Negroes Still on Rain-Soaked Vigil

Reported Compromise Washed Down Drain

SELMA, Ala. (UPI) — A reported compromise that would end a grim, rain-soaked racial confrontation on a Selma street washed down the drain today.

Mayor Joe Smitherman went on the radio to catagorically deny that there had been a compromise with racial demonstrators and said they would not be permitted to hold a prayer vigil at the Dallas County Courthouse today.

James Orange, a Negro leader announced to street demonstrators at a police barricade shortly after midnight that a compromise had been worked out that would permit the Negroes and white sympathizers to go in small groups for a 15-minute prayer service at the courthouse.

Smitherman repeated his earlier ban on downtown demonstrations. The demonstrators, disappointed but determined, bolstered their ranks beneath rain-drenched skies with dry recruits and prepared to stay as long as the city refuses to give in to their request.

Orange made his announcement that a compromise had been reached around 1 a.m. CST. His statement that the barricade which the demonstrators have called the "Berlin rope" would be removed this morning drew cheers from about 100 whites and Negroes standing in the rain in the street at that time.

Orange made the announcement after conferring twice with Leroy Collins, director of the Community Relations Service who flew here as a personal representative of President Johnson. Orange collapsed during the announcement and an aide had to finish it for him.

Orange said the demonstrators would be permitted to march to the courthouse in small groups for their prayer service for the Rev. James Reeb, 38, of Boston, a white Unitarian minister who died in a Birmingham hospital Thursday night. Reeb received a massive head injury when he and two other ministers were attacked by four white men on a Selma street Tuesday night following a civil rights demonstration. The other clergymen were hurt but not seriously.

Four men — O'Neal Namon (Duck) Hoggle, 31, his brother, William Stanley Hoggle, 38, and R. B. Kelley, 30, and Elmer Cook, 41, all of Selma — earlier charged with assault, surrendered voluntarily and were charged with murder.

Religious Leaders Demand Federal Troops be Sent

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Religious leaders from across the land massed in Washington today to demand that President Johnson use federal force to protect Negroes in their voting rights crusade in Alabama.

More than 3,000 leaders of all faiths were on hand.

Methodist Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington, who participated in a civil rights march in Selma Tuesday, told the gathering that Johnson should go to Selma himself to see what is happening.

The Methodist bishop told the overflow crowd at a Lutheran Church on Capitol Hill that church people all over the country were "outraged by the brutality and violence of evil men" in Selma.

Public Stirred

Another church leader said the Selma situation had stirred the public more than anything since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

A 16-member delegation was sent from the meeting to the White House to confer with President Johnson.

The old Church of the Reformation in the shadow of the U.S. Capitol and Supreme Court Building was overflowed by a massive response to a call for a demonstration rally.

The Rev. Robert W. Spike, executive director of the Race and Religion Commission of the National Council of Churches, said: "This gathering today is a spontaneous expression of a moral consensus of the religious community of America."

Spike said the delegation which conferred with Johnson did not carry any ultimatum. He said the purpose of the con-

Demonstrations Gain Strength From Over U.S.

By United Press International

Protest demonstrations against racial violence in Alabama gained new strength today with the death in Selma of a white minister who was beaten by four white men.

Thousands of religious leaders from across the nation converged on Washington for the largest interfaith lobbying effort since the drive for passage of the civil rights law.

Sit-ins, marches and prayer vigils continued for the fourth straight day in some cities. Memorial services were scheduled for the Rev. James Reeb, the Boston minister who was attacked by four white men on a Selma street corner Tuesday night.

The Rev. Martin Luther King said the slaying of Reeb was not so much the attempt to murder a man as an attempt to murder the hopes and dreams of a people."

Demonstrations continued around the country Thursday, the most dramatic coming in Washington when 10 young people were dragged from a red-carpeted White House hallway after a seven-hour "hunger strike."

In Los Angeles, a small group maintained its vigil in front of the Federal Building during the night while civil rights leaders tried to enlist 10,000 persons for a massive protest march to city hall Saturday.

The Very Rev. Msgr. John J. Egan, director of Chicago's Roman Catholic archdiocese office of urban affairs, returned home after taking part in Wednesday night's protest march in Selma.

