Prompt Reaction Is Drawn In Congress; Bill Introduced By Senator Hastings Urging Ready Acceptance

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. — A revision of the nation's criminal procedure to block the escape of law breakers through legal delay and technicalities was urged upon congress today by President Hoover. Simultaneously, he urged a wholesale remodeling of the general bankruptcy laws.

In addition, in one brief paragraph of a special law enforcement message, the president spoke of prohibition for the first time since the completion of the Wickersham report.

Asks Prompt Action

Pursuing his idea that the national capital should be a model enforcement city, he asked prompt action upon his previous suggestions for additional dry law enforcement here. One phase of his plan would have the local police force clothed with the authority of federal dry agents.

The special message drew prompt reaction in congress. Senator Hastings (R., Dela.), introduced a bill to carry out the recommendations. He is a member of the judiciary committee which considers this type of legislation.

To Hold Hearing

Chairman Sumners of the house judiciary committee announced that within two weeks hearings would begin looking toward "a complete overhauling of the bankruptcy laws." Even before the president spoke, Sumners said, considerable work was done by his committee to this end.

At the outset of his message today the chief executive said the increase in crime in the United States "is and must be a subject of concern to the government and to

One Mayor Wet, Other Dry; Both Face Recall

By NEA Service.

MAYOR JOHN C. PORTER of Los Angeles is an ardent dry. In France last summer with touring American mayors he refused to drink a toast in wine and walked out on the party.

Porter

Mayor James L. Key of Atlanta drank the toast and declared prohibition in the United States is a failure. Now the two mayors have one thing in common — both face recall actions.

Key

"For more than two years certain world groups have endeavored to hold this threat of recall over my head," Mayor Porter declared after a citizens' committee filed a petition bearing 100,000 names and demanding his removal.

Mayor Key who 5000 citizens think should be ousted, declares his opponents are "whiffle bats," explaining that he means, "a queer bird that flies backward" and not going anywhere.

Senate Fight Now Is Nearing An End

By NEA Service.

The Senate's final effort to oust George Otis Smith as chairman of the Federal Power Commission will begin March 21 when the U. S. supreme court hears arguments in the suit Smith incurred the Senate's ire when two veteran employes were discharged soon after he took office. The Senate withdrew its approval of his appointment by President Hoover, who refused to return the nomination papers. So the Senate started court action a year ago to test the president's appointive power.

Local Civic Leaders Appeal To Lubbock Residents For Good Attendance At Session In Tech Gymnasium

Band Will Parade

Other South Plains Cities To Send Delegates; Meeting To Start At 3 P. M.; Barrett Is To Leave At 4:15

A PLEA by local civic leaders for Lubbock residents to attend an anti-hoarding mass meeting at Tech gymnasium at 3 o'clock this afternoon was issued Monday. A. P. Barrett, Texas aviation leader and chairman of the state committee, who is making a four-day flying tour of Texas this week, will speak.

Representatives of a dozen or more South Plains cities also are expected to attend, the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce was informed by long distance telephone yesterday. The Westerner band will meet Mr. Barrett after a parade downtown at 2:15 o'clock and both the high school and Tech bands will play at the rally.

Purpose Outlined

The two purposes of the rallies were outlined yesterday by Sam C. Arnett, chamber of commerce president. "The objects," said Arnett, "are to get money, now hidden, into circulation; and to conduct a campaign of popular education as to function of money, of banks, of credit, and to show the disastrous consequences when credit is restricted by money withdrawn from the arteries of business."

"Money from sale of the government bonds will be placed on deposit in the local banks," it was pointed out. "The notes are payable on 60 day demand. Every dollar brought from hiding means an increase of from $7 to $10 in this community."

Arrives At 2:45

Barrett will speak first today in Wichita Falls, at noon he will be in Amarillo and he is to arrive at Lubbock airport at 2:45 o'clock. A delegation of local citizens will meet him at the field. The address will

Eight Jurors Are Selected

Other Members Of Panel Will Be Chosen Today; Local Man Faces Trial In Death Here Early In 1931

Eight jurors had been selected to try Alvis Graves for murder when Judge Homer L. Pharr adjourned 72nd district court late Friday. The eight men accepted were selected from sixteen veniremen.

Jurors named are: R. E. Fielding, A. D. Fisher, Ed Gordon, W. M. Groat, Ed Morgan, L. J. Strube, Lynn Foster and B. B. Jones. Other jurors will be selected when court is reconvened this morning.

Both state and defense challenged two veniremen each, and four were disqualified, District Attorney Durwood H. Bradley said. Only 86 of the special venire of 120 men were present when the trial was opened yesterday at 10 o'clock.

Convicted In 1931

Graves, a local man, is charged with the death of Horace L. Smith on the night of Jan. 11, 1931. Graves was convicted on the charge March 19, last year, and in an appeal to the court of criminal appeals at Austin he won a reversal and a new trial. Smith and Robert Averett, 28, were victims of the shooting which took place at a dance in a residence here.

Graves has been confined since his arrest at Post the next day, bond having been denied. His face showed little pallor of the confinement. He smoked cigarets incessantly during the questioning.

Texas Senator Hurls Hot Attack At Hoover Forces

"Tall Tom" Connally Centers Assault Upon Moses

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—A Contest for delegates pledged to Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination will be made in Vermont, James E. Kennedy, former Democratic national committeeman from that state, announced tonight after a conference with Mr. Smith.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 — Congress hauled down its "politics adjourned" flag today and entered the presidential campaign debate with a bang.

In the senate, "Tall Tom" Connally of Texas denounced George Moses of New Hampshire for what he termed a "savage attack' on Speaker Garner over the week end. He reiterated the Garner claim that President Hoover and the administration were responsible for hard times and warned that the period of cooperation on legislation was over except, perhaps, in the case of the tax bill.

McDuffie Heard From

On the house side, Representative McDuffie of Alabama, Democratic whip, issued a 800 word statement suggesting Garner as the man to nominate to avoid a deadlock convention and another "Madison Square Gardon Fiasco."

Outside the Washington political arena attention was drawn to New York reports of a secret conference between Alfred E. Smith and New York and New England Democratic leaders friendly to his possible candidacy.

Although Smith's office said such a conference was not on the day's calendar, it was understood the 1928 presidential nominee might be preparing a statement to Massachusetts Democrats outlining his position and in effect asking for support in the primary, April 26.

