United Way makes 25 percent of goal

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

In the weeks since the United Way of Deaf Smith County kicked off its annual fund-raising campaign, the wings of volunteer "angels" have been beating the bushes, looking for money to fund the non-profit organization for the next year.

"As of right now we've done 35 presentations and we already have six more scheduled for the next two weeks," said Karen Sherrod, executive director of the United Way.

The presentations are an essential part of the campaign, as volunteers go to local companies and present the United Way message to employees along with a plea to give.

Last year, United Way volunteers conducted more than 50 such campaign meetings.

"We're pretty much on target, I think, as far as presentations," Mrs. Sherrod said.

The United Way this year is highlighting community volunteers of all types through the theme of "Angels Among Us."

Campaign posters created by local school children adorn windows of businesses all over Hereford, and yellow "Angel at Work" signs have been erected throughout the city to highlight places where people who volunteer do their daily jobs.

Mrs. Sherrod said there are some two dozen of the signs out at schools, government buildings, the police department and fire department and at some United Way agency buildings to increase awareness of the role of volunteers in community life.

As for the financial end of the campaign, Mrs. Sherrod said collections toward the $132,000 campaign goal are going well, with $34,104.49 -- or just over 25 percent of the needed funds -- having been given or pledged through Friday.

Last year, the United Way had collected $34,000 by Oct. 6, while in 1994, the first amount reported was $31,412 on Oct. 19.

The lion's share of the funds reported so far have been generated through two campaign divisions -- the Pacesetter Division and Seniors Division.

With six of the 10 companies in the Pacesetter Division have conducted their employee campaigns, the United Way has received just under 50 percent of the $55,000 set as a division goal.

"The school is pretty much finished except some student campaigns," Mrs. Sherrod said, noting that Hereford ISD teachers "are finished" and they did a little better than last year. They did almost $1,000 more than they did last year. I think the kids will go quite a bit more than they did last year."

This year, HISD teachers have raised $9,403.50, while students at Aikman and Bluebonnet schools have pulled in a whopping $762.75 by themselves, leaving other schools planning fund-raisers with big shoes to fill to keep the pace set by those two.

The public schools, based on their giving last year, are part of the Pacesetter Division, which is made up of the top 10 giving companies from last year's campaign.

The Pacesetter Division is worked primarily by the United Way's three loaned executives -- Jeff Torbert, Mike Harris and Rodney Bailey, who have been "loaned" to the campaign by their employers.

"Our loaned executives are doing real well in our presentations," Mrs. Sherrod said, adding that the three of them, along with campaign chairman Tom Simons and United Way board president Rodney Ruthart "have carried the presentations. We really,

CofC, HEDC, city, county meet to talk about decline in retail sector

Problems related to a declining number of large retail stores in Hereford were discussed Friday morning when a joint meeting of community leaders was held at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office.

Representatives from the chamber were joined by members of Hereford Economic Development Corporation, and city and county officials to initiate discussions on how to improve the retail sector in the community.

Tommie Weemes, C of C president, and Mike Hatley, HEDC executive director, headed up the discussions of the 16 persons attending the meeting.

Weemes said the chamber had received a number of calls from residents who were disturbed about the loss of several retail stores, and the announced closing of Gibson's Discount Center "probably added fuel to the fire."

The group Friday morning decided to gain as much input from the community as possible. Plans are being made for a community survey form in the newspaper, as well as a call-in radio program.

Weemes said a steering committee will meet Monday morning at the chamber office to formulate these plans. A meeting of the chamber's retail trade committee is also scheduled Wednesday.

"We hope to identify the retail sector's area of needs and to set up a time schedule to get things moving in the next two or three weeks," said Weemes.

"We still have a lot of pluses in this community, but citizens have indicated that there is a need to enhance our retail sector," said Weemes. "Hopefully, this joint meeting of concerned leaders will get us working together to solve the problem."

Hatley presented statistics on sales tax figures at the joint meeting. On sales subject to the sales tax, total sales have increased about 11 percent in Hereford the past 10 years. However, that total has inched up only 1 or 2 percent the past four years.

While Hereford's total sales subject to sales tax has increased by approximately $6.5 million since 1986, the total at Dumas has climbed $9.4 million and Dalhart's has risen by about $10 million.

Borger has shown the largest increase at about $22.6 million, while Pampa's total has dropped by about $23 million.

Local youth can pursue many options through Deaf Smith County 4-H clubs

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

With the slogan "Learn by doing," learning becomes the main goal of the Deaf Smith County 4-H program.

"It gives youth an opportunity to enrich learning experiences that they are having in other settings," County Extension Agent-Family Consumer Sciences Beverly Harder said.

"They (4-H members) don't realize it at the time -- I didn't when I was in 4-H -- but a lot of the things that you take from it, you really use as you grow older," County Extension Agent-Agriculture Alan Patranello said.

National 4-H Week is Oct. 6-12. In the youth development program, Harder said members participate in various 4-H projects.

Youth between the ages of 9 and 19 can join a 4-H club. Also, youth in the third grade can join 4-H, which allows a lot of 8-year-olds to participate in the program, she said.

Approximately 400 youth are enrolled in the 4-H in Deaf Smith County, and the enrollment roster is growing, Harder said.

"We are enrolling new 4-H'ers every day," she said.

This year, there are 11 clubs in Deaf Smith County. The clubs meet once a month for about an hour, Harder said.

There are some special interest clubs, such as the horse and shooting sports clubs. The horse club holds two meetings a month, which consist of a business session and a riding session, Harder said.

"The clubs are mainly formed around the philosophy of business meetings with youth learning leadership and parliamentary procedure," she said.

Throughout the year, each club focuses on a certain project, in which activities are planned around the area of interest.

"Nearly all our clubs carry forth a project or area of study for the entire year," she said.

No longer is 4-H limited to livestock and homemaking -- members can participate in livestock, home economics, public speaking, foods, clothing and textiles, wildlife conservation and many other projects, Patranello said.

By participating in these projects, the agents said, 4-H'ers gain more than just knowledge.

"Not only do the youth learn in-depth information, they learn to think and talk on their feet."

"These kind of skills help with school interviews, college entrance interviews, which we are being told colleges are going to more and more, as well as job interviews," Harder said.

The youth also have the opportunity to participate in competitions throughout the state, Patranello said.

"In the 4-H program, no one is ever forced to compete. But we do like to encourage them because we think that sometimes that gives them some other skills that they might not get if they were just getting the education."

"It gives them an opportunity to learn how to control nerves, have more poise when working in a nervous situation, be able, again, to think on their feet, answer judges questions -- that sort of thing," Harder said.

"It gives our youth, because they've had the opportunity to travel so much, an opportunity to see other portions of Texas or other portions of the U.S.," she said.

In discussing the costs of projects, Harder said, "Projects can be as expensive or inexpensive as a family chooses."

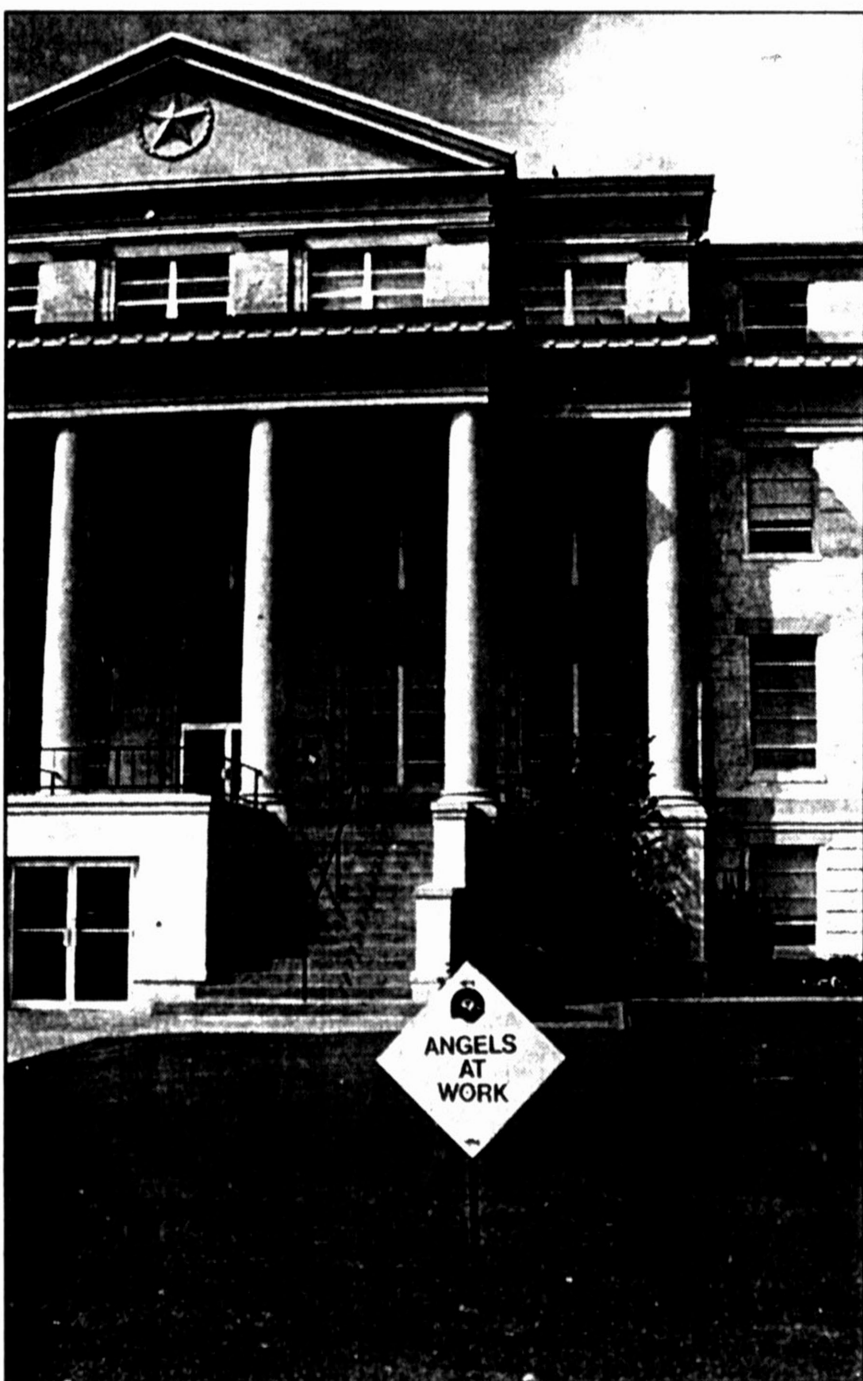

Throughout the years, local 4-H'ers have received scholarships for their 4-H and academic achievements.

"And that's been because they've been very active, they've had good 4-H careers, they've been very active in community service work and also leadership activities. They've also been able to maintain excellent academic records in school," Harder said.

The county 4-H program sponsors two fund-raisers -- a Town and County Jubilee booth and the Hereford Young Farmers Stock Show concession stand.

"The finances raised from these

Promoting the United Way

This "Angels At Work" sign, which signifies that at least one person who works inside the Deaf Smith County Courthouse gives his or her time to volunteer work, is one of many symbols of this year's United Way of Deaf Smith County fund-raising drive. "Angels Among Us" is the theme of the drive, which continues through Oct. 31.

Local Roundup

Hospital board meeting called

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors will hold a special meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Hereford Regional Medical Center board room. An open forum will be held, followed by an action item on lease/purchase/remodel/construction considerations for a proposed health mall. The meeting is open to the public.

City to consider new cop cars Monday

Hereford City Commissioners on Monday will consider approving bids received for three new police cars at the regularly scheduled meeting in city hall. Commissioners will also consider approval of the first reading of an ordinance to renew Hereford Cablevision's franchise, and consider re-appointment of members to the Hereford Economic Development Corp.'s Board of Directors. The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome.

HISD to administer achievement tests

Hereford Independent School District will administer the ITBS achievement tests to students in grades K-8 and grades 9 and 11 on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The tests will be given in small blocks of time during the morning and afternoon. Students will be given the opportunity to show their proficiency in reading, math concepts and computation, language, social studies and science. It is very important for students to be in attendance and on time. Parents are encouraged to keep a usual routine with their children, making sure they are well rested.

HEDC to discuss movie incentive

The Hereford Economic Development Corp. on Tuesday will discuss and approve an incentive plan for a proposed movie theater development in Hereford. Also on the agenda for HEDC's regularly scheduled meeting are: the election of officers and a request for an equipment loan by Poarch Brothers Inc. The meeting is in City Hall at 9:10 a.m. Election of officers will be held at 9 a.m. The public is welcome.

PSAT/NMSQT to be given here

Local high school sophomores and juniors interested in taking the PSAT/NMSQT test have until Thursday to sign up and pay their fee. Sign-up will be in the Hereford High School counselor's office. Fee is $8.50, which is due with the application by Thursday. The test measures verbal and mathematical reasoning abilities. It is a practice for the SAT exam and serves as the qualifying test for the National Merit Scholarship program. The test will be administered on Oct. 15, and students taking the test must meet outside HHS by the office at 8:30 a.m. Also, sophomores interested in taking the Plan Test that helps in planning for the future must sign up by Thursday. Cost for the test is $7.50. It will be administered on Oct. 17.

Poinsettia sale announced

The Community Christian School band officers have begun planning the band's Annual Poinsettia Sale. Red, white or pink poinsettias will be available for $8.50. Orders may be placed by calling the school at 364-8867. The poinsettias will be delivered Nov. 20 through Dec. 15. Proceeds will benefit the CCS band for contest fees and traveling expenses.

Food drive coming up soon

The third annual food drive benefitting the Hereford Food Bank will be sponsored again this year by Dr. Keith Norvell and Cross Chiropractic Clinic. Local businesses interested in participating in the drive are invited to contact the clinic at 364-8888. Any type of assistance will be appreciated, including making food contributions, collecting food or monetary gifts. The drive benefits local residents who are having a hard time. In the past, local businesses have served as drop-off locations for the drive, with some companies offering special promotions in conjunction with the collection.

Emergency Services

Emergency services reports for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Saturday contained the following information.

Woman killed in parachute accident at football game

SPEARMAN, Texas (AP) - A woman was killed Friday night in a freak parachuting accident during the pregame ceremonies of the Spearman-Childress football game.

Two parachutists made a jump and were drifting down from the skies carrying the game ball. The wind apparently caught one of the chutes and sent it and the man attached spinning wildly.

The chutist noticed he was headed toward the crowd in the stands and corrected his spin, only to slam into two people on the ground.

A woman on the sideline was killed and her husband's arm was broken. They were attending the game with the parachuting crew. Their names have not been released.

Spearman schools Superintendent Willard Murrey said early Saturday that the ground crew seemed to be looking more at the other diver and didn't know they were going to be hit. It was unclear late Friday what caused the woman's death.

The man was treated at Hansford County Hospital in Spearman, which is 77 miles northeast of Amarillo. Hospital officials refused to release his condition.

The woman was given cardiopulmonary resuscitation for several minutes before being taken off the field. She later was pronounced dead at the hospital, Murrey said.

Spearman Police Chief Lawrence Kenealy said spectators were not informed that she was killed.

"It's kind of hard to announce that right in the middle of the game," he said.

Kenealy said the game went on as scheduled and police were trying to notify the victim's next of kin.

"It's kind of chaos right now. We're still trying to figure out exactly what happened," he said.

4-H

Two things benefit all youth of all ages in all projects in our 4-H program.

"We work with an extremely large volunteer force -- parents and other adults -- to run these two activities," she said.

Through positions of club managers and project leaders, Harder said adults and 4-H'ers have the opportunity to work together in the 4-H program.

The 4-H program depends on volunteers. While most of the volunteers are parents of 4-H members, Harder said, not all volunteers have a 4-H background.

"Our program is as strong as the volunteers. The more volunteers we have, the more we have to offer.

"Our biggest barrier to having larger enrollment or more activities is the lack of volunteers -- like every other organization," she said.

To be a volunteer in the 4-H program, the agents suggested a person:

-- have a genuine interest in youth.

-- have a skill that they are willing to teach.

-- have time that they are willing to share.

-- conduct an interview with county extension agents.

Most importantly, Harder said, the 4-H program emphasizes families -- families learning and working together.

"It provides a place for family to spend some time together. Now that time might be spent working, but families are together.

"And on the other hand, we have some youth who have been adopted by a 4-H family where they've been mentored and worked with by other youth," she said.

4-H members, volunteers and a variety of learning opportunities can be credited for the success of the 4-H program, Harder said.

"We've seen the results. We know that it's a real success," she said.

Hunter education course to be offered in Hereford

A course in hunter education will be held from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, in Room 112 of the Hereford ISD Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue, instructor Gary Billingsley has announced.

"According to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's mandatory requirements ... all hunters born on or after Sept. 2, 1971, must have successfully completed the course to hunt in Texas. However, any individual may take the course on a voluntary basis and is encouraged to attend regardless of requirements," Billingsley said.

"The course is open to adults and youngsters and will include instructions in rifle, shotgun and bowhunting handling and safety; outdoor responsibility and ethics; laws and regulations; conservation; hunting traditions; wildlife identifications; field care of game; and wilderness first aid and survival," said Billingsley.

Students age 12 and over who successfully complete the course will be issued a hunter education certificate from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Those under age 12 who take the course will receive a certificate of attendance, but must take the course again for proper certification.

More than 160,000 Texans have already completed the course, which is mandatory in 39 states.

For more information, call Billingsley at 364-3410, or the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Hunter Education Section at 1-800-792-1112, or (512) 389-4999.

Feedlots -- Goal, $6,000, none reported.

Total -- Goal $132,000, $34,104.49, 25.83 percent.

Collections for the drive are expected to get a major boost this week, when the United Way hosts a "Drive-Through Luncheon" on Thursday at FirstBank Southwest and Hereford State Bank.

Mrs. Sherrod said United Way volunteers will be stationed at one drive-through lane at each bank from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Volunteers who are working pledge cards will be asked to drive past one of the two banks during that time and drop off their cards and collections.

This, Mrs. Sherrod said, is a change from previous years, when a campaign luncheon was held.

The new format was adopted "to make it real easy for our volunteers," she said.

"We hand them a hot dog and a Coke and take their cards and give them a big thanks and send them on their way," Mrs. Sherrod said in explaining how the "luncheon" will work.

Also during those hours, anyone who wants to may drive through the United Way lane and give a donation to the organization or get information on the United Way.

With volunteers from each of the 12 United Way-funded agencies working cards as part of their funding obligation, Mrs. Sherrod said there are incentives in place, one of which kicks on this week.

"That's the day that if the agencies have 75 percent of their cards done, then they earn bonus points. The bonus points are what we use to figure out how much money an agency earns above and beyond what is allocated" in case the fund-raising drive tops $132,000.

If a surplus is collected, agencies are given extra funds based on the points they earn during the fund-raising campaign.

As the Years Turn

(From the files of The Hereford Brand)

5 YEARS AGO

October 6, 1991--Summer water consumption in Hereford was much lower this year than in 1991. City revenues from the sale of water also are down. ...Artist Janet Barrera has been honored recently by the Deaf Smith County Library as Artist of the Month. ...The Hereford Whitefaces winning streak was stopped at four as the Levelland Lobos used the wind for advantageous field position early, then controlled the ball in the final minutes to beat the Herd 17-7 Friday at Whiteface Stadium. ...The Fire Department will load antique fire trucks with children and drive them on city streets as part of Fire Prevention Week.

