Consolidation Of Four Western Rail Systems Predicted

TALK MERGER AFTER HOLDEN IS APPOINTED

Connection With S-P Is Cue For Rumors In Chicago

HOLDEN FOR MERGING

Burlington, S-P, N-P And Great Northern Are Mentioned

CHICAGO, Aug. 23. (UP)—Consolidation of four western railroads was predicted here today as the result of the appointment of Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy line, to the chairmanship of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific railroad.

The roads involved are the Southern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Burlington systems and the Northern Pacific.

Railroad officials recalled that in 1923 Holden submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission a plan for the merging of all western roads into four major lines.

Holden's appointment is expected to end the opposition of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe to the expansion of the Western Pacific and to increase cooperation among the western lines.

Chicago Mayor Orders Use of U. S. Textbooks

CHICAGO, Aug. 23. (INS)—An echo of Mayor William Hale Thompson's private war against King George of England was heard here today in the announcement that public school text books, branded as "pro-British," were to be replaced by volumes more in keeping with the mayor's ideas of Americanism.

The principal casualty of this war was William McAndrew, superintendent of Chicago's schools, whom Mayor Thompson charged with the spread of pro-British propaganda through the introduction of biased histories.

Galveston Seeks To Revoke Gas Franchise

GALVESTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—That the franchise of Texas Cities Gas corporation be revoked for its purported failure to comply with a city ordinance requiring the utility to supply natural gas at 75 cents for the first 1,000 cubic feet used by consumers was urged today at a city commission meeting. Action was taken under advisement. The gas company has appealed to the state railroad commission for relief from the ordinance and has asked $2.20 instead of the present rate.

Farmer Strikes Oil Digging for Water

TROUP, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—Henry Boynton, Mount Sylvan farmer, needed water, so he dug a well. He found oil instead. Reaching a depth of 35 feet he found little water as expected. Before, however, Boynton had time to install a pump, oil seeped into the hole. The farmer tried unsuccessfully to case off the flow. He is now piping oil of unusually high gravity, separating it from water, and using it as fuel.

Hambone's Meditations

Old Conceptions of Babylonian Life Upset by Discovery

California Scientists Glean New Information From Old Tablet

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 20. (US)—By translating a hitherto unstudied clay tablet in the University of California museum of anthropology, university scientists have completely upset previous interpretations of ancient Babylonian documents, it was announced today.

Unsuspected facts about the economic life of Babylon five centuries before Christ have been revealed through the study of this tablet by Dr. H. F. Lutz, associate professor of Egyptology and Assyriology. For 20 years, since its presentation to the university by Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, the tablet rested unnoticed on a shelf. Then Doctor Lutz found it, translated the cuneiform inscriptons with which it was covered, and archeologists as a result must revise many of the long-held conceptions of ancient life and customs.

Twenty centuries before the feudal system reached its apex in England and Europe, Doctor Lutz' researches disclose, the Babylonians had a well defined system of feudal land holdings. In many respects, Doctor Lutz points out, the Babylonian feudal system was superior to that of England in the seventeenth century.

The tablet in question is a contract between a Babylonian knight and his feudal lord, one of the grandsons of the house of Marushu. The contract provides for the lease of a tract of land in return for military service and taxes.

According to Doctor Lutz, the archives of the house of Marushu have long been well known and 730 tablets are in museums. But the records, Doctor Lutz believes, have been misinterpreted. Scholars have thought that they detailed transactions of ancient banking business—that the house of Marushu was a Babylonian Morgan or Rothschild.

The University of California tablet, however, carries unmistakable proof of a feudal system and throws new light on all these other tablets. Its testimony, a certain Semite knight pledged his hand and sword to defend his lord and the king in exchange for a fief of land that had been tilled by his grandfather before him. The signatures are the impressions of his ring and the impression of his lord's ring, together with three impressions of witnesses.

COUNTY CLUBS END MEETING

Miss Webb Last Speaker Of Session

"The Four Outstanding Points in Happiness," was the subject of an address by Miss Ethel Louise Webb, county home demonstration agent, before about 200 women at the closing session of the annual Wichita county home demonstration clubs get-together in the basement of the Municipal auditorium Thursday afternoon.

"Before a person can be happy, health is necessary," Miss Webb said. "But health is not enough. A person who is happy is one who works and works efficiently, with love for mankind. The four points of happiness are health, work, efficiency and love."

Mrs. Cook Speaks

After her address Miss Webb demonstrated the seating of a chair with a rope bottom, and the meeting adjourned.

The morning session of the clubwomen was featured by an address on "Club Federation" by Mrs. W. W. Cook. The home demonstration clubs of Texas are taking up the proposition of federation, Mrs. Cook said, pointing out that much advantage which otherwise would be lost will accrue from federation.

The visitors were welcomed by Mayor J. W. Akin on behalf of the city. Miss Webb also delivered a welcoming address to the club members. Response to the welcoming speeches was made by Mrs. G. C. Hathaway, president of the County Home Demonstration council.

Reception Committee

The reception committee was composed of Mrs. W. C. Williams, president of the Pleasant Valley club; Miss Jessie Miller, president, Lakedale club; Mrs. E. E. McKown, Hardin; Mrs. C. E. Taylor, Bowie; Mrs. Henry Strumbo, Valley View, and Mrs. A. Bartell, Bowie. Mrs. A. W. Von Struve presided during the morning session.

Singsong during the morning was led by R. E. Shepherd and by Miss Webb in the afternoon session.

CONNALLY 'IN,' AVERS M'GEE

Rain Halts Scheduled Talk At Park

Tom Connally will win the Democratic nomination for United States senator by a majority of not less than 50,000 over Earle B. Mayfield, in the opinion of Mark McGee, Fort Worth attorney, and formerly adjutant general of Texas.

Mr. McGee, past commander of the American Legion, had made the trip to Wichita Falls to deliver an address in behalf of Mr. Connally's candidacy at Bellevue park Thursday night, but the talk was called off because of inclement weather.

West for Connally

Mr. McGee, who declared that he had been over most of West Texas in the past few weeks, said that despite the fact that a few of the leading cattlemen of the state had declared for Senator Mayfield, he found that the majority of the stockmen favored Connally.

"I am not fighting Mr. Mayfield," Mr. McGee said, "but am supporting Tom Connally because I feel that he is the best qualified for the office. I have known both men about the same length of time,—10 years, I guess. Personally I like them both.

"Delivery" Called Joke

"The Ferguson delivery," he added, "seems to me to be something of a farce, for Ferguson is finding it hard to 'deliver' his supporters to Mr Mayfield. I've talked to a number of intimate friends of Ferguson, who declare they will not vote for the Austin man.

"The reasons I feel so sure that Connally will win," he explained, "are because he will get about 90 per cent of the ex-service men who supported Alvin Owsley. Altogether, I think so will get 75 per cent of the ex-service men's vote. In addition to this, I believe that Connally will get at least 75 per cent of the Blanton vote, since Mr. Blanton has come out for the Marlin man."

Bullish Reports

Mr. McGee predicted that Congressman Connally would carry both Tarrant and Dallas counties by a good majority.

Edgar M. Mann, who is secretary of the Tom Connally club, and who was to have presided over Thursday's meeting, exhibited telegrams received from sectional Connally headquarters over the state which predicted large majorities for Mr. Connally.

"About the only thing we found was that they were not given attention quickly enough," Mr. Mead said. "We found it rather difficult to get all sides of the story and all the facts. I doubt that there is anything more that can be done."

MODIFICATION IS INDIVIDUAL STAND, SAYS AL

Other Democratic Aspirants Not Bound to Support Principles

PLATFORM IS SUPREME

Candidates Required Only To Maintain Party Policies

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (US)—Returning to this city from Albany tonight, Governor Smith declared that he would not bind any other candidate for office on the Democratic ticket to the modification of the Volstead law or the 18th amendment, despite the views he expressed in his speech accepting the presidential nomination.

The governor appeared to consider it unnecessary to explain this freedom for senatorial, congressional and other candidates, but he said:

"Every man on the Democratic ticket, especially the nominees for the senate and the house of representatives, will run on his own to a large extent. He will be expected to stand on the supreme platform, the platform adopted by the national convention of the Democratic party at Houston, Texas—which binds all Democrats to the enforcement of the law, but does not bind them to be for or against the modification of the Volstead act or the amendment of the 18th amendment. That is a question for each individual candidate to settle for himself."

Satisfied With Stand

As for himself, the governor made it clear that he was completely satisfied with the stand he had taken on the prohibition problem and when asked what effect he thought it would have in certain sections of the country, replied:

"I don't see how any sensible person can take exception to it."

The view expressed concerning the right of other candidates to disagree with him by voice and vote on the liquor issue substantiates completely the convictions of Senator Carter Glass and Josephus Daniels and other southern leaders. They contended from the beginning that the attitude of the top of the ticket on that question did not commit the congressional and senatorial nominees to support it.

There are about 185 Democratic representatives who will seek reelection and among them is a substantial percentage of bone-dry members. In the senate, about 20 members are candidates for another term. Several of them are wet, like Edwards, Gerry and Walsh, but more than a few are dry.

Robinson Elated

He rested this morning before taking the Onondaga express from Albany at 12:40 p. m. He said he would devote a week or longer to relaxation before striking into the campaign. Senator Robinson, the vice presidential nominee, who preceded him into town by several hours, was obviously elated over the governor's speech. He asserted:

"No one who understands English is in doubt now as to the governor's attitude on the important subjects in the platform. The profound interest of the governor was demonstrated in a remarkable manner.

"Probably more than 20,000 people stood in the rain for several hours to hear the address and to see the candidate. It is doubtful if any other man in public life has received such a tribute. The good humor displayed by the very large assemblage in spite of the adverse weather illustrated the respect and affection of the people for the governor."

California's Champion Murderer Gets Inspiration in Love, Drugs, and Hate

FAIRFIELD, Calif., Aug. 23. (UP)—Oriental romance, drugs, and revenge inspired Leung Ying, Chinese fruit picker, in the most astonishing series of murders California has ever known, he confessed to officers tonight.

Less than 24 hours after he killed 10 members of his own race, Ying was captured.

In a jargon he told officials the story of events that were climaxed when he killed more persons in one day than any murderer of California's history. Realizing his position he likened himself to Joe Tango and Floyd Hall, youthful desperadoes who terrorized the state for many months.

"I just like Tanko and Hall—very, very sick," he complained before he started the weird recital of love for a young Chinese girl, the antagonism of the girl's relatives and his strange dreams of their attempts to poison him.

Ying, who is 29 years old, was under the effects of drugs when he started his crime, Sheriff Thornton of Solano county said.

Several months ago Ying fell in love with Nellie Gee, 16-year-old daughter of Wong Gee, patriarch of the Chinese fruit packing camp near here.

Wong Gee did not like the romance and ordered Ying to leave, the sheriff said. The suitor did not bother the girl any more and sought solace in oriental drugs, whence came the ideas that his life was in danger, Thornton claimed. His victims included six of the Gee family and four others.

ROCKFORD SEEN BY VILLAGERS, REPORT SAYS

Observers Sure That Craft Sighted Sunday Was Lost Plane

FLYERS SEEK LANDING

Aviators Traveling East When Glimpsed By Greenlanders

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 (AP)—Amateur radio station 9-CEJ, operated my R. J. Harris, Chicago, said at 12:25 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time today he was in communication with the plane Greater Rockford, missing on the Cochrane, Ont., to Mt. Evans, Greenland flight since Sunday morning.

The plane gave its position as 50 miles off Newfoundland.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 23. (AP)—A long message purported to be from the crew of the Greater Rockford was received tonight by Joseph E. Williams, an amateur radio operator, who declares he was in direct communication with the crew for 10 minutes.

The crew said, according to Williams:

"We are stranded on small island 100 miles north of Newfoundland. We are Rockford to Sweden fliers We need assistance badly. Please do all in your power to get help to us."

Safe and Well

Williams said he then conversed with a member of the crew and in reply to a further question said "Just say we are safe and well."

Then, Williams stated, the message was garbled and all he was able to catch was "Because we haven't had any deer meat since yesterday."

The communication ended, Williams stated, with "Have been trying to get in touch with some station all night. Please hurry."

Williams declared the message was received on a wave length of 42 meters at his station, 8AME.

He was talking direct with KHAK, the call letters of the Greater Rockford's radio station.

He stated that he first received faint signals at 11:30 and at 11:45 he could hear the speaker distinctly, although interference was bad.

JULIANEHAAB, Greenland, Aug. 23. (UP)—Wireless message, flashed along the coast of Greenland today, brought fresh hope that Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who were attempting a flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden, are safe on the Greenland coast.

The message came from Honore Petersen, governor of South Greenland, and related the news that the entire population of two Greenland villages had seen an airplane flying overhead Sunday morning. The time they gave was 10:30 a. m. which was about the time Hassell and Cramer hoped to land at Mount Evans, 350 or 400 miles further north.

Inhabitants Positive

Petersen's message stated that the inhabitants were positive in their information and had described the scene in detail, including the fact they had seen the aviators peering over the sides of their plane through binoculars, apparently attempting to locate a suitable landing place.

The plane passed to the east, the inhabitants said, and it is believed that Hassell and Cramer made a landing on one of the coastal indentations and are now awaiting rescue boats that have been started on an extensive search along the entire western coast of Greenland from Cape Farewell to Disko bay.

Delay in transmission of the news to the outside world from Sunday, when the plane was sighted, until today can easily be understood by those familiar with facilities for travel and communication in Greenland.

The two villages from which the planews s sighted are Fiskenaesset and Lichtenfels, situated not far apart on the southwestern coast. It

The bullet entered the wrist and ranged upward, passing through the arm. The wound is not likely to prove dangerous, hospital attendants state. The sheriff was resting satisfactorily late tonight.

Mr. Edmondson, accompanied by A. H. Rector, had arrested two men in connection with the theft of several guns from a local hardware store and were returning them to Vernon. Grandfield's Fair and 20th Birthday Festival Open With Many Attending

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Aug. 23.—Opening a three-day celebration towards which preparations had been directed for several weeks, the Grandfield annual fair and 20th anniversary festival got under way at the fair grounds here today, with several hundred people from the city and from surrounding towns crowding the athletic field and the amusement attractions. The first day's attendance was satisfactory to all fair officials, who, however, look for a much larger attendance during the remaining two days.

