CARRYING IKE HOME

Thousands Line Route During Train Passage

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) —The train carrying Dwight D. Eisenhower to his final rest clattered across the nation's heartland today and thousands of persons dotted the route for last goodbyes.

Tear - stained, hymn - singing Americans from historic Civil War towns in Virginia and the coal fields and rolling farm country of West Virginia, some waiting through the chilled night, turned out as the 10-car funeral train pulled by three Diesel engines headed west to Abilene, Kan., boyhood home of the World War II hero.

Crowds of more than 1,000 turned out in Charleston, W. Va., and Huntington to catch a glimpse of the passing train. At a 10-minute stop to change crews in Huntington, one of the military officials aboard thanked the group for turning out on a cold, misty morning.

"I know the general would have shed a tear if he had been here today," said Col. Clement Riley.

The train was dark with all shades drawn as it pulled out of Huntington and headed for the nearby Kentucky border almost three hours behind schedule around 5 a.m. CST.

Eisenhower, who died Friday in Washington, will be buried Wednesday in the Kansas town he left 58 years ago to enter West Point, starting a career that carried him to the White House as one of the country's most beloved presidents.

Warmth Surfaces

The warmth he evoked in life surfaced again in death as 5,000 persons jammed the railroad depot in Charlotesville, Va., most of them standing silently, some singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The train slowed to a crawl as it passed through populated areas and was running at least two hours behind schedule.

In White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., about half the community's 2,000 residents waited patiently in 10-degree weather as the train, expected at 10:30 Monday night, finally came into view at 12:10 a.m. CST today.

Loses Time

The train, with the car carrying Eisenhower's body draped in black, left Washington at 5:50 p.m. CST Monday, about 50 minutes behind schedule. It

Funeral Service Short on Pomp In Washingon, DC

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The words of St. Paul were read over Dwight D. Eisenhower's casket:

"The time of my departure has come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race. I have kept the faith."

Mamie Eisenhower, drained of emotion, had sat through the funeral service with stoic composure until the Rev. Edward R.L. Elson, her Presbyterian pastor, read the passage from St. Paul's second letter to Timothy. It must have sounded to her—as it did to others in Washington National Cathedral—like something Ike might have said.

Helped Plan Funeral

It was a simple, dignified funeral, long on Christian hope, short on pomp and ceremony. It was exactly the kind of funeral Ike wanted—which was not surprising, since he helped plan it months before his death.

It gave one an eerie feeling to know he had specifically requested J. Faure's famous hymn, The Palms. Did he have some kind of premonition that he would die two days before Palm Sunday—the one season of the Christian year when the hymn is appropriate?

The Palms is not a funeral dirge. It is a lilting, joyous hymn of trust in the love of God manifested in Jesus Christ. While it was sung by the cathedral's famous choir, Eisenhower's flag-draped casket was brought to the place of honor in the crossing.

It was 3:52 p.m. CST when the dean of the Episcopal Cathedral, the Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre, spoke the opening words of the service, taken from Christ's last supper promise to his Disciples:

"I am the Resurrection and the Life . . . he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Arrived Early

The 2,000 invited guests had started arriving in the high vaulted Gothic church more than an hour earlier. One of the first to take his place, in a front row seat, was President Charles de Gaulle of France. Near him sat King Bauduoin of Belgium and the Shah of Iran. There were many other foreign chiefs of state, so many that former President Lyndon B. Johnson found himself protocolled all the way back to the sixth row.

Mine Explosion Traps 157 Men Underground

Seven Bodies Found, Others Feared Dead

By TERRANCE W. McGARRY

NUEVA ROSITA, Mexico (UPI) — Deadly and deafening gas explosions ripped deep inside two rural coal mines today and trapped more than 150 men who worked underground for 8½ a month. It was Mexico's worst mine disaster.

At least 1,000 workers — men, women and children! — scratched with their bare hands and shovels to try to rescue the trapped miners. But officials said all were believed dead.

"They are trapped but we don't think there is a chance for them," said Rafel Contreras, a spokesman for the mines operated by the government-financed Altos Hornos steel company.

Mine officials were not sure how many miners were working inside the mines—some as deep as 3,600 feet—when the gas blasts collapsed them. Contreras said 150 men were trapped. Rodolfo Rodriguez, a Coahuila State government official, said the figure was 157.

Seven bodies had been recovered from the mines, the others were still entombed.

"They were all buried. There's nothing we can do now but try to uncover their bodies," said Gerardo Martinez, a miner who had dozens of friends among the trapped men who toiled inside the mines about 70 miles southwest of Eagle Pass, Tex.

Contreras said 1,000 rescue workers—Red Cross workers, soldiers, Mexican peasants and other miners — tried desperately to save some of the trapped men.

The mine official said the main entrances to the mines were covered with smoking debris.

"But they found an opening into one of the mines," Contreras said. "It's not the main entrance and we're trying to use it to get below."

It was Mexico's worst mine disaster and was believed the worst such tragedy in North American since May 19, 1928, when 195 men perished in a gas explosion in a mine at Moweaqua, Ill. The worst previous mine disaster in Mexico occurred in 1939, when

Judge's Death Could Bring Ray New Trial

By JAMES EVANS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—The death of the trial judge in the James Earl Ray case could bring the convicted slayer of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. a new trial under Tennessee law, an Appeals Court judge said today.

The key apparently was the contents of a letter mailed by Ray to Judge W. Preston Battle, who collapsed in his chambers and died of a heart attack Monday. Battle, 60, recently had returned from a vacation following the Ray trial three weeks ago.

Ray pleaded guilty to the April 4, 1968, murder of King in Memphis and received a 99-year prison sentence during a jury trial required by Tennessee law in all criminal class. Ray said his lawyer, Percy Foreman, advised him to plead guilty to avoid a possible death penalty.

But after Ray began serving his sentence in state prison at Nashville, he reportedly had second thoughts and considered seeking a new trial. He wrote Battle asking, sources said, for a new trial. Battle's office confirmed receipt of the letter, but did not divulge its contents.

Judge Charles Galbraith of the state Court of Criminal Appeals said in Nashville that Tennessee law provides any motions for a new trial pending before a deceased judge must be granted. The law does not define a motion, or how it must be filed, he said.

The state Supreme Court last week had dealt a blow to Ray's hopes for a new trial, ruling in a case "that fits Ray's case like a glove" a defendant cannot get a new trial on grounds he was talked into pleading guilty by his attorney. Ray reportedly contends Foreman pressured him into his guilt plea.

Battle, who had been picked by lot from among five Shelby County Criminal Court judges to preside over the Ray trial, apparently had been dead about two hours when he was found slumped over his office desk. An autopsy was ordered although officials said there was no evidence of foul play.

News In Brief

ADVISES LAOS INVASION

DONG HA, Vietnam (UPI)—The general commanding U.S. Marines along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) said today the quickest way to shorten the Vietnam War is to invade Laos and the southern reaches of North Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Raymond Davis said current U.S. tactics allow the Communists a sanctuary from ground attack in Laos and above the Demilitarized Zone, putting his 3rd Marine Division troops at a marked disadvantage.

PARTY UPHOLDS MAO

HONG KONG (UPI)—The Chinese Communist party convened its 9th National Congress today to complete the cultural revolution by ousting President Liu Shao-chi and cementing Mao Tse-tung's grip on a nation embroiled for three years in near civil war.

Split in Big Four Threatens Aims Of Mideast Talks

By IVAN ZVEKINA

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—A split in Big Four today threatened success of the forthcoming talks on the Middle East and the future of a U.S. proposal for settlement of the quarrel between Arabs and Jews.

The 15-nation United Nations Security Council was set to vote today on an Afro-Asian resolution demanding condemnation of Israel for last Wednesday's air raid that killed 18 Arab civilians at the Jordanian city of Es-Salt.

Diplomatic sources said the United States and Britain would abstain from the vote while France and the Soviet Union would approve the proposal.

The split was certain to affect the Big Four talks on the Mideast problem scheduled to open Thursday at the French U.N. Mission.

Western diplomats said the United States will insist on Israel's right to control a unified Jerusalem, as part of its proposal to be present at the talks.

They said the U.S. proposal also provides for U.N.-controlled demilitarized zones in areas where Israel presmuably would have to pull back from territory seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

The American proposals were "happily" welcomed by the British and considered by the French as a positive basis for discussion. The same diplomats said they had heard no reaction from the Soviet Union.

While emphasizing Israel should keep control of a unified Jerusalem, the U.S. proposal urges that Jordan play a role in

Nixon Meets With Ky, Other World Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon, plunging into work after the emotional ordeal of the past few days, was to meet today for the first time during his administration with South Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

In advance of his meeting with Ky, Nixon met late Monday with three top American officials connected with the Vietnam War—Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to South Vietnam; Henry Cabot Lodge, chief negotiator in the Paris talks; and Gen. Andrew Goodpaster, former deputy commander in Vietnam.

Nixon was to meet with Ky at 1 p.m. CST during a day jammed with appointments with world leaders who had come to Washington for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's funeral.

Joins Nixon

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, national security adviser at the White House, joined Nixon in meeting with Bunker and Goodpaster for an hour, then met separately with Lodge for 50 minutes.

Nixon also was to meet today with President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, Prime Minister John J. Gorton of Australia, Prime Minister Chung Il Kwong of South Korea and former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan.

Gorton also was to meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy.

From Europe, Nixon was to meet with Prime Minister Mariano Rumor of Italy, Foreign Minister Joseph Luns of the Netherlands, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger of West Germany and Prime Minister Marcelo Caetano of Portugal.

20th Anniversary

The matter of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—the 20th anniversary of the NATO Council will be next week—was certain to come up in his discussions with European leaders.

Nixon also was to meet with the Shah of Iran, President Habib Bourgiba of Tunisia and Prime Minister Suleiman Demirel of Turkey.

At a White House reception Monday night, Nixon met socially with many of the world dignitaries who came to mourn Eisenhower.