Denies Ambitions

Samuel Seabury, counsel to the New York legislative investigating committee, denied any political ambitions in his Cincinnati anti-Tammany speech; Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma announced he would make seven campaign speeches in North Dakota this week to advance his own candidacy, but said he had changed his mind about stumping Georgia, and a Fort Worth pamphlet endorsing Melvin Traylor, Chicago banker as a "homespun American" candidate made its first ap-

Flying Bachelor Has Question "Popped" In Court And His Refusal Brings Down Wrath Of Pretty Magistrate

By RUTH COWAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

JOHN LIVINGSTON, aviator and No. 1 on Aurora's list of eligible bachelors published at the start of the year, should long remember this day when bachelor girls ran the city government in observance of leap year day.

He learned from experience what it is like to be behind the bars of city jail, and to have "the question popped."

Livingston was "pinched" by police chief-for-a-day Miss Dorothy Ward. The 28-year old brunette escorted him to the city lockup, pausing frequently to readjust her cap, borrowed from the "deposed" chief, Otto Wirz.

There he was locked up by the "new" city jailor, Miss Mildred McDowell. His next meal was bread and water. In due time he was called before Police Magistrate Florence Atkins, looking judicially severe in a smart brown spring outfit.

"And with what is the prisoner charged?" inquired her honor.

"Being a bachelor," replied

Fresh Troops From Japan Are Brought Into Action Over A Long Line; Chinese Continue to Hold Stubbornly While Hostilities Increase; Hopes Of Peace Swept Aside

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Feb. 29 (AP)—The foreign office was informed today that 100,000 Soviet Russian troops have been massed in the vicinity of Vladivostok in preparation for what is considered in Russia to be an inevitable conflict with Japan.

This information came from Japanese Consul Yamaguchi at Vladivostok, who reported that troops were stationed in the city and along the Ussuri railway near the border of North Manchuria.

Gas Is Manufactured

In a telegram to the foreign office the consul asserted that an iodine factory at Olga Bay was being converted for the manufacture of poison gas and that fortifications at the entrance to Vladivostok harbor and on Russian island where being strengthened by new heavy gun and anti-aircraft batteries.

Basing his report on information which he said he received from a reliable foreign source, M. Yamaguci declared that there were two army corps in the immediate vicinity of Vladivostok and that most of the troops were new arrivals from European Russia.

Munitions, foodstuffs and military supplies of all kinds were being brought in day and night, he said, and three new forts were under construction at Sedanka on Amur bay near Vladivostok.

Clash Seems Inevitable

The consul informed the foreign office that he had been told the Russians considered a Russo-Japanese clash to be inevitable—if not over Manchuria then over the fisheries question, which has been a source of friction between the two countries for several years.

The consul asserted that the troop movement from Europe has been under way for several months and in support he cited a troop train wreck near Omsk early in December.

Neither the foreign office nor the war office expressed any concern over the reported massing of Russian troops. A war office spokesman said the action probably was due to "unwarranted Soviet nervousness" regarding Japan's intentions in Manchuria.

Chinese Attack

At 2 a. m. a wave of Chinese infantrymen swept across Chapei and by desperate fighting broke down the Japanese defenses in a surprise attack. The Japanese quickly called for assistance from their big guns and soon blasting shells stopped the assaulting soldiers.

Then the Japanese reformed and put on a counter attack in which they recovered most of the ground they had lost, but the Chinese held on the Paitse bridge, north of

Contract Awarded For New Building

A contract for erection of an Episcopal student center at Texas Technological college was awarded Monday to J. B. Maxey, a Lubbock contractor, who submitted a bid of $8,600.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

TODAY'S column is being devoted to a letter that was mailed in to me. It is signed by "One Actually in Need" and presents one of the most real problems of the city today.

The solution to unemployment is a thing that the mighty minds of this nation and others have failed to find. This writer has some ideas about local relief. If he has happened to name something that you or I can do, we should do that to help him and others out. Many people in this city have created employment and are doing it now. There are other things that can be done. It is improbable that Lubbock, even, has done all that it can do for the unemployed. However, in defense of those who are holding jobs, I do believe that there are few who can walk out and give their jobs to others without impairing the machinery of the businesses and that there are compartively few in Lubbock who are financially able to leave their jobs and do without the salary.

The letter, however, voices a need that eevry citizen must recognize and is reproduced here. Although it came to this column, it is addressed to the public.

THE LETTER

"TO THE Chamber of Commerce, the Christian people of Lubbock, the business men, churches, lodges and the people of Lubbock in general:

"You talk about the depression, you read about the depression and some of you have felt the depression in a way that hurts.

"Before you say your prayers again, stop and take an inventory. How about it, have you done all you can to relieve suffering humanity? Have you done unto others as you would be done by?

"There are a lot of us here in Lubbock who are absolutely without means of support. We are willing to work but we cannot get a job. We are human beings. We, like you, have appetites; we get hungry and cold You say, 'I'm sorry for you, but it is no fault of mine.' Maybe it isn't, maybe it is.

"You men of means: Is there nothing you can do? Don't the street in front of you need paving? Does your yard need raising? It is now a good time to put out shrubbery. Perhaps your house needs painting or papering. Isn't there some civic work that needs to be done, some park beautified, or a new play ground built?

"Men and women who have jobs, whether it be office work, salesmanship, clerking or managing, it is necessary for you to keep that job? Haven't you enough ahead to risk a short vacation—go out and get that rest you've been needing? Now is a fine time while everything is cheap. Isn't it possible that in this horde of unemployed and destitute men and women there is one who could take your place?

"I don't know everything about Lubbock by any means, but I do know there are clerks, and this applies especially to the ladies, who are from homes well able to take care of them. If all these would be generous enough to ask for a leave of absence until the first of September and leave the places to be filled by some of these unemployed who are (and have been for some time) merely existing on food that will sooner or later tear down the body and then the mind, it would be one step in the right direction.

"There are a lot of things you could do to help the poor besides feeding them at the hand of charity. Charity is not what we want. We want a chance to work for ourselves.

"If we can't get work, we will be forced to leave here, beg, starve, steal or put ourselves out of existence. Which do you want us to do? Which would you do if you were in our place?

"We can't leave for we have no means and no where to go. We do not choose to beg, for we are as proud as you. We have never learned to steal and so far haven't enough to put ourselves out of existence.

"Now people of Lubbock, you who are able to give us a chance and don't do it, are like Cain saying, 'Am I my brother's keeper?'

"It isn't always our fault that we are in these circumstances any more than it is your good management that you are in your place. Some of you inherited your riches, some because of the good fortune of your fathers or grandfathers have never known want. Some of you have made for yourselves all that you have. If that is the case, why didn't your father have a fortune for you to inherit? Was he trifling or was he like us, unfortunate? Some came here years ago when it was easy to get ahead. While some of us again were not so fortunate. One acutally in Need."