10 YEARS AGO

October 5, 1986--Data of the day inside a time capsule was lowered to beneath the courthouse lawn Friday by Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher and Deaf Smith County Judge Glen Nelson. County commissioners Bill Bradley and Troy Don Moore observed during the Sesquicentennial ceremony which observed Deaf Smith County's "birthday." The repository was covered with a marble slab giving directions for the time capsule to be opened on Oct. 3, 2090. ...Texas farmer will have to wait until next year before finding out whether the Farm Credit System can siphon more than $50 million from their healthy associations to save their ailing groups elsewhere.

25 YEARS AGO

October 3, 1971--J.W. "Jap" Dickerson was named as the Volunteer Fire Department's Fireman of the Month, a new honor to be given to the volunteer fireman who does the most during a month to benefit the department. ...An apparent lull in new home demands, coupled with the President's wage-price freeze, apparently had some effect on the construction surge in Hereford that dropped off from a $482,200 total in August to a September total of only $51,950. ...Lola Faye Veazy was sworn in by County Clerk B.F. Cain as the new District Clerk. She replaces Lucille Posey, who retired after 24 years with the County Clerk's office.

50 YEARS AGO

October 3, 1946--The City of Hereford, backed by local agriculture and industrial interests and the Hereford Chamber of Commerce, is still in the fight to hold a part of the Hereford POW Camp for use as a transient labor camp. Wayne Evans, Chamber of Commerce president, said. ...Nine veterans houses have been completed or are under construction in the new Veterans Addition in east Hereford, and at least three others are under construction in other parts of the city. ...Hereford's 8th Annual Flower Show, sponsored by the Hereford Garden Club and the Garden Beautiful Club, will open tomorrow at the Clubhouse in the State Park. Admission will be 40 cents for adults and 15 cents for students.

75 YEARS AGO

October 4, 1921--Another business change occurred here on Oct. 1 when the firm of McAteer and Braden purchased the Shore Garage and took immediate possession. ...I.F. Boyd presented The Brand with some splendid specimens of Bradley Yams, which he has handled with great success this year. The yams are unusually sweet. He harvested 17.5 bushels from 247 hills. ...Mayor W.M. Knight issued a proclamation urging that all citizens observe Fire Prevention Week. ...S.R. Cresap of Hereford and his brother Price Cresap of Tucumcari, N.M., have bought 200 head of two-year-old steers and will ship them to Burlington, Iowa, where they will be put on blue-grass pasture and full feed of corn for about four months.

City Permits

The City of Hereford issued 23 building, construction, electrical, mechanical and plumbing permits during the week ended Oct. 3, according to a report issued by the city permit office.

The report states new building and construction increased property valuations by $19,880, and the city earned $337 in permit revenues.

BUILDING PERMITS

Mr. Coffee, Mrs. Tea?

CLEVELAND (AP) - Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio? Shelley Fabares has taken your place.

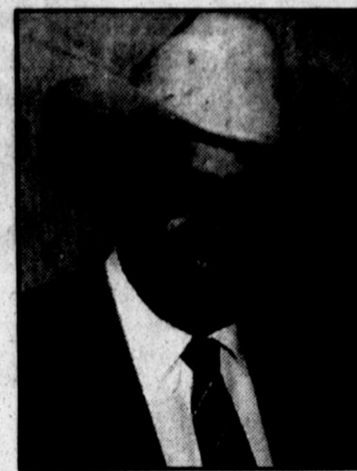

Mr. Coffee, which used the baseball star as its pitchman for years, has hired the star of ABC's "Coach" to promote its latest small-appliance venture - the Mrs. Tea hot- and iced-tea makers.

DiMaggio no longer works for Mr. Coffee, which is based in suburban Bedford Heights.

While Fabares initially will promote Mrs. Tea, her contract leaves open the possibility of promoting Mr. Coffee and other products, company spokesman Eileen Weisenbach Keller said Monday.

Fabares has been nominated for two Emmys for her work on "Coach." She also appeared in "The Donna Reed Show" and opposite Elvis Presley in "Girl Happy." "Clambake" and "Spinout."

We join others in the community in wishing success and happiness to Doug and Barbara Manning as they move their home and business to Oklahoma City. They have been great assets to our community.

As a nationally-known speaker and author, Doug has spent a lot of time out of town over the past 10 years. Having been "one of us" for 23 years, we kind of take him for granted. But in other cities, he is welcomed as an expert on dealing with grief and in counseling with people faced with the difficult decision of placing elderly parents in a nursing home.

Doug and Barbara were involved in the community and we'll miss their smiling faces.

I always felt one of Doug's strong points as a minister was with funerals. He usually met with the family the night before the funeral and led them through recalling the good times with their loved one.

I heard him use the "Parable of the Twins" at several funerals. It is a beautiful parable. In case you haven't heard the story, here it is:

Once upon a time, twin boys were conceived in the same womb. Weeks passed and the twins developed. As their awareness grew, they laughed for joy: "Isn't it great that we were conceived? Isn't it great to be alive?" Together the twins explored their world. When they found their mother's cord that gave them life, they sang for joy: "How great is our mother's love that she shares her own life with us!"

As weeks stretched into months the twins noticed how much each was changing. "What does it mean?" asked the one. "It means that our stay in this world is drawing to an end," said the other.

"But I don't want to go, I want to stay here always," said the one. "We have no choice," said the other. "But maybe there is life after birth!"

"How can there be?" responded the other. "We will shed our life cord, and how is life possible without it? Besides, we have seen evidence that others were here before us, and none of them have returned to tell us there is life after birth. No, this is the end."

And so the one fell into deep despair, saying: "If conception ends in birth, what is the purpose of life in the womb? It's meaningless! Maybe there is no mother after all."

"But these has to be, protested the other. "How else did we get here? How do we remain alive?" And the other said, "Have you seen our mother? Maybe she lives only in our minds. Maybe we made her up because the idea made us feel good."

And so the last days in the womb were filled with deep questioning and fear. Finally, the moment of birth arrived. When the twins had passed from their world, they opened their eyes and they cried. For what they saw exceeded their fondest dreams.

"Eye has not seen, ear has not heard, nor has it so much as dawned on man what God has prepared for those who love Him. --I Corinthians 2:9

Check out the 'other' candidates

Did you happen to catch the story the other day on the "other" candidates running for president?

I've always known that there were numerous so-called "third-party" candidates in every presidential election, but this was the most complete profile of the candidates and what they stand for I can recall ever having seen.

(I'm also sure this did not encompass every candidate, only those with an official party that is on the ballot in several states.)

Anyway, I found it very interesting to look at what some of these parties stand for and who they have chosen (or had inflicted upon them!) for president.

For example, there is the ever-popular Libertarian Party and their choice, Harry Browne.

I think the Libertarians would have a much better chance at getting someone elected if they would drop their plank of revoking all drug laws and stick to what Browne called "individual liberty, personal responsibility and freedom from government."

After all, I (and probably many others) find myself relating to many of the beliefs of the Libertarian Party -- reduction of the strength and influence of government, return of personal liberties and rights to the individual and the like -- but will not vote for their candidates because of the drug issue.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Ralph Nader and his party, on the other hand, strike me as somewhat kooky.

I've never been an environmentalist. That is not to say I favor mistreating the environment, I just think it should be done in a common-sense manner and without government intrusion.

Monica Moorehead is the candidate for the Workers World Party, which calls for tripling the minimum wage, making polluters pay for a clean environment and ensuring equal rights for women, lesbians, homosexuals and bisexuals.

On that note, I'll remember the adage that "if you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all."

The U.S. Taxpayers Party sounds like a group started by just regular ordinary citizens.

It wants to abolish many federal taxes, as well as restore American jurisprudence to its "heritage of Biblical liberty," which I take to mean they want judges to rule according to Biblical law, rather than many of the laws that are in force today.

I have long advocated a return to the punishments of the Old Testament as a way to deter crime and reduce the population living off the rest of us in prison. After all, rapists who know they would get the death penalty for their crimes might be less likely to rape (and, if caught, wouldn't rape again!).

This party also wants to reduce the scope and size of the federal government and that the country should focus its efforts on guaranteeing liberty to Americans, not the entire world.

Howard Phillips is the U.S. Taxpayers Party candidate.

The Natural Law Party wants to "bring the light of science into politics."

Candidate John Hagelin preaches prevention-oriented health care, renewable energy and agriculture without pesticides -- all noble causes, indeed, but not necessarily those things that should be addressed by an entire political party.

After all, once those things were accomplished, what would be left for the party to do?

Anyway, I'm sure there are many other "parties" out there that I could comment on. These are some of the interesting ones.

Don't expect to see Ralph Nader, Howard Phillips, Monica Moorehead or James Harris (the Socialist Workers Party) on the platform in Washington D.C. next year. Still, I bet these people start getting more of a look-see in these days of dissatisfaction with the major party candidates and their ever-shifting platforms.

Dole outside looking in on foreign policy

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Bob Dole has been a hesitant critic of President Clinton on foreign policy but Clinton's Mideast summit leaves him facing a particularly perplexing dilemma.

Sometimes ignoring staff advice to speak out more forcefully, Dole has been struggling to show he's not irrelevant to the process.

It's a hard task. Presidential races rarely turn on international-policy issues, but nothing can make an incumbent seem more "presidential" than dealing with a crisis close to an election -- while his opponent sits on the sidelines.

With just five weeks to Election Day, Clinton - comfortably ahead in national polls - had hands full overseeing the peace talks he convened in Washington on Tuesday.

By contrast, the Republican nominee had a sparse schedule: just one public event on Tuesday, a rally at a small community college near Cleveland. He had a similarly light schedule Wednesday, a rally at a small college in central Pennsylvania.

Furthermore, after needing Clinton from Ohio for conducting a "photo op foreign policy" with the summit, Dole was having a bit of a problem in arranging a photo op of his own with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

The two were to have met Tuesday afternoon in Netanyahu's hotel room when Dole returned from Ohio. But because of the peace talks, the meeting was put off until Wednesday night - at Netanyahu's request.

Dole does not criticize Clinton's efforts to broker a peace. Rather, he has faulted him for indirectly opposing Netanyahu in the Israeli elections earlier this year.

That has given the Clinton administration less leverage with the hard-line Netanyahu government than a Dole administration might have, argue Dole and congressional Republicans.

It might be a distinction lost on most Americans, especially since Clinton was actually sitting down with the Israeli leader while Dole was having a hard time even scheduling a session with him.

"Every day that Clinton is out being presidential in the Rose Garden is a bad day for Bob Dole," said Fred Greenstein, a political scientist at Princeton University.

Even if Netanyahu and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat don't get peace talks back on track, "the Clinton try is going to be a plus for him," Greenstein said.

The dilemma is more acute for Dole because of his Senate record as an internationalist on foreign policy -- one who in the past has tended to support presidents of either party in dealing with international crises and whose core views are not that different from Clinton's.

While the former Senate majority leader has criticized the president when the occasion has demanded it, he just as often has pulled back from confrontation.

He delayed a major policy address on Asia for months, only to wind up siding with Clinton on renewing China's most-favored nation trade status.

He rebuked Clinton for U.S. policy in Bosnia, but at the same time voiced support for U.S. troops Clinton sent there as part of a U.N. peacekeeping force.

He's said little on Clinton's handling of Saddam Hussein's incursions in Iraq, letting others do the tough talking for him, including former Bush Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

His reticence has been a source of frustration for some of Dole's strategists who would like him to speak out more, but whose advice he winds up rejecting, sometimes at the last minute, according to several senior campaign advisers.

"The senator continues to take the position that as long as the president is engaged directly in dealing with other countries, that he will attempt to be supportive," said James Schlesinger, who held Cabinet posts in the Ford and Carter administrations.

But, in an indication of the split among Dole advisers, Schlesinger's statement - given at a news conference at the Dole headquarters - drew an icy rebuke from former Reagan UN Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick, one of those who advocate a more forceful response, turned to Schlesinger and said: "You think that 'cause I don't think that..."

Four years ago, then-President Bush's heavy focus on foreign policy turned out to be a vulnerability that challenger Bill Clinton could easily exploit. This time challenger Dole is having a hard time finding an opening.

Debates like World Series -- no wild cards

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - In baseball terms, the presidential debates are like the World Series - the major leagues set the rules and their champions settle the contest.

Politically, of course, the majors are Democrats and Republicans, in this case President Clinton and Bob Dole, due to debate Sunday night and again on Oct. 16 despite the protests and challenges of Ross Perot and other minor party candidates.

Unless the system and probably the sponsorship is changed between seasons, the nationally-televised debates aren't likely to be any more accommodating to minor party entries in 2000 than now.

The broader question is whether debates should be limited to candidates with a realistic chance of winning the election - which as a practical matter means the major party nominees - or should they be forums in which voters can see other candidates and hear their ideas, too.

Since either Clinton or Dole will win the Nov. 5 election, the Commission on Presidential Debates decided they should be the only debaters, ruling out Perot. The Dole and Clinton campaigns agreed on two-man debates when they set the final terms. The major parties always have had the last word.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Hogan upheld Perot's exclusion, although he acknowledged the frustration and perhaps unfairness of the process.

Perot and another minor party candidate are appealing the decision. But the courts and the government have effectively stayed out of the presidential debate process in the past, leaving it to volunteer sponsors and nominees.

There was a move in the Senate five years ago for government-sanctioned debates; it voted to require that presidential candidates who get federal financing meet in at least four debates. But that didn't get through Congress, and has not been revived.

The debate commission has been sponsoring these meetings since 1988; it is privately financed, with no official standing, rooted in the two party tradition with leadership divided between Republicans and Democrats.

It has withstood minor party court challenges twice before; the Supreme Court declined to hear the appeal of an excluded candidate after the 1992 election.

The commission ruled that Perot was entitled to debate the major party entries in 1992. His support in the polls was down, not much better than it is now, when those debates began. They helped him boost his losing share of the popular vote in that election. His inclusion in 1992 was an easy call, since the major party nominees already had agreed on it.

In this campaign, he's at about 5 percent, and the commission ruled him out, saying he has no realistic chance of winning the presidency and the debates should match candidates who do.

"This is the World Series," Paul Kirk, the Democratic co-chairman, said at the time. "This isn't picking the wild card, the guy who was third in the polls."

He said the debates shouldn't be used as a launching point for candidates without a real chance of winning the White House.

Perot and other minor party entries complain that it is a self-fulfilling prophecy, that they can't win if they are excluded from the televised events that draw more voter attention than any others.

Either way, it's so.

Perot drew 19 percent of the popular vote in 1992, but did not win a single electoral vote. In a federal court appeal filed Wednesday, Perot cited another 1996 aim - he wants to get 25 percent of the popular vote in order to win major party status for his Reform Party next time, an aim irreparably damaged by his exclusion. Again, that points the question of what purpose debates should serve.

Advocates for including minor candidates note that third parties often have initiated ideas that eventually became major party policy. But that history predates televised debates.

Judge Hogan said he wished there could be a more open and accessible debate process, but that he could not order it under the law. Then he tried, but twisted, a baseball analogy:

"I think we're sort of at a point where it reminds me of the playoffs ... and we have the wild card team that makes the playoffs but isn't allowed to play in the World Series eventually, even if it's succeeding well in the playoffs, and that's regrettable."

A winning wild card team does get to the World Series.

On the debate calendar, the sponsoring commission ruled, playoff time is past and these are the finals, reserved for potential winners.

Guest Editorial

Sept. 28

Amarillo Globe-News on right to speak at sentencing:

Some acts simply defy description. They go so far beyond the pale, beyond decency, as to render their witnesses mute with rage.

One such act occurred in a San Jose, Calif., courtroom Thursday. Richard Allen Davis, convicted of the 1993 kidnap and murder of Polly Klaas, was about to receive his sentence from Judge Thomas Hastings. After hearing from Polly's father, Marc Klaas, Allen struck once more at a family whose heart he shattered into a million pieces.

He said Polly's last words to him were pleas not to molest her the way her father had done.

The response drew the understandable cries of anguish from the crowd. Marc Klaas lunged at his daughter's killer, only to be escorted from the courtroom.

Now the Big Question: Should a convicted killer be denied his constitutional right to speak at his own sentencing hearing? Tempting as it is to bind and gag such an animal as Richard Allen Davis, it is better to defer to the Constitution, which the courts say gives killers the right to a final statement before a judge or jury pronounces sentence.

No judge presiding over a capital crime ever can predict with absolute certainty what a defendant will say when granted the right to speak.

There are simply no guarantees that the convicted criminal will show remorse or regret - or at the end of the emotional scale - contempt or loathing. Suffering through the blathering of a heartless killer like Davis is the admittedly awful price we pay for the imperfect system of laws that governs us.

One actually can find a silver lining in this hideous final act in the Polly Klaas tragedy. In its perverted way, giving Davis the opportunity to lash out once more only confirms the decision of the jury to convict him and sentence him to death.

Margraves vows he will appeal conviction

GIDDINGS, Texas (AP) - Former Texas A&M University regents chairman Ross Margraves will appeal a felony conviction of misconduct related to his use of a state airplane in 1993, his attorney says.

A Lee County jury on Friday sentenced Margraves to four years' probation and a $3,000 fine. A Houston attorney, Margraves, 54, also could lose his license to practice law.

After the verdict, Margraves declined to comment. David Berg of Houston called his client's felony conviction "dirty and wrong."

"In 29 years (as a lawyer), I've never seen such an unjust verdict," Berg said, promising an appeal.

Margraves faced up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. However, Brazos County prosecutor Bill Turner had said he wouldn't seek prison time if Margraves were convicted.

The charges stem from an August 1993 round-trip flight to Baton Rouge, La., that cost the state $1,435. Margraves and his wife used a Texas A&M jet for the trip.

Prosecutors said that the trip was a personal excursion whose sole purpose was to enable the couple to see their son, Paul, graduate from Louisiana State University.

After the verdict was returned, Turner said Margraves had abused the public trust. "Any time you have a breach of trust, every citizen is the victim," he said.

Friends and associates at Dallas-based law firm Winstead Sechrest & Minick, however, stood by Margraves, who is the senior shareholder in the firm's Houston office.

Fiancee fights to claim engagement ring future husband carried on plane

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press Writer
SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) - Among the torn and battered belongings collected from the ocean after TWA Flight 800 is Item 26 - a tiny burgundy box with a diamond ring inside.

Julie Stuart says Andrew Krukar planned to place the $15,000 engagement ring - found bobbing over the waves - on her finger in Paris last summer.

Krukar never made it to the City of Light. He was killed July 17 with 230 others. All Stuart wants now is to have the ring as a final memory. But the airline is not letting go.

"That ring is an incredible symbol of our love," Stuart said as tears filled her blue eyes. "It will be something I will hold onto for the rest of my life."

A TWA official familiar with the case said the problem is proving who took the ring with them on the flight.

Even if Stuart can prove the ring was in Krukar's pocket, it would have to be turned over to his parents or next of kin, not his fiancée, the official said.

Stuart says there is no doubt the ring is hers.

The 31-year-old human resource manager lived with Krukar, 41, an engineer, for a year in Bridgeport, Conn., before they decided to marry. In June they bought a diamond ring with an antique setting and made plans for Paris.

On July 17, Krukar boarded Flight 800 for a Paris business meeting. Stuart was to meet him there two days later, but her plans were shattered like hundreds of others when the plane exploded over Long Island shortly after takeoff.

A week after the crash, a friend of Krukar's spotted the ring box in a magazine article showing items recovered from the wreckage. Stuart called the jeweler and asked him to describe the box, since she had never seen it.

