WHEELER COUNTY MAN SLAIN IN FAMILY FEUD

Robbins And Jones Take Off For Second Attempt To Span North Pacific

AIRMEN LEAVE SEATTLE ON NON-STOP HOP

Refueling Plane Awaits Ocean Ship Over Alaska Field

WEATHER AUSPICIOUS

Fort Worth Fliers Try Again for Tokyo Award

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 2. (AP)—Down the Yukon valley the monoplane Fort Worth, with the first 1,650 mile lap of its Seattle-Tokyo flight completed and the first refueling finished, proceeded tonight towards the Bering sea.

Within a few minutes after they were sighted over the city, their tri-motored refueling plane, piloted by James Mattern and Nick Greener, took the air and the first gasoline transfer was begun. A load of 200 gallons was to be moved at the first contact.

The Tokyo-bound fliers brought the Fort Worth from Seattle, over a course of approximately 1,500 miles, in 12 hours and 50 minutes. The time was nearly an hour longer than Robbins' estimate before leaving the Puget Sound city but headwinds were met on the way down the Tanana valley here from eastern Alaska.

During the refueling over Fairbanks, weather reports to the west and of conditions north of Japan and along the Siberian coast were given the fliers by Mattern and Greener through exchange of messages.

Rain was reported falling at Nome, with a 2,000 foot ceiling. On the south shore of Norton sound and Unalakleet the weather was clear and the ceiling was unlimited and it was believed the fliers would take the southern route to the Bering sea.

For more than a thousand miles of their journey, from Quesnel, B. C., their progress was not reported during the day but they were over forest and mountain country most of the time with only scattered settlements beneath them.

From 9:55 a. m. (Pacific standard time), when seen over Quesnel, they were not sighted until they passed over Harding lake, 45 miles east of here. They were seen over the lake 17 minutes before they reached here.

The annual Elks "kiddies" picnic was held at the lake today and more than 100 children screamed their enthusiasm at seeing the great white plane and being told it was the Fort Worth.

Within 25 minutes after the Fort Worth was sighted over the city, the first refueling contact was made and completed and the tri-motored plane returned to the ground to fill its tanks to their 700-gallon capacity.

The two ships slowed down to a 90-mile an hour speed during the refueling.

The Fort Worth proceeded westward while the tri-motored plane prepared to take off as quickly as possible to follow it and accompany it to the Bering sea.

SHIP TAKES OFF FROM SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Aug. 2. (AP)—Just as a pair of schoolboys off on an afternoon lark, Reg. L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Fort Worth, Texas, fliers, left here at 7:02 a. m. (Pacific standard time) today for Tokyo, 5,100 miles away, on their second attempt to conquer the north Pacific in a single hop.

The white monoplane, Fort Worth, lifted easily from the runway after speeding 3,500 feet. The run down the field started exactly at 7 a. m., because Robbins described that as his lucky hour. The plane carried 345 gallons of gasoline.

At 9:55 a. m. (Pacific standard time) they passed over Quesnel, British Columbia, 375 miles north

Political Murder to Be Aired in Trial Today

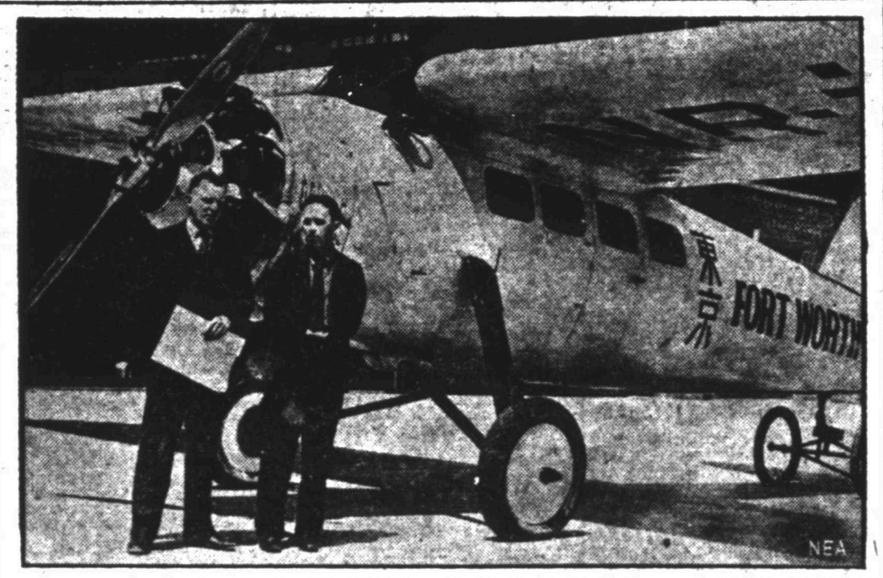

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2. (AP)—The telling of a mystery story laid out as though a master of fiction had arranged its characters and setting will begin here tomorrow at the trial of David H. Clark on a murder charge.

Around Clark, former deputy district attorney, who polled 60,000 votes for municipal judge last June while under a murder charge, will revolve a drama which promises an explanation of how and why Charles Crawford, political boss, and Herbert Spencer, police reporter turned vice crusader, were shot to death in Crawford's Hollywood offices last May 20.

Texans Off Again for Dash to Tokyo and Fame

LINDY LANDS ON SCHEDULE

Flying Couple Greeted at Churchill, Canada

CHURCHILL, Man., Aug. 2. (AP)—Zooming across the storm lashed bay shore country with the precision of an automatic mechanism, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh came down on the blue waters of Churchill harbor late today after a flight of 751.5 miles from Moose Factory, Ontario.

The Lindberghs completed their journey over the treacherous stretch of uninhabited country in the fast time of eight hours and 50 minutes.

A crowd of 2,000 persons, Churchill's entire population, was out to welcome them. Mrs. Lindbergh waved a greeting to the throng, of which scores of persons had gathered on the rocky shores of the port bay before dawn.

Radio Silent

Again the Lindberghs surprised the outside world. Yesterday the silence of their radio provoked apprehension over their safe landing at Moose Factory from Ottawa and it was not until The Associated Press dispatched a plane to Moose Factory that definite word was obtained. Today in the face of weather which the Churchill radio operator described as stormy and suggested might cause them to land south of here they maintained the high average of 85 miles an hour.

The welcoming crowd here was for the most part made up of laborers enjoying a Sunday rest from dock building and townsite preparation. When Colonel Lindbergh

Speed Not Primary in All Planes, Says Expert

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (US)—Although every plane constructed is designed for as much speed as possible the designers must keep in mind the purpose for which different types of planes are built, it was pointed out today by Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

All planes cannot be racers, he said. They have various missions to perform and must be built to do their work even if some of the speed must be sacrificed.

Wichita Woman Burned in Escaping Blazing Home With Baby in Arms

Mother Carries Child Through Window as Flames Destroy Residence on Talunar Lane

Mrs. Willis Cook, 2211 Talunar lane, suffered minor burns while climbing with her baby through burning curtains from a bedroom window Sunday morning at 1:12 o'clock when the house was almost completely destroyed by fire of unknown origin, according to information given the Record News Sunday.

Awakened by smoke and flames to find the house generally ablaze, Mrs. Cook escaped with the child to the home of O. L. Norton, 2213 Talunar lane, where first aid measures sufficed for her injuries. The baby's hair was singed by the flames which surrounded the window through which the two occupants made their exit. Mr. Cook returned Sunday afternoon from a fishing trip at Lake Kemp, it was said.

The house was the property of the Citizens' Lumber company, but no estimate as to the amount of damage sustained could be obtained Sunday. The household furniture and personal belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Cook also were nearly a complete loss, according to the information received.

Fire companies from stations No. 4 and No. 2 responded to the alarm, and reported the fire as extinguished at 2:02 a. m.

BUSY RUSSIA THRILLS SHAW

Author Says 'We'll Sink' If We Don't Look Out

By T. C. WATSON

(Copyr't, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

EYOT, ST. LAWRENCE, England, Aug. 2.—"We've got to look out or we'll be sunk."

That in succinct everyday language is the message George Bernard Shaw has brought back to capitalistic civilization after a 10-day visit to Soviet Russia.

He delivered it in an exclusive interview with Universal Service today while walking up and down in the typical English rose garden that graces his quiet old world retreat, miles away from London.

The famous Irish playwright returned from Moscow early this morning, avoiding London by motoring with Lady Nancy Astor, in whose party he made the trip, from Harwich. Shaw continued:

U. S. Outstepped

"We—that means the United States as well as non-Russian Europe—are fiddling away our time talking nonsense and acting foolishly while the Soviets are outstepping us in setting their house in order. And what a house it will be when it is finished!

"I guarantee that Russia will leave us all standing still and gaping. Stalin and his commissars have the right idea about the future, while our ideas, especially in England, are so old-fashioned and outdated that, unless we alter them, there is no future for us—only a regretted past."

Shaw got out of bed to give Universal Service an interview. He had turned in immediately on arrival, leaving an order that he be not disturbed. Mrs. Shaw was adamant to all appeals but while she was courteously declining to wake her husband, the latter's musical Irish tenor voice came from above:

Speaks Monologue

"Tell him I'll be right down."

A moment later the dramatist, his beard bristling, his eyes twinkling, appeared. He didn't give an interview; it was a monologue he spoke. Bubbling over with enthusiasm for Russia and speaking with the typical Shavian adroitness, he launched directly into a subject which it is obvious has commanded all his attention for the past two weeks. He began:

"Russia is going to be the first country to revive from the general mess because they have no bankers, capitalists, brokers, money grubbers, manipulators, or middlemen of any sort. The Russians are all

Guides Charged for Capitalizing Uniforms

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (US)—Three sightseeing guides, in uniforms similar to local police, were released on their personal bonds by police today, following arrest on charges of "soliciting on a federal reservation," after they had allegedly stopped several automobiles on the east front of the White House and "pestered the occupants" to be hired to show them the city.

The motorists, who were visitors in the city, said they stopped because they thought the guides were police. It is said that a cabinet officer backed their complaint.

Guides are not allowed to solicit business in any public building or on any federal property here.

Material for Cotton Cut Parley To Be Sifted in Session Today

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Coordinated action to overcome the disheartening surplus will be the theme of a southwide cotton gathering here tomorrow and Tuesday. The meeting tomorrow will be for the purpose of completing the material to be presented at the conference Tuesday.

At the unanimous request of the Texas legislature, Gov. Ross S. Sterling called the conference and invited governors of all other cotton states to attend. They could not be here but several promised to send representatives and others said they would follow the program mapped out at the meeting.

Persons taking the lead in preparing for the session said there was no prospect of the price of cotton rising until the surplus had been wiped out and production cut to fit the demand. Action by the state will not solve the problem but efforts must be coordinated on a national or international scale, they asserted.

A bill has been introduced in the Texas legislature to prevent the planting of the same land to cotton two years in succession. Since Texas produces about a third of America's cotton crop, that law would be of some benefit, its supporters stated.

Carl H. Robinson of Austin, senior statistician of the United States department of agriculture, will discuss in the Tuesday conference the estimated effect on cotton acreage in southern states in case of enactment of laws similar to the one proposed here.

W. L. Clayton of Houston, cotton merchant, will lead the discussion Tuesday afternoon on "present and prospective foreign production and possibilities of international cooperation."

WICHITA GIRL ROBBED BY ARMED NEGRO

Young Woman Screams As Intruder Attempts To Attack Her

LEAPS OUT WINDOW

Robber Makes Escape As Pursuers Seek Target With Shotgun

Police spread a network late Sunday night for a negro who robbed and attempted to assault Miss Mary Faubion, 20, at her garage apartment at 1818 Rose street.

The negro fled when Miss Faubion screamed when he grasped her by the throat. W. J. Barrett, resident of the home to the front of Miss Faubion's apartment, pursued the negro with a shotgun but was unable to get within gun range.

The girl had just returned from a trip to Fort Worth, and was preparing for bed, she told police. Emerging from the bathroom in the apartment in negligee, she was confronted by the negro who thrust a pistol before him and demanded her money. She showed him her purse which lay on a dresser. After extracting $10 from the purse, Miss Faubion said, the negro announced his intention to assault her and grabbed her by the throat.

