NEWS IN BRIEF

Landing explained

EL PASO, Texas — A Continental Airlines manager said Friday investigations indicate a broken rod prevented the landing gear doors from opening and caused Tuesday's jetliner crash landing here.

Ray Espersen, manager of passenger sales, said a national Transportation and Safety Board investigation determined a broken actuating rod jammed into a wing bulkhead, keeping one set of landing gear doors shut.

Espersen said damage to the Boeing 727 was minimal.

Seven crewmembers and 36 passengers deplaned on emergency chutes after the landing. Flight 253 was scheduled to stop at Midland and here en route from Houston to Tucson, Ariz. There were no injuries.

Highway blocked

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — A two-mile stretch of state highway was blocked off Friday because of vapors leaking from a tank truck filled with nitric acid, authorities said.

Motorists were warned to stay away from the area near the stretch of Massachusetts 2, but there were no immediate calls for evacuations from this eastern Massachusetts town.

The stretch of highway near the intersection with Massachusetts 162 was closed about 12:30 p.m. as crews rushed to the scene to contain the clouds of gas, which can be harmful if in contact with skin. The leaking substance was being neutralized with lime, state police said.

Rocket fails

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's first attempt to put a satellite into orbit with its own rockets failed Friday and the capsule plummeted into the Bay of Bengal within minutes of launching, the United News of India reported.

The 75-foot rocket, carrying an 88-pound payload, blasted off from the Sriharikota Island launch center in southern India, about 62 miles north of Madras, UNI said. It hit the water about 310 miles southeast of the site five minutes later.

"It was our first step. We stumbled a little but we have not fallen flat on our face," Satish Dhawan, chairman of the Indian Space Research Organization, told reporters.

Issues explored

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — A visiting U.S. congressman said Friday he believes the refugee issue and the possibility that missing American soldiers are still alive in Indochina will delay normalized relations with Vietnam.

"The refugee issue alone would crush any such moves," said Rep. Andy Ireland, D-Florida. He said he doubted normalization would take place in the near future.

Ireland is a member of the second American congressional delegation to arrive in Vietnam this week. A delegation spokesman said the group would meet during the next two days with senior Hanoi officials to discuss the refugee question, Cambodia and the topic of Americans missing in action after the Vietnam War.

Clements tours scene of oil spill

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements Friday called a Mexican oil spill threatening Texas a "big to-do about nothing" and said suing Mexico because of the spill would be like "squealing before you're pinched."

"In the spirit of being a good neighbor we should help them in their time of crisis," Clements said after flying over the South Texas shore in a Coast Guard helicopter.

"If your neighbor's house burned down, you'd go help him," he said when asked about the Texas attorney general's considering a lawsuit against Mexico seeking damages that may be caused by the spill. Such a suit would be "unwise, unneighborly and uncalled for," he said, but he conceded the spill might get worse.

The governor, a self-made millionaire oilman who founded SEDCO, Inc., was chief officer when the company leased drilling equipment to a Mexican contractor that was used to drill the ill-fated Ixtoc I well that blew out 500 miles south of Texas June 3, causing the world's largest oil spill.

"Our equipment had been leased several years ago to a Mexican drilling contractor. They had full operational control," said Clements, whose holdings in SEDCO were put in a blind trust when he became governor. His son now runs the Dallas-based oil drilling company.

Clements said SEDCO lost $20 million worth of equipment when the well in the Bay of Campeche blew out, but he said it was insured. He said four maintenance workers from SEDCO were helping the Mexicans with the equipment, but it was not known if any of them were on the offshore platform when the well blew out.

The governor said he had "great affection and nostalgia" for Ixtoc I because it was the first time SEDCO had leased equipment for offshore use.

"It's kind of like losing an old friend," he said. Clements, who flew along the resort-lined South Padre Island and viewed scattered tar balls that have washed ashore, said "So far it is not serious. It's a big to-do about nothing."

"What has happened to date we can easily clean up. But it could get much worse. We don't have a problem yet, but that's not to say we won't have one," Clement said.

But environmental officials were optimistic that Texas would be spared a massive greasing by the slick. They added that Mexico's national oil company apparently intends to help clean up any mess caused by the Mexican spill.

Some oil has seeped into the entrance of the wildlife-rich Laguna Madre waterway along the coast, but authorities said Friday that concentrations were so small they posed no threat to the area's teeming wildlife.

