Grins Are Seen After Gridiron Club's Banquet

FDR SEES HIMSELF DEPICTED AS SEEKING A NINTH TERM IN 1968 AND PREDICTING A BALANCED BUDGET SOON; ALF IS HIT

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—The gridiron club's satirical review of the 1936 election and the general political scene, witnessed by four of the presidential candidates, left some red faced today but most of them bore broad grins in recollections of the lampooning.

At the club's semi-annual dinner last night, President Roosevelt saw himself depicted as running for a ninth term in 1968, and predicting a balanced budget soon.

A scene of ancient Rome, showed him as "F. D. R., Imp.," while in the Ziegfeldian finale he was portrayed as a master showman.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the defeated Republican candidate, witnessed a theatrical autopsy on the rigid form of the G. O. P., which disclosed an appendix "tied in Knox," a full dinner pail in the stomach, and a "ham fish bone" in the larynx.

After these objects were removed, the G. O. P. arose and announced he would be able to run in 1940.

Norman Thomas and Earl Browder, the socialist and communist candidates, were among the 400 guests of the organization of Washington newspapermen. The president and Landon spoke "off the record."

Landon, after a day in the capital during which he called at the White House and Republican headquarters, left for his home early today.

Highlights of the show in which club members took all the roles, included these skits:

New Democratic congressmen learned to say "yes, sir," with a promise that if they supported all his bills, Mr. Roosevelt would call them by their first names.

CHRISTMAS CARDS OF FILM FOLK RANGE FROM PENNY-POSTALS TO SUPER-ELEGANT AFFAIR

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—Christmas cards ranging all the way from penny-postals to large and super-elegant placards were being exchanged today by Hollywood's movie stars.

Voted the most unusual was the one sent by singer Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman. It was a home-recorded phonograph disc, which, when played, brought their voices in a duet of Christmas carols, and finally a spoken message of greeting. A photograph of Miss Swarthout and Chapman was pasted on the central part of the disc.

Groucho Marx, true to character, treated it all as a "gag."

He sent Christmas cards last July 4. So now, his friends are receiving bunches of firecrackers, with the message, "I never was good at remembering dates."

Comedian Bob Burns gave himself a heavy assignment. He typed funny messages of greeting to 1,500 friends on the back of penny postals.

A large number of players sent telegrams. These included Carole Lombard, Jack Benny, Eleanor Powell, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

Unrestrained Naval Chase Is Predicted

GOLD THREATS ARE HALTED

ACTION BEING STARTED TO "FREEZE" INFLOW OF GOLD SUPPLIES

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 — The treasury began action today to "freeze" gold inflows and wipe out their double-edged threat to domestic economy.

The broad program, similar in some respects to that of the British equalization fund, provides for:

Purchase Provided

1. The purchase of all imported and domestic gold with treasury receipts from the sale of discount bills.

2. Deposit of future gold acquisitions in an "inactive" treasury account.

3. The purchase or redemption of outstanding bills by the treasury when old flows out.

"This balance wheel" plan has the effect of removing loanable funds from the money market when gold flows in and returning the fund when it goes out.

Runaway Inflation

Gold imports formerly were paid for by issuance of gold certificates to federal reserve banks. This operation had the effect of putting new funds from an outside source into the money market, swelling the reservoir of credit and laying the basis for potential "runaway inflation."

Conversely, under teh old system, old exports drained away loanable funds, tendin gto tighten credit.

The ne wsystem is designed to eliminate both dangers.

GREAT BRITAIN BEING DEPICTED AS THE WORLD LEADER

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Dec. 22—Great Britain was depicted today as leading a huge world-wide naval armament race with 99 warships under construction or planned.

The United States, with 83, was said to be second in the new edition of "Jane's fighting ships," foremost authority on warships.

Unrestrained Race

The publication drew a picture of an unrestrained race for naval supremacy ready to be thrown into high gear on Jan. 1 when the old Washington and London naval treaties expire.

The United States contemplated two new battleships, Jane's stated, carrying the largest guns of any warships afloat.

The American government, the new year book said, will install 16-inch guns on the new men-of-war.

Would Not Consent

If Jane's is correct it means that Washington has determined Japan would not consent to the 14-inch limitation imposed by the 1936 London treaty between the United States, France and Great Britain.

It has been generally expected the United States would not choose between 16 and 14-inch guns until after April 1, 1937, when Japanese consent or disapproval to the treaty limitation must be given.

Italy Ranks Third

Italy ranked third with 66 ships; France 43; Germany, 39 and Japan 38.

Great Britain, Jane's said, would lay down two big ships immediately after the first of the year. Maximum armament for the British vessels was reported to be 14-inch guns.

Christmas Carols Are Sung At Tech

Students passing to classes stopped to join in singing led by Julien Paul Blitz, head of the music department, in the hall on the third floor of the administration building. A piano had becin ulaced there.

CUBA VOTES TO OUST PRESIDENT GOMEZ

FINAL ACTION IS EXPECTED LATE TODAY

SENATE SESSION WILL BE HELD FOR TRIAL OF CUBAN CHIEF

(By The Associated Press)

HAVANA, Dec. 22—The Cuban house of representatives, by a margin of three, voted today to impeach President Miguel Mariano Gomez for vetoing the $1,500,000 sugar tax bill providing funds for army-taught rural schools.

The vote was 111 to 45, three more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

Senate In Session

The senate then met to receive the charges and called a special session for noon today when it will sit as a court to try Gomez.

The house voted its ouster at the close of a session which lasted most of Monday night, and by its unprecedented action showed its support of Cuba's "strong man" Col. Fulgencio Batista, sponsor of the bill.

Gomez, in fighting the bill all down the line, asserted he did so because he thought its passage might result in education of Cuban young in the "fascist manner."

This Batista denied.

Threatened Reprisals

The impeachment charges alleged specifically that Gomez had threatened political reprisals at those who voted against him.

In the face of the overwhelming Batista support manifested in the veto vote, there was hardly an observer who did not feel that the senate would find Gomez guilty as charged.

The house ouster was voted in secret session to which no one but

LIONS ARE TO GIVE PARTY

ANNUAL EVENT TO BE HELD AT THEATER HERE THURSDAY

Lions club members will be hosts at a sixth annual Christmas party for Lubbock's underprivileged children at the Palace theater at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Santa Claus will make an early visit to Lubbock in order to distribute presents to the children.

Kiddies To Get Candy

"Santa Claus has sent word that he will carry about 1,500 sacks of candy, fruits, and nuts when he goes to the Lions Christmas party," it was said this morning. "He is going to let the Goodfellows delive the toys for him this year, but he has asked the Lions to help in distributing sacks of goodies and to give the youngsters a free picture show."

The party is arranged solely for underprivileged children, youngsters who, aside from the gifts from the Goodfellows, would not know Dec. 25 is Christmas day.

Cooperation Is Asked

Parents who know that Santa Claus will visit their children without outside assistance were asked to cooperate with the Lions by seeing that their children do not attend the party.

Yuletide Branded Only As Nuisance

CHICAGO, Dec. 22 (AP)—Clarence Darrow placed Christmas in the nuisance class today and observed that as a holiday the Fourth of July "had it beat a mile."

In a direct challenge to Santa Claus and all his works, the famous attorney for the defense, a professed agnostic, declared he didn't know what Christmas was all about, anyhow. "I think it is a humbug," he added.

Today Is Deadline For Listing Of Children To Receive Christmas Joys

ADDITIONAL CASH FOR PRESENTS NEEDED BY CHIEF GOODFELLOW

Underprivileged children must be listed today if they are to receive the assistance of Lubbock's Goodfellows who Christmas morning will deliver packages to an estimated 1,600 youngsters.

A coupon on Page 3 of today's paper may be filled out and sent to Chief Goodfellow. The coupon, by which names of needy children may be brought to the attention of Goodfellows, will not appear again until next Christmas.

The Christmas joy which belongs at Yuletide to every boy and girl may be missing for some if additional contributions are not made immediately to the Goodfellows fund.

That statement came Monday afternoon following a meeting of chairmen of various committees directing the Goodfellow program.

A total of 1,419 names of children had been tabulated. Of that number 710 were girls. The committees reported that late additions to the list would swell the total to more than 1,600.

The districting committee, which announced it had divided the city into five areas to facilitate deliveries of Christmas packages to children, issued an appeal for volunteers to make the deliveries.

Want 100 Cars

"We want 100 persons with private automobiles to report at 1011 Main street at 8 o'clock Christmas morning," the committee announced.

"The real thrill of the Goodfellow program will be in taking these packages to boys and girls who otherwise would have no happy Christmas, in seeing their faces brighten as they go into their packages, and in hearing them chatter as they examine their gifts," it was declared.

Persons who volunteer to make deliveries will drive their cars to 1011 Main street, where Hi-Y members will load the cars. Each driver will receive a list of places he is to visit. The routes will be arranged

For the second consecutive year Levine's Department store, with a $50 donation, became the largest single supporter of the Goodfellows Christmas fund for underprivileged children and, plus a number of other equally as welcome donations, sent the organization's cash total soaring past the $700 mark today.

With but two days left to collect the approximately $1,000 needed to bring Yuletide joy to every one of Lubbock's 1,600 needy boys and girls of 14 years and under, Chief Goodfellow this morning sounded a plea for quick donations by cash, check or money order for "anything from 25 cents on up." Donations are being received by visit or through the mail at Avalanche-Journal offices, 1211-13 Texas avenue.

Three Loud Cheers To The Debutantes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP) — Rudy Vallee was recovering today from the rebuff of Washington debutantes.

Rudy advertised, twice, that he wanted 24 of them to appear in his act at a local theater. They didn't have to sing or dance; just walk across the stage, say hello to Mr. Vallee, and go on about their business.

Managers said a lot of nice-looking girls applied, but none was a debutante. Rudy stuck by his guns: Debutantes or nothing. Latest reports were: Nothing.

Alaska's Santa Is Halted By Strike

SEATTLE, Dec. 22 (AP)—Alaska's Santa Claus, who reverses the usual order by going from south to north each year, was strike-bound in Seattle today, with $2,000 worth of candy and gifts for 6,500 Alaska children.

Already 10 days past sailing time, it appeared unlikely Santa would be able to make his usual northern rounds until after the Pacific coast maritime strike ended — sometime after Christmas.

JUDGE CLAMPS DOWN ON DOUBTERS OF SANTA BY THREAT OF JAIL SENTENCE

(By The Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22—A Pittsburgh jurist, remembering the days of his youth and the heart-break of "there ain't no Santa Claus," clamped down on doubters today—he ruled them in contempt of court.

Clothing his action in judicial dignity, observing all the formalities, Judge M. A. Musmanno ordered decreed and declared:

"Anyon within our judisdiction who questions the authenticity and the genuineness of Santa Claus will be declared in contempt of court and committed to the bastile."

Musmanno, present judge of the criminal courts of Allegheny said:

"If the law recognizes John Doe it will certainly recognize Santa Claus. The court can state with judicial correctness that it has seen Santa Claus, but has never had any ocular observation of John Doe."

BODY LOCATED HANGING OUT OF WINDOW

VICTIM IS BELIEVED TO BE NEPHEW OF BIG CAPITALIST

(By The Associated Press)

CORINTH, Miss., Dec. 22—Investigators checked a report from Port Arthur, Texas, today in their search for Larry Glass, 26-year-old nephew of Herman Lissner, New York capitalist.

The young German-born lawyer has been missing since Sunday, Dec. 13, when he left a party.

The body of a young man was found suspended from the iron bars of a window of a pleasure resort pier at Port Arthur and later removed to the Dillon-Davis funeral home there. A crude noose constructed of two napkins and a handkerchief had been used. In one corner of the handkerchief were the initials, "L. G."

Chief of Detectives Noah Bilbeau telephoned Corinth and talked with Weaver last night.

Gilbeau said by long distance telephone today that Truber told him the dead man's description resembled that of Glass, who had been sent to Corinth a few months ago to "learn the business."

