Director is hired for youth center, opening is tonight

City-County youth center opens tonight in its new location with Larry Caughron, a Texas Tech senior, as director. Caughron, who has been hired by the city-county board for the salary of $7,000 a month, is the husband of Patty Patrick, eighth grade arts teacher here and his home in Post while studying at the city in Lubbock.

The new youth director told the board that the youth center will be open to students, through the 12th grades, from 5:30 to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday. The regular five-day week center schedule also includes:

5:30 to 11 p. m.; 6:30 to 8 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.; Mondays and Tuesdays 5:30 to 10 p. m. The center will be closed Sundays and holidays.

Caughron said that young people who purchased youth membership cards when the center opened for three last summer and fall will be honored.

The center offers a variety of game choices and has ping pong and pool tables besides candy and Coke machines.

Youngsters were invited to a final arrangement of the youth center facilities at Teen Town after school Tuesday afternoon to get it ready for its opening.

The new youth director is a 1970 graduate of Loop High School where he played four years of football, two of basketball, two of track and two of tennis. He injured a knee and was advised not to play basketball his final two years in high school.

In football, Larry recalls, "I played everything but quarterback at one time or another." He was selected as the outstanding senior at Loop his final year and won the Lone Star Farming degree in FFA his junior year.

He went over a list of highway construction materials to show how much the cost had jumped in the past 12 months, led by asphalt with a 110 per cent boost.

"You're going to see a deterioration of the Texas highway road system," Smith predicted. "There is no way we can keep up our past maintenance schedules with our presently inflated dollar."

In response to a question, the highway engineer said he has heard of no move within the department to seek a gasoline tax increase to ease its financial situation.

Smith reviewed current highway projects within his engineering district and those now on the planning board, all of which have been announced previously in The Dispatch.

Commenting on the contemplated highway project all the way down Broadway through Post, Smith said that "we have a lot of investigation and survey work to complete before we

Highway department is hit by energy 'crunch'

The energy crisis and inflation have caught the highway department in a tight squeeze. Julian Smith, resident engineer for the highway department, told Post Rotarians in a talk at the club's luncheon meeting in City Hall auditorium Tuesday noon.

With gasoline prices up but gasoline volume down, the department's gasoline tax income has been considerably reduced while inflation has almost sent construction costs "out of sight", Smith pointed out.

The Dispatch is loaded with news this week — and, thankfully, ads too — so this is a good time to do a wee bit of bragging.

—O—
When almost every newspaper is boosting its subscription rates at every opportunity and hiking its ad rates almost as regularly, The Dispatch has been "plugging along" right through this fierce inflation without a boost in either.

—O—
We figure prices of a lot of things are going up simply because people seem to expect them too, so why not.

—O—
But we have concern for our readers and our advertisers and we don't like to hike those rates until "we simply have to." Thanks to climbing subscription lists since going off last spring, and thanks to several businesses in Post which have joined The Dispatch's family of advertisers, increased rates

Letter from Sutton sheriff is involved

Keith Davis, who resigned as chief of police last Thursday afternoon, was indicted by a 106th District Court grand jury here Tuesday morning on charges of forgery and passing in connection with an allegedly forged letter of recommendation from the sheriff of Sutton County which Davis presented to the city council when they hired him last December.

Following his indictment by the grand jury, Davis posted bond of $1,000 on the charges. The grand jury's indictment came on information presented it by District Attorney Joe Smith. No formal complaint against Davis was filed preceding presentation of the information to the grand jury, Smith told The Dispatch Tuesday.

The district attorney had presented the information on the alleged forgery to the city council at a special meeting of that body at 1:30 p. m. last Thursday. Smith was accompanied to the council meeting by County Attorney Preston Poole.

Since Mayor Giles C. McCrary and City Councilman Fred Myers were unable to attend the 1:30 meeting, the council met again at 4 o'clock and unanimously voted to accept the police chief's resignation, which, in the meantime, had been submitted to Pete Maddox, acting police commissioner, with a notation that a letter of resignation would follow.

Davis' letter of resignation, addressed to the city council, read as follows:

"It is with the deepest regret that I have to inform the City Council of my intentions to resign my position as chief of police for the City of Post. "I would certainly like to take this opportunity to thank the City Council and the acting police commissioner, Pete Maddox, for the fine cooperation that you did give me while serving as your chief.

"I have certainly enjoyed working in Post, and I only hope that the continued good work of the police department continues as time goes on. Had it not been for more important matters I would not have not

Freeze gets fruit trees

Six straight nights during which the temperature here fell below freezing "pretty well got all the fruit trees which have bloomed" County Agent Syd Connet told The Dispatch yesterday.

This is the second straight spring in which late freezes have killed most of the fruit on local trees.

Low temperatures from last Wednesday, March 20, through Monday night all were below freezing with the lowest being 25 recorded Saturday night.

The Post area still hasn't received an inch of moisture officially for 1974.

Some .37 of an inch of moisture was recorded last Wednesday, March 20, to bring total moisture for the year to date to .81 of an inch.

Only four absentee city votes cast

Only four absentee ballots had been cast up to noon Wednesday in the spring city elections.

Tuesday will be the final day of absentee voting before the election which will be held Saturday, April 6, to elect four city councilmen from a field of 11 candidates and indicate voter preference on a community-youth center and a downtown "face lifting" of Post.

