What of the Manager?—

Barry Blues, vice-chairman of the Community Chest drive, gave some pointed information and advice to Wichita Falls Monday in an address at the Kiwanis club. Mr. Blues let the figures talk for him, and according to those figures there are 30 or more towns from 40,000 to 47,000 in population that raise from $20000 to $30,000 more for welfare work than does Wichita Falls. Beaumont, with a population of 40,291, raised $180,261 in 1926. Waco, claiming neither Wichita Falls' population or wealth, is now engaged upon a campaign for $85,000. "We should do more constructive welfare work instead of the emergency work which in all that has been possible here in the past. Due to our low budget," Mr. Blues concluded.

Last year Wichita Falls failed to subscribe a budget of $59,000 and this year seeks a total of $65,000. To bring the best results, welfare work should be constructive, opportune and unceasing. It can be none of these if funds are so inadequate to meet the needs of a city as the ones here in 1928.

An automatic cotton picker is given a test on the H. H. Hayes farm near Electra, and is considered successful. An automatic cotton picker would do much to lighten the burden of the farmer, especially Northwest Texas farmers where large acreage is planted and the picking season often extends over a long period of time. The automatic picker, if it does all it is claimed, will accomplish little more than to lower production costs for the farmer. Just as long as huge crops such as that in 1926 are grown, the cost of production can never be lowered as fast as the price of the staple drops. The farmer would probably be better off if he cut his cotton acreage in half, even if he had to pick it with one hand tied behind him.

Dr. Sinclair Drake of the American Public Health association will strike a responsive chord here in his plea for a city health survey. "We come not to criticise, and bear down hard to offer help in building up the health department of your city," Dr. Drake told a Record News reporter. Too many "experts," whatever their profession, undertake municipal surveys with the preconceived notion of junking all existing systems for their own, and of proving how necessary is the work they are doing.

East Worth reports an epidemic of diphtheria cases, with more than 200 there the last week. Fourteen new cases were reported in Wichita Falls last week, and this 14 might easily grow into 200 if proper precautions are not taken. Medical science has perfected diphtheria toxin anti-toxin. It has wiped out diphtheria in many towns. This serum has been received and discussed at length by this newspaper and this writer in other articles. Diphtheria toxin anti-toxin immunizes the child against that dangerous disease. Ask any reputable physician.

City council members say they are willing to call an election on eliminating the sewer tax provided a sufficient number of voters demand the submission of the question. More than that, the council might even submit some charter changes, it is said. One thousand voters have signed the petition calling for the sewer tax election, so it seems we many have the election. Why not submit the city manager question at the same time?

It is now almost a year ago that the "father" of the Wichita Falls charter and moral advocate of the city manager plan, visited here and started the ball rolling toward the manager plan for Wichita Falls. There has been much discussion since, but no definite action since.

ATLANTIC ACE GETS HISTORIC PIONEER MEDAL

Hubbard Trophy Pinned To Flier's Breast While Rivals Cheer

RUTH ELDER THERE

Famous Air Birds Pay Honor to First In Paris Flight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh returned to Washington today to receive from the hands of President Coolidge the coveted Hubbard medal, and to be acclaimed by a historical gathering of other ocean flyers who made the past year memorable for aviation.

The Hubbard medal is an award of the National Geographic society for outstanding accomplishment in exploration. The award places young Lindbergh alongside such illustrious pioneers as Commander Robert E. Peary, Sir Ernest Shackleton, and Commander Richard E. Byrd, who were among the agents to receive the medal previously.

Distinguished Audience.

Those invited to hear President Coolidge present the medal, tonight in Washington auditorium and to hear Lindbergh speak of his epochal flight, included the most prominent members of Washington governmental and diplomatic circles. And privileged to sit with the president and Lindbergh on the stage were 17 of the intrepid American aviators, the one girl, who survived hops over the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and Lindbergh's mother, who came here with him from New York by airplane.

That the passage of time had not dulled Lindbergh's popularity in the capital to which he returned for his first triumphal welcome in this country, was attested throughout the day. Throngs cheered him from the time he landed. His appearance was marked everywhere by a spirit gathering of admirers, and when he walked to the White House, accompanied by fellow aviators, he did not succeed in avoiding attention by passing in the rear of the crowd awaiting him.

Lindy Meets Ruth.

The first meeting between Lindbergh and Ruth Elder took place as they waited for luncheon to be served at the White House. Lindbergh accompanied Mrs. Coolidge to the table, while the president accompanied Miss Elder.

Upon leaving the executive mansion, Lindbergh blushingly posed for photographers standing beside Miss Elder. When he had left, she said: "He's a peach." Lindbergh, guarded by police, dodged across the White House lawn to the war department for a talk with F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war.

Best Acosta Absent.

The only airman invited to the luncheon who could not attend was Bert Acosta, who was detained in New York state by engine trouble, while en route here by air.

Other veterans of trans-oceanic hops who were guests of the president included Commander Byrd, Bernt Balchen, George O. Noville, George Haldeman, Clarence Chamberlain, Charles A. Levine, Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, E. B. Brantz, A. C. Goebel, Paul Schluter, W. S. Brock and E. F. Schlee.

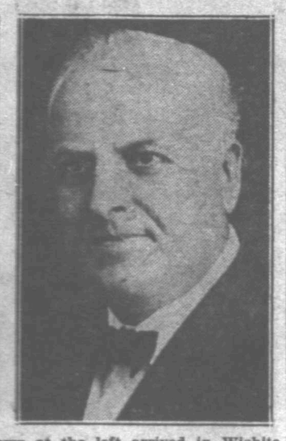

The White House luncheon took place after the aviators with the exception of Lindbergh, Byrd and one or two others, had been in conference at the department of commerce on ways and means of improving advance weather data for long flights.

Guests at Tea.

Late in the day the fliers were guests at tea of Assistant Secretary MacCracken of the commerce department. Previously Miss Elder had gone to Arlington cemetery and placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Pal of Slain Man Names Him As One Who Robbed and Attacked Women Here

Police Still in Doubt However as to True Identity of Suspected Bandit Killed in Gun Battle

Who is the man that lies dead at the Merkle mortuary, victim of bullets from the guns of officers who surprised him and a companion as they apparently were attempting to rob the Panhandle Filling station at Hayes street and the Seymour road shortly after midnight Sunday?

Is he the "Gray Mare," convict who made a picturesque escape from the Oklahoma state reformatory at Granite several years ago?

Is he the knob knocker who is wanted at Cleburne for several robberies in Johnson county?

Who Is The Man?

Is he the robber of man and the despoiler of women who has inaugurated a reign of terror for couples who have parked by the sides of roads leading into Wichita Falls in recent months?

Those questions were still unanswered Monday evening after a day of intensive investigations by city and county officers—at least, they were unanswered so far as uncontrovertible evidence was considered.

The dead man's companion, who carried after a gun battle with Homer Bentley and Ellis Summers, city motorcycle officers, failed to throw any light on the matter during the course of a severe grilling by E. E. Fruechte, assistant district attorney, and Sheriff W. G. Bralley.

Told of Attacks.

However, this man, who has been officially charged with burglary under the name of Raymond Hall, was quoted by Sheriff Bralley as having said that his

Cloudy and colder weather is in order for Tuesday, according to government weather predictions. The clouds will have all rolled away by Wednesday but the cold wave will still be in vogue, if the weatherman is right.

Norris, not being a member of the convention, "had no right to appear on the convention floor."

Airport Stockholders To Meet Wednesday Night

$8500 Subscribed Monday in Campaign; Leaders May Reach Goal in Canvass Tuesday

Approximately $8500 stock in the Wichita Falls Airport company had been subscribed at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, at the close of the first day's campaign to raise the $25,000 for which the company will be incorporated, according to J. W. Chatham, traffic director of the chamber of commerce.

About $6000 of this amount was subscribed at a luncheon of the chamber of commerce airport committee and interested citizens at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

Pleased with the results obtained Monday, members of the airport committee expressed the hope that the entire $25,000 will be subscribed by Wednesday night, when a stockholders' meeting will be held. At this meeting they will begin necessary preliminary work to the establishment of the airport here, provided the full amount has been subscribed. In the event that all stock has not been taken by January 1 all money already subscribed will be refunded, it was said.

Harrison Tells Need

The airport corporation committee, which is headed by Wilbur Cahoon, will meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the chamber of commerce and report on the success of the drive for subscriptions to date.

Mr. Cahoon presided at the meeting Monday, introducing Hubert Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce. Mr. Harrison pointed out the urgent need for an airport in this city.

The minimum tract of land which the department of commerce recognizes for an airport is 160 acres, Mr. Harrison said. They prefer 240 acres. As soon as the necessary stock is subscribed land for the airport here will be contracted for, it was said.

Plans for the organiazion of the airport corporation were outlined by Mr. Cahoon. The legal and technical phases were discussed by Joe Carrigan, local attorney, who drew up the stock subscription agreement.

Three $1000 Subscriptions

Subscriptions of $1000 each were made at the luncheon by W. B. Hamilton, Frank Keil and J. A. Kemp. Mr. Cahoon announced the subscription of Mr. Keil, who was not present.

Members of the airport corporation committee of the chamber of commerce are J. I. Staley, W. B. Hamilton, N. H. Martin, Frank Keil, J. J. Perkins, J. A. Kemp, C. W. Snider, J. T. Harrell, J. S. BOTTLED "SPIRIT"

Boys Find Note From Millikin Afloat In River

AUSTIN, Nov. 14. (AP)—The "spirit" of A. V. Millikin, executed as slayer, was "released" from a bottle Sunday afternoon, if a note found floating down the Colorado river by Prentice Lee Elder and Donald Hawk, Austin boys, gives the correct information.

A gallon vinegar bottle, fished out of the river by the two boys, contained this note:

"Huntsville, Texas, Nov. 5, 1927, 5. a. m. If you open this jug you have released the spirit of A. V. Milliken.

The name was misspelled as given above. The ink writing of the note damp from the bottle's stay in the water, was faded and smeared, but was entirely legible.

REMUS HELPS SELECT JURY

Half of Jury Selected In Murder Trial

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14. (AP)—George Remus, "bootleg king who deserted a promising legal career in Chicago to amass millions by violating the national prohibition law," today helped choose a jury to determine whether he shall die in the electric chair.

Five weeks ago Remus traced down his estranged second wife, Imogene Holmes Remus, pressed a pistol to her body and fired a bullet which killed her two hours later.

At adjournment of court today the jury box was half filled with tentative accepted jurors. Six of 15 veniremen examined, two women and four men, were locked up overnight. They could be removed only by use of peremptory challenges, of which the prosecution had four and the defense 16.

Remus Addresses Court.

Twice today Remus arose in his best court room manner, which had begun to build him a reputation for capability before he left Chicago, and addressed the court. At other times he advised with Charles Elston, his associate counsel.

Virtually at the outset he read a long action in a sonorous resounding, clearly phrased voice which brought into the murder trial nearly every surviving member of Mrs. Remus' family and Franklin L. Dodge Jr., the former prohibition officer Remus has charged with wrecking his home after he had brought about the conviction which sent Remus to the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

He demanded, and the court accepted, that Dodge, Ruth Holmes Remus, daughter of Mrs. Remus adopted by Remus; Mrs. Grace Campbell of Miami, Fla., Mrs. Remus' sister and Harry F. Brown of Windsor, Ont., Mrs. Remus' brother, be commanded to come into court and bring all documents in their possession appertaining to eight distilleries of which Remus gained control before his career as a wholesale bootlegger was halted.

EXPLOSION OF GAS RESERVOIR DEALS DEATH

Six Additional Dead In Debris Found Late Monday Night

WHOLE CITY ROCKED

Force of Blast Leaves Trail Of Devastation In Smoky City

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14. (AP)—Rescue workers, using dynamite in an effort to penetrate wreckage in the North Side disthict devastated by a gas tank explosion, tonight located the bodies of six addtional victims behind a boiler in the tottering plant of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot company. This brought the known list of dead to 27.

An entire section of North Side Pittsburgh lay in ruins tonight and the bodies of the 27 persons rested in the Allegheny county morgue, mute evidence of one of the most disastrous explosions in the city's history.

Death and devastation swept the old Manchester district when a mammoth storage gas tank exploded.

Tonight, as hundreds of victims of the disaster nursed their injuries in hospitals and in other havens of refuge supplied by relief agencies, firemen, policemen, and volunteers continued the work of exploring the wrecked district in the belief that other dead bodies would be found in the mass of twisted debris.

Rescuers Still Busy.

As nightfall descended upon the stricken region, rescue workers erected emergency lights at vantage points. Many of the debris clocked streets and tumbled down buildings resisted the efforts of the firemen and they resorted to dynamite in an effort to move masses of wreckage. Police redoubled their vigilance, and kept constant watch to prevent looting.

The quiet of a November morning was shattered throughout the Pittsburgh district by the terrific blast. For a moment the city held its breath as buildings rocked and windows crashed. At first it seemed that an earthquake had ravaged the city. Telephone lines were broken and the fire alarm system was crippled. The city stood still, waiting and wondering what was to come next.

Then a fire alarm box in the downtown district on the Allegheny river front sounded, to be followed a minute later by a general alarm.

Firemen to Rescue.

With the first shock, firemen started the motors of their apparatus and as the gong sounded, they rushed forth. The city realized there was a disaster at hand. Automobile trucks, taxicabs, ambulances, and all available motor cars soon were rushed through the downtown district, bearing the injured to hospitals.

When firemen reached the scene they were halted by the appalling sight. Streets had been heaved into the air, breaking water mains, and sewers, and flooding the entire district. Homes, factories, warehouses, and industrial plants lay in ruins. Men, women and children, many with blood streaming from face cuts and other injuries, ran screaming through the streets as if mad.

Twisted Steel Mass.

The cause of the disaster was soon apparent, for, in the midst of the ruins lay a twisted mass of steel, some of the supports of the giant gas tank, said to be the largest natural gas reservoir in the world. Thirteen men went to work repairing the tank at 8 a. m. Forty-three minutes later, as the workers handled their blow torches on the steel framework, the shock came. Eyewitnesses said that the tank, with a capacity of some five million cubic feet, shot into the air like a balloon. A ball of fire traveled higher than the tip of Mount Washington across the Ohio river from the scene. Sections of the steel framework went up hundreds of feet, to crash into the descent through the roofs of houses and buildings and in the streets.

Hospitals Overfilled.

Within a brief period of time, all North Side hospitals were jammed to capacity. Nearly every doctor in the city, as well as nurses, responded to the call for help. Some of the injured were treated on hospital steps or the corridors and every available inch of space within was occupied.

Panic stricken men and women forgot their hurts in their efforts to locate loved ones, and several hours after the blast occurred, mothers and fathers, their faces cut by flying glass, were wandering through the wreckage, seeking children and other loved ones.

Near the ill-fated gas tank the first victims were found—nine men, their bodies burned and mangled. These were rushed to the

Council Members to Oust Gas Pumps From Curb in Business Section

Members of the city council headed by Mayor R. E. Shepherd plan within the next few days to make a survey of all gasoline curb pumps between Seventh and Tenth streets, inclusive, and from Ohio to Lamar streets, inclusive. The sentiment at the meeting Monday night was that those operating curb pumps now should be notified to move them inside the sidewalk line.

