Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

We knew they were going to do it. They said they were, they just didn't say when.

If you are travelling east or west from Winters, don't be too surprised to find yourself lost.

What we have known as FM 53, or just plain 53, is no more.

About half way to the deer pasture this past week end, I looked up and, to my surprise, found that I was on Texas Highway 153. Now try and find that on your Texas highway map.

Lost—you find yourself in the middle of some highway that the map makers don't know about.

The folks in Junction should be in sympathy here. There are several maps in our offices, all made by a big-time map maker, and none of them mention Junction.

It is understandable that, when a long-time farm to market road becomes a for-real state highway, it may take map makers a little time to update their drawings.

Now, back to Junction. Some of the major cities in Kimble County are listed on the maps. Metropolitan areas such as London, Telegraph and Segovia are listed in that county.

Why, in Runnels County the map lists such resort areas as Benoit. Then, in the densely populated areas of the Big Bend, the map lists such cities as Redford, Indio, and Pandale.

So far, the only folks that know about Texas Highway 153 are the Highway Department folks and those of us who find out we are not on the highway we thought we were.

If you recall, last year's season for stalking Bambi was not one of my most successful. The way things went this past weekend, this year's season just may not be off to a really terrific start—either.

It has been time, for some time now, to bring the hunting cabin home for a cleaning and restocking session. We finally, finally, got the cabin home.

This was no small undertaking. It took two days to get to the pasture, over close to Hords Creek Lake.

After finally getting the trailer hitch hitched, the battery died hard. We walked all the way back to the gate for the wife's car and the jumper cables.

Got the truck started, and we got things underway—until the boss got in the wrong ruts and high-centered her car.

Guess what? No chain. At near 100 degrees, it was easy to work up a sweat just thinking. We finally got the car out of the rut and were on the way home at last.

It wasn't too bad, if you overlook a traffic ticket, spiders, snakes, wasp nests, briars, to mention a few distractions.

Maybe, this year, I just won't worry about bullets. Perhaps I will just send a few sacks of corn to the deer pasture and stay home.

Last week the shoe went on the other foot. I was interviewed by a newspaper reporter. The folks at the Abilene paper did a good job of quoting just what I said, although they didn't use all I told them.

It is interesting, however, to learn that no one has lodged any opposition to the end of a railroad to Winters.

As much interest as was generated with the purchase of the Rock Hotel as a part of our history, there has been very little attention to the end of a railroad here.

The Rock Hotel was built and was opened to coincide with the coming of the railroad, and folks donated thousands to preserve the building.

There probably will be another change in the maps in the future—there will be no railroad coming to Winters unless we get something started now.

Two injured Friday

Two Lawn women were injured, two vehicles were damaged and the Winters City Hall-Fire Department building damaged in a Friday afternoon crash.

The vehicle which struck the building was first involved in a minor accident with another auto. The car then smashed into the city building.

The occupants of this car were taken by North Runnels Emergency Service to the Winters hospital for treatment of injuries received in the crash.

Ballinger Hospital future to be decided by voters

Ballinger Memorial Hospital is gravely ill, the diagnosis indicates critical financial difficulties. The prognosis gives the hospital a 50-50 chance for surviving.

Voters in Ballinger, and Southern Runnels County, will go to the polls on Saturday, August 6, to decide the future of the hospital.

A favorable vote for the hospital would mean the establishing of a hospital district, a taxing entity with the power and authority to levy and collect ad-valorem property taxes.

An unfavorable vote would almost certainly mean the demise of Ballinger Memorial Hospital.

Absentee voter turnout for the election can only be considered good, with a comparatively large number of absentee votes being cast for the election.

The future of the hospital rests with the voters in as much as a negative vote for the hospital district would not allow the hospital to levy taxes, it would be restricted to income from the services rendered.

With an estimated 60 percent of the patients served by the hospital covered by Medicare or Medicaide, the hospital is limited by the government to collecting approximately 80 percent of 80 percent of the total charges.

The hospital is deeply in debt and has remained open so far due to successful drive to generate donations to help the medical facility to meet payroll and its 30-day accounts payable.

Residents in Ballinger, Rowena, and most of the rest of southern portions of the county are dependant on the hospital for medical care.

In Miles, the residents there are not in favor of paying taxes to support a hospital in Ballinger, and understandably so.

The Miles area is closer to the major medical facilities in San Angelo than to Ballinger and, in many cases, serious injuries and illnesses are sent on to San Angelo from the Ballinger hospital now.

Another way the Miles residents are looking at the proposition is mandated by Medicare rules and common sense. Medicare will pay for ambulance transporation to the "nearest appropriate medical facility," and that makes good sense—and San Angelo is nearest with more appropriate medical facilities.

For Ballinger, if the issue does not pass, North Runnels Hospital in Winters will the nearest medical facility.

There are some tax considerations for that alternative, too.

In the past weeks there have been many contacts made regarding the election. There have been forums, and there have been questions asked and most of them answered.

The ultimate question, however, will be asked of the voters August 6. There are only two possible answers. One would mean an additional tax burden for the tax payers, the other could very likely sound the death knell for Ballinger Memorial Hospital.

Two injured in spectacular crash

Two Lawn residents were seriously injured Friday afternoon in a multi-vehicle traffic accident in the 300 block of South Main in Winters.

