O. B. FLEMING

In the last few years the ranks of the old pioneers of Kimble County have been thinning rapidly. One by one they fall away like the autumn leaves.

This week we have to chronicle the passing of one of the most prominent of the number, in the death of O. B. Fleming, which occurred at his residence in Junction, at 10 o'clock a. m., March 14, 1928.

Mr. Fleming was one of the makers of the civilization of this county, and was always a pioneer in the conquering of the West. He was a native Texan. He was born in Gonzales County, January 12th, 1850. He grew up in the environment existing on the frontier of those days, and his boyhood was developed by the troublous times of the Civil War.

On July 6th, 1871, he was married in San Saba County to Miss Elizabeth Jane Black. Those were pioneer days even in San Saba County, as that was five years before Kimble County was organized. He and his good wife lived together for more than half a century, and until her death in Kimble County on October 6th, 1921. During this period of time he moved to Kimble County, first coming to seek a location in 1879 and moving his family here in 1880. He settled on the South Llano River and for forty years lived on the same ranch. During this period of time by industry and economy and thrifty habits he built up an extensive ranch business and became one of the most successful ranchmen in Kimble County. During this period also there were born to him and his good wife, five children: Ed Fleming, Mrs. Jennie Huffman, Mrs. Daisy Deats, Ollie Fleming and Homer Fleming.

All of these children survive him with the exception of Ed Fleming who died in 1922, and all of these children were present at his bedside when the end came. Mr. Fleming contracted a second marriage and this time he went back to San Saba County to select his companion. He was married in San Saba on January 15th, 1928, to Mrs. Emma McMillan, a lady of high standing in that community and who now survives him.

Mr. Fleming was affectionately known to all of his friends as Uncle Bud. For nearly fifty years he had been a familiar figure in the affairs of Kimble County. Very few men in the history of the county had served on as many grand juries, and in the community where he lived on the South Llano, he was for many years a trustee of the public school and was always interested in the educational affairs of the county. He never made mention of his activities, but his donations of time and money to public enterprises and to individuals were far more numerous than the public ever knew of.

Uncle Bud was a modest man, but at the same time one of the strongest men, both mentally and physically, this county ever developed. He had many striking and forceful traits of character. Among these might be mentioned his inherent honesty. He always paid his debts and paid them promptly, and no man can say that he ever profited a single penny at the expense of his fellowman. Another striking characteristic was his absolute truthfulness. His word was typical of the old time pioneer; it was as good as his bond and could be depended upon under any and all circumstances. He was absolutely devoid of hypocrisy and he never deceived his fellowman. His position on all public questions was bold and outspoken. His convictions were firm and usually on the right side of every question. His loyalty to his friends was so strong and sincere as to be beautiful in its application. No friend of his need ever worry for one minute as to his position when it came time to show his devotion.

When he brought his wife

JUNCTION TO HAVE MODERN WATER SYSTEM

At an election held in Junction on Tuesday of this week a bond issue of $55,000 was authorized, by the voters of the city for the purpose of installing a water system.

The election was one of the warmest contests held in the city, due to the varied opinion of our people about how a water system was to be obtained.

The fact that the vote was close does not indicate that no larger majority of our people was in favor of an improved water system, than is shown by the result, but merely indicates a difference in opinion about the method of procedure. There were cast 374 votes, two hundred and six in favor of the issuance of bonds and one hundred and sixty-six against, with two mutilated ballots that did not count either way.

As water is the basic necessity upon which city and community progress rests, we feel sure that Junction will soon have this need accomplished in some manner suitable to its inhabitants and fairly and justly to all concerned.

SHRUBBERY PLANTED AT SCHOOL BUILDING

Last week the agricultural class worked hard to beautify the school building and grounds. Several native trees have been planted for shade. But the most pleasing thing that was accomplished was the planting of shrubbery and flowers. If good fortune is with us, so that all of these plants will live, then we will no longer have our building looking so desolate and lifeless.

The shrubbery was purchased from Mosty Bros. at Kerrville, at a reduced price. The P. T. A. are paying for it. The Junction P. T. A. is a progressive group of people, always making some improvement about the school. Everybody is invited to visit our school to see this new improvement. A school home with flowers and trees about seem more pleasant.

LONDON SCHOOL NEWS

(By Hazel E. Herbst) Spring fever has become a very popular sickness at school. This makes it very difficult for the pupils to keep the golden rule. The teachers are slowly developing the same disease.

We are glad to have a better attendance this month. The pupils should bear in mind that these seven more weeks of school will quickly fly by.

We are proud to have Letha Fae back in school after a two-week's absence on account of pneumonia.

Madie Lee Sorrells was absent from school several days last week. We are told that she accompanied her father and mother to Austin. Her mother was called to the bedside of her dying sister.

Tennis certainly is an interesting game. The pupils seem to take more interest in it than any other game.

We are looking forward to Tuesday when Miss Jessie Weaver's primary pupils will entertain. We are sure it will be a nice program.

Richmond Massie has missed several days of school. We were told that he is planting his watermelon crop. We are wishing him great success and hope he will divide.

The seniors and some of the teachers are planning to take a trip to Old Mexico. Mr. Price, "Louise, where are you going?" Louise, "After a pitcher of water." Mr. Price, "In your night gown?" Louise, "No, in this pitcher."

BISHOP MOORE TO PREACH

Thursday, March 29, Bishop John M. Moore will preach at the Methodist church. Services will begin at 7:30 p. m. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

PECAN DEMONSTRATION AT JUNCTION SCHOOL

Last week Mr. F. J. Willmann and Mr. L. D. Romberg, who are representing the State Department of Agriculture, gave a demonstration at the school, on improving pecan culture. They showed many sides of native and budded pecan orchards. Mr. Romberg lectured while showing the pictures.

From this demonstration it was plainly shown that it pays to bud the native trees. Many of the boys in agriculture became very much interested in the work. They asked many questions, which the two gentlemen gladly answered.

The pupils were shown samples of the various varieties, and one of the boys discovered with great satisfaction, that one of the pecans was labeled W. Z. Miller. Mr. Miller was a former Superintendent of the Junction school and teacher of vocational agriculture. Another boy found a pecan labeled "Oiler." Mr. Oliver is a well-known pecan grower in Kimble County.

