

The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

THERE'S ONE THING you can say for the rain Tuesday afternoon and night. Rain has never fallen on a city and community that needed it more. The rain came a little earlier than some of the Monday quarterbacks figured. They had agreed that rain would start falling at the beginning of the third quarter at Friday night's football game.

THE RAIN WASN'T enough, however, to do Lake Cisco and Lake Bernie any good. If you want to see a sad sight, just drive out to the back side of Lake Cisco and to any side of Lake Bernie. We went out yesterday, both lakes are lower than they've ever been.

Unless we get some lake-filling rains in the near future, our town is going to have a water shortage. If every citizen of Cisco were to go out and look at the lakes, we'll bet that water consumption here would go down sharply. And every citizen ought to be concerned.

MR. T. J. PARKER of Arvin, California, has sent us a copy of an Arvin newspaper which tells the story of the recent earthquake there. Arvin is near Bakersfield. Arvin seemed to be the center of the earthquake. Pictures show wrecked buildings, and a headline says: "Millions in damage; 12 dead; 125 injured."

A pipe line across a 1,100 acre ranch had breaks nearly every 10 feet, so severe was the shock. At one place, the quake left a crack in the earth, 12 to 16 feet wide. Brick, stone and adobe houses and buildings suffered more than wooden structures. Nearly every home in Arvin suffered damage in some form. One man's home was four feet off its foundation.

According to the newspaper, the quake hit at 4:52 a. m. and sent dwellings rocking and swaying on their foundations. After nearly a minute of this, the quake settled down temporarily. Outside everything was black. But to the west flames from a refinery fire lit the skies. This led people to believe an atomic bomb had been dropped.

WE WERE DOWNTOWN a couple of Sunday afternoons ago and a California car stopped and man got out. He asked if it had been hot here. And we told him it was the worst we'd ever seen.

"It couldn't be as bad as earthquakes," the man said. He said he had moved from Texas to California four months ago and two earthquakes had convinced him that Texas was the place for him.

COMES A NOTE from Mr. Mac Cheshire who lives out on the Lake Cisco Road. Mr. Cheshire had just looked over the piece of Sunday's paper about the man who wanted to go into the not raising pigs business.

"In reference to the letter about not raising hogs," he says, "the man wants to not raise corn, too. Now ain't that human nature for you? He isn't satisfied with not raising hogs, he wants to not raise corn. What does he think I am not going to raise. I think he should be satisfied with not raising hogs and let me not raise corn. For I have already got a good place for not raising corn or not raising anything, for that matter. If Uncle Sam will pay all the farmers in this part of Texas for what we are not raising this year, the national debt will be beyond the calculations of all the mathematicians and economists in Washington."

"With about one-third of the population of the U. S. already in the payroll, they would have to put the other two-thirds on that would call for outside help to estimate the salary of the extra help and then we would have to hire more outsiders to... I just pray for rain and start raising something. It's easier to raise than it is to figure out the rest."

For the benefit of those who want to know how dry it has been, Mr. Cheshire adds that his title have been pulling up grass, adding it into a ball and soaking it in the water trough for several minutes before they could swallow same.

And one of Mr. Cheshire's neighbors told him about the red ants. The ants struck oil in an effort to dig to water.

Enjoyed your letter, sir.

Cartoon Contest On Wildlife Is Open To Students

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 10. — The National Wildlife Federation has asked the high school students of America to create a cartoon character which can be used to tell the story of conservation — and offered prizes totaling $700 in a nationwide contest.

The cartoon contest will take the place of the annual conservation poster contest which the Federation has sponsored for 15 years. Entries must be submitted by next Jan. 31 and winners will be announced during National Wildlife Week in March, 1953.

As in the previous poster contests, the cartoon competition will be divided into junior-high and senior-high groups. Students anywhere in the United States, from the seventh grade through the last year in high school, are eligible.

First prize in the Junior division — grades 7, 8 and 9 — is $100. The second best entry will win $50; third, $25; the next ten best, $10 each.

Top winner in the Senior division — grades 10, 11 and 12 — will get $250. Second prize is $50; third, $25; next ten, $10 each. The Federation said the contest was inspired by the success of "Smokey Bear," the cartoon character developed by the U. S.