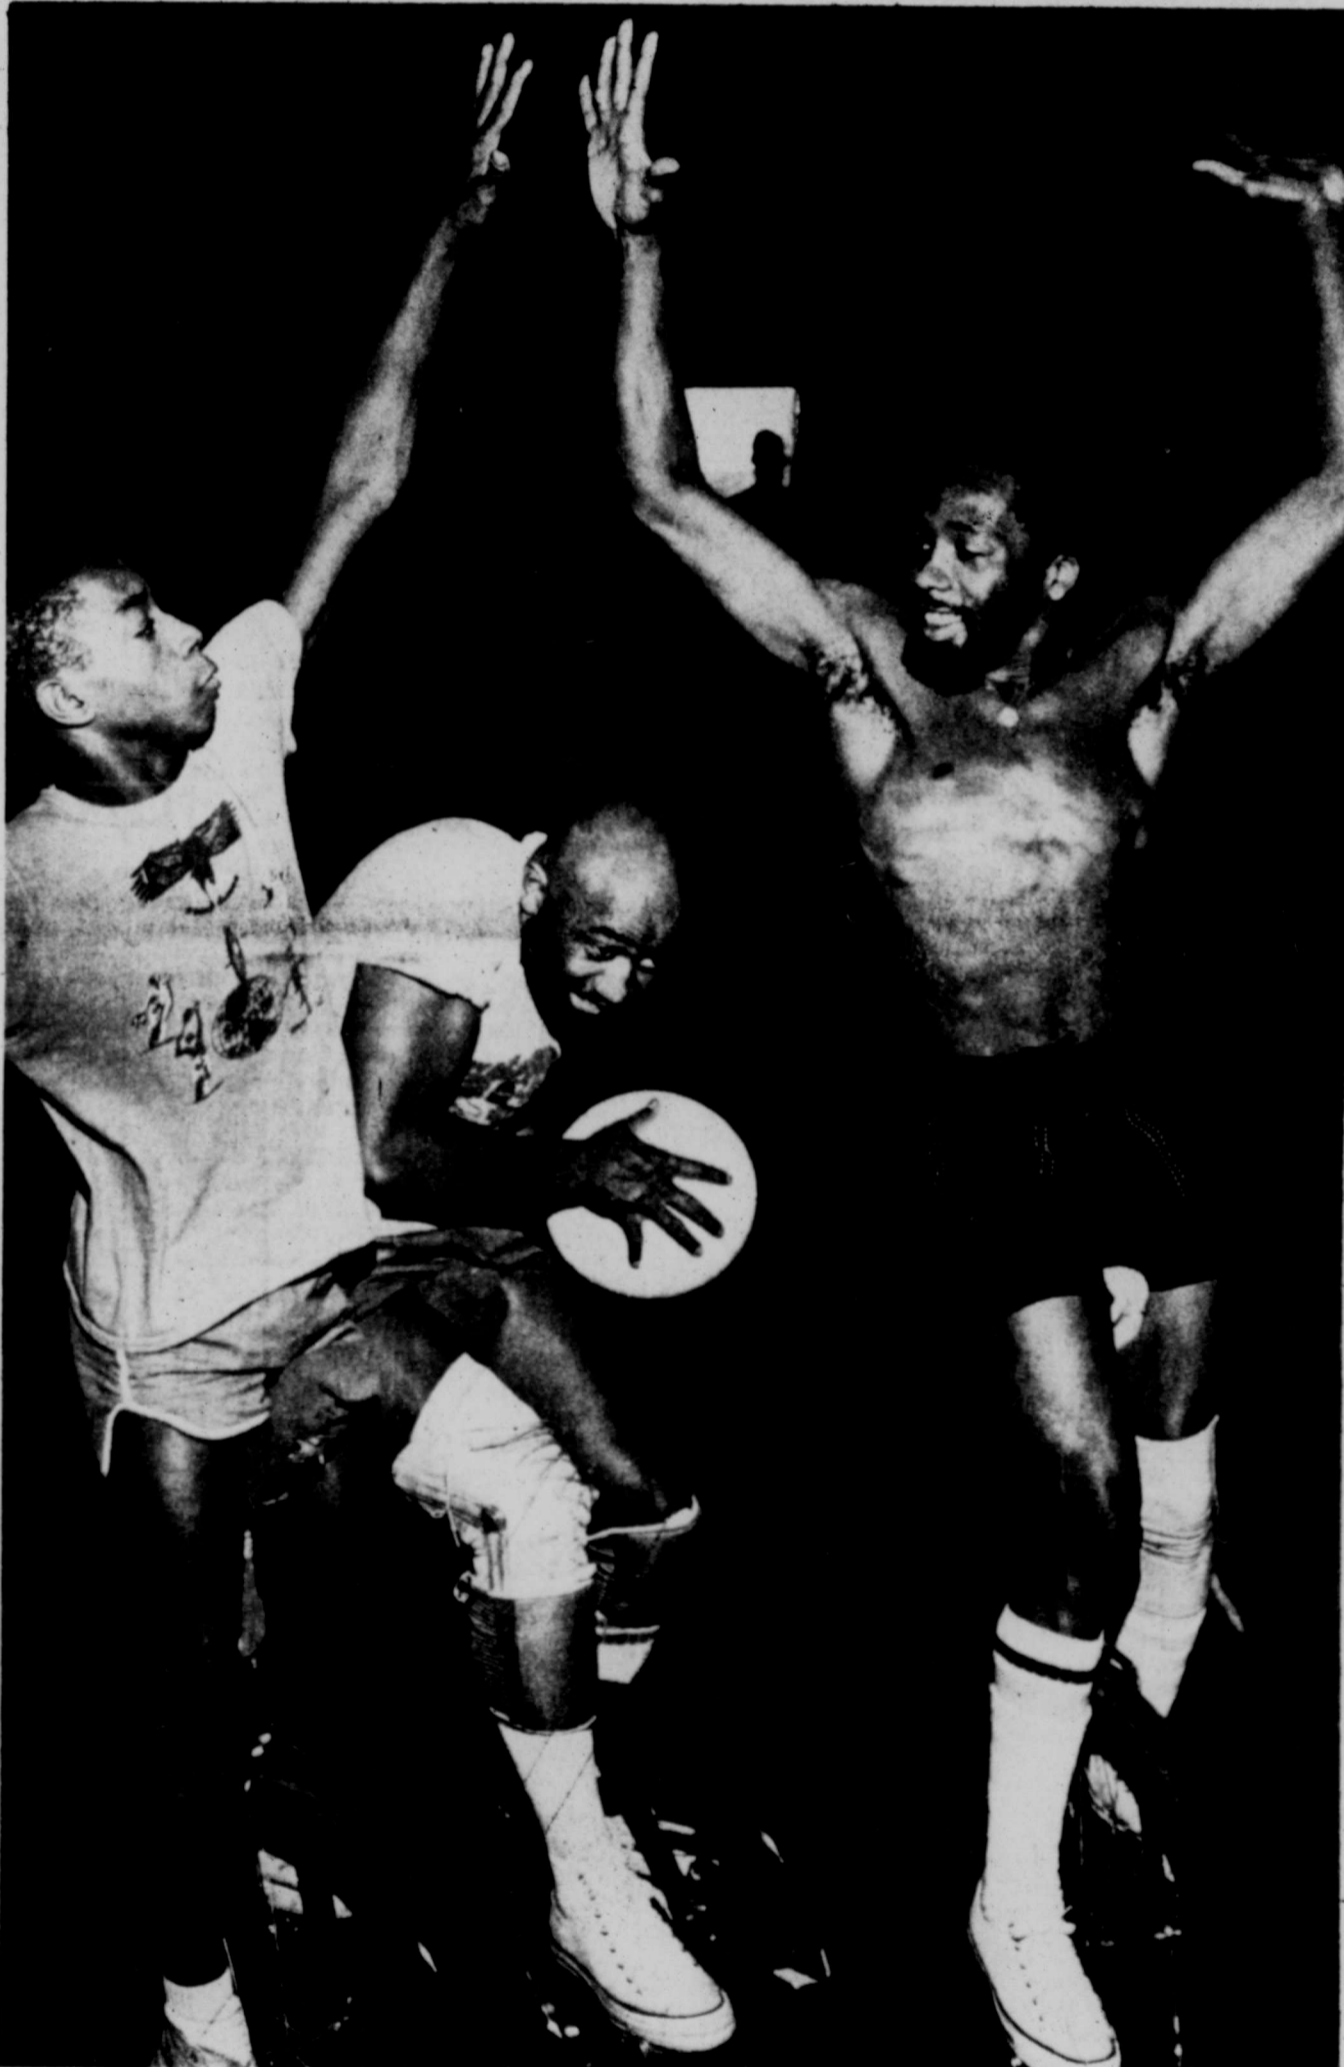

"We don't have any significant amount of oil in there," said John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, part of a U.S. task force battling oil from a runaway well more than 500 miles away in Mexico's Bay of Campeche.

Gov. Bill Clements planned an afternoon helicopter tour to inspect the South Texas coastal area threatened by the oil.

Officials said the leading edge of the main slick, the largest accidental spill in history, has broken into a series of patches, one about 40 miles off the coast just north of Brownsville and the other about 100 miles off the coast directly east of the state's southern tip.

A "sheen" of lighter oil about 40 miles long looms only 15 miles offshore, according to Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the task force. He said the oil is moving northward at about 10 miles a day.

"I continue to be optimistic as far as the impact on the Texas coast," Madson said. "I don't feel we're going to see any significant buildup over what we are seeing at the present time."

Unicyclists begin 'exploring field' for black artists

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Kwash's forte is slap-stick comedy on the unicycle.

He dribbles, spins, shoots and otherwise manhandles the basketball in a circus that traditionally excluded black artists.

He's a kingpin for the King Charles Troupe, which is "the first black act" with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. The circus now is in its 108th year and is making its debut in Midland this weekend.

"It's a big step for the black people," said the 28-year-old Kwash, who calls himself a "hardcore man." As a youngster he lived in the ghetto streets of the Bronx in New York City. His name is Donald Stewart, though his circus name is Kwash. ("Everybody's got a nickname in the circus.")

"It (the circus) is an unexplored field" for black people.

The wheeling-cagers are the Harlem Globetrotters on unicycles.

They make up a talented, industrious troupe headed by Charles King, whose 72-year-old father, Jerry King, was the inspiration for bringing the unicycle to the ghetto youths. They were — and are — kids who seemed destined to the "hardcore" street life of crime, violence and wasted ambition and talent.

"The old man," Jerry King, helped the black youth build up confidence and to find a life outside the asphalt jungle. The unicycle was his tool.

The bearded Kwash says that whenever performers in the troupe get the chance, they take their unicycles to the parks and streets in the black neighborhoods to show kids that it's not entirely a white man's world.

"We teach them everything we know," said the 5-foot-7½ Kwash, "because there is all sorts of talent in the ghetto."

Black youngsters who see the black men and women in a circus — a world often dominated by Europeans and Anglos — will get the idea that blacks originally from "deep, dark" Africa can and do succeed. It takes will, hard work, talent, study, confidence and determination.

The black youngster who sees the black unicyclists performing can no longer make this excuse for not trying to excel or for failure: "I can't do that because I'm not white," said Kwash.

"It doesn't matter what color of your skin you've got. It's how hard you work," he admonished.

Kwash and other members of the King Charles Troupe are trying to convey that idea to the black kids.

The unicyclist-concept to help build character was rooted decades ago when Jerry King sneaked under the "big tent" to watch the circus unicyclists, his favorite act.

Afterwards, he got a unicycle and taught his son Charles to ride in a 15-foot hallway. He got more unicycles and formed a club which advocated character- and body-building. The members shunned smoking, late hours, street fighting, smoking and gambling and other vices.

Kwash learned to cycle in that club. By 1968, his proficiency was so keen and his confidence so high that he auditioned for the circus and got a job with Ringling Brothers.

Today, the King Charles Troupe is but one of 35 acts in "The Greatest Show on Earth," which will be giving 2½-hour performances at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. today and at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. Sunday in Midland College's Chaparral Center.

In the act, in addition to Charles King and Kwash, are Charles "3-60" Reid, James "J.C." Connors, Leroy "Bosco" Ross, Quie Williams, Bennie "Stone" Williams, Jerome "Row-Row" Owens and the brothers three: Sweets Harrison, Harvey Harrison and Ted Harrison.

Referees are Kevin "Veto" Lewis, Anthony "Tony" Salsbury and Ron "Rock" Watson.

And Kwash beholds a certain Valerie Valentine with respect accorded a lady.

"She's the perfect example of how a young lady should be."

Kwash said he has "lots of respect" for the other artists, particularly the Europeans who seek perfection in their precision aerials and other acts in the circus world.

Federal mediation begun in tense coastal community

By GREG THOMPSON

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — A federal mediator met with anxious residents of this coastal fishing village Friday, taking the first steps toward resolving a territorial feud between local crab fishermen and their Vietnamese refugee counterparts.

The dispute that provoked a shooting death and other scattered incidents of hostility revolves around a decades-old, unwritten code that governs the fiercely independent shrimpers, crabbers and fishermen who make their living from the Bay of San Antonio.

"Both sides are scared about what happened. They're scared something else will happen," said Police Chief Bill Lindsey, who spent four years in Vietnam with the Air Force.

Problems started about two years ago when transplanted Vietnamese began crabbing and, local fishermen say, ignoring the understanding that whoever first finds a good fishing spot has exclusive rights to that spot.

Local workers say the Vietnamese regularly intrude, planting their crab traps too near others.

"It doesn't make any difference that they're Vietnamese," said former Mayor Billy Wilson. "It'd be the same thing if they were Yankees or anybody else. If they didn't follow the customs, there'd be problems."

In the past week, two Vietnamese brothers have been charged in connection with the shooting death of a Seadrift crabber, Billy Joe Aplin. Three Vietnamese boats and a Vietnamese residence docked near Aplin's boat were fire-bombed the night of his death. Three nights later, another Vietnamese boat was torched.

Thursday, police raided a Seadrift apartment and arrested three local men for possession of a blasting cap.

Officers said they were reacting to a tip that the local crab processing plant would be bombed.

A curfew that lasted five days was imposed, and almost all of the more than 100 Vietnamese living in this fishing village of 1,000 left town.

Federal mediator Robert Alexander and a Vietnamese representative from the U.S. Catholic conference arrived Friday and found an uneasy calm. Alexander, from the Justice Department's Community Relations division, said his meetings with townspeople would not be completed before Monday.

Twenty-four Vietnamese worked for the Bo Brooks of Texas, Inc., crab processing plant, forced to shut down after the refugees' exodus. Sixteen other Vietnamese refugees have taken up crabbing to provide food for their families, and these, local residents complain, were the ones violating the territorial code.

Owner Leon Ruthenberg of Maryland said he was not a Vietnamese resettlement sponsor and got the idea to hire them from a friend in Louisiana. "If we don't get them back, I don't think we can open up," Ruthenberg said. His plant employed a total of 78 persons.

Ruthenberg acknowledged a housing problem when the Vietnamese hit town, so he built a trailer park near his plant. Friday, the park was practically deserted.

Ruthenberg said the Vietnamese problems started when some of them began crabbing. "The watermen just didn't want them on the water. They feel there are not enough crabs, and feel it's like splitting their paychecks with somebody else."

Wilson agreed that local crabbers fear there is a danger of overworking the bay, even though a bumper harvest of blue crabs is in progress.

Ruthenberg finds himself more or less in the middle of things.

"I can almost see their (local crabbers') point, too," he said. "They've been here 100 years and then the Vietnamese come in and go on their crabbing territory. People here want the plant because there's only one other in this region. They're better off with competitive bidding at two plants."

Neither side has indicated that the squabble is racial in nature.

"The Vietnamese are generally accepted," said Mayor Rayburn Haynie. "When they got here, they tried to explain to them about the local customs. They acted like they understood, but they went ahead and did it anyway."

Haynie said he felt it was the responsibility of the federal government to provide resettled Vietnamese with orientation training about local customs.