The blocks mentioned are within the fire limits of the city and it has been found that the curb pumps cause traffic congestion and also take up too much parking space.

Public hearing on the application of the Wichita Falls Traction company for an increase in street car fare from six cents to seven cents was closed. The company will now deal directly with the council. Officials of the corporation are expected to appear next Monday night. At the former hearing on the matter both Mayor R. E. Shepherd and P. B. Curd, utilities commissioner, said they wanted financial statements of the company to show whether or not the increase was needed.

No one appeared in regard to the petition for the paving of Sherman street from York street to Lexington avenue. The paving was ordered, after the city gets funds to pay for the excavation work.

S. B. Wilson appeared in behalf of the Highland Heights Christian church asking permission to place the present building in Florence Stone boulevard for about eight months. It was brought out that the street is not used at present except for parking. The council advised Mr. Wilson to try to obtain nearby lots for the church building. Construction on a new church building is to start soon at Avenue H and Florence Stone boulevard.

Orville Bullington was granted a special permit to construct build-

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Who's Who in the Community Chest

The Travelers Aid.

The old, the crippled and sick, little children and distressed mothers are cared for by the Travelers Aid at the union station and it is safe to say that no other welfare organization serves as many local people or comes in contact with as many people passing through the city.

Thousands of questions for information are intelligently answered, telephone calls are made, telegrams are sent, friends and relatives are located, rooms and hotels are secured. In addition to these manifold duties special welfare cases needing immediate attention are constantly coming under the notice of the secretary and a great many of the most urgent welfare cases are handled by her or placed with the proper organizations.

This desk in the station is the first refuge of anybody in trouble from the girl who is running away from home to the parent who is looking for the girl who has gone away. All kinds of people gravitate there and in the course of a day several people may have been referred to the Salvation Army, the juvenile officer called down to have a talk with somebody who needed it, a case sent to the welfare office and the services of the Children's Aid society enlisted.

The Travelers Aid gets them first and because the station is the one place in town that nobody is afraid to stroll into, innocent or guilty, she gets them of all kinds with all kinds of desperate problems to be solved.

This agency is affiliated with the national organization and therefore receives the co-operation of Travelers Aid secretaries all over the country whenever it is necessary. This is often very valuable as in tracing a young person who has run away or in sending an old person, a child or other individual unable to look out for themselves properly, to some distant place. Thus travelers aid secretaries co-operate all over the country, making reports to each other on the cases handled.

The Travelers Aid society in Wichita Falls is directed by a local board with J. C. Hunt as chairman and members including Mrs. J. H. Allison, Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth, Joe Art, M. G. Monaghan and D. W. Hill.

Baptist Woman's Missionary Union Opens 41st Annual Conference Here

Three speakers appeared on the program of the Monday evening session of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union which opened its 41st annual conference at the First Baptist church, Monday morning with three sessions for the day.

Addresses were given by Dr. Homer Crice, secretary of the Daily Vacation Bible school board, Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence, Little Rock, author of mission study books, and Mrs. W. E. Bagby, for 41 years a missionary in Brazil.

Doctor Crice stressed the lack of Christian training among children whose minds were otherwise well trained, and he made an urgent appeal for the large army of children who are not in attendance at Sunday school, and expressed regret that Christianity is no longer a matter of home training.

Parents Indifferent.

"The parents are indifferent—we cannot have Christian children unless their parents are Christians also. Everywhere about us we see beautiful structures being raised to house the public school children where they may be taught facts and given more complete mental life, but only a small part of that space is allotted us to teach the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ."

The speaker made a plea toward furthering the vacation Bible work, thereby utilizing the time which is not used by the public schools and which is practically wasted by the children.

Mrs. Bagby's graphic tale of her 47 years of mission work among the peoples of Brazil, made more clear her talk on "Our Work in Foreign Lands," and into her interesting recital of prosecutions in the early days of her missionary work some 45 years ago, were thrown bits of subtle wit, pictures of Portuguese life made more telling with her facile use of the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

Story of Brazil

When in 1880 Mrs. Bagby accompanied by her husband, went to Brazil as a young missionary, Brazil was an empire, and the missionaries were accused and tried for heresy. But with the founding of the republic in 1888, there began to creep in improvements in the lives of the people, and their work has become more facile, Mrs. Bagby said.

The greatest hindrance to the American missionary in Brazil, Mrs. Bagby believes, is the American business man in Brazil. Mrs. Bagby brought her talk to a close with a plea for enlargement of the work in foreign lands.

Pioneer Missionaries

"The pioneers in the home mission movement staked their trustworthiness against our workmanship of today" was the theme of Mrs. Lawrence's talk on "Our Work in the Homeland," and she painted pictures of successful home missions of today and interpreted them as the visions dreamed by the early missionaries who blazed the trail that institutions to train the non-Christian within the country's borders, might be realized.

Mrs. Lawrence drew vivid pictures of the Christianity of the Indians trained in Indian mission schools, and told especially of an Indian youth trained in such an institution, who gave his life for the institution which taught him to see the light.

Missionaries present at the evening meeting as introduced by Mrs. Bagby, just home from Brazil, were: Miss Florence Conrad, Japan; Miss Bernice Mills, Brazil; Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Orrick, Montevideo, Uruguay; Miss Blanche Graves, China, and John W. Lowe, China.

State officers present for the conference are: Mesdames F. S. Davis, president; J. E. Leigh, corresponding secretary; W. D. Howell, recording secretary; Homer Fisher, assistant recording secretary, and Olivia Davis, treasurer.

District vice-presidents present are: Mrs. Charles Sivells, Brownwood district; Mrs. R. A. Copass, Fort Worth district; Mrs. E. L. Lauck, Austin district; Mrs. W. A. Wood, Waco district; Mrs. E. B. Atwood, Abilene district; Mrs. J. R. Wolkewitz, Tyler-Jacksonville district; Mrs. J. W. Whitman, McKinney-Sherman district; Mrs. George H. Collins, Greenville-Dallas district; Mrs. D. A. Grundy, Amarillo district; Mrs. M. A. Hayden, San Antonio district; Mrs. T. W. Lanier, Pecos-El Paso district; Mrs. J. B. Moore, Houston district; Mrs. Homer McGregor, Wichita Falls district; Mrs. W. R. Covington, Marshall-Texarkana district; Mrs. L. W. Williamson, Plainview district, and F. S. Robertson, Corpus Christi district. Mrs. C. E. Earhart of Beaumont, and Mrs. Willie Higginbotham, Cleco-Breckenridge district, were not present at the Monday evening session.

Morning Speakers

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with ten conferences in session in the Baptist church. The following divisions met with their respective chairmen and discussed the work of the past year and made plans for the new year: Districts—Mrs. Homer McGregor; associations—Mrs. J. M. Tanner; personal service—Mrs. W. M. Foster mission study—Mrs. J. H. Weatherby; missions—Mrs. B. W. Vining; young people —Mrs. T. C. Jester; benevolence—Mrs. A. E. Kerr; education—Mrs. R. Q. Lee; stewardship—Mrs. E. W. Harrison, and ruby anniversary—Mrs. T. M. Marsh.

The state executive board of the W. M. U. met from 2 to 4 o'clock in the main auditorium of the Baptist church. The meeting was opened with a prayer, gospel hymn, and a brief greeting by the president, Mrs. F. S. Davis, who presided at the meeting.

The following officers of the state executive board gave reports of the work done during the year by the various branches of the W. M. U.: Corresponding secretary—Mrs. J. E. Leigh; recording secretary—Mrs. W. D. Howell; assistant recording secretary—Mrs. Homer Fisher, and the treasurer—Mrs. Olivia Davis.

Mrs. Burton Advises Women On Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 1257 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Studebaker Cars Set New Endurance Record

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 14.—Three American cars established a new world record for speed and endurance on the Atlantic City speedway by traveling 25,000 miles each in less than 25,000 consecutive minutes.

No machine made by man ever before traveled so far and so fast.

These records were made by two Studebaker Commander roadsters and one Studebaker Commander sedan, particularly timed and checked by the contest board of the American Automobile association with supervisors and officials of automobile speed and endurance tests in the United States.

Speed of the two roadsters was 65.31 miles per hour and that of the sedan was 61.96 miles per hour. All three cars were certified by the contest board as strictly stock cars in every respect.

The record made nevertheless exceeds any ever made by special racing cars or stripped stock cars from 2000 to 15,000 miles and established new records from 15,000 to 25,000 miles inclusive.

Fire which broke out in a residence at 709 Burnett street early Monday morning was confined to the roof by firemen who laid 3200 feet of hose while fighting the blaze. The interior of the house was damaged by water.

Quick Fires for Cooking Heating & Power by striking a match

IN THE "pioneering days," the building of a fire was quite a ceremony. Wood had to be chopped or sawed—then arm-load by arm-load had to be carried to kitchen or "parlor" and skillfully coaxed to burn.

Wood-boxes—coal-scuttles—andirons—pokers and tongs—ashes—and soot . . . all these were accessories to the old wood and coal fires. And then—the room was too hot or too cold.

But now—with natural gas piped from the field right up to your burners—you get quick fires for your cooking, heating and power needs . . . by simply striking a match!

Quick fires mean more leisure, less trouble in cooking and laundering—quick warmth in heating your home or building—and quick power in the factory or work-shop.

With Natural Gas—supplied by Lone Star Gas Company to your local gas company—you are relieved of all work and worry about fuel . . . you have merely to strike a match!

Womans Forum To Sponsor Second Art Exhibit Beginning Wednesday

Inspired by the interest manifested in the Samuel McClelland Yunt Art Gallery exhibit, which was displayed at the club house under the auspices of the Womans Forum last week, the members of the art department of the forum will present a second such exhibit to be opened to the forum members Wednesday. This exhibit is under the supervision of Pascal M. Gatterdam of New York City who will display his collection of modern American paintings at the forum and who is showing the exhibit in room 632 of the Kemp hotel to art devotees who desire to make an appointment with him previous to Wednesday.

Mr. Gatterdam has in his collection, five specimens of Bruce Crane, which is an unusual number to be found in one collection.

Three Bruce Crane pieces of art are owned by persons in Wichita Falls. These are in the private collections of Roy B. Jones, W. B. Hamilton and N. H. Martin. The Crane pictures shown by Mr. Gatterdam include "Blue and Gold;" "December Morn;" "Day in Autumn;" and "Early Morning," all of which manifest Bruce Crane's indefiniteness—the quality which is prevalent in all his pictures—the quality which allows the eyes to rove at will, anywhere, in the vast distances of the beautiful landscapes of the master.

"An Afternoon in October" by John Francis Murphy, one of the heartest of American painters, is being displayed by Mr. Gatterdam and is the companion picture to one possessed by the late Senator W. A. Clark of Utah who died in New York City and whose private collection which was intended for the Metropolitan museum in New York, is now in the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D. C. The picture left by Senator Clark, "Landscape" was bought by him for $15,000.

Other artists among the 20 whose works are included in the exhibit include John Twachtman and Childe Hassam.

Walter Cline of Wichita Falls has a specimen of each of the two artists mentioned. The pictures shown by Mr. Gatterdam show a solidity of color that is characteristic of the work of John H. Twachtman. The pictures of the artist which sold for $200 during his lifetime are now selling for $15,000.

The exhibit includes three Blakelocks. The specimens displayed in the Yunt exhibit last week by Blakelock proved of exceeding popularity with those who saw them, and there will probably be a great deal of interest manifested in the specimen of the collection to be displayed on Wednesday at the forum. In the pictures of Blakelock are shown his four fundamentals of perspective atmosphere, foreground and middle distances which characterize Blakelock. "Autumn Day" by Blakelock will be displayed on Wednesday.

A picture that celebrates its centennial this year is in the collection. It is a New Hampshire scene of brown and golden tints painted by Thomas Cole in 1827.

Other pictures in the collection include Willard Metcalf's "The Road to the Lake" and Charles Melville's Dewey's "Rain," painted by the 69-year-old artist, who has lived in the Chelsea hotel in New York City since the hotel was built and who is still riding about the streets of New York in his old cycle William H. Titschel's marine scenes; J. C. Cazin's beautiful landscapes and a specimen by Diaz; a Mexican peon head by Wayman Adams and "White Wings," a fantasy by John Noble whose home is in Wichita, Kan., and—who has made a picture of the run of '89 in Oklahoma which he is trying to sell to the state of Oklahoma.

Mr. Gatterdam is also displaying a George Inness of 1854 which has been in a private collection since the time of its execution and which has been but recently added to the collection to be displayed in the forum club house on Wednesday. They will be on display from November 16 to November 20.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

"I Can't Afford Christmas Gifts This Year"

"I can't afford Christmas gifts this year." How often we hear it as we hurry thru the crowded streets, and how sad and untrue it is after all.

People who can't afford Christmas are indeed bankrupt—bereft of the only things that make Life worthwhile, kindliness of heart, happy unselfish thoughts and tender dreams. After all, just what is a Christmas gift? Is it something—any sort of thing—wrapped up in tinsel and broad red ribbon? You can remove the price tag from such a gift, but you cannot hide the poverty of heart that is responsible for it.

Can't afford Christmas! Ah! Don't say it. Let your gift be only a simple nosegay, a gay, painted toy or a cheery greeting. Make it as simple or as expensive as you will, but give.

"The gift without the giver is bare." It is an old rule, but it has stood the test of years. Don't forget it this Christmas.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Who's Who in the Community Chest

The Travelers Aid.

The old, the crippled and sick, little children and distressed mothers are cared for by the Travelers Aid at the union station and it is safe to say that no other welfare organization serves as many local people or comes in contact with as many people passing through the city.

Thousands of questions for information are intelligently answered, telephone calls are made, telegrams are sent, friends and relatives are located, rooms and hotels are secured. In addition to these manifold duties special welfare cases needing immediate attention are constantly coming under the notice of the secretary and a great many of the most urgent welfare cases are handled by her or placed with the proper organizations.

This desk in the station is the first refuge of anybody in trouble from the girl who is running away from home to the parent who is looking for the girl who has gone away. All kinds of people gravitate there and in the course of a day several people may have been referred to the Salvation Army, the juvenile officer called down to have a talk with somebody who needed it, a case sent to the welfare office and the services of the Children's Aid society enlisted.

The Travelers Aid gets them first and because the station is the one place in town that nobody is afraid to stroll into, innocent or guilty, she gets them of all kinds with all kinds of desperate problems to be solved.

This agency is affiliated with the national organization and therefore receives the co-operation of Travelers Aid secretaries all over the country whenever it is necessary. This is often very valuable as in tracing a young person who has run away or in sending an old person, a child or other individual unable to look out for themselves properly, to some distant place. Thus travelers aid secretaries cooperate all over the country, making reports to each other on the cases handled.

The Travelers Aid society in Wichita Falls is directed by a local board with J. C. Hunt as chairman and members including Mrs. J. H. Allison, Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth, Joe Art, M. G. Monaghan and D. W. Hill.

Baptist Woman's Missionary Union Opens 41st Annual Conference Here

Three speakers appeared on the program of the Monday evening session of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union which opened its 41st annual conference at the First Baptist church, Monday morning with three sessions for the day.

