Reuther Plans Crack Down On Biggest Local

DETROIT, March 15 (AP)—An occupation army of top CIO United Auto Workers officers will move in on seized Ford Local 600 early next week to rid it of the influence of Communists and Red sympathizers.

Heading the housecleaning staff of the huge local will be UAW International President Walter Reuther, who has earned a reputation as one of the nation's most vigorous anti-Communists.

Reuther named himself chairman of a six-man Board of Administration directed early today to take over the local's affairs. The move followed a bitter, all-day hearing yesterday into Reuther's own charges that a relative handful of Communists dominates the local's policies.

Local 600-long considered one of the most left-wing in the million-member union — represents employes in Ford's vast River Rouge plant in Dearborn. Its peak membership has exceeded 65,000, but cutbacks in auto production have reduced that figure to roughly 45,000 now.

The seizure came under a provision in the UAW constitution barring Communists or persons subservient to communism from holding local or international union office.

Reuther did not accuse the local's top officers of being Communists. But he did say they have allowed themselves to become the victims of "manipulations of a small but well - disciplined Communist group which exerts influence far beyond its actual members."

Reuther said the union's International Executive Board ordered the seizure and appointment of an administrative board "to put an end to Communist influence and manipulation."

The House Un-American Activities Committee brought out testimony at a hearing here earlier this week that several minor officers of the local are Communist party members. None of the witnesses, however, labeled President Carl Stellato or other major local officers as such.

Stellato was a political ally of Reuther up until a couple years ago, identified solidly with the union's right wing faction.

Finnegan Waits For Judgment

ST. LOUIS, March 15 (AP)—Likeable, moon-faced James P. Finnegan, once a judge himself, awaits judgment on his conviction of misconduct as collector of internal revenue.

He was declared guilty early today on two counts carrying a maximum penalty of four year in prison and a $20,000 fine.

Federal Judge Rubey M. Hulen will pass sentence March 24. He described the jury's verdict—climaxing a 10-day trial—as "a sensible and intelligent one."

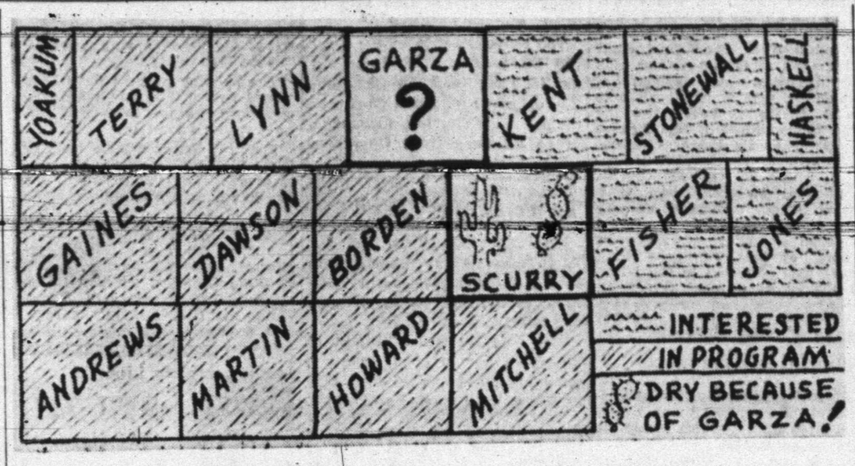

Finnegan, 51, is at liberty on $5,000 bond. His attorneys said today they will file motion for a new trial and failing that, will appeal the case.

Meantime, the federal grand jury which indicted Finnegan will continue its study into his official conduct. It was during the original investigation of his office that Finnegan resigned last spring.

Finnegan is known as a confidant of President Truman and other national Democratic bigwigs. He used to "screen" visitors for the President on his campaign stops in St. Louis.

Friends said that before his trial Finnegan lived and breathed politics. He was ambitious, a political power.

A gregarious, hand-shaking individual, Finnegan started out as a ward worker in 1933. He became city judge that year and served a year. From there he went to prosecuting attorney and then collector of internal revenue.

Garza Holds Key To Scurry's Free Rain From New District

Except for holdout Garza County, the arid area of Scurry County would be completely surrounded by counties which have either joined "rainmaking" districts or are considering doing so.

The unco-operative attitude displayed in Garza leaves some 10 miles of Scurry's northern border exposed (see map), with no hope of rain coming into the county from that direction.

Even now other counties in the West Texas Weather Improvement District, with headquarters in Lamesa, are preparing to work with Dr. I. P. Krick's Water Resources Development Corporation of Denver to make an attempt at "rainmaking" in West Texas.

Eleven counties have already joined the district, which has Krick's firm under contract to work for a year, beginning on or before April 1, to try to break the drouth in those counties.

WEST OF SCURRY

Counties now organized are Borden, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Gaines, Dawson, Andrews, Martin, Midland, Howard, and Mitchell. The contract price to Krick of $60,000 plus $12,000 for the district's office expense was apportioned among the participating counties according to farm and ranch acreage and annual income, with each county's quota to be raised from its own residents.

Quotas range from $5,000 for Borden County, which had an annual income in 1950 of about $832,000 and is mosty range acreage, to $8,500 for Dawson, with annual income of $21 million and which has 400,000 acres in farmland.

Sam Allen, president of the Dawson County Farm Bureau, said that most counties have estimated that only about 50 per cent of their farm and range acreage, striking a range of one to two cents an acre on ranch land and three to five cents for farm land, depending on the ratio of acreages in each county.

SUBSCRIPTION

Allen said operators are not assessed or taxed money on their land, but they are invited to participate by subscribing.

No deadline has been established for additional counties to become affiliated with the district, and Allen said that those wishing to join now may do so at the rate of one cent per acre on total acreage of the county, or only about $5,800 for Garza County. There would be in addition, a mutually agreed sum for district office maintenance, which Allen estimated at about $1,000. The cost to Scurry County would be about the same if forced to participate by Garza's failure to do so.

Five additional counties — Stonewall, Haskell, Kent, Fisher, and Jones — have shown active interest in the program, "and they hope to participate provided the intervening counties, Garza and Scurry, can be interested in closing the gap between them and the district," Allen said.

So far, no organization or group here has made an inquiry to the district about joining in the program. Leon Huff, Jr., Chamber of Commerce manager, said that two farmers with small acreages have called his office and asked why Scurry has not joined the district. Oscar Fowler, county agent, said that most farmers who have discussed the rainmaking with him have said they do not believe Krick method brings rain. (Krick does not claim to be a "rainmaker," but says rainfall has been increased in areas under contract to his firm.)

But whether Scurry farmers believe in it or not, if pressure can be brought on our northern and eastern neighbors to join, we might get a free ride on anything, no matter what the cause, that does bring rain.

Fights Almost Stop Saturday

SEOUL, Korea, Sunday, March 16 (AP)—The Korean ground war almost stopped completely Saturday, but Allied warplanes kept hammering Communist supply lines despite a thick overcast.

The U.S. Eighth Army communique reported there was not a single noteworthy contact with the Reds all along the battlefront.

U.S. Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers flew 375 sorties. These missions, however, were restricted to targets appearing below breaks in the clouds. U.S. Sabre jets flying a protective screen spotted no Communist MIG jets.

The Air Force disclosed in its weekly summary that the MIGs took a 15 to 1 beating in dog fights last week. One Allied Sabre was shot down as against 15 MIGs destroyed in three days of combat.

However, seven other Allied planes were lost in strikes against Communist supply arteries. Four were shot down by increasingly heavy ground fire and three others failed to return to base for undetermined reasons.

Floods And Storm Hit Southern California As Four-Inch Rain Falls

LOS ANGELES, March 15 (AP)—A driving, windswept storm hit Southern California from the north today, flooding homes in some areas, jamming traffic, causing one death and bringing a snow slide in the Sierra Nevadas that smashed part of a tungsten mill and flattened four houses.

The huge slide, near Bishop, dropped without warning from crags north of Pine Creek Canyon. One report said one end of the U.S. Vanadium Corporation's two-story tungsten mill caved in.

But somehow none of the 31 persons marooned in the mill or houses was killed. Sheriff's officers reported that a 15-month-old baby was buried for two hours by the avalanche but was rescued apparently unhurt.

Elsewhere in Southern California it was water in deluges that hurt. Santa Barbara and adjacent points got more than four inches of rain. Southern Pacific rail service from San Francisco to Los Angeles was interrupted when two bridges over a wash in Ventura County were flooded.

The southbound Southern Pacific Daylight, due in Los Angeles early tonight, was held at Santa Barbara. The railroad company started moving buses over watery highways to bring the 500 passengers here.

The coast and flatlands of Southern California were raked by gusts up to 40 miles an hour which uprooted trees and caused damage in isolated areas.

At Long Beach, a main highway into nearby Orange County was closed when 14 telephone poles toppled over.

The storm, striking with mounting intensity, left more than an inch of rain in Los Angeles.

Thus far only one storm- caused death has been reported — that of a farmer pinned under his tractor when it overturned as he tried to ford a wash in the Newhall area.

In the high Sierras near Bishop snow plows worked toward two bus loads of Marines, stranded by five-foot drifts while returning from a high altitude training camp to their base at Camp Pendleton.

Sweeping south from the San Francisco area last night, the brunt of the storm was expected to hit Los Angeles late today, bringing possibly as much as four inches of rain. An inch has fallen here already.

To the north in Santa Barbara County five families were evacuated from Guadalupe and three from Casmalia as runoff waters ran a foot or more deep through their homes. Farm lands near these communities and the town of Betteravia were inundated.

Power failures hit Guadalupe, Santa Maria and Lompoc last night and had not been repaired by midmorning today.

United States Interferes In Greek Affairs

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The State Department, in an almost unprecedented move, is trying to end government by coalition in Greece for the avowed purpose of getting better use of American economic and military aid.

The move may have repercussions elsewhere although officials said today that it is not a precedent for action in other countries.

The situation which the United States would like to correct in Greece, where a minority party taking part in coalition rule may at any time wreck the government, has a parallel in France. The turnover in French governments has in fact been a source of great concern to American officials.

Responsible informants here ruled out any plan for the use of American influence in France to the same end as it is being used in Greece but evidence of U.S. "interference" in affairs of another country—always a red flag to politicians and diplomats—may stir up interest and debate in countries receiving United States help.

The U.S. maneuver in Greece occurred when Ambassador John E. Peurifoy made a public statement yesterday that plunged him into a feud between Premier Nicholas Plastiras and Deputy Premier Sophocles Venizelos over the adoption of a new electoral system. Today the State Department supported Peurifoy's declaration.

