U. S. Leaves Phnom Penh

The SDN Column

Everybody has his own ideas when new rules and regulations are being proposed—there are five different bills under study in the Texas legislature that would provide some type of state utility commission. Also, there are plenty of ideas in Washington as to how such problems as the energy shortage should be solved.

Many times, it seems that those who know the least about the products, or items projected for regulation are the ones who rush forward with proposed rules. The result, of course, is confusion.

But Americans still can laugh at themselves, and the following set of "guidelines for construction contractors," passed along by the city engineering department, makes about as much sense as some of the proposals in Washington and Austin:

"The plans and specerfications are to be took together. Anythin showed on the plans and not menshuned in the specerfications and now showed on the plans is to be considered as both showed and specerfied, and anythin wanted by the Project Engineer or any of his friends or anybody else (ascept the contrakter) shall be considered pervided by the contrakter without no expense to nobuddy but hisself.

"If the work has ben done without no expence to the contrakter, the work shall be took down and done over and over agin, till the expence is satusfactory to the project engineer. Anythin that is rong shall be descovered by the contrakter and be don wright without a'tellin the arketekt, indercatin it on the bill.

"Anythin that is forgot or left out of the plans or specerfications, but which is nessersary for the conveyance of the owner shall be pervided without extry cost to nobuddy but the contrakter. The project engineer reserves the wright to change his mind about what is best.

"Any evidence of satesfakshun on the part of the contrakter shall be concidered just cos for withholdin final payment."

★ ★ ★

This piece, unquestionably written by a contractor, makes about as much sense as some of the proposed legislation around the state and national capitols, or even some of the city halls. But, when an American gets disgruntled over something, no matter how trivial, his first inclination usually is to yell, "We need a law against that."—WACIL McNAIR

Today In History

Today is Sunday, April 13, the 103rd day of 1975. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1743, the third American president and author of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, was born in Albemarle County, Va.

On this date—

In 1366, King Richard II of England was born.

In 1598, King Henry IV of France signed the Edict of Nantes, granting a large measure of religious liberty to the Protestant Huguenots.

In 1776, General George Washington, arrived in New York to prepare the city's defense in the Revolutionary war.

In 1848, the island of Sicily was declared independent of Naples.

In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington.

In 1964, the Motion Picture Academy named Sidney Poitier best actor. He was the first black to win an Oscar in the top categories.

Ten years ago: President Johnson disclosed that he was sending former ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to consult on Vietnam with four friendly governments in Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

Five years ago: The Pentagon reported that a Soviet submarine apparently had sunk in the Atlantic northwest of Spain, with a heavy loss of life.

One year ago: A special Syrian envoy went to Washington to discuss his government's detailed proposals for the separation of Syrian and Israeli military forces in the Golan Heights.

Psychological Blow To Viets

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The complete American withdrawal from Cambodia today will have little tactical or strategical impact on the war in South Vietnam, according to informed observers in Saigon.

But it is certain to strike a psychological blow to the South Vietnamese, whose own demoralized forces have given up three quarters of their country to Communist-led forces from the north.

The hurried American departure from Phnom Penh might mean the quick collapse of the capital city to Communist-led forces, but the South Vietnamese high command wrote off Cambodia years ago.

The eastern Cambodian provinces adjoining Vietnam have been Communist base areas for years.

While the neighboring governments of Saigon and Phnom Penh had some things in common — United States as arms and cash supplier, Communist-led forces es the enemy — they shared little else.

Experiments in military cooperation failed in the early 1970s, and animosity between the two governments developed, particularly over the treatment of each other's nationals.

Hundreds of Vietnamese were slaughtered in village pogroms in Cambodia in 1970. Cambodians living in Vietnam's Mekong Delta provinces charged repression.

Saigon did aid the Cambodian war effort by assisting supply convoys moving up the Mekong River to Phnom Penh, but this ended early in the year when insurgents effectively blocked the river.

Just as the South Vietnamese were unwilling to give much assistance to the Cambodians, so equally were the North Vietnamese reluctant to assist the insurgents.

North Vietnamese advisers were known to be with insurgent units, but the Vietnamese Communists rarely engaged directly in the war, letting the poorly trained insurgents struggle year after year to squeeze Phnom Penh, always to fall short of the mark — until this year.

The North Vietnamese were also niggardly with supplies. While their own units sported sophisticated howitzers and long range rockets, the Cambodian insurgents were provided only with old-fashioned 107mm rockets. They had to rely on captured 105mm howitzers for the final siege of Phnom Penh.

For these reasons, the fall of Phnom Penh to the Communist side — and with it the whole country — will have little tactical or strategic impact on the war in South Vietnam.

There are important psychological factors, however.

The first is an outgrowth of the U.S. decision to pull all its embassy staff out of Phnom Penh, signaling the complete abandonment of the Cambodian government.

The final evacuation plan was referred to as "pulling the pin," a reference to the devastating impact of such a final pullout on the morale of the defenders.

U.S. Marines are standing off the South Vietnamese coast with the avowed purpose of evacuating Americans should the situation in Saigon be viewed as critical.

The South Vietnamese government is likely to be asking itself, when will the U.S. "pull the pin" in Saigon, which will presumably be a similar signal of abandonment?

The American pullout in Phnom Penh seemed to have been based more on a recognition of the inevitability of military defeat, rather than an immediate military crisis. Such thinking could mean the departure of alt Americans from Saigon much earlier than the apparent military situation would seem to warrant.

Another psychological minus is the detrimental impact on the people of South Vietnam by the loss of Cambodia to the Communist side, another in a chain of defeats that began with the rout in South Vietnam's central highlands five weeks ago.

It is hardly calculated to restore confidence in Saigon.

SON OF STILTMAN—Dave DeGarro has a tall act to follow. DeGarro's father, Harold, started the son walking on stilts as a boy. Dave, like his father, is a stiltman.

Americans Evacuated

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The United States closed its embassy in Phnom Penh today and evacuated Americans and some Cambodians, including Acting President Sau Kham Khoy, in a helicopter airlift protected by heavily armed U.S. Marines.

The evacuation, code-named "Operation Eagle Pull" and ordered by President Ford as the Khmer Rouge closed to within one mile of the Phnom Penh airport, signaled American abandonment of Cambodia to the Communist-led insurgents.

The city remained calm after the departure of the 276 evacuees, but virtually everything left behind by the embassy was looted, including staff cars that took Americans to helicopters. Fighting was reported on the northwestern defense line.

Premier Long Boret criticized Sau Kham Khoy in a radio broadcast, saying his departure showed the acting president was lacking as a leader. Long Boret announced that a provisional high committee had been set up to rule the country and that Sau Kham Khoy was no longer recognized as acting president.

A representative of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, titular leader of the rebels, said in Paris "there will be no blood bath" when the rebels reach the city, but he said those Cambodian leaders on the Khmer Rouge death list will be punished. Chau Seng said the Khmer Rouge will practice a policy of "broad national union."

The two-hour evacuation began shortly before 9 a.m. local time, when about 360 armed Marines flew to the U.S. Embassy aboard helicopters.

A total of 24 helicopters eventually flew in from the USS Okinawa and the USS Hancock, both standing off the coast of Cambodia, and the U.S. airbase at Utapao, Thailand.

American warplanes from the Okinawa flew overhead as the Marines arrived and the helicopters were loaded for the 75-minute flight to the Okinawa. After everyone was aboard ship, the Okinawa steamed toward Thailand.

About a dozen rockets hit Phnom Penh after the evacuation, most of them aimed at the grassy area where the helicopters had loaded. Two Cambodian civilians were killed.

The Americans who stayed behind included Sydney Schanberg of the New York Times; Al Rockoff, a freelance photographer; Douglas Sapper, an employe of a small private airline; and Richard Boyle, foreign editor of the Pacific News Service.

A number of French, Italian and Swedish journalists also remained, along with a French community estimated at several hundred.

Those evacuated included 82 Americans, 159 Cambodians and small numbers of other nationalities, a Pentagon spokesman said in Washington.

Bus Crash Injures 17 Passengers

CLINES CORNERS, N.M. (AP) — A Continental Trailways bus went out of control and crashed on snow-covered Interstate 40 early today, injuring 17 passengers and the driver, the Torrance County Sheriff's Department said.

Deputies said none of the injuries appeared serious. The 18 persons aboard the bus were admitted to various Albuquerque hospitals.

Officers said the mishap occurred shortly after 2 a.m. some eight miles east of Clines Corners.

The eastbound bus apparently skidded out of control and slid off the right side of the highway, toppling onto its side, officers said.

A deputy said snow was falling and more than two inches of snow covered the highway.

A Contintental Trailways spokesman said the bus was eastbound from Los Angeles to New York. It had left Albuquerque at about 12:15 a.m., he said. The next stop would have been Amarillo, Tex.

Risenhoover Endorses Bentsen

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The first Oklahoma elected official to cast his endorsement for U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas for president is U.S. Rep. Ted Risenhoover of Tahlequah.

Risenhoover made the endorsement Friday while Bentsen attended several business meetings with party leaders, supporters and businessmen.

"I support and endorse Sen. Lloyd Bentsen for President of the United States because I am convinced he is the best man for the party and the best man for America," Risenhoover told the convention of the Oklahoma Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs.

The Texan started the day with a breakfast meeting, which was attended by legislators, state party chairman Bob Funston, former Corporation Commission chairman Charles Nesbitt and former U.S. Rep. Ed Edmonston.

Bentsen also addressed the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce.

Feaster Rites Set Monday

Clyde Wayne Feaster, 33, of Hermleigh died at 6:55 p.m. Friday in Scott and White Hospital at Temple following a long illness.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church in Snyder. The Rev. Charles Bridges, pastor of Central Baptist Church in Hermleigh, will officiate. He will be assisted by the Rev. George Magnor, pastor of Avenue D Baptist Church. Burial will be in Lone Wolf Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Mitchell County, Mr. Feaster has lived in Scurry County for the past six years. He was superintendent of the Sunday School at Central Bapist Church in Hermleigh, served on the board of trustees of the Hermleigh Independent School District and was a director of the Buford Co-op Gin.

He was married on Dec. 30, 1960, at union, to Miss Welda Kay Bills, who survives.

Also surviving are a daughter, Terrie Sue Feaster; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Feaster of Colorado City; a sister, Mrs. Glenda Stinson of Colorado City. A son preceded him in death in 1972.

HAYLIFT MAY BE TOO LATE

Montana Blizzard May Claim 33,000 Calves

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — An emergency haylift to snow-stranded cattle in north-central Montana may have come too late for as many as 33,000 newborn calves trapped by a raging three-day blizzard.

"There's no doubt there's going to be heavy losses," said Leo Kolstad, regional chairman of U.S. Department of Agriculture's emergency board.

Kolstad inspected some blizzard-stricken areas Friday, then called superiors in Washington, D.C., and requested broad discretionary authority to designate as many as nine counties as disaster livestock feed areas.

"The state's in a very critical position as far as adequate supply of feed for cattle," Kolstad said. "The most serious problem is ranchers who can't get out to check and don't know."

Gov. Thomas L. Judge declared a state of emergency on Thursday as the storm subsided and ordered nine Army National Guard helicopters to begin a 48-hour airlift of hay and oats to livestock trapped in outlying pastures.

A full grown cow consumes 30 pounds of feed per day. Most stockmen provide supplemental feed on an every-other-day basis.

Col. A.J. Christianson termed the operation a success, but Kolstad said as many as 20 per cent of the area's estimated 161,420 newborn calves may not have survived the two-foot snowfall, towering drifts and freezing winds.

"If a cow and calf are out in the storm, the calf will have a tendency to lie down," Kolstad said. "The mother will stay, they get drifted in and then they're too weak to fight."

Spring calving and lambing were about 65 per cent complete in the area raked by snow and up to 50 mile-an-hour winds from Monday to Wednesday.

It was the fourth major storm since the first day of spring, March 21, and stockmen in this heavily agricultural state already have reported widespread outbreaks of pneumonia and intestinal flu among their herds.

A rancher in the northern Montana town of Galata reported he was unable to spot any of his estimated 900 cattle Thursday night after searching broad areas by bulldozer.

Kolstad said his office had received reports that a 250,000-acre grazing range near Harlowton in central Montana was totally inaccessible. He expressed optimism that plow crews could break open some access roads before Monday.

Alabama, New York Fires Kill At Least 12 Children

By The Associated Press

Fires swept through wood-frame houses in Alabama and upstate New York, killing at least 12 children, authorities said today.

In Beaulah, Ala., nine children died Friday night when fire raced through their rural home before firemen could reach the scene, authorities said. A spokesman for the Lee County Sheriff's department said the victims were from two families.

Authorities originally listed eight dead.

In Truxton, N.Y., fire swept through a two-story frame house late Friday night, killing three children, state police said.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office would not identify the children who perished in the Alabama fire. He said their bodies were too badly burned for immediate positive identification.

Neighbors told police officers that the parents were away when the fire struck the house full of children Friday night. The oldest was about 15, they said.

Authorities said the cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Troopers at the scene of the Truxton blaze said the children's parents, Vane Marshall, 31, and his wife, Shirley, 26, were unable to rescue the youngsters because of the extreme heat and smoke in the attic where the children were sleeping.

Killed were Kenneth, 7, and 6-year-old twins Douglas and Kellie. Their bodies were found in the attic, troopers said.

Marshall was treated for a severely cut hand and his wife was treated for shock.

Police said a faulty wood-burning stove may have caused the blaze, which they said began about 11 p.m.

11 Astronauts To Train In Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — American astronauts scheduled for a joint U.S.-Soviet flight leave for Russia this weekend for a training visit during which they will get their only pre-flight look at the Soyuz spacecraft to be used.

"They'll kick tires and hardware, you can be sire of that," said Capt. Chester E. Lee, Apollo program manager for the flight scheduled July 15.

