Addressing a large crowd at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon, John Lee Smith of Throckmorton, delivered the principal address of the Memorial program sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary posts here in memory of the boys who lost their lives in the World War.

Mrs. J. E. Leggitt answered the special invitation accorded by the units to all Gold Star Mothers and the Auxiliary raised between $6 and $7 from the sale of Memorial Day poppies.

Mr. Smith, an exceptional speaker held the audience spellbound during his talk, which in part stated:

"We come today to do homage to the soldiers of all times, of the valliant soldiers who fought with Washington and made this great nation possible and of all soldiers in all times who have contributed to sustaining and maintaining this nation, but specially do we come to do homage and pay tribute to those valliant soldiers who lost their lives in the great World War. I appreciate this splendid audience who join with us in this memorial occasion, but I cannot refrain from saying something about the vacant seats in this building. How well do I recall a similar occasion when

Unique Rain Falls Over County Tuesday

One of the most peculiar rains in the history of this county fell Tuesday evening between 4:30 and 6 o'clock.

West of town a four inch rainfall was reported—but residents said no clouds accompanied the downpour. East of town light showers fell in scattered sections—and in this direction the heaviest clouds accompanied the rain. South of here the rain also fell in spots washing out crops—but in places only half mile distance none or very little rain fell. Wellington received a half inch rain—and the sun shone during the entire time.

Three Arrested For Hold-Up Of Marella Station

Petty Crimes Keep Officers Busy; Five Charged With Drunkenness

Petty crimes this week kept local officers busy as several persons were arrested on charges of drunkenness, one aggrevated assault charge was filed, and several arrests made on "hot" check charges.

Grady Lester, Sam Lester and Ott Lester were arrested by Sheriff Geo. Corry and Paul Hardy and charged with holding up the H. M. Dowdy filling station near Marella and have been released on bond. The arrests followed identification by Mr. Dowdy, according to officers. The men are alleged to have plastered tape over the eyes of Mr. Dowdy and his assistant and to have taken $40 from the station in a holdup of the place Monday, May 21.

A man from near the Lillie community was held on charges of aggrevated assault in which officers reported he threatened his family with a pistol and a .410 shot gun.

Four arrests were made Sunday by Ed Pryor as men charged with drunkenness created disturbances over town. One man was brought from Dodsonville Monday and charged with drunkenness.

L. A. Moore of Wellington was elected vice-president of the Rural Mail Carriers Association of the Panhandle and was also selected as the delegate to the State Convention which meets in Mineral Wells July 28 and 29. Other officers elected were Ed. Z. Gordon of Hedley, president, and R. W. Alewine of Hedley was selected as secretary of the organization.

The meeting was opened with an address of welcome by Deskins Wells, and Ed. Z. Gordon made the response. A male quartet composed of Jack Henderson, Joe Ham, Aaron Edgar and Bob Ham gave two excellent numbers. The principal speech of the morning was made by Ernest Jackson, who declared he had been working 41 years on his speech—it being his initial venture in public speaking. He discussed in a practical manner the benefits to be derived from co-operation between the carriers and clerks and pointed out that each one was a cog in a vast machine which could not function properly unless each part ran smoothly.

Rev. W. C. Hankins, pastor of the First Baptist Church, spoke on the subject of "John, the First Carrier." It was an inspiring and well delivered address. In the afternoon, W. F. Keith, president, spoke on the subject, "What My Association Means to Me." W. O. Cobb gave a very useful and practical discussion of "Rural Carrier Insurance."

Aberdeen Farm House Burns After Keresene Explosion

J. B. Cunningham Family Escapes Uninjured As House Is Destroyed

The explosion of a kerosene tank resulted in the complete destruction of the J. B. Cunningham residence in the Aberdeen community late Thursday evening, but the family escaped without serious injury.

The accident occurred at 7 o'clock as the family sat in the house and the explosion caused the kitchen to burst into a mass of flames. The family fled from the house and the children sustained several minor burns; but serious injuries were averted due to the fact that no one happened to be near the explosion.

Explosion Causes Flames

The accident resulted from one of the small children having placed the gallon kerosene container near a lighted burner on the kitchen stove and the heat caused the kerosene to explode, throwing the entire kitchen into a mass of flames which rapidly spread over the entire house.

Only a few household articles and very few bits of clothing were salvaged from the flames as the family dashed from the house. The Cunningham family recently moved to the Aberdeen community and have been living on the place since their arrival there.

Club Abolishes "Visitors" Day

Acting on the vote of the stockholders, the Rivercrest Country Club announced this week that the regular visitors day had been discontinued and a rule was passed for the minimum assessment of a $5 fee from all persons giving parties not entirely composed of club members.

"The visitors day was abolished on the grounds that the club is a private institution and is maintained for the individual use and pleasure of the members alone," Roy Horn, secretary, said. "The term visitors as used means local persons living in Wellington or considered Wellington people. Out of town guests are always welcome as before.

"No charge will be made for parties provided all members of the group are members of the club and permission has been secured from the house committee, but where guests are not club members then a fee of 10 cents per person will be charged for the entire number in the party, or a minimum of $5.00 per party after permission has been received in a written form from the committee, the secretary will issue authority to the keeper upon the receipt of

Federal Funds On Highway Expected Here July First

Plans And Specifications Now In Hands Of Federal Engineer

Work To Be Push

Contracts For Dirt Work To Be Let After Money Is Received

Federal funds for construction work on the north part of Highway 4 will be available by July 1 in the opinion of C. L. Hasie, resident engineer. In the event the Federal money is issued the contracts will be let as soon afterward as the legal formalities can be gone through.

Plans and specifications on the grading work north of Salt Fork are already completed and are in the hands of F. P. Sexton, senior Federal highway engineer. As soon as the Federal money is received, the Highway Department intends to go ahead with the letting of contracts as soon as possible.

Approximately 85 per cent of the right of way north of the river has been secured, and officials believe that there will be no serious delay in securing the remainder of the right of way. The new projects are expected to furnished work for approximately a hundred men who have finished or will soon finish their work south of Salt Fork and south of Wellington.

With the exception of a small amount of work just east of the town of Wellington practically all of the dirt work south of Salt Fork has been completed. The work of ponding and jetting the road is now in progress. This process of using water to settle the roadbed makes it possible to run the concrete without the long wait that was formerly necessary in the construction of paved roads.

Wheat held its own, but showed no increase over the closing prices. The Wednesday market listed: July, 74 3-8; September, 76 1-8; December, 78 7-8.

County Council Sponsors First Educational Progran For Women And Girls Of This County

Members of the County Council, organized for the benefit of women and girls interested in home demonstration work in Collingsworth County, held their second meeting in the justice court room of the courthouse, Saturday afternoon, May 27.

Following the business meeting County Judge Luther Gribble delivered an interesting talk concerning the county affairs.

The council was organized here May 18, when a representative number of club women and 4-H girls met with Miss Minnie Mae Grubbs, district agent, in the Methodist Church here and formed the council.

Officers Are Named

Mrs. Dee Coleman was elected president; Mrs. Claude Whitfield, vice president; Mrs. W. Y. Burden, secretary; Miss Trula Morrow, song leader.

The object of the council is not the creation and promotion of clubs over the county, leaders said, but is merely to offer educational and interesting programs to the women and girls who are already interested in the work and are trying to maintain their club without the leadership of a home demonstration agent.

"We wish to assure the commissioners court that our council is not a concerted movement for the establishment of an agent at the present time," Mrs. Whitfield said, "but on the other hand, it is a matter of preparedness in order that we may go to work when the time comes. We feel sure that

ORIGIN OF BASEBALL

While baseball as we know it is a sport of comparative recent developement, a game in which a tossed ball was batted with a rude club has been traced back to the 14th century in Europe. The present American game was probably an outgrowth of that of "town ball," played in New England from about 1830, in which the runs were made around posts set in the ground, instead of bases.