He said it was burgundy, with gold piping and gold clasp.

"When the jeweler described it exactly, I knew it was Andy's ring," Stuart said.

Since then Stuart has collected receipts, canceled checks and the jeweler's description to support her claim.

"I feel awfully frustrated and drained," said Stuart. "When you call all you get is a run-around."

"We have written letters to everyone imaginable including President Clinton, the attorney general, several congressmen, and everyone says I need someone else's approval," she said. "I just don't know where to turn."

Krukar's parents and sister are close to his fiancée, and Stuart is co-administrator of his estate. With their help, she said, she is doing the things that Krukar would want her to do.

"We had an incredible love story," said Stuart. "I know when I finally put that ring on, Andy will be smiling down on me."

Manslaughter charge kept in death of fetus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - A state district judge has refused to throw out a manslaughter charge against a man accused of injuring a fetus who died two days after she was born.

It is expected that the case may test when a fetus is declared a human in Texas.

State District Judge Robert Blackmon on Friday denied a defense lawyer's motion to drop a charge of intoxication manslaughter against Corpus Christi resident Frank Flores Cuellar, 49.

Blackmon set an Oct. 14 trial date for Cuellar, who has a history of drunken driving offenses and also faces charges of felony drunken driving and vehicular assault.

After the court's ruling, Nueces County District Attorney Carlos Valdez said he was satisfied.

"We want a chance to go before a jury," he said. "It's still a legal question that will go before the court of appeals, but now we need a conviction so the appellate court can deal with it."

The charges stem from a June 15 auto accident that injured Jeannie Coronado, 24, who was more than 7 months pregnant, and her fetus.

Doctors delivered Krystal Zuniga by emergency Caesarean section, and the infant died two days later of head and spine injuries sustained in the wreck.

Valdez had argued that Texas civil law and decisions in other states have treated the unborn as humans in criminal cases, setting precedent for this case.

"Our argument is that there should be uniformity in the law," Valdez told the court. "The civil area of the law has already recognized what we are trying to do."

"This man was drunk and driving and his action caused the death of another. It's a relatively simple offense to understand."

But Cuellar's lawyer argued that the manslaughter charge was invalid because the victim was not a human at the time of the accident.

"This is a pure question of law," Anne Marshall said. "The Texas Penal Code specifically excludes the unborn. The infant was born later, not at the time of the accident."

A motion Ms. Marshall filed last week states that according to Texas law, a "person" means an "individual," defined as "a human being who has been born and alive."

She also argued that language in the indictment is vague and fails to allege intent to kill Krystal.

Ms. Marshall said she will appeal Blackmon's ruling to the 13th Court of Appeals.

Because the appellate court normally takes about one year to issue a ruling, a jury will be first to ponder the question of when a fetus becomes human in Texas.

If the jury determines that the fetus was not a human at the time of the accident, Cuellar could not be found guilty of intoxication manslaughter.

Storm wets part of state

By The Associated Press
North Texas skies were mostly cloudy early Saturday morning. At 4 a.m., temperatures ranged from 60 degrees at Abilene to 66 degrees in Dallas.

The weekend forecast called for mostly cloudy skies with a chance of showers.

The remains of hurricane Hernan continued to spread northward over Mexico and South Texas, as did effects of tropical depression 10 in the western Gulf of Mexico.

A coastal flood warning was in effect Saturday morning for the coast from Brownsville to just east of Galveston Bay, with a coastal flood watch for the Beaumont area.

Areas of heavy rain loomed over deep south Texas.

Harvesters overpower Whitefaces, 41-0

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters turned back an early scoring threat by Hereford, then went on to score six touchdowns of their own in a 41-0 victory Friday night at Whiteface Stadium.

The huge Harvesters rolled up 525 yards in offense, including 401 yards rushing. The Pampa defense held Hereford to 130 total yards - 64 rushing - and only five first downs.

"Their defensive line overpowered us at times - we had a hard time on pass protection and we had a hard time moving them out," Herd coach Craig Yenzer said. "Their offensive line overpowered us at times. Their size and power really was the difference in the game."

Hereford dropped to 0-2 in District 1-4A and 1-4 overall, while Pampa improved to 2-0 and 4-1.

This was the third year in a row Pampa has shut out Hereford. It was also the third time this season Hereford lost by shutout - the first time that's happened since 1979.

The game started beautifully for the underdog Whitefaces. On the first play from scrimmage, Joseph Artho kept on the option and raced 45 yards to the Pampa 25-yard line, where Damion Nickleberry made a touchdown-saving tackle.

Three plays later, on first down at the 12, Josh Martinez caught a pass from Artho and was pushed out at the four-yard line. Hereford could get no closer, though, and John Marty Galan eyed a 21-yard field goal. The snap was mishandled by holder Manuel Reyna, and Galan was tackled with the ball at the 13.

"We really came out with a lot of fire," Yenzer said. "But the drive stalled, and we had problems with protection, and we couldn't push it in. We thought we could get three (points), but we couldn't handle the snap."

"We missed a golden opportunity there," he said.

Hereford's defense stopped Pampa twice in the first quarter - once when Josh Alvarado recovered a J.J. Mathis fumble - but not in the second.

Pampa drove 69 yards in seven plays, with fullback Aaron Wiseman running up the middle for the final 24 yards and the touchdown.

Josh Blackmon kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 7:59 left in the second quarter.

The Herd drove into Pampa territory on its next possession, but three straight incomplete passes at the Pampa 35 turned the ball over on downs.

Pampa needed only three plays to go 65 yards: a 33-yard pass from Blackmon to tight end Devin Lemons; a 10-yard run by Mathis; and a 22-yard run by tailback Marques Long.

Blackmon's kick made it 14-0 with 4:08 left in the half, and that's the way the half ended.

The second half started with disaster for the Herd. Long took the opening kickoff at his own five-yard line and went the length of the field for a touchdown. Blackmon's kick made it 21-0.

That was the beginning of the end for Hereford.

"Even at halftime, we felt real good," Yenzer said. "After the opening kickoff of the second half, we really got our heads down. It took a while to recover from that."

On Hereford's third play of the half, fullback Jeremy Scott fumbled, and Pampa recovered at the Herd 42-yard line.

Long carried seven times for 47 yards on the short drive, including a 20-yard gain which overcame a holding penalty on the previous play. Wiseman got the glory, though, running the last five yards for the score. Blackmon missed, leaving the Pampa lead at 27-0.

Pampa's defense allowed only 16 more yards for the rest of the game. Hereford's one first down in the second half came on a facemasking penalty.

The Herd passing attack that produced 168 yards the previous week in Borger totaled only 66 yards Friday. Artho had a string of nine incomplete passes in the second half. C.J. Kubacak, the fifth-leading receiver in Class 4A with 20 catches coming in, was held to four catches for 44 yards - all in the first half.

"Probably, Pampa's secondary had a lot to do with that," Yenzer said.

"They've got a lot of good athletes. They pressed us into situations we were not accustomed to. It really taxed us."

Some of the credit for the shutout has to go to Blackmon, Pampa's quarterback and kicker. In the third quarter, Hereford cornerback Navarro Mariscal intercepted a pass at the Hereford 10-yard line and took off into the open field. Blackmon, the only Harvester with a chance to tackle him, did tackle him at the Herd 48-yard line.

Later, after Pampa's fifth touchdown, Hereford's Henry Hernandez took the kickoff at his own 15 and broke into the open. Again, Blackmon's tackle at the Pampa 44 saved a touchdown.

That fifth Pampa TD came on the first play of the fourth quarter: a two-yard run by 270-pound backup fullback Ronnie Proby. It was set up by a 47-yard run by Wiseman, who was tackled at the three-yard line by Mariscal.

Blackmon's kick pushed the Pampa lead to 34-0.

That apparently wasn't enough for the Harvesters. Their sixth touchdown drive featured three pass attempts - one was completed - and went 59 yards in eight total plays. The big play was the eighth one - a 41-yard run by Wiseman for his third touchdown of the game.

Wiseman finished with 169 yards rushing on only 13 carries. Long needed 26 carries to get his 167 yards rushing.

As a final touch, Pampa pulled out the swinging gate formation to try for a two-point conversion. A pass was completed, but the Harvesters were flagged for illegal procedure. They had to settle for another kick by Blackmon, making the score 41-0 with 4:05 left in the game.

Pampa finally showed mercy following an interception which Nickleberry returned to the Herd 37. After four rushing plays got the ball to the Herd 15, Blackmon took a knee on the final two plays of the game.

Even after their third consecutive loss, Yenzer stood by his players.

"Our goals are to establish two things: hard play and commitment. These young men have not disappointed me," Yenzer said. "They've been through some hard times, but they still hold their heads high. They're proud to be part of this program. I love 'em to death."

No. 1 North Mesquite holds off Plano, 17-14

By The Associated Press

Jason Coffey rushed for 183 yards and the North Mesquite defense recovered two fumbles inside their own 20 as the state's No. 1-ranked Class 5A team held off Plano, 17-14.

Friday was a night where few teams among the AP's Top 10 stumbled in any class.

- in 4A, No. 1 Grapevine crushed Burkburnett, 51-19;

- in 3A, No. 1 Vernon overwhelmed Wichita Falls Hirschi, 45-14;

- in 2A, No. 1 Alto thumped Diboll 40-8; and

- in 1A, No. 1 Windthorst breezed by Throckmorton, 48-0.

Plano lost three fumbles against North Mesquite. The first was near midfield, and Coffey capitalized a few plays later with a 36-yard touchdown run.

But Plano's Jeremy Flatys intercepted, and a goal line defense by the Wildcats' defense thwarted two other North Mesquite drives, and it was still 7-0 going into the fourth quarter.

After Jacob Crowley's 44-yard field goal for the Stallions, Plano cut the margin to 10-7 on a 52-yard pass from Robert Conrad to Jabari Rattler with 6:11 remaining.

North Mesquite countered with a seven-play, 73-yard drive to put the game out of reach, 17-7. Coffey had a 49-yard run on third-and-one and scored the touchdown on a 5-yard run.

Plano scored with 43 seconds left to pull to within 17-14, but North Mesquite recovered the onside kick and ran out the clock.

Elsewhere in 5A, second-ranked Converse Judson beat New Braunfels, 41-10, as Brushaud Callis and Matt Hare each rushed for 126 yards and two touchdowns.

"We're just blessed with some talented runners," Judson coach D.W. Rutledge said.

Darryl McKnight was on his way to a 100-yard night, but aggravated a left ankle injury in the third quarter and left with 82 yards on 12 carries.

David Simmonds, New Braunfels' all-purpose player, returned a kickoff 49 yards, setting the stage for the Unicorns' only touchdown on his 14-yard run after Judson built up a 35-3 lead.

Simmonds finished with 86 yards on 24 carries, and he added 109 yards in kickoff returns and punted four times for a 40-yard average.

Grapevine celebrated its top spot in 4A by allowing six players to get in the scoring column. Eric Guajardo had a big evening, completing 19 of 30 passes for 357 yards in only three quarters. Guajardo threw TD passes of 27 and 47 yards to D'Angelo Torres, 50 yards to Ricky Amezaga and 67 yards to Jack Brewer.

Brewer's cousin, Tellis Redmon, rushed 89 yards on 10 carries. Brewer finished with 125 yards on six receptions. Guajardo was intercepted once.

Fourth-ranked La Marque, which was 4A's No. 1 team before losing to Tyler John Tyler last week, bounced back with a 28-0 victory over Coldspring, 3A's No. 2 team.

Coldspring wasn't the only 3A ranked team to falter. Third-ranked Crockett lost to Center, 31-17, and fourth-ranked Atlanta lost to Henderson (4A's No. 8 team), 21-6. No. 9 Ballinger was beaten by Coleman, 28-18.

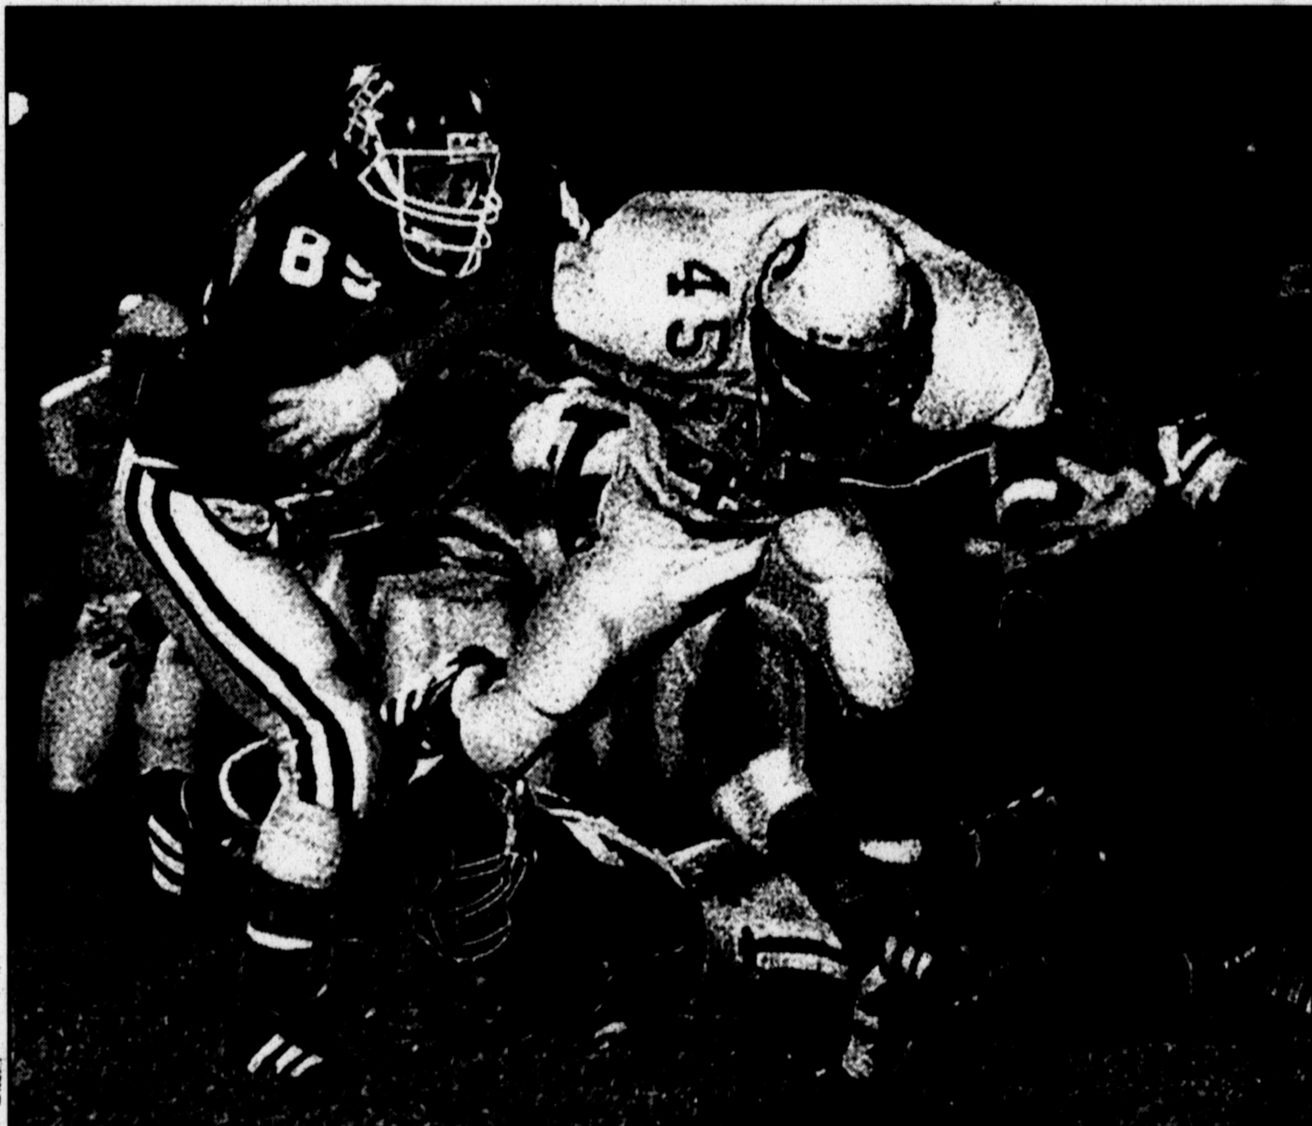

Vernon intercepted six Hirschi passes en route to its 14th consecutive regular season victory.

In 2A, the Alto Yellowjackets used a potent rushing attack and a stingy defense. Alto rolled up 345 total yards against Diboll, which had been giving up just 151 yards a game. Jammel Ward's six-yard run capped an eight-play, 64-yard drive in the first quarter, and the Yellowjackets recovered a fumble at the Diboll 16 a few moments later, setting up another touchdown.

The only loss among 2A ranked teams was ninth-ranked Industrial, which fell to East Bernard, 24-0.

The only loss in 1A was fifth-ranked Granger, which was beaten by Mason, 35-19.

Eric Steinberger carried the ball five times for 100 yards for Windthorst's top-ranked Trojans in 1A. He scored touchdowns on a 42-yard run and on a 67-yard pass from quarterback Brad Hoffman.

Belle's slam averts Orioles' sweep

By KEN BERGER

AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) - Those wiseguys on the tarmac in Baltimore aren't laughing now. One swing, and Albert Belle made sure of that.

As the Cleveland Indians sat in their plane after losing the first two games of their AL playoff series to the Orioles at Camden Yards, some workers taunted them with brooms.

"The maintenance people took out their brooms right on the tarmac and started sweeping," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said. "You obviously don't feel too good about that."

On Friday, Belle took any idea of a sweep and launched it into the cold

Cleveland night. Jacobs Field shook with cheers when the slugger's seventh-inning grand slam landed in the left-field bleachers, extending the defending AL champions' season with a 9-4 victory over Baltimore.

"We got the first one out of the way," said Kenny Lofton, who reached base four times and stole three bases. "Now, we've got to do it again."

The AL Central champion Indians pulled within 2-1 in the best-of-5 series against wild-card Baltimore. The series was to continue Saturday, with Charles Nagy pitching for Cleveland against David Wells for Baltimore.

It looked like the home field advantage would work for Cleveland right from the start. The first ball the Indians hit - a fly ball to right by Lofton - went off Bobby Bonilla's glove for a two-base error.

Then, with the game tied 4-all in the seventh, Belle hit a 1-2 fastball from hard-throwing reliever Armando Benitez, driving it 398 feet out to left. It was Belle's eighth career grand slam and his second straight in playoff games.

"I remember when the count was 1-2 on Albert, I said, 'A sac fly would be nice,'" Indians starter Jack McDowell said. "He hit a sac fly - to one of the fans."

Yankees rally in 9th, claim 2-1 series lead over Texas

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - There was bad karma in the New York Yankees' dugout until the eighth inning when the screaming and shouting began.

"Jimmy Key yelled 'somebody's got to do it' so I stepped up," said Mariano Duncan, who delivered the game-winning single in the ninth inning to cap a two-run rally for a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The victory gave the Yankees a 2-1 lead in the best-of-5 series AL playoff and broke their jinx at The Ballpark in Arlington.

"There was a lot of yelling and screaming in the dugout," New York manager Joe Torre said. "We finally came to life. The players knew they had screwed up and they wanted to make up for it."

