Local Firemen Observe Ladies Night Friday

Baptist Ladies Serve Banquet And Prepare Program For Affair

More than fifty firemen and their wives and sweethearts attended the regular monthly banquet of the Junction Fire Department which was given at the First Baptist Church Friday evening. The ladies of the Baptist Church were in charge of the banquet and prepared the program. Mrs. C. W. McCann assisted at the piano during the evening. Mrs. Edgar McCendon prepared the enigmatical menu which the firemen were asked to solve before the banquet was served.

Partners for the evening were selected by a novel stunt. English walnuts were halved and numbers placed inside and then the walnuts were sealed. Red and yellow ribbons were tied around the nuts. Men took the ones tied with the red ribbons and the ladies took those tied with yellow ones. Those drawing corresponding numbers were paired for the evening.

After the banquet, the High School Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Dutton gave five numbers. Mrs. C. W. McCarroll accompanied on the piano. The first two selections of the glee club which were pantomimes were well received by the crowd. Miss Fairlee Linn gave a reading and the glee club sang three more numbers. Miss Exa McElrath gave a reading following the glee club performance.

After the program was over, Assistant Fire Chief Leon R. Powell took charge of the gathering in the absence of Chief John M. Hankins. He called upon Uncle Billie McKee and V. P. Emmons for short speeches. Following these talks, the crowd was dismissed.

The entire program was well planned and carried out, and the Baptist ladies served a good banquet.

Eastern Star Holds Regular Meet Thursday

Two New Members are Taken Into Organization at Meeting

Thursday evening the Order of the Eastern Star met in regular session at the Masonic hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Miller of Rocksprings, Worthy Patron and Worthy Matron, presided. Misses Ray Munn and Ruth Morris were initiated at this time.

A duet, "Songs in the Night," sung by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Brison, was enjoyed.

Strawberry short cake and coffee were served after the meeting and a social hour enjoyed. Those present were: Misses Katie Wilson, Lela Taylor, Lillian Kindrick, Ray Munn, and Ruth Morris, Mesdames Nolan Gilliam, Mattie Patterson, George Cavanaugh, Cleve Steven, Dorothy Westmoreland, Jim Massie, Forrest Weldon, John Munn, A. W. Loeffler, E. R. Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Miller of Rocksprings, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Seacrest, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Coffey of Noxville, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Brison and Mr. Doebay Taylor.

FIREMEN DROP GAME TO ROCKSPRINGS TEAM

The Junction Fire Department baseball team dropped a game to the Rocksprings team Sunday. The firemen played fair ball up to the seventh inning when they blew up and allowed the Rocksprings team to score 13 runs. A return game will be in Junction Sunday.

"TIME, PLEASE"

Being right up to the minute won't be very hard for the court house officials when they move into their new offices in the new court house. Arrangements have been made for seven clocks to be installed in the new building.

One master clock will be placed in the district court room, one in the clerk's office, one in the County Judge's office, and one on each front of the court house. These clocks on the front of each side will be visible from the street.

The Commissioners' Court decided that the clocks would be silent. They will be run and regulated by electricity.

Members Cemetery Association to Elect New Officers Today

The Junction Cemetery Association meets today in its regular meeting, and the officers for the ensuing year will be elected. The retiring officers ask the hearty co-operation of everyone with the new officers. The expenses of the cemetery become greater each year and more funds are needed to keep it as it should be.

In addition to the membership dues the past year, the following funds are reported: Donations: Tom Joy, $3; John Graham, $5; Cleve Stephen, $1; Robt. Ragland, $5; Pierce Hoggett, $1; Mrs. Minnie Massie, $1; Mrs. Lee Lowry, $1; Hardy Farmer, $20.

Receipts from sale of lots: Mrs. Riley Fish, $20; Jim Hull, $25; J. A. Miller, $10; Hilary Henderson, $5; Miss Bernice Sutton, $5.

The above amounts reveal the fact that very few have donated to the upkeep of the cemetery. If there are any errors in the above amounts, Mrs. Felps would be glad for it to be called to her attention, or if contributions are not mentioned she would be glad to know it. The books show the above receipts and if not correct the officers want to make the necessary corrections before the books are turned over to new officers.

The following were paid members during 1929, some of whom have paid their 1930 dues:

Mesdames John Allen, Ellen Allsup, Dee Bartley, T. J. Bailey, W. W. Buck, C. F. Burt, J. F. Bissett, John Bradley, Joe Bissett, E. E. Bolt, E. O. Bode, Ernest Burt, R. Becker, Joe Bishop, Nat Cowsett, Stella Caviness, Allie Dowdy, H. O. Denman, Lottie Durst, R. J. Felps, Asa Farmer, Ollie Fleming, S. A. Griffith, Troy Fleming, E. Holekamp, J. A. Heyman, Hattie Hodges, Alfred Hodges, A. R. Hodges, M. N. Harrison, Porter Hodges, T. M. Hodges, Elmer Harrison, Emma Highsmith, S. L. Hoggett, Annie Highsmith, L. H. Jetton, Agnes Jordan, U. D. Kindrick, Ned Linn, R. H. Loeffler, John S. Munn, A. L. Mudge, Willie McDonald, T. B. Phillips, Mattie Patterson, S. E. Pearce, Robt. Ragland, Jim Ragland, Mary Sandherr, Coke Stevenson, Bob Turner, Henry Taylor, Albert Taylor, Beatrice Wright, Jim L. Wright, John B. Wilson, Miss Stella Whittle, Miss Lena Cowsett, Messrs: J. L. Bishop, Joe Bishop, F. M. Chase, W. A. Steppenson.

Errors in the above list should be reported to Mrs. R. J. Felps so that the corrections can be made on the books.