All of the exhibits, brought to the fair from numerous points in the county, were on display today, and by Saturday all plans are expected to be completed for the annual livestock exhibit.

The principal events today included the horse races which were won by George Haines and G. Jones; the bicycle race, which was won by Elbert Humphreys, and the foot races, in which the two high prizes were awarded to Robert McCullough and Lloyd Crabtree. Concerts by the Grandfield high school band interspersed the remaining features on the day's program.

Candidates Wind Up Campaigns For Votes With Final Activity Today

County and state candidates for the Democratic nominations were putting their houses in order Thursday preparatory to the second primary of Saturday, when about half a million Texans are expected to go to the polls.

Some of the county candidates were warming up their campaigns, with speaking engagements held almost every night in the week at different points in the county and cohorts of Tom Connally for the United States senate were waxing eloquent in their attacks on Earle B. Mayfield as the closing week of the long battle for favor of the ballot drew to an end.

State Races Quiet

Outside of the senatorial race, state contests have attracted but little attention since the first primary decided many of the important state offices. Neither the race of S. M. N. Marrs, opposed for re-election as superintendent of public instruction by W. F. Garner, nor that lying between J. T. Robison and Otis Terrell for general land commissioner had developed any particular attention in Wichita county.

In county and district races, the contest for district attorney of the 30th judicial district, between Sam B. Spence and E. F. Fruechte, both former assistant district attorneys, probably was strongest in the public eye, with neither man devoting any time since the first primary to a stump speaking tour.

Allred and Cook

Combinations had become the topic of interest in the race for district judge of the 78th district court, where Ben P. Allred opposes the re-election of Judge W. W. Cook. Hunting expeditions and alleged hunting expeditions into Oklahoma have borne the brunt of the attack and counter attack in the county attorney's race between Wayne Somerville and Robert K. Crain.

The race between Max Shumake and R. S. Dunaway had failed to produce any unusual features. Other county offices in the contest are county judge, where E. W. Nicholson is opposed by John P. Marrs; judge of the county court at law, between C. M. McFarland and Irvin J. Vogel, and county school superintendent, between Burl Bryant and J. A. Hood.

The names, as they appear on the official ballot, follow:

For United States Senator:
Tom Connally of Falls county.
Earle B. Mayfield of Bosque county

For Lieutenant Governor:
Barry Miller of Dallas county

For Superintendent of Public Instruction:
S. M. N. Marrs of Travis county

MAX SHUMAKE LEADING CANDIDATE FOR TAX ASSESSOR

To the Voters of Wichita County:

Owing to my illness and continued confinement in the hospital, I have been unable to see the voters since the first primary and to discuss with them my candidacy for the office of Tax Assessor, as I would have been pleased to have done. I am improving all the time, and see no reason why I should not be up and about within the next two weeks; however, my physicians advise that it is impossible for me to leave my room at this time, and owing to this condition, I must ask my friends to carry on my campaign until the close of the polls.

In the first primary, I led the ticket in a six-cornered race, leading my nearest opponent R. S. (Bob) Dunaway 537 votes by actual count. I led Mr. Dunaway in 29 boxes out of the 39 boxes in the county. This was all made possible by the kindness and the activity of my friends at the polls, which kindness on their part I appreciate very much and now tender to them my heartfelt thanks. I trust that I may be able to reciprocate this kindness in the future by rendering them faithful and efficient service in the office, when elected. If my lead is continued in the second primary, which was given me in the first primary, it indicates that I will be elected Tax Assessor by a good majority. However, it will require the activity of my friends on election day to maintain this lead.

The four candidates eliminated in the first primary for Tax Assessor are each supporting me in the run-off primary, which to say the least of it, is significant. I appreciate and thank them for the consideration thus shown me.

As before stated, I have had several years' experience in assessing taxes for the county of Wichita, the city of Wichita Falls and the Wichita County Water Improvement district. All of this work is similar and requires the same knowledge and experience. My several years' experience in assessing taxes has been of great benefit to me and has given me a knowledge of the tax values of Wichita county, and thus qualifies me for the position of Tax Assessor, whereby I would be enabled, if elected, to give the people the best and most efficient service. I will undertake to make the office self-sustaining.

I favor the reduction of tax renditions as much as possible, to give the people relief from the high taxes they are now required to pay and to place our renditions on the same low basis with other counties of the state similarly situated. There is no need of sending unnecessary money to the state capitol at Austin to be spent by other counties of the state for their own use and benefit. Let's pay our way but why should we be called upon to defray the expenses of other counties of the state?

I have worked as a deputy tax assessor for the county of Wichita, the city of Wichita Falls and the Wichita County Water Improvement district for a long time. Why not give me a promotion at this time? No one would appreciate it more than myself.

By the diligent work of my friends, I can be elected Tax Assessor on next Saturday, and if elected, I promise you to make you one of the best Tax Assessors that you have ever had. I will do my full duty with courtesy and as efficiently to all as is possible. I thank you. MAX SHUMAKE.

CURTIS OPENS STUMP TOUR

Nominee Invades New England On Tariff Issue

ROCKY POINT, R. I., Aug. 23. (UP)—Devoting most of his speech to the tariff as a protection for farmers as well as manufacturers and challenging the Democratic tariff policy, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, Republican vice presidential nominee, opened his speaking campaign in New England here today.

"The Democrats," Curtis charged, "have never enacted a tariff law which did not injure or destroy legitimate business; they have never enacted a tariff law that protected the products of the farmer.

"I challenge a comparison between the rates of duty fixed in the Democratic tariff acts and those of the Republican tariff acts."

Curtis said the Republican acts had protected the farmer but admitted that "time has demonstrated that some of the duties are not high enough." He promised that the Republican party would revise the tariff so that farm products, mine products, and factory products would be fully protected.

"The imports of agricultural products amount to more than $3,000,000,000 annually, of which more than $2,000,000,000 are products which can be grown on our own farms, he said.

"We are proud of the record of the Republicans," Curtis continued. "The Republican candidate for president and myself stand by the policies of President Coolidge."

Curtis also gave his party credit for a $7,000,000 reduction in the 1921 national debt and for $4,000,000 tax reductions. The Republican administration also purchased farm loan bonds when there was no demand for them to aid farmers, he said.

'BOSSY' SEEKS SWEET REVENGE

Mayor Fined by Judge Plans Retribution

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 23.(UP)—A verbally savage "Bossy" Gillis prepared today to turn his home town inside out.

Voicing vehement threats of official violence against many of his fellow citizens—the citizens whom he classes as "the dead-but-don't-know-its"—in his honor, the mayor of Newburyport laid elaborate plans for a reprisal program.

"Bossy's" perturbation was due to a 330-day jail sentence and $1,140 fine imposed on him by District Judge Nathaniel N. Jones (one of his old-time enemies), in court here yesterday for operating a gasoline filling station without city council authority.

Hopes to Win

Although the mayor hopes, and expects, to beat the case when he goes on trial next month in superior court at Salem, there are many things that he intends to do in the interim.

Here are some of them:

1. "Put the bee on" 16 local business establishments, which, he claims, are violating the municipal zoning ordinance.

2. Seek the arrest of Edward M. Coffin, who signed all complaints against him, on a charge of operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

3. Seek the arrest of Mrs. Ernest Foss, wife of the man who prosecuted him in court yesterday, on a charge of carrying a revolver without a permit on the night before the fourth.

Fast Thinker

On top of all this, fast thinking "Bossy" is laying plans to "get" Judge Jones, long his judicial nemesis, politically.

No love has been lost between the judge and the mayor since the day, almost 20 years ago when Jones fined "Bossy" $5 for "cussing on a public street."

"Course I ain't got no actual authority to fire the judge," his honor explained, "but believe me, I can get him politically, and what is more, I will."

Incidentally, the sentences imposed on "Bossy" yesterday have failed to stop the flow of unauthorized petrol from the six shiny tanks at the corner of State and High streets, in what once was the city's most exclusive residential district.

The mayor declared that he would continue to peddle gasoline, "even if I have to spend the rest of my life in jail."

Near Hadley, Texas, the roads were so rough that Krause was thrown and tore some ligaments from his left knee. He managed to ride the motorcycle to Denver where he visited at the home of his uncles.

At Denver a physician placed his knee in a cast and after finishing his visit he continued the remainder of his way to California by train.

Fred Wessel returned Thursday night on his motorcycle. He spent about a week in and around Colorado Springs. In the museum at Denver he saw the Holloman exhibit of Frederick.

New York Negroes Urge Taft To Remove Judge Atwell From Bench

BROOKLYN, Aug. 23. (UP)—A resolution urging Chief Justice William Howard Taft to remove Federal Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas, Texas, from the bench was passed at a meeting of about 1,000 negroes in the Holy Trinity Baptist church tonight. Atwell is sitting temporarily in federal court here.

The resolution was passed as a result of remarks made by Judge Atwell when he was hearing the case of a woman charged with selling liquor. Both white and colored patrons visited the speakeasy, it was testified.

Judge Atwell advised the woman to move to a different neighborhood with her family.

One speaker declared that three errors had been committed by Judge Atwell. He asserted the judge had attacked the reputation of a reputable attorney; he indirectly had encouraged violence by a prohibition agent against a trial attorney, and he had expressed his prejudice against colored people.

Below is a partial list of the pending measures that are being supported by Senator Earle B. Mayfield. Each and every one of these are important and will more than likely be tabled and forgotten unless Senator Mayfield is returned to the United States Senate to complete the task you elected him to do.

Earle B. Mayfield has pending in the Senate measures to restore the rate-making powers to the State Railroad Commissions so the people of Texas can be given reductions in freight rates and passenger fares. He has supported every measure coming before the Senate for relief of agriculture. He passed through the Senate twice a measure giving railroads the right to extend their lines into the undeveloped sections of Texas without being compelled to secure permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He is the author of the law that permits the Interstate Commerce Commission to make emergency freight rates into drought or flood-stricken areas. He is author of the law that authorizes the Secretary of War to regulate toll charges over the Red River bridges. He is author of the law that directs the Secretary of Agriculture to classify carrying-over cotton separating dog-tail from high-grade cotton. He is author of the amendment that directed the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate the uses of cotton with a view of bringing about increased utilization of that commodity. He has given his support to measures that would prohibit gambling in the prices of farm products through future exchanges. He is co-author of the law that contains seven amendments to the Interstate Commerce Act, all of which give relief to the shippers of the country. This session of the Senate passed his cotton bill which prohibits government officials from making predictions in prices of cotton. He has supported every measure sponsored by the American Legion. Since he has been in public life he has supported every measure that was in the interest of the laboring people. He has not wavered in his support of measures tightening up our immigration laws. He has supported every tax-reduction measure coming before the Senate. He has supported every measure the purpose of which was to strengthen our prohibition laws. He is now a member of the following Senate Committees: Interstate Commerce, Agriculture and Forestry, Banking and Currency, Public Buildings and Grounds, Claims, Interoceanic Canals. A new incumbent to attain the knowledge of these matters and become actively engaged in the duties of a senator would cost much loss of time, effort and money to the people of Texas. Senator Mayfield has not yet finished serving his first term. Upon the above record he solicits your support for a Second Term in the United States Senate.

Sixty-five per cent of the money of Wichita, Wilbarger, Young and Archer counties comes from the oil business.

A depression in the oil business necessarily results in a depression in every other line of business in these counties.

The oil industry pays ad valorem, state, county and school taxes, including all taxes paid by other industries, and in addition thereto pays a special tax, including a gross production tax, gasoline tax and a tax on return capital, paid as an income tax to the Federal Government.

Senator Mayfield is the author and due the full credit for the depletion act granting the oil industry 27½ per cent depletion on its capital investment, thereby relieving the people of the above counties approximately one million dollars annually, unjust taxes heretofore paid, therefore leaving these moneys in the above counties for circulation.

Senator Mayfield is the author of the Cotton Classification Law and has voted for all other measures coming before the Senate to aid the Texas farmer and stockman.

It is a well known fact that Congress acts by and through its committees; that a Congressman has no particular influence, excepting as a committeeman.

During the twelve years that Tom Connally has been in Congress, he has received only one committee appointment. At this rate, it would take him seventy-two years to get on the committees that Mayfield has gotten on in five years. This is just plain arithmetic.

During the twelve years Connally has drawn $100,000.00 in salary, but has been neither an author nor a co-author of a single general law.

Connally has not accounted for his absence from the roll call when the Woman's Suffrage Act was being voted upon.

Connally voted against the Soldiers' Bonus Bill, and all other American Legion bills.

Connally voted against the Child Labor Amendment (endorsed by all Women's Clubs in America).

We're All Cowards Because of Our Fear of the Future, Dorothy Says

Advice to the Lonely Girl Who Dreads the Years Ahead of Her —Awful Example of the Results Of Frequent Divorce—a Question of Taste in Loving.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 21 and I seem to be a little tired of everything. Every day is about the same as the ones that have gone before. I have a fine position and I like to work, but I wish there were something I could put my labor into which would mean more to me than my job does. My family are all dead. I have never had a love affair and the girls who were my close chums at school are either engaged or married, so I am lonely. If I let myself live just in the present, everything seems fine, but when I think of the years to come that may be empty, I become very despondent and feel that they will be more than I can bear.—NAN.

Answer—It is fear of the future that makes cowards of us all, Nan. It is the dread of some unknown monster that is waiting for us somewhere down the road of the years that turns our bones to water and makes our hearts faint within us and robs us of our courage.

The sorrows of today we can bear with fortitude. We have the strength to fight the battle we are waging. It is the misfortune of tomorrow, the fight that lies ahead of us that our imagination conjures up as something blacker, more appalling, more deadly than anything we have known, before which we quail and which sometimes makes us turn quitters. It is not what he is suffering at the moment that makes the suicide take his life. He kills himself rather than face the terrors of tomorrow.

We make of the future a bugaboo with which to frighten ourselves, and, like the terrors of the bugaboo, it vanishes into thin air when we approach it. For when the future that we dread so much comes, it is no longer the future, but the present, and we find that it is not as bad as we thought.

Borrowing trouble is a mistake common to women and it is why they are so often bankrupt in happiness. They are loaded down with worries over things that never happen. They spoil the sunshine of today by thinking how wet they will be if it should happen to rain tomorrow and they should be out without an umbrella.

