince's two siblings and his grandmother were to visit Lubbock was a question from a television reporter on the East Coast, "who had heard something at McGuire Air Force Base."

Ingram said the royal party, which arrived here early Jan. 16, originally was en route to another destination, which he did not name.

Pope Asserts Polish Tie To Catholicism

GNIEZNO, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II stood in a field at this birthplace of the Polish nation and told a massive audience Sunday that the bond between the Roman Catholic Church and the people remains strong after 1,000 years.

"I greet the unity of Catholics," the pontiff told throngs of celebrants who gathered at this ancient capital to attend an outdoor Mass. "I thank God that after 1,000 years it still lasts, untouched by time."

The pope alighted from his helicopter after a flight from Warsaw, the capital, 150 miles to the east, and walked on a dusty path waving to thousands pressing against wooden barricades for a glimpse of history's first Polish pope returning to his communist homeland.

No official estimate was available but reporters estimated the crowd at up to half a million.

For the second day, a scorching sun beat down on the crowd, and temperatures rose to 90 degrees, unusual for this north central European country.

A number of faithful, including several nuns, were treated for heat exhaustion and taken away in ambulances.

For the first time since he began his eight-day visit to Poland on Saturday, the pope reached out to touch babies and shook the hands of Poles who had journeyed from Poznan and as far as Gdansk on the Baltic coast.

Earlier, the pope said Mass on a Warsaw street amid an almost endless sea of cheering Poles. Time and again his words were swallowed by the thunderous applause from the immense and emotional crowd as he pledged to use his "religious pilgrimage" to pray for Christian values in the future of Poland.

"During my pilgrimage across Poland, I will pray with all my heart to the Holy Spirit for such consciousness for you, for such sense and values of life, for such a future for you, for such a future for Poland."

When he stepped from the blue and white helicopter in Gniezno, the crowd burst into a cheer of "Niech Zyje" — "long live the pope" — and the traditional greeting "stolat," which means "may he live a hundred years."

Standing under a canopy on a platform some 15 feet above the crowd, the pope said he was beginning a pilgrimage from Gniezno that would take him to the Jasna Gora monastery in Czestochowa and later to his former diocese in Krakow.

"This is like the route of the history of the nation and also the route of our patrons: Adalbert and Stanislaw, united in solicitude for the Christian patrimony of this land next to the mother of God in Jasna Gora," the pope said.

The Jasna Gora shrine houses the Lubbock caused Air Force officials "considerable heartburn" from a security standpoint, he said.

"The house was a requirement of protocol," Ingram said, adding that for security, "it was lousy."

"It was the people of Lubbock who made that house work. Anywhere else it wouldn't have worked."

black madonna icon, venerated by Polish Catholics.

Stressing the importance of children to the church, the pope said "I desire that my pilgrimage through Polish land, in communion with all of you, should become a living catechesis, the integration of that catechesis which entire generations of our forebearers have inscribed into our history."

"May this be the catechesis of all the history of the church and of Poland and at the same time the catechesis of our time."

Following the outdoor speech, the pope rode through the crowd on top of a canopied jeep, waving to the faithful. Two men in dark suits, riding behind the pope, stuffed color pictures of the pontiff into outstretched hands.

In the afternoon, the pope scheduled to reside at a Mass in the Gniezno Cathedral, where Polish kings were crowned until the 14th century.

AAM Leaders Incorporate

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The American Agriculture Movement was organized into a non-profit corporation Sunday with a formal membership, annual dues and a governing body that will operate the farm protest group from a Washington, D.C. headquarters.

What once was a loosely knit organization formed by a handful of eastern Colorado farmers in late 1977 formally became the American Agriculture Movement, Inc.

State delegates voted 20-0 in favor of the organizational structure in a seven-hour meeting marked by disagreement over establishing policy and determining how votes would be allotted to states based on their membership numbers.

Twenty-eight of the 37 states in the AAM were represented at the meeting, but some delegates left for home before the final vote was taken.

The formal organization, first considered at a national meeting in Little Rock, Ark., in April, was approved Saturday by the delegates, who then formed a 12-member committee to submit the set of by-laws that were approved Sunday.

The corporation will be based in Washington, where the AAM now operates a lobbying office.

The first step in the organizational process will be to file papers of incorporation in Colorado. A board of officers — a chairman, vice-chairman, secretary and treasurer — will be elected to one-year terms at a later date.

California Vote May Determine Use Of Herbicides In Forestry

MENDOCINO, Calif. (AP) — In the shadow of the forest, where the redwoods scrape the sky and the lumberman is king, they are holding an election Tuesday. The results may change the way future generations of trees — and children — grow up.

The place is Mendocino County, one of Nature's masterpieces along the California coast. The issue is whether poison should be used to manage its forests in the face of growing concern that people are affected by chemical management.

It is the first time in California, the second leading lumber state, that the battle over herbicides is on the ballot. If passed, the ordinance will ban aerial spraying of defoliants such as 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T containing dioxin, one of the most toxic substances known.

It was a mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T that created Agent Orange, a defoliant used by the United States in Vietnam. Its use was banned there in 1970 and it is now blamed for a variety of ills from loss of memory to birth defects to cancer.

Last Feb. 28, the Environmental Protection Agency suspended the spraying of 2,4,5-T on forests and pastures in the United States, pending hearings on a permanent ban. But fear that the hearings will drag on and the temporary ban will be lifted has caused people like Betty Lou Whaley to take their own action.

Mrs. Whaley knew little about chemicals until six years ago when she ate some blueberries growing near her home. The next day she found out they had been illegally sprayed with amino triazole, the chemical that caused a huge cranberry recall years ago.

Now, she heads a citizens group that succeeded in getting the spraying ban on the ballot.

"We are being made guinea pigs while they study what happens to us," Mrs. Whaley says. "Although we've seen birth defects from spraying, the state has no registry of birth defects. So the chemical companies say they have no proof. They say it is safe, but I don't believe it and that's why I want it stopped."

Mendocino County is California's second largest lumber-producing county, with 475 million board feet of wood harvested last year, creating a $100 million industry from 2 1/2 million acres of forest.

Companies like Masonite and Georgia Pacific make their biggest money from towering redwoods and Douglas firs. But hardwoods such as oak and madrone also grow here, and the experts say they grow faster than the more valuable woods, crowding out sunlight and taking up space.

The easiest and most economical method to thin the forests, say lumber companies, is spraying chemicals like 2,4,5-T to retard the growth of softwood and kill off unwanted vegetation.

But opponents say such sprays often drift over other land, getting into the food chain through animals eating the dying brush and into the water — which gets into humans — and causing rashes, birth defects and even cancer.

"There is no indication that the levels of dioxin sprayed, about 10 micrograms per acre, cause any hazard to humans and animals," said Jack Warren, a Dow Chemical herbicide specialist.

So Dow is spending millions to defend its products and discount unfavorable findings and work like "The Politics of Poison," a television documentary by David Rabinovitch of San Francisco.

Rabinovitch focused on the small town of Orleans, north of here in Humboldt County, the state's largest lumbering area and one where spraying had occurred. Between 1976 and 1978, of 33 women who had become pregnant, only 11 had normal, healthy babies. The rest miscarried, aborted or had dead or deformed babies.

Similar reports in Alesia, Ore., were influential in the EPA's suspension of 2,4,5-T. In the Arkansas Ozarks, animals died and gave birth to deformed offspring after an accidental spraying over a farm area. One farm owner's wife first went blind and then died of cancer. In Denny, Calif., another Humboldt community, two women are suing Dow and others, blaming miscarriages on spraying.

"You have to realize that large numbers of the women supposedly affected by herbicides have opted to live in the forests, away from everyone else," Warren says, claiming that many "are drug users and eat wild foods... I'm not saying those are the sole reasons, but they are more likely to be the cause than any spraying."

Aerial spraying was common in Mendocino County until 1978. But county agriculture commissioner Ted Erickson, alarmed by a state memo on certain herbicides, refused to grant applications to spray.

Dow claims that there are more than 35,000 studies done on dioxins and 2,4,5-T and that they show the chemicals are safe. But Dr. Wilbur McNulty of the Oregon Regional Primate Research Center disagrees.

"Dow's studies have been with rodents and I don't think the results are relevant to humans," says the scientist who has been studying the effects on pregnant rhesus monkeys. "My personal view is that there is enough lab evidence with primates to suggest there may be some damage to humans."

Spraying opponents say jobs would be created in an area with 20 percent unemployment if workers cleaned woods by hand. But forester Larry Camp maintains that shortages of wood could result from banning spraying, noting it would cost $200 an acre to thin by hand as opposed to $15-$30 an acre to spray.

Earlier this year Trinity County, just northeast of Humboldt, banned spraying certain herbicides or using them on the ground, going beyond what Mendocino's ban would do. The state attorney general's office said, however, that localities are bound by state and federal regulations, which supersede their own.

Mrs. Whaley notes the attorney general also said Proposition 13, the property tax cutting measure, was illegal — before it was passed by voters.

"One attorney's opinion is about as good as another," said Erickson. "If it is the will of the people, then I will abide by it. And I won't approve any spraying in this county."

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21. Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Resettled Vietnamese Hold Religious Reunion

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Nearly 2,500 resettled Vietnamese refugees from across the United States paraded through the tree-lined streets of this southwest Missouri city over the weekend as part of a religious pilgrimage honoring the Virgin Mary.

Banging sticks together and beating drums, the marchers chanted prayers and sang in their native language as they walked along seven city blocks for more than an hour Saturday during part of an annual Marian Day celebration.

Vietnamese refugees now settled in Missouri, Texas, Michigan, Iowa, Oklahoma, Louisiana and several other states attended the pilgrimage.

Tents and cots colored the lawn of the nearby Our Lady of the Ozarks College, which since 1975 has been home for 166 Vietnamese members of the Brothers of Blessed Mother Coredemptrix, a religious community first established in Vietnam.

The brothers initiated the celebration last year, noting that the Vietnamese consecrated their country to the Virgin Mary in 1960. Catholic Vietnamese were invited to come to what had been an abandoned seminary and celebrate Vietnam's dedication to the Virgin Mary. About 1,300 Vietnamese attended last year.

During the procession, the brothers marched with members of their own scattered congregation and carried signs in Vietnamese and English announcing their new home.

"It's a family reunion in more than one way, since the brothers are bringing back the people they minister to," said Sister Emilee Morgan, director of communications for the Springfield-Cape Girardeau diocese.

"It's probably the only happening in the United States where Vietnamese who were together at refugee camps can meet with one another."

But aside from the celebration, there was a seriousness among those who came to this city of about 11,000. The ritual provided memories of families and friends left behind in Vietnam.

"The main thing is we reunite and pray for the peace of the world and our countrymen," said Phanazhan Bounthavy of Amarillo. "We try to get peace in our prayers. We need the prayers from all the people."

An airplane passed over the procession Saturday, dropping a shower of rose petals and leaflets calling for peace in the world. At the head of the sea of people was the Russian Pilgrim Statue of Our Lady, one of 70 blessed by Pope Paul VI.

Cardinal John J. Carberry, archbishop of St. Louis, presided at an open-air Mass, late Saturday.

For many of the worshippers, the celebration was a bit like home.

"We just come to enjoy and be with friends," said Naivy Pran of Kansas City. "Everyone here is Vietnamese. It feels like home."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. At age 77, my investments are for capital preservation and income. However, three of my stocks cause me some concern. They are utilities which are paying out more in dividends per share than the companies are reporting in earnings per share. How long can they keep this up?

A. Until those companies run out of cash or become so low on cash that the members of their boards of directors — who decide what dividends will be paid on common stock — vote to reduce the dividends.

That happens, you know. But before we get too many readers worried, it must be pointed out that such happenings have been few and far between with utilities — companies which provide electric, gas, water and telephone service.

A company pays dividends to its stockholders out of its earnings. In the normal course of events a company will not pay out all of its earnings in dividends. Part of the earnings are "plowed back" into the business to expand the business and/or keep to have cash on hand.

So, when earnings decline, a well-managed company often does not have to reduce its dividend payout. It's a different story, of course, if business gets really bad.

The three utilities you named in your letter had long records of moderate but steady earnings growth — until just recently. It's unlikely they will have to cut their dividends.

Remember that the rates utilities charge are set by state regulatory agencies. A utility is supposed to be given an opportunity to operate at a reasonable profit — high enough to attract from investors the capital it needs to build the plants and buy the equipment it needs to provide the necessary service in the area in which it has a franchise.

I don't cotton to the idea of paying higher utility bills any more than anyone else does. But the hard fact is that many utilities need "rate relief." Regulatory authorities — some more political than others — often pay "brinkmanship" and delay granting rate hikes until the utilities they regulate are really in a bind.

But if we are to continue to have an efficient utility system in this nation, rate hikes have to come and — except in extreme circumstances — dividends paid on utility stocks seem safe.

Q. I want to give $1,000, in either cash or stock, to a young relative under the "gift to minors" procedure. I itemize my deductions on my income tax return but I can't find any place to list such a deduction. I went to the Internal Revenue Service and asked for information about this. No help.

Most people say the IRS is not going to show me ways of saving money. What do you say?

A. Don't try to take a gift to a relative as a deduction on your tax return. That's what I say. And so would anyone else who has ever read the "Your Federal Income Tax" instruction book published by the IRS.

You can take a tax deduction for contributions to charities, religious organizations and a fair number of other outfits — but not to minors.

The gift to minors procedure cut the red tape in giving to young people but don't provide you with a tax deduction.

Q. Our question concerns "looking up" the high interest now available on many bonds — both those issued by corporations and the U.S. Treasury. If we buy bonds scheduled to reach maturity in 10 years or so because of the higher interest they pay, can those bonds be "called" before maturity?

A. In most cases, the answer is "yes." Almost all bonds have provisions allowing the issuers to call them in and redeem them before their maturity dates.

Every bond, of course, carries with it the pledge that it will be paid off at "par" — face — value at maturity. When a bond is called for redemption before maturity, it is normally paid off at more than par value. Some bonds have "call protection" features — meaning they can't be called for early redemption before certain dates.

The prices and dates at which individual bonds can be called are spelled out in the "indenture" of each bond issue and usually are printed on the face of the particular bond certificate. These are things you should check, with your broker or banker, before buying any bond.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

FBI Says Judge's Killer 'Not A Pro'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. had few of the earmarks of a professional killing, several federal agents involved in the intense investigation into the sniper slaying have been quoted as saying.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, was killed Tuesday by a sniper who fired a single .243-caliber bullet into the judge's spine. He is believed to be the first federal judge ever assassinated while in office.

A .243-caliber bullet is usually fired from a high-powered deer rifle, although FBI officials have refused to speculate on the type of weapon used in the slaying. FBI lab technicians have said they cannot determine from how far away the shot came.

It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official connected to massive West Texas narcotics smuggling cases has been ambushed. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped serious injury when his car was riddled by bullets Nov. 21 as he drove to work.

FBI officials have refused to comment on whether they believe the two assaults are connected. Kerr and U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd have said they feel Wood's assassination is connected to the massive drug smuggling investigations and have vowed to accelerate the crackdown.

Sources from the FBI, U.S. Marshals Service and the Justice Department told the San Antonio Express-News that the assassination did not appear to be a contract killing.

"We're not ruling out any possibilities, but it certainly doesn't appear to be the work of a professional killer," one investigator was quoted as saying.