The astronauts, Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton, have worked out in mockups and simulators of the Russian spacecraft, but they have never seen the ship to be used in the flight.

Brand told a news conference Friday the three will get a one-day look on this visit, the third and last of a series of back-and-forth training visits.

Final meetings between American and Soviet space officials will be held in May, and Lee said Americans will want a detailed explanation of why a manned Russian space flight had to be aborted last weekend.

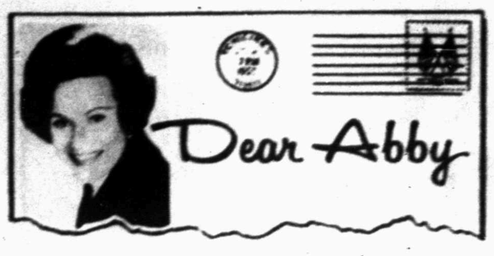

Soyuz 18 was brought to earth shortly after takeoff last Saturday because the third-stage rocket veered off course. The two cosmonauts returned safely.

Lee told a news conference the failure to achieve orbit at this point "has no impact on the program or launch date." But he added:

"A launch abort is always a series question, and I have to assume our own contingency planning would involve taking a lot of time to analyze such a failure if it had been ours."

Lee said the Soyuz technical director, Konstantine Bushuyev, had given a verbal report about the failure to his American counterpart and said he would follow with a detailed message.

The abort was the first failure of the Russian A-2 rocket, which has been in use since 1962. An A-2 will be used to carry Soviet cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov to their docking rendezvous with the Apollo crew.

Fiance Conveniently Forgets the Marriage License

DEAR ABBY: I wish people who ask ministers to conduct funerals and weddings knew what the word "honorarium" means (a payment to a professional for services for which no fee is set or legally obtainable.)

Some people feel it is so crude to ask a minister: "How much do I owe you," that they just let the matter go and do nothing about it at all.

My husband is a minister (please don't say where), and within the last year, he was called to officiate at the funeral services of both an elderly man and his wife, who lived 35 miles away. He was given no fee.

Abby, can you imagine anyone writing the following note to an attorney? "Thank you, Mr. Jones, for your legal services. Mother and Dad would have wanted you to come down to handle these legal services for us at this trying time."

Or the minister to his barber: "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for cutting my hair at this time. I would not want to embarrass the family by needing a haircut." Or: "Thank you, Mr. Brown, for the gasoline, oil and car wash. I wouldn't want to run out of gas on my way to a funeral or show up with a dirty car." Or: "Thank you, Mr. White, for cleaning and pressing my suit. I would not want to embarrass the family at this time by appearing unkempt."

In order to make ends meet, my husband moonlights and had to pay a substitute for his second job so he could make these two funerals.

INDIGNANT

DEAR INDIGNANT: Perhaps because there is no set fee for conducting funerals and weddings, some folks feel that there is no fee at all. Also, some clergymen have written to tell me that they consider such services a part of their job, and they're insulted when they are offered money for doing the work of the Lord.

I say: "Offer anyway. The offended clergyman can always refuse."

DEAR ABBY: I am 18, and the boy I've been dating for two years is 19. We were supposed to get married secretly last month, but Dick showed up without the license.

Originally, when I had asked him if he had it, he had said yes.

But after we arrived at the preacher's house and the preacher asked Dick for the license, Dick said he "forgot" it at home, hoping the preacher would perform the ceremony anyway, and let him bring it around later.

Well, the preacher wouldn't marry us without the license, so we decided to stay in a motel that night, thinking Dick would get the license the next day, and we'd get married, and nobody would know the careless mistake he made.

Well, the preacher called my father, and my father came to the motel to pick me up. I felt just awful, but I went with my father.

I still have feelings for Dick. He says if I don't come back to him he will kill himself. My parents say I should let Dick go. Should I listen to my parents or stick with Dick?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Listen to your parents, dear. Dick didn't make a "careless" mistake, he lied to you. He sounds much too immature and irresponsible for marriage now.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LU: Don't believe everything you see in print. Many celebrities prefer to let vicious untruths go unchallenged rather than to sue for defamation of character because they believe that if one wrestles with a skunk, he's apt to emerge smelling as bad as the skunk.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Miss Genuchi In Recital

A piano recital by Vena Beth Genuchi will be presented at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College.

The public is invited to attend the recital and there will be no admission charge. Visitors are also invited to see the W.H.D. Koerner art exhibit in the museum building on the campus. The museum will be open from 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Genuchi, a 1972 graduate of Snyder High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen W. Genuchi and the late Dr. Marvin C. Genuchi. She is now a junior student at Texas Tech University and is studying with Dr. Thomas Redcay.

Music for the program this afternoon will include Novelette (Op. 22, No. 1), Traumeri (Op. 15, No. 7), and Arabesque (Op. 18) by Robert Schumann; Concerto in D Minor, K. 466, by Mozart, and the III Sonate Fur Klavier by Paul Hindemith.

Bridge Lessons For Beginners

Bridge lessons for beginners will be taught in a Community Service course at Western Texas College starting Thursday night.

Mrs. Verdi Kimbro will be the instructor for the class. Registration is to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Service office in the faculty offices building at the east side of the central courtyard. The first class is to begin at 8 o'clock.

May Day on the mainland is the same as Lei Day in the Hawaiian Islands.

Jaycees Are In Session

Snyder Jaycees got a report on their membership drive and their concession stand project for the Derrell Sanders benefit show at their regular luncheon meeting Friday at the Snyder Country Club.

Jaycees are recruiting young men 18 to 35 who are interested in leadership training through community involvement, reported Ron Kelly. Any young man interested in joining the Jaycees and becoming an involved member of the community is asked to contact any member of the club.

President Tim Burton, who presided, reported that supplies for the concession stand at the benefit show were furnished by Mac McCowen of the Food Basket Stores and Don Adams. All proceeds from the concessions went to the Derrell Sanders fund.

Guests at the meeting were Mike Elkins, Raun Stoltz, Ben Wharton and Dr. Robert Taylor.

Area Airport Needs To Be Discussed

A Texas Airport System joint planning conference will be held at 10 a.m., Wednesday, April 23, in the Council Chambers of the Snyder City Hall.

Airport development needs of Fisher, Kent, Mitchell, Scurry, Stonewall, and Nolan Counties will be discussed.

Participating in the meeting will be representatives of the West Central Texas Council of Governments, city and county elected officials, airport board members, airport managers, and other citizens.

All area citizens with an interest in air transportation and airport development are invited to attend.

Benefits of air transportation to a community are not always well understood. General aviation airports will be examined in relation to community and county development goals.

The Texas Airport System Plan is being developed for Texas and the Federal Aviation Administration by the Texas Aeronautics Commission. Technical assistance is provided by the Texas Transportation Institute of Texas A&M University.

Major activities of the Plan include inventory of existing aviation facilities, forecasting of aviation demand; comparison of present capacity with forecast needs; evaluation of alternative airport systems, developing schedules of required improvements, and identification of alternatives for financing system growth.

Full Flight Service Near, Says TIA

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas International Airlines says full service resumption is nearing completion following a four-month strike.

Airlines officials said Friday the carrier is adding 46 more flights to its schedule Sunday.

The carrier will resume service Sunday to Salt Lake City, Utah, and to Monterrey, Mexico, and additional flights will be added to a number of Texas and Louisiana cities and at Albuquerque, Los Angeles, Denver and Mexico City.

The additional flights will bring daily departures to 289 for the airline, vice president Jim O'Donnell said. Full resumption of service will be completed May 5, O'Donnell said, with additional flights to Tampico and Veracruz, Mexico.

However, he said the schedule at that time still will be 20 per cent below the number of flights the airline had before the strike which ended last Friday.

Snyderite's Brother Dies

Word was received here Saturday morning of the death of Harvey Cozart, brother of Mrs. Simon S. Steinberg.

Mr. Cozart died at Fort Charlotte, Fla., where he resided. Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg left Saturday for Fort Charlotte, where funeral rites will be held Monday.

Cheerleader Clinic Set June 16-20

The second annual Cheerleader Clinic at Western Texas College has been scheduled June 16-20.

The clinic is primarily designed for present and prospective high school cheerleaders, although students from junior high schools and colleges are also welcome. Advisors are invited to accompany their cheerleaders at no charge.

Personnel from the National All-Star Cheerleading Conference will provide instruction, emphasizing such areas as cheer techniques, soul chants, pompom routines, skit and pep rally planning, fund raising ideas, tumbling, partner stunts, squad coordination, leadership and responsibility. Special seminars are scheduled daily for advisors.

A nominal tuition fee determined by the Cheerleading Conference is required of each camper. Campers residing in the air-conditioned dormitories will eat in the Sudent Center cafeteria. Non-resident campers who commute to the clinic may make separate arrangements for cafeteria meals.

Applications may be obtained by writing to Pepster All-Star Cheerleader Conference, 4050 Executive Park Drive, Cincinnati, Ohio 45241. Additional information may be secured by contacting Mickey Baird, Director of Student Activities, at Western Texas College, Snyder, Texas 79549.

Genealogical Workshop Set At Lamesa

The Lamesa Area Genealogical Society will sponsor a genealogical workshop, Saturday, April 19th at Forrest Park Community Building in Lamesa. Tony Turk, associate professor of history and government at Western Texas College, will be the guest speaker. Turk, an authoratative speaker on genealogical research, will speak at 10 a.m. and will be available for consultation on genealogical research at 9 a.m.

Books from personal libraries and from the Genealogical Department of the Dawson County Public Library will be available for use by those attending the workshop. Materials will also be made available for beginners.

A light lunch will be served at noon and will be followed by a beginners workshop at 2 p.m.

The workshop is open to the public without charge. Anyone interested is invited to attend and bring any family records, genealogical books or any other thing which would be of interest in this field.

CROPS PRODUCTION MEETING:

If you missed the meeting on Thursday night, you missed some good information. Roy Hanson, our ASCS County Office Manager, gave an excellent presentation of the proposed farm bill as it stands at this time. Dr. James Supak, Area Cotton Speicalist, discussed sunflower production and weed control chemicals. Marvin Sartin, Area Economist—Management, gave his opinion as to the outlook for crops and livestock important to this area. The picture he painted was not rosy, but stressed the importance of the economical production practices.

SELECTING SHADE TREES:

I received an article from Ted Fisher, Travis County Extension Horticulturist, with some comments and opinions I have had for a long time and would like to share them with you. As far as the trees he mentions, keep in mind that he is located in Travis County, but the ideas will apply to trees recommended for our area.

"We would like to plant a live oak or magnolia, or pecan, but we don't want to wait 10 years for shade." Sound familiar? this is a very common comment from homeowners who want to plant a shade tree.

What about the "fast" versue "slow" growing trees? The fact is, with proper care, trees that may otherwise be considered slow growers might not necessarily be slow growers at all. it all depends on the care you give them.

Superior shade and ornamental trees like the live oak, Spanish oak, pecan and magnolia should not be passed up just because they are labeled as "slow growers". Much of the growth of any tree depends on the care you give it. There are several things that you can do to speed up the growth of any tree.

First, consider soil conditions. If the soil where the tree will be planted is poorly drained, compacted, infertile or too dry, take the time to modify it to better suit the trees' requirements. Many soil additives or amendments are available, and when corporated into the soil can greatly improve the physical condition.

Next, consider the nutrient supply in the soil. If the soil is naturally infertile, periodic applications of a complete fertilizer can greatly increase the rate of growth and size of a so-called "slow growing" tree.

Consider the spot where you will plant the tree. Most trees make maximum growth when planted in full sun. Don't plant a slow-growing tree in dense shade and expect it to grow quickly. Use mulches around the tree to reduce soil temperature, especially if planted in full sun. A mulch can insulate the tree roots and reduce soil temperature by as much as 15-20 degrees, thus making a more favorable environment for root growth.

the last two points to consider are probably the most important. Never disturb the root system and reduce competition to the tree. Even though trees have a few very deep roots, most of the root system is fairly shallow. And digging or hoeing which damages the roots of the tree can slow its growth considerably.

And finally, keep grass away from the newly-planted tree as long as possible. Research has shown that competition of grasses can reduce root growth of young trees as much as 50 per cent. This severe reduction means the tree gets less water and growth is restricted.

Maximum growth of any tree is the result of how well you help meet the optimum growing conditions of the tree. If you will follow these suggestions, that so-called "slow growing" shade tree may well grow as fast as one of the so-called "fast growers". And by planting a quality tree, you have added a valuable permanent investment to your home landscape.

DRIP OR TRICKLE IRRIGATION FOR FLOWER BEDS, SHRUB BORDER OR SMALL VEGETABLE GARDENS:

I have plans in the office for setting up a drip or trickle irrigation system for flower bed, yards, shrubs, etc. if you are considering anything of this kind. It does offer some advantages in saving water and giving better distrubution of what water you do use. So if you are interested check by the office.

TO WED—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wesley Hines of Snyder announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Barbara Ann, to Paul Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Z. Gilbert of Snyder. A June 1 wedding is planned in the First Baptist Church.

Byrd, Sims Speak Double Ring Vows

Lisa Jo Byrd and Robert David Sims exchanged solemn wedding vows at 7 p.m. on March 20 at the home of the bride, north of Snyder on the Leroy Spires' ranch.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and. Mrs. Bob Byrd of the Clairemont Rt. in Snyder. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sims of 110 Thirty-fourth St.

The Rev. George White of Northside Baptist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long white crepe knit, princess style dress with a short train. The dress featured leg of mutton sleeves and mandarin collar, empire waistline and covered buttons. Her headpiece was of a velvet bridal ribbon bow with finger tip streamers.

The bride wore pennies in her shoes minted in the years of their births. Something blue was her garter, something old was her great grandmother's gold wedding band. Something new was her gown and something borrowed was her aunt's diamond earrings. She carried red roses centered with stephonotis and baby's breath.

Shann Spikes of Snyder served as Maid of honor.. She wore a green and white long dress with one long stemmed white rose.