At present Greece has a coalition government set up under a complicated electoral law. Plastiras and most other members of his slightly leftist party favor a direct majority system. Venizelos wants a proportional representation system—dividing parliamentary seats according to vote percentages. Plastiras was driving toward his goal when he suffered a paralytic stroke Monday.

It was at this point that Peurifoy issued a statement supporting Plastiras and opposing Venizelos. Proportional representation, he said, would cause continuous government instability and have a "disastrous effect upon efficient use of American aid to Greece."

OBJECT LESSON

CORSICANA, March 15 (AP) — Assistant Fire Chief Charlie Tieman reported today that the 3 - year - old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Petty hit the head of a match with a hammer while his mother was reparing their home.

The result: The new wall paper, the four room house here, the automobile and all of the family clothes and furniture went up in smoke.

No injuries.

Ask Delay In Steel Strike

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP) — The government today asked the CIO United steelworkers to put off a threatened March 23 strike until at least April 8. Union leaders promised an answer by tomorrow at the latest.

Nathan Feinsinger, Wage Stabilization Board chairman, in making the request to the steelworkers' president, Philip Murray, promised that the board would "make every effort" to have its recommendations for a settlement ready by Thursday.

Feinsinger asked the union and six big steel companies to begin collective bargaining negotiations within three days after the recommendations are made.

During these negotiations, Feinsinger said, it would be understood that work and production would continue. Then, if an agreement is not reached by April 4 and the union plans to strike, it should give 96 hours written notice.

Murray told reporters he hoped to have an answer today or tomorrow. If the unions agree, it would be the third strike postponement since Jan. 1.

More Arrests In Big Robbery

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Two more persons, one a woman, were arrested today in connection with the 1½-million-dollar burglary at Reno, Nev., two weeks ago, the FBI announced.

It identified them as:

Louis Gazzigli, 44, arrested by FBI agents and Chief of Police L. R. Greeson at Reno.

Leona Mae Giordano, 37, arrested by FBI agents at Los Angeles.

It was the residence of Laverne V. Redfield, 370 Mt. Rose Street, Reno, which was burglarized, Feb. 29.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, said Gazzigli, "is known to have conspired with Andrew Robert Young, 46, arrested by the FBI at Milwaukee, Wis., on March 11, 1952, to transport part of the loot to points outside of the State of Nevada."

Gazzigli was charged with violation of the federal conspiracy statute.

Hoover said the man "has an extensive criminal record for rape and robbery in New York and California.

The woman, a Reno resident, was charged with transporting over $5,000 of the loot from Reno to Los Angeles.

Hoover said she has been identified "as having attempted to pass a $1,000 bill known to be part of the Redfield loot in a Reno gambling casino."

Big Spring Cracks Down In Narcotics Ring With Many Arrests

BIG SPRING, March 15 (AP) — Fifteen persons were in custody today after Federal narcotics agents and sheriff's officers cracked down on marijuana sales here last night.

About five pounds of marijuana, or enough to make about seven thousand cigarets, were taken either in purchases or by seizure.

Charges were being filed this afternoon, said District Attorney Elton Gilliland. Sheriff Jake Bruton said he had warrants for at least three others.

Most of those arrested were Negroes and Latin Americans. Agents had been working on the case over a period of three months, coming here at the request of Gilliland.

Forces Against Economic Aid Pick Up Strength In Congress

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—A powerfully-backed drive to slash President Truman's request for $7,900,000,000 of new foreign aid may bring new pressure for return of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to present his views to Congress.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) told a reporter he will vote to cut out "all economic aid, amounting to two and a half billion dollars" from the mutual security program for the year starting July 1.

Byrd said this country has provided 40 billions of foreign aid since World War II "and I believe straight military aid will produce enough economic benefits without the extra billions."

Committee action on the multi-billion dollar foreign aid program got underway in Congress this week. Administration leaders concede they face a tough battle for the full amount.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with unconcealed irritation, has publicly questioned the need for any more economic aid. The administration has contended that the economic aid requested is in reality to boost military production and thus is in effect a part of the arms aid program.

On Monday, Connally's committee will consider in closed session a motion by Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) to invite Eisenhower to return from his North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) command for testimony.

When McMahon filed his motion both Democrats and Republicans agreed it would put the general on a political spot. The general is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, but has said he will not campaign for it and has no plans to return to the U.S. anytime soon.

Even if he returns here just to testify on the foreign aid requests, everyone concedes there would be political overtones.

McMahon, in interviews, has insisted that is not his purpose.

"The general believes in this program and now is doing his all to aid it," McMahon said. "I believe his appearance now would be even more persuasive than he was last year when his testimony contributed so much to actual implementation of the Atlantic Pact."

Other Senate committeemen said they would vote against the McMahon motion on the ground it would embarrass Eisenhower.

On the House side, Chairman Richards (D-SC) has postponed a decision by the Foreign Affairs Committee on a suggestion that Eisenhower be invited to testify "as an official of the government."

Promises Tax Cut With Win

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP) — Rep. Daniel A. Reed, of New York, ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, announced today that if the Republicans win in November and there is no all-out war, he will move to cut taxes to pre-Korea levels.

There have been three federal tax increases totaling more than 15 billion dollars since the Korean War broke out.

Reed, who would become chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee if the GOP captured control of Congress, said in a statement:

"By midnight tomorrow (Monday) over 50 million citizens must pay tribute to the Truman orgy of reckless and unjustified government spending.

"Thirty-three million of these citizens earn in annual income less than $5,000 a year. It must therefore be obvious that the heavy burden of excessive taxation falls not on the rich but on the poor."

'Billions' To French Waterway Revealed By Chamber Official

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—An official of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said today "an unlimited gift of billions" from U.S. taxpayers is being used on a huge waterways development in France.

Russell C. Harrington, chairman of the chamber's Committee on Government Expenditures, said the use of what he termed U.S. tax dollars on the project is an argument for reduction of foreign aid spending.

The chamber has called for a cut of $5,800,000,000 in the foreign aid program of $10,800,000,000 which President Truman has outlined for the fiscal year starting July 1. Since some of the money is already in hand, unspent from previous years, President Truman is asking Congress for $7,900,000,000 in new appropriations.

Harrington, who is an accountant in Providence, R.I., said one feature of the waterways project is a 354-mile seaway from the Mediterranean to Lake Geneva, in the Swiss Alps. At the same time, he said in a statement, "our own St. Lawrence waterway and power project goes begging."

A spokesman for the Mutual Security Administration (MSA) defended the French project as one which will be an important factor in France's effort to double her electrical generating capacity, which he termed basic to French plans to increase production of any kind.

He said the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA), predecessor to MSA, had approved French plans to use on the project some of their Marshall Plan counterpart funds.

The counterpart fund worked this way: this government gave the French government a tractor, for example, as part of the economic aid program. The French government sold the tractor to a French farmer at the going price, and deposited the money it received in the counterpart fund.

The French government (like other countries which received Marshall Plan aid) then submitted a budget proposing how the counterpart funds should be spent. This budget, and the specific projects on it, were subject to approval by ECA or, at present, by MSA.

Harrington, in his statement, did not estimate the total amount of counterpart funds to be spent. He said the project calls for 22 dams and 46 power stations on the Rhone River alone, and that the cost of the first three dams is 685 million dollars.

Harrington put the total expenditure of what he called U.S. dollars in the billions, but the MSA spokesman said it would not run that large.

Rock Fight Starts New Riots In Prison Camp, 12 Reds Dead

KOJE ISLAND, Korea, Sunday, March 16 (AP)—A violent rock fight between rival groups of North Korean prisoners in this Allied stockade erupted into a shooting in which 12 Communist prisoners were killed and 26 wounded Thursday.

Capt. Walter R. Leahy of Newton, Mass., prison security officer, reported the shooting was done by South Korean soldier guards after he himself had been downed by a stone in the face and despite his orders not to fire.

The outbreak was the second in less than a month on this rocky island prison off the coast of Southeast Korea.

Seventy - eight interned Korean civilians and an American soldier were killed in a riot in the stockade Feb. 18. Brig. Gen. Frank T. Dodd, Koje commander, said that disturbance was a deliberately-plotted Red riot in contrast to Thursday's "spontaneous" outbreak.

Leahy told correspondents the North Korean prisoners in Compound 93 had renounced Communism about five days ago and had begun displaying Republic of Korea and United Nations flags. The prisoners in an adjacent compound, No. 92, evidently remained ardent Communists.

Thursday morning a work party of about 150 prisoners from 93 passed along a dirt road paralleling the barbed wire fence of 92. Guarding the workers were seven or eight South Korean soldiers armed with rifles.

At the same time a group of some 60 South Korean soldiers were marching along the road immediately in front of the work party.

Leahy said that the workers taunted the prisoners inside Compound 92 and sang a South Korean marching song. The workers waved tiny, hand-made South Korean flags.

"I hopped in my jeep and raced to get to those prisoners in the working detail out of the area," Leahy said. "At the same time, I was watching those in 92 moving toward the fence."

Another security officer, Lt. Harold L. Bolan of Irving, Ky., was inside 92 when the fight started. He shouted to the Communist compound leader to get the prisoners away from the fence and then rushed outside to try to hustle the workers away.

Leahy was hit by stones on the shoulders, legs and arms. Then a big one struck the left side of his face and knocked him down. He said the South Korean soldier heading the guards on the work detail begged Leahy to let him open fire.

"But I told him 'no' several times," Leahy said.

The captain said then a shot rang out somewhere behind him and rifles started cracking all around the compound.

Dunn Man In Sheriff's Race

Elmo Herring, farmer and rancher from Dunn, has authorized the Daily News to announce his candidacy for sheriff in the July Democratic election.

Herring, whose farm is about 15 miles south of Snyder, first came to Scurry County, in 1932. He left that same year, but returned in 1940 and has remained since.

The 43 - year - old farmer is married and has two children, a son, Doyle Herring, 13, and a daughter, Byrdie Ann, 9.

Herring was born in Hamilton County and received his secondary education in Hamilton County and Abilene schools. He has worked eight years in the oil fields and for two year, 1948 - 49, he was brand inspector for the Cattle Raisers Association.

He is a member of the Baptist Church in Dunn and the Masonic Lodge.

Herring said he would state his platform soon.

New Casualty List

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 41 additional battle casualties in Korea in a new list (No. 521) that reported 11 killed, 26 wounded, one missing and three injured.

Allies Are Offering New Packaged Deal

MUNSAN, Sunday, March 16 (AP)—Allied negotiators today pinned their hopes of partly breaking the Korean truce supervision log-jam on a package deal which the Reds eyed warily.