The first code of baseball rules was formulated by the Knickerbocker club of New York in 1845, the first match game was played the following year and the first gate-money series of games took place at Hoboken in 1858. The developement of the game was checked by the Civil War, but was revived in 1865. when a convention was held at which representative of 30 clubs were presented.

A Rockford, Ill., team first employed regularly salaried players, but the Cincinnati Red Stockings, organized in 1868, is considered the first professional club. It made a town in 1869, winning 69 games without meeting a single defeat. In 1870 it won 29 straight games being defeated in the 30th by the Atlantics of Brooklyn.

Gamblers had gotten control of the game, a convention was held in Louisville in 1876, at which strict rules to overcome bribery, betting by players and other abuses were adopted, and the National League was formed. There are now more than 20 professional leagues, of which the National and the American, originally the western, (formed by Ban Johnson in 1893) and the two "big leagues."

The most significant event in baseball history was the appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountin Landis as "baseball czar" in 1920.

LIFE LARGE AND SMALL

Some interesting reflections on the size of living things are made by the noted scientist, Julian S. Huxley, in a magazine article. Many of the facts in which he relates are not only interesting, but surprising.

When he speaks of living things, in the broad sense, we must include the vegetables kingdom, so the largest living things are to be found amoung the trees of California. These, incidentally, are also the oldest, with an age of around 5,000 years.

These trees, some weighing nearly 1,000 tons are massive indeed when compared with the largest animal, the whale, whose weight seldom reaches more than 100 tons. Yet a large elephant could maneuver inside a whale's skin.

Most wonderful is what we find among the smalles orders of life. We can see a flea, though with difficulty catch him, yet 80,000 would weigh scarcely an ounce.

Some of the insects which are hardly visiable to the naked eye are fitted out with "compound eyes, a nice nerve system, three pairs of jaws and three pairs of legs. veined wings and striped muscles." Tiny birds weighing only 10 grams, of about as much as 10 large ants fly thousands of miles during their migrations. And ants, by the way are the strongest living things in the proportion to their size.

Man is about half-way in the scale between large and small mammals, and when grown he contains about a hundred million cells. He requires all his brain as well as his strength to cope with the great animals on one another. And then there are the microbes to worry about.

WORLD WAR LEADERS

Reviewing what has happened to the great leaders of the World War, a recent writer notes the fact that among them all Hindenburg alone today occupies a high place in world affairs. Rounding out eight years as president of Germany republic on April 26, he is still active at the age of 86.

Of the other great military leaders Foch Haig Cadorna, Diaz and Grand Duke Nicholas of the Allies are dead, as are also Moltke, Falkenhayn and Hoetzendorf of the Central Powers. All the prominent living generals of the war are in retirement, including our own Pershing.

Amoung the political figures of 1914-1918, only Lloyd George is still active, and he no longer holds an important office. President Wilson, Czar Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph, Premier Asquith, Premier Clemenceau and Chancellor von Bethman Hollweg are dead; Kaiser Wilhelm is in exile.

Thus briefly runs the story to date of those who guide the movements of more than 65 million mobilized fighting men, of whom 10 million died and 20 million were wounded, in a struggle which changed the map of the world.

When Uncle Sam goes into a European conference he should take a two-pants suit.

The human body contains 10 million nerves, and some folks make suggestions and requests which seem to bring them all into action.

Some who ought to be making a garden are satisfied to call a spade a spade and let it go at that.

The housewife bloc should assert itself by demanding to be included in that proposed 30-hour week.

Nations inclined to flout the League of Nations should be warned by what has happened to Japan.

A writer tells of a seamstress who became a teacher, then lost her job and "fell back on the needle." Ouch!

A reformer advocates abolishing the films. But what would certain toothpaste manufacturers do without them?

In the summer of 1853 the first crops of engineers was sent out by the government to explore the route for a Pacific Railroad, many thought the enterprise only visionary.

"Thunder Beast" Breathes Again at World's Fair

Portion of the Sinclair Prehistoric Exhibit at the World's Fair—the first attempts ever to reproduce out of doors the conditions of life as they existed a hundred million years ago.

Called "Thunder Beast" by scientists because the ground trembled under his 40-ton tread, the brawny Brontosaurus will "breathe" and "live again" at the Chicago World's Fair.

How this 70-foot dinosaur and his reptilian kin will appear to visitors to the Sinclair Prehistoric Exhibit is shown in the above picture. The Brontosaurus, largest of dinosaurs, appears to the left in the illustration. In the center, the ferocious Tyrannosaurus Rex, fiercest of dinosaurs, is engaged in a battle with his ancient foe, Triceratops, while a Duck-billed Dinosaur watches the fray from the coolness of a nearby pond. The odd beast in the upper right-hand section of the picture is Stegosaurus who defended himself with the most weird backbone ever known. The Sinclair exhibit will cover nearly an acre of ground. Some idea of the huge size of the dinosaur molels, which will be animated, may be had by comparing them with the people shown in the picture.

P. G. Alen, of Fort Wayne and Hollywood, dinosaur-maker extraordinary to the motion-picture industry, was commissioned by the Sinclair Refining Company to recreate these odd forms of life that roamed the earth millions of years ago while Nature was mellowing and filtering the crude oil from which today-s motor oils are refined.

WELLINGTON

People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

By Jimmie Gillentine

Well Folks, we had another sand storm Sunday. It was a real sand storm, too. Funny thing about these sand storms is that the housewives always complain because they get the furniture, beds, and floors all covered. This happens from seven to twelve times a week here—and still the women complain. Now if it was something unusual, like a rain, it would be easy to understand why they complained, but the frequency of the storms seem to make no difference at all and they always complain the same complaints. But when it comes a good rain, they rarely ever complain when the men and neighbors come walking through the house leaving a trail of mud tracks. All of the men, except Deck Wells, are just the other way. They get used to conditions and only complain when something unusual happens—but Deck complains about the flies all of the time.

One reason you have heard so much about flies around here is because they have absolutely nothing to eat in this printing shop except ink and paper—and when some one ventures in after they have been locked up for a few hours, they are dangerous. It is absolutely revoking to be sleeping away and have a fly crawl around over you, but when a fly sails in like an airplane and actually bites you, that is dangerous.

It is beginning to look like this county is not to have a community garden this year. I did not much think that they would, but I did my best on the project —and I still have another idea. If we cannot have a community garden let's have the next best thing. When garden stuff begins to waste over the county I'll bet there are enough good hearted farmers and people right here in town that would rather donate that waste stuff to charity than to let it ruin By the use of a few cans this stuff could be preserved and given to the unemployed this winter. If any of the women's clubs in Wellington thinks this is worthwhile I will personally donate a dollar on the cans—and furthermore, I will see that the movement gets plenty of publicity, too.

There isn't any group as big hearted and good natured as the farmers. Especially the farmers of Collingsworth County. Last year when we were getting magazines for the prisoners the farmers donated generously. I guess it must be on account of their having such a hard time theirselves that makes them so generous.