Church Women's Federation Will Launch Financial Campaign Shortly

Committees Retarded In Work Because Of Lack Of Finances

Program Is Given At St. Paul's Episcopal Church On Monday With Judge Clark Mullican As Principal Speaker

Plans were announced Monday afternoon for a campaign for finances to benefit the work of the Church Women's Federation when members gathered for their first program in 1932. This was at St. Paul's Episcopal church and following the business session a program of musical numbers and an address by Judge Clark M. Mullican was given.

Mrs. Joe Penney, president, presided for the business session, which was opened with reading of the minutes by Mrs. George R. Bean, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. A. T. Biggers, chairman of welfare work, called on various committee chairmen for reports of work which were stated to be retarded due to lack of money in the treasury. These committees include that of hospitalization with Mrs. Temple Ellis as chairman; mission, with J. J. Clements as chairman; charity with Mrs. A. V. Weaver as chairman; civic work, with Mrs. W. B. Atkins chairman; work among the negroes with Mrs. R. I. Tubbs as chairman; Mexican work with Mrs. D. K. Bondurant as chairman and the finance committee of which Mrs. Arthur L. Brown is chairman.

Plan Is Given

Mrs. Brown stated that her committee has voted to ask donations from each woman's society represented in the federation in order to carry on the work during the year and in addition will ask each of the 1,000 women in the organization to contribute ten cents to the treasury. Later in the year it is planned for the federation to foster a benefit party.

Mrs. Bondurant was leader of the program for the afternoon, which was opened with a devotional lesson led by Mrs. R. D. Allen. Mrs. Wallie Schmid sang and Miss Lyall Pickett played a violin solo. They were each accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Waldo Trotter. Mrs. David S. Martin played an organ solo.

In keeping with the Washington Bicentennial movement, Judge Mullican spoke on "Washington as a Christian." He paid a tribute to Washington as a church man and said that the principles of Christianity which he exemplified in his life he later inserted in the beginnings of our government.

There were 71 present at the meeting.

The next program will be given on the fifth Monday in May at Asbury Methodist church.

It's Football-Basketball At Tech!

Wiry Centers Overrun Tough Tackles To Win Opening Game Of Seven-Team Tournament On Cage Floor, 39 To 6

"Keep moving" is the watchword every Texas Tech athlete learns soon after being initiated into the department, and now it's football-basketball.

Head Coach Pete Cawthon is anxious that his Matador athletes keep in trim through the winter and spring and summer as well as in the fall. Boxing and wrestling are the chief winter exercises for football players, but since they are not all given to the mat and ring, basketball has been introduced.

A basketball tournament between football players got under way yesterday. There are seven teams, because there are seven positions on a football lineup. Yesterday afternoon saw the "centers" bat the "tackle" 39 to 6. The referee was lax, nobody kept score except the boy on the board and personal fouls were not counted. They "turned loose" because they're football players and "there's no use going soft just because it's off season," as Coach Cawthon puts it. So "Sock 'em and Rock 'em" is the motto on the maple court as on the turfed turtle-back.

Each day this week, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, a game will be played. Today the "quarterbacks" will meet the "guards" and tomorrow the "ends" probably will tangle with the "halfbacks." The "centers" will meet the "fullbacks" on Thursday afternoon. If you like your basketball rough and tough, when there's always something wrong with the referee's whistle, you'd like the Tech football-basketball games, as much of a combination as the name implies.

Leonard Curfman, a center, from Electra, was high point man for the pivot men yesterday in the victory over the tackle. He scored 17 points. The other forward was Whacker Barton. Flake was the center and Fortner and Tribble were the guards. Curtis Allen saw service as a substitute.

Burton was the outstanding man on the losing side, his floor work featuring the game. George Langford, Bennie McWilliams, Red Barrett, "Big 'Un" Baker, Juicy Owens, Pat Murphy and Woodrow Wilson were others of the lineup.

Tech To Send Ring Artists To N. M. Meet

Insufficient Funds Forbid Tech Track And Field Team; Swim Team To Accompany Boxers To N.M.M.I. Meet

For the second successive year Texas Technological college will not be represented by a track and field team, according to an announcement yesterday by W. L. Stangel, chairman of the Tech Athletic council Lack of funds necessary for the sponsorship of a track and field team was given as the reason for the curtailment. Neither will there be any baseball at Tech this spring.

Stangel had previously indicated that, in all probability, the college would sanction the equipping and coaching of a track team this spring. But at a recent meeting of the board of directors it was brought out that unless some other department could be financially decreased there could be no track team. Further efforts failed to bring about an adjustment and it was definitely decided to abandon all hope for a representative team of thinly clads.

To Meet N. M. M. I.

The athletics department did, however accept a challenge from New Mexico Military Institute to send a boxing and swimming team to Roswell next week to compete in a dual meet there. Coach Pete Cawthon announced yesterday that a meeting of all eligible boxers and swimmers would be called and a representative team picked. It was indicated that Cawthon himself would attend the team to Roswell.

Boxers and wrestlers, Tech has quite a few, but swimmers, none who have so declared themselves. Since the challenge included both departments, efforts will be made to select a swimming team this week. Tech does not ordinarily go in for swimming as an intercollegiate sport. It may be that Cawthon takes a few wrestlers to Roswell, though the communication from N. M. M. I. did not include a statement aimed at wrestlers. Under Cawthon's personal direction, a group of grunt-and-groan boys have been doing more or less heavy work this winter, ostensibly to keep fit as football players.

The dual meet with N. M. M. I. will be held Monday of next week. The local teams will make the trip Sunday, it was indicated.

Blossoming Fruit Trees Are Seen In All Parts Of City

Blossoming fruit trees, brought to bloom prematurely by the continued warm weather in February, are seen in practically all sections of Lubbock. Apricots are leading, many trees being in full flower.

Considerable damage to the South Plains fruit crop, provided warm weather continues another week, is seen by Don L. Jones of the state experiment farm here. Earliest date of the last frost in spring recorded here is March 11. Last year on March 28 the minimum reading was 12 degrees above zero.

"If warm weather holds on another week, practically all the fruit trees will be in bloom," said Jones. "Then, if killing frost comes, serious damage to the fruit crop will result, except possibly to cherries, which are late to blossom."