Best man was Reg Trout of Seminole, brother-in-law of the groom.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's table was appointed in silver with a centerpiece of red roses and stephanotis, Vicki Blankenship, Jodie Hart and Lori Byrd, sister of the bride, served in the houseparty.

To leave on a short wedding trip to Lubbock the bride chose a green and white pantsuit. Following the trip the couple will be at home at Monahans where the groom is a construction worker for Ranger Construction.

The couple attended Snyder High School.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from Abilene, Cross Plains, and Seminole.

Toombses Observe Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Toombs of Borden County were honored at a reception March 23 in observance of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Hosting the event, which was held in their home near Fluvanna, were their children, Charlotte of Lubbock, Michael, a student at Tech, and Patrick, a student at Borden County High School.

The former Margie Southard, daughter of Mrs. W. F. Conner of Lamesa and the late Byron Southard, and Toombs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cullen Toombs of Snyder, were married March 19, 1950 in the First Baptist Church of Lamesa. They have lived in Lamesa, Lubbock and Amarillo where Toombs was employed with the Santa Fe Railway Co.

The couple moved to their present home in 1959.

Mrs. Bobby Porter and Mrs. Ronnie Rosson, both of Lubbock and nieces of the couple served guests. Out of town guests were from Lameesa, Lubbock, San Angelo, Amarillo, Big Spring, Snyder, O'Donnell, Justiceburg and Artesia, N.M.

Concert To Be Held

VILLACH, Austria (AP) — The Carinthian Summer Festival will feature a Leonard Bernstein concert here Aug. 23. An introductory lecture will be followed by the playing of Bernstein's "Serenade" and "Symphony No. 2." Bernstein is to be present.

The Hungarian National Philharmonic will play and will play another program Aug. 25 and a Brahms program Aug. 26.

Evangelist Given $5,000 Airplane

MCPHERSON, Kan. (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff, who operates homes for boys and girls in the Corpus Christi, Tex., area, has been given a $5,000 airplane by a Kansas man.

"I offered the plane as a gift because I believe in what he is doing," said Charles Colyn. "He had a need and I had an airplane."

Roloff operates a home in Laguna Madre on a spoil island. It can be reached only by boat. This home is called "The Lighthouse," a bit of literary license since it is not a lighthouse.

Colyn learned of Roloff's work through the evangelist's radio program. He learned recently from one of Roloff's co-workers that Roloff needed an airplane, so he gave him his own Piper Tripacer.

"Christianity is more than in your mouth," Colyn said. "You have to live it."

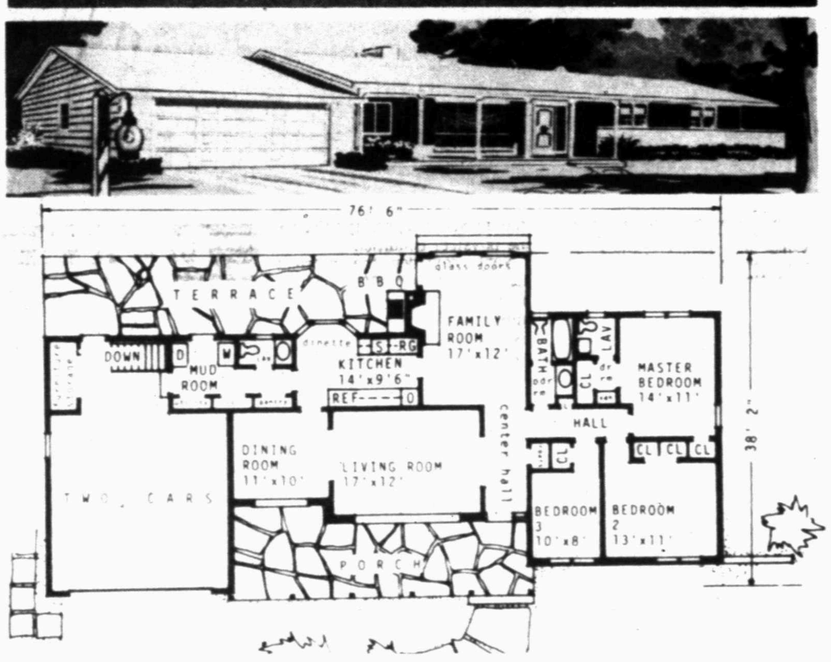

Foundation Will Be Memorial

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Singing Teachers' Assn., which had planned to commemorate the 30th anniversary of tenor Richard Tucker's Metropolitan Opera debut by presenting him with its Citation for Distinguished Achievement by an American Singer, made the presentation to his widow.

Mrs. Tucker announced the organization of the Richard Tucker Music Foundation. The foundation, with Mrs. Tucker as chairman, will embark on various projects in aid of young singers. Tucker was born in Brooklyn and entirely trained in the United States. He died Jan. 8, 17 days before his 30th anniversary at the Met.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS LONG AND LUXURIOUS—plan features all living areas off a central hall that minimizes through traffic. Seven rooms and two and a half baths are included in the 1,350 square feet living area. A utility area is added behind the garage and a built-in terrace barbecue is a great warm-weather bonus. Plan HA875C was designed by Lester Cohen, Room 505, 48 W. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. Anyone wishing to know the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Quotable Women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"All of us actresses are forever missing lines and entering the wrong door, and we recognize ourselves in her performance." Actress Ingrid Bergman, winner of an Academy Award for best supporting actress, complimenting one of her opponents, Valentina Cortese, who played the role of a forgetful actress in "Day for Night."

"All I've done for 14 years is raise money for An Lac so that the children could grow up in their own country to be better-educated citizens of their own country. But I don't want them to lose their minds and souls to what I call a godless society." Betty Tisdale of Columbus, Ga., who has started a campaign in Saigon to move an entire orphanage of nearly 400 youngsters to the United States to save them from communism.

"The idea of marriage isn't normal. It is all a lie. It has come from Victorian times because of land and titles and things, and we have romanticized ourselves into a magazine unreality. Marriage has no meaning. What it has is rules." Actress Cloris Leachman, interviewed in New York.

"Blue collar women have the most problems and receive the least help from anyone, including their spouses. That is why they are under more stress from a layoff than their white collar counterparts or males of either job status." Dr. Rachell Warren of the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at the University of Michigan.

"All our children are so absolutely beautiful, and everybody gets along marvelously. But it does get confusing at times. Once a girl called and said, 'This is Jennifer. I'll be home soon.' I said, 'All right.' Then I realized we didn't have anyone in the family named Jennifer. Oh, well, what's another?" Mrs. Bob DeBolt of San Francisco, whose family includes 17 children from previous marriages and other adoptions, and who is adopting a blind Vietnamese girl.

Scholarships At Eastman

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Students at the Eastman School of Music have new possibilities of financial help.

A gift of $1,000 from the National Musical String Co. will establish scholarships in the school's jazz studies and contemporary media program. The first two scholarships will be awarded to participants in the summer session arrangers' workshop and are named for the popular guitarists Johnny Rodriguez and Tom T. Hall.

The Alida and William Street Scholarship Fund, named for teacher William Street, will make assistance available to a percussion student. It was set up by Street's brother and three sisters.

The Lester and Edith Spencer Prize was established by Mrs. Spencer in memory of her late husband, an Eastman School alumnus.

Orange Angel Pie

ROAST CHICKEN

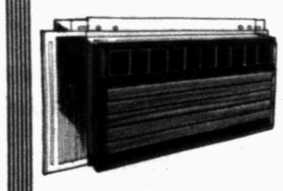

It has a savory stuffing.
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
3 cups seasoned croutons, from a 7-ounce package
2 tablespoons (about) water
4-pound roasting chicken

In a 10-inch skillet melt butter; add onion and celery and cook gently until onion wilts — about 10 minutes. Stir in the croutons and water — just enough to moisten slightly. Stuff body and neck cavity of chicken with mixture; truss. Place breast side down in a buttered 13 by 9 by 2 inch roasting pan. Roast in a 425-degree oven for 30 minutes, shaking pan midway to keep chicken from sticking. Turn breast side up and cut trussing string so legs are free. Continue to roast until tender — about 45 minutes longer; if any part of chicken gets too brown, cover with foil.

MRS. MICHAEL RAY GOEBEL

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Lockhart, 2712 Twenty-fifth St. announce the marriage of their daughter, Janis Kay, to Michael Ray Goebel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Goebel of Hermleigh.

The wedding was performed April 11 at 7 p.m. at the Faith Baptist Church by the Rev. L.W. Hatfield.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Snyder High School and attended WTC. She is employed by Drs. C.A. Dillaha and W.B. McSpadden. The groom is a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School and is employed by Snyder Motor Co.

After a short wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will reside at 2707½ Ave. W.

ABWA To Hold Bosses Night

ABWA will hold their Annual Bosses Night on April 24. All members are urged to write letters about the wonderful qualities of their employer. The panel needs time to review the letters and make their selection.

The speaker for the monthly dinner meeting at the Martha Ann Woman's Club will be Joe Reaves. He is an instructor in Sociology and Pyschology at WTC. Another added attraction for the evening will be, Jan Bellamy, staff announcer for KSNY. Jan will sing selections from Broadway shows.

Contact Alice Lane at 573-3419 for reservations.

Members direct your letters to Mrs. Eura Beckham, president, 2512 Thirty-first St. Mail it promptly if you wish your boss to be selected for "ABWA Boss of the Year."

You may be able to pick up some old tin cans with covers at a garage sale; the ones that food came in are attractive to use in a modern kitchen. Because their colors are muted and their printing is old-fashioned, they look "antique." Some of them may even have recipes on them.

Premiere Set

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Opera Company will celebrate the Bicentennial and its own silver anniversary next season with three firsts — the world premiere of an opera and two operas never before performed in Baltimore.

The premiere will be "Ines de Castro," by Thomas Pasatieri with libretto by Bernard Stambler. It was commissioned by Mrs. Duane Lansing Peterson and is based on an incident in 14th-century Portuguese history. It will be Baltimore's first world premiere of an opera.

Also to be done in the season are Donizetti's "Maria Stuarda" with Rita Shane, Marisa Galvany and Gene Bullard, and Offenbach's "La Grande Duchesse de Gerolstein," with the production and cast of the Santa Fe Opera Company. Santa Fe Opeca's general director, John Crosby, will conduct.

Weight Watcher Conference To Be Held In New York

A nationally-known group of scientists, authors and lecturers—all recognized experts on nutrition—will take part in a two-day nutritional conference on April 15 - 16, sponsored by Weight Watchers International, Inc. The conference will deal with nutrition and its relationship to obesity.

Attending the conference will be Adele McGinty, of Lubbock, who is the Area Director of Weight Watchers in West Texas. Also attending will be Jo Sparks, of Amarillo, Sylvia Salit of Lubbock, and Dortha Morgan of Midland, Area Training Directors.

"This Nutrition Conference provides a unique opportunity to bring even greater awareness of good nutrition to the members of Weight Watchers and to the general public," said Mrs. McGinty.

"It is particularly important to us, since more than ever we must all become increasingly concerned about correcting nutritional deficiencies in our eating habits," Adele continued.

"Weight Watchers has always advocated nutrionally-sound eating habits," Adele notes, "but this work-shop will help us zero in on ways to further improve our services and understanding."

The symposium will take place at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and will cover many aspects of nutrition—from how it affects the world to what it means to the individual. It will be attended by Weight Watchers franchises and staff from the United States, Canada, and overseas.

Keynoting the conference will be Dr. William H. Sebrell, Medical Director of Weight Watchers International.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Joan Gussow, a professor at Columbia University's Teacher's College, who will cite some of the myths and misconceptions even knowledgeable people have in regard to the food they eat.

Dr. Howard Schnieder, a Professor of biocheminstry and Director of the Institute of Nutrition in North Carolina, will address the conference on the diminishing quality of the food that reaches the American table, how it affects us all and what can be done about it.

Frances Moore Lappe, "Diet for a Small Planet," an internationally-acclaimed book which warns that we are fast approaching the limit of earth's capacity to feed the world, speaks on how this fact of life will force Americans to change their eating habits in the not-too-distant future. A change which will be beneficial to the health of us all, she says.

Robert Choate, a nationally-known author and lecturer on nutrition, will discuss food advertising and nutrition and what this means to the consumer.

The second day of the two-day conference will begin with a panel of world-famous doctors who will discuss the various aspects of nutrition in relation to obesity and health. Appearing on the panel will be: Dr. William H. Sebrell; Dr. Jules Hirsch, Professor and Senior Physician at Rockefeller University and Hospital; Dr. George Christakis, Clinical Professor of Epidemiology and Public Health at the University of Miami Medical School; and Dr. Zak I. Sabry, President of the Nutrition Research Consultants, Limited, a Canadian firm that has advised governments and industry on nutritional problems.

Following the panel discussion, Dr. Howard R. Roberts, Acting Director of the Food Division, Food and Drug Administration, will discuss the role of government in the nation's nutritional picture with particular regard to nutrition labeling.

To round off the symposium will be Helen Ullrich, the Executive Director of the Society for Nutrition Education, who will discuss nutrition on the practical level. She will offer advice to the housewife who faces "booby traps" everywhere as she rolls her shopping cart down the aisles of the supermarket.

On hand at the two-day symposium will be Jean Nidetch, Founder of Weight Watchers International, who has been an inspiration to millions of overwieght people because of her leadership in the weight control field. The "formerly fat housewife" trimmed down from 214 to 142 pounds in 1961. She has since been bringing the message of sensible eating to people around the world.

WeightWatchers International, Inc., was founded in May of 1963. There have been more than six million membership enrollments in Weight Watchers classes. The publicly-held corporation has over a hundred franchises which operate Weight Watchers classes throughout the United States, as well as in Puerto Rico, U.S. Virgin Islands, Canada, England, Ireland, Scottland, Australia, New Zealand, and Mexico. There are also company-owned class operations in Europe and South Africa.