Mothers part of nuclear study

By TIM PETTIT

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pregnant women living near the Three Mile Island nuclear plant will be studied over the next two years by scientists trying to learn how they are affected by low-level radiation — and by the fear of it.

With the help of hospitals and death records, a nine-member state team will check on the outcome of an estimated 8,000 births by women living within 10 miles of the facility between last March 28 and March 27, 1981.

March 28 was the day that two valves malfunctioned in the nuclear plant's cooling system, resulting in a leak of radiation into the atmosphere. It was the worst accident in the U.S. civilian atomic program.

On March 30, Gov. Dick Thornburgh advised pregnant women and pre-school children living within a five-mile radius to leave. The advisory lasted 11 days for the two groups, whose body tissues are particularly susceptible to the effects of radiation.

"In my first trimester, I couldn't sleep. I had nightmares...and wondered if I would have to take tranquilizers that could affect the fetus," said Dr. Joyce Kim, the project supervisor, who is six months pregnant.

"Every dosage of radiation is an overdose. Children and babies are 40 times more susceptible (to radiation)," Dr. Kim told reporters. "The susceptibility of the unborn is even higher."

Dr. George Tokuhata, director of the state Bureau of Health Research, downplayed the possible physical effects of the radiation on births.

"The amount of radiation that was monitored and reported was very small," he said. "We don't anticipate any great impact from the radiation."

"But there was considerable psychological stress on pregnant women, and that may have some impact on their pregnancies," he added.

Tokuhata said the team would check fetal deaths, congenital birth defects, premature babies, babies who die within 28 days of birth, and the condition of babies at birth.

He said the two-year period was selected to compare babies whose mothers were pregnant during the 10-day crisis period, and those whose mothers became pregnant afterward.

The mothers will be asked dozens of questions, including whether they were emotionally disturbed by the accident, and whether that prompted them to take some type of drugs.

All of the information will be analyzed by computer and will be kept confidential, according to the Health Department.

"I think it's such a worthwhile program, not just to Pennsylvania, but as a great contribution to the whole world," Dr. Kim said.

Five fires continue to defy control, Forest Service says

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Five forest fires still burned out of control Friday in western areas where more than 150,000 acres have been devastated in what top Forest Service officials describe as one of the worst fire seasons on record.

Max Peterson, the new chief of the U.S. Forest Service, met with Idaho Gov. John Evans, who has been sharply critical of the agency's handling of the fires. Peterson described the situation as "extraordinary."

"Monday was the worst fire situation we've had since we began keeping records," Peterson said. He said that half the nation's firefighting resources have already been tapped at a cost "in the multi-million dollars."

"We could have many more problems before this fire season is over," he added.

Lee Carr of the Boise Interagency Fire Center said that of the 35 fires that agency has helped fight in the last 10 days, all but five were under control Friday, freeing equipment and manpower to attack those still raging.

But Carr said authorities could not predict when the five fires still out of control — three in Idaho, one in Oregon and a new 300-acre fire in Nevada — could be controlled.

In the meantime, 500 firefighters from southern states were flown in to help 2,000 others battle Idaho's biggest blaze, one which has spread over 57,000 acres along the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and was still declared "too dangerous to meet headon."

Evans has criticized the Forest Service for allowing another major fire, the 50,000-acre Gal-lagher Peak blaze, to get out of control. That fire in eastern Idaho was contained Thursday night.

Evans said the Forest Service erred when it attempted to allow the Gallagher Peak fire to burn itself out when it first began on the Targee National Forest on July 6.

Also burning in Idaho were the 10,000-acre Ship Island blaze in the Idaho Primitive Area, and the East Fork of the 1,000-acre Kennally Creek fire in the Payette National Forest, 15 miles east of McCall.

In Oregon, firefighters still hadn't controlled the 1,700-acre Dixon Bar fire in the Umatilla National Forest, 25 miles southeast of Ukiah.

In Nevada, the Ivanhoe fire, 30 miles north-east of Battle Mountain, was reported to the fire center Thursday night. It had burned 300 acres and no predictions were made about when it could be contained.

On Thursday, firefighters contained the 7,000-acre Sheep Mountain fire 23 miles north of Wheatland, Wyo., and the 1,425-acre Cabin Creek fire in Montana's Lincoln-Sagepego Wilderness, near Ovando.

At a joint news conference with Peterson, Evans renewed his criticism of the Forest Service for allowing some fires to burn with no efforts to put them out.

The governor said the Forest Service is allowing three fires, totalling more than 11,000 acres in the upper panhandle of Idaho, to burn without any efforts to suppress them.

Peterson responded that he had asked aides to re-examine the three fires to make sure where firefighters should be sent in. He disagreed that his agency erred in its handling of the Gallagher Peak fire, but added:

"But I'm sure we will be overly cautious in the future."

World War II airman to be buried

ARDENNES AMERICAN CEMETERY, Belgium (AP) — U.S. Army Air Corps Sgt. James R. Becker of Fort Worth, Texas, will be buried here Sept. 10 with full military honors, more than 35 years after he was shot down over Nazi Germany and four months after his remains were found in a peat field near Hannover.

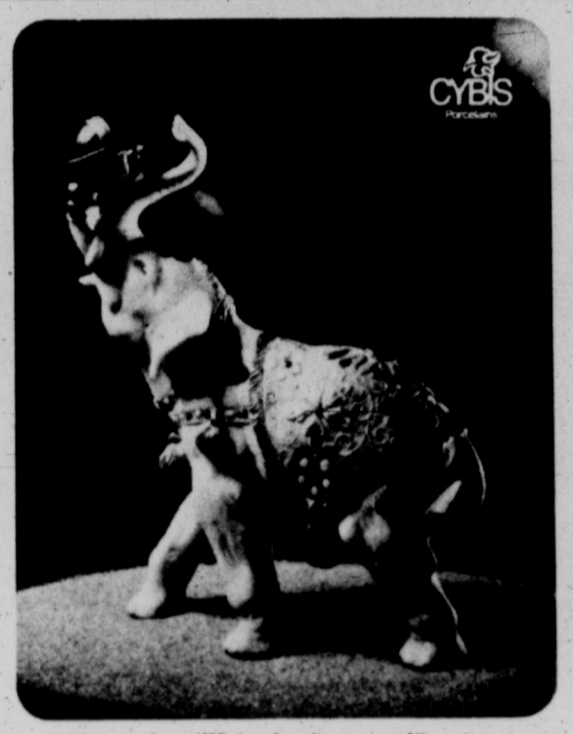

Francis Duffy, superintendent of this cemetery in Eastern Belgium where 5,323 U.S. servicemen lie buried, said the 20-year-old Becker was shot down March 8, 1944, returning from a bombing raid.

His remains were found by a farmer in Sleden, West Germany, near Hannover on May 1. "He was dressed in a flying suit and wrapped in a parachute," Duffy said and was positively identified by the U.S. Army Mortuary System in Frankfurt.

Until this year Becker had been among the approximately 19,500 Americans still listed as Missing In Action (MIA) from the Second World War in Europe.

Found with Becker's remains were his wristwatch, his identification bracelet and a high school ring bearing the initials J.E.R., Duffy said.

Houston residents to vote on enlarging of City Council

HOUSTON (AP) — Under a Justice Department mandate, Houston residents will vote Saturday on a proposal to enlarge its City Council and elect nine of the 14 members on a single district basis. A small turnout was expected despite a final week of intensive campaigning, primarily by radio and television. The outcome will determine whether there will be a November city general election or a vote on two long-delayed tax reform proposals forced by citizen petitions. Under the current council plan, all councilmen are elected on a citywide basis although five represent a specific district. Proponents of the 9-5 plan contend a Saturday defeat would stagnate the growth and operation of the nation's fifth largest city. Opponents say the plan would not give sufficient representation to minorities. The strategy of the Citizens Coalition for Responsive Government is to defeat the 9-5 plan and then, by citizen petition, force a November vote on a more liberal 16-4 plan. Louise Welch, a former mayor and now Chamber of Commerce president, organized the Greater Houston Committee to back the 9-5 plan. Welch says the plan is a compromise in which the whole political spectrum can work. "Big cities with big councils have big problems," Welch said, arguing that enlarged councils led to many of the problems in New York and Cleveland. But the coalition contends there would be no true minority representations under 9-5 in that each of the single-member districts would have well over 100,000 residents.

He told a news conference that if Egypt and Israel overcome their differences at the talks on autonomy for the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip, but the Palestinians still refuse an invitation to join the negotiations, "then we just will have to think about a new policy... a new political strategy." Security Council negotiations on a new Mideast resolution that would be acceptable to the Palestinians could be viewed as "preparation of a fallback position in the event that we will not obtain the aim we are working for." Carter pledges to block U.N. action on Palestinian issue

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — President Carter has promised Israel he will try to block new U.N. action on the Palestinian issue, an Israeli newspaper reported Friday. A top Egyptian diplomat suggested, however, that a fresh U.N. resolution may be what is needed to bring the Palestinians to the negotiating table.

U.S.-Israeli relations, strained by what the Israelis perceive as a potential softening of Carter administration policy toward the Palestinians, will be reviewed Sunday at the weekly meeting of the Israeli Cabinet.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, released from a hospital a week ago, is expected to chair the Cabinet meeting for the first time in a month.

Carter met Wednesday with Israel's ambassador to Washington, Ephraim Evron, climaxing weeks of growing tension between the two countries over negotiations on Palestinian autonomy, possible changes in U.N. Resolution 242, which is the basis for all Mideast negotiations, and Israeli air strikes into Lebanon.

Lebanese radio reported, and Israel denied, that Israeli forces launched a new ground raid into southern Lebanon early Friday, blowing up the house of a Lebanese villager nine miles inside Lebanon and then quickly withdrawing back across the border. No casualties were reported.

Military sources in Israel speculated that Lebanese Christian militiamen, who are supported by Israel, may have carried out the raid. But the army spokesman stated that no Israeli troops were involved.

Israeli government officials refused to comment on the Carter-Evron talks, but most reports here claimed Carter failed to ease Israeli concerns.

Resolution 242, passed in 1967, could be amended or replaced in a Security Council debate beginning Aug. 23. Israel objects to any tampering with the resolution, which refers to the Palestinians only as a refugee problem, and fears that the United States might support a move to strengthen the position of the Palestinians.