College Has New Science Teacher

A native of Denton, Texas, Mr. Dorman is a graduate of North Texas State College, Denton, with degrees of B.S. and M.A. Mr. and Mrs. Dorman, who are members of the Baptist Church, have moved into one of the college apartments. His chief hobby is constructing radio sets.

Before coming to CJC, Mr. Dorman taught natural sciences at Ranger Junior College. He is an officer in a Fort Worth National Guard unit. As soon as possible, he expects to transfer his guard affiliation to the Cisco unit of the 49th Armored Division.

PUBLIC LIBRARY OFFERS NEW BOOKS FOR ALL AGE GROUPS

The Cisco Public Library received a number of new books recently of interest to all ages of readers, Mrs. C. R. Baugh, librarian, reported today. The new books include many for younger readers, including mystery fans, and attractive picture books for pre-school children.

New books recently received and comment on them follows: "Mittie," by Daphne Rook — A story which depicts the life and loves of South African traditions and customs.

"Red Carpet," by Dan Wickendon — The Red Carpet rolled out too quickly for a young writer because a case of nomadic character. "Hidden Flower," by Pearl Buck — Portrays the risk of international marriage. A Japanese girl and an American boy find many obstacles to happiness.

"Jehovah Blues," by Margaret Steen — This book tells of folk music which is indicative of the confusion arising from the mixture of races. An English author, a Cuban, and a South Carolinian have a common tie in their racial lineage. An alarming murder while the authoress was visiting in a southern mansion is very revealing.

Island Summer, by Walter Teller — Parents of four boys have a lovely summer scenery; water sports and fisherfolk enhance the pleasure of a holiday; solidarity of family one of the leading characteristics.

Sundowners, by Donald Cleary — Australia with its varied climate and beauty is the setting for the life and work of a drover, wife and sons. His roving nature and love of change is not shared by his family who yearn for a permanent home; however, love and loyalty predominate in the family.

24 LOBOES ARE ISSUED PLAYING UNIFORMS FOR FIRST CONTEST

Twenty-four members of the Cisco High School football squad were issued playing uniforms today as Coaches Jack Everett and Jay Williams made final plans to open the 1952 season at 8 p. m. Friday at Cresley Field in a game with the Eastland High Mavericks.

The Loboos started to work on setting up a defensive for the Eastland team in their drill Tuesday. Defensive tactics were expected to be stressed again today. Thursday's plans call for a complete dress rehearsal under the lights at Chesley Field.

Only two Loboos have suffered injuries to date. Andy Mosley, a center, and Jim Reynolds, a guard have ankle sprains. Mosley has

City Commission Hears Report On Water Situation

Mayor G. C. Rosenthal told commissioners that new street stop signs were ready for installation in the near future.

Composed mostly of inexperienced men, the Lobo team is not expected to be too strong as the season opens. The coaches hope that team's strength will increase with experience as the season moves along. Reserve strength apparently will be a handicap.

Cloudy, Showers Forecast In Area

More than an inch of rain fell in Cisco and this West Central Texas region Tuesday afternoon and night to break a drought of more than two months without measurable moisture. In Cisco, the city hall rain gauge registered 1.1 inches.

Forecasts of continued cloudy skies with occasional showers gave promise of more rain Wednesday afternoon and night.

The area rain was heavier to the south, the southern half of Eastland County having received an average of about 1.5 inches of rain. The slow, soaking rain, however, made little or no contributions to area lakes and stock tanks. No creeks were running, a survey by Lake Cisco Custodian Ray Judia showed.

Farmers and ranchers of the area welcomed the rain, although the quantity was far short of their needs. Some areas will still make some peanuts, and the peanut hay outlook was bright in other places. Ranges were not expected to benefit materially.

The last measurably rain fell here on July 4 and it came from a shower that dumped over two inches on the city area. Some parts of the county has been without rain for four or five months.

Some areas of West Texas received drenching rains last night. In Runnels County, it was reported that more than three inches were recorded.

The rain and cloudy weather brought welcome relief from heat. The temperatures had gone to around 96 daily this month. A cool wave of about ten days ago ended a record period of some 26 consecutive days of 100 degree or higher temperature.

