HILL COUNTRY FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION WILL HAVE MEETING AT MENARD

4-H MEMBERS ARE DOING GOOD WORK

Results of the work of the 4H club boys and girls of Kimble County are already being demonstrated in parts of the county.

Brown and Joe Dell Fisher, brothers and both members of the Tea Cup 4H club have been feeding two buck lambs apiece for the past thirty days, and the bucks have averaged a gain of one-third pound a day during the thirty day period during which they have had them under their supervision. County Agent R. E. Homann selected the four bucks for the boys to feed.

There are several other projects as this under way in the county, and when the 4H club show is put on this spring, people over the county will have an opportunity to see some real stock in the best of condition.

Robert Fisher, who won the Jersey heifer offered as first prize in the Chamber of Commerce Prize Race, has been feeding the heifer and she is in first class shape. Reports of other 4H boys and girls over the county will be given at a later date.

Stockholders of Junction Bank Have Meeting

With George R. Pepper presiding, the annual meeting of stockholders of the Junction State Bank and Junction Cattle Loan Company was held in the directors room at the bank Monday afternoon, January 6. Practically all the stock was represented in the meeting.

All the directors were re-elected and after the adjournment of the stockholders the directors held a meeting and unanimously re-elected all the officers. A six per cent semi-annual dividend was declared and President W. P. Riley reported the bank in the best condition for ten years.

With a good season in the ground Mr. Riley sees no reason why 1930 should not be a good year in Kimble County. There is considerable feeding at the present, but the good season will bring out vegetation as soon as the weather is favorable.

LEON R. POWELL WILL BUILD SERVICE STATION

One of the largest real estate deals transacted in Junction recently was when Mr. Leon Powell purchased the block of land on the corner of Main street and the Menard highway from Mrs. John T. Wilson of Dallas. The consideration for the property was $5,500.

Mr. Powell will erect a first class super service station on the corner lot. The plant when completed will cost approximately $18,000 and will be one of the most modern service stations in this section.

Construction on the station will start as soon as the plans can be finished, stated Mr. Powell. The latest type of construction will be employed.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS RESUME EDITORIAL WORK

After a rest of two weeks, the editorial staff of "Eagle Screams", the Junction High School supplement to the Eagle, have resumed their duties, and a complete coverage of high school news will again be afforded the readers of this paper.

Constitution And By-Laws Will Be Made At Meeting

A meeting of the "Hill Country Firemen's Association" will be held in Menard Tuesday, January 14, for the purpose of framing the constitution and by-laws for the association. The first meeting of the association was held in Junction recently and officers were elected. Mr. John M. Hankins was elected president.

The Board of Directors will meet in Menard at 3:00 p. m. on Tuesday for the purpose of framing the constitution and by-laws for the association. Messrs. John M. Hankins and W. B. Buster represent Junction on this board.

The entire membership of the departments in the Hill Country towns will be present for the night meeting when a banquet will be served. The association will go into a permanent organization at the night session.

Junction will ask for the first quarterly meeting of the Association to be held in Junction, stated Mr. Hankins. This meeting will be held sometime during the first of April.

A large number of the members of the Junction Fire Department will attend this meeting at Menard.

Work on Methodist Church Progresses

Work on the new Methodist Church is being carried forward rapidly. All the concrete for the foundation of the building has been poured, and the concrete for the grade beams has been poured.

Some of the columns have been poured and the workmen are preparing to pour the concrete for the balcony.

The new church is to be fire-proof throughout, according to the Rev. Milton F. Hill, pastor. It is expected that the new church will be ready for occupancy about April 1st.

Chamber of Commerce Discusses Projects

Last Friday night the directors of the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce with several others, met in the directors' room of the Junction State Bank and submitted ideas for a program for the present year. All schools in the county that have not paid this fee and wishing to enter this meet, should send in the fee within the next day or two.

PELT SALES THIS YEAR SHOW SLUMP

According to Mr. J. N. Hodges, local merchant, the number of hides that have been brought in this year is about one-third less than the amount brought in last year.

Trapping season closes January 31. Mr. Hodges said that the hides were in good shape this year, but the price is off on all pelts.

One feature of this season is that trappers as far away as El Paso are sending their furs to Mr. Hodges instead of selling them to some closer house. Pelts of lynx, cats, wolves, foxes and raccoons have been shipped to Mr. Hodges from El Paso trappers.

Approximately 5,000 pelts have been bought by the Schreiner-Hodges Co. this season, totalling an expenditure of somewhere near $5,500.

GOLF COURSE GOOD AFTER HEAVY SNOW

Following the big snow, many golfers have been spending their afternoons on the links. Mr. J. R. O'Bryan, manager of the golf course, is having the entire course worked over this week. The fairways and greens are being improved.

Terracing Demonstration Given On Hardesty Farm By County Agent Attracts Large Crowds

FIRE CAUSES DAMAGE TO HUBERT HOME

As a result of the good work of the Junction Fire Department, the home of H. G. Hubert was kept from being totally destroyed last Friday morning when fire broke out in the living room of the house.

Mrs. Weldon Williams, who occupied the second floor of the house, noticed the smoke and attracted Mrs. Henry Bierschwale's attention who turned in the alarm. The fire caught near the fireplace in the living room of the first floor, and it is supposed that sparks popped out on a plush chair and started the blaze. Another theory is that a floor lamp near the chair possibly caused it, but Mr. V. P. Emmons, manager of the local office of the West Texas Utilities Co., stated that the lamp showed no signs of a short circuit.

The firemen did excellent work in curbing the flames and saved the house from burning down. Much damage was done to the furnishings, however. Mr. Hubert estimated the damage to the furnishings as approximately $1,200 and the damage to the house as $1,000.

Mrs. James Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert, was asleep in a lower floor bedroom when the fire broke out, but she was awakened by the smoke and escaped without injury. Mrs. Hubert and daughter, Miss Mary, were in San Antonio at the time of the fire. Workmen are busy repairing the house.