NANKING, Dec. 22—The American-educated wife of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek flew to her husband's prison today, despite the urgent protests of high officials, for what was possibly a final effort to secure the captive leader's freedom.

The conviction was growing that no end to Marshal Chang Hsueh-Lian's rebellion to force war against Japan was in sight.

Despairing Of Solution

The executive yuan (council), believed to be despairing of a quick solution of the crisis, abolished the local government of Shensi province, indicating it would be pacified as a conquered territory when the civil war is over.

All provincial affairs were brought directly under the Nanking government and the local chiefs branded as "rebels who have forfeited all administrative rights."

LOVE LIFE OF FORMER KING IS FLAYED

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK IN BITTER ATTACK UPON EXILE

(By The Associated Press)

YORK, England, Dec. 22—The Archbishop of York broke his silence on the abdication of King Edward VIII today and, in words more outspoken than those which drew the fire of press and parliament on the Archbishop of Canterbury, implied the monarch's decision would not have been made by a man of honor.

"The harm was not done in December, nor even in October when the intention of marriage was announced to the prime minister," York declared in his January letter to his diocese, "but much earlier.

Others Faced Problem

"It has happened that many a man before now has found himself beginning to fall in love with another man's wife. That's the moment of the critical decision and the right decision is that they should cease to meet before passion is so developed as to create an agonizing conflict between love and duty.

"That decision has often been taken by men of honor."

The Archbishop of York, who ranks second only to Canterbury in the Church of England, declared any kind of love which conflicts with duty is "not the love of which the gospel speaks."

To Rededicate Lives

York described the coming coronation of King George VI as a "rededication of our whole national life and ourselves as citizens."

MONTGOMERY WARD

O Holy Night!

A CHRISTMAS STORY by ELINORE COWAN STONE

THE voices of the boy choir rose above the rich roll of the organ as John opened the door and slipped into the warm, shadowy depths of the church—piercingly high and sweet:

O Holy night!
The stars are brightly shining—

What was it the music made him think of? Of course—the buoyant flight of a breath-takingly beautiful silver plane, lifting, dipping, soaring. And nothing could be more beautiful than that.

It was cozy and pleasant to sit here making pictures in your mind. But that wasn't the only reason John liked to come. He liked the music. What was more, he thought a little guiltily, he liked it because it was Christmas music.

Of course he knew now that it was all nothing but a bourgeois fairy story—about the little Lord Jesus and the Star and the strange magnificent kings with their rich gifts of gems and myrrh and frankincense. Anton had explained all that to him.

If Anton knew he came here he would be hurt and angry even though he only slipped in after delivering his papers for a warm place to stay till Anton came from the lunch room where he waited table from early morning till five. Anton disliked all churches with a bitterness that John only vaguely understood, but which, out of his adoration for this moody, tempestuous, but to him always gentle big brother, he loyally tried to emulate. For this particular church, Anton had a specially contemptuous name. He called it "old Spencer Morrow's fire escape."

When John asked him why, Anton's mouth twisted in that bitter, angry way it had lately as he replied, "Because the old pirate is fool enough to imagine the fortune he put into building that monument to superstition will save the mean, grasping little thing he calls his soul from the mythical place he calls hell."

JOHN hadn't asked any more questions, because if Anton got too much excited he would go on talking for hours instead of taking out his violin, tucking it tenderly under his chin, and playing there in their little room as only Anton could play.

And Anton must keep up his practice, because any day someone might send for him again to come and play, as they used to do before hard times. Then Anton would get out the black suit with tails he kept so carefully packed away, and his white shirt, and go off down the street, his slim, beautiful fingers caressing the instrument under his arm. Sometimes he took John with him.

On such occasions, John would have to hold his breath and grip the seat tightly to keep from bursting with excitement when Anton came forward—lithe and dark and handsome—lifted his head, and began to play, his face a little pale, his dark eyes alight, as if above the heads of the audience he were seeing things strange and beautiful beyond the ordinary ken. . . . When Anton played his violin, he seemed to forget all about "monuments to superstition" and even "the totalitarian state."

It was only since Anton had had to work in the lunch room instead of playing that he had been so restless and bitter.

It had all been very different two years ago, while Mother was still alive. Then, on Christmas Eve, there would be wreaths in the windows, and candles everywhere; and when Anton came in from playing somewhere—a little pale, and with that wide, shining look his dark eyes always wore when he had played and played well, of having come slowly back from far places of enchantment—there would be cries of "Merry Christmas," and surprises for everyone. Afterward, Anton would play Christmas music—ending always with "O Holy Night!"

For a moment John remembered it all—the brightness, the warmth, the spicy evergreen smells, the music—and the surprises—with a wistful nostalgia which brought to his eyes tears he angrily wiped away on his worn coat sleeves.

WELL, there wouldn't be any surprises this year.

Last year he had bought Anton a surprise with some of his paper money—a truly splendid scarf pin in the shape of a tiny violin. That was when Anton had explained to him for the first time about the proletariat, and had talked about the necessity for "class loyalty," and the gross absurdity of "bourgeois sentimentality" about religion and Christmas.

No, John did not think he would try surprising Anton again this year. And he knew this time that there would be no surprise for him, either.

So he had made his own plan. It would not be quite the same as being surprised, of course. It would lack that breath-taking moment of almost unendurable happiness and suspense that came just before the gift was actually unwrapped. But the plan had its points.

The money he had managed to save from his paper route would buy the tools he needed to finish the model airplane he had been working on since last summer. It would be the most beautiful model ever built, and it would really fly. His fingers—no less magically supple and sensitive in their own way than Anton's, though John did not know this—itched to be at it.

He would wait till the day before Christmas, carry his parcel home, and put it away unopened until Christmas Eve. Then, when Anton had gone, he would get it out and open it just as if it had been a real surprise. He was still planning happily and jingling his money in his pocket as he left the church and turned through the park, when he saw the old man again.

THE old man was sitting huddled on one of the iron benches in the park. His hat had slid off, the book he inevitably carried had slid from his grasp to the dead leaves at his feet, and his head drooped on his breast, its silky white hair fluttering in the faint breeze.

John saw that he was asleep again. It was the old man's deplorable habit of dropping to sleep at the most inopportune times that had first caught John's attention.

Park benches, John knew from shrewd observation, were not spots to sleep on with impunity. Yet the first time he had come upon the old man he had been serenely nodding while a ratlike youth expertly rifled his pockets.

At the sound of John's feet on the gravel, the old man had awakened with startling suddenness, and the pickpocket had fled. John was just about to lift a shrill cry for Larry, the park cop, when the old man caught his arm with a swift dart of a thin old hand and said, "Hey, son, let him go! He's welcome to anything he found in my pockets. Don't bring that confounded officer over here asking questions. Can't a man shut his eyes in peace for a minute without getting mixed up with the law?"

John considered this wisely. Child of the street as he had been these two years, it was not strange to his philosophy that park bench sitters often shrank modestly from the attention of Larry. It did seem a little strange that such a clean, guileless looking old gentleman should be at odds with the law, but you never could tell.

HIS suspicions were still further confirmed by an incident that occurred while he was talking with the old man several days later.

They were sitting together when, in the midst of a sentence, the old man glanced over his shoulder, started, scrambled to his feet, and with a finger warningly at his lips, scurried into the bushes that flanked the bench.

"Have you," asked the man, "seen an old gentleman about here? He'd be wearing a gray overcoat and carrying a book."

"Sure, Mack. 'Bout 20 minutes ago. He took the Seventy-Three car, going south," John lied hardily.

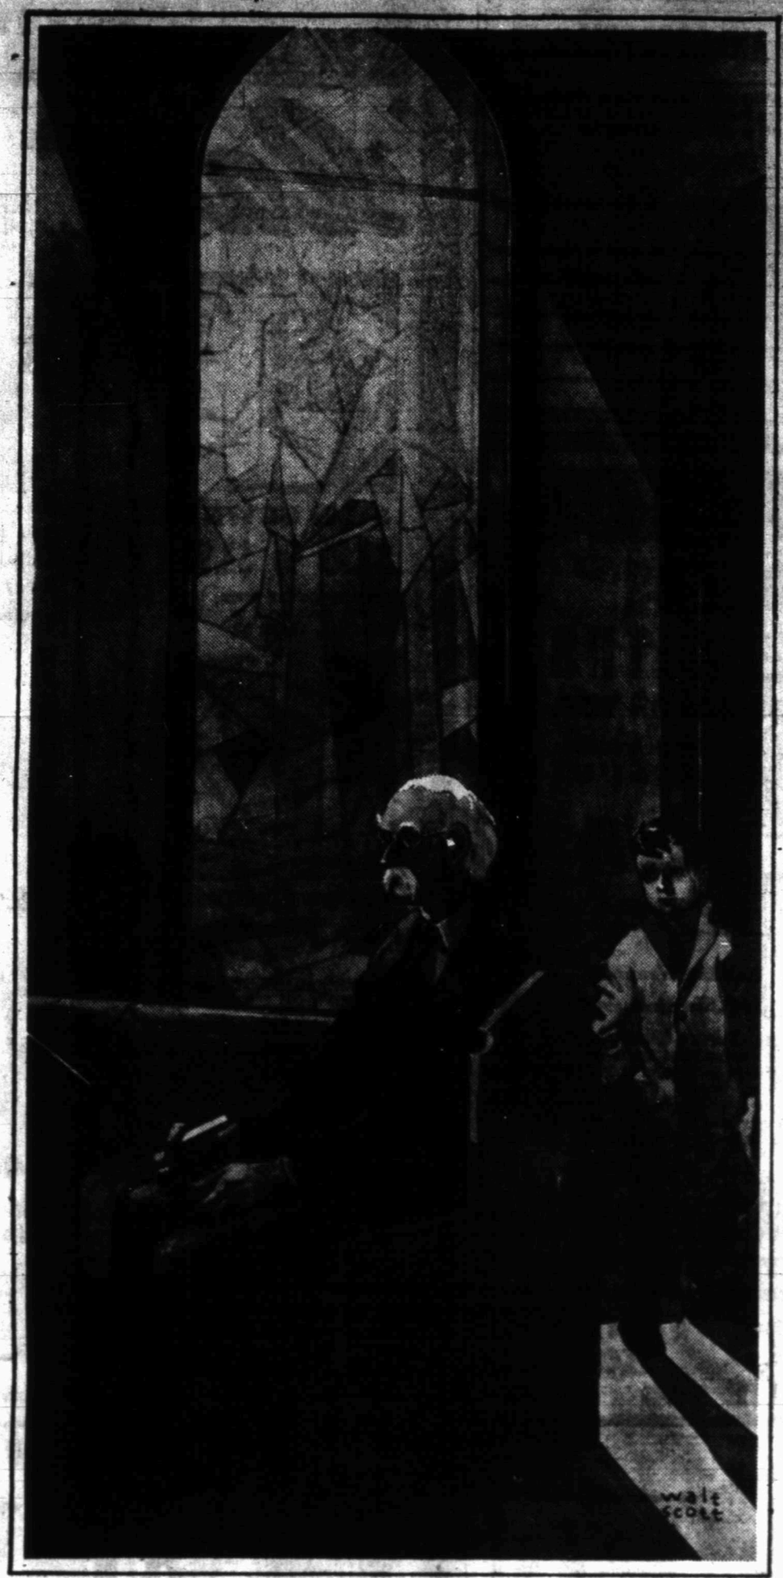

"Have you—does he come here often?"

"Naw," said John. "And I'm around here every day sellin' my papers. He was—was just walkin by."

When the man had disappeared, the old gentleman emerged cautiously from the bushes.

"Well," he said, and there was a friendly twinkle in his old blue eyes, "I guess we disposed of that busybody. Son, you show an aptness at grasping a situation and a finesse in action that should take you far."

NOW, when John saw the nodding old figure on the bench, he felt a troubled sense of responsibility, as he so often did in the case of Anton.