Mrs. Sandler Is Chairman Of Red Cross Blood Unit

Mrs. Charles Sandler, 404 West 9th Street, Cisco, new chairman of the Eastland County chapter of the American Red Cross' Blood program is an active civic worker, who is accustomed to getting the job done as was displayed by the way in which she went about organizing for the blood mobile unit which will visit Ranger on October 2, County Red Cross reported today.

Mrs. Sandler is now busy completing her blood program organization on a county-wide basis.

In Ranger, Sgt. Jess Cole will serve as chairman and Mrs. J. P. Morris Co-chairman. Mrs. Morris is also donor recruitment chairman. Other committee members include Mrs. H. C. Croom, refreshments, Mrs. J. A. Bates, telephone, Mrs. P. J. O'Donnell, hostess and canteen chairman.

Mrs. Sandler, although new chairman of the blood program, is not new to the Red Cross organization. She has been an active worker in the funds' drive serving as chairman for the City of Cisco and assisted Mrs. W. Wallace in obtaining donors for the visit of the mobile unit in March, 1952. She served during World War II as co-chairman for the surgical dressings program.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandler have two children, Zelda, who is a senior music major at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, and has just returned from a seven weeks European tour, and a son, Melvin, who is a musician.

Mr. Sandler is owner and operator of the Cisco Lumber and Supply Company in Cisco, where the family have lived for the past 27 years.

COURSE STILL OPEN

Crowds have continued good each night at Lake Cisco Miniature Golf Course, Manager Ed Wendt reported this week. The course will remain open as long as there is sufficient play. Mrs. Grover McGowan shot a 38 for the low score for women last week. Low score for men was a 36 by R. E. Weber of Moran.

Tim Tamilton of Moran had four holes-in-one on a round, but his 18-hole score was 37.

European journalists and others who visit this country are often surprised at one thing—the amount of war talk that goes on inside the United States. This doesn't mean that thoughtful Europeans are performing the ostrich act, burying their heads in the sand, and telling themselves that all is well and the Soviet Union isn't so much of a menace after all. But the European press plays down the possibility of war much more than does the American, and the feeling that another global war is inevitable is much more widely held there than across the Atlantic.

There may be a certain fatalism in the European attitude. War has devastated her cities and decimated generations of young men. It has created human misery to an unknown and almost unimaginable extent so far as most Americans are concerned. So great and awful a cataclysm, many Europeans feel, cannot happen again. And most certainly they feel that, should it happen, the world will end so far as they are concerned, and victor and vanquished alike will be destroyed. In any event, and regardless of the reasons for it, the European Army plan has fallen far short of the blueprints. The story is well told in a recent article in U. S. News & World Report, which began, "An unexpected slowdown is upsetting the basic schedules for building of military defenses for Western Europe."

"Target dates for arms build-up are being set back. Budgets for armament are being replanned and reduced. Arms output and arms shipment are lagging."

"War, if it should come in the year or two ahead, will find the West far less prepared than plans called for just six months ago. Real defense, which had been planned for 1954, now appears unlikely before 1956 or later."

The goal set for NATO was 25 fully equipped and active divisions by December of this year. These were supposed to be A-1 outfits, ready for anything. Actually, 23 divisions are in being, but they are poorly trained and their equipment is inferior. Equally important, there is a severe shortage of up-to-date combat aircraft, and a potentially even more serious lack of adequate bases.

All the nations involved have contributed in one way or another to the slowdown, with the exception of The Netherlands. Britain's rearmament program is well behind schedule and may sag further. We have reduced our aid to Europe. France has cut her defense goals, and Italy is asking for a cut. The start of German rearmament is being delayed. Belgium has slowed defense preparations and has reduced the length of the terms conscripts must serve.

What it all amounts to is that Europeans are enormously weary of the burdens imposed by war and by preparation for war. Some of them argue that if the Russians had wanted war, it would have started before this, when Western Europe was totally defenseless and the Soviet hordes could have rolled to the channel and perhaps beyond encountering anything worthy of the word opposition. As U. S. News put it, "War in Europe, any time soon, is being set down as a remote prospect by the military leaders and diplomats who shape policy in Western Europe. . . . Armed strength is regarded as an argument to be used in some future negotiated settlement with the Communists rather than as preparation to defend the Continent against an early armed aggression."