Among them were Gen. Basily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet first deputy minister of foreign affairs; and Marshal Vasily Ivanovich Chuykov, Soviet civilian defense chief. Through an interpreter Nixon said to Chuykov: "Comrade in arms," referring to the fallen World War II commander, Eisenhower.

Few Residents Vote in Election

Pampans were going to the polls in small numbers today to elect a mayor and two city commissioners.

Milo Carlson for mayor, George B. Cree, Jr., for Ward 1 commissioner and Leo Braswell for Ward 3 commissioner, all were running unopposed in the election.

At 11:30 a.m. 31 persons had voted in Ward 1 at City Hall, 25 in Ward 2 at the North Fire Station, 8 in Ward 3 at the Optimists Boys Club, and 9 in Ward 4 at the South Fire Station.

This gave a grand total of 73 votes cast throughout the city at that hour.

City Secretary Stanley Chittenden estimated there are 10,000 eligible voters in Pampa.

At noon today it was apparent the great majority of them would not go to the polls because of the no-contest election.

The polls close at 7 p.m. and Chittenden said he expected the total vote would be known within a few minutes.

Mariner 7 Craft Seeks Out Star To Align Itself

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—America's Mariner 7 spacecraft today was ordered to seek out the star Canopus and align itself in the proper position to scan Mars with its television camera.

The maneuver, controlled from Jet Propulsion Laboratory, was expected to be completed about 2 p.m. CST as the windmill-shaped craft headed toward a rendezvous with Mars Aug. 4.

The original schedule called for Mariner 7 to "acquire" Canopus shortly after it was launched last Thursday from Cape Kennedy, but scientists decided to delay the maneuver because of three transitory irregularities in the spacecraft's performance.

The difficulties were temporary and Monday scientists decided to go ahead with the star-finding phase, which is essential to the success of Mariner 7's mission to take closeup pictures of the Martian southern hemisphere.

Canopus, a bright star which remains in a fixed position relative to Mariner 7 throughout its long journey through space, is used as a reference point to align the spacecraft's cameras with Mars.

Mariner 7 will arrive at Mars five days later than its twin, Mariner 6, which was launched last month. Their mission is to determine whether Mars can support life as it is known on earth and to take detailed photographs of the planet.

DISLIKE 'MOCKERY' OF FILM

Texas Daughters Take Up Arms In Second Battle For Alamo

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The shooting of a movie about the second battle of the Alamo was scheduled to begin today but the battle off camera promises to rival anything captured on film.

An attorney for the Daughters of the Republic of Texas said Monday he would re-enter federal court today with a reworded request to show that $10,000 or more in actual damages will be caused to the DRT if scenes from "Viva Max" are shot in front of the Alamo.

The attorney, J. D. Williamson of Houston, attempted to file the suit Monday but U.S. Dist. Judge Adrian Spears said the DRT had not shown there was $10,000 in tangible damage in the dispute.

But the battle in court was only a phase of the total war effort.

Objects at Entrance

"It has come to our attention that certain elements on their own placed immovable obstacles in front of one of the entrances to the shrine of Texas history and liberty," said Bernard Ladon Monday.

Ladon is the attorney for a film called "Viva Max," which has been the center of controversy ever since the movie moguls entered this city.

The Daughters of the Republic of Texas, led by Mrs. William Lawrence Scarborough of Corpus Christi, has objected to the filming outside the Alamo, saying the picture is "a mockery and a desecration of our heroes who died for us."

She attempted to have the city council deny the film company the right to film some scenes on the Alamo grounds but her pleas fell on the deaf ears of the majority of the council members.

Won't Give Up

But like the 187 Texas heroes who defended the Alamo 133 years ago, Mrs. Scarborough and her DRT, about 3,000 strong, are not giving up in the face of insurmountable odds.

"We have also been advised that they intend to make a spectacle of themselves by appearing in front of the Alamo in black costumes and draping the shrine of Texas liberty in black paper," Ladon said.

"Have not the Daughters exceeded their authority solely for personal vengeance?" he asked. "As legal counsel for 'Viva Max,' as San Antonians and as Texans we feel they have."

Mrs. Scarborough does not share this opinion:

"I can't think of anything lower than the idea of making a comedy about a shrine where heroes died. It's like making a comedy on the fallen heroes of Vietnam."

Recapturing Alamo

The movie which has touched off this reaction and counter reaction stars Peter Ustinov as General Max, a modern-day Mexican soldier who, with 80 men, decides to recapture the Alamo. The movie also stars Jonathon Winters, Harry Morgan, Kennan Wynn, John Aston and Pamela Tiffin.

"The movie does not desecrate, defame, deface, damage or compromise either the structure or the heritage of the Alamo," producer Mark Carliner says.

Again Mrs. Scarborough views the movie in a somewhat different context:

"This is not a movie we would be proud of. Why couldn't they make a beautiful movie like John Wayne did?"

Saigon's Offer Pressures Reds

PARIS (UPI) — South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's offer of secret negotiations with the Viet Cong puts pressure on the Communists to show they want progress in the Paris talks Saigon delegation sources said today.

South Vietnamese and U.S. officials said they still hoped for a positive Communist response to the secret talks offer Thieu made last week.

The Communists' immediate response was that it was a "crafty trick." Allied sources said they did not consider that a rejection.

We are hoping the Communists will come up with something concrete Thieu said. They are in an awkward position. If they don't accept the whole world will know who is the obstacle to peace here.

If they do accept, they will really have to engage in serious conversations, dropping the propaganda. They will have to get into real, serious and secret negotiations.

● Train

The train was to arrive in Abilene about 10 p.m. CST tonight.

It was being moved by four different railroad lines. The Chesapeake & Ohio was carrying it from Washington to Cincinnati, where the Baltimore & Ohio takes over for a run to St. Louis. In St. Louis the train was to be moved by the Norfolk & Western to Kansas City with the Union Pacific taking the final run to Abilene.

Eisenhower's body was transported in a gunmetal gray, 11 casket borne by baggage car No. 314. Black drapes were hung to create a 7-by-16 foot room. The American flag was placed at the head of the casket and the presidential standard at its side.

Ride In Last Car

Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower and other members of the family rode in the last car—the "Old Santa Fe"—the one Eisenhower took to Abilene in 1951 to announce his candidacy for president. The Eisenhowers also used the car, usually assigned to the president of the Santa Fe Railroad, for their winter trips from their farm home in Gettysburg, Pa., to their vacation home in Palm Springs, Calif.

Oxygen was carried aboard the car in case it was needed by Mrs. Eisenhower, who suffers from a rheumatic heart condition. She broke down and sobbed uncontrollably at Washington National Cathedral Monday after funeral services.

She regained her composure by the time she reached Union Station and, holding the arm of her son, John, inspected the funeral car.

There were no formal services planned along the route. A memorial program scheduled for Cincinnati today during a stop for servicing the train was cancelled at the request of the Eisenhower family.

Mrs. Eisenhower who does not fly, requested the train. The family had asked its route be kept secret but word leaked out and the crowds came.

It was the same East and West as Dwight D. Eisenhower described by President Nixon as a "gentle and good and kind man," made his last trip through the country he served for nearly all his adult life.

Chemist Denies Water Pollution

PERRYTON — A chemist from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department commented on receiving samples of Lake Fryer water from Perryton, "This probably is the best water quality I have run tests on so far."

Chemist Ricky Rodrique said in his report, "Cannot see the pollution you mentioned." Rodrique plans to come to Perryton to discuss the water situation with Roger Hensley, Perryton-based game warden.

Whatever trace of pollution now exists, Rodrique said, "probably will be eliminated naturally".

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dwight David Eisenhower won the presidency twice by landslide margins, but he showed a much greater zest for political combat after he had left the White House.

It is often said that the Chief Executive is President of all the people, but Eisenhower took the injunction more seriously than most. And he had to deal with Democratic majorities in Congress for six of his eight years in office.

As the commander of the victorious allied forces in Europe in World War II, he was getting attention in both parties for the 1948 presidential nomination while he was Army chief of staff.

Unavailable in 1948

But he had said in 1947 that he was neither a Republican nor a Democrat. Early in 1948, he wrote a New Hampshire editor that he could not accept nomination for high office and he believed it was wise for lifetime professional military men to be unavailable. He was then Army chief of staff.

His mind was changing by 1952 when he was at Paris as commandant of the Atlantic Alliance military forces. With Thomas E. Dewey, Henry Cabot Lodge and others setting up a pre-convention campaign organization for him, he said he would respond to a call to duty.

By June, he was back in the United States as an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination. He was the candidate of the Republican liberals, then identified as "Eastern Internationalists," against the conservative "isolationists," who favored Sen. Robert A. Taft. Eisenhower won the nomination after a convention blood-letting and went on to win two presidential elections.

As President, he showed a distaste for politics. Critics in his own party thought the GOP would have fared better in state and congressional elections if he had taken a more partisan stance and campaigned more diligently.

Resented Dems Charges

He gave no endorsement to his heir apparent, then Vice President Richard M. Nixon, until after Nixon was nominated for the presidency without serious opposition in 1960. During the 1960 campaign, however, he did make known his resentment about Democratic charges that the U.S. defense establishment had become relatively weaker and American prestige had declined during his administration.

After Nixon lost the presidency and Eisenhower left the White House, he became a more militant critic of the Democratic opposition. He refrained from making a political issue of foreign policy, but he often berated the Democrats for their spending habits. His public statements repeatedly called for "fiscal sanity," a virtue he did not attribute to the Democrats.

Eisenhower stayed neutral in the 1964 contest over the Republican presidential nomination, although the winner, Barry M. Goldwater, was not regarded as his favorite.

He did not remain neutral in 1968. He was at Walter Reed Hospital, after his fifth heart attack, when he called a group of newsmen to his suite July 18. Wearing pajamas and a dressing gown, he announced that he favored Nixon for the presidential nomination.

Eisenhower died in the same hospital Friday after Nixon had been nominated, elected and inaugurated.

WANTS ISRAEL OUSTED

By United Press International

A semiofficial Cairo newspaper said today Egypt has urged the Big Four nations to oust Israel from Arab lands it won in the 1967 war. In Syria, the country's political factions struggled for power.