Leaps Through Window

She screamed and the negro leaped through the window by which he had gained entrance to the apartment.

Examination of the place revealed that the negro had removed the screen from the apartment window, which was near the ground, while the young woman was in the bathroom. He apparently had been in the house several minutes before Miss Faubion emerged.

The window screen had been carried some 50 feet down the alley and leaned against a building, indicating that the negro had planned his actions before attempting to execute them.

Negroes in a servant house across the alley, Mr. Barrett and members of his household heard the girl's scream. As Mr. Barrett rushed to the garage the negro flew down the driveway, entered the street and dodged behind an automobile, continuing his flight with the machine protecting him from any shot his pursuer might have fired.

A persistent search by police failed to locate the negro. The robbery occurred shortly after 11 o'clock.

BURGLAR THWARTED FORCING ENTRY

An attempted burglary of a home on Eighth street was frustrated by neighbors late Sunday night when a flashlight was turned on the burglar, believed to be a negro, as he attempted to bore out the lock on the door of the home.

The occupants of the place, Miss Katherine O'Donnell and Mrs. Frances Larson, 1713 Eighth street, were away at the time. Neighbors heard a noise at the home and in investigating flashed the light. The burglar dropped his tools and fled toward the rear, crashing his way through a picket fence.

Motorcycle Officers Herbert Pogue and C. S. Carlisle discovered a brace and bit with which the intruder had attempted to bore through the door of the home in an effort to release a catch-lock.

Havana Street Cars Crippled by Strike

HAVANA, Aug. 2. (AP)—Utilizing "pen pushers" and new employes, the Havana Street Railway company today set rolling again some 80 of its 450 or 500 street cars, idle since motormen and conductors went on strike early Friday.

None of the estimated 2,400 strikers reported for duty, Frank Steinhart Jr., son of an assistant to the company's president said.

Service was again suspended this evening at 6 o'clock, after 11 hours' of part operation, because officials of the street railway company feared minor disturbances during the day might give place to serious trouble tonight.

Edison Is Better But Doctor Fears Wizard Can Never Work Again

By DOROTHY ROE

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 2. (US)—Although Thomas A. Edison was better today, his condition was still critical and doubt was expressed that he would ever be able to work again.

That was the word given out by Dr. Hubert S. Howe, the aged inventor's physician.

Other specialists pointed out that Mr. Edison's "self doctoring" system and his general refusal to follow medical advice had much to do with the present general breakdown in health. Dr. Howe emphasized the inventor's precarious condition when he said:

"It would not take much to roll the balance."

Patient Is Alert

A bulletin issued at 7 o'clock tonight by J. V. Miller, brother-in-law of Mr. Edison, said:

"Mr. Edison is alert and much interested in discussing the details of his diet and treatment. All things considered, he seems definitely improved."

Mr. Miller added that Mr. Edison slept for an hour this afternoon.

After sleeping six hours last night, Mr. Edison was able to sit up this morning and talk, by passing notes, with his wife and son Charles.

Charles Edison wrote to his father:

"You are looking 100 per cent better."

The inventor replied:

"I am feeling 105 per cent better."

Collapse May Occur

Dr. Howe, who flew to the Edison estate, "Glenmont," from New York last night, said:

"Mr. Edison had a collapse yesterday and in his present condition a collapse might recur at any time."

Asked if Mr. Edison is out of danger, Dr. Howe replied:

"Oh, I do not think he will ever be out of danger. He has a great deal of uremic poisoning in his blood. He needs to be guarded carefully, but in his condition he needs as little medicine as possible."

Asked if Mr. Edison were in pain, Dr. Howe declared that the inventor had suffered with stomach ulcers for the past 20 years and that these pained him occasionally. He added:

"For the last three years, Mr. Edison has been on a milk diet, taking two glasses every two hours.

Diet Reduced

"However, for the last six weeks he has been taking only one glass of milk every two hours. I believe that this reduction in milk consumption is largely responsible for Mr. Edison's collapse."

Doctor Howe made it plain that he believed Mr. Edison was undoubtedly under-nourished and that he had prescribed some semi-solids for the patient, such as cereals and tapioca. He went on:

"Mr. Edison's mind is entirely clear. His heart is behaving exceptionally well. He realizes his condition and shows much interest in the chemical analysis of his urine and blood.

"Naturally Mr. Edison wants to get well, but I do not think that he will ever be able to work hard again.

"He is having regular insulin treatments. He must have just enough fluids and just enough insulin."

Edison Is Diabetic

The doctor was asked to explain in terms that the layman can understand, just what is the matter with Edison. He replied:

"For many years Mr. Edison has been diabetic. He also has had chronic Bright's disease, but it has not bothered him much."

The following official bulletin on Mr. Edison's condition was issued at 9 o'clock this morning:

"Mr. Edison had a very good night. He slept soundly for six hours. His condition this morning is satisfactory."

Thousands of telegrams and telephone messages from all over the world were received by Mr. Edison.

Henry Ford telephoned from Detroit, and it was thought possible that the motor magnate would visit his life long friend in a few days.

Barley 25 cents.

With the introduction of reduced grain freight rates in Texas Saturday, wheat prices advanced two cents on the strength of reduced cost of shipment by grain dealers. From Cicero Murray, the governor's representative in numerous oil conferences and investigations, came information that the executive order had been drafted but neither he nor the governor would discuss its contents.

It was rumored persistently, however, that the chief executive would not order out of the state troops to enforce the shutdown unless there

Secretary to Texas G. O. P. Leader Held in Houston 'Ride' Murder

HOUSTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—F. L. Bouknight, secretary to T. P. Lee, wealthy oil operator and prominent Texas republican leader, surrendered to Sheriff T. A. Binford today to face an indictment charging him with murder and as an accomplice in the W. L. Edwards "ride" murder.

Habeas corpus proceedings to obtain Bouknight's release on bond will be filed tomorrow morning in district court.

Bouknight is the second of five men under indictment in connection with the ride murder to be incarcerated.

Joe De George, indicted last week as an accomplice, was still at liberty today.

Frank Adamo and Sam Peretta, both sought for many months by officers, also were still at large.

Adamo was not charged until last Saturday. Peretta was indicted shortly after the slaying occurred.

District Attorney O'Brien Stevens late today refused to comment on what course he would take at the habeas corpus hearing. He said, however, that no trial could be held before September.

YOUTH HELD FOR ACTION OF GRAND JURY

Second Slaying Follows Death of Suspect's Father

GIRL IS INVOLVED

Farmer Accused in Murder Case Shot to Death On Street

WHEELER, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—John Belflower, 37, farmer of the Locust Grove community, seven miles southeast of here, was shot to death at 10:45 o'clock Saturday night.

Melvin "Bus" Walker, 22, is held in the Wheeler county jail without bond, awaiting action of the grand jury which convenes here Monday.

At the time of his death Belflower was under $10,000 bond, charged with the slaying on March 4 of S. E. Walker, father of Melvin.

Girl Involved

The killing is said to be the outgrowth of a family feud that started several months ago over a quarrel about whether young Walker should keep company with Belflower's 15-year-old daughter.

Young Walker met Belflower on the south side of the city square and started shooting, when the two men were but a few feet apart, according to witnesses. The first shot struck Belflower below the breast bone.

Belflower stumped to the sidewalk. Walker lifted him to a sitting posture and fired three times more, all three shots taking effect in or near the heart, officers say.

Walker was still snapping the trigger of his five-shot .38 caliber pistol when Deputy Sheriff W. O. Dewease arrested him, witnesses declared.

Bystander Hurt

The first bullet fired passed through Belflower's body and struck Glem Nelson of Eldorado, Okla., in the leg. He was not seriously injured.

The elder Walker was slain on March 4 when he and Belflower had an argument on main street at Shamrock.

Belflower is said to have taken a gun from his car and shot when Walker made a threatening move. The wounded man died almost instantly.

The grand jury was to investigate the killing of the elder Walker Aug. 6.

ROSWELL OFFICER SLAIN IN STRUGGLE

ROSWELL, N. M., Aug. 2. (AP)—William Welch, 36, today shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Rufe Dunnahoo of Chavez county, as two other officers sought to wrest a pistol from the man.

The shooting occurred at Welch's farm home, 25 miles south of here, as the officers were searching his house for stolen foods. As they toured the house, Welch chatted and helped them in their search. Dunnahoo entered a bedroom and found two automobile license plates belonging to an automobile which had been rifled two weeks ago.

At this discovery, Welch wheeled, drew the weapon and fired. Sheriff John Peck of Roswell, grappled with the man. He freed himself and fired at Peck but the bullet went wild. Deputy Dwight Herbit of Dexter, who had been outside the house, ran inside and Welch fired three shots at him, all wild.

Welch fled and locked himself in a barn, later surrendering. He was brought to the county jail here.

Welch is married and the father of four children.

PUBLISHER SLAIN AT WOODVILLE

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—George K. Gibbs, about 55, publisher of the East Texas Optimist, was shot to death in his printing plant at Woodville, Tyler county, this afternoon. J. B. Glover, about 30, a deputy sheriff, went to the home of the sheriff, W. A. Ferguson, to surrender in connection with the shooting but Ferguson was out of town.

The shooting was the outgrowth of a fight between two sons of Gibbs and two other boys on a street. One of the Gibbs boys, witnesses said, fired a pistol from the printing office at the boys and then went home and got his father.

When Glover arrived at the printing office Gibbs was inside. Glover fired three times as he walked into the office to place Gibbs under ar-

OIL DEBATE AT CRUCIAL STAGE

Legislators Have 12 Days To Pass Measure

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Oil legislation likely will enter its crucial stage during the coming week. Having been considerably studied by committees, the oil bills were expected to reach a test vote within the next two or three days.

Only nine working days remain of the 30-day special legislative session called by Gov. Ross S. Sterling to strengthen the state's conservation laws. Most of the time so far had been spent in investigating the petroleum industry.

More Debate

The house was sitting as a committee of the whole to consider the governo's oil program. After the committee acts, there will be more debate before the proposals are finally voted on but the action of the committee will be regarded as a test.

The senate state affairs committee already has voted a favorable report on the administration bill to create an appointive conservation commission to take over the oil and gas duties of the railroad commission, an elective body. That committee hoped to vote tomorrow on the administration proposal to increase the powers of the regulatory commission and expedite court procedure in oil suits.

Substitute Offered

Some of the legislators thought the governor's bills went too far and others believed they were not strict enough. Representative McGregor of Austin offered a substitute bill which he claimed would regulate only physical waste in the oil industry. He stated the administration-sanctioned Wagstaff bill dealt with economic waste even though that might not have been the intention of its author.

Senator Small of Wellington has offered a proposal which would give the commission power to prevent production above market demand. Supporters of that bill claimed the administration proposal, in trying to regulate physical waste only, would not give the industry the relief it needed.

Legislators agreed the governor's plan of increasing the powers of the regulatory body had better chances of success than the proposal to create a new commission. Many believed the conservation bill would pass by the two-thirds vote necessary to put it into immediate effect.

Oil was not the only problem engaging the lawmakers. Conservation of soil likewise was yet to be considered and impeachment charges had been brought by three representatives against J. B. Price of Bastrop, 66-year-old district judge. The next nine working days promise to be busy ones.

Governor Sterling has indicated he would not hold the legislature in session after Aug. 12 but it could stay of its own volition to investigate impeachment charges.

Murray Delays Shutdown Call

was a concerted effort of producers to disobey.

The order was reported to provide for a civil police body to see that its provisions were fulfilled.

Governor Murray gave notice of his intention to issue the order more than a week ago when he declared a shutdown would follow failure of crude oil purchases to increase the price at the wells to at least $1 per barrel.

Oil now brings prices ranging from 50 cents a barrel downward, with most purchasers paying a top price of 42 cents for Oklahoma crude.

Conservation of state resources was reported as the reason to be given by Murray for the order. This was indicated by him Saturday night in a statement in which he denounced major companies for continuing to produce large quantities of oil while maintaining the low prices.

Only present prorated fields, numbering 27 and with an allowable flow under proration of about 350,000 barrels daily will be affected by the order. "Stripper" well districts, comprising thousands of small wells with a total production of about 150,000 barrels daily, will be permitted to continue full operation on the contention that a shut down would permit water encroachment and ruin the wells.