"The small caliber of the murder weapon — which appears to be a type of gun not favored by hired killers — and the fact that there are far better guns for the purpose seems to make it doubtful it was a pro," he added.

Wood was stooping over his car when the bullet hit him in the lower back, splintering on his spine and sending fragments upward into the judge's vital organs. A professional, a source said, would have aimed for the head or heart rather than the lower percentage shot to the back.

"There is no way they could have relied upon the fact that the bullet they used would have done the job," another investigator said.

Wood was killed in front of his townhouse about 8:30 a.m. as he and neighbors were leaving for work. Such a time would be prime for witnesses, the sources said.

The killing could have been the work of a relative or friend of someone Wood had sentenced to prison, one source speculated.

The investigators said, however, that no lead or motive is being discounted.

A source told the newspaper that there has thus far been no "tangible" evidence to link the Wood assassination to the narcotics smuggling investigations.

HEARTLINE: I draw railroad retirement and Social Security retirement. I wondered if you could tell me if there will be a cost of living increase for these annuities this year, how much the increase will be and when we will receive it? — H.D.

Railroad retirement annuitants, as well as Social Security beneficiaries, will receive cost-of-living increases in their monthly benefits beginning with their July 1 checks.

The tier I portions of all employee and spouse railroad retirement annuities and both tier I and II portions of survivor annuities will be increased by 9.9 percent, the same as for Social Security benefits. However, if an annuitant also receives a Social Security benefit, his Social Security cost-of-living increase is subtracted from the railroad retirement tier I increase.

Employees and spouses will also receive 3.2 percent increases in their tier II benefits which are not available under Social Security. Furthermore, these increases are not reduced because of the beneficiary's entitlement to Social Security benefits.

Increases not paid on July 1 will be paid retroactively at the earliest possible date thereafter.

Also, the monthly Medicare premiums will be increased for both railroad retirement and Social Security beneficiaries. The basic Medicare premium increases July 1 by 50 cents raising the premium from $8.20 to $8.70.

HEARTLINE: There were a couple of young men here at our apartment building going up and down the halls selling a so-called new medication. They claimed to be working for a pharmaceutical company. A friend of mine down the hall was foolish enough to buy some, for $10. We managed to get a couple of these pills from her and have them analyzed — crushed-up aspirin and powdered sugar. These fellows told her that this so-called new miracle drug was a sure cure for numerous things including hardening of the arteries. They actually told her the pills would help her remember things better. I thought you might want to warn your readers about this filflam. — K.S.

Yes, we do. Obviously, the only place one should obtain drugs is through a drugstore, from a reputable mail-order pharmaceutical company or from a doctor. Aspirin and powdered sugar may seem harmless to many people, but either one can be deadly poison to those allergic to them. Such incidents should be reported immediately to the police department. If someone comes to your home selling you drugs to help your memory — or drugs or medications of any kind, tell them you forgot where you put your money! But don't forget to call the police.

HEARTLINE: I am 62 years old. I have just found out that I am two quarters shy of being eligible for Social Security retirement benefits. I would like to go back and earn these quarters. Can you tell me what the requirements for this are? — S.G.

The work requirements for earning a quarter of coverage under Social Security has been changed by the 1977 Social Security Amendments. Under the old law, a worker earned a quarter of coverage by earning at least $50 in wages during any of the calendar quarters ending March 31, June 30, Sept. 30 or Dec. 31. In order to receive credit for the quarter, the money must have been paid to him during the actual quarter. Under

The FBI released composite sketches Friday of two men witnesses said were in the area the morning of Wood's slaying. "We're not saying these people are connected to the case in any way, but we're not saying they're not either," said Daniel Shaffer, the assistant director of the investigation. "We just want to know who they are and what they were doing there."

The sketches showed two men in their late 20s or 30s, one with brownish long hair, glasses and a mustache and the other clean-shaven with medium length light hair and glasses. Both men were apparently white.

Rewards totaling $125,000 have been posted in the case.

U.S., Japan Reveal Negotiation Accord

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. and Japanese trade representatives announced Saturday that they have agreed to try to negotiate within 18 months a formula to open Japanese government contracts to foreign bidders — one of the toughest economic issues between the two countries.

U.S. special trade representative Robert Strauss and his Japanese counterpart, Nobuhiko Ushiba, initiated the agreement to negotiate and issued a joint statement saying negotiators will follow "a work schedule beginning July 1979 with a view to reaching agreement not later than Dec. 31, 1980."

Published reports estimated that an agreement eventually could involve more than $6.5 billion in total Japanese government contracts, most of them in the telecommunications field.

Diplomatic sources had said Friday that Strauss and Ushiba might approve a pact that would have opened Nippon Telephone and Telegraph contracts worth about $2.3 billion to bids from U.S. companies.

Instead, the two nations announced agreement on a framework for continuing negotiations. Talks had been conducted last month in Washington with hopes of reaching an agreement on the contracts issue before President Carter's visit to Japan late this month.

The joint statement said: "The governments of Japan and the United States agree that mutual reciprocity should be provided among Japan, the United States and other major countries in access opportunities to each others markets, including the market for telecommunications."

U.S. critics of Japan's trade policies have said that America's $12 billion trade deficit with Japan in 1978 would have been considerably less if Japanese government contracts had been open to foreign bidders.

Of more than $3 billion in annual purchases made by Nippon Telephone and Telegraph, about 95 percent are from domestic manufacturers with whom the government corporation works closely.

Strauss said Saturday the two countries "have entirely different structures ... and just to agree on words would not assure full reciprocity."

Strauss and Ushiba also said the government will "seek to encourage U.S. coal imports into Japan."

the new law, which became effective January 1, 1978, a worker will receive one quarter of coverage (up to a total of four per year) for each $250 of earnings paid in a year. This $250 measure would be automatically increased every year to take account of increases in average wages.

So, in order for you to earn two quarters of coverage this year, you would have to be paid wages of at least $500.

Bubonic Plague Scare Evacuates Campground

BANNING, Calif. (AP) — About 1,500 people were evacuated Saturday from a campground in Riverside County after a laboratory test showed a youth who recently visited the camp had contracted bubonic plague.

It was the second case of bubonic plague in southern California in about two weeks, health officials said.

A 15-year-old Simi boy was reported in improved condition at the communicable disease unit of Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center Saturday night. A county health spokesman said a laboratory analysis confirmed the diagnosis of plague. The youth's identity was not released.

The youth contracted the disease after camping last weekend in Silent Valley Recreation Camp in Riverside County, the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services said. About 1,500 people were evacuated from the campground Saturday afternoon after word of the diagnosis was relayed from Los Angeles, according to D.R. Boling, deputy director of the county health department.

It was believed the youth had contracted the disease from the bite of an infected flea.

A number of ground squirrels died in the area last year, health officials said. They said such deaths are an indication of the presence of bubonic plague among wild rodents.

Plague is endemic in California ground squirrels and other wild rodents. It becomes a public health concern when it occurs in recreation sites or near populated areas.

Statewide, several cases of bubonic plague are reported each year, and of these, usually 20 to 25 percent are fatal.

The youth became ill Wednesday with a fever of 103 degrees and swelling of the lymph glands, said Dr. Gary Overturf, chief of the communicable disease unit of County-USC Medical Center. His temperature was down to 101 Saturday.

Two weeks ago a 55-year-old Diamond Bar man became the first Los Angeles County case of the bubonic plague in 43 years. He was treated at a Whittier hospital and has since been released.

The disease is curable if treated early and only becomes transferable when it affects the lungs and blood.

Third World Nations Lose Out At Conference

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Third World nations demanding a greater voice in the world economy went home disappointed Sunday after a month of U.N.-sponsored talks here with industrialized nations.

A marathon final negotiating session dragged on through the night and ended at 8:50 a.m. The developing nations of the Third World won only a few points in their long list of economic grievances against the industrialized states.

The industrialized nations also failed to get what they went after in the so-called North-South dialogue at the 5th United Nations Conference on Trade and Development.

Led by the United States, they had fought to get the energy crisis mentioned in an official text as a problem of all countries. The Americans argued that it was absurd to talk about the world economy without mentioning the fuel that runs it.

The word energy was not mentioned in a final resolution, but Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga Hevia, who headed the Third World bloc, mentioned it in his final comments, blaming the industrialized nations for current oil shortages and high prices.

Supporting the position of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the cartel of major oil exporters, the Cuban said the world must face the "urgent problems" caused by rich nations wasting energy and stockpiling oil.

Expressing the disappointment of the Third World in the conference results, Lechuga said: "We hoped for greater cooperation from the developed countries. We were hoping they would accept their international responsibility and help set up a new international economic order."

Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo, the conference president, said there had been "no victories ... no defeats." He reminded delegates of the difficulties in reconciling "the interests of 150 nations in greatly varying stages of economic development, of widely divergent doctrines and beliefs."

Before the talks began, U.S. officials said they expected little progress on the package of economic reforms the Third World wanted. Afterward, a U.S. delegate, Undersecretary of State for International Finance and Development Charles F. Meissner, said, "we're satisfied. ... It was a moderate meeting with a moderate end."

The Third World wanted UNCTAD to set up a group of experts to undertake global consultations on trade, development, money and finance policies as a first step towards restructuring the international economy. That resolution died in committee.

The developing nations also wanted a commitment from the industrialized states that 25 percent of world manufacturing output and 30 percent of manufacturing trade would be theirs by the year 2000. They didn't get it. They also fought unsuccessfully for an international debt commission that would help them reschedule debt payments to Western nations.

The Third World bloc did get one key demand, the right to hold exclusive meetings without the industrialized nations, who will foot most of the bills for the gatherings.

The conference also unanimously adopted a voluntary plan to boost the economies of the world's 30 poorest countries. The program urges donor countries to double their aid subsidies to the least developed nations. The United States and Britain welcome the program but said they could not make definite new financial commitments.

Commander Declares War In Uganda Over

ORABA, Uganda (AP) — Tanzanian and Ugandan government soldiers captured Idi Amin's home village of Koboko over the weekend and pushed north to the Sudanese border, consolidating their control over this east African nation. A commanding officer informally declared the seven-month war at an end.

"We have taught Amin a lesson he will never forget," Maj. Gen. Silas Myunga told his soldiers in this nearby village, where the borders with Sudan and Zaire meet at the northwest corner of Uganda. Myunga borrowed that expression from the deposed dictator who used it early in the conflict, when his troops were occupying part of Tanzania.

The whereabouts of Amin were not known. He has been reported as visiting friendly Arab states in an attempt to gain support for a counterattack.

Tanzanian officers here said no more military advances were planned in Uganda because all the country has been occupied and Amin's followers have been defeated. They said they expected some of the many thousands of Tanzanian soldiers to begin withdrawing from Uganda in the near future.

Other Tanzanian units met no resistance when they took nearby towns of Yumbe and Moyo.

A correspondent traveling with Tanzanian and Ugandan units fighting for the seven-week-old government of provisional President Yusuf Lule, said three Tanzanian tanks led an infantry battalion to within 200 yards of a small bridge at the Sudanese border. It was the end of an advance that covered 1,000 miles and ended Amin's eight-year rule as one of Africa's most publicized dictators.

Across the border, Sudanese soldiers were seen in trenches with weapons ready. The correspondent said they did not return greetings shouted by the Tanzanians.

Sudanese officials have criticized Tanzania as interfering in Uganda's internal affairs, and have accused the Tanzanians of persecuting Moslems in Uganda. Moslems made up less than five percent of the population when Amin took power, but the former dictator took his support largely from fellow Moslems and tribesmen from northwestern Uganda, as well as those imported from nearby parts of Sudan and Zaire.

Amin began the fighting last October when he invaded Tanzania but was driven back by Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles who pushed north and took the capital, Kampala, April 4. Since then, they have advanced steadily northward to take territory remaining in the hands of Amin's troops.

At Koboko, Amin's home village 15 miles south of the Sudan border, the Tanzanians found one dog and one chicken — and no other sign of life. The more than 1,000 villagers had fled.

North of Koboko soldiers captured three of Amin's men, who said they had escaped from a truck taking them to Sudan to train for a renewed fight against the Lule government. They said two others who tried to escape had been shot and killed.

There was no indication that Amin had recently been in Koboko, 25 miles north of Arua, capital of the West Nile district, which was taken by the Tanzanians on Tuesday.

Residents of Arua said he had not been seen there since mid-April, and Tanzanian intelligence officers say they think he is in Libya, which provided him with heavy weapons and soldiers during the war.

Amin's house in Koboko, a small, unpainted cement building on a dirt road that forms the border with Zaire, was empty.

In Arua, the Tanzanians were using an Amin residence as a headquarters, and a nearby hut as a radio room.

It was through the entrance to this hut that Amin made two British officers crawl on their knees in 1975 when they came to seek the release of Denis Hills, a British teacher held on a spy charge as a result of comments on Uganda he included in a book manuscript.

Trade With Rhodesians Opposed By Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying he did not believe the recent Rhodesian elections were "free and fair," U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young on Sunday made clear he does not favor the lifting of U.S. trade sanctions against the African country now.

But Young, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," stopped short of saying he would resign in protest if President Carter did lift the sanctions.

In answer to a question, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said, "I would certainly respect his right to do that, and I would give every consideration to his reasons. ... It would depend on his reasoning."

Cambodia Opponents Battle Near Thailand

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Forces loyal to ousted Cambodian Premier Pol Pot battled Sunday with Vietnamese-led forces of Premier Heng Samrin, south of the Cambodian border town of Poipet. Thai military sources said.

The fighting erupted late Saturday and Thai army reinforcements, supported by tanks, were sent into the border area near Klong Nam Sai, south of Aranyaprathet, in case fighting spilled over into Thailand, the sources said.

For the past several days Thai military observers here have reported that guerrilla forces loyal to Pol Pot have moved back into an area about nine miles south of Poipet, which they abandoned after heavy fighting in early April.

The Voice of Kampuchean People, broadcasting from Phnom Penh, said Sunday that food and clothing have been distributed to 20,000 persons from Pursat Province, about 100 miles north of the Cambodian capital, to Svay Rieng Province, about 100 miles south.

The Cambodian SPK news agency reported that postal service has been reopened throughout Cambodia and that the central post office in Phnom Penh handles 40,000 letters and parcels a day.

Postal service was eliminated when the Khmer Rouge regime of Pol Pot took power in 1975.

The Voice of Democratic Kampuchea, broadcasting for the ousted Pol Pot regime, claimed 214 enemy soldiers had been killed in recent fighting throughout Cambodia.

"I didn't get into the job thinking I was going to win every battle," he said. Carter may act soon on the sanction question, which has become a dilemma for the administration.

The Senate recently passed a resolution supporting recognition of the new government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia and the lifting of U.S. sanctions, and the Senate Armed Services Committee approved an amendment aimed at forcing Carter to lift the sanctions in exchange for Congress approving his $40 billion weapons bill.

But guerrilla leaders and many African nations strongly oppose such a move.

Young said the Senate resolution was an "immediate, emotional response" to the recent Rhodesian election that installed the first-ever black prime minister there, Bishop Abel Muzorewa.

Young said the elections were not fair or free because "the people of Rhodesia, black or white, never had an opportunity to discuss freely the options."

"From the very beginning, ... (former Prime Minister) Ian Smith decided what the constitution would be, basically forced it on Muzorewa," said Young.

The United States cannot approach Zimbabwe Rhodesia in isolation "without considering what everybody else in Africa" wants, Young said.