Al Ahram, a paper with close ties to President Gamal Abdel Nasser's regime, said the Egyptian government welcomes the pending talks between the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France on a Middle East settlement—if that settlement restores prewar boundaries.

Annual Fall Event Sept. 9

Looking far ahead, Dr. J.D. Bilbro, research agronomist, and Dr. I.W. Kirk, agricultural engineer at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Lubbock, announce the 60th annual Field Day and Open House for Sept. 9.

A new feature has been added this year. In addition to the regular afternoon field tour exhibits and displays, several special classes will be conducted on subjects of vital interest to South Plains farmers. This, the experts believe, will give farmers an "in-depth" understanding hitherto impossible during the field tour.

Forty trained research scientists will be present to discuss all phases of agriculture on the South Plains, it is disclosed.

The day will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m. A dutch lunch will be served at noon.

Lenning Enters Hospital After County Meeting

Gray County Judge Sherman Lenning, Jr., held a special meeting of County Commissioners in his home this morning to pay monthly county salaries. Then he was admitted to the hospital.

It wasn't the salaries that made Lenning ill, but a troublesome ulcer and a bad back.

Lenning said he would enter the hospital for treatment of the ulcer and back immediately following the commissioner's meeting.

The regular meeting for commissioners is scheduled April 16.

Perryton Due To Get Money From Sales Tax

MOD GIFT

DONCASTER, England (UPI) —Dorothy Hutchinson knew exactly what she wanted from her father for an engagement present: a pop star.

It seemed a silly idea to business director George Hutchinson, until his daughter explained the singer would be a business investment for her and her policeman fiance.

"I think he has tremendous talent," Dorothy said.

Husband Dislikes Psychiatric Aid

CHICAGO (UPI)—A divorced couple has filed a $1 million lawsuit against a psychiatrist who allegedly made himself the woman's "husband substitute" while treating her for an emotional problem.

The suit, filed Monday on behalf of Robert Brostek, 28, and his former wife, Patricia Stack, 27, charges treatment by psychiatrist Robert F. Jeans led to their divorce.

The suit says Jeans told the couple to refrain from sexual relations with each other, then "furthered his own sensual desires by planting in the mind of the plaintiff, Miss Stack, that she needed a 'husband substitute'."

According to the suit, Jeans then began a sexual relationship with Miss Stack.

Deaths in Vietnam Surpass Toll Mark of Korean War

SAIGON (UPI) — America's longest war became its third costliest foreign conflict with the disclosure today the U.S. death toll in Vietnam had surpassed 33,629, the Korean War mark.

A top Marine general said the best way to shorten the Vietnam fighting was to invade Laos and the southern reaches of North Vietnam, Communist sanctuaries against ground assaults.

"I'm not trying to raise the ante," said Maj. Gen. Ralph Davis. "But we came here to assure the freedom of South Vietnam, and I don't think that can be accomplished with anything less than the defeat of the North Vietnamese army."

The american death toll in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, surpassed the Korean War mark during the night, military sources said, but the official announcement will not come until April 10. More than 210,000 GIs have been wounded in Vietnam fighting.

Military spokesmen reported one sharp ground battle, pitting South Korean troops against Communist soldiers hiding in caves on South Vietnam's central coast. The Koreans reported 100 guerrillas slain in the Monday fighting.

Among the military bases targeted for overnight attack were the major U.S. Army and Air Force bases at Bien Hoa and Long Binh, on Saigon's northern outskirts. Neither suffered serious damage in what headquarters termed light barrages.

Vietnam became the United States' longest war about a year ago, going back officially to Jan. 1, 1961, when headquarters began keeping a count of casualties.

Davis' proposals to shorten it were by far the most outspoken by any American military man recently. Davis is commander of the 3rd Marine Division along the Demilitarized Zone.

Mine

67 men were killed at Palau in Coahuila State.

The latest blasts collapsed the No. 2 and No. 3 mines outside this northern Mexican village of 800. The explosion site was about 175 miles northwest of Monterrey, Mexico, and 200 miles southwest of San Antonio, Tex.

Martinez said he was not around when the explosions, caused by pockets of deadly methane gas, rocked the tiny Mexican mining territory. He said the explosions could be heard 10 miles away.

"Number 2 mine caved in and then a series of smaller explosions followed in Number 3, caving it in, too," the miner said quietly.

It was believed the worst coal mine disaster in North America since May 19, 1928, when 195 men perished in a gas explosion in a mine in Moweaqua, Ill.

More than 100 doctors were called to the rescue and medical supplies were rushed from Mexico City by plane. But to no avail. The miners' heartbroken families gathered around the No. 2 and No. 3 mines.

The men in this mine earn $24 a month for shoveling out the coal and putting it on railroad cars for the Altos Hornos steel plant in Menclova.

Rescue brigades poured in from Monclova and Salinas wearing gas masks. They tried to penetrate one ventilation shaft to get into one mine but retreated in the face of heavy clouds of poisonous gas.

There were reports several houses nearby had been damaged in the blasts but no one was reported injured above ground.

Mexican President Gustavo Diaz ordered all available rescue and aid teams and equipment to the scene, including two planeloads of medical supplies from the capital.

The trapped miners were working on the second shift and had 75 minutes left until getting off at 7 p.m.

Rescuers said all they could do now was to begin digging through the rubble and recover the bodies, a process that could take days depending on lingering gases and obstructions in the mines' shafts.

A volunteer worker from Montclova, Margaret Snyderaar, described the scene at the mine by telephone:

"At the moment we have ambulances and doctors and nurses from all around here. But really, everybody's standing by hoping to God that somebody would be alive. But I doubt it very much."

Laird Announces Cuts in Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced today that B52 bomber raids in South Vietnam will be curtailed under orders by President Nixon to cut defense costs.

Laird also said that production of a new short-range, nuclear-tipped missile designed to be fired by bombers at ground targets would be delayed for the same reason.

They are among $613 million in new cuts in the Defense Department's spending budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, Laird reported to the House Armed Services Committee was made public.

closed meetin of the committee was made public as he Laird did not spell out the extent of the flight reductions, but the saving involved will be about $50 million. Other U.S. officials said B52 strikes could be increased above the planned level if the military situation required it.

The biggest item in the $613 million cut—nearly half of it—was a decision to delay production of the nuclear-armed Short Range Attack Missile (SRAM), designed to be fired at ground targets by nuclear bombers from distances of 50 to 100 miles.

Cuts Ammunition

The next biggest category of new cuts was in ground, air and naval ammunition, generally with the result that stockpiles depleted by the Vietnam war will not be replenished quite as quickly as once planned.

Also included are plans to inactivate eight destroyer-type ships and 10 other navy vessels. Laird noted that the number of ships the Navy must maintain in Southeast Asia can be reduced since naval gunfire against North Vietnam halted at the same time bombing of the North was stopped Oct. 31.

There also will be cuts in development of a satellite system of warning against missile attack; in the Navy's deep underwater search vehicle program, and some 20,000 civilian jobs in the defense establishment will be eliminated through attrition.

DEPUTY NAMED

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lt. Gen. William B. Rosson, director of plans and policy for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has been named deputy commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, replacing Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, new supreme allied commander in Europe. President Nixon also appointed Maj. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, now in command of the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam, to become commanding general of the II Field Force there, replacing Lt. Gen. Walter T. Kerwin Jr.

Officials, Soldiers Disagree on Right to Protest

By ROBERT GORDON

FT. JACKSON, S.C. (UPI)—The USO and the UFO sit a block apart in nearby Columbia, stone and plaster symbols of a battle raging over Vietnam dissenters in the ranks of the Army.

On weekends, most of the 90,000 men who come through this Army training center yearly gravitate to beer joints, movies or the friendly welcome and ping-pong recreation offered by the USO.

What has the army worried is the standing-room-only crowd of soldiers who gather on weekends at the UFO to inspect posters of Ho Chi Minh and hear guitar-plunking singers lament a Vitnamese baby killed by a U.S. napalm.

Meeting Place

The UFO, a coffeehouse with pop posters, 25-cent coffee and barefoot girls in tight slacks, is headquarters, meeting hall and recreation area for a group known as "GI's United Against the War in Vietnam."

The group claims about 35 regulars, has no membership rolls, no officers, and until recently did little except foster talk about Vietnam with soldiers who wandered in.

So long as all the group did was talk, the Army kept an eye on it in silence. But when the "GI's United" began circulating a petition last month calling for a Vietnam discussion rally at Ft. Jackson itself, the Army took more notice.

Last week Ft. Jackson officials got tough for the first time since the 1967 court martial of Capt. Howard Levy, a Brooklyn dermatologist who was sentenced to three years for refusing to train Vietnam-bound medics.

Nine soldiers were ordered held for court martial, most on charges of disrespect toward an officer, failure to obey an order and breach of the peace.

"Big Rap"

The "GI's United" called it "just a big rap (talk) session Vietnam." The Army described it as a demonstration. The courts martial will probably be held in about a month.

Soldiers have griped about food, marching and Army life for as long as there have been armies, but the political dissent which has hit the military here and elsewhere in the nation is something new.

Howard Moore, an Atlanta attorney who is defending at least one of the Ft. Jackson soldiers, argues along with the GI's United that their actions are protected by constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech. The Army rejected this as a defense in Levy's court martial, and the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear Levy's appeal.

"Some of this borders on or is treason," said the Ft. Jackson officer.

Truman Sends Regret By Telegram

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Former President Harry S Truman Monday sent a message to Mrs. Dwigh D. Eisenhower to express regret that he was unable to attend the funeral of former President Eisenhower.

A military spokesman said he received a telephone call from Mrs. Truman this morning relaying word from the 84-year-old Truman that he was "saddened by the fact that they could not come to Washington."

The spokesman said Mrs. Truman, who called from Key West, Fla., where the Trumans are vacationing, also conveyed a "personal message" to Mrs. Eisenhower.

The American satellite Vanguard I is still in orbit and expected to continue circling the earth for several hundred years.