LONDON COMMISSIONER FIXING LOCAL ROADS

The Commissioners' Court has turned over one tractor and grader to Commissioner G. W. Hardesty of London to work the roads in and around London. One of the main roads that will be improved is the Yates road.

New Bandstand Being Built In Schreiner Park

Project is Being Financed by Money Secured From Pecan Crop

Work has started on a speakers stand and band stand in Schreiner park which will be used for band concerts and speaking schedules. The band stand is being constructed by the county upon the authorization of the Commissioners' Court.

Funds for its construction have been raised by money secured from the sale of the pecan crops produced on the park grounds, and by a balance of $200 which has been kept in trust since the last fair in Kimble County which was held several years ago.

The stand is being built of reinforced concrete with steel banisters. It will be twenty feet square and four feet high, and facing towards the east. E. D. Porter, local contractor, is supervising the job free of charge to the county.

Junction May Secure Boys Summer Camp

Possibilities of a summer camp for boys on the South Llano River became more likely today when Messrs R. E. Marshall, J. W. Bartholow and W. E. Metzenthin were here on an inspection trip seeking a suitable location for the camp.

A group of local citizens composed of Messrs Emil A. Loeffler, Al Rieck, W. H. Baker, C. F. Holekamp and Capt. H. W. Rieck accompanied the men and showed them some of the most suitable possible locations. While no definite report was made by the men, they stated they were favorably impressed with the country and the locations visited.

Mr. Metzenthin, who is a professor in the University of Texas, has had much experience in directing boys camps as he has directed them in the New England states.

Members Lions Club Build Bridge Today

A group of local members of the Lions Club went to 700 Springs today to build a concrete foot bridge across the South Llano River at the 700 Springs.

Lunch was carried and the party had a picnic at the springs after the work was done. The bridge is about 18 feet long and 18 inches wide.

It was built by the Junction Lions Club as a public service and as an aid to tourists and to local citizens.

Mr. E. Holekamp has been ill this week. He is one of our census enumerators and will be on the job in due time.

New City Water Well Produces 400 Gallons Water Per Minute

In a comparative brief period the Junction City Water Works has developed from an inefficient system to one that would supply enough water for a city many times the size of Junction.

On March 15, another new well was completed by the city and on March 26 a pump was placed in the well. Samples of the water were sent to Austin to be examined for impurities and the water was reported pure.

This new well will pump around four hundred gallons of water per minute. The well fills up as fast as it is pumped out and the water tastes and looks like spring water. An interesting feature of the well is that it is only a few steps

City Election Goes Strong For Old Councilmen

T. B. Phillips, Present Mayor, Is Re-elected by Big Majority

The city election Tuesday for the election of a mayor and five aldermen drew a large percentage of the qualified voters to the polls. The entire council and the mayor were re-elected by a substantial majority.

T. B. Phillips received 315 votes for mayor. Although their names were not on the ticket, Ches Goodwin, E. Holekamp and Alex Hamer received votes for mayor.

The names of the councilmen who were re-elected and the number of votes each polled is listed below: George Cavanaugh, 227; L. R. Hodges, 217; Frank Bissett, 213; J. A. Heyman, 192; J. L. Massie, 170.

K. E. Durst held the election, and the clerks were Messrs. J. L. Hodges, Hayden Lawler and Ramsey Randolph. The polls opened at 8 o'clock and were closed at 6. The election was held in the Texan Theater building.

William M. Jennings Is Buried Wednesday

Mr. William M. Jennings, aged 74, died in Junction on Tuesday, April 1 and was buried in the Junction Cemetery Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock, with the Rev. G. W. Crabbe, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

Mr. Jennings was born in Burlington, Conn., May 5, 1855. In early manhood he became united with the Baptist Church, and remained with that faith throughout his life.

He lived in and about Junction for about eight years and was well known to many in this section.

He is survived by his wife and ten children, three boys and seven girls.

Substantial Building Program Under Way

If signs of building prove prosperly, Junction is in the midst of a good era. There are several large construction jobs under way now, and more are being proposed.

Among the new buildings under construction now are the new Humble Filling Station, court house, Paterson ranch home, Phillip's apartment house and the new Methodist Church.

Leon R. Powell expects to build a first class filling station in the near future. Other proposed buildings are being figured on, but nothing definite can be secured.

Mr. R. S. Price is in a Fort Worth hospital taking treatment. He has improved very little since leaving Junction.

STUDENTS TAKE OUT; AND GET TAKEN OUT

Members of the Junior and Senior Class of Junction High School almost unanimously "played hooky" Tuesday, April Fool's Day. A dinner on the banks of the river was one of the high spots of the day.

But their joy turned into grief the next morning, when upon re-entering school, they were informed that they were temporarily suspended and were not needed in school.

Most of the truants were readmitted Thursday morning when their parents accompanied them to the school.

Chevrolet Employees Have Banquet At Fritz Hotel Tuesday

Culminating a ten-day used car sale contest staged by the Highland Chevrolet Company, the winning side led by Ernest Horney was given a steak dinner at the Fritz Hotel, while the losing side, led by Guy E. Wynne were forced to sit on the opposite side of the table and eat soup with steved prunes and pretzels as dessert and saffras tea for a beverage.

The entire force of employees of the company entered in the sale and they were supposed to report all prospects to the sales-managers. The used car parade staged last Saturday was a part of the drive made by the salesmen to win the contest. The contest opened March 20 and closed March 30.

The company sold 34 cars during the month of March. Only one more company in the San Antonio district equaled this record.

After the banquet, several interesting after-dinner speeches were made. The Chevrolet company is planning on establishing regular dates for these get-together dinners.