Mr. Willmann demonstrated how to patch bud. He used a special knife, made for that purpose, and inserted the bud, then tied it properly. This bandage is to remain for two or three weeks after which it is cut and left to fall off later.

Mr. Romberg stressed the importance of air, sunshine, moisture and food for the pecan tree. He also told the pupils that all other brush should be removed and that the soil should be cultivated. Crops which do not require very much moisture and food may be planted between the trees. Legumes are the most suitable type of plant for that purpose, because they put nitrogen into the soil which the pecan tree might use.

The school enjoyed the visit very much, and so did trustee Skaggs, who saw the entire demonstration. He had his picture made under the best pecan tree in Kimble County. This tree is a giant, and produced 1,170 pounds for Mr. Skaggs one year.

CARELESSNESS ENDANGER LIVES OF OTHERS

A few days ago Mrs. Frank Wilson stepped on a banana peeling, which had been carelessly thrown on the sidewalk. As a result Mrs. Wilson has been confined to her bed with a badly sprained ankle.

Many of us unthinkingly have been guilty of this and other acts of carelessness and in so doing we endanger the lives and limbs of our friends and loved ones.

It is not an unusual thing to see refuse of this kind lying on the sidewalk. So let's get the habit of being a little more considerate of the other fellow.

SERIES OF SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

LEGION SAVING CLUBS

San Antonio—American Legion savings clubs to save up funds for attending the national convention of the World War veterans' organization to be held here October 8 to 12 are being organized throughout the United States, Philip B. Stapp, national convention director, announced here.

The clubs are being formed in co-operation with the Save-To-Travel Association, of New York City, which is composed of railroads, banks, hotels and steamship lines, Mr. Stapp said. Similar savings clubs were organized by the Legion for the Paris convention last year.

The plan, it is believed on the experience of last year, will increase the San Antonio convention attendance very materially. Mr. Stapp said. More than 100,000 persons from every part of the country are expected to come for the meet.

Under the Legion savings plan, as outlined by Mr. Stapp, regular weekly or monthly deposits of fixed sums agreed upon by the Legionnaire or Auxiliary member will be made. Banks members of the Save-To-Travel Association will pay interest on these deposits at their established rates.

Legionnaires will on opening accounts become members of the Save-To-Travel Association's vacation-travel clubs, according to Mr. Stapp. This will provide them with travel information and various privileges and facilities in connection with stopovers not otherwise available.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURES DOUBLED IN SIX YEARS

Expenditures for public schools throughout the country have almost doubled since 1920, as shown by statistics of State school systems, published as United States Bureau of Education Bulletin, 1927, No. 39. Total expenditures during the school year 1925-26 amounted to $2,026,308,190. This included cost of instruction, outlay for new buildings, sites, equipment and administration. It represents an increase over 1924-25 of $80,211,278. In 1913 the cost of public schools per capita of average daily attendance was $38.31; in 1918 it had increased to $49.12; in 1920 to $64.16; in 1922 to $85.76; and in 1926 to $102.05.—Frank M. Phillips in School Life.

AN HOUR OF MUSIC

Saturday evening the Choral Club of Westmoreland College, San Antonio, Texas, presented a splendid program at the Methodist church. The church was filled to capacity while many who could not find seats, stood inside the building and others outside during the rendition of the program.

The program was well planned to afford an evening of entertainment and included chorus work, octet work, readings and solo performances.

The large crowd evidenced their delight at this musical treat by hearty applause and an insistent demand for encores, and also a liberal contribution.

The splendid performance given by the young ladies is evidence of the training that is provided at Westmoreland College.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET A BIG SUCCESS

The monthly meeting of the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce was held at the court house in Junction last Saturday night. A large crowd was in attendance, quite a number being from the country.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Judge Weaver H. Baker. Several matters of importance were taken up and discussed. The most important of which was the proposition of the State Highway Department to tarviate the "Old Spanish Trail" from the Kerr County line to the North Llano bridge.

Judge J. B. Randolph outlined the proposition in detail, and it was very enthusiastically received by the property owners whose land is adjacent to the "Old Spanish Trail" highway. The only condition annexed to the proposition as outlined by Judge Randolph was that the Commissioner's Court of Kimble County widen the "Old Spanish Trail" highway from sixty to eighty feet.

The property owners present signified their assent to this proposition by coming forward and signing an agreement to donate to the State so much of their respective lands as are necessary for the execution of this plan.

The question of forming a Stockman's Protective Association was deferred until a future meeting.

The entertainment provided on this occasion was the most sumptuous and gratifying that we have experienced in a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

It consisted of a delicious and well served luncheon, together with excellent music rendered by the Chamber of Commerce band, and last, but by no means least, the program of the Choral Club of Westmoreland College from San Antonio. This club consists of about twenty winsome and talented young ladies, who are exceptionally well trained for their parts. It was a rare treat that was appreciated by everyone present.

The next meeting will be held on the third Saturday night in April, and everyone interested in the Chamber of Commerce is urged to be present at this meeting.

HOUSTON PHYSICIAN JUNCTION BOOSTER

Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Stokes, Mrs. J. H. Drummond, all of Houston, and Mrs. Stokes's sister, Dr. Mary Van Nuys of Lebanon, Indiana, spent the weekend at the Fritz Hotel.

Dr. Stokes has been spending his vacations here for the past five years. Both he and his wife are enthusiastic boosters for Junction. Dr. Stokes is anxious to see Junction develop into the playground that it should be and to further this end he contributed to the fish hatchery fund several years ago and is also a stock holder in the Fritz Hotel.

Dr. Mary Van Nuys is a sister of Mrs. Stokes and has been visiting Mrs. Stokes and the Dr. in Houston. That Dr. Van Nuys might see the hill country this week-end trip was planned and Dr. Van Nuys expressed herself as being delighted at the beauty of the scenery.

A trip to 700 springs was on their program while here and an expedition in the Schreiner reserve.

A card was received from Dr. Stokes since his return to Houston saying that "the trip was delightful in every way."

BASKET BALL GIRLS SCORE ANOTHER VICTORY

The Girl's Basket-ball team won another victory Saturday when they defeated Rocksprings with the score of 44-12.