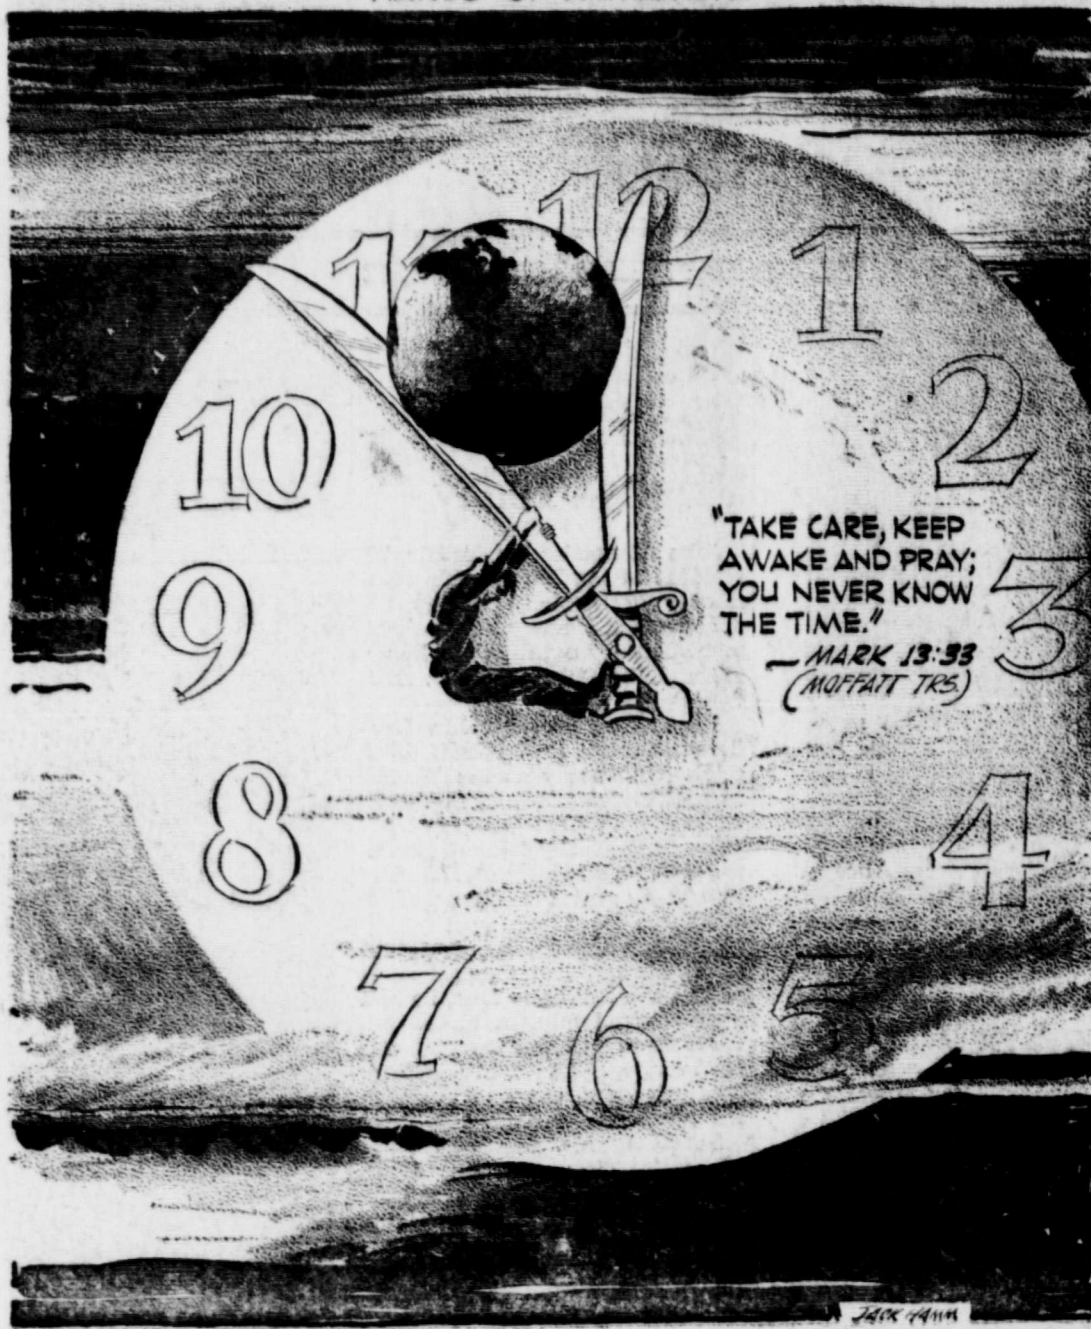

So, curiously enough, there is less belief in the inevitability of war in Europe, which would be the immediate battleground, than there is in the distant United States. All men of good will must hope that the European leaders are right on this tremendous question.