Addresses were given by Dr. Homer Crice, secretary of the Daily Vacation Bible school board, Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence, Little Rock, author of mission study books, and Mrs. W. E. Bagby, for 41 years a missionary in Brazil.

Doctor Crice stressed the lack of Christian training among children whose minds were otherwise well trained, and he made an urgent appeal for the large army of children who are not in attendance at Sunday school, and expressed regret that Christianity is no longer a matter of home training.

Parents Indifferent.

"The parents are indifferent—we cannot have Christian children unless their parents are Christians also. Everywhere about us we see beautiful structures being raised to house the public school children where they may be taught facts and given more complete mental life, but only a small part of that space is allotted us to teach the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ."

The speaker made a plea toward furthering the vacation Bible work, thereby utilizing the time which is not used by the public schools and which is practically wasted by the children.

Mrs. Bagby's graphic tale of her 47 years of mission work among the peoples of Brazil, made more clear her talk on "Our Work in Foreign Lands," and into her interesting recital of prosecutions in the early days of her missionary work some 45 years ago, were thrown bits of subtle wit, pictures of Portuguese life made more telling with her facile use of the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

Story of Brazil

When in 1880 Mrs. Bagby accompanied by her husband, went to Brazil as a young missionary, Brazil was an empire, and the missionaries were accused and tried for heresy. But with the founding of the republic in 1888, there began to creep in improvements in the lives of the people, and their work has become more facile, Mrs. Bagby said.

The greatest hindrance to the American missionary in Brazil, Mrs. Bagby believes, is the American business man in Brazil. Mrs. Bagby brought her talk to a close with a plea for enlargement of the work in foreign lands.

Pioneer Missionaries

"The pioneers in the home mission movement staked their trustworthiness against our workmanship of today" was the theme of Mrs. Lawrence's talk on "Our Work in the Homeland," and she painted pictures of successful home missions of today and interpreted them as the visions dreamed by the early missionaries who blazed the trail that institutions to train the non-Christian within the country's borders, might be realized.

Mrs. Lawrence drew vivid pictures of the Christianity of the Indians trained in Indian mission schools, and told especially of an Indian youth trained in such an institution, who gave his life for the institution which taught him to see the light.

Missionaries present at the evening meeting as introduced by Mrs. Bagby, just home from Brazil, were: Miss Florence Conrad, Japan; Miss Bernice Mills, Brazil; Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Orrick, Montevideo, Uruguay; Miss Blanche Graves, China, and John W. Lowe, China.

State officers present for the conference are: Mesdames F. S. Davis, president; J. E. Leigh, corresponding secretary; W. D. Howell, recording secretary; Homer Fisher, assistant recording secretary, and Olivia Davis, treasurer.

District vice-presidents present are: Mrs. Charles Sivells, Brownwood district; Mrs. B. A. Copass, Fort Worth district; Mrs. E. L. Lauck, Austin district; Mrs. W. A. Wood, Waco district; Mrs. E. B. Atwood, Abilene district; Mrs. J. R. Wolkewitz, Tyler-Jacksonville district; Mrs. J. W. Whitman, McKinney-Sherman district; Mrs. George H. Collins, Greenville-Dallas district; Mrs. D. A. Grundy, Amarillo district; Mrs. M. A. Hayden, San Antonio district; Mrs. T. W. Lanier, Pecos-El Paso district; Mrs. J. B. Moore, Houston district; Mrs. Homer McGregor, Wichita Falls district; Mrs. W. R. Covington, Marshall-Texarkana district; Mrs. L. W. Williamson, Plainview district, and F. S. Robertson, Corpus Christi district. Mrs. C. E. Earhart of Beaumont, and Mrs. Willie Higginbotham, Cisco-Breckenridge district, were not present at the Monday evening session.

Morning Speakers

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with ten conferences in session in the Baptist church. The following divisions met with their respective chairmen and discussed the work of the past year and made plans for the new year: Districts—Mrs. Homer McGregor; associations—Mrs. J. M. Tanner; personal service—Mrs. W. M. Foster mission study—Mrs. J. H. Weatherby; missions—Mrs. B. W. Vining; young people—Mrs. T. C. Jester; benevolence—Mrs. A. E. Kerr; education—Mrs. R. Q. Lee; stewardship—Mrs. E. W. Harrison, and ruby anniversary—Mrs. Y. M. Martin.

The state executive board of the W. M. U. met from 2 to 4 o'clock in the main auditorium of the Baptist church. The meeting was opened with a prayer, gospel hymn, and a brief greeting by the president, Mrs. F. S. Davis, who presided at the meeting.

The following officers of the state executive board gave reports of the work done during the year by the various branches of the W. M. U.: Corresponding secretary—Mrs. J. E. Leigh; recording secretary—Mrs. W. D. Howell; assistant recording secretary—Mrs. Homer Fisher, and the treasurer—Mrs. Olivia Davis.

Mrs. Burton Advises Women On Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 1287 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Studebaker Cars Set New Endurance Record

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 14.—Three American cars established a new world record for speed and endurance on the Atlantic City speedway by traveling 25,000 miles each in less than 25,000 consecutive minutes.

No machine made by man ever before traveled so far and so fast.

These records were made by two Studebaker Commander roadsters and one Studebaker Commander sedan, particularly timed and checked by the contest board of the American Automobile association with supervisors and officials of automobile speed and endurance tests in the United States.

Speed of the two roadsters was 65.31 miles per hour and that of the sedan was 61.94 miles per hour. All three cars were certified by the contest board as strictly stock cars in every respect.

The record made nevertheless exceeds any ever made by special racing cars or stripped stock cars from 3000 to 15,000 miles and established new records from 15,000 to 25,000 miles inclusive.

Fire which broke out in a residence at 709 Burnett street early Monday morning was confined to the roof by firemen who laid 1200 feet of hose while fighting the blaze. The interior of the house was damaged by water.

Quick Fires for Cooking Heating & Power by striking a match

IN THE "pioneering days," the building of a fire was quite a ceremony. Wood had to be chopped or sawed—then arm-load by arm-load had to be carried to kitchen or "parlor" and skillfully coaxed to burn.

Wood-boxes—coal-scuttles—andirons—pokers and tongs—ashes—and soot . . . all these were accessories to the old wood and coal fires. And then—the room was too hot or too cold.

But now—with natural gas piped from the field right up to your burners—you get quick fires for your cooking, heating and power needs . . . by simply striking a match!

Quick fires mean more leisure, less trouble in cooking and laundering—quick warmth in heating your home or building—and quick power in the factory or work-shop.

With Natural Gas—supplied by Lone Star Gas Company to your local gas company—you are relieved of all work and worry about fuel . . . you have merely to strike a match!

Womans Forum To Sponsor Second Art Exhibit Beginning Wednesday

Inspired by the interest manifested in the Samuel McClelland Yunt Art Gallery exhibit, which was displayed at the club house under the auspices of the Womans Forum last week, the members of the art department of the forum will present a second such exhibit to be opened to the forum members Wednesday. This exhibit is under the supervision of Pascal M. Gatterdam of New York City who will display his collection of modern American paintings at the forum and who is showing the exhibit in room 632 of the Kemp hotel to art devotees who desire to make an appointment with him previous to Wednesday.

Mr. Gatterdam has in his collection, five specimens of Bruce Crane, which is an unusual number to be found in one collection.

Three Bruce Crane pieces of art are owned by persons in Wichita Falls. These are in the private collections of Roy B. Jones, W. B. Hamilton and N. H. Martin. The Crane pictures shown by Mr. Gatterdam include "Blue and Gold;" "December Morn;" "Day in Autumn;" and "Early Morning," all of which manifest Bruce Crane's indefiniteness—the quality which is prevalent in all his pictures—the quality which allows the eyes to rove at will, anywhere, in the vast distances of the beautiful landscapes of the master.

"An Afternoon in October" by John Francis Murphy, one of the heartest of American painters, is being displayed by Mr. Gatterdam and is the companion picture to one possessed by the late Senator W. A. Clark of Utah who died in New York City and whose private collection which was intended for the Metropolitan museum in New York, is now in the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D. C. The picture left by Senator Clark, "Landscape" was bought by him for $15,600.

Other artists among the 20 whose works are included in the exhibit include John Twachtman and Childe Hassam.

Walter Cline of Wichita Falls has a specimen of each of the two artists mentioned. The pictures shown by Mr. Gatterdam show a solidity of color that is characteristic of the work of John H. Twachtman. The pictures of the artist which sold for $200 during his lifetime are now selling for $15,000.

The exhibit includes three Blakelocks. The specimens displayed in the Yunt exhibit last week by Blakelock proved of exceeding popularity with those who saw them, and there will probably be a great deal of interest manifested in the specimen of the collection to be displayed on Wednesday at the forum. In the pictures of Blakelock are shown his four fundamentals of perspective atmosphere, foreground and middle distances which characterize Blakelock. "Autumn Day" by Blakelock will be displayed on Wednesday.

A picture that celebrates its centennial this year is in the collection. It is a New Hampshire scene of brown and golden tints painted by Thomas Cole in 1927.

Other pictures in the collection include Willard Metcalf's "The Road to the Lake" and Charles Melville's Dewey's "Rain," painted by the 69-year-old artist who has lived in the Chelsea hotel in New York City since the hotel was built and who is still riding about the streets of New York in his old cycle William H. Titschel's marine scenes; J. C. Cazin's beautiful landscapes and a specimen by Diaz; a Mexican peon head by Wayman Adams and "White Wings," a fantasy by John Noble whose home is in Wichita, Kan., and who has made a picture of the run of '89 in Oklahoma which he is trying to sell to the state of Oklahoma.

Mr. Gatterdam is also displaying a George Inness of 1854 which has been in a private collection since the time of its execution and which has been but recently added to the collection to be displayed in the forum club house on Wednesday. They will be on display from November 16 to November 29.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

"I Can't Afford Christmas Gifts This Year"

"I can't afford Christmas gifts this year." How often we hear it as we hurry thru the crowded streets, and how sad and untrue it is after all.

People who can't afford Christmas are indeed bankrupt—bereft of the only things that make Life worthwhile, kindliness of heart, happy unselfish thoughts and tender dreams. After all, just what is a Christmas gift? Is it something—any sort of thing—wrapped up in tinsel and broad red ribbon? You can remove the price tag from such a gift, but you cannot hide the poverty of heart that is responsible for it.

Can't afford Christmas! Ah! Don't say it. Let your gift be only a simple nosegay, a gay, painted toy or a cheery greeting. Make it as simple or as expensive as you will, but give.

"The gift without the giver is bare." It is an old rule, but it has stood the test of years. Don't forget it this Christmas.

YOUNG LOVE IS APRIL–Mad at Midnight, Glad in the Morning!

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

GROWN-UP people smile at the troubles of children. The ancient ones who are beginning to walk in a light "that is shining on them as they go" smile and wag their heads at the troubles of those kids, the middle-aged ones. And do the angels themselves laugh aloud at the sorrows of the old ones?

Anyhow—the whole great system, angels and all—reaps a harvest of chuckles from the troubles of those who are neither children nor grown-ups—the young ones; Youth.

And do you know why? It's their own fault—poor old kids. Because they stay in the glooms such a little while! They are out of the sunshine and into the shadow and back into the sunshine and then into the shadow as lightning-quick as the New York Central train is as it flashes through its sky-lighted tunnel under Park avenue. Youth and its moods and sorrows is just like that. First a glimpse of dazzling blue sky, sunshine, and green leaves of a hedge. Then, the blackness of the River Styx, its pall broken by a gleam of an ominous blue spark a mile away and a threatening red one in the deep gloom like the eye of a dragon in its lair. Then sunshine again. Sunshine and rain. Laughter and tears. The tears of April and then her smiles. Night and high noon. Storm and peace. That's Youth. Youth is a gay young duck paddling in the pond, upon whose innocent feathers the sun shines yellow and FROM off whose feathers the rain-drops slide without wetting him. In fact, the young duck likes the thundershower—even while he is afraid of the lightning. And he claps his wings at the whole pond because he is glad to be alive and a duck!

Youth is an April duck in the course of its love-stories, too. Monday a violent electric storm—with Cupid left out in it to drench his fragile wings—for neither Jimmy nor Jimmette will have him with THEM. They swear they want never to see his "double-face" again. And by Tuesday noon a dazzling sun, and Jimmy and Jimmette seated, the world forgot, upon puffy pink clouds up above the world so high!

Youth takes Love hard—but, oh—with such speed; coming or going! The older ones approach him slowly; handle him with deliberation; and get so much more hurt! And cherish him so much longer! Youth goes away with a mad at midnight; and comes back with a glad in the morning!

Would we could stay young always—just enough to easily forgive and forget!

NELL BRINKLEY.

THE PUSHING HAND

By Lucy Lowell.

IT is not always the helping hand which one may thank for achievement.

I will venture to say that the pushing hand, the cold shoulder, the scornful rejection have started more people on the road to high success than all the kindly assistance that ever there has been in this world. More people of a certain type, that is, the type which knows what it knows and believes in itself and its destiny.

LUCY LOWELL

I am reminded of what a most successful man had to say about this a while ago. One had mentioned another man and quickly apologized, for the two were called enemies.

"Not at all," said my friend. "I owe him everything I have, and more.

"I went to him for help when I was just getting out of college, a green kid without a cent or a prospect. He turned me away without bothering to be civil.

"That piqued my pride, young nobody that I was. 'I'll go beyond and above him,'-I said to myself.

"Well, I got a start and I kept it in mind. It made me do some tall hustling, let me tell you. For every stride I made he made two.

"I have accomplished something," he added modestly. "But without this man you call my enemy as an incentive I don't know just where I'd be today. I feel nothing for him now but gratitude."

The philosophy of the pushing hand is set forth by Emerson:

"Dear to us are those who love us; the swift moments we spend with them are compensation for a great deal of misery; they enlarge our life—but dearer are those who reject us as unworthy, for they add another life; they build a heaven before us whereof we had not dreamed, and thereby supply to us new powers out of the recesses of the spirit, and urge us to new and unattempted performances."

Folly's Daughter -:- A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Mac Declares Himself.

MAC SHANNON set his lips grimly and told himself that a girl like Jill was able to make her own choices and decisions. And he asked himself what darn business of his it was if a pretty, little, red-haired nobody he had liked too well to harm had chosen to go her natural way down the primrose path.

ANN LISLE

"But not with Savelli," he kept protesting. "What chance had that kid with Savelli? What chance had she with any man, for that matter—if the man didn't want to play fair with her?"

As Mac made himself see Jill now she was young, emotional, and the inevitably gayly unmoral girl Folly's daughter was bound to be. What worried him and wouldn't let him dismiss it like that, however, was the draped picture of his mother which stood on the desk of his private office and smiled at him accusingly and as if to remind him that all women deserved more than a square deal from him for the sake of her who had brought him into the world and had died with a smile on her lips because he was there to hold her and still her agony.

"I was a snob!" he told himself. "I pretended that I thought the fifteen years between Jill and me was an impassable barrier. The barrier was my snobbery and nothing else. I wouldn't marry Jill because I wasn't a good sport. I wouldn't—harm her because, Heaven help me, I really loved her. Now Savelli has got her. And that's about what you deserve, Shannon."