Mexican American Youth Organization Attempts To Create Pride For Minority

By KENNETH R .CLARK

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) — While Negro demonstrators shouted "black power," America's second largest racial minority for years seemed quiet. But the five million Mexican-Americans of the Southwest have been developing some militants too, and their slogan is 'Chicano!"

"Chicano" is a corruption of the Spanish term "Mexicano," or Mexican. The word calls up some of the same kind of racial pride Negro militants find in "black."

"Chicago power" is being invoked in demonstrations from Denver to the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. It is backed in some cases by a new tough-talking group with links to at least two federally funded associations and a campaign aimed at Mexican-Americans as young as junior high.

The group is called the Mexican American Youth Organization (MAYO). It handed out pamphlets among school children in Val Verde County, Texas last fall calling for an attack on "the whole system of Gringo America. . ."

Last month, the Val Verde County commissioners charged MAYO had infiltrated the county's federall funded Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) program. Texas Gov. Preston Smith vetoed further federal sponsorship of the project.

MAYO retaliated by schedluing a rally in Del Rio, Tex., Sunday. Its leaders hope it would draw demonstrators from all over the Southwest.

A MAYO broadside states the case bluntly. "It is the Gringo who we need to fight," it says. "He is the real enemy and cause of our miserable plight."

Appears in Valley

MAYO suddenly appeared in the Lower Rio Grande Valley last fall. Also at Edcouch-Elsa High School in the Valley 200 youngsters staged a walkout and classroom boycott.

One of the student leaders — a 17-year-old girl — later testified in court that local VISTA volunteers had provided both money and moral support for the cause.

At the same time two underground newsappers, both bearing the masthead of MAYO, surfaced in the Valley.

One, flagged "Hoy," or "Today," cheered the Edcouch-Elsa walkout, and called for more. The other, "Revolucion," portrayed a drawing of the angry faces of men in sombreros, carrying guns.

Copy for the 3,000 issues of one of the papers was delivered to the printer by Narciso Aleman, a representative of th National Student Association, a Washington organization which last year got $200,000 in federal funds. VISTA volunteers picked up the issues prior to distribution.

County VISTA supervisor Joe Uriegas denied any connection with MAYO.

In Denver, hundreds of high school students and some adults clashed with police earlier this month demanding a high school teacher be fired for remarks about Mexican-Americans.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—As you may have heard, some public officials are concerned about decency on television.

Well, I guess we all are, in one way or another. It just depends on what area of decency you specialize in.

To me, for instance, it is grossly immoral when a cigarette firm tries to romanticize smoking for youngsters.

Relatively Naive

And, basically, video is still so relatively naive compared to the rest of society that it's not too likely many persons will be corrupted by its suggestiveness.

What may do far more harm, however, is much of the simplemindedness that some television series use to promote what is allegedly an admirable way of life.

This is what I would call mental indecency, and I think it is much more of a threat than the obvious stuff.

I don't mean programs that are frankly farcical or played strictly for comedy. But series like the old Patty Duke Show always struck me as somehow mentally indecent because of their insipid non-values that were supposed to be attractive.

In the end, it's pretty much like the old song, says: It's not what you do, It's the way that you do it. Style, in short, indicates a sort of maturity that will let you get away with almost anything gracefully.

Specific Scene

I am thinking now about a televised W.C. Fields movie, and of a very specific scene. It is the morning after a hard night's drinking. Fields is in a ship's cabin, half alive following his bout with the bottle. A friend comes in, and the dialogue is as follows:

Friend: "How do you feel?"

Fields: "Like a June bride."

Friend: "How does a June bride feel?"

Fields: "I wonder . . . I wonder . . . "

Well, you see, if the same dialogue were delivered in a burlesque house by a couple of rough comics, it would have a pretty raunchy flavor. But as played by the incomparable Fields, it is delicious.

If I were investigating television, I don't think I would relish getting into the semantical problems connected with what is proper, and what is not.

Khan Assumes President Title

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Gen. Yahya Khan, who has ruled Pakistan since last Tuesday as administrator of martial law, assumed the title of president today.

A statement issued by the Ministry of Information in Rawalpindi and broadcast by Rawalpindi Radio to the nation said it was necessary for Yahya to assume the title of president to perform certain functions under Pakistani and international law.

For instance, only the president is competent to execute certain responsibilities in national and international affairs, such as ratification of treaties,

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the British House of Commons a Conservative member arose, and with sardonic humor demanded of Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, "will you congratulate the prime minister for at last taking on someone his own size?"

It was a question reflective of the mood of many another Briton but for the Labor government of Prime Minister Harold Wilson it was no laughing matter.

For a nation trying to divest itself of empire, plagued by a division of opinion over Britain's role in the Nigerian civil war and with the question of Rhodesian independence still unsolved after three years, the British troop landing on tiny Anguilla island in the Caribbean promised to create more problems than it solved.

They landing of some 500 paratroops and policemen on the 35-square-mile island seemed likely to have an effect opposite from Stewart's claim that Britain had acted in the interests of Caribbean stability.

The black residents of Britain's dependencies and former dependencies in the Caribbean were quick to charge the action proved a two-faced policy—that Britain would use force against blacks but not against the whites of breakaway Rhodesia.

Further, the British were having trouble substantiating a claim that 6,000 islanders on Anguilla were being intimidated by Americans of dubious character.

The Anguillan affair was a teapot illustration of problems that have plagued the British for 20 years in the Caribbean.

The problems stem from the fact that many of the islands are small, thinly populated, poor and without the resources to support themselves.

Larger islands, such as Trinidad, Jamaica and Barbados were unwilling to sacrifice their own economies and thus went their separate ways toward independence.

First to fail was a proposed federation of islands including Jamaica on the north and Trinidad to the south. Jamaica pulled out first, quickly followed by Trinidad.

Britain then tried a federation in which Barbados would be the largest island. Barbados, too, opted out.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In recent years several newspapermen have made it big by writing novels about Washington. Two of the best sellers were "Vanished" by Fletcher Knebel and "The President's Plane is Missing" by Robert J. Serling.

In Knebel's book, the President's best friend and adviser mysteriously drops out of sight. It turns out he was engaged in peace negotiations so secret his whereabouts couldn't be disclosed.

In Serling's book, the President himself mysteriously disappears. It turns out he was likewise engaged in secret peace negotiations.

Since this apparently is a highly successful formula, I decided to use it in a novel I am writing under the working title of "Whatever Happened to What's His Name?"

In my book, as you probably already have guessed from the title, it is the Vice President who turns up missing.

The story opens on the afternoon of Jan. 20. Rinaldo Saddleburns, a former governor of New Mexico, is sworn in as Vice President and then vanishes without a trace.

During the next few chapters, which cover a span of three years, nothing much happens. I want my novel to be realistic and I figure it would take about three years before anyone would notice that a Vice President had disappeared.

Now the drama begins to unfold. One day the President is meeting with his cabinet and he suddenly says, "Whatever happened to what's his name?"

"Do you mean Vice President Saddleburns?" asked the secretary of state.

"Yes," the President says. "He seems to be missing."

"How can you tell?" asks the secretary of defense.

'I needed someone to substitute for me at a tree-planting ceremony, and when I looked around he was gone." the President says.

None of the other cabinet members can remember having seen the vice president in the last three years either. S othe FBI is notified and news of the disappearance is released to the press.

All sorts of theories are developed. Some speculate that the vice president has been kidnapped. Others speculate that he has been sold to a band of passing gypsies.

Actually, as the plot eventually will reveal, he has gone away on a secret peace mission arranged by the CIA, which forgot to tell the President about it.

His mission: to stop the war between Great Britain and Anguilla.

Sterling Gibson: He Never Slows Down

You Don't Say . . .

By RON CROSS

I had always wondered what a basketball coach did in the off season, mainly because basketball is usually the only thing a basketball coach coaches.

I went to see Sterling Gibson and nearly got run over and run to death. Gibson is the perpetual man in motion.

I'd ask him a question at one place and it would take 10 minutes to catch him to hear the answer.

Gibson got a very puzzled look on his face when I asked him what a basketball coach did in the off season.

"What's an off season?" he asked. "You mean when you lose more games than you win?".

Gibson certainly hasn't let the 1968-69 cage season go to his head. And well he could.

After winning the second half of district play and nearly taking the whole thing and being named coach-of-the-year in the district Gibson is not resting on his laurels.

He's already thinking and looking forward to the start of next season's basketball campaign.

"We are rebuilding for next season. We'll have to build our team around Jim Gallman, there is no question, about it," said the man who lost five of his top six regulars.

Gallman will be the Harvesters only returning starter and letterman. But the 6-7 senior-to-be is really something to start with.

"Jim could be a great player next season. I just wish he could gain 30 or 40 pounds and he'd be unstopable," Gibson said.

Right now Gibson, along with the rest of the high school coaches, helps out with the high school weight program.

"I've been working with future prospects on a weight and agility program and although we won't have a lot of experience we might surprise a lot of people, just like we did last season," Gibson said.

"I think that next season we'll have to go inside for our shots more. We'll have a different type team and we'll have to play to our strength."

Defense was the key to Pampa basketball success last season and Gibson figures it will have to be next season also.

"It's a cinch we'll have to be stronger on defense and we're working on it, studying new defenses and trying to figure out what we'll run," he said.

You can bet whichever ones it is they'll be good.

Gibson has noticed he has a little more time on his hands then he did while the season was going on.

"My family is beginning to recognize me again," he said.

Hawks Down Houston in CHL Playoffs

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The fourth game in the best-of-five Central Hockey League playoff matchup between the Kansas City Blues and the Omaha Knights unfolds here tonight with a contingent from Dallas acting as more than just curious onlookers.

The Dallas Black Hawks dispensed with the Houston Apollos in three straight games in the southern division quarter finals to earn the right to play the winner of the Blues-Knights faceoff.

The strong showing by the Hawks made the Dallas entry the "team to beat" as they shutout a team that was considered an even match for them.