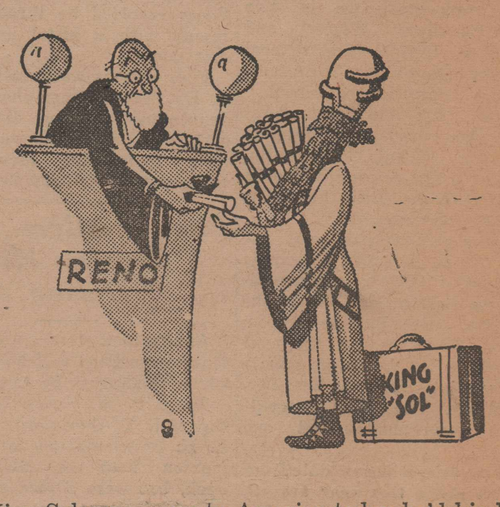

One time Ben Hurst said he wouldn't mind being a dog and when he heard anyone say that they led a dog's life he always envied them because dogs led an easier life than people. He has his reason's too. He may be right at that because a lot of dogs are smarter than a lot of people. I have seen dogs that were a lot smarter than I am, but I would hate to be a dog because they have such a hard time scratching fleas. No matter how smart a dog gets, he still has plenty of trouble scratching fleas—and I don't believe there ever was a dog that sometime in his life didn't have to scratch a flea. If there ever was one, I sure wouldn't want him. I guess a dog that never scratched a flea would be just a parlor dog and parlor dogs are not the kind that you read about saving children's lives and always staying by their masters when everyone else has deserted them.

Judge Holton, Joe Rountree and a whole bunch of fellows went fishing this week end, but I doubt if they had much luck—because the signs just are not right. I put here in the paper when the signs were going to be right and if they want to disregard the signs and waste their time fishing when they are wrong, it's alright with me. My conscious is clear. They may catch a few polly wogs, but they are not going to land any huge number or catch the big fellows until the signs get right. During the month of June the signs show the best fishing to be June 15, 16 and 17. June 18 and 19 also ofers good fishing, but the three dates mentioned first are the best.

A bunch of boys around here have gotten up an indoor baseball team and are playing each evening just south of the Legion hall. These fellows sure have a lot of fun and it reminds you of the good old days when the sand lot teams choose up sides—and the game usually ended in a fight. That is all they need to have a perfect team, just a few fights and an umpire with black eyes.

An astrologer predicts that a United States Senator will lose his mental balance during the present year, but that there will be very little publication, if you ask us. United States Senators lose their mental balance so frequently that when it happens it isn't real news.

Danger lurks everywhere, it seems. Walter Gwyn of Memphis, who happened to have a job and was fearful of being late to work dislocated his shoulder while reaching under his pillow for his watch. He says he will buy an alarm clock.

If King Solomon came to America today he'd hie himself direct to Reno and unload a lot of his Shebas because the country is on a single standard of matrimony. He'd say, "I've got a long way to go. I want perfect performance of my motor—and I want more miles to the gallon," and with the wisdom of Solomon he'd also know to insist upon

re Marriage Duty Cited In Coeds Of Federal Council

A marriage code for ministers, ommending the clergymen guide ple both before and after mar- ge and condemning stunt wed- gs, was issued Sunday night by Federal Council of Churches Christ in America.

Addressed to the clergymen of council's member denomina- ns, which include almost every jor protestant group in the nt y, the statement recommend- that pastors give premartial erviews to couples contemplat- marriage and organize classes clubs for young married per- s.

"Studies in unhappy marriages d the experience of family con- tation institutes reveal that ig- rance and maladjustment of the relationship appear in most ses," the statement declared.

"The pastor can not be certain t those who come to him for arriage understand these vital lationships which God himself s ordained and sanctified.

"If there is inadequate under- nding the pastor may render ew family a service of the est importance through the ction which he gives them. atever is offered, while and thorough-going, should erent in tone and in keeping the seriousness of the occa- "

The statement was drafted by e council's committee on marri- e and the home, of which Prof. oward Chandlier Robbins of New ork is chairman and Dr. L. Fos- Wood, formerly of Colgate- ster Divinity School, is sec- .

"Commercialization of weddings, hether by ministers or civil offi- ials," the statement said, "and de- redation of marriage by stunt eddings, by advertising for them, by using them for advertising rposes, is shocking and antiso- al."

Uncle Sam And Hawaii

Uncle Sam thinks a great deal of the child he adopted, more be- cause of the stragetic value of the Islands in case of war on the Pac- ific than for any other reason. The Islands lie within five days steam- ing distance from the West Coast ports, and afford a base from which the entire North Pacific can be patrolled. The Island of Oahu is the only one fortified, but great stress in laid on its proper pro- tection. Six miles west of Hono- lulu, on this island, is Pearl Har- bor, the United States naval base and one of the finest land-locked harbors in the world. Here are kept a flotilla of submarines, mine layers and sweepers, destroyers and other small craft.

Largest Military Post In U. S.

To guard this base and Honolulu harbor are Forts Kamehameha, Armstrong, DeRussey, Ruger, and Shafter, all coast defense units, while in the interior—twenty-eight miles from Honolulu, is Schofield Barracks, the largest military post of the United States. Here are stationed infantry, cavalry, and field artillery. Anti-aircraft units are maintained at all posts. Scho- field is located in a central posi- tion on Oahu and troops can be rushed to any point on the Island in a very short time. In addition to these hundreds of aircraft are located at Wheele Friedl in the in- terior and Luke Field close to Pearl Harbor. Bear in mind that all of these posts are defending the coast line of an island about 46 miles long and 23 miles wide.

Fort Ruger in Honolulu is per- haps the most unique as its heav- iest guns are mounted on the rim and floor of the extinct volcano crater of Diamond Head, and guards both Honolulu and Pearl Harbor entrances. Civilians are not allowed in the crater except under special dispenstaion. The fort is a veritable Gibraltar and its inner workings are closely guarded. A tunnel provides a pas- sage-way from the quarters back of the mountain to the inside of the crater. This fort is also equipped with several batteries of mobile 75s.

Fort DeRussey and Fort Arm- strong are also in the City of Honolulu and are situated between Fort Ruger and the Honolulu Har- bor entrance, while Fort Kameha- mehas 16 inch guns frown over the entrance to Pearl Harbor. Four forts with batteries of from 6- inch rifles to 1* inch mortars are placed in a distance of twelve miles.

Fort Shafter, headquarters for the Hawaiian department, with its Trippler General Hospital is locat- ed just outside of the northwest city limtis. Thousands of marines, sailors, and soldiers man these fortifications and payday in Ho- nolulu is an event.

Republic Is Ogranized

In 1893 Queen Liliuokalani sought to abolish the constitution which King Hamehameha the Third had been forced to grant the people, but this move met with opposition that resulted in the de- position of the Queen and applica- tion was made for annexation to the United States of America. Such a move was not looked upon with favor by President Cleveland and the Islands were organized as a republic with Sanford B. Dole as president.

During President McKinley's ad- ministration an annexation treaty was concluded and Hawaii became the Territory of Hawaii, an integ- ral part of the United States, with a governor appointed by the presi- dent and a delegate to Congress and a Territorial Legislature elect- ed by the people. This legislature today has several Japanese mem- bers. The treaty granted citizen- ship to all the then permanent residents of the Islands, and with the many native-born Orientals since that time it appears that the Islands are gradually falling into Oriental control, or one might better say Japanese control. This it seems is one reason the Terri- tory of Hawaii will never be granted statehood. Perhaps our Uncle Samuel has a good reason for being prepared for trouble in that section.

Though the entire island chain contains but 4015 square miles, much of which is very mountain- ous, the revenue to the United States from income tax exceeds that of many of the States. The duties collected on Imports are also very large. It's easy to see that, taking all things into con- sideration, the United States made a very profitable deal in the an- nexation.

English Common Language

If it were possible for one to be suddenly transferred to Hawaii and Honolulu, without a know- ledge of where one had landed, it would probably take some time to realize that the American Flag floated over that country. The people are mostly Oriental with a small percentage of those strict- ly white. Japanese, Chinese, Fili- pino, and Doreans move about on the streets in the dress of their native countries. Nearly every language is heard on the streets. English is of course the common language but English as it is spok- en in general in the Islands is a jargon of "Pidgen English," Ha- waiian, Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese. But it is still the good old U. S. A. and most of its citizen are very proud of their citizenship.