We are planning to have a big game this coming Saturday—but as nothing is definitely settled, we ask you to watch for announcements and come out and help us win.

LONDON LOCALS

Mr. T. J. Lang, postmaster at Yates was on our streets Saturday. Tullie is always in good humor, with a kind greeting for all.

Mr. Bober made his usual trip to visit the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth last week.

Mr. Arch Lewis, formerly of Denison but now located at San Angelo, visited his father Saturday for a few hours, their first meeting in 24 years.

Mrs. Claude Harrell and baby of Cross Plains is visiting Mrs. Harrell's mother, Mrs. I. W. Ellis, this week.

We are informed that Jack Weldon and Miss Callie Jackson were married at Junction Sunday and given an old time charivari party Sunday night at or near London.

The cold wave we fear has done material damage to the fruit crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Weaver sat up all night the night of the 17th and kept fires burning near their fruit trees. We believe this was wise.

Mrs. R. L. McKinney has returned from Fort Worth where she has been taking medical treatment.

Master Don Fritz happened to the painful accident of breaking his arm Friday. Don's donkey slipped from under him.

Mr. S. H. McCobb and J. W. Robbins of Yates were shaking hands with friends in our town Monday.

Mrs. M. M. Nelson is suffering from very painful bites and bruises she received when attacked by an infuriated hog. Mrs. Nelson was passing by the animal near her young and it is supposed the attack was made in defense of her young.

The weekly cream sales in London run from 50 to 100 gallons, and we are informed that E. P. Furr & Sons bought $101.20 worth of eggs last week besides other firms buy eggs for the market.

In company with Mr. R. B. Furr we visited the home of Mr. Joe Hardesty Sunday. There we found a quiet, well regulated home, the farm nearly all fresh plowed for a new crop, about three acres growing to alfalfa, a nice little flock of sheep and a recent sale of sheep of $500.

We found a few turkeys and a fine flock of chickens. About 200 young chicks with about 500 eggs in incubator and under hens. This is my idea of a happy, prosperous, contented home. It does not require millions in order to succeed, but an honest, well regulated self-supporting contented family is a success.

We made mention last week of progress of the school. By voluntary statements and without intending to explain why the London school was moving so smoothly school Superintendent R. A. Sallee explained to us in a few words why everything was moving so satisfactory. Here is his explanation: "I have one of the most agreeable and co-operating board of teachers to be found anywhere; they could not be better." This explains it all. If the entire community would agree and co-operate in all things useful just as this superintendent of the London school and his board of teachers are doing we could do many things that need doing. We could build a teacherage on the school grounds, we could seat the Community Hall and we could install a fire-fighting system that would meet our present needs. All these things need doing and are within our reach if we would only work together for their accomplishment, and until we do work in harmony, and all move out to do whatever is in our reach London will remain just a spot on the highway. I know it takes capital to do many things we would like to see done, but no community ever made progress who waited for capital to do all they wished to do at once. The progressive community makes progress by doing the thing now that they are able to do and continue to do other things as they can.

REMEMBER THE GARCIAS

(By Emmett T. Hensley)

West of the Pecos a soft, balmy, night breeze was blowing, while overhead countless stars twinkling in the clear atmosphere. From somewhere out in the night there came the laughing bark of a coyote, which was carried far down the valley to echo and re-echo against the bordering mountains, but this soon died away and all was quiet save for the croaking of frogs in Lone Wolf tank.

Snoop Durston sat upon the tank dam and listened intently. At the base of the tank dam, and within easy reach, his horse, tied to a scrubby mesquite, stamped impatiently. Snoop also was growing impatient, and just a little more nervous, as each passing moment failed to bring Shorty McCabe. He arose and began to throw clods into the tank as he muttered, "Can't hear a thing for them goggle-eyed frogs." There were little splashes in various parts of the tank, as members of the amphibious choir dove for safety.

Snoop's nerves would not permit him to remain inactive; he began pacing back and forth. Gazing up at the stars he said softly, "The night of nights, with me all set to hit the trail with Dona. Gosh, ain't I a lucky guy? Whole town full of dogies in fancy chaps, just rearing to do the grand march with her, and she falls for me—a sheep man. I always knew there was virtue in sheep," he finished in an exalted tone.

For a moment he stopped to listen, and wonder why Shorty was late. Time for him to be there if everything had turned out as they had planned, but if it had not—it made him shudder to think what might happen if old Garcia caught Shorty in the act of eloping with his daughter. Old Garcia was a bad Mexican. There were tales circulated around the bunk house about him. Some claimed that he had once been a bandit in Mexico, but Snoop was not certain that it was true. However, he did know that Garcia was a crack shot with a six gun, and that his temper was uncertain.

What would Shorty do if caught? Again and again Snoop asked himself this question, each time arriving at the same conclusion: While Garcia's gang of greasers were stringing Shorty up he would confess that he was stealing Dona for another; then Garcia would come after him, and if caught, no doubt he would swing on the limb with Shorty.

There came sounds of a horse loping toward the tank. Snoop untied his cayuse and mounted, ready for instant flight, should the horsemen prove to be other than Shorty. He was undetermined to stay or run. Then the horseman appeared. It was Shorty; Snoop knew the pinto. Forgetting himself, he let out a yell of relief as Shorty brought the pinto up in a sliding stop.

"Shut up, you blabber-mouthed fool!" Shorty ordered angrily. "Do you want a funeral in place of a wedding? Garcia could have heard that squawk clear up on the head of Live Oak."

"Ain't everything all right?" Snoop inquired anxiously. "Everything but you. Come on, let's ride. I want to get this wedding off my hands so I can live peacefully again."

Thirty minutes later they halted in a growth of mesquites, where the minister and Dona, who was dressed in a riding habit with a heavy black veil drawn over her face, were waiting.

Snoop had an impulse to grasp his bride and smother her with kisses, but changed his mind when Shorty urged, "Come on, Preacher, and let's get this over with. It don't feel any too healthy around her. Everybody keep quiet. Ain't no use in anybody talking but the preacher, and he don't need to talk loud."

As Dona silently came to Snoop and took his hand, he felt his heart miss a few beats. Then the minister was speaking. "My children, heretofore it has not been my policy to approve of secret marriages, but unusual circumstances seem to confront you, and upon this occasion I feel justified in performing such a ceremony."