The main purpose of Weight Watchers International is to help re-educate eating habits of people so they can learn how to keep the weight off forever.

Prospective members are urged to consult a physician to make certain there is no medical reason why they should not embark on the Program.

Brynner Happy With Viet Daughter

BOSTON (AP) — Actor Yul Brynner bounced his newly adopted Vietnamese daughter on his knee and said, "We are extraordinarily lucky."

The 6-month-old infant, named Melody, arrived in Boston on Wednesday after surviving the crash of an C5A Galaxy transport plane near Saigon last week.

Brynner cuddled the child Thursday as she wailed in surprise at the flash of photographers' cameras in the family's suite at a Boston hotel.

"She came out without a scratch or a bruise," he said. "Can you imagine going through an airplane crash and coming out with only a runny nose? That has to be some kind of miracle."

While Brynner held Melody, his other adopted Vietnamese daughter, 1½-year-old Mia, sat on his lap and smiled.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Corn meal which contains the complete germ is one of the most healthful foods you can serve to your family. White corn meal is preferred by some, however yellow corn meal has a fuller taste and is more nutritious, as it contains carotene which the body converts to Vitamin A. Cooked corn meal, corn meal muffins, pancakes, bread – all are most nutritious in the human diet.

EVEN IF THEY DON'T CAST BALLOTS

Taxpayers Will Spend 1.5 Million Dollars

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — It is going to cost Texas taxpayers whether or not they vote April 22 on two proposals that would raise legislators' salaries and increase retirement pay for teachers and state employes.

One county official said the cost per ballot of some precincts might go as high as $5.86.

On a statewide basis, the cost of the referendum on the two proposed constitution changes will run about $1.5 million.

"That's about as cheap as you can have a statewide election in Texas, no matter how they turn out," said Robert Lemens, head of the elections division in the Secretary of State's office. "The fewer who turn out the more it will cost per ballot."

Most big city county clerks figure on a turnout of about 10 per cent with the per vote cost about $1 each.

Robert Johnson, head of the Texas Election Bureau which will gather the unofficial returns, sees a turnout of about 500,000 votes.

Others, including Lemens, point to 1973, another non-presidential election year, when 605,000 voters, or about 15 per cent, turned out to vote on nine proposed constitution changes, including one on legislators' pay raises and annual legislative sessions. The pay issue carried in only 12 of the 254 counties.

The April 22 ballot has only two proposals, the shortest ballot for a special election on constitutional amendments since 1923.

The increased retirement benefits, where the main change would let the state contribute up to 10 per cent instead of 6 per cent to pensions, was an emergency issue early in this legislative session. Legislators suddenly decided a plan to hike their own salaries from $400 to $600 a month also was an emergency and added it to the ballot.

First plans were to have the statewide election early in April to coincide with city and school board elections but there were legislative delays and April 22 finally became the date for the lonesome issues.

Some sources think the big turnouts for city elections may encourage voters to try again at the April 22 vote.

And it was no secret in legislative halls that the big push to get quick passage of the proposed new state constitution was in hopes the approval would erase from voters' minds some memories of unsuccessful 1974 Constitutional Convention, where all the delegates were legislators.

On the other hand, there is an effort by Texas House members, at least some of them, to conduct a "low profile campaign" that would attract only supporters—mostly state employes and public school teachers—to the polls.

"Keep the others home," advised an instruction pamphlet for House members. "To do this, a 'low profile campaign' should be run. That means not much press, publicity or public speaking, but a lot of personal contact.

Legislators were warned to use the word "adjusted," not "increased," in talking about the pay raise, or the jump in personal living expenses during sessions from $12 to $30 a day.

A spokesman for the Texas State Teachers Association said there had been considerable activity within the 160,000-member organization to get teachers registered and ready to vote "but we are not trying to bury it, we try to create public interest too."

About 40,000 retired teachers would be affected by the change.

The Texas Public Employees Association has asked directors of large state agencies to remind employes to vote. About 9,800 retired state employes would be affected, including about 85 retired legislators.

Harris County (Houston) Clerk R.E. Turrentine's office estimated a turnout of only 5 to 10 per cent of the county's 750,000 voters, at an election cost of about $220,000. The estimate of per vote cost ranged from $5.86 to $2.93.

In Dallas county, only about 35,000 voters out of the 560,000 eligible are expected to show up. With an election cost of about $30,000, that would be 88.5 cents a vote, the county clerk's office said.

"I'd say if we got 30,000 votes we'd be lucky. It's gonna cost a dollar a vote," said Tarrant County (Fort Worth) Clerk Ed Loftin. "They're just adding a burden to the taxpayers, spending money for an election that could be held in November with the other election. There's only two groups interested—the teachers association and the representatives in Austin and their families."

At Brownsville, Cameron County Clerk Joe Rivera estimated a turnout of about 10 per cent of the county's 63,000 registered voters. He estimated it would cost about $1 per vote. "We have to do it by the letter of the law even if there isn't much interest," he said.

Travis County (Austin) Clerk Doris Shropshire estimated a larger turnout than other counties of about 15 to 20 per cent "because we have so many state employes here" among the 181,000 registered voters. She estimated the election cost at $25,000 to $30,000.

Urban Rodent Control Plan Set For Area

Scurry County is one of 19 area counties selected to be serviced by an area Urban Rodent Control Specialist, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Texas A&M University cooperating.

Larry J. Killgo, a native of Snyder, will be stationed in the County Extension Office in Abilene. He is the son of C.J. Killgo of Snyder and has a B.S. degree in Wildlife Management from Texas Tech University.

As an urban Rodent Control Specialist, Killgo will work to help persons in urban areas with rodent problems by giving educational programs to any organized group of persons. Demonstrations will also be held in infested areas. Rats and mice, pests which threaten the area's health and economy are the most important rodents in this program.

Killgo explains that his office also distributes up to date information on controlling many other pest type animals such as sparrows, starlings, skunks, armadillos and racoons.

Killgo can be contacted through the local County Extension Office or by writing to him in one of County Extension Office, County Courthouse, Abilene 19602 or telephone 673-0331

Women's Schools Are Thriving

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) — Wellesley. Speak it tripingly on the tongue, or drawl it out, savoring each wealthy, plush syllable.

For many that college name still rings with oh-so-smug sophistication, the snobbish superiority of bright, aggressive rich girls away from home.

"I thought women would come out of here saying, "Well ess-lee," Barbara Sheridan separated the syllables in a bored, aristocratic monotone between clenched teeth.

She grinned. "Maybe that happened before, but I don't think it does so much anymore."

"Before" was when Wellesley stood out as the social pinnacle in the academic mountains of the Seven Sister colleges. That was when good girls went to girls' schools. Mothers insisted. Fathers paid willingly.

Now, after a social revolution that insists men and women are the same, or at least equal, Wellesley seems to mean something more. It is a college run by women for women.

That old notion is re-emerging as a good idea. For most all-female schools, it comes in the nick of time.

In 1968 there were 308 women's collges in the United States. Now there are 145. The rest have folded, merged or in the case of 119, gone coed. But only seven of them have disappeared since 1972.

In the past couple of years, the women's liberation movement has reached into high schools, and the idea that maybe women are the best people to prepare girls for a male-dominated world caught on.

Indeed, 70 women's colleges have formed the Women's College Coalition to define and develop this role. The Coalition has members in 22 states and the District of Columbia.

While many coed schools grapple with dwindling enrollments, more women than ever are applying to women's colleges.

Wellesley, for example, received 2,418 applicants, a record, for admission to its freshman class of 1975. That's a 2 per cent increase over 1974, when 2,357 applied. But 1974 was an 18 per cent increase over 1973's 2,000 applicants.

The low point in recent years was 1971, when 1,852 students applied. The peak in the 1960s was 1965, when 2,322 applied.

At Mt. Holyoke in South Hadley, Mass., there were 1,833 applicants in 1968, 1,682 in 1971 and 1,937 this year.

1st SU Class Due Honors

ABILENE—The first class to graduate from Simmons University will be honored Thursday, April 17, in the school's annual Founders Day program.

The Class of 1925 graduated one day after the institution's name was changed from Simmons College to Simmons University, and this year is invited back for special tribute as the Golden Anniversary Class. The custom of honoring the 50-year graduates on Founders Day began several years ago.

Of the 92 who graduated, 54 have been located and invited to receive the traditional 50th anniversary medallions. The presentation will be made during an all-school assembly program beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Behrens Chapel-Auditorium. Dr. Elwin L. Skiles, H-SU president, will present the awards.

Mrs. B.L. (Billie) Lacy, retired English professor at H-SU, will make the response for the class. Another of the "old grads" on the program will be Dr. J.P. McBeth of Dallas, who will deliver the invocation.

James Hallmark, a vice president of the H-SU Alumni Association, will preside at the assembly. The H-SU Concert Choir, directed by Dr. Loyd Hawthrone, will sing.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION LAUNCHED

Paul Revere Rode 200 Years Ago This Week

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two hundred years ago this week Paul Revere's ride and the battles of Lexington and Concord launched the American Revolution. This story of that week is the first in a series of AP Bicentennial Specials about the events and personalities that gave birth to a nation.

By DON McLEOD
Asstciated Press Writer

A score of horsemen rode out of Boston on the afternoon of April 18, 1775, setting off an alarm which in a few hours would begin the American Revolution.

Solomon Brown came upon them as he rode home to Lexington from market in Boston. He recognized them as British officers. An unusually large band, he thought, to be so far from Boston at sundown.

The youth noticed the soldiers were wearing greatcoats despite the early spring which already had brought dandelions to Lexington green.

Then he spotted concealed sidearms — something strictly forbidden for officers riding for pleasure. And they rode strangely, haltingly. Wherever they were going, Brown guessed, "they did not care to reach there until the shades of evening had set in."

Brown spurred his horse on to Lexington where he told William Munroe, his sergeant in the minute company. Munroe sent for his commander, Capt. John Parker.

The sergeant also sent guards to the house where Sam Adams and John Hancock were staying during the session of the Provincial Congress in nearby Concord.

Munroe watched from the shadows as the British rode through Lexington. He dispatched three men to follow. Other minutemen, not knowing exactly why, began reporting for duty.

Back in Boston they knew why. The mysterious horsemen were riding in advance of a military column and there would be "the hell to pay tomorrow." The column would try to seize contraband and arms.

A groom at the Province House heard the soldiers' talk and told John Ballard, who told William Dawes, who told Paul Revere, "who told him he had already heard it from two other persons."

Boston had known for days that something was brewing. British ships in the harbor had lowered their boats. The grenadiers and light infantry had been taken off duty, indicating a special mission ahead.

Then on the night of the 18th, the troops were loaded into boats for ferrying across the Charles River.

Gen. Thomas Gage ordered that no townspeople be allowed to leave the city that night.

But Revere had expected that the city might be sealed. Friends in Charlestown were watching for a signal from Christ Church — one lantern in the steeple if the troops marched out by land, two if they took a shortcut across the river.

Robert Newman, the church sexton, would be the signalman, but his house was full of billeted British officers. So, he pretended to go to bed early, then slipped out a window and over the rooftops. Across the river his twin signal was seen and an express rider sent out with the news. The Redcoats were coming!

Revere, meanwhile, made his way down to the waterfront, where he had a boat hidden and two friends waiting to row him across.

They rowed well out to sea to avoid detection, listening for a challenge or a shot.

At last their boat glided beneath the Charlestown docks. Revere was given a horse and warned of British patrols on the road. They had captured the first rider sent out.

When the British troops came by Boston Neck checkpoint, Revere was riding out of Charlestown. As he turned toward Lexington, he spotted two men on horseback under a tree.

"One of them tried to get ahead of me, and the other to take me," Revere said. "I turned my horse very quickly and galloped toward Charlestown Neck, and then pushed for the Medford road.

"The one who chased me, endeavoring to cut me off, got into a clay pond," Revere recalled. "I got clear of him and went through Medford, over the bridge and up to Menotomy."

Revere "alarmed almost every house, till I got to Lexington." He made straight for Adams and Hancock, but Sergeant Munroe refused to let him in the house and told him to hold down the noise.

"Noise!" exlaimed Revere. "You'll have noise enough before long. The Regulars are coming out!"

Out on the green the village bell rang the alarm and minutemen mustered. The roll was called, and Parker sent scouts to find the approaching British.

"The weather being rather chilly, after calling the roll, we were dismissed, but ordered to remain within call of the drum," said minuteman Ebenezer Munroe.

About this time Dawes, having managed to make his way from Boston, arrived and set off with Revere for Concord. Samuel Prescott, a Concord physician who had been courting a Lexington lass, caught up to them on the road.

A British patrol was just ahead. Halfway to Concord, Revere sighted two horsemen standing suspiciously near the road.

"In an instant I was surrounded," Revere reported.

Dawes and Prescott, coming upon the scene after a stop at a farmhouse, also were collared. As the British herded them off the road, Prescott gave a signal and all three spurred their horses.

"I observed a wood at a small distance and made for that, intending when I gained that to jump my horse and run afoot," Revere said. "Just as I reached it, out started six officers, seized my bridle, put their pistols to my breast."

Dawes got back on the road and sped away with two Redcoats in hot pursuit. Knowing his tired horse could not win the race, he pulled into the front yard of a roadside house and reined his horse so hard he fell off.

"Halp, boys," he shouted. "I've got two of 'em. Surround 'em."

And while the British paused to consider what they might be rushing into, Dawes made his getaway on foot. Unable to reach Concord, he turned back to Lexington.

Prescott jumped his mount over a stone wall, cut across fields he knew better than his pursuers, slipped down a creekbed, went through an orchard and reached Concord with the alarm.

Revere, meantime, had a big mouth which was stoking the violence to come. One of his captors tried to tell him they were only out looking for deserters.

"I told them I knew better," Revere boasted, "I knew what they were after ... that I had alarmed the country all the way up ... and I should have 500 men there soon."