The greatest institution, from a humanitarian standpoint, is the Government's work with the lepers on the island of Molokai. At Ka- lalapapa, guarded by a steep preci- pice on three sides and the sea on the other are segregated those affected with leprosy, that highly infectious disease that afflicts Ha- waiians and Orientals in great numbers and occasional whites. only those in the advanced stages of the malady are segregated there. Those slightly afflicted or suspicious cases are segrated un- der guard in Kalihi Receiving Sta- tion on the outskirts of Honolulu, where the cases are studied and treated by both Army and civilian doctors. Hundreds from this in- stitution and a few from Haalapa- pa have been discharged as "ar- rested cases" and may mingle with the populace except that they are compelled to appear at two week intervals for the rest of their lives for examination, as no doctor has ever said that the cure was per- manent. The treatment consists of Chaulmoogra Oil given hypo- dermicly or by mouth.

Spiritual Welfare of Lepers

The spiritual welfare of the lep- er colony has for years been pre- sided over in the main by Catholic Lay Brothers and Sisters who have given their lives to that work. Once entering the settlement they can not leave. Probably the most com- mendable of these workers was Brother Joseph Dutton who died two years ago at the age of 72 aft- er spending almost all of his life in Kaalapapa.

It might be well here to give an idea of life in Kaalapapa, omitting a description of the suffering and the maiming of this disease which is too awful for anyone to worry about unless it is absolutely nec- essary. Here live (and die) some eight hundred souls who are deni- ed the pleasure of outside associa- tion, living as though in another world. Kaalapapa is a small town in which nearly all the common trades are followed, crops culti- vated, and the usual small town social activities indulged in, yet nearly done by lepers. Men and women marry and the usual family life is lived except that the chil- dren born to those poor souls are taken from them at the instant of birth and never are they permitted to touch them.

The children are sent to Hono- lulu where they are raised and educated by the Church and Wel- fare Board, and once each year they are taken to Kaalapapa, where they may see and talk with their parents through two net-wire fences so spaced that it is imposs- ible for them to touch each other. Cruel it seems, yet absolutely nec- essary as the disease is not here- ditary but is spread by contact. Few civilians have ever visited the settlement, and those who have (even doctors I have talked with) regret having gone. It is all too terrible. Gradually, under Gov- ernment supervision, the cases are becoming fewer and it is probable there will come a day when the Islands will no longer have that one great plague to contend with. May God hasten the day.

RITZ THEATRE
Interesting Announcements For Stage And Screen

It is becoming evident that Wel- lington is sharing the best enter- tainment values available, both stage and screen. Manager Bon- ner's untiring efforts to bring to the city the finest attractions av- ailable, is adding popularity to the Ritz, which is unquestionably one of the most modern theatre plants in this part of Texas.

With the "Show of Shows," just closing, presenting a gorgeous spectacle of talented beauty in a majestic setting, coming direct from the Nationally famous Pub- lix circuit, Sanger Amusement Company and other important booking combines, whose recom- mendations cite Miss Lillian Mc- Cardell as the Ziegfield of the South, it certainly begins to dawn on local patrons that the Ritz is keeping step with the most not- ed authorities in providing enter- tainment for Wellington and vi- cinity.

Lukas, Young and Farrell In Social Comedy Triumph

It is estimated that fifty mil- lion Americans have already had their greatest laugh of the season at "Grand Slam," the picture an- nounced for Thursday and Friday of this week. In the cast of this fast moving domestic comedy will see Paul Lukus, Loretta Young, Glenda Farrell and Frank Mc- Hugh. Twenty other prominent players appear in the supporting roles, and according to advance in- formation picture fans have a real entertainment treat on this occa- sion.

Adults 10c Admission Children a Nickel on Saturday

Opening the new serial, "Clan- cy of the Mounted," said to be one of the most thrilling ever produc- ed, the Ritz has announced special reduced prices for Saturday, both matinee and night. Adults will be admitted for 10c and children for a nickel. The feature picture for the occasion is Bob Steele in "Breed of the Border," a Western that will make you stand right up and yell. The bargain day price is for Saturday only, and will doubtless be the means of enter- tainment for several hundred who rarely ever enjoy such privileges.

Clark Gable and Helen Hayes Co-Starred

One of the most noteworthy an- nouncements in screen history is the co-starring of Clark Gable and Helen Hayes. Added to this pop- ularity is the vehicle bringing these two famous stars together. It is none other than "The White Sister," Internationally famous as literary classic and stage tri- umph. It is claimed that the screen's talking version eclipses all other efforts in portraying this immortal epic of romantic splen- dor. "The White Sister" is the at- traction for Sunday & Monday, opening with Saturday night pre- view at 10:30.

"Southern Brevities" Return Engagement

The picture attraction for Thursday and Friday of next week is "The Mystery of the Wax Mu- seum." It is said to be the one picture different to all others. But the most interesting thing about the announcement is the fact that Jimmie Allred and his "Southern Brevities" are to play a return engagement on Friday the 9th. This popular stage show will pres- ent an entirely different unit to that offered on their previous engagement. It will comprise new dances, songs, new costumes—al- together new comedy lines, and in fact a new regime out and out.

BOY SCOUT EVENTS

J. L. Anderson, Scout Executive.

TROOP I

Dewey Ellis, Scoutmaster; S. G. Henry, Assistant; Marvin Somerville, Assistant.

TROOP II

Bennett Bond, Scoutmaster; Charley Lowry, Assistant; Ben Hurst, Assistant.

The people of Wellington have due cause to be proud of their Boy Scout troops this week because these boys went to the camp at Nature Park and won a big prize. The boys got the prize for having come the furtherest number of miles when the mileage of each boy was combined, they had a total of 4,000 miles. The next nearest troop was from Hooker and had only 850 miles. Wellington was represented with 24 boys. Those who went on the camp were Paige Wilson, Morris Hopkins, Allen Rayl, John Powell, Burton Love, Joe Langford, Reese Cochran, Gilbert Langford, Junior Musgow, Wayne Fulmer, L. C. Hill, John Roy Noles, Silas Henry, Jr., Clifford Dickerson, John Sisk, R. L. Sisk, Wayne Gulley, G. W. Poteet, Stanley Parker, G. L. Farrar, Jr., H. C. Hite, John Templeton, Jimmie Cochran.

Three of the boys passed tests before the district court of honor at the camp. Paige Wilson passed the tests and became a star scout. This is the first boy from this county to pass this test in two years and is really an accomplishment as there are only two higher awards to scouts; they are Life Scout and Eagle Scout tests.

L. C. Hill received his first class badge while on the camp and is one of the first class scouts in Wellington.

Silas Henry received his second class badge while on the camp.

Wellington placed tenth in the contests held at the camp and 40 troops were entered in the events. Radio Fans May Bear Broadcast On Grand Canyon

"Furthermore," says Wells, "not many people attempt to describe the Canyon. Those who do, including myself deserve to be shot." Wells' attempt to picture this wonder of the world, however, will be heard during the regular Wednesday night Conoco program on June 7, which will be broadcast by 20 N. B. C. stations.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

State Government Costs Are Reduced By 33 Per Cent

It is known that the costs of the government for the next two years will be substantially lower than for the past two years. The single uncertainty is what may be done with reference to appropriations for support of the public schools. Other major appropriation bills have been finally passed by both houses of the legislature. They represent reductions varying from 25 to 40 per cent. The aggregate reductions will probably be from 30 to 33 per cent.