Pepper Martin's Quadrennial Birthday, Babe Ruth's Coming Out Party Feature Ball Camps

Dale Alexander Breaks Stanford Tradition With Long Homer In Practice; Rookies, Regulars Begin To Report

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 29. Pepper Martin's quadrennial birthday and Babe Ruth's annual coming-out at the Yankees' training camp today helped stimulate the major league forces fast gathering all along the southern fronts.

The Babe has swung his bat a few times so far but he was in golf clothes when he did it and he has been doing all his training so far on nearby links. Today, however, the big fellow got into uniform for the first time, reported unofficially to Manager Joe McCarthy and worked out, even at the great personal sacrifice of cutting his golf diet from 36 to 18 holes for the day.

"Wish the Pepper many happy returns for me and tell him I will see him in the World Series next October, if not sooner," laughed Ruth when told Martin would have his first chance in four years to cut himself a piece of birthday cake today.

The fact that the Babe has not yet signed his 1932 contract, owing to a slight difference of opinion with Col. Jacob Ruppert over whether he can get $70,000 for one of two years, will not keep Ruth from working out regularly with the Yankee squad from now on.

ALEXANDER SETS RECORD IN FIRST TIGER WORKOUT

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 20. (AP) Dale Alexander shattered a Stanford University tradition and gave the Detroit Tigers' spring training season an auspicious opening today by twice driving the ball from home plate over the left field fence at the university baseball field today.

The fence is 460 feet from the plate and Stanford athletic authorities said the feat never before had been accomplished. It was the Tigers' first drill.

GABBY STREET PLANS SLUGGING PARTY TODAY

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 29. (AP) Manager Gabby Street had planned a long round of batting practice today to celebrate arrival of the Cardinal regulars, but only three reported so the old sergeant postponed the slugging round until tomorrow.

Joel Hunt, George Watkins and Bob Parham, outfielders, were the only athletes who joined the battery men who had been working for a week. Sylvester Johnson and Jim Linsey were additional pitchers on the job.

GIBBIE GIBSON SETS OUT TO SHAPE BUC INFIELD

PASO ROBLES, Calif., Feb. 29.(AP) One of the Pittsburgh Pirates' biggest problems—the shaping of the infield—is to be among the first tackled by Manager George Gibson.

Gus Suhr, of course, is going to be the first baseman and Capt. Pie Traynor will be on third, but the balance of the inner works must be studied.

Tony Piet and Howard Gorloss are to fight it out for second base and while Tommy Thevenow seems in good shape to start the sesaon at short, Gibby is planning for emergencies.

WEST, MANUSH AND JUDGE HOLD OUT ON SENATORS

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 29. (AP)—Indications were today as the Washington Senators' pitchers and batters went into action that most of the team will be on hand for duty well before the week is out. Dave Harris, over whom there is speculation as to whether he is for sale, has sent word he will start for camp not later than tomorrow. Joe Cronin, shortstop, likewise has written he is anxious to get going, and Sam West is headed for Biloxi. Buddy Myers, second baseman, arrived to get the signing business decided, leaving President Clark Griffith's signing worries confined to West, Heine Manush and Joe Judge.

ALL WHITE SOX ON DECK AS APPLING REPORTS

MINERAL WELLS, Feb. 29. (AP) Luke Appling, young White Sox shortstop, landed in camp today placing all hands of the 1932 team on deck.

Appling was a man of mystery until he strolled into camp. He was mailed a contract about six weeks ago but nothing was heard from him until he put in his appearance.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 29.(AP) Joe Vosmik, ex sandlot batting sensation with the Cleveland Indians last year, blew into the Indian camp with a trio of rookies today to head the final contingent of Tribesmen on the spring training jaunt.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh gave his squad of pitchers their first and most extensive batting practice today with Wes Ferrell lifting one against the left field barrier.

A delegation to the meeting of representatives of towns on highway 24 at Guthrie Wednesday will attend from Lubbock, it was decided at a meeting of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce highway committee Monday afternoon.

Object of the Guthrie meeting is to consider plans for hard surfacing of No. 24 through King and the east part of Dickens county. This strip is only unpaved part of this route between Lubbock and Dallas.

County Judge E. L. Pitts, chairman of a sub-committee which has interested itself in highway improvements east of Lubbock, is to head the local delegation. Others planning to attend include J. H. Hankins, chairman of the general committee, C. A. Sheffield, B. Sherrod, Joe Bowman, Jess Levens, Roy McKinney, Ray Hinchey, J. H. Brock, and A. B. Davis.

A Tip For Doctor Norris

SINCE the Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris has become so vitally interested in the state institution of higher learning here that he is delivering radio orations concerning it, he may also be interested in discovering the name of the college. And since he finds excerpts from The Morning Avalanche of benefit in his radio addresses, we are happy to further serve the ends of the Fort Worth minister in this regard.

For the Doctor's information, the state school here is not called "The West Texas Technical Institute."

Instead, it is formally and officially called "Texas Technological college" and when it was founded the bill of its establishment pointed out specifically that the college was being formed to serve the entire state, as a college of first rank, and is not to be a sectional institution.

Judging from his radio activities concerning Tech, Doctor Norris seeks a wide knowledge of the college, its faculty, aims and objects.

If such is the case he should certainly be glad to learn further of the institution—particularly the name under which it has been operating, in a remarkably successful way, for almost seven years.

COUNTY AGENT WORK

A petition was recently circulated in Lubbock calling for discontinuation of the work of farm and home demonstration agents in this county.

Whether the petition found much support for the move or not, The Morning Avalanche doesn't know but it has its own ideas on the subject.

Believing that public works should curtail expenses in step with similar efforts on the part of private business, we believe all departments of government should economize wherever possible. But when suggestions arise to do away with this, that or the other department they likewise call for minute investigation.

As we see it, there is only one group of people in Lubbock county who should be asked for opinions regarding the doing away of farm and home demonstration work in this county—and that group is composed entirely of farmers and their wives. If they wish the work continued it should be continued to the best of the county's ability under existing financial conditions. If, on the other hand, farmers and their wives believe they can do just as well without the work, all well and good—eliminate it.

The rural population of Lubbock county has its rights and those rights should be respected.

County and home demonstration agents work almost solely among the rural population, attempting to aid the rural population and, by so doing aid the farmers directly and the balance of the county indirectly.

It should be up to the rural population whether or not county and home demonstration work is worth the money, time and effort. Let's hear from them—and act accordingly.

The question is economic, not political.