Illustrated By WALT SCOTT

"Say, listen, Gramps," he began as the old man started awake at his touch, blinked, and smiled up at him a little vaguely, "ain't I told you it ain't safe to go to sleep here? Look what happened the first time. Anyhow, it's too cold."

It was indeed cold. The first real frost of a late season was in the air, and a few feathery flakes of snow were drifting down.

"Say," offered John, moving a step nearer, "I know a good place if you want one. It's warm in that church over there. I'll bet you could slip in and stay, and nobody would ever know. There are cushions, too, and sometimes there's music."

"Ah!" said Gramps, and turned to view the church with sudden interest. "Now that's an idea! Put old Morrow's fire escape to a practical purpose, eh? Good joke on him!"

For by this time, of course, the old man knew all about Anton and the international brotherhood of man.

As John turned away, Gramps hastily added, as if he could not bear to be left alone, "Hey! You're not going, are you?"

John hesitated, jingling his money.

"You sound like a bloated capitalist," observed Gramps.

"Most five dollars," admitted John with a glow of pride. "And it will be five by tomorrow night."

"Imagine having that much money in one pocket," Gramps sighed. "I wonder if I'll ever feel that rich again. And I suppose you're planning to spend it all for Christmas presents."

"Heck! We don't believe in Christmas at our house."

John tried to speak with a calm superiority, as a good comrade should; but he choked up a little over the words.

"NO Christmas—but of course! The observation of the Christmas myth is the lowest form of bourgeois sentimentality, isn't it? And yet, unless my memory fails me, Christ was a carpenter, and He also believed in the brotherhood of man."

John considered this in startled silence. He wondered if Anton knew that.

"Then what, if you'll forgive my curiosity," asked Gramps, "are you going to do with all that wealth?"

(Copyright, 1936, by EveryWeek Magazine)

So John told him, a little reluctantly, about the tools. The old man listened attentively. They had often talked of the model before. Gramps knew a lot about planes, for an old man.

"No doubt your decision is a sensible one," Gramps said slowly when he had finished. His voice sounded suddenly tired and flat. "Certainly there's no bourgeois sentimentality about it. Your brother should be proud of you—and after all, not believing in Christmas can't be a more forlorn business than not having anyone who really cares for you to share it with. To be really happy, Christmas has to be shared. . . . Well, I must be getting along, and—" he smiled a wry little smile—"I think I shall take your very practical advice."

John watched him as he made his way a little stiffly across the park to the church, one of his shabby old books clutched under his arm, looking very old and tired and lonely.

JOHN found Anton already at home, anxiously inspecting the fine black suit with tails that had hung so long unused. At last, it seemed, Anton was going out to play his violin again. A note had come to the restaurant that day. It was to be at someone's house, on Christmas Eve, and he was to have $50 for it. Anton was so happy that he was almost incoherent.

The next day was clear and bright; but a heavy snow mantled the ground, and the trees bore nodding white plumes. It was too cold to linger in the park, but when John slipped into the church, he saw the old man, sitting there in a back pew, listening to the music.

John was glad they hadn't thrown him out. He looked so sad, however, as if he were thinking unhappy thoughts deep within himself, that John did not approach him, but slipped out again into the snow. And as he went, his hand involuntarily clutched at the precious money in his pocket as if he felt it slipping away from him.

For somehow, as he remembered that quiet old figure in the church, disturbing echoes of words crowded in upon him: "Christmas can't be happy unless it's shared." And the old man had no one who cared, to share Christmas with him. That meant that there would be no surprise for Gramps, either. And probably Gramps still liked surprises as well as anyone.

It was too cold to linger in the park, but when John slipped into the church he saw the old man, sitting there in a back pew, listening to the music.

JOHN fingered the money in his pocket and swallowed a monumental lump in his throat.

Well, suppose he did buy the old man a surprise, what should he choose? How could he possibly guess what Gramps really wanted, unless—but of course! A new book, a beautiful new book, so that he needn't carry around those shabby old ones any more.

John didn't know much about books, but after he had wandered about the book store, looking at covers until he was dizzy, he saw just the thing—a fine big book, richly bound in soft reddish leather with gold letters.

"That one," he said, pointing.

It was expensive—$5, the salesgirl pointed out. He could get the same book in a different binding, much cheaper.

"That one," said John firmly, and hurried out with the wrapped book under his arm before he should change his mind.

He went directly back to the church because he was afraid he might miss Gramps if he waited till tomorrow. Fortunately the old man was still there, his white head dropped on his chest. He woke instantly when John touched his shoulder.

"This is for you!" said John, holding out his parcel, a little breathless with hurry and embarrassment. "But it's a surprise, and you mustn't open it till Christmas Eve."

For a moment Gramps looked up at him as if hardly believing his ears. Then he took the parcel with the gay red and green ribbon the lady had wrapped it in, and looked at it.

"Thank you," he said at last. "Thank you. I—this is a surprise. You have made me very happy. I—I wonder if you will do something to make a lonely old man even happier—spend a part of tomorrow evening with me. We—we might have a snack to eat and manage a very pleasant time of it together."

ANTON had already gone when John went out next evening. John was surprised when he found that the house at the address Gramps had given him was so large and imposing.

Gramps couldn't really live here. But perhaps he was a janitor or something and lived behind. John rang the bell.

It was some time before anyone answered. John was about to go away when the door opened and a man turned on an overhead light and said, "Oh, yes. You are to come right in."

John, who had a street Arab's trained memory for faces, stared. But this was the man Gramps had run away from in the park. Then, right behind the man, was Gramps himself, smiling and holding out his hand.

"Oh, but, sir," cried the man, turning reproachingly, "you shouldn't be out here, exposing yourself to the night air."

"Don't be an old maid, Hodges. It's Christmas Eve." Gramps didn't seem to be at all afraid now. "Aren't you satisfied with hounding me all the year long? Come in, comrade."

They went through a warm hallway into a great bright room where men were sitting and standing about. At once John felt at home, for they were all shabby men such as he had often seen lined up outside soup kitchens or employment agencies—men of all nationalities and complexions, but all strangely alike in their sullen, beaten look. Now they didn't look sullen or beaten, only expectant, and a little watchful perhaps.

In a few minutes there was dinner for everyone—an amazing dinner—with Gramps, in a rather rumpled suit, at the head of the long table, and to John's complete undoing, Anton, of all people, sitting at his right.

After everyone had eaten enormously, they went into another great room and there were surprises for everyone from a tall, softly lighted tree. John had to pinch himself to believe that his own surprise was a set of delicate tools such as he had wanted with a longing that hurt, but finer than he had ever hoped to have.

FINALLY Gramps, whom everyone was calling "Mr. Morrow," took down the last parcel—square and bulky—and said, "Now this is my great surprise."

John recognized it by the ribbon. It was the book. His heart sank, for there were rows and rows of books about the room—some even more shabby than the one Gramps had carried, in a special case, carefully locked up.

And he had given the old man a book.

But Gramps' hand was on John's shoulder, and Gramps was saying heartily, "Why, I never in my life had one as fine as this!"

For the first time John remembered that in his haste yesterday he hadn't even looked at the title. Now he craned his neck to read it. The book was called "The Holy Bible."

Then everyone sat down, and Anton tucked his violin under his chin and played—German music, Italian music, Russian, Polish, and Hungarian music, and an Irish love song—something for everybody. And as he played, the faces—Polish, Irish, Italian, German, and Hungarian—were no longer even watchful, but soft and kind of shining.

When Anton had played a long time he stopped and said to the old man, "Now I think we'll have a little real Christmas music."

He looked at John for a moment, and Anton's face, too, was soft and all shining as he began to play "O Holy Night!"

DISMISSAL OF CASE ASKED

NO ARRESTS MADE IN SLAYING OF TEXAN AFTER 58 YEARS

GEORGETOWN, Dec. 22 (AP) —The passing of 58 years without the arrest of the defendant today caused District Attorney B. B. Wood to request the dismissal of a murder indictment against Frank Jackson, believed by the prosecutor to be dead.

Jackson was indicted by a Williamson county grand jury in September, 1878, in the slaying July 19, 1878, of Constable A. W. Grimes, who was killed when he and another officer attempted to arrest members of the notorious Sam Bass gang as they were buying provisions in a Round Rock store.

Bass Was Killed

Bass himself was killed i nthe gun fight.

Wood in his motion, filed in 26th district court, stated the defendant had never been arrested on the charge set out in the indictment, and that it had been 58 years since the offense was committed.

The district attorney pointed out that Jackson was then a man of matured years, and in all probability is now dead. However, the prosecutor said, if the defendant is not dead a conviction at this late date would be impossible because no witnesses are available.

The motion also cited that the indictment was a historical document, and has been carefully preserved by District Clerk C. H. Lee and his predecessors.

Wood said the document would be loaned to officials of the Texas Centennial to be placed in exhibition with other documents.

MARTHA PAYS 50 CENTS FOR DOG; GETS SOMETHING

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 22 (AP) —Not long ago, wide-mouthed Martha Raye, the movie comedienne, paid 50 cents for a dog. Today she has discovered she bought something.

Miss Raye said she went to the dog-pound in Denver, Colo., on a recent visit to get a pet. She always wanted a dog and that seemed as good a place as any to get it.

"I finally found a mutt," she related. "I picked him because he looked sad and seemed to want to get out. He cost me 50 cents for his license."

She brought the animal to Hollywood and sent it to a veterinarian to be bathed and generally rehabilitated. Then she went to get him.

"Where's my mutt?" she asked.

"Mutt?" the keeper echoed. "That's no mutt. That's one of the finest thoroughbred wire-hairs I ever laid eyes on."

Reconstruction Of Church Is Sought

OXFORD, England, Dec. 22. (AP)—The Reverend J. Hugh Williams, new vicar of the "Lead, Kindly Light Church" where John Henry Newman, author of the verse of that famous hymn, once preached, is launching an appeal for $150,000 for the restoration of the edifice and the reconstruction of its schools.

Telephone Company Is Facing Charges

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (AP)—Charging her home was broken up because a telephone operator disclosed a conversation in which she participated, Mrs. Marion E. Downey today sued the New York Telephone company for $50,000 in supreme court.

Mrs. Downey said that in February, 1935, she telephoned to a Joseph R. Baker and that the operator who handled the call later told her husband, Robert W. Downey, that she had made an appointment with Baker.

As a result, Mrs. Downey said, her husband abused her about the matter until she had to leave him and their children. She said the company had violated its contract in disclosing the call.

Truthfulness Is Costly For This Negro Bridegroom

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 22. (AP) —"Here, take back your hard-earned money," City Magistrate W. T. Horton told a dusky bridegroom who counted out the legal marriage fee of $2 in nickels.

"I know you must have saved and scraped to get up these nickels to get married," the judge said sympathetically.

"Nah, suh, boss, we jus' done hit de jack-pot on a slot machine," the newlywed beamed truthfully.

"Give me back that $2, boy," said the judge gruffly, reaching for the money.

RHEUMATIC PAIN GOES; LUBBOCK MAN PRAISES GREAT VAN-TAGE RELIEF

Mr. Scales, Of Ave. M, Suffered 3 Years Due To Sluggish Kidneys That Caused Agonizing Rheumatic Attacks — Now Relieved By Van-Tage, He Says: "The Results Are Amazing!"

MR. J. D. SCALES, Prominent Local Man, Says: "It is Almost Unbelievable the Way VAN-TAGE Went to Work on My Kidneys."

Never before in local history, say some of the Leading Druggists of this city, has any medicine created such a sensation in this section as has Van-Tage. This is the "Amazing Mixture of Nature's Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Medicinal Agents" now being introduced to crowds daily here in Lubbock, by a Special Van-Tage Representative, direct from the Van-Tage Laboratories, at the Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1221 Broadway. All over Lubbock and throughout Texas, people are praising this Remarkable Compound and are saying, "I never saw anything like Van-Tage. It certainly gave me relief and I want others to know it!" For instance, just a few days ago, the following sincere testimonial was received from Mr. J. D. Scales, of 1409 Ave. M, Lubbock. Mr. Scales is a Widely-Known Local Man with friends throughout this whole region. Let him tell you how he found relief from his ailments.