The local store is the 33rd store in the Allsup chain in New Mexico and Texas. Headquarters for the Allsup operations are in Clovis.

Not only that but the store has been completely remodeled during the past few months while remaining open for business from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily.

Bob Pitcock, Allsup's area supervisor, told The Dispatch Tuesday that the store's new fixtures include an eight by 30-foot walk-in cooler, 16 feet of freezer storage, all new metal gondolas and metal shelving, including 100 feet of new wall shelving.

Not only that but the store has a new floor, new drop ceiling, and completely new lighting.

Police chief is indicted for forgery following resignation submitted this resignation." District Attorney Smith told the council at its first meeting Thursday afternoon that he had informed Davis that morning of the results of his office's investigation of the allegedly forged letter. Smith read to the council a letter from the Sutton County sheriff in which the latter stated he did not write or sign the letter of recommendation which had been submitted to the council by Davis.

Davis, who was being paid a salary of $700 a month as police chief, headed a five-man police department.

After accepting Davis' resignation, the council agreed to appoint City Patrolman Larry Payne as supervisor, along with Maddox, of the police department. The other members of the department are David Bradshaw, Don Franklin and Hal Heathington. All four remaining members of the police department were hired by Davis after he was employed as chief of police.

The district attorney told The Dispatch that since the alleged offense occurred before the new penal code went into effect Jan. 1 of this year, it was acted on as a felony by the grand jury, but that under the new penal code it can be reduced to a misdemeanor.

Soto indicted for murder of Antonio Valdez here Feb. 9

The Garza County District Court grand jury, recalled Tuesday morning to hear testimony of an autopsy report on the slain Antonio Valdez, returned a murder indictment against Victor Soto in the Feb. 9 bar killing here.

District Attorney Joe Smith of Seminole told The Dispatch he will ask District Judge George Hansard to dismiss attempted murder indictments against both Soto and Isable Perez in Valdez's slaying.

He said the Valdez family requested that an autopsy be performed to determine the cause of death after the original indictments were returned and that the body of Valdez recently was taken to Dallas for the autopsy.

The autopsy report, according to the district attorney, showed that Valdez died of a bullet wound with the bullet entering through his side, passing through his heart, and exiting sideways through his chest.

He said the autopsy report showed no knife wound on the body.

Both Soto and Perez had been indicted March 4 for attempted murder only in the death of Valdez because the victim had been buried without an autopsy being ordered by authorities to determine the exact cause of death.

The district attorney told The Dispatch that attempted murder indictments against both Soto and Perez in the connection with the wounding of Guadalupe Gonzales following Valdez's death will stand.

The court's written order is yet to be drawn and signed.

The Southland property owners contesting the legality of the bonds have the right to appeal Judge Hansard's decision to a higher court, but there has been no indication as yet whether any such appeal will be made.

Judge Hansard combined a suit by the Southland property owners seeking to invalidate the 1973 bond election with a suit by the school district seeking a final hearing from all concerned to determine the validity of the election.

A jury established the facts at issue in the case after a two-day hearing here March 8 and at that time Judge Hansard set March 24 to hear final legal arguments on the case. He received briefs from the attorneys on the law points last week and had his decision ready Tuesday when the attorneys said they saw no need to argue the points of law at issue.

Let's get on with it

There are two "straw votes" on the upcoming city spring election ballot by which voters can give the city council some guidance.

One is a complicated one on urban renewal, which The Dispatch will deal with in some detail in this editorial column next week.

The other asks the voters whether or not they favor a community youth center.

In contrast to the other straw vote, this one appears very simple and understandable. Do you want a facility that can be used both for a community center and a youth center — or don't you?

Over a decade ago when the West Texas Chamber of Commerce conducted a real blitz clinic here on community needs, the need for a community center won hands down and going away as the No. 1 need. In those days, Teen Town was operating every weekend for the youngsters and the need for a youth center was more or less being filled.

More recently, Post for a year or more had a community center between the bank and post office on a city-leased basis. For three months last year, Post and Garza County also had a youth center there, and quite a successful one financed with federal funds made available through revenue sharing.

The youth center moved back into a "re-roofed" and "re-windowed" and a "re-doored" Teen Town last week and began operations again on a five-day a week basis.

But this is only temporary quarters. The school trustees and school administration fixed up the building because they have their own use for it coming up in about two years.

While the youth center has found temporary shelter, the community center has no facility at all for its needs. The Chamber of Commerce banquet last month returned to a school gym and the banquet committee "made do" with what they had.

But it was a backward step, nonetheless, which was hard for us all to take.

Post still has a No. 1 need for a community youth center, as the two needs can quite readily be combined in one permanent building.

The "straw vote" proposition April 6 lists no details. It doesn't say what kind of a facility you want, or where you want it, or what it should cost, or how it should be paid for.

All these are questions still to be answered.

The only question being asked right now before details are worked out is whether the folks around town want a community youth center.

The Dispatch believes the need is well established and will be well supported at the polls April 6.

A new youth board has put in a great deal of time and effort in the last 12 months to show us what can be done right here in Post. We think they've proved their point. We think the time has come to support their efforts and show them what they have been doing for our youngsters is worthwhile.

This newspaper believes we've wasted a lot of years in Post just talking about a youth and a community center. Now that we've got a program started, let's keep it going. Let's vote YES and get on with it. — JC

State tax 'break' possible

In addition to some foot-dragging, the Constitutional Convention has been shooting over the heads of many of us in some of its discussions and many of its proposals. But it is talking a language all of us can understand when it gets down to basic tax structures.