The major issues still were stuck solidly. Both sides agreed Saturday to hand the one on voluntary or forced repatriation of war prisoners back to staff officers who earlier this year failed in 22 sessions to resolve it.

Both matters were up for discussion in talks opening at 11 a.m. today (9 p.m. EST) Saturday at Panmunjom.

The prisoner issue was inflamed by a new outbreak Thursday of Communist prisoners at the Allies' Koje Island stockade.

A U. N. Command spokesman told the Communist negotiators Saturday that 12 Reds were killed and 26 were injured during the rioting. The Communists termed it a "sanguinary incident" and indicated they would make a strong protest later.

In its package deal, the Allied team offered to accept a Communist plan for five instead of six ports of entry where neutral inspectors could observe truce conditions. Other items in the "package" included an offer to yield on Allied demands for periodic reports on locations of major military units and a ban on concentrations of forces posing a threat to the other side.

In return, the Allies insisted that the Reds drop demands for inspection of secret weapons during a truce and deletion of the word "Korea" from a truce clause banning naval blockade.

Allied negotiators say the Reds, in attempting to strike out the word "Korea" may be seeking to protect Communist China from any possible naval blockade. The threat of such a blockade is considered a strong factor to make the Reds live up to truce terms guaranteeing the safety of South Korea.

The Reds quickly accepted the three Allied concessions but indicated they weren't interested in talking about the other two points which would require them to compromise.

An Allied spokesman told correspondents later:

"The U. N. Command is very skeptical about making package proposals, as we have made them twice and have had the Communists accept them only in part."

Slight Changes In Hospital Plans, Work Will Start Soon

Construction is expected to start in about two weeks on Cogdell Memorial Hospital, which will probably be completed by October, next year, according to Edgar Taylor, county judge.

The next step will be the state health department's approval of the contracts tentatively awarded Friday by the commissioners court to three firms for construction of the county project. Herbert Brasher of the Butler - Brasher Engineering Co., Lubbock architect, will handle arrangements with the health department until time for construction, Judge Taylor said.

Total cost of the project is excluding architect fees, contingency pected to be about $998,000, inallowance, and cost of special equipment. The county now has access to funds totaling $1,016,000 for the project.

When the commissioners court deferred action concerning 23 bids on the project nearly three weeks ago, the county lacked approximately $200,000 having sufficient funds to construct it as originally planned even with promise of a $100,000 donation from D. M. Cogdell, who had also given the site.

Since then, however, Cogdell donated another $100,000 and the court transferred $50,000 from the county's general fund and $50,000 from the permanent improvement fund. The court then agreed with bidders to alter the plans by omitting paving of a driveway, parking area, and sidewalks and also omitted a fence behind the hospital. No alternates were made in the building itself, and the court agreed to pave the drive and build sidewalks as a separate phase later, Judge Taylor said.

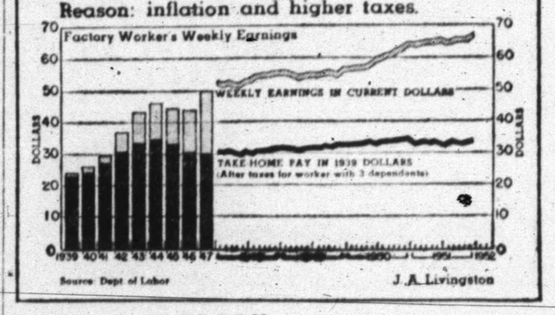

In addition to giving the site several acres and a pledge of $200,000, Cogdell has set up a trust fund to provide the county with 15 per cent of his income automatically for operation of the hospital. Bond money and federal aid through the state health department total $716,000. In April, 1950, the county voted to issue $400,000 in bonds to be matched by federal aid for the hospital and a health unit building. Of this total of $800,000, approximately $82,000 is set aside for the health unit.

Contracts tentatively awarded total $913,987. The architect fee at six per cent will be about $54,837. A contingency of three per cent is set aside to allow for unforeseen necessities or cost fluctuations. This would amount to $27,419. Special equipment is expected to cost about $1,750. The grand total of $997,995 is $18,005 less than funds available for the project.

The Rex D. Kitchens Construction Co., Austin, was awarded the general contract for $639,720. A. P. Kasch & Son, Big Spring, was given the contract on heating, plumbing, and ventilation for $228,767. Fagan Electric Co. was for $45,500.

AS WORKERS SEE IT

"Real" take-home pay fell slightly in 1951. Reason: inflation and higher taxes.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Withholding Tax, High Cost Of Government Is Political

By J. A. LIVINGSTON

After World War I, people complained about the high cost of living. Today, nearly seven years after World War II, they're complaining—with increasing irritation—about the high cost of government. The money to spend just ain't around! The government's got it!

I'm no political expert. But my hunch is that government costs will be a potent influence in the events leading up to the November presidential campaign. They could have been a factor in President Truman's defeat in New Hampshire.

Sen. Estes Kefauver's triumph, after all, occurred just when people were busy with their income tax returns. And taxes were higher this March than in March, 1951. Not only that, but congressmen have revolted against another round of tax increases. Sen Walter F. George (Dem. Ga.), chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, had just urged a seven billion dollar cut in President Truman's budget. Sen Paul H. Douglas (Dem. Ill.) recommended a similar reduction. The joint committee on the Economic Report, headed by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem. Wyo.), usually an administration stalwart, argued for a ten - billion slash. Thus, high government costs were in voters' minds.

ECONOMIC LESSON

In New Hampshire Kefauver was a television symbol: The man against crime and corruption in government. And the tie - in of corruption and the high cost of government—taxes — may well cost Truman votes. When people are hurt financially, they react. That's the first economic lesson of every successful politician.

The high cost of government has caught up with the working man. The Department of Labor compiles an index which shows what a factory worker with three dependents has left over after allowing for (a) the cost of living and (b) taxes. He's worse off than a year ago.

For example, in January his pay envelope contained about $67—just about an all - time high. But after adjustment for living costs and taxes, his actual purchasing power is down 1 per cent to 2 per cent from a year ago (see chart).

Thus, taxes are beginning to have a tangible, not a fanciful, impact. The General Motors' cost-of-living contract sees to that. After all, a large group of workers —every three months — receives pay increases as the cost of living rises. So, their dollar income keeps pace with the price of meat, shoes, rents, and transportation.

But their purchasing power doesn't keep pace. Their dollars and cents don't go as far as they used to, despite the cost - of - living adjustment. When that happens, they wonder why, but not for long. They know the answer: The increased withholding tax.

This pressure on the worker's pay goes far to explain the continued "slack" in retail sales. The rate of collections on charge account purchases this year is running behind a year ago. And though merchants point out that sales comparisons with 1951 should be discounted because of scare-buying and an early Easter then, nevertheless, when you ask directly, "How's business?", they're apt to reply: "Not good, not good at all. The undertone's weak."

General Electric and Westinghouse have just announced substantial price reductions on electric refrigerators. Newspapers are full of advertisements of markdowns on washing machines, driers, and similar consumer durable goods. Yet this is the time of the year when sales are supposed to pick up without benefit of price cuts, especially sales of refrigerators, just before warm weather.

RETURN TO CLASSICISM

The high cost of government is a worldwide pressure. Thats evident in the British budget. To permit a rise in rearmament outlays, Prime Minister Churchill cut a sacred cow. Food subsidies were reduced from 410,000,000 to 250,000,000 pounds.

Churchill is trying classical techniques to curb demand. The Bank of England raised the discount rate from 2 per cent to 4 per cent. This not only will make the cost of borrowing more expensive but it has already caused a slump in government bonds and the stock market. Investors, therefore, feel poorer. They're less venturesome. That cuts down capital for expansion of non-defense and nonessential production.

Pioneer Man Here Tuesday

Robert J. Smith, Jr., son of the president of Pioneer Airlines, will meet with the board of directors of Winston Field and the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday night.

Leon Huff, manager of the chamber, said a letter from Pioneer stated that Smith would be here if no conflicts in his schedule arose.

He is the son of General Robert Smith, president of the company.

Pioneer is investigating the possibility of extending their air services to Snyder.

The group will meet first at the chamber offices at 7:30 o'clock, then will probably go to Winston Field to inspect facilities there, Huff said.

A letter from the Civil Aeronautics Board received this week stating that Snyder's application for air service had been consolidated with a number of other applications and will be heard with them.

Fuller Brush Appointee

Mrs. Orene Cummings, 2401 Avenue H, has been appointed by the Fuller Brush Co. as cosmetic field manager for Scurry County, R. S. Booker of the Lubbock branch office announced yesterday.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Crawford Spear, 24, was admitted to the Snyder Hospital Friday night with minor injuries after his cattle truck overturned eight miles south of here on the Colorado City Highway. A resident of Lubbock, Spear is employed with the R. D. Harris & Son trucking firm. Melvin Newton, 2711 Avenue V, was taken by Boiger - Barnes ambulance to the hospital Friday night, where he was admitted as a medical patient. New Londoners Don't Talk Yet About 1937 School Explosion

By MARTHA COLE

NEW LONDON, Tex. March 15 (AP)—It was on a sleepy spring afternoon of March 18, on a Thursday 15 years ago that Billie Sue Hall in the fifth grade stooped under her desk to get some paper.

At that moment, a low rumble rolled along beneath the floor of the school building. A tremendous blast.The floor surged up in huge concrete slabs. The roof lifted and then collapsed. The walls buckled. School children were blown 75 feet into the air. An automobile 200 feet away was crushed like an eggshell under a slab of concrete blown from the school.

Days later the counting was done: 280 children, 14 teachers and two mothers killed. There were some 700 children in the building.

The New London School explosion of March 18, 1937, still is the worst disaster to school children in the present century. It started when a spark set off accumulated gas underneath the school.

Billie Sue's desk fell atop her head. She didn't get up. Rescue workers pulled her out and sped her on to the hospital.

'SHE NEVER CRIED'

Billie Sue's mother, Mrs. W. L. Hall, was in the gymnasium, a separate building behind the school, attending a meeting of the parent teacher organization that very afternoon. The blast knocked her down. She picked herself up and ran outside and then across the lawn to the school. Even by then there was somebody pulling out bodies.

Somebody filled her car with children, and Mrs. Hall tore out for Overton, where the hospital was, four miles away. Her car was the third to leave with the dead and injured.

"I remember. I remember it well," she said 15 years later, "But we don't talk about it, you know."

Billie Sue stayed in the hospital for 10 days with a fractured skull.

She is 26 now and married to Dr. Paul Cullum, in Carthage, Tex., and has a daughter of her own—Susan K., two years old.

Her mother still lives here.