Those attending the banquet were: Messrs. J. S. Farmer, A. G. Farmer, Hubert Furr, Fred Coleman, M. C. Scott, Ray Salter, Edgar Furr, Nolan Gilliam, Ernest Lackey, Bob Bissett, and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Marx Wiese, Mr. and Mrs. Astor Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Horney and Mr. and Mrs. George Cavanaugh and daughter, Mildred.

State Inspector Visits Kimble County Schools

State Aid Appropriations Are Made to Rural Schools of County

Thursday, March 20, Mr. C. W. Huckaby, inspector for the State Department of Education, was in Kimble County on an inspection tour of the rural schools of the county. County Judge J. B. Randolph accompanied Huckaby on the trip to the county schools.

Huckaby reported the schools in good shape, and the requirements for next year were practically nothing. With the exception of the need of a chart or map or two, the schools were well equipped. He reported them about up to standard.

The amount of State aid which was granted the schools is given below: London was granted $779 on the basis of a nine month school; Roosevelt, $269 for a nine month school; Ivy, $277 for an eight month school; Bodine, $413 and Tea Cup $310, both of which are nine month schools.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Livingston and son and Mrs. Calvert Reid and daughter and Vivienne Livingston were San Angelo visitors the past week-end.

Father and Son Banquet Draws Big Attendance

Vocational Agriculture Boys Prepare and Serve Banquet

The Father and Son Banquet given by the Junction High School Vocational Agriculture students Saturday evening at the high school attracted sixty parents and students. The V. A. boys prepared and served the banquet which consisted of barbecued mutton and chevon, pickles, potatoes, beans, cake and whipped cream.

Awbrey Winkel was toastmaster and presided at the banquet. Joe Roberts was the announcer. A toast to the mothers and fathers was given by Awbrey Winkel. Oliver Linn Vierling gave a report of the Brady stock judging meet in which the Junction boys participated. Future trips was the topic upon which James Hodges spoke. Gordon King enumerated the advantages of such trips to the boys taking Vocational Agriculture. Jarvis Jordan spoke on "My Project This Year." "Next Year's Project" was the subject upon which John Lewis Weaver spoke. Rufus Smelser talked on "Farm Shop Work."

Mr. J. L. Hodges made an interesting talk on the differences in stock judging yesterday and today. He told of the difference in the way the boys of today are taught and the way it was learned several years ago. R. E. Homann, County Agent, made a good talk on vocational agriculture work in general.

Ross Brison, instructor of vocational agriculture work in the school, stated that there are 17 boys enrolled in the V. A. work and they have projects valued at $1500. They have spent approximately $700 on the projects, which shows a profit of $800.

Mr. Roy King expressed confidence in the work of the department and commended them upon their work. Messrs. Ran Davis, A. F. Winkel and Fox donated the sheep and goats for the banquet.

The main purpose of the banquet was to better acquaint the mothers and fathers with the work that the Vocational Agriculture students are doing.

RANCHERS WIN TRUCK RATE BATTLE

The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association and the State Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association and other livestock interests won their battle for exceptions to rates for trucks hauling cattle and feedstuffs which was fixed by the Railroad Commission. Their victory was announced on March 31.

The commission issued an order excepting cattle, salt, cottonseed, cake, meal, hulls, and other commodities used by the stockmen from the rates fixed by trucks based on the tariff applying to shipments over the railroads.

JUNCTION TOWN TEAM BEATS LONDON SUNDAY

The independent town baseball team of Junction defeated the London team in a good exhibition of baseball Sunday. The final score was 8 to 5 favoring Junction. The game went to the sixth inning with the score standing at one to one, each side pushing across a tally in the first inning.

In the sixth inning the Junction bats started cracking and six runs were scored.

Both teams played good ball and few errors marred the game. L. E. Dunbar for Junction pitched a good game, allowing only four hits.

Youngest Man To Be Named In 100 Years

Appointee At Present On Federal Circuit Court of Appeals

Washington.—The nomination of Judge John J. Parker, Republican, of North Carolina, to be associate justice of the Supreme Court succeeding the late Edward T. Stanford, of Tennessee, was forwarded to the senate recently by President Hoover.

The second appointee of Mr. Hoover to the highest tribunal is now on the bench of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the fourth district, embracing Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

MECHANICAL HEN TURNS EGGS IN AN INCUBATOR

Ames, Iowa.—Marlow Olsen, experimenting for Iowa State College, has invented a mechanical hen which turns every egg in an incubator an average of 96 times a day.

Until recently poultrymen did not know that a setting hen turns her eggs about 86 times daily.

The device is worked by cogs and pulleys operating from the rise and fall of water in a large container.

BEGGAR CALLS ON EX-WIFE

Detroit, Mich.—Beggars cannot be choosers, but they certainly should not be ex-husbands.

Lawrence Potetzki was out rapping on back doors and saying to the house, "Please, ma'am, can you spare a cup of coffee?" Fate led him to the back door of 17439 Dwyer street, and that was tough for Mr. Potetzki.

"Please, ma'am," he began, "can you spare—"

"Why, it's Lawrence!" said the lady. "Former husband! The man I divorced eight years ago. The man who was ordered to pay me $15 a week and who skipped after making one payment: Why, you—"

By this time she had a strong grip on a broom, but Potetzki was already taking it "on the lam." The one time wife, however, pursued fleetly; and Judge Boyne removed Mr. Potetzki from circulation for 30 days.

"You must find living in the city dreadful, after spending your life up to now so pleasantly in the country. What do you miss most?"

"My pocketbook and watch."

WORTH TELLING AGAIN

The one about the Scot who sold a Heeb a horse for $100. Two days later it died, and the Heeb wrote the Scot: "I find I don't nidd a huss, so fer fifth dollers I'll sell it beek to you."

The Scot agreed, sent the fifty, and made no squawk when he discovered that the steed was dead.