His detective reported that there was a girl living at Tony's, and that she had agreed to come to the Shannon to see its owner. . . . The girl turned out to be a sullen dark-haired creature, who came defiantly and asked him, with a curse on her lips, why he and the rest of the Dicks thought that they had to keep trying to dig up something on her Tony. . . . She was obviously devoted to Savelli; as obviously she knew nothing about the suspicions that had made Mac Shannon send for her, but he realized before she left that she was a shrewd and passionate creature, and that she had left the interview with a few suspicions of her own.

He called off the detective then. And invited himself to dine with the Scarletts. And realized before the dinner was half over that his hostess probably was breaking her heart over something—and that the something probably was Jill Hathaway. Viv's beauty was so like that of the girl he was trying to forget that he found himself being gentle with her—as gentle as he would have been to Jill if she hadn't ignored his telegram and run away with another man.

And suddenly they were all talking about Jill and Folly Duane and the Heath case, but as they talked Mac became convinced that Vivian was withholding something—something that might matter tremendously if she could be brought to tell it.

"Men are never fair to women," she said, gazing curtly at her husband and her guest out of long, narrow eyes. "My father was rotten, unfair to my mother."

"He fell into the hands of an unscrupulous woman," Roy said righteously.

"The womar is always the temptress," Vivian said coldly. "As witness the cases of Folly Duane and—Bonnie Clair."

Roy squirmed. It was the first time she had mentioned his enchantress, and he thought it almost indecent of her to do it right in the presence of Shannon. Before he could protest, Vivian went on with a cryptic smile showing through the smoke of her cigarette:

"Sometimes I think you men are a pretty poor lot. My father fell for Folly. My poor mother had to—bear the brunt of it. I was only a kid, but I, too, had to—stand up under it. Why blame Folly? She stole—but the owner of the goods didn't forbid her to touch his treasures of home and love . . . And now Roy is hiding behind the fact that the dead and gone Bonnie Clair victimized him. And you—Mac Shannon—what are you hiding behind?"

"Vivian!" Roy protested. "Insult your husband if you like. And it can be excused and forgiven because you have been through so much that you are not yourself—"

"Sure. I'm half crazy," Vivian laughed abruptly. "Anna Heath's daughter has a heritage——"

"Has proved that she is an individual of good common sense," Mac interrupted brusquely. "And this conversation shows how shrewd you are. Mrs. Scarlett. You have guessed that I was—very fond of Jill and that I was too much of a snob to marry the child and too much of a coward to make her my mistress. Also you think I am too lazy to make an honest effort to find her and reclaim her even if she has taken her first false step in a world where nobody helped her take the right one . . . You're quite right. You have egged me on to the exact point where you wished to get me."

"What's this darn epigrammatic conversation all about?" Roy asked Leiplessly.

"About my finding Jill—Heath," Mac said. "And marrying her—if she'll have me."

To Be Continued.

This Business of Marriage Not Easily Measured by Definite Rule

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you believe that women really care for freedom and independence? If they do, why do widows marry again so soon? I have yet failed to see a wife who wished she was an old maid. I have in mind a woman whose life has been a tragedy through a worthless husband, but I know that if she had her life to live over again she would choose matrimony in preference to single blessedness. I know another woman who has a brute of a husband who abuses her, neglects her, and desn't provide her with the common comforts of life, yet this same woman will sit for hours and talk of her wedding, her trousseau, her honeymoon, and a hundred other little incidents that give her untold happiness even after 20 years. So I say let all women take a chance at marriage. Let them have a memory to carry through life of a man's life, even if it was short-lived.

These lines are written by a woman who has the dearest, kindest, most thoughtful husband in the world. MRS, T.

Answer:

You wouldn't be such an ardent advocate of matrimony, Mrs. T. if you had known the heart break and disillusion that come to the woman who makes an unfortunate marriage. You have not known abuse and cruelty from the man you trusted. You have not known what it was to be betrayed and flouted by the man into whose hands you had put your life and who broke it and threw it away as carelessly as he would have done a toy of which he had tired.

If you had personally gone through the hell that so many husbands drag their wives through, you would feel that it was a wise woman who played safe and who looked a man over very carefully before she risked her happiness by taking a wild chance on marrying on the principle that any sort of a husband is better than no husband at all.

I will not argue with you on the proposition that tho happily married woman is the happiest woman in the world, and that a good husband is better than any career. But the opposite of this is also true, and the unhappily married woman is the miserable woman in the world. It is a million times better not to have any husband at all than not to have a good one.

On the other hand, while the lot of the old maid may lack some of the thrills and excitement of the married woman, it likewise lacks many of its drawbacks. The spinster may not have the memories of her wedding day and her honeymoon to gloat over, but neither does she have her recollections of a drunken brute who came home and beat her, or of the agony of jealousy she went through when she found out about some other woman.

Certainly any woman must be morbidly sentimental who can live upon the crumbs of her mouldering wedding cake after her husband has failed to supply her with fresh bread and butter. I should think that to any normal woman every recollection of her lost love would be a separate torment. You remember the poet said that "A sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things."

You say you never knew a wife, however unhappily married, who wished she had remained an old maid. Probably not, for there is still a stigma that attaches among the unthinking and the old-fashioned to spinsterhood. But I have known many married women who wished they were widows. And if, as you say, widows nearly always remarry, it is because hope springs eternal in the human breast, and they always hope they will have better luck next time.

Undoubtedly marriage is good for a woman's spiritual development, whether she gets a good husband or a bad one. It broadens her outlook, it curbs her selfishness. It teaches her patience and forbearance, for in marriage there has to be an adjustment of the two people, and it generally the wife who has to do the adjusting.

But don't pity the old maid. Many of the happiest and best-contented women I konw are spinsters. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young woman 23 years old, and have been going with a man for 10 years who has patiently waited all of this time while I tried to decide whether I should marry or not. We are very much in love and have the means to have a nice home and evrything within reason, but here is my problem:

I am born of a family that has had several cases of insanity and I do not think it is right for me to marry and bring a family into the world when I do not know whether I will bring a curse on my children or not. My fiance knows all about my ancestors and still insists on marrying. We both love children, and if I didn't have any of my own I would surely want to adopt some, but how would I know anything about their ancestors? Their heritage might be worse than any I could give my own children. Just what would you suggest in my case? MARY.

Answer:

Consult some physician who is competent to advise you in this matter. Science has shown that many of our theories about heredity have no foundation in fact, and it may be that there is no danger of your passing to your children any taint of insanity. Certainly you are foolish to put off marrying your fiance any longer unless you know absolutely that you would pass on the curse of a diseased brain to your offspring.

But even if you have to deny yourself the happiness of motherhood, there is no reason why you should not have, at least, the consolation of marrying the man you love, and of having your own home. You can, as you suggest, adopt children, and while it is possible that they, too, may have some hereditary taint in their blood, the argument against taking one of them is not what it would be against you having a child of your own.

You would bring a child into the world that would have a fair chance at life. The other children are already here, and by adopting them you would give them an opportunity to grow up into men and women with sound minds and sound bodies.

DOROTHY DIX.

Self-Control Essential in Managing Children

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

THE children of the primary department were practising a little Thanksgiving play.

Every afternoon for a week they had gathered in the auditorium to rehearse.

L.LAMAR MATTHEWS

Then at the last minute it was thought best to make a slight change in the numbers. There was some discussion among the teachers who were directing the rehearsal, but none of them knew definitely what they had decided. One told the children to go in a certain direction, another dictated an entirely different line of procedure.

Of course the children became hopelessly confused. After fifteen minutes of confusion the teachers were exasperated and inclined to blame the children. The children were tired and some of them were tearful.

Then the pianist whirled around on the piano stool and said, "Let me fix it."

The other teachers welcomed her services and retired to the background. She took a piece of chalk and made a cross upon the floor where the first child should stand. She called him to his place and laughingly told him to hold that chalk mark down. She kept on making marks and placing children until the twenty little folks were standing in their places—beaming with pride over their progress in acting. Then she said to them: "Now follow me and do exactly what I do." With that she began singing a little song and skipping around the stage as she wished them to do.

Then she went back to the piano and after one more practise the rehearsal came to a triumphant end.

She knew definitely what she wanted the children to do; she showed them exactly what was expected of them; and she dispelled the gloom and confusion with her own cheerfulness and assurance.

Mixups that come through mismanagement are very common occurences in schools or other organizations. Quite often the children are scolded for disobedience, stupidity or disorderliness, when the leaders have only themselves to blame.

The same condition arises in many homes. In the midst of preparation for some festivity; in the whirl of a general housecleaning; in preparation for a family's journey, a note of hysteria and of turmoil creeps in. If the mother loses control of her temper, tongue or brainwork, the house is soon turned into bedlam. If on the other hand mother takes a firm grip upon herself; makes up her mind what she wishes each member of the family to do, and then speaks quietly and good-naturedly, order is maintained. Everybody stays in a good humor and the day proves to be a happy one instead of something to be forgotten.

Children can feel tenseness in the atmosphere. They know when their elders are upset. They also know when grown-ups are making an effort to control themselves, and they usually follow suit.

Self-control and the ability to get things done are valuable traits. And the best way in the world to cultivate these traits in your child is by living them day after day while he can take notice of your good example.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Proper Signature.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you please help us settle a dispute? A friend and I disagree on the matter of signing names on a letter to a landlord. Should she sign Mrs. Mary Smith or Mary Smith (Mrs. Mary Smith), one under the other?

2. When a young ladies' club is holding a dance and she wishes a gentleman to accompany her, who pays for the tickets? M. S. B.

A LETTER should never be signed

Very truly yours,
MRS. MARY SMITH.

It is never correct for a woman to sign the "Mrs." in her direct signature. And how perversely women persist in doing this! It is the depth of poor form, and a woman will be judged by such a signature quicker than she will be by anything else that she can do in letter-writing.

In a letter to the landlord, the married woman signs her name:

Very truly yours,
MARY BROWN SMITH.
(Mrs. John Smith.)

If she is divorced and is known as Mrs. Mary Smith, then in the parenthesis she writes (Mrs. Mary Smith).

2. The young lady, for she is the hostess (this also answers the question sent by "A Bride").

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Story of Japanese Mission Work Features W. M. S. Program Monday

"Why I Became a Christian," was the title of the pathetic and dramatic story of a Japanese boy charmingly told by Mrs. Paul Colvert before 100 members of the Floral Heights Methodist Missionary society who met in special all-day prayer service at the church Monday. A special feature of the all-day session was the partaking of the sacrament at the noon hour in place of luncheon which is commonly served.

The meeting was opened with Mrs. S. E. Trevathan, district secretary, presiding. The devotional "Pray Ye Therefore" was led by Mrs. M. E. Crowell, and Mrs. Merle Waggoner sang "Help Somebody Today," accompanied by Mrs. Fred Sermann on the piano. Mrs. John C. Kay gave an interesting talk on the Palmore Woman's institute of Korea. A series of sentence prayers was opened by Mrs. T. R. Boone, and closed by Mrs. S. A. Barnes.

A special consecration prayer was led by Mrs. Leon Deaton. Following the singing, "Break Thou the Bread of Life," by the audience, the Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the church, conducted a dedication service and administered the sacrament at the noon hour.

In the afternoon sesion a memorial service was conducted by Mrs. L. E. Cowling and a memorial tablet carrying the names of Mesdames L. E. Kilpatrick, J. C. Crane, A. J. Lester, J. W. Ketner, and F. J. Schaefer, was presented to the society by the president, Mrs. Boone. Mrs. George Thorburn and Mrs. Fred Sehmann sang, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Kay. Mrs. M. T. Clement talked on the Valley institute, the Mexican school at Pharr, Texas. Mrs. George Barker sang "The Whisper Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Lester Jones.

A devotional was given by Mrs. Sehmann, and discussion and prayers were given for Mexico, Africa, China, India, and Japan were led by Mesdames John Taylor, A. L. Lane, A. F. Leach, Will Ellis, and B. M. Bullard. Prayer for the child life of the world was led by Mrs. C. M. Goodwin. Miss Lucille Freet sang, "My Mother's Bible," accompanied by Mrs. Sehmann. Mrs. Charles Crowell told the story of finding happiness at school; Mrs. W. H. Roper discussed "Three Ways of Service."

The officers and circle leaders took part in the candle service remembering the many missionaires of whose lives the lighted candles were symbols.

A splendid sacrificial offering was made and is to be sent to Palmore Woman's institute of Korea and to the Valley institute of Pharr.

The concluding prayer was offered by Mrs. T. J. Waggoner.

Speaker Discusses Interesting Phases Of Value of Bible

In an interesting talk delivered before the Women's Bible Study class of the Fist Methodist Episcopal church, south, Dr. W. L. Nelms, former pastor of the First Methodist church at Waco and at Fort Worth, gave interesting statistics concerning the Bible and its value educationally, at the regular meeting of that class Monday afternoon.

There are 19 million copies of the Bible in the public schools and 21 million in the Sunday schools of the nation. While 100,000 copies were sold of the popular novel, "Main Street" by Sinclair Lewis, which was the most widely read best seller, there were 10,000,000 copies of the Bible sold during the same year.

Doctor Nelms gave convincing statistics that the Bible is gaining ground in the world rather than losing its hold. There are three times as many teachers in the Sunday schools who are teaching the Bible as there are teachers in the public schools of the nation. During a period of 50 years, 60,000,000 copies of the book were sold in the nation while it has been translated into many languages and dialects, according to figures quoted by Doctor Nelms.

As to the educational value of the book, the speaker said that where the book is available, the illiteracy is less than 5 per cent.

As to interest manifested in the book, Doctor Nelms said that it is the only book the demand for which is greater than the supply and that there has been no bit of fiction to compare in interest with the Book of Job.

Mrs. Wayne Sommerville, who is the retiring chairman of the Bible Study class, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. C. Y. Tully gave a vocal solo accompanied by Miss Annie Laurie Long on the piano. There were 44 members present and three visitors.

Presbyterian C. E. Discusses Periodicals

Myrtle Anderson led the scripture lesson. Other numbers on the program were: "Use Your Head" talk by Marion Rice; a piano solo by Ermalea Graham; a talk, "Supporting Religious Papers" by Cecil Dunlap; a talk, "Good Things in Newspapers," by Annie Anderson; a talk on the topic by Rev. David Rees Jones and a round table discussion on "Books I've Read," led by J. T. Morrow. The group was dismissed with the Mizpah benediction.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames E. B. Morrow, R. Airington, Earl Anderson, Ralph Dick, J. R. Eason, Sam Queen, Rev. David Rees-Jones, Mesdames K. M. Samuel, G. G. Rettig, M. A. IN A BAD FIX FROM INDIGESTION

Had a Breaking-Out, Bad Taste, and Poor Appetite. Got Better After Taking Black-Draught

Anderson, S. C.—Mrs. Mattie Wicker, who lives on R. F. D. 4, near here, says:

"About two or three years ago, I had been feeling so bad, I just knew I would have severe headache, backache and pain in my limbs. I would get up in the mroning, all tired out, with a bad taste in my mouth, and I wouldn't feel like eating.