Out there in the silent night the minister was making them husband and wife. Snoop felt very nervous, yet elated over the fact that Dona was being made his. The chirping of a cricket and the minister droning out the ceremony were the only sounds.

With a startling crash a pistol shot rang out in the still night, and a bullet clipped through the trees overhead! A fusillade of shots followed, accompanied by a wild yell and the roar of many running horses' hoofs pounding on the turf.

"My God, the Garcias! Ride, Snoop, ride for your life!" yelled Shorty McCabe.

Snoop needed no urging. He sprang at his horse, missed the stirrup and fell sprawling across the saddle on his belly. With boot toes and fists he was beating a tattoo on the cayuse's side, but having forgotten to untie the horse before he mounted, he was not making any time. Shorty cut the rope as he cried, "Ride, Snoop, ride for your life!"

Feeling the taut rope grow slack, and being urged by Snoop's frailing fists and boots, the cayuse sprang away and vanished into the night. Snoop's posture was not graceful, but he was riding—riding away from old Garcia and his gang of greasers. This was of far more importance to Snoop than his awkward pose. As the cayuse was carrying him swiftly away, he heard loud curses in Spanish, and a cry, "Remember the Garcias," drifted out to him.

In front of the Cotton Wood saloon a row of saddle horses, wearing the Circle L Brand, stood with drooping heads and half closed eyes. They showed no sign of life except to occasionally switch their tails or stamp at some persistent fly. Their riders were inside lined along the bar, cooling themselves with ice cold beer and trying to forget that the thermometer on the wall was registering ninety.

One of the boys hugged his partner as he said in saccharine tones, "Oh, Dona, haven't you a little love for a poor waddie like me? Please, darling," he kneeled on the sawdust floor and stretched his arms upward in an imploring manner, "don't tell me that you have thrown yourself away on a sheep herder."

Everyone roared with laughter, some slapping their chaps with the palms of their hands, others leaned on the bar convulsed. Suddenly the laughter died as spontaneously as it began. Old man Durston was blocking the doorway, and behind him was his son, Snoop. There was something in Durston's eyes that suggested a thing quite opposite to humor.

The room seemed charged with silence, and something else not so easily explained. Maybe it was caused by the look in Durston's eyes, or it might have been the rigid manner in which he held his hand on his hip. Anyway, it was Durston who snarled, "Laugh, d— you! Laugh once more and I'll send someone scuttling to hell!"

No one laughed, for as Charlie Lindsey's boy said afterward, "It looked as if one might have awakened laughing in Saint Peter's face."

It was the bartender who first recovered his poise. "Mr. Durston, I don't want to interfere in your private affairs, but before you do something regrettable I'd like to have a few words with you."

Durston looked at the bartender and saw nothing in his face other than a friendly smile. Holstering his gun he and Snoop started toward the back room. No one was sure just who it was that sniggered; some say that it was Bo West. Old Durston wheeled and the gun was again in his hand. "Who laughed?" he roared. "Speak up, some of you yellow bellies! Show some guts, and laugh once when a man's back ain't turned! You won't talk, huh. All right, think this over. If any of you were with that old greaser, Garcia, last night, you might go tell your garlic-eating friend that Snoop and me come for the bride. You half baked punchers can't run a Durston's wife off and get away with it."

He might have lectured the boys much longer, had not the bartender interferred in a most diplomatic manner, and gently urged him to follow into the back room. The bartender gave another one of his sympathetic smiles as they sat down at a table. "Now, Mr. Durston," he began, "you are mistaken about Garcia being mixed up in this affair. He had nothing to do with it, and I would hate to see you-all spill some needless blood."

"Explain yourself," Durston demanded. "To be sure," he agreed affably. "Well, the best place to begin is at the first. This whole affair of Snoop's started as a joke."

"You mean, you mean—" Snoop stammered, "that them letters wasn't written by Dona?" "Exactly that," the bartender nodded. "Some of the boys decided to have a little fun, so they got Bo West, who was a sign painter before he hit the booze, to fake them letters from Dona to you. The rest of it just came in the natural course of events; the wedding, and the seeming appearance of old Garcia. Honest, Mr. Durston, the boys didn't mean no harm."

"But Dona—she was there last night," Snoop insisted. "I beg your pardon, Snoop, it was Charlie Lindsey's boy." "There's just one more point," said old Durston. "I ain't got no kick against anybody but Snoop for being such a d— fool, except that minister. Any minister that would do a stunt like that ought to be shot. Where is he?"

"Minister, h—" the bartender blurted. "He is probably tending his bar over in Marta if he has had time to get home."

Frank Lockhart, whom Barney Oldfield calls "the greatest automobile driver in history," drove his car 225 miles an hour on a Florida beach, lost control and shot out into the ocean.

Such speed in automobiles is valueless, because it cannot be used. Trying for it is as unwise as some "stunts" that flyers do, emphasizing the danger of flying, instead of emphasizing its safety, as they should.

It is to be hoped that Colonel Lindbergh, the most important young man to his country, will realize the danger and folly of unnecessary risk.

A serious accident to Lindbergh would set flying back ten years in America. That is not what he wants.

Great Britain suppresses a moving picture showing how Nurse Edith Cavell was shot as a spy by the Germans. Britain wisely decides such a picture would only revive and intensify international bitterness.

Edith Cavell was guilty under military law. Allied nations executed women for crimes no more serious. But the "moral" circumstances were different. Military stupidity, that governed Germany and killed Edith Cavell, governs Germany no longer.

The Argentine Republic wanted to rewrite the United States tariff to compete with American farmers. But the Argentine didn't have Balfour as representative, so this country said no. We can handle little republics. Britain is too much for us.

Last year, this country spent $600,000,000 for radio products, machines and parts. Nineteen twenty-eight will see the first radio Presidential campaign. The world changes swiftly, adapting itself readily to new methods. Radio employs 300,000 people, and broadcasting reaches 90,000,000.

An athlete, breaker of records, with big lungs and chest expansion, was amazed when the life insurance doctor told him "you are a bad risk. We can't take you." Next to no exercise, the dangerous thing is over-exercise. You can develop muscles almost without limit. But you have only one heart, and it will stand only so much.