FIREMEN'S BANQUET WELL ATTENDED

The regular monthly banquet of the Junction Fire Department was held at the Hodges Hotel last Friday night, January 3. The ladies of the Cemetery Association served the dinner.

Approximately 27 firemen were present at the banquet. The outstanding speech was made by Guy Munn. The subject of his address could not be definitely learned.

At the banquet the firemen voted to give an expensive set of silverware to every member of the department that gets married.

In the article under the picture it states that the Junction State Bank is one of the largest State Banks in Texas. The names of the officers of the bank are also given in the article.

Louis Loeffler was a Menard visitor Sunday.

With approximately 70 persons attending, County Agent R. E. Homann held a terracing demonstration on the Joe Hardesty farm five miles south of London on Thursday, January 2. The Tea Cup, Ivy and London 4H clubs attended the meeting and received instruction in setting up a terracing level.

Much interest was shown in the laying off of the terraces. Mr. George Hardesty, County Commissioner of the London precinct, is working in co-operation with the London farmers in lending the road maintainer to them in construction of the terraces.

Three terraces were laid off on the Hardesty farm. These terraces will take in approximately 25 acres. About ten more farmers in the London community are figuring on having some of their land terraced soon.

County Agent Homann stated that he estimated terraced land would yield from 5 to 10 more bushels of corn per acre the first year after the terracing than before it was done. This

LONDON LOCALS

A lifeless form, surrounded by sad hearts, the result of death, Sunday morning at 10:20, death claimed its own when Mrs. Mary McQueen of Menard, died in the home of her sister, Mrs. G. W. Cooper. Mrs. McQueen had been in failing health for a long time but her suffering is now at an end. She was laid to rest in the Menard cemetery at 4 o'clock Monday evening.

We simply forgot an item of news last week when we failed to mention the fact that Judy Joseph A. Harris of Cincinnati, Ohio, is now among friends at London. Mr. Harris goes away to the north where they get nothing to drink except Canadian dew drops. It doesn't satisfy the thirst of Mr. Harris and he immediately packs his grip for London, Kimble County, Texas, where he can kneel down and quench his thirst from the clear waters of Big Saline. We don't blame him, in fact they nearly all come back.

Mr. Sidney L. Harris, who has been working with the grand old geologist, Mr. J. Jamison, near Roma, is also here for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Otte spent the holidays at Llano with the parents of Mrs. Otte. They report a real nice time. Mrs. Bill Amaon and Pat, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. May have recently visited at Tahoka, Lubbock and other western towns. Their real purpose was to return Master George May Amaon to school at Tahoka.

The Stamps Quartet of Dallas met their date with us Sunday evening and rendered several selections which were received with much appreciation. They also gave a concert Monday night to a very good crowd. These men can sing. They demonstrate clearly how the human voice and mind can be trained by constant effort.

Our last oil news is to the effect that the casing will be drawn from the McLean well on the Cannon farm and the well abandoned at once. I feel like we fellows who supported the oil interest here by buying acreage so freely are much like the old farmer described his college son. Cyclone Davis used to tell this one in the good old Populist days. The old farmer had managed to keep his son in college until he grew to believe himself very smart and when he came home attempted to correct his father in all matters and apply science in all things. Finally the old man decided to tame a wild mule. His college son insisted that he tame him by scientific methods, and after some argument the father agreed. The mule kept an eye on the young scientist. Finally got his hindrance, raised his heels with dynamite force, the result of which badly disfigured the young man. The father asked later concerning the condition of his son, stated that he might never again be as handsome as he was, but he felt sure he would have a d— sight more sense.

I feel that the above story applies very well to our people who spent their money for acreage and otherwise. It will last a few days any way. They now feel that they are considerably hurt, but much advanced in knowledge. Just how long that condition will last remains to be seen. As for myself, I have nothing to promise. Habits hold one closely. It may snow again.

THOUGHT HIS CASE WAS HOPELESS, SAYS GORDON

"Before I took Sargon I had stomach trouble so bad I lost sixty-two pounds. Five years ago I went to a famous clinic and they said my condition was very serious, and advised me to live on goats milk. I paid

$3,000 for a herd of pedigreed goats and have lived principally on goats milk ever since. Even then my liver was so inactive I've had to take four to six grains of calomel every week for the past five years in order to keep on my feet at all." "I'm now on my third bottle of Sargon and have gained back nineteen pounds of my lost weight already. Sargon Pills regulated my liver and think goodness my calomel days are over at last. I feel more like my old self than in five years and wouldn't take $5,000 cash for what Sargon has already done for me."—R. D. Gordon, Tulsa. J. A. Heyman, agent.

BUY KIMBLE CO. PRODUCTS IS RESOLVE

At the beginning of each new year many resolutions are made. As we enter upon the year of 1930 let us resolve to patronize our home industries. Everyone in business in Kimble County needs and deserves our support. Our churches, schools, court houses, water systems, sewer systems, roads, parks and public improvements of all kinds are supported by our home people. The big mail order houses do not help us with any of the above mentioned objects.

From one of our exchanges we take the following mail order commendments which everyone should read and then resolve to buy from Kimble County business men during 1930.

1. You shall sell your farm products for cash, where you can, but not to us, for we buy nothing from you.

2. You shall believe us, and buy all you can from us, for we want your best, because we do not know you personally.

3. You shall send your money to us in advance so that we can buy the goods from the factory with your money; you may have to wait a few weeks, but that is our business method.

4. You shall get help from your nearest city or village to build good roads, so that you may easily haul goods from the depot, but do not ask help from us—we don't help to build good roads.

5. You shall buy church bells and altar utensils from us, and send the money in advance—that is our rule.

6. You shall get all the help you can for your church from the business men in your nearest village or city, for, although we have more profits from you than they, it is against our rules to give to churches.

7. You shall convert your neighbors also to your faith in us, so that they will buy from us, we have room for more money.

