President in 'good spirits'

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — With four stark words — "the president has cancer" — the government's top cancer surgeon cast a shadow of uncertainty over Ronald Reagan and his presidency. Although doctors say a recurrence is unlikely, the once extraordinarily healthy president will be watched closely for any new sign of malignancy.

The finding Monday that the tumor taken from Reagan's colon 48 hours earlier was malignant and had spread to the wall of his bowel won't change the plan to discharge the president from Bethesda Naval Hospital this weekend or early next week, his doctors said.

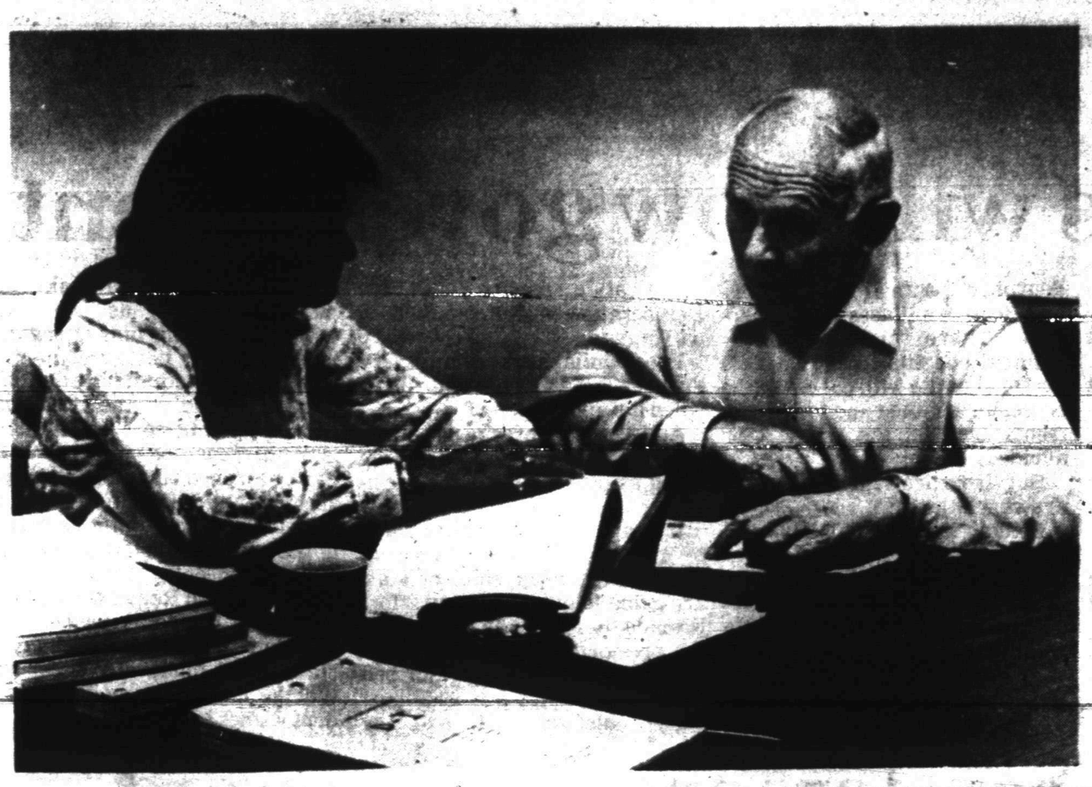

This morning's White House medical update said the president slept well during the night and was examined by physicians at 8 a.m. EDT. It described him as being in excellent spirits and said, "His condition is excellent; his vital signs — temperature, pulse, blood pressure, respiration — are within normal ranges."

The president spent part of the morning reading newspapers and watching television.

Reagan walked around his suite Monday and planned to do so again today. "The president experienced some abdominal discomfort when moving, but has not required any pain medication," the statement said.

Navy Capt. Dale Oller, Reagan's chief surgeon, said, "The president continues his superlative recovery" and was up walking around his room and sitting in a chair reading Monday afternoon after being informed of the test results.

Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, canceled trips to Missouri and Ohio to help lobby for Reagan's tax plan at meetings the president had planned to attend.

Q. — With the bids now in, how much is the curb and gutter cost to the city for Houston Parkway?

A. — The bid estimate for this portion of the project was some $102,000 — the local match for federal funds which will primarily finance the street's construction.

In Brief

Flight reset

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA has rescheduled the aborted liftoff of space shuttle Challenger to July 29 and delayed two other launches and a test firing of the engines on the newest shuttle, Atlantis.

Officials on Monday also raised the possibility of combining two late-year missions into one if the schedule gets tight.

Challenger's launch was reset for about 3 p.m. on July 29, but National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Charles Redmond said it could be two days earlier or two days later, and will depend on a July 23 assessment of the condition of the shuttle's three main engines.

Cabin burns

Its owner was listed as Thomas B. Hale of 3711 Ave. U.

Units of the fire department were dispatched around 1:53 a.m. after receiving a report from the lake Patrol that a cabin on the lake's south side — near the south end of the dam — was on fire.

By the time fire fighters could make the 20 mile trip to the site, however, fire had destroyed the majority of the structure.

Phil Ragland...

Athletic center under new owner

Effective Monday, the ownership and operation of Snyder Athletic Center has been assumed by Phil Ragland, who has purchased the controlling interest in the business from former owner Terry Bowden.

The sale includes the operation of Yogurt & Stuff. According to Ragland, both businesses will operate under the same hours and staff.

"The only new face will be me," he said.

As part of the change, Ragland Monday afternoon resigned his current position as manager of the Scurry County Coliseum, a post he has held the past 7½ years.

County Judge Preston Wilson commented, "Phil has done an excellent job for us and we regret losing him."

He noted the court would move ahead in an attempt to replace Ragland and that applications for the manager's job would be accepted at his office during the next two weeks.

Ragland added his appreciation to county commissioners and the "working relationship I've enjoyed" since 1978.

"I only hope people in the county know how lucky they are to have the quality of men working for them in the courthouse," Ragland said.

He said a major goal of his new business will be to seek out school district contracts for athletic equipment — an area he said the operation will continue to specialize in.

He noted Monday afternoon his decision to purchase the athletic center was prompted primarily "by my great love of sports."

Ragland played five years as a professional baseball player and, since 1981, has handled radio announcing chores for Snyder Tiger football, basketball and baseball games.

He also has many years experience in business management, serving for nine years in a management capacity with Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in Lubbock.

He was associated for 13 years with the Rip Griffin chain of restaurants and truck stops, serving as the original manager for

City budget total down 12 percent

A first look at the proposed 1985-86 budget was offered Snyder city council members Monday — a 12-month spending estimate expected to equal a 12.5 percent decrease from the current year primarily due to a reduction in capital improvement outlays.

The totals presented councilmen Monday include a $4.3 million budget, down from last year's figure of $4.9 million.

The major change relates to capital improvements — considered for budget purposes as the purchase of new equipment or

Computer add-on questioned

Snyder council members spent more than one hour Monday asking city staffers to justify an addition to the city's existing computer system only two years after the last computer equipment update.

The discussion was scheduled as part of budget planning for the coming fiscal year.

Of several options discussed — primarily centering on the purchase of a second IBM 36 computer — the indication Monday was "something will have to be done" within the next 60 days.

Carolyn House, data processing supervisor for the city, noted that the "usable space" on its current computer is now at the critical point.

The city currently owns one IBM 36, a purchase made two years ago. This equipment offers "memory space" equaling 400 megabytes.

Of this 400 megabytes, 200 are allocated for use by the Scurry County Appraisal District, which provided funds to purchase its share of the system's total cost.

The remaining half of the system is now proportioned among the city's use plus contracted space with the Scurry County sheriff's office and the county tax assessor-collector's office.

Chamber to honor two leader classes

Members of the two classes for Century II: Leadership Scurry County will be special guests Tuesday during the regular July meeting for the Snyder chamber of commerce.

The event will serve as a graduation observance for the 1984-85 class. At the end of the regular meeting, due to begin at 4 p.m. at the chamber offices, refreshments will be served in honor of the leadership group.

The class is formed each fall from a list of applicants who pay a yearly tuition fee of $125. During the fall and spring months, they complete a monthly study of a select areas pertaining to Scurry County.

Such subjects involve the county's history, educational opportunities, medical service, economy — to include the oilpatch, farming and ranching — and local governmental entities.

Current members of the leadership class are Bobby Beard, Karen Carmichael, Rick Cohagen, John Derouen, C.D. Gray Jr., Donna Gray, Jackie Greene, Mike Jordan, Lee McNair, Susan Neves, Darrell Stout and Jerry Vestal.

Other agenda items include division reports, visitation reports and an update on Golden Terrace Village.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "In all of modern medicine, the most effective tranquilizer is still a few kind words."

A common coffee shop sight in Snyder is the gathering of retired Sun Gas plant employees. You can observe by their sipping habits, that the biggest event of the day may already be underway.

Like a lot of retirees, sometimes the subject of memory comes up.

Lester Bryce noted the other morning that he wouldn't be there the next day. "Don't worry about me if I'm not here," Bryce instructed.

Fellow retiree Pee Wee Ferrell added, "If you don't show up in the morning, will you call and remind us."

Sonny Greenfield of Thompson's Shoes said he has always been told that memory is the first to go. Sonny is not retired but he testifies, "There are some other parts that go first."

Sonny, who is a faithful greeter at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, had an embarrassing incident a few weeks ago.

Sonny was going to introduce a visitor to one of his long-time friends. Pointing to the man he had known for many years, Greenfield said, "I'd like you to meet Sonny Greenfield."

At least Sonny doesn't forget his own name.

Jerry and Vickie Rinehart of Snyder recently attended a Texas Rangers game. They were guests of some Metroplex friends who had access to the VIP box.

After watching the game in style, the friends took the Rineharts to a nearby Mexican food restaurant. While eating, the friend announced, "There's Nancy and Johnny Rutherford."

The Rineharts were introduced to the Rutherfords and enjoyed a lengthy visit.

On the way home Jerry Rinehart, who works for Chevron, inquired, "What does Johnny Rutherford do for a living?"

The friend explained that he drove for a living — having won three Indy 500 races.

Plan for financially strapped farmers readied for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Instead of losing a farm to creditors, wouldn't it be better for a farmer to sell the property and have the right to rent it back — including an option to buy the farm back in a few years, if things improve?

It's an idea that has been kicking around for a while, and the Farm Credit Council is hoping Congress will take it seriously. The council is a Washington-based trade association that represents cooperative agricultural lenders in the Farm Credit System, including federal land banks and production credit associations.

Ken Auer, a legislative representative for the council, says the plan would let a farmer "put his place in the parking lot for a while" until his financial situation improved.

Although the council is still putting the finishing touches on the plan, Auer said the aim is to have a bill ready for Congress by the end of the month. Farm organizations are taking a look at the council's plan, he said.

The plan includes an Agricultural Conservation Corp., chartered by the federal government and managed by an 11-member board of directors, including the secretary of agriculture and 10 others appointed by the president and subject to Senate approval.