The other playoff series, between defending CHL champion Tulsa and southern division champion Oklahoma City resumes Wednesday night in Oklahoma City with the Tulsa entry holding a 1-0 edge.

The Knights have a clear advantage in their playoff, holding a 2-1 edge with a chance to polish off the Blues tonight on Omaha ice.

The Blues finished the regular season one-point in front of the Knights earning Kansas City the right of opening the playoffs on home ice.

But that has not proved advantageous in the playoffs with the visiting team winning each contest.

Dallas finished second in the southern division but the Hawks won as easily in Houston akzlier did in their two playoff appearances before the partisan hometown fans.

Black Hawk scouts will be watching every move on the Omaha ice tonight as the Dallas team benefits from their quick three-game sweep by resting before the best-of-five playoff between the Kansas City-Omaha winner.

No date has been announced for the semi-final series. The winner of that round will play for the CHL championship against the winner of the Tulsa-Oklahoma City affair.

The Blazers of Oklahoma City were installed as clear-cut favorites in that contest having finished the season with a 40-19-13 record compared to a 28-28-16 mark for the Oilers.

ON THE MOUND — Dan Carlton was scheduled to be on the mound for the Pampa Harvesters this afternoon when they faced the Amarillo Sandies at Optimist park.

'Horns Eye Rice Next

By United Press International

The two undefeated baseball teams in the Southwest Conference will meet for a three-game series this weekend before the approving eyes of a large number of students, although not from either of the two schools.

The Texas Longhorns scheduled their series with the Rice Owls during the two schools' spring vacation when most students head home or to the sunny climes of the more populated beaches.

But the Longhorns, not a team that likes to play in an empty stadium, have invited all Austin school-aged children to attend Friday's doubleheader and Saturday's single game free of charge.

The only catch t othe "Children's Day" is that the students must be accompanied by a parent who will be charged $1 to see the contest.

It was indeed a week of good news as far as children were concerned although Austin children were not the only recipients.

The other children's treat did happen in the state's capital city, however, when Gov. and Mrs. Preston Smith hosted several hundred children of state legislators at an easter egg hunt on the grounds of the governor's mansion Monday.

Penguins Coach is Released

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Red Sullivan had traveled the road before, so he knew what to expect.

Suddenly finding himself as the ex-coach of the Pittsburgh Penguins, he said he had no regrets and would have done anything differently.

"We just didn't get off the ground," he said softly. "It was an uphill battle from the beginning."

Sullivan's dismissal Monday surprised no one, including himself.

Jack Riley, the Pittsburgh general manager, slipped Sullivan the bad news after a board of directors meeting that followed the end of the NHL season by less than 24 hours.

It was not an easy task for Riley, who named Sullivan as coach only minutes after he himself was hired in May, 1966. Riley said the move "was strictly that of the board of directors."

"Sullivan has been offered a position in the Pittsburgh organization as director of scouting for professional leagues," Riley added. "He requested a few days to think about the offer."

Expos Have The Hats, Now They Need Bats

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—If the Montreal Expos, the first non-United States team in major league history, were playing their inaugural game at home on April 8, the Expos' loyal fans would probably shout:

"Regardez les chapeaux."

But since the Expos, one of the two expansion teams added to the National League, will be making their all-time debut at Shea Stadium, New York, on that date, the non-French-speaking New Yorkers will simply say:

"Dig those crazy hats."

And you'd better believe it that the hats will be the first thing everybody notices about the Expos. They're gaudy affairs with red, white and blue panels and a scroll red-white-and-blue "M" on front. Nothing spiffier ever has been seen in the majors.

The trouble is not very many real major league ballplayers will be wearing those hats.

Providing their big winter trade stands up, Rusty Staub will be one of the major leaguers. The red-haired first baseman, who hit .333 for Houston in 1967 and .291 last year, was acquired from Houston for first baseman Donn Clendenon and outfielder Jesus Alou. Clendenon then retired, and Houston hollered that the trade should be cancelled.

At this writing, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's latest ruling was that the trade stood and the Astros and Expos should talk about a player to take Clendenon's place. The Astros, very unhappy, promised to fight the ruling.

With Staub, the Expos' infield would have a veteran look.

At deuxieme but — second base, that is—there is ex-Phillie Gary Sutherland, who hit .275 last year and has been pleasing Expos' manager Gene Mauch this spring. Ex-Dodger and Pirate star Maury Wills takes his 36-year-old legs back to shortstop after playing third base, and it remains to be seen whether the former basestealing champion can cover the ground all season.

Ex-Dodger Bob Bailey has the edge at third base, unless he is needed at first. The other interieurs — infielders — have minor league backgrounds and perhaps the most promising are Jose Laboy, .292 at Tulsa, and Angel Hermoso, .295 at Shreveport.

Manny Mota, the Expos' No. 1 pick in the player draft which stocked the new clubs, heads the brigade of voltigeurs—outfielders. Mota, after years of .333 and .321 for the Pirates, dropped off to .281 last year. He injured his left (non-throwing) elbow in the winter Dominican League and had surgery, but now is recovered.

Mack Jones, the No. 2 choice, also is a certain outfield starter. Jones, a lefthanded hitter, never has lived up to the promise he showed in 1965 when he hit 31 homers for the Braves, dropping off to 10 homers and a .252 average for the Reds as a part-timer last year, but he figures to swing the most powerful bat in the Canadian lineup.

The much-traveled Ty Cline, .223 with the Giants, could get the other outfield spot, if not Jim Fairey, .199 with the Dodgers, or minor leaguers Don Hahn and Floyd Wicker.

Lakers Win First Game In Playoffs

By United Press International

The Los Angeles Lakers, pro basketball's slumbering giant, finally woke up in the second half Monday night.

The Lakers, who were figured the team to beat in the playoffs this season, lost their first two games of their best-of-seven series with San Francisco and were trailing by two points at half time in the third game.

But the Lakers finally exploded with 41 points in the third period and went on to rout the Warriors 115-98.

The Lakers cut their deficit in the series to 2-1 but the Warriors still have the advantage since they'll have the home court edge at the Cow Palace in San Francisco for the crucial fourth game of the series Wednesday night.

Jerry West and Johnny Egan sparked the third period rally by scoring 23 of the 41 points and wound up with 25 and 18 points. Wilt Chamberlain, held to 21 points in the first two games, tossed in 22 this time. The Lakers, trailing 45-43 at halftime, forged a 56-53 lead and then outscored the Warriors 17-4 to wrap it up.

Nate Thurmond paced the Warriors with 22 points. One first round series could end tonight.

The aging Boston Celtics, holding a 3-0 lead on the Philadelphia 76ers, host the 76ers. A victory would send the Celtics into the Eastern Division finals against the winner of the New York Knick-Baltimore Bullet series. The Knicks hold a 3-0 edge and could end the series Wednesday night.

The Atlanta Hawks, heavily favored over San Diego, will try to stretch their lead to 3-0 against the Rockets in the other playoff game tonight.

Lonborg No April Fool

WINTER HAVE, Fla. (UPI)—Pay no attention whatsoever to the date. Jim Lonborg is anything but an April fool. As a matter of fact he's no fool at

SPORTS PARADE

Lonbong, in addition to being quite a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, is a exceptionally sensible young man. He's not given to controversy and doesn't make it a habit to go off half cocked. He thinks things out before talking them out.

One of the things he has mulled over is that unprecedented speech August A. "Gussie" Busch, Jr., the St. Louis Cardinals' President, delivered in the Cards' dressing room over at St. Petersburg 10 days ago. People are still talking about the speech and the vast majority feel it was a good one.

Jim Lonborg doesn't work for Gussie Busch but respects him and has great regard for him as an owner. Nonetheless, he was, in his own words, "not too impressed" by what Busch had to say. Particularly about what Busch had to say about the fans.

Now this may sound like out and out heresy coming at a time when everybody in baseball is romancing YOU, the fan, so that YOU, the fan, won't take your money and go elsewhere, but the strange truth of the matter is that Busch was right in his comments and Lonborg in his although he actually takes issue with the Cardinals' owner.

Busch, if you remember, had this to say to his ballplayers about the people who come out to the ballpark:

"We are beginning to lose sight of who really has to pay the ultimate bill for your salary and your pension, namely the fan. And when we do that, I think we do have a problem... I plead with you not to kill the enthusiasm of the fans and kids for whom you have become such idols. We are refusing to sign autographs and some ballplayers push kids aside they try to take their pictures. Gentlemen...when kids don't want your autographs and when they stop trying to take your picture, then we all better begin to worry."

Lonborg read all about what Gussie Busch had to say. He was greatly interested in Busch's remarks, not only because he's the players' representative for the Red Sox but because he appreciates owners like Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox, whom he calls "fantastic," and Busch but still will say what he really believes nevertheless.

I think he's a fine owner but I don't think what he said had to be said," Lonborg maintains. "I realize what baseball is going through. The great majority of us (ballplayers) do, but he sounded as if his sole and only concern was the fan. Yes, I heard what he had to say about ballplayers giving autographs to the fans. I think the fan can learn a few manners. Understand this, I'm not comdemning all the fans. Many are young kids and in some places I think the kids are good. In my own case I generally look for the little quiet kid who stands off in the back. If a little fella like this gets an autograph I think he cherishes it more, that it's more important to him than it is to some of those kids who wave papers in your face, push you, yell at you and what not when they ask you for your autograph."

Basically what the 25-year-old Red Sox right-hander is talking about is common courtesy and politeness, a virtue few kids or adults have any time for today. Its' easy to tell which kid has the bad manners withiut even seeing him around a ballpark. He's the one whose mother, upon seeing another rude youngster, always will exclaim, "Thank God my son doesn't act THAT way." You can bet her kid always does.

Muscle Strain

Lonborg, getting around to the muscle strain in his arm he came up with this spring, says it's something he has had before but nothing that should impede him seriously once the season starts.

Brown Continues To Make Padres Boss Shrewd Judge

Ollie Brown doesn't want to hurt Buzzy Bavasi's reputation as a shrewd judge of baseball talent.

He won't either, if he keeps hitting the way he did Monday.