"This was the first time that I've ever been afraid, wearing a Roman collar, to walk through a white community," he said. He said a Selma policeman pointed his club at him and said to a fellow officer, "I'd love to put my stick through that priest's skull."

"The only thing not there are the gas furnaces," Msgr. Egan said.

The meeting of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish religious leaders in Washington today was expected to draw about 4,000 persons. Hundreds of others streamed into the city for demonstrations.

Five Hurt in 4-Car Wreck Early Today

A pre-dawn four-car wreck five miles west of Alanreed today sent five persons to the hospital, two of them said to be critically injured.

The 6:10 a.m. crash occurred when an auto driven by Mrs. Marie McCracken of Alanreed collided head-on with an auto driven by Fred Kuchembush of Davenport, Iowa.

Before highway patrolmen could arrive on the scene and the roadway cleared, a car driven by Alfred Stewart of Sante Fe, N. M. crashed into the two wrecked cars.

As the three-car pile-up blocked the highway, another vehicle driven by Legon Burris of McLean plowed into the wreckage.

Taken to Groom Memorial Hospital were Mr. and Mrs. Kuchembush, Mrs. McCracken and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart.

Attendants said all were seriously injured. However, Mr. and Mrs. Kuchembush were suffering from severe critical injuries.

Approximately $3,000 damage occurred to all four vehicles.

Hunt Underway for Missing U.S. Pilots

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. forces scoured the jungles today for two American pilots whose B57 bomber crashed during a combat mission against Communist positions in South Viet Nam.

The wreckage of the plane was found Thursday 390 miles northeast of Saigon and a spokesman said there were indications that the fliers had ejected from the craft before it went down.

The B57 was part of a flight which pounded Viet Cong positions with napalm in a low-level strike over guerrilla-infected Binh Dinh Province in the central highlands.

Cause Unknown

It was not known what caused the plane to crash. Pilots of five other planes on the mission said they saw no signs of enemy ground fire.

As the search continued today, Communist North Viet Nam announced the capture of a U.S. Air Force pilot whose plane was shot down March 2 during the massive air strike by American and South Vietnamese aircraft against the Communist north.

Hanoi identified the American as Lt. Hayden J. Lockhart of Springfield, Ohio, whose wife, Jill, lives in Alexandria, Louisiana.

Lockhart was flying one of five planes shot down by the Communists when a force of 160 American and Vietnamese bombers and fighter-bombers struck two military installations in the biggest air raid of the war.

Others Rescued

The other four American airmen were picked up by rescue crews. A South Vietnamese pilot also was saved.

Lockhart is the second American pilot to fall into Communist hands since the United States began air assaults against North Viet Nam. The other, U.S. Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert H. Shumaker, 31, of New Castle, Pa., was captured during a Feb. 11 strike.

Thursday's B57 mission was one of several originating from the big American airbase at Da Nang. About 20 U.S. fighter-bombers took part in a raid for which no target was announced but that mission was apparently directed against Communist supply routes in Laos.

In a major political development today, a Saigon newspaper reported that a group of Vietnamese intellectuals have been flown to the northernmost part of the country for forced deportation to North Viet Nam as leaders of a Communist-backed "peace" movement.

Argument Continues on State's Remap Problem

AUSTIN (UPI)—A Houston lawmaker and a GOP strongman skirmished Friday night in a House committee's marathon session on congressional and legislative remapping. At issue was how to chop up Harris County (Houston).

Rep. Paul Floyd of Houston, a Democrat, accused George Bush, Houston oilman who lost his race for the U.S. Senate last fall, of political interest in backing a GOP pie-slice plan to divide Harris County.

Republican Bush replied that Floyd's proposal, the Texas Legislative Council's "plan A," divided the state's most populous county into east-west strips for the same reason.

Their argument was cut short by Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham, head of the House committee on congressional and legislative districts, who said, "if this committee can spend as much time commenting on how to draw the lines in the rest of the state as it does in Harris County, we would have a very good bill."

Has Big Task

Mutscher has the session's biggest headache, the job of guiding remapping of voting districts for Congress and the legislature before August, when federal courts would do the job.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston offered a resolution calling members to work out legislative reapportionment on a more or less local basis.