The stadium had the voodoo on the Yankees once more until Rangers manager Johnny Oates made a move that backfired as New York once again victimized the Texas bullpen.

Duncan, the Yankees leading hitter, spoiled Oates' strategy with his hit off Mike Henneman.

"It was a forkball and I caught it pretty good," Duncan said. "We have a different hero every game. It was my time."

Helped by another home run from Juan Gonzalez, Texas took a 2-1 lead into the ninth. But Darren Oliver, who had allowed only four hits, and reliever Henneman could not hold off the Yankees.

Bernie Williams, who homered in the first inning, hit a sacrifice fly that tied it and Duncan put the Yankees ahead. New York was just 3-10 at the ballpark since it opened in 1994, and had lost five of six this season.

"We almost blew this game," Williams said. "I think we were just trying too hard. But we came back. That makes it sweet."

John Wetteland struck out Darryl Hamilton with a runner on third to end the game, preserving the victory for reliever Jeff Nelson.

"I had to perform in the ninth," Wetteland said. "I was feeling the electricity out there."

The AL East champion Yankees could wrap up the best-of-5 series Saturday when Kenny Rogers was to start against Texas' Bobby Witt. Rogers left Texas as a free agent in the offseason, saying he wanted to play for a winning team.

In New York's winning rally in the ninth, Derek Jeter led off with a single and took third when Tim Raines followed with a single, finishing Oliver. Henneman relieved, and Williams hit a sacrifice fly to tie it 2-2.

Instead, it was left up to the right-handed Duncan, who hits .350 against right-handers. Duncan lined a single to center that scored Raines.

"I feel happy I was able to get that hit because I didn't want Derek Jeter to get the blame for what happened in the fifth inning when he didn't cover second on Kevin Elster's stolen base," Duncan said. "He made a mistake and he's a rookie. I didn't want people to say it was his fault."

Ivan Rodriguez followed with a fifth-inning double to give Texas the lead.

"It was a rookie mistake that almost cost us the game," Jeter said. "It was supposed to be my coverage and I wasn't there. I felt responsible for that run."

Oates staunchly defended his choice of pitching to Duncan.

"I thought Henneman against Duncan was a good matchup," Oates said. "That's what we had to do I thought. I decided to go with Oliver into the ninth because he was pitching a four-hitter. A lot of clubs automatically go to their closer but we're not one of them."

Henneman gave credit to Duncan for the go-ahead hit.

"I threw a splitter to Duncan and he went in and got it," Henneman said. "I just threw as hard as I could. I wanted it down to give us a chance to make a play."

The Rangers, who lost nine times in 94 chances this season when taking a lead into the ninth, also dropped Wednesday night's game in New York when the bullpen could not hold an early 4-1 lead.

A crowd of 50,860 - only the 1995 All-Star game drew more to the park - saw Gonzalez set an AL record by homering in his third straight playoff game. His solo shot off Key in the fourth was his fourth home run of the series, and tied it at 1.

Williams had a spectacular first inning, hitting a home run and then taking one away.

He hit a 1-1 fastball for a homer to the most quirky corner of the park, with the ball just clearing the 325-foot mark where the fence bends back from the 349-foot sign.

In the bottom half, Williams robbed Rusty Greer of a homer with two outs. Williams timed his leap so his glove extended just above the 8-foot-high wall in center field.

Scott-free

Hereford fullback Jeremy Scott avoids the clutches of Pampa defensive tackle Aaron Hayden (63) during Friday night's football game at Whiteface Stadium. Pampa won, 41-0.

Astros fire Collins, hire Dierker

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Larry Dierker will manage the Houston Astros the way he pitched for them: start the game and see what happens.

"I was more seat-of-the-pants as a pitcher and less scientific," Dierker said. "I liked to warm up and see how I felt, go face the first three batters and see where I was. I hope to maintain my own personality."

The Astros surprisingly dismissed manager Terry Collins on Friday and even more unexpectedly replaced him with Dierker, who has no managing experience and has been the Astros color commentator since 1979.

"I'll probably be less inclined to go by the percentages but to be aware of the numbers," Dierker said.

"What they have done is unconventional and risky. My position has been in the fifth level (press box) and now I'm coming down on the field."

"It seems like they think I can do it, but I don't know how the players will respond."

Dierker compiled a 139-123 record for the Astros from 1964 through 1976 and for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1977.

He was Houston's first 20-game winner in 1969, when he went 20-13 with 20 complete games, and he threw the Astros' fifth no-hitter in 1976 against Montreal.

The Astros finished second in each of the last three seasons and this season was especially devastating. Houston started the final month with a 2 1/2 game lead in the NL Central but had a 7-18 record for the final month and finished six games behind champion St. Louis.

Astros owner Drayton McLane and general manager Gerry Hunsicker showed support for Collins early in the week. That changed by Thursday night.

Lasorda hospitalized again

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda was hospitalized for chest pains and underwent surgery to open a blocked artery.

Lasorda was "in excellent condition with no heart damage" following angioplasty Friday at Centinela Hospital Medical Center in Inglewood, where he was admitted earlier in the day, the team said in a statement.

Dr. Anthony Reid performed an angioplasty to reopen an artery. Lasorda also underwent angioplasty on the artery on June 26.

"The vessel was successfully redilated - the result was quite good - we're very pleased - his heart muscle, if anything, looks better now than it did in June and he's doing quite fine," Reid said late Friday night.

Colts put perfect record on line in Buffalo

49ers, Dolphins, Falcons, Seahawks deal with quarterback problems

By The Associated Press
Statistically, the odds are against the Indianapolis Colts remaining the NFL's only unbeaten team after Sunday's game at Buffalo.

Although Indianapolis has won 10 of its last 12 games against AFC East opponents, the two losses were against the Bills, both last season. In the week after a bye, the Bills are 6-1, while the Colts are only 4-3. And the Bills are 10-2 at Rich Stadium against Indianapolis since the Colts left Baltimore.

But the Colts are unfazed. While many figured it would take them a season to adjust to Lindy Infante's coaching style after Ted Marchibroda was fired, the Colts, who reached last season's AFC championship game, have overcome several injuries and not missed a beat. "It's been as smooth a transition as you can have in a coaching change," Colts quarterback Jim Harbaugh said. "The guys have responded to Lindy. They believe in what he's doing, and they have rallied around him."

The team also believes in Harbaugh. Harbaugh is the No. 2-rated quarterback in the NFL. He has completed 70 percent of his passes for 802 yards and six touchdowns. "He's the best quarterback in the National Football League right now,"

Bills defensive end Bruce Smith said. "He has great stats, he's a smart quarterback and he does whatever's necessary for them to win, whether he's scrambling, throwing the ball or being a great leader on that team."

Harbaugh has guided the Colts to a 4-0 record, including victories over Dallas and Miami in their last two games.

"They haven't been a real flamboyant type of team with a bunch of Reebok commercials and all that stuff," Buffalo coach Marv Levy said. "But they're very solid."

Meanwhile, the Bills (3-1) have struggled offensively, and are likely to be without starting quarterback Jim Kelly for a second straight week. Todd Collins is almost certain to start in place of Kelly, who has a sore hamstring and is listed as doubtful.

Meanwhile, the Colts will have star running back Marshall Faulk back in the lineup. Faulk injured a foot in Week 2.

In other Sunday games, it will be Atlanta (0-4) at Detroit (3-2); Carolina (3-1) at Minnesota (4-1); Green Bay (4-1) at Chicago (2-3); New England (2-2) at Baltimore (2-2); Oakland (1-4) at the New York Jets (0-5); Seattle (1-4) at Miami (3-1); Jacksonville (2-3) at New Orleans (0-5); San Diego (4-1) at Denver (4-1); San Francisco (3-1) at St. Louis (1-3), and Houston (2-2) at Cincinnati (1-3).

Pittsburgh (3-1) is at Kansas City (4-1) on Monday night.

Arizona, Dallas, the New York Giants, Philadelphia, Tampa Bay and Washington are idle this weekend.

Replacement quarterbacks could be a big story Sunday.

The 49ers are in a quandary at quarterback.

Elvis Grbac, who was expected to start against St. Louis while Steve Young took another week off to rest a groin strain, skipped practice Thursday because of back spasms.

Young, who missed last week's game against Atlanta, was going to have this week off to allow the strain to heal completely. But he was taking snaps Thursday in practice along with third-stringer Jeff Brohm.

Coach George Seifert said either Young or Grbac would start against the Rams.

"If Grbac is healthy and able to go and feels in good shape on Sunday, then we'll play him. He'll start," Seifert said. "But otherwise, Steve will start."

St. Louis will open with Tony Banks, the first Rams rookie to throw for three touchdowns in a game since Jim Everett in 1986.

The Rams have lost 11 consecutive games to the 49ers since the middle of the 1990 season.

At Miami, both the Dolphins and Seahawks will be using backup quarterbacks.

For the Dolphins, Craig Erickson is subbing for injured Dan Marino, while for Seattle, John Friesz is replacing ineffective Rick Mirer.

Erickson, who has crammed like an eager pre-med student since signing with Miami Sept. 2, still is learning the playbook. Against Seattle, he expects to rely heavily on help from 12-year veteran Bernie Kosar.

"Maybe we can hook up a mike so he can talk me through things,"

Erickson joked.

The game could be decided in the first quarter, since the Dolphins have outscored opponents 20-0 and the Seahawks have been outscored 37-3.

At Detroit, the Falcons will start Bobby Hebert again in place of suspended Jeff George.

George was suspended for one game after arguing with Falcons coach June Jones when he was removed from a game against Philadelphia. The suspension was extended to four games after George later made remarks to the media.

The Falcons have been trying to trade George, with Seattle continuing to pursue him by offering Mirer.

Atlanta is not the only winless team with problems.

New Orleans defensive end Darren Mickell was suspended Friday for four games for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy.

In addition, Saints running back Ray Zellers, who was ordered off the practice field following a profanity-laced argument with coach Jim Mora Thursday, was suspended for Sunday's game against Jacksonville.

And the Jets will be without their top two receivers against Oakland. Rookie Keyshawn Johnson underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right knee Thursday and will miss 3-4 weeks, and Jeff Graham is out with a knee injury.

Bengals' Wilkinson is eager to see Oilers' George again

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) - After watching former Ohio State teammate Eddie George on film, Dan Wilkinson knew what had to be done.

He headed for his phone. "He looks pretty good," Wilkinson said. "I'm going to have to give him a call, put a little bug in his ear, make him aware of some things."

"I'm pretty sure he'll be expecting me. I'm going to come up with something nice and sweet for him, something to just make him run a step slower."

The defensive tackle smiled while musing about what he might say to his friend, who must be stopped Sunday if the Cincinnati Bengals (1-3) are to have any chance of a successful season.

"This is a big one for us," Wilkinson said. "We're in a crucial part of our season. We've got to get a win or we're going to fall farther down the drain."

"We're in a critical condition right now. We can't afford to let anything slip out of our hands."

First, they have to make sure George doesn't slip through their fingers. The Houston Oilers (2-2) have held their own in part because of George, the Heisman Trophy winner.

George leads all NFL rookie running backs with 314 yards on 66 carries, a 4.8-yard average. Houston has the eighth-best running game in the league, much better than last year, when it finished 18th.

George is one of the main reasons why.

"Eddie has come along actually quicker than what we thought," coach Jeff Fisher said. "He's making progress. We're pleased with where he is right now. He's eager to become the workhorse on the offense."

The only thing he's not eager to do is hear from Wilkinson. Informed that Wilkinson was trying to call him, George chuckled and said, "I hope to avoid Dan's phone calls for the next couple of days."

What could Wilkinson possibly do that would make George pause?

"If he comes in unblocked, that would definitely slow me down," George said, trying to restrain a laugh. "It'll be exciting to see him again. If he comes through that line unblocked, it won't be so pleasant meeting him."

How their meeting goes could be a pivotal factor Sunday.

The Bengals' best asset has been their defensive line, anchored by Wilkinson and John Copeland. Cincinnati held Denver to 14 points last Sunday, when John Elway threw for a season-high 335 yards. But the line was solid, sacking Elway five times while holding down the league's top running attack.

Cincinnati is ranked fifth in the league at stopping the run. George will be one of its biggest challenges.

"I'm looking forward to it," Wilkinson said. "It's just one of those things where we're starting to understand the run, how to defend against it, and we're starting to get a little respect."

The Oilers earned respect for playing tough last month despite the lack of fan support. They lost their opener 20-19 to Kansas City before 27,725 fans in the Astrodome, then won in Jacksonville and beat Baltimore at home. They self-destructed last week in a 30-16 loss in Pittsburgh.

Much of the improvement is in the offense, which finished 23rd in the league last season, but has moved up to 14th. The Oilers depended heavily last year on Chris Chandler, who had a career year while Houston went 7-9.

The Oilers beat the Bengals 38-28 at Riverfront Stadium last season behind Chandler, who threw a career-high four touchdown passes in the first half alone and completed 23 of 26 passes, one shy of the NFL record for completion percentage.

The Bengals got to Chandler in the rematch in the Astrodome, holding him to 12-for-26 without a touchdown in Cincinnati's 32-25 win.

The Oilers have a more balanced offense this time around, so the Bengals figure the game will turn on how well they contain George.

"We're looking forward to it, actually," said middle linebacker Steve Tovar, drafted out of Ohio State in 1993. "I know I am. I've got a lot of respect for the guy. Like anybody else, I want to see how far he's come along."

"When I was there, he was still young and developing. He was not nearly the back he is now."

Settle for the Best.

HIGH PLAINS SPORTS MEDICINE CENTER

It's A Whole New Game.

Why should a football injury end your season? Today, our team is breaking new ground in sports medicine. We're even returning players back to the field in better shape than before their injury.

Revived Light Crust Doughboys hit state fair

By JACQUELYNN FLOYD
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS - The Light Crust Doughboys have outlasted their creator, their founding members and the flour empire that launched them to fame. And after six decades, they can still draw a crowd just by tuning up.

The pioneering Western swing band launched by Fort Worth mill magnate and former Texas Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel to help peddle flour appeared last week at the State Fair of Texas, the same venue they headlined in the 1940s and '50s.

The five-member band came this time to open an exhibit of Doughboys memorabilia in the Hall of State building on Wednesday, but it was the music that reeled in the fans.

"I'll get ladies in their 70s coming up and saying, 'I listened to you in grade school,'" said senior Doughboy Marvin "Smokey" Montgomery, an 83-year-old banjo player who joined the band in 1935. "I can't play quite as fast as I used to, but I can still keep up."

The band, created as a marketing gimmick in 1931, started with three members, including Texas music legend Bob Wills. Within a few years Wills left to start his own band, the Texas Playboys. But the Doughboys, crisscrossing the country in their neon-topped "Light Crust Flour" truck rapidly rose to fame as well.

"We'd pull into the square in some little town that didn't have but 5,000 people living in it, and there would be 10,000 people in the crowd," Montgomery said.

The Doughboys played fairs, rodeos, parades and festivals, but it was radio that made them famous. Their most famous member of all couldn't play a lick, but his role as band announcer - and his warbling rendition of "Beautiful Texas" - propelled "Pappy" O'Daniel to the governor's office in 1937.

Montgomery regrouped the band after World War II intervened and split it up. Their repertoire included old cowboy songs, Spanish classics and what was then popularly called "hillbilly" music, observing only one rule: They didn't play dance halls or honky-tonks.

"That's why Bob Wills left the band. He wanted to play the dances, and the Doughboys didn't do that," Montgomery said. "We played a hymn every day, and the dance halls would have interfered with that image."

"These were the nicest gentlemen I ever, ever met," said Pat Dunn

Mayes, a "girl singer" who appeared with the Doughboys in the early '50s as a teenager. "Perfect gentlemen."

The band endured, but members came and went over the years. Montgomery estimates that nearly 200 musicians were Light Crust Doughboys; for several years, the group actually had two touring bands and one that played a Dallas radio show at the same time.

The Doughboys quit recording in 1985. Montgomery went on to other projects and appeared only occasionally with the band. But newcomer Art Greenhaw, a musician and producer, persuaded the members to regroup three years ago.

Part of their revival is the exhibit of photos, handbills and sheet music from the band's early days, much of which has been stored for years in Montgomery's attic.

"This is a kind of music that doesn't die out," Greenhaw said. "We're Western swing and country blues and R&B. The Doughboys were popular in the past, and I expect us to be popular in the future."

Black restaurant owner loses concession for not certifying firm as minority-owned

By LAURA A. STROMBERG
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - People walk into Mr. Bones' restaurant now just to shake John Goode's hand. One family drove to Austin from Lubbock to congratulate him.

Goode did something he says many people don't understand.

He refused to formally certify his barbecue restaurant as a minority-owned business even though he is black.

In doing so, he lost a contract with the city's concessions manager, Fine Host Corp., that permitted him to sell his barbecue at events held in the city's coliseum, auditorium and convention center.

Goode's contract went to another vendor whose business is certified so the city could meet its goal of giving 25 percent of subcontracts to certified minority- and women-owned businesses.

"It's ironic. I lost my contract because I told them I didn't want it because I was black, I wanted it because I am a good businessman and I sell good barbecue," Goode says.

The affirmative action policy, passed in 1987, is a City Council mandate, said Charles Brothers, assistant city attorney.

In its contract with the city, Fine Host agreed to make a "good faith effort" to award 25 percent of its concessions to historically underutilized businesses. The company was merely complying with the goals of its contract when it awarded the subcontract to Ben's Long Branch Barbecue, Brothers said. Ben Wash, owner of Ben's Long Branch, said he is a strong believer in affirmative action and cannot support Goode's refusal to certify his business.

"Being a black man, I can't stand behind him," said Wash, who has been subcontracting with the city since the late 1970s. "I just disagree with what he's doing."

But Goode doesn't oppose affirmative action. In fact, he believes affirmative action policies should apply to all lower-income vendors.

"Affirmative action is a tool to assist those disadvantaged and get them to a point where they can stand on their own feet," he said.

"But when and at what point is a minority business person entitled to say, 'I've reached a point in my professional career and I want to be able to compete with anyone?'"

Goode says his close friends believe he did the right thing. And he calls support from the white community "unbelievable."

"But I've gotten no support from the established black community. Nil. But I didn't expect it, and it doesn't bother me one bit," Goode said.

Craig Washington, Goode's lawyer, said many people are calling Goode's predicament an example of reverse discrimination.

Mouse pads hot new advertising medium

By EVAN RAMSTAD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Looking for ways to promote new rotary saw blades, Dave Fortin considered having Frisbees printed with his company's logo or getting electronic greeting cards that sounded like a saw when opened.

Then he remembered that his clients all use computers and decided a mouse pad would be perfect. He even designed it like a rotary blade, round with 22 spike points.

"They get a million pens," said Fortin, merchandise manager for Raleigh, N.C.-based Cooper Tools. "We were looking for something that would have that kind of lasting power."

Thousands of companies have gotten the same idea, turning the mouse pad into one of the most popular items sold by advertising novelty companies today.

The most elaborate are cut in special shapes, such as the Cooper Tools saw or a wristwatch for Guess?, a tire for Goodyear and a sports stadium for the Phoenix Suns.

"We're in the process of doing one shaped like a double burger," said Mike Meath of Precision Line Inc., a mouse pad maker in Plymouth, Minn. Other variations have built-in calculators, transparent pockets to stow a photo or another document, and inch-high wrist rests in the front.

Office suppliers sell $20 mouse pads topped with leather and ready for a monogram. And some consumer gift catalogs offer to turn a person's photograph into a mouse pad for about $30.