Exie Hefley Haynes, 85, was the driver of a 1987 Chevrolet that was involved in a minor accident with a vehicle driven by Witt Richard Spikes of Novice.

After the vehicle driven by the woman was struck by the Spikes car, her car swerved out of control and crashed into the Winters City Hall-Fire Department building at 310 S. Main.

Mrs. Haynes and her sister, Lessie Cannon, 90, also of Lawn were seriously injured when their car crashed into the building.

Both women were taken to North Runnels Hospital by ambulance for treatment of multiple lacerations and fractures.

Lessie Cannon was later transferred, by ambulance, to Hendrick Medical Center for treatment of a hip fracture and other injuries. Exie Haynes was admitted to North Runnels Hospital suffering from chest fractures and severe lacerations.

Lessie Cannon was said to be in stable condition in the Abilene Hospital Monday and Exie Haynes was in good condition at the Winters Hospital.

Winters Police Chief Tim Dexter said that a second accident occurred minutes after the major crash when two drivers were paying more attention to the accident scene than to their driving.

City officials said that one door to the fire department was destroyed in the crash and that none of the fire department vehicles were damaged.

Chief Dexter said that a citation was issued for failure to yield right of way at a stop intersection in connection with the accident.

Winters Area All-Stars lose to Dixie, 13-5

Sometime between a jittery pre-game warm-up and the start of Monday night's District 5 Little League baseball tournament game against the Winters Area All-Stars, the Dixie All-Stars calmed down enough to hand Winters a 13-5 loss.

"I think the guys really calmed down before the game started," Dixie head coach Steve Brittain said. "Being nervous before a game is natural for us."

Dixie was scheduled to play Tuesday night, but Snyder and Baird—the two team's playing Monday night's second game—had one loss apiece, forcing a rescheduling of the bracket.

Thus, Dixie will not know who its next opponent will be or when they will play until Tuesday morning.

But perhaps the most unusual aspect about the game at Joe Knight-Boyce Strong Field in Breckenridge was the hitting show put on by both teams.

Nine pitches from the Dixie and Winters pitchers were taken deep for home runs.

Fortunately for Dixie, they had the better end of the sitck, knocking five dingers.

After Dixie had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning on a Keith Brittain three-run home run, Winters struck back.

On the first pitch from Dixie pitcher David Anderson, Jay Parker homered to left field. On the third offering from Anderson, Dean Burns deposited Anderson's pitch over the centerfield fence.

Three pitches from Anderson had resulted in two Winters home runs. That would become the pattern for Winters for most of the game.

However, Anderson would keep most of the Winters hitters off balance all night with a variety of different pitches.

"Their pitcher threw a lot of what I call junk pitches," Burns said. "He threw some slow curves and stuff like that and we haven't seen any of that all year."

In the second inning, again with no runners on base, Brian Hall took another Anderson pitch deep over the left field fence, cutting Dixie's lead in half, 6-3.

Dixie then put the game out of reach in the fourth inning. Home runs by Jordan McDonald, Mike Plemons, and two-run shot by Paulo Gonzales salted the game away for Dixie.

Winters scored again another solo home run, this time by Scott Millican.

Brittain then hit his second home run of the night in the sixth inning after Winters Brian Hall scored on an Anderson wild pitch.

F. M. Cross

The Hard Life of a Pioneer

In 1861, the first year of the Civil War, F. M. Cross joined as a State Ranger. James Norris of Waco was Colonel of that regiment. The men were mustered in for one year as State soldiers, and stationed on Pecan Bayou in Coleman County, where they spent the summer.

When winter came on they were moved in to Camp Colorado Post which had been vacated by the soldiers. When the year for which the enlisted expired, Colonel Norris and some of the men went home.

Just at that time Colonel McCord of San Marcos came to Colorado Post. And all the men that wanted to go in as Confederate soldiers he enlisted in his regiment. Knowing that was intended for frontier protection, Cross joined the regiment. The Captain was J. J. Collin. He and Colonel McCord were two among the many men that Cross learned to love during the war between the states.

A short while before the war closed, McCord got orders to go to Kirby Smith, across the river, and having a surplus of men in his regiment he had O'Bryant's Company to come from Camp San Saba up to Colorado Post. There the surplus of Collins and O'Bryant's Companies were combined and formed a Battalion for frontier protection. The officers elected were Captain Fosett, whose Company stayed at Colorado Post, and Captain Cook, who was elected for the other Company.

"This is what separated me from my old friends in McCord's regiment. I was elected 2nd Lieutenant in Captain Cook's Company, and we were sent to Camp San Saba, and here I was appointed Quarter Master for our battalion, which office I held until the close of the war. This gave me an opportunity to go down into the settlements occasionally to get supplies for the Companies. I had to go to Bell, Williamson, Burnett, and Coryell Counties for these supplies, and it kept me busy all the time.

"While they were there, I went down to get the pack mules, wagons and tools that could be used at the front. Having time to spare, I went around to the Colonel's tent to talk with him awhile. It was a warm summer day and we were sitting in front of the tent. A young man came by who bought food for the soldiers and asked me to take a walk with him. He led me about 80 yards west to a gulch and thicket some 200 yards long and 40 yards wide. I didn't want to go into that thicket because I was afraid there were some boys in there playing cards and I knew that any commissioned officer who sees the soldiers playing cards and does not report them would be court martialed. He pushed me on into the thicket and pointed to two big fat goats, and said, "come around to mess tonight and eat goat meat." He had gone out on the prairie and roped those goats.