African nations opposed to the new government will play "political and economic games," against the United States, he said, adding that 35 percent of U.S. oil imports come from that continent.

Young said immediate U.S. support of the new government would force guerrillas and many African nations toward "greater dependence on the Soviet Union."

Instead of rushing to support the Muzorewa government, Young counseled, the United States should await action by Britain, who once ruled the country.

"I don't think we ought to take it off their hands," he said.

On another subject, Young defended recent remarks he made comparing the results of the electrocution in Florida of John Spenklink with state executions in Iran.

"The end result is still the same," he said, adding that U.S. criticism of the Iranian killings would not be credible without similar condemnation of capital punishment here.

Business & Industrial Review

Hufstедler GMC Sets Savings, Holds 'Summer Getaway Sale'

The "Great Summer Getaway Sale" is underway at Hufstедler GMC Truck Co., 1802 Erskine Road in Lubbock.

This event, with emphasis on van selection and drastically reduced sale prices, affords a great way for you to learn just how GMC vans can boast of "more people per mile per gallon" and prove it!

The largest selection of vans yet presented by Hufstедler is on the big lot for this event just underway, with choices enabled in 350 and 400 cu. in. motors, a variety of body styles, and selection from Rally Wagons by GMC, the fantastic Jimmy Van Coach, Grand Touring Vans from Starcraft, and the T-Van by LRP.

They all are at Hufstедler's, 1802 Erskine!

Also there are special prices on Midas and the custom conversions by Horizon.

Mini-Motor Home Special

One '78 new Jimmy 22-ft. mini-motor home is left, and is priced to move now for someone to enjoy this summer's vacation.

(See the Hufstедler ads in the Lubbock-Avalanche Journal for specific prices and models. Hufstедler does a mighty good job of keeping the public informed; it is part of their conscientious way of doing business, of serving the public that it appreciates. It may be old-fashioned, but Hufstедler believes the customer comes first.)

Economy Documented

Back to the economy involved in GMC van units, a most important consideration with talk on every hand about rising prices, shortages, etc.:

Based on average-family mileage of 15,000 miles per year, latest government EPA ratings point out less than $1 per day difference in cost to operate a GMC van than a popular foreign import.

Also, the GMC van, with a 33-gallon tank, gives an average highway travel distance of 462 miles, while the 12-gallon tank of the referred-to import is computed as having a 240 mile range!

Two GMC vans recently arriving here in Lubbock from Lake Geneva, Wis., each with 350 cu. in. motors, averaged 14 miles per gallon during that long trip.

Furthermore, six can easily ride with comfort in the GMC vans; there are four captain chairs in each for maximum comfort.

"Doesn't your family rate the consideration and the pleasure afforded by a van unit from Hufstедler, the truck 'people movers'?"

Properly equipped, the Rally unit, for example, can take along the kids, grandma and grandpa, their friends and the family pet! All kinds of cargo... luggage, bulky parcels, sports gear, boats and motors, bicycles, motorcycles, skis, etc. can be transported. And these Rally units can tow campers, house trailers, boat trailers, horse trailers, small trailers and huge trailers! The rugged GMC units are built for the way Americans drive and deserve to be served... at a cost that is most attractive.

Find out the money-saving truth during the Great Summer Getaway Sale this week at Hufstедler GMC, 1802 Erskine in Lubbock. You'll be convinced of the exceptional buys that have been arranged; you'll thank us for miles to come!

'The Little Shoppe' Lives Up To Long Reputation As Store That's Different

"Have you visited in The Little Shoppe lately?"

Whether as a regular customer with an eye to "what's new in miniatures," or if desiring to bring guests to a truly unique shop, or if just interested in browsing or even developing a new hobby, reliance on The Little Shoppe in Cactus Alley is heartily recommended.

Though already stocking miniatures by the literal thousands, The Little Shoppe has added more, with current presentations including some never before seen or offered in this area.

Whether the interest is miniatures, decor pieces, "how to" books, or more, see the intriguing stock now at this easy-to-find shop at 2610 Salem Avenue.

Be sure to see the Schumacher wallpaper, reduced to scale, that shop owner-operator Norma Bartley has secured.

"May we have the pleasure of your visit and have the opportunity to assist in your special-occasion selections? The Little Shoppe, in Cactus Alley just south off the Brownfield Highway in Lubbock, is more than miniatures, and we want you to see it all!"

And new furniture items such as the beautiful canopy beds.

For the hobbyist, for the amateur and avid miniature collector, for folks who simply appreciate the unusual, the pretty and the intriguing, The Little Shoppe comes through!

The "miniature" selection is fantastic, said to be larger than any in all West Texas.

Still Growing

(This year The Little Shoppe, though still in Cactus Alley, is in enlarged quarters it has occupied only a few months. With the new location and more room, stock is more than double the inventory of only a year ago, yet one can shop in an uncrowded atmosphere throughout the open display of thousands of items for selection and comparison.)

The Little Shoppe could well be termed "a lumber yard for miniatures" in one department, as parts and accessories and materials are stocked in profusion... such as stair cases, flooring, wallpaper and wallpaper paste, veneer, windows, doors and all, even carpeting.

Americolor paints in mixed colors for Victorian houses, interior and exterior, is stocked in petite containers to avoid costly waste.

There are plenty of house kits and completed residence alike.

Plus Helen Ruthberg's books on miniatures and accessories, fully illustrated.

For Workshops

Aside from the many miniature items, The Little Shoppe can arrange special study projects.

"Just tell us your interest, what you want to do as a miniature craft project, and we'll provide a qualified instructor upon sufficient class enrollment, arranging convenient schedules in the work room of the expanded Little Shoppe. Let us have your ideas."

One cannot enumerate all that is The Little Shoppe. Pages could be written listing and describing the miniature copper cookware, the furnishings for every room of a miniature mansion, greenhouses complete with spring flowers and potted plants, but one can only comprehend the completeness of the stock upon personal inspection.

New Concept In Alert Systems Made Available By Local Firm

"Now is the time to order your freedom from worry and fear; simply call 795-2829 for details of the Safety Alert around-the-clock emergency/security alert system!"

What a consideration for the family at any season ... and possibly exceptionally so at this time as a great gift for a birthday or Father's Day. Such thoughtfulness actually could be a blessing for years to come.

Basically, Safety Alert enables one to call for help to pre-designated parties — silently and instantly — with calls monitored continuously by the locally-owned and locally-operated Safety Alert firm.

One does not even need to be at a telephone to send the coded call for help! Through the use of a small wireless communicator, one merely presses a button on the light-weight portable unit that can be carried or worn comfortably. There is no dialing of the phone, no waste of valuable life-saving time whether the emergency is medical, security or fire.

The pocket-size transmitter can activate the Safety Alert receiving unit from anywhere in one's residence or place of business ... in most instances up to 100 feet.

And the cost? Likely it is so very much less than imagined.

A one-time installation fee of under $200 (depending upon unit options) plus a low monthly monitoring and equipment rental fee is the whole cost, a really negligible expense in consideration of life-saving possibilities involved.

Locally Owned, Operated
This new-concept Safety Alert system, designed as "your personal guardian", is a home-owned and home-operated business. At head of the operation are William F. (Bill) Russell and wife, Mary Russell, and Al Manny. Bill Russell is president and general manager, with Manny as vice president, sales and operation. All are longtime Lubbock residents.

The firm is licensed and bonded and the management is most sincere in citing the meaningful motto:
"Your personal security is our concern."
Many technical reasons could be listed for choosing this digital communicator system (not a tape dialer), but to the user, the most important and immediate consideration is the protection and the freedom the unit's simple push-button operation assures. With the pushing of a button, an alert is dispatched, and one can go about his business without fanfare or undue activity, knowing that the message has been sent, silently and swiftly.

It all is a combination of (1) a new concept in a proven electronic system, (2) pre-selected persons or services to be notified in event of emergency, (3) 24-hour-a-day monitoring, and (4) the knowledgeable interest in your protection and welfare by the folks who prove in every transaction that "your personal security is our concern".

"Call 795-2829 now for full information, at no obligation. Whether living alone in an apartment, at home with family, or in whatever situation of residence in Lubbock or the surrounding area, Safety Alert is recommended as your personal guardian.

NEW CLASSES, WORKSHOPS ARRANGED — Mary Thornton, artist-instructor, is shown with a landscape oil that she will utilize in summer classes at American Handicraft/Merribee, with Otis Arnett of that popular firm joining in announcement of several class opportunities as outlined in the report below.

American Handicraft/Merribee Affording Summer Instruction

Exceptional opportunities in summer art and craft instruction are available in just-announced classes and workshops at American Handicraft/Merribee, the big craft firm at 4010 34th St., at west end of Wolfe Nursery.

Oil Painting workshops begin this Friday, with others throughout the summer (as listed below), and the popular Stained Glass classes begin next Tuesday, June 12.

Early inquiry and advance registration is necessary due to demand for participation in these sessions. Don't delay; check now at American Handicraft/Merribee at its 34th Street store or call 795-6062.

Oils By Mary Thornton
 Art instruction will be by Mary Thornton who has instructed at locations including the Maxey and Hodges community centers. Mary has been a Lubbock resident for some 14 years and is an area native.

Charles Swift Stained Glass
 The stained glass instruction will be by Charles Swift, commencing June 12, remember, continuing for one-a-week sessions for six weeks. The afternoon classes will be from 1 to 4 o'clock each Tuesday, with evening classes from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. the same days. Beautiful stained glass creations will be completed, with materials for the first class furnished without added charge.

Mary Thornton's June 8 oil painting workshop (an all-day session from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.) is designed as an introduction to oil painting, with beginners accepted together with others who wish to participate in the project of an owl painting subject.

Especially For Youth
 Then on June 11 a series of oil classes classified as a "Summer Youth Program," designed for a flexible age group but probably in the main involving junior high school and older ages, will be conducted in two-hour sessions, once a week, for four weeks. The classes, at 1 p.m. on announced days, will be offered at a modest tuition fee of $25 that includes oils and canvas boards. Basics of oil painting will be emphasized in this class schedule.

For Experienced Painters
 Then, for the experienced painter, intermediate or advanced, Mary will conduct a "Mountain Landscape" workshop on June 22, from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Complete details are available at American Handicraft/Merribee as are all materials necessary for any of the classes and workshops.

It all is at 4010 34th St. Don't be left out of a preferred class or workshop; checking now with Otis Arnett of American Handicraft/Merribee, is strongly advised.

"Let us help you have fun this summer, let us help you discover the pleasures of art and craft achievements."

Riley's Burger, At Slide Road Address, Home Of 'Good Eating'

Riley's Burger likes to prove that its prices are remarkably reasonable with no sacrifice in food goodness or quality!

For "eat-in" or "carry-out," Riley's Burger at 5416 Slide Road (Plains Plaza Center) is heartily recommended.

Examples of the pricing includes:
 Chicken fried steak plate lunch, now just $1.99!

Steak finger dinner at $1.69;
 And home style cooked red beans, small bowl for just 35 cents!

Or a small hamburger for 85 cents, with a large one for $1.25.

See why the prices invite comparison?

And there are home-made french fries, a good variety of fountain drinks including shakes and malts, and a most attractive eating environment.

Essentially a family operation, the new Riley's is owned and actively operated by Mr. and Mrs. (Frank and Jane) Riley, veterans on the Lubbock food scene. Also on hand is co-owner Jerry Riley and Kathy Riley (with Jerry literally growing up in the business); Lou Wheeler who has been with the Riley establishments for over a decade; and Mike Farley.

Frank Riley may be remembered by many for his tasty food while owning the Husky Burger for 10 years, or later for over three years at a 50th & Quaker location before establishing the present operation in southwest Lubbock just north of South Plains Mall last November.

Not only is the food and service superb at Riley's Burger, but convenience and decor add to the satisfaction picture there. Seating for 65 is provided, as is off-street parking. Quick service is noted especially during the lunch hour when one must watch the clock; Riley's considers the customer in every way possible.

Carry-Out, Too
 Or if it is a carry-out order that is preferred, a call to 795-2331 will speed its preparation with it being ready when called for.

Want a really great bowl of homemade chili? It is available every day Riley's Burger is open (Mondays through Saturdays, from 10 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., closed Sundays).

Or a so-delicious foot-long open-face chili dog on a platter, served with chili and chopped onion. Um-m, how good! Actually, the menu is rather extensive, including a great 8 oz. club steak, chicken bits, chicken fried steak, burritos, homemade barbeque, and more.

For luncheon, dinner or in-between, Riley's Burger should appeal to most everyone, we would think.

"Though especially filling a need in its southwest Lubbock location, Riley's Burger is worth a drive from most anywhere... for food like you remember it ought to taste! And without exorbitant price."

Remember the location, 5416 Slide Road, phone 795-2331.

RIGHT FACILITIES, INSTRUCTION AT CINDERELLA SCHOOL

Cinderella Beauty School Tells Student, Patron Opportunities

"As a graduating senior or a person of other status but interested in a pleasant, rewarding career, shouldn't you consider the opportunities afforded by Cinderella Beauty School in Lubbock?"

(It is pointed out that no graduate of the Cinderella school has ever failed the State Board examination!)

So... have a beautiful future, the Pivot Point way, at Cinderella Beauty School located one block west off Slide Road, two blocks north of South Plains Mall, at 5401 Aberdeen, Ave., Plains Plaza Shopping Center.

"Choosing the right profession is all important," points out Winnie Vaughn, owner of the popular school with its record of thorough training. "You want a profession that offers financial security, independence, prestige and the fulfillment of making others attractive and happy."

"Because of our affiliation with Pivot Point International, we can offer you the perfect blend of cosmetology and education, our complete, comprehensive curriculum and the exclusive Pivot Point training."

"Learn faster and perform better in the shortest possible time" is the invitation of Winnie Vaughn. "Our approved Pivot Point School teaches the Pivot Point International scientific approach to hair design, the world's most comprehensive educational system."

Special Funding Aids
It is emphasized that the Cinderella Beauty School has been approved by the Texas Education Agency for veterans training.

The school also has been approved by the Texas Rehabilitation Commission and Social Security, and the school ownership is working on still other means of helping students in loans for education there. Vocational high school student benefits are afforded, too.

Winnie Vaughn, owner, is no stranger to the public and to the beauty-conscious of the area. She has owned and operated a salon in Slaton for over 30 years and she taught a number of years at Lubbock beauty schools. She holds the Lubbock County franchise for the Pivot Point program.

Staff Introduced
Winnie Vaughn also owns the Hair Dimensions professional salon just next door at 5405 Aberdeen. Operators in the salon are Earlene Carter and Claudia Berry.

The fine staff at the Cinderella School includes Mrs. Vaughn, Mrs. Joan Lang, Mrs. Jean Bright and Mrs. Ruby Rowan.

Redken-Approved
Cinderella Beauty School is the only Redken-approved beauty school in Lubbock. Mrs. Vaughn reports, "We invite you to call today at Cinderella Beauty School and make an appointment. May we reserve extra time for you for a Redken conditioner? We also have a Redken Retail Center for your convenience. Call 792-4439 and we will be happy to give you that personal attention you can appreciate."

"We especially invite you to enjoy a body perm for easy summer care, or have the pleasure of a short curly perm.

Specials are now posted on perms. Our prices start at $12.50 up."

Senior Citizens Benefitted
"Senior Citizens are special to us, and we take pride in terming every day a Senior Citizens Day! For this group, a perm is offered for just $15 and includes haircut, shampoo and set! Hair cuts are $4. Senior citizen should show their Medicare card for the specials Tuesdays through Saturdays."