Approval last week by the Constitutional Convention of what some delegates are calling "the most fundamental tax reforms in Texas history" could result in breaks for taxpayers and headaches for taxing authorities.

It's time the taxpayers got a few breaks. As for the headaches threatening the tax authorities, the rest of us can put up with them if the tax officials can. Most any job has its headaches, and while we know the tax authorities put up with their share, they can put up with a few more if it's for the public good. After all, with few exceptions, they won't be in office for the rest of their lives, and once they get out of office, they, too, probably will appreciate the tax breaks that, for a time made their jobs harder.

The provisions approved by the Constitutional Convention may never get the voters' approval, since even the new constitution itself may go down the drain in the general election, provided it is ready for a vote by that time. But, if approved, these proposed tax revisions will:

- Require all property in a county be valued by the same standard;
- Make it much easier for taxpayers to appeal valuations and assessments.

—Require that senior citizens be given a $3,000 property tax exemption.

The "most fundamental reform" tag is being applied mainly to the standardized valuation taxpayer appeal package.

The language approved reads "the legislature shall . . . provide for the establishment and enforcement of appraisal standards and procedures which shall be applied uniformly throughout the state. Each county shall provide for an appraisal of all taxable property within its boundaries. All taxing authorities . . . within the county shall tax in proportion to this appraisal . . ."

State Rep. Fred Agnich of Dallas, a member of the finance committee which wrote the provision, called it "the most fundamental tax reform in the history of the state."

The state has 3,300 taxing bodies and doubters in convention floor debate last week questioned if the most lax of all the state's taxing bodies could be expected to implement such a radical reform.

But backers of the reform contend that the required state guidelines provided for, and pressure from other taxing authorities who will have to use the new appraisal will be sufficient to insure adequate implementation. "The other authorities will force the counties to be equal," Agnich contends.

There's more, including lots more to be said on the subject, but anything promising breaks for taxpayers looks good to us. — CD

Beginning to look better

The "silver lining" in the oil shortage is beginning to emerge.

Reports are coming in from all parts of the country of plans to use different energy producing processes. Legislation is pouring into Congress to make it possible for American ingenuity to solve the fuel shortage problem right here at home.

For instance, the Atomic Energy Commission is planning to use nuclear underground blasts to recover natural gas and shale oil. The plans cover a five-year program and call for the expenditure of approximately $56 million on gas stimulation and $51 million on shale oil extraction. In the 1975 budget, $4.4 million is set aside for the beginning of the program.

In a recent talk, AEC Chairman Dixie Ray Lee outlined the steps necessary to enable this country to get all of its energy from domestic resources in the next decade. The chairman said they include:

1. Increasing the efficiency of the machines that use the energy and the conversion processes that produce the energy.

2. Increasing the production of domestic oil.

3. Increasing the use of coal.

4. Expanding atomic energy.

5. Fostering the use of heat from the center of the earth and from the sun.

To encourage the use of solar energy for heating and cooling, a bill has been introduced that would allow a tax reduction of not more than 30 per cent of the cost of the equipment for those who use solar power in their homes and offices.

At the same time, many of the present laws that have limited the search for fossil fuels are being reviewed with the intent of encouraging the fuel industry to expand its research facilities.

We are proud to see our country gather its strength to meet this fuel problem. We have overcome more difficult problems in the past and we can do it again.

IF PRESIDENT Nixon is going to remain stubborn on giving up any of his tapes to the judiciary committee on impeachment or to any of the other Washington groups, I wonder if I could make a swap with him.

As I've mentioned before in this column, I got a tape player for Christmas, but I'm still short of tapes for two reasons: (1) I am not financially able to stock up on them, and (2) I can't seem to find the ones I want.

THE TAPE PLAYER I got for Christmas is a dandy, but I get tired of hearing the same tapes over and over. My tape library to date consists of one tape each by Ray Price, Charlie Pride, Loretta Lynn, Hank Williams Jr. and Eddy Arnold, and a conglomerate tape of Country Music Hits of the 1940s.

I've been unsuccessful in finding tapes of two female vocalists I especially enjoy — Patti Page and Petula Clark. I doubt if the President has tapes by either of them in the 42 or so he insists on holding back, but he might have something else I'd like.

I FIRST GOT the idea of trading the President out of some of his tapes after reading about his visit to the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, where he made the remark that one thing this country needs more of is good old country music. He was also reported to have said something about the need of more good old corn whiskey, but I won't try to quote him on such a delicate subject, since I didn't hear just what it was he said about it.

I'd even trade one or more of my tapes for the one the President has with an 18-minute erasure on it. It probably wouldn't sound like much, but it would make an excellent collector's item.

THE MAN UP the street says one way to tell if you are being served horse meat is to watch out for six foot long drum sticks.

I don't have the time right now to count the listings in our new telephone directory to see how it compares in size with the old phone book, but the new one appears to have more names. One way I can tell is by checking my own telephone number, which was 13 listings down on the page in the old book and is 28 listings down in the new one. So, right there is a gain of 15 telephone numbers.

THE NEW PHONE book is the first one I can recall since moving to Post that has no listings under the letter Z. Last year's directory ended with Robert B. Zivec, and right above his name was that of Wanda Zachary. The new directory comes to a stop with Your Beauty Shoppe.