"When the regiment got together I took all the mules, wagons, and such things as they could not carry and with my men pulled back to Camp San Saba.

"At the close of the war I was at Colorado Post. Having lost my wife during the war. I got a job cow-punching with John Mullin on his ranch on the Jim Ned Creek near where the town of Thrifty is located.

"At this place I married my second wife, and went to Comanche County living there one winter. The next spring, we moved down to Navarro County where we spent four years in the little farming community of Spring Hill where there were two stores. The addition to the town while I lived there were a dry goods store and a drug store.

"The first year I lived at Spring Hill I freighted from there to Mulligan and Bryan stations, hauling cotton down and goods back to Spring Hill and Dresden, also to Corsicana, afterwards I farmed for two years, renting land. I made good corn and cotton each year, but there was so much sickness during the summer season and goods were so high, also the doctor bills, that I was only able to barely make a living in that county. The best money I made while living there was during the last year of my stay.

"A company of men secured a charter to build a toll bridge on Richland Creek. Thaw Sparks was the general manager. He contracted with a rock mason to build the abutments of the bridge for the sum of eleven hundred dollars. The mason was to quarry and haul the rock, lime and sand, and everything else was to be furnished. This rock mason was an old man, but very stout, whose name was Slade. He had two horses and a hand, and he hired me at $1.75 a day to help him quarry and haul the rock to build the abutments.

"The banks on each side of the creek had to be excavated, and this work was let out to the lowest bidder. My bid of $50.00 was the lowest and it was awarded to me. I secured two men at one dollar a day each, and gave Slade $1.75 per day to help me, just what he gave me while I was working for him on the rock job. We completed that excavation in two days and my expenses all told were $7.50, leaving me a net profit of $42.50 for my two days work.

"The lime used in those abutments cost considerable money, and as I had made good on my dirt contract, I made a bid on furnishing the lime for the two abutments at $80.00 and got the contract. Sparks was a good friend and he said, "Cross, you can't furnish the lime at that price, for it will cost you $80.00 at Galveston," and advised me to withdraw the bid.

"I told him I would furnish the lime and would get it in 300 yards of Brig's place, and have it ready in five days. I was the only man in the county that had seen a lime Kiln burned on top of the ground. I learned to burn lime in Bell County when I was a boy. I hired ten negro men, four of them with wagons, and six with chop axes, and Mr. Slade and myself. We put up the wood, hauled the rocks and placed them on the wood in one day. We fired the Kiln that night and in four days it was burned down, and I had plenty of good lime to sell to the neighbors. My expenses for that day's work were $13.50, which left me a net of $66.50."

Selma Dietz completes course

Selma Dietz of Route 2, Talpa, Texas has just successfully completed the Writing to Sell Non-Fiction Course with Writer's Digest School, a national correspondence school for freelance writers. The School, a division of Writer's Digest, the leading national magazine for freelance writers, has been offering courses in writing through home study since 1930. Each student works, on a one-to-one basis, with one of the forty published professional writers who make up the School's faculty.

Courses offered by the School cover both fiction and nonfiction, and are designed to provide the guidance required to write for publication in national magazines and other types of periodicals. Home study workshops are also availabe for advanced writers who would like to polish their writing skills and style, with the assistance of a professional writer, in their specific areas of interest.

Better Breathing Club sets meeting

The Abilene Better Breathing Club will meet at 6:30 p.m., August 2, at the Rose Park Senior Citizen's Building.

Kathyrn Farrier, a dietician with Hendrick Medical Center, will present a program entitled "Eat to Breathe."

The Better Breathing Club is offered free-of-charge by the American Lung Association of Texas as a service of Christmas Seals® .

Monthly meetings of the Better Breathing Club help persons with lung disease understand their condition, develop self-care skills for easier breathing, and this increase their self-reliance and self-confidence. Meetings provide mutual support among people with lung disease.

Each meeting offers a presentation by a physician or health professional with time allotted for questions and discussion. Social time for informal visits, entertainment or refreshments is also provided. All persons with respiratory, problems, their friends and family members are encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact Mary Gemberling, 670-2000, or ALAT at 1-800-252-LUNG.

Lubbock teen drowns at Oak Creek Lake

A lubbock teen-ager visiting in Blackwell to sing at the Blackwell Baptist Church drowned Wednesday, evening, July 20, in Oak Creek Lake. John Lee Blackwell, 17, was on a trip to Blackwell with members of a Lubbock Baptist Church when the drowning occurred, Justice of the Peace Frances Kemp said.

After the Blackwell Church provided the group with dinner, they were dispersed to members' homes to spend the night.

Three of the teens—including Blackwell—were to spend the night with church members who lived on Oak Creek Lake, Kemp said.

Shortly after the boys arrived, they went swimming and Blackwell "got the cramps." The other boys tried to save him but failed, she said.

The boy's body was found at 8:10 p.m. in 10 feet of water.

VA Questions and Answers

Q. My father, a veteran of the armed forces, was buried in a private cemetery and his headstone was furnished, at no cost, by the Veterans Administration. I visited his grave recently and noticed that the stone was cracked. Will the VA fix the headstone?