"At Cinderella, we style both men's and women's hair, with children's haircuts, too."

"We are adept in hair coloring, frosting, bleaching, sun flicking, manicures, pedicures, lash and brow dyes, brow styling, eye tabbing, etc., with the students working under direction of the professional instructors."

"It is our policy to stay abreast of the new styles in both hair design and in the clothing trends; so if at all possible please feel free to come by and see us; we are always glad to visit with you, and we appreciate your enrollment or your patronage in beauty needs."

"Enroll now; our registrar will be happy to answer your questions and help you start on a lifetime career; or, if more convenient, we will be happy to answer your questions over the phone, 792-4439 or 792-4430."

"Our classes start any day. We are open five days a week, Tuesday through Saturdays."

"We at Cinderella are proud of our students; we welcome patrons, both men and women; and our services are most reasonable."

Optical Store & Boutique Serves With New Innovation In Optical Dispensing

"Have you too often found yourself in this predicament..."

"Upon selecting new frames for your eyewear, hoping of course to get those frames that look the very best on you, desiring frames with which you would be pleased day in and day out, you have found that selection was difficult because in trying them on, with your present glasses 'off,' you just couldn't see to select intelligently!"

The Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide, has done something about this!

New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her! Doesn't this make sense?

"We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing."

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique."

There are several services and aspects that should come in for special note at this time, however.

"With accelerated outdoor activity of the season just underway, sunglasses are advised. One should guard against harmful sun rays when exposed, and The Optical Store & Boutique is a great source of optical-quality sunglasses, with no prescription necessary for these. You'll like Ray Ban sunglasses."

Aside from the optical services, a "Plant Corral" has been established by the same business, and one is invited to check for healthy, beautiful indoor plants in the Corral at the same address.

"Our Boutique is Unique" actually is the motto but nevertheless an understatement of the services and products of the Optical Store & Boutique, phone 792-0901.

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

- (1) Children should have an eye examination annually,
 - (2) Adults should take the same step every two years;
 - (3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended;
 - (4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefiting.
- (We want to see you keep your frames in good repair; and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!)
- "And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"
- A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Furstenberg, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers.

Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex.

And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor dominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

"May we have the pleasure of your visits? We know we can serve you within one or more of our departments."

Off-Season Instrument Repair Invited At Jent's In Lubbock

Serving superbly throughout the school year, Jent's House of Music can be of equal or even greater service during the summer months, and wants to prove it!

Now is the time to bring instruments in for repairs, awaiting finest attention and minimum delays.

In keeping with its long record of ever-increasing service, Jent's House of Music at 2646 34th St., has arranged for additional personnel to even better meet the band instrument needs of area schools, institutions and individuals.

Two regional band directors are joining the Jent's staff, it has been announced, leaving the teaching profession to devote full time as fieldmen for Jent's House of Music.

Rusty Sherman, present band director at Floydada, is one of those band instrument consultants, and Ralph Smith, band director at Dinamit, is the other valued fieldman addition to the Jent's family.

As these men will be operating throughout a wide service and trade territory, one is invited to check with Jent's for a time when they can be in your own community.

Long In Lubbock

Jent's is marking its eighteenth year in business on the same 34th Street block in Lubbock, years devoted to making everything as easy as possible in student band orchestra needs, as example of the service upon which the firm is built.

Jent's takes equal pride in each of its several departments . . . the Combo department, the other instruments and music aids for instructors and students . . . in fact, Jent's follows through with its pledge of "everything in music." Quality organs and pianos are very much a part of the picture.

Something For All

Whether beginner, advanced student or professional, Jent's is designed to be a worthy source of supply.

Rental-Purchase
 Rental and rental-purchase of new and fully guaranteed used band and orchestra instruments is available. Rental payment can be applied in full to purchase when desired.

A complete repair department is one of Jent's best known services, and it is advised to have instrument repairs made as early as possible during the summer to avoid delay.

Accessories

A complete stock of accessories for all instruments is provided.

For leadership, for the correct instrument at an affordable price and lease-purchase plan, for service that is unequalled, one can do well to rely (as in the past) upon Jent's House of Music, 2646 34th St., phone 795-5579, in Lubbock.

Durability, Beauty, Cost Seen Among Arcadia Man-Made Stone Advantages

"Most likely you have observed and admired the use of Arcadia Stone in homes, businesses, yards or institutions in your neighborhood or community, wherever you live within the area."

"We at Arcadia Stone Manufacturing Co., 1922 Ave. E., phone 744-6640, Lubbock, invite your visits, inquiries and inspection. We would consider it a privilege to give a free estimate in your own situation."

"Individuals and contractors alike, throughout the region, have voiced enthusiasm for Arcadia Stone. This is no surprise, for after all, can you imagine a lightweight and durable man-made stone at a fraction of the cost of some other materials, and available in seven decorative colors?"

Full details of the product and services are available at Arcadia Stone Manufacturing Co., home-owned and home-operated by Jim Haynes who has constructed beautiful homes throughout the area, together with construction of fireplaces utilizing Arcadia Stone.

Arcadia stone has been used for exceptional beauty and warmth in numerous area situations . . . commercial and residential. It can be used wherever stone or masonry veneer is desired. It can be used to veneer complete homes or to enhance the quality of one's present residence.

Arcadia Stone is an enduring investment, whether for attractive fireplaces, for beautiful wall and floor tiles, for stepping stones, even the very popular exterior or use on metal buildings. (Or interior walls for offices, as another practical and functionally-beautiful use.)

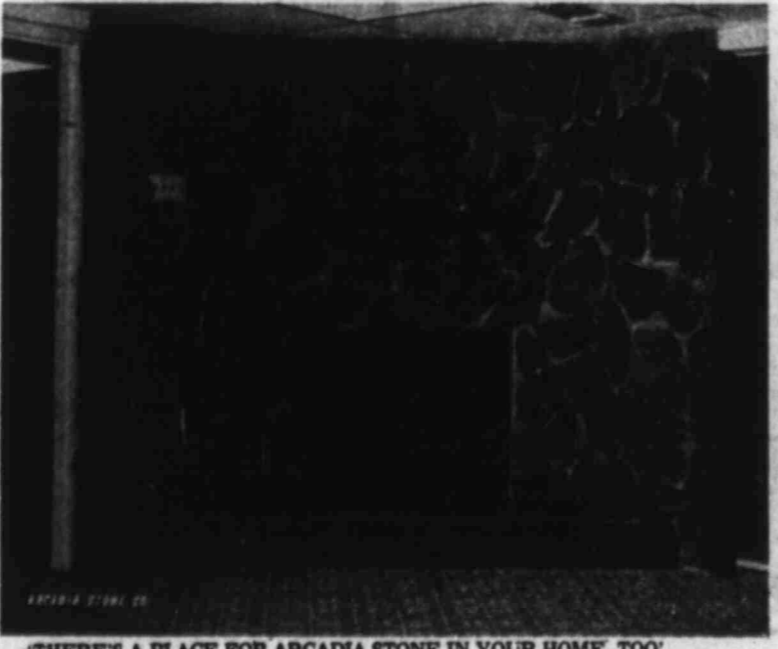

Arcadia Stone is ideal for other interior ornamental work such as walls, arches, columns and planters; it affords the attractive way to add a distinctive new look to the home's interior.

The Lubbock firm has its own installation crews, or one can purchase the stone for "do-it-yourself" projects.

Adds Special Accent

Adaptable for either inside or exterior use, Arcadia Stone is flexible; it can be used on any sound surface including metal, wood, block and even sheetrock. It can add architectural beauty to shopping centers, commercial and professional buildings.

Maybe it is an entryway, a bath or a kitchen . . . or exterior landscaping and fences . . . whatever the situation, Arcadia Stone is an attractive accent.

FOR CEILING FANS OR CLOCKS, IT'S STITCH 'N TIME

Ceiling Fan Selection Added To Stitch 'n Time Inventory

Stitch 'n Time, already laying claim to "the largest selection of floor clocks in West Texas," comes through with an equally significant announcement:

"Now we have the largest ceiling fan selection in the area," is the word from John Little and Dick Little of that firm.

"And the prices defy comparison, starting at a modest $69.95!"

Stitch 'n Time, in Caprock Center South, also emphasizes that prices on its fans include all materials needed for installation. Heading the large selection just received is the Casablanca line, the "Cadillac" of the ceiling fan industry. Little reports, with its 5-year guarantee and features such as a reverse flow for winter utilization. These are available in various decorator schemes and with or without lighting.

Stitch 'n Time is Lubbock exclusive dealer for the Encon line of ceiling fans, with a large selection of these available. In Encon, a quality-low price combo has been effected to make it one of the more popular lines.

Stitch 'n Time offers special discounts on all its fans to builders and businesses.

For a nostalgic entry into "yesteryear," for a beautiful addition to the home that also proves to be a prime energy saver, then-make a bee line to Stitch 'n Time, Caprock Center, and select while the assortment of ceiling fans is complete.

It all adds to the fact that Stitch 'n Time is an establishment you will not soon forget!

Located next to the Toy Box at south side of Caprock Center in Lubbock, the Stitch 'n Time is relatively new, so the following aspects of its operation are concisely itemized for one's attention and consideration:

(1) Stitch 'n Time has the "largest selection of floor clocks in West Texas," its owners report.

(2) A two-store buying power (Lubbock and Amarillo locations) enables savings that are passed on to the customer.

(3) A three-year warranty is afforded on clocks from the firm.

(4) Delivery and set up on all floor clocks is available.

(5) Helpful, knowledgeable salespeople man the establishment.

(6) Terms are available, including financing, four-month layaway, Master Charge and Visa purchases.

(7) Stitch 'n Time is authorized dealer for Howard Miller, Colonial, Seth Thomas, Gazo, Pearl, Decor and Zachariah Maps.

Selling only fine quality clocks, Stitch 'n Time stocks in price range from $49.95 to over $3,000 and stands behind each unit.

Elegant Clocks

Both wall and mantle clocks are included.

Beautiful clocks are stocked, right on the floor, in each of the represented lines. For example, see the Gazo, "San Diegoan," an elegantly hand-carved Austrian designed grandfather clock, open well style to enhance beauty in any home. It has porcelain and solid brass dial with matching etched weights and solid cast brass pendulum bob, with choice of double or triple chimes. Or the lovely "Mission Bay" mantle clock fully hand carved with ornate porcelain and solid brass etched dial and solid brass bezel, available in solid oak or English walnut finish.

Any many, many more, great for gifting or for one's own home.

Stitch 'n Time is a family-owned and family-operated business, with John Little and brother Dick Little on the job in the Lubbock store. Hours are 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, with extended Thursday hours to 8 p.m.

Remember the location, next to Toy Box on south side of Caprock Center, 50th Street in Lubbock, phone 795-5588.

(Stitch 'n Time is also authorized dealer for Necchi and related lines of sewing machines in a separate department).

TOUGH DECISION — An Amish family from the Old Order Amish Community in Lancaster County, Pa., listens intently to a Red Cross volunteer Sunday before receiving their polio vaccine. The Amish sect, which normally shuns advances that the general public makes toward them, has consented to take the vaccine in light of the recently confirmed cases of polio. A source close to the Amish community quoted a member as saying, "We will take the vaccine. We don't wish to harm our English neighbors." (AP Laserphoto)

Judge Rejects Group's Pleas To Ground All DC-10 Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. district judge Sunday rejected pleas by a passengers' group to ground all DC-10s until investigators learn precisely why an engine fell off one of the jets in the crash that killed 274 people last month.

Judge George Hart ruled the court should not bypass federal agencies investigating causes of the nation's worst aviation accident. To ground all DC-10s would create an "absolutely tremendous" adverse impact on air travelers, he added.

Jonathan Howe, chief counsel of the Federal Aviation Administration told Hart government agencies are doing "everything" to discover the accident's cause and to make sure defects in other DC-10s are corrected.

He said, "No stone is being left unturned," adding that "the largest assembly in history" has been organized to investigate "all aspects" of the Chicago crash.

On Friday, the FAA reported that nearly half the 137 DC-10s in service on U.S. airlines have been found to suffer defects ranging from "serious to minor." The FAA had ordered all U.S. DC-10s grounded for visual inspections after the crash, and many of the 68 in which problems were found remained on the ground this weekend.

Attorneys for the Airline Passengers Association, Inc., however, told Hart the visual inspections were inadequate as long as the FAA could not determine precisely why the left engine on Ameri-

Congress Tapes Debate But Few Want Copies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vanity has not touched many members of Congress who now can buy their own video taped segments of their blunders and victories on the floor.

One congressman bought a video tape of his House session to study his technique. Two others bought tapes to prove the Congressional Record was wrong.

Dut mostly, Congress doesn't have much interest in purchasing video taped segments of the proceedings. Since the House began televising its proceedings this year, only 16 orders have been received for video or audio tapes, most for widely different uses.

The video tapes are available for $104 for a 30-minute segment and $176 for 60 minutes. Audio tapes cost $24 and $43.

Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., was the first to put in an order. She bought a 30-minute segment of the March 13 debate on the U.S.-Taiwan Relations Act and sent copies to hometown television stations.

Although several stations used the tapes on their news shows, Mrs. Smith is not planning to buy any more tapes. A spokesman said the cost was too high. In addition, the first effort produced some criticism by a Nebraska newspaper which said it was an "abuse" of House privileges.

Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., ordered a 30-minute tape from the first day the television cameras went into action. He donated it to his state's historical society.

Another early buyer was Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., who spent $352 for tapes of the March 1 House debate on a resolution calling for Diggs' expulsion from Congress. That motion was defeated, but Diggs, who was convicted of mail fraud and payroll padding charges, may be able to use the tapes for reference if he has to present a defense before the House ethics committee.

Four of the sixteen tapes ordered thus far were of visiting clergymen giving the opening prayer, a daily routine of the House.

An aide to Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., said his boss bought a tape of his part in an oil reserves debate "so he could study his technique."

Reps. Peter Kostmayer, D-Penn., and Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., each bought an audio tape of the May 3 budget debate in order to prove exactly what was said in an exchange with Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif.

Peking Seeks Aid Of Overseas Chinese

HONG KONG (UPI) — In times of need, China has turned time and again to its exiled sons and daughters for help.

It is doing so now — seeking cash to finance its costly modernization process, and the skills needed to carry it through.

Millions of overseas Chinese, living in the United States, Europe, Southeast Asia and Hong Kong, have plenty of both.

In addition to cash, many of them have the expertise — managerial, technical and scientific — that the Chinese modernization requires but lacks because of the chaos caused in the nation's educational institutions during the Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s.

The government hopes to lure overseas Chinese back to live and work for China, or at least to remit foreign exchange to finance relatives and projects.

The policy is particularly noticeable in the southern provinces from which most overseas Chinese came.

Authorities have removed the labels of "landlords, rich peasants and bourgeois elements" — which spelled trouble a few years ago — from more than 2,100 families of overseas Chinese in Meixian district of Guangdong (Kwangtung) Province.

"This is one of the measures China has adopted to protect the rights and interests of the overseas Chinese and their families," an official report said.

More than 400,000 overseas Chinese are from Meixian. Their families account for one-third of the district's population.

Until three years ago, authorities looked with suspicion on overseas Chinese and their relatives in China. Family letters were closely screened. Schools and libraries funded by overseas Chinese were attacked and destroyed at the height of the Cultural Revolution.