"I was as one time terribly constipated, and had a breaking-out from indigestion. I took Black-Draught and the breaking-out disappeared and I felt so much better.

"Black-Draught is the best medicine I have found for constipation and indigestion. I give it to my children for colds, and it does them a lot of good.

"Black-Draught is a family medicine with us. We have been taking it for more than a year now, and I wouldn't be without it."

Thousands of people have found relief, in cases of common indigestion, by taking a pinch of Black-Draught after meals, and continuing this treatment for several days.

Give this well-known, long established medicine a thorough trial, if troubled with indigestion, constipation or billousness.

"How are you fixed—young man?"

Riverton, Kansas, Power Plant, Empire District Electric Company

"WELL, I have a little over $1,100 in cash—or the same as cash. I have invested regularly in Cities Service Preferred Stock—which is the same as ready money.

"Any Cities Service office or any broker can sell my stock readily if I need money. But I have a better plan than that. I've already spoken to my banker, and he will be glad to loan me money at any time, using my Cities Service Preferred as collateral. So you see—"

"Young man, you're all right. I have some Cities Service Preferred myself. If you are level headed enough to put your money in a good, strong place, where you can quickly get cash when you need it, I'm sure you'll be able to take good care of Mary."

Not Gloomy

A CHICAGO writer paints a gloomy picture of the world. He asks for the "re-establishment" of justice and fair dealing. And a Chicago newspaper man sets out to answer him. Says the defender of today's times and today's life:

"Compare the Roman empire with its complete domination by wealth and family. Compare the England of Charles II with its utter cynicism and moral degradation. Compare the United States of Grant's administration with the United States of today. Would anybody trade the farmers of America today for the peasantry of Europe a hundred years ago?"

Before you begin to paint pictures of the world today in comparison with the world of yesterday, be sure that you have your history on straight. Be sure that you have learned something about the world of yesterday. There may indeed be evidences of a coming decline in civilization. This writer is inclined to think there are. But so far—in the present years—the state of mankind in the most enlightened countries is happier than it was three or four or five hundred years ago.

Three Billions a Year

ACCORDING to the Philadelphia Inquirer 25,000,000 children are receiving an elementary education in the country at an annual cost of about $2,500,000,000 and this does not include the 12,500,000 who are being privately educated and it takes no account of the hundreds of millions spent in the maintenance and operation of many hundreds of universities, colleges and professional schools. This is the verdict of the Philadelphia newspaper:

"When we consider the difficulty of providing proper facilities for all the children, the general results throughout the United States are highly gratifying, as not only the states but individuals as well are intent upon giving the boy and the girl an adequate training for the battle of life."

And there are reds in this country who would change the system and parlor pink socialists classed as intellectuals who are forever chanting: "My country ever wrong."

Jardine Scores Again

FUTURES trading in cotton slumped 100 points down on November 8 following the announcement of the government crop estimate compiled by the Department of Agriculture in which the estimate was increased 258,000 bales over the government report a month ago.

Price of cotton slumped $5.00 per bale.

Now why should an increase of 258,000 bales of cotton in the estimated yield for the year cause the price of the fleecy staple to slump $5.00 per bale?

There has been a heavy foreign demand for American cotton. There is a heavy home demand. Cotton takings this year may go beyond the takings of 1926.

Growers of things appear to be the men who always bear the brunt; makers of things are more fortunate.

The Money Measure

A JOURNALIST writing from Paris says that whenever an American is shown one of the ancient landmarks of France, whether it is a picture gallery or a statue of Venus, he wonders what it would be worth in dollars and cents. That's not a pleasant commentary on American travelers. But doubtless it is true of many. To be interested in the gold equivalent of things that are beautiful is a mark of youthful civilization.

Saturation

ONE of the ablest manufacturers in this country gives a sensible definition of the "saturation point." We are always hearing about the saturation point for motor cars and for other products. In reality is there any such thing? Of course there is, theoretically, but not practically. The saturation point for any given article will be reached when "everybody has one and none ever wears out."

The Lesson

IF YOUTH, with all its progressiveness and buoyancy, could only learn one great lesson that comes with advancing years, so much disillusionment and unhappiness would be prevented. If youth could only learn, while it is still youth, that there are certain fundamental things which it can not do and "get away with," certain things that must be done and must not be done, certain things that are not only conventional but essential, half the tears of boyhood and girlhood would never flow.

Brisbane On Their Trail

NOW Arthur Brisbane is on the trail of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall. He is on the trail of Burns and his detectives. He demands that the government shall strike at the multi-millionaire oil man and the cabinet officer who betrayed Warren G. Harding and the American people. Well, the thing happened six years ago.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—They tell a sad story of a Greenwich Village restaurateur who aspired to heights of interior decoration and who had the walls of his place painted green. Somehow or other his patrons were adversely affected by the change in color. Maybe they are too used to the violent splashes of orange and red and cobalt blues and vicious violets which usually adorn the eating places of that section. Anyhow, the aesthetic minded boss had to give up his apple green dream of delight in order to keep people coming for his sole marguery and his spinach a la reine. It is all very sad. The Village has never been in the mood for pastels in its emotion or otherwise.

Two elevator men in Grand Central Palace are discussing the current "Red Knight of Germany" saga, a serial running in Liberty Magazine. One says glibly, out of the side of his mouth: "Aw, this fellow Floyd Gibbons is an Englishman, anyhow." And I think . . . shades of the sinking of the Lusitania, when this fellow Floyd Gibbons, reporter from the legendary city of Chicago, wrote one of the world's best feature stories. The elevator men are old enough to remember, but they do not.

The thing that always strikes me forcibly after I have been several days away from New York is its inherent cleanliness. Even now, when soft coal is used here and there, and the buildings are perhaps a shade grayer in tone than they were five years ago, the aspect of the city is one of trimness and whiteness. Compared to Pittsburgh, say, it is a veritable spotless town. Of course, there are blots on its general neatness. The downtown East Side, with its hurly burly of pushcarts and its swarms of unwashed children, is disturbing to the aesthete. But as one pushes across town from Grand Central Station, or as one goes up Fifth avenue with the well dressed crowd, one can't help thinking that New York keeps its face pretty well cold creamed.

And, apropos of the city's general trimness, I observe with interest the park commissioner's announcement that peanuts in the shell may no longer be sold in Central Park. The squirrels will object to the innovation, probably, because they object to nuts sans shells. And the children who like to feed the squirrels will also have a plaint to make. But Commissioner Herrick's objection is a valid one. He says so long as the shells are thrown around, the job of keeping walks and lawns in order is hopeless.

Nex' t' an outbound tramp there's few things as busy as an Indiana grand jury. No matter what's she's doin', how she's dressed, or even if she's in a bath tub, a woman should never allow anythin' t' detain her when she sees her estranged husband comin' up th' walk.

MODISH MITZI — Is Dad Pleased? — By JAY V. JAY

It's a very stunning coat with leopard fur that Mitzi wears. Every one liked it but Dad. You see Dad hates short haired furs. He says he likes a fur that looks furry. Just personal taste, of course, and Dad won't have it influenced by fashion. Not Dad. That's what he said, and he means it.

Mitzi's aim is to please — and certainly to please Dad. What should she do? What else indeed but get another coat, with a Paquin shawl collar of wolf fur—a beautiful fashionable long haired fur that she knows Dad would like. After all, Mitzi is considerate.

There's this black cloth coat with a wide fur collar. Notice how the fur is used on the sleeves, not on the cuff but above it. It's a lovely wrap and Dad would probably like most everything on it but the figures on the price tag. Still Dad would really like her to have it, Mitzi is sure.

"I knew you'd like the lynx trimming, Dad, it's stunning, isn't it?" Dad admits it is. "I really bought it to please you because of the long haired fur," says Mitzi. "Pleased?" Well, Dad doesn't quite know whether he is. He does wish that Mitzi wouldn't take him so seriously—not when he has to pay the bills.

HATTIE

A STORY OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

By SAMUEL MERWIN

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and ALICE, Hattie's married sister, and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagnet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac.

ARTHUR, has deserted for several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

The second picture, "The Pharaoh's Daughter," is released and is an even greater success than "Bagdad."

Another picture is made and when it is finished De Brissac proposes that he and Hattie shall go east and make personal appearances with the first showing.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

The De Brissac complication disturbed her; it might easily spoil the experience. And yet this desire to see the big city once more, to look up her old friends, to be feted and acclaimed in that wonderful way by the public, even the desire to run away from Hollywood where she had been so continually excited and so bitterly if vaguely unhappy—all this was like an ache in her heart. Yes, she must go.

"See here, Hattie, you mean to say you don't know what's the matter with me?"

"Why no . . . Oh!"

Alice was nodding grimly.

"Yes, I'm going to have another one. You can't always foresee these things. We didn't—well, plan any such thing, of course. Not until Arthur could get on his feet more, but . . . ."

She let that sentence die, too. Hattie, her color rising, was studying her plate. A fear that had quieted somewhat of late was painfully alive again. And with it a new resentment . . . . in a queer way it seemed as if Alice and Arthur should have consulted her, or at least considered her. There would be no checking the expense of it—doctors, hospital, special nurses, and all.

She heard Alice's voice going on—

"If only Arthur now . . . . he needs a shakeup so . . . . It would be wonderful for him . . . . I don't think you always realize how hard he works for us all . . . . I encourage him all I can to get out and mix around. He likes people. He needs them. But he devotes himself absolutely . . . ."

"I'll take Hedwig," said Hattie with the decisiveness of a child.

"But Hedwig could never look out for—"

"I'm going to take her." Hattie rose from the table. It was a bold step; but she was going, and not with Arthur, never with Arthur. She couldn't see her way . . . certainly she couldn't bring herself to tell De Brissac that Alice couldn't come . . . . but she was going. With Hedwig, in that compartment! Back east . . . . Harriet John. And she wondered if it was a Grand Canyon car. She hadn't yet seen the Grand Canyon.

There was no work at the studio. She went out to the garage behind the bungalow, walking and looking like a school girl in her simple blue dress and sweater and little white hat pulled down on her head. Arthur used the car a good deal. That was another small irritation. But it stood there in the garage; he had ridden over to Frank's with someone else today.

She drove over to Wiltshire boulevard and turned in behind the Ambassador; parked her car there and strolled in quietly in along the corridor where the shops are that display Chinese and Japanese things and custom automobile bodies and fancy cigarettes and pretty things to wear. Somewhere in this labyrinth of corridors stood a rack of time tables. She had seen it. She lingered by the shop windows. It was stirring to know that she could if she chose step in through any of these doorways and buy almost anything she wished. They'd gladly give her credit. She heard a group of tourists whispering among themselves, and then, in the blaze of a show window saw them glancing at her. She liked this. It was always happening nowadays, this being pointed out as the famous Harriet John. She lingered on to indulge fully in the luxury of it.

She found the rack, and took a brightly colored folder that advertised the most popular transcontinental trains. There was a thrill in merely handling it. She folded it up and put it way in her bag; and then, very demurely walked upstairs into the vast lounge and sat for a little while just because it was still a delight to know that she belonged here by right. She tapped the arm of her chair with a slender finger and hummed very softly. New York! . . . . Harriet John!

She put the car back in its garage and entered the bungalow without a sign of expression on her pretty face.

Arthur met her at the door. He must have been watching there. He drew her a little way along the porch in his most important manner.

"I've taken the liberty, Hattie—" she wished he wouldn't whisper in that eager way "of bringing a young chap along home. He was at Frank's this noon. He's just passing through. Here's the big point—he writes for one of the big magazines down east, one of the swell ones—and he was asking could get an interview with Harriet John. Just pure luck! I was right there. Here's the point—it's a big chance. Real publicity. The kind you can't buy. He's one of these highbrows that knocks the pictures. But he says that there's no other screen artist that holds out so much hope for better pictures. That's the line to follow, see! Better pictures. Art!"

He would have said more, but Hattie turned away. Eagerly then he followed her within.

The young man had dropped into one of the big chairs in the living room. His name was Mr. Dempster. He was blonde, like herself; she saw that. And when he sprang up and hurried to meet her her eyes rested on his slim strong shoulders and his long hands. He didn't stride like an actor; if anything he was awkward. The face was sensitive, with a nice long nose and a rather wide mouth that broke quickly into a smile. Stirred as she already was, the mere sight of him here in her own living room and the grip of his hand stirred her the more. He was a gentleman. He silenced her. After all the pseudo-gentlemen of the picture lot, with their elaborate over-dressing and their extremes of manner, his manner, his pleasantly respectful look and his careless way of wearing his clothes, as if he didn't know what he had on and didn't care, was almost a delightful sort of shock. She could remember seeing gentlemen occasionally back in New York and day dreaming about them. There were some here in Hollywood, of course, but in this atmosphere of advertising—of push, press clamor, of what the picture people themselves boiled down into the single expressive word "showmanship"—they never seemed to have any real place. You were hardly aware of them.

Arthur slipped, unobserved, from the room. He had learned to do that.

She said—she tried to say it in an easy natural way, something that would sound like the way he wore his clothes—

"Won't you sit down?"

She dropped down on a window-seat herself; on her foot, wondering the next moment if she shouldn't have sat up more properly.

"It's awfully good of you to see me in this informal way Miss John. Mr. Hamlin told me you weren't busy now."

"We've just finished a picture."

"Yes, so he explained. I suppose you're tired. It must be a good deal if a strain."

Health and Diet Advice

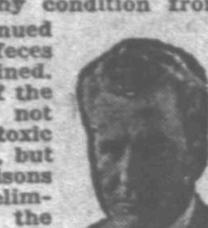

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

CURING CONSTIPATION

One who has been troubled with constipation for a long time must realize that the colon must be in a very unhealthy condition from the long continued poisoning of feces too long retained. The irritation of the membrane is not only due to toxic food substances, but to bodily poisons which must be eliminated through the intestines.

Some of the very worst of the natural impurities which come from bodily wastes must be thrown out through the colon, but are retained in the lower bowel for often as long as a day. If excess toxins are added to these natural ones, more irritation is necessarily set up.

It is wise for the one who is seriously trying to overcome constipation to first of all cleanse the colon of any accumulated feces and keep the membrane of the colon as clean as possible for several weeks so that any colitis may be cured and any extreme irritation of the membrane healed.

For this cleansing purpose there is no better treatment than with the enema. Colonic irrigations with plain warm water will clean the colon as thoroughly as possible, and cannot injure the membrane in any way. There is no more unclean part of the body than the inside of the intestines, and surely pure water cannot be harmful, but, on the other hand, such treatment must be always beneficial in spite of the ridiculous claims of some that the bowels will become paralyzed and forget how to move of their own accord.

The enema not only cleanses the bowels, but actually gives them more exercise to do by furnishing the additional bulk of water which stimulates peristalsis and really encourages the muscles of the intestines to greater activity.

Practically all patients who come to me for advice suffer from constipation in addition to their other troubles which, in many cases, are directly caused by the unclean condition of their intestines. In all cases, whether constipation exists or not, I always advise patients to take daily enemas for at least several weeks at the start of their treatment. I have them do this, no matter what disease they are suffering from.