As envisioned, the ACC would be authorized to buy farm assets from willing sellers, including distressed farmers and lenders.

"Farmers selling property to ACC would retain a right of first rental, they would be protected against the sale of their property by the ACC for three years, and they would retain the right of first refusal on the sale of their former property for an additional two-year period," says the council's report on the proposal.

The proposed language of the plan would define a financially distressed farmer as one "who, with the exception of the sale of farmland assets, has exhausted all reasonable financial alternatives to maintaining a viable farming operation."

Money for buying farm property would come from the corporation's sale of federally guaranteed bonds. No direct federal funds would be involved — unless the ACC defaults on the bonds.

In addition, all sellers of property to the ACC would be required to take part of their payments as stock in the corporation. In the case of a private seller, the current plan is to require taking 15 percent as stock. If property is acquired from the government, 100 percent of the payment would be in stock.

An example of the corporation buying land from the government would be a farm taken over by the Farmers Home Administration and then put on the market.

"The ACC would serve as a holding tank for land — absorbing the excess supply from the marketplace while serving as a new market for farmers in need of financial restructuring," the report said. "The ACC would be authorized to acquire property for a five-year period only."

Day-to-day operating expenses would be generated by leasing acquired property back to farmers or by receiving payments from the government in return for diverting property held by ACC from production.

Judge to consider settlement okay

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge who ordered sweeping changes in the state prison system planned to hear final comments today on a settlement that would end a 13-year-old inmate civil rights suit.

But attorneys involved in the litigation say approval of the agreement by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice would not be the final chapter in the fight for better prison conditions.

"The misconception that this settlement brings the lawsuit to an end has caused a lot of confusion in the prisons. The case has become larger, not smaller," said Vincent Nathan, a Toledo, Ohio, attorney.

Justice appointed Nathan as special master to oversee enforcement of the court-ordered reforms in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Prison overcrowding is the last issue to be settled in the suit, which started in 1972 as a handwritten petition by prisoner David Ruiz, who was serving a sentence for armed robbery.

Ruiz is now awaiting an appeal on a perjury conviction and sexual assault and robbery charges in a federal prison in Bastrop after it was decided he might not be safe in a TDC facility.

Nathan said approval of the settlment will not end the case because he and the court will spend the next several years seeing that the agreement is enforced.

In 1980, after an almost year-long trial, Justice issued a ruling calling for extensive reforms in the TDC and appointed Nathan to oversee them.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld most of Justice's orders, except for a section requiring one-person cells for inmates. The appeals court also asked Justice to wait a year before issuing a final decree to settle the overcrowding problem.

The overcrowding issue was to be the subject of a trial slated for last February, but attorneys averted a trial and reached a settlement in May.

Justice, who is from Tyler, already has given preliminary approval to the agreement reached in May but withheld final approval until he could hear comments from prison inmates.

Since then, TDC inmates have filed more than 330 objections to the settlement, said U.S. District Clerk Jesse Clark.

See doctor for chronic pain

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For several months I've had pain in my upper-right abdomen, just under the ribs. At first I thought it was a pulled muscle or a bruised rib. Now I notice that something under the ribs — maybe the gallbladder — is slightly swollen and tender. Is this worth seeing a doctor about?

DEAR READER — Any kind of recurring abdominal pain merits medical attention, especially if the discomfort is associated with a lump. It is beyond the scope of this column to speculate on the many possible causes of your symptoms. An inflamed gallbladder is certainly at the top of the list, but there are a lot of complicated organs crammed into that space; your doctor is the most qualified person to investigate the problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My fingernails break and split easily. Is there any kind of vitamin I can take to help strengthen them?

DEAR READER — Some people have brittle fingernails because their hands are in water often. Others may experience nail splitting from dietary deficiency. Most people whose nails break easily can find no obvious cause for this; occasionally, occupational factors may be important — but most people's nails just tend to become brittle with age.

First, get your spouse to do the dishes, or use rubber gloves. Second, make sure you are eating a balanced diet. Third, have a medical checkup to confirm you're in good health.

Last, try eating gelatin every day; the protein may strengthen your nails.

DEAR DR. GOTT — If I sit up quickly or cough hard, I see spots in front of of my eyes; this can last for a minute or so. I've experienced this since I was a child. I am 26. Is this a sign of a more serious illness?

DEAR READER — No. When you sit or stand suddenly, gravity pulls the blood from your brain. This temporary circulatory interruption can cause lightheadedness and visual difficulties. The reason is that your blood pressure does not react instantaneously to force blood against gravity when you quickly change position. The good news: This is not serious. You can avoid the symptoms by sitting or standing with less vigor. Move more slowly and with catlike movements; look cool. The bad news: It may get worse as you age.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Computer add-on questioned

Snyder council members spent more than one hour Monday asking city staffers to justify an addition to the city's existing computer system only two years after the last computer equipment update.

The discussion was scheduled as part of budget planning for the coming fiscal year.

Of several options discussed — primarily centering on the purchase of a second IBM 36 computer — the indication Monday was "something will have to be done" within the next 60 days.

Carolyn House, data processing supervisor for the city, noted that the "usable space" on its current computer is now at the critical point.

The city currently owns one IBM 36, a purchase made two years ago. This equipment offers "memory space" equaling 400 megabytes.

Of this 400 megabytes, 200 are allocated for use by the Scurry County Appraisal District, which provided funds to purchase its share of the system's total cost.

The remaining half of the system is now proportioned among the city's use plus contracted space with the Scurry County sheriff's office and the county tax assessor-collector's office.

Chamber to honor two leader classes

Members of the two classes for Century II: Leadership Scurry County will be special guests Tuesday during the regular July meeting for the Snyder chamber of commerce.

The event will serve as a graduation observance for the 1984-85 class. At the end of the regular meeting, due to begin at 4 p.m. at the chamber offices, refreshments will be served in honor of the leadership group.

The class is formed each fall from a list of applicants who pay a yearly tuition fee of $125. During the fall and spring months, they complete a monthly study of a select areas pertaining to Scurry County.

Such subjects involve the county's history, educational opportunities, medical service, economy — to include the oilpatch, farming and ranching — and local governmental entities.

Current members of the leadership class are Bobby Beard, Karen Carmichael, Rick Cohagen, John Derouen, C.D. Gray Jr., Donna Gray, Jackie Greene, Mike Jordan, Lee McNair, Susan Neves, Darrell Stout and Jerry Vestal.

Other agenda items include division reports, visitation reports and an update on Golden Terrace Village.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "In all of modern medicine, the most effective tranquilizer is still a few kind words."

A common coffee shop sight in Snyder is the gathering of retired Sun Gas plant employees. You can observe by their sipping habits, that the biggest event of the day may already be underway.

Like a lot of retirees, sometimes the subject of memory comes up.

Lester Bryce noted the other morning that he wouldn't be there the next day. "Don't worry about me if I'm not here," Bryce instructed.

Fellow retiree Pee Wee Ferrell added, "If you don't show up in the morning, will you call and remind us."

Sonny Greenfield of Thompson's Shoes said he has always been told that memory is the first to go. Sonny is not retired but he testifies, "There are some other parts that go first."

Sonny, who is a faithful greeter at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, had an embarrassing incident a few weeks ago.

Sonny was going to introduce a visitor to one of his long-time friends. Pointing to the man he had known for many years, Greenfield said, "I'd like you to meet Sonny Greenfield."

At least Sonny doesn't forget his own name.

Jerry and Vickie Rinehart of Snyder recently attended a Texas Rangers game. They were guests of some Metroplex friends who had access to the VIP box.

After watching the game in style, the friends took the Rineharts to a nearby Mexican food restaurant. While eating, the friend announced, "There's Nancy and Johnny Rutherford."

The Rineharts were introduced to the Rutherfords and enjoyed a lengthy visit.

On the way home Jerry Rinehart, who works for Chevron, inquired, "What does Johnny Rutherford do for a living?"

The friend explained that he drove for a living — having won three Indy 500 races.

Ask Us

Q. — With the bids now in, how much is the curb and gutter cost to the city for Houston Parkway?

A. — The bid estimate for this portion of the project was some $102,000 — the local match for federal funds which will primarily finance the street's construction.

Flight reset

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA has rescheduled the aborted liftoff of space shuttle Challenger to July 29 and delayed two other launches and a test firing of the engines on the newest shuttle, Atlantis.

Officials on Monday also raised the possibility of combining two late-year missions into one if the schedule gets tight.

Challenger's launch was reset for about 3 p.m. on July 29, but National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Charles Redmond said it could be two days earlier or two days later, and will depend on a July 23 assessment of the condition of the shuttle's three main engines.

Cabin burns

Its owner was listed as Thomas B. Hale of 3711 Ave. U.

Units of the fire department were dispatched around 1:53 a.m. after receiving a report from the lake Patrol that a cabin on the lake's south side — near the south end of the dam — was on fire.

By the time fire fighters could make the 20 mile trip to the site, however, fire had destroyed the majority of the structure.

Illness will slow government

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee sit down for breakfast Wednesday, it will be George Bush, not Ronald Reagan, who will be trying to sell them the administration's tax reform plan.

And while President Reagan recuperates for the next two months from surgery, it will be White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan who will make many decisions that some would say are presidential matters.

Reagan's bout with colon cancer may have few long-term political effects, but it will certainly change the pace of government and the power of the players at least for the summer.

Any matter involving a president has political implications and Reagan's illness is no exception. There are temporary political benefits from Reagan's personal battle with cancer — the criticism is muted and tough confrontations can be delayed or avoided.

But there are some temporary drawbacks as well.

Reagan's ability to lobby hard for his latest budget deal or for his tax reform plan will be limited by his physical condition.

For example, Bush will not only stand in for Reagan at the Wednesday meeting with the Republicans from the Senate tax-writing committee, he will do the same at a session with the Democratic committee members on Thursday.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Bush "will sit in when it's appropriate."

And the vice president — any vice president — has a hard time being as persuasive as the president.

If Reagan's activities are going to be limited, the powers of Donald Regan as chief of staff are going to grow as every effort is made to reduce the burdens on the president in the six to eight weeks of recuperation prescribed by doctors.

The chief of staff and the Cabinet will "try to make as many decisions as we can without involving him (Reagan) where we can get agreement," said a senior administration official speaking on the condition he not be identified. "And if there is a difference of opinion and it can't be ironed out, make it crisp, succinct and take it to him for a decision and spare him as much of the having to listen to debates of various people."

Speakes said Regan will be carrying out Reagan's wishes. "I wouldn't think that the chief of staff would make any decisions that he doesn't know the president wishes him to make."

Senators are easing toward agreement on new farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nervous farm-state senators edged closer to agreement on trimming price-support levels for 1986 crops as a self-imposed deadline for action slipped past.

Senators meeting in private Monday to discuss commodity provisions of a new farm bill reported progress, and Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole said he expected an agreement this week.