"Many overseas Chinese and foreign nationals of Chinese descent dared not return to see their relatives or send money to their families," the report admitted.

Things are different now.

Homes owned by overseas Chinese, seized by the radical Red Guards during the Cultural Revolution, are being returned to their owners. Relatives of overseas Chinese once again are trustworthy. And overseas-funded institutions — such as the Overseas Chinese Middle School and the Jingtang Library in the province's Xinhui district, financed by an elderly Chinese in Britain — have been reopened with their original names.

Hong Kong's Sir Kenneth Fung, a leading businessman, recently was invited to return to his native village to reopen a school and a library his family sponsored before the Cultural Revolution.

Hong Kong residents who have visited their home villages say they were approached by commune officials to donate items not easily bought in China.

"First they ask for an automobile," one recent visitor said. "Failing that, a color television."

The "gift" can be imported duty-free if it is made to the commune and not to an individual.

Color television sets with circuitry adapted to receive Chinese broadcasts have been selling well in Hong Kong.

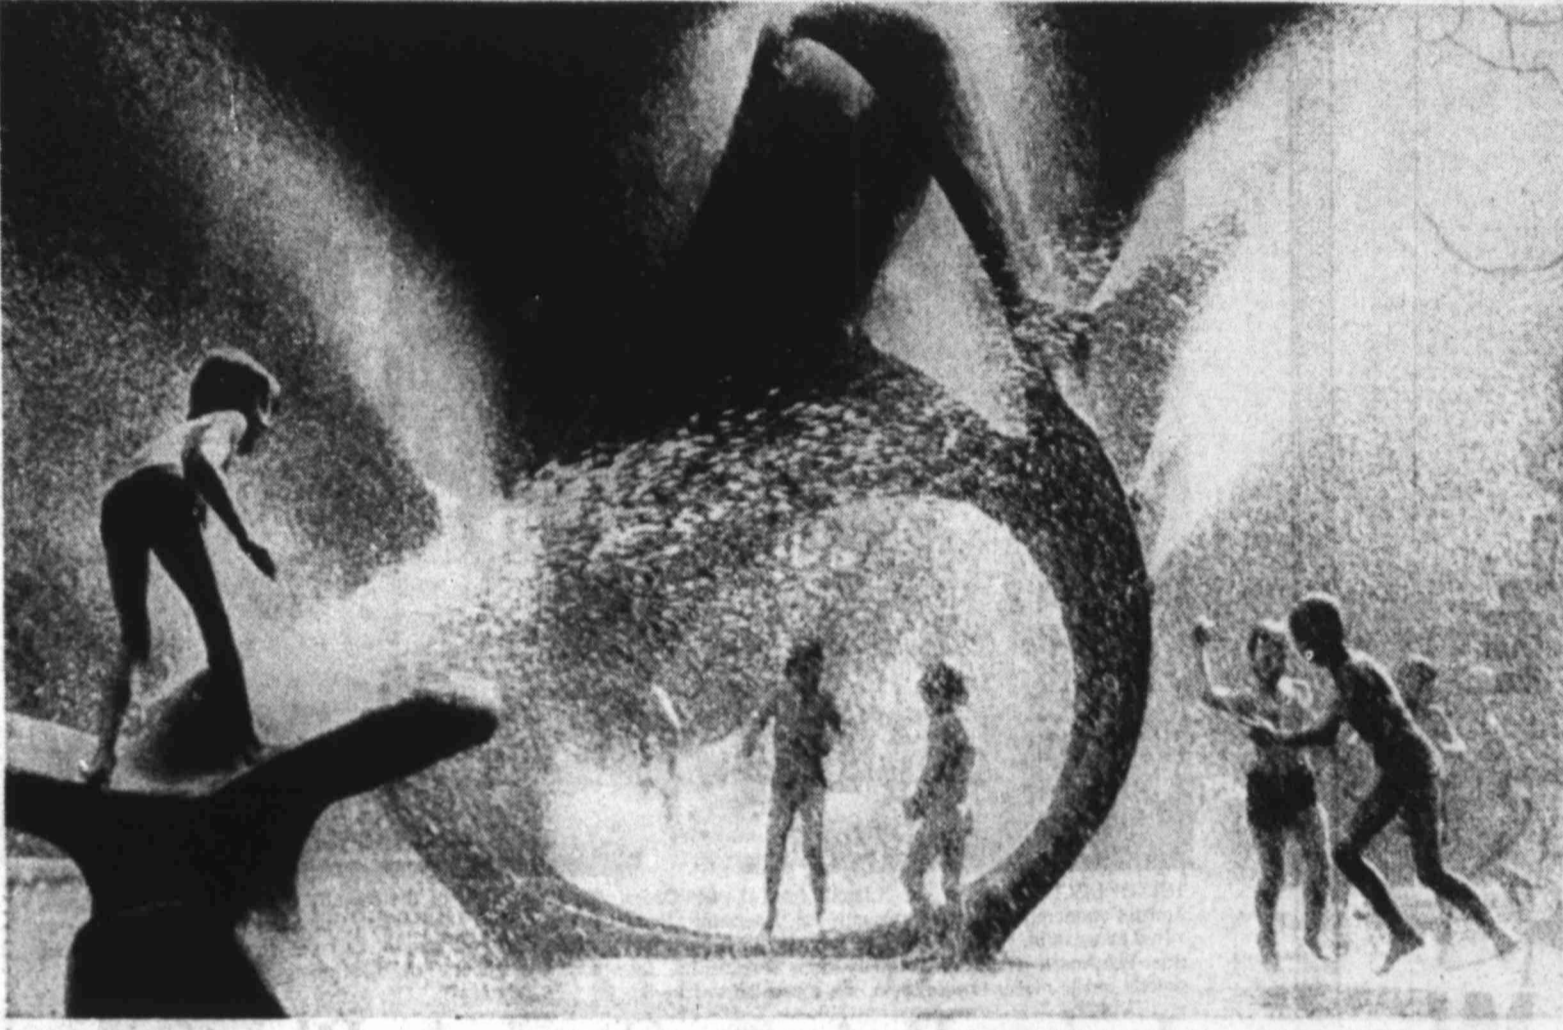

Once again, a report by the official New China News Agency said, overseas Chinese are contributing "money and materials" to China.

Favorable treatment, with attractive salaries and comfortable living quarters, have been offered to overseas-trained Chinese experts in such fields as food science and engineering.

The changed attitude toward overseas Chinese grew out of a national conference last year during which the government announced: "We should treat family members of overseas Chinese, and returned overseas Chinese, as we treat the other people of China and permit no discrimination against them."

Millions of Chinese, particularly in China's southern coastal provinces, emigrated from the late 19th century on to escape political turmoil, wars and famine.

They kept up remittances to relatives, and their financial support helped Chinese revolutionaries overthrow the Manchu Dynasty in 1911.

Church May Allow Gay Priests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Episcopal Church committee recommended Sunday that the church allow homosexuals to become priests.

The 2.8 million-member denomination's Standing Commission on Human Affairs and Health said that while some homosexual behavior "constitutes a disqualification for ordination," there should be "no barrier to the ordination of those homosexual persons who are able and willing to conform their behavior to that which the Church affirms as wholesome."

The commission did not spell out its definition of "wholesome."

It said the church's General Convention, which meets in September, "should enact no legislation which singles out a particular human condition and makes of it an absolute barrier to ordination."

The recommendation will be voted on by the church's House of Bishops and House of Deputies, made up of clergy and laity respectively, at the September convention.

The question of ordaining homosexuals, like the question of ordaining women, has sharply divided the Episcopal Church, particularly since 1977 when New York Bishop Paul Moore ordained Ellen Marie Barrett, an acknowledged lesbian, first as a deacon and later as a priest.

The issue is also being fiercely debated in other Protestant denominations.

Conservatives in the United Church of Christ are expected to press hard for an anti-homosexual ordination resolution when that body meets in Indianapolis later this month.

At the Episcopal Church's 1978 convention in Minneapolis — which voted pie, we should have neither.

to allow the ordination of women — delegates directed the Commission on Human Affairs and Health to study the issue of ordaining homosexuals.

In its favorable 17-page report, the commission warned against "an abnormal obsession with homosexuality," pro or con.

"Whatever sins homosexual persons have, we do not believe they should be singled out and asked to publicly repent," the report said. "If the ministry or the sacraments depend on sinless people, victims of the unemployment caused by emphasis on the military," he said.

"Press not only for Salt II, But Salt III, IV, V and VI," Coffin called from the pulpit.

Coffin said "guns over butter spells inflation ransacking the closets and pantries of the poor."

Noting the huge stockpile of U.S. nuclear weapons, he charged that "ours is not a defense budget. It is an offense budget. The Defense Department should go back to its old name of War Department, because it is no longer true that our weapons... are for defense."

"Since World War II, our nation has intervened in the internal affairs of another country... on the average of once every 18 months," he said.

Carter and Coffin spoke after the service, and the president said to him: "That was a superb sermon. Thank you."

Carter is a member of the church. Both he and Walter Cronkite, the CBS television news anchorman, were named recipients of peace awards by the National Peace Academy Campaign, a national religious group, at the convocation.

Carter Hears Preacher Attack Military Power 'Obsession'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Sloane Coffin, a twice-jailed religious activist, Sunday urged President Carter and a church congregation to end the American "obsession with military power" that, he said, turns the poor into "modern day lepers."

Coffin, pastor of Riverside Church in New York, opened a two-day peace convocation at the First Baptist Church of Washington with a sermon calling for international disarmament as Carter sat in the congregation.

Later in the day, Carter was among a list of officials paying tribute to A. Philip Randolph, a civil rights activist and union leader who died last month in New York.

Coffin complained about "our obsession with military power. We're No. 1" dominates the thinking, he said.

"In every city in this country the poor are rapidly becoming modern day lepers, victims of the unemployment caused by emphasis on the military," he said.

"Press not only for Salt II, But Salt III, IV, V and VI," Coffin called from the pulpit.

Coffin said "guns over butter spells inflation ransacking the closets and pantries of the poor."

Noting the huge stockpile of U.S. nuclear weapons, he charged that "ours is not a defense budget. It is an offense budget. The Defense Department should go back to its old name of War Department, because it is no longer true that our weapons... are for defense."

Officer's Leg Reattached After Traffic Accident

NEW YORK (AP) — Surgeons say a 36-year-old policeman has "a better than even chance" of keeping his left leg, which was re-attached after both legs were cut off when the officer was crushed against his patrol car by a van. The right leg was irreparably damaged.

Officer Michael Mullick was reported in serious but stable condition Friday at Bellevue Hospital, where he underwent an 8 1/2-hour operation following Thursday's accident.

Police said Mullick was setting up barriers around an excavation when he was hit by the van. The driver was charged with reckless driving, second-degree assault and driving while intoxicated.

SYMPOSIUM FOR WOMEN SET

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Mayor Lila Cockrell will head a list of speakers and panelists taking part in a Professional Development Symposium for Women at Incarnate World College, Tuesday. Topics such as women and the law, women in public service, financial planning for women and career development are on the agenda. Other women in politics and business will join Mrs. Cockrell in the discussions.

Second U.S. Jet Crashes

BITBURG, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Air Force F-15 Eagle jetfighter crashed on landing Sunday at Bitburg airbase, the second accident in 24 hours involving an American jetfighter in West Germany, a military spokesman said. The pilot was not hurt.

The dual-engine Eagle lost power while coming in for a landing and hit short of the runway, within the airbase perimeter, at 2:30 p.m., the spokesman said.

The pilot, 1st Lt. Spencer M. Kershaw, 26, of Rockleigh, N.J., jumped out after the plane stopped and was not injured, but the plane was a total loss, the spokesman said. Kershaw is assigned to the 36th Tactical Fighter Wing in Bitburg.

In the other accident, a new super-sonic F-5E jetfighter was damaged Saturday evening in a crash-landing at Spangdahlem airbase southwest of Bitburg. Its pilot also was not injured.

"The crashes were almost carbon copies, but they involved two different types of jetfighters," the spokesman said.

The F-5E went off the edge of the runway during a landing at 6:20 p.m. Saturday on a flight from Rhein-Main airbase in Frankfurt.

"The aircraft is repairable," the spokesman said.

Capt. William Sizemore, 28, of Keyport, Ill., remained inside the aircraft until it stopped and shut down the engine before leaving the accident area, a spokesman said.

He was examined at the base clinic and released.

The plane was assigned to the 10th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Alconbury, England, and Sizemore is a member of the 527th Tactical Fighter Aggressor Squadron.

A spokesman said the causes of the accidents will be investigated by a board of officers.

McGee Wins Kemper Golf Tourney

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — His one-stroke victory in the Kemper Open Sunday gave Jerry McGee a new lease on his golfing life.

"I'm so happy I could scream," McGee said after a dramatic, 2-stroke swing on the 17th hole put him in command and propelled him to only the third title of his career.

"If I hadn't won, after shooting 61, well, I don't know whether I could have handled it, whether I could have come back from it," said McGee, who fired that course-record score in Thursday's opening round.

"When you shoot 61 you're supposed to win," he said.

"I'd been down on myself. I'd started the year playing pretty good, then I had the injury and I didn't know if I'd come back. At age 35 and winning only two tournaments before this, I'm wondering if I've lost it for good, if I'll ever get it back, ever make the top 60 (money winners) again.

"Now, all those thoughts are gone. I can relax and play the rest of the season and have a good time.

"I've never been happier in my life. This is the high point of my career.

The chipper guy who won this one on his wife's birthday, paused a moment, grinned and continued: "And Happy Birthday, Jill."

He nailed down the victory with that critical, 2-stroke swing on 17. McGee, caught and then passed by on-rushing Jerry Pate, took command with a birdie against Pate's bogey on the 17th and finished off his final round in 4-under-par 68.

Birthday Present

McGee, who said he wanted to win as a birthday present for his wife, Jill, claimed the third victory of his 13-year tour career with a 272 total, 16 strokes under par on the rain-drenched, 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course, which was spotted by pools and puddles of water left by heavy morning rains.

Pate, who started the final round a single shot off the pace, moved into a tie for the lead with a 33 on the front side, took sole control with a birdie on the 10th and retained 1-stroke command until McGee tied him with a 12-foot birdie putt on the 16th.

His bogey from the wet sand of a bunker on the 17th and McGee's birdie from 19-20 feet sent Pate reeling back to second. The 25-year-old Pate, generally regarded as one of the game's best young players, finished with a 68 and second alone at 273.

McGee collected $93,000 from the total purse of $350,000. The biggest check of his career pushed his year's earnings to 90,704.

McGee and Pate, paired together in the last group playing before a huge gallery, were locked in a two-man fight for the lead after Stadler's woes took him out of it.

Pate held a 1-shot lead from the 10th through the 16th, with both contenders reeling off a string of pars under threatening skies.

McGee had a couple of golden opportunities — but they escaped him. He flipped

Duo Wins Swinger With 66 Final Round

BY SCOTT SUDDUTH

Some of the frequent golfers at Hillcrest Country Club refer to the 12th, 13th and 14th holes as "murder row."

However, for Randy Hines and Gordon Butler those holes represented only a little more than a 1000 yards between them and the championship in the Hillcrest Swinger Golf Tourney.

The duo dodged the trees, traveled the bootlegs, and saved par on each of the infamous holes and went on to win the Swinger tourney with a two-round total of 133, three shots better than the nearest contender.