Texas Attracting Many Vacationers

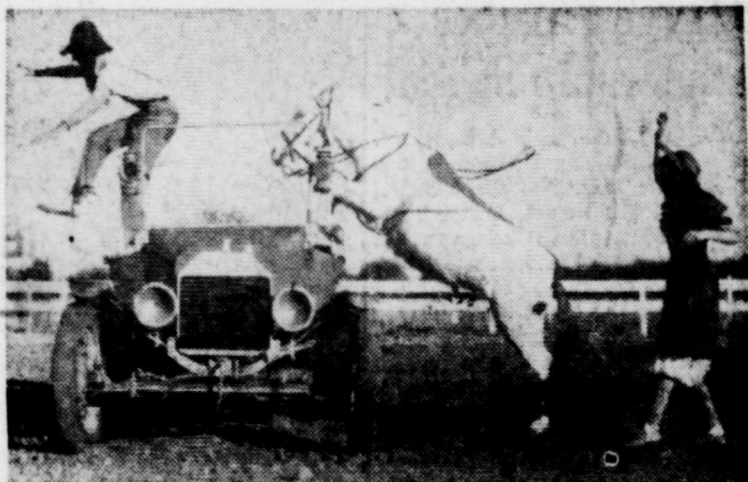

Texas was one of the twelve top vacation states in 1951, according to the third nationwide travel survey recently completed by the Research Department of The Curtis Publishing Company. Vacationers named Texas as the destination of 4.7 percent of all trips taken during the year. New York state accounted for 10.3 percent, California 8.2 percent, Florida 5.2 percent, New Jersey 5.0 percent, Michigan 4.9 percent and Pennsylvania 4.8 percent of all the destinations mentioned by vacationers. Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts, Virginia and Wisconsin following, in that order, accounted for the other five top states ranking highest as vacation destinations for the millions of families who took vacation trips.

The 72-page report discusses the pattern, scope, and characteristics of vacation travel by United States residents.

HOW IT WORKS...

You are looking into the mouth of a 16-inch gun on the U. S. S. New Jersey

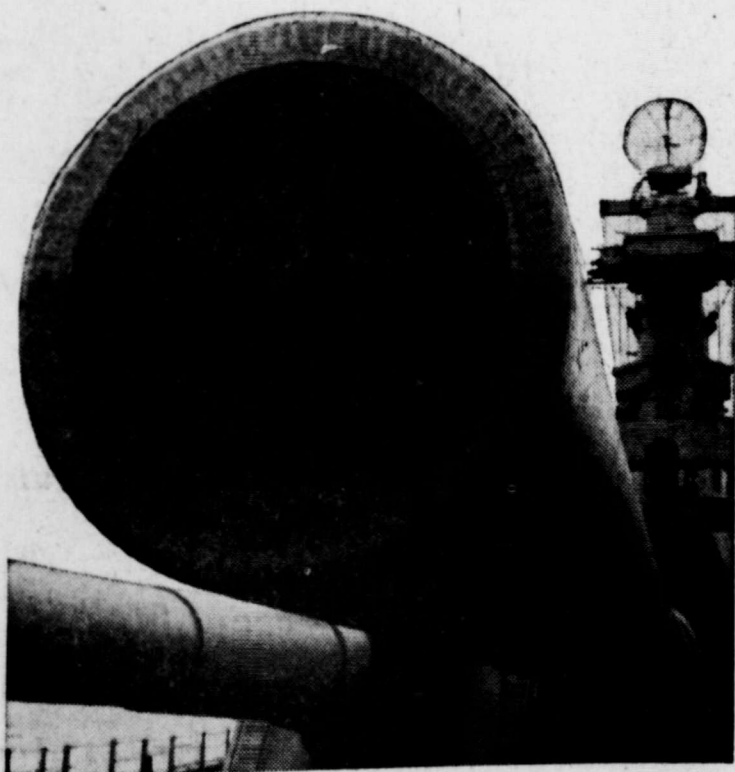

It's typical of the huge rifles with which our great navy bristles. And the size of that bore is a comforting reminder that America's watchdogs have a bite as bad as their bark.