In the Oklahoma City field, the production today under the August allowable was expected to exceed 30,000 barrels, although a number of companies joining recently in a voluntary shutdown kept their wells closed.

Some of these companies, notably Phillips Petroleum and Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, operated some of their offset wells, but kept closed wells in large leaseholds not drained by open wells of companies fighting the shutdown order.

Indications tonight were that most companies opposing the shutdown would keep their wells flowing despite an executive order from the governor, contest the right of a civil guard to close them down, and in event the national guard is assembled by Murray, take the fight into the courts.

It was reported currently that these operators would pay no attention to the order and force the calling of the guard to test the power of the governor.

Showers Break Heat Wave in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 2. (AP)—Rain over a large part of Oklahoma particularly the northwestern regions that missed rains of last week, served today to break the heat wave.

The showers brought sharply reduced temperatures, the mercury hovering in the low seventies at Oklahoma City, Enid, Cherokee and Woodward. Tulsa had rain as did Bartlesville and Alva.

TEXANS OFF ON TOKYO FLIGHT

Robbins and Jones Depart From Seattle

of here. They turned northwest, following their charted course.

The weather over the great circle route to Tokyo was favorable.

Meet Fuel Plane

Robbins and Jones expected to reach Fairbanks by 6 or 7 p. m. (Pacific standard time) tonight. There they will meet a refueling plane, refuel and fly westward with it to the Bering sea, a flight of five or six hours. They will again refuel there and then head down the Siberian coast for Tokyo, which they hoped to reach as early as midnight Monday, 40 hours after they left the field here.

The weather, after they reach Alaska, will decide which of three routes they will take over the Bering sea. They may go as far north as Telle., 40 miles north of Nome and thence across the Bering sea, head over the Arctic waters at Nome or from Unalaklett. The latter is the shortest way across and would cut about 200 miles from the route.

Ship Roars Away

Taken to the extreme north edge of the field, the plane roared down the runway in the opposite direction from their flight. Robbins banked, turned sharply and headed the plane northward over the city to disappear in the haze to the north. Several hundred persons were at the field when Robbins and Jones arrived at 6:30 a. m. They ordered the ship from the hangar immediately and the motor was warmed for 20 minutes.

Both had slept well and eaten a hearty breakfast. They went to bed last night believing the weather would be so bad today they would not start. Awakened at 6 a. m. they cheered at word of clearing conditions over the route and hurried through breakfast.

Weather Delays

The fliers had planned to hop yesterday but waited a day because of a last minute weather report from Alaska. Rain and overcast skies cut the ceiling and visibility at Nome and Fairbanks to virtually nothing. The weather was blamed on a sudden storm which swept the area.

Storms over Nome and Fairbanks would make contacts with the refueling plane, with pilots James Mattern and Nick Greener, virtually impossible.

Plans are for the planes to refuel over Fairbanks and fly together to the Bering sea, with the Fort Worth's tanks to be filled there to capacity—500 gallons—for the remaining 2,500 miles to Tokyo.

Bumpy weather and a motor too light to carry more than 300 gallons of gas forced the fliers to land at Solomon beach last month after 27 hours in the air from Seattle and after several successful refuelings had been completed.

The men are competing for a prize of $25,000 posted by Asahi Shimbun, Japanese newspaper, for the first non-stop flight between Japan and the United States.

Robbins and Jones will alternate at the controls, although Jones' specialty is navigating. During good weather the flier in the rear compartment may get some sleep.

WORLD GIRDERS TAKE OFF AGAIN

MOSCOW, Aug. 2. (AP)—America's second pair of round the world fliers, Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, took off from Chita, Siberia, for Khabarovsk at 5:30 p. m. today, Moscow time (8:30 a. m. C. S. T.), according to a report received by the Tass agency here.

The fliers arrived at Chita at 1 p. m. Moscow time (4 a. m. E. S. T.) after a 1,700-mile non-stop from Omsk. They were just half hour short, at that time, of being five full days out of New York.

From Khabarovsk they hope to fly across the sea Ofokhotsk and the Bearing sea to Nome, Alaska, and from Nome to New York.

BOARDMAN-POLANDO PAY TURKEY TRIBUTE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 2. (AP)—The American fliers, Russell Boardman and John Polando, this morning placed a wreath of red and white flowers, tied with the colors of America and Turkey, at the foot of the monument of the Turkish republic which depicts Mustapha Kemal as military commander and president.

The ceremony took place in the presence of thousands of Turkish spectators and the fliers were surrounded by an honor guard of police and Boy Scouts.

On the wreath was an inscription which read:

"The American aviators, Russell Boardman and John Polando, in token of their admiration for the Turkish republic and its great leader, President Mustapha Kemal."

A moment of silence followed the placing of the wreath and then the crowd applauded enthusiastically.

Lindberghs Land In Churchill, Man.

reached Moose Factory yesterday he won the approval of the community by taking off his shoes and socks and setting about barefooted to refuel his plane.

Boat Aids Mooring

A boat put out from shore to direct Colonel Lindbergh to the mooring place where the pontoon-fitted machine would be sheltered from the treacherous rip-tide which has already carried two planes to destruction while tied up at Churchill. The flier and his wife were smiling and appeared in fine fettle after their flight along the southeast shore of Hudson's bay.

Churchill's 11 women inhabitants, wives of government and railway officials, of professional men and the resident Anglican missionary, took Mrs. Lindbergh into their care after she had aided her husband in seeing that the plane was tied up shipshape. Mrs. Claude Johnson, wife of the divisional engineer, had been named chairman of the ladies' entertainment committee but every member was on hand.

The Hudson's bay harbor here is being prepared for the first test shipment of prairie grain to be sent this fall by the bay route to England.

The construction activity has caused Churchill to become known as the most progressive of the far-North settlements.

Storm Threatens

Soft spoken and smiling, Colonel Lindbergh remarked on the bleak solitude of the country between Mose factory and Churchill but mentioned that the weather had not been as unfavorable as it appeared to observers. For a time, he said, storm clouds hung low and showers pattered down from grey skies, but farther north the weather cleared. When he reach Churchill, the sun was shining from a blue sky.

The colonel expressed surprise at the impressive skyline of the town "North of 58." He marvelled that such a settlement could have risen in the midst of the treeless barrens at the end of a rail line completed only two years. Both Mrs. Lindbergh and her husband desired to be shown through the 2,500,000-bushel elevator.

Assured by the apparent security of the mooring-place and seemingly anxious to tour about Churchill, Colonel Lindbergh indicated he would remain overnight before continuing on to Baker lake, 377 miles north, off the west shore of Hudson bay.

WOMAN MAKES PLEA FOR HERD

Goodnight Relative Recalls Buffalo Slaughter

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Are the days of the hide-hunters to be revived in the slaughter of the famous Goodnight buffalo herd in November?

This question is being asked by Mrs. Annie Dyer Nunn, niece of Mrs. Charles Goodnight, who back in 1878 saved from buffalo hunters the few animals from which the present herd sprang.

"It was Mrs. Goodnight, my Aunt Mary, who revolted at the merciless slaughtering of the buffaloes and urged Colonel Goodnight to protect the small number from which the herd has grown," Mrs. Nunn said. "Instead of creatures fit only to be slaughtered, to Mrs. Goodnight the buffaloes were a part of the history of West Texas and the state's most valuable game. It was she who visioned the untamed buffalo under fence.

Interest Stirred

"The story is rather a strange one. On a June night in 1876 Mrs. Goodnight camped for the first time on the rim of the Palo Duro canyon where her husband a few months earlier had established what later became one of the world's largest and most famous ranches. A heavy mist caused the prairies to be engulfed in a pitchy darkness.

"Soon after darkness fell an amazing sound surged from the canyon depths that terrified Mrs. Goodnight with a strange fear. It was the hoarse rumbling from the throats of thousands of buffaloes within the canyon walls. The damp night air intensified the noise and made it seem nearer than it really was."

During the following two years, Mrs. Goodnight came to know a great deal more about this inhabitant of the Texas plains that had provided food for the Indian tribes and later for army scouts and rangers. It was during these years that hundreds of buffalo hunters came to the Panhandle to slaughter the herds for their hides.

Cruelty Charged

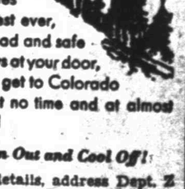

"The revolting cruelty of the hide-hunting years was shocking in the extreme," Mrs. Nunn said. "On every hand, my aunt told me, there was the evidence of the merciless destruction. Hideous waste and rankest heartlessness were stalking hand in hand over the breadths of prairie and the lonely canyons of West Texas.

"By 1878 the millions of buffaloes that had composed the southern herd were a thing of the past. practically all that was left of them was a white sea of bleaching bones. A small herd had fled to the remotest corner of the Palo Duro. Soon these would vanish and with them, the only hope of perpetuating the native Texas bison. It was at this point that Mrs. Goodnight intervened to save the beginning of what is now probably the largest herd in America—a herd that without state intervention will be slaughtered in November.

Slaughter Protested

"It would be much easier for the state to save them than it was for the lone woman. But will it be done?

"Is it possible that sportsmen will be turned loose on the Goodnight ranch to exterminate the herd that was 53 years in the making, and that cost the Goodnights—whose only motive in perpetuating it was that posterity might know the Texas bison—thousands of dollars in time and money? Will the ghost of that era, which constitutes the most ruthless slaughter of wild animals the world has even known stalk amongst us in November?"

2,000 ATTEND UNION SERVICE

Dr. C. M. Simpson Delivers Opening Sermon

More than 2,000 persons participated Sunday night on the west lawn of the Memorial auditorium in the opening union service sponsored by the Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance during the month of August, with Dr. Claude M. Simpson, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, as speaker.

Doctor Simpson delivered a brief but forceful sermon, admonishing his hearers to a more serious study to the acquisition of Christian virtues, and indicated that ministers speaking at the remaining union meetings also will exercise brevity in their discourses.

Choosing his Scriptural lesson from the first chapter of the second letter of Peter, Doctor Simpson selected as his test: "Having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust, beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; to virtue knowledge; to knowledge, temperance; to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness."

"In this letter," the speaker said, "Peter not only itemizes the virtues which are attainable to us, but gives us the assurance that 'if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that he shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"In this admonition to Peter, the great apostle unfolds the possibilities that are in the normal man, and suggests the great resources of Christian living. He translates those powers into the life that we live every day."

In presenting his discussion of the text, Doctor Simpson declared the established authority of Peter to speak on the subject of Christian virtue.

"In the name which this man bares," the speaker said, "is both history and enlightenment. The word 'Simon' meant 'vascillation.' Simon had been found by Jesus to be just that sort of a person. But Christ transformed the character of Simon as the addition of 'Peter' implied: He gave him the strength of a rock. Simon Peter became as a rock in his devotion to Christian principles, and none better is prepared to recommend to us the virtues which we should cultivate in our effort to be Christ-like."

Doctor Simpson was introduced by Judge P. A. Martin, presiding layman. Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, offered the evening prayer.

Music for the union service was prepared under the direction of Mrs. George Thorburn, choral director at the Floral Heights Methodist church. A short concert by Leo M. Underwood's band opened the meeting, and was followed by a congregational song service directed by R. E. Shepherd. A chorus of volunteer singers took the stage to aid in the singsong, with Mrs. Shepherd at the piano. Mrs. Thorburn sang "The Holy City" (Adams) just before the sermon, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO THE SERVANT PROBLEM?

HAVE YOU ever considered that the average wife of today gets along better with one servant than the average woman of the '90's could manage to do with several?

You may jokingly say, "She has to." But the real reason is, she can.

The real answer is the automatic refrigerator, the modern stove, the washing and ironing machine, the electric devices, the countless labor-savers that actually replace servant power.

It is the many improved staples, the convenient packaged goods, the glassed and canned foods, the prepared foods that save so much time and labor.

It is better marketing facilities—convenient stores with a wide variety of merchandise, including fresh, healthful foods, in season and out.

It is modern advertising—crammed with usable news for the woman in the home—making possible rapid progress by developing new markets for goods, and new goods for markets. Advertising, that tells you what to buy, and where to buy it.

Advertising makes it easier to live, more healthful to live, pleasanter to live. Yes, and more economical!