When the pair met again, the dialectician chirped: "I tutt perhaps you was angry wit' me becz I deedn't told you de huss was dad."

"No, I'm not sore," said the Scot. "I raffled it off at a dollar a chance to a hundred friends."

"But deedn't de fallow who won it mek a complaint?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but I gave him back his dollar."

WALTER BUCK IN RACE FOR JUSTICE OF PEACE

Walter Buck announces through our columns this week his candidacy for Justice of the Peace of precinct No. 1, subject to the action of the Democratic primary July 26. Mr. Buck is now serving his first term and feels that the experience gained during the months in office has better prepared him to serve the people and he is asking for a second term. He appreciates the support that has been given him and promises, if re-elected, to put forth his best efforts to make a satisfactory officer.

He solicits the influence and support of all the voters in the primary July 26.

Areas of other large Texas counties—the average Texas county approximates 900 square miles—are: Presidio 3,812, Culberson 3,787, Webb 3,219, Crockett 3,215, Val Verde 3,083, Terrell 2,355. Harris with 1,654 square miles is the largest county in the early developed section of the state.

Life is a task, but worth every single minute of it if you take God with you.

FEED THE CHICKS

The first rule for getting good profits from poultry is to hatch the chicks early and the next is to keep them growing so that they will reach laying maturity before cold weather. The young chicks should not be fed until they are 48 hours old, whether they are with a hen or in a brooder. A good feed at first is a mixture of 4 parts yellow corn meal, 2 parts rolled oats, 2 parts bran, and 1 part sifted meat scrap or dried milk. Hard-boiled eggs may be mixed in the mash, using 1 part egg to 6 parts mash, in which case the meat meal may be reduced one-half. After 2 or 3 weeks gradually substitute for this ration, once or twice daily, a mixture of equal parts of finely cracked corn and wheat or commercial chick feed. The chicks should be fed from three to four times daily. The chicks may be fed sparingly during the day, but the last meal in the afternoon should always be liberal.

ROOSEVELT 4H CLUB MEETS WEDNESDAY

Mr. Homann, County Agent, met with the 4H Club members Wednesday, March 26. The main subject he discussed was getting our projects for the year of 1931 started. He wishes us to think this over and get an earlier start next year.

However, we feel that we are going to accomplish much this year in spite of our late start. The members all have their demonstrations started and are eager to get all the material possible concerning them.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. John A. Miller, born September 7, 1853; died March 4, 1936.

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

This beautiful beatitude can lovingly be applied to my dear, if not the dearest, friend, who has recently passed to that better land.

To know this good neighbor, loyal friend and loving mother, was a pleasure that can never be erased from memory.

Having been associated with her for more than forty years, as neighbor, friend and counselor, I feel that too much can not be said in honor of this noble woman.

Words are inadequate to express my real grief for the loss of this true and tried lifetime friend.

To the dear ones left to mourn:

"Weep not that her toils are over, Weep not that her race is run; God grant we may rest as calmly when Our work, like her's, is done."

Lovingly,
Mrs. M. N. Harrison.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Has Lefevre, under the name of Luke Maddison, wealthy banker and his sister Margaret, been to a large check. He is found dead with a note in his hand, writing accusing Maddison of having ruined him. Margaret accuses Luke Maddison, after he has given her everything he owns. She leaves him, telling him she has ruined him to revenge her brother. Luke, bewildered, wanders about London, is attacked by thugs who take him to a detective, reverts in hospital to find he is known as "Smith". In this new character he becomes involved with the Joe Connor gang, who mistake him for an Australian crook named Smith, and he is made an unwilling accomplice in a jewel robbery. He does not know that Margaret has returned and has turned to his bankers all the money he gave her in the jewelry robbery. He does not know that Margaret, an American jewel thief, whom Maddison had once befriended, has been making inquiries. Detective Ried of Scotland Yard, interested in Morell, Maddison goes to his own old bachelor quarters, takes a sheet of paper on which Luke had begun a letter to his mother, and reads it. He is in a desperate trouble. Margaret's joy over the discovery that Luke is alive and in London is broken by the statement of Detective Ried that the man concerned in the jewel robbery, whom she thought she knew was Luke, had been going around for two years with the woman whose description he was given. Connor's suspicion is that the man who had been seen in the river, who the salt will dissolve, the chains drop off and the body will be found without marks of violence. Haynes tells the Connor gang and takes Maddison into the boat, assuming as he sees two men climbing the fence.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Returning as quickly as he came to the place where he had left Luke, he lifted him and went cautiously and gingerly down the slope toward the water. There would be a boat here. Presently his keen eyes discerned the dim shape of it as it moved uneasily on the rising tide.

He had considered the possibility of leaving Luke to be discovered by the police, and had rejected that plan. He owed a debt to this man—he could not leave him to discovery and disgrace. If what Connor had said was true, Maddison, in his capacity of brigand, was as much wanted by the police as Connor himself.

He drew the boat to the broken stone causeway with the heel of his boot, and put Luke aboard by the simple process of laying him level with the edge of the wharf and rolling him onto the boat. It took a few minutes to balance him. As he himself stepped astride of the man, he heard the sound of voices in the yard, saw the flicker of electric lamps. Uniting the painter, he pushed off with his hand, dragged an oar from under the reclining figure and paddled his way to mid-stream, keeping a sharp lookout for the river police.

He saw the launch coming down-stream at full speed, and drove his boat into the shelter of two moored barges as the tiny steamer swung in a semi-circle.

"A bit late," muttered the Gunner.

He was free from detection now, unless he met another patrol, and finding the second oar, he pushed Luke down between the two seats and sitting, rowed steadily downstream.

In an hour there would be daylight; already the eastern sky was whitening. The Gunner knew a safe landing near Rotherhithe; the tide was turning and would, he judged, carry him to safety.