However, the possibility of upsetting the results of the start toward economy and it is only a start notwithstanding the impressive savings made is by no means remote. There are two very pressing influences that may supply the necessary support to bring about the enactment of laws that will open new sources of revenue, which would eventually neutralize the progress already made. There are the insistent demands of public schools for liberal appropriations and the desire to balance the state budget and wipe out the existing deficit during the next year, or two at most.

Thus far, no general new taxes have been levied. The sales tax, which was the most important means suggested for raising new revenues, has been killed again. This time its death is supposed to be final, but it is known that plans are being made to revive the idea, dress it up in a fresh spring outfit, bring it out as the angel of public school education and the Santa Claus for sadly depleted county and city treasuries, through an ingenius proposal to splint the proceeds between the schools, counties and cities. Basically, this is the familiar ad method of increasing taxes, which has been a prolific cause of the increase in the cost of government in this country for the past ten years.

Those who oppose new taxes will need to be alert during the closing days of the session of the legislature. It is also well to bear in mind that up to the present time the fundamental causes of high taxes have not been removed. Nothing has yet been done that will provide effective barriers against a return of extravagance, once the present emergency is passed. Changes have been proposed, which, if finally adopted, will give some degree of permanence to measures of economy. The fate of these really constructive changes is still uncertain and there seems to be possibility that some of them will fail.

The amendment in the senate proposing to reduce the state ad valorem tax for general revenue purposes from 35 to 15 cents has been engrossed in the senate but apparently lacks the required two thirds to submit it as a constitutional amendment.

The amendment placing an arbitrary limit on total expenditures of the state government has been finally passed by the senate by the necessary two thirds vote. It is yet to go through the house. The judiciary reorganization amendment, making drastic changes in the set up of the courts and promising important economies, which passed the house some time ago, awaits an uncertain fate in the senate.

Amendments proposing reorganization of costly county government are yet to be acted on. This is also true of a bill which proposes county unit system of public school administration. These latter two subjects are vital, because local taxes are much more burdensome than state taxes.

The senate has passed unanimously a bill limiting the amount of compensation which would be allowed county and precinct officials. The reductions will radically affect official income in counties of populations above 25,000. The top compensation allowed any county official in Texas would be $5,000, and this would be possible only in counties above 150,000 population. The following maximums have been set: Counties under 10,000 population, $3,000; between 10,000 and 25,000, $3,250; between 25,000 and 37,500, $3,500; between 37,500 and 75,000, $4,250; between 75,000 and 150,000, $4,750; above 150,000, $5,000. The rates do not apply to all fee officers alike. The maximums are for more important county officers. Lower figures are fixed for justices of the pease, constables, etc.

Cheese Making in Texas Growing

American cheese has become a farm-manufactured product on many Texas farms these days as shown by this exhibit of home-made cheese of the Second Annual Dairy Show at Albany. Brought in by sixty-one home demonstration club women of Stephens, Knox, Baylor, Young and Shackelford counties, they were judged by H. L. Wilson, United States Department of Agriculture (left) and J. L. Thomas, dairy specialist, Texas A. and M. College Extension Service (right). "The poorer quality of cheese this year was better than the best last year," Mr. Wilson told the exhibitors. "You people in Texas have started the manufacture of dairy products as it was begun in New York and Wisconsin years ago, but you are making strides much more rapidly."

A queer rain fell Tuesday afternoon. A cloud came up in a hurry shortly after four o'clock and most of it passed to the east, but Wellington received half of an inch rain and the sun was shining while every drop of it fell. Furthermore the rain came from three different directions during the short space of twenty minutes. And just to add another feature a beautiful rainbow appeared in the east after the storm was over. The rainbow is the emblem of promise, but I don't need to tell the farmers who were washed out about that. They know it was a promise of having to plant over.

Bud Manzer made a speech down at the High School and what a speech. He told the graduates that he hoped every girl would marry a boy who could SUPPORT her and that every boy would marry a girl that he COULD support. I don't know of anybody that could have made a better speech than that except Kinney Godfrey, and Kinney doesn't have Bud's graceful flair of appearing before a crowd. Kinney does his best talking on the sidewalk with two or three as an audience.

You never can tell what people will be interested in. At least twenty people stopped me to ask me about the bugs Tom Crabtree mentioned. When Ralph Ball read it he whooped and hollered, and I really can't see anything funny in it at all. I put the item in just to fill up space. But Ralph phoned down to the office and then made a call to ask what kind of bugs those were. Ralph has got plenty of common sense, (if you don't believe it run a railroad through his lots) but the thing Ralph needs is some book-learning. If he had any book learning he wouldn't have had to phone around and then make a trip down to this office. He could have looked it up like I did. If I had Ralph's horse sense and he had my book knowledge, we would both be a lot better off.

Alphine, Texas has decided that municipal ownership is the only permanent solution of their utility rates. Another town is waking up.

I certainly am getting hungry for some fresh vegetables. It won't be long until a number of things I like are growing good. Cucumbers, radishes and onions are fine and I would certainly appreciate a mess, but if Palo Cummings reads this I need only half a mess of okra. He nearly foundered me last summer. This business of sitting down and writing a little article is a lot easier than taking a hoe and raising a bunch of vegetables. If I ever get control of a big bank I am going to loan a bunch of money to the good people who have been bringing me vegetables during the summer months.

I certainly made a mistake when I hopped on fast-writing Halcomb up at Dumas. I was afraid to pick on one of these editors in a big town, so I singled out Halcomb, and look what he did to me. Is my back sore? Here is what he says:

Some people aint got no appreciation. They shore ain't. Now you take old Deck Wells, the mayor of Wellington (away down in Collingsworth County). Old Deck, he don't appreciate nothing. I give old Deck some mighty good pats on the back before this. I shore have. I have called him good names in the paper and bad ones out of the paper and have tried to keep him off my neck. And what does he do, people, what does he do? Why, he says that I am the sorriest bird he knows of. But, then he says I am interesting —you know like a two-headed calf, a mule-faced woman or some other monstrosity (French word meaning monstrosity). And worse than that he says he don't agree with nothing I ever said, done or thought. My he hit just as hard as he could. He will put me in a bad light with the good people in Collingsworth county. And there are a few good people there, I am satisfied.

Now old Deck is a good boy, but he ain't done quite right by me. I think what the trouble is all about is on account of his wife is sore at him and Deck thinks I am to blame. You see people down at the Press convention a few weeks ago, I told his wife that she was a lucky woman to catch, snare and marry a guy like Deck. I told her that they wuz plenty of gals that would like to take Deck. (You know, take him out and wring his neck). Shore I was a trying to do him some good. Well, now since that time I have learned that you can tell a woman that she is lucky to git the husband that she has got and what does she do but git madder than all git out. That ain't what they want to hear. If you tell 'em that their husbands don't deserve 'em or don't really appreciate 'em then you'll git over. The way to git along with 'em is to tell 'em their husbands is lucky dogs to git 'em. I don't know why it took me so long to learn this but I have shore finally learned it. Now I figger that when Deck's wife got him home she read him a little lecture entitled, "So you got 'em believing that I was lucky to git you, etc., etc., etc. (meaning etc., etc., etc.,) And after she took a few hours of each day to get this idear through his skull, old Deck begin to kinda git sore and figger I was the cause of all his domestic (French word meaning dog's life) troubles and as there wasn't nobody to tell it to he just wrote it in his alleged column. In other words old Deck don't have nobody else to take it out on so he took it out on me.

And then he says that he don't agree with nary a thing I have ever said, done or thought. All right. All right, Deck, you old windblown, pan-faced politician, see if you can agree with this: I am in favor of a government subsidy for all newspaper editors and their folks. They ought to git at least twice the pay of Congressmen. I am in favor of a law to compel merchants to advertise every week. I am in favor of bonuses for newspaper men with girl babies (boy that's gitting close to home). I am in favor of tarring, feathering and shooting before daybreak in the morning the following individuals: T. E. Johnson, Harry Montgomery, John McCarty, and Russell Clark. I am in favor of abolishing all business sessions of press conventions and substituting the pleasure programs. And finally I am in favor of granting the powers of a dictator to all mayors of cities under 100,000 population. Now you old snapping turtle, say you don't never agree with me on nary a thing!