You seem to be one of these trouble borrowers, for why, at 21, should you anticipate a forlorn and lonely, unloved life? Possibly that may be your fate, but the chances are overwhelmingly against it. In all probability within the next two or three years some nice young chap will come along and fall in love with you and you will get married and have a home and children, and then you will wonder how you ever could have been so foolish as to lie awake at night picturing yourself as a lonely old maid.

So if you are happy and contented now in your present life, make the most of it. Enjoy every hour of it and believe that you will always be just as happy as you are now. Put aside all forebodings for the future and remember that to a large extent we make our own happiness or misery.

You can get an added joy in just letting yourself go and reveling in a thing or you can take all the kick out of a thing by indulging in dismal apprehensions. You can spoil the finest meal by wondering if the soup wasn't too rich and if the beef wasn't bad for your kidneys and if the pie wouldn't give you dyspepsia.

As for your finding that one day is like another, that is life. You can't escape that. We all go through the same motions every day of our lives and the only way to get pep out of things is to put pep into them.

So if you want a really interesting, thrilling, exciting job, get busy on whatever work you are doing and try to become an expert in it. Study new ways of doing whatever you are doing, better ways, more efficient ways. Find out all about your job. Acquire craftsmanship. Experts never complain that their work is dull or their jobs monotonous. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 24 years old. I have been married twice. This is my husband's third marriage. He had eight children, six his first wife's children, two his second wife's children. They are all grown except one boy of 12. Both of the former wives are married, but the first wife's last husband is dead and now she expects my husband to help support her.

I have a son who spends the winter with us and the summer with his father, but my husband says that if he lets him stay with us I must let his daughter, who is a young girl, stay with us also, as her stepfather is not willing to have her. Also, one of his sons is coming to spend the summer with us, but I don't feel that it is right for me to have to keep them when I am sending my boy away for the summer. Do you think if my husband really loved me he would want me to keep his children and would he give money to his former wives? —A WORRIED WIFE.

Answer—Solomon himself was only called upon to divide one baby between two mothers, each of whom claimed him. It would take a second Solomon, and then some, to divide one man and his inepme and his duty between three wives and nine children and tell just what was coming to the present wife and the ex-wives and the real children and the stepchild.

Could any commentary on divorce be more scathing than the crossword puzzle presented by your husband, with his three wives and his children, and you with your child and your two husbands? What happiness have you got out of this swapping of partners? What good has it brought you? And what about the poor children, whom nobody wants, who are bandied about from parent to parent, from home to home, unwelcome everywhere?

Can you think of anything more pitiful than that? Can you think of anything that would have a more disastrous fate on a child's character or anything more calculated to make a child cold and cynical and hard-boiled? Can you imagine a child's having any affection for either parents when it is shuffled from mother to father on a time schedule and knows that each one is glad to pass the buck to the other?

Strictly speaking, I suppose that in all justice your husband has no more right to expect you to endure his children than you have to expect him to take care of yours, and as he will only have your son six months he should only demand that you keep his child for an equal length of time.

But you are a woman and should have a mother's heart in your breast, so can you not find it in you to be sorry for this stepson and stepdaughter whose mother's second husband will have none of them and make a home for them? Can you not show them some of the love and tenderness and affection that their own mother doesn't give them and make them welcome and feel that they have found a home at last?

And if you do and are sweet and dear to these poor, forlorn children of his, perhaps in gratitude your husband will be good to your child and let you keep him with you. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Which do bachelors like better, old maids, widows or young girls? Which do young girls like better and go after, married men or widowers?—A READER.

Answer: The bachelor's choice in women depends upon his age, and the older he is, the younger he likes them. A man between 50 and 60 likes to play around with the flappers as a general thing, but when he gets married it is nearly always a widow who gets him. On the other hand, a widower is more than likely to marry an old maid.

Young girls prefer boys of their own age. They are seldom attracted to widowers, but if they are of the gold-digger persuasion they go after married men, because married men generally have the most money and are the easiest to work. An old bachelor is likely to have a Yale lock on his pocket and the widower is suspicious, but the married man is willing to pay for his fling. —DOROTHY DIX.

INCONVENIENCES have come along with advancing civilization. This morning a friend of the local papers called in a group of society personals to the society editor, explaining that she was tired of seeing the coming and goings of Wichita Falls persons of whom she had never heard, thus the list of personal paragraphs.

Time was when the society editor of a sheet could meet all the incoming trains and get a pretty accurate account of what people were doing and if they were accompanied in their wanderings.

But now—she can't be posted along the highways in all directions at all hours of the day and night, consequently the sheet may or may not carry anything like a complete picture of society's comings and goings.

That was the right spirit, lady. The society editor requests that I express an appreciation of your telling us when and why these people returned from where.

AND it won't be long till they are all back home and the present lax season will be at an end, thank goodness. If there is anything more wearing than being busy it is the pitiable attempt some people have to put on to keep up professional appearances.

THE ennui of yesterday was somewhat broken into by the sight of a long string of lively youngsters parading down the sidewalks toward one of the business houses to get—I am sorry, but it was too hot to run along after 'em and find out. Guess some local store was giving away something or other.

SOME girls learn young. There is a record made just a few days ago by a 9-year-old girl that auguers well for more mature days. The little girl refused to ride with Col. Charles A. CHIC CHERIE

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syn. Inc.)

Latest Fashions

This being one of the days in Cherie's life into which some rain must fall, she is prepared for that emergency. Her raincoat is the newest of all raincoats, made of sail cloth which ought to be durable in a nor'easter. Her umbrella is of beige with amber colored composition for a handle—nicely shaped into a dog's head. Because this is another quaint Victorianism coming home to roost—animal and bird heads of all kinds and speciecs are smart once more for umbrella handles. The other raincoat is an almost equally tailored affair of grey. Not that the color is anything to go by. Equally chic raincoats are made of plaid or any brilliant shade. The cut, not the color, decides one's modishness.

If she had been 10 minutes later she wouldn't have made the mistake of carrying an umbrella when, obviously, a parasol is what she needs. On the other hand, if she had been on time, she would have reached home before now. Anyway, there are three parasols here that are worth noting. The one to the left is purple with flowers and butterflies in out-sizes cavorting about it. The center one is ombre visca—a parasol strictly for sun and not for shower and exceedingly popular at seaside and resort. The watersnake twining at the right is whatever color a watersnake usually is and is posed against a background of blue. The strap attached to the rosette of the ferrule is a new touch.

Author-Actress to Pose For Completion Of Statue

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (US)—Helen Broderick's hands are the most beautiful on the stage.

Beg pardon? Why, Count Schipa De Vittorio, the noted sculptor, says so.

He is making a statue of the Madonna to be placed in the Louvre, and the hands are the keynote of his masterpiece.

Miss Broderick is an actress, singer, and author of the play "Freeport". Today she received a check for $2,500 for a trip to Paris in order that the count may complete his statue. John Murray Anderson, the producer, was commissioned by the sculptor to make the selection.

He occupied the pulpit at the First Methodist church in Frederick and Sanford one or more times this summer when he delivered excellent discourses.

Stadium Drive Uses New Plan

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—As a means of stimulating contributions to the memorial stadium fund, the athletic council of Texas university has announced a plan whereby subscribers will be given an option on preferred seats for a 10-year period.

Those contributing $25 to the fund will be entitled to an option on one seat for 10 years. Subscribers of $50 will be given an option on two seats, while a contribution of $100 will assure the donor four choice seats for a decade.

Each additional $100 or fraction thereof will entitle the subscriber to one additional seat, with a maximum of 10 seats. The subscriber, it was stipulated, must exercise his option at least 30 days before any game.

The athletic office also will give subscribers to the stadium fund priority right in purchasing tickets for games played by the Longhorns out of Austin.

RACE SWINDLE NETS $136,000

'Sure Tip' Artists Being Hunted

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (INS)—A "sure-fire tip" on a racehorse cost J. G. Hazelbaker of Pittsburgh the small fortune of $136,000, it was revealed today at the United States attorney's office here.

Assistant United States Attorney George J. Mintzer and Postoffice Inspector Herbert Graham are directing a man hunt for the three swindlers who posed as Fred Zudak, alias Fred Wilson; Samuel Bauer and William Humphreys. They said they are certain of the identity of the trio and expect arrests within a few days.

Hazelbaker and his wife met Zudak aboard ship while returning from Europe. He introduced Bauer and the pair said they were operators of a betting syndicate which handled "sure things." They had one in Montreal, they confided.

The three wired New York for $200,000 to bet on their horse and received a letter, headed "J. P. Morgan & Co." informing them that Mr. Morgan was out of the city and the cash could not be sent until his return.

The magnanimous Zudak then offered to let Hazelbaker in on the killing. He wired Pittsburgh for funds, which he received in a few hours. He turned over $136,000 to the "betting ring" and—the horse wasn't in the money.

When he returned to Humphrey's office, it was vacant. He complained to police and the three tricksters are sought on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Paper Says Editor Is Too Changeable to Be Taken Seriously

OHAMA, Neb., Aug. 23. (UP)—William Allen White, the Emporia, Kan., editor, who assailed Gov. Alfred E. Smith, is too changeable to be taken seriously, the Omaha World-Herald said today in an editorial denouncing White.

White is as changeable as the weather and next week would be capable of praising Smith and denouncing Hoover and Curtis, the editorial comments.

The editorial goes on to quote from editorials written by White prior to the Republican convention. In these editorials White is quoted as referring to Hoover as a "timid fat capon," and calls Curtis a "nitwit" errand boy of big interests, while in other editorials White is quoted as praising Smith for his ability and courage.

West Texas Crops Are Barely Normal

STAMFORD, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—Agricultural Manager B. M. Whitaker of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, reports the general condition of crops in West Texas barely normal. Cotton is spotted due to the fact that on account of dry weather, high winds and hail, much of it had to be replanted after June 15. In most sections where replanting was necessary, the well tilled land and rains which fell immediately caused the crop to do well and fruit splendidly, and an average yield is expected. In sections where the land was poorly cultivated and there was a lack of sufficient rain the yield will be poor.

Late feed crops are in splendid condition, Mr. Whitaker stated. West Texas feed consumption is increasing annually as poultry, dairying and hog raising are rapidly developing.

Program to Stimulate Use of Cotton Started

STAMFORD, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—Attention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been directed to a program being conducted by three nationally known agencies to stimulate consumption of cotton.

The program embraces discovering new uses for cotton and causing increased consumption in fields where the commodity is already established. The move is fostered by the combined and cooperative efforts of the textile division of the department of commerce, the bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture and the Cotton Textile institute of New York.

Longer bed sheets form one phase of the campaign.

"A pair of moccasin boots made of buckskin, such as squaws wear, will bring $25 from tourists," said Mr. Perry. "Bucks and buckskins are getting scarcer on the reservation, where the Indian is not restricted by game laws, and he is being hit in the pocketbook. He is now looking to the future.

All completed ponds have been filled with growing fish, several of which were shipped to other points recently because of overcrowded facilities.

SCOUT EAGER FOR POLE TRIP

Chosen Youth Arrives in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (UP)—Paul Sipis, eagle scout of Erie, Pa., came to New York today to begin one of the greatest adventures any boy of 19 years could undertake.

Paul was picked from among all the Boy Scouts of the United States as the one best equipped to accompany Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd on his expedition to the South Pole.

He arrived here at 9:30 a. m. and his adventures started immediately. They carried him through a final dental examination, measurement for outfits and finally a period in front of movie cameras during which he saluted Commander Byrd, smiled, looked serious, and now and then looked bewildered.

At 4 p. m. he was ushered into an ordeal which has shaken many a more mature person, namely, a mass interview with newspaper men.

Paul, with perfect dignity, settled himself in a chair in the center of a group of 15 questioners, four of whom were women.

The questioning began.

"How old are you?"

"A little past 19."

"How tall?"

"Six feet one."

"How much do you weigh?"

"Anywhere between 162 and 170."

Has Confidence

Paul spoke his answers with perfect poise and confidence. His voice was low pitched, clearly audible, and pleasant. He accompanied each answer with a smile.

"How far along are you in school?"

"I've finished my freshman year at Allegheny college; I'm majoring in science, but I hope to become a scout executive some day. I want to follow scouting."

"What did your mother say when she heard you were going?"

"She said:

"'If the Lord wanted you to be selected to go to the South Pole with Commander Byrd, then the Lord will bring you back safe.'"

Paul did not smile as he said that. The room was momentarily still and the rumble of traffic from Madison avenue outside seemed doubly violent.

Then the questioning resumed.

Paul had heard on Monday that he had been selected.

"I felt awfully sorry for the other five lads who had come to New York hoping they might be picked," he said. "I wished they all could go.

"Just as soon as the news was published in Erie I had engagements enough to last me for a week, but all of them had to be cancelled excepting a luncheon the chamber of commerce gave me, because there wasn't time.

"I have just one sister, Mrs. Carrol Kettering, of Canton, Ohio, and she got into an automobile and came right over to see me that night.

"From then on it was a rush to get ready. I was showered with things to take along and I have brought with me as many of them as I could, but that's not very many."

J. A. HOOD
FOR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT

Don't forget me tomorrow, friends. If you elect me, I will attempt to bring up Wichita county's standing among the counties of the state in the number of standard rural schools. This county has two standard rural schools so recognized by the state—Wilbarger county has 21, Archer county has six, etc. There are 29 other counties of the state that have more standard rural schools than we have.

I am endorsed by petition by 141 prominent rural citizens of this county for county superintendent. This petition was circulated in only part of three communities. Practically 90 per cent of the people shown the petition signed it. This petition clearly reflects the public sentiment of the rural people. There are such prominent men as: J. D. Cooper, Ed Foster, Jim Snoddy, H. C. Obenhaus, John Muller, Chas. Van Loh, E. A. Barwise, T. H. Barwise, W. H. Holley, G. Hiebsmann, J. N. George and more than 130 other pioneers and founders of this part of Texas. This petition is signed by many Wichita Falls citizens. Men like T. J. Waggoner Jr., J. L. Waggoner, S. P. Goss, F. H. Goss, H. P. Hodge, Joe L. Art, J. W. Williams, Jerry Schaefer, D. M. Perkins, S. E. Haddox and many other prominent Wichitans.

As the county superintendent serves only the rural schools of the county, the question is: whom do they want? I'd be willing to leave the results with the six rural voting boxes in the county and let them say whom they want. I will carry two-thirds of the votes in the rural districts of this county.

I will thank you greatly for your support. J. A. HOOD.