But the Senate Agriculture Committee missed its goal of completing farm bill work by Monday, a target Dole set two weeks ago in order to move the stalled process forward.

"We're still working. I don't know if we have a deal or not," Dole, R-Kan., told reporters late Monday. He said he still was reserving time on the Senate floor to deal with the farm bill next week.

"We need a strong bipartisan majority out of the committee" in order to win favorable consideration by the full Senate, he said, adding: "We're not there yet."

Senators were discussing a plan that generally would lower price-support loans for wheat, corn, cotton and rice as a way of making them more competitive on world markets. The loan rate sets an effective floor for commodity prices, and has been blamed for holding U.S. goods at levels too expensive to be competitive.

In return for the concession on loan rates, farmers would be offered bolstered income-support payments so that farm income would be no lower than current levels. But how to do that and remain within budget constraints has so far eluded the lawmakers.

While few senators emerging from the closed-door session rejected the proposal outright, many indicated concern about its potential costs, estimated at from $30 billion to $35 billion over three years.

That is far in excess of the roughly $20 billion available under current budget blueprints, but senators said they expected the allowable figure to be revised upward soon, perhaps to about $28 billion, because of the worsening farm export and crop price picture.

There also was worry about how it would look to farmers to be cutting loan rates at a time of severe economic stress in agriculture, and whether they could be convinced that other income support measures would offset the loan-rate reductions.

"I'm not going to do anything that would lower farm income — that's my bottom line," said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, echoing the sentiments of many of his colleagues.

In an effort to strengthen his hand, Dole summoned four former agriculture secretaries — Earl Butz, Clifford Hardin, Bob Bergland and Orville Freeman — who held a brief news conference announcing their support for the general outlines of the emerging compromise.

"We believe we're down to the point where we're going to do something, or we're not, sometime within the next 48 hours," Dole said.

Dear Abby

Woman's Troubled Past Could Ease Another's Present Pain

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Ashamed in Amherst," the young woman who left a good husband and two babies for a married man she thought she couldn't live without. She soon realized she had made a terrible mistake, and messed up her life so badly she couldn't go back. She seriously considered suicide.

Abby, this letter will be long, so you have my permission to shorten it or change it any way you wish, but I beg you to print it.

BEEN THERE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR BEEN THERE: Your letter is long, but I'm running it just as you wrote it:

DEAR "ASHAMED": When I was 23, suicide looked pretty good to me, too.

My husband and I had two beautiful children, ages 2 and 3, our own home, good jobs and lots of nice things, but I had to leave to "find myself."

Leaving was especially easy when I found out that a couple of my "good buddies" at work wanted to be more than good buddies. I was Queen of the May and it was party time. My husband filed for divorce and I went along, figuring it was what he wanted. (I found out later it wasn't.)

Fun-time became less and less fun. And a year later I was living with one of my good buddies who wanted to get married, but I didn't. What a mess I'd made of my life! I'd left a wonderful husband and babies for what? I wanted to go back, but I was too ashamed. I considered all the different methods of suicide I'd ever heard of, trying to decide which would be the least difficult for someone to clean up. And what if I failed? I could be paralyzed, have half a brain, or be permanently damaged somehow. If I succeeded, what was waiting for me after this life? Who would find me? My boyfriend? Someone in my family? A stranger?

My children's precious faces kept popping into my head, and I saw people pitying them and whispering to one another, "Their mother killed herself, you know." Worst of all, my adorable babies would always think it was their fault because children feel guilty about anything that goes wrong in their family, and mine already had my divorce to contend with. I had to tough it out for them.

I'd always believed in God, so I prayed. I told him: "God, I've messed up my life, so from now on I'm not going to do anything unless you tell me to do it. Please, just take over my life and do what you want with me."

Maybe you've never believed in God, but if you have just the faintest idea that he exists, give him a try; that's all he needs to get you started. How he answered my prayer is another long story, with an enormously happy ending.

I'm married again, to the most terrific guy in the world. We've been married for eight years, and it's getting better all the time. (It was only nine years ago that I wanted to end my life.) We have a beautiful 14-month-old daughter, and I'm happier now than I ever thought I could (or deserved) to be.

Abby cares, your babies care, and I care. That's four people right there, and there are many more who would let you know they care, too, if they even suspected how hopeless you feel.

In faith, hope and love ...

"BEEN THERE"

DEAR "BEEN THERE": I and countless others are indebted to you for your inspiring testimony. Too bad you'll never know how many lives you've touched because you cared enough to write.

DEAR ABBY: I suppose my problem is a common one, but it doesn't make me feel any better. You see, I'm a 25-year-old male and I've never been out with a woman. It's not that I don't like women; it's just that I can't seem to get up the courage to ask one out. I have no trouble talking with the women at work, but asking one of them out is a major problem.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated.

DEPRESSED IN ASTORIA

DEAR DEPRESSED: There's more than one way to communicate. Why not write one of the women a note inviting her to a movie, concert, dinner, sports event, museum or whatever.

Anyone who writes well enough to elicit a published response from Dear Abby should have no trouble getting a date with the same technique. Go get 'er, Tiger!

Inmate attorney skeptical, but officials vow to comply

HOUSTON (AP) — The attorney for inmates in a 13-year-old civil rights lawsuit against the Texas prisons said he is skeptical that officials will comply with an agreement to end overcrowding in the nation's second-largest corrections system.

"It's not in the nature of the prison beast to make changes," William Bennett Turner said Monday after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice agreed to the out-of-court settlement. "I am not euphoric about the settlement. This provides just the barest of minimums. We made every compromise we reasonably could make."

The settlement addressed the final civil rights issue raised in a landmark case filed in 1972 by inmate David Ruiz, a convicted robber.

Justice in 1980 used the suit to find Texas prison practices unconstitutional and ordered sweeping reforms. The overcrowding issue had been slated for trial earlier this year but attorneys for the inmates and the state reached an out-of-court settlement.

Among other things, the settlement puts a ceiling of 32,500 inmates in Texas prisons. The population now is about 38,000.

Prison officials acknowledged that compliance with the agreement would be difficult, particularly with the time stipulations on new prison construction.

"It's nice that their lawyer says they're going to comply," Turner said. But he predicted the compliance would hinge on whether the department had the staff and money, whether the changes could get through the prison system bureaucracy and whether the will existed to make the changes work.

"The oldtimers would like to get back to the good old days," Turner said. "It used to be cowboy boots and hats. Now it's more gray and bureaucratic."

FOOD FOR AMERICANS

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Beans in all their varieties have been staples in many diets in the world.

Italians like their beans in soups, antipastos, stews with rice and even pasta. In warm weather, they enjoy them cold, with even the thick minestrone soup served at room temperature.

Beans appear in many antipastos — those colorful and multi-flavored hors d'oeuvres or appetizers served with Italian meals. Antipastos traditionally were served with the midday meal, especially when there was to be no pasta.

ANTIPASTO BEAN SALAD

1/3	cup olive oil
2	tablespoons red wine vinegar
1/2	teaspoon salt
1/2	teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
1/2	teaspoon onion powder
1/4	teaspoon garlic powder
1/16	teaspoon ground black pepper
1	can (19 ounces) red kidney beans, drained
1	can (19 ounces) chickpeas, drained
3/4	cup diced, roasted red peppers
2	ounces sliced salami, cut in 1/4-inch stripe
2	ounces sliced ham, cut in 1/4-inch stripe

In a medium bowl combine olive oil, vinegar, salt, tarragon, onion and garlic powders and black pepper. Add kidney beans, chickpeas, red peppers, salami and ham; mix well.

Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours or overnight. Serve at room temperature over lettuce, garnished with Tuscan pepper, if desired.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 portions.

It's obvious that if East had "stayed out of the pot," South would probably not have bid the slam. (His spade king might not look so well placed.) If the slam were bid, it would not be so easy to count out the hand and guess the location of the club queen.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN)

The pros and cons of overcalling

In bridge, one of the questions that will be asked until the end of time is, "Should I butt in with an overcall?" The corollary question, used more in poker than in bridge, is, "Should I stay out of the pot?" Human nature and the power of persuasion being what they are, if you ask yourself the first question, you will probably be in the bidding too often. If you ask yourself the second, you will surely not be in the bidding often enough. The best course is to remember both questions and try to be a little inconsistent so that your regular opponents will be a little confused. I wish I could tell you how to prevent your partner from getting confused.

Today's East answered the first question in the affirmative with his one-spade bid, non-vulnerable. The opponents quickly and a mite aggressively reached six hearts. The declarer won the second spade with the king, cashed dummy's K-Q of hearts, and then successfully finessed against the jack in East's hand. Three rounds of diamonds disclosed that East had started with three of that suit. It became easy enough to play West for the club queen, since if East had started with five spades for his overcall, he could have no more than a

Shultz family holds reunion

The children of the late Walter Shultz (1866-1950) who were present include Everett Shultz (85) of Clovis, N.M.; Mariel Shuler (87) of Snyder; Chan Moore (82) of Snyder; and Christine West (80) of Pep.

Walter Shultz was born in Alabama and moved to Pilgrims Rest in 1886. He lived in a log home until he moved with his family to West Texas in 1915 where he bought his first car.

On a trip to East Texas it took two days, lots of flats and time to open and close many gates.

In 1917 his father was the oldest living man in Rains County at the age of 89.

Others attending included Don and Vi South; Johnnie and Geneva Panter; Maxine, Cindy and Linda Scrimshire; and Brian and Patty Shuler, all of Dallas.

"I would've done my homework, but they kept saying stay tuned."

DENNIS THE MENACE

Play again Friday...

Snyder slaps S'Water teens

Jimmy Velasquez's second-inning, two-run homer provided the necessary firepower as Snyder's Babe Ruth League team defeated the Sweetwater Senior Teenage League champs 4-1 in a practice game here Monday evening.

Snyder Black, still tuning for next week's state tournament, will entertain a playoff bound squad from Big Spring at 7:30 here Friday night.

Sweetwater took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning when Mike Glass drew a walk off of Snyder pitcher Justin Webb and scored on Gary Walton's single. It was the only run the visitors were to manage, however, as the Black team's ace relinquished only four more hits over the next four innings. Velasquez finished out the game, pitching the final two stanzas.