I don't mind being called a pan-faced politician, but it certainly does raise my ire for a blow-hard (Dutch word meaning windbag) like Halcomb to call me windblown. Even though he wrote down a bunch of stuff that he thought I would be forced to agree with, I still don't agree with much he says. Take that business of a subsidized paper. In a town not two hundred miles from Dumas the people had some experience with a subsidized newspaper, and they didn't like it. And that business about editors getting twice the pay of congressmen is all wrong. The way it should be is for congressmen to get half the pay of editors. —Why even I could do a perfect job of sitting up there and saying yes to Mr. Roosevelt—I am not in favor of shooting any of the editors mentioned. They are all good men, and compared to Halcomb they are gentlemen. I won't say why I am positively opposed to making all sessions of the Panhandle Press pleasure sessions, but Halcomb knows why. From now on I don't believe in having any pleasure sessions whatever. And that busines of passing a law to make all merchants advertise every week is the silliest thing I ever heard of. If it passed it would be just like prohibition. Not a single merchant would ever advertise—in fact the politicians would be the only ones who would and they wouldn't pay for it. And Halcomb's idea of a mayor being a dictator is something when there isn't a small town in Texas that has as much legal right as a flea when they start trying to help themselves a little. If Halcomb had mentioned a dictator for utility rates that would have been different.

P. S. I am going to cut this out before I mail Halcomb his paper. I am really thankful to him for helping me write as much of my column this week as he did. He is really a smart fellow, and I wish you could know him, but I wouldn't have him find out I said it for anything.

Texas To Recall Early Battles In 1936 Celebration

Town Of Houston Created By Efforts Of Hardy Pioneers Years Ago

April 21, 1836 was a date of hallowed traditions — associated with deeds of flaming patriotism and sacred memories. A date commemorated reverently in a great Texas Centennial celebration in 1936!

It not only marks the anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto in the war between Texas and Mexico, but it is one of the greatest days of American history because the Battle of San Jacinto brought to a successful conclusion the desperate struggle of Texas for independence from Mexican domination; and as a result a new nation was born—the Republic of Texas.

The Battle of San Jacinto was enacted on a plot of ground that has been set aside by the State as a memorial park—an enduring shrine to Texas heroism. It is situated a short distance from Houston with an extensive waterfront on the Houston Ship Channel—or Buffalo River as it was known in the days of Sam Houston. This spot on the waterway is a place of great natural beauty. The land has a gentle roll, the vegetation is exceptionally brilliant, and the wild flowers here grow in unusual profusion and fairly radiate their brightness. Huge "bearded" live oaks dot the lovely landscape.

Every year, on April 21, the battleground is a patriotic mecca that attracts thousands. Exercises are held in commemoration of the great day, and each year sees no recession of the fervor or enthusiasm with which the programs have always been received.

Much has been written of the interesting human achievement of the Battle of San Jacinto when General Sam Houston and his small band of Texas pioneers wrested victory from the dictator Santa Anna and his trained army of Mexican soldiers, but probably few persons realize the vitally important results of this battle—not merely to Texas but to the entire continent of North America.

Judge Clarence R. Wharton, Houston historian, has impressively written of this angle of the conflict in his book, "The Republic of Texas." In his description of the Battle of San Jacinto he states in part: "As they fronted each other this day they were in a struggle for the boundary line of distinct civilization. Upon the discovery of America the Spaniards by their explorations and bloody conquests had fastened their domination, their language, their laws on all South America. Even after the Spanish cession of Louisiana to France and the relinquishment of Florida to the United States, Spain yet held Mexico and it included Texas and the vast country to the northwest to the 42nd parallel upon the Pacific. In North America England had become the dominant power and here, on this April day, there came the clash of Latin with Saxon sovereignty.

"Sam Houston, Sidney Sherman, Tom Rush, Edward Burleson, John Wharton, and hundreds bearing English names and of English ancestry, were opposed to Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana, Castrillion, Jean Nepomuceno Almonte, Pedro Delagado and others bearing high sounding Spanish names. The ancestors of these combatants had fought each other when the Spanish Armada sailed into the northern seas to work the destruction of England. And now they were to come to grips in the contest for a land larger than the continental empire of Charles V, with the British Isles thrown in. On million square miles of river and forest, mountain and plain were lost to his imperial highness at sundown that day."

The beginnings of the city of Houston and of Texas development are firmly implanted in the colorful event of early Texas history. In the same year of the Battle of San Jacinto the city was founded and the illustrious name of the hero of Texas' struggle for independence was given to the little settlement on the banks of Buffalo River.

Further honors were conferred on the town when the congress of the Republic of Texas, on November 30, 1836, selected Houston as the first permanent seat of government of the new nation; the authorization setting forth that this designation would be effective until the year 1840 when it was planned to move the capitor to a more central location within the confines of the State.

Judge Wharton states: "The Allens (the founders of Houston) had undertaken to provide a capitor building, and on April 16, 1837, they began its construction so as to have it ready for the session of congress which was to and did convene on May 5 following."

From this humble but auspicious beginning Houston has grown to become a commanding city of Texas and of the South. Through the transformation of the bed of Buffalo River to a deepwater channel it has achieved a port rank of international importance.

By their votes the people of Texas have authorized plans for a Texas Centennial celebration in 1936 commemorating the historic events of 1836, of which the Battle of San Jacinto was most notable and in which the picturesque San Jacinto Battlefield and State Park will play a prominent part.

Pound Takes Five Cows In Few Days

Reports from the city impounding officer this week stated that five cows were taken during the first few days after the effort to enforce the ordinance was made.

The cows were purchased from the pound at the rate of one dollar per head and a fee of fifty cents a day was charged for their keeping. In accordance with the ruling, animals will be taken if they are running loose, trespassing or staked so they may cross streets or alleys.

Auto Craftsmen Reproduced For Chicago Fair

CHICAGO, Ill.—The craftsmen of the nation's largest industry, automobile manufacturing, are typified at last in six life-size wood carvings just completed by widely carvings just completed by the widely known Swedish-American sculptor, Carl Halltshammar.

The statues which are in the unique rough finish characteristic of Halltshammar's work, have been placed in the General Motors Building at the Century of Progress International Exposition here. They will be on public view after June 1.

The figures are carved from large blocks of laminated pine with mallet and chisel and painted in life-like colors. The figures are regarded as unusually true to life by those familiar with the automobile factory operations in which they are depicted. Hallsthammar, now a resident of Chicago, has attracted wide attention both in Europe and America during the past few years with his unique type of realistic art.

Behind each of the figures as they are arranged in the impressive Entrance Salon of the General Motors Building is a background scene, painted on a panel, 12 feet high, showing the tasks which these workmen perform and the machinery at which they work. Panels and wooden figures are so arranged that the figure fits naturally into the background. Each of the sets subconsciously convey to the viewer impressions of the beauty, strength, inborn quality, precision workmanship and enormous production which have given the American automobile its world leadership.

The panels were done by Axel Linus of Chicago, internationally known painter of portraits and landscapes.

One of the sets shows a muscular foundary workman pouring molten metal for a casting with a background of gigantic foundary equipment. Another depicts a workman removing a red-hot crankshaft from a huge drop-hammer. Others show inspection of cylinder bores to insure uniformity, grinding of cylinder blocks, removing of fenders from a huge fender press and the building of automobile bodies.