Believing Revere's exaggeration, the British freed their prisoners after cutting their saddle girths and stealing Revere's horse, and raced back to the approaching column.

Hearing their report, Lt. Col. Francis Smith, commanding the 700 men now marching to Lexington and Concord, sent back to Boston for more troops.

Most of Capt. Parker's minutemen had retired to Buckman's tavern near the green, awaiting the call from William Diamond's drum. It came at daybreak.

When the first columns of British under Marine Maj. John Pitnairn marched into Lexington, they saw 70, not 500, minutemen strung across the village green.

"Stand your ground," Parker ordered. "Don't fire unless fired upon. But if they mean to have a war, let it begin here.!"

"The British troops came up directly in our front," said Pvt. Munroe. "The commanding officer advanced within a few rods of us and exlaimed, 'Disperse, you damned rebels!'"

"Ye villians, ye rebels, disperse!" It was Pitcairn. "Damn you, disperse.!

"I immediately ordered our troops to disperse and not to fire," Parker said later. He could see they were hopelessly outnumbered. But his men ambled away slowly, sulkily, each in his own direction — and holding onto his weapon.

And as Pitcairn demanded that the provincials disperse, he moved to prevent it by ordering his own men to surround and disarm them. As the Regulars advanced, they shouted.

Then somebody fired a shot. Many witnesses said it was a pistol — meaning a British officer. Some even named Pitcairn. Pitcairn believed it was an American straggler off the edge of the green.

The British broke ranks and began firing at will among the scattering colonials.

It was a riot, not a battle.

Eight Americans were dead, 10 wounded. The worst British injury was a private nicked in the leg.

The British reassembled and marched off toward Concord. Lexington buried its dead in a common grave, covered with fresh pine boughs for fear the returning British might disturb it.

The colonials let Smith march unopposed into Concord and took position on high ground across the Concord River while the British searched the town.

The British found little contraband remaining, but what they did detect was piled in the streets and burned. The Americans thought their town was being put to the torch.

"Will you let them burn the town down?" demanded Joseph Hosmer, the Concord adjutant.

"I haven't a man that is afraid to go," said Capt. Isaac Davis of Acton, and issued the order, "March!"

The three British companies guarding the North Bridge drew back and fired a warning. The Americans kept coming. This time the British fired to kill.

Capt. Davis, father of four, died on the spot. So did Amos Hosmer. "Fire, fellow soldiers," cried militia Maj. John Buttrick. "For God's Sake, Fire!"

Half the eight British officers fell. A sergeant and six privates were hit, one dead, another dying. The British broke and ran. A local boy coming on the scene buried a hatchet in the head of a wounded Redcoat.

Smith regrouped in Concord and set off for Boston.

"As soon as the British had gained the main road and passed a small bridge ... they faced about suddenly and fired a volley of musketry upon us," a minuteman said.

It seemed to the Regulars "as if men had dropped from the clouds" as the Americans lashed back.

The famous Bayeux Tapestry depicts the Norman conquest of England and the events leading up to it.

Dr. Lamb

Small lumps are medical mystery

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Last year I was hospitalized for tests, and they showed I have a disease called sarcoidosis. I have been on Prednisone for months.

The other day I went for another chest X ray, and the doctor said it was clear, I can start to decrease the Prednisone and hopefully this condition will stay dormant.

I am still experiencing tightening in my chest and have frequent heart pains. This condition also brought out arthritis in my legs and hands.

May I also say I gave up smoking nine months ago when this disease was discovered. I'm 39 and have never been sick a day in my life.

I want to know any information on this desease. I heard it is rare. What will happen if it reoccurs? And, is it in any way related to cancer?

DEAR READER—Sarcoid is one of those diseases that we have not solved. No one knows what causes it. It is commonly found on routine chest X rays for the first time, often in people who have no symptoms at all and thought they were perfectly healthy.

The disease causes little lump-like formations which can be fairly large in size. Doctors call these granulomas. The little lumps most commonly form in the lungs. And they may not interfere with lung function.

These lump-like formations may disappear in one part of the body and show up in another area. They can involve any part of the body, although the lung is the most common location.

Sarcoid has been confused with tuberculosis, which it is not. It is not cancer. We know a lot more about what it is not than what it is.

In a large number of cases the disease never causes any symptoms at all and just disappears. About 10 to 20 per cent of the patients do develop arthritis while the disease is active, and if there is not too much damage it may leave no permanent ill effects.

Only about five per cent of patients with the disease actually die from it, which is pretty remarkable when you realize how much it can involve and how little we know about treating it.

The corticosterone medicines like Prednisone are commonly used in patients with with extensive involvement or complications. The biggest danger really is too much lung damage, so it was a good thing you quit smoking.

Many patients do have a relapse after treatment with a cortisone. But the relapse is usually much milder and of shorter duration. So you should be through the worst of it and can look forward to less problems and eventually a complete cure. In most cases the disease lasts less than two years.

Muscles, including the heart, can be involved, but I would be so easily convinced that any chest pain you have is from your heart without other information. The liver too can be involved, but can recover.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I never thought I would write a letter like this, but here goes. I'm 65, my menstrual periods ended 10 years ago, and I've never married and never had an active sex life. In my younger years I never seemed to need or want it.

My parents were older when I was born, and I nursed and cared for them until they passed away. Now I have an apartment and live alone, which I am happy with. But I now feel I have lots to give. At this late date I find myself so sexually aroused at times I think it must be unnatural. My desires make me very uncomfortable and unhappy. What is the matter with me?

DEAR READER—Nothing. the fact is that this is the first time in your life that you have strong sexual feelings is more of a sympton than a sign of real increased sexual feelings.

When one's personal life becomes empty and time hangs heavy it is common to have sexual urges. It is a response to loneliness. The urge will prompt people to look for other people and maybe that is the way nature intended it to be.

You probably were so involved emotionally in taking care of your parents that you didn't really have the same love need you have now. A job helps, but jobs give few emotional satisfactions of the of the type most normal people need. You need something human to replace the outlet you used to have for human love. Probably you need a family more than you need sex. However, it is common for women of all ages as well as men to have sexual urges. So, you are not unusual.

Aside from the environmental factors that sometimes arouse sexual feelings, there is the question of medicines you might be taking. Some older women take hormones and that is often a good idea. Some medicines contain male hormone, too, and if there is a significant amount it may stimulate the sex urge. Male hormone stimulates the sex urge in both males and females. In these cases a readjustment of the balance of hormones prescribed often helps.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I would like to hear your opinion of laparoscopy sterilization. My girl friends and I have read all the information we could find on it and believed it sounded like a safe and quick recovery type of surgery.

One of the girls made an appointment to have it done this year, but now is skeptical of it because my doctor said that it may cause heart trouble later on in life.

Please give us your opinion on the surgery and if it will cause heart trouble.

DEAR READER—It is a fast, simple operation. And, it is about as safe as any surgical procedure can be. No surgery or even a needle stick is completely safe, nor is getting out of bed in the morning or even staying there.

There is no reason at all to assume that having your tubes tied by any method would cause you to have heart trouble later in life. You may have misunderstood your doctor.

There are studies of women who had their ovaries removed earlier in life having a higher rate of heart disease. This has nothing to do with having your tubes tied. In such types of sterilization operation the ovaries are not involved in any way and should continue to function in the same manner they would have functioned without the surgery.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on menopause, send 50 cents and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to the same address and ask for the "Menopause" booklet.

Bell Employe Doing Fair After Fall

HURST, Tex. (AP) — Steve White, 29, was in fair condition at Hurst-Euless-Bedford hospital after falling from a cable during an simulated rescue demonstration at the Bell Helicopter heliport.

The cable broke as he was being hoisted up into a helicopter while photographs were being taken for publication.

White broke one arm, a hip and his pelvis in the fall.

MRS. KAY ALBIN

Senior Center Director Named

Mrs. Kay Albin has been named director of the Senior Citizens Center at Western Texas College, Dr. James E. Tully, coordinator of Senior Citizens activities, has annoiunced.

The Senior Citizens Center is located in the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College and is open each week day for games or special activities. An open house is planned in the Center in May, which has been designated Older Texans Month by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Mrs. Albin was formerly employed as secretary for the Division of Science and Math at WTC. Her husband, Leslie Albin, is assistant professor of science at WTC and was one of the original faculty members there when the college opened in 1971.

Mrs. Albin was graduated from Hereford High Shcool and attended McMurry College. She has continued her studies at WTC and is to receive the Associate Arts Degree next month. She is a member of the Stanfield Elementary PTA, the Amitie Junior Study Club and the Scurry County Library Board and serves as a member of the volunteer advisory council for the Family Planning Clinic.

Mr. and Mrs. Albin are the parents of two daughters, Susan and Kim, both students at Stanfield Elementary School. The family enjoys camping and bicycling together, and attend the First United Methodist Church.

Senior Citizens are invited to use the Senior Center as a meeting place, Mrs. Albin said. Programs of interest to them will be arranged upon request, and Mrs. Albin may be contacted at 573-0444.

Strauss Says Kissinger Should Return Prize

KIEL, Germany (AP) — Franz Josef Strauss, conservative leader of West Germany, says Henry A. Kissinger should give back his Nobel Peace Prize because of the failure of the Vietnam peace talks.

In a campaign speech Thursday, Strauss said it was disheartening to see the peace prize go to the U.S. secretary of state and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam for something that turned out to be the nucleus of a new war and the "Communist final solution" in Vietnam.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're the one who makes out the family budget this week, chances are there'll be a little surplus after bills are paid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're up to handling matters that call for firmness and persistence. What you start, you're likely to see through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be hesistant today about calling in nearly forgotten IOU's. Your odds of collecting are better than even.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A good day to appraise the project you've been thinking of undertaking. Today you'll reflect upon it in a practical manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) Goals are not likely to elude you today. You have some aces in the hole. You know how to play them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you'll be able to put in some good words for a friend of lond-standing. She'll learn of this later and be grateful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct 23) Talk over financial matters jointly affecting you and your mate. If your goals are in accord, success is within reach.

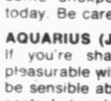

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A decision you'll have to make may at first appear stern to the casual observer. Events will prove that to be necessary, just and fair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll go out of your way to be of service to one who is older. Your kind deed will be remembered and later rewarded.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have an ally who is always there when needed. Again today, she'll do her best to make things pleasant for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be in the mood to clean up those bothersome little chores you haven't had a chance to get to this week. Get at them!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, seek out persons with whom you have ideas in common. Something good will come from your conversations.

Your Birthday

April 13, 1975

Your material situation will be more stable this year. Funds should be available to do things for the family you've had to hold in abeyance.

For Monday, April 14, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't rely on flattery to gain your ends today. If your compliments are insincere, they'll be detected by the recipient.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Put a limit on what you plan to spend at this time for items or activities outside of your normal needs, or you'll get carried away.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a tendency today to dissipate your energies on goals of small importance. Sight on worthwhile targets only.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A problem can be avoided with one you're fond of by not expecting the other party to jump every time you snap your fingers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's not the time to rehash something a friend did in the past to perturb you. Let bygones be bygones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The co-operation you need from someone will be denied you. Through other circumstances, what you hope to accomplish will be gained.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have more success with plans today if you deal with the top man instead of going through subordinates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't try to dominate the social scene today. Allow others in your company an opportunity to occupy the spotlight, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to keep peace on the home front a compromise will be called for. Centerground will be the safest spot.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A task that you can normally handle with ease will develop some unexpected problems today. Be careful and patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're sharing something pleasurable with friends today, be sensible about dividing the costs. Let each pay his portion.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be overly anxious about the coutcome of an important event and do something impulsive. It will be okay if allowed to run its course.

Let's set the record straight; we never as much as intimated that Joe Sentell was a pianist the caliber of, say, Paderewski.

His style is somewhat reminiscent of Victor Borge, only with Borge it's an act. In fact, Joe Sentell is likely to claim that Chickering is a coffee substitute and Baldwin is a locomotive.

Be that as it may, he's still the man to put the finger on what's wrong with your present insurance program. If you're kicking in too much for too little, or if you want insurance planned today for the risky tomorrows, call on Joe Sentell. That's him tuning up at 2615 College Ave., 573-3791.

VIEWPOINT

Practical Amendment

Texans will get their chance to vote on a proposed new state constitution at the next general election, now that the 64th Legislature has "salvaged" the multi-million dollar document that was consigned to the scrap heap by the 1974 Constitution Convention.

But an earlier vote is scheduled on a couple of items that need a decision and require action regardless of the fate of the new constitution. Two amendments will be on a ballot to be submitted to voters on April 22.

One of these proposes changes in constitutional provisions relating to state and local retirement systems. For one thing, it would put the regulations governing such retirement systems under one section. The purpose is to make them easier to understand and to get them better organized.

This amendment also would permit the state to contribute a maximum of 10 per cent of an employe's salary as matching funds to the retirement system. The present ceiling is six per cent. This is regarded by proponents as an item that needs immediate attention. It not only would put future retirement income of persons now employed on a level more compatible with today's conditions, but would provide some relief for those already retired and forced to live on retirement income that was geared to economic conditions of several years ago.

This amendment should improve the efficiency of operation and retirement systems for state and local employes and there is no disputing that many retired persons have seen the value of their retirement checks shrink to an alarming degree the past few years.

Boards governing these retirement funds would be granted more investment authority, which would make it possible to insure acturial soundness for their programs, although there still would be some strict safeguards.

This amendment appears practical, and it should be approved.

Voice Change Is Due

A 10-month study of the overseas informational and cultral activities of the government has been completed by a privately funded panel of distinguished citizens headed by Dr. Frank Stanton, chairman of the American Red Cross and former president of CBS.

The panel, which was organized by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies, recommends that activities now conducted by the State Department and the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) be combined in an autonomous "Informational Cultural Affairs Agency" that would report directly to the secretary of state.