Discouraged By Awful Rheumatic Pains

"For the last three years," says Mr. Scales, "I had suffered something awful with rheumatic attacks. My kidneys were sluggish and got me up at all hours of the night so that I got very little real rest. This ailing condition filled my system with contaminating poisons and brought on agonizing, stabbing, rheumatic pains all through my arms and legs. These torturing pains kept getting worse and worse until I hardly knew what to do! I was so tired and worn-out that I was no longer able to work and I was just about as discouraged as a man could be.

Amazed at the Great Van-Tage Relief

"I had tried all kinds of medicines and treatments, trying to get relief from my suffering, but nothing did me any good. Then a friend of mine told me what wonderful results Van-Tage was giving to other suffering people, and suggested that I try it. It is almost UNBELIEVABLE the way this medicine went to work on my kidneys! From the very first bottle I felt myself improving, and last night I got up only once. The rheumatic pains are leaving my legs and arms, and I feel so much better that I cannot help praising this Great Compound. I hope everyone who suffers as I did, will hear about Van-Tage and try it, for I know from experience that the results are simply AMAZING!"

21 Great Natural Herbs In The Van-Tage

VAN-TAGE contains 21 Herbs and nearly a dozen Other Splendid Ingredients, so it is like 4 or 5 medicines in one and accomplishes several things at the same time. It acts as a carminative, laxative, cholagogue and diuretic, thus helping to cleanse the bowels, bringing forth gas—and bloat from stomach, exciting Nature to flush the kidneys and helping to clear away liver bile and waste, and daily miserable people write us they feel different all over as a result of this cleansing and invigorating action of Van-Tage.

Grid Attractions Promised Area On Christmas

SPORTOGRAMS by COLLIER AUSTIN

NEXT HOME APPEARANCE of the Texas Tech basketball Red Raiders, who are tops for local sports entertainment as scholastic enterprises go for the next couple of months, is billed for January 11, when Huffman's Hurricane opens its Border Conference race with the Arizona State Teachers of Flagstaff.

But the Raiders will see action before January 11. They go to Oklahoma City next week to participate in the all-college invitation basketball tournament sponsored by the Daily Oklahoman. That'll be very good experience for the Raiders, who appeared to need a lot of experience after their last public appearance.

Tech's first opponent—it is hoped they'll not be the last—are the East Central Oklahoma Teachers of Ada. Sixteen basketball teams are entered in the tournament, which should be a dandy. Other Texas teams are Rice institute, Baylor university and the West Texas State Buffaloes. Remember the Buffaloes? Other outstanding clubs are Phillips university of Enid, Tulsa university, the other Teachers college teams of Oklahoma and the Southwestern college team of Winfield, Kansas.

As part of their preparation for the Oklahoma City tournament, the Red Raiders are working out daily at the Tech gymnasium. As another part, most of the players are competing in the invitation tournament at Monroe, which enters the final rounds tonight. The club is divided, some playing for Caldwell, some for New Deal, and maybe some of the boys are hidden under the flaming masks worn by Jimmy William's Tim-Top Cafe team.

The Tip-Toppers, the Caldwells and the New Dealers are still in the tournament, along with Abernathy, the fourth team.

If you like hot basketball, you should attend the final session of Alvin Crews' Monroe tournament tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock. Caldwell, which features most of the Tech players, meets New Deal, which has two or three of the Raiders, in the first game. The hooded "mystery men" play Abernathy in the other semi-final, beginning at 8 o'clock. The winners meet at 9:15 for the tournament championship.

One of the nicest, cleanest, most adequate high school gymnasiums in this section of the South Plains is at New Deal, or Monroe, site of the tournament. The school officials, including Coach Alvin Crews, himself one of the best basketeers Texas Tech ever had, invite basketball fans to the finals tonight.

The Red Raiders make their official seasonal tour in February, starting Feb. 5 when they play the New Mexico Aggies at Las Cruces. They go from there to Tempe, Arizona, and then to Flagstaff, doubling back to Albuquerque. They play eight games with four Border conference teams on the trip. The other Border teams, Texas College of Mines and University of Arizona, come to Lubbock in February, as do the Tempe Teachers, with whom Tech plays a double bill this season.

SPRING HATS are advertised in today's newspaper, so what's inconsistent or untimely about bringing up spring sports, or summer sports, either?

The reporter was privileged to visit the city of Post yesterday, and about the first topic brought up by the folks we contacted was—you guessed it, softball!

We thought Post had enough of it, like yours truly, at the conclusion of the 1936 softball season. But apparently not, and you've got to admire that bunch.

Post goes down in the books as winner of the amateur tournament of this district and official delegate to the state tournament. But there was so much grief and expense connected with the victory that we figured Post would toss in the towel so far as another season of the same was concerned.

Not so. Post has the stuff of which champions are made. And Post not only is anxious for another softball season to start, but Post wants to stage the district tournament.

What would be more appropriate? Littlefield, scene of the 1936 tournament, probably wants no more of it. Post puts in its bid, and Post gets it.

The city of Post can thank such leaders as J. B. Slaughter, who took time off from his other jobs to support the softball team; Eddie Warren, editor and publisher of the Post Dispatch, whose friendly, sane reasoning did as much as anything to smooth things out when turmoil reigned, and Jim Hundley, the well known pants presser, manager of the Post team and a valuable asset to sports in Post. Power to 'em. But no quail.

The number of pieces in a watch or clock has not changed materially since clocks first were made.

OFFICIAL OPENING OF CONFERENCE SEASON TWO WEEKS AWAY

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT

DALLAS, Dec. 22 (AP)—Two weeks away from the official opening, Southwest conference basketball teams made their annual check-up today and came off with their annual conclusion—the University of Arkansas still is the team to beat.

Seven returning lettermen from a championship team that last year plowed through to the Olympic finals, plus a likely looking bunch of giant sophomores, gives the Razorbacks something more than ballyhoo with which to defend the title.

Two Demons Lost

Gone from the team, however, are two mainstays of the 1935-36 team, H. L. (Ike) Poole and Jim Lee Howell, a pair of goal-tossing demons. Lettermen Coach Glen Rose is counting on to pull the Porkers through include Capt. Bobbie Martin, all-conference forward Elwin Gilliland, Don Lockard, grid hero Jack Robbins, Ray Hamilton, Denny Hays and Frank Brodie.

The Porkers, who won five successive flags between 1926-30, open their conference season January 8 and 9 at Fayetteville against Baylor.

Nosed out of the title picture by two close defeats from Arkansas last year, the University of Texas, with leading scorer Jack Collins returning, are of definite championship calibre. Warden Osborne, Henry Clifton, Don White, Joe Roach and Bill Baxter are lettermen back in the fold. Sophomore Willie Tate, who averaged better than 14 points a game last year, is the pick of a bunch of newcomers.

Longhorns Oppose Frogs

The Longhorns start against Texas Christian at Fort Worth Jan. 8

Seven lettermen, a ful'l starting quintet with a center and a forward to spare, make Coach Jimmy Kitts' Rice institute Owls dangerous. Harris Lodge and Wade Owens, guards; Willis Orr, center; and Ray Steele and Mike Seale, forwards, form a veteran five with Aaron Standford and Ike Klindworth on hand in reserve. The Owls meet the Texas Aggies in the season's opener Jan. 6 at Houston.

Inexperienced, but possessing high scoring possibilities, the Southern Methodist Mustangs, surprises of the loop last year, are back with a five composed of J. D. Norton and Bill Blanton at forwards; Billy Dewell, center; Charlie Sprague and Guy Daugherty, guards. Dowell, giant football end; Norton, an expert goal heaver and Capt. Blanton are chief offensive threats. The Mustangs start their conference schedule against Texas at Dallas Jan. 9.

Lanky veterans, four lettermen and a junior college transfer, form the nucleus for the Texas Aggie five. Virgil Harris and Clyde Jones, forwards; Dale Freiberger, center, and Ed Lee and Pete Dowling, guards, have clicked in practice tilts. Freiberger's height gives the Aggies quite a start from the tip-off. Lee, at six feet, one inch, is the shortest man on the first string.

Only one member of the 1935-36 team, Ken Clark, is available at Baylor. And Clark is suffering from weakened ankles brought about by football. The Bruins were unimpressive against Hardin-Simmons but Coach Ralph Wolf is working with a combination [illegible] "Jelly" Sorelle and Milton Kirkpatrick, guards; Hubert Kirkpatrick, center; Wilson White and Fred Vinson, forwards. White and Sorelle are lettermen.

Loss of Capt. Willie Walls, out with a football leg injury, crippled Texas Christian and most of the squad will not be available until after the Cotton Bowl grid game. Forward prospects include Walter Roach and Vernon Browns; centers, Charlie Mabry, six feet, six inches, and Clifton Cowan; guards, Sammy Baugh, Russell Hensch and Jay Smith.

SEMI-FINALS ARE SET FOR TONIGHT

MONROE, Dec. 22 (Special)—Semi-final rounds of the New Deal invitation basketball tournament here Tuesday night offers games between New Deal and Caldwell and the Tip-Top Mystery team of Lubbock and Abernathy.

The Caldwell and New Deal teams play at 7 o'clock. The masked Mystery Men of Lubbock's Tip-Top play Abernathy at 8 o'clock. The winners clash at 9:15 for the championship of the tournament.

Caldwell, made up of a number of Texas Tech varsity players, set a new single game scoring record tonight by defeating the Ex-Westerner team of Lubbock, 62 to 21, and became favorite to take the championship.

New Deal eliminated Center, 50 to 23, in another free-scoring exhibition, while Abernathy downed Idalou, 44 to 28.

The Lubbock Tip-Toppers previously had defeated Peel & Barnett, also of Lubbock, 50 to 29, in another second round game.

A large crow saw last night's game, and the New Deal gymnasium is expected to be full for the semi-final and final game Tuesday night.

HOUSTON, Dec 22. (AP)—Southern California's touring basketball team remained undefeated today in its Texas practice jaunt after a 40 to 31 victory over the Rice Owls, fourth Southwest conference quintet to fall before the Trojans.

The Trojans grabbed an early lead and held it throughout. Wallis Orr, Rice center, took scoring honors with 15 points. Wayne Garrison paced the visitors with 11.

TEXAS SWAMPS A. & I.

BEEVILLE, Dec. 22. (AP) — The Texas Longhorn basketeers, playing most of the game without Capt. Jack Collins, swamped the Texas A. & I. Javelinas 50 to 36 last night.

Baxter topped the scorers with 17 points. Petty was high for the Javelinas with 11.

BAYLOR NOSES OUT

BROWNWOOD, Dec. 22. (AP) — Baylor's quintet nosed out Daniel Baker, 29 to 28, last night in a nip and tuck game in which the lead changed frequently.

Seventeen of the 26 fouls called were against Baylor. Jake McCulley of Daniel Baker was high scorer with 18 points.

TEACHERS VICTORS

NACOGDOCHES, Dec. 22. (AP) — The Stephen F. Austin cagers wore down the stubborn resistance of the Illinois college Blueboys last night and then coasted to a 48 to 34 triumph. The lead changed hands 10 times in the first half. Crenshaw paced the winners with 14 points.

Freddie Steele To Get Rich Purse In New Year Fight To Defend Crown

ANDERSON OUT OF A JOB

COURT BATTLE LOOMS OVER DISMISSAL AT NORTH CAROLINA

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 22 (AP) — Hunk Anderson, head football coach at North Carolina State college for the past three years, was out of a job today but one of his staunchest alumni supporters threatened a court fight over his dismissal.

Soon after Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the greater University of North Carolina—of which State college is a unit—announced a reorganization of the athletic set-up which eliminated Anderson, Dave Clark, alumni representative on the athletic council, said:

"We believe he (Dr. Graham) has acted in an illegal manner and shall test his authority in the courts."