Bavasi, the former righthand man for Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers who became the boss of the new San Diego team, gambled on Brown as the Padres' first choice in the expansion draft even though Brown hit only .232 in 40 games with the Giants last year and spent a stretch in the minor leagues.

But the 25-year-old righthanded hitter looked like the kind of hitter Bavasi thinks he'll be for the Padres when he clubbed two homers Monday as the Padres were downing the Chicago Cubs 5-3.

Only five games were played Monday because of the funeral services for former President Eisenhower and two of those were curtailed by darkness.

In the other four games, the New York Mets blanked Cincinnati 3-0, the Chicago White Sox topped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 and the Oakland A's drubbed the California Angels 7-1 in a game called after the top of the sixth inning by darkness. The Cleveland Indians and the San Francisco Giants played to a 5-5 tie in a game called after eight innings by darkness.

Five games, the Braves vs. the Tigers, the Phils vs. the Twins, the Pirates vs. the Orioles, the Red Sox vs. the Senators and the Yankees vs. the Royals, were canceled. The five games that were played started after the funeral services for President Eisenhower had ended, according to the guidelines set down by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Hoover on Police Problem

Criminals get all the breaks in their running battle with the law, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, wrote in the March issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin.

But this disadvantage must be overcome, if the rule of law is to prevail and the rule of law must prevail, Hoover said. The article follows:

A newspaper columnist noted that today's law enforcement officer has to "speak softly and carry a big law library." Actually, his paraphrase of the well-known quotation from Theodore Roosevelt comes close to being true. There is nothing wrong of course, with an officer's speaking softly and being well-versed in legal criminal procedure. Ideally, this is as it should be.

Unfortunately, in the criminal realm within which he must work, the law enforcement officer is the only one "playing by the rules." This places him at a definite disadvantage. In complying with all the procedural Safeguards established for criminals, an officer must often subordinate his personal safety his own rights, and the rights of society to insure that he does not commit some error which might later result in the release of the guilty. Criminals are usually well aware of their legal rights and take full advantage of them.

Many critics of law enforcement today substitute paper theories for grim realities. When they advocate more restraints on arresting officers, they do so apparently on the premise that police are dealing with only law-abiding, cooperative citizens who respect the law and those charged with enforcing it. While a big percentage of police contacts are with the responsible members of society, increasing assaults against and killing of law enforcement officers are indicative of the open contempt numerous violators have for police and authority of any kind.

Arguments are made that court opinions and legal restraints are not so broad as to require arresting officers to unduly endanger their lives in order to meet standards established to protect the rights of the suspect or accused. Here again, we encounter the difference between theory and practice. Judicial guidelines which are so vague and questionable that even the highest jurists disagree on their intent place a heavy burden of judgment on the enforcement officer. In crucial moments, this burden of judgment can create indecision. And as we know, moments of indecision can cost an officer his life.

The trend today, even though unintentional, is to negate the enforcement of the laws to insure that the criminal is protected. We are asking our officers to operate under an honor system in dealing with an element of our society which has no honor. Certainly, arresting officers can't be permitted to resort to illegal tactics themselves but they must be allowed to perform their duty with confidence and with the assurance that they have the support of the public, the government on all levels, and the courts. The powers of arrest must be as clear and positive as possible.

Vigorous law enforcement is needed to cope with crime and violence in our nation. It can't be achieved if arresting officers are required to make an apologetic approach to every killer, rapist, robber and thug roaming our streets. If the rule of law is to prevail the law must be enforced.

The Great Schism

Cries for "Unity!" or shouts of "United we stand!" are not history; they are noised today, and the criers are dead serious about wanting you united on THEIR side.

That puts people in a terrible dilemma. Which side to stand on? Most citizens are pretty sure there is a split widening within the country, though they are not sure just what the split is separating.

Is it as simple as a separation between Democrats and Republicans? Between "conservatives" and "liberals"? Between rich and poor? Between want to be organized and workers who don't? Between Christians and those of other faiths? Or between the faithful and the faithless? Between whites and colored? Between communists and individualists? Between the Establishment (political government) and the people? Just exactly what is causing the split? A man has to find out in order to know where to plant his feet. At the rate things seem to be going, as the split widens it could prove disastrous to attempt to straddle it.

It is the same banners of "Unity," "Freedom," "Liberty," "Be concerned," "Get involved," from both sides of whatever the split is about that muddles a decision on where to stand. The only help is a measuring stick, a principle against which to measure acts in both camps. And the real split emerges as between the principled and the unprincipled.

If freedom is the principle, it applies as a measuring stick in all dilemmas. And there has to be knowledge of what freedom is. Freedom is acting self- responsibility in all situations, without harm to any others. On the other hand, there is license, a false sense of freedom or doing as one pleases whether it hurts others or not. License is miscalled freedom by those who would indulge whims and not think things through far enough to see that actually hurt will result, perhaps indirectly, from their acts even though claiming they are not hurting anyone. Some are bent on "doing their thing," no matter what, then blaming others for their own harmful compulsions.

If there is any great schism in "society," it is undoubtedly between freedom-lovers and license-lovers.

Present . . . CANES!

The young, protesting everything from the draft to the war in Vietnam and what they consider the inequities in college life, have been grabbing the headlines with their marches, mass meetings and placards decrying The Establishment.

Now, it appears, no generation gap exists in the protest phenomenon. Oldsters are getting into the act and the object of their wrath is the "young whippersnapper" set running things to suit themselves in rest homes.

Up in East Clouds, Vt., three militant octogenarians raised such a ruckus against the administrators of the Bide-a-Wee Rest Home that police were summoned after a scuffle. The oldsters protested the "running of things around here by a bunch of young whippersnappers." They demand that at least three senior citizens be named to places on the rest home staff.

Indignant wrath apparently knows no age limits and a free-swinging cane presumably can be as potent as the placard carried by today's bearded, sunglassed youngster.

The American Way

By D. R. SEGAL

Once a man is prepared to admit that he is a bundle of shameless prejudices, he is beyond the reach of catcalls and calumny. I have, in my downhill years, come to the point where I cheerfully confess to being 167 pounds of prejudice, impiety and irreverence. My roommate says my disposition is not so hot either but that is because I waited too long to become intolerant. Being reasonable all these years damned near killed me.

I don't know when I first came down with an attack of the prejudices, but I know when I first lost my reverence. That was right after Franklin D. said I had nothing to worry about because I owed it to myself. I had a banker who took a dim view of this Presidential dictum and he told me to pony up by the 15th inst. or he'd come take the car away. I found out, on the 16th inst. that, given the choice of listening to a magician in the White House or a banker down the street, you had better opt for the man down at the money place.

Once you discover that government is not mystical, magical or infallible, you begin to doubt some of the other great Religious Tenets such as: Given enough money, you can educate everybody; and All we need is to print more dollars and everybody'd be rich; and What we need is a law making everybody the same color and religion.

When you've lost your reverence for government, you get sort of prejudiced against it. The way reformed drunks become obnoxious teetotalers, all the time gigging you about the evils of J. Barleycorn and the worsening condition of your liver, just because they are prejudiced against booze.

Like the fellows over at the AA, I have a real thing going against what I used to believe in, in my case Government. I suppose I attribute to government sins and peccadillos which are not entirely justified. I have got to the place where, if you asked me, I would be pressed to give a 10-second recitation on What I Like About Government. Almost any situation you think of can be made worse by letting the government get into it. The wonder is that we continue to invite the government to invade every area of human activity, all the while we're deploring the size and expense of it all.

I cannot, for example, get it through my thick skull why the government should set an interest rate; pay anybody not to grow something; support a price; lavish money on states and cities and schools as if the money were a gift; and that's just a beginning of what I can't get through my head, cluttered as it is with the aforesaid prejudice and irreverence.

I had a wild evening with a man who is — if I recall the term correctly — a governor of the Federal Reserve Board or System, or whatever it is called. As I got it, he is foresquare 100 per cent in favor of free, private enterprise, as long as the government runs it. He explained this to me the way I explained to my seven-year-son that it is not nice to use four-letter words in front of strangers. After a few hours I asked him if he was a college professor by trade, and he got sore.

I don't know why.

Looking up a friend in Tokyo is difficult, not only because the city is the world's most populous but because most streets are unnamed and the houses are not serially numbered, The World Almanac notes. If a Japanese gives you his card it may show a map, for even mailmen and taxi drivers must make inquiries to find new addresses.

Critical Headstart Report Demanded For Lawmakers Under 'Right to Know'

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee, is vigorously cracking down on the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the multi-billion dollar poverty program, to force the release of a critical report it is trying to suppress.

OEO has been bluntly ordered by Moss to submit the report to Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., head of the Higher Education Subcommittee, and Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., who have been vainly asking for it for weeks.

The suppressed report reputedly asserts that the widely acclaimed Head Start program has little or no lasting effect on the educational development of disadvantaged children. It concludes that benefits resulting from Head Start fade rapidly after the child enters the first grade.

In effect, the report maintains that compensatory education in the U.S. has been largely unsuccessful.

The report is the work of the Westinghouse Learning Corp., a subsidiary of giant Westinghouse Electric Co. WLC was given a $548,000 contract by OEO to take a study of Head Start. Its findings were submitted to OEO last month, but so far the agency has adamantly refused to divulge them.

Existence of the suppressed special White House assistant study was revealed early this month by Daniel Moynihan, special White House assistant on urban affairs, at a meeting with members of the House Education and Labor Committee. He was briefing them on the administration's plans for shifting the Head Start program from OEO to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Moynihan mentioned that one reason for this decision was the adverse findings of the Westinghouse Learning Corp. report on the long range effectiveness of Head Start.

Committeemen thereupon sought copies of the study, but OEO flatly refused to produce it.

The legislators contended it was necessary for them to examine it in considering lending bills to continue the multi-billion dollar OEO program. This point was strongly stressed by Rep. Quie in a letter to Acting Director Bertrand Harding, as follows:

"Since hearings on the Economic Opportunity Act by the House Education and Labor Committee are about to start," wrote Quie, "I feel that the information contained in the Head Start report will be of important interest to the members of our committee."