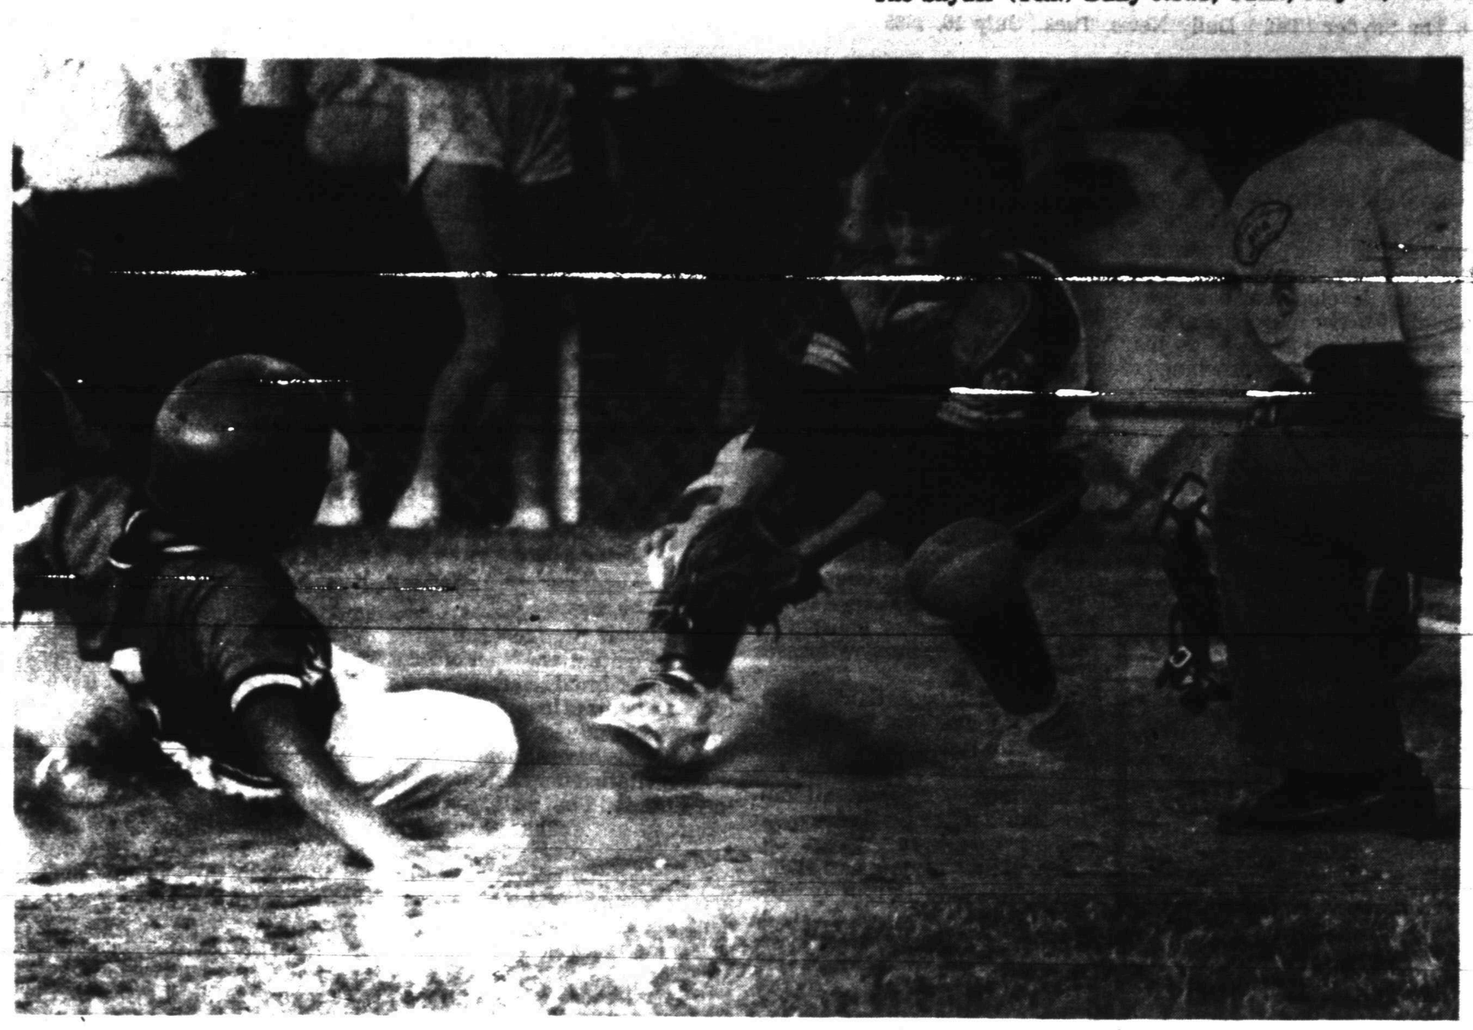

Snyder gained the lead for good in the second inning when Steve Parker led off with a single and Velasquez followed with a strong-arm shot over the centerfield fence. The shot pegged Sweetwater's Marty Daniel as the losing pitcher.

Snyder added another run in the inning when Brad Holcomb walked, was balked to second and went to third and home on wild pitches.

The only other run of the game came in the fourth off of Sweetwater relief pitcher Brian Taylor. Velasquez was actually balked to first base in an interesting call by the umpire. The runner moved around on a single by Holcomb and came in when Albert Rodriquez hit into a routine ground out.

Snyder managed only four hits in the contest. Mike McWilliams had led off the bottom of the first with a triple but was picked off the bag by a good Sweetwater defensive play from Daniel to Marco Ramirez.

As mentioned, Webb allowed five hits altogether - over five innings - and gave up one walk. Velasquez walked two batters but pitched hitless ball over two innings. He struck out three.

GOTCHA' – Snyder All-Star catcher Jeremy Ditmore braces himself for the impact when Rotan's Trey Carrillo tries to steal home plate on a passed ball. Ditmore made a quick recovery on the passed ball, and, as the photo indicates, was on the spot to tag Carrillo out. Plate umpire Rudy Vierra, from Abilene, made the call. Trade could go on today

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Texas Rangers third baseman Buddy Bell probably will be dealt to the Cincinnati Reds today for a package of young players, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported, quoting sources close to the negotiations.

The newspaper said that the deal reportedly wasn't finalized, but that it appeared likely that Cincinnati - Bell's first choice all along - had emerged from an original pack of 10 clubs he had agreed to be traded to, the newspaper said.

"Exactly whom the Reds would give up was unclear, but possibilities included 28-year-old outfielder Duane Walker, who had also asked to be traded, and one to three pitchers from a group of Paul O'Neill, Jeff Russell, Fred Toliver, Rob Murphy, Bob Buchanan, Jay Tibbs or Kal Daniels," the newspaper added.

Bell, who must approve the deal before it can go through, insisted he had not yet done that but has made it clear he would be happy to go home to Cincinnati, where he was raised and still lives, the newspaper said.

Cowboys still missing Brooks

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Defensive end Kevin Brooks, like 23 other first-round draft picks, was a holdout when the Dallas Cowboys opened their training camp, but Cowboys president Tex Schramm says the pressure will be on them, not the National Football League clubs.

"When all of the camps get started, when all the teams get in, the pressure will be very much on the players," Schramm said Monday.

"Everyone is going to have 70 to 100 players in camp, and everything will be going on as usual. Players will be competing, and teams are not going to miss one or two players," Schramm said.

"With the players, however, it will be extremely important from a personal standpoint. Once the camps open, the pendulum of pressure swings very strongly on the player."

Brooks is one of four who weren't on hand Sunday when the Cowboys became the first NFL team to set up camp. Also missing were offensive linemen Matt Darwin and Matt Moran and defensive end Kurt Ploeger.

Defensive end Jim Hermann and wide receiver Leon Gonzalez signed Sunday afternoon and running back Robert Lavette signed late Saturday.

Brooks is the first No. 1 pick not to report to the Cowboys' camp on time since 1971, Brandt said.

Brooks is asking for a four-year package worth about $1.5 million, including a $500,000 signing bonus. Cowboys personnel director Gil Brandt is believed to have offered him about $1.5 million over five years, including a $400,000 signing bonus.

Brooks actually came to camp in hopes his agent, Mike Trope of Los Angeles, and Brandt would work out a deal. But after four hours of negotiation, Trope decided not to accept the club's offer, and Brooks had to leave the California Lutheran campus where the Cowboys train. He said he planned to stay with friends near Thousand Oaks.

Brandt and Cowboys coach Tom Landry have warned rookies that missed time in camp will result in a lower signing bonus.

Landry also said rookies will have a more difficult time making the roster since the National Football League has reduced its team rosters from 49 players to 45.

Former USFL fullback Todd Fowler was scheduled to arrive Sunday with the rookies, but Landry changed his decision about Fowler's reporting date.

All-Stars claim Area 5 crown

Snyder's All-Stars sprinted out to an early seven-run lead, then held on to rock Rotan 10-3 in the championship game of the Area 5 Little League Playoff here Monday night.

The victory sends the All-Stars to Abilene and the District 4 Playoff later this week. A bracket for the District 5 event had not been drawn up as of Tuesday morning.

If there was a hero of Monday's victory, it was pitcher Michael Torres, who kept the Rotan bats off-balance defensively, and who led Snyder in hitting with a pair of singles.

But more than anything, Monday's win was a team victory. Snyder got nine hits and they were scattered among eight players. In addition, the locals benefitted from seven walks, including three to players who did not get a basehit. Eleven different players, in other words, found their way to the basepaths.

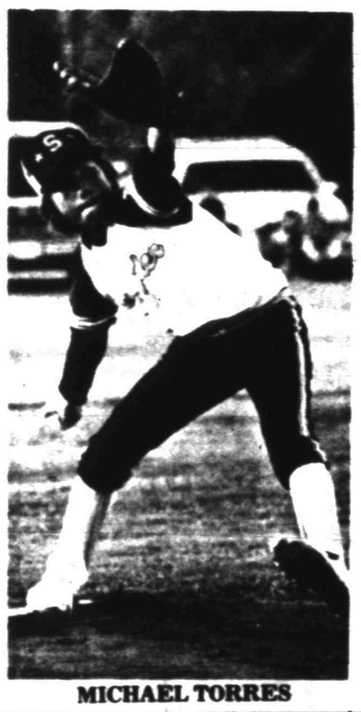

The difference in the ballgame came in the second inning when Snyder managed seven runs against Rotan starting pitcher Jerry Thomas.

Torres led off with a single, Shelby Bufkin doubled and Jason Taylor walked to load. Thomas then issued free trips to Jody Tavarez and Ronnie Pruitt, forcing in Torres and Bufkin for Snyder's first two runs. One out later, Terry Snyder sacrificed in Taylor for the local's third point.

The mele continued as Gilbert Hernandez reloaded the bases with another walk and Blair Williams followed with a double up the middle that brought in Tavarez and Pruitt. Torres' second single of the inning brought Casias and Terry Snyder scampering home and ended the local's scoring for the inning.

Two more runs in the top of the third inning increased Snyder's lead to 9-0. Tavarez reached on a single, then scored when Bebo Casias popped a high fly ball into short centerfield that was good enough for two bases. Terry Snyder later cracked another pitch into short center to push Casias home.

Rotan scored its first run in the last of the fourth. Eddie Onofee had walked aboard, reached third on a single by Thomas and came home on a passed ball.

MICHAEL TORRES

Both teams scored again in the fifth. Snyder tallied its 10th run when Pruitt singled, made his way to third and raced home on a passed ball.