A. The VA will replace a previously furnished government headstone at government expense if it is cracked, broken, destroyed or otherwise illegible. Requests for replacement of a headstone should be made in writing by a family member or other responsible person. The request should state the condition of the headstone and be sent to: Director, Monument Service (42), Veterans Administration, Washington, D.C. 20420.

Aging's not a disease

Picture yourself at age 75. Are you stooped over, shuffling along or rocking the hours away? Old age doesn't have to be like that.

Aging doesn't have to mean an end to the active life. Aging's not a disease.

Dr. Kim Korr, 78-year-old faculty member of Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine in Fort Worth, reminds you that your body always tries to meet your expectations of it—good or bad. You expect to stoop and shuffle as you get older, you'll stoop and shuffle. Expect to play tennis at 75 and you can.

Dr. Korr's advice is to be active and expect more of your body. The good news is that it's never too late to change your habits. Stretch your muscles every morning when you get up—or even before you get out of bed. Stretch during the day and before you go to bed. Take walks—for the fresh air, the exercise and the fun of it. Breathe deeper. Eat better. It will add dividends—if not years—to your life.

Plan now to live to a ripe, active old age.

Might not be a cold

If you have a cold that just won't go away, your problem might not be a cold at all. You could be allergic to something around you—particularly this time of the year with trees and flowers blooming and spring winds blowing.

The symptoms can make you miserable—runny nose, watery eyes, sneezing, coughing, an itch in your throat or eyes. If you have these symptoms and think they could be allergy related, Dr. George Juetersonke, environmental medicine specialist at Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, suggests a couple of things.

First, and most obvious, is to avoid the offending allergen. If you can't do that, see a doctor. The doctor may have you try one of the new salt-water nose sprays or prescribe some of the newer medications available for allergy symptoms.

If you're still suffering, your doctor, may then recommend allergy shots.

Don't sneeze through the entire spring and summer—there's help available.

"Reminder" Hopewell Baptist Church will hold their Revival staring Wednesday, July 27 through Sunday, August 3 at 7:30 p.m. each night. Wednesday night there will be ice cream, cake and sandwiches afterwards and on Sunday noon dinner. Dr. James Shields will be the speaker, James Crosthwait, song leader and Carolyn Kelly in charge of music, all of Abilene. Everyone is welcome.

The Faubion reunion was a big success, with 56 present from Oklahoma, Arizona and Texas. The three days and two nights were spent having an Auction Sale, Talent Show, and lots of games down at Briarwood, Texas.

Chester McBeth was awakened at 2 a.m. last week by rain, thunder and lightening. Seeing a light in his utility room, he noticed lightening had hit his cloths dryer, over to the gas pipes, to the hot water heater, where it had caught on fire. Seeing he couldn't put it out, he goes out and cuts the butane off. It was very scary, but he was lucky he was at home. He got 1 2/10 inches of rain that morning.

Pat and Earl Cooper spent Saturday with Ray, Sherry and Amanda Cooper in Abilene.

Elevera Minzenmayer, Winters, was out to see Marie Kurtz and former pastor, A. W. Wolher and wife Ester Wolher of Ohio called. He was pastor at St. John's Lutheran Church in Winters 1986-1987. Minnie Bredemeyer came Sunday afternoon.

Ruth Pape spent the weekend with her daughter, Elaine Kennedy, in Springs, Texas. Over the weekend they attended her school reunion Class of '68 in Brolin, Texas.

I'm no different from anyone else, I also had a birthday Wednesday. The kids came and brought supper and had freezer ice cream and cake later. Enjoying card games were Mary, R. C. Randall, Janice, Carrie and Darrell Kurtz.

Bob Hill returned to his Boston Mass. home Friday after spending several days here with his folks, Claudia and Robert Hill, he also visited in South Texas. Gary, Ronald, Mike and Von also came during the week.

Bro. Oscar and Janie Fanning, Abilene, Louise Osborne, Viola Foster, Karen, John, Stefanie and Wesley McGallian spent Sunday and had dinner with Nila and Therin Osborne.

Coleman Foreman is in the Ballinger Hopsital at this time running test, he has a kidney stone complication. Bro. Oscar and Therin went to see him Sunday afternoon. Lawan Foreman has been in to see him too.

Nila and Therin Osborne and I attended the R.E.A. 50th Anniversary meeting in Coleman Friday night. We went by to see Amber Fuller awhile, she had her second eye surgery on Thursday and is doing fine. Also went by to see Alta Hale, who was asleep, so we visited Ann Fuller, who was staying with Alta.

Jimmy Chapman, San Angelo, is doing OK after breaking two bones in his left arm from a fall.

Bro. Oscar and Janie came and picked peas in Selma and Hazel Dietz pea patch Wednesday.

Selma Dietz went in to Ballinger to see Mrs. Effie Dietz and Coleman Foreman in the hospital. Corra Petrie also visited Mrs. Effie.

Rodney and Bernie Faubion spent Monday night with Betty and Hudon White in San Angelo.

Spending all day and having dinner Sunday with Hazel Mae and Russell Bragg were, Cheryl and Chad Moss, Midland; Mindy Turner and baby, Brooke, Odessa; Dr. and Mrs. Larry Bragg, Ashley, Kelli and Amy, San Angelo; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bragg and Joy, Glen Cove. Brooke is Hazel Maes first great-grandbaby.