Charles R. Adams' telephone number led off the old phone book, but it has dropped down to No. 3 in the new directory, with Abel Abraham leading off, followed by Abel Abraham Jr.

THE NAME RACE in the new telephone directory is strictly a Smith and Williams affair, with no other name even coming close to them. For the second year in a row, the Williamses have the lead, with 21 listings, while the Smiths have dropped from 19 in the old phone book to 18 in the new one.

As they say in basketball, no other name even scored in double figures in the telephone books distributed last week by General Telephone Company of the Southwest. There are nine listings for Young, eight each for Jones, Davis and Morris; seven for Brown, six each for Mitchell, Martin and Warren, and five apiece for Johnson, Miller, Taylor, Stone, Baker and Nelson.

IN THE TAHOKA section of the new phone book, however, the Smiths have the Williamses beat, 14 to 9. In fact, Williams is in a tie for third place at Tahoka, Thomas ranking second to Smith with 11 listings. There are nine Millers and the same number of Roberts, while Edwards ranks high with eight listings. There are seven each for Parker, Taylor and White, and six apiece for Adams, Brown, Gandy, Harvick, Jolly and Jones.

TODAY'S FAMILY — ITS NEW ROLE

Rather than collapsing, today's family is simply changing its role. At the heart of a family's mission is the need of men and women to seek a wholeness in life by relating to each other.

Within our society, the family is the most accepted way to accomplish this total relatedness — through which each individual seeks personal fulfillment.

In a world of fleeting, casual, segmented and impersonal contacts, the family offers a rare opportunity for close, primary group relationships — where one can reveal feelings, doubts, fears, successes, hopes and triumphs. Within the family, one can expect to be accepted, understood and loved — even for a poor performance.

For the first time in the history of mankind, we have the capabilities of allowing the family to concentrate on people. Families now can emphasize quality in social interaction, encourage individual growth and enhance the ultimate contribution of each member to society.

But whether or not today's family can succeed in its new role depends on a strong marital bond between the husband and wife.

The marital bond can provide a total relationship. A strong bond supplies each mate with intellectual stimulation, emotional stability, sexual excitement and affectionate response.

However, today all this must be provided without kinship contacts or a continuous sense of community with others. Each marriage has a history of left-behind relatives, missed friends who are rapidly replaced, or communities we remember fondly, but rarely visit.

As a result, the married couple often represents the only continuity in a world of change. They look to each other for constancy, nurturance, companionship and romance — a large order for two humans.

Such a burden can be borne successfully only by mature people — secure in their individuality and capable of understanding, encouraging and inspiring the other.

Each year thousands of young people undertake these serious responsibilities. They enter marriage excited about each other and motivated to build a future. They're hopeful of a relationship filled with zest, pride and love. They expect their superior education and experience with the opposite sex will somehow make it possible to avoid boredom, conflict and apathy.

However, despite determination, education and experience, some few are successful. All too many couples begin sensing a vague dissatisfaction within the first five to seven years. Somewhere among their numerous payments, obligations and parties comes the nagging question, "Is this all there is to marriage?"

Some realize the lost relationship slowly — others in a burst of insight. Such people are just going through the motions of being a family — actually their marital bond that once involved a totality of personality has quietly melted into an empty form.

These couples may decide to stay together or divorce and try again. Either way, there's a good chance they'll succeed if each can learn new interpersonal goals and develop the necessary skills to attain them.

This means each person must recognize his own needs and goals and those of his partner as well. Then together the couple can build and achieve their total relationship.

Potluck by Rosemary Chapman

Everytime I see an article about Lubbock or the West Texas area in a national publication, my poor little heart leaps with joy. "Oh, boy!", I think. "Good publicity!" I don't know why I get excited because once I read the article it invariably turns out to be poor publicity.

The following item, for instance, appeared in the March 25 issue of "Sports Illustrated."

NEARER THY GOAL TO THREE

"Football recruiters in the Southwest, famed for their ingenuity, have found a bonanza in the energy crisis, all at the expense of Texas Tech."

"Even in an oil-rich state, Tech has the disadvantage of its location, which is at Lubbock, on remote, windswept plains hundreds of miles from any major city. Coaches from rival schools are telling parents of recruits that if their boys opt for Lubbock, the parents might never get to see them play. The tactic, Tech people report sadly, has already worked in a couple of cases."

One hates the idea of Tech losing good football players for a goofy reason like that, of course, but worse yet our whole area has once again been included in one of those "remote, windswept, disadvantaged" descriptions. Ugh. If the people at "Sports Illustrated" think we live in such a desolate area, I'd like to send their whole staff on location to Loco Hills, New Mexico. They'd come back soon enough vowing that West Texas was Paradise.

Since I probably can't arrange for that particular fantasy to come true, I have another suggestion. Some wise sage once proclaimed, "No news is good news," and at the moment, as far as West Texas and "Sports Illustrated" are concerned, I can't think of anything better!

Listening Post

By GEORGE L. MILLER

Just in case you somehow missed the news that I have lost weight, let me tell you — I have. It's taken more than a year, and that Weight Watching and denying myself those gooey hot fudge sundaes I miss so badly, has left me one pleasure. Besides a slimmer appearance — bragging.

Now I know full well the dangers of bragging. People can finally get their fill of it. But the rewards are too sweet to give up. When you meet someone whom you haven't seen for a good long while — when they express amazement at the "new" you — when they swear they never would have known you — believe me, it's worth it!