Mr. Hallsthammar who came to the United States from Sweden nine years ago, studied under the famous Swedish artist, Andres Jorn. He won national attention in 1907 with a carving entitled "The Junk Man." He also is widely known for his "Church Collection" which depicts three parsimonious parishioners endeavoring to ignore the collection basket. His work has been exhibited widely in New York, Chicago and other leading American cities.

Mr. Linus, who painted the panels, studied in Stockholm and Paris and came to the United States from Sweden in 1920. He has painted portraits of many noted Americans and is known for some of his murals in Chicago churches.

The statues and panels are part of the gallery of industrial art in the General Motors Exhibit. The building will contain hundreds of other objects of interest, including a complete automobile assembly factory, a little theatre, research laboratory equipment in operation and displays which predict the wide variety of the corporation's products.

Rancher Gives Up Mountain Life To Become Earl Of Portsmouth, England

The past week Wyoming lost a cattled ranchman and England gained an Earl.

After forty-two years domain of the pine covered slopes of the rugged Big Horn Mountains of Northeastern Wyoming, Oliver Henry Wallop, 72, renounced his allegiance to the United States, placed his chaps in mothballs and became a nobleman, the ninety-ninth ranking peer of England.

As rancher Wallop, the new Earl of Portsmouth, for that now is the designation, gained distinction for himself and for his adopted State as a legislator, a breeder of fine polo ponies and live stock, an artisan in ranch construction and operation and, moreover, a gentleman.

The new Earl of Portsmouth came to Wyoming in 1883 in an inauspicious manner. His leave taking in 1925 was just the opposite for the Earl of Portsmouth, who wanted to remain a Wyoming ranchman and a American citizen.

Sacrificing his personal desires, however, Oliver Henry Wallop and his wife closed their ranch house in the midst of a 2,700-acre tract and retraced their steps to England. He had hoped that his eldest son, Gerard Vernon, now the Viscount Lymington, American born, might assume the title, but England decreed against this.

When the Earl of Portsmouth first came to America he settled at Jamestown, N. D., and later in Miles City, Mont., but Wyoming beckoned and he hired out as a ranch hand, becoming adept as a broncho buster and general handy man.

Many were the experiences of the Englishman who later became a Deputy Sheriff in Montana and when a member of the Wyoming Legislature, serving through two terms.

During the World War the Earl of Portsmouth offered his services to his adopted land, but was refused because of his age. Determined, however, he crossed the Atlantic Ocean and for a year in London and in France performed the menial jobs of washing dishes and guarding stables. He returned to his Wyoming ranch home at the close of the war.

Fewer Ships And More Planes Is Plea Of General

WASHINGTON.—Cessation of battleship building until America can overhaul her system of national defense was recommended to the House Military Committee this week by Major Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army Air Corps.

Recalling the Democratic platform pledge for a survey of the Nation's armed forces, Foulois said:

"We must take immediate steps to overhaul our entire system of national defense. No more battleships should be built unless the future policy of the United States is to be to invade foreign countries.

"All future sea engagements in my opinion, normally will be within the cruising range of land-based airships. That statement is based on a study of all naval engagements for the last 300 years.

"Just as it has been necessary in the past to protect our shores against attacks from the sea, it now becomes necessary to protect our homeland from attacks from the air. The present strength of the Army Air Corps is only about half what it should be for the proper protection of the United States."

Foilois testified that the five-year air program approved by Congress in 1926 now is in its seventh year and still incomplete," principally because of the necessity for saving money.

Where that program called for 1,800 serviceable army planes, the corps is 285 planes short, he testified, adding:

"I can't see where safety for the country would exist if promoting economy, we reduced the air forces when they are one-half what they should be."

Foulois reviewed present world conditions and said that in his belief no first-class power would be willing now to agree to a reduction in its military establishment.

Expect Lowered Postage Rates

Speedy action toward restoring 2c charge on local mail, and at the same time handing to President Roosevelt widespread power over postal rates generally, this week was agreed upon at a White House conference.

Preparation of legislation for introduction in the House early this week was begun immediately after House leaders and Postoffice Department officials departed from their conference with the chief executive.

The measure probably will be combined with the proposed bill to continue the 1c per gallon Federal gasoline tax for another year. Indications pointed to quick passage.

Those conferring at the White House included Postmaster General Parley, Joseph C. O'Mahoney, first Assistant Postmaster General; Chairman Mead of the House Postoffice Committee, Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee; Representative Ragon (Dem), Arkansas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and Lewis Douglas, Director of the budget.

Such legislation was recommended in a statement Thursday by Farley. He indicated that if the 2c rate on first-class mail handled only within a city produces more revenue than the present $3 charge it would be adopted generally.

Under the proposal as outlined by Rarley, the president would be empowered until July 1, 1934, to lower or increase postage rates as increasing business or the demands of the postal service make necessary.

The 3c rate went into effect last July. Opponents have contended a large number of business establishments have found other means of handling bills and such things rather than pay the increased postage.

President Urges Mortgage Finance On Small Homes

President Roosevelt added to his emergency program on capitol hill last week the proposal to refinance the mortgages on small homes.

In another special message to congress he asked for legislation to permit readjustment of existing mortgage debts together with a postponement of both interest and principal payments in cases of "extreme need."

He suggested action along the same lines as the refinancing of agricultural mortgages now before congress with a bond issue to meet the needs.

He told congress the plan of settlement "will provide a standard which should put an end to present uncertain and chaotic conditions that create fear and despair among both home owners and investors."

Bills were introduced in senate and house at once to carry out his recommendations. Speedy legislative action was in prospect to lift the burden of debt from the owners of home of $10,000 and less in value.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized he regards the legislation a declaration of national policy requiring that "special safeguards should be thrown around home ownership as a guarantee of social and economic stability."

"The administration is making an effort by this bill," he said, "first and primarily to give immediate relief to the small home owner now in distress and to the mortgagees holding these mortgages, and to provide for the payment of taxes to prevent the loss of homes, and, at the same time, to promote the development of a sound system of permanent home financing."

Gulf Perfects New Lubricated High Speed Gas

New Gasoline Designed To Save Motors On High Speed Automobiles

HOUSTON, Texas, May 30.—Lubriated gasoline, a distinct innovation in motor fuels, was announced recently by the Gulf Refining Company through O. H. Carlisle, District Sales Manager. The new product is the result of extensive experimentation in the Gulf Refining Company laboratories, and is the answer to the problems presented lubrication engineers by the increased demand of the motoring public for high speed motors.

The new product is being marketed under the slogan "That Good Gulf Gas—Now Lubricated" at no extra cost, Mr. Carlisle pointed out. Salient features of the new fuel, according to Mr. Carlisle, are: correct lubrication of the valve seats and top of the valve stem, which tends to prevent drying and pitting of valves; plus lubrication to the upper part of the cylinder walls, thereby reducing wear on cylinders and pistons as well as piston rings.

Through use of lubricated gasoline it is now possible to design motors with smaller clearance between piston and cylinder wall and also to use tighter-fitting oil-rings. In some cases two oil rings are used, all of which reduces crank case motor oil consumption.

Ease of starting with lubricated gasoline is believed assured by the fact that when combustion chambers are flooded with lubricated gasoline in choking the motor valves are less apt to stick, while use of "That Good Gulf Gasoline—Now Lubricated" assures longer life for certain parts of the motor such as valves, guides and piston assembly.

With reference to the lubrication of gasoline, Mr. Carlisle quotes C. B. Veal, Research Manager, Society of Automotive Engineers, as follows:

"We are now facing a rather new type of automotive engine—the tendency for the past few years has been to increase the speed of our engines."

"At first we encountered excessive oil consumption above certain critical speeds, but blow-by and other features of ring and piston functioning have so improved as to prevent excessive oil consumption even at the high speeds now common . . . personal experiences and reports from others lead me to believe that some of these engines may come close to experiencing a deficiency in oil supply at moderate speeds."