"I think we might very frankly face the fact that we might not come up with something by the end of the session," Eckhardt said. He said the courts, if it comes to that, could use the expressed desires of the eight regional panels in drawing the lines.

Gov. John Connally has ordered the legislature to remap quickly. He wants no special session.

Whether this is possible depends, perhaps, upon the speed with which the legislature can dispense with other troublesome matters. The budget, for example.

Friday, the Senate brought the $3.65 billion General Appropriations bill two steps closer to passage.

The Senate Finance Committee reported the subcommittee bill out without change, and a few minutes later, the full Senate did the same thing.

The bill is ready now for action in the House, which has passed a $3.574 billion version. Almost certainly, the House will reject the Senate version, shuttling the two bills to the usual Conference Committee.

House Speaker Ben Barnes says he is hoping for completion of the conference version by the 100th day of the session, Wednesday, April 24.

That would leave a little over a month to polish off remapping and the bitter battle over teacher pay.

In the Senate Friday, Sen. Galloway Calhoun Jr. of Tyler introduced Connally's super-system bill to place all state-supported colleges and universities under three boards of regents.

Three schools would be the centers of the systems: the University of Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech.

Rain Leaving, Snow On Tap for Saturday

From rain to snow was the call today by the Weather Bureau in Amarillo.

The outlook for Saturday, called for cooler temperatures with the possibility of snow flurries.

Pampa had received .74 of an inch of moisture from 8 a. m. Thursday to 8 a.m. today. The high Thursday was 41 and the low Friday morning was 32.

Temperatures in the low-30s were forecast for Saturday.

A few Pampa residents reported snow on their lawns this morning. But neither they, nor area farmers were griping about the much needed moisture.

A tail end-of-winter snowstorm dumped as much as six inches of snow on the northern Panhandle today. It was a storybook storm that gave farmers needed moisture and caused little trouble.

The snow melted on the roads soon after it fell, leaving the highways clear for motorists. Officials estimated the moisture to farms at half-an-inch.

Rain, drizzle and fog cloaked most of the rest of Texas.

The surprise storm centered on Dalhart and fell in a rough circle for 40 miles around. Five inches fell at Dalhart, six at Wilco, five at Conlen.

The snow came with little wind. After the snow stopped shortly after dawn, the air was still. Trees bent under the weight of the snow, with no wind to blow it from the branches.

The temperature was 30 degrees and rising.

After the snow came fog that cut visibility to a quarter of a mile.

Fog and drizzle restricted visibility below one mile across a wide belt of the state from the Gulf Coast to the Red River.

Communist North Viet Nam Tells of Capture of Pilot

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist North Viet Nam said today its forces captured a U.S. Air Force pilot whose plane was shot down during the big American strike on March 2.

The airman was identified as Lt. Hayden J. Lockhart of Springfield, Ohio. His wife, Jill, lives at Alexandria, Louisiana.

U.S. officials had listed Lockhart as missing. He was the only American pilot unaccounted for after the mission.

Five U.S. planes were shot down, but the pilots of all except Lockhart were rescued. A South Vienamese pilot was also picked up safely. A total of 160 American and Vietnamese planes took part in the strike.

Lockhart's expression was tired and tense.

Today's report from Hanoi did not identify the type of plane Lockhart was flying, but it was presumed to be either an F100 or an F105. B57 bombers were used during the strikes, but they did not fly anti-aircraft suppression missions.

Hanoi did not explain why it withheld word of Lockhart's capture until 10 days after he was shot down.

Lockhart was the second American pilot to fall into Communist hands in the past month.

U.S. Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert H. Shumaker, 31, of New Castle, Pa., was captured by the North Vietnamese after his plane was downed during a Feb. 11 attack.

FOUR ARRESTED FOR ATTACK

Minister Dies From Beating

By ANTHONY HEFFERANN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—The Rev. James J. Reeb, a white Boston Unitarian minister whose "complete love for his fellow man led him to this tragic end" today appeared destined to become a martyr of the Negro civil rights drive.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said Reeb "now joins the ranks of those martyred heroes who have died in the struggle for freedom and human dignity."

Reeb was attacked by at least four white men in Selma Tuesday night after taking part in a march led by King. He died from a blow on the head at 6:55 p.m. CST, Thursday. Two ministers who were beaten with Reeb, though not seriously, saw martyrdom and meaning for Reeb's death.