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Stripped for Summer

Begin with the house. Strip the inside of the house down to its bare floors and walls. Keep in service only the most essential decorations. The barer the house is the cooler it is, and the less work it demands. The rugs and curtains and odds and ends that make the place cosy in the winter weather will make the house warm and stuffy in hot weather. Put them away for the time.

If the floors have to be covered, and I suppose they must be because the children's feet would carry in sand and dust and occasion much scrubbing, why not use linoleum? That can be easily wiped. It makes a cool floor and gives the room a coolness that rugs and carpets never offer. If we have to use rugs they can be the rag sort that one can pick up and shake when cleaning time comes around.

Screen the house. If screens are not included in your summer outfit you can buy mosquito netting and tack that on the windows. It is a very good way to screen a summer place. Tacked to the outside of the window frame it keeps out the flies and mosquitoes and still allows the windows to be opened top and bottom.

Opening a window top and bottom is the only way to ventilate a room when ventilation must depend upon windows. Opening the lower half only is useless. The heated air rises to the ceiling and remains there until you open the windows at the top and let it out. Many screens are fitted to the lower half of the windows only and the rooms are hot and stuffy because the windows must stay closed at the top.

I would have no curtains on the house in warm weather. The screens and the shades ought to be enough. Of course if you feel you must have curtains you have them, but if you strip the windows you add that much coolness to the feeling of the room.

A lot of the heat we suffer from is born in our minds. The sight of a carpet or rug on a warm evening will send my temperature soaring while the sight of a chair covered in seagreen chintz makes me feel as as cool as a green frog on a mossy rock. The clink of ice in a glass brings a feeling of refreshing coolness. A shadow across the room gives us an effect of peace and rest. The house ought to suggest coolness.

The children's clothing comes into the same class. Reduce it to the minimum. Choose colors that suggest coolness. The scantier the sleeves or the pants the better. Bare arms and legs, low necks, short socks, are the thing. The appearance of coolness helps tremenduously.

Once I knew an old house in summer time. The floors were bare. The windows were vine-shaded. Shutters closed out the midday sun. The path to the door was brown and cool and moss grew along its edges. If only the city house could have that effect in the heat of summer how much cooler the children would feel. Maybe we could get near to it?

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

There's a love of nature born in children which, if they are allowed any kinship with nature, grows into a sort of riches of which no poverty can rob them in maturity.

There are those in whom nothing can kill this love. Their eyes see the exquisite curve of silver "which mortals call the moon," and the beauty of fleecy clouds over a round golden moon. The light on the horizon, the gleam of water, the streaks of rose and gold where the sun has just set—these are things to which they have an inalienable right.

One man may come to love the little rivers more than any other of nature's trysting grounds. Van Dyke made a plea for them that would almost win converts from other loves. One may love the mountains, finding in them the nearest touching-place to heaven.

To one, the ocean may bring rest; the great rolling waves; the wide expanse of ever moving water; the tide that carries sorrows out and brings back flotsam and jetsam; the ocean spells for him the closest thing to nature in her holy moods.

For myself it is the woods. Every tree is a beautiful thing to me, even if it has been warped and stunted in growth. But a grove of trees, or "the woods" as we call them in Tennessee, are near as my mortal body may get to Heaven. Deep in their aisles, no sound of man's life intrudes. The glaring light of day turns to a subdued green softness and you see the clouds through high lacy branches.

There may be a little stream running somewhere near and you hear its subdued trickling over sandy hollows; there may be squirrels in the trees and their rustle comes to you with the falling nuts; birds seem sleepy at mid-day in the forest and twitter more than they sing, but now and again, if you are one who can hear, an exquisite note rings out.

For birds sing to those who can hear. There are those who would not pause to listen to the song of the nightingale and those who thrill to the meadow lark's note.

There are never two spots of equal beauty; never two moments of equal happiness. Siese what you have and make the most of it; lovely moments do not always return. Even a red bird's song will take the place of the orchestra you may not hear.

And as birds sing for those who hear, beauty is for those who will see. Nature does not make herself utterly barren of fascination. On the wide desert, the horizon is still a promise.

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 2.—A children's week program sponsored by the civic organizations opened in Altus Sunday.

Six major days will comprise the week, according to plans outlined by the joint committee group, with outstanding events planned for each day.

Contests to determine the king and queen of Altus and the prince and princess of the city will comprise events of interest to both children and adults. No child older than 7 years of age is eligible to compete.

A second feature of paramount interest to the children during the week will be a pet parade at 4 p. m. Wednesday. Any child in the county under 12 years of age will be eligible to enter the event either in costume or with a favorite pet. Prizes to be awarded in this event will be announced later.

Of first interest to parents will be special child welfare programs for each day of the week.

The week officially will begin Sunday, when children's week was observed at Sunday schools and churches.

Tuesday, Aug. 4, will be filled with a special child welfare program at the Rotary luncheon, and a similiar program for mothers sponsored by the Mother's Self Culture club and the American Legion auxiliary which will be held at the American Legion hall at 3 p. m.

Now Who'd Mind Turning Turtle?

There was a bit of unexpected realism in the salt water swimming pool aboard the liner Mauretania. A live turtle—even though a baby one—was sucked through the hose-pipe from the ocean and was found swimming in the deck pool by Miss Edith McNutt, a voyager. Here she's shown with the maritime pet.

Suspect's Use of False Names Brings Marlow Death Conviction

Special to The Record News

DUNCAN, Okla., Aug. 2.—Earl Schrimsher, 29, facing sentence of life imprisonment here Monday for murdering Constable J. R. Hill of Marlow, might today be a free man had he given his right name when an East Texas constable questioned him a week after the slaying.

"Paul Martin" were the two words which sealed Schrimsher's fate.

Three coincidents aided officers in solving the Hill murder case, but the strangest of the three was the twist of fate which led to Schrimsher's capture.

Name Recognized

"When I asked him what his name was, he told me 'Paul Martin'", L. D. Hardy, Henderson, Texas, constable, said in recalling the arrest of Schrimsher.

"When he said he was Paul Martin, I said to myself, 'There's a big reward out for this fellow' and I took him along. I didn't have any dope on Schrimsher and wouldn't have picked him up if he had given his right name."

But Paul Martin was different. A member of the notorious Kimes bank bandit gang was at large and officers of three states wanted him badly enough to offer big rewards for his capture.

Found in Camp

Hardy and Deputy Constable R. C. Hallmark had gone to a tourist camp between Joinerville and Turnerville, looking for Ed Davis, wanted on the Marlow murder charge. Duncan authorities were reasonably certain Davis was one of the two men wanted for murdering Hill, but they had no clues as to the identity of his companion.

Hardy and Hallmark did not find Davis, but they found his wife. The next day they telegraphed Duncan they had Paul Martin and Mrs. Davis in custody. On a hunch that "Paul Martin" might be the mystery man in the Marlow killing, officers ordered him held. Later the suspect was identified by two witnesses as one of the three outlaws in Marlow when Hill was slain.

John Cabell Breckenridge of Kentucky, who became vice president of the U. S. in 1857 at the age of 36, was the youngest man ever elected to the position.

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 2.—Approximately 150 children between the ages of one month and 15 years years were examined at the child health conference held at the high school under the direction of Miss Violet Jones, public health nurse, and J. D. McGuire, sanitarian. Local doctors and members of the health committee assisted in the examination.

According to Miss Jones, the clinic was very successful in that a large number of children were examined. As a whole those examined proved to be in good physical condition, although many showed the need of tonsil operations.

A meeting of the local health committee will be held Aug. 10 at which time plans for the further health work will be made. Miss Jones, who is doing health work in six counties plans to be in Hall county six days out of every month.

The art of glassmaking is one of the oldest on earth. According to Pliny, the ancient Phoenicians first discovered how to make it, but according to Egyptologists, the Egyptians made sham jewels of glass at least 5000 or 6000 B. C.

MANGUM, Okla., Aug. 2.—Heavy loss resulted in a farm home fire Saturday when the residence of Nun Burden south of Mangum was destroyed by flames, together with all its contents. The dwelling was one of the finest farm homes in Southwestern Oklahoma, being valued at $6,000. The blaze is thought to have originated in a clothes closet after one of the children in the family had struck a match to find an article in the closet.

The world conference on a means of aiding Germany again demonstrates that sense counts as much as dollars in arriving at a solution.

George Bernard Shaw got a great reception in Russia recently. One reason may be that he has whiskers. Another, that they are red.

An Encouraging Sign

THE OLD Arab saying—"This, too, will pass"—ought to go well, framed, on the walls of business men's offices these days. In the early part of 1930 men were predicting that prosperity would be back in another month, at the longest; now they tend to believe that the depression will never end at all.

One is reminded of all this, somehow, by the news, buried in the financial columns recently, that the Hudson Bay company has passed a dividend.

The Hudson Bay company, unfortunately, is not unique in that respect. It has been a year of passed dividends, all around. The shareholder who gets dividend checks regularly can congratulate himself as being luckier than many of his brethren.

What makes this particular incident interesting is the fact that the Hudson Bay company is one of the oldest companies on earth. It has been in continuous operation since 1670. This depression is not the first it has seen, nor is it the worst; and one is safe in guessing that it will not be the last.

One imagines that the directors of the company are not unduly alarmed by the present depression. Their company was an old, established house before the French lost Canada. It lived through the world-wide panic that followed the bursting of the notorious "Mississippi bubble" over two centuries ago. It survived the turmoil of the Napoleonic wars and their troublesome aftermath. It is older than most of the earth's existing governments.

To some of us the depression looks like a calamity that will never end—a prelude to universal downfall. But to the gentlemen of the Hudson Bay company, probably, it is visible in its proper perspective. In the days since 1670 it has weathered a good many storms. "This, too, will pass."

Short But Dangerous

THE DANGERS of an airplane flight usually are in direct proportion to the length of the flight. Ordinarily a short flight is much safer than a long one. But with balloons, apparently, it isn't that way at all.

The recent balloon race which started from Akron, with a trophy cup and the right to compete in the international balloon race next fall as first prize, illustrates the point.

The winning balloon, a U. S. navy craft piloted by Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, came down at Marilla, N. Y., just 250 miles from the starting point. The race was one of the shortest, from the point of miles traveled, in history.

But it was also one of the most dangerous. Weather conditions were atrocious. Intermittent lightning storms endangered the racers for hours. Few balloonists have lived through more hazardous experiences.

Distance, evidently, has nothing to do with danger where balloons are concerned.

Renters and Landlords

THERE seems to be something about a business depression that brings out foggy thinking. The president of an eastern real estate board, for example, remarked the other day that "it may be true that rents are still greater than many can afford to pay, but this does not alter the fact that the landlord is entitled to a return on his investment."

In the magazine, The Nation, the quotation is neatly reversed so that it reads: "It may be true that the landlord is entitled to a return on his investment, but this does not alter the fact that rents are still greater than many can afford to pay."

It fits as well one way as another; and the country at large will probably agree that the renter deserves a bit more sympathy than the landlord.

Dividends in Health

THE EXTENT to which athletics occupy the time of Americans is revealed by a survey recently conducted by the National Recreation association. This group found that more than 1,500,000 people took part in municipal league athletic activities last year, and upwards of 35,000,000 people watched them.

The only disappointing thing about those figures is the fact that the proportions of spectators to players is still rather high. Watching a football or baseball game is wholesome recreation, of course, but it isn't half as wholesome as actually getting out and playing.

Active participation in athletics pays big dividends in health and in happiness. The various city athletic leagues that make widespread participation possible are rendering the country a real service.

Portrait of Man Talking to Himself

Poor Helen Walsh . . . She was so leary of boats anyhow . . . When ever she went on one of them she always wore a life-preserver . . . The "Follies" dollies, everyone imagines, have a grand time all the time, what with this John and that admirer . . . If they only knew . . . Most of the kids in the shows pick their companions and snub the Good Time Chollys . . . Helen was like that, anyway . . . And, hating boats as she did she went on that ill-fated yacht with her pals to keep Sunday from seeming too long . . . Harry Richman and Hellinger didn't lose their domes, too, which is something to cheer about . . . The craft has good reason to be proud of Mark for doing something worth while . . . It will do a lot to erase our bad name . . . Funny how time heals all things . . . Mark and I used to belittle Richman incessantly . . . Now, here they are sharing the front pages in the thrilling manner with their heroics . . . The Herald Tribune's face is so red! . . . On the Sabbath they perspired freely recalling over 100,000 copies of their book section . . . And bought back as many as possible . . . Because it contained a poem—a lovely piece, too . . . But the graybeards over there decided it might be offensive—that is, one line of it . . . And the hilarious part of it all is that the line that got them into such a lather was written by Shakespeare—in "Hamlet"!