8. You shall look at the pretty pictures in our catalogue as often as you can, so as to strengthen your desire for things you do not need, but which you may order with other goods to save freight. Send all your ready cash, so that you may not have any of it left to buy necessities from your home dealer.

9. You shall believe us rather

It will be an "off year" only for Presidential candidates.

The Republicans will be required to hold a primary on July 26, the same day the Democrats nominate their candidates. ### Ft. Sam Houston Program

Washington.—Building construction at army posts contemplated under the 1931 appropriation for the military activities of the United States War Department includes extensive additions to Fort Sam Houston and Randolph Field, San Antonio, it is shown in a list of 71 payment contract authorizations submitted to the House subcommittee on appropriations by Gen. R. F. Chamberlain, quartermaster general.

The appropriations bill, before the House of Representatives, would provide $150,000 for construction of noncommissioned officers' quarters, and $250,000 for quarters of officers at Fort Sam Houston. An item for noncommissioned officers' quarters amounting to $61,200 is provided for Randolph Field, also containing the appropriation of $600,000 for officers' quarters and $50,000 for the completion of a hospital at the air field.

An appropriation of $180,000,000 will be required to complete the construction program for United States army posts, to include quarters, barracks, hospitals and post utilities, bringing the total investment to over $500,000,000. Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley told the subcommittee at a hearing on the 1931 appropriations bill for military activities of the War Department, referred to the House.

Kerrville Wants Hospital

Kerrville has begun an active and vigorous campaign to have the new U. S. Veterans' Bureau neuropsychiatric hospital located adjoining the present tubercular hospital at Legion, three miles from Kerrville. An appropriation of $1,500,000 was recently made by Congress for the new hospital to be located "somewhere in Texas."

Proposed Fee Change

Austin.—The legislative committee which made an investigation with reference to fees of officers in Texas has filed with Governor Moody a report of its findings and recommendations. Numerous changes in the existing law are recommended. Governor Moody will submit the subject to the coming special session of the Legislature January 20.

The committee reported that it found of greatest importance the matter of keeping records of fees and making proper reports. The public, the State and the various counties are entitled to know how much officers are earning, the committee says, and this cannot be definitely known when inadequate records are kept and no proper reports made.

GEESE AND GANDERS

The following is an essay on geese written by a boy not so many miles away:

Geese is a low, heavy set bird which is mostly meat and feathers. His head sits on one end and he sits on the other. Geese can't sing much on account of the dampness of the moisture. He ain't got no between-his-toes and he's got a bil-lion in his stomach to keep him from sinking. Some geese when they get big has curls on their tails and is called ganders. Ganders don't have to sit and hatch but just eat and loaf and go swimming. If I was a goose I'd rather be a gander.

Counsel: "Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"
Witness: "Very likely. My grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."

Houston.—Quite comfortable in her hospital bed, Elizabeth Westmoreland, 15-year-old Eagle Lake school girl who routed a burglar from her home but was shot for her daring, usually told her story. Mesquite Colorado County officers were searching the country side for the burglar.

Coleman Oil Activity

Coleman.—Interest in Coleman County's oil activity is scattered over three pools at this time. Outstanding of these three areas is the Stewardson pool seven miles south of Santa Anna where Taylor-Links No. 3 Stewardson has been deepened to the Fry sand found approximately 60 feet below the Brenecke sand horizon. This Taylor-Link well encountered approximately 2,000,000 feet of gas with a showing of oil in the Brenecke sand.

Big Turkey Market

Santa Anna proved to be one of the best markets and shipping points in the Southwest during the recent shipping season. Thirty cars of turkeys valued at $6,000 per car were shipped from that place for the Thanksgiving tables in the north and east, while 15 cars were shipped out for the Christmas and New Year's dinners. Prices here went up to 22 cents per pound to growers, said to be about the best price paid in that section. Brooders look for better prices next year.

FORMER JUNCTION COUPLE CELEBRATES GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. King, formerly of Junction and well known in this section, recently celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in Brady. The following article was clipped from the Heart O' Texas News.

The past week was indeed a gala one for Mr. and Mrs. T. J. King, as it was crowned with happiness, joyous events, the gathering together of loved ones, and among other good things, an event that comes once in a lifetime. This event was Mr. and Mrs. King's golden wedding anniversary, which was celebrated at their home on Seventh and Cypress Streets on Christmas Eve night, December 24. Then the following day came the happy Christmas day and later, Mrs. King's 68th birthday, which was also celebrated on Sunday, December 29.

All of the children, daughters-in-law, sons-in-law and grandchildren of this venerable old couple were gathered around the festive board at the above mentioned time to partake of the bountiful spread prepared in memory of the wedding festivity, which was held exactly 50 years ago in Lavaca County near Hallettsville, Texas, when Miss Kate Easterling became the bride of T. J. King. To sit and talk with either Mr. or Mrs. King, or if one could have looked in on the happy group gathered together to celebrate the event of 50 years past, one could easily have seen that the intervening years had been crowded with peace, prosperity and happiness.

A few days prior to the celebrating day, Mr. and Mrs. King worked behind closed doors in a small work house back of the residence, building a miniature candle tree to center their table on the anniversary day. The tree built was an exact replica of the one centering their table on their wedding day, although some smaller, and they did not ask anyone to help them build it because in the first place they wanted the pleasure all to themselves and secondly, no one of the present generation would know what a candle tree was like. Mr. King did the carpentering work, which consisted of constructing a tree on a wooden base with fifty limbs, each limb having been added to represent the 50 years of married life. The tree was made of white, and to the limbs 365 white leaves had been cut from paper to represent the days in the year, the leaves having been cut and fastened to the limbs by Mrs. King. Five gold sprays extended from the very top of the tree, each spray being mounted with a gold leaf to represent Mr. King's five children. Mingled among the white leaves were 20 other gold leaves, which represented the children-in-laws and grandchildren. In gold letters on the tree base was seen the inscription, "1879-1929."