The winners shot a 66 Sunday, and the second place team of Robert Anderson and Ron Widby shot a 67 to finish at 136, 6-under par for the tournament.

Hines and Butler, leaders after Saturday's first round, started off on a shaky foot Sunday with a bogey on the second hole. Yet, the sunny weather changed things in a hurry, said Hines, as they scored a birdie on the fifth and ninth greens.

On the back nine holes, Hines registered an eagle on the par-5, 508 yard 11th hole before the duo entered "murder's row." Two teams teed off before the winners on the 13th hole and both squads used their woods on the 222 yard par-3 hole.

However, Butler calmly paced up to the tee marker with his 4-iron and proceeded in landing his tee shot on the green 22 feet shy of the pin positioned in the left corner. Butler two-putted for par as one observer commented "this is the toughest hole out here, they have a clean bill of health now."

Hines and Butler, playing together in only their second tournament this summer, finished the round with six birdies, one bogey and the eagle.

Hines said much of their success was due to some free advice they received earlier in the week from Billy Kincaid and Pete Durham at Lubbock Country Club. "They helped us with our drives and putts earlier in week and those putts were dropping today (Sunday)," he said.

Anderson and Widby, from San Antonio, were the only serious challengers in the final round as they combined for nine birdies and one bogey. Anderson's chip shot on the 17th hole dropped in the cup for a birdie as the duo went to 5-under par for the day to secure second place while the winners were still three holes from the clubhouse.

Three teams tied for third in the championship flight with a two-round total of 137. Chester Sealey and Kent Hale shot a 68 on the final round to win the President's flight with a tourney total of 140.

A.C. White and David Foster won the first flight with a 139 total as John Riley and Bruce Gilliam shot a 72 Sunday to win the second flight.

Bob Wylie and Neal Ellis finished first in the third flight, Joe Fry and M.C. Northam won the fourth flight, Royce Lewis and O.L. Cooper finished on top in the fifth flight and the duo of Ken Lackey and Les Ferguson won the sixth flight.

The winners in each flight received $500, second place received $350, and the third through fifth finishers received $250, $150, and $100, respectively.

Originally a three round tourney, the Swinger was limited to two rounds this year after thunderstorms drenched the course Friday.

Baseball Holds Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball holds its 15th annual summer free agent draft this week with the 26 clubs preparing to select the top graduating college and high school talent.

The draft, which will be conducted by conference call hookup from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's Manhattan headquarters, is scheduled for three days beginning Tuesday although the farm directors and scouts making the selections might finish earlier than expected.

With teams picking in the regular draft according to inverse order of last season's final standings, the Seattle Mariners own the No.1 selection because they had the poorest record in the majors last year.

In the secondary draft of players previously drafted but not signed, the selection rotation was determined by lot and

Texas Leads AL West

By The Associated Press

John Grubb homered, singled twice and scored three times as the Texas Rangers took over first place in the American League's West Division with a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Grubb extended his hitting streak to 16 games and raised his average to .311 in getting three of Texas' nine hits off Jim Palmer. 6-3. His homer sailed over the 370-foot mark in left-center in the seventh.

Doyle Alexander, 3-3, held the Orioles to five hits, struck out none and walked two in the seven innings he worked. Jim Kern pitched the final two innings to preserve the triumph with his ninth save.

Jim Sundberg doubled in a run for Texas, and Al Oliver and Pat Putnam had RBI singles.

Kiko Garcia singled and scored Baltimore's first run on a groundout in the fifth. Pat Kelly drove in the other with a ninth-inning single.

The decision moved the Rangers percentage points ahead of California, which lost to Cleveland, and dropped Baltimore's edge over Boston in the East Division to one game.

ASTROS 5, EXPOS 4

Joe Niekro gained his seventh straight victory and eighth of the season with relief help from rookie Bert Roberge and Jeff Leonard capped a four-run third inning with a two-run double as the Houston Astros defeated the Montreal Expos 5-4.

Niekro, 8-2, scattered nine hits in 7 2/3 innings before needing help from Roberge, who gained his first major league save.

Montreal scored two runs in the top of the third, keyed by Andre Dawson's RBI single.

The Astros responded with four runs in the bottom of the inning against Steve Rogers, 5-3.

Run-scoring singles by Craig Reynolds and Jose Cruz preceded Leonard's double down the right field line which helped Houston extend its longest winning streak of the season to six games.

Rafael Landestoy's RBI single in the sixth provided the Astros with their winning run.

RED SOX 8, TWINS 2

Carlton Fisk drove in two runs with two singles and Butch Hobson cracked a two-run homer, carrying the Boston Red Sox to an 8-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Boston's Steve Renko, 4-2, gave up singles to Roy Smalley and Ken Landreaux before leaving with a pulled groin muscle after the sixth.

Bill Campbell pitched the final three innings, allowing two runs on five hits while recording his fifth save. Bombo Rivera tripled and scored on a grounder for Minnesota in the eighth, and Ron Jackson cracked a home run in the ninth.

YANKEES 3, WHITE SOX 2

Roy White grounded a run-scoring single up the middle in the bottom of the 11th inning, giving the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Thurman Munson drew a leadoff walk from Randy Scarberry, 1-2, and took second on a passed ball by catcher Milt May. Lou Piniella was walked intentionally, then Steve Trout replaced Scarberry.

Trout got pinch-hitter Jim Spencer and Chris Chambliss on popups before White punched an 8-2 pitch through the box and past diving shortstop-manager Don Kessinger. That gave rookie reliever Ron Davis his third victory without a loss.

The Yanks tied it 2-2 with a run in the eighth inning. Willie Randolph drew a one-out walk and was forced at second by Mickey Rivers, who raced home on Munson's double to the left-field corner.

MARINERS 10, BLUE JAYS 5

Dan Meyer's third-inning grand slam helped power the Seattle Mariners past the Toronto Blue Jays 10-5.

Meyer's fifth home run and second grand slam of the season put Seattle in front to stay. Toronto was ahead 2-1 when Hector Cruz singled. Ruppert Jones walked and Bruce Bochte singled to set up Meyer's blast.

Mariners starter Mike Parrott, 3-1, allowed only two runs in seven innings, giving up four hits and only an intentional walk to Roy Howell.

Byron McLaughlin replaced Parrott to start the eighth and gave up four hits and three runs before Shane Rawley replaced him with two out in that inning.

CARDINALS 4, DODGERS 4

Garry Templeton got four hits, stole two bases and scored three runs as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-4 to complete a weekend sweep of the National League champions.

The Cardinals collected 12 hits in winning their fourth consecutive game and 18th in 27 games. They broke loose in the sixth inning, when an error by Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell led to three unearned runs.

Dodgers pitcher Burt Hooton, 4-3, was victimized by three errors and gave up four unearned runs. The Cardinals' Pete Vuckovich, 5-3, survived Joe Ferguson's solo home run in the third and Davey Lopes' three-run blast in the seventh.

ROYALS 6, BREWERS 1

Marty Pattin survived a shaky first inning to hurl a five-hitter as the Kansas City Royals downed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1.

Darrel Porter and Pete LaCock each drove in one run and scored twice to pace the Royals, who won for their eighth time in 10 games.

The 36-year-old Pattin, 2-0, surrendered two of the hits in the first inning, when the Brewers got their run.

CUBS 2, GIANTS 1

Dave Kingman hit his 19th home run of the year and fourth in three days and came up with a crucial stolen base to help Mike Krukow to his first victory since May 4 as the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Francisco Giants 2-1.

The homer was his third hit of the day and broke a 1-1 tie. Kingman, who leads the National League in homers, led off the sixth inning with his shot off loser John Curtis, 1-2. Last year, Kingman hit 28 homers and did not get his 19th until Aug. 15.

TIGERS 2, A's 0

Detroit right-hander Dave Rozenia, hurling his second straight complete game, stifled Oakland on five hits, leading the Tigers to a 2-0 victory over the A's.

Rozenia, in pitching Detroit's first shutout this season, defeated the A's for the first time in six career decisions.

INDIANS 5, ANGELS 3

Duane Kuiper had a two-run single and Toby Harrah had two singles, driving in one run and setting up a second as the Cleveland Indians recorded a 5-3 victory over the California Angels.

Cleveland's Mike Paxton, 4-2, walked three batters and struck out three. He got ninth-inning relief help from Victor Cruz, who finished the Indians' 13th triumph in 20 games.

PIRATES 7, PADRES 0

Emergency starter Bruce Kison hurled a brilliant one-hitter after pitching hitless ball for 7 2/3 innings and the Pittsburgh Pirates rapped five home runs, two by Bill Robinson, as they beat the San Diego Padres 7-0.

Kison, 3-1, allowed only Barry Evans' ground ball double over the third base bag in the eighth and walked two in his first route-going performance of the season.

METS 9, BRAVES 4

John Stearns smashed three hits and drove in three runs, leading the New York Mets to a 9-4 decision over the Atlanta Braves.

Winner Pat Zachry, 5-0, limited the Braves to five hits through six innings and Skip Lockwood finished up for the Mets, completing a six-hitter and recording his ninth save.

PHILLIES 6, REDS 4-12

George Foster drove in four runs with a pair of homers as the Cincinnati Reds blasted the Philadelphia Phillies 12-2 to earn a split in their doubleheader.

The Phillies had won the first game 6-4 with a two-run ninth keyed by Bud Harrelson's RBI single.

Foster, who has hit four homers in his last three games, hit No. 9 of the season in the third inning and No. 10 with two men on in the seventh.

The Reds had jumped to a 3-0 lead in the second on a double by Cesar Geronimo and a two-run single by pitcher Tom Hume, 4-1.

Borg, Gerulaitis Advance In French Tennis Action

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg and Vitas Gerulaitis played devastating tennis Sunday and shattered the dreams of two highly rated youngsters in the French Open championships.

Borg, favorite for the title and the first prize of $49,000, tamed Gilles Moretton, a big, strong 21-year-old Frenchman 7-5, 6-4, 6-2.

Gerulaitis, who won the Italian Open last weekend, ran like a deer around the center court of the Roland Garros stadium to subdue Ivan Lendl, the 19-year-old Czech star, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3.

Borg and Gerulaitis moved into the quarterfinals of the tournament, the world's most prestigious event on slow clay. Jimmy Connors, seeded to meet Borg in the final, plays Manuel Orantes of Spain for a quarterfinal place Monday.

Moretton was the 1st Frenchman in the men's singles and received noisy encouragement from the 15,000 center court fans. He gave them plenty to cheer about with his big service and powerful forehand, which often caught Borg unawares.

Moretton broke Borg's service twice in the opening set and served for the set at 5-3. But that was the closest he came to glory.

He double-faulted, then rushed eagerly forward and was passed as Borg broke back and began his long march to victory.

"I learned a lot from the match," Moretton said. "I took terrible risks, but I realize now Borg made me take them. He was wonderfully consistent."

Moretton's backhand is not as good as the rest of his game, a fact Borg discovered and exploited.

Lendl is rated the world's top junior after winning the Wimbledon, French and Italian junior titles last year. He defeated Arthur Ashe in the previous round of this tournament.

The tall slim Czech often matched Gerulaitis stroke for stroke in long and patient baseline duels, but when he tried to vary the pattern with drop shots, the American moved forward like lightning and won the points.

"I had never played against him before," Lendl said. "I knew he was fast on the court, but I had no idea he was that fast." (More)

Hans Gildemeister, the stylish Chilean, used his double-grip forehand and backhand to drum out Tim Gullikson 6-7, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

In the women's singles, two American hopes fell. Hana Mandlikova edged Betty Ann Stuart 6-4, 7-4, and Wendy Turnbull of Australia overcame Anne Smith 6-1, 7-4.

Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd plays the only other American survivor, Gerulaitis's sister, Rita, in the quarterfinals Monday.

A hot and clammy day ended in a thunderstorm which flooded the center court and interrupted a slow moving baseline duel between Jose Higuera of Spain and Eliot Teltscher, the 20-year-old American from Palos Verdes, Calif.

The black-bearded Spaniard was leading 6-3, 6-4, 3-2 with his service to one. Teltscher was behind through most of the match but fought like a tiger, saving five set points in the first set and another in the second.

Vitas Gerulaitis (right) hopes to be the one to play Jimmy Connors in the finals of the French Open Tennis Tournament. Connors and Bjorn Borg are favored to meet in the final, but Gerulaitis is scheduled to meet Borg in quarterfinal action. The 24-year-old Gerulaitis is playing his best tennis lately. The Italian Open is among his latest triumphs.

'Scab' Umpire Feels Strike Consequences

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Umpire Derryl Cousins arrived at Metropolitan Stadium and sat alone in front of his locker while the other three umpires ignored him.

Written on tape above the lockers were the names of the crew: Don, Nick, Rich, and Scab.

"I fully expected this," said Cousins, who joined the crew of Don Denking, Nick Bremigan and Richard Garcia as a replacement for Steve Palermo, who was taking his two-week vacation won by the umpires as part of the recent settlement.

"I knew when I signed (to work during the strike) what the consequences would be. I don't blame them for the way they feel. Maybe if the shoe had been on the other foot, I would have felt the same way. Who's to say I wouldn't have done the same thing? For that matter, who's to say they wouldn't have done what I did if they had been in my position?"

What Cousins did was accept an opportunity that might not have come again. While the umpires struck, he decided to work, leaving his minor league umpiring job after seven years.

"There's no way I was going to be a major league umpire this year," Cousins admitted. "It's conjecture, but I might never have been a major league umpire."

Cousins said he was assured that if he worked during the strike he would be given a major league contract and that no regular umpires would lose their jobs because of him.

"If they hadn't assured me that, I never would have signed," he said.

Apparently that wasn't enough to make Denking, Bremigan and Garcia forgive and forget. Cousins is now a social outcast.

"There's four of them up working the way he is," said Denking, the crew chief. "I don't know how the other crews are handling them, but I know how I feel."

"I will not ride with them. I will not eat with them. I will not have idle conversation with them. As crew chief, it is my job to help him (Cousins) do his job, but that's all I'll do."

Lopez Defends LPGA Crown

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, finally following the strategy that she had planned from the start of the tourney, shot a 2-under-par 70 to defend her LPGA title at a $100,000 tournament Sunday.

Lopez fought through heavy rainstorms to capture the $15,000 first prize by four strokes with a 280 total. The 22-year-old darling of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour took her third straight victory and fifth in nine tournaments this year to boost her winnings to $118,475 for 1979. Lopez has now won $331,427 since turning pro.

Pat Bradley, the first-day leader with a 66 who had dropped to fourth after three rounds, climbed back with a 70 on the par-72, 6,410 yard Wykagyl Country Club layout to finish second at 284.

Bradley, 28, a winner of this event in 1976 for her first triumph as a pro, was third last year. She has now finished in the runnerup spot in five events this season.

Gail Toushin, a part-time tour player since 1974, was a surprise third-place finisher with 285 thanks to a par round while playing with Lopez.

"I putted better today," explained Lopez, who had five birdies to help offset a double bogey on the par-3, 217-yard seventh hole and a bogey on the par-4, 362-yard ninth hole.

"That was the strategy I was trying to follow right along — go for everything," said Lopez. "I made all of my six and seven-footers. I faltered a bit after the double bogey, but I felt that I just had to forget that hole. I was swinging better on the back nine both with my driver and with the irons."

"The fairways weren't as wet as I thought they would be. I guess we're all getting used to playing in the rain. We've been plagued by it for the last five or six weeks."