In the bottom of the stanza, Jose Chavarro reached on an error and scored on a single by Trey Carrillo. Rotan got its final run when Augie Alaniz walked and scored on Thomas' second single of the game.

Snyder made a couple of fine plays to get out of trouble in the inning. Speedy Tyronne Daniels had led off for Rotan with an infield single. He tried to reach third base on an error moments later and was speared by a fine throw from centerfielder Mark King to third-sacker Pruitt.

Still later in the inning, catcher Jeremy Ditmore tagged out Carrillo who was trying to come home on a passed ball.

Earlier, in the fourth inning, Ditmore and Pruitt had combined to pick off Alaniz, who was trying to steal third.

For the night's work, Torres allowed five hits and five walks. He struck out six batters over the six-inning distance. Thomas went five innings and gave up eight hits and six walks. He struck out seven batters. Carrillo came on in the sixth inning and allowed one hit and one walk.

AL all-stars have the power but NL boasts the tradition

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Which All-Star team would you rather have?

Rickey Henderson leads off a magnum-force American League lineup with a .357 average. George Brett, leading the major leagues at .358, bats third.

Baltimore's big boppers, Eddie Murray and Cal Ripken, hit fourth and fifth. Jim Rice, one of baseball's biggest terrors during the last decade, is seventh - that's right, seventh - and Carlton Fisk, tied for the major league lead with 23 homers, is eighth.

"This is the best team I think we've had," Brett said.

Then there is the National League, which will be without some of its standouts for tonight's 56th All-Star Game.

Pedro Guerrero of Los Angeles and Gary Carter of the New York Mets are injured. Joaquin Andujar, the leading winner in the majors, decided to stay home in St. Louis. Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles and the Mets' Dwight Gooden may not pitch an inning between them.

And the game is even at an AL park, the semi-surrealistic Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

"We're at a definite disadvantage because they have all played here. They know all the nooks and crannies," NL Manager Dick Williams of San Diego said. "That's our alibi."

But will the Nationals need one? If they win, it will be for the 21st time in 23 games, extending their margin to 36-19-1.

A victory would probably come on the strength of pitching.

LaMarr Hoyt, the Cy Young winner in the AL two seasons ago, will open up for the NL. He's one of five San Diego players in the starting lineup.

"I know their guys and I hope that helps me," Hoyt said.

Williams said either Nolan Ryan of Houston or the Mets' Ron Darling would follow Hoyt. Then Valenzuela and Gooden, who combined to strike out six consecutive batters in last year's game, would get their turns.

To finish, Williams brought along three premier relievers, his own Rich Gossage, Montreal's Jeff Reardon and Scott Garrelts of San Francisco.

Detroit's Jack Morris will make his second All-Star start for the AL. He pitched two scoreless innings in opening the 1981 game, and threw two shutout innings last year.

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson will guide the AL and attempt to become the first manager to win with both leagues in All-Star play. He said he'd like Toronto left-hander Jimmy Key to follow Morris.

Man pleads guilty to murder

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 23-year-old man who had been charged with three murders in a long-running family feud at a housing development has pleaded guilty to two murder charges.

In exchange for a 20-year sentence and the dropping of other charges against him, Joe Patlan accepted a plea-bargain arrangement after a morning of intense negotiations and pleaded guilty Monday to the Dec. 9 shooting deaths of David Cardenas and Juan Gonzales.

Patlan's plea occurred in an atmosphere of strict security in 187th District Court. Spectators were required to pass a metal detector before entering the courtroom lined with extra bailiffs.

The security was to guard against further violent outbreaks between the Cardenas and Garcia families, whose vicious feud in the San Juan Courts housing development on the city's west side has left five people dead over the past year.

Patlan is a cousin of the Garcias.

"This is the most unusual case I've known in the five years of my practice," prosecutor Jody Tullos told the San Antonio Light. "It's like TV, like Perry Mason. Of course, it's also unusual in that we've lost so many witnesses between trials."

In accepting Patlan's plea, District Judge Pat Priest also agreed to Tullos' plans to drop three other cases related to the family feud — murder, attempted murder and aggravated asssault.

Originally, the state had planned to prosecute Patlan for the Oct. 21, 1984, beating death of Ernesto Cardenas. However, Tullos characterized the state's chances of winning that case as a "toss-up" because so many witnesses have been murdered since the incident.

Contributing to the necessity for a plea-bargain was Patlan's insistence that he was not involved in Ernesto Cardenas' murder or the other incidents for which he had been charged, Patlan's attorney said.

"He felt he had a moral obligation not to confess to a murder he was not involved in," attorney Ralph Lopez said.

By contrast, he added, Patlan freely admitted to killing David Cardenas and Gonzales with a .22-caliber pistol after the two allegedly threatened him at a Garcia family picnic.

Film shot near Sweetwater to be premiered there

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — The local premiere of "Red Desert Penitentiary," an offbeat western filmed through the cooperation of local residents, will be shown twice, film production officials have announced.

An invitation-only screening of the film will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Texas Cinema in Sweetwater, Tom Henderson, production manager of the film and longtime Sweetwater resident, said Monday. A public screening is slated for 9:30 p.m. Monday.

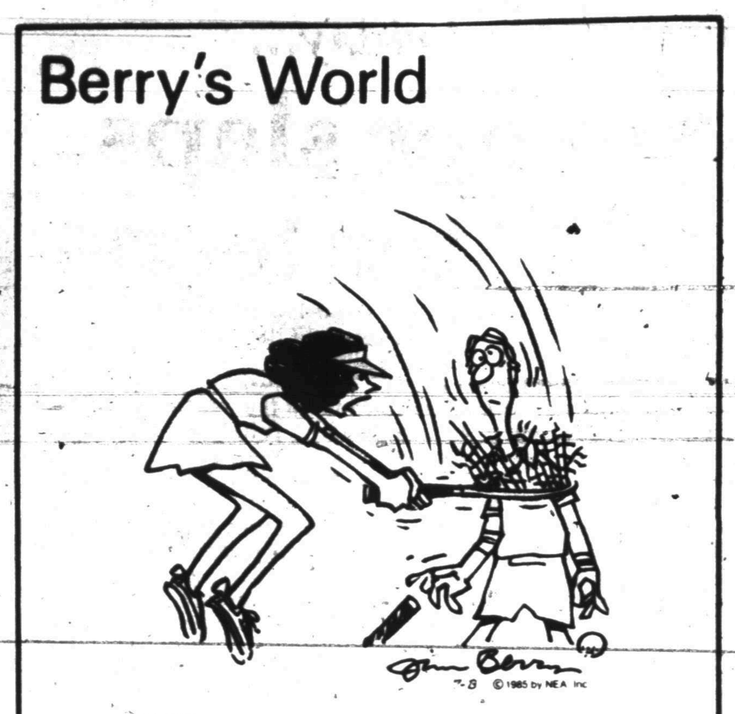

"Red Desert Penitentiary" was shot in Nolan and Taylor counties last summer.

George Sluizer, also known as the "Flying Dutchman," best-known for his documentary work, said he was shooting a brief documentary about Sweetwater's annual rattlesnake roundup when he got the idea for doing a feature film here.

Through the efforts of Henderson and several members of Sweetwater's Little Theater, the project became a reality, and the movie was shot on locations ranging from the Sears Ranch in Maryneal to the Nolan County Courthouse in Sweetwater to Old Abilene Town.

Of the film's cash budget of $100,500, 80 percent was invested by Sluizer's MGS Films while the other 20 percent came from two anonymous Sweetwater investors.

Poet Lord Byron died in 1824.

Income, expenses said under budget

Income and expenses were both under budget projections for the CRMWD during the first half of the year. With the return of hot, dry weather, that could change in July.

Income totalled $5,853,596 for the first six months, 4.82 percent under budget estimates. Of the total, $5,757,077 was in water sales.

Expenditures for the six months were $3,462,774, or 9.13 percent less than projected. The big difference was in an energy bill of $2,271,279, or $280,984 less than projected.

For the first half, net income was $2,379,725, or $61,721 more than estimated. Since the first of July, demands for water by the cities has come up by more than 10 percent.

Jack Bryant can take care of your septic tank needs

If your house's sewage disposal needs are served by a septic tank, then there are a few facts you need to know.

When septic tanks are not cleaned periodically they get full of solids which then flow out of the lateral (drain) lines, clogging the perforated joints. Solids may even clog sewer lines from the house, causing the sewage to back up in the house.

At this point, the solution is either to clean out drain lines (which is not always successful) and clean the tank; or to lay new lines and clean out the tank.

When you have septic tank trouble, the least worry is the inconvenience it causes; and valuable carpet could be ruined when the lines are backed up.

Why not save all this expense and worry by maintaining your septic tank properly? For a septic tank to work properly so as to give no trouble, it needs to be maintained like anything else. If you have your tanks pumped every six months, then your chances of having it back up into the house are less likely.

It is very expensive to have a septic tank worked over, so if you want us to put you on a maintenance program, we can clean the tank every six months for $30.00 each time. This is over a 20 percent savings.

Chemicals by themselves usually don't work properly if the tank is already full of solids. If your tank runs over the lid, you can be sure it needs cleaning. Likely the perforated joints are already clogged up.

The good part of this is that Jack Bryant and his septic tank cleaning service can save you money. He is able to do this by using a larger tank truck and the cost is determined by the number of loads hauled.

Jack Bryant can keep your septic tank operating properly. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-3930.

Ann-Margaret wants a baby

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Ann-Margret, at 44, is making a last-ditch effort to attain one goal still unfulfilled after a successful career in film and television: having a baby, according to a published interview.

"This is my last effort, and then I will be quiet about it," she said in the August issue of Redbook magazine. "No one will ever hear me speak of it again."

Ann-Margret, who appeared in films such as "Viva Las Vegas," "Carnal Knowledge" and "Tommy," is helping raise the three children her husband, former actor Roger Smith, had in a previous marriage.

Early cancer detection may now be helped

NEW YORK (AP) — What Betty Ford's breast cancer did for that disease about 10 years ago, President Reagan's polyp may do for colorectal cancer: boost public awareness and help doctors find the disease early, experts say.

In trying to diagnose colon and rectal cancer early enough to improve chances for survival substantially, doctors want to examine patients "before they see red blood in the stool," said Dr. Sidney Winawer, chief of gastroenterology at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York.

Visible blood in the stool, bleeding from the rectum and sudden change in bowel habits may indicate colorectal cancer and deserve an examination, he said. But examinations of people without symptoms can catch the disease earlier, and an American Cancer Society official said Monday he believes the publicity surrounding Reagan's polyp will help that effort.

"I certainly expect an increase in people calling for detection examinations," said Lawrence Garfinkel, vice president for epidemiology and statistics and director of cancer prevention. "I think any kind of national publicity ... is good to get people to come for detection of cancer."

Cancer society spokeswoman Joann Schellenbach said, "We used to call colorectal cancer the cancer nobody talked about. I would say this week it's the cancer everybody's talking about."