With the growing use of the World Wide Web as a marketing tool, companies from the makers of Jack Daniel's whiskey to QVC have used mouse pads to keep their Web addresses in front of people.

"Every company suddenly has a new need to create, buy and distribute advertising that constantly remind prospective clients of a new address ... on the Internet," said Marvin Spike, president of Advertising Specialty Institute, a Langhorne, Pa.-based promotional products industry group.

Tri-County Red Cross Chapter continues under leadership of new chapter manager

Leadership changes

Betty Henson, right, past chapter manager of the Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross, answers a question for new chapter manager, Johnnie Meeks.

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

On Aug. 5, the Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross got a new chapter manager when Johnnie Meeks assumed the position that had been vacated when Betty Henson retired.

Mrs. Henson, who had served as chapter manager for 17 years, submitted her resignation last September and the board of directors began what became a lengthy search for her replacement.

"I always wanted to help during disasters," said Meeks. "And there were several other reasons why I decided to submit an application for the chapter manager's position."

Meeks said the job was not as physically hard as the construction work he had been doing and it would give him a chance to use his degree and be an opportunity to meet people.

He received his teaching degree from West Texas State University in 1992.

"I thought I knew where I wanted to teach and looked for a job in that area. But I soon learned that a new teacher, especially an old man like me, has to take the first job you can get," Meeks said.

In lieu of the teaching position he had hoped to find, Meeks worked in construction in Pampa and Borger for a few years until his wife, Molly, also a teacher, accepted a job at St. Anthony's School in Hereford two years ago.

"It was an interesting time," Meeks said, referring to the move he made with his wife and son, Toby, which involved "camping out" for a time in a borrowed farm house until time and finances allowed them to move into their present home on Willow Lane.

"My job with Red Cross lets me teach so I am utilizing my degree," Meeks said.

"He's doing a good job as manager," Mrs. Henson said. She is still at the office regularly to help with Meek's training.

Although Meeks did not have any Red Cross certifications when he assumed the job as chapter manager, he has received his instructor's certifications in first aid, CPR and HIV/Aids instruction.

"And he is responsible for leading us into the computer age here at the chapter," Mrs. Henson added.

The Red Cross has changed completely in the last 20 years, according to Mrs. Henson, and is currently in the process of making other changes.

"The Red Cross has its own internet, called the CrossNet, which is available now. We are trying to obtain a computer that will allow us access to CrossNet," she said.

Both Mrs. Henson and Meeks said they like the personal element of the job, but realize that computers are necessary to gain access to valuable information as quickly as possible.

One area that is currently being emphasized by the Red Cross is disaster education, Meeks said.

"Mitigation classes are being offered that will help people learn how to avoid disasters by teaching such things as how to build a tornado-proof home or where not to build a home, such as an earthquake area," he explained.

"The Tri-County Chapter is here to provide assistance to victims of fires and other disasters, but mainly we provide secondary services such as food and clothing for those in need," Meeks said.

He has hopes that the chapter can address these secondary services more directly in the future.

"I would like to make it easier for people to do their shopping to meet these needs," he said.

Limited space at the present location is the biggest problem, according to Meeks.

In addition to the items that are kept for disaster victims, the Red Cross warehouse is currently serving as a food depository for the Hereford

Community Food Bank.

They have been looking for a second location for more than a year, but so far nothing has been available.

"We also need more volunteers," Meeks said. "We would like to incorporate more volunteers into our program and will certainly have room for them if we can open a store furnish secondary services."

"There are things that people can volunteer besides their time," Henson added. "Disaster victims need more than just food and second-hand clothes. They need funds for things like rent, new clothes and medications."

With short-range plans already taking shape and long-range plans being formulated, the future of the Tri-County Chapter, under the leadership of Johnnie Meeks, looks bright.

La Afflatus Estudio Club honors 20 year member

Aileen Montgomery, a 20-year member of La Afflatus Estudio Study Club, was honored at the club's regular meeting Tuesday, hosted by Della Stagner in the home of Mary Herring.

Emily Suggs gave a speech to honor Montgomery and presented her with a plaque.

Mary Williamson presided over the business meeting.

Two new members, Merle Boozer and Margaret Baxter, were voted into the club.

Virginia Curtsinger, who was in charge of the program, read "Renew Your Energy" by Norman Vincent Peale.

Roll call was answered by Leola Cook, Opal Elliston, Alberta Higgins, Curtsinger, Montgomery, Stagner, Suggs, Williamson and Boozer.

Youth ministry to sponsor circus at San Jose Church

Lions and tigers and bears...Oh my! The sights and sounds of the circus are coming to Hereford.

The San Jose Total Youth Ministry will sponsor the Allen Bros. Circus on Oct. 16 at San Jose Community Grounds, 735 Brevard Street in Hereford.

For one hour before the show, carnival rides will be open. The show times will be 5 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Admission will be $6 for adults (12 and over) and free for children (11 and over). Children must be accompanied by an adult. Limit three children per adult.

Proceeds from the circus will be divided between the Allen Bros. Circus and the church youth group.

The church proceeds will benefit the San Jose Community and San Jose Total Youth Ministry.

Twenty-three members of San Jose TYM will attend the Region X Youth Conference Nov. 15-17 in Austin. The proceeds from the fundraisers, such as the circus, will help pay trip expenses.

The San Jose TYM is a member of the Youth Ministerial Alliance in Hereford. The youth also participate in youth gatherings, evangelism, various fund-raisers and community work.

SHELLY MCCAFFREE, REX BAXTER

December wedding is planned in Amarillo

Shelly D'Ann McCaffree of Amarillo and Rex Baxter of Derby, Conn., plan to be married Dec. 28 in the First Baptist Church in Amarillo. The bride-elect is the daughter of Robert and Mary McCaffree of Amarillo.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Waldo and Carolyn Baxter of Hereford.

Miss McCaffree graduated in 1992 from Texas A&M University in College Station with a bachelor of science degree. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and Amarillo Junior League. She is employed by Amarillo Independent School District as a teacher at Wolfen Elementary.

Baxter received a BBA in marketing in 1991 from West Texas State University. He is employed by Market Growth Resources in Wilton, Conn.

Food service department more than just a cafeteria

National Food Service Employee Week recognizes the important contribution food service workers make to the care of patients in hospitals, according to Jim Robinson, Hereford Regional Medical Center's chief executive officer.

"AT HRMC, our dietary department is a vital member of the patient care team. They prepare more than 2,000 meals each month, for four different types of diets. And those meals must not only look and taste good, they must be carefully calculated to provide proper nutrition to our patients," he said.

Manager of the department is Martha Rincon. She is a certified dietary manager, and has been in the dietetic field for over 20 years.

Ms. Rincon supervises the planning of the 21-day cycle of menus. She must plan for a general menu and three modified menus which include a bland or soft menu, a diabetic menu, and a low-sodium menu. Working with the physicians, Ms. Rincon visits the patients and does nutritional screening and assessment. She assesses the nutritional needs of the patient, and does what she calls a "basal energy expenditure requirement" which determines the caloric and protein requirements for the patient.

The physician orders the diet, and the dietary staff works with both the patient and the physician to determine what type of meals will work best.

Ms. Rincon is also responsible for the quality assurance program of the dietary department. She monitors and reviews the food, the service, and the results of the special diets. The monitoring is done through the patient surveys and through individual audits.

Other members of the department are JoNell Satterfield, head cook; Juanita DelToro, Pat Esqueda, cooks; and Cathy Rincon, Julie Ann Rincon and Nancy Cantu, cook's assistants.

Charlotte Clark, an employee of the hospital for 15 years, provides the Hospital District with federally mandated dietary supervision. Ms. Clark has a master of science degree, is both a Registered Dietitian (a national registration) and a Licensed Dietitian (a state registration).

By REBECCA WALLS

With the presidential election coming up I thought you might want to get to know Bob and Elizabeth Dole a little better. Unlimited Partners: Our American Story is a joint autobiography of Bob and Elizabeth Dole.

As I waited for my son to call from Laramie, Wyo., last night, I sat in easy chair, the phone within easy reach, and read this book. It was like having a conversation with them as they answered questions that came to my mind. I was encouraged by the fact that they both seem like real people who have overcome adversity in a way that has built a character that can see beyond what is "good for me" to what is "good for all involved."

I was encouraged by a sense of community, of neighbors helping neighbors, and of a man that wishes to give something back to those whose support and help have made him who he is today.

Being from a small Texas Panhandle town I know first hand that same feeling of "community" and am encouraged when it is reflected in someone working in Washington.

Elizabeth's work with the American Red Cross has helped her see the need of people in America and many other countries and has offered a constructive way of delivering a helping hand.

I would like to know your reaction to this book. What do you think of the Doles before and after reading this book?

The Last Don by Mario Puzo arrived and is ready for checkout. The Last Don is another thrilling saga of Domenico Clericuzio's family and their reach into Hollywood and Las Vegas.

Clericuzio is a ferocious old man determined to secure his family's future. In a time of legalized gambling, and motion picture investments, Clericuzio is close to achieving his vision when long buried family secrets begin to surface, sparking a war.

The Last Don promises to be successful, and chilling as The Godfather.

Graham Masterton's The House That Jack Built is another modern tale of horror. A successful young lawyer, Craig Bellman and wife Effie, move to the Hudson Valley to recover from a vicious street mugging in which Craig is seriously injured.

Craig becomes fascinated with Valhalla, a derelict old mansion. Looking into the history of Valhalla, Craig discovers it was built by the legendary Jack Belias, a renowned gambler and lady's man. Since the death of Jack, each subsequent owner has endured a tragic end.

Undeterred by the expense, Craig insists on living in Valhalla. In support of her husband, Effie moves into the house, but employs a local spiritualist in an attempt to exercise the house of its threatening vibrations.

Obsessed by the house, Craig's personality changes more each day. Could the spirit of Jack Belias be taking over, and if so, how can Effie save Craig?

Cadillac Jukebox by James Lee Burke is another title that has been requested by some of you.

When Aaron Crown moved to New Iberia, La., the reputation of his family followed him. They were known as "shiftless timber people" who lived by poaching deer stealing livestock and had ties to the Ku Klux Klan.

When Aaron is accused of assassinating the famous civil rights leader in Louisiana, no one is surprised. Aaron proclaimed his innocence and asked Dave Robicheaux for help. Dave has no desire to get involved so he avoids Aaron's request.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER

County Extension Agent/FCS Gift stores are filled with herbed vinegars and oils.

Herbed vinegar is considered a food-safe product to consume. Most herbed vinegars are made by using one or two cups of fresh herbs and pouring heated vinegar over the mixture. The vinegar must contain at least 5 percent acidity.

The herbs are allowed to steep in the vinegar and can be left in the gift jar to be served with the vinegar of the herbs may be removed.

Due to the brine solution, these vinegar products are safe.

Herbed oils, on the other hand, can be potentially deadly.

Commercial products contain a preservative that kills deadly spore producing clostridium botulinum bacteria. Homemade products do not contain this preservative.

When the herbs are added to the oil, an oxygen free environment is created. Without oxygen, the spores multiply rapidly. Garlic is considered an herb in this caution. Deadly toxins are produced in this oxygen-free environment.

Homemade oils may be made in very small quantities and allowed to steep at room temperature for no more than eight hours. They must then be refrigerated and used within a ten-day time limit.

Homemade flavored oils should not be given as gifts and commercial oils that do not specify their method of preservation should be discarded.

Some serigraphs or silk-screen prints are smudged or damaged during production. You can plan on losing ten percent of an edition each time you add a color.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I have found it hard to find small bottle brushes. To solve the problem of cleaning the bottles, I place a small amount of gravel plus some water in them, then place my thumb over the opening and shake vigorously.

This works great for hummingbird feeders and other bottles with very small openings.

Hope this helps other bird-watchers in keeping feeders clean. — Barbara Cain, Marshfield, Mo.

Your hint will certainly make our little feathered friends hum! — Heloise

GARAGE PARKING

Dear Heloise: I read a column that said to use a metal washer or bead attached to a string in the garage so that you can tell how far to pull up in the garage.

The bead will be hard to see and the washer may chip your windshield. Try a yellow tennis ball instead. It's easy to see and can't possibly harm the car. — Ann Masters, Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Goldy arrives at the mine early with a load of goodies and just when things are looking the brightest, Maria appears with bad news. Maria is sure the mine venture is a scam.

Several days later when Albert Lipscomb, the person who hired Goldy, is missing, Goldy knows something is very wrong. Why is the police captain treating Maria as if she had committed a crime?

Before long Goldy finds herself surrounded by missing partners, missing millions, and multiple murders. If Goldy could discover the main corpse, she might be able to unravel the mystery that threatens Maria's life.

MR. AND MRS. CHRISTOPHER MICHAEL SOLOMON
...vows exchanged

Tuz, Solomon are wed

Heather Ann Tuz and Christopher Michael Solomon, both of Amarillo, were united in marriage Sept. 7 in The Wedding Chapel in Amarillo. The bride is the daughter of Celia Dees and Richard Tuz of Amarillo. The bridegroom is the son of Mike and Anna Solomon of Hereford.

Rev. Bill Johnson, uncle of the groom, officiated at the ceremony. Matron of honor was Tina Curry of Amarillo. Best man was Jeremy Gowdy of Hereford. Serving as bridesmaid was April Redman and groomsman was Chad Johnson, cousin of the groom.

Ushers were Ryan Johnson, cousin of the groom, and Nathan Betzen. Ring bearers were nephews of the bride, Dane Tuz, son of Rich and Wendi Tuz, and Randy Tuz, son of Toy Tuz and Darren Tuz. Bridal attendants' dresses and flowers carried out the bride's chosen colors of burgundy and navy blue. The couple was honored with a reception following the ceremony. Jordan Tuz, nephew of the bride and son of Rich and Wendi Tuz, presided at the guest register. After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple is at home in Amarillo.

Becky's Camp Site

You may have noticed an item that's been in the paper since Wednesday requesting holiday recipes.

I hope anyone who has a recipe for a favorite holiday dish will send it to us. Maybe there is one special food that your family enjoys at Thanksgiving or Christmas.

Or a recipe for a particular dish that has been handed down from generation to generation that is prepared only for the holidays.

These are the things we're asking you to share with our community.

For most of us the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays are steeped in tradition. These traditions help make the days even more special. And for most of us, food is an integral part of these traditions.

It's hard for me to think of Thanksgiving and Christmas without thinking of turkey and dressing, one of my favorite foods but one that I never have except (you guessed it) Thanksgiving and Christmas. Maybe that's why it's one of my favorites. It's a treat, not an every day food. Since I only get it twice a year, I don't ever get tired of it.

To accompany the turkey and dressing, there are green beans, candied yams, fruit salad and pecan pie. There is always an assortment of other foods served, too, but the ones I listed are traditional and the meal wouldn't seem complete without them.

In addition to the dishes we have for the holiday meal there are other foods that I consider part of the tradition -- the candy and cookies.

These are just for "snacking on" between meals while the family and guests visit.

Candy specifically means divinity, fudge and peanut pattie.

In our family, cookies specifically means Monster Cookies. I don't know if it's a valid name or one that was "assigned" by a grandchild somewhere down the line. But we all know exactly what Monster Cookies are.

In the coming weeks I will share some of these "traditional" recipes with you. In the mean time, I hope you will consider sharing some of your "traditional" recipes with us.

Welcome to Hereford

Auxiliary plans jewelry sale

The Hereford Regional Medical Center's Auxiliary will sponsor a 14K Gold and Sterling Silver Jewelry Sale from 7 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday in the dining room of the hospital.

The sale, which is a major fund raiser for the Auxiliary, will feature fashionable jewelry for all occasions. All profits from the sale will go to the Auxiliary for their various projects.

"This is a great time to do some early Christmas shopping," Irene Reinart, president of the auxiliary, said. "Customers will have a chance to make some excellent buys and help fund worthy projects at the same time."

Proceeds from the sale go to purchases of equipment or furnishings for HRMC.

The public is invited to stop by the one-day sale. All major credit cards are accepted.

Hereford has a number of excellent retail stores. Shop Hereford first through the pages of The Hereford Brand!

Fifteen Junior Historians attended a seminar, "The People's Court": Researching Your County Courthouse, at Panhandle-Plains Museum in Canyon. They will spend several months with research to prepare an exhibit which they will present on March 21, 1997. Students will work in teams at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse, local museum and library as well as seek interviews with people who now work or have worked at the courthouse. Students involved in this project are Michelle Bernhardt, Taylor Charest, Erica Marquez, Angela Morris, Laci Black, Libby Brockman, Kara Landrum, Aaron Brock, Derek Weber, Wesley Reinart, Aaron Landers, Will McGowan, Clay Cosby, Jimmy Gilliam and Glenn Kahlich.

EPS, (Employment Preparation Skills), classes taught by Mrs. Cicero, are making and presenting posters depicting a career they wish to pursue in the future.

Self Responsibility classes are learning about the dangers of alcohol and how it can and does affect students and their loved ones. They will also discuss ways to say "No" to peer pressure and how to deal with alcohol being brought to social events.

Blue Team Students of the Week for the first six weeks are Cassidy Hicks, James Garcia, Veronica Salinas, Danny Gaitan, Tim Wiest, Ermelinda Carbajal, Barney Salinas, Kathy Kilpatrick, Israel Martinez, Kimberly Zamarripa, William Shows and Jennifer Vallejo.

Purple Team Students of the Week are Cristina Guerrero, Matthew Cortez, Teresa Madrigal, Francisco Hernandez and Jessica Powers.

Science I, Yellow Team, will be involved in ecology and conservation of natural resources and will be writing essays on conservation of soil and water. English and history classes will be involved in the essay project, also.

Students who are working on DAR essays and History Day activities need support from parents to make visits to the county library, make interviews and have time to work at home on projects and papers. Geography Bee participants also need some practice time with someone at home.

Check for tourney proceeds

Robert Kubacak, commander of VFW Post 4818, presents a $1,500 check to Kathy Acton, nurse manager for the Hereford area Crown of Texas Hospice, for proceeds from the VFW/Hospice benefit gold tournament. Also pictured are Shorty Roark, senior vice commander and Rita Burges, Hospice volunteer. The funds will be used for Hereford area Hospice patients for pain medication and equipment to alleviate pain which enables them to remain at home.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to write a letter to the parents of Karen Ann Quinlan. She was the young girl who mixed alcohol and barbiturates and was in a coma for about seven years before she died. Her parents fought a well-publicized court battle to get her off life support. I know a lot of years have passed, but Karen has been on my mind. I hope a family member or friend will see this letter and pass it along to the Quinlan family.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan: I remember when your daughter went into a coma in 1975 as a result of mixing alcohol and barbiturates. I didn't know Karen; but she has had a real impact on my life.

I grew up in the '60s and '70s, when drugs were very easy to obtain. I abused alcohol later in life, but I never used any drugs because of Karen's experience. I am now 44, and I couldn't begin to tell you the times I have mentioned your daughter's name over the years. My two grown children have known about Karen for as long as they can remember.

I realize that nothing can ease the pain of losing your daughter. I hope, however, it will bring you some comfort to know that others DID notice and they learned a very valuable lesson from her tragic death. I sincerely believe the story of Karen touched and saved more lives than anyone will ever know. -- Penny Stewart in Waco, Texas

Dear Penny: I believe you are right about Karen's story saving lives. Rest assured that Karen Ann Quinlan's parents will see your letter. I know my readers, and they will see to it.