Laura Baugh, Sandra Post and Judy Rankin finished tied for fourth with a 1-over 289. Baugh had a 72, one stroke less than both Post and Rankin.

Donna Caponi Young, who shared the runnerup spot with Toushin heading into the final round, fell back to a tie for seventh with Peggy Conley. Young had a 5-over 77 while Conley closed with a 69, which tied for best round of the day with Lori Garbacz.

The heavy rains in the morning suspension of play for 1 hour, 27 minutes. Action resumed but another heavy deluge struck the course in the mid-afternoon.

But the field of 69 in the Golden Lites Classic continued in the downpour.

"When I got my birdie on the 13th hole," offered Bradley, who also has been third in three other tournaments this year, "I thought I had a chance. Then I bogeyed the 14th and I knew that was the turning point. It was just too much ground to make up with so few holes remaining."

CFA Members Oppose Playoff

IRVING (AP) — By an overwhelming margin, the major universities that comprise the College Football Association voted Sunday not to support a National Collegiate Athletic Association proposal to hold a four-team national championship playoff after the bowl games.

The CFA's third annual meeting heard representatives of the Cotton, Orange and Sugar bowls predict that any kind of playoff would put the postseason bowls — there were 15 involving Division I-A teams last season — out of business.

Frank Broyles, athletic director and former football coach at the University of Arkansas and a member of the NCAA Extra-Events Committee which proposed the plan, called a national championship playoff "inevitable" and said it would provide "a tremendous surge of interest which is needed at this time in college football."

Of approximately 100 coaches, athletic directors, faculty representatives and conference commissioners in attendance, only five voted in favor of a playoff. The NCAA plan calls for four playoff teams to be selected after the bowl games.

In a Saturday meeting, more than a dozen coaches voted against a playoff, with only Vince Dooley of Georgia in favor. Fred Akers of Texas, once a playoff proponent, opposed it for fear it would ruin the bowl games.

The bowls' major concerns are that they would be reduced to the equivalent of quarterfinal games by a playoff and their lucrative television contracts would suffer accordingly, as well as their live gate.

Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, projected an increase in overall bowl revenues of 35 percent in the next five years and a "conservative" 80 percent in 10 years through stadium expansion, raised ticket prices and new TV pacts. But he said a playoff would slice current revenues from 25 to 60 percent. Holmes said the 30 teams in last year's 15 bowl games made more than $16 million.

Field Scovell, executive director of the Cotton Bowl, said, "TV contracts aren't based on quarterfinal games."

Bill Ward of the Orange Bowl said an elimination setup would change any bowl games "from a rewarding experience and vacation enjoyed by the participating institutions to just another must-win weekend football game."

Broyles, however, said a playoff would boost college football TV ratings, which he said dropped 8 percent during the 1978 regular season and 20 percent for the bowl games. He also said the extra events committee doesn't think a playoff would hurt the bowls.

He pointed out that Notre Dame and Houston, neither with a shot at the national championship as selected by The Associated Press, filled only about one-fourth of the Cotton Bowl on a miserable day last Jan. 1.

"If the winner had a chance for the playoffs, they would have had a full house," he said.

He said the revenues for three playoff games — two semifinals and the championship game — could equal that of the current 15 bowls. He called Jan. 1 — traditional date of the Cotton, Orange, Rose and Sugar bowls — "the No. 1 attraction in all sports."

The NCAA must approve any playoff plan at its convention next January.

Sonics Receive Super Reception

SEATTLE (AP) — With a parade, a mass airport reception and round-the-clock celebration the city of Seattle is welcoming home the SuperSonics and exulting in its title as the best team in the National Basketball Association.

Despite — or maybe because of — 80-degree temperatures, a crowd estimated at 15,000 gathered on an arid concrete apron at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport Saturday afternoon to meet the team's chartered airliner.

Chanting "We're No. 1" and cheering as loud as the roar of incoming jets, the crowd was a yellow and green wave of Sonics T-shirts, pennants and pompons.

Forty of the fans went down in the heat and were treated by Port of Seattle medic crews, said Lt. Ernest Robinson of the port's fire department. One woman was taken to a hospital for cracked ribs she suffered in the crush of the crowd, he said.

And that wasn't even the official city celebration.

"Monday this town is going to just go zonkers at noon" at the downtown victory parade, Seattle police Lt. T.J. Rhodes predicted Saturday.

"There was dancing in the streets. The entire town went bananas" Friday night after the winning game, he said.

The Sonics' 97-93 victory on the Washington Bullets' home court in Landover, Md., ended their best-of-seven series at five games, the Sonics taking the last four straight.

The Sonics brought home a big gold NBA trophy, the first major professional sports championship won by a Seattle team since the Seattle Metropolitans won hockey's Stanley Cup 62 years ago.

Ed Hamman of Seattle was wearing a basketball that had been cut to fit his head as he waited for the Sonics to arrive Saturday. He said he had been celebrating all Friday night, driving around with his girlfriend, honking his car horn until dawn and then coming to the airport.

Chief Antelope, who said he was an Indian from Oklahoma, appeared in a fringed leather suit and feathered headdress to lead the crowd in Sonic cheers. A "Welcome Sonics" sign he carried had seven feathers hanging from it, "like seven Hail Marys or Our Fathers," he said as he did a welcoming dance.

The furry Wheedle Sonics mascot found the heat too much. After a brief appearance before the crowd he had to open his 85-pound costume for fresh air and water in the United freight terminal, near where the crowd had gathered.

"This is an experience we'll probably never see again 'till next year when we win it again," said Sonics owner Sam Schulman as the team was introduced to the crowd from a platform beside the plane.

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said his team had removed the tonsils and silenced The Fat Lady whom Bullets Coach Dick Motta made famous last year when Washington won the championship over Seattle.

Smiling from behind mirrored sun glasses, guard Dennis Johnson thanked the fans for the big reception while Jack Sikma added, "It's a big thrill. We got 'em this year."

Assistant Coach Les Habegger captured the mood of the crowd when he said, "We're all winners here today."

Jim Rains, a flying Tiger freight employee watching the unusual gathering, said, "This is great. I've never seen such support for a team."

And Fredericka Owens, a sports-loving Seattle native who returned home 10 years ago after 36 years in New York said, "Seattle really is on the map now."

"This is the first time I've seen anything like this in Seattle," she said. "This is the first time I've been able to enjoy my home town winning. You know how long I've waited for something to happen out here?"

"Now we've got to try and help these Mariners out."

BASEBALL

Jackson Suffers Injury

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson, who suffered a leg injury in Saturday night's 7-0 loss to the Chicago White Sox, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Sunday by the New York Yankees.

The Yankee right fielder suffered a partial tear of a muscle below his left calf jogging in to the dugout at the end of the game after chasing down a fly ball by Lamar Johnson for the final out.

He left Saturday night's game on crutches, and the leg was placed in a splint following an examination Sunday by team physician Dr. John Bonomo.

Jorgensen Improves

ARLINGTON (AP) — Mike Jorgensen of the Texas Rangers, recovering from a head injury, was reported improving Sunday, but doctors kept the first baseman in the intensive care unit at Arlington Memorial Hospital.

"He is doing very well," said IC nurse Mary Hide. Jorgensen was hit in the head by a pitched ball last Monday. He was hospitalized Friday after suffering headaches and dizziness.

Miss Hide said his condition had improved since Saturday night when the 30-year-old veteran was placed in intensive care. His condition remained "fair and stable."

"The doctor says he may go back to his room tomorrow. But that's not a promise," Miss Hide said. "He's conscious, eating regular meals." She described his mood as "terrific."

Jorgensen was struck by a fastball pitched by Andy Hassler of the Boston Red Sox. The ball cracked Jorgensen's helmet, but x-rays did not reveal any serious injury to the former Gold Glove winner at Montreal who was signed by Texas as a free agent in January 1978.

He played as a pinch-hitter Thursday night, but was hospitalized the next day.

Basketball

Owls Sign Cager

HOUSTON (UPI) — Ricky Pierce of Garland has been signed to play basketball for the Rice Owls.

Pierce, 6-5, 205 pounds, attended Walla Walla Junior College in Washington State last year, where he averaged 19 points and 10 rebounds a game.

He is the fourth signee for Rice.

Waltrip Gets Easy Win In Texas 400 Auto Race

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Darrell Waltrip came back from nearly a lap deficit to put a lap on the field and handily win Sunday's $180,000 Texas 400 Grand National stock car race.

Waltrip finished a lap and about two car lengths ahead of Bobby Allison. Allison edged Buddy Baker by a length, and Cale Yarborough was fourth, a half length behind Baker after a two-lap sprint to the checkered flag.

The only caution flag came on the 193rd of 200 laps when second-place runner rookie Dal Earnhardt slammed the third turn wall. He was not injured.

Waltrip's average speed of 156.199 mph was easily a track record at the two-mile Texas World Speedway oval. He collected $21,500.

"I knew we'd run good, but not that good," Waltrip said in Winner's Circle. "I had to see Dale run into problems. He really gave me a run almost the whole race."

Waltrip lost his closest competition when Earnhardt, just eight seconds back with 45 miles to go, had to stop for fresh tires.

Waltrip, who qualified fourth, took a quick early lead and was pulling away from all but Earnhardt in the early stages of the race. But on the 33rd circuit, a tire went flat on Waltrip's car, nearly sending him into the wall.

The 32-year-old Franklin, Tenn., driver dropped nearly three-quarters of a lap behind. He was able to retake the lead a few laps later when the rest of the field began making their regular pit stops.

The pit stop situation finally evened up during the last 100 miles.

Allison lost time with one more pit stop than Waltrip had. Baker dropped out of the leader's lap after an air wrench broke and the hydraulic jack collapsed on him on two successive pit stops.

Yarborough was troubled in the early going by handling problems and had to come back from two laps in arrears.

Front row starter Terry Labonte came in fifth, the highest finisher among the three rookies who started in the top 10. Rookie Joe Millikan dropped to eighth at the finish when he ran out of gas.

Favorite Past Time Gets Futurity Victory

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Favorite Past Time broke quickly to grab the lead and stayed out front all the way Sunday to capture the $526,500 Kansas Futurity, first leg of the Triple Crown for 2-year-old quarter horses.

The speedy, filly won by a neck in the 350-yard sprint at Ruidoso Downs with a time of 17.99 seconds.

Jockey Harley Crosby kept Favorite Past Time clear of the bumping that plagued other horses in the race, which carried a prize of $173,650 for the top finisher.

The victory makes Favorite Past Time, owned by Dr. Jack Frost of Centralia, Ill., the horse to watch in the final two Triple Crown races, the $450,000 Rainbow Futurity July 22 and the $1.28 million All-American Futurity Sept. 3.

Favorite Past Time refunded pari-mutuel payoffs of $18.40 to win, $10 to place and $5.20 to show, while improving her record to 4-1-0 in five starts and increasing her earnings to $191,157.

Top qualifier Seco Mighty Talk took second but was disqualified for interference and dropped to third, moving Pa Pa Wheelie up into the No. 2 position.

Pa Pa Wheelie earned $72,488 for owner B.N. Adams of Houston, Texas, and Seco Mighty Talk picked up $33,897 for owners David Cryan and Charles R. Weik of San Antonio, Texas.

Payoffs on Pa Pa Wheelie were $5.40 and $3.60. Seco Mighty Talk paid $3.80 to show.

Easy Tam entered the race with the best money line and was rated a strong contender. But the filly, owned by Darrell Kissee of Miami, Okla., never finished the race.

Easy Tam bolted out of the gate and was close to Favorite Past Time as the 10-horse field hit the halfway point. Easy Tam suddenly appeared to lose her balance, took a few uncertain strides, then lost her legs completely and went down.

Jockey Jerry Burgess was thrown to the turf and his mount rolled over him. Easy Tam climbed back to her feet and tried to resume the race. Burgess was taken by ambulance to the hospital where officials indicated he was shaken up but not seriously injured.

Although Easy Tam didn't finish, she collected a paycheck of $14,602 as the last place horse.

The order of finish for the rest of the field with owners and money earned was as follows: 4th, Tonya Jay, owned by Thomas Demmitt of Plains, Kan., $23,989; 5th, Washita Ted, owned by Maureen and Dee Ware of Ruidoso, $19,295; 6th, Charge It Papa, James Keng of Giddings, Texas, $18,252; 7th, Great As Charger, Leland Hutton of Jefferson, Ohio, $17,209; 8th, Easy Azures, John May of Ft. Stockton, Texas, and Mack Yates of Cherokee, Texas, $16,688; and 9th, Rebel Killoqua, Wayne and Jewel Scott of Tabequah, Okla., $14,602.

Cauthen Faces Decision

LONDON (AP) — American wonder jockey Steve Cauthen faces one of the toughest decisions of his riding career this week.

Cauthen, the 19-year-old whiz-kid from Kentucky, must decide which of three horses to ride in Wednesday's Epsom Derby, England's top horse racing classic.

Cauthen, who is spending this season riding for English trainer Barry Hills and millionaire owner Robert Sangster, must choose among Tap on Wood, Two of Diamonds and Cracaval for Wednesday's historic 200th running of the race.

"The names of those horses have been whirling around in my head for a fortnight," Cauthen admitted in an interview in the Sunday People newspaper.

"Each is a good horse, with a fairly equal chance," said Cauthen. "I honestly do not know the answer and might not make up my mind until the night before the race."

Cauthen is in the unique position of being faced with the choice of three fancied Derby mounts — all in the same stable and the same ownership.

out from six feet on the 14th hole and left a 15-footer hanging on the edge of the hole on the 15th.

On the 16th, however, he coaxed in a 12-footer and they were tied.

McGee, with the honor on the 17th tee, put his ball on the putting surface and Pate missed to the left, in the bunker. The wet sand prohibited him from reaching the green with his explosion shot and he made bogey. McGee birdied from about 15-feet to take the 2-shot lead that Pate cut to one on the 18th with a birdie.

Pate birdied the final hole after a great approach shot and put the pressure on McGee, who had missed the green. Using a putter from a mound by the side of the green, McGee ran it down to within inches for the clinching par that capped his comeback from a rib injury that sidelined him for nine weeks earlier this year.

J.C. Snead and defending champion Andy Bean tied for third at 277. Snead shot a closing 70 and Bean had a 68.

Ray Floyd was next at 72-78 and Mark Hayes was alone in sixth at 71-79.

Craig Stadler, who had opened the final round in a tie for the lead with McGee, took himself out of it with a horrendous 41 on the back side. He finished with a 76-280.

Jones Wins U.S. Auto Race

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Bob Jones of Danville, Ill., took the lead on the 13th lap Sunday and held on to win the 40-lap U.S. Auto Club sprint feature here.

It was Jones' fifth victory of the season and his second in two days. He captured the USAC sprint feature Saturday at Rossburg, Ohio.

Fancho Carter of Brownsburg, Ind., led for the first 13 laps until he was slowed by mechanical problems. Jones passed him and was never headed on the half-mile dirt track.

Carter was second, followed by Sheldon Kinser of Bloomington, Ind.; Billy Cassella, Weirton, W.Va.; Greg Leffler, St. Paul, Ind., and Gary Bettenhausen of Monrovia, Ind.

Filmmaking In Prison Leaves Mark On Pair

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Churchill and Nick Broomfield spent three months — seven days a week, often 12 hours a day — inside the California Youth Authority's prison at Chino, and the experience left a lasting impression on the filmmakers.