Wonder if it is true that fellers who wear white sox always leave nickel tips . . . Well, if Pitcher Ruffing, of the Yankees, didn't groom it—he ought to urge that infielder on the team to quit spreading it about town . . . Haven't seen any comment in the editorial pages yet about golfing being one of the causes for bad business—and bad business men . . . In another fortnight or so the show season will be on, demmit! . . . That will mean a stiffer routine . . . If only two-thirds of the plays were good! . . . Instead of two-thirds of them guaranteed to be so ordinary . . . If you told people that on stifling July nights in New York when you are motoring only a few miles away up-state you have to wear blankets to keep from freezing they probably wouldn't believe you . . . Or that a chorus girl couldn't get a $50 bill changed in any of the Broadway stores for four days . . . It was finally broken in a speakeasy . . . Perhaps the various news services will get something out of the fact that Mrs. Calvin Coolidge finally bobbed her hair for the first time last week.

Can't understand it . . . No complaints or letters from annoyed readers in over a week! . . . I must be getting terrible . . . Gotta have complaints . . . Usually make good paragraphs if they have a sound argument in them . . . All those letters that poured in from Vallee admirers when I used to twit him so much made delicious food for the wastebasket, but that one from an intelligent gal was grand . . . She pointed out clearly that she was not the type of flapper you hear so much about, nor was she a "moron" who gushed about romantic entertainers . . . She felt, she added, that she was an average person who found Vallee a contagious personality . . . That his song deliveries "got" her—which was a lot more than any other males afforded . . . Most interesting letter, and it gave me a different point of view . . . Crazy about Irving Berlin's ditty, "Be" . . . That "I'm Through With Love" song is lovely, too . . . None of that tosh or lovesick goo in its lyrics . . . What a swelegant bit of literary criticism that was: "The covers of his book are too far apart!"

Funny I never heard of it before . . . I mean that child's grave behind Grant's Tomb . . . That's the sort of typical New Yorker I am . . . They say that the father of the baby donated the location for the monument, but made them promise that the child's resting place would never be moved or disturbed . . . I only learned yesterday, too, that a lot of the ladies have their eyelashes and eyebrows dyed, so's not to be bothered with mascaring them . . . The Stimson-Castle feud down in Washington has a juicy "inside" . . . Joan Crawford is a silly, that's what she is . . . Dieting that way . . . Too strenuously . . . Why, I wonder? . . . She works hard enough in all those flickers to keep in figure . . . Those Rasch beauties in the "Follies" mustn't have any fun during the week-ends, either . . . If they come in with sunburned shoulders or backs they are either fired or fined a stiff penalty . . . Pretty third-rate of Starr Faithfull's stepfather, I think . . . To break his word, that way, after getting all that coin and signing that release . . . Makes no difference whether Mr. Peters was a cad or no . . . He had peddled his silence for a lot of money, but apparently the paper that got his exclusive story paid more . . . It's a treacherous world.

Even the Times was the goat for poor proofreading Tuesday . . . In its book ad section . . . In the one featuring "Fatal Interview," by Edna St. Vincent Millay the head was supposed to be "Immortal Poetry," but some one left out the first "t" . . . Some one ought to slap those responsible for the 25-cent seat situation up at the Lewisohn Stadium Concerts . . . They advertise the two-bit seats heavily, but they "push" the fifty cent ones and the dollar ones first . . . Then if you are lucky—you get the seat you paid for . . . Usually you wind up in a quarter chair, anyway . . . Mary Carroll of the "Follies" is another concrete example that not all the stage sirens are numb . . . The Outlook quotes one of her "Remarkable Remarks" in the current number . . . Mary really has a good mind and reads the better magazines and books, even is she is a blonde . . . So Bloomingdale's store is using the "Sec'y" column pattern for its advertisements? . . . The least they might do is send over a pair of sox or a mink coat . . . I like Helen Rowland's simile about a summer love-affair . . . A summer love affair, she observes, is like a summer cold; it may mean nothing, or it may develop into something that will hang on all season—and one you'll have a hard time getting rid of in the autumn . . . There ought to be a statue in honor of the man who started cigarets . . . What a relief one of them is when the nerves begin doing a Gilda Gray.

Must thank Mr. Walker in the name of the city for helping to clear the way out to where Helen succumbed . . . Her grand little mother and sister needed some comfort . . . When the rain started, the motor bluecoat, whose siren shrieked all the way, endangered his own life in the treacherous gutters . . . Wish I had thought to tell him that Helen's pop was a policeman . . . Funny, too, about that officer . . . Here he was helping us on an errand of mercy—and last year this time Mark ran him down on 5th avenue . . . He had halted Mark and admonished him for passing a red lamp, and then, after waving a finger, he proceeded to putt-putt away . . . But Mark started too soon and nearly ran over him . . . That got him sore and he wrote out a summons . . . I thought, too, that it was very cute on the part of the Trib to treat Richman the way it did . . . After toasting him for his bravery in trying to rescue the girls, it added several clips from its own "morgue" on Richman's former humiliations, including the one about his experience with a snooty golf club, which barred him from playing on its course because he is a Jooish boy . . . So that's conservative and ethical journalism, eh? . . . I'll stick to my brash.

"MARY FAITH"
by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Mary Faith and Kimberly Farrell, have been engaged for some time. Mary Faith, beautiful, young orphan, gives up her position as secretary to Mark Nesbit when Kim sets their wedding date. His attitude changes brusquely when his mother objects. The latter treats Mary Faith coldly. Heartbroken, Mary Faith returns to her office and breaks the news to her co-workers. Mark, taken ill, has Mary Faith driven to his country home, daily, for two weeks. He tells her of his love for her. She hates him saying she will never love anyone as she did Kim. While in a jewelry store with Mark, selecting a Christmas ring for his sister, Mary Faith meets Kim with a girl. Next morning, Kim calls at Mary Faith's boarding house. He assures her of his love and proposes immediate marriage. Mary Faith melts in his arms.

CHAPTER XIII

It seemed to Mary Faith then that she must have known all along that Kim would come back to her like this.

She thought, "If I hadn't known it I couldn't have gone on the way I have."

"I haven't had any vacation this year," Kim said presently, "so the firm probably won't kick if I take a couple of weeks now for a honeymoon. . . . I'll drive around here for you at 10 tomorrow morning and we'll go downtown for the license. "You can have some things packed and be ready to leave then, can't you?"

Mary Faith nodded dreamily, her cheek against his. She wondered if he realized the power he had over her. The power to bend her will to his in small things as well as big important ones. He had had that power the first night she ever saw him across the tables in Mrs. Puckett's dining room when he had made her break an engagement for the next night and make one with him instead.

He had that power now as he sat beside her, planning her life for her. He would always have it.

"I'll telephone Dr. Pomeroy tonight and ask him if he'll meet us in the chapel at 11 o'clock," his voice ran on. "And I'll ask the Maldons to come down. We're supposed to have a couple of witnesses, aren't we?"

Dr. Pomeroy was the rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, where she and Kim had always planned to be married. But who were the Maldons, She never had heard Kim mention them.

"Who are the Maldons, Kim?" she asked.

He thought for a minute or two. "Why, I guess you haven't met them," he said at last. "I haven't known them so very long, myself, but they're pals of mine. Jack works down at our place. He and Claire have been married only two or three months. You'll like Claire, Mary Faith. She's a grand person."

Mary Faith stirred in his arms. "I'd like to ask Jean Bartlett to the wedding. She's my best friend"—she was beginning when he stopped her.

"No. We're not going to have any of your friend Nesbit's office help around," he said firmly. "You're through with all that crowd, so forget them. I'm not going to tell even my mother about the wedding until it's all over. . . . Now, let me tell you where I thought we'd spend our two weeks."

She settled back to listen.

"You remember that aunt of mine who lives down in Garrettsville, Mary Faith?"

"Aunt Ella Goad, you mean?" Mary Faith remembered Aunt Ellen Goad very well. Having once seen Aunt Ella, you could never forget her.

She was a plump and pleasant person with a passion for moving pictures, library books, armchairs, and coffee and cake between meals. Mary Faith had always liked her, and she said so now.

"Well, she's come up to town to stay with my mother over the holidays," said Kim, "and I'm going to ask her to lend us her house down in Garrettsville for the next two weeks."

"Kim! Do you think she'll let us have it?" Mary Faith's eyes shone in the darkness. "Won't it be lovely if she does!—I can cook all the things you like to eat, and get your bath ready in the mornings and put the collar buttons in your shirt!—And you can build the fires and shovel the snow off the walks so that I can get out of the yard when I want to go to market——".

"I'll drive you there in the car so that you won't get your cute feet all cold and wet," Kim said. "I'm going to take doggone good care of my wife."

"All right, you take care of me then."

"I'm going to," Kim said, and he said it gravely as if he were making himself a solemn promise.

Mr. McClintock was playing checkers with Allie Brock when Mary Faith went back into the house an hour later. He sat facing the hall door and he saw her as she started up the stairs.

She turned her head and smiled at him. And he looked at her, blinking a little, as if he were looking at a sunrise.

Before she went to bed that night Mary Faith washed her hair and "did" her nails. Then she packed two suitcases with things for her honeymoon and laid out her clothes for the next day. A hunter's green suit trimmed with gray fox, a little green hat, pale gray stockings and slippers and handbag, a gray chiffon blouse.

It was 1 o'clock in the morning when she went to bed and she was awake again at half past six. It was still dark but the dawn wind blew in through the open windows and there was a line of silver in the sky above the housetops on the other side of River street.

"My wedding day," she thought, taking a long deep breath of it before she put down her windows. "This is the last time I'll ever get up in this room."

But there was no regret, no sadness, in the thought. She looked forward to her life with Kim with nothing but happiness in her heart.

The old house was like a tomb, as it always was on winter mornings, and she shivered as she ran down to the bathroom on the second floor. You had to get up at the crack of dawn if you wanted to take a morning bath at Mrs. Puckett's, for the "paying guests" all got up around seven and fairly fought for the bathroom.

When Mary Faith, fresh as a flower, came out into the hall a half hour later Mrs. Puckett, with her bath towel and a cake of pink soap in her hand, was waiting just outside the door.

"I hope you didn't use all the hot water, Mary Faith," she said. "What you up so early for?"

"I'm going down to the office to get all my things—and I want to get away from it before everybody arrives," Mary Faith answered. "Mrs. Puckett, I'm going to marry Kim Farrell this morning."

Mrs. Puckett stared at her from under her wrinkled eyelids for a long moment. Then she shook her head.

"I haven't a word to say, Mary Faith," she announced. "I haven't a word to say!"

But when Mary Faith was halfway up the stairs she said something else.

"I hope you'll be happy," was what she said. "I hope you'll be happy. I pray for it, Mary Faith . . . I certainly do."

The clock in Mark Nesbit's empty office was striking eight when Mary Faith walked into her own little room that morning.

She had brought her hat box—a round leather affair—with her and into it she packed the contents of her desk drawers. An oil-silk bag in which she kept her soap and nail brush and tooth brush. Two clean face towels that belonged to Mrs. Puckett. A library book. A bank book and a check book. A dime savings bank. A pair of rubbers and a folding umbrella. A pasteboard box filled with old letters and receipts. A box of writing paper and correspondence cards.

She had them all in the hatbox and was closing it when she heard the door open behind her. She swung around. Mark Nesbit was standing in the doorway.

He looked first at the open drawers of the desk and then at the hatbox.

"What do you think you're doing, Mary Faith?" His eyes seemed to take her in, point by point. The green hat, the expensive fur-trimmed suit, the gray slippers with their cut-steel buckles.

"I'm—leaving," said Mary Faith.

He crossed the room and stood beside her, looking down at her and shaking his head.