Garfinkel said diagnoses of breast cancer surged about 10 years ago after former first lady Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller, the wife of former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, went public with their cases.

The cancer society estimates about 96,000 cases of colon cancer will be found this year, plus 42,000 cases of rectal cancer. Among cancers, only those of the lung and skin are found more frequently than colorectal cancer.

About 59,900 Americans are expected to die from colorectal cancer this year, second only to lung cancer. Colon cancer is expected to account for 51,600 of the deaths.

Queen Elizabeth's third son, Prince Edward, was born in 1964.

Nancy calm when told of condition

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Nancy Reagan, feeling drained and alone during President Reagan's surgery ordeal, listened "calmly without blinking" as doctors told her the large growth removed from her husband's colon was cancerous.

While the president read a book in his room and waited to hear the outcome of pathological tests, Mrs. Reagan was told of the findings in a 30-minute meeting with his doctors, letting her come to grips with the news before she went in to to see her husband.

"She asked clear, concise questions of them and listened very intently as they spoke," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. He was with the first lady and White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan as they heard the doctors' report in the sitting room adjacent to the president's bedroom at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Mrs. Reagan had cried alone three days earlier when she learned that the growth might be malignant, but she was dry-eyed when those fears were confirmed, officials said.

Doctors told her they thought all of the cancerous tissue was removed before it spread to other parts of Reagan's body.

"She took it very calmly, without blinking — looked straight ahead," Speakes said.

Asked if she was upset, Speakes said, "Well, of course, as always, as anyone can imagine, certainly she's concerned and curious and has questions. But Mrs. Reagan accepted the news in a very calm fashion."

Determined to change her schedule as little as possible, Mrs. Reagan returned to the White House on Monday afternoon to substitute for Reagan as host to the Washington diplomatic corps at a Boston Pops concert on the South Lawn.

After the concert, she invited the 422 guests into the mansion, where she stood in a receiving line for nearly an hour, shaking hands with diplomats and thanking them for their expressions of concern about the president.

While Mrs. Reagan appeared composed in public, she was described by her press secretary, Jennefer Hirshberg, as feeling "drained and a sense of aloneness."

Mrs. Reagan spent the night at the White House, as she has since the president entered the hospital on Friday. She talked to friends and family members by telephone, Ms. Hirshberg said.

"She didn't want to leave the hospital but he wanted her" to go ahead with her schedule, the press aide reported.

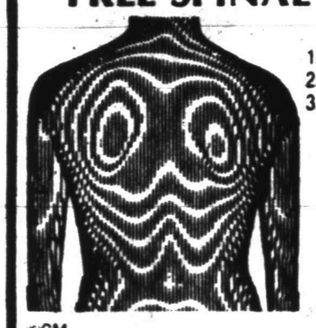

Even so, Mrs. Reagan will cut short a trip Wednesday to the aircraft carrier USS America, returning to the White House after a few hours' visit instead of spending overnight.

SUZETTE HARRIS and Tariq Mehmood invite you to come in and enjoy Shakey's great pizza and hospitality and register for the Dr. Pepper car to be given away Sunday, August 18.

Shakey's offers finest food and entertainment everyday

Shakey's is the home of the world's greatest pizza and it all started over 24 years ago in Sacramento, Calif. by Shakey Johnson and Big Ed Plummer. They wanted to open a plain ole' beverage joint, but because they wanted it to be unique, they also served pizza and provided Dixieland music.

Now Shakey's has grown beyond that and become a fun family restaurant with a varied menu. Mohammed and Naseem Ilyas invite you to come out and enjoy, not only the fine food, but also the games, the big screen TV and space for your birthday parties, business meetings and social affairs.

At Shakey's the dough is prepared fresh everyday and each pizza is made to order. They use only the finest ingredients and 100 percent real meat and cheese. You can create your own pizza or you can choose from a variety of Shakey's favorites such as the Shakey's special, the deli, which has everything on it, or many more.

Every Sunday through Friday from 11:00 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m., you can enjoy Shakey's buffet. Of course there's a variety of pizza to choose from, but you'll also find fried chicken, Mojo potatoes, spaghetti, chicken curry, rice, fried vegetables, such as onion rings, zuccini, okra or mushrooms, garlic bread and a large salad bar.

If you need a lunch prepared to go, just call Shakey's and choose from their pizza, spaghetti, sandwiches or fried chicken. They can have it ready for you in only 30 minutes. The buffet can also be prepared to go.

Of course, you've always been able to carry out orders at Shakey's, but now Mr. Ilyas would like you to know that they will also deliver. Just phone 573-1131, place your order and then allow at least 30 minutes for delivery to your door.

Be sure to come in and register for the Dr. Pepper car which will be given away Sunday, August 18.

Shakey's, located at 314 E. Hwy. 80, not only provides a wide and varied menu, but it's a fun, family restaurant. Go by and enjoy what they have to offer and see if you don't agree that Shakey's is the world's greatest pizza. The honest pizza with all the real ingredients — No imitations!

Judge jails convicted swindler's mate, son

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the husband and son of convicted swindler Peggy Stines jailed saying he found it "inconceivable" that they disobeyed him by keeping nearly $100,000 worth of jewelry bought with money gained in a silver scam.

U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer jailed the pair Monday after a tipster told authorities he was asked to sell the jewelry to raise money, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

Mrs. Stines was convicted in December on criminal fraud charges and sentenced to 99 years in prison for her role in a $17 million pyramid silver scheme. According to court records, more than 1,000 people invested money in non-existent silver-reclamation plants from 1981 until early 1984.

Donald R. Stines, 50, the woman's husband, pleaded guilty to income tax evasion in May and was free pending sentencing after agreeing to cooperate with authorities in a federal investigation of his wife's multimillion-dollar empire.

Buchmeyer ordered the family last fall to turn over anything bought with the money taken from investors. The Garland family earlier this year relinquished title to five houses, a ranch, and an oil and gas company.

More than cattle, oil in book

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A few years ago, James Michener, the Pulitzer Prize-winning author of 31 books, was weighing the possibilities of a subject for a new "big book."

He was wavering between Texas and the Caribbean when an invitation from then-Gov. Bill Clements of Texas tipped the scales.

Now Michener has put his "Texas" manuscript in the hands of his editors, and, typically, he's already started to work on his next epic — about Alaska.

Michener said his new novel, which will be published this fall, starts with the arrival of the Spaniards in Texas in the early 16th century, focuses on the Spanish-Mexican heritage for the first three chapters, "and then moves into the arrival of other groups. It ends in November of 1985."

"I would say the happiest moment I've had working in Texas was when I decided very early" that the book "was not going to be a book about Spindletop (oil) ... but you have to have a main thread, and I had very early decided on cotton," Michener said.

Although Michener said "I would be distraught if Texans did not like the book," he added that it was written primarily for a non-Texas audience.

Michener, who has traveled in Texas since 1936, began his research at the University of Texas at Austin in October 1982. Michener had some ties with UT-Austin; in 1968 he and his wife, Mari, had given the school 400 works of 20th-century American art.

Michener was given an office at UT-Austin and library privileges. Later, private funds donated to UT were made available to finance his research. In October the university announced he would assume a permanent role in a creative writing program.

In a recent meeting with local journalists and later with members of the Headliners Club, a private dining club, Michener recounted some of the field research he did, including:

— Riding Interstate 35 with a state trooper and taking a barge down the Gulf of Mexico.

— Watching high school football — one San Antonio school he remembers in wonderment "had 11 assistant coaches" — and a quail hunt on the King Ranch in south Texas.

— Sharing duty with a Texas Ranger in Big Bend country.

— Visiting an armadillo farm.

— Pacing the boundaries of the Alamo.

"I was a very willing visitor. I would suppose that I have been out on 40 or 50 soirees like that," he said.

In response to a question by Liz Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, to whether Texas had changed during his research, Michener said:

"The people you've allowed into your state without a passport have modified Texas to an extent, but like a good soup stock, it's strong enough to accept anything thrown into the pot and still be a Texas soup."

The author of "Tales of the South Pacific," which won a Pulitzer in 1948, said his ties with Texas won't be severed with publication of his novel.

He and his wife have bought a house "so presumably we'll be staying here for a long time. These things work out by accident. When I came here, we had no intention of staying."

Subcommitte oks tax on Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee, while rejecting an administration proposal for an across-the-board increase in Medicare health insurance premiums, has approved a new Medicare tax to be paid by elderly recipients with incomes above $20,000.

The House Ways and Means subcommittee on health approved the tax Monday as part of a package of Medicare changes that could go to the full Ways and Means committee next week.

It would affect individuals with incomes above $20,000 and couples with incomes above $40,000 who participate in Medicare, the government's health insurance program for the elderly and disabled.

Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., the subcommittee's chairman, said the proposal was drafted as an alternative to the Reagan administration's plan to raise premiums for Medicare Part B coverage, which pays doctor bills. The administration proposal would have raised the monthly fee for everyone by the same amount.

Stark did not call it a tax, instead referring to the measure as "an income-related premium collected by the Internal Revenue Service." By whatever name, he said, it was fairer than a flat increase.

In his 1986 budget proposal, President Reagan said individuals are paying too little of the cost of their Medicare Part B coverage. When the coverage was established, he said, individuals paid 50 percent of the cost. But the premium increase has been sharply restricted, he said, and the current premium of $15.50 a month pays less than a quarter of the program's costs.

Miss Puerto Rico is named Miss Universe

MIAMI (AP) — A "really, really excited" Deborah Carthy-Deu of Puerto Rico, newly crowned Miss Universe 1985, attributed her success to hard work, faith and holding on to a dream.

Miss Carthy-Deu, a 19-year-old, hazel-eyed brunette from San Juan, was crowned Monday night by Miss Universe 1984, Yvonne Ryding of Sweden, before an audience of 5,000 people in the James L. Knight International Center and an estimated 600 million television viewers around the world.

The university student, who wants to become an actress, won a $175,000 prize package, which includes $120,000 in cash, a Mazda RX-7 sports car, a mink coat, a Hollywood screen test, a New York City apartment for a year and five years worth of makeup, suntan lotion and panty hose.

"New York, here I come," said the 118-pound, 5-foot-8, Miss Universe in a news conference after the two-hour pageant with game-show host Bob Barker and actress Joan Van Ark as masters of ceremony.

"I'm really, really excited," she said. "I'm still on cloud nine."

Ugliest pickup selected

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The crisis surrounding John Kelso's Ugliest Pickup Truck in Texas Contest has been resolved.

Doug Celovsky's 1966 International Harvester, decorated with Lone Star beer stickers, has been selected the 1985 winner.

When the contest was held Sunday at the Hog Eye Bait Shop, judges selected a 1964 Ford owned by Leon McMahan of Austin as the winner. But it was discovered that the McMahan truck had an outdated inspection sticker.

Contest rules required that entries be street legal, so the McMahan truck has been awarded a special honor. Instead of the Ugliest Pickup Truck in Texas, it is now officially the "Ugliest Planter in Texas."