Only ten of the 36 fifth graders in her room lived through that moment when Billie Sue just happened to stoop to pick up some paper.

"She never cried, never said a word. She just didn't talk about it," her mother said.

SUN DIAL MARKER

New London had no mass funeral. Each family buried its own.

For days the funeral services started in the morning and went on to twilight. An almost continuous procession moved slowly to Pleasant Hill, four miles away, where most of the victims were buried. Only a few parents have gone there on each anniversary to visit the graves of their dead children.

Only a twin-columned cenotaph, splitting the highway in front of the school, and a sun dial at the entrance to the school campus are here now to remind the passerby of a moment now 15 years old.

Each day the 900 pupils of New London School—gathered from a 60-square-mile area— skip past the sundial and the cenotaph where are engraved the names of a part of a by-gone generation that died nearby.

"They never talk about it," said Superintendent Allen Kavanaugh, who has been here three years.

"The school has never marked the anniversary in any way. The townspeople don't want it. The newspapers always write something each year, but we just don't talk about it, you know."

Completions In State Ahead Of Period In 1951

AUSTIN, March 15 (AP)—Texas oil well completions for the year jumped far ahead of last year's comparable total as 220 producing wells were competed this week.

The year's total jumped to 2,413, more than 250 ahead of the year-ago figure of 2,162, the Texas Railroad Commission said today in its weekly report.

Gas well completions did not match the pace of oil operations. Only six gas wells were brought in, making the year's total 157 compared with 199 a year ago.

The number of drilling failures remained high—116.

Wildcatting produced 13 oil wells, no gassers, and 68 dry holes.

Wells plugged included 111 dry, 6 gas, and 41 oil wells.

The state's total number of wells today stood at 134,018, an increase of 468 from last week.

The total average calendar day crude allowable today was 3,1599.4 barrels, a jump of 21,548 barrels from a week ago.

New Pipeline Across Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon, March 15 (AP)—The flow of oil through pipelines to the Eastern Mediterranean will be increased 50 per cent on completion of the 30-inch pipe from Kirkuk, Iraq, to Banias, Syria, toward the end of this year.

Built by the British-run Iraq Petroleum Company, the new line will be in partial operation in April. In November it will come into full operation with a capacity of 14 million tons of crude oil annually.

Added to the eight million tons already being carried by two IPC lines terminating in Tripoli, Lebanon, the new pipeline will bring the total of Iraq oil pumped to the Mediterranean to 22 million tons, nearly quadrupling last year's output.

The Aramco-owned tapline, with its terminus at Sidon, Lebanon, has an output rate of approximately 14 million tons annually from the Saudi Arabian oil fields. When the Banias-Kirkuk line is completed, 36 million tons of Near Eastern oil will be flowing to the Mediterranean, nearly three times the maximum pipeline capacity before the tapline was finished in 1950.

The Kirkuk-Banias pipeline will be a vital factor in implementing the new agreement between the IPC and the Iraq government, ratified by the Iraq government recently. This agreement calls for such expansion of Iraq oil production that the government will receive royalties increasing from 15 million pounds sterling in 1951 to 23 million in 1952 and on up to an estimated 59 million by 1955.

Although the original concession was granted in 1925, actual production has fallen far behind that of neighboring countries, where concessions were granted much later. The proven oil reserves of Iraq are almost as great as those of Saudi Arabia, for instance, but production in Iraq was scarcely one-third that in Arabia before the new Iraq agreement came into force.

3rd Quarter Steel Situation Looking Up For Oil Industry

By TEX EARLEY

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The Petroleum Administration for Defense (PAD) is hoping there's good foundation for unverified reports the oil and gas industry will get a substantial increase in steel for the third quarter of 1952.

The Defense Production Administration (DPA) is the agency which takes the over-all steel output of the nation and allocates it among various groups of users. The PAD takes over the petroleum industry's share and distributes it for such purposes as drilling, pipelines, tank cars, tankage.

For the last half of 1952 the PAD has asked that allocations of steel be increased 40 per cent over the average rate of the past four quarters. For Canadian export, on the same basis, a 42 per cent increase is sought; for shipment to other foreign producing areas outside the iron curtain an increase of 36 per cent is requested.

Although the DPA is not expected to have its data for July-August-September allocations ready before the end of next week and won't comment officially, prospects are that the PAD will get at least 80 per cent of the steel it requested as compared with 70 to 75 per cent in the past.

DPA officials' only comment was that in the over-all picture, the steel supply situation steadily is improving. They emphasize that the tightest squeeze remains in heavy plate needed for high pressure purposes such as liquefied gas and pipelines.

During 1951, the PAD says, there were 44,500 new oil wells drilled in the United States. The steel allocated for the first six months of 1952 is at the rate for 22,500 new wells. The request for steel for the last half of the year is for an amount to permit the drilling of 25,000. The PAD program calls for 55,000 new wells in 1953.

The refining capacity of the United States was estimated at 7,300,000 barrels per day as of Jan. 1, 1952, having been boosted by some 500,000 barrels in 1951. The goal is an additional 475,000 barrels per day within the next year.

Steel requests by PAD contemplate construction of an additional 19,700 miles of crude oil and products pipelines in the United States within the 18-month period beginning July 1 and an additional 3,300 miles to foreign countries.

Scurry Sixth In Total Rigs

Drilling activity in the Permain Basin showed a slight decrease from March 1 to March 10 as the total number of rotary rigs in operation slipped from 741 to 714.

Scurry County remained in sixth position among counties surveyed, with 35 rotaries in operation. This was a rise of three over the March 1 figure.

The rotary survey, made by Reed Roller Bit Co., covers counties in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico. The survey was previously made the first and fifteenth of each month, but is now reported the tenth and twentieth of each month.

Lea County, New Mexico, remained at the top of the activity list with 114 operations, a decrease of seven during the 10-day period. Midland County was second with 107, and Upton County third with 103. Reagan and Ector Counties with 40 rotaries each, also topped Scurry.

Other counties covered the survey, with the number of rigs in operation there on March 10, included: Borden, 12; Kent, 13; Andrews, 34; Gaines, 32; Glasscock, 23; Schleicher, 13; Tom Green and Ward, 10 each, and Coke, 19.

Incorporation, Enforcement Of Laws, Hermleigh Issues

For those who crave excitement —whether in heated politics or the occasional sound of gunfire— Hermleigh might be the answer. At least the apparently [illegible] town isn't entirely dead.

Proof that there is scarcely a dull moment in the town of about 500 residents can even be found by looking at the city's police car, struck by a pistol bullet Tuesday morning. J. T. Murphree, one of the town's officers, gave this account of the shooting:

Several times during each night, Murphree or the other patrolman, E. J. Brooks, drives the patrol car onto the public school grounds and checks the buildings. About 1:30 a.m., Murphree drove into the campus and within about 15 feet of two small buildings, about four feet apart. From between them, a pistol was fired, the bullet striking the upper part of the windshield post about eight inches from the patrolman's head. He stepped on the accelerator, circled the largest of the two buildings, and stopped the car near the spot where the gunman had apparently lurked. "I jumped out of the car and fired several shots toward the sound of running feet," he said.

No suspects have yet been arrested in connection with the shooting. "Someone had some murder in mind," Murphree said, "and it was almost committed."

FIST FIGHT

About two weeks ago, Murphree had a fist fight with one of the residents. "I voluntarily paid a $14 fine for fighting," he said, "although I did exactly what the man I fought with challenged me to do. He asked me to remove my revolver and fight with him, and I did." The other party involved pleaded innocent to a similar charge and has not yet been tried.

Whether a person is interested in arguing about taxes, law enforcement, civic improvements, or what-have-you, there is likely possibility he will find something of excitement to occupy his mind.

Hermleigh is somewhat of a two-party town with the minority group continually threatening to oust the controlling party from the city offices. The party in power is trying to make a success of incorporation, a thing not even attempted in many such towns over the state, but something which is also successful in many.

FINES IMPORTANT

There are only three persons on the city payroll. Two of them are police patrolmen who make their own salaries and help pay for operation of the city in fines collected in the city's corporation court.

The Rev. Bob Creswell

The only city employe whose salary is paid from tax revenue is the city secretary, Mrs. Carrie Lou McQuaid. She is paid $100 per month for handling many jobs in the city government.

Her multiple duties include keeping records of fines in the corporation court, acting as tax collector, water department superintendent and collector of water bills, and being general record keeper for the city.

The two police patrolmen complete the list of municipally salaried persons at Hermleigh. They are J. T. Murphree whose salary is $350 per month, and E. J. Brooks, who gets $300 per month. The mayor and aldermen serve without pay.

For a period last year, the city was without police protection. Then Murphree was hired on Sept. 24. From that date to Feb. 11 this year, fines in the city court totaled $2,807—an average of about $700 per month. That paid their salaries and part of the other expenses of operating the city. Merchants donate $100 monthly toward police salaries.

Financially, the city is largely dependent upon the highway which passes through town. Taxes, if all the city taxes were paid, would amount to only $4,674.13 at the rate of 90 cents on each $100 of valuation.

Total valuation in the city was $560,248.17 when the tax rolls were made up in 1950, but the valuation has dropped to about the half-million mark now, the Rev. Bob Creswell, mayor, said.

80 PER CENT

Usually about 80 per cent of the assessed taxes are paid in Hermleigh, Mr. Creswell added. Payments on last year's taxes so far total only $2,473.63, however. There are 187 property owners listed on the rolls.

The water department accounts for some income for the city of Hermleigh but not enough to pay the cost of delivering water to the 112 customers.

Because of broken meters which the city could not afford to repair, a flat rate of $2.50 per month is charged all water customers.

"That's the set price whether the customer is a school, business or residence," Mr. Creswell said.

For a water supply the city has two wells with a combined capacity of about 45 gallons of water per minute. One of the pumps was completely paid for recently, but about $2,250 remains to be paid on the other well.

To drill the second well, $800 was borrowed from city employes and friends of the city. Another $900 is owed to Buck Wiley, waterwell driller of Snyder, and the remaining $550 is owed to the Independent Eastern Torpedo Co., Tulsa, for well equipment.

INDEBTEDNESS

The total indebtedness of Hermleigh is only $2,750. Of this, a debt of $500 is being paid to a Snyder bank at the rate of $50 each month on the city police patrol car.

That's all the city owes, if an unknown amount in warrants issued when Hermleigh was incorporated the first time, many years ago, is not counted.

Hermleigh's history as a corporate city is marked by strife—which is still highly evident.

In 1927, Hermleigh was first incorporated. Warrants were issued to build a water tower, which is still unpaid for, and for other municipal improvements.