"I hope you're not leaving because of—last night," he said. "There's no reason why you should leave, Mary Faith. We're still good friends, aren't we? We can go on working together, can't we?"

Mary Faith stood helplessly wondering how to answer him.

"How on earth can I tell him I'm going to be married?" she asked herself.

"I can't," she decided. "Not when he likes me the way he does."

She stooped and picked up the hat-box.

"I've made up my mind to leave," she said awkwardly, and because she had begun to feel as if she were going to cry, her voice was cold. She turned toward the door.

"Well, I'm sorry, Mary Faith. And, look here, if you ever want to come back we're always waiting for you. You'll remember that, won't you?"

She nodded.

"And there's something else—" He put his hand on the knob of the door. "I want you to know that you can always count on me if you need me for anything. You know how I feel about you, Mary Faith, and I'm not going to change."

He held the door open for her and stood watching her as she went across the big empty office and vanished down the stairs.

Pure, But not Pretty

BIRMINGHAM.—With the coming of hot weather and the opening of swimming pools, the old question as to whether it is not immoral for girls to go sans stocking to bathing beaches, in street cars and at clubs, has been answered negatively and affirmatively by Mrs. Willie H. Tarpley, president of the Business and Professional Women's club. "A girl is just as pure and sweet with bare legs as she is wearing stockings—but not just as pretty!" she sums up the situation.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Many readers send in questions signed only with initials, asking that the answers appear in the newspaper. The space is limited and would not accommodate a fraction of such requests. The answers published are ones that may interest many readers, rather than the one who asks the question only. All questions should be accompanied by the writer's name and address and two cents in coin or stamps for reply. Send your question to The Record News Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Were the race horses, Man o' War and Sir Barton, the same age?—R. H.

A.—Sir Barton is a year older than Man o' War, as he was a 3-year-old when he won the Kentucky Derby in 1919. Man o' War was a 3-year-old in 1920 when he won the Preakness. Of course there may not be a whole year's difference in the ages of these two horses as a race horse is arbitrarily called a yearling on the first of January following the date on which he was foaled.

Q.—In playing poker, when a premium is decided upon for "fours," must the hand be called in order to collect the premium?—L. D.

A.—It need not. The holder collects whether the hand is called or not.

Q.—What is profane history?—C. S.

A.—Profane, in this sense, means secular. Profane is the opposite of sacred or religious history.

Q.—How many ocean-going American vessels are equipped with radio?—J. S.

A.—There are about 2,200 American vessels equipped with radios. Vessels traveling 200 miles or more and carrying 50 passengers or more are required to carry radios.

Q.—Is England connected with India by air mail?—M. H. C.

A.—Air mail service between England and Karachi, India, was established in 1929. This service is operated weekly in both directions.

Q.—Is rabbit fur sold by the pelt or by the pound?—H. W. M.

A.—By the pound.

Q.—When did John James Audubon live?—A. K.

A.—He was born near New Orleans in 1780 and died in New York in 1851. Audubon was not a learned scientist or a great artist, but his self-denying enthusiasm for his subject and the uniformly pleasing qualities of his work made him the most distinguished and best loved of pioneer American naturalists.

Q.—Who were the Essenes?—A. H. D.

A.—They were a Jewish brotherhood, originating probably in the Maccabean period, 2nd century B. C., and disappearing after the 2nd century A. D. They were a sort of religious separatists. No record of them is found in the Bible or in rabbinical literature, but they are spoken of by Pliny, Josephus and Philo. They were exponents of ceremonial purity, asceticism, hyper Sabbatarianism, and believers in community goods and interests. Entrance into the order was difficult, probation being required one year for admittance, and two more years for membership. The principal occupations were agriculture and handicraft. Trading was prohibited to members as tending to covetousness. The Essenes are said to have been the first to condemn slavery as violating the brotherhood of man.

Q.—How many independent cities are there in Virginia?—H. S.

A.—There are now 24.

Q.—Must a person be a resident of the state in which he takes a civil service examination?—S. T.

A.—Generally, he must be a resident and must have been actually domiciled in the state for a year previous to the examination. There is a provision, however, for examination of applicants temporarily absent from their legal domiciles. Their applications are then credited to their legal residences.

Q.—Is it correct to pronounce acclimate with the accent on the first syllable?—F. P.

A.—It is not. The accent is on the second syllable.

A.—Was there either a United States gift or loan of money to the Japanese at the time of their last great earthquake?—W. E. H.

A.—The United States treasury neither lent nor gave money. Red Cross aid was given. The Japanese government and the city of Tokyo borrowed largely in the United States after the 1923 earthquake, but through bonds purchased privately. The American government subscribed nothing.

Q.—What is the difference between veneered construction and plywood in furniture?—S. R.

A.—These terms are used interchangeably. They both refer to furniture in which several layers of wood have been glued together, the wood with a beautiful grain being used on the surface. Some of the finest furniture is made in this fashion.

Q.—How much does water expand in freezing?—J. L.

A.—About one-eleventh of its volume.

History of Food

Man has always been essentially an omnivorous creature, eating indiscriminately every kind of food he could secure. In an effort to survive in the face of great obstacles and to assuage the pangs of hunger he has made use of practically every edible substance of the plant and animal kingdoms. In some rare instances he has abstained from certain foods because of a tribal or religious taboo. There is every evidence to believe that primitive man had a difficult struggle to secure enough nourishing food to keep alive. Instinct and experience no doubt were the early man's guides which led him to the most nutritious foods. The most easily obtainable were herbs, berries and soft roots, but these could not supply sufficient food value, so he must have also eaten such things as eggs, snails, shellfish and other small forms of animal life.

It must have taken many thousands of years before man knew enough to follow Jehovah's command to replenish the earth and to have dominion over all living things in the vegetable and animal kingdom. It was a long time before he became cunning enough to kill the larger animals for food; he was more the pursued than the pursuer. And, again, many centuries must have elapsed before the agricultural age and before man learned to domesticate animals. Until these periods, some tribes wandered in search of food and others clung more closely to the shores of rivers and lakes where they could secure fish and other small forms of animal life existing near the water.

There is much difference of opinion about where human life first began, but certain it is that those tribes which survived were the ones which through instinct, experience, or good fortune learned to use enough of the more nourishing foods out of which to build blood and bone and muscle. During these countless centuries it was as necessary as today for the body to be built and sustained through the use of foods containing enough protein, carbohydrates, fats and mineral elements.

Although all over America today we live in the midst of plenty, there are still millions in other parts of the world who are actually starving for want of food containing the essential food elements. Early historical records tell us of the famines in Egypt and elsewhere but at the present time owing to the increase in the world's population many more are slowly or actually dying of starvation in such thickly populated countries as India and China.

Western civilization both in Europe and America has profited by our increased advantages in commerce and transportation so that now we easily ship food from where it is plentiful to where it is scarce. Foods are quickly sent from California to Nova Scotia or from Florida to British Columbia. The markets of every large city in America contain foods grown in nearly every part of the world. Those of us who are living in America during this first part of the 20th century may well be thankful for our opportunities to be able to select an endless variety of the most nourishing and wholesome foods which have ever been raised during the history of mankind.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Otosclerosis

Question—"Navy" asks: "Will you please tell me the cause of otosclerosis? Also explain effect of occupation where there were frequent explosions. How does otosclerosis or deafness effect one's balance?"

Answer—Otosclerosis is most commonly caused by the chronic catarrh of the middle ear, and produces a spongy formation of the bone. Sometimes there is a dry fibrous catarrh, but the causes appear to be similar. The eustachian tube is wide and opened, and the mucous membrane atrophied. This disease seems to be especially prevalent with those who have been near explosions of big guns. Violent concussion, as in target practice, would be a factor in bringing on this type of deafness, and sometimes brings a rupture of the ear drums. The balance is often affected. The Romberg Phenomenon is that when the eyes are shut and the feet together the body sways to the diseased side. The best treatment is correct fasting and dieting. Sometimes massage of the ear with an electro-vibrator or air suction vibrator is helpful.

Acid Fruits

Question—B. J. K. asks: "I do not understand why fresh fruits should not be used at the end of a meal, as for dessert?"

Answer—Ripe fruits may sometimes be used with a protein meal, but a great deal of trouble is caused if used with a meal containing starches. Many a case of acute indigestion has come from using such acid fruits as oranges, grapefruit, peaches, cherries, apricots, etc., after a hearty dinner which contained bread and potatoes. These acid fruits are best used by themselves—an entire meal being made of one kind of fruit. If this does not seem enough for a meal, it is often a good plan to use two or three glasses of milk at the same time, as this combination of fruit and milk makes a very nourishing and palatable meal.

Cotton Looks Good In Cottle County

Special to The Record News.

PADUCAH, Texas, Aug. 2.—Cotton in Cottle county is looking better now than it has at this time of the year in a number of years. Some of the cotton is late due to the rains and sandstorms in the spring, but all of it is looking green and holding up well under the dry hot weather. If it rains within the next two weeks the county will make one of the best crops that it has made since 1926. There is no indication at the present time of any insect infestation.

The old feed is burning up and has already been damaged to a great extent even though it should rain now. The feed crop is principally Milo Maize. The young feed is still looking green but it is not going to last much longer without rain.

There was a good wheat crop here this year, the average yield was about 14 bushels to the acre. More wheat was planted in the county this year than ever before. But due to the low price it failed to help the county much.

Special to The Record News.

HENDERSON, Texas, Aug. 2.—Construction work is well under way on the Texas Pipe Line company's tank farm on the W. W. Wilson 80-acre site, Bennett Smith survey, Rusk county. The Texas company will erect eight tanks of 80,000 barrel capacity each.

According to latest figures available the East Texas field has a steel storage capacity of 68 tanks or 4,304,000 barrels. There are 38 tanks under construction which will increase the storage capacity to 7,044,000 barrels.

SPUDS ROUT DEAN BUT CARLETON WINS BOTH FOR BUFFS

PRESS LOSES DUEL, 3 TO 1

Houston Rallies to Take Second, 6-4

By FRED THOMPSON

Whataman Dean, who has won 21 games for the Houston club, was just another pitcher yesterday, but the Buffs won two games from the Spudders anyway.

Tex Carleton, another ace of Houston's great mound staff, went to Dean's rescue in the second game and won it, 6 to 4, after he had won the first game, 3 to 1, besting Tot Pressnell in a splendid pitching duel. In the second game, Carleton's pitching was backed up by splendid hitting support, the Buffs winning in the last inning after spotting the Spuds to a three-run lead acquired off Dean.

Lester White weakened in the sixth but was not jerked until the seventh, with the tying and winning runs on base. Peel's double and Medwick's single off Vincent cleared the bases and drove in an extra run besides.

Old Dizzy just didn't have his stuff, that's all, and some 3,000 Spudder fans who had turned out to see the great one got a noisy kick out of razzing the big right-hander.

Old George Payne is slated to go agianst the Spuds today. Carl probably will start Cooney. Dean is ready for relief, and we may see more of the boy this series.

Press Throttles Threats

Pressnell throttled the Buffs after threats in the first and second innings of the opening contest. In the first frame, Hock singled, but Press retired the next three. In the second, Medwick led off with a double and took third on Sturdy's infield out, but Press made Carey and Sprinz pop up to Stanton, the latter's pop being a foul.

The Spuds got their first hit in the second, when with two out Fuss singled through second. He took second on a passed ball. Scharein fouled out to third.

A double play polished off the Buffs in the third. With one out, Hock singled to left. Smith lined out to Euller, who doubled Hock off first. In the home half, Euller went to second when Carey, Buff short, overthrew first. Pressnell bunted down the third base line and was safe when Hock threw high to first. Euller took third on the error. Garms fouled out to the catcher. Allday flied to short center. Carleton completed his job of pitching out of the hole when Stanton flied to center.

Buffs Score

In the fourth, Selph singled to left and took second on Peel's sacrifice. Medwick fouled out to the catcher. Sturdy doubled to left, scoring Selph. Carey grounded to Stanton. Buck dropped the ball but recovered and threw Sturdy out at the plate. In the home half, Gerken lined out to the pitcher. Hungling flied to left. Fuss grounded out, pitcher to first.