BLIZZARD HERE

Chicken at Zoo Has All Appearance Of Politician

A chicken that walks upright like human being has been added to the collection at the Wichita Falls municipal zoo.

The bird pulls in his chest and sticks out his stomach just as many politicans do—with no effort at all.

Blizzard is his name, the tag having been attached in honor of Castor Oyl's comic strip in the daily papers. Blizzard has not learned to say "Wockie" however, according to last reports.

LIFE'S TRUSTED ADVISERS

your Doctor
your Dentist
your Minister

And Your LIFE INSURANCE COUNSELLOR

All thinking men recognize the value of expert advice: the Doctor and Dentist in health; the Minister in spiritual matters; the Banker in finance; the Lawyer for legal advice; the School Teacher in the training of youth. And yet in Life Insurance many merely "buy a policy or two" and let it go at that.

Life Insurance is like medicine; proper diagnosis should precede dosage. Few men have the specialized knowledge to prescribe correctly for themselves. One may take too much, or too little, or take entirely the wrong kind. An expert can analyze any given "case" and advise the proper "treatment." Southland Life agents are trained in service... selling is merely incidental. You can trust the local Southland man... confide in him... make him one of Life's most trusted advisers. Ask him to "program" your life insurance. You'll be astonished at the new type of Life Insurance agent of which he's a good example.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—"Are New Yorkers fond of music. I'll say they are!" remarked a western visitor. "Most people enjoy good music, especially when it can be had for nothing, and when it's anything as wonderful as the Goldman band concerts—well, these cosmopolities literally flock there from all parts of the city."

But music lovers are not the only ones who are attracted to the New York university campus. Flappers and their boy friends find it an excellent rendesvous. It seems 80 per cent of the spectators are boys and girls.

"You don't have to know how to get there; all one must do is follow the endless streams of people jogging along in their spike-heeled pumps, stop, shake the pebbles out of their shoes, and chatting with their escorts, resume their walk to the benches.

At last you come within sight of the band stand. The music starts with "The Star-Spangled Banner." Every one halts, and you are astounded at the vast throngs. You scramble into a seat, rather high up, but you still command a good view.

The young man whose wife entered the hospital for an operation answered routine questions in the hospital office and a girl clerk faithfully recorded them upon a card. He gave his wife's name, address, her place of birth, etc."

"What religion?" asked the girl.

The young man thought a bit and replied:

"No religion."

The girl wrote and asked other questions. When the card was finally filled out he went away. But when he happened to be in the hospital again a few days later he spoke to the girl clerk again.

"I'd like to change the reply I made to the question concerning religion," he said. "I did not mean to say that my wife—I—that we have no religion. We have a religion. What I wished to say was that neither she nor I are members of any church."

"Oh, I fixed that," the girl replied. "I wrote down Protestant."

The wealthy lady had gone out to the farm to visit her country nephews and nieces. Her coming had caused a bustle of excitement, but at last she was installed in the big easy chair with her hosts grouped about her.

Joey, the youngest of the family, watched her solemnly. His big eyes took in the dainty summer dress, the wide hat, and then came to a fascinated halt on her huge fox neck piece. For many minutes he watched the sharp fox and bushy tail, his eyes never wavering.

At length, when conversation waned a bit, he piped up wistfully, "Aunt, may I take your dog out?"

Vernon City Tax Rate Set at $2.15 on $100

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Aug. 23.—The Vernon tax rate was set at $2.15 on the $100 valuations at a meeting of the Vernon city commission Wednesday morning. This rate includes the school levy, and represents an increase of 40 cents on the $100 valuation.

With the increase in rate, and an increase of approximately $300,000 in city taxable values according to this year's renditions, the city's possible revenue from the 1928 renditions totals $174,797.15, the largest figures in the city's history.

Protecting the Guilty

A YOUNG gangster has been on trial for murder in Kansas City recently.

He was a precious specimen of the gangster breed; one of the oily, well-dressed, sneering youngsters who always make such a jaunty appearance in court. He had four lawyers, one of them imported from Chicago for the occasion, and the newspaper accounts of his trial have been rather revealing.

The lawyers fought well for him. The prosecutor was hardly able to put two questions to a witness without being interrupted by an "I object!" from one of them. When each state witness had told his story a merciless cross examination was begun. He was asked a variety of things, bullied, coerced, sneered at, insulted, in the free and easy way that lawyers have; nothing was left undone that might have confused the witness, or raised an insinuation that he was not testifying from disinterested motives.

The trial, moreover, was only the first act in the drama. As the defense lawyers' objections were overruled, exceptions were noted, so that the basis for a lengthy, time-killing series of appeals could be laid. If this young man—he rejoices, by the way, in the name of "Lollypop"—ever gets hanged it won't be because his lawyers haven't done everything in their power to save him.

Now all of this isn't at all unusual. It happens every time any man is brought to trial. But it does suggest once more this question:

How much of the responsibility for the present defiance of law by the underworld must be shouldered by the legal profession, whose members are so fond of remarking that they are "officers of the court"?

The criminal trial in this country—provided the defendant has money—has ceased to be a process for learning a man's guilt or innocence in the quickest way possible, and has become an elaborate sort of game. No one knows this quite so well as the gangster. Does the gunman, even when taken red-handed in the most glaring crime, ever give up and prepare for a trip to prison? He does not; instead he sends at once for his lawyer, knowing that when society has captured him it has only gone about a third of the way toward putting him where he belongs.

Lawyers often urge that the present state of affairs had best be left unchanged because it does protect the rights of an innocent man; and they repeat the old saying, "it is better for ten guilty men to escape than for one innocent man to suffer." Yet innocent men, now and then, are convicted anyway; and it is usually the biggest crook who benefits most by the law's protection.

The solution must come from members of the bar themselves. They have a rather large responsibility in the matter. Our criminal court procedure is fairly crying for reform. It is up to the lawyer to make a few suggestions.

It's Still a Bull Market

IN THE early June of 1924, according to a current bulletin of the Cleveland Trust company, the average price of 228 stocks composing the price index of the Standard Statistics Co. was just above 100. Ever since that time it has been rising irregularly, until in May, 1928, it was above 220.

The bull market is four years old, and seems destined to continue as such into 1929. Business during the remaining months of 1928, says the bulletin, probably will be better than it was during the corresponding months of 1927.

This forecast is based upon the key industries of iron and steel, automobile construction and other factors. Car loadings on the railroads and coal production are beginning, little by little, to produce records better than those of the corresponding weeks a year ago. The agricultural outlook is good, with weather conditions promising large harvests and with farm prices at higher levels than last year. Increased sales by the mail order houses and the farm implement manufacturers are reflecting the improvement in the purchasing power of the agricultural sections.

A Pig and All That

THE Pennsylvania bureau of motor vehicles reports an odd quirk in the laws of that state governing motorists' liability for property damage.

If a man's car runs over, say, a $1,000 chow dog, the driver needn't bother much about the accident. If, however, he happens to run over a $50 pig, he must report the accident to the bureau and stand ready to furnish compensation to the owner.

That isn't quite as peculiar as it first appears. A dog, by rights, is either a cherished pet or nothing. He has no dollars and cents utilitarian value. A pig, on the other hand, is a bit of property that is raised solely for profit. Killing a pet dog may injure the owner severely, but it isn't the sort of an injury that can be assuaged with cash. A pig, however, is a creature that, being unlovable, can be paid for and forgotten.

Just an argument in favor of cement pavements: New York boy fell five stories, landed on one, and lived.

RADIO IN SEASON

The citizen's radio in winter—except in crowded city apartment houses—is his own private affair, the interminable jazz and the tireless announcer's voice being confined within his own walls. But in summer, with his own and his neighbors' windows open his radio, if he and his family are insatiable "fans," is apt to become a public nuisance, even a pest. No wonder the Federal Radio commission is deluged by "complaints of radio jazz which continues after midnight and radio setting-up exercises which begin at 6:45 a. m." And while one person writes to Washington, we may be sure that many complain to neighbors, apartment-house owners and city officers, the great majority, perhaps, merely suffering and chafing in silence.

TRUCKS PROVING MENACE

Members of the city council are inquiring into the parking ordinances of other towns. The main reason of this inquiry is to find a means to alleviate the present situation that arises when big trucks park on the main street. There can be no complaint made now concerning the busses that once practically blocked that street, but the big trucks are even worse than the busses. Some regulation must be made to protect us from our own narrow streets.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — Fontaine Fox

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

Ernest Mallingham was alone in the library filled with strange curies gathered from many lands by the great scientist, Winthrop Gaston Martenet, erratic and tireless explorer into the mysteries of life, who had now been dead seven years.

Ernest was waiting for a woman and because these queer surroundings got on his nerves he was waiting impatiently. Julia was late again. Julia was the young widow of old Martenet's son, Maxwell, a man twice her age. Maxwell had disappeared four years after his father's death and because he had been more or less a nobody it was taken for granted he was dead. But Ernest Mallingham was suspicious and when the young widow appears he accuses her of keeping a secret from him and the rest of the world. Breaking down, she promises to tell him all. Hannan Martenet, son of Maxwell Martenet, lately arriving in New York from the tropics, finds he is being trailed by a young woman. He visits the family lawyer, who gives him a letter from his grandfather which he is to read and then destroy. The letter warns Hannan not to open "the iron door until the clock has stopped" and ends with a drawing of a man his grandfather calls dangerous. As Hannan finishes reading there is a knock and the original of the drawing stands before him. Peters, the stranger, gives Hannan a letter from his father. Just as Peters leaves Hannan notices it is dated two years after the supposed death. He runs after Peters. The chase led to a house, where Hannan is overpowered by Peters' servant, who after a short absence from the room returns to give Peters Hannan's watch, collar buttons and such things as could not be destroyed by acid. At Valhalla Notch, the former country home of Winthrop Martenet, John, the watchman, is startled by the sight of footprints on the floor and by a knock at the gate.

A Visitor in the Night

It was an eventful night at Valhalla Notch, a place where generally nothing ever happened. First there had been the clandestine visitor who left wet footprints on the floor and took care to remain unseen. Now there appeared to be another sort of visitor, one who rang the bell in the approved manner of a well-intentioned person. But what could anybody be wanting at a place like this and on such a night?

John dropped the revolver into his pocket, wrapped himself in a raincoat and pulled a slouch hat well down over his forehead. The gate was about three hundred yards from the house, and it would not take long to get a thorough soaking on a night like this. A blast of wind and rain almost knocked him over as he stepped out in the open, and the gale tore at his clothing as if trying to rip it to pieces.

He wondered who the caller might be. Mr. Curry sometimes made unheralded visits of inspection, but he would hardly come in a storm like this, and John could think of no one else who might have a reason for calling at Valhalla Notch.

As he drew closer to the gate, a white glare cut a wedge through the blackness. He could hear a motor humming irregularly, as if missing on one or more cylinders. Holding the revolver in readiness with one hand—for he was prepared for almost anything tonight—he unlocked the gate and came cautiously forward. He gasped a little, although he should have been immune to surprises by this time, for the sole occupant of the car was a girl. He dropped the revolver into his pocket and bent over for a closer look at her.

"Can you tell me the way to Intervale?" asked the girl, shouting the words at him in order to make them heard.

"Intervale?" John shouted back. "No, Miss, you're away off the track. Intervale's way over on the other side of the range."

"Oh, dear!" She groaned in disgust. "Is this a hotel?" she inquired, leaning out and looking at the light from the library window twinkling among the trees.

"No, Miss. It's a private house. You won't find a hotel anywheres near. Terrible night for a lady to be out."

"Oh, I wouldn't mind if only the engine was working right. I could hardly get up that last hill, and as I came down on the other side the brakes started giving out."

"It's a mighty steep hill, Miss."

John regarded her with sympathy. It was a touring car, without side curtains. She looked very wet and cold, and tired as well. John was conscious of a struggle within himself. While his instructions did not exactly forbid him to admit visitors to Valhalla Notch, he felt it was not quite the proper thing to do.

Yet, she was a pathetic sight in John's eyes, slight of build, with a small, childish face, and probably not a day over 20.

"Did you say the brakes ain't working right, miss?" he asked.

"They'll just about hold out if there aren't any more steep hills."

John's mind was made up. For miles around there was nothing but hills, and all of them were steep and some of them were on the edge of precipices. She would probably meet with an accident, and John felt it would be his fault if he permitted her to go on.

"Better come in and have a cup of tea, child," and with that he flung the gates wide and motioned her to drive in.

Once inside the house, he conducted her to the library, then brought an armful of wood and kindled a fire. Though the month was August, the house was damp and cold.

"Dry yourself before the fire while I make some tea," he told her, then took himself off to his own quarters in a remote wing of the house.

Fifteen minutes later he was back with a tray of tea and sandwiches. For an instant, as he set the tray down, his eyes narrowed suspiciously. The girl had given a nervous start as he entered the room, causing him to wonder whether her sole occupation during his absence had been that of drying her clothes.

She had removed her coat and hat and stood before him in a simple frock of blue serge. Raindrops were still glistening in her hair, but her face testified to the recent use of a powder puff. John felt rather ashamed of himself for his suspicions as he sat down and watched her drink the tea and eat the sandwiches. She had a pretty face framed by short brown curls. Her eyes of hazel gazed at him in a direct, friendly way. She looked a little more mature than when he saw her in the car. Then he had estimated her age at barely 20. Now he began to wonder. Twenty-two—25? Two or three years made a difference when one was young.

"You make the most wonderful tea," she told him.

John brightened. "Glad you like it. What might your name be, miss?"

"Viola Lane. I live in New York and I am on my way to visit my aunt in Intervale."

"Viola Lane, eh? Nice name. It fits you, too. Mine's John Brock. You can call me John. That's what most folks used to call me. Lately I ain't seen many people."

With a sigh of satisfaction she pushed her chair away from the table, turned to the fire, and lighted a cigarette. John had never seen a woman smoke a cigaret before, and he was not quite sure that he approved. Yet she did it so daintily and naturally that he could not find fault.

"You can turn in whenever you feel like it," he told her. "I fixed up one of the upstairs rooms while the tea water was boiling."

"You mean I can stay here for the night?"

"Why, miss, I wouldn't send a dog out in this kind of storm."

"You're awfully kind, John." She gave him a grateful smile. "Late, isn't it?" with a glance at her wrist watch. "But I don't feel tired now. I'd rather talk with you. But—" doubtfully, "maybe you are sleepy."