Claudette and Amantina Faubion, Winters, spent several days with Harvey Mae. Claudette and Jim Maring spent Sunday.

Hazel Mae came up to Corras and brought vegetables from out of her garden, which was really appreciated.

Mrs. Gaston Ernst, San Antonio, came Friday to be with her mother, Mrs. Effie Dietz, in the Ballinger hospital.

Doris and Marion Wood appreciated the children doing odd jobs and having a clean-up day around the place. Those helping were, the Larry Calcote family, the Maloy Bryant family, Jeff, Darla and Steven Camron. Coming Thursday and Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ambrose of Ft. Worth.

Adeline Grissom, Wanda and Kris Sims ate supper with the Von Byrd family in Abilene Sunday evening.

Coleman Foreman is now back home recuperating, he came home Monday.

RRC issues nine pipeline permits in June

Railroad Commission Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent has announced that nine permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in June. In May, the Commission approved 15 permits.

Five of the new permits were for gathering pipelines, one was for a trunk transmission line, two were for distribution lines, and one was for a gas plant line. Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while trunk lines are larger diameter lines into which smaller lines connect. At gas plants, natural gas is stripped of the liquid hydrocarbons usually present in gas as it is produced from a well.

In June, one operating permit each was approved for a pipeline in the San Antonio area (District 1), the Refugio area (District 2), Southeast Texas (District 3), deep South Texas (District 4), East Texas (District 6), and in the Midland area (District 8), and three in the Panhandle (District 10).

Gathering lines permits approved: Rego Development Company,Inc., Corpus Christi, gas, Live Oak County; Plains Resources, Inc., Houston, gas, Chambers County; Standard Oil Production Company, Oklahoma City, Okla., gas, Wheeler County; Samedan Oil Corp., Houston, gas, Cass County; and A&B Pipeline Company, Inc., Houston, gas, Bexar and Atascosa counties.

Trunk transmission lines approved: Danex Pipeline Company, San Antonio, gas, San Patricio County.

Distribution lines approved: West Texas Gas, Inc., Midland, gas, 2 lines--one each in Parmer and Deaf Smith counties.

Gas plant lines approved: Feagan Gathering Company, Midland, gas, Winkler County.

Try native plants

A drought can be tough on gardeners and homeowners because it can ravage those prize landscape plants and turn an otherwise lush area into a desert scene.

One way to combat this year's drought as well as to prepare for others that are sure to follow is to plant drought tolerant native plants.

"Plants accustomed to growing in dry conditions with little care can really be a 'lifsaver' during a year such as the one we are currently experiencing," said Doug Welsh, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Not only do these plants fit in well in the landscape but they take the pressure off watering. And in severe situations when water rationing is imposed, these plants will not be lost."

Such plants as lantana, sand verbena and cenizo (Texas sage) fit in well in a home or business landscape without a lot of fuss and bother, Welsh said. Many native plants are as showy as the more popular exotic plants, flowering throughout much of the year, even in the hot summer. These plants will withstand extreme conditions such as the current drought and, even during more normal years, will not demand the attention that other plants do.

"A low-maintenance landscape can look good without a lot of care," said Welsh. "That's its forte. Now is a good time to consider such a landscape and county Extension agents in several counties have demonstration sites established for public viewing."

VA Questions and Answers

Q. I have questions about my recent Agent Orange examination. Whom should I talk to about my concerns?

A. If you have any questions about your Agent Orange examination, contact the environmental physician at the VA medical center where you had the examination.

Q. Can a veteran get a VA-guaranteed loan to purchase a condominium unit?

A. Yes, provided the unit is located in a condominium complex approved by the Veterans Administration.

Bill Miller takes part in Liberty Exchange Program

Bill Miller

Bill Miller of Cleburne, Texas, is one of 10 United States youth chosen to take part in the Liberty Exchange program. The program includes the 10 youth from the United States and 10 from France. The selection process is very competitive, and Miller was selected on the basis of his outstanding contribution to YMCA Youth and Government, participation in student government, and scholastic achievement.

Bill left on June 30 and will return to Cleburne on August 12. The places the youth will visit in the United States are Tennessee; Youth and Government National Affairs Conference in Blue Ridge, North Carolina; Williamsburg, Virginia; and Washington, D.C.

The U.S. youth will spend one month in France learning about their culture and government. Some of the highlights of the trip will include the Bastille Day Parade and Garden Party at the Elsyee Palace as guests of the French President, a tour of Notre-Dame, a visit with the Prime Minister, reception at the American Embassy, and a week's stay with a French family.

Miller is a May, 1988, honor graduate of Cleburne High School where he was very active in school activities, such as Beta Club, President of the National Honor Society, Vice-President of The Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Class Favorite four years, class officer three years, and student body officer his senior year. He was elected Texas Youth Governor of the YMCA Youth and Government Program and served his senior year. He received the Daughters of American Revolution Citizenship Award, the Aristotle Award for the senior with the highest history average for his high school career and a First United Methodist Scholarship. He was chosen to be included in Who's Who of CHS by the faculty. Miller has been selected to Who's Who in American High Schools and to The Society of Distinguished American High School Students two years each, and his junior year he was chosen to appear in the Academic All-American Directory. He attended Boys' State his junior year.