John Kelso, who sponsored the contest, first said he planned to call the judges and get their opinion on what to do about the potential scandal. But rather than mess with making a dozen or so phone calls Monday, he made the decision all by himself.

When contacted about the decision Monday, the new champion didn't seem particularly excited about moving up from No. 2 to No. 1.

"It really didn't make any damn difference," said Celovsky, who does air conditioning and construction work, and lives six miles south of Elgin.

Celovsky was awarded a pair of foam dice Sunday for his second-place finish, and McMahan was given eats for two at Don Juan's & Only Taco Palace in Austin. Though Celovsky has been thrust into first place, he doesn't want to trade his second-place prize for the first-place prize.

"We can't switch prizes now," he told the Austin American-Statesman. "Because that's what I was after, those foam dice."

Celovsky said he bought the truck in 1976 from a salvage yard in Italy for $350 while he was in the Air Force. He also owned a Jaguar at the time. He said that when he was transferred back to the United States, military regulations allowed him to bring only one vehicle with him.

Naturally, he brought back the champion truck, he said, and left the Jaguar behind.

Lose weight via balanced diet

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have heard that going on an all-protein diet for a couple of weeks will cause a large weight loss, which may serve as a good incentive to continue on a more nutritious diet. How healthy is it to be on an all-protein diet for two weeks?

DEAR READER — I don't encourage anyone to go on an all-anything diet for two weeks. Protein is essential, but so are other nutrients. Without any fats or carbohydrates in your food, you'll lose weight, all right — about half of it fat and the rest muscle. You heard me correctly: You will burn about equal amounts of fat and protein during a pure protein diet or a fast.

A more appropriate approach would be to keep your protein intake high, and, at the same time, to eat some complex carbohydrates — like grains — to prevent muscle wasting. The carbohydrate you can cut out is the "simple" type — in particular, sugar. That's hard, though, since sugar seems to be in everything these days. Even table salt has sugar (dextrose) added to keep it pouring when it rains. Check labels and, to the extent you can, avoid sugar. Try to maintain a diet that is balanced with other foods.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Several years ago a diet doctor put me on dexedrine to help curb my appetite and lose weight. This really helped. Recently I was considering trying that again, yet I heard that it is now illegal for doctors to prescribe dexedrine. Is this true? Will I be wasting my money by going back to a diet doctor, or do they have something else that works as well?

DEAR READER — Don't use dexedrine; it's poison. No, I'm understating the case. Dexedrine is one of the most dangerous compounds available. It will kill you. It should only be used under close medical supervision for a neurological disorder called narcolepsy and its related equivalents.

Don't go to a diet doctor who prescribes drugs. To begin with, the drugs are harmful. Second, what are you going to do when the drugs run out? You can't keep using a medical crutch indefinitely. Third, if you really can't lose weight on your own, go to a dieting organization. They're cheaper and safer than most diet doctors. Weight Watchers and the Diet Center come most readily to my mind, but there may be equally effective groups, by other names, in your community.

You really would be wasting money on diet medicine — and those drugs could waste you.

Space flight song possible

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — John Denver said he would like to write a song about space flight, but doing so will require a trip aboard the space shuttle first.

"My real hope is to be able to fly in a space shuttle one day," Denver, whose hits include "Rocky Mountain High" and "Country Roads," said Saturday during the Marshall Space Flight Center's 25th anniversary picnic.

But, he said, "I'm not going to write a song about space until I'm up there and can write about the real thing."

Denver said he also believes that problems faced by mankind can be resolved with steps directed toward the space efforts.

Lobby against nuke weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — He had finished his work on the bomb's explosive trigger, so at 5:30 a.m. on July 16, 1945, physicist Philip Morrison hunkered down in the desert near Los Alamos, N.M., to relay the countdown, three-two-one-zero, for that frightening first atomic blast.

Four decades and 50,000 nuclear warheads later, Morrison and others who invented the A-bomb and still feel guilty about it are in the forefront of the U.S. anti-nuclear movement and the drive against President Reagan's weapons strategy.

"No one of the men who lay there in the open air on the ground 10 miles from the tower holding the first nuclear explosive device — certainly not this author — can forget that initial false dawn, when the cool of the night was ended for a few seconds in a flash of brilliant light and a wave of noonday heat that suddenly irradiated exposed hands and face," Morrison said in a report released today on the 40th birthday of the bomb.

He and those employees of the Manhattan Project who are members of the Union of Concerned Scientists were in Washington to lobby against U.S. military programs, notably "Star Wars," Reagan's $26 billion anti-ballistic missile research project.

They were briefing members of Congress on their report, which addresses events leading up to the first A-bomb test, code named Trinity. At the same time, they argued to end future projects of mass destruction.

With Morrison, were:

—Robert Bacher, who assembled the Trinity bomb's plutonium core and who later became a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

—Hans Bethe, who headed the theoretical work done at Los Alamos, directed the first detonation and won a Nobel Prize.

—Cyril Smith, coordinator of all metallurgical aspects of plutonium and uranium at Los Alamos and a former member of a presidential science advisory committee.

—Victor Weisskopf, a Manhattan Project group leader who calculated the bomb's effects and who now appears in anti-Star Wars television commercials.

"We hope that by looking backward across the four decades of nuclear weapons-building to Trinity that we might be able to understand the current dilemma of the nuclear rivalry more clearly," said Henry Kendall, chairman of the scientists' group.

Their chief aim is to stop Star Wars, which President Reagan says can make nuclear warfare obsolete by creating effective defenses, but which Morrison believes will merely fuel the arms race at even higher levels of spending.

Advances in weaponry since Trinity — hydrogen bombs, ballistic missiles, multiple warheads, missile submarines, greater accuracy and the MX — are forces for instability, not stalemate, Morrison said.

Ironically, the arguments the scientists make today are no different from those put forward by many A-bomb scientists within days of the first explosions, including the ones that leveled the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Ex-officials, guards indicted for abuse

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted two former Texas Department of Corrections' prison officials and four guards for allegedly mistreating two prisoners following an escape, the Justice Department announced.

Those handed the four-count indictment Monday include Robert Minor Lawson II, former assistant warden of the Wynne Unit in Huntsville, and Donald L. Shiver, former captain of the unit, the department said.

Lawson, 36, and Shiver, 30, were fired March 1984 for unnecessary use of force stemming from the October 29, 1982 incident.

The guards named in the indictment were Leonel Leal Jr., 24; Morris Ray Bigham, 26; Nathan Bryant White, 37; and Henry E. Farris, 37, said Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, who heads the department's civil rights division.

Farris, Bigham, and White were reprimanded for failing to report the use of force and submitting false statements, TDC spokesman Charles Brown said. No disciplinary action was taken against Leal, he said. All four guards are still employed by TDC.

All six defendants were charged with conspiring "to injure and intimidate" Scott E. Licklider and Mark A. Griffith "in violation of their constitutional rights not to be deprived of liberty without due process of law, not to be subjected to summary punishment, and to be kept free from harm while in official custody," the department said.

The indictment said that Lawson, Shiver and some 25 guards assembled at the back gate of the Wynne Unit on Oct. 29, 1982, to receive the inmates when they were returned by deputy sheriffs after their escape the night before.

Aceording to the indictment, Lawson, Shiver and others stripped the inmates of their clothing and prodded them to go naked. They then allegedly handcuffed the inmates to the (prison) major's office, where they were repeatedly beaten and Griffith was burned with a cigarette by Leal.

Later, the indictment said, Lawson and Shiver filed reports "falsely stating that Griffith had accidentally fallen and hit his head."

All of the defendants other than Leal were charged in two other counts with violating the civil rights of Licklider and Griffith, the department said.

Leal was charged in a separate count with violating the civil rights of Griffith in the cigarette burning incident.

If convicted on the charge of conspiracy to violate prisoners' constitutional rights, each of the defendants could face a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Conviction on a charge of actual deprivation of rights carries a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Licklider, who has since been transferred from the Wynne Unit, and Griffith, now on parole, posed as TDC guards after dyeing their clothes gray and walked away from the unit only to be apprehended a few hours later.

Ex-cop pleads guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former policeman faces four years in prison after pleading guilty to planting a bomb aboard an Olympic bus and later removing it to make it appear he was a hero.

Jimmy Pearson, 41, who resigned from the police force shortly after the incident — one of the few negative events during last summer's Olympic Games — pleaded guilty Monday to possessing explosives. Sentencing will be Sept. 20.

Pearson was accompanying a bus carrying luggage of Turkish athletes to Los Angeles International Airport after the Games last Aug. 13. At the airport, he claimed to have discovered the pipe bomb, then removed it and disarmed it.

Pearson was at first hailed as hero, but after an all night interrogation he was accused of planting the bomb because he apparently felt he was being overlooked by his superiors.

Births

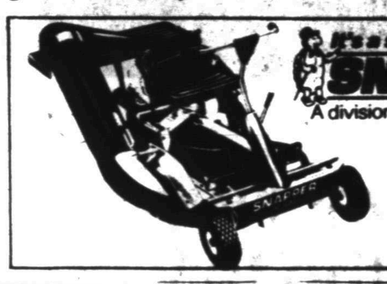

A baby son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Tatum of Snyder Friday, July 13 at 1:31 p.m. in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. The baby weighed nine pounds five ounces.

In 1912, Juliette Gordon Low founded in Savannah, Ga., an organization called the Girl Guides, which later became the Girl Scouts.

Brothers implicated in death

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Two young brothers arrested Monday in connection with the death of a 4-year-old girl are expected to be charged with delinquent conduct-murder, according to police.

A 16-year-old and his 12-year-old brother were taken into custody Monday after police found a body, believed to be that of Melody Ann Flores, in a plastic bag in the alley behind the boys' house.

Police spokesman Doug Clarke said the brothers gave signed statements in the case, which were witnessed by Municipal Judge Yolanda Bernel. The pair were being held in the Fort Worth juvenile detention facility.

Clarke said the body of a young girl was found just a couple of houses away from Melody Flores' home in east Fort Worth.

Although positive identification has not been made, the girl's father said he fears the worst.

"I'm praying she's with Jesus now, that she's there, that her spirit is living," said Sam Flores, Melody Ann's father.

Flores said his wife, Jo Ann, did not want to "accept that it was our little girl. I've been going through hell," he said.

Flores' daughter was reported missing Saturday afternoon. He and his wife each thought the girl was with the other, according to police.

She was last seen at a neighbor's house where she had gone to return a toy.

Local earns NTSU degree

DENTON–Some 1,139 students were awarded degrees May 11 at North Texas State University spring commencement ceremonies.

Among the students receiving degrees from NTSU was Victor Gene Valentine, son of Bill Gene Valentine of Snyder. He was awarded the bachelor of business administration degree in marketing.

Grass fires noted

Firemen extinguished two grass fires Monday.

The first was reported at 12:50 p.m. in the 1800 Block of Scott St. and the second at 4:30 p.m. 2 miles north of Ira.

No significant property damage resulted from either of those fires.