The best-known arm of the USIA is the Voice of America, which began its broadcasting operations 30 years ago and has occupied a tenuous position at the crossroads of journalism and diplomacy throughout the postwar era.

The panel felt it was time to review the Voice of America's future role and recommends that it be set up "in a manner reflecting its unique triple role as a disseminator of objective news, as articulator of U.S. policy and as a portrayer of American society."

At present, says the Stanton report, the USIA deals inmedia while the State Department deals in people. A new agency combining the functions of both would be more effective, it concludes.

Mobile Home Show Set

DALLAS—Prospective home buyers will have an opportunity to see the innovations in today's mobile or manufactured homes April 20 in Dallas at the 1975 Southwest Mobile Home Show.

Produced and presented by the Texas Mobile Home Association (TMHA), the show at Dallas Market Hall will feature 130 fully furnished homes displayed by many of the Nation's leading builders of mobile and modular homes. The public day will follow three days of showing for area dealers during which manufacturers will introduce and demonstrate their newest home models.

"The homes on display at Dallas Market Hall will look as though they're being live in," said L.M. Bearss, TMHA President. "This will give consumers a true picture of the luxury and convenience of today's manufactured homes." He added that industry representatives will be present to provide information and answer questions of those touring the indoor and outdoor displays.

Bearss said, "Manufactured homes dominate the under $20,000 market for homes and, in 1973, accounted for seven out of ten single-family dwellings selling for under $30,000."

"The advantages for buyers become evident in touring the homes displayed at our show," Bearss said. "The fully equipped, fully furnished manufactured home of today represents sound value to those who want to own their own homes in the low-priced to medium-priced categories."

Most new mobile homes today are sold fully equipped--including in the purchase price major appliances, furniture, draperies, carpeting, and even lamps. If a buyer prefers, a home can be purchased without the general furnishings. Optional features--such as air conditioning, automatic dishwashers, and automatic garbage disposals--are available.

The homes are centrally, heated by gas, oil, or electric furnaces.

Design changes in recent years have been extensive with the result that exteriors of many mobile or manufactured homes resemble site-built homes. Inside, today's typical mobile home features a spacious living room, dining room or dining area, kitchen with built-in cabinets, one or two bathrooms, and one, two, or more bedrooms. Closets and storage spaces are abundant with large walk-in closets often the rule in bedrooms.

Bentsen, Tower Against Abortion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is how Texas senators voted this week on two bills debated by the U. S. Senate.

The two Texan senators, Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican John Tower, voted with the majority Thursday when the senate tabled, or killed, an amendment barring use of federal funds for abortions unless necessary to save the mother's life.

When the Senate approved a broad energy conservation bill Thursday the Texas senators split their vote with Bentsen voting in favor and Tower against it. The bill passed 60-25.

Course To Focus On Scale Deposits

LUBBOCK—Vinegar works when the problem is scouring mineral deposits from a tea kettle, but mineral deposits in an oil well call for slightly different solutions.

Mineral deposits or scale and other problems in lifting petroleum from the ground will be topics for discussion during the 22nd annual Southwestern Petroleum Short Course April 17-18 at Texas Tech University.

B.L. Carlberg and R.R. Matthews of Continental Oil Co., Ponca City, Okla., will deal with methods for treating scale and the characteristics of various scale removal chemicals in a paper to be presented April 17.

Scale deposits result from water instability, according to the Oklahoma research scientists. Scale solubility is affected by physical and chemical characteristics of the water.

The characteristics of the water in an oil formation can be evaluated and used to predict the possibility of scale formation, they said.

Scale inhibiting chemicals commonly used in field operations include inorganic polyphosphates, phosphate esters, phosphonate, polymer and EDTA compound. Each has characteristics which can be utilized in scale prevention. Chemicals and treatment methods for scale prevention including continuous feeding, batch feeding and squeeze methods will be discussed and illustrated with case histories.

Scale treatment is one of 44 technical and general interest presentations scheduled for more than 350 members of the petroleum industry expected at the short course.

Registration for the annual course will begin at 8 a.m. April 17 in the Texas Tech University Center. Presentations will begin at 10:05 on several topics concurently in locations throughout the campus. Sessions will continue through April 18.

Highlighting the meeting will be luncheon sessions each day with special guest speakers. Bob Smith Lewis of Big Spring will speak at the luncheon April 17. His topic will be "Tumbleweed Smith's Tales of the Oil Patch."

Warren Quinlan of Warren Quinlan Associates, Midland, Tex., will speak on "Triple-Threat Communication" at the April 18 luncheon.

Registration fee for the short course is $30. Short course information may be obtained through the Department of Petroleum Engineering at Texas Tech.

TTA Will Consider Tolls

DALLAS (AP) — Chairman Dee Kelly said Wednesday that Texas Turnpike Authority directors will meet May 2 to consider charging higher tolls on the Dallas North Tollway.

He disclosed that consultants have advised that the basic toll must be increased from 20 cents to 25 cents in order to comply with bond agreements.

Kelly said he expects a vote also on a proposal by Beaman Fisher, a Turnpike Authority director from Fort Worth, to reduce tolls on the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike and increase maintenance expenditures. This would be calculated to delay final payment on turnpike bonds, after which the route is due to be taken over by the state and operated as a freeway.

United Brands Case Has Wall Street In Uproar

By DEIRDRE DONNELLY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission filed suit this past week against United Brands Co., the multinational food corporation that admitted making $2 million in secret payments to foreign government officials last year.

The civil suit charged the company with falsifying its financial reports to hide a payment of $1.25 million in cash to an Honduran official plus a $750,000 cash payment to a European official.

A day later, stockholder Henry Neugarten filed suit against 12 of United Brand's 14 directors, two company officers and the estate of Eli Black, the former chairman and architect of the company's growth, who fell to his death Feb. 3 from his 44th floor office in mid-Manhattan.

Neugarten's suit, filed on behalf of the company's assets and its stockholders, accused the officers and directors of mismanagement and of violations of federal securities laws requiring company officials to fully disclose their financial dealings to the SEC and stockholders.

United Brands, which markets its bananas under the Chiquita label, has extensive banana operations in Honduras. Last April, the Honduran government raised the export tax on bananas to 50 cents per 40-pound box. Four months later the export tax of United Brands bananas was halved to 25 cents, resulting in a savings to the corportion of about $7.5 million.

The company said the payment to the Honduran official was made in September 1974 in connection with that tax. The Wall Street Journal identified the official as Honduran President Oswaldo Lopez, although his government denies it.

The SEC suit did not name the European country. That country was Italy, according to the Wall Street Journal.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials soared more than 30 points during the week, closing at 789.50, its highest level in eight months.

The market advance came despite a quarterly dividend cut by Ford to 60 cents a share from 80 cents, and nearly flat earnings for International Business Machines Corp., a Wall Street favorite.

IBM said first quarter profits were up about one per cent to $437 million as slow sales, high interest costs on borrowed money and the decline in inventory value as prices fall cut sharply into their profitability.

Banks continued to profit from the higher margins they are now charging on many loans.

Chemical New Corp.'s first quarter earnings soared 49 per cent to $28 million, Manufacturers Hanover Corp.'s profits were up 25 per cent to $52 million and J.P. Morgan Co. reported profits of $48 million, 24 per cent higher than last year.

Police Looking For Execution Slayers

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police are searching today for at least two men in the execution style slaying of a Texas Tech student and the wounding of his female companion Friday morning.

Police described the assailants as two black men, approximately 6 feet tall and in their late 20s. One is heavy set, with muttonchop sideburns, police said, and the other may be wearing a brown leather jacket.

Two other men may also be involved in the slaying but no descriptions were available on them, police said.

The incident occurred Friday morning when Michael McMahan, of Washington state, was shot at least once and beaten after the suspects abducted him and his date from a nightclub parking lot here.

The woman, Deia Karlene Sutton, 20, was shot once in the neck and left for dead.

Miss Sutton said the assailants escaped in McMahan's 1971 Camaro.

Traffic Accidents Increase In 1974

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas traffic accidents have killed 744 persons so far this year, compared with 602 for the same period in 1974, the Department of Public Safety reported Saturday.

LV Maidens Win Girls Track Title

Lakeview's girls won the District 3-AAA Girls Track Meet here Firday with 234 points. Brownfield was runnerup with 128½ points, and Snyder was third with 110½ points. The Snyder team had several girls competing in volleyball or they would have fared much better.

The 880 relay finished second behind Lake View with a 1:54.2 clocking, but their time was a school record. Girls running on the team were Debbie Newman, Wendy Monroney, Toni Taylor and Teresa Thompson.

Patti Wolfe of Snyder finished second in the 880 yard run, but her time of 2:42.6 also was a new school record.

Bobbi Irvin of Snyder was third in the discus, but her 87-5 was a new school record.

In addition to the 880 relay unit and Patti Wolfe in the 880, the Tigers qualified three other girls for the regional meet to be held Saturday, April 19, in Odessa. They are Martha Braziel, Vanessa Short and Teresa Thompson. Martha heaved the shot 35-3½ feet for first place. Vanessa was runnerup in the 80 yard hurdles with a time of 12.6. Teresa Thompson placed second in the 60 yard dash with a 7.5 clocking.

Tiger Baseballers Shell Lamesa Tornadoes 7-4

LAMESA—Snyder High School's varsity baseball team erupted for five runs in the 1st inning and coasted to a 7-4 triumph over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes here Friday afternoon behind the pitching of sophomore Ricky Beard.

The victory tied Brownfield's Cubs for first place in the District 3-AAA race with 2-1 records, and these two teams were scheduled to play Saturday in Moffett Field. However, a rain Friday night and early Saturday forced postponement of the game. Snyder is 11-8 for the season.

Beard did a creditable job on the mound for the Tigers, scattering nine hits over seven innings. He struck out five. Lee, the loser, was knocked out of the box in the 1st frame, and Robinett finished the game for the Tors.

Snyder shelled the two Tornado twirlers for 18 hits, led by Robert Alderete, Richard Tovar and Sid Perry, each of whom collected three safeties.

Randy Gressett, lead-off man for the Tigers, slugged a single to left and stole second. He scored on a single by Kelly Ragland, who also stole second. Ragland scampered home on a resounding double to left center by Robert Alderete. Alderete scored on a double by Ernie Simons, and Simons came in on a single by Richard Tovar. Tovar was out on a fielder's choice that let Danny Brumley on first, and Brumley scored on a single by Sid Perry.

Lamesa tallied twice in the bottom half of the 1st. Jefferson singled, was sacrificed to second by Garza, and scored on a double by Robinett, who scored on a single by Garcia.

In the top of the 5th, Richard Tovar, stole second and third, and scored on a single by Sid Perry.

Lamesa tallied an unearned run in the 6th following a fielder's choice that let Amoro on base safely.

Snyder got its last run in the 7th when Perry doubled to left center and scored on a single by Kyle Sikes.

Lamesa's last run occurred in the bottom half of the 7th when Jefferson singled, advanced to second on a walk to Garza, and scored on a single by Robinett. With one run in, two runners on and nobody out, the Tors had a chance to get back in the game, but Beard bore down and retired the next three men in order to get out of the jam and wrap up the victory.

The Tigers played faultless ball afield and turned in a double play. Snyder hosts Borwnfield p.m. Tuesday in Moffett Field.

Class A All-State Team

DALLAS (AP) — Joe Ballard of Whitewright and Jon Gates of Shallowater, whose teams were in the state tournament at Austin, head the Texas Sports Writers Association's Class A All-State basketball team.

Joining them on the first team are Gary Uhlig of Poth, Royce Dorsey of Snook and David Adkisson of Lake Dallas.

Ballard, a 6-0 senior guard, scored a total of 49 points in the state tournament as Whitewright lost in the finals to Brookshire-Royal.

"He's the main reason we got to the state tournament," said Coach Mark Kline of Ballard, who averaged 22 points per game. Ballard keyed Whitewright's full court zone press.

Gates, 6-5 senior, had scoring games of 30, 31 and 46 in leading Shallowater to the Region 1 championship and into the state tournament. He averaged 18.6 points per game.

Uhlig, 6-2 guard, scored more than 35 points in five games during the season and had a glittering 28.5 scoring average. A four-year starter, his coach Carl Peters, tabbed him as "what you'd call a pure shooter. I haven't seen anyone who shoots like him. You think he's covered and boom—he scores."

Dorsey is a 6-6 senior from a long line of good basketball players from Snook.

"He's the best postman I've coached," said his coach, Don Horn. Dorsey averaged 24.5 points and 11.2 rebounds a game.

Adkisson, a 6-6 junior, averaged 19.6 per game and in one game scored 38 points, plucked 31 rebounds and blocked five shots.

DALLAS (AP) — Here are the Texas Sports Writers Association Class A All State basketball teams:

Little League Registration Set

Registration for the Snyder LittleLeague will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Texas Electric Company on the downtown square.

All children from ages 9 to 12 years of age as of Aug. 1, 1975 are eligible to register and participate in the Little League this season.

Jack Nicklaus has the best average in Masters tournaments. In his first 60 rounds his stroke average per 18 holes is 71.47. Tom Weiskopf is second with 71.75 for 28 rounds.

WTC Is 2nd At Levelland

LEVELLAND—Odessa College won the ninth Western Junior College Athletic Conference Golf Tournament at the Levelland Country Club Friday to remain in first place with a team score of 298. Western Texas College finished six strokes behind Odessa to place second in the tourney with a team score of 304. South Plains College and New Mexico Junior College tied for third place with 306's. Scores of other teams: Midland 319, NMMI 321, Amarillo 321, Frank Phillips 328, and Clarendon 339.

Freshman Arnold Madril shot the fourth best score in the tourney and led the Westerners with a 74. Also, freshman Bryan Hargrove had a good round with a 76. Freshman Grant Collyns and sophomore Mark Hargrove each carded a 77, and sophomore Kyle Howard fired a 78.