"Jim Reeb becomes a symbol of white American commitment along with Negro American commitment for equal rights to all" declared the Rev. Orloff Miller of Boston. "There is a new hope born in Negro America that white America is with them in common struggle."

The Rev. Clark Olsen of Berkeley, Calif., said "perhaps his death will mean that every American will realize that so many in this country must have freedoms they do not enjoy."

Reeb lingered two days in University of Alabama Hospital where he underwent brain surgery. During that time the hospital received more than 200 telephone calls, a dozen letters and 50 telegrams, including one from President and Mrs. Johnson, who also sent flowers addressed to Reeb.

Mrs. Reeb, who flew here Wednesday, was expected to return to her four children—aged 4 to 13 — today. She was to be accompanied by her father-in-law, Henry David Reeb of Casper, Wyo., by plane to Boston.

Olsen and Miller said they were staying in Alabama through a 2 p.m. Sunday memorial service at Selma for Reeb whose death sparked sorrow and anger among Negroes.

Four Selma residents were re-arrested to face first degree murder charges in Reeb's death. They were identified as O'Neal Namon (Duck) Hoggle, 31, his brother William Stanley Hoggle, 38, R. B. Kelley, 30, and Elmer Cook, 41. Before Reeb died they were charged with assault with intent to murder, and also faced federal charges of violating Reeb's civil rights.

Dear Abby....

Wife Needs Better Line of Communication

DEAR ABBY: I've been happily married for 18 years and now I find myself hurt and disappointed.

A girl where my husband works gave him a shirt for Valentine's Day because she thought he was a "nice guy." He said he was surprised. Since then she told him that her husband had left her. Also that all men were rats and in time he would cheat on his wife, too.

Now my husband bought her a present for her birthday because she's a "nice girl" and he feels sorry for her. I told him he was a married man and had no business buying her a present and if he loved me he would not give it to her. Well, he gave it to her anyway.

Should I get the girl's phone number and call her up and tell her she's making trouble? Sign me,

"HURT"

DEAR HURT: Don't call her. She'd only go crying to your husband. His "protective" instincts would be aroused and it would be them against you. What you need is a better line of communication with your husband.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter just married a man with two children. He supposedly got his divorce in New York State. He claims that he does not have to support his children. We think that is very unusual, don't you? We have reason to believe that this man is not divorced. We consulted the sheriff in our county and he wasn't able to tell us how we could go about finding out if this man was divorced or not. Can you give us a clue as to how we can get this information? It's very important.

CONCERNED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Consult a lawyer. If a divorce exists, it will not be difficult to prove.

DEAR ABBY: I invited my friends over for potluck lunch and what I hoped would be an enjoyable afternoon as I had planned games and entertainment for them.

To my surprise, after the lunch, one woman took out her knitting, and another woman had her needlework. (I didn't ask anyone to bring their work as I had other plans.) I was just sick, and didn't know what to do, so I just kept still. It spoiled everything for the rest of the guests. Do you think I should have told them at the beginning that I didn't think they should sit and do their work at a party? Or was I right in letting them do as they pleased?

DISAPPOINTED IN PEOPLE

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You should have gone ahead with the games and entertainment. My guess is that the knitting and needlework would have gone back in the bags.

DEAR ABBY: I am 21, in nurses' training, and have just become engaged to a fine young man who is a senior in college. We've gone together for three years. We plan to get married as soon as Stuart graduates in June. My problem is my mother. She wants me to have a big church wedding with a white gown and veil, bridesmaids and ushers and the whole bit. Stu and I don't want any big splashes. All we want is a simple ceremony, performed by our pastor in the small chapel of our church. I am the only girl in my family (I have four brothers), and mother says I "owe" it to her and dad to have a big church wedding. I think it is a foolish waste of money and, besides, my father doesn't have that much. I hate to disappoint my mother, Abby, but do you think I should be made to have a big church wedding just because she wants to put on a big show for the relatives?

NO BIG SPLASH

DEAR NO: No.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

America's Oldest Girl Scout Lives In Pink Mansion

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., (UPI) — The oldest girl scout in America lives in a pink mansion on a 250-acre estate here.