EDUCATION AND NEWSPAPERS

Representative and reputable American newspapers are educational facilities that have not been properly utilized for the training and instruction of children either in the homes or the schools. That is an opinion expressed by Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, of the department of journalism in Columbia University. "No child's education is complete without the newspaper," he says, "for through it the child can secure a vivid, realistic picture of life, the world and its affairs."

Meeting the criticism that much of the news is not suited to reading for the young, Prof. Pitkin says children pass over reports of crime and of the sordid phases of life because they are outside the realm of their experience. But he admonishes that children should not be forbidden to read such news lest their curiosity be stimulated.

"Intelligent parents," says Prof. Pitkin's article in the Parents' Magazine "have a magnificent opportunity to supplement school training with informal discussion and study of today's important news. It would be an immensely interesting project for parent and child. It remains for such parents to make the most of the educational possibilities of the newspapers."

Practical Health Problems

MENTAL IRRITABILITY MUST BE CHECKED

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of five articles on health for the business man and office worker in these trying times.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

IN TIMES of economic depression when constant driving seems to yield little, if any, result there develops a condition called industrial unrest, due undoubtedly to emotional reactions rather than to physical changes in the human body.

When times are booming and returns are satisfactory in almost any occupation, people in general are satisfied with what they are doing. In times of economic stringency there develops a mental irritability which reflects itself not only in mental but also in physical changes.

THE BUSINESS man whose business is growing rapidly and whose returns are far beyond his wildest anticipations pays little, if any, attention to what his competitors are doing.

The moment he comes under stress, when sales begin to fall, when collections are poor, everything his competitors say or do worries him. At such times everyone travels about with a chip on the shoulder ready to fight at the drop of the hat.

It is obviously therefore of the greatest importance to avoid, if possible, every cause of stimulus or every factor that may be concerned in dissatisfaction or unrest.

The employe who works under good conditions of ventilation, temperature and lighting, whose routine is broken by rest pauses and lunch periods, and who is enabled to avoid fatigue, is much more unlikely to be irritable and dissatisfied than the one who is constantly subject to monotony.

AT A TIME when men are subjected to unusual worries, stress and strain, they should be physically fit. The old proverb—mens sana in corpore sano—a sound mind in a sound body—never demanded so much emphasis as at this time.

It is economical to be healthy whether you are a bricklayer or the "big boss." The only way to be certain that you are healthful is to have a periodic physical examination, which will find any temporary disabilities or any beginning inadequacies.

The interlocking cogs of the human machine get along well if left largely alone when they are in normal condition.

The moment one part begins to weaken, excess strain is thrown on some other portion exactly as with a machine. The earlier the weakening is detected, the better it is for the whole apparatus.

TOMORROW: Worry.

Would Cut The Overhead

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Except the personnel of the postoffice department, the civil personnel of every department in Washington undoubtedly could be at least cut in two. One department could be abolished entirely, two of the others could be consolidated and approximately three-quarters of the federal government's miscellaneous independent boards, bureaus and commissions could be wiped out entirely. And the country at large either never would know the difference or would only be the happier for it all—not to mention the cash saving.

CHAS P STEWART

Such action, however, would throw many folk out of jobs.

That, and the howl which would accompany it, is the only reason why the step is not taken—and everyone with the slightest experience in the capital knows it.

I LIVED in Washington myself, from quite awhile before the World war's outbreak until the middle of 1915, was in the newspaper business and consequently was fairly familiar with conditions.

For example, the state, war and navy departments were comfortably housed together in one building.

About vacation time in 1915 I left, not to return until early in 1924.

In that interval the navy department had been crowded completely out of its quarters into an enormous edifice of its own, all but a few of the war department's offices had overflowed into a companion structure of similar proportions and the original State, War and Navy building was jammed to suffocation with state department functionaries and a lingering handful of military folk.

THE TREASURY, justice, interior, agriculture, commerce and labor departments had undergone a like process of inflation.

Independent bureaus had multiplied approximately thrice in number.

The postoffice—the one public service which really gives to the average individual a tolerable return on his money—alone appeared to be operating at something the same capacity as when I last had seen it.

American participation in the war of course was responsible for the growth, which I especially observed because of my absence during the transition.

To be sure, the government began to expand from very soon after the establishment of the republic. That's evident from the fact that it began with five cabinet departments and had reached ten by 1913. Its earlier expansion, however, was by almost imperceptible degrees in comparison with its World war expansion.

That it did expand alarmingly while the war raged is not a thing to be surprised at, but certainly it ought to have been cut down again, to conscionable magnitude, much sooner after the war had ended.

IT HAPPENS that I was connected with a government service which WAS deflated directly after the war—due to the lack of any political pull to keep it IN-flated. Otherwise probably it would exist today.

I was running Uncle Sam's publicity in the River Plate republics, with headquarters in Buenos Aires, and as soon as the war ended I turned it into commercial channels, to promote American trade. It got results, too. English interests in that part of the world were jealous of it. The United States Chamber of Commerce in the Argentine republic appealed to Washington to continue it, but Washington quite properly replied that a return to a peace time basis was imperative, and dropped it by the simple but effective method of cutting it incontinently off the payroll.

This, I submit, is the way to reduce a redundant federal personnel, and it is the way it would be done now, except for one thing—

The folk who administer the government are afraid to do it.

They are perfectly aware that they ought to, they desire it, they promise to—but they don't DO IT.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has recommended an executive reorganization, with a view to saving "many millions"—but, proposes first to create several new positions for high-priced officials, to superintend the job.

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur is authority for the statement that his department's usefulness is practically over.

Chairman Cochran of the representatives' committee on the executive departments' expenditures mentions a plan, outlined by President Campbell of the civil service commission, for saving a billion, through personnel cuts.

Congressman Williamson, senior minority member of the same committee, quotes the testimony of military men to the effect that huge economies are possible by creating a single army and navy department of national defense.

EVERYONE in Washington knows what will follow.

A bill may be passed, providing for some reductions—but they will be extremely gradual. Times will pick up before any progress has been made. With better times, reductions no longer will be necessary.

Uncle Sam cuts his payroll in only one way—harshly and inconsiderately. Otherwise he doesn't cut it.

By JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, who works by day as a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her mother, MOLLY MYRA, and her 12-year-old brother, MIKE. Ellen's dead father, a younger son in a titled English family, left a comfortable fortune to provide for his wife and children but irresponsible Molly soon went through the fortune. Since then the support of the household has devolved upon the two sisters. Their problem is complicated by Molly's heedless extravagance.