"Not a bit. Fact of the matter is, I didn't mean to go to bed tonight, anyhow. I'm going to stick right in this chair."

"Why on earth do you want to sit up all night?"

"Oh, because," said John mysteriously.

Miss Lane's eyes were fixed on the floor. She smiled faintly. "Maybe I can guess. You expect him to come back—isn't that it?"

"Him—who?" John's mouth dangled open.

The girl was still looking down at the floor. "He wears a narrower shoe than you do, although the length is about the same."

John choked on a whiff of tobacco smoke. He traced the girl's gaze and saw that she was looking down at the footprints on the floor, now reduced to a few clots of dried mud. He gave her a startled glance.

"Oh, the skeezicks!" His face closed up. "Say, miss, you're a smart one! I wouldn't have thought it of you—no-siree."

"Then I must be cleverer than I look." She gave a pleased laugh. "What became of him?"

"Wish I knew," said John grimly. "Say, miss, are you one of those lady detectatives?"

"Mercy! Do I look like one?"

"No, you don't," said John emphatically, though he had no clear idea what a lady detective should look like. "I don't see how you can tell so much from a few specks of mud."

"Oh, but it's awfully simple, John. I know those mud prints weren't left by you because I noticed how carefully you wiped your feet on the door mat. And then, from the look you gave me when you saw me in the car, I gathered two things. One was that something troublesome had happened. The other, that you were not accustomed to receiving visitors in this place. It wasn't very hard to put two and two together after that."

John's admiration rose. At the same time he felt a little uneasy. All his life he had felt that way toward women who looked simpler than they really were.

"You're the observingest girl I ever did see," he declared.

The girl went down on her knees and subjected the dried mud tracings to a closer inspection, following the tracks to where they disappeared in the rug.

"I can tell you another thing," she announced. "The mysterious personage is a cripple."

"Cripple, eh?" John looked doubtful. "For a cripple he moved terribly fast."

"Well, maybe not a cripple exactly, although he comes down much harder on one foot than the other. Maybe he is only limping from a recent injury."

John eyed her narrowly. "What gets me," he remarked, "is how a girl as smart as you are could lose her way as badly as you did tonight!"

Miss Lane rose. Their eyes tangled in a long glance. There was faint mockery in the girl's. "Not suspicious, are you, John?"

"Nope—just wondering."

She laughed, then started to move about the room with a swinging stride, stopping now and then to examine some object of interest. John's eyes followed her. She moved with a fresh, easy grace. She made him think of his daughter, now sleeping under the hemlocks in the cemetery at Dixville.

"Well," she stretched herself luxuriously, "since I had to get lost, I'm glad I came to Valhalla Notch."

"Uh-huh. You might a fared worse." John gave her another long, narrow glance. "Mind telling me, Miss Lane, how you knew this was Valhalla Notch?"

"Why—" She faltered. Her face was averted, but he saw that her slight shoulders shook a little. "Didn't you tell me?"

"I'm sure I didn't."

"But you must have. How else would I have known?" She dismissed the subject lightly. "Who is that?" pointing to the old portrait of Old Winthrop.

John had suddenly grown uncommunicative. "Somebody who lived here once."

She studied the picture. "Curious face! Stern lips and dreamy eyes. Interesting combination. I have a feeling I've seen it before. But it was a much younger face that I saw."

"Yeah?"

"Yes, much younger. The name of the young man was—let me see now—Hannan Martenet."

WESTERN SUNSET

There may be a grander picture
Than a setting summer sun,
Slowly sinking—in a cloudbank;
I've not viewed a grander one.

All the colors of the spectrum:
Brilliant red to violet,
With a soft, translucent blending,
Such as artists never get.

You may travel from the seashore,
To the highest mountain's crest,
But you'll not find greater beauty
Than a sunset in the west.

Texas' Fighting Parson Boomed for Legion Post

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—Rev. L. A. Boone, pastor of the First Methodist church at Raymondville, is being groomed by the posts of the Rio Grande valley for election as state chaplain of the American Legion at the convention of that organization, which meets at Texarkana.

In addition to his endorsement by the valley posts, which number 13, Rev. Mr. Boone has been endorsed for the office by a number of up-state posts, including Houston and San Antonio.

Rev. Mr. Boone is a member of the family of Boones which includes the pioneer, Daniel Boone of "Dark and Bloody Ground" fame in the early history of Kentucky, and he was seriously wounded by German shell fire on the battle-front in France. He is serving his fifth year here at Raymondville as pastor of the First Methodist church, and numbers many friends not only over the valley, but throughout the state of Texas as well.

There is also a movement to elect Rev. Boone national chaplain of the American Legion at the national convention at San Antonio in October.

GERMANY FIRST TO SIGN PACT

Nations' Representatives Gather in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(US)—Germany, which was the first country to accept Secretary Kellogg's renunciation of war pact, will have the honor of being the first to sign it next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the hall of clocks at the French foreign office. The order of signing will be alphabetical, according to the French alphabet.

Secretary Kellogg will place America's signature next to Germany's which will be written by Foreign Minister Stresemann. Britain will be third and France fourth.

The smoke screen of reports that seemed to indicate an intention of minimizing the importance of signing the treaty has been dissipated and the signing of the pact by a large part of the world under the leadership of America will be done solemnly but with all the historical significance that attaches.

Twelve Delegations

Twelve delegates will gather around the rectangular table at the head of which will sit the French foreign minister, M. Briand. At his right will be Secretary Kellogg. Eight sun arc lamps will throw their light on the historic scene for eight motion picture concerns to record it pictorially for posterity.

M. Briand, as chairman, will address the delegates, and thereafter will recognize any of them who wish to speak. Microphones will broadcast the proceedings throughout Europe and probably will be connected with American stations.

With all the skepticism that prevails toward America's pact for a warless world accepted with so many mental reservations, Secretary Kellogg's arrival is hailed in many pacifistic, liberal Democratic and socialistic circles generally as a kind of a second coming of America to save Europe. It is interpreted in many quarters as indicative of the intention of America to take up the leadership in world affairs which destiny seems to have marked out for her by the very reason of her idealism, progressiveness, greatness and power.

Kellogg Arrives Today

Two special trains, one for each, will bring Secretary Kellogg and Canadian Premier Mackenzie King from Havre Friday morning. Each will be accompanied by representatives of the French government. Dr. Stresemann, accompanied by his doctor, a private secretary, and one foreign office attache, arrives Sunday afternoon. Stresemann will stay at the German embassy. Owing to the state of his health he has asked that his strength be spared as much as possible, and therefore no functions will be given at the German embassy in his honor.

Immediately after his arrival Stresemann will call on M. Briand and will meet Secretary Kellogg Sunday evening at the American embassy dinner given by Ambassador Herrick. M. Briand and German Ambassador Von Noesch lunched with Ambassador Herrick today. It is denied that the intimate meeting of the American and German ambassadors with the French foreign minister at the American embassy on the eve of Secretary Kellogg's arrival, had any significance.

From authoritative English, French and German sources it was learned that any idea, if such existed, of forcing upon Secretary Kellogg the question of debts, reparations and evacuation of the Rhineland have been abandoned.

POLITICS FROM PRESS GALLERY

Washington Writer Talks From 'Behind the Scenes'

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (UP)—Frank R. Kent, who has viewed from the press gallery a long parade of national political leaders, hangers-on and glad-handers, is the author of "Political Behavior," a book written behind the scenes at Washington. It was published today.

Kent's study of political affairs has resulted in an interesting and highly controversial book which deals mostly with the "sordid" side of national politics.

In a foreword Kent says, "One thing that should be said at the outset is that in what is herein written there is nothing either cynical or subtle in intent. If there seems to be taken a low view of the popular intelligence, if doubt of the inherent distaste of the American voter for corruption is entertained, if his preference for the stupid and insincere is indicated, these are merely in inescapable deduction from evidence he has given in abundance."

"Whispering Campaign"

Then Kent digs into the political situation to show how the local and national "machine" works, how corruption and huge campaign funds enter into every election; how the "whispering campaign" is started; how public sentiment is overriden by the party steam roller—and how "there is absolutely no rule for dealing with women in politics."

The "poison squad" hired at party headquarters unofficially and secretly, spreads indecent rumors about the opposition candidate, Kent writes. "They are supplied with enough money and given the 'dope' and there is no way of catching up with their 'whispering campaign'."

The corrupt practice acts are "fakes," he continues, and from president down the elective offices are filled as the result of campaigns in which both state and federal laws limiting the use of money are violated.

The "runner" is the usual system of buying votes, Kent explains. The runner is given $10 to round up his own family, which probably accounts for 10 votes. Therefore for $100 expense, 10 runners could bring in enough votes to swing the election in any ordinary precinct of 400 voters.

Praises Smith

Sentiment was behind Herbert Hoover in 1920, the writer says, and he would have been nominated except for the fact that public sentiment has little to do with such things. In 1928 Hoover knew more about the game and went at it directly.

"Gov. Alfred E. Smith comes more nearly to being a man with a gift for reaching the minds and hearts of people, than any other man in public life today," Kent believes. Only occasionally an extraordinary man who can interest people in the problems of government arises, he said.

The book deals with prominent characters in current political history and explains through interesting incidents, Kent's deductions as to political affairs.

"This Is the Life," Says Prince Who Watches Venice Beauties in Pyjamas

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

VENICE, Aug. 23. (US)—While it is August in New York and Palm Beach there is a perfect hubbub of the gay new pajamas on the beach at Lido.

Just after I landed here by airplane I was startled by the stunningest sight of one of the wealthiest young women of England in pyjamas of a figured chiffon with a jacket short—just to the hips—and the trousers fitting rather snugly.

The situation is saved by the fact that the material has a very close pattern, giving an effect something like Aborigines camouflaged successfully by coats of paint in intriguing designs. What I could not understand was why the gentle beauty who does not mind being seen thus by thousands of people absolutely refuses to permit her name to be used in the newspapers.

Other, but perhaps not brighter, pyjamas are shown on the beaches here from the best makers of Fifth avenue, Bond street, Piccadilly, and Paris. All day long they pursue each other in a continuous kaleidoscope.

Peggy Hops About

Now the new "Gallegiante," or dance boat is one of the popular features in Venice for the calm evenings. Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Lord Northesk clambered over the side of one of these barges the other evening and spent a happy evening while Harry Albert, leader of the American jazz band aboard, played popular American tunes.

Society is mourning the early departure this season of the Cole Porters, who usually stay all through August and September, but who have already departed, he for New York and Mrs. Porter for Switzerland. So the huge Rezzonico palace, once tenanted Robert Browning, is without the gay life that characterized it since June when the former Linda Lee, Kentucky belle, was the life of the party.

But the pyjama parade still lingers. Baron and Baroness De Gourgaud, (she was the former Miss Gebhard), change their costumes every time they appear on the sands—sometimes as Orientals, Tartars, Hawaiians, Chinese.

Often seen before the Capanna of Princess Jane San Fautino, (the former Miss Campbell of New York), are the Baron and Baroness De Meyer, who have brought their own supreme creations from Paris. This is the life.

Raid by Mob Fails

NATCHEZ, Miss., Aug. 23. (AP)—A mob of 40 or 50 armed men early today stormed the Adams county jail in search of John Burke, negro, charged with assaulting a 60-year-old white woman at Pine Ridge, near here, but failed to find the negro and their alleged leader, Cecil Collins, was arrested.

MYSTERIES OF PECOS BARED

Botanists Complete Grueling Survey in West

FORT STOCKTON, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—After having traveled more than 150,000 miles in conducting a 12 months' survey of an area as large as Maine, W. T. Carter, soil scientist, and V. L. Crory, range botanist, have completed a check of soil conditions in nine counties of the Trans-Pecos section of the state.

During the time Carter and Crory often went for more than a day without seeing another human being in their examination of land in Pecos, Brewster, El Paso, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Culberson, Presidio, Terrell and Reeves counties. On one occasion Carter broke the crank-case on his automobile 100 miles from any town, but reached a service station after repairing the broken part temporarily with wire.

The survey brought to light several unusual botanical conditions and exploded several other reports of plants found in the area. Among the discoveries was a salt basin between 50 and 60 miles north of Van Horn. The basin, about 60 miles long and 10 miles in width is covered with thin grazing soil, and cattle have learned to drink the water. Hundreds of years ago Mexicans hauled salt into their country, Carter reported.

The surveys found very little guayule, a rubber plant.

The trip was marked by the discovery of a large number of small valleys with shallow water available for apples, but there is not sufficient rainfall for dry land farming, Carter and Crory reported. Sheep and goat raising are the principle industries in the southern half of the Pecos. Ranchmen are beginning to bring sheep and goats into the Fort Davis and Marfa plateau.

A petrified forest reported in the Big Bend region is nothing more than a yarn, according to the two travelers.

Stage Producer Vows He'll Retire

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Like Gene Tunney and the automobile ads, George White is going to retire. George said so himself today, and he certainly should know his plans. The threatened cessation from theatrical toil will come at the conclusion of the run of his current "Scandals," at the Apollo theater, and the impending road tour of Ed Wynn in "Manhattan Mary." In explanation White says:

"The producing business holds no further lure for me. I have been more than ordinarily successful, and now that I have sufficient money, there are several other things I would like to do. I believe a man, when he has reached the peak in any line of endeavor, should retire and give others an opportunity.

"While my love for the theater is as great as ever, the unflagging work that goes into each production and the anxiety to better my previous effort have proved too much of a strain that not even success can assuage."

So, there you have it. Believe it or not, it's George's story, and he vows he will stand by it.

VOTE FOR TOM CONNALLY FOR U. S. SENATOR

Tom Connally votes dry and acts dry.

Tom Connally makes no under-cover political trades.

Perhaps those two statements explain why James E. Ferguson, who six years ago denounced Mayfield in language so bitter that the newspapers didn't print it, is supporting Mayfield now.

No such sinister force is at work for Connally.

In politics as in other things, a man must be known by the company he keeps.

Jim Ferguson wouldn't now be supporting the man he fought so violently six years ago, if there were not a good reason for it . . . from Ferguson's standpoint.

A vote for Tom Connally is a vote for sincerity in politics. It is a vote against hypocrisy.

A vote for Tom Connally is a vote to give Texas the kind of senatorial representation that the size, the dignity and the traditions of Texas deserve.

The verdict of Texans who have had the opportunity to know both candidates is convincingly in favor of Connally, and against Mayfield.