Leland Chiles of Odessa was medalist with a fine round of 72.

The course was wet from a heavy rain Thursday, and it was misting during the tournament. It was cold and damp with winds of 15 miles per hour from the north.

After nine rounds, Odessa remains in first place in the conference with 82 points. New Mexico Junior College is in second place with 77, and Western Texas is third with 71½. Point standings of other teams: Midland 62, South Plains 48, Howard 48, Amarillo 39½, NMMI 34, Frank Phillips 18½, and Clarendon 12½.

Four WTC golfers are in the top ten with one Western Conference tournament remaining at Hobbs, N.M. on April 25.

John Stinson of Odessa is leading the conference with a 74 average. Averages of other players: Randy McClelland and Terry Franklin, both of New Mexico JC, 74.66 and 74.77, respectively; Mark Hargrove, Arnold Madril and Bryan Hargrove and Kyle Howard of WTC, 75, 75, 75.28, and 75.62, respectively; Jimmy Stewart, NMJC, 75.75; Bobby Smith, Odessa, 75.88; and, Carlton Blewett, NMMI, 75.88.

The Westerners next action will be a dual match with Abilene Christian College at the Snyder Country Club at 2 p.m. Tuesday, April 15.

Dutch Is Coach's Dream

WASHINGTON (AP) — Al Dutch, at 6-feet-7 and 200 pounds, is a college basketball coach's dream—talented on the court and in the classroom as well.

The Carroll High School senior, one of the top prep players in the country and ranked in the top half of his class scholastically, plays his whole game facing the basket, dribbling between his legs and shooting from beyond 20 feet to get his 25.7 points a game.

"Al's working on his 50-foot jumper for when he goes up against those 7-footers in college," said Dutch's coach, Bill Barnes, shaking his head. "And I remember when it was a big deal to be able to dunk.

"There's not a whole lot you have to say about a player of Al's ability," said Barnes. "He's just a tremendous athlete who does everything on and off the basketball court. I call him my thoroughbred."

Because of his talent, Dutch probably was the most sought after youngster in the player-rich Washington area, and thus one of the most sought-after in the country. He and others like him have been the objects of the highly-pressurized world of college recruiting.

Although it appeared Notre Dame had the inside track on him, Dutch decided two weeks ago to stay home and attend Georgetown University.

The decision was typical of Dutch, who scored 1,926 points in his four years at Carroll. "Al looked over the situation there (Georgetown) and he feels confident he will play," said Barnes. "Personally, I think they'll hold a spot open for him. He's an outstanding prospect, no doubt about it."

In choosing Georgetown, Dutch turned down a trip to the University of Hawaii, as well as visits to other campuses around the country at the expense of colleges who sought his talents.

Before making his decision, Dutch told the Associated Press he had not been put under pressure by college recruiters. He conceded, however, that he had been contacted by so many that it would have been easier to name the schools that didn't seek him out.

Dutch, who has dealt with recruiters since he was a sophomore, also said that none of the colleges which contacted him made any illegal or unsavory offers.

Dutch's experience is like many of the nation's top scholastic basketball players, although many of them admit that the pressures from recruiting caused them to announce early the college of their choice.

Nearly all the players interviewed by The AP said they had not been given an illegal offer, such as extra cash, new clothes, a new car or a job for their parents, to attend a certain college. One said there were such offers and some hinted that illegal offers had been made. They refused to identify the persons or schools who made them.

The recruiting pressure on this year's high school seniors is not only coming from the colleges, but also from the pros, which successfully gained last year's top prep player, Moses Malone of Petersburg, Va., who signed with the American Basketball Association.

This year's top player, Bilt Cartwright of Elk City, Calif., announced in January that he would attend the University of San Francisco, making the early decision to stem the mounting pressure from recruiters.

Cartwright, who follows the career of Malone religiously although he has never met him, was asked if he thought about jumping to the pros.

"If they offer you a big sum of money, you almost have to consider it," he replied. "But, of course, that hasn't happened yet."

Cartwright's coach, Dan Risley, said: "It will be a tough decision if Billy goes right to the pros or not. I've heard that the American Basketball Association is going to draft him. I think he might choose to go to college, though, because he wants to lead a team to a national championship."

Two others sought by the pros as well as the colleges are Darryl Dawkins of Orlando, Fla., who is said to be leaning toward a school in his home state, and Bill "Poodles" Willoughby of Englewood, N.J., who has signed a grant-in-aid with the University of Kentucky and now says he is not interested in a pro contract.

Another top prep star, Bob Bender of Bloomington, Ill., said he had been contacted by some 375 schools. "I haven't had a bad experience with recruiting," said Bender. "I can be totally honest—I haven't had anybody approach me in an illegal manner."

Bender said he visited eight campuses last fall and expected to visit at least four more. The three he said he liked are N.C. State, Kansas and Indiana, and early this past week he signed at Indiana.

Not all the schoolboys, however, are quick to say that they have not been approached and offered deals which allegedly violate NCAA rules and regulations.

Clint Richardson, of O'Dea High School in Seattle, said he used to read about the under-the-table offers by college recruiters. Now he has had them first hand.

Baseball Game Is Postponed

A baseball game between the Snyder High School Tigers and the Brownfield Cubs, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, was postponed because of wet grounds.

Coach Speedy Moffett of the Tigers said the game had been re-scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday.

Bruce Crampton of Australia set a Masters record when he registered four eagles (two below-par) in the 1974 tournament at Augusta, Ga.

Daniel Sees Clear Change In Charter

WACO (AP) — The new constitution that is expected to be up for Texans' approval Nov. 4 "clearly seeks to change the climate of Texas' public life," said Price Daniel Jr., Saturday night.

Daniel, former speaker of the Texas House and president of the 1974 Constitutional Convention, told a Law Day audience at Baylor School of Law that the proposed constitution before the legislature now "speaks of better representation for all citizens in the political process. It commits Texans to remedying the long delays in the administration of justice and to improving the quality of decisions handed down by the courts of Texas ... Within these broad principles, the major rules for the operation of government are set forth in new ways which I believe will improve the quality of statutory law in this state."

Daniel said no one should suggest that the proposed constitution is without flaws. "What is important is that it is a vast improvement over the 1876 Constitution—a document which has, save for hundreds of costly amendments, tethered Texas of today to the 19th century."

Daniel said he had no reservation about supporting the proposed new constitution or about voting for it article by article.

"We need a new constitution, not a hodge-podge amalgamation of 1876 and 1975," he said. "What better gift could we give ourselves in honor of the nation's Bicentennial?"

Graham Crusade Set In Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The Billy Graham evangelistic crusade scheduled here in August 1976 has been rescheduled for this August, a crusade spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman said Dr. Graham will conduct the West Texas Crusade at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium Aug. 27-31 rather than next year because of a conflict in dates with another crusade planned in Washington, D.C.

ONASSIS CONSIDERED DIVORCE

Jackie To Get Only 3 Million Dollars

NEW YORK (AP) — Aristotle Onassis decided to divorce his wife, Jacqueline, shortly before his death last March and asked a lawyer to start proceedings, the New York Times reported in today's editions.

The newspaper said that Mrs. Onassis, also the widow of the late President John F. Kennedy, receives a bequest of only $3 million in the Onassis will, a sum far less than published reports had indicated.

Quoting friends of the Onassis family, the article said the Greek shipping magnate's will stipulated that trust funds of $1 million each be set up for Mrs. Onassis' children, Caroline and John.

It said they will receive incomes from the funds until they are 21. Previous reports had placed their inheritance as high as $15 million each.

The Times said that last Dec. 3, John Meyer, a close associate of Onassis, called lawyer Roy M. Cohn and said that Onassis wanted him to be his attorney in a divorce action against Mrs. Onassis.

"He called me when Mr. Onassis was with him," the Times quoted Cohn as saying Friday. "He said it was absolutely definite, and that Mr. Onassis wanted to end the marriage."

Meyer declined comment on the phone call, the Times said.

The newspaper quoted several friends of the Onassis family as saying that Onassis' daughter Christina by his first marriage, was instrumental in persuading her father to seek a divorce.

Onassis was suffering from the muscular disease myasthenia gravis and the newspaper reported friends saying that it was poor health rather than a reconciliation with Mrs. Onassis that led Onasis to drop the divorce action.

Rumors of a divorce between the couple dated back to 1970 but both always denied it.

Some estimates had placed Mrs. Onassis' inheritance as up to $200 million. Onassis' wealth was estimated as high as $500 million.

Mrs. Onassis is entitled to one-eighth of her husband's estate under Greek law, but according to the Times, experts say that much of his wealth from some 100 interlocking companies was kept in trust and he could have written his will so that she would receive much less.

Mrs. Onassis was not immediately available for comment.

Visitors Invited To WTC Library

April 13-19 is National Library Week and the Western Texas College library extends an invitation to area residents to plan to visit the library to get better acquainted during the special week.

The WTC library is located in the Learning Resource Center. Library hours are from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. each Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Friday and 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Anyone who has a Scurry County Library card or an identification card from a Snyder public school may check material out of the library, and students from area high schools may check out material by special arrangement.

The library has about 21,880 volumes, Larry Anderson, Director of Library Science, said, and receives 243 periodicals including 31 newspapers. The LRC has more than 20,000 items in its audio-visual collection, including transparencies, slides, records and tapes.

Four microfilm readers are available for library users and a reader-printer has recently been installed. The reader-printer enables patrons to copy pages from microfilm on letter-sized sheets at a cost of five cents per page. Microfilm in the library includes the complete census records for Texas from 1850-1880.

Mrs. Hattie Simpson is the Assistant Director of Library Science at WTC. Other personnel are Mrs. Evelyn Salter, clerk; Nona Sutton, circulation clerk, and Jean Newton, Gary Shinn, Shirley Balnkenship and Melisa Taylor, student assistants. Dr. James E. Tully is Dean of Learning Resources.

Workshop In Transactional Analysis Set

Plans for a Transactional Analysis Workshop here have been announced by the Rev. John Z. Gaston and the Rev. Henry J. Hartman.

The workshop will be held on six successive Thursday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. beginning April 17 at Grace Lutheran Church, 5500 College Avenue.

The purpose of the workshop is to learn about how human beings get along with each other and how to improve their relationships.

Reservations for the workshop may be made by calling Rev. Gaston at 573-6915 or Rev. Hartman at 573-2916. Total fee for the workshop is $25 per person.

Jury Rules Corley Is Sane

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — A Tyler jury has found a man accused of four slayings in East Texas competent to stand trial for the death of Vicki Lynn Morris.

The jury listened to a week of testimony before returning the ruling Friday that Edward E. Corley of Tyler is sane. He is accused of two slayings by shotgun in Rusk County and two in Smith County, including that of Miss Morris last September.

Corley was described in defense testimony as being incapable of logical thought but prosecution witnesses said he is sane enough to stand trial.

The accused was ordered held pending setting of a trial date in Miss Morris' death.

Boys Suspended

SAGINAW, Tex. (AP) — A Marathon 12-hour meeting of the Eagle Mountain-Saginaw school board that began Wednesday night and lasted until 7 a.m. Thursday, resulted in the suspension of four Boswell High School students.

School officials said the four youths were suspended for a fight that occurred at Boswell High School about the end of March. Three of the boys contested the expulsion.

The boys were originally suspended for a few days but after the hearing Wednesday night, the board suspended them for the remainder of the school year, Burt Weems, Boswell principal said.

Hill Asked To Press Charges

CANADIAN, Tex. (AP) — A group of ministers from several denominations says it has asked that Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill take measures to make sure that "indictments against Hemphill County Sheriff Elton Corley are carried out."

The request from eight ministers in this Panhandle town was sent to Hill Thursday, said the Rev. Barton Morse of the Christian Church.

It was the latest development in a brewing controversy involving Sheriff Corley, whose department has been the only police force in town since January 1973 when the police department was consolidated with the sheriff's office.

Corley was indicted last September by a county grand jury on a misdemeanor count of public drunkenness. A spokesman for the county attorney's office said no action has been taken in the case. Hemphill is a dry county.

Corley also faces a civil suit filed by a former dispatcher, Mrs. Beverly Todd. She charged in her suit that the sheriff was "intoxicated" in 13 specific times and places between May 6, 1973, and July 5, 1974.

According to the suit, Mrs. Todd is asking Corley's removal from office. The suit will be heard in 31st district court here next Sept. 6.

Corley was not available for comment Thursday. He took a short leave of absence Monday and was reported to be in Louisiana.

The department now has only two deputies. Deputy David Risley resigned Saturday and deputy Lee Peyton quit Monday night.

The Rev. Mr. Morse said the ministers feel that "Corley is not doing the job he took an oath to uphold. It's hard for us to talk about law and order when we don't have any."

The region between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains known as the Louisiana Purchase was transferred to the U.S. by France for $15 million.

TO: Citizens of Scurry County

FROM: Roy Carter - County School Superintendent

TOPIC: WHY VOTE TO ABOLISH THE COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE

In an analysis of H.B. No. 628 in the 1971 Texas legislature, the following statement was made: "The county superintendent in counties which have no common school district does not perform any duties which could not be performed as well, efficiently, and economically by the superintendent of the independent school districts in the county."

Whereas there was at one time more than thirty school districts in Scurry County, most of those being common school districts, there are now four school districts. Each of the present school districts has been recognized by their qualifications and at their requests as independent school districts for several years.

Responsibilities previously assigned to the county superintendent have been given to local independent boards, to regional service centers, and some duties have been abolished.

Independent school districts are governed by a local elected board of trustees. They select a competent professionsl superintendent to administer board policy within the guidelines of local, state, and federal laws and policies. I have found that our four schools are operating on the basis of sound educational standards under the leadership of their boards of education and administrative-teaching staffs. I have also found that the county superintendent's basic responsibility is an examination and approval of the work and reports of these professional personnel before mailing them to the required agency.