This represents one kind of strength America must maintain in order to keep the restless peace. For surely we all realize that now peace is only for the strong.

But keeping America strong calls for more than armed strength. It means that our economy must be stable, too. And that's where you can help... by buying United States Defense Bonds! For by bonds and other forms of saving you are building up a personal backlog of financial security which means economic strength for our country.

Saving through bond buying is easier than you think! Try it—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. With this Plan you can save a regular sum out of every check—before you have a chance to spend it. And, you know, no matter how small your income, you can't afford not to save something for yourself. So join the Plan today. Thousands say it's the one sure way to save!

HERE'S HOW E BONDS NOW EARN MORE MONEY FOR YOU!

Now safe, sure U. S. Series E Defense Bonds pay an even better return than ever before... thanks to 3 brand-new money-earning features just announced by the U. S. Treasury.

1. Now every Series E Bond you buy begins earning interest after only 6 months. It earns 3%, compounded semiannually, when held to maturity. It reaches full maturity value earlier (9 years 8 months) and the interest it pays is now bigger at the start!
2. Every Series E Defense Bond you own can now go on earning interest for 10 more years after it reaches the original maturity date—without your lifting a finger!
3. During the 10-year extension period, every unexpired bond earns at the new, higher interest (average 3% compounded semiannually). Your original $18.75 can now repay you $33.67. $37.50 pays back $67.34. And so on.

Start now! Invest more savings in better-paying U. S. Series E Bonds—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

Peace is for the strong... for peace and prosperity save with U. S. Defense Bonds!

HEALTH TALKS

Prepared by the Texas Medical Association

When the school bell is about to ring for the first time, parents who are johnnie-come-latelies realize suddenly that their children need examinations and vaccinations.

If they had been on the ball, they would have allowed more time for the very important health examination and for correcting possible faults such as anemia, bad eyesight, and crooked teeth which might be discovered. As it is, either the child must take time out from school to be fitted for glasses or a trip to the dentist or must struggle along with a handicap that may affect his grades and his emotional well-being. Also, if during infancy and childhood he hasn't had the necessary shots to guard against dangerous diseases, as doctors recommend, the larger doses of vaccine which are needed may make him feel bad at the very time he is trying so hard to make a good impression on his new teacher and classmates.

Nevertheless, what needs to be done, his parents know full well, and they take him off, much against his will, to see the doctor. In his mind he may have the doctor pictured as that man who stuck him or gave him some bad medicine when he had the whooping cough. An outlook like this is hardly improved if the mother promises "the doctor won't hurt you a bit," when she knows in her heart that shots must be given or that some part of the examination may not be pleasant. She can only build up the child's bad feeling toward the doctor and toward herself. Her best bet is to take the child into her confidence and to explain frankly that he needs to go to the doctor and be vaccinated before he can go to school.

The thought of schooldays sometimes impresses upon the child that he is going to be less dependent on his mother and dad from now on. This same idea might carry through in his mind when he goes to the doctor. Only if he insists upon his mother's presence should she go into the doctor's examining room. Doctors and their assistants are trained in the handling of children, even when unpleasant treatment must be given, and they may get better cooperation if an over-anxious parent isn't there.

A health examination is an important event in the child's life. He is able to show his independence a little. He gets to know the doctor when he is well and is therefore more favorably impressed. In the long run he is more likely to have the right attitude toward staying in good health through visits to the doctor and dentist at regular intervals and to feel that the doctor will be his friend when he is sick.

S-Sgt. and Mrs. John T. Patterson and son, Derron John, are visiting in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patterson. After a few days visit here he will enter the Officers Training School at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

Miss Betty Dean Lennon, accompanied by Mrs. T. J. Dean, Miss Ethel Atwood, and Jo Ed Schaefer, left Tuesday for Austin where she will enroll in her senior year at the University of Texas.

Cartoon Contest — From Page One

Forest Service in its advertising campaign to prevent forest fires. The wildlife organization hopes to find a similar cartoon symbol which can be used to urge Americans to take care of their natural resources.