Harding didn't even answer this request. An assistant told Quie, "We appreciate your interest in this matter" — and that was all.

WHAT'S BEHIND IT — Mrs. Green, ranking Democrat on the Education and Labor Committee and chairman of a subcommittee, was given the same run-around when she sought the suppressed study.

OEO officials informed her the report was still "unfinished and incomplete."

This claim immediately gave rise to belief that OEO was in the process of toning down and revising the critical Westinghouse study. The company itself expressed full willingness to release the document if permission was granted by OEO — which has not been forthcoming.

Rebuffed by OEO, Mrs. Green appealed to Rep. Moss to compel release of the study. He responded immediately by forcefully ordering OEO to produce the report.

Moss is a long-time crusader against bureaucratic obstruction and barriers to the publication of government information. He is author of the Right to Know Act, passed by Congress in 1967, which requires government agencies to divulge information on request where no security risk is involved.

It's under this law that Moss has cracked down on OEO and directed it release the Westinghouse report to Reps. Green and Quie.

OEO, in refusing to release the Westinghouse study, has flounted two laws — the Right to Know Act and a provision in the Economic Opportunity Act which explicitly states that all OEO research and evaluation reports are the property of the U.S. government and available for use by Congress.

Since the inception of OEO in 1964, more than $1.3 billion has been voted by Congress for Head Start. The new OEO budget calls for $338 million for Head Start for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Last year members of the Education and Labor Committee, in response to inquiries, ascertained that OEO has spent more than $100 million for research and evaluation studies and reports since 1964. Very few of these have been published.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G BRANSTADT

Moon's Climate Unfriendly to Man

Fantasies of 30 years ago about persons landing on the moon are soon to become reality. Finding a comfortable spot on the moon for colonization is, however, still pure fantasy. Even man-made machines will find the climate most unfriendly.

Here are some of the problems our space explorers will have to contend with. Since the total volume of the earth is 80 times as great as that of the moon, the latter is unable to retain a mixture of nitrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide and water vapor such as that which envelops the earth. This atmosphere not only provides the elements needed to support both, plant and animal life but also protects us from a high concentration of ultraviolet, infrared and cosmic rays and from small meteorites. Furthermore, the atmosphere is necessary to conduct sound and heat and to disperse light.

On the moon, the days and nights each last about 14 of our days. During the day the temperature is about 135 and at night about — 186. Severe as these extremes are, their hazards are increased by the fact that it takes only 15 minutes to go from one to the other. We can't be sure, however, that some heat-and cold - resistant germs that can live in a vacuum in a state of suspended animation are not ready to come out of their hibernation and infect us.

In order to survive on the moon, some means must be found to take a part of our friendly environment along and preserve it. Scientists believe that this can be done, if at all, only by burrowing far beneath the moon's surface and living in the moon rather than on it. It is characteristic of man that he does not consider any problem insurmountable provided he can correctly define it. Only the most venturesome, however, are likely to want to go to the moon. It may be a great place to visit but I, for one, would not want to live there.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Business Plays Postoffice

By PAUL HARVEY

I knew Postmaster General Winton M. Blount in the days when we called him "Red Blount" around the golf course in Montgomery, Ala. A construction expert of phenomenal efficiency, as postmaster he would purge our chronically constipated Post Office Department if he could. He can't.

Inhibited by Civil Service, there is no way that he can appreciably improve the increasingly inefficient handling and distribution of mail.

Perhaps it's time to dump the whole antiquated system and let businessmen distribute mail in a businesslike manner. It can be done.

Private enterprise is presently distributing mail in 18 cities in 11 states; it will be in 100 cities by the end of this year.

The Inedpendent Postal System of America (IPSA) began distributing second-class or "Occupant" mail last year.

This derisively called "junk mail" has been blamed by postal authorities for that department's mounting deficit; IPSA handles that mail for $25 per 1,000 pieces where the Post Office charges $42 per 1,000 and the IPSA makes a profit!

Here's how it works: IPSA solicits businesses which handle volume mail: Sears, Montgomery Ward, Rexall Drugs, Independent Grocers, J. C. Penney, Firestone, and so forth.

Starting in Oklahoma City in February, 1968, the first contract was for 60,000 pieces of advertising literature. Before the month ended, IPSA deliveries hit 300,000. The next month, March, 1 million. April, 3 million!

This private enterprise postal system is now competing with Uncle Sam in Dallas, Denver, Columbus, Wichita, and so forth, and IPSA founder, Thomas M. Murray, reports "requests for franchises are coming in faster than we can keep up with them."

Businessmen are promised that their volume mail can be handled at up to 42 percent less cost the IPSA way. Every carrier is bonded. Within a city, mail is delivered the same day.

Will your first-class letter ever be delivered by a nongovernment carrier? Not soon. Presently, it is illegal for anybody except a government mailman to put anyting in your mailbox. (IPSA deliveries, in a plastic container, are affixed to you doorknob.)

In Canada, where a mailbox is not thus legally reserved, IPSA is experimenting with home deliveries of first-class mail. In time, with variations, private enterprise perhaps could provide such service. Presently, its greatest usefulness is in delivering second-class mail which the Post Office considers an uneconomic burden.

The Independent Postal System of America eventually may encounter problems of bigness: unions, inefficient personnel, increasing government snoopervision.

Meanwhile, however, private enterprise is offering an obviously sensible alternative to a grotesquely inefficient and increasingly costly system which every postmaster general has deplored and none has been able to correct.

After 130 years of diminishing mail service despite ever-higher costs, a faster, cheaper way is now available.

Editor:

I read with interest and amusement Mr. Brantley's letter (Pampa News, March 30, 1969) concerning the people who voted to help their children get a better education.

These people who voted yes to pass the school bond issue probably didn't realize that they were common thieves.

Probably all they wanted to do was see to it that our children received a better education and that our athletic facilities are second to none.

Unfortunately I wasn't able to steal from the 575 persons who voted against the bond issue.

If I had been a property owner and had been able to vote, I'm afraid I would have been one of the thieves.

I am sorry that Mr. Brantley and 574 other persons are having to help pay for my children's education.

I wish there was some way I could reimburse him and the others, although Mr. Brantley is the only person who so far has voiced that he has been stolen from.

I am sure the persons who voted for the bond issue will try to figure out someway of remedying this situation.

Mr. Brantley has my condolences, my wife's condolence's and my children's thanks.

From Mr. Brantly's letter it appears that he is pretty fed up with the American way of life.

If he would like to live somewhere else, I'm sure enough people would be glad to chip in and buy him a ticket.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, April 1, the 91st day of 1969 with 274 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1853 Cincinnati set a precedent by deciding to pay members of its fire department a regular salary. Ordinary firemen were paid $60 a year.

In 1918 the British Royal Air Force was founded and two months later began World War I bombing of industrial targets in Germany from French bases.

In 1939 Generalissimo Francisco Franco, leader of rebel forces, announced the end of the Spanish Civil War.

In 1946 some 400,000 coal miners struck for higher pay.

A thought for the day: Richard Brinsley Sheridan said, "Tale bearers are as bad as the tale-makers."

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced and remarried. My ex-husband and I have a 6-year-old daughter and I have two younger children by my present husband.

My ex-husband has been in Vietnam for two years. He has been living with a Vietnamese prostitute for eight months, and recently wrote that he's marrying her and bringing her here as she's expecting a baby in three months.

Now I don't care who he marries or what her nationality is, but my "ex" has visiting rights, and Abby, when I think about my daughter being around this prostitute, I want to throw up. My husband and his new wife will want to take my child for week-ends, and I can't stop them because that's what it says in the decree.

I can't see how a woman who has been a prostitute can ever change. Please tell me if I am wrong. What do you think I should do? Tell me and I shall try to abide by it.

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Cool it. You know too little about the Vietnamese "prostitute" to condemn her in absentia and at such a long distance. Give your ex and your successor a chance. Then act, if necessary.

DEAR ABBY: What advice have you for a 22-year-old girl who's pretty and smart, but lives in a small town with snobbish people who won't let her forget that she lives on the wrong side of the tracks?

NO FUTURE

DEAR NO: The next time the train comes through get on it.

DEAR ABBY: If there isn't an organization called "Religious Fanatics Anonymous" there ought to be. I am serious. My husband is a real nut on religion. Now I go to church, too, and I think every one should go once a week, but my husband lives at church. He runs there before he goes to work every morning, and when he comes home late from work I know he's stopped in at church again. I wonder what he has done that his conscience bothers him so much. This man has got to be the world's champion sinner.

I keep telling him he is going to wear his knees out, and he says I'm nagging him.

What do you say, Abby? How much church is enough?

FANATIC'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Let each man decide for himself how much "church" is enough.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for the woman who admitted her error in naming her son "Junior" and had to suffer through the "Big Bob" and "Little Bob" syndrome.

Now, what can be done about people who mark their progeny with William Williams, John Johns, Robert Roberts, Ima Ford, or Ima Anything.

Oh, well, one of my ancestors, Temperance Cooper married Pleasant Loving, which did not seem to hinder future development of the line. Who knows what another union like that could accomplish? Yours truly,

CAROLYN COOPER IVEY

Twentieth Century Culture Club Studies 'Mrs. Stonewall's Life

Twentieth Century Culture Club members heard Mrs. V. L. Hobbs review the book, "The Gallant Lady" when they met recently in the home of Mrs. Warren Hasse, 1704 Christine. Mrs. Anthony P. Morris assisted Mrs. Hasse as hostess.

Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer, president, led the group in the club collect and presided over a business meeting. A report on the Papago Indians was given by Mrs. Harold Sadler. Mrs. J. L. Chase read a thank you note from member Mrs. E. W. Hogan in appreciation for a book the culb presented her during her illness.

Mrs. Hobbs discussed the life of Anna Morrison Jackson, wife of the Confederate General, Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson. "Anna was born in North Carolina, one of 10 children. Her father was a Presbyterian minister and gained acclaim by establishing Davidson College. He also managed 20 or 30 slaves during the pre-Civil War days," Mrs. Hobbs said.