I, along with millions of others, was heartsick that the Quinlans had to wage such a horrendous battle to get their daughter out of the hospital. For months, it was known that there was zero chance that Karen would recover, yet the hospital authorities refused to disconnect the life support and allow her to be brought home to spend her final days.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter in your column about the "cussing cup" reminded me of the "shut-up jar" we had when our children were young. This demeaning command was not allowed in our home, but our children somehow fell into the habit of yelling "SHUT UP" at one another whenever they got into a heated argument. Finally, we decided something had to be done.

We set a large jar on the breakfast table, and every time the kids said "shut up," in went part of their allowance money. The first offense was a nickel, the second a dime, and so on. There were days when we put in as much as a dollar. Of course, we heard a lot of complaining, but it was amazing how that system eventually eliminated the detested phrase.

The following summer, we took a train trip on the money from the "shut-up jar." The kids enjoyed telling people we met along the way how we managed to afford the trip. We were surprised that they were rather proud of the way they were disciplined. Both our children are parents now, and they enjoy telling the story of the "shut-up jar," and of course, we enjoy hearing it. -- It Worked in Yuba City, Calif.

Dear Yuba: It worked in Yuba City, and it can work anywhere. I recommend it.

Gem of the Day: Someone said, "Most men fall halfway in love with any woman who will listen to them."

Those words were undoubtedly uttered by a woman who figured out that the way to a man's heart was through his cardrums.

Is alcohol ruining your life or the life of a loved one? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" can turn things around. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO

JACK BIVENS, JENNIFER BIVENS, FRED PEREZ - OWNERS

If you're interested in self-defense, in being a healthier person, TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO, located at 520 South Tyler (6th & Tyler) in Amarillo, phone 374-3144, would like to introduce you to Tae-Kwon-Do, the ultimate form of martial art. For self-defense the Tae-Kwon-Do technique is unparalleled by any other form of unarmed defense. Students are trained to be confident, self-disciplined and self-controlled individuals who become real assets to the community, instead of aggressive, uncontrolled bullies.

As an exercise, the training sessions include strength and tone of all the body's muscle groups, as well as providing a high level of aerobic conditioning.

Even if you participate in any other sport or exercise, compliment it with Tae-Kwon-Do. TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO will increase your balance, coordination and flexibility to levels unobtainable by any other sport or exercise alone.

Their class sessions are taught by the most competent certified Black Belt Instructors. Tae-Kwon-Do at TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO is a total fitness plan. No other sport or exercise can offer as much. Not only is Tae-Kwon-Do a complete muscular and aerobic exercise but you also learn to defend yourself as well as learn extremely effective sport karate techniques. So if you're interested in improving yourself, why go halfway when you can have it all with Tae-Kwon-Do from TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO.

The writers of this 1996 Fall Headline Review are pleased to recommend TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO to our area residents. Mention the 1996 Fall Headline Review and TEXAS TIGERS TAE-KWON-DO will give the first two lessons absolutely FREE!

TEXAS BUILDERS & P.A.C.E. (PLAINVIEW AWNING & CANVAS EXTERIOR)

SERVING THE AREA SINCE 1977

MANUEL GONZALES - OWNER

The quality of a building depends on the quality of the people who build it. On paper, any home or commercial building looks good, but you're not going to live in your home on paper. So, no matter how good your building looks in the blueprints, its ultimate quality depends on the people who build it. TEXAS BUILDERS, at 2016 West 20th Street in Plainview, phone 293-3704, has been in the building business long enough to know that without good people you're not going to get too many good customers. That's why their people, all of them, are building construction professionals. They can do the complete job, including truck tarps, boat covers, trampolines and back light signs. They can handle everything from residential and restaurants to shopping centers.

A great way to conserve energy and increase the property value of your home or business at the same time is to call 293-3703 and talk to the friendly people at P.A.C.E. (Plainview Awning & Canvas Exterior): the area's awning specialist.

Located at 2503 Quincy St. in Plainview, this prominent firm will install custom awnings which lower fuel bills by shading and insulating your windows effectively. Awnings also add to the appearance of your home or business, and this is a big plus when it comes time to sell your property. For whatever service you need, you'll always get a fair deal from this fine contractor.

HEALTHWORLD

THELMA DENSON - OWNER

Specialty vitamins are also carried, and there is an exact combination that's just right for you. Many varieties of bulk teas, as well as many other healthful and nutritious items can be found on their well stocked shelves including a complete selection of herbs and books.

Make shopping at HEALTH WORLD a regular habit. You'll feel and look better if you do and you might even live longer too!

The authors of this 1996 Fall Headline Review would like to make special mention of HEALTH WORLD and invite all of our readers to give them a try for healthier living.

MR. AND MRS. BILL PHIPPS
...observe golden anniversary

Couple honored with anniversary reception

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Phipps were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception Saturday in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Hosts for the celebration were their children Sylvia Rupert of Coppell and Margaret Phipps of Arlington and their grandchildren Kim Bruegel of Lubbock and Wendy Emerick of Hereford.

Phipps and Mozell Shreve were married Oct. 6, 1946 in Hereford. Following their marriage, they lived in Massachusetts, his birthplace, before returning to Hereford.

Phipps, a former city inspector, retired in 1986. Mrs. Phipps was a telephone operator prior to her retirement in 1976.

He is a member of the Masonic Lodge and First United Methodist Church.

She is a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and St. Thomas' Episcopal Church.

In addition to their two children and two grandchildren, the couple also has two great-grandchildren.

We Want Your Recipes!

The holidays are nearly upon us and The Hereford Brand wants to help make this season shine by sharing special holiday recipes with our readers.

We want to publish as many of our readers' traditional holiday favorites as we can during the holiday season -- from Thanksgiving's turkey dinner through New Year's Day's black-eyed peas.

Anyone wanting to submit a recipe may do so to The Hereford Brand, 313 N. Lee, in any of five categories -- Main Dish, Appetizers/Beverage, Vegetables/Salads, Desserts and Candies/Cookies.

Each recipe must include the name of the person submitting it, complete list of ingredients and preparation directions, plus a short history of the recipe, including the name of the cookbook where it originally appeared, if applicable.

The Brand staff will select the best of these recipes to publish during the holidays.

All recipes must be typed or neatly handwritten. Deadline for submission is 5 p.m. on October 25.

So please, share the holidays with your friends and neighbors by sending us your favorite traditional holiday recipes.

Ask your child what he wants for dinner only if he is buying.

— YOUR EYES —

Don't Neglect Eye Safety

When we concentrate on visual acuity -- how well the eyes can see -- and correction with glasses where necessary, it's important to consider how safe those glasses are.

Ordinary eyeglasses, whether glass or plastic, may not be adequate for active people -- especially active children. There can be serious eye injuries if glasses shatter on impact or fail to shield the eye from injury. The wisest choice is often grinding lenses of polycarbonate, a tough and virtually indestructible material created for the space program. This special plastic may add considerably to the cost of eyeglasses, but the added protection for eyes is priceless.

Polycarbonate lenses are an important safety feature for those without vision problems, too. They are the first choice for sports goggles, for racquetball and baseball, and for contact sports as well.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Oct. 6, the 280th day of 1996. There are 86 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Oct. 6, 1927, the era of talking pictures arrived with the opening of "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, a movie which featured both silent and sound-synchronized scenes.

On this date:

In 1683, 13 families from Krefeld, Germany, arrived in present-day Philadelphia to begin Germantown, one of America's oldest settlements.

In 1884, the Naval War College was established in Newport, R.I.

In 1889, the Moulin Rouge in Paris first opened its doors to the public.

In 1939, in an address to the Reichstag, Adolf Hitler denied having any intention of war against France and Britain.

In 1949, American-born Iva Toguri D'Aquino, convicted of being Japanese wartime broadcaster "Tokyo Rose," was sentenced in San Francisco to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000.

In 1973, war erupted in the Middle East as Egypt and Syria attacked Israel during the Yom Kippur holiday.

In 1976, in his second debate with Jimmy Carter, President Ford asserted there was "no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe." (Ford later conceded he'd mis-spoken.)

In 1979, Pope John Paul II, on a weeklong U.S. tour, became the first pontiff to visit the White House, where he was received by President Carter.

In 1981, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was shot to death by extremists while reviewing a military parade.

In 1989, actress Bette Davis died in Neuilly-sur-Seine, France, at age 81.

Ten years ago: A crippled Soviet nuclear submarine sank in the Atlantic Ocean about 1,200 miles east of New York, three days after a fire and explosion that the Soviets said had killed three crew members.

Five years ago: Reports surfaced that a former personal assistant to Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas, University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill, had accused Thomas of sexually harassing her. Cable News Network obtained and aired a videotape made in Beirut, Lebanon, of American hostage Terry Anderson, who quoted his captors as saying they would have "very good news."

One year ago: Boeing Co.'s largest group of union workers went on a 69-day strike after voting down a new three-year contract offer. President Clinton delivered an address in which he defended his stewardship of U.S. foreign policy and spoke out against what he said was a spreading mood of isolationism.

Today's Birthdays: Author-journalist Shana Alexander is 71. The president of Syria, Hafez Assad, is 66. Actress Britt Ekland is 54. Impressionist Fred Travalena is 54. Singer Millie Small is 50.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

FOUR FUTURE TRENDS

If you follow small business issues, you know that businesses in most industries are rethinking how they operate. Small-business owners are facing hypercompetition, exploding technology and customers with little allegiance. Success in the future will depend on how well they anticipate trends and make changes to capitalize on them.

Trends bring change, change causes discomfort and discomfort makes them want to resist change. It is a vicious little circle, and I often hear small-business owners complain about changes their competitors are forcing them to make.

Trends affect Fortune 500 companies, too. They also can find themselves losing market share and incurring operating losses just because they didn't react to the changing marketplace. Some recover, some merge and others liquidate assets for pennies on the dollar.

Ultimately, consumers drive the process. Consumers choose value from the offerings, decide who prospers and who fails and directly or indirectly influence the trends.

Trends to watch

Trend No. 1 - Businesses are moving from slow and status quo to fast and flexible. Fast and flexible means anticipating your customer's needs and positioning your business to give them what they want; when, where, and how they want it.

Today's de-regulated banks are good examples of companies who were quick to jump on the fast and flexible band wagon. You will find branches in malls and discount stores, and ATMs are everywhere. Boatmen's First National Bank in Amarillo, TX even has a mobile branch in a beautifully restored double-decker bus. This bright red bus moves from location to location for the convenience of their customers.

Trend No. 2 - Successful businesses are moving from mass marketing to micro marketing. It may help to think of this concept in two ways. First, the micro marketer focuses on individual customers instead of "everybody". Second, micro-marketing also describes the process of creating a niche within a niche.

The first concept might find a rental store focusing on small contractors rather than homeowners. Or, a women's wear shop zeroing in on plus-sized customers. Micro marketing narrows the number of customers you are targeting so you can serve them more effectively.

The second concept is the niche-within-a-niche idea. You might find a hardware retailer who sells outdoor power equipment-a-niche-moving into rental of the same-a niche within a niche. Manufacturers like Nike and Reebok use this concept to convince us we need walking shoes for walking, running shoes for running and tennis shoes for tennis.

Trend No. 3 - Customers moving from "WOW" to worth. There was a time when customers would buy almost anything with WOW. Sneakers with blinking lights, leather purses with little duck logos and cars with stripes, splashes and flames.

More customers today are evaluating the worth or value of the WOW. Are sneakers with lights worth $20 more than the standard shoe? Is a little duck logo worth $75? Undoubtedly there will always be market for WOW. However, if you add practical worth to your WOW, you'll find more customers to satisfy completely.

Trend No. 4 - A shift from people power to technology. Computers and sophisticated software programs are making it possible to eliminate jobs. United States companies now use more than 50,000 high-tech robots to do work that people previously performed.

The robots work all three shifts without overtime, show up every day and never go on strike. Other examples of this trend include: ATMs, pay-at-the-pump gas stations, computers that allow you to place your own fast food order and T.V. check out at hotels.

There is only one way to survive a changing business environment: Change. Look for trends and use your knowledge to make your offerings more pleasing to more customers.

High school sweethearts tie the knot after 60 years apart

By JANE McBRIDE
Beaumont Enterprise

LABELLE, Texas - K.B. Brown and Ellen DuPlantis always figured they belonged together. They just didn't know it would take 60 years to get there.

There was something about K.B. that Ellen just couldn't put out of her mind. In 1935, The 15-year old high school student thought her 16-year-old classmate was the nicest young man she'd ever known.

They had gone to school together since she was in the fourth grade and he the fifth, but Ellen and K.B. hadn't thought much beyond their friendship until their junior and senior year, when, as Ellen puts it, they "fell madly in love."

K.B. lived near the school at Fannett, but Ellen lived in the country. They saw each other mostly at school, or when K.B. would saddle up his horse and make the 10-mile ride to her parents' home.

When K.B. graduated from high school, he moved to Beaumont and eventually, he and Ellen drifted apart. In December 1940, Ellen married Harry "Hill" Hargraves. In 1941, K.B. married Vernon Carol Thomas. Each had long and successful marriages.

Ellen and Hill had two sons, Harry Jr. and John. Ellen and Hill built a home just two miles from where she grew up. Harry was a rice farmer who took good care of his family until 1962, when he died of a heart attack. Ellen never remarried, remaining a widow for 34 years.

K.B. and Vernon Carol had one son, K.B. Jr. They were married for 52-1/2 years, until her death in March 1994.

During all those years, K.B.'s and Ellen's paths never crossed. In 1989, the two saw each other briefly at a 50th high school reunion, where they spent a few minutes catching up. K.B. still was married, but admits as Ellen left the reunion, he stood outside and watched her drive away.

Caring for each other came easy, the reunited couple says. Both then, and now.

"Falling in love was such a natural thing at the time. We glided into it without much thought. We just got closer and closer. K.B. was the nicest person I had ever seen. He was kind and thoughtful and sweet," Ellen says, "and he hasn't changed."

"She was nice looking and real slim and I thought a lot of her," K.B. says. "All those years, I never did forget her. I often wondered about her. I was worried about her living out there all by herself. There used to not be any houses out where she lives."

A year and a half after his wife died, K.B. found himself thinking more and more about the young woman who had stolen his heart all those years ago. He decided it was time to see if there was a chance she hadn't forgotten him, as well.

"My oldest sister had told me about Ellen's husband dying and I had sent her a sympathy card (in 1962), but I didn't have any more contact with her until I started trying to find her. I couldn't find her name in the phone book. I called her nephew and he gave me her phone number. I kept trying to get in touch with her and never could," K.B. says.

Ellen wasn't answering the phone because she had been in Las Vegas visiting her son. She had just returned home and started unpacking when the phone rang again.

"He said, 'This is K.B.' and I could have dropped my eye teeth. At the moment, I remember thinking, why is he doing this? Why didn't he leave me alone? I'm doing perfectly well here. But I wasn't really."

After Hill's death in 1962, Ellen had struggled to raise their two sons alone. It would have been much more difficult if not for the support of her family, she says.

"The boys were 10 and 13 when their father died. I put them through school and through college. It was very hard. Hill was a rice farmer and for a number of years after he died, my brother took over the farm and helped until he got so his health wouldn't permit it any more. After that, I got somebody else to do my farming but that didn't work."

K.B. and Ellen didn't see each other right away. He often called her from his home in Channelview and they wrote letters. K.B. and Ellen laugh as they tell about his first visit to her home.

"I came down to see her and got lost. I came in the back way and went right on by the house," K.B. says. "I pulled in her driveway and she had just gotten in and was still in the garage. She said later that she didn't know whether to close the garage door or leave it open."

"He looked at me and said, 'Can you tell me where Ellen Hargraves lives?' Ellen says with a giggle. "I said no. He started to get back in the car and I said, 'K.B., for goodness sakes, come on in this house.'"

"I still wasn't sure seeing him again was the right thing until he walked in the door," Ellen continues. "It was just like we'd never been apart. That old feeling came right back."

On July 23, K.B. and Ellen said the wedding vows they'd come close to saying half a century before. This time, Ellen took the initiative.

"She asked me to marry her," K.B. says. "She said, 'Would you wear a ring if I put it on your finger?' and I said, 'Yeah, I sure will.' I had never wore a ring. When I first got married, men didn't wear rings."

"And he wears it," Ellen says, glancing at his left hand.

Ellen says both their families have been supportive of their renewed relationship and marriage.

"The kids are all just tickled pink. My 4-year-old grandchild is wild about him. She doesn't care if I'm here. She asks, 'Where's Grandpa?'"

"You know," Ellen continues, "I feel like it was meant to be. I don't know why else I'd have gone 34 years all by myself if it wasn't."

Being alone all those years had brought an independence that Ellen's children feared she couldn't abandon.

"That's the one thing my oldest son said to me. 'Mama, remember, you've been by yourself for 34 years.' But it's not as hard as I thought it would be, because this is one of the easiest persons I've ever seen to get along with."

Their love and affection is obvious. They glance at each other often and exchange smiles. Ellen reaches across and touches his arm, or pats his leg as they sit together.

"We think alike. A lot of time I'm sitting here thinking about something and he'll say it, or vice versa. It's uncanny. We like to just sit and talk. We have talked, talked, talked, about all our friends that we knew in school. I've got a closet full of old pictures in there and we have a ball going through them," Ellen says.

"I think we're doing mighty good," K.B. says. "We enjoy each other."

Time might have changed their outward appearances, Ellen says, but not the way they see each other.

"I still see him as the boy I loved in school."

'To be or not to be' atmosphere in Prada's collection for spring

By DANIELA PETROFF
AP Fashion Writer

MILAN, Italy (AP) - A year ago, Miuccia Prada announced she was designing ugly clothes on purpose. Was then the very pretty Spring-Summer 1997 collection presented here Tuesday just a fortunate error?

No. According to Prada, it is a well-studied move in her intellectual fashion game where "the woman reveals and then hides herself in a subtle Freudian fantasy."

There is definitely a "to be or not to be" atmosphere in the collection with its myriad of Ophelia outfits in ethereal sheer fabrics. But there is very little of the romanticism of Hamlet's mad maiden in the models.

The new Prada look is based on a shirt, a skirt and a gown, with a few pairs of pants thrown in for modern measure. Fabrics are mainly see-through, with emphasized seaming and delicate embroidery. Revealed lingerie is prudishly thick. Footwear is raised from the ground with platforms, wedges and extra-high heels.

The chiffon "nightie" gowns with short delicately ruffled hemline and puffed sleeve, would be perfect for Shakespeare's non-heroine. But the champagne-colored chiffon evening gowns, embroidered in velvet, with just a hint of a train, will turn the disenchanted debutante into a radiant Renaissance princess.

Once the favorite designer at fashion parlors, with her all-black collections, Miuccia Prada is coming out of the darkness.

Last season she dabbled with purple and olive green. Her latest collection has bold strokes of red, pink and bright blue.

Later Tuesday, Gianni Versace, with his second line Istante, also played with the "nightie" look.

Except for a ruffle here and there, the Versace version is raunchy rather than romantic.

Body clinging silk knit accentuates the breast, nips the waist and clutches the hips. Here the prototype is curvaceous Naomi Campbell, although bony Stella also showed what the dress may look like on a hanger.

In the gimmick department, Versace paired his high-heeled sandals with black ankle socks. He says he drew inspiration for the collection from the British Isles - from Savile Row to Oasis to Diana.