Promoters of South American investments inform you that the population of Rio de Janeiro has increased nearly a million in eight years, Buenos Aires more than a million in fourteen years. Agricultural population has increased enormously in South America.

All that is due to our immigration laws which kept out of the United States the white European populations that we need, the men and women that made this country what it is. Shutting out such immigration, we build up other nations.

The former Kaiser, who must have done some hard thinking in the last few years, tells Sylvester Viereck, "today the center of gravity which determines world power has shifted to the United States. America is master of the world."

America probably COULD be master of the world. But desire that mastery would be foolish. To be master of ourselves, mind our business, develop this country and increase the well-being of the average man, is a big enough task.

The Prince of Wales shakes hands, by mistake, with a waiter, best dressed man, probably, at a business men's dinner. "But, Sir, I'm only a waiter." "I don't see that that makes any difference," says the Prince shaking hands over again.

The tyrant was annoyed when Solon told him there could be good government "only when kings become philosophers, or philosophers become kings." The young Prince leaves philosophy to professors. But he knows that royalties achieve permanency by becoming democratic.

The conference at Havana is over. And, as Mr. Rogers says, Uncle Sam is to be congratulated on going into a conference without losing anything; no battleships scrapped to oblige nations that couldn't afford to compete; no silly promise not to fortify Guam, or do anything without the consent of Britain, France or Japan.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Hat Styles of the Centuries
England knew little about the uses of hats until after the Norman conquest, and in the twelfth century the "nobels of the lande, mett at Clarendom", sporting "hattes of biever."

Broad brimmed hats, the lower crown, and monstrous-sized hats ornamented with feathers in which the Cavaliers disported themselves; cocked hats, Quaker hats, silk hats and slouch hats, have all had their time and place in hat styles that have been known to change with the moons. Every generation has produced unique and distinctive head decorations.

Women have reveled in hats that sometimes were plain, and sometimes were flowered; and they have enjoyed their Gainsborough's, as well as their simple walking hats, and rich dress hats.

Really, there is something very lovely about women's hats of today, and the dainty felts with ornaments in metals and jewels are most fetching. Pyralin buckels are extremely popular and give a splendid tone of attractiveness to the finest productions in new hats.

If you want to see something funny ask your mother, or mother-in-law, for a full-length picture of herself taken twenty-five years ago. Nothing in the museums can compare with the women's hats and dresses of that brief gone-by period.

OUR MOTOR MOLOCH

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company estimates that motor vehicles last year killed more than 25,000 persons in the United States and injured at least 1,000,000 more. Since 1920, fatalities have increased 67 per cent. The situation is growing steadily worse. And the worst feature of all is that children between the ages of five and ten years furnish the major portion of the victims.

Here is a problem for each community to wrestle with, and one worthy of the strongest effort. Many, perhaps most, of the deaths were caused by carelessness, lack of proper precautions. Too many drivers and too many pedestrians are trying to beat the other fellow.

Industry has cut down materially the number of preventable accidents through safety campaigns of one kind or another and through applying common sense to remove certain dangers. Now the motor vehicle is demanding a greater toll of victims than the machinery of factories and mills. Something must be done to curb the appetite of the motor Moloch, and now is the time to start.

SLOGAN FOR NEW VICTORY SIX

Thousands of rides in the Victory Six are already resulting in thousands of slogans in the $20,000 contest of Dodge Brothers, Inc., this month to find the slogan that best describes the performance of the car. The contest closes at midnight, March 31.

From every state in the union and many foreign countries, letters are pouring into the Dodge Brothers Detroit plant. Many are from Victory Six owners, but the great majority are from owners of other cars who have received a demonstration in a Victory Six from a dealer or salesman. Any one is eligible to enter the contest except employees of Dodge Brothers, their dealers, service men and their families. The only requirements are that slogans must be submitted after a demonstration in a Victory Six, must be ten words or less in length, and must be mailed not later than March 31. A total of 708 prizes will be awarded, with a first prize of $1,000.

One of these days people will stop talking about the white collar job and refer to it more appropriately as the two-pants suit position.

IVY ECHOES

School spirit is excellent this week; however, all were disappointed last Friday because we could not have our play.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hight were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hight, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Pearl visited Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Jones Sunday.

Joe Bailey Grobe was absent Friday on account of illness. Jewel Shearer was the guest of Marvin Lange Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pearl were callers on Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hight Sunday.

The play which the Ivy school postponed last Friday night on account of bad weather, will be given this Friday night at the Ivy school house. Everybody is invited to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dodd and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Walker Sunday.

T. B. Pearl keeps improving his fences and roadways on his farm. The road which leads to the Ivy community isn't so bad now. It's just a beautiful scenic drive. Come over and try it.

Paul Kane was absent from school Monday helping with the goat shearing which is in progress at the ranch.

Ivy school will be represented at the Interscholastic County meet. We hope to win some honors.

School watchword for this week: "What will you do with this blue day?"

VIC URBAN IN LIMELIGHT

Howard Payne College has had one man, who tried for Olympic honors about four years ago, and again this year she has another who stands as good a chance to make a name for himself in the trials for the Olympic races as did the other in years past. The student and athlete that will probably be in the Olympic tryouts this year is Lawrence "Vic" Urban of Junction, Texas.

"Vic," as he is known to all of his friends, is a true athlete, and one that has a good chance of making Uncle Sam's Olympic Track Team in the discus throwing event as most any lad in the United. Vic's record of 146 feet and 6 inches ranks him as fifth in the National A. A. U. This is an honor that few have achieved, and few will achieve, and is one that any person should be proud of having bestowed upon him.

In all probability, Vic will make a trial for the United States track team this summer. The first will be held in Dallas sometime during the first week of June, and will be known as the Southern Olympic Tryout, and it is possible that Vic will enter this tryout, and should he win in Dallas, the next place that he would be given a trial would probably be in Massachusetts, where the Olympic Tryout for the entire United States are usually held. Vic has a good chance to make all of these trials, and will probably start work soon with that object or goal in his mind.

Only four years ago, Howard Payne was stirred and interested in another young man who was entered the Olympic trials, and this year she will again team with interest, waiting the report that will come about her second Olympic candidate. Vic stands a good chance, and should be given as much encouragement to participate in these tryouts as possible.—Yellow Jacket.