Complaint filed

Police are investigating a misdemeanor assault complaint filed Monday morning.

The complaint reportedly arose from a dispute between two local men last Friday. No report was taken prior to Monday morning, however.

No arrest has resulted from the filing.

In other action, city officers jailed two suspects on traffic related misdemeanor charges — including driving without a license and warrants for unpaid fines — Monday evening.

8 dead, dozens hurt in riots in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Three days of clashes between black protesters and police in a string of black townships have left at least eight people dead and dozens injured, police and witnesses said.

Police reports said at least 20 communities erupted in violence from the south coast as far north as Johannesburg and at least 45 blacks were arrested.

The outbreaks are the latest in 10 months of anti-segregationist rioting that has claimed at least 450 black lives.

Polyp 'scores' are good on classification tests

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan has a better than 50 percent chance of being cured after the removal of a cancerous polyp, his doctors say. But other medical oddsmakers give the president an even greater chance for complete recovery.

In a press briefing Monday, Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute, said tests showed that the polyp was a "Dukes B" lesion that was "moderately well differentiated."

Given such findings, "the president's chances of being completely cured, that is, never again having any evidence of this tumor appear during his normal life span, is greater than 50 percent," Rosenberg said.

"I'm sure that there's nobody in this country that would argue with that number, more than 50 percent," said Dr. Ronald Koretz, chief of gastroenterology at Olive View Medical Center in Van Nuys, Calif., who estimated the chance at close to 70 percent.

Dr. Sidney Winawer, chief of gastroenterology at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, said he would have estimated 60 to 80 percent, "but they have the facts and we don't."

The estimate "could very well be a bit higher, even considerably higher" than 50 percent, said Dr. Thomas Hendrix, chief of gastroenterology at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

While the Dukes classification gives a range of estimates for cure, a patient's place within it depends partly on the degree of cell differentiation —the degree to which the cells appear normal under a microscope. The more normal-looking, in general, the less likely the cancer is to have spread when it was in the body, Koretz said.

The classification system for the extent of a colon cancer's invasion was established by English pathologist Cuthbert E. Dukes in 1932. Medical authorities nowadays have slightly differing versions of the categories, but here's a general description:

An "A" lesion means the cancer is in the innermost layers of the colon, which is shaped like a tube. The inside lining of the colon, called the mucosa, where colon cells secrete and absorb fluids, is only about three-one-hundredths of an inch thick. A cancer that has barely invaded the surrounding muscle may also be in this category.

In a "B" lesion, like the president's, the cancer has invaded the layer where muscles across and along the colon contract to keep the colon's contents moving. It may include invasion of the serosa, the tough, fibrous covering of the colon.

In a "C" lesion, the cancer has broken through the serosa and escaped to lymph nodes.

The cure rate falls as the extent of invasion climbs because of increasing chance for spread of the cancer.

Hendrix said that about 95 percent of cancers removed while confined to the thin inside lining remain cured for five years, while those that have gone deeper but not broken through the outer surface of the colon have about a 65 to 80 percent rate. Cancers that have broken free of the colon and spread to the lymph nodes have only about a 20 percent to 30 percent cure rate. If cancer has spread to the liver, few patients live five years.

Death toll mounts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The death toll from Monday's car bombing in south Lebanon rose to 14 today as rescue workers digging through a demolished building found three more bodies and said more victims might be buried under the rubble.

More than 13 civilians were feared by police to have been caught in the explosion after the bomber, identified by Lebanon's state television as Hisham Abbas, 20, blew himself up in a white Peugeot 504 flying the Red Cross flag near the village of Kfar Tibnit.

The car, carrying explosives, blew up on the rim of Israel's so-called security zone — a buffer ribbon of land stretching across south Lebanon and patrolled by Israelis and surrogates of the South Lebanon Army militia.

'No progress'

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The second round of the superpower nuclear arms talks ended today, and the chief Soviet negotiator, Viktor P. Karpov, said there had been no progress.

Karpov, speaking to reporters before the start of the final meeting, said progress in the next round "depends upon the other (U.S.) side."

Speaking to reporters in Russian before the U.S. negotiators arrived, Karpov said, "There has been no progress. None."

But chief U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman, speaking to reporters several hours later, offered a more positive assessment.

The session at the Soviet mission to the United Nations, which included all six principle negotiators and their aides, lasted about one hour.

"We do note a greater emphasis on dialogue and a lesser emphasis on polemics," said Kampelman, reading from a prepared statement. He did not answer questions.

Kampelman said the U.S. delegation will return to the negotiations "with a continuing determination to achieve an effective equitable and verifiable agreement."

The third round of the talks will begin Sept. 19, Kampelman said, in the first official announcement of a resumption date.

He noted that U.S. and Soviet foreign ministers will have met by that time, apparently referring to the upcoming ceremony in Helsinki July 30 marking the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki Final Act.

The three chief American negotiators — Kampelman, John G. Tower and Maynard W. Glitman — planned to fly to Brussels Wednesday to brief NATO allies before returning to Washington for consultations with the U.S. government.

Karpov referred to a speech June 26 by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in which he called on the United States to adopt "a more sensible position" in Geneva and said if there was no change in the U.S. position Moscow "should of course assess anew the whole situation."

"That speech gave a very good idea of what is happening in the talks right now," Karpov said. "And it's not our fault. It's the other side's fault."

He said it was "incumbent on the second side to change its position."

In his June 26 speech, Gorbachev also said U.S. development of space defense weapons was blocking progress at the Geneva talks. The Soviets have demanded that the United States give up research on the strategic defense initiative, dubbed "Star Wars," as a precondition for other arms control agreements.

Kampelman and Karpov smiled, shook hands and exchanged banter in front of reporters for several minutes before getting down to business.

The summer break from the arms control talks that began March 12 was expected to last about two months, sources said. However, officials announced no date for resuming the talks.

A two-month break would put the start of the next round about two months before the Nov. 19-21 meeting between President Reagan and Gorbachev, giving negotiators limited time to make progress before the summit.

There have been reports that the two sides might be moving toward compromises on "Star Wars" and on limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

Both sides continued to remain silent in Geneva on substantive issues because of a confidentiality rule imposed when the talks opened. Immediately after the second round of talks began May 30, the secrecy intensified.

The Soviets held a rare news briefing in the final week of the round to deny a New York Times report that Soviet negotiators had indicated they would consider a treaty allowing laboratory research on strategic defense, which is difficult to monitor, but prohibiting testing and deployment.

This would represent a significant shift in the Soviet stance, which has called for a ban on research.

The Soviets said the report did "not reflect the actual state of affairs at the negotiations." A U.S. State Department spokesman dismissed the article as "wishful thinking."

Zimmerman, a Scurry Country Rodeo Association president for 24 years. Zimmerman passed away Dec. 19, 1984.

Tickets for the event are $4 for box seats, $3 for general admission and $2 for children under age 12.

Joining as a co-sponsor this year is Kodiak Smokeless Tobacco.

The rodeo will feature bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, team roping, barrel racing and bull dogging.

In addition, bull fighting has been added for the 1985 show. Pro Rodeo Cowboy Association (PRCA) approved clowns will be vying for cash and points during the competition each evening.

Youngsters will be able to participate in a goat sacking event nightly as well. First place contestants will receive $10 and second place contestants $5 each evening. Also, first and second place teams will have their names placed in a hat to be eligible for a drawing after Saturday's show. Winners of the drawing will receive bicycles.

A dance will also be held Thursday through Saturday beginning at 9 p.m. in the coliseum annex.

Tickets for the rodeo may be purchased at Boss & Hoss Western Wear, Bar H Bar Western Wear or the coliseum box office.

City budget estimate previewed construction of new facilities.

The proposed spending in the new budget is some $280,000 as compared to $797,000 during 1984-85. The city's budget year begins Oct. 1.

City Manager John Gayle noted that the "big ticket" items for capital improvements have "pretty much been addressed" by budgets stretching over the past five years.

These include purchase of land and equipment for the new landfill; extensive reworking of the water treatment plant; replacement of water lines; and the changeover from front load to the lighter side-load trash dumpsters.

The most expensive capital outlay now proposed involves a new city fire engine at an estimated cost of $87,000.

By comparison, the budget approved this time last year included a $350,000 expense for the construction of a new settling basin at the water treatment plant, an item expected to be bid this fall.

Other capital improvements now budgeted include the purchase of a street patching machine, four police cars and the additional paving of some city streets, this in addition to some $183,000 in street maintenance planned.

The current indication is the city tax rate will remain the same, as will costs for city services. The current tax rate is 25½ cents per $100 valuation.

The spending estimate includes also a projected 4 percent pay hike for all city employees plus a merit pay raise recommendation for 21 others involving an added 3 percent.

Councilmen have a second budget study session planned next Monday night. Attending Monday were Mayor Rod Waller and Councilmen Mickey Nunley, Troy Williamson, Truett Bryan and David Hines. Tommy Davis and Don Osborn were absent.

Computer addition questioned

These contracts have been initiated as part of "intergovernmental cooperation" between the local taxing entities — an attempt to keep equipment purchases countywide down.

The current computer space shortage will be complicated in August, House noted, when the Snyder police department hopes to add two additional computer programs — one which will put the majority of police files in computer memory in addition to a computer-assisted dispatching program.

With this addition, she noted the current system as now committed "won't handle it."

Several councilmen questioned the apparent rapid growth of computer usage. "We (the city) represent a budget of just over $4 million, which is not that large a business budget," noted Councilman Mickey Nunley, "and yet we've got a bigger computer than most businesses need and now are talking about adding another one."

Councilman Truett Bryan also quizzed "what's the point of diminishing return," when the expense of adding computer equipment begins to be greater than the benefit received.

"I'm wondering how much (information) are we saving on the computer that we really don't need," Bryan noted.

Councilman Troy Williamson also commented regarding a projected 50 megabyte growth per year for police files.

"Surely at some point we can make a printout of those files and store them away somewhere," he said.

No final determination was made after Monday's discussion. Since a large share of the computer's usage is tied to the appraisal district — an agreement that comes up for renewal next year — the council asked city staffers to "touch base" with the district regarding any future computer equipment updates.

House had noted that Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler had told her he felt the 200 megabytes now used by the district would be sufficient for its future needs.

Peveler has also offered to sell the 200 megabyte space back to the city, but this option would likely require a separate equipment purchase for the district, it was noted.

The most expensive option presented to the council Monday would involve the purchase of a second IBM 36, an estimated equipment expense of more than $45,000.

The current 36 can be upgraded with the addition of memory discs, however. To go to a 600 megabyte capacity, an $18,000 expense was estimated; and to 800 megabytes — doubling the current capacity — some $33,000.

By adding a second 36, however, the city would retain the potential of having its current computer space go from 400 megabytes to 1,600 by such disc additions.

"It comes down to a question of where we're going," House said. "If we think we've got all the equipment we need and we want in some way to start reducing our computer usage," she noted the disc addition would be sufficient.