In 1936, the minority who opposed incorporation of the town entered a law suit against the city charging that the incorporation had been done illegally. Losing in district court, the city appealed to the state supreme court, where the lower court's verdict was upheld.

That ended Hermleigh as a corporate city until it was re-incorporated on Jan. 28, 1950. Actually, according to the courts, it had never before been legally incorporated.

But the re - incorporation did not go over with absolute unanimity, although it carried by a large margin; so there is still a faction which would like to see the corporation dissolved. A petition was circulated and an election called recently to decide the issue. Hermleigh remained a corporate city by a margin of 11 votes, 85-74.

NO CITY BONDS

Although the backers of the city government were successful in keeping the city corporated, they cannot muster enough strength to pass city bond issues for civic improvements, Mr. Creswell said.

Law enforcement seems to be the primary issue over which there is so much divided opinion in Hermleigh.

The city government and its backers are for strong law enforcement, especially patrolling of the highway.

The opposition is just as violently opposed to having policemen on duty in Hermleigh. They charge that such strict enforcement of speeding laws is keeping many motorists from coming through Hermleigh at all, and creates ill will with those who come through.

"However, we have never fined the same man twice in traffic court here. They slow down when they come through town after being fined once," Mr. Creswell, who is city judge in addition to being mayor, said.

"Law enforcement is not for the purpose of collecting fines," the mayor said, "but, on the contrary, the fines are for the purpose of enforcing law and providing safety."

The city election coming up in Hermleigh April 1, could change the situation some.

The mayor is not a candidate for re - election. Herman Richburg and Joe Roemisch are candidates for mayor. Three aldermen are candidates for re - election. They are: Vance Cliff, W. G. Mayo, and Boyce Jones. Two other candidates who have never held office before are M. J. Haynes, and R. L. Jones.

(Letters from the readers of the Daily News are always welcome, provided they are signed by the writer and give his correct address. To the Daily News:

This year, as much as any of the years during World War II, the American Red Cross needs each American citizen and each business establishment to become a subscriber.

The Scurry County Red Cross drive is now being conducted. Our goal is in the neighborhood of $5-000.00, and to date only about 50 per cent has been raised. If we fail, our community will not be able to render the aid and assistance that many service men and their families are going to need and call upon the Red Cross for during this year. If we succeed, we will be able to render more service to them. And this year, with the current outbreak in Korea at such a crucial point, may well be as critical a year for the Red Cross as any of the years of World War II.

Many here will remember the aid given by the Red Cross in Scurry County during the depression when a carload of wheat was given away to the farmers and ranchers so they could have a cover crop and a money crop.

The Red Cross was here with aid quickly during the flood in June of 1939.

Right now hospitalization charges of a veteran's widow and son are being taken care of through the local chapter of the Red Cross.

Please do not wait to be contacted, as it is impossible to contact each and every person and business establishment. Please mail your contribution today to Wayne Boren, Red Cross Treasurer, 1810 Twenty - sixth Street, Snyder, Texas.

East Texans Want Two-Party System In Operation In Texas

Editor's note: Dave Cheavens, capitol correspondent for the Associated Press, reports here on the mid-March political thinking of Texans he talked to on a trip through 17 South Central, East and Southeast Texas counties. This is the first of several stories.

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, March 15 (AP) —Texas Democratic leaders who are having a hard time getting together reflect the mid-March mental chaos of voters who don't know their own minds.

Violent cross-currents and conflicts that have their thinking in a turmoil formed the most vivid impression this reporter got on a tour of 17 counties in South Central, East and Southeast Texas.

It included strictly agricultural counties, counties where small industries are growing up, and the big-industry regions from Houston south to the Gulf of Mexico and east to the Sabine.

It was this correspondent's second political pulse-feeling trip within a month. The first covered 1,200 miles in West, Northwest and Central Texas.

Those western regions were most immediately concerned about the drouth, with politics second. In South Central East and Southeast Texas politics is undisputed No. 1. Most of the 17 counties covered have had pretty good rains.

In addition to the widespread individual uncertainty and confusion, this correspondent also found:

1. A surprising amount of two-party talk in East Texas counties where the Democratic party has always been as much a part of the landscape as white-flowered dogwoods and tall pine trees.

2. This may be and probably is just another sign of unrest and dissatisfaction with President Truman, high taxes and tax scandals, lack of confidence in government in general and the national administration in particular.

3. Most people whose pappies and grandpappies were Democrats want to keep on being Democrats, but they have an almost fanatical distrust of the national party leadership. They want new faces in high places.

4. But once they get in the voting booth with the curtain pulled and nobody looking, they would vote Democratic again no matter who the candidate is, even Mr. Truman. They probably would be delighted to have someone else.

5. Many outspoken conservatives, especially in Gulf Coast industrial areas, would jump right over the party traces and take any Republican if Mr. Truman is renominated and if the national convention fails to make real concessions to the South.

6. As in West Texas, plain citizens still don't know that their first and last chance to speak their minds on their party's nominee is in the May 3 precinct conventions.

7. In this region, Price Daniel has a substantial mid-March lead over Tom Connally in the U.S. Senate race, but many political leaders think both candidates are campaigning too hard too early.

These and other findings will be developed in more detail in stories to follow.

Two Trade Papers Sold

COMMERCE, March 15 (AP) —Edwin Bronaugh announced today he has sold his Commerce Daily Journal and the Weekly Farm Journal of Commerce to W. R. Latson and Caryl Hyatt of Lubbock.

The West Texans will take over Monday, Latson as editor and Hyatt as advertising manager. Both were associated with the Lubbock Avalanche - Journal before buying the Commerce papers through William K. Horn, Dallas broker.

Bloodhounds Root Out Escaped Farm Convict

HOUSTON, March 15 (AP)—With the help of baying bloodhounds, guards today recaptured a trusty who escaped on horseback from Harlem Prison Farm last night.

Jose Ortiz Rios, 24, was to have been released in five months. Prison System Manager O. B. Ellis said Rios was ordered to put a horse in a stable last night but disappeared instead, riding another horse.

At daylight today the horse was found loose several miles from the farm. Bloodhounds picked up Rios' trail and led guards to the fugitive. Rios was sentenced April 23, 1948, from Brooks and Cameron counties on burglary charges.

Political Picture Is To Be Completed In Primary Races

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who took the measure of Sen. Taft of Ohio in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary, will slug it out with Taft again in New Jersey and Oregon, and possibly in South Dakota.

Both have their supporters running in Massachusetts, too.

The New Jersey primary will be held April 15 and Oregon's comes on May 16. The Bay State votes April 29. South Dakota, together with California, wind up the pre-convention primary voting June 3.

With filing deadlines passed in all states but California (where the deadline is April 9) and South Dakota (May 3), here is the way the future primary battles line up:

Minnesota (March 18)

Republican: Harold E. Stassen and Edward C. Slettedahl, Minnesota chairman of "Fighters for MacArthur," oppose each other for 25 pledged delegates. (Three more, at large to be named in state convention May 31-June 1).

Democrat: Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is unopposed "favorite son" candidate for 23 pledged delegates, expected to be for Truman if he runs. (Three more at large delegates to be named in state convention May 24).

Wisconsin (April 1)

Republican: Taft, Stassen, Gov. Earl Warren (coalition slate favoring Eisenhower as second choice), and Grant Ritter, "favorite son" for MacArthur, contest for 30 pledged delegates.

Democrat: Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee, and two pro-Truman factions headed by Jerome Fox, of Chilton, and Thomas E. Broughton, Sheboygan, contest for 28 pledged delegates.

Nebraska (April 1)

Republican: Stassen unopposed in preference vote which is unbinding on 18 delegates.

Democrat: Sen. Kefauver and Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma on preference ballot; 12-vote delegation to be elected.

Illinois (April 8)

Republican: Taft and Stassen in preference ballot which is not binding on 50 district delegates to be elected; 10 at-large to be named in convention April 25); AP poll of 91 candidates for delegate showed Taft heavily favored; with Eisenhower, Sen. Everett Dirksen and Gen MacArthur having scattered support.

Democrat: Kefauver unopposed in preference. Poll of 60 candidates for 50 district delegate places showed support for President Truman, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois. (10 at-large to be named in convention April 25).

New Jersey (April 15)

Republican: Taft, Eisenhower and Stassen on preference ballot, which is not binding on 38 delegates. Candidates for delegates include full uninstructed slate headed by Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, 20 Stassen men, and four for MacArthur.

Democrat: Kefauver unopposed on preference ballot. No contests for delegate indicated. Organization slate expected to be for President Truman if he runs.

Pennsylvania (April 22)

Republican: Eisenhower and Stassen on preference ballot which is unbinding on 60 district delegates to be elected (10 at-large already named).

Democrat: no entries on Preference; 60 district delegates to be elected (10 at - large already named).

New York (April 22)

Republican: no preference; 86 district delegates to be elected unpledged (10 at-large later); state organization favors Eisenhower, with Taft forces claiming up to 20 delegates.

Democrat: 86 district delegates to be elected unpledged (eight at-large later); state organization behind President Truman if he runs.

Massachusetts (April 29)

Republican: no preference vote. Candidates for 38 delegate places include supporters of Eisenhower, Taft, MacArthur, and uncommitted.

Democrat: Kefauver and James A. Farley favored by some candidates for 36 delegates, with unpledged group favoring President Truman.

Maryland (May 5)

Republican: no entries on preference ballot. Delegates to be elected to state convention which names 24 delegates to national convention.

Democrat: Kefauver lone entry, against uninstructed group. State convention later names delegation with 18 votes.

Ohio (May 6)

Republican: Taft and Stassen compete for 56 pledged delegates.

Democrat: Kefauver, tilts with former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, a holding candidate for President Truman. Bulklev has full slate of delegates except in 18th District; Kefauver has partial slate of 33. Delegation will have 54 national convention votes.

Florida (May 6)

Democratic only: Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia and Sen. Kefauver compete in preference which is not binding on 24-vote delegation to be elected in second primary May 27.

West Virginia (May 13)

Republican: Stassen and Taft in preference which is not binding on 16 delegates.

Democrat: no entries. Twenty-vote delegation.

Oregon (May 16)

Republican: Eisenhower, MacArthur, Warren, Stassen and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon compete in preference for 18 pledged delegates.

Democrat: Kefauver, Gov. Stevenson, and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas (latter two against their wishes) contest for 12 delegates.

California (June 3)

Republican: Warren, Stassen and Rep. Thomas H. Werdel of Calif., (anti-Warren) compete for 70 pledged delegates.

Democrat: President Truman and Kefauver slates to fight it out for 68 delegates.