This then is the first step to take in the cure of constipation: Take at least one enema daily, and better two, of a quart of plain warm water, without soap, salt or any medicinal preparation. Take the enema in any position which will allow the water to flow freely. The knee-chest position or lying on the back will be found most effective in thoroughly distributing a quart of water throughout the five feet of colon.

Remember, these enemas are to be kept up for several weeks.

In tomorrow's article I will explain the remaining steps to be taken in the cure of constipation.

QUESTION: I. D. asks: "What is good for hysterics when one is having them? Is nervousness the cause?"

ANSWER: The one who is really suffering from hysteria can do very little for himself, and even his friends cannot do much to help him at the time. Sometimes, placing the patient in a tub of warm water will help quiet the nerves and bring the patient more quickly out of an hysterical attack. Please write to me for a special article on "Hysteria."

QUESTION: Mrs. I. Y. writes: "My husband has to take his lunch which now contains wholewheat bread, cheese, ham, salmon, also a couple of cakes. Would you please give me some fillings for sandwiches, also a dessert?"

ANSWER: The wholewheat bread sandwiches can be made of cheese or any one kind of meat, or filled with peanut butter, avocado, or just plain lettuce and butter. A handful of raisins or dried figs makes a fine dessert for a noon lunch.

QUESTION: M. H. G. asks: "Will you please tell me what causes the face to draw on the right side?"

ANSWER: The drawing of your face may be caused by hysterical paralysis or from neuritis, or trifacial neuralgia. Sometimes the nerve irritation on one side of the face is caused by an abscessed tooth or an impacted wisdom tooth.

But the Lord shall endure for ever; he hath prepared his throne for judgment.

And he shall judge the world in righteousness, he shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness.

The Lord also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refugee in times of trouble.

And they that know thy name will put their trust in thee; for thou Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek thee.—Psalms, ix, 7-10.

INGROWN NAIL

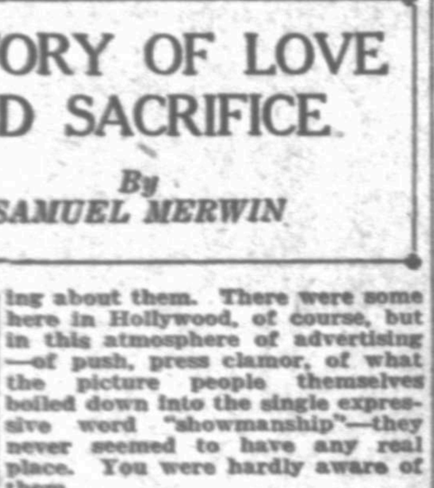

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

Plainview Dangerous Foe To Hopes Of Coyotes As Teams Line Up For District Test

AND—

A Column of 57 Columns in Spork

BY VON

Two nite services for local fans on this week's gridiron:

Junior college vs. Wesley college.

Wichita Falls Coyotes vs. Plainview.

Electra journeys up to Amarillo this week to engage the Golden Sandstorm in gridiron battle. That gives the Coyote fans a good chance to collect some statistics to compare the paper strength of the Buck and the Sandstorm, who will oppose Bang in whirlwind at the latter county capital for what looks now to be the deciding game for the district: No. 2 championship on Thanksgiving day.

* * *

Another chance to compare Wichita Falls and Amarillo on paper will come when the result of the Crystal game with Plainview this week is added to the records. Plainview runs that ago back to Amarillo by a score of 19 to 6. Vernon, Plainview hold Wichita Falls to a 6-6 knotthole; Wichita Falls in a pandemonium scores, 12-12, on the Bengal near mile heats on same two bouts about after the Plainview game. Nothing of course in Plainview wins the contest, which however, does not seem to be the likely outcome.

The third district No. 2 contest on the calendar for Saturday is the engagement between Quanah and Ballinger. So far Quanah has been the weak sister of the conference and there is nothing to indicate other than a Ballinger victory by quite a substantial score. One remembers of course that the Duke last week gave Quanah a 60 to 2 drubbing.

* * *

Wesley college, defeated last week by Burleson county in Wichita Falls on Friday, November 18, and the Hawkins are drilling hard for a chance to capture the contest. Having lost to Central last week, the Junior college squad is gaining form for the coming battle while several of the injured stars, still suffering from hurts in earlier games, are nursing their wounds into shape that they may be able to enter Saturday's fray.

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 15.—Coach Jones called for basketball players to start practicing last Tuesday. The first evening there were about 10 out and the second about 20, with more every evening since. After the football season several valuable additions will be made to the team. Several of the boys showed up well and Howard Blair, Alex Herrington, Green Harrison, Alvin Morgan, John Holmes and Herman Brown are expected to help make the team one of the best in the county.

Louisiana Suffers Loss of Valued Star

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 15.—Louisiana, which is preparing for its annual Thanksgiving day clash with Mississippi A. & M. here next Thursday, received a severe blow today with the unofficial announcement that Jesse Thomas, Tiger candidate for all-southern tackle, had sustained a broken bone in his right leg at various practices in the Georgia Tech game Saturday. The Bengals are beginning today their intensive practice for the season's gridiron engagement of the state.

Four Track Records Open Bowie Meeting

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14.—Four new records were established in as many races at the opening of the fall meeting of the Bowie race track Monday. Jockey Eddie Ambrose scored a triple triumph, bringing home E. R. Bradley's Dolly, the Bradley Prince George entry, handicap, the feature event.

ALL-AMERICA SAYS BERRIAN

Danny Berrian, referee of the Texas university-Kansas Aggies football game at Austin on Armistice day is a former all-American star. He won national recognition while playing with Williams college.

LOCAL ELEVEN FACES DANGER

Coyote Coach Spurns No False Optimism

Plainview, coming here on Saturday to engage the Wichita Falls Coyotes, will be a pretty tough nut to crack for the Buck. This is the last game of Coach Bud McCallum's contract. Monday to the Record News.

"The Plainview bunch has been improving every week and they are playing real football. Early in the season they lost some games but apparently that was due to the luck that their coach, Guy Moss, was down with typhoid fever," McCallum said.

Since Coach Moss's return to Plainview with his charges the Whitemen have been playing a different brand of football, McCallum pointed out.

Members of the Coyote squad were busy Monday afternoon drilling for the Plainview contest and McCallum appeared cheerful over the prospects of having all his players in shape with the possible exception of Alfred who is still nursing an injured hand.

MORE MEN TO SEEK HOME MOUNTAIN GOAT

There will be no lack of hunters who will accompany the Coyotes to Amarillo for the Thanksgiving day football game with the high school team of that city, judging from the number who are being sold for the special train which the Fort Worth and Denver road will operate for the occasion.

More than 100 tickets had been sold Monday afternoon, according to reports of the ticket sale committee. Committee members expressed the belief that a minimum of 200 tickets would be sold by Wednesday morning.

J. W. Cullum, traffic and industrial manager of the Chamber of Commerce who is working with the committee, said Monday that in connection with reduced rates offered by the railroad to Amarillo with 25 per cent saving good for the train.

This will be the first time this fall this line has been in day coaches, Mr. Cullum said.

Eleven apartments in the Ballman will rent approximately $6,250 in addition to the train fare, which will be $5.76, making a total of $16.26 for the round trip to the Sandies. However, if as many as 200 persons buy tickets the rate will be reduced to $6.00. Reservations may be made at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The committee will be in charge of the train. Dancing in the morning, on the train, Thanksgiving morning, the traffic department of the Chamber of Commerce will be open until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning for the sale of tickets.

The various ticket offices will be opened as early as 6 o'clock Thanksgiving morning, for the convenience of fans coming.

Beginning Tuesday, November 22, tickets will also be on sale at Kemp's drug store.

Sharkey hurt his hand while in training for what was to have been his first comeback attempt here since being knocked out by Jack Dempsey last July.

Horned Frogs Training For Turkey Day Test

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Texas Christian university Horned Frogs have turned their attention to the final game of the season, the annual turkey day battle with Southern Methodist university. Despite the defeats by other elevens and the elimination of the Christians as conference championship contenders the Frogs will undergo a rigid training for the approaching battle. A win from the Mustangs will at least take some of the sting from other losses away.

TO BAT COMEBACK

Dale Day, former speed marvel of the track, is going to try to regain his old running form.

Ralph is the best all-around athlete in this university, and considering that this is his first year in football, he has done mighty good.

THREE IN TIE FOR GRID FLAG

Frederick, Mangum, Clinton in Hot Competition

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Nov. 14.—There are still three undefeated football teams in the Southwest Oklahoma interscholastic conference, Mangum with six scalps, and Frederick and Clinton with five each. Frederick and Mangum play at the latter place next Friday and the winner will play a post-season game with Clinton, providing that aggregation wins its contest Friday with Cordell, to decide the championship.

The Frederick Bearcats still have a number of injured who will hardly be able to play Friday, including Captain John Shepherd, quarterback. He was sick all week from injuries sustained to his kidneys in the Carnegie game Friday before last and could not even be present to see his teammates win from Elk City Friday, 21 to 7. It also seems that John Wessel, another backfield man, will be unable to play Friday, due to an injured knee and infected leg.

Others Are Injured.

Although suffering from injuries it is expected that Dent Smith, "Host" Gibson and Jack Lemonds, backfield men, will play part of the game Friday. Hubert Williams, the wiry little substitute who "toted" the ball so fallantly Friday, will again be in the lineup and Barker, another backfield substitute will also likely be called on.

The Bearcats' line also has some casualties, including O. L. Phipps Jr., speedy line end, who was badly hurt Friday. "Dock" McGee, who has been bothered with a dislocated shoulder, will be back in his position at tackle. It is also expected that Trey Smith, the other tackle, who has been out of the lineup because of a dislocated arm, since early in the season, will be back in the fray.

Some in Good Shape.

The other linemen, Pearson and Pritchard, ends; Cassidy and O. Williams, tackles; Worthington, "Hot Dog" Byrns and Flood, guards, and Emmick, center, are in the pink of condition.

It is the opinion of coaches and players of other teams, who have played against both Mangum and Frederick, that the Bearcats have the edge on the Greer county athletes.

Coaches Roy Danford and "Blondie" Williams will put the Bearcats through hard practice early in the week. If the weather is agreeable a large crowd of local fans will accompany the Bearcats to Mangum Friday.

How Teams Stand.

Following is the standing of the various teams in the conference:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Mangum	6	0	1.000
Frederick	5	0	1.000
Clinton	5	0	1.000
Cordell	3	2	.600
Mountain View	3	2	.572
Boyce	3	2	.600
Weatherford	3	2	.600
Hollis	3	3	.500
Elk City	3	4	.429
Carnegie	2	5	.286
Bessie	1	4	.200
Duke	1	4	.200
Bessie	0	6	.000

Results Last Friday.

Weatherford 7, at Clinton 19.
Mountain View 6, at Cordell 12.
Elk City 21, at Frederick 21.
Boyce 12, at Brick 19.
Mangum 64, at Hobart 2.
Hollis 19, at Altus 12.

Games Next Friday.

Frederick at Mangum.
Clinton at Cordell.
Altus at Duncan (no conference contest).
Weatherford at Carnegie.
Elk City at Boyce.

Saints Training Hard For Hill Billy Battle

AUSTIN, Nov. 14. (AP)—Not discouraged by their heart-breaking defeat at the hands of Howard Payne Yellow Jackets at Brownwood Friday, the St. Edwards Saints began preparation Monday for their first and only home game of the season. The game will be played Saturday at the Texas Memorial stadium with the Daniel Baker Hill Billies, one of the strongest teams of the T. I. A. A. conference.

Playing 'em Over

With the Dixie Champions

Friday, May 20, wasn't exactly a day of celebration for the Spudders as the Dixie champions-to-be dropped their nine-inning contest to the Bears by a score of 5 to 4 and lost their first series on the road. The Bear victory also trimmed the Spudder lead to four games.

Loss of the Friday game to the Bears also brought the first reverse of the season for Joe Kiefer, Spudder hurler, who had up to that time amassed a string of five victories. He went into the ninth inning of the game with the count tied and the game locked sure to be an extra-stanza affair. The Spuds had gotten off to a lead of four runs, scoring two markers in the first and two in the fourth. The Spuds knotted the score, however, in the last innings by scoring once each in the fifth and sixth and twice in the seventh.

But when Philbin came up in the ninth, he spanked one of Kiefer's heaves for a brace of bags and Phipps, next up, singled for the winning tally, Philbin scoring after a speedy dash from the keystone sack. Phipps' single was a tough one for Joe as the Spudder hurler had the Bear batsman in the hole with two strikes marked against him.

In this game, Mann collected three hits, all singles, while Fitzgerald, Turgeon and Kiefer each clouted safely twice, also all for one base. After the contest the Spudders moved up to Waco for their next series.

Tuesday night Mandell tackles Spug Myers of Pocatello, Idaho, slightly heavier than the lightweight champion and a hard puncher, whose 137 pounds make him ineligible for a chance at the title in the 10-round engagement at the coliseum. Mandell also will not make the weight limit.

JURY TAMPER ACTION NEAR

Government Expects To Bring Indictments

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—With indictments imminent, District Attorney Peyton Gordon today prepared to bring to a close the grand jury investigation of alleged tampering with the Fall-Sinclair trial jury.

Satisfied that he has established a prima facie case against several persons on charges of jury tampering, perjury and subornation of perjury, the government counsel ordered the final group of witnesses to appear at the court house tomorrow.

Burns to Testify

At the same time William J. Burns, ahead of the international detective agency which bears his name, who has admitted being hired by the Sinclair interests to shadow the trial jury, will be given another opportunity to testify.

Burns and his two sons, W. Sherman and Raymond Burns, were at the court house this morning ready to "refute" the story told by William J. McMullin, Burns operative "L-37," who declares he was ordered by the elder Burns to make a false affidavit for the purpose of framing the prosecution and accusing government counsel of tampering with the Teapot Dome jury.

When the Burnses arrived at the court house, they were told by Neil Burkinshaw, young assistant district attorney, in charge of the investigation, that they would not be permitted to go before the grand jury.

Plead For Hearing

The burns officials protested to District Attorney Gordon. After a conference lasting for more than an hour, it was agreed that the Burnses may testify tomorrow.

"But the district attorney's office and not the Burns agency will run this affair," Burns and his subordinates were told.

"They will not be allowed to make speeches to the grand jury," Burkinshaw added. "If they have any real testimony the grand jury will be willing and eager to hear them."

W. Sherman Burns told newspaper men "we've got something to disprove this man's story," tapping a breast pocket bulging with papers.

Proof Kept Secret

Burns would not divulge whether he plans to spring another affidavit on the government.

"Further investigation of McMullin's character has convinced us beyond a shadow of a doubt that he is an honest, patriotic God-fearing man," one of the government counsel said today.

The statement was made after newspaper dispatches from Philadelphia had quoted William V. Long of Trenton, N. J., whose name McMullin used in enlisting in the Burns forces, as objecting to such use of his name.

Assistant District Attorney Burkinshaw talked with Long over long distance telephone after the dispatches were received here, but Long was quoted as saying he didn't want to discuss the matter because "how do I know you are from the district attorney's office?"

McMullin admitted using Long's name and papers but said it was by permission.

Two Witnesses Heard

Only two witnesses appeared before the grand jury today. They were James L. Riddle of Wardman Park hotel, and John F. Schlotterbeck of the Mayflower hotel. They produced records of telephone calls made by persons connected with the case.