Molly spends the precious rent money to buy unnecessary clothes for Mike. At her mother's suggestion Ellen decided to work at night as a dance hall hostess until the sum is made up. She and Myra leave the house together for the day's work.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

During the long hot morning at Barclay's department store Myra's words lingered with Ellen. Myra had said that the Rossiter family would always be just one jump ahead of the poorhouse. Myra had said that the Rossiter girls would never find men financially able to marry them. With a pang in her heart Ellen thought of Myra, engaged for nine years to Bert, worn out with ceaseless waiting for the opportunity, the break that never came. She thought of little Mike. In an age of specialization Mike must have his chance. But how was that chance to come? How was Mike to go to college as other boys did? How was Mike to get an education? All of the Rossiters desired ease and beauty and luxury in life. All of them deserved those things.

As she mechanically cut lengths of 19-cent outing flannel for women who for some inscrutable reason wanted outing flannel in midsummer, the girl's mind returned continually to that morning conversation. Were the Rossiters fooling themselves? Were they indeed all lost in worse than mediocrity? Did the past glories of family count for nothing when the present of that family was poverty?

"What's eating you?" Jenny Elkins, her counter mate, asked once.

"Nothing," Ellen replied spiritlessly.

But she felt weary and discouraged. Her head ached from the heat and from the ceaseless complaints of shoppers who desired more for their money than their money would buy. "Like us," thought Ellen bitterly.

With noon and the lunch hour she cheered. As she combed her hair and powdered her damp face dry, she observed that she had a great deal of company. The dressing room was full of salesgirls, less well off than herself, many of them fading, past the age of romance and past the possibility of attaining happier futures.

Ellen was young. She had undeniable good looks and distinction. Just around the corner who knew what might be in store? She swung out into the street. Fifth avenue was jaded and wilting in the August sunshine. Even the shop windows seemed dusty and the merchandise, usually so enticing, was dimmed by the blazing noon light.

But Ellen felt the customary lift of spirit as she left the store. She was almost eager now for the coming adventure. After all, the coming adventure. After all, she had never been inside Dreamland. There was no reason why it might not be fun. There would be youth there at least. It was better to dance than to sit evening after evening in a stuffy apartment wondering how two small salaries were to be stretched to feed and clothe three adults and one active boy.

That feeling of suppressed excitement was still with her when she reached the dancehall a few steps off Broadway and plunged into the graceful dusk of the building. It left her abruptly when, at the second floor, she left the elevator and stepped into Dreamland.

The big, over-decorated room, even with all the shades drawn, appeared cheap and tawdry. The paper roses that shaded the lights were not only imitation—they were dirty. The floor, not yet swept, was mussy with confetti remaining from the night before. Nor did the peeling gilt chairs and tables arranged around the walls present at setting for romance. Or the glass ticket booth near the door like the ticket booths of motion picture houses. As though romance were for sale!

Ellen squared her jaw, assured herself that she had not come for romance, and walked toward the door marked "Office—Jacob Salomon, Manager." She was a little surprised that there were no other girls waiting and a little cast down as well. That probably was a clear indication that Dreamland jobs were not too profitable.

She knocked at the frosted glass door. A querulous voice bade her enter.

Jacob Salomon did not rise when she came in. He was wearing a hat. He did not remove his hat. Nor did he remove the cigar in his mouth when he inquired her business. Ellen told him.

"D'ja ever dance professionally?"

"No, I haven't. But I'm a very good dancer," replied Ellen in a voice as brusque as his own.

She had no intention of being intimated by Jacob Salomon. He leaned across his untidy desk, wound up a portable victrola, put on a record and stood up.

"I'll try you out," he said.

Ellen looked startled. But evidently Salomon expected her to dance with him. He was holding out his arms. She had never before danced with a man in his shirt sleeves, a man wearing a hat and smoking a cigar. But she stepped firmly forward.

the dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

er. She was surprised to find that Salomon, for all his bulk, danced better than any partner she had ever had before. After two turns of the room he released her, mopped his forehead and flopped into his swivel chair again.

"You're o. k.," he announced. "Turn up with your evening dress at eight o'clock tonight. You're allowed Mondays off if you want 'em. Take any other night off, without explaining in advance, and you're fired. That's all."

Ellen smiled faintly.

"I'm afraid it isn't all," she observed unruffled. "I have to be satisfied with the job too. What is the salary?"

"No salary. Commissions. The boys pay 10 cents a dance straight dancing. You can pick up more giving private lessons. You get half the takings. You split your tips too—if any."

He squinted his eyes and regarded her with the cold glance of a surgeon or a musical comedy director.

"You're good-looking," he admitted as if he had just noticed it. "You got class too. I guess you'll knock the spots off any of the hostesses we have now. You ought to make three or four dollars an evening easy—six or seven on Saturdays. Easier than clerking in a store. That what you do now?"

Ellen was considerably taken aback. Color rose in her cheeks, but her voice was cool as she admitted that she did clerk in a store and meant to continue to do so. Salomon indifferently assured her that such a course was an easy way to quick suicide, but he did not appear to be really interested.

"Another thing," Ellen said as she prepared to leave. "I haven't any real evening dress. Only semi-evening dresses."

Salomon's feet, which had been cocked upon the desk, came down on the floor.

"Won't do," he said. "I might as well tell you that the evening clothes are the catch. They wear out fast here. And you gotta have 'em. This is a classy place. Part of our advertising is 'Every beautiful hostess in the latest from Paris.'"

"But —"

"Won't do. We're in this biz for money—not for our health." He added speculatively, his eyes curious, "No reason why a Jane as good-looking as you are shouldn't have all the evening duds in the world. No reason for that matter why you should be clerking in a store or working here either."

As Ellen, angry and discouraged, went out the door, he called after her, "The job's always open if you manage to scare up the dress."

Late that afternoon, Ellen, bitterly disappointed at losing the $20 or $25 a week, telephoned to the Brooklyn apartment house. There was a long wait while good-natured Mrs. Clancy climbed the stairs to bring Molly to the phone. But the wait was easier than the explanation. Molly Rossiter made it very hard. She could not understand why Ellen had not persuaded Salomon to take her without the evening dress. She never understood such things. To top this off she explained tearfully that the landlord had called during the morning for his rent.

"What will we do?" she wailed. Ellen had no better idea of that than Molly. But she poured forth reassurances before she hung up the receiver and turned away. She gave way a little then. There were tears in her wide, thick-lashed eyes and her face, ordinarily so rosy, was pale with fatigue and anxitey.

She brushed past a handsome, middle-aged man, who had been waiting at the row of telephones on the fifth floor of Barclay's. She did not notice him until he touched her on the arm. She turned to face Seveen Barclay, owner of the department store.