LAF-A-LOT CLUB

Friday evening Miss Ve Maddox and Mrs. Clay Maddox were hostesses to the Laf-a-lot Club and a number of friends at the Hodges Hotel. Bridge provided the evening's entertainment. The St. Patrick's Day motif was carried out with green shaded lights, pretty green tallies and shamrock plate favors.

Miss Flora Mae Spiller and Lanan Bissett made high scores in the bridge game. Their awards were respectively, green bottle filled with bath salts and a shamrock shaped box of candy. Miss Tottie Martin was consoled with a green score pad and Clifford Hamer with a green backed address book.

more food space FRIGIDAIRE provides greater food space than other electric refrigerators of equal size. This is because the highly efficient and economical frost coil, an exclusive Frigidaire feature, occupies less space than the brine tank previously used, permitting greater food storage capacity in a cabinet of any given size. Larger supplies of perishable foods can be carried at one time. Greater food capacity, quieter operation, freedom from vibration, lower operating cost, a wider range of models, the more precise engineering and manufacturing methods of General Motors, greater beauty of design, proven dependability in service—these are the things that have made Frigidaire the choice of the overwhelming majority of users of electric refrigerators. ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

"Light Refreshments"
 Just a plain chat between ourselves—so let's be honest with each other. Hardly is there a party—and certainly not a "lodge doin's," or a church festival—no, nor a meeting of the "board," without the universal refreshments served. Let us see about this:
 I confess that, in spite of my better judgment, I am another of the imbeciles that go and partake to fulsome! I can scarcely get over the effects of one "refreshment" debauch, till another, equally urgent, requires my whole-hearted submission. And the menu comprises every dynamic indigestible that can be created by inventive genius in the fancy culinary art. Oh, the demons that are camouflaged by the large dab of whipped cream! Whenever I tackle a copious serving of this fuzzy staple, I begin to shudder within myself, at the possibility of what may lurk beneath! I have put into my helpless interior on occasion, enough indigestible dope to knock Methuselah cold in one round.
 They don't serve drinks at our sociables. Lemonade would be plebian. Hard cider, coarse and contrary to morals—but coffee, yes. The most dynamic of coffee. I am just now recovering from the effects of a good-fellowship party at our church, six-thirty to ten p. m. We had veal-leaf. (If there is anything worse to be eaten after dark, I don't know what it is). There was spaghetti—I detected five ingredients by my acute sense of taste—and thought of sixteen more—perhaps imaginary, but it was fine stuff. We each had something like one-half pound of sugar artfully concealed in other tempting goodies.
 Every time we go on a debauch of this kind—inocent—even religious if you will, we are one day nearer the Great Beyond. The great Apostle-teacher enjoined "temperance in all things."
 Cities and towns which have electric light and power service from transmission lines now number about 975.
 The oddest thing about secrets of success is that they're told everywhere.
 Texas produces about $300,000,000 worth of minerals every year.

DR. FRANK CRANE SAYS—

The Comic Strip
 A recent article on "The Compensatory Function of the Sunday 'Funny Paper,'" by Harvey C. Lehman and Paul A. Witte, is at hand.
 It gives a very ingenious explanation for the popularity of the comic strip. It gives as a trait of character in almost every one the desire to "escape."
 "In the world of 'actuality,'" it continues, "the child is obliged to conform to certain conventions, to treat other persons with a reasonable amount of decorum, to abide by the consequences of his acts when he defies natural law or human authority. In the 'funnies' he will defy every law and he will do so with impunity."
 "Thus the child who looks at the Sunday 'funnies' is enabled to identify himself with the most intrepid adventurer or the most resolute law-defying citizen or the capturer of such a criminal. On the other hand, he may identify himself with the serial-motion-picture type of hero who wins out over apparently insuperable odds."
 All of us are aware of constant limitations in our ordinary life. We are unable to thwart these restrictions, so we seek numerous and varied forms of gratification of our impulses.
 Certainly the comic strip does not excel in showing actual life conditions nor in its artistic quality. It only suggests human characteristics in exaggerated form, but they are naïvely and crudely presented and so direct and unmistakable that even the most obtuse cannot fail to recognize them.
 The pamphlet says that in the Sunday funny section the child often takes many risks which in real life he would not think of taking.
 "In some cases he succeeds by resort to magic. At other times he is pictured as falling squarely upon the face or being severely burned with fire or scalding water. He falls at a great distance or he is closely pursued by dangerous wild animals. He knows no decorum. He puts his cigar ashes into an upturned silk hat, or into the goldfish bowl. He rests his feet on his neighbor's lap. He endures no suppression. He has complete freedom of self-expression."
 This is at least an ingenious explanation of the popularity of the comic strip, as the value of any entertainment, theatrical or otherwise, is its escape value.

HOME DECORATION HINTS

Every woman wants to know how to capture the charm of color in her home! Miss Agnes Foster Wright, a famous authority on interior decoration effects, has written a magazine article, under the title of "The Colorful Bedroom," which is being released. It is an interesting contribution, and in the article, she says:
 "To capture the charm of color in your home, to select, discard, combine, contrast the infinite variety of shades which are at your command—this is a part of the art of interior decoration."
 "At the risk of seeming professorial I am going to give a few simple rules for the use of color in the bedroom, rules which I have found to be of practical value in my own work."
 "First, take into consideration the exposure of your bedroom. The north room must have bright, warm colors. The bedroom which is normally flooded with sunlight should have more subdued shades."
 "Second, take stock of the furnishings and decorations which you already have, or are planning to use in redecoration. See if it will not be possible to make use of your present rug, perhaps your curtains, certainly the better part of your furniture."
 "Third, fix some one color, or a combination of two colors which will be the dominating color of the room. Perhaps that color will be in the rug, the wallpaper, the color you are planning to apply to the bed."
 "Fourth, when you have selected the dominating tone and have fixed it either in finish or wallpaper or rug or curtains, build the rest of your color scheme around that dominating tone. Let harmonizing shades predominate with one spot of contrast."
 "Many color combinations for different types of bedrooms are simple, practical, and easy to execute. I recommend that you get a Duco color chart and plan your decorating with the aid of these rich shades."
 "Here is a suggestion for a colorful boudoir to be finished in this material. Have pale green walls and yellow curtains sprinkled with small flower motifs in rose and green. The woodwork should be of gray green obtained by mixing Nile green with twenty-five per cent French gray. The beds may be of French gray bordered with a thin stripe of coral rose and the dressing table of coral rose with skirt of rose brocade or taffeta. Have the chairs of French gray, with small rose cushions with green flower patterns. Wall and ceiling lamps with yellow shades, and boudoir lamp with rose shade, complete the ensemble."
 Few things are as expensive as those we try to get for nothing.