"On July 16, 1857, Anna's wedding day to Jackson, her wedding dress and her four traveling costumes had not arrived from New York. However, Tom assured her everything would be all right and presented her as wedding gifts a watch and a string of seed pearls. Anna began weeping and her mother began searching through closets trying to find something to serve the purpose, then the wedding boxes arrived just before the wedding," Mrs. Hobbs said.

"Anna set her heart on altering the opinion people held of Tom — that he was a diamond in the rough. She picked up a book in which he had written his early rules of conduct. He had written, 'Through life let your principal object be the discharge of duty, disregard public opinion when it interferes with your duty, . . endeavor to be at peace with all men . . never speak disrespectfully of anyone without a cause. . , be truthful in all things. . . you may be whatever you resolve to be.'

"Anna learned that Tom lived by these principles, that he arose at two minutes to six each morning, knelt for prayer, took a cold bath, took a 15 minute walk and expected her to have his breakfast ready when he returned."

"So sure was Anna that Tom would make something of his life that she solemnly promised to help show his abilities to any doubters. During the time he taught at the Military Institute, despite complaints, she calmly backed him," Mrs. Hobbs said.

When the Civil War broke out, Tom was appointed Colonel of the Virginia Infantry in command of the strategic point, Harper's Ferry. Anna remained at home, confident that if Tom's frail health could withstand the trials of war that he would succeed."

"During the Civil War years she was able to see her husband from time to time. His successes in battle he attributed to God. He carried with him at all times a Bible, and many soldiers saw his lips move in prayer. When their daughter was born, Anna was able to take the child to her father, after an epidemic of smallpox subsided. Five days after she left him, he was shot in the dark by his own troops who mistook him for the enemy. Anna took their daughter and went to him. He called his daughter, "little comforter", his last words to Anna were, "It's the Lord's day and my wish is fulfilled. I've always wanted to die on Sunday".

Mrs. Hobbs related in 1957 a statue of Stonewall Jackson was unveiled in New York's Hall of Fame, making the deacon soldier's place in history more celebrated than ever before. Anna continued during her life time serving her husband's memory and helping bring reconciliation between north and south. She died in 1915 and was buried beside her husband in Lexington cemetery.

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2
YOUR BIRTHDAY Wednesday: — This coming year is a time for you to make some practical application of your special skills and aptitudes toward taking a greater role in your community. Advancement in your career should be more readily available soon according to what you have done to earn it. Wednesday's natives frequently begin far more projects than they finish. Many are noted for highly specialized skills in law and medicine.

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19): — Excitement is in the air. Many trifling matters come to sudden conclusions. Reach out to meet all those of goodwill around you, join forces for a new start.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): — There is a chance now to get to the bottom of recent tensions. Others may suddenly see things in a new light. Your temptation is to try doing both sides. This leaves the other fellow without the responsibility of formulating his own arguments, and is unfair to both of you.

GEMINI (May 21 June 20): — Diplomacy is the prize winning approach Wednesday. Associates who are very familiar with your ways will find nothing much different, but outsiders may be more readily influenced than you anticipate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — You must move forward to some wider point of view since recent information works to make your earlier positions less tenable. Your real property may have unexpected intangible values.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — New cooperative arrangements are available, but do not scrap old ones which have been working well. Be sure your generosity is not something taken for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Your family and close associates are helpful now, but it is not a very profitable day for major transactions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Your spirit soars if you accept new ideas and opportunities. If your view is conservative, some of the innovations may seem shocking. Only later do you realize that in following emotional reactions you have unwittingly made decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — There are adjustments you must make to circumstances beyond your control. Life can be much simpler Wednesday once you settle for what really is. (Your change of mind may be important to other people too.)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Your lively energy carries you along despite the chance of being hindered or disappointed by friends. Creative work, sports, pastimes are strongly favored. This is a day of curious coincidences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Personal affairs and your responsibilities at work continue in some conflict. Use your talent for organizing to consolidate both activities for more effective use of the time you have available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — You can get resistance to any idea you offer Wednesday just by trying to explain it. Stay out of differences at this time; the rewards will be apparent later on.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): — Chance conversation reveals sudden insights into reasons for long-past events which have puzzled you. With a definite improvement in your will to succeed, your spirit is lighter.

Senior Center Corner

By MRS. O. A. WAGNER

It was such a beautiful day Thursday, the Lovett Memorial Library was filled with card players and visitors. If you like to play 42, pitch or dominoes, and haven't been coming, and if you don't mind being classed as an oldster, no age limit, you don't know what you're missing. We meet at 1:30 p.m. every Thursday. I get a lot of calls asking about it, the time and place of meeting, from new people coming in, or someone saying their mother or father would enjoy coming.

The library meetings are sponsored by Altrusa Club of Pampa, and other civic and women's groups, and church groups who take turns serving as hostess. Altrusans sponsor the first Thursday meeting, a birthday meeting for all those celebrating birthdays that month.

Mrs. Louise Surger was reported in Highland General Hospital recently. Mrs. Stapton is reported at home and feeling much better.

Mrs. Jere Lag, Lubbock, called on Mrs. Katie Vincent recently. Dallas Culwell, Los Angeles, Calif., visited Mrs. Vincent and other friends in Pampa recently.

A thank you note was received by the Center from Mrs. G. W. Lawrence for the bud vase she received from Seniors when she was ill recently. We missed Mrs. Lawrence the past few weeks and hope she can be back soon.

We extend sympathy to Mr. Henderson at the death of his brother, and to Mr. Cates whose brother also passed away.

It was nice to see Mrs. Mary Roop and Mrs. Cora Long out this week, and Mr. Peter Marak who is visiting his grandchildren.

Mrs. Margaret Conley reported Mr. and Mrs. Underwood are in Montana to visit her father, who is ill.

Pythian Sisters were hostesses. Serving refreshments were Mmes. O. G. Smith, Ray Barnard, Gerald Ely, R. D. Wilson, Lola Mae Fugate and E. B. Altman. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Erma Erwin and Jay Evans. Red Cross Volunteers with transportation were Mmes. Olive Hills and Jessie Rance.

Rho Eta Chapter Conducts Supper In Mexican Theme

A Mexican Supper was held recently by the Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Guests who attended the party were Mmes. Jim Brashears, Gary Clark, John Lyle, Calvin McConnell, Jim Simpson, and Jerry Wright.

The evening was spent visiting and playing "Panhandle Bridge." White Elephant prizes were given to each winner.

Pythian Sisters Prepare Layettes

The Past Chief's Club of Pampa Temple 41, Pythian Sisters, met in the home of Mrs. O. G. Smith, 1004 West Oklaahoma, recently for the regular monthly meeting. Mrs. G. R. Fugate, president, presided. In the devotional, Mrs. Roy Brown used as her theme "The Indian's Version of the 23rd Psalm," By Paul Rader."

After a brief business meeting those present, worked on "Layettes," they are making for the Red Cross.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Personal affairs and your responsibilities at work continue in some conflict. Use your talent for organizing to consolidate both activities for more effective use of the time you have available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — You can get resistance to any idea you offer Wednesday just by trying to explain it. Stay out of differences at this time; the rewards will be apparent later on.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): — Chance conversation reveals sudden insights into reasons for long-past events which have puzzled you. With a definite improvement in your will to succeed, your spirit is lighter.

Senior Center Corner

By MRS. O. A. WAGNER

It was such a beautiful day Thursday, the Lovett Memorial Library was filled with card players and visitors. If you like to play 42, pitch or dominoes, and haven't been coming, and if you don't mind being classed as an oldster, no age limit, you don't know what you're missing. We meet at 1:30 p.m. every Thursday. I get a lot of calls asking about it, the time and place of meeting, from new people coming in, or someone saying their mother or father would enjoy coming.

The library meetings are sponsored by Altrusa Club of Pampa, and other civic and women's groups, and church groups who take turns serving as hostess. Altrusans sponsor the first Thursday meeting, a birthday meeting for all those celebrating birthdays that month.

Mrs. Louise Surger was reported in Highland General Hospital recently. Mrs. Stapton is reported at home and feeling much better.

Mrs. Jere Lag, Lubbock, called on Mrs. Katie Vincent recently. Dallas Culwell, Los Angeles, Calif., visited Mrs. Vincent and other friends in Pampa recently.

A thank you note was received by the Center from Mrs. C. W. Lawrence for the bud vase she received from Seniors when she was ill recently. We missed Mrs. Lawrence the past few weeks and hope she can be back soon.

We extend sympathy to Mr. Henderson at the death of his brother, and to Mr. Cates whose brother also passed away.

It was nice to see Mrs. Mary Roop and Mrs. Cora Long out this week, and Mr. Peter Marak who is visiting his grandchildren.

Mrs. Margaret Conley reported Mr. and Mrs. Underwood are in Montana to visit her father, who is ill.

Pythian Sisters were hostesses. Serving refreshments were Mmes. O. G. Smith, Ray Barnard, Gerald Ely, R. D. Wilson, Lola Mae Fugate and E. B. Altman. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Erma Erwin and Jay Evans. Red Cross Volunteers with transportation were Mmes. Olive Hills and Jessie Rance.

Rho Eta Chapter Conducts Supper In Mexican Theme

A Mexican Supper was held recently by the Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Guests who attended the party were Mmes. Jim Brashears, Gary Clark, John Lyle, Calvin McConnell, Jim Simpson, and Jerry Wright.

The evening was spent visiting and playing "Panhandle Bridge." White Elephant prizes were given to each winner.

Pythian Sisters Prepare Layettes

The Past Chief's Club of Pampa Temple 41, Pythian Sisters, met in the home of Mrs. O. G. Smith, 1004 West Oklaahoma, recently for the regular monthly meeting. Mrs. G. R. Fugate, president, presided. In the devotional, Mrs. Roy Brown used as her theme "The Indian's Version of the 23rd Psalm," By Paul Rader."

After a brief business meeting those present worked on "Layettes," they are making for the Red Cross.