"You're employed here, aren't you?" he asked.

Ellen's heart gave a great thump. It was against the rules to telephone during business hours. It was also against the rules to leave one's counter. Her counter, tended by another girl, was six floors below in the basement.

"I am employed here," she said in a strained, low voice.

"Will you step into my office, please?"

Ellen clamped her teeth into her lower lip. As she silently followed him she called forth all her reserve to meet this final calamity. So she was to lose her job at Barclay's!

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 29. (AP) — The cotton market was somewhat erratic today influenced largely by fluctuations in stocks. The general trend of prices was somewhat downward. After opening 4 to 5 points down on unfavorable Liverpool cables the market later rallied owing to a firm start of stocks and some trade buying, gaining 6 to 8 points, but lost the advance in the afternoon losing 8 to 9 points from the earlier highs with a reaction in stocks. The close was a shade above the lowest being called steady and showing net declines for the day of 5 to 6 points.

May closed at 6.98, down 5 points and October at 7.32, down 5 points net for the day.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—An opening decline in cotton was followed by rallies on trade buying and covering accompanied by reports of a continued steady spot basis in the south.

Prices eased again later under southern selling or realizing and liquidation which appeared to be influenced by the later ruling of wheat and the afternoon stock market. May contracts after selling up from 7.00@7.07 declined to 6.97 and closed at 6.98 with the general market quiet at net declines of 6 to 9 [points].

Earmarks Of A [Pr]ofessional Market Worn By Sto[cks]; [L]osses Only Small

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. (AP)—Stocks continued to wear the earmarks of a professional market today.

Until the late hour prices held a balance of gains over Saturday's final quotations, but in the late trading these advances were mostly exchanged for small net losses.

Traders had to contend with pronounced dullness. They stirred up a little enthusiasm among the automobile equipment issues on the strength of the Ford announcement and picked out a few other stocks that figured in news or gossip, although on the whole movements were insignificant. Volume fell to 879,930 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. (AP) — Indications that unofficial estimates tomorrow on farm reserve domestic supplies of grain would make a bearish exhibit tended to pull cereals downward today, especially wheat.

An increase of 850,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total placed an additional weight on values. Export buying of North American wheat was desultory, recent large purchases having apparently satisfied overseas demand for at least the present.

Wheat closed unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, 1-2 to 7-8 under Saturday's finish, corn at 1-8 decline to 1-8 advance, oats 1-8 to 1-4 off, and provisions unchanged to 15c up.

Body of Thomas R. Harrison, jr., three-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Harrison of Littlefield, was sent to Beaumont for burial by Rix funeral home. The infant died here Sunday of pneumonia.

Three negroes, charged with gaming, are to appear in county court Monday. Bonds for the three, arrested Sunday by the sheriff's department, were set at $150 each.

Pete Crawford was fined $14.15 by Justice H. K. Porter Sunday for possession of stolen goods. Authorities said he attended Texas Technological college.

Slight damage resulted in three fires here Sunday. Soon after the fire department was called to a fire at 1508 Avenue X, the department was notified the blaze had been extinguished.

Negligible damage resulted when an automobile caught fire at 1105 Avenue G and a small fire under a vacant house in the 1000-block on Fourteenth was extinguished before much damage resulted.

Raymond Johnson of Lubbock appeared in Justice of the Peace H. K. Porter's court Monday for examining trial on charge of attempting to pass a forged check for $5.75 at a downtown shop. Bond was set at $500 to await action of a grand jury. Johnson was arrested Saturday.

W. A. Davis, a farmer living 15 miles east of Lubbock, received treatment at West Texas hospital Monday for a fractured arm, suffered when he became entangled in lines of harness and was run over by a mule.

Newell Stokes, 17, who suffered a broken left ankle when thrown by a horse near O'Donnell late Saturday, was reported to be resting well last night at Lubbock sanitarium. Stokes, son of N. W. Stokes of O'Donnell, was enroute home from school when a boy struck the horse with a baseball. School is being held on Saturdays at O'Donnell to make up for lost time, it was said.

After treatment at West Texas hospital early Monday afternoon, J. D. Rudder, about 20, of 715 Third street, injured in a headon automobile collision in the 1000-block of Main street, was dismissed. Rudder suffered contusions over the body.

every well-disposed citizen." At its conclusion he pleaded for increased law observance.

Requirements Listed

"We must all keep before us the thought," he said, "that effective administration of the law in a republic requires not only adequate and proper machinery, honest and capable officials, but above all a citizenry imbued with respect for law."

In brief, here are the president's suggestions for revising federal criminal procedure:

The supreme court would write a series of uniform rules for all sections of the country, designed to speed criminal appeals, and governing "all proceedings after verdicts" in both district and appeals courts.

Might Begin Sentence

Legislation would be enacted permitting accused persons to waive indictment by grand jury after a plea of guilty, thereby allowing the immediate service of their sentence.

The grand jury system would be revised to limit the time for quashing indictments because of disqualification of grand jurors, coupled with legislation permitting indictments to stand if approved by twelve jurors, regardless of the presence of ineligibles.

Legislation would be shaped "in the interest of child welfare" to permit the attorney general to forego the prosecution of children in the federal courts, returning them, instead, to their own states for action by local juvenile courts.

Seeks More Judges

Under the "diversity of citizenship" laws, corporations organized under the laws of one state but active elsewhere would be treated as citizens of the state in which they do business, thereby placing their cases in state rather than federal courts.

The president cited figures to show "undue congestion in the courts in a number of districts and recommended the appointment of additional judges in those sections where civil and criminal cases are suffering long delay.

As for the Republicans, President Hoover gained two more delegates pledged to him in Kansas, making his total there four.

Connally admitted "the great mistake of my state in 1928" in voting for Mr. Hoover, but said it wouldn't "make the same mistake again."

Charges Administration

The Texan accused the administration of "playing politics during the political truce." He named Secretaries Hurley and Hyde and Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the navy among those claiming "credit" for Mr. Hoover for the emergency non-partisan relief program.

Connally who is advocating Garner for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he assumed "now that the administration has secured cooperation in enactment of the program in which it was particularly interested, it will open up its guns in an effort to destroy the speaker or any one else who becomes prominent in the Democratic party as a possible candidate for president."

"Hmm," the court mused, "that's bad. And what has the defendant to say for himself?"

"Guilty," gulped Livingston.

"Would he be willing to reform?" asked the court blushing, "would he—would he marry the magistrate?"

The defendant blushed and grinned.