For these reasons, I concur with the analysis given to H.B. No. 628 to the 1971 Texas Legislature. There are no duties assigned to this office now which cannot be performed as efficiently and more economically by the local school districts.

Please Join me in voting to abolish the office of Scurry County School Superintendent ON TUESDAY APRIL 22

WTCC Elects Junell As Its New President

EL PASO—Frank Junell of San Angelo, Chairman of the Board, Central National Bank, was elected President of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the annual business session of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in El Paso Friday afternoon.

The business session was held during the 57th Annual Convention in El Paso, April 10-11-12 with convention headquarters at the Holiday Inn Downtown. Junell succeeded Burl B. Hulsey, Jr. of Fort Worth, President, Texas Utilities Company, who has served as president during 1974-1975. Hulsey was elected Chairman of the Board.

Other officers elected include W.H. (Bill) Collyns of Midland, President-elect, and Vice President and Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram; Jack Pilon of Brownwood, Vice President of Finance and Membership, and Chief Executive Officer and Chairman, Executive Committee, First National Bank; O.R. Clements of Odessa, Vice President of Program of Work, and Vice President, El Paso Products Company; Bob Corkins of Alpine, Vice President of Special Events, and Vice Preisdent, C.G. Morrison Company; and Garnet Gracy of Abilene, Treasurer, and Senior Vice President, First National Bank

Elected WTCC District Vice Presidents were E.W. Williams, Jr. of Amarillo, District I, and Executive Vice President, Amarillo National Bank; Douglas Boren of Lubbock, District II, and President of Security National Bank; L.D. Jones of Seymour, District III, and partner, Bunkley and Jones; C.L. Cooke of Fort Worth, District IV, and President, Community Public Service Company; Bill Cox of Impact, District V, and Atlas Sales Company; W.S. Pearson of Big Spring, District VI, and President-Publisher, Big Spring Herald; L.H. Koogle of El Paso, District VII, and Chairman of the Board, Triangle Electric Supply Company; Richard E. Morrow of Fort Stockton, District VIII, and President, Valley Distributors, Inc.; W.L. Ramsey of San Angelo, District IX, and District Manager, West Texas Utilities Company; Bill Jamar of Brownwood, District X, and Radio Station KBWD; and Ben R. Low of Kerrville, District XI, and President, First National Bank.

Named members of the Executive Committee-at-Large were W. Lee Watson of Brownwood, General Manager, Weakley-Watson; Mrs. Charles D. Tandy of Fort Worth; Joe Collyns of San Angelo, Vice President of Public Affairs, General Telephone Company of the Southwest; Leroy Langston of Abilene, Executive Vice President, The Citizens National Bank; J.R. Beadel of Brownwood, Chairman of the Board, J.R. Beadel and Company; and R.E. Kennedy of Abilene, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, West Texas Utilities Company.

Appointed Directors-at-Large by President Junell were George W. Gray III of Gail, and in the Law Department, Sears, Roebuck and Company; Ralph Wyatt of Big Spring, Manager, Hemphill-Wells Company; B.J. Pumphrey of Fort Worth, Bill Montgomery of Fort Worth, Vice President, First National Bank; and Arthur Duggan of Littlefield.

The new WTCC President, Frank Junell, was born in Sulpher Springs in 1974 and moved to Abilene with his family while still a small boy. He is a graduate of Abilene High School, Hardin-Simmons University and the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri.

He served with the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean War, and holds the rank of captain in the U.S. Naval Reserve (retired.).

Most of his adult life has been in the field of banking and education. He has served on the faculties and administrative staffs of Hardin-Simmons University, the University of Texas at El Paso and Texas Tech University.

Junell began his career in banking in 1955 and served as vice president and executive vice president of Citizens National Bank of Lubbock. In 1966, he was elected president of the Central National Bank of San Angelo and was named Chairman of the Board in 1973.

He is a director of First National Bank of Kerrville, First National Bank of Brownwood, Reagan State Bank of Big Lake and Coleman Bank of Coleman. He has recently completed a two-year term as a member of the Administrator of National Banks Regional Advisory Committee. In October of 1974 he was elected to a three-year term as a "Class A" director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

Junell is a member and former chairman of the Board of Regents of Texas Tech University and a former chairman and trustee of Hardin-Simmons University.

Lamb To Present Concert Tuesday

The Western Texas College Fine Arts Division will present its chairman, James Lamb, in a concert of some of his original compositions at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre.

The program will feature several Snyder performers and varied performing media. The WTC choir will open the program with "The Fallen Tear", a work which Lamb originally wrote for a women's choir and re-arranged for the WTC mixed choir. The poem is by Rene Lindsay, a student at Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C.

A piano work entitled "Winter Sketches" will be performed by Lamb, the composer. Jane Womack will be featured vocalist in "nonsun blob", a setting of an e.e. cummings poem, and "Music When Soft Voices Die", a setting of a Shelley poem. Performing with Mrs. Womack on "nonsun blob" will be Becky Wafer and Donna Pemberton, flutes; Charles Shaw, clarinet; Angie Amato, trombone, and James Lamb, piano. Lamb will also accompany Mrs. Womack on the setting of the Shelley poem.

The final compostition performed will be a multi-media work entitled "2400", a composition which utilizes live performers, electronic tape, slide projection, choreography, lighting and staging.

Lamb came to Snyder last fall as chairman of the Fine Arts Division at WTC. He received the BM and MA degrees from Sam Houston State University where he also taught music theory. He was in charge of the theory-composition program at Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C., prior to coming to WTC and is presently working toward the doctorate at North Texas State University.

He has had public performances of his compositions in Texas and several cities in North Carolina as well as at North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Lamb is presently the organist at the First United Methodist Church and made his public debut to Snyder audiences on April 6 as the accompanist for Kathleen Mott Kaun in her concert in the WTC fine Arts Theatre.

Tuesday night's program is free of charge and the public is invited.

Belly Dancing Course Is Set

A new Community Services course in belly dancing is to begin Tuesday night at Western Texas College.

Two classes are planned, one at 7 p.m. and one at 8:30 p.m. Students are to begin registering 30 minutes before class time and registration will be held in the WTC gym. Fees will be $24 per person for the six-week course. The instructor will be Sharron from the Middle East Dance Academy of Lubbock.

A morning class will be arranged on Wednesdays if there is sufficient demand.

Former students in the classes are invited to attend a seminar to be held in Lubbock on April 20.

Persons wishing further information about the classes may contact the Community Services office at WTC by calling extension 237.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

From vaudeville to TV– that's the span of Jack Albertson's career; now he plays the irascible garage owner in NBC-TV's "Chico And The Man" on Friday nights (8:30 - 9 p.m. NYT). Jack Albertson was born in Malden, Mass., and entered show business when he decided it would be easier than working on banana boats. Albertson started out as a dancer, working summer stock in New England. Soon he moved to New York and was answering chorus calls for Broadway musicals. In between he did "straight man" gigs with such comedians as Phil Silvers, Milton Berle and Bert Lahr. "But after so many years of playing second banana it catches up with you," Jack recalls, "and after some soul searching I decided to become a legit actor." His motion picture credits include "The Poseidon Adventure," "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory," "Justine," "The Flim Flam Man," "Days of Wine and Roses," and "How to Murder Your Wife." Jack Albertson is married to the former Wallace Thomason. They have a grown daughter, Maura Dhu, who serves as her father's secretary when she's not pursuing her own acting career. The Albertson's live in West Hollywood, California.

MAURICE: Tell me Jack, were the "good old days" really so good?

ALBERTSON: They were fun. Yes they were good in retrospect they were much more, I won't say more interesting, than they are today but in a sense a little more fun. Some of the elements are missing—for example loyality in this business is not a requisite anymore. It's become, in a sense, a mercenary business and you are dealing with a lot of businessmen who set the pattern for what is to be done and are interested in making money or in some cases losing it for tax purposes. So the fun is taken out of it because we've become so budget conscious. I sort of miss the old days.

MAURICE: Is it true that when you first came to New York, the subway was your bedroom?

ALBERTSON: Yes, it's true. I came down from Lynn, Mass., to make it big in show business, and I didn't have the price of a flophouse bed. So for a nickel I slept on the subway—three hours to Brooklyn, hide behind a pillar when the guards emptied the train, then three hours back to the Bronx. Summertime I slept in Central Park. That was B.M., of course. Before Muggers.

MAURICE: Were you surprised at the success of "Chico and The Man"?

ALBERTSON: We think it's a good show but as I look at it, I'm always amazed at the reaction of the people who view it. I probably am my own worst critic. I really hate myself everytime I see myself on screen.

MAURICE: Is there any truth to the rumor that you and Freddie Prinze do not get along?

ALBERTSON: There is no truth to it at all. Both Freddie and I constantly talk about one another. We're extremely fond of one another. As a matter of fact, there is a great deal of love between us. I look upon Freddie as a son and he looks upon me as a father. We have a great time together.

MAURICE: How do you feel about getting older?

ALBERTSON: I have no objection. It's better than not getting older.

MAURICE: As you get older, are you as meticulous with your appearance as you were when you were younger?

ALBERTSON: I never was that neat or meticulous about various things. In my extreme youth, yes, because you were worried how people would react to you. The feeling I have now is that I like to dress in somewhat of a mod fashion and I resent having to get into a tuxedo to go to a formal affair. Most of the days I walk around in golf outfits.

MAURICE: If you could be 18 years old again, would you like to be?

ALBERTSON: Frankly no. Unfortunately I did not have much of an education. I am not a high school graduate so I had to learn the facts of life from the school of hard knocks. I don't think I would like to go through that again. But I must confess, it taught me a lot of things that you don't learn in school. there's a great deal more freedom for the youth of today but at the same time there are more problems inherent in the world today.

MAURICE: If Jack Albertson could be remembered for one thing, what yould you like people to remember you for?

ALBERTSON: Very interesting question. I would say going through life in general trying to do the best you can with what you have and trying not to create any harm to anyone else. I think that's as much as one could ask for.

MAURICE: If you had one wich, what would you wish for?

ALBERTSON: I really have no personal wishes. I have no desires. I'm very happy and would like to go on to do bigger and better things. But I'm very happy that at this very late stage in my life that I've arrived at a plateau in this business and have been recognized by my peers and I have a great many friends and I think that's all you can ask for.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy Charged With DWI

DALLAS (AP) — Misdemeanor charges of driving while intoxicated have been filed against State Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas following his arrest Friday on the city's Thornton Freeway.

Officers said they saw Mauzy's vehicle on an entrance ramp to the freeway and observed that it "bounced off the ramp from side to side" three times.

His car, police said, then began weaving across three lanes of traffic. The officers succeeded in stopping the car about 10 blocks later.

Small Business Men Find Banks Different

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardiner Greene is an exponent of small business which, he believes, is experiencing more than its share of frustration from the banks. The banks, he laments, aren't what they used to be.

In the old days the banker was a man who obtained his wealth by hard work and business risks in his earlier years. He was a successful man in various endeavors, and he wanted — and knew how — to help others attain success.

Today, says Greene, a highly successful small-business man, "he is a semicivil servant working in a secure job in a regulated, organized, socialistic system." His bank, too, might be only a branch. He might have no power of decision.

"Chances are you wouldn't let him work for you. He works for the bank instead of doing something on his own."

And so Greene, who founded Browning Laboratories, a Laconia, N.H., company that makes what it calls the Rolls-Royce of citizen band two-way radios, wrote a book, "How to Start and Manage Your Own Business," published by McGraw-Hill.

In it he casts bankers as obstacles to the development of small business. "Bankers may indirectly put more companies in bankruptcy than anyone else ... Banks help small business stay small ... If you don't need money banks will try to loan it to you."

With venture capital all but dried up, however, small businesses have little choice but to deal with banks at some point, and so Greene, in an interview, gave some pointers on handling bankers.

1. "If you get turned down, the best thing to do is broadcast it all over town," says Greene.

"It's human nature to be embarrassed if you're refused a loan, but if your business is a worthy one, the bank is the one that should be embarrassed. It might smarten up some of them."

2. "Walk in with a victorious attitude and be prepared with all the information you might need. Go in with complete statistics and fill up his file with everything you can think of."

3. Never specify how much you want on the initial visit. "If you walk in and say $10,000 you've fallen into a trap, then he has a sum he can attack and cut. When he asks 'How much do you want?' you should reply, 'Come on over to my place.'

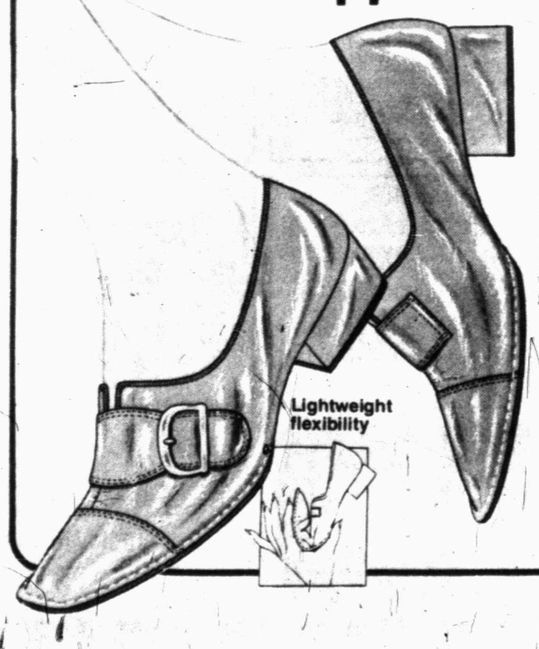

"On the way to your place sell him on your business. Then negotiate. Suggest a sum more than you need. He'll cut it back and be a hero."

Greene believes it is essential to understand these techniques because, almost inevitably, nearly every small business at some point and probably for all time, needs bank financing. Banks can break or make an entrepreneur.

To Greene, this amounts to a tragedy, because he believes a lot that is wrong with the country results from the erroneous attitude that the logical route to personal and national success is through big business.