Statement Not Explained

The "we" used in Clark's formal statment was not explained. Clark said he understood "President Graham claims that he acted under a remnant of the discredited Graham plan, which was accidentally left in the Southern conference rules and which states that the athletic director and coaches shall be chosen by the president.

"The athletic council was legally created by the trustees who have authority under the laws of North Carolina, whereas the Southern conference is simply an association of colleges and without legal authority."

The contract of Anderson, former Notre Dame coach, expires on December 31. His teams have had up and down seasons, and this year's record was three won and seven lost.

Holdout Season Is Ahead Of Schedule

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22. (AP) —The 1937 holdout season was open ahead of schedule today because Charles (Red) Lucas figured the Pittsburgh Pirates didn't play Santa Claus.

His baseball employers made out his new contract with a raise but Lucas argued it wasn't enough.

"I certainly expect to get more than they have offered," said the husky tosser who is wintering here. He declined to name the salary he wanted.

During the 1936 season Red's record was 15 games won and four lost.

CHAMPION TO BATTLE GORILLA JONES IN MILWAUKEE BOUT

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Dec. 22. (AP)—Freddie Steele, world middleweight champion, boxing for the first time away from his native Pacific coast, will get $20,000 for defending his title against the Akron, O., negro, Gorilla Jones, in a 10-round afternoon bout in Milwaukee New Year's day.

It will be the richest purse this gifted, two fisted youngster from Tacoma, Wash., ever received since they first pulled the boxing gloves on him when he was a lad of 14. That was nine years ago.

Milwaukee, scene of some stirring middleweight fights in the days of the late Stanley Ketchell and Billy Papke, is all "steamed up" over the battle—its first championship affair in years.

So enthusiastic were promoters that they asserted they would go through with the fight despite any protests from the National Boxing association which had frowned on the match because of Jones' suspension in 1933. Victor Manhardt, chairman of the Wisconsin commission, announced last night, however, that the N.B.A. will approve the bout.

It will be Steele's first defense of his title since he won it from Babe Risko in Seattle last July.

Pitt Turning Eyes On Their Reserves

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. Dec. 22 (AP)—Coach Jock Sutherland, preparing his Panther football team of the University of Pittsburgh for its Rose Bowl clash with Washington, turned an attentive eye to his reserve players today as Pitt went through another workout under a warm sun.

Pitt, boasting heavier and possibly more capable reserve strength than Washington, used many substitutions this year and may have cause to follow the same procedure when the Panthers go up against the Huskies at Pasadena.

Santa Clara Will Be In Fine Shape

SANTA CLARA, Calif., Dec. 22. (AP) —Santa Clara's Broncos will entrain for New Orleans and their New Year's football date with Louisiana State in excellent condition, if Coach Lawrence "Buck" Shaw's present schedule is followed.

Adding to last week's intensive practice, the Bronco skipper ordered scrimmage yesterday and for the next three days. The squad will have Christmas off and begin the southern trek Saturday.

About 150 fans will accompany the Broncos.

ALL-STARS OF FOUR CITIES TO TANGLE

BROWNFIELD TO MEET ANTON; LEGION AND LIONS TO BATTLE

Grid attractions for the South Plains will not be lacking—despite the failure of plans for a Christmas day affair in Lubbock.

Explaining the failure to pit rival aggregations here, a rival team for "old heads" was too slow in forming.

However:

The Amarillo Sandies play the Kerrville Antlers at Amarillo as the big event of Christmas week in these parts, that being the Texas schoolboy championship game at Amarillo next Saturday.

Two other games are scheduled, and they're likely to draw large crowds because (1) they are to be played on Christmas Day, Friday, and (2) they are to be between teams made up of well known players hereabouts.

Anton At Brownfield

At Brownfield, the Anton All-Stars, composed of former collegians and high schoolers of renown, will meet the Brownfield All-Stars, similarly made up. Pete Miller has charge of the Brownfield team. Fred Rich, the well known "public enemy," is taking a team of hot-shots over to Brownfield to oppose Miller's crew.

At Floydada, "we are going to have a great game," writes Superintendent of Schools A. D. Cummings. "We are having the Lions Club vs. the American Legion. The American legion team will include Buck Johnson and many of his former playmates at West Texas State Teachers college.

"The Lions club will have Demp Cannon and many of his Texas Tech Red Raiders. This will be a colorful game. . . ."

The Floydada game is for the benefit of the Floydada High school "sweater fund," proceeds, or a part of them, to go toward purchase of letter sweaters for the Whirlwind stars of 1936.

At least two members of the graduating class of the Texas Tech team are to play with Brownfield against Anton. They are Pete Owens, regular guard, and Jim Neill, regular halfback and Tech's bid for All-America honors last season. Both are former sons of Brownfield High school.

Others on the Brownfield team are M. Price, from John Tarleton; J. McLeod, from Kansas; R. Pharr, John Tarleton; R. Lewis, Brownfield; G. Goodpasture, Brownfield; H. Trigg, Daniel Baker; O. Huckabee, Brownfield; Parker, Abilene Christian, and G. Tankersley, John Tarleton.

For Anton, Bob Rich, Texas A. & I.; Stevenson, West Texas Teachers; Norman, N.M.M.I.; Hill, A.C.C.; Fikes, West Texas; Rucker, Anton; Potter, Baylor; Saunders, Simmons; Hedges, Anton; Jones, Anton, and Grant, Anton, are listed as probable starters.

A game had been planned for Lubbock between the graduating members of Texas Tech's and Lubbock High school's teams, and a squad of former Tech exes. Many of the exes had accepted the invitation to play, but it was difficult to line up a desirable team from the present crop of seniors. So the local game is off.

Jinx Of Rose Bowl Will Face Panthers

VAUNTED POWER WILL BE THROWN AGAINST COAST HUSKIES

BY JUDSON BAILEY

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22 (AP)—The "jinx of the Rose Bowl" hovers again over the Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh.

Strangely, the powerful elevens of Dr. John Bain Sutherland have gone through triumphant seasons against some of the sturdiest teams in the land only to be crushed in the West coast classic.

Fourth Appearance

On January 1, the Panthers will throw their vaunted power against Washington in their fourth Rose Bowl appearance in nine years.

They lost all three of the previous games, two by humiliating margins.

Home-town supporters of the gridiron greats assembled this year by Dr. Sutherland view the Rose Bowl game with skepticism.

They know the Panther team to be a mighty aggregation, conqueror of Ohio State, Notre Dame and Nebraska, but the experience of other Pitt powerhouses at Pasadena is a sad reminder.

Pitt made its debut in the Tournament of Roses on January 1, 1928, against Pop Warner's Stanford Indians.

The nation hailed the clash of two outstanding opponents. Pitt had the great Gibby Welch, towheaded Jimmy Hagen and a half dozen other superior backfield men operating behind a big, fast line that mowed down all opponents in the regular 1927 season. Among the victims were Nebraska, 21-13, and an outstanding Penn State team, 30-0.

'Jinx' Enters Game

The Panthers and the Indians waged a furious battle on even terms until well into the third period. Then Hagen scooped up a fumble on the Indians' 16-yard line and dodged his way to a touchdown.

It was just after this touchdown that the element known by Pittsburghers as the "Rose Bowl jinx" first struck at the Panther.

It lost the game, for, a few minutes later, the inspired Stanford eleven, led by big, bruising Bill Hoffman, marched to the tying touchdown. Wilson, a substitute, raced around end for the touchdown and Hoffman booted over the extra point. The final score was 7-6.

Two years later the Panther returned to the Bowl full of hopes of erasing that defeat. Sutherland had what at the time was considered his greatest team—a brilliant array that included such Pitt immortals as Donchess, Daugherty, Montgomery, McMurdo and Quatsi in the line and Parkinson and Uansa in the backfield.

This team had crushed all opposition during the 1929 season and invaded the Bowl on New Year's

SUTHERLAND SILENT

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22 (AP) — The news that Pittsburgh had been chosen to battle Washington in the Rose Bowl came while the Panther team was banqueting to observe the formal closing of the season.

Players and old grads jumped with glee at the announcement.

But gloomy, studious Dr. Jock Sutherland, Pitt coach, remained silent until the hall quieted. Then, he arose and said:

LUBBOCK COPS GAME HERE

ARVIE LEE ODEN IS CHIEF SNIPER IN MONDAY TILT

Sniping by a young feller named Arvie Lee Oden Monday night led Lubbock's Westerners to a 31 to 19 win over Anton High school's cage five, in the Westerner gym.

Oden, regular football end and basketball guard, slipped the ball through the hoop half a dozen times last night for twelve points and individual scoring honors. He was followed, on the Lubbock team, by Ralph Letsinger, the other regular football wing and basketball guard, who made eight points from three field goals and a brace of gratis shots.

Grant, Anton grid star and cage guard, looped four field goals and added a gift shot for 9 points and runner up honors. Tucker, forward, scored seven.

Lead 15-7 At Half

Lubbock got away to a 15 to 7 lead in the first half and controlled it the rest of the way, Oden finding the basket frequently to keep the Westerners well ahead.

In a preliminary game last night, the Cowhands, coached by Walker Nichols, scored a close 21 to 18 victory over the Anton Pups, second stringers. Wright of the Cowhands was high point man with 9 tallies. Parsons and Neill played at forwards, Wright at center, Johnston and Cawthon at guards. The floor work of Holly, sub for Neill, and Parsons was important in the Cowhand win.

SPORTS 'BOOM' MAIN TREND FOR YEAR

BIGGEST CROWDS FOR EVENTS IN HISTORY NOTED FOR 1936

(NOTE: This is the eighth and last of a series analyzing results in the sixth annual Associated Press sports poll. It covers replies of the country's sports editors to the query: "What were the principal trends during 1936?")

BY ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (AP)—Continuation of the "new boom" in nearly every branch of sports, accompanied by more open and widespread commercialization of amateur talent, furnished the loudest keynote detected this year by our sports writing associates.

Expressing their views in the sixth annual Associated Press sports poll, 22 press box observers cited bigger crowds and "gates" as the most conspicuous trend of 1936.

Big Grid Turnouts

They called attention to such all-time attendance marks as 62,000 for the Kentucky derby and 168,000 for the Indianapolis auto race. The south and east counted their biggest football turnouts in history, 48,000 at Baton Rouge for Louisiana State-Tulane, and 105,000 at Philadelphia for Army-Navy.

In major league baseball, a new National league mark of 64,417 was reached for a Giant-Cardinal double-header in September, while the biggest crowd in World series history, 66,669, viewed the fourth game at the Yankee stadium.

Growth In Wagering

The manifestations of greater interest by cash customers, noted in every sport except professional boxing and wrestling, were accompanied by a marked growth in wagering. Experts cited the spread of "pools" on college football results, as well as a general increase in horse-racing betting.

The summary of principal sports trends, as shown by the poll, follows:

1. Bigger crowds and "gates" in all sports 22.
2. More "open and honest" handling of college football subsidies 14.
3. More open style of college football play, notably in mid-west 9.
4. Growth of professional football 8.
5. Growth of night baseball, now permitted in both major leagues 7.
6. Greater interest in probaseball, especially in minor leagues 6.
7. Return of eastern "Ivy" teams to football power 6.
8. Shift of leading amateurs to pro ranks in many sports 5.
9. Increase in horse-race betting, growth of football gambling, greater interest in winter sports, and better sectional balance of college football power 4 each.

LOST BOY IS FOUND SAFE

NO ILL EFFECTS ARE SUFFERED; HE WAS JUST HUNGRY

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 22 (AP)—Searchers late Monday afternoon found two-year-old Charles Warren, lost for more than 24 hours in a woodland, at a farm house four miles from his home.

The child wandered up to the home of a Mrs. Loy. She immediately got in touch with members of the posse hunting him.

The scantily clad child apparently suffered no serious ill effects from his experience. His face was chapped and his body bore scratches.

Wants Oat Meal

Doctors said that outside of suffering from hunger and exposure he was none the worse for the adventure. He was released shortly afterwards.