The Federation had these suggestions for young artists:

Entries may be a caricature of an animal or person, or the personification of an animal in the manner of a Disney character. It cautioned, however, against copying the style of another artist. In order to win an entry must be original in design.

The cartoon character may be depicted in an action or pose suggestive of some conservation problem or practice and should be accompanied by an appropriate legend or slogan. The theme may be soil conservation, forestry, water pollution control, flood prevention, protection of wildlife or plant life, or another phase of natural resource management.

The drawing should be done in pen and ink, pencil, charcoal, scratchboard, water color, or other standard medium suitable for reproduction in a newspaper or magazine.

For a copy of the contest rules and other information, write to the Cartoon Contest, National Wildlife Federation, 3308 Fourteenth Street, N. W., Washington 10, D. C.

Program Ready For Dedication Of New Building

AUSTIN, Sept. 10. — Texas Senator Lydon B. Johnson and Dr. Louis H. Bauer, president of the American Medical Association, will be the guest speakers at the forthcoming dedication of the Texas Medical Association's Memorial Library Building. The dedication ceremonies will be held Friday, September 19, through Sunday, September 21.

Senator Johnson will speak Friday afternoon, September 19, at a gathering of Texas physicians honoring the past presidents of the Texas Medical Association. There will be a distinguished guest list including the Texas doctors who have achieved the highest honor in the Texas Medical Association.

Following this ceremony the formal dedication of the memorial library building will be held Friday night and the doctors will hear Dr. Louis H. Bauer, president of the American Medical Association, who will speak on the function of county medical societies and their value in extending health care throughout Texas.

Dr. Bauer and Senator Johnson both have achieved the highest marks of distinction in a common field of endeavor. Only last week the Senator from Texas received an award from the United States Air Force proclaiming him the most valuable legislator of the year for the purpose of the improvement and well being of the United States Air Wing.

In the same consideration, Dr. Bauer has devoted years of time and effort to the Air Forces. He spent 13 years in the Army as a medical officer and was the first commandant of the Army School of Aviation Medicine. He also was the first medical director (1926-1930) of the Aeronautics Branch of the United States Department of Commerce, now the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Since 1930 Dr. Bauer has been in private practice in cardiology in Hempstead, New York, but for the past 21 years he has continued his activity in aviation medicine by serving in the capacity as editor-in-chief of the Journal of Aviation Medicine. He has contributed many articles on aviation medicine, cardiology, and medical economics to leading medical journals and is the author of a textbook on aviation medicine.

Dr. Bauer has achieved worldwide recognition for his activities in the medical profession. He served as Secretary to the American committee of the World Medical Association and since 1948 has been Secretary-General of the World Medical Association.

Scheduled to preside at the Friday afternoon program is Dr. Merton M. Minter, San Antonio, Chairman of the Texas Medical Association's Board of Trustees. Dr. T. C. Terrell, Fort Worth, President of the Association will preside at the formal dedication ceremonies on Friday night.

How to have a winning TELEPHONE PERSONALITY by EMILY POST

We're often judged by the way we use telephone service. Good telephone technique and good telephone manners are important to a winning personality . . . and help you get the most from your telephone service.

One of my newspaper readers writes, "Nothing annoys me as much as hurrying to answer a ringing phone, only to find there is no one on the other end."

I think all of us feel that way. And there are two good rules to follow if we want to avoid this frustrating experience. When you make a call, allow the person you are calling at least a full minute to get to the phone. And when your own phone rings, answer as promptly as you can. In the long run, these two simple rules will save everyone's time and temper.

Many people ask me, "In a telephone conversation, who should end the call?"

Since a telephone call is like paying a friendly visit, the same good manners should apply. A host doesn't ask the guest to leave. In the case of a telephone call it is up to the caller—not the "host"—to end the conversation. Generally speaking, you are safe if you simply say what you called to say, then end your conversation politely.

An acquaintance asks, "Mrs. Post, won't you please say something about children who hang onto busy party lines by the hour?"

This is a touchy subject, for, of course, children are part of the family, and definitely have a right to share in the use of the telephone. But forgetful teenagers who hold endless conversations over the phone should be reminded that no calls can reach you while they are monopolizing the line.