All of the children, in-laws, and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. King were present as follows: Mr. and Mrs. L. H. King and two daughters, Misses Mildred and Marie, Brady; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. King and four children, Richland Springs; Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Waddill and two children, Brady; Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. King and two children, Brady; and Mr. and Mrs. S. Burk, Rochelle.

Mr. and Mrs. King are among Brady's most prominent and highly respected citizens. They have been residents in Brady for the past 25 years, leaving Lavaca County to come to Llano County in '83. From that time until they came to McCulloch County they lived in Kimble and Mason Counties.

SYNOPSIS

At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clark, Lesson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harrison, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Lesson is his jealous. Tim Stevens, who is a millionaire, tells Lucy that the Minerva, a motor yacht, is in order for her to go to the island. Asked if she will let her go from the Minerva until she accepts him, she says she will. Lesson tells her to stop looking at the yacht and to go to the island. Lucy reaches the island and meets Dr. Faunce on an island. He takes care of her and takes her home. Dr. Faunce is worried about her, and when she meets Stevens he is very regretful and still to her bank and raises the sum. Lucy goes to Stevens to help him, but he refuses to take money from a woman to whom he is not married. So Lucy marries him man that she hates, and promptly runs away from him to her true friend, Dr. Faunce. Lesson, to tell what she had done.

Stevens sets out in search of Lucy. Meanwhile, Dr. Faunce and Lesson are on their first trip. Lucy is wrecked, and finds herself aboard the Minerva, wondering what happened to Dr. Faunce.

Dr. Faunce is aboard the Minerva. Lesson threatens to kill Faunce unless Lucy starts to him. To save Faunce she accedes, but expresses hate for Stevens. A few minutes later he starts her by saying he doesn't want her and never will.

Lesson sees Lucy and in a burst of confidence tells her of a plot against her husband. Certain interests are to break down the bridge on the property, and make it worthless. She goes to Faunce's place, where her husband and Faunce are together, and tells of the plot. Preparations are made for a fight.

Lucy's husband and the man she loves make common cause against the invaders and hold the bridge. Lesson, who is the sheriff and his gang, backed by Clark, the copper magnate, Lucy loses her property as she runs back to Mango Key, sets her car and finds Lucy. Learning the charges against Stevens of resisting the Sheriff is thrown out of court. Lucy begins to wonder whether she has really judged her husband. The great Breakers flood takes fire and Tim grows himself a hero as his wife watches him aiding in the rescue.

New Go On With the Story

It was the sort of banal remark that a character in a motion picture might have uttered.

But Lucy was in no mood to be captious, to pick flaws in praise or the persons who uttered it.

"Tim has done well, hasn't he?" she said.

Elsie Darrah laughed.

"Well? If he's saved a third of men and women he supposed to have dragged out of the Breakers, he's done more than well."

She heard men crying hoarsely, ordering others to make way for their passage. Several of them were bearing, on an improvised stretcher, the body of a man.

She heard someone ask if he were dead. One of the bearers shrugged.

"Looks like it," he answered.

"Who is it?" another queried.

"Tim Stevens," said the bearer.

She was not surprised, either then or later, that she was able to take instant charge of Tim.

Not merely had Stevens been badly burned, but he had been struck by a falling timber, and, while the skull was not fractured, serious injury had been done. Not until the twenty-fourth day was he pronounced completely out of danger.

And on that day Lucy went to bed, to stay a week. When she got up again, the cloud had disappeared from her faculties and she was herself again. She had not been ill during this week, simply completely worn out, nervously exhausted. Her vigil by Tim's bedside had been almost continuous for over three weeks.

On the bridge at Seminole Creek he had shown himself possessed of physical courage equal to any she had ever witnessed. On the roof of the cottage he had shown ability to withstand punishment when the event called for it. And the manner of his injury had been fine. A negro pinned beneath debris. Tim Stevens pulled the man out. Tim Stevens warned that the roof was falling. Tim Stevens refused to flee to safety, but stayed until he had released the colored man. This was sacrifice, of the finest sort. Forget all the passion-inspired brutalities that he had used, or tried to use, against herself, and one found a pretty decent sort.

But there was something else. He had stolen. No argument could overwhelm this fact: he had been saved from jail only by the acceptance of a quarter of a million of her money.

On the morning that she arose from bed she found Stevens lying on a couch in the patio. His great frame looked pitifully thin beneath the light coverlets. But he had been freshly shaved, and the gauntness of his face lent a certain attraction to his almost too obvious good looks. He would, she reflected, be as handsome in age, when withered, as in the flush of early manhood. He held out a trembling hand to her.

"You're all right?" he asked eagerly.

"Fine!" she smiled.

"I feel like a great big dub," he said bitterly, "letting you wear yourself out taking care of a hulk like me! I can't say 'Thank you; it's so little to say.'"

"I married you," she retorted.

"Should a person back out of a bargain because it wasn't quite so advantageous as it looked when one entered into it?"

"I looked better at the ceremony than later, then?" he grinned.

"You didn't appeal to me at any time," she said brutally.

"But . . . I did enter into a bargain, I'm making good."

He sighed, and his sigh was pitiful, coming from Tim Stevens, who might curse or even sob, but had never been plaintive in his life before.

"Well, much obliged, anyway. I sort of thought . . . I hoped . . . Well, I was born a darn fool, Lucy, and I suppose I'll die one. But had I wasn't completely knocked off while I was at it. End a rotten situation if I had been." She made no reply, and silence ensued for a minute, to be broken by his bitter speech:

"I suppose you'd have been glad if I had been killed."

"That is babyish," she told him. "I'm glad you're alive. Tim. Mighty glad of it. And proud of your behavior at the fire. You're a brave man—a hero, I guess. But you're something else, too, Tim."

"Your husband, eh?" he sneered.

"A thief," she said. "And . . . I can't ever forget that."

His eyes narrowed.