No longer wed to royal protocol, Versace hopes Diana can now vent her fashion fantasies. Earlier Tuesday, the first top-billed day of the weeklong Spring-Summer 1997 Italian ready-to-wear collections, which got off to a slow start over the weekend, Ferragamo and Byblos presented their warm weather silhouettes.

Both designers also drew inspiration from the bedroom.

Ferragamo favored sophisticated slip dresses in rich silk with tiny ruffles and subtle string straps.

There is a lot of silk knit in the Ferragamo collection, as well as many varieties of the shirt, which after many a season of tank tops and T-shirts seems to be making a comeback this season.

Famous for his shoes long before the Florentine family turned to clothes, Ferragamo goes with the current return to the platform, and high-heeled sandal.

At the opposite end of the pole from Prada's cerebral fashion, Byblos celebrates flesh-and-blood beauty.

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) - James Belushi stepped into his late brother's shoes to raise money for young people.

Belushi and Dan Aykroyd performed "Blues Brothers" numbers at Tuesday night's John Belushi Memorial Cigar Night at the House of Blues.

Proceeds from the event go to the John Belushi Memorial fund, which helps send Chicago youths to Illinois' DuPage College, the late comic's alma mater.

"We want to find, not the smartest person in the class, or the class favorite, but the person whose life will be changed by pursuing a career in the arts," Belushi said.

John Belushi and Aykroyd donned dark sunglasses and suits and performed in the 1980 movie "The Blues Brothers."

James Belushi prepared for his performance with a good stogie.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Does a woman really need bone-density tests? Aren't they expensive? Do we need yet another test to add to all the others? — Mrs. L.L.

ANSWER: You put your finger on a point of controversy in modern medicine. To test or not to test? And what test? For whom? And when?

Bone-density tests tell how solid and fortified bones are or how close they are to osteoporosis, a problem menopausal woman can avert with hormone therapy.

If a test figures significantly in a decision to prevent a health problem, it is justified. Bone-density testing can show early warning signs of approaching bone distress.

Estrogen therapy also has non-bone-related pluses for the woman. It can prevent or relieve other known menopausal effects, including heart disease and hot flashes. Such benefits, some argue, justify estrogen use without need for bone testing.

On the other hand, the testing might help a reluctant patient accept the need for hormone treatment.

The subject, you see, has many handles.

Tests vary. Some have fancy names, such as "dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry," "DEXA," for short. Photon absorptiometry is another type. A CAT scan reveals much about bone health.

Tests vary so much in sophistication and difficulty that I have to speak of ballpark cost figures — from $35 up to several hundred dollars.

An initial test demands another a year later to see what change intervening hormone therapy has wrought.

It would be a good idea to find out how much of the test costs your insurance policy covers.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My grandchild is 3, and the parents are told she has dermatomyositis. I would like to know what brought this sickness on and how we can help her get better. — D.H.

ANSWER: "Dermatomyositis" translates to "inflammation of skin and muscle."

The illness can come in either sex, at any age, although rarely before age 2.

The cause remains a mystery. Somehow, the body's immune system has gone on one of its misguided sorties.

Muscle weakness makes stair climbing difficult and hair brushing, for example, a chore. You might notice a violet discoloration of the upper eyelids.

Dermatomyositis is a major-league illness. However, long-term treatment prospects for it are good. Treatment is with cortisone drugs, which might be used for up to two years.

We all hope your granddaughter will be well soon.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible.

The House of the Week

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

Arched windows lend a luxurious look to the exterior of Plan G-17, by HomeStyles Designers Network. This charming one-story home has curbside appeal due to a traditional hip roof and shuttered windows.

Soaring 12-foot ceilings grace both the wide entry area and the central living room, which has a large fireplace and access to a covered porch and the patio beyond.

Double doors separate the formal dining room from the corridor-style kitchen. Features of the kitchen include a pantry and an angled eating bar. The sunny, bayed eating area is ideal for casual family meals.

The plush master suite has is replete with amenities: a walk-in closet, a skylighted, angled whirlpool tub, a separate shower and private access to the laundry/utility room and the patio.

Three good-sized bedrooms and another full bath are just across the home.

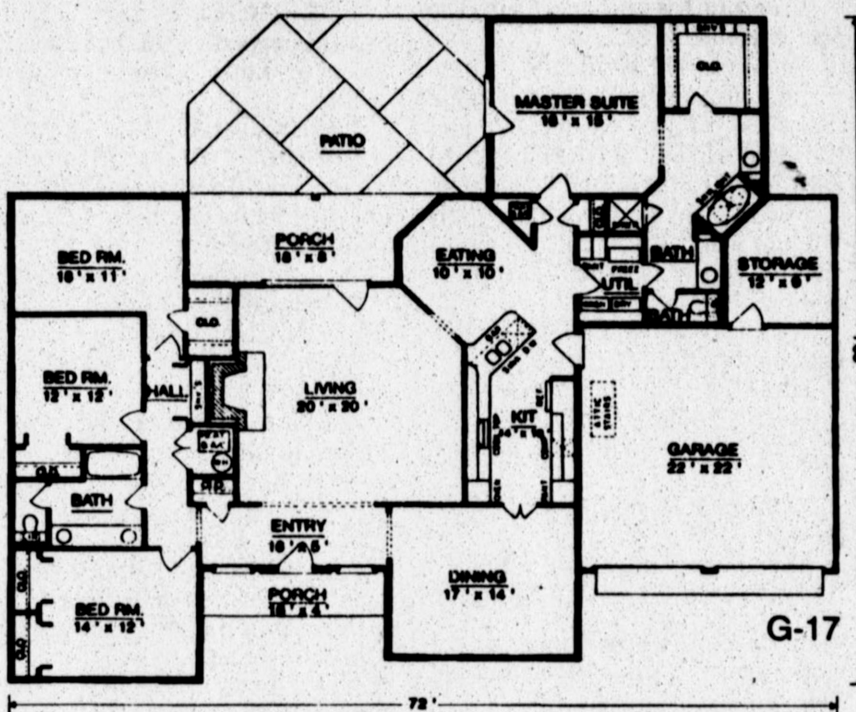

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

G-17 STATISTICS

Design G-17 has a wide entry, dining room, living room, kitchen, casual eating room, four bedrooms, two full baths and a utility room, totaling 2,396 square feet of living space. The plan is available with 2x6 exterior wall framing and a standard basement, crawl-space or slab foundation. A two-car garage provides 484 square feet of space.

ARCHED WINDOWS, shuttered windows and keystones combine with a traditional hip roof to create a stunning facade.

A COVERED PORCH leads to the sidelighted entry and the formal dining room is to the right. To the left are three secondary bedrooms and a full bath. Ahead, the living room provides passage to a covered back porch and a patio beyond it. Just off the living room, an angled eating area flows into the walk-through kitchen. The isolated master suite has patio access and a private bath. A door from the master bath leads to the utility room. A couple of steps from the utility room a door opens to the two-car garage.

Students challenged to 'humanize' prison cells

NEW YORK (AP) - Talk about making the most of small spaces. Interior design students at the Fashion Institute of Technology were told to make a jail cozier.

The students, accustomed to field trips to upmarket brownstones or hip Greenwich Village restaurants, were initially nonplussed by their assignment to design new interiors for the District of Columbia Correctional Treatment Center in Washington, D.C., says their professor, Jack Lowery. They were asked to make prison more like, well, home.

"They had to deal with their own biases regarding prison inmates, in addition to having to contend with the limitations of working with small, enclosed spaces," says Lowery, who teaches institutional design.

"We chose this particular prison because of its unique approach to incarceration," says Susan Forbes, assistant professor. "The D.C. facility's focus on rehabilitation has resulted in a 15 percent recidivism rate; the national average of inmates returning to prison is 85 percent."

The students' challenge included "humanizing" prison space while considering the need for tight security and observation. One approach they used was to reconfigure day rooms to allow more group interaction. Cells were personalized with photo panels, shelves and exposed drawer storage. They used warmer palettes and furniture which could be arranged in clusters to enable prisoners to talk and socialize more easily.

Students were required to research penal policy through history and to analyze cost effectiveness, electronic security and privatization. Architects David Siskind and Paul Silver, experienced in prison project design, and Anthony Figueroa, deputy commissioner at New York City's Department of Corrections, added to their knowledge through guest lectures.

"When I was first introduced to this project, I was somewhat appalled, and it became a moral issue," says one student, Carlene Baudanza. But as her research progressed, her resistance softened to the point where she now thinks institutional design will be her career choice.

The students learned that design could enhance the rehabilitative aspects of a correctional institution, says Lowery.

"One of the most dramatic events occurred when the students were required to use tape to mark off the dimensions of a typical cell," he says.

Keeping an eye on Texas

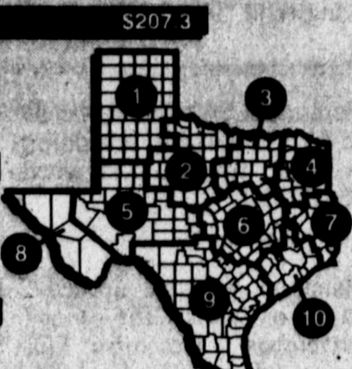

Farm payments cut

Federal assistance to Texas farmers dropped to $443 million in 1995 and will continue to fall in the next seven years. An overhaul in federal farm law allows farmers more freedom in what and how much they plant, while phasing out government price supports.

Awards to be given to young wheat farmers

Young Texas wheat farmers are eligible to compete for leadership development awards. The program of the Texas Wheat Producers Association and National Association of Wheat Growers is sponsored by Monsanto Agricultural Products Company and the Production Credit Associations of Texas. These awards are designed to acquaint young wheat farmers with the wheat association's organizational structure, leadership development, policy development and education aspects of attending wheat organizational meetings, according to Ben Scholz, President of the Texas Wheat Producers Association.

The awards which total more than $1000 each are to defray the cost for the winners to participate in their choice of either the National Association of the 1997 Wheat Growers Annual Convention, to be held Jan. 15-18 in Orlando, Fla. or the 1997 NAWWG Summer Leadership Conference, to be held June 29-July 3 in Portland, Ore.

Any Texas wheat farmer between the age of 20 and 35 years, who has not previously participated in either of the NAWWG meetings is eligible to enter. The winners are selected based upon completion of a short questionnaire relative to their perception of the current greatest need of wheat farmers, how they are or would be utilizing their leadership abilities, along with a brief 50-word essay, explaining why they would like to receive the educational grant. Entry forms may be obtained by either writing or calling Dawn DeBerry of the TWPA, 2201 Civic Circle, #803, Amarillo, TX 79109 or by calling (806) 352-2191. The deadline for submitting the completed form is Nov. 29.

Agriculture Briefs

AUSTIN -- All of Texas' major commodity stocks of corn, oats, wheat and sorghum are down from last year.

According to figures released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, there were 1.5 million bushels of oats in all storage positions on Sept. 1, compared with 5.4 million bushels a year ago. Off-farm stocks, at 494,000 bushels, accounted for one-third of the total.

Total stocks of wheat in all storage positions decreased 14 percent from last year, to 62.7 million bushels. Farm stocks totaled 3.5 million bushels, up 13 percent from 1995, while off-farm stocks, at 59.2 million bushels, were down 15 percent from Sept. 1, 1995.

Total old crop corn stocks on Sept. 1 were down 51 percent, to 4.6 million bushels. Farm stocks, at 800,000 bushels, was only about one-fourth of last year's farm stocks of 2.9 million bushels.

Tierra Blanca SWCD sets election

An election of a soil and water conservation district director to serve in Zone four on the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors is scheduled for 8 a.m. on Oct. 8 at the Country Kitchen in Westway, Chairman Bill Walden announced.

State law decrees that to be eligible to vote in a soil and water conservation district director election, a person must own agricultural land within the district where the election is being held. The person must also live in a county all or any part of which is in the district and the voter must be 18 years old.

Legal qualifications state that a candidate for the office of a soil and water conservation district director must own land in the zone he represents, be 18 years of age and be actively engaged in farming and ranching. He must also live in a county all or part of which is in the district. Soil and water conservation district directors serve four year terms of office.

Zone four consists of that portion of Deaf Smith County lying within the following boundaries beginning at the NE corner of Section 25, Blk K-3; thence west to NW corner of Section 8, TWP 3N, Range 3E; thence south to the Farmer County line; thence east along the Farmer and Castro County line to a point south of the SE corner of Section 63, Blk M-7 on the Castro County line; thence north to the point of origin.

Current members of the board of directors of the Tierra Blanca SWCD are Walden, chairman; Jerry Homfeld, vice chairman; Carl Kleuskens, secretary; and members Nick Yosten and David Wagner.

The purpose of the Tierra Blanca SWCD is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on agricultural lands within the district and to serve as a voice for farmers, ranchers and local community entities on conservation matters.

The district board of directors coordinates the conservation efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations and has authority to enter into working agreements with these governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

All conservation programs managed by the district are of a voluntary nature to the landowner, operator or other potential users of the SWCD's programs.

USDA study to assemble information about agriculture management issues

How are the changes in farm programs affecting agricultural productivity? What changes will consumers face? What land conservation practices are agricultural producer using?

To gather reliable, objective information about U.S. agriculture, Texas Agricultural Statistics Service (TASS), part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), will conduct the Agricultural Resource Management Study.

Information on chemical applications, production practices, pest management and selected production costs are some of the topics to be measured in a variety of reports during October, November and December 1996. Fewer than 18,000 of the nation's two million farm operators will be asked to participate in the study, so every response is critical. Some 1,081 producers in Texas will be included.

"None of us like paperwork...but for a few hours spent, the rewards could be long term," said Del Wiedeman, a WaKeeney, Kan. wheat farmer and former president of the National Association of Wheat Growers. "If we're not willing to help ourselves in our industry, who will?"

The agricultural producers selected to participate in the Agricultural Resource Management Study will be making an important contribution to the overall welfare of the U.S. agricultural community. Information will be merged and used by commodity analysts, producer organizations and others to benefit farmers and ranchers nationwide.

Study participants have an opportunity to set the record straight about issues that affect them -- such as use of chemicals and pesticides.

Respondents are helping in the research for improved production, marketing and profitability of U.S.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the word, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Candy maker says M&Ms now made in 18 new colors

By RACHEL BECK
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Blue M&Ms were just the beginning. Get ready for gold, silver, teal and purple.

M&M-Mars is expanding its 56-year-old candy line to include 18 new colors that cross the spectrum.

The old standards - red, green, yellow, brown, orange and the relatively new blue - now will compete with the likes of white and black, pink and maroon, aqua and light yellow.

"Color has been so integral in M&M's life span and consumers love color," said Marlene Machut, a spokeswoman for the Hackettstown, N.J.-based candy maker. "We felt this was the right time to come out with this."

The new colors, however, will be sold only in specialty stores in 26 markets from Denver to the East Coast. The M&M's, which come in the plain chocolate variety, will not be sold in individual packages, but rather by weight.

FAO Schwarz in Chicago, owned by toy store FAO Schwarz, already carries the new colors and other stores should have them in stock over the next two weeks, Machut said.

Supermarkets will not carry the new colors, for now.

"This is a test in terms of this creative batch of colors," said Machut, adding that the reaction will determine which colors may later be included in regular M&M packages.