"We found, even in the short time we were there, our view of life became very blackened," Broomfield said the other day. "It was very hard to hold onto any sort of optimistic feeling. You become suspicious of other people, and, ultimately, very withdrawn."

Indeed, the film they produced, "Tattooed Tears," is an even more powerful commentary on life in a prison for juvenile offenders.

The controversial, 90-minute documentary was fed to stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network last week on a "soft" basis, leaving each to decide if and when to air the film, which includes some profanity and nudity.

It was not immediately known how many stations would broadcast "Tattooed Tears," so watch local listings for day and time.

Obtaining air time for "Tattooed Tears," even on PBS' terms, was no easy task, but Broomfield said he and Miss Churchill felt it should be broadcast as produced.

"You can't really judge that kind of environment by values we have in outside society," Broomfield said. "If we'd cut out the bad language and so on, it really wouldn't show what was happening in prison."

"And we wanted this to last in time, as a sort of statement of the situation in prison at this point in time," he said.

"Tattooed Tears" was widely acclaimed by the critics on its release, about a year ago, and won a Hugo Award at the Chicago Film Festival. The film has had a limited screening in theaters.

Broomfield said the filmmakers' concession to PBS was to allow an introduction by Tom Wicker, associate editor of the New York Times and a member of the commission that investigated New York's Attica prison disturbance.

The film follows four young inmates, including one 18-year-old who has tattooed a teardrop down the left side of his face for each year he has spent in prison.

Broomfield, who studied law and politics at Cardiff and Essex universities in his native Great Britain, and Miss Churchill, a UCLA Graduate, did all the work inside Chino by themselves. Their initial task was to secure the trust of inmates — called "wards" — and prison officials.

"There's a self-consciousness at first," he said, "but before long, a person simply has to start functioning normally again, particularly if he feels passionately about something, as these people do."

Neither Broomfield nor Miss Churchill could have known what they would encounter at Chino.

"We found it a world where nothing can be judged by values we brought in," he said. "We saw that as soon as we got there — how important little things, like the way one person looked at another — could be."

"We were amazed how small incidents we filmed grew to fairly major confrontations. All they need is a tinder spark, something like a strand of hair in someone's food."

Any sign of sensitivity, he said, is a sign of weakness, a signal as appreciated by guards as it is by inmates.

Broomfield said the film was produced without narration or summary. "We wanted to involve the audience," he said, "and get them to do the thinking at the end of the film."

Since then, Broomfield and Miss Churchill have been considering another project. "Though we're not ready for 'Tattooed Tears' again," Broomfield said, "maybe we'll do a comedy." He said — and he might not have been kidding.

Red Art Show Fascinates Parisians

PARIS (AP) — A stunning display of modernistic Soviet art never before seen in the West, far broader than anything the Kremlin has permitted shown since the early years of the Russian Revolution, is fascinating audiences here.

After two years of arduous negotiations with Soviet culture officials, the Pompidou Center in Paris opened "Paris-Moscow 1900-1930," an exposition of Russian art whose 2,500 items include many pieces that have languished in Soviet cellars for decades.

The exhibition gives a sense of how French trends influenced art in pre-Revolutionary Russia. Alongside a 1914 cubist counter-relief by Picasso, for example, hangs a similar work by Russia's Lioubov Popova, dated 1915.

Pompidou officials said they were overwhelmed to discover that Russian artists assimilated and mastered the French avant garde movement in just a few years.

As the show opened Friday, exiled Russian painters distributed leaflets outside the futuristic steel and glass center known as the Beaubourg, at the former site of Les Halles, the old downtown market, reminding visitors that the Kremlin still suppresses freedom of art.

The leaflets claimed Soviet authorities sent bulldozers to knock down an unofficial exhibition of avant garde works in 1974 and burned an apartment containing a private collection of others.

The exhibit is the third and final chapter of a program series by the Pompidou Center, which began with Paris-New York, followed by Paris-Berlin.

The idea was to show the main channels of art in the early 20th century, when, under French influence and the breakthroughs of artists like Picasso, painting was undergoing its most radical metamorphosis since the Renaissance.

The effect of the project is to help viewers see art and the lines that tie it together.

But the center had problems dealing with the Soviet Union, where the only officially sanctioned art is "socialist realism," and the avant garde abstractions of many Russian painters are banned.

"After a year and a half we gave up trying to understand the Soviet Union," says Pontus Hulten, the Pompidou Center's director. Unlike with the New York and Berlin sections of the project, Moscow art of that period is little known. Pompidou often found themselves disagreeing with the Soviets over taste.

Works by major artists like Vassily Kandinsky and Kasimir Malevich were obtained only after heated bargaining. The French considered them pivotal. The Russians couldn't understand why.

Some items did not show up until the last minute, and even as the show was opening, workmen were still putting the finishing touches to the exhibition.

Other works never arrived. For instance, the French painter Matisse's "The Dancers," commissioned 70 years ago by a Russian connoisseur, made it.

The companion piece, "The Music," remained in Russia, leaving only half of Matisse's rich, flowing creation on display. How come? Nobody at the Pompidou Center knows.

Man Charged With Kidnapping

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — One man was charged and at least one more person was being sought in the kidnapping of the widow of self-professed pornography king John Krasner, state police said Sunday.

John Joseph Farrell, 46, of Jim Thorpe, was jailed in lieu of $100,000 bail after his arraignment on charges of kidnapping and conspiracy following his arrest Saturday morning, police said.

He is accused of abducting Lillian Krasner, 54, from near her Harvey's Lake home Wednesday night and taking her to a place in Carbon County, according to FBI agent Edgar N. Best.

Best said the woman was bound, gagged and blindfolded for two days until she managed to free herself Friday night and get word to her son, Phillip, who already had arranged to pay a $900,000 ransom.

The son notified officials in time to rescue his mother from an address in Penn Forest Township, Best said Saturday.

After authorities knew her whereabouts, the money was switched for a dummy package which was picked up at the designated drop point, Best said.

Mrs. Krasner's husband owned a tri-state chain of adult bookstores. Since he was shot to death in February in a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., motel parking lot, his family has operated the enterprise.

In 1976, Krasner was convicted of soliciting to have his former partner and then-competitor Allen Morrow murdered. He was appealing that conviction and was free on bail when he was killed in what Ft. Lauderdale police said appeared to be a robbery attempt.

Morrow was shot in the head in Harvey's Lake last Tuesday, apparently after a bar dispute, police said. He is hospitalized in Wilkes-Barre.

Veteran Actor Admits To Doing 'Nothing'

FALMOUTH FORESIDE, Maine (AP) — Gary Merrill insists he's not doing much of anything. But at 63, the veteran actor looks like he's doing it very well.

"I never work," the craggy-faced Merrill said in that rich, deep voice that's been his trademark, as he relaxed in a rented oceanfront home in this Portland suburb. "People say, 'What do you do?' I say, 'Nothing.' That stops the conversation."

Actually, Merrill is doing what he likes best — enjoying the warm months in Maine, where he's spent every summer since he was a boy growing up outside Hartford, Conn. "Any kid that's given Maine in the summer, it's like dope — you get addicted," he says.

The addiction has been lifelong. Merrill briefly attended Bowdoin College and once ran for Congress in Maine. And he and Bette Davis spent much of their 10-year marriage at a home in Cape Elizabeth. Since 1965, Maine has been more or less Merrill's permanent home.

Merrill, known for his roles in such acclaimed movies as "All About Eve" and "Twelve O'Clock High" as well as countless TV appearances, calls himself an "adequate actor," one who "never worked at it."

"I had no drive, really. I just like to get by and have fun."

He recently returned to California — a place he dislikes — to film a fall TV show, "The Seekers," a historical epic he dismisses as "idioty."

"George Hamilton probably had three minutes (in the show), I probably had one minute. I said, 'I should have realized all you wanted was what's left of the name. Just send me the money — you didn't have to fly me out.'"

Merrill will not appear in one other upcoming program, a "60 Minutes" profile of Bette Davis. He declined to be interviewed for it. They met while filming "All About Eve" and were married in 1950 — her fourth marriage and his second. They were divorced in 1960, with Miss Davis awarded custody of their three children.

The two "haven't" talked for a long time," Merrill says. "We don't get along too well."

His son, Michael Merrill, now 26 and a Boston attorney, affectionately describes his father as "eccentric." He apparently is referring to Merrill's propensity for offbeat behavior, such as once knocking the hats off marching musicians at a Bowdoin commencement. Or Merrill's purchase of a Maine light-house, which he planned to live in but which stands idle today.

Merrill — who says, "I do what I want to do, you know, and never worry about it" — has "a very good relationship" with Michael. "It's a reversed relationship, too. He'd come and he'd say to me, 'Why don't you get a haircut?' I was supposed to say that to him."

Merrill is taking a stab at his autobiography — or as he puts it, "trying to write a book of my life or some damn thing." If he completes it — and Merrill says he's not sure he will — much of the book will be about his political involvement.

"I've always been fascinated by politics," says Merrill, who took public stands on behalf of civil rights and ran unsuccessfully for the Republican nomination for Congress in 1968 as an anti-Vietnam War candidate.

Forgetful Police May Cost Man $600

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The city forgot for 10 months to tell Gershon Sosin that police had recovered his stolen car and now they say he owes a $600 storage fee to a service station operator.

"I don't blame the police department or Al's Gulf," said Sosin, a construction worker, because the police are so "short-handed."

But he says the demand for a $2-a-day storage fee is a bit much.

Sosin's green 1969 Dodge Dart arrived at the storage lot last July, shortly after it was reported stolen. Sosin wasn't informed until last week.

The car was bearing plates apparently stolen from a similar, but blue, Dodge Dart. Authorities got mixed up, telling the owner of the blue car, also stolen, to retrieve his vehicle.

Service station operator Michael Hornat says that when the blue car's owner told him the green car was not his, he again notified authorities about the unclaimed green car.

But, Hornat says, no one checked the vehicle identification number in order to locate the real owner and it became lost among up to 400 recovered vehicles that crowd his lot.

Hartford police said they might respond by next week to Sosin's request that they pay the $600 fee.

Pope Appears Briefly On Soviet Television

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television viewers had their first glimpse of Pope John Paul II's visit to Poland Sunday and received a warning that some church circles were trying to use the event for "anti-state purposes."

Alexander Bovin, commentator on Soviet television's "International Panorama" program, showed about 30 seconds of film footage of the pope's arrival at Warsaw's airport Saturday, but there were no shots of the jubilant welcoming crowds that awaited him.

Previously, the eight-day trip was given only a terse mention by Tass, the news agency of the Soviet government, which encourages atheism.

Bovin said the Vatican's policy towards Eastern Europe is two-sided and hinted that the visit may have a harmful effect.

Gas Waiting Lines Decrease, Fewer Stations Remain Open

By The Associated Press

New Yorkers could find only one in five service stations open Sunday, but the long lines at California pumps had dwindled.

On the whole, there seemed to be no serious gasoline problems although automobile clubs in most states reported that between 40 percent and 60 percent of the stations were closed.

The Auto Club of New York said less than 17 percent of the service stations in the metropolitan area were pumping gasoline on Sunday. About the same percentage were open in neighboring Connecticut.

A club spokesman said that indicated distribution of June gasoline allocations probably were a bit late.

The Automobile Club of Southern California predicted that just 30 percent of the stations would be open on Sunday in the southern part of the state, while 38 percent would be operating in the north.

But despite the number of closures, the long lines that have been familiar the past three weeks in California were not to be found early Sunday.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said Sunday his state could institute a California-style odd-even gasoline rationing plan "overnight," if it becomes necessary.

But Carey expressed fear that rationing might lead New Yorkers to believe incorrectly that there is enough gas to go around, and would hurt efforts to get people to conserve fuel. Carey also warned of a heating oil shortage in the fall.

Elsewhere, the petroleum shortage was being felt in different ways.

Some boat builders in Spokane, Wash., say short supplies had dealt them a double blow.

Petroleum shortages have driven up costs of petrochemical base products which go into fiberglass used in making most pleasure boats, spokesmen said.

At the same time, tight supplies of motor fuel apparently have scared off some buyers and stalled dealer orders. The two biggest boat builders in Spokane have cut their payrolls nearly in half, officials say.

William Carroll, vice president of Apollo Boat Manufacturing Co., said his work force has been cut by at least half from the normal 280 employees for this time of year.

"We're in limbo," Carroll said. "We'd like officials to set the price of gas — whether it's $2 or $3 a gallon or whatever — so that people know it's available at a price and can decide for themselves that they want to buy for what price."

And in Minnesota, safety officials are concerned that motorists are storing dangerous containers of gasoline in their cars and around their homes, while others are installing auxiliary tanks in their cars.

Safety officials do not object to the use of auxiliary tanks that meet federal standards and are properly installed. But they see danger in carrying double and triple the normal amount of gasoline.

"Many people are pulling into self-service gas stations and filling seven or eight containers, putting them in their trunks, slamming the lid down and thinking they have a safe condition for their family," said Wally Collins, assistant director of the state fire marshal's office.

"I'm appalled by it. I know that sometime down the road we will have a fire problem. We will have someone burned, I am sure."

Actor Under Hospital Care

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Jack Haley Sr., best known for his role as the Tin Man who went searching for a heart in "The Wizard of Oz," was listed in guarded condition Sunday at UCLA Medical Center's coronary care unit, the hospital said.

The 82-year-old performer collapsed Saturday afternoon at his home in Beverly Hills, said hospital spokeswoman Barbara Stone. He was treated by paramedics about 5:30 p.m. and then rushed to the hospital, she said.

Relatives said Haley has suffered from circulatory problems for nearly six months. Mrs. Stone said Haley was undergoing tests but a heart attack had not been confirmed.

Haley is a veteran of 50 movies, most of them musicals and comedies. He was active on the Broadway stage decades ago and spent his early years in vaudeville.

"Wake Up and Live" was his personal favorite of all the movies in which he appeared. But he was best known to millions for his 1939 role as the Tin Man in "The Wizard of Oz."

Haley, who retired from films years ago, became wealthy through real estate and has been active in raising money for down-and-out entertainers.

Queens Residents Mark Borough's Fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actor James Caan grew up there. So did Carroll O'Connor of television's "Archie Bunker" fame. And singers Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel, who made "The 59th Street Bridge Song" famous, also used to take the span into Manhattan from their native borough of Queens.

Residents of Queens honored their beloved borough Sunday with a day of its own and a celebration that was fit for a king. The trouble was that rain cut short its reign.

A couple of thousand Queens denizens filled the streets around Flushing Meadows Park for Sunday's event, appropriately known as "Queens Day."

Sponsors planned a daredevil air show, jazz concerts, fireworks displays, boxing matches, a demonstration of soccer skills, a five-mile mini-marathon called the Queens Classic and a tennis clinic. The Queensborough Symphonic Band and the Chiang Ching dancers were also commissioned to show what they could do.

Only the marathoners got their chance. As the race ended, onlookers scurried for cover as a hard rain began to pelt the participants. Of course, it was still the thought that counted.

"There's no particular 'hook' for the day," explained Sam Samuels, a spokesman for the Queens borough president's office.

It isn't until Nov. 1, he noted, that residents could celebrate the creation of Queens as a county in 1683. Or until Jan. 1 that people could hail the momentous day Queens became one of the city's five boroughs in 1898.

"We just wanted to highlight some of the cultural achievements of Queens," Samuels said. "In early June, you normally don't have the kind of weather where people are taking off for the beach."