Bill will be entering The University of Texas at Austin in the fall where he will major in accounting. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Miller of Cleburne and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer of Winters.

From A Goldfish Bowl

By Pastor Steve Byrne

Meetings are an occupational hazard of the ministry. And as with a lot of other vocations, I would imagine. Most of the time I go to meetings where folks pretty much go over the same old stuff time and time again. The whole purpose of most meetings seems to be the preservation of the "status quo." You get home literally drained of all energy. Sometimes wondering why you even bother.

I just got back from a meeting. It was 5:30 p.m. Everybody had had a long work day. Everybody! We were tired to a person (not to a man since I was the only one of those there).

The meeting lasted for two hours. And I am excitied. Energized. Instead of parking in front of the TV to watch the Dodgers and Giants, I am engaging my favorite word processor on the computer.

Our national church body has just undergone a merger of three Lutheran Church bodies. Along with that has come the necessity to reorganize parts of our ministry. The ministry, of the Women at St. John's is going through such a metamorphosis of form and context.

This structural reorganization moves from a traditional form of president, v.p., etc. to a Women's Council of ten women committed to leading our women's ministry. And doing it all by consensus and by delegation of responsibility!

Tonight we came dragging in. Tired. Worn down. Ready to be somewhere else as soon as possible. Mary was just as tired as the rest of us. But she was given the task of being the enabler. Somehow she reached from deep within herself to call forth participation from a group of tired people.

And she got ideas. New ideas. New possibilities. Creativity. Our vision was expanded. We began to look at what could be and not how to keep the "status quo." I get energized by ideas and creativity. It will be a least three hours before I can get to sleep. Mary's work, conservatively, borders on being heroic tonight.

Ideas do envigorate. They create. Creativity comes from God.

I imagine God before the beginning of anything. Sitting around with not much to do. And suddenly he has an idea. "What would it be like to have a world out there? An earth?" and BOOM! It comes into existence.

"A little light would be nice." And if anybody had been around, they would have all been scurrying around trying to invent sunglasses.

Then another idea-HEAVENS! Then LAND! The SUN, MOON, and STARS! Each idea delighting and energizing God, Himself. Propelling him, each time, on to the next idea. And the next bit of creative genius.

Until finally he created humanity. And began to really get involved in the business of creative nurturing and revealing to this creation.

Ideas. Newness. Possibilities. Creavity. They energize our tired old bones. They give us hope. They make us want more. And they give us motivation to try to keep on creating.

Thanks, Mary. I needed that. Thanks, Ladies. You are a creative bunch. Thanks, Lord. I had almost forgotten what it felt like. Please keep me on the creative edge of life. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brewer

Angela McDaniel, Charles Brewer were married

Angela McDaniel and Charles Brewer were united in marriage at 8:00 p.m. on Friday, July 15 at the Southside Baptist Church in Winters.

The bride is the daughter of Archie and Susie Lancaster of Winters and the groom is the son of Richard and Shirley Brewer of Winters.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jim Lanning of Winters.

Music was provided by Lillian Cooper.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Archie Lancaster of Winters. The bride wore a white lace floor length gown with a fitted bodice and flared skirt with the back forming a train. The gown had long sleeves of lace and lace ruffles around the hem of the skirt. The veil was sheer with lace edging. The bride's bouquet was a fall of pink roses. Pink and white flowers decorated the alter.

Crissy Taylor, was Maid of Honor. Bridesmaids included Kim Baker, and Angie Gray.

The flower girl was Julie Lancaster sister of the bride.

The guest book was attended by Laura Bowden.

The bride's attendents wore dresses fashioned in pink taffeta.

Best man was Tommy Thermeyer. Groomsmen were Bobby Taylor and Jim Lanning. The groomsmen wore grey tuxedos with grey ties.

The fathers wore grey tuxedos with pink ties and the mothers wore street length dresses in shades of pink.

The rehersal dinner was hosted by Wanda and Charles Brewer.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the Southside Baptist Church after the wedding ceremony.

Card of Thanks

The Winters Area Little League is most appreciative to all those businesses and individuals who have contributed their time, money and services to make the program available to the boys and girls in our community. Thanks - player agents, purchasing agents and sign painters. Thanks - grounds keepers, score keepers and concession stand workers. Thanks - President Bill Cathey, team mothers and grandparents.

And especially Thanks to those named below who have so willingly contributed $175 of their hard earned money to be a Team Sponsor for the 1988 season. Without you, our kids would be playing with sticks and rocks instead of bats and balls. We Do appreciate your support.

1988 Team Sponsors: Bahlman Jewelers, Peoples National Bank, West Texas Utilities, Heidenheimer's, Springer Pharmacy, Mac Oil Field Company, Spill Brothers Furniture, Winters State Bank, Alderman-Cave Milling & Grain, Pizza Hut and Reedy Exxon.

And some more Thank You's! The boys Major League Little League Tournament was held by Winters this past week. Thanks to all who helped and participated..especially Jackie Tennison, Tommy Randolph, Chuck Cathey, Ronnie Poehls, Dan Slaughter, Gary Goff and Kerry Hall.

Card of Thanks

Words cannot express the gratitude I feel for all our friends. I appreciate all the visits, cards, flowers, prayers and rememberances while I was confined.

All the nurses, Soon and Dr. Lee were all so nice to me.