South Dakota (June 3).

Republican: Eisenhower and Taft forces have said they will file slates, although organization leaders have favored uninstructed slate with Taft, Eisenhower, and Stassen supporters on it; 14 delegates at stake.

Democrat: uninstructed slate of eight delegates.

Mrs. A. C. Floyd, wife of the superintendent of Lion Gasoline Plant, waters the lawn in an effort to slow down the sand. Butchie, whose real name is Phillip Lynn, 5, watches. Other sons are A. C. Floyd, Jr., 18, and Darrel Dean Floyd, 16.

Lion Camp Is Community In Itself

Mrs. T. L. Lilly stops to give Tray, Jr., a between-meal snack. She has a daughter, Shirley Ann, 15. The family moved here two years ago from El Dorado.

Mrs. R. H. Griffin and her husband have been here since December, 1950. Like the majority of the families, they moved from El Dorado.

Mrs. J. E. Dupont has a cup of coffee with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bill Noble, who visited here. Mary Catherine, 9, Jimmie, 7, and Felicia Emily, 6, are the Duponts' children. They moved here from Louisiana.

Mrs. John Pickering is shown with her daughter, Susie, 5. They have lived here 15 months, having come from El Dorado. Julia Ann, 9, and John Jr., 8, were at school.

Mrs. Pat Bills spends much of her time making copper pictures like the one she is straightening above, and upholstering furniture. She has two daughters, Sonya, 13, and Patsy, 9.

Mrs. R. R. Davison, who married and came to Snyder in July from Marlin, has plenty of time for her hobby, needlepoint. Her husband enjoys reading and has a collection of books.—(Lee Watson photographs)

1089 ALAN GRAHAM

Alan Graham takes a new approach to an old subject—a double interest dress. This dress is outstanding for several reasons, not the least of which is that the gores are cut on the straight of the material to prevent any possibility of a sagging or limp skirt. Secondly, the buttoned-on dickey and cuffs are removable. The neck of the dress is tailored to complete simplicity so that nothing will detract from the graceful lines of the skirt. Cotton, wool, gabardine, silk or linens are equally good for this dress, but white linen for the dickey and cuffs is almost a must. Size 12 requires two and three-quarter yards of 54-inch fabric, while three-quarter yards of linen will provide the necessary contrast. Patterns are available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. To order this pattern, No. 1089, send $1 to Spadea Syndicate, Inc., Department 162, box 258, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N. Y.

Snyder Girl In Plainview Win

Wathina Grace Thomas, of Snyder, junior high speller, won another county honors in county competition in a contest Friday night.

Speaking the shortest words, she won the county title, winning in Snyder contest Feb. 29. Miss Thomas spelled her way through many other words, then, in the finals, spelled "cat" to win the championship.

This makes her eligible to compete in a district contest, but we don't know if she will enter. She is in the seventh grade.

Miss Grace lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Mittie German, 1906 Thirtieth Street.

TALK OF THE TOWN

By SUE HOLMES

Spring chores aren't so burdensome when they become a family affair. Mrs. DICK ROBERTS, who is lending a hand to her husband in the picture above, cleans house usually while her husband works in the yard. She seldom uses a broom, since she prefers to use her vacuum cleaner to remove sand and dust. When Dick removed tumble weeds from the flower beds, he found gladioli shoots peeping up.

* * *

Since spring housecleaning is almost a tradition along with Christmas and Easter, perhaps a few tips would be timely.

You could start by storing unnecessary things such as extra vases or pictures.

Get all cleaning supplies together before starting to clean. There are many preparations on the market to help take the unpleasantness out of cleaning.

Keep small cleaning supplies in a basket or box to carry from room to room.

Have extra cleaning supplies for upstairs, if you have one.

Place scrapers or mats at outside doors.

Have a place near the door for boots, rubbers and galoshes. (Not too necessary in these parts currently.)

Keep dirt out of house by keeping walks and porches clean.

Provide wash place outside kitchen for outdoor workers.

Cover often used shelves with oilcloth or smooth paint.

Use paper towels when practical.

Use screens that are in good condition for doors and windows.

Put living room in order at night before retiring, all hands helping.

Do some cleaning every day or once a week to cut down seasonal cleaning.

Label containers and boxes when storing articles.

* * *

If you're allergic to dust cloths, you might like the dusting paper available by the roll. If you want to go to more elaborate procedures, you can dust - proof cloths by one of these methods: Mix 1 tablespoon of kerosene with 1 qt. of hot water. Dip squares of clean, soft cloth into this solution, wring out, dry and store. Or mix 1 qt. of warm water, 1 tablespoon of mild soap powder, 1 tablespoon of household ammonia and 2 tablespoons of boiled linseed oil or a good furniture polish. Mix well and dip cloths into solution. After a few minutes, squeeze out, dry and store.

Dust cloths treated by either method should be stored in covered containers such as a fruit jar or coffee can.

Don't forget to wash light bulbs and light fixtures since dust and dirt cut down their efficiency and dim the light. Never allow water to touch the metal part of the globe.

Little Woman Runs Mines, Gets Roads For Her Area

RICO, Colo., March 15 (AP)—Like a lot of others, this little old mining camp, high in the Rockies, has tried to die more than once. Betty Pellett won't let it.

She got herself elected to the Colorado Legislature to bring Rico better roads. She dashed to wartime Washington to save the narrow gauge railroad that hauled Rico's ores. She opened new mines to keep Rico alive.

Betty would have laughed at anyone who told her in 1918 that she would trade the bright lights of Broadway for a flickering miner's lamp under the cliffs of isolated Southwestern Colorado.

Born Elizabeth Eyre in South Norwalk, Conn., Betty is a descendant of Colonial Gov. John Winthrop. At 18, she left a fashionable school for the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York City.

For three grand years, Elizabeth Eyre was Robert Hilliard's leading lady on Broadway.

In 1919 she married Robert L. Pellet, a young mining engineer. After a year in Georgia, they "came west to see what was left of his family's old mines."

They came to Rico, its weather-beaten buildings set in a tight little mountain valley 9,000 feet above sea level. It was a town of 500 grizzled miners and cowboys and Indians in a land of silver and lead and zinc that was to become the source of strategic uranium.

"The first time I went into a mine, I bumped my head on a beam and fell. I waited for Robert to pick me up. He just told me that if I was going to be around mines, I'd have to learn to pick myself up. It was the kindest thing he ever did for me."

When her husband became an invalid in 1936, Mrs. Pellett had picked herself up so many times she just took over the management of the mines.

Jolly Betty Pellet was county Democratic vice chairman from 1920 to 1940. That was the year she decided her state representative, Tom H. Akin, wasn't doing enough about roads.

She beat him in the primary and won the election by 400 votes.

Six weeks later she organized a meeting protesting plans to abandon the bankrupt Rio Grande Southern Railroad. Soon afterward she went to Washington and obtained a mail contract for the road. When other doors closed, she worked out a lend-lease deal for $65,000 to repair the railroad. It ran another 10 years. By then, Betty had her highways.

In 1944, she opposed the late Republican Rep. Robert Rockwell for Congress and "really got my ears pinned back." Two years later, she tried for the State Senate and lost by five votes and a blizzard.

"I had six voters in my car but the snowstorm got so bad I took them home instead of driving to the polling place."

In 1948 and 1950, it was a different story. She was elected state representative.

The infectious humor and nervous laugh of plump, gray-haired Mrs. Pellet have eased many a tight situation in the Colorado House. At the last session she took the microphone after tempers flared over a bitterly debated bill to comment on the "nice treats" another representative had passed around to commemorate his birthday.

"The ladies, in particular, want to say, 'Thanks for the cigars.'"

Ask Mildred

Send your questions to Mrs. Mildred Sparks, county home demonstration agent, courthouse, or to the Snyder Daily News.

As I looked through a magazine I saw a recipe using mussels. I always remembered them in the farm tank back home but did not know they were edible. I have the recipe by wondered if you knew what they taste like ? B. G. L

I have never tasted mussels but a cookbook from Good Housekeeping says they "a delicious but neglected shell fish".

We are planning to buy a home. It has dark green living room walls. My furniture is upholstered in a rich blue. I can't afford new furniture right now. How can I make the combination attractive? My drapes are floral. Mrs. C.

It may be difficult to achieve real color harmony. Without seeing your actual circumstances I would suggest having your living room accessories in a shade that would look good with both blue and green. You might choose a soft yellow or dusty rose or repeat a color that is in your drapery material. One of these colors would be good for wall paint too, if you decide to repaint them.

* * *

Recently I set out some hedge and I am wondering if it should have any fertilizer around it this year. B. P.

Personally I don't think that you would need any fertilizer at all this year. You would probably want to give it plenty water so as to get a good start the first year. Lawn clippings piled around it will help to conserve the moisture. If you really want to use any fertilizer you might get a commercial one that would give you all the necessary nutrients.

* * *

What kind of flowers would you suggest planting in a west window box? S. H.

There are so many beautiful varieties of petunias on the market that I would think that they would most certainly give you a very showy place. Of course there are many others that you would probably enjoy, but I think that you will find that petunias will withstand as much heat etc. as any other one that you could plant.

Mrs. Bill Zimmerman, 134 Milburn Street, is visiting in Fort Worth with her mother and with her brother from New York. Mr. Zimmerman will join her tomorrow.

Girl Scout week, observed in commemoration of the founding of the scout movement by Juliet Low has placed spceial emphasis on scouting activities. The cookie sale, funds from which are divided between area and local budgets, is to continue through Saturday.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The area - wide Girl Scout cookie sale gets underway Monday, and will continuue through Saturday. Advance orders have been taken during the past week, and the troop selling the most cookies will receive a prize. Purchasers are reminded that making change can be a problem for the younger scouts, and it will be helpful if the buyer will have correct change to pay for the cookies when they are delivered.

Cookies will be sold in grocery stores between 3 and 5 o'clock Saturday. Persons who have not been contacted but who would like to purchase cookies may place their orders by calling Mrs. Floyd Boston, Mrs. Ned White or Mrs. J. W. Craven.

TRAINING SCHOOL

Miss Margaret McAdams of Abilene conducted a two-day training school for scout leaders last week. Shell craft was taught Tuesday morning with Mrs. Felix Dooley of Roscoe assisting Miss McAdams. Metal craft and raffia work were taught that afternoon, and "hobo bags" were made. Advanced leadership training was given Wednesday.

COUNCIL MEETING

The Snyder Girl Scout Council met Tuesday night to hear committee reports and an outline of the budget. Council members present were Mrs. C. C. Miller, Mrs. Gene Best, Mrs. Wraymond Sims, Johnny Boren, G. B. Clark, Mrs. Ned White, and Miss Margaret McAdams, area executive.