Agricultural products contribute about 300,000 car loads of freight annually to the railroads in Texas, wheat being one of the leading commodities.
 About 4,000 "combine" wheat harvesters are in operation in the Texas wheat fields in addition to thousands of smaller harvesters.

 The state of Texas distributed last year about $20,500,000 to the public school based on an apportionment of $15 for each scholastic.

OUR IMMENSE OIL RESERVES

The prolongation of the present "Age of Petroleum" for an indefinite period is forecast by two recent reports on our oil reserves, one by an independent investigator and the other by the United States Government. Writing in the "Saturday Evening Post" Isaac F. Marocsson estimates that our total reserve of liquid petroleum from actually proved sources is nearly thirty billion barrels. At the present rate of production this would last thirty-three years.

The Federal Oil Conservation Board, which has been making a study of oil shale deposits in the United States, estimates that from this source alone there are ninety-two billion barrels of recoverable oil. Judging from Mr. Marocsson's figures there will be no need of getting oil from shale for a long time to come, although the petroleum industry is already studying methods of developing shale deposits when the time comes for their utilization. A vivid picture of the immensity of our petroleum resources is furnished by the computation that the oil in these reserves definitely located would fill a lake six feet deep and about sixty-three miles square, with a total surface nearly half the area of Lake Ontario. Production of crude oil in the United States last year broke all records with a grand total of 894,435,000 barrels reported by the Bureau of Mines, an increase of nearly 124,000,000 barrels over the output of 1926 which was the highest in history. The fact that less than three per cent of the total production, or 25,000,000 barrels of oil, was used last year for heating homes indicates the immense store upon which the owner of an oil heater can draw. This steady increase in production and in definitely located oil reserves explains why the price of fuel oil has not gone up during the past seven years, notwithstanding rapid increase in the use of oil burners to warm the American household.

CHEVROLET DEALER ATTENDS MEETING

The Chevrolet Motor Company in 1928 is planning to break all production and sales records in the history of the Company according to C. G. McDonald, local Chevrolet dealer, who recently returned from Houston where he attended the annual Chevrolet sales meeting in the Scottish Rite Cathedral.

Nearly five hundred Chevrolet dealers and associate dealers, who attended the great sales meeting, heard Mr. H. J. Klingler, General Sales Manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, sound the keynote of the biggest campaign ever undertaken by Chevrolet. Mr. Klingler outlined the plan for the sale of more than a million units in 1928.

"Never before did a Chevrolet meeting create such unbridled enthusiasm as was displayed over the Chevrolet prospects for the year," Mr. McDonald declared.

Regional and Zone officials of the Chevrolet Motor Company assisted Mr. Klingler in the conducting of the meeting which took the form of the most comprehensive sales presentation of its kind ever made by an automobile manufacturer. Talks were illustrated in the form of playlets, depicting the proper procedure to be followed in the successful operation of a retail automobile business.

Immediately following the meeting the dealers were guests of the Chevrolet Motor Company at an elaborate banquet in the Rice Hotel.

An added feature of the meeting was an address by Mr. Felix Doran, Jr., who is Regional Sales Manager, and Mr. G. H. Kavanaugh, Houston Zone Sales Manager.

The Houston meeting was the next to last of a series of forty-three similar meetings being held this Winter and Spring from coast to coast.

A home-study course on "the family and marriage" is announced by the University of North Carolina extension division as part of its program in parental education. Membership in a class conducted this winter in New Bern is composed of business and professional men and women.

CLEANLINESS A BASIS OF PUBLIC HEALTH

The old-time health officer, who went about tacking up quarantine signs—if, indeed, there ever was such a person—has disappeared. Today the efficient public health commissioner, delegating this duty to subordinates, not only enforces the sanitary code but seeks to guard the citizens of the community against the danger of disease before it can attack them. The present "health-consciousness" of the average well-informed American may be credited in large part to the efforts of public health officers to teach them how to protect themselves.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the American Public Health Association, calls attention to this new emphasis on education in a recent statement made public by Cleanliness Institute.

"The enforcement of the health laws and the sanitary code will always be a part of the health commissioner's duties, but should never form the major part," declared Dr. Bundesen. "There are other far more potent ways of improving the community health. One of the first things that suggests itself is cleanliness. Cleanliness is an important basis for good health. This means a clean body, inside and out, a clean mind with clean thoughts, clean clothing, clean food and clean environment. These are primary, indispensable factors for health."

"Cleanliness is easy of attainment, involving only small expenditure at most. Soap and water are not expensive. Flies and other insects which frequently are the carriers of disease make their home in filth. The modern health officer brings home to the public, in striking phrases and pictures that can be understood, the lesson that in dirt and filth lie the way to disease."

"One of the most powerful and most practical methods of improving and safeguarding the health of a city is through education—education in cleanliness. Educate the public in the laws of health and sanitation, and in a surprisingly short time, there will follow a reduction in morbidity and mortality."

CHILDREN SHOULD KNOW—

Old Tricks in New Ways
Ever since the days when we were little children and went to birthday parties, we have always cherished a secret affection for the decorative "cracker," constructed along the lines of the conventional tangle that popped with a mild but satisfactory explosion when pulled hard at both ends.

It contained all sorts of worthless but fascinating things, such as unbecoming paper chap-seaux, tiny laden charms and prophetic bits of doggerel printed on infinitesimal wisps of paper.

The old and honored institution of the "cracker" as a party favor is still in force, varied now and then by new and unusual types of the commodity.

The latest aid to the zest and pep of a real rousing party is a small cornucopia of gold or silver paper gathered into a rosette at the wide end and emitting a shower of glistening red or green or yellow Cellophane streamers.