I guess each of us need to slow down occasionally so we can be reminded what wonderful friends and neighors we have.

Thank you for your love,

The Crop Connection

Richard Minzenmayer

General Situation

We need sunshine. Bollworm egglay continued into the first part of this week, but has dropped off considerably the past several days. Boll weevil egg punctures are increasing in many fields.

Scout Program

I have mentioned several times now about calling your scouts and letting them know when you spray a field. We are still having some problems with that, so from now on, if the scouts suspect a field has been treated within 48 hours they will not enter that field and that field will be picked up on the next scheduled check.

Grain Sorghum

Many area sorghum fields have been treated for headworms over the past two weeks. Some treatments were timely and many were a little late on their decision to treat. When you're not timely with the insecticide treatment, you lose much of the economic advantage. These treatments do not put grain back on the heads.

The conchuela stink bug can be found in many area sorghum fields now. Some fields are heavily infested with this insect.

These bugs feed primarily on seeds, but to a lesser extent on the stem and rachis branches. Stink bugs have piercing-sucking mouthparts which they insert into plant tissues for feeding; enzymes are released at feeding sites and the partially digested material is ingested. Feeding on seeds reduces grain weight, size, quality and germination.

Panicle-feeding bugs cause more damage to seeds, early during rain development, and less damage as grain develops to the hard dough stage.

Some suggested insecticides for controlling panicle-feeding bugs are: Sevin® XLR Plus and ethyl parathion. Some suggested insecticides for controlling headworms are Nudrin® , Lannate® and Sevin® XLR Plus.

Many producers are noticing leaf feeding damage on the preheaded sorghum. Corn earworm and fall armyworms often feed in the plant whorl. As leaves emerge from the whorl "shot hole" damage is evident. Although this damage may be dramatic, control of "worms" in the whorl stage seldom is economically justified.

You need to watch closely for sorghum midge in the blooming sorghum.

Cotton

We are beginning to find blooms in the May planted cotton now. All of the cotton looks good and is progressing rapidly with the good moisture conditions we have. Most fields have been treated at least once for overwintered boll weevils and/or bollowrms' and some fields as many as 4 applications have been made. These treated fields have a good crop set now and should be watched closely for bollworms and F1 generation boll weevil activity. Many of the untreated fields are still trying to set fruit. Folks, we need to set our crop now, not later. Anytime you have to push your crop later into the season, your risk increases.

It is best to set our crop early (the first crop) and get it out early. The later you go into the season the more you are apt to spend on insect control. You need to be scouting your cotton now for bollworms and/or overwintered boll weevils. The bollworm egglay has decreased for the time being, but could increase again anytime.

Cotton fleahopper numbers are increasing across the area. The blooming cotton should not have problems with fleahoppers unless the fruit load is inadequate. The late planted fields are still very susceptible to flea damage. Remember, the economic threshold is 15 to 25 fleahoppers per 100 terminals in combination with a 75% or less square set.

Cotton aphid populations are on the increase. If you use a pyrethroid it is adivsable to mix and organophosphate with it. Pyrethroids do not kill aphids; they actually cause aphid populations to explode. Some recommended insecticides include: Bidrin® , Cygon® ,Dimethoate® , Swat® or Orthene® .

Boll Weevil Basics

History: The boll weevil crossed the Rio Grande at Brownsville in 1892 and rapidly spread over the entire cotton belt. This insect occurs in all cotton-producing states except Arizona, Nevada and California. The first specimens described were reared from bolls; thus it was given the present common name.

Despription: Egg-white, ellipical, 1/30 inch in length, Grub-white, legless, ¼-inch long, Pupa white, resembles adult weevil, ¼-inch long, Adult-about ¼-inch long, grayish brown, long snout, front leg has two spurs inside of leg.

Life Cycle: Egg-laid inside square and hatch in 3-5 days, Grub (larva)-feeds for 7-14 days inside the square, Pupa-3-5 days inside the square, Adult-feeds for 2-4 days before laying eggs.

Average life cycle requires about 21 days. Females lay about 100 eggs during their life period of about 30 days.

Damage: Results from feeding and egg laying activity.

Feeding Punctures-Both male and female feed on pollen sacks within the square. Feeding punctures are generally made on the top half of the square. Small bolls may be fed on in late season.

Egg Laying Punctures-Are made by females on the lower half of square; egg punctures usually are sealed leaving a wart-like place on surface of the square. After a square is punctured, the square turns yellow and usually drops to the ground within two to three days. Small punctured bolls may also drop to the ground but the larger bolls may remain on the plant. Severely damaged bolls may fail to open or may open partially, with one or more locks ruined by the weevil.

Management and control of the boll weevil: No one method can be relied on to control the boll weevil completely. Effective boll weevil control needs to be based on several approaches.

—1. Natural control (such as climate)-Hot and dry conditions during the growing season aid in controlling the boll weevil. This occurs when a cotton square infested with a weevil larva dries out before the larva develops or the soil temperature heats the square to a higher temperature than the larva can tolerate.

—2. Cultural control (such as uniform delayed planting date)-Cotton is planted so that it will begin squaring several weeks after the peak emergence of the overwintered weevil has occured. Uniformity decreases the length of host plant availability and tends to decrease the number of weevil generations.