I mention this personal weakness because I've discovered it can happen in other ways too. I was working in the library for Pee Wee last Friday when a young woman came in to renew her library card and get reacquainted with the library. After gazing at the library for a moment, noticing the carpet, panelling, the spacious roominess — she gave me a puzzled look and said, "Is this next door to the old library?"

"No ma'm, this is the old library, remodeled and enlarged."

"I can't believe it!" "It's quite a change isn't it?" (Now when people tell me they can't believe I've lost all that weight, I assure them I have by giving them all the statistics — number of pounds lost, number of inches peeled from my waistline, new shirt collar size, etc. So I found myself doing the same with the library.)

"Yes, here's where the old library was. The front door was there, and this was the main room."

I conducted the tour, pointing out where walls have been removed, rooms rearranged, shelves switched — the whole, ingenious transformation. And I wound up by announcing, "We just had our open house a month ago. And it's all paid for."

That's when the payoff came. The look of admiration in the young woman's eyes spoke volumes.

"It's like a miracle!"

I heartily agreed with her. It was a long, hard task, completing the library. It took more time than we had planned. It took more money, more discouragement and more worry. We all had our moments, I'm sure when we just wanted to get it over with so we could forget the whole thing!

But when I saw the gratitude in that young woman's eyes, I was reminded again what it had all been for. Not just building to have a building, not constantly appealing for more money, just to have money. Not even to have a pretty colonial front with its impressive bay window.

It was for this reader, and countless others like her, who would be attracted to our collection and want to use our library. Her obvious approval of what we had done made it all worthwhile.

It was a beautiful moment, showing her what we had done. If you haven't seen it yet, come in soon, won't you? There's a lot of satisfaction to be found in bragging — especially when you've really got something to brag about!

Motor vehicle safety drive

SAN ANGELO — If you are wondering why you have been seeing General Telephone Company vehicles driving with their parking lights on during the day, this is why. As a result of the increasing number of motor vehicle accidents, a safety program is being introduced in hopes of making each employee more safety conscious.

Beginning March 1, each employee has been requested to turn on the parking lights when driving a company vehicle. The plan will continue throughout March and it is felt that by attaching appropriate significance to the importance of safety, motor vehicle accidents can and will be reduced.

Horsemanship clinic is to be held in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Horsemen of all ages and experience will get a rare opportunity to develop their skills in a horsemanship clinic in Lubbock March 29 and 30.

A three-man team of horse specialists, noted for their teaching skills and horsemanship abilities, will demonstrate everything from grooming and discipline to performance maneuvers and basic horsemanship.

The men are B. F. Yeates, Gary Potter, and Doug Householder, all Extension specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station.

The event gets underway in the Fair Park Coliseum at the Panhandle South Plains Fairgrounds at 4:30 p. m., Friday, March 29, and will continue through the evening until about 9:30. Convening again on Saturday at 9 a. m., the clinic will last most of the day, adjourning at 4:30.

Registration for adults (18 and over) is $7.50. For youths from ages 9 to 17, the fee is $4.50, and for children under 8 years, $2.75. These registration fees include a barbecue luncheon.

The event is open to people of all ages. People living in or outside a residential area who have horses will especially be interested in improving their horsemanship abilities, he adds.

Specific skills to be taught include grooming and discipline, basic western horsemanship such as control of feet, hands and legs and proper posture, performance maneuvers such as driving, stopping, turnout and leading, and skills in barrels, poles, reining and hunt seat.

The South Plains Development Program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring the clinic. The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce is co-sponsor.

As It Looks from Here . . .
By OMAR BULESON
17th District, Texas
WASHINGTON, D. C. — Through polls, surveys, estimates, and guesses, we are supposed to learn what everyone across the country is thinking and be able to find out how many cavities there are.
Polls and surveys serve a purpose but doubt they should be taken as absolute or final. Some polls are supposedly taken nationwide but some coming from cities in the North, East, West or South do not necessarily reflect the opinion of people in the 17th Congressional District of Texas.
One thing, however, seems very likely, according to questions put to a rather wide area. Americans have lost a lot of confidence in the legislative branch of the federal government and there is reason for it.
Part of the problem is traditional. William Redfield said in 1911, "Congress is probably a cross section of the people, showing us very much as we are and throwing faults and virtues into high relief." President James Polk said in 1846, "I begin, more than ever, to distrust the disinterestedness and honesty of all mankind. There is more selfishness and less principle among members of Congress, as well as others, than I had any conception of, before I became President of the U. S."
So, there has always been a considerable distrust of Congress but, of course, more at times than others, depending on the trend of things. One reason is that the legislative branch of the federal government is a cross section of America and because the individual Congressman is available to his constituents. It is somewhat natural that the buck stops with him in many cases of unhappiness of the people with anything. They are not and can not be in close relation to the President, to the Supreme Court, the military, or the great bureaucracy which is unidentifiable. It is understandable when people write to their Congressman and say either directly or indirectly, "What are you guys doing up there?" (Many of us who sit in the middle of it ask the same questions.)
Among other reasons why the Congress, according to the polls, now rates below the popularity of the President is the availability of the news media and the news interpretation of what is going on. Oftentimes little things are likely to make more news than something big. Anything sensational and out of the ordinary, whether of any great consequence, is likely to receive publicity beyond its importance.
Among the other reasons is that, during the last several years, Congress has attempted to be the "big daddy" to the whole country. It has overly promised and overly spent in effort to cure all the ills and yielding to all demands from Presidents who wanted to go down in history as another great emancipator of something.
Then there are all the special organizations which have access to means of communication, which grind their own ax for some special cause. Their interest is in one thing and when an action or vote is contrary to their lobbying effort, condemnation is pronounced to all who will read or listen.
About every organization rates the performance of members of Congress. One special group may give a 100 per cent to a member while another will give a zero.
There is no doubt that Congress deserves much of the criticism it gets and will deserve more if we do not get our house in order by controlling needless spending and balancing the budget. The pressures are—"do something — do something" and the one thing that is done most is spend money the treasury does not have.