The Palestine Liberation Organization wants a Council resolution that calls for establishment of an independent Palestinian state, something the Israeli government says it will never allow.

The respected newspaper Haaretz reported from Washington Friday that Carter promised Evron to work for a postponement of the Security Council debate. If that failed, the Carter administration would try to block a decision, Haaretz said.

But the newspaper said Israeli officials complained that Carter would not explicitly promise to veto any resolution affecting 242.

In Cairo Friday, Butros Ghali, Egyptian minister of state for foreign affairs, endorsed the U.N. route as one way to try to achieve progress on the Palestinian issue.

He told a news conference that if Egypt and Israel overcome their differences at the talks on autonomy for the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip, but the Palestinians still refuse an invitation to join the negotiations, "then we just will have to think about a new policy... a new political strategy."

He said U.N. Security Council negotiations on a new Mideast resolution that would be acceptable to the Palestinians could be viewed as "preparation of a fallback position in the event that we will not obtain the aim we are working for." He said Egypt was "in favor of any new resolution that may encourage the Palestinians to participate."

He said a second fallback would be an international conference involving the United States and the Soviet Union. Israeli officials warned earlier this week that U.N. action could affect the autonomy negotiations, but Haaretz said Evron in his talks with Carter did not threaten an Israeli pullout from the negotiations.

Israeli press reports made these other points on the Carter-Evron meeting:

—Carter promised to coordinate U.S. Mideast moves more closely with Israel, after Evron complained about the proposed sale of 300 tanks to Jordan.

—Carter said he would stand by his Camp David pledge to form a multi-national peace force to supervise the Egypt-Israel treaty in the Sinai Peninsula. But Washington, which is trying to persuade Israel to accept unarmed U.N. observers as monitors, wants Israel to examine "other alternatives" first.

Kidnapping charge filed in Odessa

ODESSA — A charge of kidnapping has been filed against an Odessa man in connection with the alleged abduction Tuesday night of Michael Todd Franks of Odessa.

The charge was filed against Jim Bailey Jr., who remained at large late Friday.

Franks reportedly was kidnapped at gunpoint Tuesday night when he and his wife arrived at their mobile home in Odessa. Officers said Franks' wife told them a man hiding in the mobile home grabbed Franks and they drove away in Franks' pickup.

Franks later told officers he escaped his captor Wednesday morning while his abductor slept at a roadside park off Interstate 20 near Ranger.

Franks' pickup is still missing.

Ector County Sheriff's Department spokesmen say they know no motive for the abduction.

Adjusting hard for survivors of cult massacre

By MARC ROSENWASSER

NEW YORK (AP) — Adjusting to life in America is proving difficult for still-idealistic young survivors of the Jonestown mass suicide, according to a psychiatrist who has interviewed them.

"They found our people frivolous, selfish and uncaring for the rest of mankind," Dr. Hardat Sukhdeo said Friday.

He said their idealism survived even the memory of shock treatment and ball-and-chain punishment visited on the children of the cult in the Guyanese jungle.

Sukhdeo, chief of psychiatry of the College of Medicine and Dentistry at New Jersey Medical School, said the Jonestown survivors remain committed to many of the social changes advocated by the Peoples Temple leader, Jim Jones.

But, he said, they no longer believe they need a leader like Jones to effect changes.

"Jonestown is seen by them to have been a beautiful place, a beautiful experiment," said Sukhdeo. "It is Jones they see as a bad guy."

He spoke at a hearing of the state Assembly Committee on Child Care.

For the past several months, the psychiatrist said, he has interviewed 25 young survivors of the camp where more than 900 cultists, including 260 children, died in a mass murder and suicide nine months ago. The young survivors have since relocated in San Francisco.

Sukhdeo's conclusion was that Jones "was a guilt machine" who would rage at the political ramifications of "something as small as buying a hamburger at McDonald's."

Through guilt and by inducing fear in the children through public humiliation or punishment, the psychiatrist said, Jones became the children's "one and only father and God."

When children in the camp misbehaved, the psychiatrist said, they were sometimes given severe electrical shocks. In one instance, he said, balls and chains were attached to the ankles of two 16-year-olds who had tried to run away.

Now that they are in California, the young adults find that their values clash with the values of their American contemporaries, the psychiatrist said.

He characterized the Jonestown survivors as "polite, law-abiding, responsible and intelligent. They all had some humanitarian ideals."

"They want to work for people, to help people, to work for a just cause. They would not, however, like to follow another leader like Jones. They want to do it on their own."

When the young survivors first returned to the United States, he said, they were taken to parties and other gatherings so they could mix with their contemporaries.

The results were disappointing, said the psychiatrist, who was born in Guyana and lived there until he was 18.

"It turned them off completely because of the attitude of the American kids. They don't mind dancing and going to parties but it should be for a certain purpose, enjoyment or relaxation. After that they expect their time should be structured into something purposeful."

After the parties, the psychiatrist said, "Most of the American youngsters wanted to go drinking or driving or doing what the Guyanans see as being frivolous."

Third infant defies odds, develops outside womb

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A 5-pound, 6-ounce Michigan girl is the third baby born in the United States this year after defying medical odds by developing outside its mother's womb, doctors say.

LaKesha, whose mother asked that her last name not be made public, was born July 31 at Mercy Hospital.

Dr. Chung Sik Kim, the attending obstetrician, said odds against such a baby's survival are about one in 100,000, although pregnancy outside the mother's womb occurs about once in 10,000 cases. Kim said most such babies die within three months of conception.

The obstetrician said that in an abdominal pregnancy, the baby develops in the cavity where the body's intestines are located.

LaKesha's mother is a 28-year-old secretarial worker.

Similar live births occurred April 25 at Grand Junction, Colo., and July 18 at Chapel Hill, N.C. Doctors in the Colorado case said only about 50 such births are recorded in medical literature. The North Carolina physicians called chances of such a birth "too rare to estimate scientifically."

Klan march follows 14-year-old path

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A ragtag band of Ku Klux Klan marchers chanted "white power, white power" Friday as they trudged eastward in near-100 degree temperatures. Wilkerson limped noticeably but he vowed to complete the march.

The tune of "Dixie" blared from a loudspeaker atop a van.

The Klansmen, in the second day of a 50-mile trek from Selma to Montgomery which retraces the route taken by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and voting rights marchers in 1965, were drenched by a sudden downpour that struck just as they reached the Liuzzo slaying spot.

The only spectators were state troopers and reporters.

The Klansmen — whose numbers increased slightly Friday, to about 100 — plan to enter Montgomery on Sunday, but they have no parade permit for their march and rally on the steps of the Capitol.

U.S. District Judge Robert Varner in Montgomery indicated Friday that he would reject a Klan request for an order to allow the march without a permit.

Varner said he would issue a written order later but commented from the bench that his "present thinking" was to reject the Klan bid.

Attorney Doyle Fuller, representing the Klan, told Varner the city should "bend over backwards" to protect freedom-of-speech rights for all persons.

But Mayor Emory Folmar said the Klan had failed to follow rules for getting a permit.

Klan leaders have threatened to enter the city without a permit, and police have said they will be arrested.

It was on the last day of the King-led march that Mrs. Liuzzo, a white Detroit housewife, died in a hail of bullets fired from a carload of Klansmen along U.S. 80.

Reminded of Mrs. Liuzzo's slaying, Klan march leader Bill Wilkerson said he felt "no remorse" about her death. "She was doing an unsanctimonious thing, helping those niggers," he said.

The Klansmen showed some signs of fatigue Friday as they trudged eastward in near-100 degree temperatures. Wilkerson limped noticeably but he vowed to complete the march.

Klansmen kept their robes and hoods packed away in vans and buses, preferring the relief of T-shirts and cutoff blue jeans.

Wilkerson, clad in blue jeans, hiking boots and a light blue knit shirt, spoke with reporters during a 90-minute lunch break.

The imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, disavowed any Klan involvement in Mrs. Liuzzo's death. "I didn't mourn it but I didn't order it," he said.

"It wasn't sanctioned by the Klan."

Wilkerson said full responsibility for her death lay with the FBI, saying, "They instigated these kinds of things by paying petty thugs and crooks to inform on the Klan, and the bigger the crime, the bigger the paycheck."

Former FBI informant Gary Thomas Rowe currently is fighting extradition from Georgia to this small Alabama community to face charges that he fired the fatal shots. The indictment was handed down by a grand jury which heard two former Klansmen say they saw Rowe fire the shots.

Rowe, now living in Savannah, Ga., claims he took no part in the slaying, which helped encourage passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Wilkerson said Mrs. Liuzzo "was promoting race-mixing and that's the highest sin you can commit." Asked whether "race-mixing" was a higher sin than murder, he replied, "Yes, higher than murder."

Town preparing for KKK rally

BARNEGAT, N.J. (AP) — Police in this normally quiet community of 7,500 have purchased $2,000 worth of riot gear in preparation for a weekend of Ku Klux Klan demonstrations that could ignite trouble.

A handful of radicals have said they will oppose the KKK demonstrations.

Aaron Morrison, 17, a Klan member who graduated from high school in May, predicts that between 100 and 300 robed Klansmen will demonstrate on his family's property off U.S. 9 on Saturday night.

be David Duke, 28, of Metairie, La., the graduate of Louisiana State University who styles himself as the national director of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, one of several KKK federations claiming to be the nation's largest.

In New Orleans, Duke said he intends to use the rally to announce that he will qualify for the New Jersey presidential primary.

He's too young to serve as president.

"I plan to run in a number of primaries," said Duke, who already is a candidate for state senator in Louisiana's Oct. 27 election. "We plan on Florida, New Jersey, Tennessee, Georgia, Arkansas, Alabama and Illinois."

Morrison said Klansmen also would picket the home of Mayor Steven Jentis on Friday and possibly march to the Township Hall.

Boarding record set

Passenger boardings at Midland Regional Airport set a record for the month of July with 42,946, according to Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city of Midland.

The previous record had been set in June with 41,656 persons boarding planes at the Midland airport.

August already looks like it will be a good month for boardings, according to Banks, who added that the pace was remaining steady.