He judged wrong, and saw, before he had reached London Bridge, that he could not make his destination in the darkness. He took his decision quickly. Stooping over the side of the boat, he filled his hat with water and dashed it in the face of the slumbering man. Luke shivered and groaned, and the Gunner repeated his experiment. He heard the moaning voice of the man at the bottom of the boat.

"My head . . ."
"Keep quiet!" hissed Haynes. "I'm taking you to London Bridge Stairs."
There was no answer, and the Gunner prodded with his heel at his uneasily moving cargo.

"Do you hear me?"
"Yes, I hear you. What has happened?"
Haynes did not reply, but pulled at his oars, and in a minute Luke heard the jolt of the boat striking against the stone.

ner's hand gripped Luke's wrist and drew him to a sitting position.

With the boathook he drew the little skiff against the steps and came to land. It took five minutes before Luke could follow him. His knees gave under him, and he wanted all the support that his companion could give him.

"Sit on the steps," commanded the Gunner, and Luke obeyed. "Now try to stand."

For five minutes Luke sat crouched up, his face in his hands, and then the Gunner's voice aroused him.

"There are too many people passing over the bridge to please me," he said. "We had better get up before it's light."

He assisted the half-conscious man to rise to his feet. Neither spoke as they climbed the steep flight until they emerged flush with the footpath. The people who were hurrying across the bridge took little notice of them, and gripping his companion by the arm, the Gunner led him down toward Tooley Street. When he saw a slowly moving cab he hailed the driver and bundled Luke inside.

"My friend's a bit under the weather," he explained to the cabman with a smile. "Drive me to Lennox Street, Clerkenwell."

There was a large block of model buildings in Lennox Street, and for years the Gunner had had his secret headquarters in a fairly large flat on the ground floor. It was a place to which he very seldom came, and of whose existence the police were ignorant. It was his pied-a-terre, jealously reserved for emergencies. He had slept there two nights before, and the woman who came in daily had made the bed. Upon this he laid Luke Maddison.

"They must have given you a pretty large dose," he said. "I'll make you some coffee."

Luke shuddered. "Coffee—ugh!"

"Gave it you in that, did they? That's probably why you're not dead."

He pulled down the blinds before he lit the gas; then, going into the little kitchen, he made coffee.

The Gunner had kept house in places as wide apart as Biarritz is from Munich, and knew how to brew that delicious beverage. When he came back Luke was sitting on the side of the bed, his head in his hands.

"A couple of aspirins ought to put you right," said the Gunner, and went in search of the little white pellets.

Luke gulped down the medicine, and then for the first time became conscious of his benefactor.

"Aren't you Gunner Haynes?" he asked.

Haynes smiled. "That is my name."

"Where is Connor?"

"Again that cryptic smile. 'In jail, I hope,' said the Gunner. 'Now, Mr. Maddison, are you well enough to talk?'"

Luke looked up eagerly. "You know me, then?"

The man nodded. "I knew you the first time I saw you. There's one thing I want to ask you—is it true, the story that Connor told? That you were in that smash-and-grab raid at Taffany's?"

Luke nodded. "I drove the car. I had the slightest idea what they wanted me to do, or what it was all about, until it was too late."

"So you're the bearded man?" mused the Gunner. "That certainly is amazing. I'm not asking you to explain."

"I'll explain as soon as my head stops splitting," groaned Luke.

had finished.

"Did you tell Connor this story?"

Luke nodded.

"Yes, except that naturally enough I didn't speak about my wife and the money. Why do you ask?"

Gunner Haynes pursed his lips. "I don't know, Connor is a pretty bad man. Your only hope is that he's sent down for a stretch—by which inelegant word I mean a term of penal servitude. If he gets away with this police raid, supposing they find nothing on his premises—and like a fool I gave him plenty of warning—Connor is the sort of man who would investigate the most unlikely story if he thought there was a chance of money in it. And that is going to make your re-appearance a rather difficult matter."

He lit another cigarette and stared past his guest.

"Tell me why your wife hated you—you rather glossed over that part of your yarn."

Luke was silent for a long time.

"I don't think it's very difficult to understand," he said. "She thought I was responsible for the death of her brother. He shot himself."

"But why did she understand that?" persisted the Gunner. "Allowing that Danty Morell is a very plausible gentleman, she would hardly take his bare word." He thought for a moment, then asked suddenly: "When that boy shot himself did he leave any message behind?"

Luke shook his head. "I heard of none—nor was anything mentioned at the inquest."

"Who found his body?"

"Morell was in the room and made the discovery."

The Gunner nodded. "And immediately after that Mrs. Maddison's manner changed. Of course, you weren't married then, but that is a fact, isn't it? If that is a fact, it means that Danty carried some evidence to the young lady that was quite sufficient to make her play this trick—"

"I'm not blaming her," began Luke.

He saw a flicker of amusement in the man's eyes.

"You are?"

"Well, not exactly," drawled the Gunner. "I've given up blaming people. There's no profit in it."

He flicked off the ash of his cigarette carefully into his saucer.

"You can't make a sudden re-appearance; you can't even get to Ronda and be sure you'll get away with it," he said.

"You've got yourself mixed up with two bad gangsters—Connor and Morell."

He rose and paced up and down the small room, his eyes narrowed, his brow corrugated in thought.

"It's Connor that's worrying me. If he's held for trial, that problem is settled. If he isn't and suppose you come back from Ronda, he'll be able to trace all your movements. Have you got your passport?"

He saw Luke thrust his hand inside his shirt, and a look of blank dismay came to his face.

"I've lost it somewhere."

Gunner Haynes' lips clicked impatiently.

"If you lost it at Keel's Wharf then you're in the soup," he said. "There's only one thing to do and that is to get your passport back. There's another thing: I want to see the letter that that boy wrote before he shot himself."