DAVIDSON
David was the most popular of all Old Testament names given as first names in medieval England, and when the addition of surnames began, such names as Davis, Davies and Davidson, all meaning "son of David," became numerous. Also accounting for the popularity of David as a given name was the fact that David was the patron saint of Wales and the name of several Scottish kings.
The name David itself is from the Hebrew, meaning "the beloved one."
The form Davidson is found principally in Scotland, where it ranks as the 37th most common surname. The name is also numerous in the northern counties of England. In Scotland, the Clan Davidson was affiliated with the powerful Clan Chattan, but fell from prominence in 1396 when 29 of their leaders were killed in a combat with the MacPhersons.
Early Scottish records of the name Davidson in its present form include a Robert Davidson who was elected provost of Aberdeen in 1408 and was killed at the battle of Harlaw in 1411.
Davidsons have long been prominent in America. A monument to the memory of Gen. William Lee Davidson, a Revolutionary War hero, has been erected on the Guilford Court House battle-field, and his name is also perpetuated in Davidson College, N. C., and in counties in North Carolina and Tennessee. There are also towns named Davidson in Arkansas and Oklahoma.
Eminent Davidsons of later years have included Col. Royal Page Davidson, who designed the first armored automobile in 1898; James Ole Davidson, who, in 1906 in Wisconsin, became the first governor nominated and elected under the statewide primary election law, and Ann Davidson, the first woman to sail solo across the Atlantic Ocean, accomplishing the feat in 1952 in a 23-foot sailboat.

Seniors in Spotlight

By LEE ANN HODGES

Our first Senior in the Spotlight is Susan Solis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ascencion Solis. Susan was born July 9, 1956 and is 17 years old. She has five sisters and two brothers.

Susan has been active this year in FHA and HECE. The activities that Susan has been involved in during high school are HECE, FHA, Spanish Club and basketball.

Susan's favorite color is pink and her favorite foods are tacos and enchiladas. Her hobbies are sewing, cooking, working and just messing around and her favorite famous person is Telly Savalas.

Seniors are always looking forward to their senior year now that you're almost out and this has been your senior year — is it still as great as you thought? Are you still excited about getting out? Susan's reply was, "Now that this is my last year in Post High School I am excited about getting out of school. Being my senior year sure has made things more harder in school work but at the same time all my 12 years of school has been worth the time in going to school."

After graduation Susan plans to go to college.

Our next Senior in the Spotlight is James Wise, son of James V. Wise and Shirley J. Wise. James' birthday is Aug. 6, 1955, and he is 18 years old. James has one brother and two sisters.

The activities that he has been involved in during high school are FFA, football, baseball and wrestling. The activity that James has been involved in this year is FFA.

James' favorite color is blue and his favorite food is Mexican. His hobbies are swimming, baseball, football, working on cars, and building models and his favorite famous person is John Wayne.

Seniors are always looking forward to their senior year — now that you're almost out and this has been your senior year — is it still as great as you thought? Are you still excited about getting out? James replied yes to the first question, and yes he is very excited to the last question.

After graduation, James plans to go to Ryder Tech in Auto Diesel Mechanics.

SCIENCE FAIR HONORS — Post High School senior Joe Craig won a number of honors with his Hydrogen for Fuel exhibit at the South Plains Regional Science Fair in Lubbock Friday and Saturday. Joe's exhibit was chosen by the U. S. Navy as the best senior exhibit in the fair, and he received a brief case as a prize. He also received a $50 savings bond from the Texas Tech chemical engineering department, awards of excellence from the Army, Air Force and NASA, placed second in physical science exhibits and third place overall. — (Photo by Ed Neff.)

Senior student writes of her HECE duties

My name is Cindy Bird and I am a senior in Post High School. This is my first year in HECE. I am working at Dr. B. E. Young's dentist office.

I work one hour in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. My morning starts out by usually walking into the office with patients sitting, and waiting while the patient in front is being seen about. I assist each patient into the chair and make the patient as comfortable as I can. Then I see the instruments that Dr. Young will be using is placed in reach. I sterilize instruments and keep the cotton bowls filled, the needles filled, the alcohol bottle filled and all other items that Dr. Young might use.

Since Dr. Young is still kind of slow getting around from his accident, our three-man team has to work a little harder! Vada does all the laboratory work while I make appointments, post balances and answer the phone. Also I have learned to develop x-rays and make fillings. I assist Dr. Young in handing certain instruments to him, while he is filling the patient's teeth. If Vada had not had all the patience to teach me these things, I would never get through!