"People are finding that it's cheaper to fly now when you consider the increasing cost of gasoline, motel and food," Banks added.

24-year-old man pleads guilty to federal charge

A 24-year-old Ector County jail inmate who threatened to kill President Carter pleaded guilty to federal charges Friday in U.S. District Court.

William Rodney Etheridge, 24, changed his plea from innocent to guilty following an inquiry into the validity of the indictment against him.

U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle ordered the inquiry because he questioned the fact of whether the contents of the letter needed to be mailed before the indictment can be valid.

He is charged with threatening the life of President Carter, threatening to blow up the U.S. Department of Justice in San Antonio and threatening to blow up the George Mahon Federal Building here.

On March 9, 1979, Etheridge wrote a letter to President Carter contending he had hired a "hit man" to kill the president, the indictment stated.

Etheridge now is in Ector County Jail in lieu of $200,000 bond.

Man enters plea of guilty

Dean Leroy Emme pleaded guilty Friday to conspiracy charges of distributing stolen explosives in Midland U.S. District Court.

On July 3, 1979, Emme sold 1,066 pounds of stolen dynamite and detonating cord to a federal agent in Andrews, according to the indictment.

He tried to sell the explosives to the federal agent for $7,500.

A sentencing hearing for Emme will be Oct. 11.

Final message found?

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) - A vacationing mailman found a small container washed up on a Danish beach containing a purported message from a German U-boat captain whose craft sank in the Baltic Sea 38 years ago.

"We been hit by a bomb. Our submarine is resting on sea bottom, torpedo and engine rooms flooded," read the note written in German and the signature "Capt. Heinz Ratsch."

"Five men besides me are still alive," the note said.

Written on wax-treated paper, the message was dated Nov. 11, 1941, and appeared to be the final words of the commander of the World War II submarine U-583. Copenhagen mailman Arne Thomsen, vacationing on the southern Danish island of Langeland, said he found the note Thursday in a metal container which also held a shoulder strap apparently torn from the commander's uniform.

The message says the sub had been cruising on the surface that November day and was attacked by a British plane.

"The sky was overcast. Suddenly a four-engine English plane was over us. We had not seen or heard it coming. It is the end of us..."

The captain, aware that his ship could not resurface may have been trying to transmit military information to the Nazi command. The note made reference to newly developed SONAR tracking equipment.

"The enemy has new apparatus picking up sound waves..." the note read.

Thomsen said he gave the container and its contents to Friedrich Dittman, a West German naval officer also on the island. Dittman planned to forward it to naval authorities when he returns home.

In Frankfurt, German historian Juergen Rohwer confirmed that Heinz Ratsch was captain of U-583 and said documents indicate the submarine did sink in the Baltic in November 1941.

But Rohwer, a specialist on naval battles during World War II, said the note brought up discrepancies with official records. The message "apparently must be treated with some caution," he said.

Rohwer said his files indicated the 760-ton submarine "sank with her entire crew of 45 on Nov. 15, 1941, in Gdansk (Danzig) Bay after a collision with U-153."

Portland woman sues Church of Scientology, claiming fraud

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — In an unusual case claiming religious consumer fraud, a 22-year-old Portland woman claims in a $2 million lawsuit that the Church of Scientology failed to deliver on its promises.

A jury is expected next week to consider Julie Christofferson Titchbourne's claims that the Scientologists misrepresented the quality of their activities and the benefits it offered.

She maintains the church told her in 1975 its courses would help her with her college classwork, develop her creativity and raise her intelligence quota test scores.

Cures for neurosis, criminality, insanity, psychosomatic illness, homosexuality and drug dependence also were available through church assistance, she says she was told.

Attorneys for both sides say as far as they know it is the first case of its kind — essentially consumer fraud — against the church.

"I don't know of any cases like this since the Salem witchcraft trials," said Jack L. Kennedy, president of the Oregon State Bar Association and lead attorney for the Scientologists.

Mrs. Titchbourne's lawyer, Garry McMurry of Portland said this is the first time Scientology or any of what he calls "the new religions" has been sued on the grounds of fraud.

The church describes itself as a general, not-for-profit religious group that fosters a belief in God and that man is a spiritual being.

About 400 exhibits have been filed as psychiatrists, psychologists and religious scholars haggle over the validity of Scientology as a religion and the emotional impact it has on its followers.

Among other things, Mrs. Titchbourne claims to have suffered from a loss of memory, language ability and concentration as a result of her experience with the church.

Mrs. Titchbourne, who says she has since been deprogrammed, filed the suit in April 1977 seeking $5,000 reimbursement for the cost of Scientology courses she took and $60,000 in damages, half of them punitive.

The complaint has been amended seven times since then as attorneys discovered more and more allegedly improper activities, McMurry said.

Not all of the amendments involved increasing the amount of damages sought, he said.

Attorneys for the Scientologists rested their defense in the month-long trial Thursday. Closing arguments are expected Monday and Tuesday with the case going to the seven-woman, five-man jury by the middle of next week.

McMurry said one of the allegations on which the suit is based is the common law theory of fraud through outrageous conduct.

Testimony by several witnesses recounted a practice known as "bull-baiting" wherein trainees were touched repeatedly in an overtly sexual manner by instructors and counselors.

A suit was filed this week in Denver District Court by a North Dakota man who alleges the church took advantage of his temporary mental illness three years ago and defrauded him of $26,000.

Named as defendants in the Portland suit are the Church of Scientology of Portland, the Mission of Davis in Portland, the Delphian Foundation in Sheridan, Ore., and officers of the church, including its founder, former science fiction writer Lafayette Ronald Hubbard.

Scientology, defined by Hubbard as "an applied religious philosophy, a combination of both Eastern and Western religions," was founded in 1954.

The church claims 22 churches and about 100 missions worldwide with adherents numbering 4 million, three-fourths of them in the United States. The world headquarters of the church are in Sussex, England, and the U.S. operations are based in Los Angeles.

Elder Cavanaugh assumes pastorate of Adventist Church

Elder Glenn Cavanaugh recently arrived in the city to assume the pastorate of the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church at 3114 Travis Ave. Cavanaugh succeeds Lyle Byrum in the pastorate. Byrum recently left the Midland post to accept the ministry of another church.

Cavanaugh, a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., moved in childhood with his family to Orlando, Fla., where he was educated.

He attended elementary and secondary grades at the Forest Lake Academy, and then enrolled in Southern Missionary College, where he was graduated in 1969 with a B.A. degree in theology.

Cavanaugh interned for the ministry in Miami and St. Petersburg, Fla. After successfully completing his internship, he served several churches within the Belle Glade and Winter Garden districts of the Florida Conference of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Prior to moving to Midland, Cavanaugh was associated with the Seventh Day Adventist Central Church in Orlando, Fla., where he served as minister of music.

Cavanaugh's hobbies include music, photography, tailoring and water sports.

His wife, Rose, is a graduate of Mt. Vernon Academy in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and attended Southern Missionary College from 1965 to 1967. She is a pianist and singer.

The couple has two sons: Andy, 7, and Steve, 6. They will attend classes this fall at the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church School, operated in conjunction with the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The Cavanaugh family has established residence at 4701 W. Illinois Ave.

Reported consecration of bishop without Vatican approval 'illegitimate'

VATICAN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican today termed "illegitimate" the reported consecration — without Vatican approval — of a bishop of Peking by a national Catholic group in China.

But the Holy See took pains to note that its stance was based on the universally applied doctrine that only the Pope can appoint bishops and did not signal hostility toward the Peking government.

"This principle, well known to everybody, must be understood as an act of recognition of the deposit of the Catholic faith reserved to ecclesiastical authorities and as such it is a sign of love toward our brothers in the faith, particularly those who live in the Chinese continent," said the Rev. Pierfranco Pastore, a Vatican spokesman.

A report from Peking last week said the "National Association of Patriotic Catholics" elected Monsignor Michele Fu Tieshan bishop of Peking July 25. It said the 47-year-old priest succeeded Bishop Wang Jiting, who died last year.

Pastore said there has been no direct communication from Peking to confirm the news report.

The Vatican believes there were more than 4 million Christians, including 3 million Catholics, in China before the communist takeover in 1949. It estimates there still are between 500,000 and 2 million baptized Catholics in China.

The remnants of the small but once-flourishing Catholic church in China have been separated from the Vatican for more than 20 years and China has not responded to repeated Vatican overtures for a dialogue.

The only visible signs of Christianity in China for many years have been two churches in Peking — one Catholic and one Protestant — primarily used by foreign residents and visitors.

But recent developments seem to indicate growing religious tolerance in China. The government has allowed China-born foreign priests to visit and travel in China and currently a leading Jesuit priest and an official of the Vatican radio system are in China.

The Chinese also have released from prison some aging Vatican-appointed bishops and relaxed their ban on listening to foreign broadcasts, including the Vatican's daily Chinese-language broadcasts.

Vatican sources say, however, that a formal Vatican-Peking dialogue is unlikely as long as the Holy See maintains diplomatic relations with Taiwan, where there are 300,000 Catholics.

Scene of Chinese worship now a village schoolhouse

LOKAN PEOPLE'S COMMUNE, Guangdong Province — Once it was a major scene of Chinese worship, complete with smiling Buddha, incense burners, brass gongs and all the assorted icons and idols that have been the lynch-pin of Chinese religious and family life for countless centuries.

Today it's a schoolhouse, providing, according to local sources who surely speak with authority, a far more advanced level of education than was once available in this rural village.

Now, in an obviously deliberate act, the upward curling cornices so typical of Chinese temples have been removed, chopped off. The rest of the buildings remain, because the ever-pragmatic Communists needed the shelter even if they had no taste for the religion.

Thus, where people once came to worship, now some Chinese youngsters play Ping-Pong, quite likely oblivious to the transmutation that has occurred not only in their village but, indeed, throughout all of the People's Republic of China.

Elsewhere, a few major temples have simply been "converted" to historical museums, open to the public and available to those who would worship there, but few, usually older Chinese, have the temerity to publicly maintain their Buddhist faith.

Thus, in Foshan City, also in Guangdong (Kwangtung) province, the Ancestral Temple rebuilt after a fire in 1372 during the Ming Dynasty is a Communist showpiece, but without direct religious references.