In the fifth, Sprinz popped to Stanton. Carleton flied to center. Hock flied to right. Pressnell had retired the side on three pitched balls. In the home half, Scharein walked. Euller forced Scharein at second, short to second. Pressnell flied to left. Garms beat out a bunt down the third base line, Euller taking second. Allday forced Garms at second, second to short.

In the sixth, Smith popped to Allday. So did Selph. Peel flied to right. In the last half, Stanton grounded out, third to first. Gerken fanned. Hungling doubled to left. Fuss doubled to right center, scoring Hungling to tie the count. Scharein fouled out to third.

Medwick Hits Homer

Medwick hit a home run over the left field fence to start the seventh. Sturdy walked. Carey sacrificed, Pressnell to Allday, who covered first, Sturdy taking second. Sprinz hit to Scharein, who threw to Euller, forcing Sturdy at third. Carleton flied to left. In the home half, Euller lined out to center. Pressnell popped to second. Garms doubled to right. Allday grounded out, short to first.

Hock doubled to right center to open the eighth. Smith sacrificed, Euller to Stanton, Hock taking third. Attempting to bunt, Selph popped to Scharein. Peel singled to left, scoring Hock. Medwick singled to left, Peel taking third. Attempting another squeeze play, Sturdy bunted out, Pressnell to Allday. In the home half, Stanton's drive hit Carleton's glove and Buck was out, pitcher to short to first. Gerken fouled out to the catcher. Hungling popped to short.

In the ninth, Carey flied to right. Sprinz popped to Allday. Carleton doubled to left. Hock fouled out to Euller. In the home half, Fuss was out when Peel in left made a great catch of his line drive, hitting the earth just as the ball landed in his glove. Scharein popped to second. Euller singled through short. Bradbury batted for Pressnell. Euller stole second. Bradbury grounded out, pitcher to first.

Second Game

The Buffs took an early lead in the second game when with two down in the first Selph made second when Gerken dropped his fly to left center. Peel doubled to left, scoring Selph. Medwick grounded out, second to first.

The geart Dizzy Dean got the crowd all excited when with one down he was touched for a double by Allday and a single by Stanton, but they sang a different tune when he struck out Gerken and Bradbury to retire the side.

In the second, Sturdy fanned. Carey grounded out, third to first. Funk fouled out to Stanton. In the last half, Fuss flied to center. Scharein lined out to second. Euller doubled to right center. White walked. Garms tripled to center, scoring Euller and White, and the crowd went wild. Allday popped to short.

Star won the first game Saturday.

Lupher was in perfect shape and only 11 hits and one run were made off his delivery in 18 innings of baseball. Only two men got as far as third base off Lupher in the two games, and one of these was the man who scored their only run. It was one of the greatest exhibitions of baseball turned in this year in the City league where the pitchers have been hogging the show.

In the first game, Gabe Harris was hammered hard in two big innings while Robertson pitched steady baseball until the big ninth inning when Bailey-Moline salted away the first half championship. The hits off Lupher were so well scattered that Star was never able to make a serious threat toward scoring. The five hits off Lupher in the first game came mostly from Lefty Robertson and Eddie Satterwhite, the pair dividing four of the five hits between them. Big Pete Hefner was the big gun in the Bailey-Moline attack, getting three hits in the first game and four in the nightcap. Hinds contributed three hits in the opener and two in the second.

"Old Dependable" Mike Smith continued with his sensational hitting in the pinches, getting a double in the first game to start the scoring and sending home another in the second with another double. Mike Smith and Cy Hills turned in two sensational catches in the third and fourth innings of the first game, both times to rob the hitter of sure extra base hits.

Both clubs came up with many sparkling plays with Ben McLarry standing out for Bailey-Moline while H. McAfee, Satterwhite and Hibbs turned in several bits of flashy fielding in the two games.

The first game also counted in the last half standing and put Star Transfer out of the running. The game left Bailey-Moline the only club in line with much chance to head off the fast stepping Sullivans Grocery nine. Scores:

CITIES JOIN IN GAS PLAN

Pipe Line Sought for Four West Texas Towns

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 2.—A municipally owned gas system in Memphis is forecast as the result of a meeting held in Childress at which time representatives from Memphis, Childress, Wellington and Quanah discussed plans for running a pipe line into the four towns. The city officials conferred at length with J. M. Baldridge, vice president of the Shamrock Oil and Gas company of Amarillo.

Mr. Baldridge agreed to put a pipe line into the four cities concerned as soon as Fort Worth had condemned its present gas system and the pipe line started to Fort Worth. On July 21, the citizens of Fort Worth voted to acquire possession of all gas distribution systems in that city, in effect ratifying the contract made with the Shamrock Oil and Gas company to supply the city of Fort Worth with gas. It was stated that Mr. Baldridge made no definite offer as to the rate that his company would sell gas to the various town represented at the meeting, but he agreed to submit figures as to a definite rate within a few days.

It was agreed by representatives of the four towns to take definite steps at once to finance the installation of the distribution systems so that the towns will be in a position to enter into a contract with the Shamrock Oil and Gas company or some other company, should a better proposition be offered.

It was stated by a spokesman authorized to speak that it is the general concensus of opinion of the city council of Memphis that the necessary steps for the installation of a municipally owned gas system here will be taken immediately. It is understood that the matter will be gone into thoroughly at the next meeting of the city council which will be held Tuesday night of next week.

Hall Audition Leader Named

Memphis Woman to Direct Radio Contest

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 2.—Memphis and Hall county singers have a chance to win signal honors in the fifth annual national radio audition for America's talented young singers, made possible by the Atwater Kent foundation, according to Mrs. M. McNeely, who has been appointed county chairman for the auditions. An effort is being made to find some singer in Hall county who may qualify to participate in the division of $25,000 in cash and ten musical scholarships that will go to the national finalists.

Mrs. McNeely stated that the local auditions would be held the latter part of August. Judges to pass on the merits of the contestants will be secured outside the county. The state auditions will be held in Dallas in October. The district auditions will take place in November and the national finals in December. Entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 25, inclusive. Additional information will be gladly furnished by Mrs. M. McNeely.

SCORES VISIT NEW RESIDENCE

A. J. Weeth Home Attracts Much Attention

Numerous visitors Sunday afternoon took advantage of the privilege extended by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weeth and family of visiting the recently completed home at 1812 Rose into which they plan moving Tuesday from their present address, 1923 Ninth street.

Admirably located on a spacious lot which emphasizes the almost rambling lines of the house, the new dwelling received generous commendation both for its comfortable interior arrangement and the pleasing exterior. A domestic feature which received especial attention was the sun room and sun porch which adjoin the dining room.

The latest addition to Wichita Falls' long list of attractive residence properties will be open to the public also on Monday morning from 8 to 10 o'clock, it was announced.

Shaw Thrills At Russians

Universal Work to Give Plan Success

workers and producers. Everybody in Russia has agreed to tighten their belts and work for the five year plan.

"They are doing it efficiently and anybody is a fool who says they will not emerge triumphantly.

English Attitude

"I don't know about the Americans—I have never been to America—but you would never get an Englishman to tighten his belt and work harder than he normally does for less wages. Not he—he would ask:

"'Why should I slave to make more money for a bunch of capitalists so they can gamble in Monte Carlo and Deauville?'

"I am not sure whether the English worker is right or wrong, but I am certain that our capitalists are very wrong. All they can talk about is short term loans and credits and the gold standard. You can't run a country on credits, but you can ruin it. That system has landed us in the present mess. Everybody getting down to work is the only solution to our present difficulty.

"But you have to give the worker some hope of reward and encouragement at the end of his increased tasks. The Russian workers are promised an equal share of the fruits of their labors."

Reward Offered

Asked what these fruits were, Shaw said:

"Better houses, better food, and better opportunities for enjoyment. It's true they have not those things now, but that unhappy condition is a relic of czardom.

"There is a lot of nonsense written about their bureaucracy and police methods. I found Russian officials and police charming, courteous and helpful people. They treated me like a king—and not one of those kings they dislike."

"The punishment of various offenses in Russia is not as callously brutal and vindictive as our prison system, besides they are always ready to pardon.

Soviet System

"Look at those recently convicted of sabotage. They got a vicious sentence, but they have all been since released. The only thing they won't tolerate is anybody working against the Communist system. That is sedition. It is also sedition to make money out of a system by profiteering and manipulating the supply of any of the necessities of life.

"Anybody caught doing that disappears for a few days. Then his relatives are asked whether they would like to supply him with a little extra food. After the lapse of a few more days his relatives are informed that he'll not need any more food because where he has gone they don't eat. Except for that they show a great understanding and tolerance of human shortcomings.

"Although they have no bankers, you can deposit your money in a bank and get 8 per cent interest. It is wise though not to deposit too much or they will want to know how you acquired it."

At this point, Mrs. Shaw interposed:

"That's enough talking; you must have rest."

And Russia's latest and most famous convert obeyed.

DANIEL HITS 'TITLE BUYING'

Teacher Stresses Importance Hunger for Goodness

Roy J. Daniel, teacher of the Kay Bible class, discussed the buying of foreign titles by rich Americans in his address to the class Sunday.

Mr. Daniel's talk also touched upon the pomp of power, the struggle for wealth, the seeking of physical beauty, and the courting of glory, closing with the story of the Ethiopian eunuch who embraced Judaism, and declaring the hunger for righteousness and the willingness to help others were the important things.

Mr. Daniel's full address follows:

"The boasts of heraldry, the pomp of power,
All that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.'"

—GRAY.

Buying of Titles

"Every now and then you read in the paper about the marriage of a daughter of some rich American to some titled foreigner. It is called 'buying a title.' The daughter has plenty of money, and the foreign duke or count or prince or whatever title he may have is willing to bestow upon the American girl (in exchange for her money) the title of duchess or countess or princess. The father's vanity is tickled, and perhaps normal in business affairs he grants the gratification of the silly whim of his lovely daughter and buys for her with good American greenbacks a worthless title and a still more worthless piece of humanity for a husband.

"Many of those marriages go upon the rocks but not until a blurred coat of arms has been bought, and the proud parents have had the opportunity to boast and brag to their friends. This is a 'boast of heraldry.' Recall the story of the beautiful Patterson girl of Maryland. She married the prince brother of the French emperor but he cast her aside at the command of his emperor brother and, although with child, she was not permitted to land on the coast of France when she went to carry her case to the all-powerful emperor. All she could do was to return home broken-hearted to her wealthy father. 'The boast of heraldry leads but to the grave.'

"Many men spend their lives hungering and thirsting for the pomp of power. Some few attain to power while a great many do not. Caesar's thirst for power led to his death by Brutus' dagger at the foot of Pompey's statue. Alexander's hunger for power led him across three continents and to fatal contact with the vices of the East. So many reach the end of life's road and the grave with their lives shattered and energies wasted. How much better it would have been if they and for the world had they spent their lives hungering and thirsting for righteousness rather than for the proud empty heads but to the grave.' heads but to the grave.'

Shrine of Beauty

"Everybody worships at the shrine of beauty. What a joy it is to be able to go up to the mountains and experience the beauty of clear, swiftly running, trout-bearing mountain streams! To be in a log cabin with the rain pouring down upon the roof and with a good book to read is my idea of prefect contentment. To the man from the East our open prairies are beautiful, and to us their sky-scrapers extending upward for miles it seems into the clouds of the sky are things of beauty. Every woman hungers and thirsts for beauty. Pauline was told one time by her brother Napoleon that she was beautiful. Ever afterwards she worked to come up to his expectations along the lines of beauty, and as she lay dying upon her death-bed she held a mirror to her pretty face to witness her departing glory. She spent so much of her life hungering and thirsting for beauty with which to enrapture the eyes of men that she had no time left to hunger and thirst for righteousness. 'All that beauty e'er gave awaits the inevitable hour.'