"A thief, eh? If it weren't for that you might . . . even . . . you might even be . . . my wife, eh?"

She put her hands before her face.

"How do I know? You're different: you're finer in a hundred ways than I'd dreamed. But you can't blot out the past, Tim."

"Who in thunder wants to?" he asked harshly. "Do you remember what I told you that night on Barracuda Island?"

She removed her hands from her eyes and bravely smiled at him.

"I remember that you weren't very polite."

"I told you that you could go to the devil, that's what I said. I said it then, and I say it again now."

She shrank away from the blazing fury of his eyes.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Mean? I mean I'm sick of you with your blasted holier-than-thou ways. You nursed me through illness. All right, that makes us square."

"How . . . how does it make us square?" she asked.

"Because you owe me a lot—a darn sight more than you'll ever know, my chaste and dainty Devil-May-Care!" he jeered.

"But you've paid it by nursing me. Anyway, we'll call the account canceled." He rose on his elbow. "I wouldn't let you divorce me. I wouldn't get a divorce myself. Well, I thought I was married to a woman, not a cold-blooded saint just descended from Heaven. Darn saints! I want no part of them."

"Now you can have your divorce. And for fear you may have trouble in getting it I'll give you grounds, plenty of grounds. There's a girl down here now—a good egg, too, a darn sight better egg than you'll ever be, for all she's been kept by half New York Or, if she's gone back north, I'll get her down here again. Understand?"

"I'm not sure that I do," she said faintly.

"Well, you'll be able to name her as co-respondent. She'll be my mistress, living here openly with me. She won't mind being named; she's been named before. Now, you want a divorce. Go on, get it. Here—wait a moment. Show that table over here, will you, please?"

This was a Tim she had never known before; she had known a mad and violent Tim, who, she thought, would stop at nothing in the gratification of his passions.

This was a Tim whose very illness lent a contradictory vigor to his contemptuous denunciations. Meekly she pushed toward him the table he indicated.

He opened a drawer, drew forth a check-book, and began writing in it with a fountain-pen. He ripped a leaf out of the book, and pushed it across to her. She saw that it was a check made out to her order for two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

"You . . . made this . . . out of your real estate?" she asked.

He nodded.

"Didn't steal it, either," he sneered. "Earned it. You need not be afraid to take it; you'll not be arrested for sharing in the proceeds of a theft. And your lawyers can confer with mine about settlements and alimony and the rest of it."

"Do you think," she blazed, "that I'd take a cent of your money? Do you think I'd do that?"

"Ma'am, Mrs. Stevens, could I have a word with you?"

She didn't like the man but—

"I certainly owe you a word, Madane," she said. "You saved my life, you know."

Madane had removed his yachting cap now, and was twisting it in his fingers.

"I dunno how you made that mistake, Mrs. Stevens," he said. "And the boss let it ride that other time you mentioned it, but it was him who went overboard after you and Dr. Faunce, ma'am. He knew it was you, too, for he yelled your name as he dived."

"He saved me?" she gasped.

"Nobody else, ma'am. And I . . . he's kind o' bugs, ma'am, with all what he's been through, and he's taking a dame aboard tonight, and . . . well, it's none of my business, Mrs. Stevens, only . . . if the boss was my brother and sister, too, I couldn't like him more. And I want to say . . . do you think it's sporting to run out on him like this? Because there wouldn't be no other dame aboard the Minerva if you was there."

"Am I his keeper, Madane?" she asked.

"Sure you are! A man like that needs someone to look after him. And if his wife won't do it, who will?"

"But suppose that his wife doesn't want to? What then, Madane?"

"Well, if she don't want to, she ought to, just the same. Do you think he'd take a run-out powder if you was in trouble, ma'am? Why, he'd walk through the blazin' fringes of hell, ma'am. And that's where he's headed at that, Mrs. Stevens."

"He'll go where he belongs, where he chooses to belong, Madane," said Lucy.

"I get you, ma'am. A man finds his own level and that sort of thing. But that stuff goes for Sweeney when there's a dame run in on the play. Say, if he wasn't a regular person, I'd say you was right to play your own hand. But ma'am, I was a crooked ginny when he picked me up. I'd brought him out of the water when he was goin' down, but most gents would 'a slipped me some coin and let it go at that. Not Mr. Stevens. He made an honest man out of me. Knew I was phoney and all that. Made an American out o' me. Say, ma'am, if I was worth a play, don't you think he's worth one?"

She stared at him.

"Maybe, Madane, you're right," she said.

YOUR SPEED

We live in an age of speed. Multitudes of us are afflicted with speed mania. We want to get there (wherever that is!) and to get there quickest or be there first.

But there is another matter to be taken into the account and it is well worth considering. "A man's speed is not measured by his mileage but by what he accomplishes along the way."

The annihilation of distance is not everything. The elimination of time is not the highest good. What are we doing with our time? And what are we doing along our way besides erasing distance?

The secret of speed ought to be the secret of service.

Census Takers Inquiries Will Seem Personal

Washington.—Residents of Texas will be required to answer 24 very personal questions when the census takers arrive with their little pads next May to determine just how many of the rational genus homo are extant in the State.

These questions, though personal, are not embarrassing and are not impertinent, and they must be answered unless the person questioned wishes to be subjected to a penalty. This action will be taken against those who know the answers to questions but refuse to answer, and will not be directed against such persons as are actually unable for various sound reasons to advance the desired information.

Withholding of answers, if done wilfully, will result in prosecution in Federal courts, with penalties of prison sentences or fines, or both, provided for conviction.