"I want some oat meal," the child cried upon being reunited with his family. The breakfast cereal was the food he had last eaten before disappearance Sunday afternoon after following his father who had gone into a woods to cut a Christmas tree.

BOWL JINX

day, 1930, a strong favorite over the Southern California Trojans.

Toby Uansa broke away on the first scrimmage play to score, the 69 yards to U. S. C.'s 14-yard line, where he was nailed from behind.

Then the Trojans took the ball and Russ Saunders directed an aerial circus which buried the Panthers under an avalanche of 47 points.

Trojans Rout Pitt Twice

Before the final whistle, the Pitt team got the ball long enough to score two touchdowns to reduce the margin but not the decisiveness of the Trojan triumph. The final count: U. S. C. 47, Pitt 14.

That defeat sunk eastern football hopes to an all-time low, but it failed to affect the reign of the Panthers in the years that followed over the foes of their own section. Year after year nearly every eastern team that bucked the Panthers went down to defeat and none got better than a tie.

On January 1, 1933, the Rose Bowl throng looked down again on a Pittsburgh team, lined up against the great Southern California eleven sparked by the mighty midget, Cotton Warburton, then a sophomore. The line was built around the invincible Ernie Smith and Tay Brown at the tackle posts.

Strike Swiftly

The Trojans struck swiftly, scoring a touchdown on a long pass in the first period. They let the Panthers battle their hearts out the first half, then netted another touchdown in the third period and tacked on three more in the final quarter. The game ended: U. S. C. 35, Pitt 0.

Eastern fans sought the reason of the unexpected reversals, but all of them — climatic changes, the long trip, the lapse in training — went up in the smoke of the hot stove league season after each defeat.

Pitt fans were convinced it was only one thing—a Rose Bowl jinx.

They got some consolation when the Panthers helped bring about the fall of the Trojan football dynasty in 1934 by trouncing Southern California 20-6 in Pittsburgh.

This year, the Pitt supporters are backing a team that has been beaten by its neighborhood rival, Duquesne, 7-0, and tied by Fordham, 0-0, but they are hopeful that somewhere among Sutherland's stalwart warriors will be found one who will rise to the heights and beat the jinx.

Marquette Starts Southern Training

DURANT, Okla., Dec. 22 (AP) — Scrimmaging was on the schedule of the Marquette university gridmen today as they polished their strategy for Texas Christian university in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas New Year's day.

The 27 football players from the north limbered up their train-tired muscles under southern skies here yesterday.

Coach Frank Murray did not push his squad in their first practice session but he displayed deceptive open-type plays to the Oklahomans and Texans who witnessed the workout.

About 3,000 Oklahomans and Texans greeted the Marquette players when their train pulled in. Ten bands from surrounding cities aided in the welcome.

Plenty Of Workout Promised Huskies

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Dec. 22. (AP)—The Huskies of University of Washington, as frolicsome as a flock of young colts, spent another session on Peabody field today tuning up for their engagement with University of Pittsburgh in Pasadena's Rose Bowl January 1.

Coach Jimmy Phelan, afraid his charges have gone rusty during the month lay-off since the regular season ended, promised plenty of work for the next week.

Phelan used a senior backfield combination of Elmer Logg at quarterback, Ed Nowogroski at full, and Fritz Waskowitz and Byron Haines at the halfback posts.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says the "average citizen" is the guy who believes any war can be fought in six weeks and that "police are seeking clues" means they really have a line on the criminal.

* * *

We've heard little about two-pants suits of late but if these "sit-down" strikes keep on maybe there'll be a return of that grand institution.

* * *

EVERY year The Plainsman runs Page 1 reminders of "So Many Days 'Til Christmas" and writes all the way from one to a dozen editorials (depending on how hard editorial topics are to find) on shopping early, giving the clerks and the postoffice boys a break, etc., etc., and a jolly, old etc.

Then he goes blithely on his way, like 75 per cent of the populace, and waits until the last minute to buy his offerings to the Little Woman, the brats and a few scattered friends and relations.

* * *

Today, therefore, finds your humble servant in considerable of a stew, with the happy Yuletide—if you know what we mean—little more than 48 hours removed.

But, after all, it's fun to shop late, even if it is a little mean and thoughtless, because in the crush of last-minute gift-buyers a fellow gets the Christmas spirit.

If you shop early it's no more fun than if you bought all your presents on the Fourth of July!

* * *

SPEAKING of Christmas reminds us that the Sanders Sunday school basket drive—always the easiest holiday project to put over with a bang—is doing just fine and only eight more baskets of food are needed to hit the quota of 31 right smack on the nose.

George Dupree and Jim Trigg, who head up the drive every year, have again done a swell job and, as usual, have oodles of co-operation.

Here's the way things stand as these here lines are hammered out:

Fou. baskets each: Sam Rosenthal, Hotel Lubbock; Two baskets each: George E. Benson, George W. Dupree, Hill Stewart and Dr. Chas. A. Ross; One basket each: Pete W. Cawthon, Broome Optical Co., Pup Thomas, Fred C. Wester, Penner Tubbs, A. W. McKee and The Plainsman. Total 23 baskets.

To be real honest about it, Jim Trigg is doing all the heavy work in connection with the campaign, just as he always does.

The baskets contain $2.50 worth of good, wholesome food, purchased at wholesale prices and are delivered to families which really need food.

Anybody wishing to "kick in" may take or mail a check for one or more baskets to Mr. Dupree, who offices in First National bank building.

He says he was talking to a fellow from Ropes, who was quite boastful regarding his fellow townsmen.

"Why," he claimed, "we folks down at Ropes are smart. We're a lot smarter than the people who live in New York."

"How do you figure that?" asked Chap.

"Huh," came the reply. "We know where New York is but New York people don't know where Ropes is!"

* * *

That Man on Avenue Q says it's now possible to talk directly from Lubbock to Paris by telephone, but what does that get us? If we mentioned the war debts the Frogs would claim they don't onnerstand ze Inglese.

* * *

Miss Peggy Joyce now figures her age at 34, which proves she is not as calculating as we supposed her to be.

* * *

HERE And There: Scientists say ticks can live three years or more without food—but who wants to be a tick, even on the day the grocery bill comes due? . . . Throughout the South as a whole, cotton pickers made more money in 1936 than in any year since 1929. . . . What is now Texas avenue used to be "Avenue I" and before that it was "Singer avenue", named in honor of "Old Man" Singer, a pioneer resident of the county whose store stood about four miles northwest of where the courthouse is today. . . . Birds fly only through necessity and those living where there is plenty of food and no danger tend to lose their flying ability. . . . The quail in the secluded, sparsely populated areas of Old Mexico prove that point to the satisfaction of any hunter.

* * *

It is said that there are 50,000,000 potential college students in the U. S., which must be a terrible blow to manufacturers of garters. . . . Although the dial telephone is relatively new, the original patent covering it was taken out in 1892. . . . Many another invention which has to do with the telephone and radio is similarly being retarded, since if they were thrown on the market a lot of the present equipment, worth millions and millions, would be junked overnight. . . . The retarding process is possible because American Telephone and Telegraph company has a monopoly in its field.

* * *

NOTE to Hubert Allen: Benjamin Franklin was the first guy to ever use an electric cook stove. . . . Insects destroy more timber than the lumber industry and forest fires . . . A man in Kiel, Germany, was fined $3,300 because he kissed a married woman. . . . Yet Dr. Chris Mansell says Germany is a swell place to live! . . . If similar fines were imposed for that act in this country there would be a lot more broke guys than there are. . . . Rollie Burns and B. O. McWhorter once owned the light and ice plant in Lubbock. . . . Here's a tip for Doc Peter Willis Cawthon, if he's having any trouble getting Tech kids to take gym work: Roller skating is so popular among undergraduates at Ottawa, Kans., university that officials bought skates for student use on the gymnasium floor. . . . Sam Koretzky, the philosopher of Broadway and Avenue H, remarks: "A man has only one stomach, and no matter how rich or powerful he gets, if he wears out his stomach with indiscreet drinking and eating, he's no good."

* * *

The client mopped his brow and nervously said to his attorney:

"Well, Judge, have you found any way to dissolve my marriage?"

"You bet I have," said the disciple of Blackstone. "I found out that your father-in-law has no permit to carry a gun!"

DURING the next week or so, as has been the case during the week just past, downtown parking spaces are going to be at a premium.

Unless a lot of us are a little more careful and a little more thoughtful, in the week to come, than we have been in the week just past, we are going to waste countless parking spaces by faulty parking.

It doesn't require a lot of intelligence to park a car correctly and it takes no more time than it does to drive to the curb in a manner where one car will usurp the place of two.

By parking at the right angle you'll make it easier for someone else to park close to where he wants to go.

Why not co-operate?

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARCIA CANFIELD, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CANFIELD, meets BRUCE McDOUGALL, artist, shortly after the mysterious disappearance of FRANK KENDRICK, to whom Marcia had been engaged. When shortages are found in Kendrick's business accounts, Marcia is more shocked than heartbroken. She realizes she was never in love with him.

McDougall is attentive until DOROTHY OSBORN, who dislikes Marcia, leads him to believe Marcia is engaged to another man.

There is a bank holdup and police commandeer the Canfield car to follow the bandits. The car is wrecked and both Marcia and her father are injured. McDougall, driving with Dorothy, arrives on the scene and takes Marcia and her father to the hospital.

Their injuries are slight. Although Marcia's arm is in a sling, she takes part in an amateur play a short time afterward. A New York producer attends the performance and offers Dorothy a part in his new production.

Marcia plans a party for Dorothy. JOHN WADDELL, cousin of Marcia's friend, HELEN WADDELL, is among the guests. Bruce McDougall assumes that Waddell is Marcia's fiance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

Marcia found McDougall and John Waddell in the billiard room. She had been looking for McDougall ever since the last guest had arrived, hoping to have a moment alone with him, to thank him personally for what he had done on the night of the accident—an acknowledgement she had not yet succeeded in delivering.

The two men had the small billiard room to themselves. The clusters of guests in the other rooms were still occupied in extending their congratulations to Dorothy Osborn, and with the small talk which forms the greatest entertainment for gatherings of the sort. Marcia stood in the doorway watching the players for a moment or two before they were aware of her. McDougall was attempting a difficult shot and Waddell was watching intently. Muffing it, McDougall stood back, and saw Marcia.

"Go on with the game," she said, but Waddell put down his cue.

"With a perfectly nice hostess present, all to ourselves?" he laughed. "No, ma'am; the game can wait, can't it, McDougall?"

"I've been wanting to speak with Mr. McDougall alone," Marcia began.

"Then, exit Waddell."

"No, no, John. It's just like being alone, to have you here."

"Thanks, ever so much!"

"Oh—I mean the Waddells are almost like members of the family!"

"Don't mind me," McDougall thought; "how do you suppose I'm feeling?"

"My dear lady," said Waddell, "in return for the insulting part of your remarks, let me say that I am henceforth on this gentleman's side in any exchange between you. Go on with your base designs, which you came here to accomplish in secret. But if you attempt to harm one hair of his head, I warn you . . . ."

"Mr. Waddell, of the Windy City," murmured Marcia. "I don't know why I let you in on this at all. Mr. McDougall is the one who picked us up and got us to a hospital on the night of the accident, John. And he never came around to be thanked prettily. I telephoned him and I wrote him, but I've never had the satisfaction of hearing him say 'Don't mention it' or 'You're quite welcome' or anything of the sort."

"Perhaps he regretted what he'd done," suggested John brightly.

The familiar McDougall blush had returned to the object of conversation, but his embarrassment over the apparent necessity for saying either "Don't mention it" or "You're quite welcome" was relieved by the arrival of Joan.

* * *

With the notion that Marcia's first dance rightly belonged to Waddell, whom he had mentally tagged as her fiance, McDougall would have stood dumbly by had not Joan seized the visitor for herself, after having punched the artist so heartily in the ribs as to propel him, literally, into Marcia's arms, the pleasure of the ensuing dance being somewhat marred by the pain of the blow.