LEADERS NEEDED

More leaders for Girl Scout troops are urgently needed. There are now 22 troops, and enough eligible girls for that many more if the leaders were available. Anyone interested in working with scouts is asked to contact Mrs. Wraymond Sims, organization chairman. Previous experience in scouting is helpful but not essential.

TROOP 24

Three new members were invested in Troop 24 by Miss Margaret McAdams Wednesday. In observance of the anniversary of the Girl Scouts on that day, Miss McAdams also told the troop something of the life of Juliette Low.

New members invested were Marjorie McDowell, Theda De Fane and Shirleen Morton. Mrs. Elroy Miller and Mrs. Leonard Hall are leaders of the troop.

TROOP 29

Puppets made by members of Troop 29 were used in a puppet show given at the troop meeting last week. Miss Margaret McAdams was a guest at this meeting. Lessons in shell craft will be started at the next meeting, with the scouts starting gifts for Mother's Day.

TROOP 2

Troop 2 held open house for mothers of troop members Friday at North Ward School. Cake, decorated in Girl Scout colors, and cocoa were served, and songs sung.

Mrs. M. V. Cockrell is troop leader, with Mrs. Don Wolfe co-leader.

25 YEARS AGO

(Taken from the files of THE SCURRY COUNTY TIMES for March 17, 1927.)

To say or declare that a town or a city has the finest school building in a certain locality that comprises as much territory as West Texas is a very broad statement. The Times - Signal is usually careful and tries to be consistent in making such statements. We are, therefore, going to give out facts and figures which we believe will prove that Snyder has buildings to equal the finest in West Texas.

A. L. Martin, a Snyder contractor, has completed the latest addition to Snyder's growing school system. Work was begun on the new unit nearly a year ago, and after many hinderances the building was not completed until the past week, when the entire building opened for inspection. Many patrons were taken through the entire building and the Times-Signal feels safe in saying that everyone that has visited it has been surprised at its convenient arrangement, its large and commodious rooms and the fine workmanship employed in its construction.....

Scurry County exhibits of cattle at the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth last week scored high, especially considering that from two bull calves shown and three loads of fed lot steers, one of the calves won blue ribbon and two loads of the cattle won second and third on fed cattle.

The three loads of fed cattle were exhibited by the Fuller Cotton Oil Co. under the feeding and direction of Winston Bros. In the bull calf class, with a very strong class represented by the very best herds of the country, the blue ribbon winner is undoubtedly one of the best animals ever raised in West Texas, and is a tribute to the excellent care and judgment of Winston Brothers in their selection....

The Snyder High School baseball squad is rapidly developing under Coach Oliver and now, as the squad has been cut, they are ready to get down to real work and show Snyder what a good team can do. New men are continually showing good work, and the veterans are going better, especially Curry and Moore. The new men are Borden, a likely candidate for the keystone sack, and Jim Hardy, a southpaw who can really pitch.

Another game was played Tuesday, and a lot of improvement was shown in all the players. Cauble threw them high, wide and handsome, and gave the hitters plenty of trouble with his pitching. Blachard is a good utility at first, and can also play in the outfield.

As it was announced in last weeks issue of the Times - Signal, neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Witherspoon of the Union community, more than 40 in number, and with 41 teams, began to plow and otherwise prepare Mr. Witherspoon's land for planting his crop Mr. Witherspoon and a small son have both been in a Lubbock hospital for several weeks, and Mr. Witherspoon's loyal neighbors and friends availed themselves of the opportunity of doing their sick neighbor a real neighborly, yes, a real Christian act, proving thereby that they are their 'neighbor's keeper.'

The Chamber of Commerce has just received a letter from T. A. White, district manager of the Bell Telephone Co. at Lubbock, assuring that they will, within the next 30 days, receive one of the company's improved telephone pay station booths. This booth is of double glass arrangement, and has an automatic lighting system so that when you go in the booth and close the door, an electric light is switched on for your convenience.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back.

LOST 35 POUNDS

"I have lost 35 pounds taking Barcentrate and my health is so much better," writes Mrs. W. A. Gearhart, 811 Orange Ave., McAllen, Texas.

NURSE LOST 20 POUNDS

"On August 15, 1951, I weighed 178 pounds. I was nursing in a hospital and on my feet long hours. I decided I must lose weight. I heard about Barcentrate and decided to try it. On the first bottle, I lost five pounds; used four bottles and lost 20 pounds. I think Barcentrate is wonderful." Mrs. Willie Chornnec, 274 Koehler Court, San Antonio, Texas.

DOROTHY THOMPSON SAYS

Russians Have Out Pointed Us Again On Political Front

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

This column has long anticipated that at a favorable moment the U. S. S. R. would make a sensational diplomatic move in respect to Germany.

Now the moment is favorable. The French government is paralyzed by refusal of the deputies to vote funds needed for NATO'S army.

The March 10th vote in Wuerttemberg - Hohenzollern - Baden - South Baden showed a slump of German support for the plan of rearming Germany as part of an American - West European bloc.

The unity expressed at Lisbon by the foreign ministers is demonstrated as not representative of the European state of mind.

And now Russia has dropped a diplomatic bomb, by submitting to the U. S. A., Great Britain and France the outline of a proposed peace treaty for Germany, to be the subject of a four-power conference, and then submitted to a conference of all interested states, including a general German government.

On March 11, only the New York Times, through dispatches from its own and the A. P. Moscow correspondent, carried the details of the Soviet proposals.

They are sensational, and cannot be jeered off. If they are rejected out of hand in Washington and London, they will, nevertheless, repercuss in France and Germany, where they are calculated to appeal to a range of sentiment far beyond the Communists.

The proposals again call for unification and neutralization of Germany. But this time neutralization is defined as a pledge not to enter a coalition with any power that had fought Germany in World War II. That would bar her both from the Soviet and American-West European military blocs.

It is proposed, however, to permit her to have limited armed forces for the defense of her neutrality.

The big four must consider conditions favoring the most rapid formation of unified German government, on a basis of freedom of speech, press, religion, political conviction and assembly, and permitting free functioning of democratic parties.

"All Germans, including officers and generals, and all former Nazis, excluding those who are serving sentences for committing crimes, must be granted civil and political rights on a par with all German citizens"

The present frontiers (in the east) are to be accepted.

"Organizations hostile to democracy and peace must not be allowed.

"No limitations whatsoever are placed on the development of a peaceful economy which is to serve the growth and well-being of the German people . . . no limitations in respect of trade with other countries, sea navigation, and access to world markets.

"All occupation armies are to leave Germany within a year of the completion of the treaty and the liquidation of all German military bases"

And — to put the West squarely on the spot — the Soviet note declares itself prepared to consider other proposals.

There is hardly a group in Germany to whom some or most of these proposals will not appeal.

The immediate reaction from western diplomatic representatives was, "There are no new elements in the Soviet project likely to make them more attractive to the western powers."

But — if we have been truthfully informed — there are new elements. First, neutralization proposals would not leave Germany defenseless, but put her in the position of the Swiss. Second, free elections are conceded, with all parties contending equally. Third, all restrictions on the German economy except the manufacture of arms for other states are lifted.

Whether these proposals are attractive to the western powers is irrelevant. The question is their attractiveness to Germans of all social classes. Short of war, West Germany can no longer be controlled by West or East.

Flat rejection of a confernece on there proposals would accelerate the degenerating European situation, putting the West in the position of rejecting even Russian concessions.

Thus, while America hardens her political arteries by exclusive concentration on military strategy, we are being politically out-maneuvered by the Russians on all fronts.

Desparately needed is a real diplomat in Moscow. Mr. George Kennan should take the next plane.

UnlockedDoors Problem Here

An open invitation to burglary and theft is being extended by merchants and shop keepers here who leave their businesses unlocked at night, Ray J. Keenan, police chief, said.

Keenan said that his men find at least one, and some times more, businesses unlocked when they make their rounds shaking door knobs every night.

Hardly a night passes that at least one open or unlocked door is not reported, he said.

When a door is found unlocked or open the business owner or manager is contacted so that he can come check for theft, but much of the time the owner or manager cannot be located, Keenan said.

Keenan suggests that the name and telephone number of store managers be posted on the door so they can be located in cases of emergency.

Mr. and Mrs. Houdini ?

When George Pal, Hollywood producer, announced movie plans based on the life of the famous escape artist, Harry Houdini, he received nationwide nominations for the principal roles by professional magicians. On the west coast, Gerrie Larsen, "The Magic Lady" of TV and theatres, was mentioned for the Mrs. Houdini part after a personal interview with the producer. On the east coast a Paramount talent scout spotted Milbourne Christopher, a world-traveled and TV magician. He was recommended for the Houdini role. Recently Miss Larsen flew east to play a magic date. It was a good opportunity for "Mrs. Houdini" ... maybe ... to meet Mr. Houdini ... maybe.

Surrounded by Houdini mementos, Gerrie Larsen, west coast magicienne, and Milbourne Christopher, eastern prestidigitator, make like Mr. and Mrs. Houdini. She wears a gem studded brooch given to Houdini by the Grand Duke of Russia. Miss Larsen was presented with the heirloom by Mrs. Houdini before she died. The other mementos are from Christopher's valuable private collection.

GALLUP POLL

15 Million Independents Holding Balance Of Power

BY GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Insititute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J. Mar. 15—Independent voters, constituting more than one - fourth of the electorate, will likely decide the outcome of the next presidential election.

Neither of the two major parties has enough votes to win without attracting support from the Independent group. Assuming a turnout of 55 million voters next November, approximately 15 million classify themselves today as Independents in the Institute's latest survey.

What types of people make up this key group which holds the balance of power today? Who are the Independents—and where are they?

The Institute has just completed a special analysis of the Independent group based on a series of surveys in which each person was asked, "In politics, as of today do you consider yourself a Republican, Democrat or Independent?" This analysis shows:

1—Younger people tend to classify themselves as Independents much more frequently than older voters. One - third of adults under age 30, for instance, say they are Independent, whereas fewer than one-fourth of those 50 and over are Independents. Political party convictions tend to become more fixed with age.

2—The Independent voter is more likely to be in the business and professional class, or white-collar worker, than he is to be a farmer or a manual worker.

3—The ratio of Independents is much higher in the big cities than it is in the small towns or rural areas.

4—The Southern states show the smallest ratio of Independent voters, the Far Western state (Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast) the most.

5—No marked difference is found in sex in the number of Independents, the ratio being about equal among men and women.