"Your honor is very beautiful," he said, "but I'll have to maintain my plea of guilty.".

"Then I fine you in accordance with an old leap year custom," said the court, "and that is when a man refuses a girl's proposal of marriage he must buy her a new silk dress. I release you so you may fulfill the sentence immediately."

"Magistrate" Atkins later told the story.

"He bought it too," she said, "a black satin crepe dress trimmed in egg shell, and it just fits."

She and other young women were selected by a secret committee of the chamber of commerce to run this city of 50,000 for a day.

Three Brownfield Firms Are Robbed

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 29. (Special) Three buildings were entered here early Sunday and at least two of the places were looted, the sheriff's department said. No arrests had been made.

Outgoing mail was opened and rural carriers' cash boxes forced open in the Brownfield postoffice. What was obtained from the postal quarters had not been determined. No money order blanks were believed to have been stolen.

A rifle and a revolver were taken from the Murphy Bros. grocery and three old-style government revolvers and an automatic were taken from the postoffice. Groceries and the stock of cigarets were taken from the grocery.

Although a theater was believed to have been entered, nothing was discovered missing, the sheriff's department reported. Entrance to the grocery was gained by breaking glass in a door, making an opening large enough for passage of a hand to push off a bar inside. Bars were pried off a window to break into the postoffice.

Three men were believed to have [execu]ted the robberies.

"The campaign has been misunderstood," is was said Monday at the chamber offices here. "While the bonds are to be sold to bring money out of hoarding, no general campaign will be made to sell the bonds to the average business or professional man who is not hoarding."

An invitation to Lubbock Loyalty council members to attend the mass meeting was given by J. O. Jones, council president. "This is a great patriotic and loyalty movement," said Jones. "Members of the council will be expected to render every assistance in the campaign."

Post Already Working

Citizens of nearby towns have indicated they are to attend. "We already have an organization at Post and started work, but we appreciate this opportunity to get additional information," said Walter Duckworth, Post CC president.

"We will have a delegation in Lubbock," A. V. Bullock of Ralls said Monday.

Tahoka will be represented, said Walter Slaton, Tahoka banker. J. W. Hale said Littlefield would have a delegation. Slaton A. J. Payne said, already has arranged a group to attend, as has Ralls, A. V. Bullock reported.

"The college is glad to have a part in the program," said Dean J. M. Gordon of Tech.

"The prime object of the campaign is to get hidden money back into circulation," Barrett declared at Fort Worth Monday. "It is a part of the well-grounded policy of reconstruction which will lead to greatly improved conditions through the stimulation of public confidence."

No Acquittals Are Registered At Session During The Past Week; Other Cases Scheduled For This Week

TAHOKA, Feb. 29. (Special.)—Ten convictions, only one of which was with term suspended, and no acquittals was the record hung up in district court here last week. Mrs. Ola Redman will go to trial Monday, March 7, for the murder last spring of Howard Chase in his car on a lonely road near here. This case is expected to attract extraordinary attention in this county.

Pilot Abandons Flight To Lamesa Because Of Winds

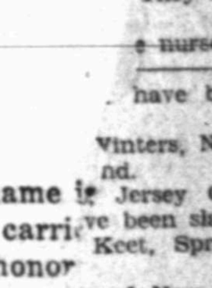

After an hour spent bucking a headwind estimated at about 90 miles an hour, David C. Ruse abandoned a trip in a Nicholas-Beasley monoplane to Lamesa Monday afternoon and returned to Lubbock airport.

The little craft failed to make headway against the wind and Lubbock people who saw the ship reported it appeared to be stationary in the skies. The plane has a cruising speed of 90 miles an hour, and consequently the wind speed was estimated at 90 miles per hour.

Ben Branson and Joe Dick Slaughter made a round trip in an Aeronca to Levelland yesterday before the wind in the upper stratas arose. Major F. I. Patrick and Lieut. F. G. Irvin of Fort Sill landed a Curtis Falcon at Lubbock airport Sunday. They were enroute from Fort Sill, Okla., to El Paso. L. R. Stringer, enroute in a Stinson from Wichita Falls to Floydada, spent three hours at Lubbock airport Sunday.

Negro Facing Murder Count

Joe Stapleton Is Charged For Shooting Of Will Morrison Here Sunday; Statement Is Made To Officers

Joe Stapleton, 22, negro, arrested early Monday at Brownfield, yesterday was charged with murder in connection with the shooting of his father-in-law, Will Morrison, who died at the door of a hospital Sunday night. Morrison was about 40 years old.

Stapleton, in a signed statement made to Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney, said Morrison drew a knife in a dispute growing out of allegations that Stapleton had circulated untruths about a sister-in-law. Stapleton said he pulled his gun from his shirt-front and as Morrison fled, he thought he was going after a gun.

The shooting occurred at a cafe in the 1700-block of Avenue A, about 11 o'clock Sunday night. Police Chief John Lemond said indications were the fatal gun play was an outgrowth of a family argument.

The accused man's statement was: A sister of Stapleton's wife charged Stapleton with lying about her in saying she had been seeking the affections of certain men. Stapleton denied circulating the tale. Later, his sister-in-law returned from church and demanded that Morrison relate what he had told her he had heard Stapleton say. The older man complied. The two men called each other liars and Morrison threatened Stapleton. Morrison knocked him down.

Police reported Stapleton fired a .38 caliber revolver five times at Morrison, the fifth bullet hitting the older man. Calvin Quigley, negro undertaker, reported Morrison's right lung was punctured and hemorrhages caused his death. Morrison is survived by a widow and several daughters. He was a member of the negro Masonic lodge. The body possibly will be sent to Dallas for burial. Morrison was employed at a local garage.

On being notified by Lubbock police, the Terry county sheriff's department arrested Stapleton at Brownfield, his home. He did not resist. Police Chief Lemond and Deputy Sheriff Will Earnest returned him to Lubbock.

A negro doctor, J. P. Oliver, and several other negroes took the dying man to West Texas hospital. He was not taken inside, as he died near the door.

This Was A 'Bank'

Bright silver and crisp bills yesterday. Today only a pried-up brick, a gaping hole and a few coins dropped in haste to tell the story of a tragic "bank" robbery.

The make-shift hoarding place—be it a tin can under the eaves or a slit mattress—was never proof against thieving fingers and never can be. Always a prey to easy theft, hidden currency is idle currency, too. It never yet earned a penny of interest!

A savings account at these banks provides safe-keeping for your cash reserve. Earning interest regularly, it provides an income, too.