Schlotterbeck identified a long distance call slip which disclosed a call from the rooms occupied by Henry F. Sinclair at the Mayflower hotel to Rector 9320, New York City. That is the number of Sinclair's New York office.

The oil millionaire's chief clerk, Harry Jeffreys, had admitted to the grand jury that he received a call from Sinclair's room ordering the Burns detective agency to be hired to shadow the Teapot Dome jury.

Other Calls Traced

Other slips listed calls from the suite occupied by Burns detectives at Wardman Park hotel to the home of Donald Woodward, millionaire department store owner, at whose home H. Mason Day, Sinclair's "contact" man, stayed during part of the trial.

Kell Faces Opposition in His Race For U. S. Federal Reserve Director

DALLAS, Nov. 14. (AP)—Preferential ballots for the election of two directors of the Federal Reserve bank of the Eleventh district were placed in the mails Monday. The election is to close on December 1. Two ballots, one for class A director and one for class B were sent to member banks of the district.

J. H. Frost, president of the Frost National bank of San Antonio, is up for re-election as class A director and A. M. Graves, president of the Red River National bank of Clarksville, is on the ticket with him.

There are four candidates for the position of class B director: Frank Kell, Wichita Falls, being up for re-election. Opposing him are S. P. Britt of Wheeler, A. Baker Duncan of Waco, and J. R. Milam of Waco.

Considerable discontent has been expressed at recent meetings of West Texas bankers over the policy of financing cotton loans and removal of the present Eleventh reserve governor has been urged, according to dispatches received in Wichita Falls. Opposition to Frank Kell, Wichita Falls, member of the federal reserve directorate, has developed on the grounds that he is in favor of retaining Governor Talley.

COMES BACK

I. J. White Returns Here After Absence Of 35 Years

I. J. White of Beaumont is in Wichita Falls for the first time since 1892. He left here that year with his father, the Rev. John C. White, who had served for four years as the pastor of the First Baptist church in Wichita Falls. The old church stood at Tenth and Indiana.

When the White family first moved here in 1888 they lived in a house located at Tenth and Lamar, on the present site of the Marchman hotel. Later, Mr. White said Monday, he attended a school located at that intersection.

Mr. White recalled the names of a number of old timers whom he knew here when Wichita Falls was a baby town. Many of these names are no longer to be found listed in the city directory. Mr. White is secretary of the state Baptist convention.

Pal Names Dead Man As Bandit

erstwhile companion had told him he had committed the series of attacks on Wichita Falls roads.

Other developments Monday also seemed to point to the dead man as the prepetrator of the highway outrages. One woman who viewed the body at the morgue is quoted as having "partially identified" him as the man who robbed her companion and attacked her several months ago. Several other men and women who were victims of the lone highwayman viewed the body, several expressing the belief he was their attacker but none identifying his positively.

The next few hours may determine if he is the man who has been sought in connection with a series of crimes at Cleburns. Police Chief Frank Burns talked over long distance Monday to Sheriff Joe Crawford of Cleburne, giving him an accurate description of the man. Finger prints were also sent Sheriff Crawford, so this phase of the mystery seems near a solution.

Cliff Keirsey, former local officer who is now special agent for the Dixon Motor company, positively identified the man as having been a convict in the Granite reformatory during 1919-1921. Mr. Keirsey was in charge of the bloodhounds at the Granits prison during those years. He said that the man, whom he remembered only as the "Gray Mare," who escaped from the prison, making his getaway on a gray mare, hence the nickname. He was recaptured and returned to prison, Mr. Keirsey said.

Granite officials were given this information. They are making an examination of the records of the institution Monday in an effort to supply the name.

In the meantime, the victim's fingerprints have been broadcast to officers in Texaxs and Oklahoma. This, it is believed, will soon lead to the identification of the man.

Police to Hold Body.

"The body will be held until we can find out positively who he is," Chief Burns said. "Everything possible is being done to dissipate the clouds of doubt surrounding his identity. Ere another day passes we should know his real name.

Hall, the man who stands charged by complaint with burglary, has told offices he did not know his late companion's name. He told officers, it is said, that he met the man at Electra and that they came to Wichita Falls together.

morgue. Later, the body of a woman was picked up from a sidewalk. The rescuers found almost insurmountable conditions in their path. They carried the injured through water waist deep. Tottering walls menaced them. Dangling electric wires sputtered on all sides. Yet the firemen, the policemen, and private citizens engaged in the work of rescue, forgot their own danger in their feverish effort to rescue others.

When it became evident that the capacity of every hospital in the city was taxed, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army established first aid stations on the outside rim of the devastated area. Here scores of persons were given medical attention. Many doctors braved the perils of the region, and carrying emergency kits, they entered the danger zone to seek out and help victims of the disaster.

485 Are Injured.

A checkup of hospitals tonight showed that 485 injured persons were given treatment. Some were so badly hurt that doctors feared they would not survive. Among the injured were many school children who were just about to enter classrooms as the tank, 233 feet in circumference and 208 feet high, let go. The pupils were showered with flying glass.

MANY ARRESTS IN BOMB CASE

Obregon Talks With Two Of His Assailants

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—Wholesale arrests were being made by police today in a desperate effort to reach those responsible for yesterday's unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Gen. Alvaro Obregon.

The police dragnet hauled in obscure citizens with those formerly high in governmeht affairs, but who are now actively engaged against the presidential candidacy of the former president.

Miguel Alassio Robles, former secretary of industry and labor, was perhaps the most prominent man arrested by police in connection with the death plot. He was arrested late last night as he was leaving a theater in company with friends.

A few hours later, police raided the Robles home in search of incriminating evidence. Whether they were successful in their search was not disclosed.

Uses Bonned Car.

This morning, General Obregon visited police headquarters. He arrived in the bombed car which he left with the police. Outside of a broken windshield and a few bullet holes in the body, the car was little the worse for its experience with two bombs.

The general examined the car used by his assailants with considerable interest. He got into the car and assumed the position of the man whom he saw throw the first bomb.

Later he talked with two of his assailants. He talked with them for some time but refused to discuss what took place in the cell.

Librado Yanez, chauffeur of the assailant's car, died early today. He was shot through the head by one of Obregon's staff. Antonio Tirado and Francisco Oliva, a barber, two of the four occupants of the death car, were captured after a short chase through the streets in the vicinity of the American embassy. Both were wounded.

One Makes Statement.

Oliva, police said, had made a statement but Tirado, they said, has thus far refused to talk.

Obregon charged political enemies with engineering the plot to assassinate him and today he gave police the names of several of his political enemies whom he believed might know something about the plot.

Although slightly cut on the cheek by a piece of the windshield of his car, which was shattered by the blast of the first bomb, General Obregon continued to the bullfight arena. President Calles was in the arena and when he learned of the attempt on Obregon's life he came over to the general's box and congratulated him on his escape.

The panic stricken children added to the general confusion. They ran through the streets and were endangered by falling walls until rescuers finally rounded them up, sent the injured to hospitals, and the others to residences outside the stricken region.

Thickly Settled Area.

The disaster gripped an area of about one square mile, fronting on the Ohio river, and centering in Reedsdale street. The section is known as Manchester and is one of the city's oldest districts. It was thickly settled, old fashioned brick and frame dwellings crowding one upon the other, with factories, warehouses, and industrial plants intermingling. In the houses for the most part were families of the working men.

Fire Chief J. L. McClure was enthusiastic Monday night over the performance of the new Seagrave combination pump and hose wagon bought by the city. The apparatus was given several tests Monday, all of which it passed successfully.

Yancy Cummings Jr., son of Judge B. Y. Cummings, was suddenly stricken with appendicitis and operated on Monday by Drs. Mackechney, Heyman and Collins. The boy is reported improving rapidly. He is at the General hospital.

PANHANDLE CO. GETS GUSHER

Company Also Has Show In Archer County

Panhandle Refining company Monday reported the completion of another gusher well in the South Bend field, South Young county.

The well is Panhandle's No. 21 McCluskey, an offset to their No. 7 which is the district's prize well. From the lime topped at 4190 feet and drilled to a total depth of 4241 feet, the new well flowed 600 barrels in the past 24 hours.

It is the second big completion in the field during the past 10 days, Connor's No. 4 McCluskey coming in last week at the rate of 500 barrels daily.

The Panhandle Refining company is also about to open up a new field in southwest Archer county in its No. 1 Colgan, located in the J. P. Martin survey, about six miles north of Megargel.

This well is running pipe to a sand at 1471-3 1-2 feet and will test within the next few days.

Tanner Quits Humble Post

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 14.—N. E. "Buddy" Tanner, vice president of the National Oil Scouts association last year, one of the organizers of the West Texas Petroleum club of San Angelo and a director, has resigned his position as head of the land and scouting departments in West Texas. He made the announcement in San Angelo and will sever his relations with the firm as quickly as he is relieved of his duties.

Mr. Tanner expects to remain in San Angelo, following the oil industry as an independent operator. His family lives in San Angelo, though his work with the Humble has kept him stationed at McCamey. He built a home in San Angelo last spring.

He started working for the Humble Oil & Refining company eight years ago as a royalty gauger at Goose Creek, Texas. He has been with them ever since, spending two years at Mexia and Corsicana before coming to San Angelo in August, 1925, as head of the land and scouting departments.

Wolf Shot at Home In City of Dallas

DALLAS, Nov. 14. (AP)—When Sam Dillard, who resides in a thickly populated district here, miles from the usual woodland haunts of wild animals, found a wolf at his door Monday morning, unlike the gullible little Red Riding Hood, he slew the invader with his shotgun. The wolf was eating one of Dillard's chickens.

Rails and Industrials Climb Close to Record High Levels As Optimism of Bull Operators Pervades Wall Street

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Another stock dividend era has developed in the industrial world. At least that was the cry of the bulls in the stock market today as both rails and industrials climbed closer to record high levels during the afternoon advance.

The market was a specialty affair during the morning with the standard leaders drooping a little until the stock dividend ideas were circulated after the noon hour. The Steel corporation, Allied Chemical, Harvester and others were mentioned as among those from which recapitalization was to be expected. There was no definite indication of such development but the tax advices from Washington gave birth to the idea that "teeth would be put in the next revenue bill" and these corporations, it was argued, would capitalize a good part of surplus before such legislation.

Atchison, Central and others in the high grade rail list benefitted from similar talk while the merger rails responded to rumors concerning the southwestern consolidation plan.

Commodities slipped lower in quieter trading. Sterling registered a new high price in a generally firm foreign exchange market.

U. S. Steel will split up its stock eventually, according to those in the best position to know of its affairs. However, the recapitalization when it is decided upon will not be for tax-dodging purposes. It will be to place the shares in the hands of numerous small investors throughout the country. Harvester and other companies adding steadily to surplus account can be expected to take similar action, although there seems to be no thought in the minds of the Harvester board to recommend such action at this time.

If there were any doubt that Arthur Cutten, the midwest's stellar speculator, had turned bullish, it was dissipated by the highly optimistic interview he gave out concerning Harvester and its prospects. Union Carbide followed Harvester higher on the enthusiastic advices of those brokers here who are known to be associated with Cutten. While these two of the Cutten favorites were skyrocketing, however, there was considerable profit-taking noticeable in Montgomery Ward.

"Cutten" was not the only name given wide circulation in the speculative community. Although Durant was in the west, not to return until tomorrow, he was reputedly responsible for the activity in International Combustion and others. The Combustion pool operation has been one of the most disappointing of the year to date. It started several months ago and the high reached in the initial activity never has been duplicated. Some of those interested in the lower priced mergers shares put their pets fractionally higher by using Durant's name in their merger talk. General Motors and other leaders of the automobile group were laggardly under quiet but steady profit-taking.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (AP)—With a 2,093,000 bushel increase of the United States wheat visible supply announced today, offerings of wheat were more than could be readily absorbed. Besides, there was a prospect of rain in the southwest, where the domestic winter wheat crop is in need of moisture.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, ⅝ to 1c net lower, corn ⅛ to ⅝c down, oats ⅛ to ½@⅝c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 15c.

Notwithstanding that wet weather over Iowa and Illinois reduced country offerings of corn to almost nothing, corn prices averaged lower, continuing to reflect the sensationally bearish showing of the latest official crop figures. Oats demand was less brisk, and the oats stock in Chicago showed 450,000 bushels increase.

Provisions were irregular, lard developing late firmness on account of talk about likelihood of a liberal decrease being shown in the amount of lard on hand here.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14. (AP)—Wheat prices remained unchanged Monday. Corn and oats were also unchanged, the only variation on the grain market being a drop of two cents in kaffir. Exporters bid $1.36 to $1.37 for No. 1 hard wheat delivered Texas gulf ports.

Wheat, corn and oats unchanged.

No. 2 kaffir $1.33@1.38; No. 3 kaffir $1.28@1.32; rest unchanged.

COTTON MART QUIET HERE

Prices Hold Even Tone With Receipts Light

There was little activity in Wichita Falls cotton markets Monday, with the usual lull which follows week-ends being more emphasized because of the lateness of the season.

The market closed 15 points below the close of Saturday, but this had little effect on prices paid for the staple in Wichita Falls.

Local buyers paid 19 cents for middling, with the range of prices being upward from 17 cents for snaps.

Receipts were light, local cotton yards reporting about 25 bales received.

Local gins continued to pay $35 a ton for prime seed.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today under renewed liquidation, combined with southern and local selling, promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, reports of warmer weather in the south and a less active demand after the rallies late last week. January contracts sold off to 19.66 or 28 points net lower, and closed at 19.80, the general market closing steady, at net declines of 21 to 26 points.

The market opened easy, at a decline of 5 to 16 points in response to the easier cables. Buying developed on the report of the census bureau showing domestic consumption of 612,935 bales, against 568,361 last year, but demand was supplied on bulges of 8 or 10 points and the market soon turned easier.

These consumption figures were somewhat above general expectations and their failure to bring in a more general or active demand, was considered a disappointment to buyers of late last week. This may have accounted for some of the selling which followed the early rally and which sent prices about 27 to 30 points below Saturday's closing quotations.

December liquidation in preparation for the first notice day today the end of this month appeared to be a factor of some importance, although there was a demand for the near months from spot houses at a discount of about 25 points, as compared with March. December sold off to 19.59 and March to 19.83, the low point touched early in the afternoon, and while there were rallies of 18 or 20 points on covering they were not maintained, the close being within a few points of the lowest.

Trade interests were credited with buying cotton again today on scale down orders, but local brokers said the market showed evidences of a slightly easier technical position after the covering of late last week.

Private cables reported hedging and liquidation with a poor off take in the Liverpool market and that while China advices were more encouraging for business in cotton cloths, yarns made of American cotton were being pressed for sale.

Exports today 56,239, making 2,584,611 so far this season. Port receipts 73,267. U. S. port stocks 2,536,841.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14. (AP)—The cotton market here today was reactionary due to liquidation induced by the approach of the first notice day for December deliveries. The general market closed at net declines of 17 to 18 points.

January declined to 19.9⅛ or 13 points down, in the early trading, rallied to 20.10, eased off to 19.83, rallied to 20.07 and closed at 19.93, a drop of 17 points for the day. The jump to 20.07 was caused by fears of bad weather in the belt.