Following is the list of questions:

1. Relationship to head of family, including a statement as to the home-maker (housewife) in each family.
2. Whether home is owned or rented.
3. Value of home, if owned, or monthly rental, if rented.
4. Radio set? (Yes or no).
5. Does this family live on a farm. (Yes or no).
6. Sex.
7. Color or race.
8. Age at last birthday.
9. Marital condition (married or single).
10. Age at first marriage (for married persons).
11. Place of birth (State or country).
12. Place of birth of person's father.
13. Place of birth of person's mother.
14. Mother tongue of each foreign born person.
15. Whether able to read or write. (Yes or no).
16. Attended school or college at any time since Sept. 1, 1929. (Yes or no).
17. Year of immigration to United States. (Foreign-born persons only).
18. Whether naturalized. (Foreign-born only).
19. Whether able to speak

English. (Foreign-born only).

20. Occupation of each gainful worker.

21. Industry in which he is employed.

22. Whether employer, employee or working on own account.

23. Whether actually at work.

24. Whether a veteran of the United States Military or naval forces and for each veteran, in what war or expedition did he serve.

The Census Bureau has found that it will be possible to determine the classification of families as to economic status from information given regarding the owning or renting of homes. This information is desired by firms and individuals using census figures in organizing their selling and advertising campaigns, but census takers will take particular pains to see that no such information is given to the public concerning any individual's home.

Next year's census will determine for the first time the direct answer as to how large a potential radio audience may be, from the answers to the question regarding ownership of radios. The Census Bureau for the first time in its history will classify women doing housework in their own homes as "home-makers."

New Braunfels' new $250,000 hotel, recently opened, is proving an additional attraction for the scenic beauties of that section.

CRIMINAL CAUGHT WITH 27 QUARTS OF LIQUOR

Columbia, Mo.—Lack of interest for the dead caused the arrest here of James Salmon, St. Louis, credited by police as being one of the sources from which University of Missouri students were supplied with liquor.

Salmon, his car loaded with 27 quarts of gin, broke through a funeral procession here and attracted attention of motorcycle patrolman, who pursued him as a reckless driver.

When the St. Louis man finally was overhauled after a chase up paved roads and down side lanes, the officers recognized Salmon as a suspected bootlegger who had been under observation for several days.

THE GREATEST CHEVROLET

IN CHEVROLET HISTORY

Today, Chevrolet presents the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—a smoother, faster, better Six—with beautiful new bodies by Fisher.

Basically, it is the same sturdy, substantial Six which won such tremendous popularity in 1929. But it is a greater car in every way—for there are scores of vital improvements which contribute to comfort, performance, endurance and safety!

An improved six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower; four Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers; fully-enclosed internal-expanding weather-proof brakes; a new dash gasoline gauge; heavier and stronger rear axle; new Fisher non-glare windshield; larger tires—

—these are typical of the many improvements which make this car the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History.

But most impressive of all—this smoother, faster, better Six has been made available—

- at Greatly Reduced Prices!

During 1929, more than a million three hundred thousand persons bought six-cylinder Chevrolets. This enormous volume has made possible many savings in the Chevrolet factories—and, in keeping with its long-established policy, Chevrolet is sharing these savings with the public. No written description can do justice to the extra value and quality provided in this new car. Visit your Chevrolet dealer—see this car—ride in it—and judge for yourself its sensational value.

A ROTARY COUNTRY

(The following paper on Australia as a Rotary Country was read before the Junction Rotary Club last week by Edgar McLondon and published in the Eagle at the request of the club.)

Australia measures 2500 miles in length from west to east, by 1950 in breadth from north to south. It is situated in that great sea south-east of China. The Indian Ocean is on the west and the Pacific on the east. When a traveler from America reaches the Hawaiian Island he has gone only a short one-third of the distance. On account of the great distance from the centers of civilization, Australia was long an unknown land to any other region of the same extent. It is not definitely known just when explorers began to visit the country. The first distinct account of the country was printed in 1598, but little was definitely known of the vast territory until within the last 100 years. It would make this paper too long to tell of the many and interesting explorations during the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. With the discovery of gold in 1851 rapid strides have been made in the great island continent. In addition to gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, tin and coal are found in large quantities in many sections of the commonwealth.

Travelers tell us that Australia is full of interest to visitors. As a geographical unit it is an island continent covering nearly 3,000,000 square miles—practically as large as the United States, more than three-fourths the area of Europe and actually twenty-five times as large as Great Britain and Ireland or Italy. It has been settled by Europeans for 140 years and its population has now reached six and one-half millions. Over 96 per cent of its inhabitants are British in origin or descent, and Australians claim to have a purer British stock than England itself.

Politically this great commonwealth is divided into six states and the constitution is in form partly British and partly American. Australia is responsible for much advanced legislation, especially in the industrial field, and its experiments in industrial arbitration are watched with interest throughout the world. It has advanced some distance towards socialism in certain sections for all of its 31,000 miles of railroads are state owned, as are the telegraphs, telephones, the tramways in most cities, its water supply and irrigation systems. Strongly enough with so much state ownership the people are strangely individualistic and independent in manner and method. They are an active, vigorous race of splendid physique, living out-door life in a climate not subject to extremes of temperature. The Australians are a sport loving people, excelling in many games, such as cricket, football, tennis, golf, swimming, surfing and yachting.

The development of the country during its short history is amazing. Thirty-one thousand miles of railroads have been built; great cities have sprung up in various parts of the country. Sydney and Melbourne have each over one million people. Six universities have been established and all the large cities have fine libraries and museums. In engineering Australia possesses some fine accomplishments and since the Third Pacific Conference will be held in Sydney next March visitors to that great Rotary meeting will see in progress of construction what will be by far the greatest single arch bridge in the world. It is to connect its northern and southern shores of Sydney Harbor.

The huge arch will rise 400 feet above the water and will stretch in a single span 1,650 feet. The bridge will be wide enough to carry four railway tracks, provide for four-abreast motor traffic and two separate streams of pedestrians. This engineering work is rapidly reaching its most interesting stage of development with the two ends of the arch gradually curving upwards and outwards across the water towards one another.

Sydney harbor is one of the seven wonders of the world. The city is built all around the harbor with 183 miles of foreshores; yet so deep is the water that there are more than 1,000 acres where the largest ships of the world might float at anchor. It is claimed that more than 8,000 ships with a tonnage of 16,000,000 enter each year.