The guides explained the situation matter-of-factly:

"The older people who still come here sometimes might burn a little incense, but the younger ones don't know or care. Religion is not taught." Next to the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung, whom the Chinese truly seem to be deifying, Karl Marx is most revered, and his warning,

"Religion is the opiate of the people," is not easily ignored by the Maoists.

There have been some reports that many Chinese Christians "went underground," but the non-Orientalists were made most unwelcome and quickly left the country, or as was reported: "in some cases, suffered various indignities at the hands of the conquering Communists."

So now that China is "opening up," the question rushes to the fore: Will this opening permit a return of the missionary effort?

We encountered this challenge firsthand when it was learned a member of our tour group was a Catholic priest, traveling without benefit of the turned collar, but specifically sent by his superiors to quietly, objectively investigate the conditions and the environment in respect to a possible return of the Christian, largely American missionary effort.

Chinese religious leaders to attend

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight religious leaders from mainland China have confirmed they will participate in a World Conference on Religion and Peace Aug. 29-Sept. 7 at Princeton, N.J., planners disclosed.

They said the Chinese delegation would include three Buddhists, three Christians, two Moslems and two aides, the first religious group to come to an international meeting from China since it turned communist.

The conference of more than 350 religious leaders from about 50 nations representing the world's 10 major faiths is focused on the theme, "Religion in the Struggle for World Community."

The honorary chairman, Nikkyo Niwano of Japan, said in a statement from Tokyo that "it is not possible to discuss 'the true world' at an international conference without representation from China, with its 1 billion people."

"The first participation of these Chinese religious leaders in a world conference for a full generation is an event of historic proportions."

Graham takes stand on SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham has taken a public stand in favor of the SALT II arms-limitation accords between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, saying that a nuclear holocaust is almost certain "if the arms race is not stopped."

In an interview in Sojourners magazine, he cites inadequacies of SALT II, but says that without the treaty, he fears further arms escalation, and adds:

"These things have to be taken one step at a time. SALT II should give way to SALT III. I wish we were working on SALT X right now! Total destruction of nuclear arms."

Church affirms different views

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The annual governing conference of the 179,000-member Church of the Brethren, one of the nation's historic "peace" churches, has approved a statement affirming diverse understandings of the Bible.

Instead of taking a single position, a course that has stirred conflicts in many denominations, the statement presents several views on which members with different understandings agree, and other views on which there is not yet agreement.

'Family Bible School' will begin Sunday

A "Family Bible School" will start at 6 p.m. Sunday at the North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ.

Dr. Bob Hawkins will be the keynote speaker for the school at the Sunday evening service. The theme of the school is "Getting to Know God in the Home."

Dr. Hawkins is the director of guidance at Midland College and a teacher of philosophy at the school.

Classes for preschool, primary, junior and teen-age young people will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

If interested persons can not make the school due to transportation problems, a bus will be made available. Telephone number for this service is 682-8653.

Church must take back members

CONWAY, S.C. (AP) — In an unusual action, County Court Judge O. A. Rankin has ruled that a Southern Baptist congregation, the Hickory Grove Church, must reinstate 16 former members who had been ousted following months of controversy.

The congregation's vote to exclude the group from fellowship is "null and void and of no effect," Rankin ruled.

The pastor, the Rev. B. C. Pigg, says the church will not heed the decision because it is contrary to separation of church and state. "We don't want to seem un-Christian in this matter but we believe the state has no right to say who can be members of our church," he says.

SALT II crucial step, church hears

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The president of the 1.8 million-member United Church of Christ told its governing synod that the SALT II treaty is "a small step forward — but a crucial one — toward sane judgments about nuclear arms."

Council condemns SALT II treaty

CAPE MAY, N. J. (AP) — The International Council of Christian Churches, made up of 320 relatively small, conservative denominations, condemns the SALT II treaty between Russia and the U. S. as a "deceit of the atheists."

"The communists have no God, no standard which binds them to honesty," the council's world congress declared.

Civilization needs Bible to survive

NEW YORK (AP) — Western civilization came into being through the impact of the Bible and depends for survival on upholding premises of that old book, says British writer Malcolm Muggeridge.

"It can never become outmoded or irrelevant," he told the American Bible Society's annual meeting, adding:

"We and the incarnation (of Christ) stand or fall together; to abandon or repudiate how it happened as set forth in the New Testament is tantamount to tearing up the title deeds of the property and inviting in the squatters and demolition men."

Life's become expendable

RICHLAND, Va. (AP) — "The 20th century has seen a terrible undermining of the value and sacredness of human life," says the Rev. Alan Walker, director of evangelism for the World Methodist Council. "Much killing has made all life expendable."

He told a church meeting the revival of capital punishment in the U.S. with a recent execution in Florida "further brutalized America and the world. The destruction of life anywhere — by murder, the electric chair or in war — cheapens life everywhere."

Poets make pilgrimages to 'Frisco

The Los Angeles Times
SAN FRANCISCO — This city, more than any other in America, is a mecca for poets and one reason is the Poetry Center.

Poets from across the nation and from many parts of the world the past 25 years have been making pilgrimages to the center on the campus of San Francisco State University.

They come to give readings on Wednesdays during the school year, with every Wednesday since 1954 known as The Day of The Poets at San Francisco State.

Langston Hughes, Robert Duncan, Louis Zukofsky, Mei-Mei Berssenbrugge, Ishmael Reed, Michael McClure, Ann Sexton, Allen Ginsberg and numerous other well-known poets have given Wednesday readings at the center.

And, ever since Theodore Roethke read his poetry at San Francisco State on Feb. 25, 1954, the readings have been taped and have become part of the Poetry Center's American Poetry Archive.

At first only audio tapes were made. In recent years videotapes have been made as well. There are more than 500 videotapes and more than 2,000 audio tapes of poets now in the American Poetry Archive.

Tom Mandel, 36, a poet from Chicago, is the center's director. Gordon Craig, 32, a San Francisco poet, is director of the archive.

"There's no collection of audio and videotapes of poets like this anywhere on the face of the earth," Craig said. "The Library of Congress collection is nowhere near as complete."

The American Poetry archive not only records the readings and maintains the collection but also operates a lending library of audio and visual tapes of poets reading their works.

There is a nominal rental fee — usually $12.50 per tape — for the two-week loan period, explained Craig. "Universities and colleges throughout the U.S. as well as many individuals are constantly renting the tapes of the poets."

Poets receive honoraria for the recordings plus royalties, usually $5 to $10 from each rental of a tape.

It was at the Poetry Center that the nationwide Poets in the Schools program originated 15 years ago. The program is funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and local school districts.

"At present 45 poets are 'residence' at 63 elementary and high schools throughout California," explained Mandel. "The poets work with students, getting them interested in reading and writing poetry."

"Widely known poets like Ishmael Reed and Michael McClure have been involved in the program, but for the most part it is local poets who spend a semester or entire school year on the project."

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd needed only 69 minutes to defeat unseeded Renee Richards 6-1, 6-0 Friday and advance to the finals of the $275,000 U.S. Open Clay Court tennis championships.

The other three top-seeded men, No. 3 Guillermo Vilas, No. 4 Jose Higueras and top-seeded Jimmy Connors, were scheduled to play later. McEnroe, eliminated in the quarterfinals by Connors here last year, plays the winner of a match between Vilas and Jose-Luis Clerc, both from Argentina.

Lloyd, who had lost the first game, was holding a 2-1 advantage at the time. They played nearly 20 points before Lloyd broke Richards' serve. "Had it not occurred in that game, it would have happened in another," said Richards, who has now lost to Lloyd three times this year.

AND AT the other wide receiver slot is Golden Richards, an established big-play man.

Saturday night, Ray got picked on by three Miami quarterbacks who tried to take advantage of his inexperience in a 14-7 Dolphin victory over the Saints.

Ray played a disproportionate amount of time at cornerback due to an injury to Clarence Chapman and a death in the family of Eric Felton.

"I learned that I still have a lot of improving to do," Ray said. "I was a little nervous at the start, but I got settled down as the game went on."

Coach Dick Nolan said Ray got a thorough workout against the Dolphins.

"The very first thing they did was zip — shoot right at him," Nolan said. "They must have thrown 14 passes right at him."

CHICAGO'S MOST effective passer last week was third-string quarterback Vince Evans, who threw for all three touchdowns — the two to Scott and one to tight end Mike Cobb — and completed nine of 12 attempts for 165 yards.

The Saints plan to start Archie Manning at quarterback, follow him with Bobby Scott and wind up with Ed Burns.

Russell Erxleben, whose NFL debut was a fizzle last week, is scheduled to punt and kick during the first half Saturday, with Tom Blanchard to handle the punting and Rich Szaro the kicking in the second half.

Erxleben, the 11th player taken in the NFL draft, missed two chip-shot field goals against the Dolphins and shanked a punt for just 19 yards.

"It's just a matter of going out and kicking the ball and getting the first one," Erxleben said.

"I'm hoping I won't be nervous, but I know I will be."

HE SAID that on the missed field goals, the ball went right where he aimed it.

"The whole problem was that I lined up wrong," he said. "Both of them missed about a foot to the right, and that was exactly where I was aiming."

"The first couple of weeks at practice in Vero Beach, I was kicking with a side wind. I would aim for the right upright and let the wind blow it in. I lined up the same way Saturday night, and there was no wind."

It's "braggin' rights" time in Florida.

The Miami Dolphins and Tampa Bay Buccaneers collide in tonight in their annual intrastate National Football League preseason game. A record crowd of 72,126 is expected.

And don't let the Dolphins' Super Bowl record or Tampa Bay's relative newness to the league fool you.

"Tampa Bay's given us one of the roughest games we've had over the last few years," said Dolphin center Jim Langer. "I think Tampa's at the stage we were at in the early '70s when we played Baltimore in the preseason. It was like the Super Bowl for us; it was our chance to gain respect. We know Tampa Bay would really like to beat us."

THE BUCCANEERS lost their preseason opener to Washington 9-7 last week while Miami is out to increase its preseason mark to 2-0 after beating New Orleans 14-7.

The second full weekend of preseason games got underway Thursday with the St. Louis Cardinals crushing the Atlanta Falcons 42-17 and the Kansas City Chiefs edging the Philadelphia Eagles 24-21.