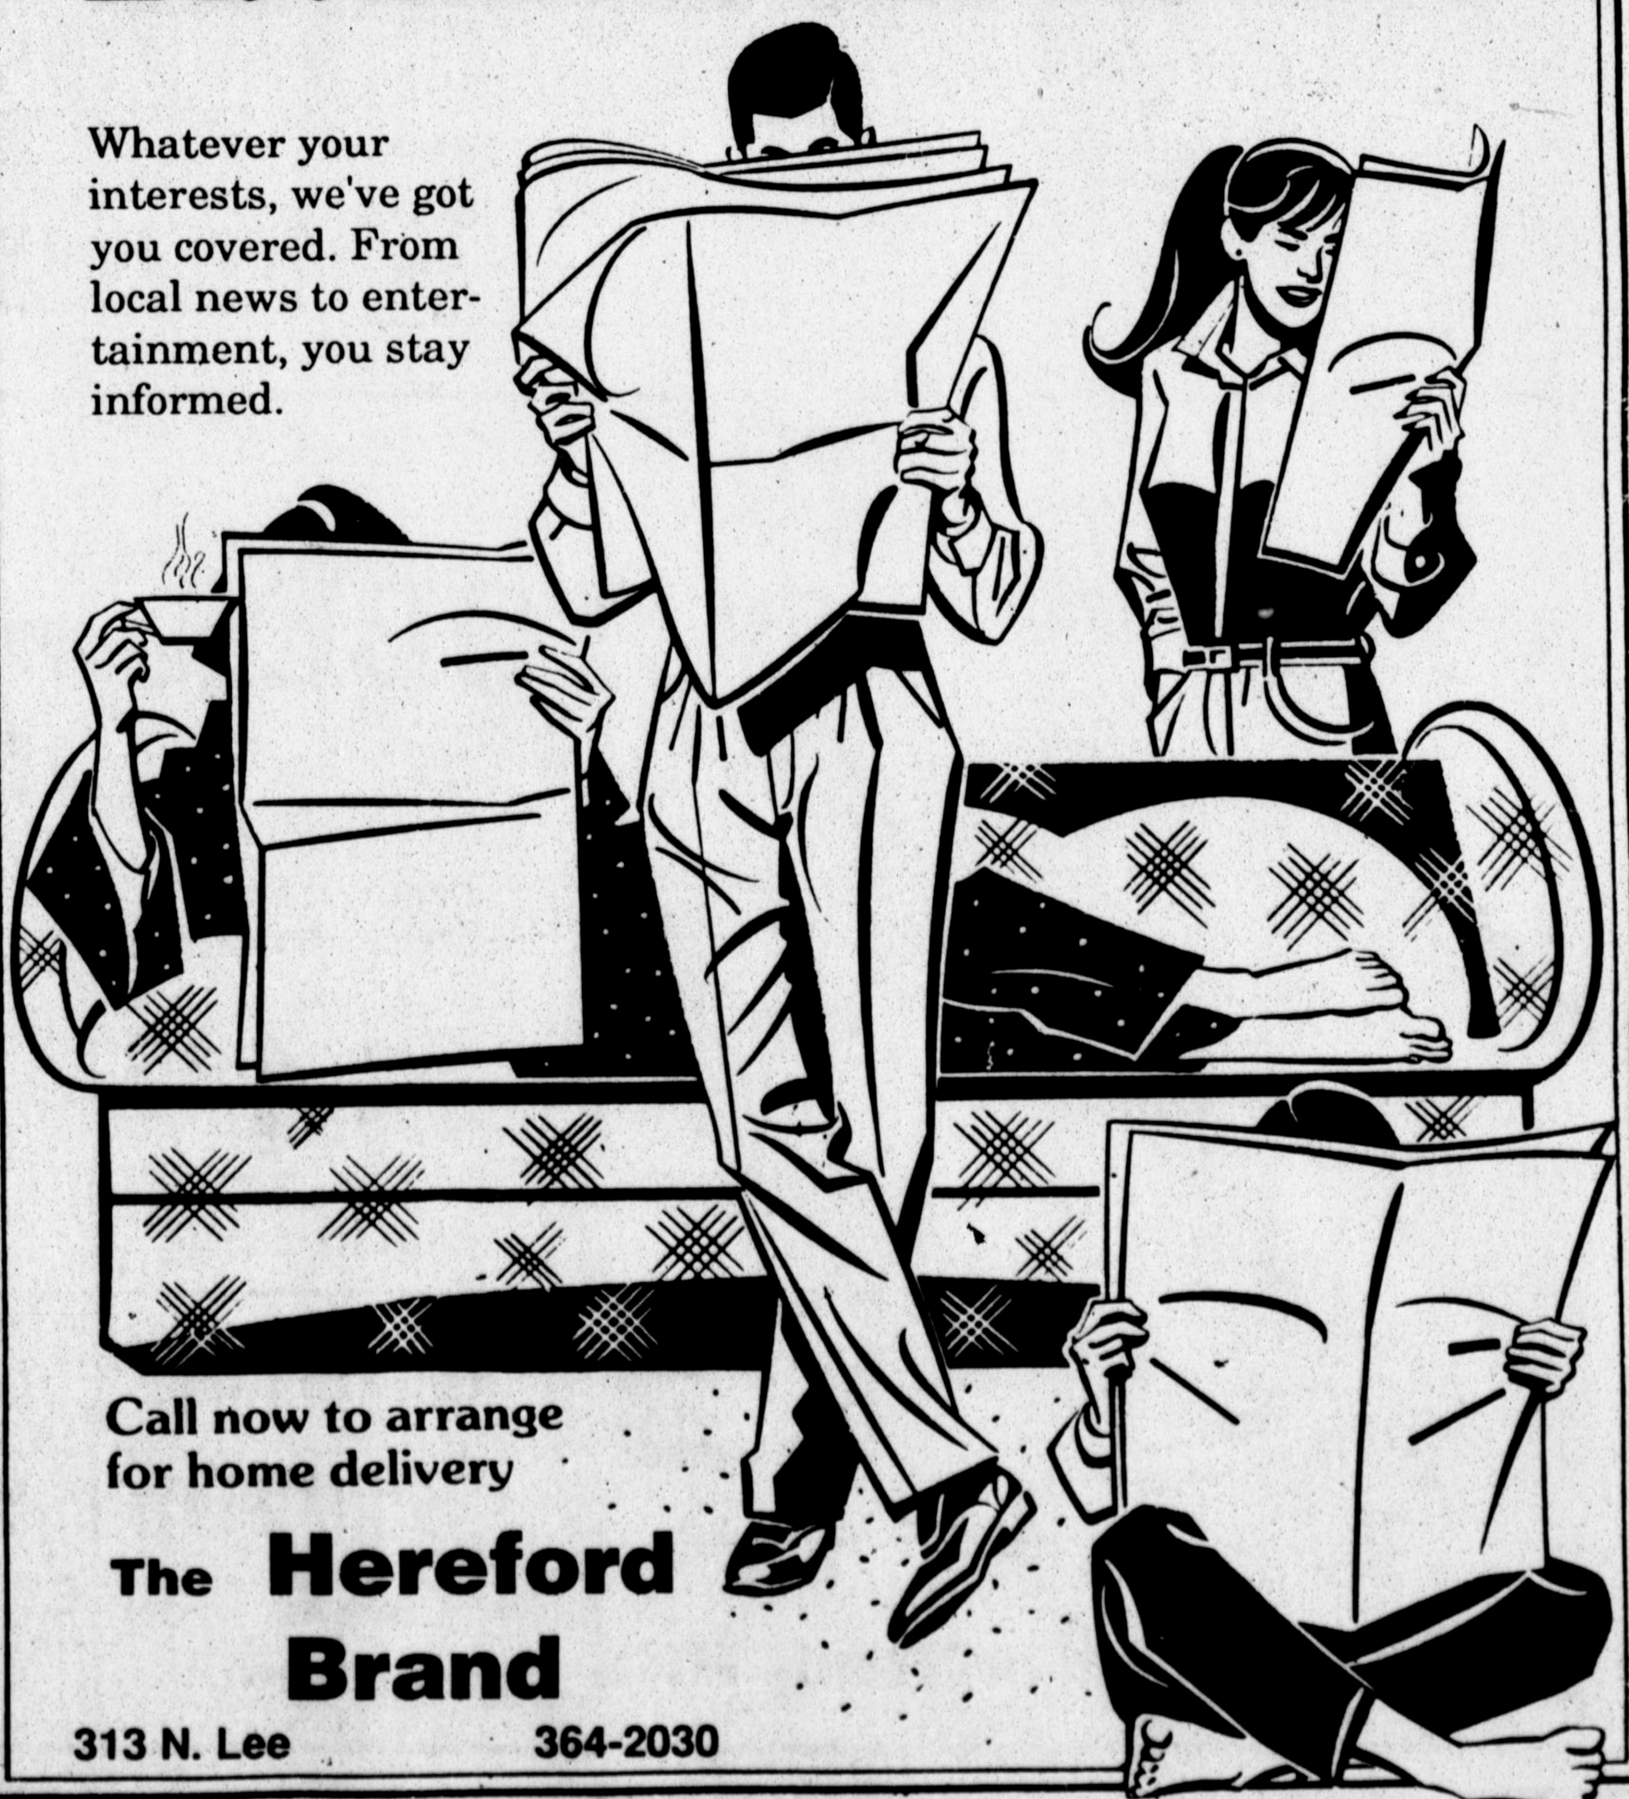

The traditional M&M mix remained unchanged from 1949 until the blue debut 1-1/2 years ago, except for a decade-long leave-of-absence by red, removed in 1976 because of what the company called misplaced concern over the food dye. Red returned in 1987.

The outer ear, the folds of skin and cartilage that can be seen, is known as the pinna.

Trial by viewer: Murder One calls LaPaglia

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

It was a case of "Who ya gonna call?" when ABC gave executive producer Steven Bochco a second season for Murder One. Critics raved about the courtroom drama when it debuted last fall, but the public didn't respond. Viewers can give it a retrial starting Thursday, October 10.

"When you have a widely acclaimed series that's doing a 14 share," Bochco says, referring to the show's low ratings, "if you're lucky enough to come back, you have a mandate, I think, to try and make some changes in what you're doing so that you can appeal to a broader audience."

One way to pump some excitement into a show is to add some star power. So Daniel Benzali, who played defense attorney Theodore Hoffman and was reportedly difficult to work with, was dismissed.

Bochco considered Alan Alda, Danny Glover and "all kinds of people" before hiring stage and film actor Anthony LaPaglia (One Good Cop) to be the new centerpiece of the show.

"He's single," Bochco begins, "a much less formal guy" than Ted Hoffman, who never took off his suit coat.

"I think more of a blue-collar sensibility... a little more spontaneous, a little more volatile... and less cautious. I think there's a spontaneity to this character that we're going to have an awful lot of fun with."

And his fees were undoubtedly less than what Glover or Alda could command.

Other casting changes include departures of Patricia Clarkson, who played Hoffman's wife; Dylan Baker; Grace Phillips, who was released to take a film role before the series was renewed; and Vanessa Williams, who played the firm's receptionist. John Fleck will return as Louis Heinsbergen only for the first few episodes. Jason Gedrick, no longer playing the principal defendant, has gone on to CBS' EZ Streets.

The changes in the show's format are no less drastic than those in the cast. Conceived as a serial that would focus on a single major trial for the entire season, Murder One earned viewer respect to the point of intimidation. There was a sense to that, once an episode was missed, there was no catching up. The series earned a People's Choice award for quality, but it was rarely the people's choice for viewing.

"Fun as it was to do one story line for 22 hours last year, I think we discovered people don't watch television that way," admits Bochco. "A lot of things we thought would work in theory didn't work that well in practice," he adds.

In its second season, Murder One will undertake three story arcs with the trial of a woman accused of double murder of the governor of California and his mistress. "That will give us an opportunity to tell these stories in depth and really get inside a case more than most shows," Bochco says.

Still, the series must be able to begin with: When the final three episodes of the first season aired over two nights last spring, "We were inundated with mail," Bochco says. "I've never received as much mail on any show, ever, as I did on those last three hours."

Murder One "remains at its core a legal mystery drama," Bochco says. "To that extent you always want to have an environment that is filled with what-ifs and double agendas and stuff like that."

Inevitably you may lose a few folks for one reason or another. But I think we're going to gain far, far, far more viewers than we might possibly lose."

So much for the deposition phase. Now the case of Murder One moves to America's living rooms, where viewers will render the only verdict that matters.

Anthony LaPaglia replaces Daniel Benzali as the star of the retooled Murder One, premiering Thursday at 8:00 pm on ABC. The series will expand to encompass three story lines this season.

HOROSCOPES

October 6-12

ARIES -- March 21/April 20

A creative hobby will add spice to an otherwise dull week. Don't be afraid to take your artistic abilities to a new level. A love relationship may need some nurturing this week. Do something special for the object of your affections. A little effort will go a very long way. Think positive.

TAURUS -- April 21/May 21

Avoid taking on too many work projects at once. Remember, it's quality -- not quantity -- that counts. A difference of opinion with a loved one could escalate into a major battle if you're not careful. Keep hold of your temper or you could say something hurtful that you'll regret.

GEMINI -- May 22/June 21

An unexpected problem at work could put a damper on your social life this week. You may have to put in extra hours in order to finish the job at hand. Don't be afraid to call on the help of others in order to make things right. Don't confide in those you don't completely trust.

CANCER -- June 22/July 22

Get an early start if traveling this week. Packing at the last minute could cause you to forget something important. Keep calm if there's a problem at work. A firm, professional approach will lead you to success. On Thursday, don't be afraid to put new ideas to the test.

LEO -- July 23/August 23

Look for a better way to manage your work schedule and you'll have more time for doing the things you want to do. Try not to pass judgment on a friend who's made a mistake recently. Use some empathy before forming any opinions. Virgo yearns for your attention.

VIRGO -- Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't be too quick to look for a scapegoat when a work problem arises. Instead of focusing on who's responsible, focus on the cure. If you're unhappy with a situation at home, it's best to say something before it gets any worse. You'll learn something new on Thursday.

LIBRA -- Sept 23/Oct 23

Instead of dwelling on the negative, figure out how you can make things better. Remember, you can change what you don't like. If you have control, use it. Show enthusiasm at work this week. Higher ups will take note and there could be an offer for advancement. Don't be afraid to seize the opportunity.

SCORPIO -- Oct 24/Nov 22

You may be prevented from carrying out a plan. Think creatively and you may be able to accomplish your mission in a very unique -- and more efficient -- way. A Leo has a special surprise for you on Tuesday. Be sure to show your appreciation. An Aquarius will teach you something new.

SAGITTARIUS -- Nov 23/Dec 21

Before you pat yourself on the back for a job well done, you might want to look over your work to see if you forgot something important. A problem that was plaguing you for the last few weeks seems to go away as quickly as it came. Romantic bliss is an unrealistic goal this week.

CAPRICORN -- Dec 22/Jan 20

Keep plans simple this week, especially if you have big changes ahead. Try to take it easy. Tackle household chores and catch up on correspondence. Romance comes easily if you're involved with Taurus. A tight hold on spending should be your goal this week.

AQUARIUS -- Jan 21/Feb 18

A family member will do something to disappoint you early in the week. Try not to let it get you down, though. There may be more to it than you realize. Take a supportive -- rather than a defensive -- approach. A surge of energy helps you plow through work projects.

PISCES -- Feb 19/March 20

A task you thought would take up a lot of your time and energy turns out to be a snap. You'll be relieved and have the luxury of some extra free time. Take advantage of it and do something totally frivolous. A Virgo family member will have some important news. Pay attention to diet.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: I would like to know whether Tim Curry, who had a short role in the TV series Wiseguy, also played Darkness in the movie Legend. I'm pretty sure they are different actors. --F.T., Hilo, Hawaii.

A: The versatile Curry, who played Winston Newquay on Wiseguy in 1989, did indeed also play the supernatural villain in the Tom Cruise fantasy you mentioned.

He's probably still best known for his transvestite mad scientist role in The Rocky Horror Picture Show.

Q: Who is the person featured in the Infiniti car commercials? --Lillian Krouse, Endicott, N.Y. (and several others).

A: That's two-time Tony Award winner Jonathan Pryce (Miss Saigon), the dazzling Welsh-born actor who won a best actor award last year at the Cannes Film Festival for his performance in Carrington.

He stars as Juan Peron opposite Madonna's Evita in that much-anticipated movie musical, which is scheduled to open in early 1997.

Q: What is the name of the town that the Clampetts of The Beverly Hillbillies came from? What state was it supposed to be in? No one at work can seem to recall either. --Anne Steele, Independence, Mo.

A: The Clampetts were a backwoods clan and did not live in a town, although they were known to travel into the bustling burg of Bug Tussle for an occasional evening's entertainment.

According to Alex McNeil's Total Television, the state was left unspecified. It was simply "somewhere in Appalachia."

Q: When I was a kid, I remember looking forward to a show called Mr. Terrific, but I can remember very little of it. Is it in reruns anywhere? --C.M., La Porte, Ind.

A: Mr. Terrific, which ran half a season on CBS in 1967, starred Stephen Strimpell as mild-mannered gas station operator Stanley Beamish, who was transformed into caped crimefighter Mr. Terrific via top-secret power pills given to him by a government agency run by Barton J. Reed (John McGiver). Dick Gautier played Stanley's best friend.

During this show's brief run, NBC had an almost identical series on the air -- Captain Nice, starring William Daniels and Ann Prentiss (Paula's sister), which aired immediately following Mr. Terrific. Strimpell, in fact, unsuccessfully auditioned for the NBC series.

Both shows premiered on Jan. 9 and went off the air on Aug. 28.

Neither is currently airing at the moment, as best I can determine, but either would seem likely fodder for Nick at Nite's TV Land.

Dangerous Female ★★ (1931) Babe Daniels, Ricardo Cortez. Sam Spade finds mystery and danger lurking when he hunts down the priceless Maltese Falcon statue. 2:00. October 8 9am.

Death Wish 4: The Crackdown ★½ (1987) Charles Bronson, Kay Lenz. After a friend's daughter falls victim to the deadly drug, vigilante Paul Kersey declares war on crack dealers. 2:00. October 12 2am.

The Defiant Ones ★★½ (1958) Tony Curtis, Sidney Poitier. Two convicts -- one black, the other white -- must put aside their racial hatred after escaping from a chain gang. 2:00. October 6 2:35am.

Desperate Journey ★★½ (1942) Errol Flynn, Ronald Reagan. Five Allied pilots struggle for survival after crashing behind enemy lines in Nazi-occupied Poland. 2:00. October 12 9:30pm.

The Desperate Trail ★★½ (1994) Sam Elliott, Linda Fiorentino. An escaped murderer and her new romantic interest are pursued by a marshal eager to mete out frontier justice. 2:00. October 7 12am.

Diggstown ★★½ (1992) James Woods, Louis Gossett Jr. An ex-con and a retired prizefighter plot to scam a racketeer who likes to bet on the fights. 2:00. October 8 7pm.

The Disappearance of Nora (1993) Veronica Hamel, Dennis Farina. An amnesiac struggles to piece her life together despite nightmares about a murder she either witnessed or committed. 2:00. October 11 8pm.

Dixiana ★½ (1930) Babe Daniels, Bert Wheeler. A beautiful young performer in a traveling circus becomes a wealthy young man's object of desire. 2:00. October 8 1pm.

Dress Gray ★★★ (1986) Alec Baldwin, Hal Holbrook. Lucien K. Truscott IV's novel inspired this story surrounding the death of a cadet at a prestigious military academy. 4:00. October 8 7pm.

MONDAY

The young aardvark star of the children's books by Marc Brown comes to television in the new animated series Arthur. This weekday series premieres Monday on PBS (check local listings).

HIGHLIGHTS

Nichelle Nichols, DeForest Kelley, William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy (clockwise from top left) starred in the original Star Trek, which celebrates 30 years Sunday on UPN in Star Trek: 30 Years and Beyond.

It's not dead, Jim! Star Trek turns 30

Can the venerated Star Trek really have survived 30 orbits? It seems like only yesterday Bill, Leonard, James, DeForest, Nichelle, Walter and George first beamed into our living rooms with an invitation to follow them you-know-where.

UPN will broadcast a star-studded tribute to everyone's favorite sci-fi show on Sunday, Oct. 6. Star Trek: 30 Years and Beyond is a two-hour homage to the legacy left to the entertainment industry by Gene Roddenberry's brainchild.

The black-tie gala promises special appearances by out-of-this-world guests, as well as stars from the various Star Trek generations.

A dismal ratings failure, the original Star Trek was unceremoniously dumped by NBC in 1969, only to soar in syndication throughout the '70s.

The muses of science fiction entertainment smiled warmly upon loyal Trekkers, for Roddenberry never gave up the fight to bring his space saga to the big screen. In 1979, Star Trek

The Motion Picture was unveiled.

Though in many ways a monumental disappointment (we won't even mention the uniforms), this cinematic dud made way for the breathtaking Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. As audiences thrilled to a buff Ricardo Montalban hissing Capt. Ahab's curses at a not-so-buff William Shatner, a new mythology -- and therefore a franchise -- was born.

Many years and thousands of Web-sites later, Trekkers have every right to revel in this astronomical milestone. The Star Trek legacy has produced a successful string of feature films, three hit television shows (The Next Generation, Deep Space Nine and Voyager) and countless books, games, toys and conventions.

A special night seems in order, and UPN, the network responsible for the series' latest spinoff, seems just the right spot.

So polish up your dilithium crystals, grab a sixer of Romulan Ale and prepare to salute the Federation, the brave men and women of the Enterprise, and yourself, for making it so.

SOAP WORLD

Cobb, Penny leaving All My Children

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

We see it all the time in the soap opera industry. A show hires an actor and makes him a star. Then he turns around and says the industry is unworthy of a talent like his.

Keith Hamilton Cobb (Noah, All My Children) recently told reporters he was tired of doing soaps. He felt as if he needed to flex his acting muscles with more challenging work.

I don't have a problem with an actor wanting to move on to other things, but there is no reason to bite the hand that feeds him. Two years ago no one had ever heard of Cobb.

How many times have we seen a favorite actor give up his day job to pursue a prime-time gig? And how many of those actors succeed? Not very many.

Sydney Penny (Julia) also will be leaving the show. Penny has had a great deal of experience in movies and television. AMC had asked her to keep her departure under wraps, and she complied. Penny is a true professional.

In other news: He's one of the worst villains of all time, and he's back on As the World Turns. James Stenbeck (Anthony Herrera) has made a surprising return to Oakdale.

The last time viewers saw James, he had been shot by his son Paul (John Howard). James is a part of his son's nightmares, and his return is short-term. But who knows what could happen?

Dear Candace: Michael E. Knight

(Tad, AMC) is married to an actress who plays on The City. What is her name and what character does she play? —A fan in Pennsylvania

Dear Reader: Knight's wife is Catherine Hickland, who plays Tess on The City.

Dear Candace: I was wondering whether Rena Sofer (Lois) and Wallace Kurth (Ned) on General Hospital are going to have a baby in real life? If they do, will their baby play the baby on the show? —Karen from Nova Scotia.

Dear Reader: Sofer is pregnant and has left the show to be a full-time mom.

Yardley Smith, the voice of studious second-grader Lisa on Fox's prime-time animated series The Simpsons, was born in Paris, France.

Fred Rogers' middle name is McFeely, hence the name of the Mister Rogers' Neighborhood "speedy delivery" man: Mr. McFeely.

Golf great Sam Snead earned just $620,126 from 1937-79. Greg Norman won $7.9 million during his first 12 years on the pro tour.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