In Australia December, January and February are the summer months; March, April and May, the fall; June July and August, the winter, and September, October and November the spring months. The flora and fauna are strangely different from those of other lands. Strange marsupials hop through the forests of eucalypts taller than the sequoias of North America. The platypus with webbed feet, duck bill, lays eggs, suckles its young and swims in the river—a bird-like, fishlike, amphibian mammal. The ceratodus breathes through its gills when the creeks are full and through lungs, when drought leaves the water holes a bed of mud.

The birds are different from those of other lands and are in great variety and number from the wingless emu almost as large as an ostrich to the tiniest of blue wrens. The lyre-bird is one of the best of ornithological mimics, imitating the notes of other birds and the sound of the woodman's axe. Flocks of pink and white cockatoos and carlet and green parrots cover the forest tops; and the note of the bell-bird is heard in the remotest of the ferny glens. The giant kingfisher, known as the laughing jackass, is common in the outlying suburbs and amuses everyone with his loud mocking laugh.

Close around Sydney are large areas preserved in their natural state where the plant lover may see trees and shrubs in great variety and forms far different from those in the northern hemisphere. Californians have introduced into America one variety of eucalypt in the Tasmanian Blue Gum, but there are over 130 varieties in Australian forests and even more kinds of acacias filling the spring day with glorious perfume and lighting up the bush with masses of golden glory.

One of the great problems of Australian agriculture is the control of introduced vegetable and animal pests. Plants and animals which in their native habitat were never troublesome, have become very great pests in their new Australian home, partly because of the sparseness of the human population, but mainly because the parasites which kept them in check at home are not present in their new habitat. The prickly pear was introduced as a garden or hedge plant but it escaped and spread so rapidly that over 60,000,000 acres of valuable land in Queensland and New South Wales are overrun with it, and its increase up to two years ago was at the alarming rate of one and a half million acres per year. Biologists under the Commonwealth Council of Science and Industry have discovered three insect parasites and have distributed them for the pear has not increased and there is every reason to believe that in five years time all the cactus-infested land will be cleared of the pest and will be carrying some millions of sheep and growing fine crops of wheat.

The English rabbit introduced for sport has gradually settled in every fertile part of the continent and increased to countless millions, costing pastoralists huge sums to protect their properties with wire-netted rabbit-proof fences and for labor to dig out the burrows.

Into this new land have been introduced the flowering plants of the old countries and in the Botanic Gardens of Sydney Professor E. H. Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University found the biggest outdoor collection of plants in the world. In the month of March, when the Pacific Conference meets, Sydney gardens will be full of autumn roses, chrysanthemums, dahlias, cannas, carnations, and masses of annuals of all kinds. It is a delightful month for the flower lover, the motorist and the golfer.

Two Canadian Rotarians, acting as special commissioners for Rotary International, formed the first two Rotary clubs in Australia in 1921. There are now twenty-six established clubs with more than 1,200 members. As stated in the beginning of this paper, Australia is a country of big distances and its cities and towns are widely separated. There are Rotary Clubs so far apart as Cairns in the northeast to Launceston, 2,300 miles away in the south or 1,072 miles by the nearest route from Perth in the west. Australian Rotarians do not gauge the strength of Rotary by the number of clubs and members. Rotarians visiting Australia recognize that seed has fallen in fertile soil. The members of the larger clubs are not satisfied to imitate Rotary as so many Americans do and to follow passively the lead of Rotary International without contributing something of value.

It is said that the suggestion to hold a regular conference in the Pacific region every two years originated with the Sydney club. The first of such regional conferences was held in Honolulu in 1926, the second in Tokyo in 1928 and the third will be held in Sydney next March. Far away as Australia is from the old world centers with no history of complicated international relationships, except as it affected her motherland, she was drawn nevertheless immediately into the tragic world conflict at its very beginning. Although this country was the farthest removed from the seat of war it lost in killed 60,000 men and actually half of the men of military age took part in a conflict which seemed as unnecessary as it was tragic. In a race possessing such a high degree of education and intelligence it is not surprising that there is so much support for the League of Nations and movements for international peace as is expressed in the sixth object of Rotary.

Sydney, with its membership of nearly two hundred, has a fine record of service and influence since its foundation eight and one-half years ago. At the present time, with the arrangement for this Pacific Conference on its hands and also the 1930 conference of the 65th district, it is carrying out a Crippled Children's survey in the city which has a population of more than a million people. It is estimated that there are 2,000 crippled children in Sydney. A few years ago this particular club collected over $60,000 for the establishment of a Boys' Brigade which has carried on with great success ever since. These and other things have been accomplished by the Rotary club at Sydney.

Thus the work of Rotary is covering the world. No organization of international character has ever made such a rapid or such far-reaching progress as Rotary International. There are now sixty-one countries and geographical areas. The clubs exceed 3200 in number, and there are probably more than 150,000 Rotarians throughout the world. This phenomenal growth has been achieved within a brief span of twenty-four years not only without any thinning out of internal enthusiasm but with increasing intensive interest.

Lynchings in South Drop 83 Per Cent

The Commission on Interracial Co-operation, in a statement cited "A decrease during the past ten years of 88 per cent in the annual lynching record," as "notable evidence of improving interracial conditions in the South."

"The steady decline in the number of lynchings from 83 in 1919 to 11 in 1928 and 10 in the year just ended is undoubtedly due," the statement said, "to a rapid growth of public sentiment in behalf of justice and law."

Only 2.2 per cent of the native white population of Texas was classed as "illiterate" in the 1920 census. The overall figures of 8.3 per cent are due to the 17.8 per cent illiteracy among the negroes and 33.8 per cent among the foreign-born.

The largest river in America having its water shed entirely within one state is in Texas—the Brazos, which drains 41,700 square miles extending from the upper Panhandle to the Gulf of Mexico.