"If the oil supply actually failed, I agree that lubricating fuels would not solve the problem, but if some of these new engines are coming close to the danger point in the meagerness of the oil supply at moderate speeds it seems reasonable that a lubricated fuel would offer a sufficient panacea to bring about satisfactory car operation."

In Germany and England lubricated gasoline has been used widely for as long as two years with notable success, Mr. Carlisle pointed out. Also, the lubrication of outboard motors is taken care of through mixing lubricating oil with the gasoline. Many large truck and bus operators have been using lubricated gasoline for some time even though it was necessary for them to purchase a proper oil to mix with their gasoline. Most car manufacturers recommend mixing lubricating oil with gasoline during at least the first 2000 miles of driving the new car."

"I would like to state," Mr. Carlisle said, "that in using "That Good Gulf Gasoline—Now Lubricated,' automobile owners may be assured of correct special upper-cylinder lubrication under normal driving conditions and at the ordinary driving speeds. No extra charge is made for our new product."

Mexico City, built on land that was once a lake bottom, is now constructing its first thirteen-story skyscraper.

The Biggest News Since Fresh Gas...

That Good Gulf Gasoline is now lubricated!

GULF stations from Maine to Mexico are now offering a motor fuel that surpasses everything that has gone before.

This great fuel is new in everything but name. It actually gives greater mileage and cuts repair costs—because it lubricates the upper cylinder and valves.

The new lubricating Good Gulf Gasoline contains an upper cylinder lubricant made by an exclusive Gulf process. This lubricant—correctly blended with that Good Gulf Gasoline, the famous fresh gas—makes today's greatest non-premium fuel for modern motors!

It lubricates the intake valves, prevents sticking, and forms little or no carbon!

If you want to get more and lower cost miles out of a gallon of gas, try the new Good Gulf Gasoline today. It doesn't cost a penny more.

Congressman from Texas

One of the most important phases of work in Congressional committees during recent years is the investigation now being conducted before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Already a number of facts have been brought to light concerning the international banking establishment of J. P. Morgan & Co., which has come to be looked upon by the American people in an almost legendary light because of its great power in the financial world.

The outcome of this investigation, which will embrace not only the Morgan interests but other big banking institutions as well, will no doubt result in beneficial legislation which will enable the federal government to strengthen its control over the money and credit of the nation. It may also lead to further banking reform and to the strengthening of other laws as well. Work along this line has already been started.

An example of the inadequacy of present statutes can be found in the testimony that J. P. Morgan gave to the Senate investigating committee, in which he said that he paid no income taxes during 1931 and 1932, and very little in 1930. However, he did pay income taxes in England.

The American people may well be astonished by such a revelation. The fact that America's symbol of monied power paid no income tax is startling. Mr. Morgan explained the fact by saying that he had to partake of the losses in his company as well as the profits.

Another interesting revelation which has been made is the extensive control which the company has through its twenty partners. These partners hold eighteen directorships in banks and trust companies and 167 directorships in corporations.

These points are only a few examples of the many things which the Senate committee is learning, and as the hearings progress, more interesting developments are likely to result.

It is the intention of the investigators to bring into the open the practices of these private interests which have held such a grip on our economic structure.

If present laws have been violated, punishment should follow immediately. If the laws have been evaded by various methods, then they must be tightened and revised to insure justice to every American citizen.

No matter what the final outcome of the investigation may be, already the little individual has come to realize how insignificant he is in the midst of this enormous centralization of holdings and control.

The balance must be restored, and the irregularities must be corrected.

Ann Harding and Harry Bannister got married six years ago when both were aspirants for movie stardom. Ann has made good, while Harry hasn't been so hot. Now Ann gives Harry a divorce, so that he may purchase his movie career without the handicap of being a famous wife's husband. They both aver that they still love each other and part with a kiss. Now, as Andy would say, "ain't dat sump'n."

Her skirt inflated with air as she fell into Lake Michigan, kept Mrs. Mareleine Brodrick of Evanston, Ill., afloat until she could be rescued.

To obtain "poor relief," Mrs. Esther Coles of Chicago reported her husband had deserted her, but he was found hidden in their home.

Horace Greeley once said he did not believe in ghosts but was afraid of them. Which moves the Louisville Times to observe that a good many politicians feel the same way about prohibition.

Mrs. V. S. Hanft of Columbus Junction, Ia., has won perhaps more baking prizes at state and county fairs than any one in the Middle West.

Bird Purchases Bankrupt Stock

H. M. Bird, manager of Bird Dry Goods Company, this week announced the purchase of the bankrupt stock of the Fair Store at a sheriff's sale and will close out the entire stock in a sale beginning Friday, June 2.

Mr. Bird recently visited in Dallas where he purchased new merchandise to sell in connection with the Fair Store sale.

Economist

Peter Molyneaux, editor of The Texas Weekly, Dallas, was recently named chairman of the Central States Conference on International Trade, at a meeting of leaders of economic affairs in the Middle West, held at Topeka, Kansas. Mr. Molyneaux is one of the South's outstanding authorities on international trade and its relation to the Southwest, having addressed numerous national audiences on the subject recently, including the National Foreign Trade Convention at Pittsburgh, Pa., (April 26.), American Cotton Shippers Association (April 28).

Legion Members-

the world was seething with turmoil and strife and this nation called upon her sons to defend her. A building three times this size could not hold the numbers that gathered there to send our boys over the seas, some 3,000 answered the call and went beyond the seas, left their homes, their businesses, and their hopes and their plans to engage upon a strange and new experience that brought death to their hopes, their dreams and death to many a one of those brave boys. Some of these boys died on the battlefield and many have died since and we have met here today to pay homage to the dust of these boys at rest in a cemetery somewhere and some place.

"I have more respect for the Huns who fought me so courageously than I have for your citizens who are absent here today and by their absence show their indefference to this occasion."

Mr. Smith centered a great portion of his talk around the fact that "Torries," men who sent the soldiers to fight their battle and shared in the victory—but not the risk—were not loyal enough to attend the memorial services.

He also stressed the fact that it is often said that there are no true patriots, but stated that there are plenty of patriots, for instance the boys who gave their lives for their country, and stated that there were people in Wellington that these boys would not die for, but that there are also people in Wellington that they would gladly die for again.

"Don't think that the war ended on November 11, 1918. Go to some government hospitals and look over the inmates therein and see the skeletons of the once fine young men that marched off to war at the government's call, and see them fighting to live. See these boys as they fight this battle on with no hope to live, and with the hope they had when they marched to war, all blasted to see that these poor men that they must be cast out and not paid. Go to some poor hut on a farm and see the boys at battle to feed their wives and children, who are our young Americans; see him get a little check each month for $12 or $18; then see them get notice that these checks must be reduced forty per cent; see him as he goes back and tells his wife, 'Uncle Sam took my life's blood and broke my health.'

"Two little boys and one little girl that have come to live in my home—they are ignorant of all this world of vice and sin, and when I see that flag I listen to the childish trebble of these little children and your children and hear the voices of these comrades who were lost in the storm of war, it is then that I see the glory of that flag and realize my part in this war and say it is not all in vain. So I challenge these young Americans and the old Americans to fight on for these principles that represent so much to humanity.'"

Killed to Silence

Detectives believe that Nick Raspaskuy of Dallas, Greek cafe owner, was taken for a ride and murdered to prevent him from testifying in a million-dollar litigation over the will of the late C. C. Cobb. His bullet-riddled body was found two miles South of Dallas the morning after a mysterious man, impersonating a detective, took him from his hotel room. Recently he had been the central figure in a shooting and bombing at his cafe.