Near the opening of the market, the census bureau reported domestic consumption during October as 612,935 bales, a record for the month.

Liverpool was 3 to 9 penny points lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 3 to 9 points, with the decline continuing until December went down to 19.93 and March to 20.07. After a 12 to 14 point rally the market turned easier on liquidation and dropped to 27 to 30 points under the early highs. Fears of bad weather brought about a 20 to 24 point advance, but this was lost when December later declined to 19.85 and March to 20.01, a loss of nearly a dollar a bale for the day.

Exports totaled 56,316 bales.

HIKING CLUB.

See Thelma Wilhite about what to bring. Be thinking of plans for making money."

Educator Delivers Two Addresses to Teachers

Dr. J. M. Glass, well known educator who has been brought to the city by the Teachers association, delivered two addresses to the city teachers Monday.

The first lecture was Monday afternoon at the Zundelowitz Junior high school. Dr. Glass treated his subject "Secondary Education" from four main angles, vision, psychology, a reconstructive program of studies, and an improvement in the learning processes rather than in the teaching of processes.

The second lecture on "The Heritage of American Children" was delivered Monday evening at the Junior college building.

Kiwanis Club Pays Tribute To Rev. F. T. Datson at Monday Meet

Eulogy to the late Rev. Fred T. Datson and discussion of the community chest took up most of the Kiwanis club program Monday. Resolutions of condolence on the death of the Rev. Datson were passed after a brief talk on his life by J. N. Sherrill, chairman of the resolutions committee.

The Rev. Datson served the club as a director, vice president and president. Mr. Sherrill described his administration as "strictly a Datson administration." "The 'parson' never side-stepped," he said.

"He was not one to hope that time alone would overcome a difficulty but met the issue squarely. He was fearless and when once a course was determined upon, neither asked nor gave quarter. We know he was not overbearing but was forebearing. We called him 'Parson.' I think that no one else should have that name in the club out of respect to him. It seems to me that perhaps the greatest gift he had for us was his humor. He was always ready with a witty remark and did not mind a good joke on himself and often told them. I know we miss him sorely."

Resolution Adopted

The resolution as read was passed. It reads:

"Whereas, God has claimed Fred T. Datson, a member of the Kiwanis club, Wichita Falls, Texas, and

"Whereas, he was a charter member of this club, had held various offices, including that of president during 1924, and was considered to be our wisest counsel, efficient worker, valuable member, and

"Whereas, we loved him for geniality, graciousness, friendliness, and high mindedness, therefore

"Be it resolved by the Kiwanis club, Wichita Falls, Texas, that we take this method of giving expression to our feelings in such loss. We are deeply grieved and sorely depressed in his passing; and

"Be it further resolved by this club at this, its regular meeting that a copy of this resolution be sent to his grief stricken family, and further that a copy be spread upon the records of this club.

(Signed) J. N. Sherrill,
Walter H. Caldwell,
J. W. Akin,
Resolutions committee.

A letter from the Datson family thanking the club for its expression of sympathy during the illness and death of the husband and father was read.

Hines Speaks

Harry Hines, vice-chairman of the Community Chest drive, talked briefly to the club of the coming activities. He urged that all who could do their work next Monday as no great burden had been given to any one man. "Hit them hard, fast and full of pep," he said. He read a letter from a woman who had used the day nursery for her children commending it. He told of one other cases.

Miss Margaret Caldwell, soprano of Fort Worth and sister of Kiwanian W. H. Caldwell, gave two numbers accompanied by Mrs. Cortes Slaughter of Wichita Falls.

The club adjourned out of respect to the memory of the Rev. Datson.

Pickelsimer to Answer Charge in Oklahoma

Louis Pickelsimer, who was clubbed and shot by an unidentified companion near Iowa Park about two weeks ago, left for Taloga, Okla., Monday morning. He was accompanied by Sheriff Jones of Taloga, who is returning him to that place to face a charge of automobile theft.

The youth waived extradition. He was taken into custody by Sheriff W. G. Bralley Saturday when he was discharged from Wichita General hospital, where he had been receiving treatment for his injuries. Efforts to locate the man who attacked the youth while he slept in a haystack near Iowa Park have been futile.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL MAY REACH GOAL TONIGHT

MANY RESPOND ON FIRST DAY

150 Women to Canvass Residential Area

Red Cross officials Monday night expressed satisfaction with the progress of the annual roll call. Workers reported during the day that they were being well received and that people are responding in large numbers.

None of the workers made final reports Monday, but it is expected that most of them will complete the canvass in their territories by Tuesday afternoon. Several workers on the preliminary campaign for donations reported many out of the city, but they are retaining the cards for use when the men return. No report of the number of memberships nor the amount of money received was available Monday, but figures will be made public Tuesday afternoon.

Goal of 4000 Members.

Preliminary reports of group roll calls in business firms having 25 or more employes were very satisfactory and indications were that a large number of firms would report 100 per cent membership Tuesday. Monday afternoon reports showed that the Robbins company, Saul's store and the Hub had joined 100 per cent strong. The goal has been set at 4000 members and while the end of the first day's work has not brought in half that number, it is confidently expected that the total will be greatly increased Tuesday when further reports are received from workers in the business district, and after reports from about 150 women workers in the residence districts begin coming in.

Mrs. T. H. Lawson, chairman of the women's committee, reports that everything is in readiness and that approximately 150 women will start canvassing the residence districts at 9:30 Tuesday morning.

The following women have volunteered their services through the various school P.-T. A. organizations: Mesdames C. K. Johnson, Floyd A. Bash, Frank Billingsley, W. O. Beeman, G. S. Breneman, A. W. Kerrenbrock, J. G. Gossett, Harry Graham, George Bays, S. A. Covington, C. W. Clark, R. E. Ducker, C. W. Heard, Ross Borelett, C. L. Baum, C. K. Stillwagon, W. W. Cook, O. P. Dorsey, O. G. Scott, Mary Beggett, Billy Staniforth, H. C. James, W. E. Wilson, W. Roberts, R. M. Waggoner, Payton, Eddie Williams, T. W. Goens.

Mesdames A. E. York, W. T. Bittles, L. French, J. S. Gullihorn, R. A. Lincoln, E. B. Lehrack, Frank Roberts, J. Z. Steinkoenig, J. T. Gant, E. H. Yager, R. P. Willis, C. P. Warman, P. C. Biggs, Sullivan, Sam Neely, Gaunt, H. G. Helgerson, E. Jameson, Leverett, Weist, J. H. Wall, T. H. Lawson, Charles Kelsey, Olan White, Barclay, J. W. Dobbs, W. Bachman, J. D. Coombs, C. V. Chenault, F. Rose, E. S. Marshall, M. Shain, J. H. Allison and others.

The fees for the Red Cross membership are as follows: Annual membership, $1; contributing membership, $5; sustaining membership, $10; supporting membership, $25; life membership, $50; and patron membership, $100.

Noble to Answer Fight Film Charge Today

T. R. Noble Jr., manager of the Dent Theaters here, will probably plead guilty Tuesday before Judge C. M. McFarland in the county court-at-law to exhibiting price fight pictures. Mr. Noble early Monday was undecided as to his action but later held a conference with John Humphrey, assistant county attorney and said he would plead guilty Tuesday morning.

H. R. McFarlane, Burkburnett picture show operator, pleaded guilty to the same charge and was fined $100. The cases resulted from the showing of the Tunney-Dempsey fight pictures.

Officer's $100 Fine Remitted By Court

Fine of $100 assessed against E. S. Richardson, deputy constable, was remitted Monday by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court. The fine was assessed last week when the officer failed to appear as a witness for the state. He told the court he was in Borger at the time on official business and that he understood the trial date was this week. Sam R. Spence, assistant district attorney, concurred in asking a remission of the penalty.

Santa's Sack Contest Attracts Many Contestants; "Lots of Fun," They Say

"Oh, it's lots of fun.

This from scores of anxious contestants who are determined to win one of the big cash prizes in the "Santa's Sack Contest" which was announced in Sunday's Record News. Each person who is interested in winning one of the generous cash prizes is urged to read the rules and regulations as they appeared on the big Santa advertisement.

Santa Claus was shown spilling packages from his sleigh—each package bearing the name of a prominent Wichita Falls business house. Elsewhere in the paper, each of these business houses had a display advertisement. Printed in small type and inconspicuous was an item labelled "Santa's Item," or "Santa's Sack Item." The object of the contest is to fill these packages with their proper items. This spread will be reproduced five times, or for the next four Sundays. Each issue the business houses will show a new "Santa's Sack Item." And each Sunday it will be necessary for contestants to study the advertisements and place the "Santa's Sack Item" in the proper box. When all five have been completed, then they must be sent or brought to The Record News office, where they will be judged for the prize winners.

It is not necessary to put any descriptive matter in the box on the big ad. For example, a jewelry store might designate a certain kind of wrist watch as Santa's Item. They might have a fairly long description of the watch. It is not necessary to fill in anything but the bare name and price of the Santa's Sack Item on the big ad. This may be written or printed in the black space on the box just below the name of the firm.

Contestants are advised to save each Sunday paper as not back numbers are available.

MAJESTIC: "Now We're in the Air," with Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton; Fables, Topics; Football News and Paramount News.

STRAND: "Camille," with Norman Talmadge; Comedy and Pathe News.

OLYMPIC: "Metropolis," with all-star cast, and Fox News.

MISSION: "Black Pirate," with Douglas Fairbanks; comedy and Chapter 7 of "Blake of Scotland Yard," and Al Russell's Baby Vampires on the stage in musical comedy.

GARDEN: Colleen Moore in "It Must Be Love," western picture and comedy.

GEM: "Man From the West," with Art Accord; and comedy.

Wichita Falls has a chance to show its appreciation of the best the motion picture industry has yet contributed. "Metropolis" which Paramount presented at the Olympic theater yesterday deserves the support of every moviegoer in town. It can safely be said, without any fear of contradiction, that the picture goes just a bit further than any other film has ever done.

Metropolis" is the imaginative tale of what our old earth will be like in the year 2927. If we're to believe this remarkable picture, airplanes will be as common as autos. Buildings will shoot right up to the sky. The rich will live in beautiful homes on the surface, machine rooms will be down below and the workmen's homes will be located thousands of feet beneath. Huge elevators will be used in taking the men to work. Instead of names, each will have a number.

Enjoy mouth-harp music? And "vocal jazz?" Of course you do! And that is the reason the Mission theater has two boys—very talented boys—who perform these entertaining tricks for the pleasure and satisfaction of its audiences. They're both unusually good and "get over" in great style. Quite the cream of the program.

The stock presentation, intricate and amusing in plot, was different in character were from any other shown by the Al Russell company. Its rustic comedy and hilarious incidents were enjoyable tonic for those seeking diversion.

The Imperial Hawaiians upheld their reputation staunchly as artists of string instruments and threw in some new songs for good measure. The Bon Ton ballet is still gracing the program with their "light fantastic" work, indicative of hard training. Charlie Moorehead, manager, stated that Al Russell's Baby Vampires would continue their stay here indefinitely.

Ramon Navarro and May McAvoy in "Ben Hur," coming to the Strand theater Friday.

They stated that it had been shown the defendant was under age and that there was also much question as to his intent to defraud at the time the transaction took place.

BURRIER CASE SET FEB. 13

Archer City Trial Delayed On State's Motion

J. W. Burrier, charged in the 30th district court at Archer City with the murder of John McDaniel will be tried Feb 13 before Judge Ernest G. Thornton. Monday the case was called for trial, but was postponed when District Attorney Ben P. Allred found an important witness absent.

The state presented amotion on this ground asking the continuance. S. H. Milwee, Colorado City, and W. E. Forgy, Archer City, of the defense conferred with Mr. Allred and Judge Thornton on the trial date. When the continuance was granted the special venire of 100 was dismissed and a new one will be drawn before the February term of the court at Archer City.

Burrier is alleged to have killed McDaniel while attempting to hold up a filling station operated by McDaniel. A second indictment charges him with the robbery of the filling station of E. H. McDaniel, brother of John McDaniel.

Burrier contends he was in Colorado City, his home, at the time of the crime and he is a victim of mistaken identity.

A Mother, Her Child, and One Dime!

Easy to Keep the System Sweet at Any Age

"HOW INNOCENT a drug can be—and how helpful! I'm done with purgatives that leave even a child's system so acid you can detect it in the perspiration. A little cascara is a perfect sweetener, and my boy and I both love the candy—

CASCARETS

Many people who never have to take a laxative eat a candy cascaret now and then. Do you know why?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drug-store has for 10c and 25c.

THE BEST PROOF

of the value of anything is: "Does It Work?" "Does it Get Results?" "What Is Its Accomplishment in Comparison With Something Similar?" Along this line where you show us ONE man who has achieved home ownership through large yearly pay notes we will show you A HUNDRED who have done so by small MONTHLY payments in the building and loan association. The building and loan plan of home ownership is so far superior to the yearly pay notes by EVERY method of comparison that the yearly pay notes are not in the running at all. When you attempt to pay notes due two or three thousand dollars a year you are handicapping yourself by striving for the almost impossible, but you can easily pay each monthly $31.66 for a $2000 or $47.50 for a $3000 loan in this company. Nearly 2000 people are. See us today.

Well, what DO you think of it? It's David Handy—handy with pistols, handy at closing and opening doors for baby sister, Mary Gene, when he is home—and handy in getting spankings as soon as he gets away from home. Yes, sir, we have his mother's word for it, and better authority than that there is none.

Mrs. Handy says David is the worst child she has—and there are three—when she has him out and the best one of the three when he is home. He is never too tired to do what mother tells him when he is at home and never willing to do the right thing when he is at church or out visiting, all of which goes to prove without a shadow of a doubt that David is a real fellow and will grow up to make Mother regret the frequency of those regular away-from-home spankings.

Oh, yes, David goes to school private school, that is, without being told to do so,—for the mere love of learning, as it were. He and James Ernest Jr., his six-year-old brother, attend school regularly with David leading the way every morning and David learning as quickly as does Junior. And he hasn't tired of it yet, either.

His father wants to make a doctor of David but has about decided that he had better follow in the footsteps of the elder and practice law when he grows up, that's his temperament. David is the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Handy, 1506 Harrison street.

70 Sign Petition For Call of Grand Jury

More than 70 signatures have been obtained in Iowa Park asking Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court to call a special grand jury to investigate traffic arrests. Mayor E. C. Knox said that he had not kept in close touch with the petitions but that he thought they would be presented to Judge Martin next week. W. R. Golden, chairman of the committee to obtain signatures, was out of the city Monday but Mayor Knox said he was sure Mr. Golden would take the petitions to other towns and communities in the county upon his return.

Carelessness

A careless employee—a thoughtless moment.

That is all it takes to shatter a plate glass window or display case.

Keeping the Facts of Business Available

Business is constantly changing. Today's fallacies become tomorrow's facts. Today's tools may be tomorrow's junk. The bank is the recognized clearing-house for the information that business depends on to chart its course. The rule of "see your banker first" becomes more and more sound, each day.

RHEUMATISM

may be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it when a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.