A paper cap concealed among the sparkling bunch of shreds is the means by which a hole may be blasted in the side of the cornucopia exposing the usual hat, charm and verse. These dainty favors give a decorative and unusual touch to the festive boards.

and children to this pioneer country, it was at a time when the Indians had scarcely ceased their raiding activities when every inhabitant realized that a re-occurrence of such might come at any time. Then there was the peril of the bad-man and the adventurer and the outlaw. This broken country furnished a safe refuge for such in early days, but Uncle Bud shrank from none of these perils and dangers. He felt able to protect his family to rear them in the midst of all obstacles. He did so and the grim reaper never came into his household until the death of his first wife after fifty years of companionship. Courageous men were needed to do the work which he did. He might not have fitted into a different sphere of life, but in the wise plan of the great creator he performed the tasks that his strong and rugged character was best fitted for, and he performed them well.

No claim is made that Uncle Bud was a perfect man. He made his mistakes in life just as many mortals do but we should ever remember that he who makes no mistakes makes nothing at all. He made his, but at the same time he made many achievements which served to conquer the wilderness and tame the disorders of elementary forces. He assisted in planting law and order in a community that has since blossomed as a rose in a fair valley. It was he and his companions who made possible the advance of civilization and the progress and prosperity of this promising land. We owe him a debt of gratitude as a master builder who did the rugged, dangerous, toilsome work of laying the foundation upon which we are now building.

"When the great Scorer comes to write against your name, he writes not how you won or lost, but how you played the game."

When we strike the balance of a man's achievements in the sum total of his life's work, we are proud to say that Uncle Bud Fleming played the game of life faithfully and well.

He was laid to rest on March 15th, 1928, in the Junction Cemetery with a benediction pronounced by Rev. J. S. Newman, after funeral services at the Methodist Church, which was attended by an unusually large gathering. His friends literally packed the church, including the Sunday School room, and there were many who stood on the outside unable to gain admission. This in itself is a testimony of the esteem in which he was held and of the regret that one of our strong men had been called from the ways of earth to enter upon the great adventure.

ATTENTION, PLEASE!

Notice is hereby given to all parties who are interested in the public schools of Kimble County, that the taking of the scholastic census of the school children of said county begins on March 1st and ends on the last day of said month, and it becomes the duty of us all to see to it that no child is omitted from the census rolls of this county, as it is of vital importance that all children in said county be enumerated.

Parents or guardians of children who permit them to be omitted or left off the census rolls are guilty of criminal neglect and can blame no one but themselves.

Please don't howl about your schools and then refuse to do the duty every citizen owes to his school.

There are people who raise children as an asset and not as a liability and they refuse to render them for fear of the compulsory school law. They do not want them to attend school, but prefer that they remain at home and make a support for the family. I hope there are no such people in Kimble County, but if there are such persons here, you are warned that if you refuse to render your children, you will be punished as the law directs.

work is in my office and I would urge the trustees of every school district in this county to furnish my office with the information as to who will serve as census enumerator in the respective school districts, without knowing who will serve. Please attend to this now.

Census enumerators should not return the rolls to my office until after March 31st, and should properly and intelligently fill out all blanks according to the instruction card furnished. This is required by law, as these completed rolls will be a record in my office, and can not be entered in my consolidated report to the State unless said requirements are strictly complied with.

Bearing in mind that an earnest effort on the part of the citizenship of this county to the ends that no child that should be enumerated will be omitted, will aid and assist towards the success of our schools for the next year, I insist and plead with you for your help, hoping to see the largest enumeration in the history of Kimble County.

Yours for better schools.

MRS. GOTTLIEB SIMON

Mrs. Gottlieb Simon, nee Oestreich, was born December 25, 1850 at Fredericksburg, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Friedrich Oestrich.

Soon after she was born the parents moved to Leiningen on the Llano river, where she grew to womanhood.

On March 26, 1871, she was united in marriage to Gottlieb Simon, the surviving husband. They were married for fifty-seven years and during these years enjoyed many happy hours, and also many hardships had to be met. Seven children were born to the parents, one daughter, who died in infancy, and six sons, who survive the mother.

After they were married they lived at Leiningen for twenty-nine years, then for twenty years at Roosevelt, Kimble County, and the last seven years at Fredericksburg.

During the last years she was afflicted with a heart disease which often confined her to bed and to which she succumbed Saturday, March 17th, having attained the age of 77 years.

2 months and 22 days. She was a faithful wife, mother and grandmother. Mourning her departure are the husband, six sons, Fred Simon, Fredericksburg; William, August, Christian and Arthur Simon, Kimble County; and Hugh Simon, Dallas; six daughters-in-law, twenty grandchildren; five brothers, Christian, William, Charles, Fred and Robert Oestreich, and two sisters, Mrs. Rosa Heine and Mrs. Minna Jedlicka.

Interment was made at the city cemetery at Fredericksburg Sunday at 3:30 p. m., Rev. F. A. Bracher officiating.

J. C. GREENWOOD

Quietly and peacefully as he had lived, J. C. Greenwood passed into the Great Beyond, Sunday, March 11th, 1928, at the home of R. G. Nance in Kimble County.

Born in Lavaca County, soon after Texas had adopted its first Constitution, he lived to see the commonwealth of his nativity grow from a sparsely settled country to its present estate. With all the other pioneers of the early days of Texas, he suffered the hardships of frontier life.

Early in his career he devoted his attention to the cattle industry and in that business eventually became very prosperous. Through a series of bad years in the business, he lost his accumulation and moved from South Texas to the plains of the Edwards Plateau in an effort to recuperate his fortunes. In the fall of 1901, he moved his family to Kimble County and for some time lived on the Allen and Kelley farm and ranch properties on Cedar Creek. Later under the administration of W. W. Taylor, he served this county as jailor and deputy sheriff.

In recent years his health had failed him, and he has been inactive in business. He is survived by his widow and ten children, all of whom were in attendance at his funeral, except those detained by sickness.

He was buried Monday afternoon, March 12th, in the Junction Cemetery, after a funeral service held in the Baptist Church of this place, where he held a membership since 1908. Pastor G. W. Crabb officiating.

Mr. Greenwood was honest, truthful and reliable. He never made a show of his virtues, but remained always a good citizen.