Through working at the dentist's office with professional people, I try to work in a professional manner. Besides helping the children learn the importance of taking regular dental check-ups and the care of their teeth, I have learned the importance myself. I have also learned the importance of managing money. Knowing exactly what you do with your money will be important the rest of my life.

I feel I have gained a real education by being in HECE, and really enjoy my work.

WELL BABY CLINIC

The Well Baby Clinic will be conducted this Thursday afternoon between 2 and 4 p. m. in the Garza County Community Action Committee, Inc., office at 804 Pine Street.

Cong. Burleson--

"In areas providing for the defense of our country, I have always supported those things to make and keep our nation stronger than any other in the world," he said.

"I have been discerning in separating those activities which the federal government was not designed to do, from those which are truly its responsibility," he continued. Burleson stated that activities of state and local governments, in accordance with the Constitution, should not be infringed and encroached upon by the federal government.

"The federal government does have specific missions," he said. He gave as examples the conservation of our natural resources, the defense of the country and its general welfare.

"At the same time," he said, "the federal government can not and should not try to take care of everything from Washington. The federal government has grown to colossal proportions and centralized power in Washington has increased," Burleson pointed out. "To this, I am opposed and my record is clear in this respect."

Burleson is among the senior members of the U. S. House of Representatives in point of service. He was elected to the 80th Congress from the 17th District and has been re-elected to each succeeding Congress. He is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, considered to be the most powerful and prestigious in the Congress.

Burleson is a former county attorney and county judge of Jones County. He was appointed an FBI agent, and served in a number of assignments over the U. S. He resigned from the FBI to join the Navy in World War II, and saw duty in both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Burleson ended his formal announcement by saying, "Although not having opposition in this year's election, it is my hope to visit my constituency as opportunity affords. The Congress being in session at this time and expected to be long after the primary election, there will be little time to leave duties in Washington. I expect, however, to get back home at short intervals to do the best I can in seeing my friends and to make new ones. I believe it is incumbent upon a Congressman to know people and that they know him, to have the best representation. This is fundamental in our system."

I Saw God Today

By George L. Miller

A young man came into my study and said, "I saw God today." Obviously excited, he refused a chair when I asked him to sit down. "Who could sit down now?" he asked, "It's all I can do to stay here in this room."

"Where did you see Him?" I asked. "Right here, in Post," he replied.

"Are you sure?" I asked, ashamed to be so skeptical.

"Of course I'm sure. What do you think I am, crazy?"

I made no reply to that.

"I saw Him as clear as I see you."

"What did He look like?"

The young man frowned and said "That's hard to say. He looked different each time I saw Him."

"Each time? You saw Him more than once?"

"Oh yes. I've been seeing Him everywhere. Sometimes He's smiling, other times He's sad. I saw Him crying just a little while ago. And once I even saw Him angry. I didn't look at Him very long then."

"I find this very hard to believe," I said, "Where could you see God looking all those things?"

The young man looked at me, a hard, searching look—as if he were looking for some important secret.

"You mean you don't see God too?"

"Of course not," I replied impatiently. "Nobody does."

He looked at my face a moment longer and said.

"I didn't know He could look that discouraged."

"Where?" I almost shouted at him.

"Where did you see God give up?"

"In your eyes" he replied simply—and left my room.

"Orderly treatment of all to an effective control effort," Dean said, "and when for any with the objectives of the program to continue treatments cooperation is lacking."

Officials of the program express regret that the area but are confident that by intensifying treatment of cotton

"And of course," Dean adds,
"should the level of producer

the decision to exclude that

Spellers and typists also scored points

The Dispatch was incorrect in reporting in last Thursday's issue that journalism students scored all of Southland High School's points in the University
Interscholastic League practice meet at Cooper.

Actually, the Southland school also had winners in spelling and typing, which are not a part of the journalism contests. Ray Simmons, superintendent of the Southland Schools, is the sponsor of the typing students.

The Southland contestants scored a total of 46 points in the practice meet.

Upton County, Texas, was named for John and William Upton, Confederate colonels.

POST VOTERS

I want the residents of Post to know my position on the issues BEFORE, not AFTER the election.

I am in favor of:

Immediate action on the Community-Youth center.

Complete and final resolution of the law enforcement problems.

Widespread community participation in figuring how our revenue sharing and sales tax money is spent.

Open door policy and widespread participation in city council meetings.

UNEXPIRED TERM ON THE CITY COUNCIL.

Coker cottons are money-making cottons.
The table here shows why.

These 1973-crop figures compare the "Mike", Grade and Staple of Coker cottons ginned at Canyon Gin with the official averages for all cottons ginned on the High Plains through January 25, 1974.

The price differential in favor of Coker's extra length makes a good case for planting
Coker's on your place this year. 99% of the Coker cotton stapled 1 1/32" to 1 3/32" or

Frenship and Floydada grab titles in Postex Jr. Relays

Floydada and Frenship won two team championships each in the four-division Postex Junior Relays held here last Friday. Floydada won the 7th grade and junior varsity divisions, while Frenship took the team titles in the 8th grade and 9th grade divisions.

The Post Antelope junior varsity gave the Whirlwind JV's a run for their money in the meet's top division, finishing with 122 points to Floydada's 131½, with the outcome in doubt until the final event of the day — the mile relay, in which the Whirlwinds finished second and the Antelopes fourth.

Post's Edward Price scored a total of 35 points for the Post JV, winning first places in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the broad jump and running the anchor leg on the winning 440-yard relay team.