Bosque county was formerly Mayfield's home. It is also in Connally's congressional district. Bosque county folks know both men. In the first primary Bosque gave Connally 1,770 votes, and only 763 to Mayfield.

Mayfield once lived in Bell county. It was in the district which elected him state senator. Yet Bell county went for Connally by the overwhelming vote of 5,452 to only 933 for Mayfield.

The Democratic county convention in Bell county on August 4 unanimously adopted a resolution calling attention to the fact that the citizens of the county were "well and personally acquainted with both the private life and public acts of each of these contestants," and indorsing Connally's candidacy and recommending him to the voters of Texas.

Bell county knows Mayfield. Bell county knows Connally. It knows J. E. Ferguson, who is supporting Mayfield.

Travis county is now Mayfield's official residence. It gave Connally 3,791 and Mayfield 3,164.

Falls county is Connally's home county. It gave him 3,396 votes to only 358 for Mayfield and 367 for the other four candidates combined, a majority of 2,671 votes over all.

In the HOME COUNTIES of the two candidates, where each is well known—they prefer Connally. They overwhelmingly prefer him.

Mayfield sought to belittle Connally's record in Congress. But when Connally challenged him to a joint discussion of their respective records, Mayfield refused.

He was willing to attack Connally's record—when Connally wasn't there.

The 11th congressional district, which Connally represents, ought to know what kind of a congressman he has made.

Connally got a majority in each of those six counties, including the ones which were once in Mayfield's state senatorial district.

His own district gave him a total of 23,035 votes. The same six counties gave Mayfield only 4,296 votes, and 4,651 votes for the other four candidates combined.

Connally's own district voted for him, 2½ to 1 over the entire field.

The people whom he served as Congressman set the seal of their emphatic approval upon that service.

No wonder Mayfield declined, in the face of such a ringing endorsement of Connally's record, to meet Connally in debate upon the subject.

SPUDS TROUNCE BUFFS AND INCREASE LEAD TO 5 1-2 GAMES

MIKE PITCHES FINE 9-2 WIN

Benton, Turgeon, Wally, Jenkins Lead Attack

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 23.—Bayou city fans tonight were ready to admit that the Spudders are "in" with the second half championship of the Texas league. For Jim Galloway's men arose to the occasion today and trounced the Buffs in their final game here of the championship season.

The free-swinging Spudders hammered Carlisle Littlejohn, recently sent here by the Cardinals, off the hill in the fifth inning and with Mike Cvengros chunking superb ball routed the Buffaloes, 9 to 2.

Wichita Falls maced 16 hits off Littlejohn and Frank Barnes. Benton, Turgeon and Jenkins whacked three blows each, Pete smacking a home run and Rabbit a double. Wally Swenson walloped a triple and a homer and Stanton banked a pair of singles.

Mike Hurls No-Hit Ball

Cvengros baffled the Snydermen. The midget southpaw held the heavy-hitting Buffs to six singles which, except for the ninth inning, when two blows were bunched for the Buff runs, were scattered.

The Spudders played errorless ball. Fast fielding by Turgeon and Fitzgerald and Schuble featured.

The victory increased the lead of the Spudders to five and a half games.

Jim's men got off to a running start by scoring two tallies in the first inning. Benton doubled to left. Turgeon beat out an infield hit, Benton going to third. Fitzgerald hit to Schuble and Pete was safe when Selph dropped Heinie's throw, Benton scoring. Turgeon was safe at third stealing when Hock dropped Littlejohn's throw. Eldred forced Fitzgerald. Jenkins singled to right, scoring Turgeon.

The Spudders tallied four more in the third. Turgeon hit a home run over the left field wall. Fitzgerald grounded out. Eldred was safe on Hock's fumble. Jenkins singled to right, Eldred stopping at second. Swenson tripled to center, scoring Eldred and Jenkins. Barnes relieved Littlejohn. Stanton flied to Peel, Swenson tallying.

Spudders Score in Fourth

Wichita Falls counted again in the fourth. Benton led off with a hit, a single to center. Turgeon sacrificed, Barnes to Walker. Fitzgerald singled to right, scoring Benton.

Both clubs scored two runs in the ninth. Jenkins singled to right and scored on Swenson's home run inside the park to the center field fence.

Peel started the Buff half by strolling. Schuble fouled to Jenkins. Abbott batted for Penner and walked. Swenson took Walker's foul. Jonnard singled to right, Peel scoring and Abbott going to third. Baker singled to center scoring Abbott. Selph forced Baker, Benton to Turgeon, to end the game.

The Spudders open a three-day stand, including a double-header Sunday, at Beaumont Friday. Then they are at Shreveport for three days and return home Thursday.

ILLINOIS RATES HIGH IN BIG TEN

Second Straight Title May Fall to Zup's Eleven

By W. F. SULLIVAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—"Watch Illinois."

That warning was being sounded by all Big Ten conference football coaches today as the day approached—September 15—when training for the 1928 season will get under way.

Illinois, last year's conference champions, stands out on paper a superior team to every other team in the Big Ten with the possible exception of Wisconsin and Iowa.

The Illini is favored with a comparatively light schedule, opening the season October 6 in a practice tilt with Bradley Polytechnic of Peoria and playing two other preliminary games with Coe and Butler before meeting a conference foe.

The conference teams of Indiana, Northwestern, Michigan, Chicago and Ohio State will meet Illinois this fall and on the basis of preseason comparison, the orange and blue warriors should carry the colors through to a second consecutive title.

15 Letter Men Return

"Fighting Bob" Zuppke, however, always a mentor to discourage over confidence, has warned his three score candidates that "gold footballs one season do not win championships the next."

Zuppke will have 15 letter men back this fall and many of them were star members of the championship eleven. He will have such men as Captain A. J. Nowack, L. J. Gordon, William McClure and L. Wietz in the line; A. E. Wolgast and W. Jolley at ends; Judson Timm, D. R. Mills and F. H. Walker as halves with Fred Humbert at fullback.

In addition to these regulars he will have 12 of last year's teams who didn't win letters and a score of promising sophomores.

Frosty Peters of Billings, Mont., star drop kicker several years ago, is expected to return as is Garland Grange, brother of the famous "Red."

Badgers and Iowa Strong

Zuppke has one of the strongest preseason teams in recent years and his men will be in good shape before they go into conference action. Before his first practice game with Bradley, he will have three weeks to round the players into form and then another three-weeks period will elapse before Indiana is met.

Wisconsin and Iowa, the other two strongest conference teams on paper, are not included in the Illinois schedule, making the burden lighter all around. Zuppke could well fear either of these teams and it is possible that the training season will produce some other foe as a barrier to another Illini title.

Tilden Defends Amateur Record

Bill Won't Appear Tonight At Tennis "Trial"

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (UP)—William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, captain of the 1928 Davis cup team, in a letter to Samuel H. Collom, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, made public today, announced he would not appear before the executive committee at his "trial" scheduled Friday night at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

Stating that business forced him to be out of New York City at the time of the meeting, Tilden presented his side of the case brought against him for violation of the player-writer clause of the amateur rule.

"I state that I did not intentionally violate or attempt to evade the spirit or letter of the rule," Tilden wrote in the letter, "and that to the best of my knowledge the articles under dispute do not violate the rule."

Bill Makes Defense

Tilden points out in his letter that only a few individual matches concerning the American players and their form were commented on and that no matches were mentioned until three days after the completion of the match.

"To 'cover tournaments'," Tilden's letter said, "means in newspaper circles to describe the play round by round in detail from beginning to end of play. These articles were written by me and were intended to be comment articles of an editorial nature and were mainly to give an idea of how our men were shaping towards the Davis cup matches."

Reiterating that he did not intentionally violate the letter or spirit of the rule, which he himself helped to draft, Tilden requested that he be cleared of the charges preferred against him.

The executive committee's interpretation of the player-writer rule is that any story written by a player about a tournament while it is in progress constitutes a violation of the rule, and it is understood in tennis circles that Tilden will be barred from amateur tennis at the meeting Friday night.

Tells of Sacrifices

In his plea for acquittal Tilden said he gave up a part in a play, journeyed 10,000 miles, sacrificed some $2,000 in salary, and imperiled a personal investment in an attempt to aid American tennis.

"Since this was to be my last year of tennis," Tilden said, "does it stand to reason that I would intentionally imperil any such contribution to tennis by intentionally violating the spirit of the letter of the rule?"

Tilden stated that he has not received any pay from the Christy Walsh Syndicate for the three disputed articles, and that he is perfectly willing to receive no pay for them and offer sworn statements from Walsh and himself to the U. S. L. T. A. to that effect.

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 23.—Less than 32 men have reported so far for the football team for the coming year, according to Coach Lee Walker. Robert Smith, captain, has not yet appeared, as well as several others who are yet employed in summer work.

The team appears light, being made up principally of juniors and second string men from last year. However, several new men have reported from other schools, and confidence is expressed that the team will yet come up to standard.

Practice has been started on the high school gymnasium field, with Coach Lee Walker in charge, Coach Stanford not yet taking an active part. Practice hour is between 6 and 7 p. m.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

RETRENCHMENT will be the policy of Texas league magnates next season. Several plans looking toward economy measures are considered by club owners of Doak Roberts' loop, as the rapidly waning 1928 campaign nears its end. For it is apparent that measures to reduce expenses are imperative if they are to make a fair profit or escape without financial loss next year. This has been a disappointing season financially in the Texas league, and while no great fear is felt as the loop of course is too good a circuit to cause worry, it still follows that more strict lines of economy must be set down and followed.

Few Texas league clubs will more than break even this season and some will show financial losses. Sale of players will aid some club owners to meet their bills, but even the disposal of athletes won't prevent more than one magnate from writing the campaign in red ink so far as the money part of it is concerned. It is again reiterated that the situation is nothing to induce great worry; it is a reflection of conditions seemingly prevailing throughout the country in the presidential year, always a bugaboo to baseball. Too, except for spurts by Fort Worth and Dallas and consistent play by San Antonio and Shreveport, which, however, failed to reach pennant proportions, the Texas league race this year has been largely a two-club affair, with Wichita Falls and Houston concerned. Even in those cities the attendance has been far under that which pennant contenders should draw.

FIRST MEANS of retrenchment probably will be a reduction of the payroll. This doesn't mean that veteran stars will be asked to accept salary cuts. You hardly can reduce salaries of ball players, particularly when an athlete has a good year. But it isn't improbable that the rookie rule, which now includes two players, will be changed to stipulate that all clubs must carry four or five rookies—that is, players without previous class A experience.

THERE WILL BE opponents to such a rule. They will argue that four or five youngsters on every club would tend to lower class of play. Possibly a number of youngsters might take a trifle from the smoothness of play. But they would more than compensate for that in their hustle and pep, always a source of gratification to the fans. And not only would their pay checks be lower than those of a corresponding number of veterans, but they would be potential sales material. And without the sale of youngsters, as pointed out above, more than one club in the Texas league club this year would be deeply in the hole.

Speaking of rookies, outside of Shires the kid Buck Stanton of Wichita Falls is the best first baseman in the league, and Holman, Shreveport third baseman; Roetz, Wichita Falls infielder; Marshall, Beaumont shortstop; Petrie, Beaumont outfielder, all developed into stars in their first seasons in class A baseball. Not only will they be big assets to their clubs next season in addition to this year, but they, and more of them not named, are big league prospects.

I'M FOR THE KIDS, strong. They add greatly to the attractiveness of baseball. They're going up; ambitious, full of life. Fans like them, too. And you can't tell me that four or five kids on a club with more than a dozen veterans is going to detract from the class of baseball. To the contrary, from what I've seen of the youngsters and veterans this year, I think a few more kids and less experienced players would have, if anything, made play faster and more interesting. And they do reduce payrolls, apparently a most important consideration right now

Abilene Takes Lead in Series

Aces Pound 14-3 Victory; Roberts Effective

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 23. (AP)—Abilene blasted its way to a 14 to 3 triumph and took the lead Thursday over San Angelo for the championship of the West Texas league.

Abilene has captured two games and San Angelo one in the playoff series. The fourth game is to be staged here Friday afternoon. Manager Les Tullos of Abilene will send either Hillin or Cromer to the pitching knob. Pilot Red Snapp plans on using Jubilo Clements, ace of the Concho chunking corps who has not appeared in the series yet.

The junior Spudders shelled Rufus Hall, diminutive San Angelo righthander, from the dome in the second frame, spraying the outfield with nine base hits and scoring seven runs before Hokey Garcia was sent to the rescue. The rampant Abilenians continued at a boisterous gait against Garcia in the third stanza and shoved across six more counters. Thereafter Garcia hurled tight ball.

Homeruns by Storti and Robers with two baggers by Storti and Sullivan featured the onslaught.

Bus Boberts, righthander of the Tullos squad, pitched a comparatively brilliant brand all the way. He failed to slacken even though his team amassed such a mammoth lead in the first three innings. Score:

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 23. (UP)—Charges that races at the Bainbridge race track here were "fixed" and that horses were being drugged were made today by two youths shortly after their arrest by Sheriff E. J. Harnratty.

The youths, Harnratty said, confessed that they helped drug horses.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE — (381) OUR PRESIDENTS

Trouble with England and Napoleon continued into the administration of James Madison, who, like Jefferson, was a Virginian. England had stopped many American ships and taken off sailors, claiming that they were British subjects. War at length was declared against Great Britain, June 19, 1812.

The American navy was small but good and the ships were fast. Several British ships were defeated.

Our attempts to invade Canada were not successful though Toronto was burned. The British burned public buildings in Washington.

In a battle at New Orleans, January 8, 1815, Andrew Jackson, with an army of backwoodsmen, defeated a force of British regulars. Peace had been declared by the treaty of Ghent, December 24, 1814, but there were no cables or fast steamships then, and word was slow in reaching this country. 824

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Grape Cure

Grapes are rich in valuable mineral salts and vitamins. They are rich in potash, sodium, calcium, magnesium, phosphorus, sulphur, silicon and iron. These are organized in a form that can be readily absorbed by the blood for use in the tissues which are always hungry for these vitamins and salts.

In Europe the grape cure has long been recognized as a good regime for those who suffer from many diseases, particularly anemia, diseases of the liver and kidney trouble. The patients use no other food of any kind, but live exclusively on grapes, drinking as much water as they desire. From three to eight pounds are used daily, and this grape fast may continue for a month or more.