WASTING OUR TIME

(by Ruby Davis)

"Time is precious." How often we hear this statement, but still how often we persist in spending our time foolishly. Time is one thing past recall—an hour spent, no matter how, is a thing of the past. We have used that hour foolishly or wisely, and the result of that hour will be judged accordingly. The best part of "killing time" is that we hurt only ourselves in doing so. The failure to make the most of our time is "time lost" for ourselves, only. We hurry through our studying, and learn it in a useless sort of way, and when we have finished we spend the remainder of our time day dreaming. If we had studied a little longer we would have benefitted more and made ourselves lots happier.

If we could learn to realize the importance of time, and the benefit we get if we use it as such, we would be a better race of people to live around. Don't you think so?

GRAMMAR GRADES

The pupils in the grammar grades are back in school after Christmas holidays. Most everyone seems to have enjoyed the holidays. Most of them have settled down to work by now trying to get more knowledge. At least we all hope they are.

Roy Cochran expressed the great appreciation of the football boys for the help of the Pep Squad in winning the District Championship.

Mary Lee Graves, who has been absent since the first few days of school, is back with us again. We are very glad to have her back.

We are having our six weeks' examination this week and we will have our mid-term examinations next week.

Mrs. Brown presented gifts to all her music pupils Friday. She gave an attractive bill fold to each boy and presented lovely handkerchiefs to the girls. Each pupil is ready to work hard on their music after the holidays.

Mrs. Dutton: "When I was your age, I knew all of the presidents of the United States."

Raymon Schneider: "Well, there wasn't as many to know then."

Mr. Flaphead: "Yee, I'm jolly nervous. I don't think I've got the courage to propose to a girl."

Miss Covly: "Er—I'm not exactly a girl, you know."

Poet: Dash it, the baby must have thrown that last sonnet of mine in the fire!

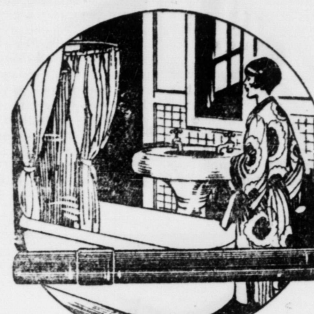

His wife: Don't be absurd, Richard. The little dear can't read yet.

Junction Trade Notes

(By G. G. Co.)

Prominent personages in touch with the business situation forecast normal expansion of business throughout 1930 and maintenance of general prosperity in keeping with present high standards. . . . While the consensus of bankers of the Southwest is, the livestock industry is due for a good year in 1930, with the money situation easing up by early summer, if range conditions are good. . . . Give the ranchman a rain every Saturday night and he wouldn't care much what happens in Washington or Wall Street.

Something to worry over: Blanks for 1929 income tax reports will be placed in the mails this week, with instructions to file by March 15.

In stock: Becker's choice Mason County honey, in comb and extracted; also Uvalde honey for those who prefer it. Gann Grocery Company. For hog killing: Mortons Sugar-Salt-Smoke Cure, three operations in one.

Judge and Mrs. J. B. Randolph are now occupying the attractive Wynne ranch out South Llano which they recently purchased; while Mr. and Mrs. Wynne are comfortably situated on the Randolph place just east of Junction, acquired by purchase. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Clay Madux have moved out to the Henry Murr ranch where every prospect pleases and the cock's crow wakes them up at 4 a. m. . . . Walter Chadwell is back in Junction after a trip abroad, landing at the ports LeHarvey and Rotterdam aboard a freight steamer. Asked about conditions abroad, he stated that Blo-Gum had not yet reached Holland.

The efficiency of Junction's Volunteer Fire Department is thoroughly demonstrated as opportunity arises, and the department has become one of the community's greatest assets. Everyone will have an opportunity to assist the department the evening of January 15 when the realistic movie "Firemen, Save My Child" will be presented at the Texan Theater as a firemen's benefit. Adult tickets 35c, on sale at any place of business.

In stock: Baked chicken in sanitary sealed tins, ready to serve cold, or by warming in oven. Gann Grocery Company. Smoked herring, spiced herring rolls, fibered codfish, anchovies in sanitary glass.

Business Change: Astor Wallace and Lee Craven have purchased the Hazelwood Steam Laundry and are now in charge. They will give the public courteous and efficient service and may be expected to keep the plant abreast of Junction's progress.

Prospective new construction in Junction includes: The purchase by Leon Powell of property at corner of Holekamp Ave. and Menard Road, on which Mr. Powell will erect at an early date a modern Texas Service Station and residence, to cost $15,000 to $20,000. . . . Purchase by the Humble Company of corner property opposite courthouse, with plans for a modern station. . . . Wahl Bros. & Schraub, owners of the property now occupied by Powell's Station, making plans for a large construction job during the year, which will cover the 138 feet frontage on Junction's main avenue.

Gann Grocery Company
"Everybody's Store."

Joe Ray has returned to Junction after spending several months in Dallas.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank the people of Junction and Kimble County for their valued patronage while we owned the Junction Steam Laundry. We enjoyed our pleasant business relations and shall always feel kindly towards all the people. We have sold our laundry business to Messrs. Lee Craven and Astor Wallace and bespeak for them your continued patronage.

Hazelwood & Sons.

WEATHER REPORT

Following several days of warm weather, a norther blew up Monday afternoon and the weather has been rather cold and this morning (Thursday) it is freezing. It has been cloudy but very little moisture has fallen. Weather conditions in this section have been unusual. The snow storm Christmas was the coldest weather experienced here in many years, many saying it was the coldest ever seen here.

The snow caused some losses among livestock, and ranchmen say that stock are in no condition to stand much severe weather. Many are feeding and are anxious for warmer weather.

Mesdames E. R. Borden, L. D. Borden, Jr., and Chris Schraub motored to Kerrville Monday with Mrs. L. D. Borden, Sr., who returned to her home in Austin, after a visit with her sons here.