Luke shook his head.

"I don't believe he wrote a letter, and if he did it was certainly destroyed."

Ten minutes later the Gunner left the house on his quest.

Haynes was not prepared for the kindness of Margaret's welcome. In a sense it was a little embarrassing. He had come not to give but to seek information. It was vitally necessary that he should not betray the fact that he had any communication with Luke.

"I'm afraid I was very rude to you the last time you came, Mr. Haynes," she said as she sat down behind her little desk and signalled to him to sit. "You rather hurt my feelings about a—," she hesitated—"a friend of mine, who isn't so much of a friend as he was," she smiled.

The Gunner nodded. "That's the best news I've heard for a long time," he said.

"I was a little impertinent. I remember I asked you why your husband left you. I wonder you didn't send for the police."

She laughed at this.

"Do you know where my husband is now?" she asked, and when he shook his head her heart sank.

She had had a vague idea that this man might have come into touch with his benefactor.

"I can tell you where Mr. Morell is now," he said, with a twinkle in his eyes, "but that's not going to help you very much. I've come to repeat my impertinence, Mrs. Maddison. At the back of my mind I've got a notion I can help you and your husband, who, I have reason to believe is in Spain."

He said this deliberately, his eyes challenging hers.

HISTORY PUPILS GET FIRST HAND KNOWLEDGE

The members of the American history class have been studying the Civil War. Thinking that the subject could be more vital to them if they had the opportunity to talk to a Civil War veteran, Mrs. Dutton arranged to have the class visit Mr. E. A. Willis, who served in the Confederate army as a scout. Those members who had no ten-thirty classes went at ten-thirty. Mrs. Dutton and the other members of the class went at eleven-fifteen.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Willis told many interesting details about the Civil war that makes it more interesting to those who study the subject. It was found that Mrs. Willis once had Gen. Robert E. Lee offer his seat to her at a commencement exercise in Virginia. Also, John Brown who was posing as a Mormon preacher spent the night at her father's plantation once.

Mr. Willis told of his love for "Stonewall Jackson" and his love and respect for Jefferson Davis. He also told many stories of things that happened during the war.

The class heartily enjoyed this visit with Mr. and Mrs. Willis. They have gained many lessons, as well as a greater appreciation of Civil War leaders as a result of this visit. They take this means of expressing their gratitude and appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Willis for their hospitality and kindness.

The class expects to visit a veteran of the Union army at an early date, if it is possible for them to do so.

NINTH GRADE NOTES

The English class is studying the works of Poe. John Lewis Weaver was absent Thursday and Friday. We wondered why Eleanor looked so sad.

The Latin class has begun the study of Julius Caesar.

Bonita Barnes and Vernelle Tinsley went to Rocksprings Sunday. They attended the big ball game.

Mrs. Felps' ninth grade English class has a new rule to abide by. Each pupil must arrive within a short time after the period bell rings or the door is shut, and they are left out of class for that period. Only two have had to stay out so far.

Ella Annie Henderson went to Menard Sunday.

Catherine Randolph spent Sunday in Mason. She attended a meeting of the Epworth League.

Betty Kropff and James McInnis were selected from the ninth grade to write letters to pupils in Ireland. The class has been studying about the people of Ireland, and the members wondered how the Irish feel toward England now. We hope to find out by writing letters.

The holiday we were supposed to get for planting the grass hasn't arrived yet. We will have to remind Mr. Brison of it, I guess.

Rufus: "Do you want those two dollars I owe you in currency or in silver?"

Vernon: "In bills, of course."

Rufus: "Why?"

Vernon: "Because when I put the money in my pocket, I double it; and when I take it out, I find it in creases."

J. H. C. MEETS

The J. H. C. met in regular session at 11:15 on Friday, March 28. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Ralph Meador. It was decided at this meeting that the club would present to the school, in addition to the scrapbook, pictures of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. The class feels that they should pass on to the others in the school the love and esteem they hold for these men after studying the Civil War. It was also decided that each violation of parliamentary rules during club meetings would cost the violator one cent. This money is to be applied to a fund which will be used to buy a bust of some man of American history.

The club is doing excellent work and they feel that they would like to leave as many helpful things to future history classes and history clubs as possible.

The meeting was adjourned at twelve.

Again, we should like to urge you to visit our club on Fridays from 11:15 to 12:00.

GOOD PLAY GROUNDS NEEDED BY SCHOOLS

(by Lorena Couey)

Every public school should have the necessary equipment for the children. Especially the older children, because if they do not have enough wholesome entertainment, they are likely to be led off in the wrong path. Perhaps they will learn to gamble, smoke and use bad language.

The children must also have exercise to develop their bodies and make them strong and healthy.

The older children should have entertainment and exercise as well as the smaller ones. They are more likely to do the wrong things than are the smaller children. However, if they have been taught better while they were small, they will not be as likely to do the wrong things when older.

Therefore everyone should strive to furnish the children with wholesome entertainment.

V. A. STUDENTS HAVE BANQUET SATURDAY

Last Saturday evening at eight o'clock the First Year Agriculture boys entertained their parents, the trustees and the High School Faculty with a banquet in the school building.

After the guests feasted on barbecued meat, pickles, brown beans, potato chips, light bread and cake, a splendid program was given. Joe Roberts acted as toast master. Aubrey Winkel gave a toast to dads and mothers. Jarvis Jordan and John Lewis Weaver made short talks about their projects. Rufus Smelser demonstrated the farm shop work. Oliver Lynn Vierling reviewed the trip which the class made to Brady. Gordon King discussed the advantages of types. Overby Smith briefly summarized the history of the Future Farmer's Club. Mr. Brison, Mr. King, Mr. Hermann and Mr. L. R. Hodges each made interesting talks.