—3. Chemical control may be necessary when 2o-25% of the green ⅓ grown squares are punctured. Pick 100 ⅓-grown squares (¼" in diameter) that are fresh, green, and snap off the plant when picked. If 25% are punctured, it's decision time! If your cotton is "cutting out", check the smallest bolls that you feel you have moisture to mature. If 10-15% of those are punctured, it's decision time!

Decisions! Here are some factors for consideration when it's boll weevil decision time.

—1. Hot, dry weather can kill lots of boll weevil grubs in squares on the ground.

—2. Do you have 20-25% weevil punctured green squares or 10-15% punctured bolls as discussed above?

—3. Do you have the time and ability to scout your fields 2 times per week if you start spraying?

—4. Do you have the yield potential, moisture-wise and land-wise to at least pay you back for your insecticide treatments?

—5. If you have to begin treatments in mid-August, can you afford to treat the 5 to 6 times that may be needed to protect your crop?

Remember, if you do not have the time, money or yield potential to see weevil control through to the end of the season, do not begin control because development of bollworm outbreaks are likely.

RRC levies fines

The Railroad Commission assessed a total of $26,000 in well plugging penalties this week to eight oil gas operators for problems under Commission rules.

The penalties included $6,000 to Douglas Petroleum, Inc. of Corpus Christi for one inactive and unplugged well each on the Homer Dinn Lease, Duval County and the Garcia lease, Starr County; $4,000 to Rockwood Resources, Inc. of Dallas for a well on the Gadeke lease, Wharton County; $4,000 to Gulfco Production, Inc. of Houston for a well on the Whitaker lease, Falls County; $3,000 to the Antonio Oil Co. of Berkley, Calif. for three wells on the Ba-State lease, Pecos County; and $7,000 to A.J. Morris and Burk Morris, doing business as Calc-Arenitic of Archer City, for one well each on the Powell Story, Powell D, and Powell Allen leases, Archer County.

Three companies agreed to penalties without admitting any violation of Commission rules. Dome stripper Enterprises, Inc. of Pearland agreed to a $1,000 penalty for one well on the M.S. Floyd lease, Wharton County; Mid-America Oil and Gas, Inc. of Springfield, MO. agreed to a $500 penalty for a well on the J.C. Driggers lease, Nolan County; and Peregrine Petrolem of Houston, Inc. of Houston agreed to a $500 penalty for a well on the C.J. Copeland lease, Coleman County.

To date in 1988, the Commission has levied $572,000 in pollution and well plugging penalties. Last year, the Commission assessed some $794,000 in such penalties.

Ed Emmett Campaign makes Winters visit

Ed Emmet, the Republican nominee for a seat on the Railroad Commission of Texas, traveled to Winters last Thursday, during a campaign swing across the entire state in an effort to promote the national energy policy proposed by Vice-President George Bush.

"Texans have been wringing their hands long enough. It is time for us to get behind a candidate and a proposal that offers more than false hope. Clearly, George Bush is the one presidential candidate who fully understands the energy business. And, he has put together a proposed energy policy that will revitalize the oil and gas business because it is achievable," Emmett said. "As a member of the Railroad Commission I want to do more than just talk about how bad things are. That is why I am already working closely with the Bush campaign to develop the best energy policy possible at the national lever. My opponent merely curses the Yankees," Emmett added.

According to Emmett, a national energy policy means facing up to a looming challenge to our national security. "At a time in which we are beginning to rely more and more on conventional weapons for security of the free world, it makes no sense for us to rely on foreign nations to provide the fuel for those weapons. We must be able to be energy independent for substantial periods of time. That is the basis of a strong national energy policy," Emmett said.

The national energy policy being pushed by Emmett places a heavy emphasis on encouraging more production from existing oil and gas reserves and stimulating investment in the search for new reserves. It also calls for the United States to apply advanced technologies to the energy industry so that future generations will have more security options and a clean environment.

Emmett presented eight key provisions of the national energy policy.

—Repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax

—Increased use of natural ga and complete decontrol of natural gas prices.

—Specific tax incentives for independent oil and gas producers to encourage capital investment in energy exploration and development.

—Establish solid environmental guidelines so that production can proceed on the Outer Continental Shelf and in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

—Conservation and new technology utilization.

—Initiate clean coal technology so that domestic coal can help replace imported oil.

—Increased use of nuclear power.

—Increase the fill rate of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve with particular emphasis on stripper will production.

"In order for any energy policy to be willing and able to explain the complex provisions. I believe my education and background give me the ability to be a Railroad Commissioner for the 1980s and 1990s, not someone who is tied to outdated policies of the past," Emmett concluded. Emmett, who is a native Texan, has degrees from Rice University and the University of Texas, worked for an oil company prior to his election to the House of Representatives, and was chairman of the House Committee on Energy as a state representative.

If you want Ballinger to grow and improve the Chamber cannot do it without everyone's help, so dust off your back side and join in.

Although I'm not working at either Nursing Home in Ballinger, I appreciate getting to write again. I have many friends in the area, very young to very elderly, even though I don't get to visit everyone, in this way I stay in touch with you, each and everyone—hope you like my column. If you have news or just a comment, write or call and let me hear from you all.

See ya' Camilla

P.S. There is no "generation gap" between me and teenagers, I usually agree with most of your ideas! Let me hear your ideas and also your gripes.