"The struggle for wealth ends on this side of the river Styx. A man may accumulate all the money in the world yet when death comes he cannot carry one red copper cent with him to pay the ferryman who ferries him across. Many good men spend their lives hungering for wealth, but in vain because the ability to make money is a God-given gift. When a man lacks the gift of making money he should not waste his life hungering and thirsting for the rainbow's end. There was Midas. He so hungered and thirsted for gold that he wished everything be touched to turn to gold. His wish was granted. His food turned to nuggets of gold. The water he tried to drink to quench his thirst turned to gold. He touched the table and it turned to gold. The bed on which he sought rest and slumber turned to gold. Then he touched the head of his little daughter whom he loved better than all else, and she turned to a statue of gold before his eyes. Then he longed to lose the touch. It had become a curse. He regretted the gratification of his wish. Men, listen to me, every hunger or thirst of whatever nature leads but to the grave except the hunger for righteousness, which leads to the throne of God. 'The paths of glory lead but to the grave.'

Convert to Judaism

"Candace, the queen of Ethiopia, ruled over a domain in East-Central Africa, which included the modern country of Abyssinia. The financial affairs of her government were handled by an Ethiopian eunuch. That secretary of her treasury had become a convert to Judaism. The central fact of Judaism was the worship of one god—the worship of the one and only God, Jehoviah. The mission of the Hebrew race was to give to the world the worship of Jehovah. One day after matters of finance had been gone over with the queen I can imagine him saying, 'Your majesty, I would like to have permission to go to Jerusalem to worship in the temple there. You know that I have embraced Judaism.' And the queen, appreciative of a good faithful public servant, probably made reply, 'Why yes, Mr. Secretary, you may go and drive the best chariot in Ethiopia and my finest span of horses.' On his arrival in Jerusalem he learned all about the trial and crucifixion of Christ. He learned of the persecutions of the followers of Christ, how Stephen was stoned to death, how the followers of Christ were being scattered abroad by those in power, what havoc Saul was dealing the church. That eunuch was a student. He came upon an interesting book—the writings of the prophet Isaiah. He secured possession of the book and took it home with him. The book was so interesting and instructive that he read it as he journeyed along the road in his chariot. Travelling the road from Jerusalem toward Gaza he stopped his chariot and was reading a passage when Philip, one of the disciples, came up. Philip heard him reading out loud from the book and asked, 'Do you understand what you are reading?' And the eunuch answered, 'How can I understand it when I have no one to explain it to me?' He then invited Philip to step up into the chariot and have a seat beside him. Philip accepted the invitation and took a seat in the chariot. The eunuch was reading the passage from Isaiah where it is recorded: 'He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; he opened not his mouth: in his humiliation his judgment was taken away. His life is taken from the earth.' The eunuch said, 'I do not understand who is meant in that passage. Did Isaiah mean that he himself was led to the slaughter or did he mean that some other man suffered like a dumb lamb?' Philip answered and explained that the prophet of long ago meant Jesus Christ. Philip went further and explained the gospel to him—how Christ the Son of God came to earth as a human being, was born of a virgin, lived this life without sin being able to resist all worldly temptations, how He was baptized by John, how He healed the sick and restored the broken-hearted, how He restored sight to the blind, how He fed the multitude, how He was persecuted and betrayed and unjustly put to death, how He was buried in the earth with His tomb sealed by Roman authority, how He rose the third day from the grave, how He ascended into Heaven, how He appeared to many of His faithful followers, and how through acceptance of Him only can a man secure salvation.

Eunuch Baptized

"As they rode along Philip talked about those wonderful things and that perfect ideal character, and they came to a stream of water. The eunuch said, 'Here is water. What is there to keep me from being baptized?' Philip replied all he had to do was to believe with all his heart. The eunuch replied, 'I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.' He halted the chariot, they went down into the water of the stream, and Philip baptized the Ethiopian. The Spirit of God then carried Philip away and the eunuch never saw him afterwards. Philip finally went to Caesarea, where he established his home, and Paul years later on one of his missionary journeys visited him there. The eunuch went on his way rejoicing, and it is said that he established a Christian church in Ethiopia and then went on to India where he carried the gospel. The present ruler of Abyssinia claims to be a descendent of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, and when the white man from Europe first went to Abyssinia claims to be a descendent of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, and when the white man from Europe first went to Abyssinia he found there a form of Christian worship among the descendents of the early Ethiopians.

"Christ said, 'Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled.' That Ethiopian eunuch of the long ago hungered and thirsted after righteousness and he was filled by the help of the Word of God and the apostle Philip. The lesson for us this morning is two-fold: first, we must hunger and thirst after righteousness until we find it; and secondly, we must do all in our humble power to aid others in their search for righteousness and peace of the human heart."

Christian Preaching Founded on Experience Essential, Martin Says

Christian preaching which has for its foundation actual experience with the Master, which can be declared with certainty, will reach the mind and heart of humanity, and no other sort of preaching ever will produce fruit, Judge P. A. Martin declared before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

Judge Martin's address was built upon the biblical account of the disciple Phillip's baptism of the Ethiopian enuch, encountered on the road to Gaza.

"This lesson has another point of great value," the speaker said. "Phillip probably had a big congregation in Samaria; it probably seemed to him unprofitable to call one of his attainments to go far away to preach to one man—but he went, and succeeded in a magnificent task."

The talk given by Judge Martin was in part as follows:

"Bible teachers and learned theologians have taught us to believe that the sons of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, living in the little province of Judea, that small strip of country that we call the Holy Land, were, in ancient times, the sole possessors of the true religion of Jehovah. The Jews thought so, it is true, and it is also true that they were the only people who kept a written record of the dealings of God with man; but, as I have heretofore said to this class, I believe the worship of the one God of the universe was far more universal than we are inclined to think. We know that at the birth of Jesus there were wise men, somewhere 'in the east' looking for such an event and a new star appeared in the heavens to guide them to the place of His birth; there can be no doubt that they were good, true worshipers of the same God that led Abraham from Mesopotamia to Canaan.

Coming of Phillip

"And here, in this lesson, we find a good man coming out of the west, from the heart of north Africa, the national treasurer of Ethiopia, 'an eunuch of great authority' under the queen of that country who had been up to Jerusalem for to worship, and procuring a copy of the prophecy of Isaiah, was traveling slowly home by way of Gaza on his long journey home reading the manuscript, which of course he did not understand, when the Holy Spirit sent Philip, the lay evangelist, to explain it to him.

"'Understandest thou what thou readest?' is the greeting of the evangelist and he said, 'How can I except some man should guide me?' A question answered by a question. Here was plenty of human intelligence; ability to read aloud the Hebrew text, although a foreigner; one of the editors of our magazine says he was a negro. I beg leave to humbly differ with him, however, about that. He was more probably a captive taken in early life by the Ethiopians in one of their wars and elevated to his high position as treasurer of the queen by virtue of intelligent public service, like Joseph was in Egypt, and Daniel among the Medes and Persians.

Man of Intelligence

"At any rate he was a man of superior intelligence and as soon as he understood what was meant by the Scripture he accepted Christ and was baptized by Philip in a certain water by the way. I have told this class heretofore of the evidence we have that this eunuch established a Christian church in his own country which lasted there until the 13th century and how that the successors of the Ethiopians to this good day maintain a form of Christian worship. The point in this lesson to which I desire to call especial attention is contained in the question, 'Understandest thou what thou readest?' and the answer, 'How can I, except some man should guide me?'

"It seems that human guidance is ever necessary to the conversion of the human soul. There must be an explanation from some human source in order that the inspired Word itself may be understood. Nicodemus was undoubtedly an intelligent ruler among the Jews. He was an earnest seeker after the truth; but he never caught the meaning of the new birth unless he caught it from the unexplained movement of the winds of heaven through the mystic words of the Master himself. 'The wind bloweth where it listeth and we hear the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth; so is everyone that is born of the spirit.' Paul, with all his learning had to have the ministry of Ananias before his eyes were opened to an understanding of what had happened to him on the Damascus road. Cornelius, the Roman soldier, had to have the ministrations of Peter before he received the Holy Spirit and became a Christian.

"Sounding of Brass"

"The possession of worldly wisdom is very fine but there is something more important to learn. The scholar may be able to read the Bible in the Hebrew or the Greek text and fluently discourse upon the times, the manners and the habits of the ancients, but he will never fully understand what it all means unless he comes into personal touch with some one who is able to tell him the profound meaning of the scheme of redemption. This is why so much of the modern preaching and teaching of the gospel is but 'as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal' to the people. The reason that the ministry of Philip had its immediate effect was that he could say with certainty by actual experience with the Master, that He was the fulfillment of Isaiah's prophesy and, beginning at the very Scripture the eunuch was reading, was able to preach Christ to his heart and mind. And this sort of preaching has always produced fruit and it always will. No other sort has ever produced fruit and never will, no matter how able and how learned the preacher.

"I note in one of our church papers an editorial saying that we ought to more carefully inquire into the educational qualifications of the men who are admitted to the ministry in our conferences; that we now have more preachers than we can take care of and advising, in effect, that only the choice souls should be admitted; those who have the advantage of thorough mental equipment. Now I believe in education, for the ministry as well as for every one else, but I think it is of far more importance to see that they possess spiritual gifts than college degrees. I am personally acquainted with some real DDs minds about the meaning of the very same and LLDs who are still mixed up in their Scripture the eunuch was reading and who do not agree with the evangelist that Isaiah was speaking of the Christ. A little education is sometimes a dangerous thing, for a preacher, as well as for a layman.

Called by Providence

"I note another thing in this lesson. Providence, special Providence if you will, a guiding hand, a call, a spirit, a miracle called Philip from his revival in Samaria and sent him scurrying away off to the Gaza road to preach to one lonesome man, and he a foreigner, going to his distant home. No doubt Philip had big congregations in Samaria; it probably seemed to him that the call was an unprofitable one; he may have thought it a mistake that a man of his attainments should have to abandon so great a work and go off to preach to one man—but he went—and succeeded.

"I imagine he went cheerfully too. He probably never thought to inquire what the work would pay—but it did pay, oh, so richly. While in the very act of baptizing the lone convert, God rewarded his faithful preacher by performing a special miracle in his honor. He needed his sort of a preacher so badly that He caught him bodily and landed him in the town of Azotus, 20 miles away and passing through these parts he preached in all the cities till he came to Caesarea, the capital of the Roman province.

"The eunuch 'went on his way rejoicing.' All doubts were dissolved, all mystery cleared. Faith had come in the place of fear. The trusted treasurer of Queen Candace was born again, born of the Spirit and of the water and returned to his country a new creature, to tell the wonderful story to others and become the founder of a great church. He understood. 'Dost thou understandest what thou readest?'"

MAJESTIC: Maurice Chevalier in "The Smiling Lieutenant," with Claudette Colbert, Charlie Ruggles and Miriam Hopkins. Silly Symphony cartoon; dogville comedy and Majestic talking news.

STATE: Ramon Navarro in "Son of India," with Conrad Nagel, Madge Evans, Marjorie Rambeau. Mack Sennett comedy and Paramount Sound news.

GEM: George O'Brien in "Seas Beneath" with Marien Lessing and "Blondes Prefer Bonds" with Louise Fazenza.

Whether or not you approve of the plot; whether or not you disapprove of the hero's quickly changing loves, there's still one fact, 90 per cent of the people are fascinated by the personality of Maurice Chevalier. We are, ourself.

He can and does sing in "The Smiling Lieutenant," but we wish we really understood French. There is so much to be said with a wink of the eye and a shrug of the shoulder.

All this time we've been taking other people's words for it and telling you Claudette Colbert could sing. She talked her big song. But she has eyes that make up for music. And Charles Ruggels. Why is he specially named. He is ousted out at the beginning.

But Lubitsch is the most marvelous producer and the music of Strauss is luring. One should, we suppose, go see a picture to be amused and have no moralizing after. But Maurice is so real a person on the stage that we cannot help having a faint regret that his love can be won by a change of lingerie.

Paramount started the 20th jubilee with a whizz. And following this week at the Majestic are two other whizzes. Barbara Stanwyck, starring in "The Miracle Woman," plays the part of an evangelist who is known and discussed the world over—at least that's the lady she's supposed to be, and no one's naming names.

Then Saturday the two real fun makers of the stage (if you except Will Rogers who comes a little later), are Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics," said to be their funniest picture. Marie Dressler was our favorite comedian years ago in a Coney Island picture. But we have regarded her as a star among the best since we saw her play the pathetic drunken woman in "Anna Christie."

Though we still remain quite as moral as "Aunt Het," we'd go again and laugh in "The Smiling Lieutenant." Most of our laughs were at unsaid things.