The strong tartaric acid of the grape sometimes irritates the mouth but this can be avoided by washing the mouth several times daily with a solution of bicarbonate of soda and water.

Grapes should always be used by themselves, either in place of meals or as an exclusive diet for several days. Many cures have been reported from this fasting regime, and I can recommend the same diet to any of my readers who contemplate going on a grape diet.

Grapes have been cultivated for food from prehistoric times and their use may have ante-dated all other fruit, even the forbidden apple. The making of wine from grapes is perhaps one of the oldest industries, as it has been done for at least 6,000 years.

Grape juice is one of the most nutritious drinks when fresh, unfermented, or preserved by pasteurization. The best unfermented grape juice is made from good table grapes, with nothing added to the juice, which is bottled after being carefully pasteurized.

When prohibition went into effect, many farmers dug up their vineyards. This was a mistake, since the use of grape juice has been increased to such an extent that grape growing is now one of the most profitable farming industries. The price per ton of wine grapes is actually several times that of 10 years ago.

Grapes contain from 12 to 26 per cent of grape sugar, and from 1 to 3 per cent nitrogenous substances as well as the mineral elements.

During the grape season it is well to leave a dish of grapes standing in some convenient place in the home. Grapes should not be eaten too close to a meal.

Grapes in the form of raisins are very valuable food, and can be used in any part of the world, since they keep well. They are rich in energy materials.

Take advantage of grape season, and you will be richly rewarded with an increase in good blood. An exclusive diet of this most delicious fruit will give a rest to your overworked digestive organs, and the whole alimentary canal will be cleansed and purified by this delectable fruit of the vine.

Raisins ground in with dried meat make an excellent pemmican which is often used by arctic explorers and large expeditions, as it will keep almost indefinitely if protected from moisture. This combination is quite wholesome, and forms a well-balanced meal by itself.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. R. L. J. writes: "Please tell me how I can overcome fainting spells, and what causes them. I cannot have a slight pain without turning very weak and sick, and unless I lie down under a fan or apply wet cloths to my head I will faint. I cannot even listen to people telling of operations without a fainting spell, which leaves me weak for half a day. Severe pain will not make me sick or faint, but slight, uncomfortable pains always make me sick to the extent that I almost faint."

Answer—You may have some kind of heart trouble, or you may be over-nervous, due to wrong mental and physical training. Of course, I cannot tell you specifically what is causing your trouble without a personal consultation and examination.

Question—Mrs. G. D. J. writes: "Will you please name the foods that are non-catarrh-producing? I have a cold in my head constantly. I may have chronic catarrh. If so, can diet cure this trouble?"

Answer—You can use all of the non-starchy vegetables and the fruit without producing any excessive catarrhal mucus. All of the foods high in calory value, such as the starches, sugars and proteins may be said to be catarrh-producing if used in large quantities. The hydrocarbons, that is, the fats and oils, also contribute their share in adding to the toxins which irritate the mucous membranes and produce catarrh. The best diet for you to take is one free from starches, sugars and fats, but with a small amount of protein and plenty of non-starchy vegetables.

Question—K. L. asks: "Are sulphur and molasses good for the blood? If so, how often and how much should be taken?"

Answer—The sulphur and molasses treatment is no doubt effective in removing some intestinal toxemias, but a fruit fast is far superior for accomplishing this effect.

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By GRETA GARBO

Greta Garbo is just a poor Swede trying to get along on about $2,000 a week.

"My maid upholds traditions by having as her sweetheart a policeman," Miss Garbo told me, brokenly, "and the officer swears that this story is a true one.

"He said that he discovered a drunken negro woman on his beat one night, GRETA GARBO and arrested her. Due to the negress' rotundness and due also to her somewhat wobbly condition, it was not an easy task to deliver her at the station house. But finally the task was accomplished.

"When she was brought before the judge, he put on his scowl, and roared: 'Mandy, you've been brought in for intoxication!'

"'Hot dawg! Dat's fine, beamed Liza. 'Boy, you can start in right now.'"

Body of Slain Texan Taken to New Mexico

ROSWELL, N. M., Aug. 23. (AP)—The remains of Jessie M. Sheets, accidently killed during a gun fight at Tascosa, Texas, March 21, 1886, have been removed from "Boot Hill" there to the cemetery at South Park, by his daughter, Mrs. M. H. McDonald, for many years a resident of Roswell.

During the fight in which Mr. Sheets was mortally wounded, Ed King and Frank Valle, cowboys, and Fred Chilton, a Texas ranger, were shot by a gambler, Lon Woodruff. The Boot Hill burial ground then had a record of being filled, except for two persons, with men who had died with their boots on. In recent years "Boot Hill" is said to have attained such notoriety that curio seekers have been taking away monuments and, in one instance, were reported to have removed a body. It was for this reason, Mrs. McDonald said, that the disinterment was made.

Arkansas Desperadoes Begin Prison Terms

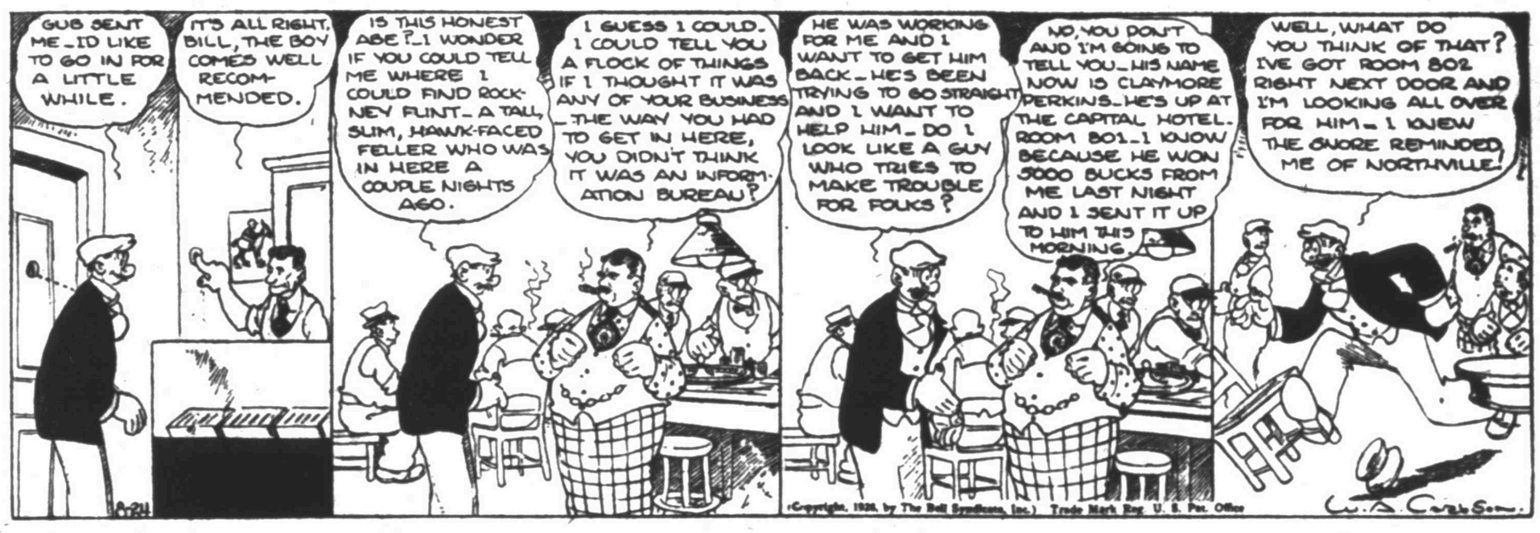

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 23. (AP)—Back in the penitentiary after brief court appearances at Marshall, where they pleaded guilty to a number of charges, Troy Love and Lee Sitton, desperadoes of the North Arkansas hill country, today began long prison sentences.

Love was sentenced to 67 years on five charges of bank robbery, burglary and shooting to kill and Sitton was given 15 years for second degree murder.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—Early advances were followed by declines in the New York cotton market today under renewed realizing or liquidation and some southern selling. December declined from 18.94 to 18.56 and closed at 18.59, compared with 18.80 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 8 to 21 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 9 points, generally 3 to 9 points higher, in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. The demand was not active, however, and after selling up to 19.08 for October and 18.90 for March, or about 10 to 15 points net higher, prices turned easier under local and southern selling which appeared to be promoted by prospects for showers in dry sections of the southwest. The outlook for showers in the eastern belt was considered unfavorable and was probably a disappointment to some of the early sellers but failed to bring in much fresh buying and except for occasional rallies, prices were lower during the afternoon.

At the lowest October sold at 18.71 and March 18.57 with the general list showing net declines of 20 to 24 points, and closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of these figures. The report of the census bureau showing 280,530 bales of cotton ginned prior to Aug. 16, against 455,388 last year and 182,255 two years ago, was about in line with expectations and was considered by local traders as without any particular effect on the day's market.

Private cables attributed the firmness at Liverpool to continental buying and trade calling in a comparatively narrow market and said there was a broadening demand for cotton goods in Manchester. Port receipts today 8,972 bales; United States port stocks 440,748. Exports today 18,378, making 196,660 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23. (AP)—Cotton prices sought lower levels today under selling brought out by more favorable crop prospects in Texas as a result of a forecast for cooler weather and rain there. December contracts after advancing 14 points to 18.51, declined to 18.12 and closed at 18.18, 19 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 19 to 21 points.

Liverpool cables were higher than expected and the market here opened firm in response. First trades showed gains of 10 to 11 points.

At the beginning of the second hour the market weakened on the predictions of showers and cooler weather in the western belt, which traders believed would check shedding in that section and aid the crop generally. Selling was also stimulated by the census bureau ginnings total of 280,530 bales, which was slightly larger than the trade expected.

October closed at 18.18, or 21 points off for the day.

Bull Leaders Undaunted by Call Of $20,000,000 Loans—Favorites Gain

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Irregular closing followed another "selected stock" market on the stock exchange today. Calling of $20,000,000 more loans and maintenance of the call rate at 7 per cent again failed to daunt the bull leaders as they pushed their momentary favorites into new high ground. Nervousness as to the showing in the federal reserve statements was responsible for most of the selling that wiped out part of gains in the final hour.

Montgomery Ward, Chrysler and Gold Dust were among those to hold most of the gains to the close, while steel agin lost ground and Sears Roebuck succumbed to the profit taking induced by Wednesday's sensational skyrocketing. Coppers were in demand early, but the move petered out, although news from the copper industry remains highly favorable. Railroads also failed to attract a following, although spasmodic attempts were made by bull leaders to induce added interest therein.

Gold Dust received added attention following exclusive forecast here of an increase in the dividend to a $5 annual basis soon. Indications of the good character of buying were told of by several brokers coincident with report that plan to acquire control of Linseed has been revived and is expected to be successfully consummated soon. The investment of the company in Linseed preferred could now be disposed of at a handsome profit. However, the plan provides for acquisition of controlling common shares of the company, as with both organizations working as a unit the economies to be effected would mean further increase in Gold Dust earnings.

Buying by interests associated with those in Gold Dust effected advance in Auto Lite, from which announcement of further increase in earnings is looked for soon.

Tips Circulated

There were almost as many "tips" in circulation as when the "Big Ten" worked as a unit five months or so ago. Another run in of the shorts in Chrysler was said to be planned coincident with offering of new stock to shareholders. The 30,000 shares, it was rumored, would be offered under $60 a share and thereby give attractive rights to present holders. Montgomery Ward's technical position was reported as strong as ever at the same time an advice was issued that the company planned to open new stores twice as fast as at present. The chain now is over 120 and is expected to reach 150 stores by the end of October. Ludlam Steel was in quiet demand following evidence of new interests taking an active part in the management.

Cerro de Pasco and Kennecott were among the prominent copper shares during their early bulge as continuance of current improvement in earnings should mean extra dividends by both companies. General Motors showed but fractional gain as bears continued to concentrate their operations on that old leader. Brockway Motor was among those to get into new high ground coincident with report that August would prove the best month on record for the company. Park and Tilford enjoyed one of the best advances as under the guidance of the new interests in the company there has been a progressive monthly improvement that will be evidenced in the forthcoming report. Eureka Vacuum slipped a point, although the distributing pool tried to hold it.

Loan Report Surprise

The street gets one of the biggest surprises of the year in the brokers' loan report showing decline of $22,099,000 in borrowings during the week. No estimate indicated increase of less than $50,000,000 while most forecast gain of $75,000,000 or more. Liquidation of loans, the reserve statements show, were entirely in accounts of banks outside of New York and the loans placed "for others" by New York banks. The local banks increased their loans to brokers $25,000,000. The reduction rather confirms the belief that important distribution of pool stocks has been going on. The heaviest selling of this kind is believed to have taken place in the final sessions of last week.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23. (US)—News regarding the wheat situation had a more bullish aspect today with reports of frost in Canada and improved export demand. Prices responded readily in all the principal markets, closing 2⅝ to 3c higher on the local exchange; 1⅝ to 2c higher at Liverpool, and 3½ to 3⅝c up at Winnipeg.

Other grains finished at better prices, mainly because of the upturn in wheat. Corn was lower early but closed ⅛ to ½c up. Oats finished ⅛ to 1⅛c higher and rye was 2 to 3c up.

Frost was reported from several important sections of Canada. While most of the advices said the damage done was probably slight, it was the opinion of the trade in the face of rapidly rising prices at Winnipeg that some of the late wheat might be more affected than was indicated.

Cash wheat was firm with prices and basis unchanged to 1c higher.

Corn futures sold off at the start on indications of generally favorable conditions over the belt. Later they went higher, mainly due to the strength in wheat. With the main interest centered in the big pit today, trade in corn was only moderate and with little of import in the news the market did not display such a nervous tone as it has for the past two weeks.

Commercial demand for the spot yellow cereal was fair, with basis and prices ½ to 2c higher.

Oats appeared more buoyant and recent heavy liquidation appeared to have run its course. Rye rallied firmly with wheat.

The Franklin Mining company was formed in 1857 and its corporate existence was renewed in 1887 and in 1917. In 1908 the old Franklin Mining property and mill site was sold to the Quincy Mining company for $170,000.