"I do thank you, ever so much," Marcia was saying when McDougall became conscious of anything except the fact that he was dancing with her. "I have been wanting to say that to you, in person, for ever so long."

For the while, at least, McDougall was, in obedience to his own command, snapping out of it. Some self-assurance returned, some cheerfulness.

" 'Don't mention it' and 'You're quite welcome' " he quoted, laughing at her. "Besides that, what else could you have expected from any person who happened on the scene at the moment I did?"

Someone quickly cut in on their dance.

McDougall, in turn, cut in on Dorothy Osborn's partner. He recalled as they danced, his feeling of obligation to her for the dinner date broken by Marcia's accident, and he wondered, with some amusement, whether he was now able to repay that debt to a woman who since had found herself on the threshold of a Broadway career, and who therefore was a different woman than the one who had so kindly offered the hospitality of her home to a newcomer in the village.

He did not know the new Dorothy, any more than he had suspected the old.

He asked about her forthcoming work on the stage.

Rehearsals were to start soon, she told him, for a new Lloyd Burtis play, in which she was to have a better part than she had dared hope. She was, of course, both frightened and thrilled at the prospect. "A good deal," she said, "like the bride in one of your sketches I saw in the newspaper a week or so ago—do you remember the one?"

* * *

The idea of a gift occurred to McDougall, a gift which she might care for as marking her arrival on Broadway.

"Would you," he asked, "if you can spare the time, dress as you will appear in the part and let me do a portrait sketch of you? It won't be the world's greatest art work, but perhaps it will be your first portrait, and you can keep it to laugh at when you have ac-

GO TO IT, DOCTOR EINSTEIN!

Those who have tried to follow Einstein through interstellar spaces, convinced that sooner or later he would get off something they could understand, are rewarded for their patience. The great physicist has come to earth with an adaptation of the photo-electric cell which automatically adjusts a camera lens so that the right exposure is obtained. The details of the Doctor's device are a bit baffling to the lay mind, but the invention as a whole is something we can grasp.

While the Doctor is slumming on our intellectual level, there are other needed inventions which bespeak his notice. A road map that snaps back instantly into its original folds would save countless lives on our teeming highways. We need a key-winding can that opens without a fight. A paralysis ray to still the radio in the next apartment would be widely acclaimed. We need an automobile horn which actuates a strong brake whenever it is employed. We need a self-igniting, self-cleaning pipe. We need lots and lots of things more than we need curved space.

So have at it, Herr Doktor!

A THOUGHT

A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city; and their contentions are like the bars of a castle.—Proverbs 18:19.

A very small offense may be a just cause for great resentment: it is often much less the particular instance which is obnoxious to us, than the proof it carries with it of the general tenor and disposition of the mind whence it sprung. —Greville.

Behind The Scenes With The Stars Of Talkietown

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22—Short takes: Talking about a certain actress, Hal Horne said, "Well, she's improving—she marries a better man every year."

* * *

Mae West is going to build a big apartment and have her own quarters in the penthouse. She already owns a staggering amount of property around town, and that's what she has been doing with her money.

* * *

Most stars don't attempt to manage their own finances. George Temple, papa of Shirley, quit his job in a bank and has moved into the colony as a business manager. Has some other clients besides his daughter, too.

* * *

Marguerite Clark toured the Paramount lot the other day, her first visit inside a studio since she quit pictures in 1920.

* * *

* * *

Players can quickly become old-timers in this business. On the set of "Love Is News," one of the extras sang a strain from "Don't Bring a Frown to Old Broadway," from the first "Broadway Melody." "You'd almost think that was Charlie King," said an actor. "He sang that song when he starred in the picture."

It was Charlie King. An extra now, waiting for a break.

* * *

In His Cups

With a firm hand, Elaine Barrie-more has undertaken the social rehabilitation of her husband, who hasn't balanced a teacup on his knee and made polite small talk in many a leap year. The pair are entertaining now, and they really serve tea at the tea-hour. Mr. Barrymore seems to like the idea.

* * *

Don't be surprised if you see an actress billed as Dixie Lee Crosby. That would be Mrs. Bing, who wants to act again.

* * *

Mary Pickford has a new diamond-and-emerald necklace.

Three studios are racing to get out a movie based on the life of Zaharoff, late munitions mogul. And you could count by the dozens the studio writers who this minute are tearing their hair over yarns based on the Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Simpson romance.

* * *

It's Superstition Now

Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, the song-writing team, turned out ditties titled "Monterey," "Golden Gate," and "In the Hills of Old Wyoming." In each case, after the song was written, they visited the locale.

Now they've done the numbers for "Waikiki Wedding," and will leave any day for a vacation in Hawaii. It has become something of a superstition with them, and they're hoping the studio doesn't decide to make a musical about Little America.

* * *

Bing Crosby is reducing again. Just can't make that waistline behave, and he has to start another picture soon.

* * *

Great hilarity on the parts of Messrs. Laurel and Hardy over their wholesale matrimonial difficulties. Funnier than their best comedy, but not so good at the box office.

* * *

A Happy Heavy

Joseph Calleia, the perennial villain, is rejoicing in a sympathetic role assigned him in "To the Victor."

* * *

Twentieth-Fox is preparing a big musical to be called "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which will be a Cavalcade of all the Irving Berlin songs.

* * *

Victor Moore will retire in five years; he wants to travel.

* * *

* * *

But the most hilarious imitation in Hollywood is not likely ever to be filmed, Jane Withers does it—of Shirley Temple.

WHAT TO DO?

A studio writer turned out an excellent yarn on company time, but placed it with an agent to be sold under a pen name. The agent offered it to the writer's employers. They want to buy it, but they also insist upon hiring the author at a nice fat figure. However, if they learn that he already is working for them, and they paid his salary while he wrote the story, they'll fire him. This is what is known as a dilemma, or quandary.

Report Harry Hopkins Is Ready To Quit Seems To Be A Wish Of Foes; To Battle Campaign Against Work Unit

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Harry Hopkins has not decided to resign as boss of WPA, despite various reports.

His only present plans are to stay in Washington and fight against the campaign for liquidation of his huge work-relief organization. Part of that campaign, according to the administrator's friends, calls for liquidation of Hopkins himself, which may explain inspired reports that he had accepted a big job with a Chicago mail order house.

Dutcher

General confusion following large cuts in WPA rolls and subsequent retreat from the reduction program call for a resurvey of the WPA situation in Washington. Hopkins and Assistant Administrator Aubrey Williams have taken the rap for both those steps and the confusion as well, but here's what has happened:

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Budget Director Daniel Bell sold Roosevelt on the idea that industrial recovery warranted a gradual decrease in relief expenses. They convinced Hopkins that they hadn't enough money for WPA to last even to Jan. 20 if the payroll wasn't cut.

Roosevelt confided he'd like to have WPA costs cut to between a billion and a billion and a half for the next fiscal year—as against a WPA estimate of two billions—and suggested WPA expenditures might gradually be brought down to $100,000,000 a month.

* * *

Set Back; Fights On

Hopkins, who has never known for more than a month ahead how much money he would have, gave in. He knew he could hardly get a deficiency appropriation from Congress before Jan. 20.

Orders went out which meant dropping 150,000 from WPA's administrative, non-relief, and relief personnel, as well as 250,000 who all along had been slated for transfer to the Resettlement Administration (which will pay them less money, in dole form).

Expenses were to be cut from $168,000,000 in November to $152,000,000 in December.

At the same time Hopkins girded himself for a bitter-end fight with Morgenthau, Bell, Chamber of Commerce and Against-Roosevelt-Before-Election elements and a reported "Liberty League Lobby" over proposals to gradually strangle WPA and toss the able-bodied unemployed back to local politicians.

* * *

Money Suddenly Found

But soon LaGuardia of New York and other members of the U. S. Conference of Mayors were radioing the president, then in southern waters, that if WPA workers were to be dismissed on the theory that private industry would absorb them, it would be much better if someone would point out the jobs they were to take.

WPA workers staged demonstrations. Pro-New Deal and anti-New Deal newspapers cast scorn at an administration which would keep WPA intact to help it win an election and then start firing WPA workers indiscriminately as soon as the election was won.

Radiograms crackled back from the cruiser Indianapolis to Morgenthau, Bell, and Hopkins. Suddenly, by what legerdemain is not yet known, Morgenthau and Bell found there really was enough money to take WPA through January at the November rate.

Hopkins called a special press conference to declare over and over that "No one in need will be dropped."

Even though it tended to make WPA look foolish in the light of conflicting official statements based on the previous policy, Hopkins loyally covered up for Roosevelt and the Treasury-Budget Bureau crowd.

* * *

Cut Radically Modified

About 250,000 WPA workers in rural areas will be transferred to Resettlement, as planned. But the cut of 150,000 others will turn out to be one of nearer 10,000—administrative workers, non-relief workers on cultural projects, and "chiselers" discovered in purges.

Boards of appeal are being set up to see that no needy WPA worker is unjustly fired.

One of the first little jobs Roosevelt had to figure on when he returned was a session with Morgenthau, Bell, and Hopkins.

Later, the battle of relief will be fought out in Congress and there will be an effort to "get" Hopkins. He has enemies in the administration, partly because he has been so close to Roosevelt and usually able to get what he wanted at the White House, and also on Capitol Hill.

Among the latter group is Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House Rules Committee, who may be so bitter because administration forces have balked his ambition to be floor leader that he will make an especial attack on Hopkins.

HOLIDAYS ARE ON IN CITY

VACATIONS FOR LOCAL SCHOOL STUDENTS END ON JAN. 4

Holiday-minded students are leaving classrooms of Lubbock public schools and Texas Technological college this afternoon for a Christmas vacation which will last until Jan. 4.

Senior High school students were to present a Christmas pageant in the auditorium of that institution at 2 o'clock after special programs by students in their vocational guidance groups.

To Present Play

At Junior High school "The Little Lame Prince," a play, was presented by Mrs. F. L. Tolbert's dramatic club this afternoon. Mexican children were to receive candy and fruit presented by Lubbock merchants.

Special programs were given before mothers and friends at Sanders school. At K. Carter and Dupre schools programs were conducted in each room. Students of Hunt school appeared in a program at Central Baptist church.

Classes Resume Jan. 4

Classwork will be terminated at 3 o'clock at Texas Tech, but numerous students will leave for their homes earlier. Classwork will be resumed Jan. 4.

After the holidays only 19 days will remain before final examinations for the first semester. Tests will be Jan. 23 to 29. Registration for the second semester will be Feb. 1.

union, Elisha related how he fed 100 men with 20 loaves, but Isaiah replied, "we now have a fellow named Harry Hopkins who feeds 20 men with 100 loaves."

"James A. Farley couldn't qualify as a major prophet," Isaiah said, because all he did "was count the names on the payroll." Another skit included a "good feeling" duet —by proxy—by Farley and John D. Rockefeller, jr.

Rexford Tugwell, entering the molasses business, gained admission into the Union League club, despite his bright red undershirt.

Lubbock Girl New Hostess On Liner

A new hostess on Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., lines is Miss Edith Long, former Lubbock young woman.

Miss Long, who recently completed four years training as a nurse in Lubbock sanitarium, joined TWA as active hostess and left Amarillo last night for Kansas City. She will be stationed in the western region. At Kansas City she recently was examined for the position of stewardess.

Miss Long, who was graduated from the school of nursing at the sanitarium here, had been doing special nursing there the past year, said J. H. Pelton, sanitarium manager. She is a native Texan, was born at Weatherford and was graduated from high school there.

Funeral Services Held At Plainview

Burial services for Lucius Halbert of Plainview, former student of Texas Technological college, were to be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Plainview First Methodist church.

Rites were first scheduled for Monday afternoon, but were postponed because of the failure of a sister, Mrs. Wayne Greer, to make train connections at New Orleans and arrive in time for the funeral. The 25-year-old man died Saturday.