Post finished third in the 9th grade division, in which they were bunched at the top with Frenship and Floydada. Frenship took team honors with 94 points to Floydada's 86 and Post's 84.

The Post 8th grade team finished fifth among the 10 teams in its division, scoring 50 points to 96 for Frenship, 73 for Floydada, 70 for Idalou and 56 for Roosevelt.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Bill Boskin
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. — Organized labor took a look at both major Democratic candidates for governor, found them friendly, and endorsed neither.

The AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education, at its convention here, declined to choose Governor Dolph Briscoe and Frances (Sissy) Farenthold.

To do so, said AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard, would risk a split in the ranks. Strengthening of the Democratic party in preparation for 1976 elections should be labor's "overriding concern," according to the formal COPE report.

COPE has declined to take a stand in the race for speaker of the House of Representatives, where two friendly candidates, Representative Carl Parker of Fort Arthur and Representative Fred Head of Troup, are among the top prospects. A later meeting was authorized to take another look at the race.

These statewide candidates did receive COPE endorsements:

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Atty. Gen. John Hill, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, State Treasurer Jesse James and Bob Bullock for Comptroller.

Of the group receiving labor's blessing, only Bullock has more than token opposition.

Looking toward their top goal of electing a Democratic president in 1976 and a veto-proof congress in 1974, COPE signaled strong participation by union members in party convention activities this spring.

ALL OUT OIL FLOW CONTINUED — At a meeting in Amarillo, the Railroad Commission ordered a 100 per cent oil production allowable for April — 25th straight month of maximum production.

Some top oil industry officials blamed the energy crisis on government tampering with the market through excessive regulation. They called for a free market system, and said the industry is capable of supplying more energy than any other nation at "attractive prices."

The April allowable totals 3.9 million barrels a day, an increase of 106,309 from March. Crude production a year ago was 3.5 million barrels daily. It has now declined to 3,445,000, and crude stocks are nearly 2.9 million barrels lower than in 1973 at the same time.

CONVENTION MAY RECESS — The slow-plodding Constitutional Convention is expected to take a prolonged recess about the end of the month or soon after April 1 at the latest.

Delegates are convinced there is no way to meet the 90-day completion schedule originally laid down by Convention President Price Daniel Jr. They will take off until after the primaries and check back in to try and finish up the job later.

TAX STUDY DONE IN — An intensive statewide school property tax value study requested by the governor, in effect, has fallen through.

The Legislative Property Tax Committee gave up hope for the study and voted to take up with two firms' proposals for studies in only 35 districts, due to money problems.

A committee staff member estimated cost of a statewide study at $8 million, and the LPTC has just $350,000 on hand.

AIMED AT EDUCATION — The 4-H program is designed to educate young people, says a 4-H and youth specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H. 4-H can help youth develop intelligent behavior by providing them information or knowledge, a positive self-concept and an awareness of their social setting. 4-H focuses on relevant knowledge and the development of a knowledge-getting process. The youth program also helps boys and girls learn the acceptable values, beliefs and goals of society.

JUST OVEN LEAK — A butane leak in the oven at Bill's Steak House about 10:30 p. m. Tuesday brought a fire department call from Mrs. Inez Capps, restaurant manager, who said she didn't know how to put out the fire. No damage was caused.

GALILEO'S SUNSPOTS — Galileo detected sunspots soon after he built his telescope in 1610, confounding critics who believed the sun was a globe of pure fire without blemish.

Two juveniles on probation

District Judge George Hansard placed a 15-year-old local girl and a 16-year-old local boy on probation here Tuesday afternoon following juvenile hearings in district court.

The girl was charged with placing over $200 worth of long distance phone calls by deception, and the boy with stealing almost $200 from an open safe at Gibson's Discount Center here Feb. 4.

Most but not all of the money taken in the theft was recovered.

What's more, the Dispatch advertiser is getting more for his money today than he ever has before, simply because more folks are reading The Dispatch now than they have in 15 years or more.

We know we aren't going to get most folks to buy annual subscriptions for Thursday mail delivery instead of getting their paper at the store until we boost the "copy price" to 15 cents, which has been the "going rate" for most West Texas weeklies for the last couple of years.

So we'll just keep them in the stores until you all wise up on how to save a little money.

David and Ruth Ann Newby have had their daughter and son-in-law, Meredith and Jim Carson of Denver, visiting them since Sunday, but the Carsons will be leaving today to start back toward Colorado.

Meredith is assistant editor and generally the "gal Friday" of The Mountain Gazette, a national monthly mountaineering magazine published in Denver, and she tells us the job is all kinds of fun. She was just getting ready to take it over when we were up there last Thanksgiving.

Her husband, Jim, is on spring break from school where he is studying to be an electrician.

He said the department hopes to be able to widen the street enough — to 64 feet — to provide a left turn lane down the center the length of Broadway.

He said the railroad overpass at the south edge of Post will be widened to 64 feet to provide four lanes of traffic.

"We hope through these changes to be able to move more traffic through Post quicker but at a safe speed," he said. "We face a lot of problems, we know that. We're going to have to do the best we can with them."

Smith refused to be drawn into the route controversy over proposed Interstate 27.

Vandals wreak havoc at Whitley home

Vandals broke into the home of Curtis Whitley at 716 West 12th sometime between Thursday and Sunday nights and did considerable damage, including slashing of the top of a pool table and breaking the remote control on the TV set.