The company owns practically the entire capital stock of the Rhode Island Copper company. It is engaged in the production and sale of copper. The corporation owns and controls about 4,000 acres of mineral lands between the La Salle and Quincy mines, in Houghton county, Michigan. In addition, the company owns a 200-acre mill site at Grosse Point, Michigan, on which the company has a mill. Operations were closed down in 1920, but resumed activities in 1924. In 1926 operations were again suspended because of lack of funds. On May 17, 1927, the Michigan appraiser of mines valued the company's properties at $135,000.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding amounts to 166,519 shares of the par value of $25 each. Assessments to the amount of $21.70 a share have been levied between 1914 and 1927.

From 1863 to 1894, intermittent dividends were paid. None has been reported since June 1, 1928. There was a deficit in many years.

As of January 1, 1928, the latest comparative balance sheet showed total current assets of $155,553, and current liabilities of $256,483, with an excess of current liabilities over current assets of $100,930. Book value of the capital stock amounted to $10.81 a share.

New Well For Overall Pool

COLEMAN, Aug. 23.—During the first 12 hours swabbing period, the Texas company's No. 1 Sealy & Smith, section 13, G. H. & H. survey, which topped the shallow Overall sand at 1605 feet Monday, was reported to have produced 40 barrels, indicating a 30-35 barrel well.

With the completion of the Texas company's producer, the total number of producers from the shallow sand in the Overall area was boosted to four, three of which are grouped rather closely around the new well and the fourth being nearly one mile northeast in the R. H. Overall survey No. 66.

Two wells in the Echo oil pool on the J. P. Morris ranch, six miles northeast of Coleman, being drilled by the Eastland Oil company, the B-2 Morris and the A-6 Morris appeared to be dry in the regular sand expected around 2200 feet; however, operators had not definitely abandoned hope that the two tests may pay off within the next 50 feet.

The Simms Oil company's No. 1 C. H. Brannan in the S. Sprague survey No. 659, north of Santa Anna mountain, was reported near the top of the sand around 1800 feet and will likely drill in before the end of the week.

Morrissey Found Guilty Of Intoxication Count

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23. (UP)—As an indirect result of the fistic encounter in which he ran second to Tom Mix last Sunday, Will Morrissey, of musical comedy fame, was found guilty of drunkenness today.

His sentence was postponed until later, when Municipal Judge Gibbs admitted he was not familiar with the ordinance governing intoxication.

HASSELL CREW SAFE ON ISLE

Message From Fliers Is Received

is approximately 100 miles from Fiskenaesset to Godthaab, where Governor Petersen maintains his headquarters, and it is believed likely—although the governor's message did not make it plain—that the news was carried from Fiskenaesset to Godthaab by primitive means of the north, probably by Eskimo kayak along the coast.

Although there is still nothing to indicate whether Hassell and Cramer made a safe landing and are well or whether they met disaster in coming down, it was cheering to know that apparently they actually had spanned the treacherous waters of Davis strait and had reached the Greenland coast. The last definite word from the plane had indicated they were flying over the straits and it had heretofore been assumed that they fell in the water before sighting Greenland.

National Marks Seen

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 23. (AP)—Fading hopes for safety of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, American airmen missing since Sunday somewhere beyond Labrador, were revived swiftly today with receipt of an authoritative report from Greenland indicating the two men reached Greenland Sunday.

A report by the Greenland administration department from the sheriff of South Greenland and Landsfoged stated the airplane Greater Rockford undoubtedly was seen Sunday morning over the village of Fiskenaesset in South Greenland coming from the northwest.

The machine was seen by many persons and its "national marks" were noted although they were not given in the telegram. Since inhabitants of the town, however, had been instructed to be on lookout for the fliers, this was understood to mean the American markings.

Text of Message

The sheriff's message read:

"Machine reported absolutely without doubt from Fiskenaesset. The whole place, as well as Liechtenfels, observed machine Sunday morning at 10:30 coming from the north-northwest and descending over Fiskenaesset.

"The crew were clearly seen looking over the area through binoculars. Afterwards the machine turned eastwards. The Greenlanders' statement is absolutely trustworthy and they described the sound of the engine and give the national marks of the machine."

SCHOONER BOWDOIN, OFF BIG BAY, LABRADOR, EN ROUTE TO HOPEDALE, Aug. 23. (By Radio to the Associated Press)—All members of the Rawson-Field Museum expedition were slated today in learning of reports that the greater Rockford monoplane was reported seen near Fiskenaesset, and Liechtenfels Sunday morning. This is an area consisting of fjords and hundreds of small islands, many of which are substations of the Greenland Royal Trading company.

I am now confident Hassell and Cramer will be saved by the Eskimo fishermen and caribou hunters who are scattered along that coast.

The Danes of that region will care well for them if they are found, and they entertained us royally, and are a most hospitable people.

As yet we have heard no signals from the Greater Rockford but will continue to maintain a sharp lookout.

Continued radio transmission with the Associated Press has been maintained by Commander MacMillan through his station WNP and station 9-AFA, operated at Calumet, Ill., by Ralph Brooks, since the fliers were last heard from.

Allreds Carry Fight to Electra

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 23.—Ben Allred, district attorney, and his brother, James V. Allred, carried their fight in the interest of the candidacy of the former for judge of the 78th district court into Electra tonight with claims of concerted effort on the part of Wichita Falls lawyers to "whisper" Judge W. W. Cook to victory in Saturday's election.

James V. Allred made a short talk, leaving it up to his brother to continue their attacks on various attorneys whom they claimed are spreading the word of an "Allred combination" throughout the county. Little was said of Judge Cook.

They predicted victory for Ben Allred. About 200 persons heard the talks which were made on a vacant lot in the business district.

COYOTES KILL FOWLS

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 24.—Dozens of turkeys are being killed every day by coyotes, according to complaints coming to Quanah from farmers, especially in the western part of the county. The animals often work in daytime, and persons with large flocks of turkeys are having to hire boys to herd and watch them.

New Home Planned

A permit for the construction of a new home for J. W. Liss, 812 Flood street, was issued Thursday at the office of W. E. McBroom, city clerk. The permit was taken out by L. G. Chiles for $2,500 and calls for the completion of the work in 90 days.

Swim Meet Today

The Camp Fire girls of Wichita Falls did not hold the scheduled Thursday evening swimming meet because of rain. It is now planned to hold the meet at the Westmoreland pool Friday night.

Program Postponed

The vaudeville program which was to have been given in Bellevue park Thursday night was rained out. The program probably will be given at a later date.

Today { At the Theaters

STRAND: "The Lights of New York," the world's first all talking motion picture. Two vitaphone shorts. Pathe news.

MAJESTIC: Last times of Milton Sills in "The Hawk's Nest." Paramount news. Inkwell Imp cartoon. Comedy.

MISSION: Eck Robertson, the cowboy violinist. On the screen: "The Leopard Lady." Comedy.

GARDEN: "The Flying Cowboy." New serial.

GEM: "Red Gold." Serial. Comedy.

Eugene Pallette is seen as one of two country boys in "The Lights of New York." Cullen Landis is the other country boy. This may not be such startling news, but it is to the writer, for Gene played extra parts before the war, mostly parts calling for a pugilist or a gangster. Then during the early part of the war he was a member of the same aero squadron with the writer and some screen artists of today including Howard Hawkes, the director. Since the war, I had never heard Pallette's name until "The Lights of New York" came along.

Now we have little Gene (he weighs 250) getting a big chance in the first all talking motion picture in history. As he is a finished actor of the legitimate stage, it is probable that he will be heard of frequently in the talking movies.

Friday is the first day of this new kind of amusement. And it is new. A new invention in any field of business would create no more talk and comment that the first all talking motion picture. It is like the first phonograph, electric light, automobile, airplane, radio, telephone, typewriter or any similar necessity of the present day.

So far overshadowing all other amusement that this town has seen for years that it cannot be measured, "The Lights of New York" at the Strand theater should bring crowds which are NOT critical. The audiences must remember they had to LEARN to walk, and that their first job of walking was not perfect.

There are some other good entertainment in town. Friday is the last day of a vaudeville act, Eck Robertson, the cowboy violinist, and Eck Jr., who does "plunk, plunk" on his banjo. It's at the Mission.

Monday night is something to anticipate. It is China night at the Olympic theater. Every woman attending the show Monday night will receive free, the first piece of a 50-piece china set. A new piece will be given away free each china night until the entire 50 pieces have been given away. It is something for nothing and that is what makes it so doggoned interesting.

Albania's New King Is Man of Stern Qualities in Contrast to Last Ruler

LONDON, Aug. 23. (US)—Ahmed Bey Zogu, who will become King Scanderberg III of Albania on Saturday, is far from a puppet or comic opera princeling, but a man of forceful, independent personality devoted to the interests of his country and capable of furthering them, according to the prevailing view here tonight.

As he and his regime have the support of Italy and Premier Mussolini in this new venture of Albania's into the monarchial realm, it is unlikely that they will meet the ludicrous fate of the previous royal ruler, the German prince, William of Wied.

Prince William took the throne in March, 1924, and four months later, when war broke out, he fled with all his retinue while the country dissolved in anarchy.

Since the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, it frequently has been reported that the throne of Albania has been offered to various European princes. All rejected it on the ground that its seat is stuffed with thorns. But Ahmed Bey Zogu is not fearful.

Although Albania abandons its Republican form of government, actually it will be a matter merely of Ahmed changing his name. He already is Ahmed Bey Zogu, president of the Republic of Albania, with the same amount of authority and power as that of the president of the United States. He will have no more as king.

In changing his name on Saturday, Ahmed takes the name of the national hero who revolted against the Turks in 1461. When the constituent assembly meets at Tirana on Saturday, there first will be a declaration creating the monarchy and kingdom of Albania and then Ahmed Zogu will be proclaimed first new king of the Zogu dynasty.

The new monarch will not be present personally; so the commission will go to Durazzo to request his acceptance of the crown. With the proclamation of the kingdom, the national flag will be changed, a royal crown being placed above the eagle which is the center of the present red flag.

As Ahmed is a Moslem, it is uncertain what form the coronation ceremonies will take, but the historic crown of Scanderberg will be used. American circles in Rome are responsible for the report that Scanderberg's queen will be "a rich American woman who often has visited Tirana."

'All Talking' Movies Present Entirely New Problems for Cinema Folk

Two thousand years ago, Aesop said there is nothing new under the sun.

Friday, Wichita Falls will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing the world's first complete all talking motion picture. It is "The Lights of New York" at the Strand.

This new, eighth wonder of the world is being brought here at the same time it is being revealed to New York.

Calling in new arts and sciences and combining them, the all talking motion picture has made it necessary for the scenario writer of olden days to learn stagecraft and writing or else for the producers to have scenario writers work together with authors and directors of the legitimate stage that the speaking may be properly done.

Synchronization, the thing which made folks marvel when the first movies with sound were presented, is used but is is a minor consideration in the all talker.

Every word uttered has to be properly modulated in order to carry properly into the theater. The sounds of the road must be watched carefully, and every detail of the dramatic art is as vital as it is on the legitimate stage.

Whether the show will be good or bad is immaterial. The exhibition for the first time of an all talking motion picture, one that has none of the "sub titles" with which the fans are familiar, and the realization that a new world of future amusement is opening to the public is paramount to the usual consideration and question of "Is it a good show?"

The play is scheduled to stay here one week.

Bob Long Says Ferguson Letters Are Used by Allred Without Consent

Bob Long, Democratic nominee for representative from district 111, place 1, to the Texas legislature, in an open letter addressed to his friends Thursday declared that use of his name by James V. Allred in connection with the race between Ben P. Allred and W. W. Cook for the judgeship of the 78th district court had been without his consent and a violation of confidence on the part of James V. Allred.

In the course of his remarks in Wichita Falls James V. Allred exhibited copies of letters exchanged between Mr. Long and former Governor James E. Ferguson in which alleged transactions between Mr. Daniel and Mr. Ferguson were disclosed.

It is to the use of these letters that Mr. Long takes exception. His letter follows:

"To My Friends:

"Upon my return from Austin Wednesday, my attention was called to the prominent use of my name in connection with some correspondence concerning some ancient history and the attempt being made by Mr. Allred to connect me with his race.

"I hold no brief for Roy J. Daniel, my former opponent and in my race with him this correspondence would have served a legitimate purpose; however, in Judge Cook's race with Mr. Allred, this correspondence is pure mud and nothing in the correspondence referred to or reflected upon Judge Cook.

"James V. Allred learned of the existence of this correspondence in strictest confidence from me under the express promise that it would not be used for any purpose without my consent. Its use is without my consent and may mislead some to believe I am supporting Mr. Allred.

"I admire the clean, fair and honorable campaign which Judge Cook has conducted. To my mind it proves him fit to be a judge. I only know him slightly but I personally am for him.

"BOB LONG."

HOOVER FEARS FIGHT IN EAST

Smith Speech Makes Dry Question Live Issue

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Aug. 23. (UP)—The Hoover entourage started back to Washington tonight convinced that prohibition has been made a dominant issue of the presidential campaign and certain that the farm relief situation will cause no political upheavals.

After two days of conferences with the farm leaders here and after hearing by radio the acceptance speech of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the advisers and friends of Herbert Hoover believed the Republican nominee was confronted with a new political situation entirely different from the line on which he has been advancing.

Battle in East

Hoover is convinced in his own mind that the farm revolt will not materialize.

The battleground Hoover sees is the East, where Smith has stirred the prohibition issue, and he is going back there to get to work.

Hoover would have avoided the issue if he could, his friends say. His dry stand for the 18th amendment and the enforcement laws taken in his acceptance speech was carefully worded. He had no desire to draw a wet and dry issue between himself and Governor Smith. He would rather have fought out the campaign on his program of building.

Believe Nation Dry

His advisers tried to frame the prohibition phase of the speech so the prohibition question could be eliminated. They think the nation as a whole is fundamentally dry. But they see that Smith's speech demanding virtual repeal of the 18th amendment is the issue which will catch the newspaper headlines and must be accepted as such.

Those who are less informed about the nominee's position than his advisers agreed the prohibition issue could not be subverted now.

Senator Nye told the United Press he felt Smith had made prohibition "the clearest-cut of all the issues." Senator Brookhart, another farm state representative, said Smith's advocacy of modification was "inspired by ignorance and camouflage."

"The issue," said Senator Sackett, Republican, of Kentucky, "now is—the full dinner pail or the foaming beer bucket. Smith has made it so."

In South Plains

Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, is making a trip which will consume several days, in the South Plains area to assist counties in that part of the state in their road programs.