HAVE LEANED TO DEMOCRATS

In recent presidential elections the Democartic party has been able to attract the majority of Independent voters to the Democratic camp, and this has been one of the reasons for the long string of Democratic victories since 1932.

Here is how Independents voted in the last three presidential races:

	Democratic	Republican
1940	61	38
1944	62	38
1948	57	43

The task for the Republicans, if they hope to win in November, is how to woo the Independent group away from the Democrats. What makes this job especially difficult is that the Republicans have to attract a much larger number of Independents to win than the Democrats do.

APPEAL OF CANDIDATES

What candidates have the greatest appeal to the Independent voter?

Institute surveys have submitted the names of the leading Republican candidates or candidate possibilities to the Independent group and recorded their choices.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, runs far in the lead, with 37 per cent in the latest survey. Sen. Robert A. Taft is next with 17 per cent, then Gov. Earl Warren of California with 13 per cent.

As for Democratic presidential candidates, Sen. Estes Kefauver is the choice most popular with the Independents. He polled 36 per cent in the most recent study, with President Truman running next with 18 per cent, and Sen. Paul Douglas third with 14 per cent.

BY POPULATION GROUPS

The proportion of Independent voters in the various groups in the population is shown in the following table:

It Will Pay In Long Run To Keep Your House Painted Up

By The Associated Press

The Spring clean - up, paint-up, fix-up custom is one of the best things that ever happened to home owners. You can't bask in the sun on the back steps and whittle, letting the house go to rack and ruin, when all the neighbors are busy sprucing up their places. You naturally get busy and before you know it, you've tallied up a neat saving.

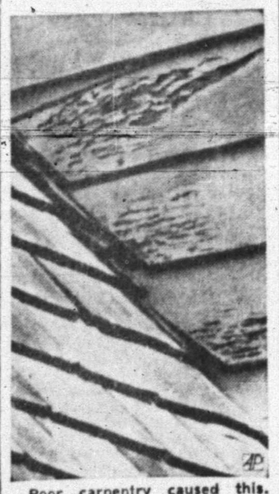

"A good paint job can increase the value of a house by 12 per cent" — that's an old rule-of-thumb among real estate appraisers. There are two reasons:

1. By keeping the weather out, you give the house a new lease on life and make it more comfortable, because you can then sit around and enjoy it without distractions of damp spots here and blisters there.

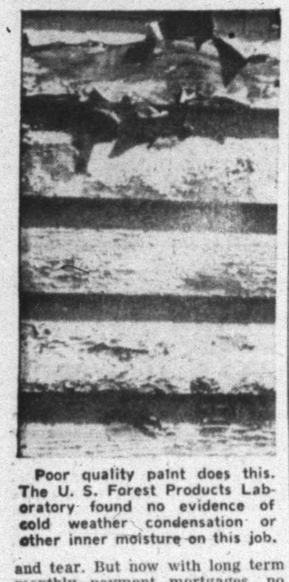

2. By adding to the beauty of the place, you enhance its attractiveness, to others, increasing its resale value, thereby protecting your investment.

• • •

In the old days when mortgages came due every five years, lending institutions used to compel householders to repaint before the mortgage could be renewed. The lenders knew the value of a paint job and took no chances on having the security for a loan undermined by the insidious effects of weather wear and tear. But now with long term monthly payment mortgages, no one can step in and tell a man when to paint. He's on his own.

Poor carpentry caused this. Split clapboard near top has absorbed rain. Other boards, carelessly cut, touch roof. All boards should have been cut slightly shorter and the ends should have been primed. Then adequate flashing would protect paint.

Poor quality paint does this. The U. S. Forest Products Laboratory found no evidence of cold weather condensation or other inner moisture on this job.

And the paint-up season is better than a string around a finger.

Paint manufacturers have accomplished a great deal in making painting almost foolproof, IF—and it's a big if—you follow directions.

Proper application is so important that the American Builder magazines, trade publication for home builders, tells contractors in its current issue: "You can give a good mechanic poor material and he will do wonders with it; but nothing can save good material in the hands of a poor mechanic."

• • •

One of the worst extravagances is to skimp on any exterior paint job. Cheap paint, or trying to spread good paint too far, can cost you more in the long run than if you start right. When a coat of paint goes bad, you can't just paint over it, unless you want to throw dollars to the wind. The original coat will have to be removed — probably burned off — and you'll spend 50 per cent more than if you had started right.

One way to spoil good paint is to add an extra quart of linseed oil when it's not called for, in order to stretch the paint over a wider area. Paint pigments are scientifically proportioned in binder or oil. The binder is the part that weathers away. Excessive dilution spreads the pigments farther than intended, invites weathering, increases chalking and wastes your money.

All loose paint must be removed with a scraper, wire brush or steel wool. Old paint work should be washed, rinsed and dried to remove grease. Detergents of trisodium phosphate, in weak solution, a teaspoonful to a gallon, leave no soapy film. Ordinary washing soda works.

Cracks and nail holes are then filled with putty or wood filler. Small fire-cracks in plaster will fill naturally with a two-coat job. But if you use one of the new one-coat flat oil finishes, it's wise to cover such cracks with spackle.

• • •

A careful painter always removes all rust from nail heads and metal surfaces. Painting over rust never stops its destruction. Sandpaper, emery cloth, steel wool or a wirebrush will remove rust. Then the bare metal is primed with zinc or red lead.

You don't have to remove hardware. Door knobs, hinges, etc. can be coated with petroleum jelly and no paint drippings will stick to them.

No paint is good enough to stick to rotted wood. And disintegrating porch posts, window sills or other members should be replaced and the new wood should be thoroughly primed. Knots have to be kept from bleeding by use of a knot sealer — shellac or alumunium paint — before a priming coat is applied.

• • •

Moisture in wood in a leading offender in causing exterior paint jobs to go bad. It travels through the grain for considerable distances before blisters appear. There have been cases where no leakage has been found and the paint failure was due to condensation. When no provision is made for an insulated house to "breathe" and no vapor barrier is provided against inner walls, moisture works outward and sets up enough pressure to force the paint off.

Getting at the roots of such trouble and then using only top quality paint in accordance with the manufacturer's directions can make your spring clean-up well worth your effort.

St. Patrick's Day Big Affair In Shamrock

SHAMROCK, Tex., March 15 (AP) —On St. Patrick's Day, the people of Shamrock get to their feet for "Wild Irish Rose" as if it were the national anthem.

It wasn't always that way in this little Texas Panhandle town of about 3,500 people. In fact, Shamrock probably numbers no more O'Gormans and Shanahans among its people than any other town of similar size.

But Shamrock does have a lot of citizens who like the idea of letting their hair down on March 17 in honor of Ireland's patron saint.

The first man to get the idea isn't even an Irishman. Glenn Truax came to Shamrock in 1935 and became director of the Shamrock Irish Band. It seemed odd to Truax that a town with a good old Irish name like Shamrock didn't whoop it up a bit on St. Patrick's Day.

The first formal celebration was in 1938. The little town of Shamrock was overwhelmed by about 12,000 visitors—more than treble its population then.

In 1939 the "Donegal Club" was born. Businessmen grew beards and the longest beard won a prize for its owner.

As the years passed, refinements were added: green derby hats, green top hats, a beauty contest, jigs, Irish dresses.

Businessmen print their stationery with green ink—the year around. Most fountain pens hold green ink. Two banks use green checks. Each year the Shamrock Texan, weekly newspaper publishes an extra-large St. Patrick's Day edition—on green paper.

In deference to the Korean conflict, the 1951 celebration was canceled. This year the bloom is on again.

Almost everyone in town helps in some way to put the celebration across. A big Irishman, Norman Patrick, is general chairman this year. He has more committees than you can shake a shillelagh at.

In 1950, the lord mayor of Dublin had a shillelagh flown to Shamrock Mayor Jack Montgomery. This year fresh shamrocks will be flown from Shannon, Ireland, for distribution among visitors here.

VikingsAlways Have One More

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Millionaire turfman Lindsay C. Howard was so serious about his drinking he sometimes dressed for it—in a metal-horned helmet and a chain armor coat—according to evidence introduced at his wife's divorce trial.

The evidence was in the form of photographs showing Howard in the costume of the Vikings, a drinking society whose motto is "A Viking can always drink one more."

Mrs. Judith Barrett Howard charges extreme cruelty and excessive drinking in her complaint. She asks $10,000 monthly alimony and child support and a share of community property.

She said he promised on her last birthday to drop his Viking membership.

Howard testified he drank almost every day but had never been under the influence of liquor.

Reforms Pushed Through For Syrians By Army Dictatorship

DAMASCUS, March 15 (AP) — Syria's military dictatorship is quietly slashing red tape and pushing through scores of reforms previous civil governments only talked about.

Since a sudden Army coup late last year, Syria—historic crossroad between East and West—has been ruled without a Parliament, without a Cabinet, without a President.

An Army colonel, Fawzi Selo, outwardly runs the country as "Chief of State."

He was named by Lt. Col. Adib Shishekly, chief of staff of the Syrian Army. The self-effacing Shishekly is the Army strong man. He ran the coup last December, the second he's staged in recent Syrian history.

In little more than two months of military government, Selo's one-man rule issued more than 110 executive decrees, covering everything from distribution of land to landless peasants to setting up free medicine for the poor.

Executive decrees restricted the wearing of Moslem and other religious habits—which may be a step toward separating the state from Islam—and revised the system of income and inheritance taxes.

Past Parliaments and Cabinets have talked about these reforms, but never did much. The Parliaments always were dominated by the big landowners.

Shishekly dissolved the Parliament and dismissed the Cabinet. The Syrian President, Hashem el Atassi, an old man in his 80s, resigned.

To all indications, many of the reforms instituted under the Army dictatorship have been well received.

Al Hurryia, the newspaper of the "Arab Socialist party," said that Selo, exercising both legislative and executive powers, is "echoing the deep rooted desire of the people to be organized, regardless of the power which accomplishes the organization."

By far the most important of the Selo decrees is a recent one providing for distribution of state-owned land and public domain.

The state owns about 2,300,000 of the total of 8,800,000 hectares of arable land in the country. (A hectare is 2.5 acres.) There are also an estimated 3¼ million hectares of unused arable land and 3,600,000 hectares of pasture in the country.

Informants say the new decree will permit the government to distribute about three million hectares to about 50,000 peasant families. The government is beginning this program with 1,114 villages it owns, chiefly in the districts of Aleppo, Homs and Hama.

The feudalistic landlords and tribal sheiks of Syria oppose this land scheme. Selo's government charges them with unlawfully holding the major share of state-owned lands and is taking these lands.