Midland starts Class A meet

Seven Midland teams will be among the 32 vying for the championship of the Class A State Western-Division slow-pitch softball tournament, which will get into high gear today at Hogan Park and will conclude tomorrow.

The tournament officially opened late Friday night with the Big Spring Sport's World-Amarillo Miller High Life contest.

Tabbed as possible pre-tournament favorites were two of the Tall City outfits, Chemical Weed and Golden Life. Chemical Weed is riding a wave of momentum since capturing the district qualifying tournament while Golden Life reigns as city champion.

Also from Midland are the Roadrunners, Stardust, Stadium Sports Center, First National Bank and Flying D.

All are involved in action today in the ASA-sanctioned double-elimination tournament.

At 8 a.m. today, the Roadrunners will tangle with Seminole Sentinel on field one while on field five, Stardust will battle Brownwood Merchants.

Stadium Sports will open play at 9:10 on field two against Weatherford Breakers while on field five, the talented Chemical Weed crew will get a stern first-round test from Amarillo Popeye's.

First National Bank will face Breckenridge First National Bank at 10:20 on field two while Flying D will take on Big Spring Quicksilver on field five. At 11:30 on field five, Golden Life will meet Brownwood Jazz.

Other first round games at 8 a.m. have Mineral Wells Mr. Goodbar against Dumas Aldridge PDQ on field two and Wichita Falls Dollar Signs against Canyon Buffalo Chips on field three.

In other first-round action at 9:10, it'll be Bowie Bell Manufacturing and El Paso Astros on field one and Andrews Holman Construction against Amarillo Basden Bail Bond on field three.

Two tilts will be played at 10:20—Brownwood Bears against Wichita Falls Night Owls on field one and Odessa Chickaree against Plainview Cleveland Athletic on field three.

And in the other 11:30 fray, Weatherford Malt Shop will engage Andrews Triny's Exxon on field one while the El Paso Aces will face Amarillo Derwienerschnitzel on field two.

Action will continue with games all day and most of the night. Sunday's play will begin at 9 a.m. The championship game has been tentatively set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The winner of the tournament will advance to the ASA Class A regional tournament in Houston.

Awards will be given to the top eight teams and the 20-member all-state team.

Midland Cubs retain slim hold on first place

AMARILLO — The Texas League game played here Friday night between the Midland Cubs and the Amarillo Gold Sox, marred by seven errors and 16 runners left on base, won't go down as one of the greatest of the season.

George Stablein's throwing error on a pickoff attempt, then tallied on Martin's base hit.

It will, however, go into the record book as a 4-2 Midland victory. And it does keep the Bruins securely in first place in the Western Division.

For insurance, the Cubs added a run in the eighth that put them ahead 4-2. First baseman Gary Krug singled, stole second and then scored when third baseman Mike Turgeon delivered a single to right.

Midland and Amarillo renew hostilities at 7:30 tonight with the Cubs leading the current series 2-0.

Amarillo scored lone runs in the third and seventh, but combined with nine stranded runners and four errors, Stablein, who went the route, couldn't avoid his tenth straight mound setback.

The bright spots were few and far between Friday night and Midland seemed to come up with most of them.

'Big Two-Little Eight' syndrome finally passes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Big Two-Little Eight" syndrome of Big Ten football seems to be on its way out, thanks in part to Jim Young and his Purdue Boilermakers.

quarterback Mark Herrmann is one of the country's best at his position.

Actually, it began last year as Michigan State tied perennial power Michigan for the conference championship and Purdue, with a 6-1-1 record, finished one-half game ahead of Ohio State.

"I think the Big Ten has more balance right now than it's had in a number of years," said Young, architect of a complete turnaround at Purdue. "Realistically speaking, we think four teams are fairly equal — Michigan State, Michigan, Ohio State and Purdue.

"We went into the season with the idea we were going to win, said Young. "We got off to a good start and had certain things that kept moving us along. The first game was a big boost (a 21-14 victory over Michigan State) and beating Ohio State (27-16) in the middle of the season was a big boost. The more we won the more confidence we had."

The last team other than Michigan or Ohio State to represent the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl was Indiana, which played in Pasadena following the 1967

Young hasn't done it with mirrors. Purdue allowed the fourth-fewest points of any major college in the nation last year and

"Another key is getting off to a good start. We play Wisconsin, UCLA and Notre Dame the first three weeks, so we'll be tested."

"I think he can be a truly great quarterback, not only for us but in the future," said the coach. "As a freshman he threw 27 interceptions. A lot of those were because of inexperience. Last year, in 12 games he threw only 12 interceptions.

ATLANTA (AP) — Art Howe's two-run single in the eighth inning enabled Joe Niekro to record his 16th victory, tops in the majors, Friday night as the Houston Astros edged the Atlanta Braves 2-1.

The Astros had only two singles off Atlanta starter Eddie Solomon, 4-9, when they chased him with three straight hits at the start of the eighth.

Enos Cabell opened with a single to left and raced to third when Jeff Leonard singled to right. Cabell held third and Leonard advanced to second on a passed ball by catcher Joe Nolan before Howe drilled his two-run single to center.

Atlanta had taken a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Jerry Royster beat out an infield hit, stole second, went to third on a flyout by Gary Matthews, then scored on Rowland Office's single.

Niekro, 16-6, allowed seven hits, six of those in the first three innings, struck out one and walked four before needing relief help from Joe Sambito in the ninth. Sambito gained his 15th save.

Phils nip Bucs in 12th

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bud Harrelson's single with two out in the 12th inning drove in the winning run as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in the rain-delayed first game of a two-night doubleheader Friday.

Bake McBride opened the 12th with a single off Grant Jackson, the fourth Pirate hurler. McBride was forced at second by Bob Boone, but one out later Boone moved into scoring position when Greg Luzinski walked. Harrelson singled to left on a full count to give the Phillies their fourth straight victory.

Rawly Eastwick, 2-2, the third Phillies pitcher, was the winner.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead on Phil Garner's home run in the second off Steve Carlton. The Phillies tied it in their half of the frame on Larry Bowa's RBI single.

Cardinals win first game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jerry Mumphrey cracked an inside-the-park homer to score three runs and Ted Simmons, Garry Templeton and Ken Reitz drove home two runs each, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 13-8 triumph over the Chicago Cubs in the first game of their Friday two-night doubleheader.

Mumphrey's homer, his third of the year, highlighted a four-run Cardinals uprising in the fourth inning against Cubs starter Mike Krukow, 9-7. The best enabled St. Louis to withstand Bill Buckner's three-run homer for Chicago and collect its sixth straight victory.

Padres defeat Reds, 3-2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Paul Dade drove in two runs with a triple and Randy Jones tossed a four-hitter as the San Diego Padres edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 Friday night.

Dade's triple keyed a three-run Padres sixth inning off rookie Frank Pastore, 2-6, who surrendered seven hits through seven innings. Jones, 9-7, collected two singles at the plate and scored a run to help his own cause en route to his fifth complete game of the year.

Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Heity Cruz tripled to right-center to drive home Dave Collins. San Diego took the lead in the sixth when Jones and Ozzie Smith both singled and came home on Dade's triple. Dade scored on an infield dribbler by Jerry Turner to make the score 3-1.

The Reds trimmed the Padres lead to 3-2 in the seventh on a run-scoring single by Dan Driessen, which drove in Dave Concepcion from third.

Expos, Mets split pair

NEW YORK (AP) — David Palmer, 4-2, gave up five runs and 11 hits, including Lee Mazzilli's three-run homer in the ninth, in the nightcap before needing Elias Sosa's last-out relief help. Ed Kranepool got four straight hits and knocked in Met runs in the first and eighth.

Parrish's homer, his 17th, came in the second inning and tied the game 1-1.

Joel Youngblood and Doug Flynn each drove in two runs in New York's six-run first inning, backing Craig Swan's 7-1 victory in the opener that broke a five-game Mets losing streak.

Parrish also had a pair of doubles, scoring both times, and had a leadoff off single in the eighth inning of the second game.

Red Sox edge Milwaukee, 5-4

BOSTON (AP) — American League leader Fred Lynn cracked his 31st home run and Tom Poquette belted his first, but it was a soft double to short right field by Jim Rice that broke a tie in the seventh inning as the Boston Red Sox edged the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 Friday night.

Milwaukee's Sixto Lezcano hit his 18th homer and Gorman Thomas added No. 29 off Boston starter Allen Ripley but reliever Dick Drago, 8-3, hung on for the victory after the Brewers took a 4-3 lead on Robin Yount's seventh-inning sacrifice fly.

After Poquette belted his ninth career homer, off Milwaukee starter Lary Sorensen in the bottom of the seventh, Lynn greeted loser Bob McClure, 5-2, with a single and Rice followed with his game-winning opposite-field double.

Sorensen yielded Lynn's home run into the center field bleachers on the first pitch of the fourth inning but Lezcano tied the game with his smash in the fifth into the Red Sox bullpen.

Boston got a pair of runs in the fifth on Sorensen's pickoff throwing error and Poquette's RBI single. Thomas' two-run homer tied it in the sixth and Milwaukee took a 4-3 lead in the seventh on singles by Dick Davis and Buck Martinez and Yount's fly out.

Indians rough up Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Andre Thornton's two-run double capped a three-run fifth inning and the Cleveland Indians rolled to a 6-1 triumph over Texas Friday night behind the clutch pitching of former Ranger Len Barker, who scattered 11 hits.

Barker earned his third victory in seven decisions while the streaking Indians notched their 15th victory in the last 20 games. Rookie Danny Darwin, 3-3, took the loss as the Rangers dropped their 17th game in 24 since the All-Star break. Darwin lasted six innings and gave up five hits, four walks and hit a batter.

Richie Zisk's run-scoring single put Texas ahead 1-0 in the third but Cleveland struck for two runs in the fourth on RBI singles by Toby Harrah and Ron Hassey, who had three hits for the night. A walk, a hit batsman, Thornton's double and Cliff Johnson's single made it 5-1 in the fifth.

The Indians scored a run off Dave Rajsch in the eighth on a walk to Johnson and singles by Hassey and Tom Verzyer.

Royals nip Tigers, 7-6

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amos Otis' single capped a two-run counter-rally in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night, lifting the Kansas City Royals to a 7-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the opener of a two-night doubleheader.