MODEL TEACHER

The sponsor of the Junior class of 1930, Miss Nellie Bennett, is an example of what a high school teacher should be like. She takes every interest in her pupils and is always a friend to a student in need.

Miss Bennett is now teaching her second year in Schreiner High School, and has proven that she possesses that gift of being true to her pupils and friends. A pupil's interest is her interest. She takes the same unflinching interest in the work of both the boys and girls.

She is a teacher who has won the hearts of the Junior Class. Oppose our sponsor and we fall stand by her and we praise. She is a teacher to be honored and respected; we choose to pass.

EIGHTH GRADE GIVES PROGRAM IN CHAPEL

The eighth grade entertained in chapel last Thursday, with a short program.

Most of the program consisted of extracts from the lessons they have been having in English. "How Tom Sawyer White washed the Fence" was dramatized by the members of the eighth grade English class. Several scenes from "Treasure Island" were also dramatized.

May Delle Lowry, Juanita Cowser and Elsie Martin were characters in "Who's Afraid?" an amusing little playlet.

In conclusion Mrs. Mattie Patterson read the funeral oration which was given by Mark Anthony at Caesar's funeral.

AN APPRECIATION

(by Lorena Couey)

Mrs. Gady Kindrick has coached the girls' basket ball team at Junction for the past three years. She has showed her ability to coach a basket ball team by the untiring efforts she has put forth to have a winning team.

Mrs. Kindrick is a teacher of the grammar grades of the Schreiner High School and shows her ability to teach as well as coach a basket ball team.

She was a student of Schreiner High School and graduated as valedictorian in 1924. She was also a good basket ball player.

We, the basket ball girls, are indeed glad to have this opportunity of expressing our appreciation to Mrs. Kindrick for her faithful work.

Don't sit and think without getting up and doing.

SPEECH ARTS NOTES

A new member of the Senior Dramatic Class is Mrs. Guy E. Wynne.

We have two new students in the Junior Speech Arts Department, Mary Kathleen Hodges and Cecil Martin Holekamp.

The Junior boys are rehearsing a burlesque production of Julius Caesar.

Harrie Ethel Hubbell read "I Am" at a Sunday School program Sunday morning at the Methodist Church.

The members of the Junction Little Theater taking part in the "Thirteenth Chair," have been busy rehearsing for the last two weeks. This play will be given at the Texan Theater Friday evening, April 4. The cast will include Mesdames L. E. Standifer, Forrest Weldon, Misses Virginia Strong, Mary Ellis Blackburn, Christell Reid, Harrie Ethel Hubbell, Paizalee Linn, Messrs. Walter Buck, Bascom Stevenson, Kirtell Durst, Alton Powell, Luther Hill, M. C. Blackburn, Brogan Guthrie and Marvin Blackburn.

A number of the Speech Arts pupils declaimed last Friday evening at the High School auditorium. Those winning places were: Junior girls—

Azalee Wallace, first; Mabel Hodges, second; Naicifred Dunderstadt, third. Junior boys—George Robert Pepper, first; Milton Blackburn, second; Brogan Guthrie, third. Senior girls—Harrie Ethel Hubbell, first; Vernelle Tinsley, second; Exa McElrath, third. Senior boys—Carleton Wright, first; James McInnis, second.

Members of the Senior Speech Arts Department will give a play the last of April, entitled "The Charm School."

Harrie Ethel Hubbell gave "A Plea for Prohibition" at the 11 o'clock services at the Methodist Church Sunday morning.

Juanita Cowser, Marie Sheppard, Vernelle Tinsley and Harrie Ethel Hubbell participated in a League program at the Methodist Church Sunday evening.

PAPER SCRAPS REVEAL INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE

It is really surprising what queer things one may find in the study hall. Innocent looking scraps of paper lying on the floor may hold interesting information about the students.

Scraps of paper dropped by the few who are very studious may contain something like the following: "After he had conquered all Gaul, Caesar paraded before the city," or "Buenos dias, senior, Como ista usted," or yet another, "L X plus 130 equal 39."

But wait; the most plentiful type is yet to be discovered. This type is written by the most frivolous type of student—"Don't think I didn't see you walking across the campus with that dizzy blonde this morning," or while her mind was concentrated on her latest "crush" some girl student wrote "Devers McElrath—Devers McElrath—Devers McElrath" over and over. Then there is the budding genius who writes the germ of his "greatest American novel" on every scrap of paper available.

Just think of the school janitor, what "dope" he must get on what is nearest to the student's hearts.

Besides notes one can always find a copy of "Western Stories" here, a two-bit oversharpe there, a very rare old comb some place else, and quite a collection of mirrors, powder puffs and lip sticks.

Yes, the Study Hall should furnish valuable material for some collectors.

CRAMMING FOR EXAMS

Almost every student crams the night before his examinations. Why does he do it? If he had studied as he went over his work it would not have been necessary. It seems to me, that if he has tried it once, he could see that he did not profit by it, except for the next day.

It does a student more harm than good to cram, because he memorizes it just for the next day, and then forgets it. Cramming also ruins the nervous system. The more he memorizes, the more he detracts from his reason. In most cases he forgets what he tried to learn, or gets it confused with something else.

I believe every student will profit by studying as he covers the work. Perhaps he will not realize it now, but he will in later years.

JOURNALISM CLUB MAY BE DISBANDED

The members of the Journalism Club met in room 14 to discuss the question of discontinuing the club meetings or getting a larger attendance.

At the last two club meetings there has hardly been a third of the members present. Is it possible that the members of this club are overworked and they cannot spare thirty minutes a week to the club that they advocate?

If this is the case we may as well discontinue the meetings. It is evident that the members are more interested in everything else than they are in their club work. At least this is true in regard to the Journalism Club.