Boy Chases After Dog; Hit By Auto

Four-year-old Edwin Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Allison of Levelland, was struck by an automobile near his home at 2:30 p. m. yesterday as he ran after his straying pup.

He had started to run across a street to get his four-month-old Boston bulldog and was struck by the old-model car. A woman driving the car failed to stop before running into the child.

The boy was taken to the Lubbock sanitarium about 4 o'clock for treatment. He suffered a hip injury and bruises on the head and face. Reports Tuesday morning were that he was improving.

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 2 to 7 points decline on lower Liverpool cables and under liquidation. Jan. 12.11; March 12.16; May 12.04; July 11.95; Oct. 11.59; Dec. 11.57.

The market continued quiet but the undertone was fairly steady under moderate pre-holiday liquidation and selling in March believed to be for trade account. There was enough trade buying on a scale down to hold prices within a narrow range. March reacted from 12.18 to 12.14 with prices at midday unchanged to 7 points lower.

Pre-holiday commission house realising and January liquidation supplied contracts while the trade and the far east continued as the best buyers. Trading was light and orders rather scattered. Those from Europe were on both sides of the market but seemed to be on the selling side on balance.

After the opening the tone was steady with normal price changes. March fluctuated between 12.15 and 12.17 and prices generally at the end of the first half hour were 2 to 4 points net lower. Cotton goods markets remained quiet but steady while southern advices indicated mills had supplied their current raw cotton requirements.

Liverpool also reflected pre-holiday conditions with hedge selling and January liquidation supplying trade calling.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 22 (AP) — Cotton sagged a few points at the start of trading here today and some pre-holiday liquidation found few takers.

The losses were held to less than 25 cents a bale in dull dealings. March opened at 12.10, May at 12.02, July at 11.90 and Oct. at 11.57.

Prices fluctuated within a narrow range around these levels. Liverpool was steady and business there took on a holiday appearance.

English traders were expecting prices to remain fairly well stabilized at the current levels until after the first of the year.

Professionals were out of the market at New Orleans and business consisted almost entirely of long liquidation taken by trade buying; there was a little hedging in later months.

The market barely moved from its opening levels during the morning with both trade and speculative interests on the sidelines.

Customary year-end selling that unsettled the stock market brought sympathetic bearishness to cotton prices and the market was able to make little headway on the upside.

Jan. sold at 12.06, March at 12.09, May at 12 cents even and July at 11.90.

Spot sales fell off sharply with the approach of the year-end. However, the decline was said to be the result of a lack of suitable grades, rather than any important drop in the demand from mills.

Dry and generally cold weather was indicated by the weather map.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (AP)—What brokers termed an "oversold" stock market attracted buyers in sufficient numbers to rally recently depressed leaders fractions to 3 or more points.

In the forward push the ticker tape got behind floor dealings for a brief interval. The activity slowed later but near the fourth hour advances were well maintained.

While there was apparently less nervousness over auto parts and other strikes the situation was still viewed as a retarding market influence.

Bonds improved. Many staples, including copper, continued to surge forward to new recovery peaks. Wheat, however, dipped on federal predictions of a larger than expected winter crop. Major European currencies were up in terms of the dollar.

Copper and steel shares took the lead early and held it during the greater part of the proceedings. Some of the motors, utilities, rails, oils and specialties gave a good account of themselves.

Conspicuous on the comeback were Anaconda, Kennecott, Inspiration, Phelps Dodge, American Smelting, International Nickel, Calumet & Hecla, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Vanadium, Chrysler, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Texas Corp., Standard Oils of Indiana and California, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, American Radiator, Goodrich, Commercial Solvents, Stone & Webster, Wesson Oil & Snowdrift and Yellow Truck.

In a rather slim groove were N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, General Electric, Du Pont and North American.

Work Projects In Area Nearing End

Many of the Works Progress administration projects under way in this district will be completed or nearly completed by the first of the year.

Efforts are being made through the district headquarters in Lubbock to bring to an end many of the projects by that time or soon after.

Few new projects under the Works Progress administration will be started in this district until after the first of January. Employes of the district office here will be given a Christmas vacation beginning at noon Thursday. The offices will be closed during the Christmas holidays.

Search For Bandit Trio Is On Today

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 22 (AP) — Sheriff Albert W. West, jr., and his deputies combed the city today for two men and a woman who held up the Farmers State bank of Orange Grove early yesterday and took $2,760.

Blank checks and papers from the bank were found near the intersection of Wilshire and Morningside drive in Alamo Heights last night by Dr. Frank Woodroffe.

ATTACKS MADE UPON WOMAN

FARM WIFE DECLARES SHE WAS ATTACKED BY THREE MEN

SMITHLAND, Ky., Dec. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Clarence Olin Baker, 19-year-old farm wife, reported three men tried to burn her alive, after one of them had criminally attacked her.

County Judge Rappolle said she reported the three men wore masks and rubber gloves. After one of them attacked her, she is reported to have said, one of the trio talked the others out of their intention to burn her after they had saturated with kerosene the bed on which she lay.

Livingston County Sheriff George Heater and officers of the Kentucky state highway patrol led posses in search of the men.

The packages will be packed so that every girl will receive the type of toys she likes and every boy will have the playthings dear to a lad's heart at Christmas.

The deliveries committee emphasized that volunteer drivers were wanted at exactly 8 o'clock. Last year, it was explained, enough drivers reported, but many were late.

Must Override Veto

The house, by a strange quirk of legislative routine, having voted Gomez impeachment, still must override his veto in order to make the sugar tax bill law.

The struggle between Gomez and his former political ally, Batista, shipped the senate earlier into an uproar in which several members drew pistols.

The guns were drawn after Santiago Verdeja, a Gomez foe, debated heatedly with two Gomez supporters. Arturo Illas, senate president, yanked out his own pistol and threatened to kill anyone who fired a shot during the session.

NAVY OFFICER VISITS CITY

EXPERIENCES IN CHINA TOLD BY J. E. ROOT; TROUBLE LOOMS

Unless some agreement is reached as result of kidnaping of the China leader, General Chiang Kai-Shek, "the picture is likely to be changed over there," Lieutenant-Commander J. E. Root, who has spent the last 2 1-2 years in Shanghai, predicted here this morning.

The officer discussed China-Japan complications, but said that officers in Shanghai knew little more of what was occurring than the American who reads of the situation in newspapers.

Lectures Are Given

"Confidential" lectures concerning China conditions were given by officers who had travelled over the country, but "we usually read what we were told in the newspapers next morning," he said. "I don't know of anything we ever heard which wasn't published."

Japanese officers patrol the International settlement, in which the American officers live, but never molest them, the naval officer said. The officers avoid any areas in which there has been conflict.

"I don't think anyone can predict what's going to happen between China and Japan," he said. China has tolerated Japanese patrols in its country because of its wish to postpone complications until fully prepared, he said.

Is Visiting Brother

The lieutenant-commander is visiting his brother, T. C. Root of 2629 Twenty-second street. He has been transferred from Shanghai to Brooklyn, N. Y. He is in the navy medical corps.

En route here, the officer and his wife were delayed in Honolulu because of the maritime strike. Crew of the ship on which he left Shanghai left on instruction of strike unions. Another ship to which they transferred anchored outside the three-mile limit at San Francisco so that the crew could not leave except by mutiny.

The depression, serious when he went to Shanghai, is almost ended now, said the officer. The money is "pretty well stabilized."

The better class Chinese is courteous to Americans in China, although the "coolies" are not always so, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Root will accompany the visitors to Waco tomorrow to spend Christmas holidays.

quired a bigger and better collection."

Dorothy was more genuinely flattered than he would have believed. Broadway—that was ahead, but the attentions of friends and neighbors of Bobbs Neck were in the present, and McDougall's offer was far from among the least.

They arranged to meet on Monday afternoon for the sketch.

Joan, meanwhile, had compelled Mike to dance with her, and McDougall cut in "with a sigh of relief," she said, "from my darling husband."

"How goes it?" Joan asked, looking up at McDougall with a glance which he, being inexperienced, did not know was analytical.

"It goes grand," he replied.

* * *

Immediately a man cut in. Ignoring the face Joan made at him over the newcomer's shoulder, the artist found his way through the crowd and broke in on Helen's dance.

"Thanks, stranger," said Helen. "The man you supplanted was giving me some tough walking. And would you do me a further favor? As one of the hostesses, there are a few things I could be seeing to. If you'll drop me off over near the door I'll leave just for a couple of minutes, and when I come back I'll bring you something to drink and be ever so sweet to you for your kindness."

Obediently McDougall pushed toward the door she had indicated. In the hall she showed him the library.

"Make yourself comfortable by the fire in there, if you like," she said. "I'll only be a moment."

McDougall went into the still, book-lined room and stretched luxuriously in a great sofa before the fireplace. The sound of the music was faint. No one else was here, but he heard voices from another room beyond, a sunroom or conservatory, he thought, reached by doors on either side of the library fireplace. A woman said something, and it passed over McDougall without registering, but he heard Mike Bradford's reply.

"You could afford it, sister," said Mike. "What's a mere thousand bucks in the career of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horton? And after all, what would you have done that they didn't do? As you tell the story yourself, Waddell hollered for help and Marcia scrammed out to Chicago. But the whole scheme went haywire. It fizzled before they could tackle it. Why don't you forget it? Why complain? I thought we came in here to rest our feet."

"Well, having lost a thousand dollars, it seems to me I'm entitled to complain," said Mrs. Horton.

"You've used up $1100 worth of complaining in my hearing alone," said Mike. "The account's overdrawn."

A long silence followed and McDougall was uncomfortably wondering whether he could be classed as an eavesdropper when Helen Waddell reappeared with two glasses in her hands and joined him on the sofa. Apparently they were not heard by those in the next room, for the woman spoke again.

"I just wonder," she said, "why Mr. Waddell's here. Has he something new to tell Marcia, do you suppose?"

Helen's sudden immobility seized McDougall's attention as surely as if she had grasped his arm without warning. He found a blazing anger in her eyes.

"Don't ask me!" Mike was saying. "I have a very good mind to find out," Mrs. Horton insisted.

"In debating the first few words of your last remark," said Mike, "permit me to take the negative."

FLASHES OF LIFE

Death At Christmas

WOODBURY, N. Y.—Mrs. Lena Stoobe, 74, could not afford a Christmas tree this year for the first time in her life. So she went into the woods near her home with a hatchet.

More than 150 police and firemen searched all night for her. They found her, dead of exhaustion, at daybreak. A small, neatly cut fir tree was in her arms.

There Is A Santa

COLUMBIAVILLE, N. Y.—Charles Henry Benedict intends to hang up his stocking for his 103rd Christmas.

Said Benedict: "Just because I've never seen Santa Claus is no reason I should up and declare he's a fake. I never saw Abe Lincoln either, but I voted for him."

All he really wants in that stocking, said the aged man, is "about a ton of pipe tobacco."

Put Her On Force

LOS ANGELES—Embarrassed policemen came home largely empty handed from their annual turkey shoot.

The reason was Mrs. Bobby Rutherford, a housewife. Shooting on the men's pistol event, she won a turkey, a ham and three boxes of candy.

Sergeant Ivan Johnson, crack shot of the force, also won a turkey—in a raffle.

Will Girls Wait?

OKLAHOMA CITY—Bashful swains who waited all year to catch their girls beneath Christmas mistletoe are desolated. Their Christmas kissing must be postponed.

A survey showed this year's mistletoe crop was held up by severe drouth. Oklahoma's official state flower won't be ripe for picking before February.

And Painproof

ALBERT LEA, Minn.—Freeborn county residents who abhor the thought of going to the dentist might find some solace in learning the dentist will now come to them.

Dr. Freeman L. Blunt has built an office on a truck chassis. It has a hot water heating system, hot and cold running water, indirect lighting, a laboratory, a sound proof dental room, a waiting room, and is air-conditioned.

The Coliseum at Rome accommodated 100,000 spectators, 87,000 of which were seated. Its arena measured 182 feet from side to side, and 285 feet from end to end.