Detroit scored three runs in the top of the inning to grab a 6-5 lead but Hal McRae tied the score with a leadoff home run off reliever Aurelio Lopez, 6-3. One out later, a walk to Darrell Porter was followed by singles by Pete LaCock and Otis, making a winner of rookie reliever Dan Quisenberry, 2-0.

The Tigers began their comeback on walks to Jason Thompson and Jerry Morales before Al Hrabosky was lifted in favor of Quisenberry. Lance Parrish singled and pinch-hitter Al Greene doubled to tie the score. Alan Trammell's sacrifice fly gave the Tigers a short-lived lead.

Steve Kemp's two-run homer helped Detroit take a 3-2 lead but George Brett tripled home the tying run in the Royals' seventh and scored on LaCock's single to give Kansas City a 4-3 lead. The Royals added a run in the eighth when Al Cowens singled and scored when right fielder Champ Summers allowed the ball to roll to the wall for a three-base error.

A's shock Twins, 6-5

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Mike Heath, whose pinch single tied the score in the ninth inning, delivered a sacrifice fly in the 11th to give the Oakland A's a 6-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

Heath's fly ball scored Mitchell Page, who had singled to lead off the 11th, moved to second on a fly ball and took third on an infield hit by Dave Chalk. Minnesota relief ace Mike Marshall, 10-10, worked the final 42-3 innings and gave up the tying and winning runs.

Tony Armas tripled in the A's ninth and scored on Heath's single. The Twins had taken a 5-4 lead in the eighth when Butch Wynegar doubled and scored on Ron Jackson's single.

The A's erased a 4-0 deficit with four runs in the sixth off Twins starter Pete Redfern. Dave Revering singled home the first run and Jeff Newman doubled home the next two to chase Redfern. Page greeted Darrell Jackson with a game-tying single.

Orioles tag Davis, 8-6

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray greeted reliever Ron Davis, a former Midland Cubs' player, with a game-tying two-run double and scored on a single by Lee May during a tumultuous seventh inning, giving the Baltimore Orioles an 8-6 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night.

The come-from-behind triumph enabled the Orioles to maintain their 5½-game lead over Boston in the American League East. The Red Sox defeated Milwaukee 5-4.

Murray connected on an 0-2 pitch from Davis, 9-2, after Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver protested because the Yankees had made two trips to the mound while one batter was at the plate. New York Manager Billy Martin then protested Weaver's protest.

Twins obtain dome

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins approved a 30-year lease for a downtown Minneapolis domed stadium Friday, virtually insuring that the structure will be built after years of haggling.

However, the Twins extracted two key concessions in a final day of closed-door bargaining with the chairman of the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission, the agency which will build the stadium.

Chairman Dan Brutger agreed to throw in $1 million in donated funds to replace the Twins' current office space in Metropolitan Stadium. He also agreed to either terminate the team's lease or install air conditioning if attendance falls off because there is no cooling in the stadium.

Air conditioning is not now planned because engineers say it won't be needed. It would cost $2 million to install.

With those conditions, the lease was approved by the Twins board of directors and later by the stadium commission on a vote of 7-1.

Only Richard Radman, a St. Paul labor leader, voted against the lease, saying he believes the cost of the stadium may exceed limits set by the Minnesota Legislature.

Lee players join McMurry

ABILENE — Two Midland Lee athletes have signed letters of intent to participate in the sports program of McMurry College this fall.

Merritt was coached by Lee's Paul Stueckler throughout his high school career while Pertile was a member of Sam Volpe's District 5-4A champion track team.

Most improved golfer in the two day event was Alice Moxey, who lowered her score 13 strokes the second day. Birdies were scored by Jan Higgins, Sylvia Laufer, Clara Boy Spears, Moxey, and Cotner.

Phil Sellers faces facts

NEPTUNE, N.J. (AP) — Phil Sellers, a former can't-miss prospect, realizes he's probably played his last National Basketball Association game.

"I played one year in the NBA, I had a great college career and that may just be it for me," Sellers said. "I'm not going to let the NBA get me down over the fact that I can't get in, can't get a tryout, or can't make a team. It's a little discouraging but I'm learning to adjust to it," he added.

Sellers, an All-America at Rutgers in 1976, his final year, flunked out of the Detroit Pistons camp in 1977 and has been following the familiar route of athletes who feel they have one last shot left.

Sellers played in the Continental League last season, was reunited with the Rutgers teammates in the Jersey Shore League this summer and has tentative plans to play in Europe this season.

"I've learned to accept what's happened, not let it worry me," he said. Sellers will not be in an NBA camp next month. The New Jersey Nets invited him to a free agent tryout last summer, but didn't invite him back to the veteran camp. That's the last contact he's had with the NBA.

"It was tough at the beginning when I was let go, yes it was," he said of his distasteful experience in Detroit. "It was something I didn't expect. I thought I had a chance to make the team."

The 6-foot-4 Sellers played forward in college. In the pros, he is too small for forward and not quick enough or proficient enough as a ballhandler to play guard. He's become philosophical about his basketball failures.

Bucs give writers treatment

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, asked to give a female reporter the same access to the players' locker room as male reporters had, instead decided to give male reporters the same access she had — none.

were being violated. "I'm not litigious by nature. If the press demands equal rights, we'll grant it to them," said Culverhouse, a Jacksonville tax attorney.

HIMMELBERG, 22, was hired by the News-Press three weeks ago to be the newspaper's Bucs reporter. In the Bucs' first exhibition game last Saturday, players were brought outside the locker room separately for the interviews, an arrangement she said put her at a competitive disadvantage with other reporters.

lar with other reporters assigned to cover the Bucs on a regular basis. "I don't think the Bucs used a lot of intelligence in making the decision," said Ron Martz of the St. Petersburg Times. "My suggestion would be to provide the players with towels or shorts when the reporters are in the locker room."

Colgate trims sports promotions

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's tennis lost its million-dollar sponsor, and both men's and women's golf lost some tournaments Friday with the announcement by Colgate-Palmolive Co. that it was slashing its commitment to professional sports.

used to give prominent mention of sponsors in stories about sporting events. In addition, officials had been miffed by the refusal of some top players, including Bjorn Borg and Guillermo Vilas, to play the Masters tournament, the championship of the Grand Prix tour, last January.

BUCS' SPOKESMAN Bob Best said only two National Football League teams — Philadelphia and Minnesota — open their locker rooms to reporters of both sexes. Four others have interview rooms outside the locker room, Best said.

JIM SELMAN of the Tampa Tribune said, "I can see where it's going to be more difficult for a writer after the game. I know this is what would eventually happen. I'm not in favor of women in the locker room. Perhaps I'm old-fashioned."

Officials said the company would continue to provide about $1.4 million for the Colgate Series women's tennis tour, to the Dinah Shore-Walker's Circle women's golf tournament and for the Colgate Women's Games, a track and field program.

Officials in golf and tennis agreed that the shift at Colgate was largely due to the difference in leadership. "If David Foster were still running the company, I think it would be full speed ahead and bigger and better," said Bob Briner, head of the MIPTC and executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals, the players' union.

OTHER ALTERNATIVES considered included furnishing the players with robes or imposing a time limit for interviews. McKay said the problem with those alternatives was players who wanted to dress quickly and leave would have to sit at their lockers "while the reporters are interviewing the stars."

However, earlier this summer, the Yankees reversed their policy and opened their locker room to all reporters.

The budget shift at Colgate was not unexpected, but apparently the decision was not made by the board of directors until Monday.

Colgate has been reported to be trying to sell its Bancroft subsidiary, a racket manufacturer, but company officials denied those reports this week. Borg endorses the Bancroft racket.

Tryout camps bring weird cast

CART tries Trenton 150

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Championship Auto Racing Teams, the new sanctioning organization for Indianapolis-type racing, brings its road show to Trenton Speedway this weekend for the running of the Trenton 150.

stick with the proven Penske PC-6, a 1978 model. Unser, on the other hand, went the more daring route, driving Penske's experimental "ground effects machine," called the PC-7. The car is designed to make better use of the air which passes over, under and around a race car as it speeds down the track.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Some wore uniforms that looked like they had been custom designed for a major league team. Others wore more casual attire, modified softball jerseys or cut-off football pants. One wore a too-small T-shirt that was fighting a losing battle against a belly swollen by countless post-softball game beers.

who has previously missed catching his eye. "The secret to scouting is not how smart you are, but how many you see," said Consoli. "At the most, five percent of the players you see have a chance."

Some wore beards, others blue jeans. Their hometowns read like a Rand McNally road atlas: Sod, W. Va., Charlotte, N.C., Seminole, Fla., Calhoun County, W. Va., Kansas City, Mo.

Consoli said he always looks for the same assets in a prospect: running speed, throwing ability, bat speed. "Baseball demands speed. Speed is the key word," said Consoli. "You've got to have speed to play."

THEY CAME from near and far in a scene repeated hundreds of times on a hundred-fold diamonds each summer from California to Cincinnati. To most, if not all, it will be the closest any will come to what they like to call the "big" — the big leagues.

Consoli said that while few athletes are ever signed out of the tryout camps, they do serve a purpose. "In just a couple of minutes, we can tell a player what his weaknesses are... in what areas he has to improve," said Consoli. "Some guys get hurt when you tell them their weaknesses. But if someone comes up to us and asks us what he needs to do to get better, we tell them."

MOST CAMPS, like the one in Charleston, boast little professional baseball talent. The players labor under a burning sun, running and hitting and pitching, mainly for their own ego. But, once in a while, that occasional diamond in the rough surfaces — a talent which somehow emerges from the rough diamonds of semi-pro or amateur baseball.

While the camps are mainly for young, unproven prospects, older players — some of them ex-professionals — sometimes show up. Two former minor leaguers, David Amon of Charleston and Bobby Thompson of Charlotte, N.C. — were among those in the Charleston camp.

AMON was signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates as a pitcher shortly after last summer's Charleston camp, but was released this spring. Thompson was signed by the Texas Rangers, but also was later released.

Consoli said, "We don't scout performance. We scout the potential. A team will sign a weak hitter if he has good speed and body control. They'll work on his hitting."