We expect the next meeting of the club will be the last one if the members do not show that they are more interested in the work than we now have reason to believe they are.

Those who have given their support to the club and have attended the meetings regularly are: Lorena Couey, Vernelle Tinsley, Vivienne Livingston, Marie Sheppard, Betty Kropff, Ella Simon and Tempie Boone.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowers and Mr. and Mrs. Moses attended the base ball game at Rocksprings Sunday.

Miss Ruth Morris spent the week-end on her father's ranch between Kerrville and Junction.

Rockwall with only 149 square miles is the smallest county in Texas. Camp with 207 is the next smallest. Morris with 259, Delta 261, Rains 267 and Franklin 289 are other counties with less than 300 square miles. Titus, Marion and Gregg cover less than 400 square miles.

One of the leading San Angelo hotels served 320 pounds lamb chops during the recent cattlemen's convention; which indicates the cowman knows his lamb. Also, during the convention, one hotel served 193 sirloin steaks at one meal. . . . ### Little Theatre Will Present Mystery Play

Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Texan Theater the Junction Little Theater will stage its performance of the Thirteenth Chair, by Bayard Beiler. The theater has been undergoing repairs for the performance. A new ceiling has been built for the stage. A complete system of modern stage lighting has been installed by V. P. Emmons of the West Texas Utilities Company. Stage furnishings will be supplied by the Farmer Furniture Company.

Posters for the play were made by Annie Mae Eates of London and Junior Stevenson and LaRue Newby. Ushers for the evening will be Kaleta Taylor, Vivian James, Eloise Harde-man and Jewel Riley.

The cast will include Mary Ellis Blackburn, M. C. Blackburn, Mrs. Forrest Weldon, Pair-alee Linn, Mrs. L. E. Standifer, Cristelle Reid, Virginia Strong, Harrie Ethel Hubbard, Luther Hill, Alton Powell, Bascom Stevenson, Marvin Blackburn, Kit-terl Durst and Brogan Guthrie, with Mrs. Conde Harde-man directing and Mrs. George Pepper assisting in stage management. Music for the evening will be under the direction of Mrs. Guy E. Wynne.

In behalf of the Junction Little Theater and because of the expense of producing the play, the admission will be fifty and twenty-five cents.

FRANK BISSETT BUYS MEAT MARKET

One of the noted business changes during the past week was the purchase of the City Market by Mr. F. S. Bissett from Mr. F. J. Weldon of Rock-springs. The transfer was made last Friday.

Mr. Bissett stated that the policies of the market would remain the same as they were under the old management. He has had seventeen years experience in the market business, and is well acquainted with the situation.

INCLEMENT WEATHER HURTS BULL SALES

In spite of the inclement weather prevailing on March 27, the sale of bulls by the Central Texas Hereford Breed-ers' Association, was held as scheduled at the Premier Ranch Sale pavilion. A drizzling rain, sleet and snow fell all day and there were few buyers present.

There were twenty-eight bulls sold for a total of $5,840, an average of $208.57. Had the weather conditions been better these bulls probably would have brought $100 per head more than they did. Each of the consigners had some bulls left.

Workers Council Meets Tuesday

Tuesday evening the Sunday School council of the Methodist Church met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Secrest.

Rev. Milton F. Hill presided in the absence of the superintendent, Mr. Henry Bierschwale.

The following entertaining program was rendered: Vocal quartet, Messrs. Ovie Buster, Ramsey Randolph, Ross Brison and Rev. Milton F. Hill. A group of readings—little Miss Patricia Patterson. Vocal duet, Misses Vernelle Tinsley and Eleanor Highsmith, and piano solo, Miss Grace Hill.

Fruit salad, wafers, punch and cake were served to Misses Vernelle Tinsley, Eleanor Highsmith, Grace Hill and Eleene Newby, Mrs. Mattie Patterson, and daughter, Patricia, Mrs. Joe Ramsey, Mrs. E. R. Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Ovie Buster and son, Loyd, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Brison and daughter, Flora Louise, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Smith and sons, B. L. and James Edgar, Rev. Milton F. Hill and Ramsey Randolph.

IMITATION

Imitation is the copying or repetition of any example or act of someone.

To imitate is as natural in human beings as life itself; the first lesson a baby learns is the lesson of imitating someone; it learns to talk by imitating its elders. It also learns to walk and as time fleeth, it learns to do the other things in life all by imitation.

Step by step from boyhood to death is one constant string of imitations.

Each step you climb on the ladder of fame bringeth you in connection with a new form of imitation, if after you have almost reached the top of the ladder, you slip and fall you are imitating someone, although you do not know it.

Imitation is a natural instinct that has been handed down to us from generation to generation ever since Adam and Eve were driven from the Garden of Eden.

The people back in the stone age made their living by imitating the ones before them; the same thing applieth to every one else up to the present time and will continue to do so until the end of time. Only certain modes of behavior are imitated; imitation therefore should be regarded as an expression of scientific instinctive tendencies.

In a wide sense imitation denotes the applying of any model whatever and implies merely a certain resemblance between copy and origin.

In this sense imitation has been used, often without rigorous analysis, as a more or less fundamental concept in a number of arts and sciences.

The Prof: My dear young lady, I said there was a knotty problem in it.

Rains in various sections of the Hill Country last week have made ranchmen, farmers and business more optimistic. More rain is needed, but farmers are getting the land ready for planting. More feed will be planted this year to take care of such winters as we have just passed through. More food and feed and less cotton is urged this year. More poultry will be raised in the county and ranchmen and farmers are paying more attention to fruit and vegetables.

This bank has co-operated with the ranchmen during the feeding season and will always be glad to serve the ranching and farming interests of the county. Call on us when we can serve you.