She made the fire in her drawing room fireplace herself before serving tea during an interview. She wore riding clothes.

Mrs. Arthur O. Choate, you see, rides every day. She is 80 and can touch her toes faster than a woman half her age.

Girl scouting was a little more rugged than it is today when she got into it through her godmother, Juliette Low, founder of the girl scout movement in America. The year was 1915.

Mrs. Low was the first president; Mrs. Choate, the second.

Both once went out a window and let themselves down a rope ladder when testing a fire safety program that was to be included in the early Girl Scout program.

"We didn't want the scouts to do anything we couldn't do," she said. "We tested the practical and fun programs.

"When we went camping it wasn't a big production. Everyone just packed up and headed for the cmmping site.

"They're getting out the Army, Navy, Air Force and police for the girl scout round-up scheduled for the summer."

Mrs. Choate took a pillow from the couch, punched it on the left, again on the right and twice more — front and back. The pillow, assaulted on all sides, caved in.

"That," she said, "is what it was like to be president of the Girl Scouts in the beginning."

She indicated that the head of any organization will know what she means. Each punch represented expert opinions about what shape the club should take.

"Scouting," she said, "has shaped up as a really practical religion. It is a tool for passing on all the principles and standards of democracy plus a lot of fun."

The promise and laws were given to the scouting movement by its founder, Robert Baden-Powell, as a non-sectarian code of behavior which young people could understand and use as a guide for daily living.

The key words in the promise are "I will try" — Try to do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times.

AL Auxiliary Meets With Mrs. Wheeler

American Legion Auxiliary met Thursday night in the home of Mrs. Estelle Wheeler for a regular meeting.

Mrs. J. M. Turner presided and opened the meeting with a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. Joe Shelton and the reading of the preamble. Mrs. Cecil Miller read the minutes and then rendered her resignation as secretary. Mrs. Miller is moving to Whitesboro.

The treasurer's report showed a net profit from the rummage sale of $100.

Members voted to send a girl to Girl's State again this year. Plans were made to order 3,500 veteran made poppies to be sold May 29, Poppy Day, with proceeds to be used to aid needy veterans and families.

Mrs. Joe Shelton was appointed to head a committee to be hostess to the Senior Citizens Center on March 25.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Katie Vincent on April 1.

The hostess served refreshments to eight members and one visitor, Mrs. Art Heflin.

At a recent meeting held at the home of Junior leader, Pyllis Atwood and adult leader, Mrs. Ted Atwood, Brenda Winters learned to hem a tea towel. Miss Winters is also thinking about what she will make for the Favorite Food Show and is preparing various dishes for practice.

Headgear Designed for Young in Heart

NEW YORK (UPI) — Youth must be served — with hats youth will wear.

So the millinery industry has adopted new tactics and is aiming much of its styling and promotion of headgear with the young in heart in mind.

"Girls don't want to look like ma," said the head of a major New York buying concern. "Ma wants to look like them."

"There wouldn't be one-half as much fashion in this country today if it weren't for the young," said Sally Victor, designer.

No wonder the hat makers have turned special attention on the young market. The Millinery Institute of America cited these statistics: half of the population of the United States is 25 years or less in age; 40 per cent is under 20.

One magazine catering successfully to young female readership estimates teen-aged girls have an income annually of $6.5 billion from earnings and allowances, that they spend $450 million a year on cosmetics, and $4.2 billion yearly on clothing including footwear.

Milliners figure if they can get the teen-aged girls (11 s million of them are around) into hats, the clothing bill will rise considerably.

"All this talk about undress, we've got to dress them up," said Mrs. Victor. Mrs. Victor, whose customers include Mrs. Hubert Humphrey and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, is one of several custom milliners who is also turning out inexpensive headgear for the young—"from 16 to 90." Her headliner group will sell for $10 or less per item, whereas her custom hats go for $40 and on up.

"I may not make any money on this (project)," said Mrs. Victor, "but at least I'm helping to train the new generation."

Her accent is on the casual, the washable and the packable. She has used triangles and rectangles of fabric—cottons, linens, silks, jersey—in solids, prints, stripes, or polka dot.

Council Okays Hospital Bill

The city commission Thursday authorized City Manager Jim White to pay a $131.50 hospital bill incurred last November by an Oklahoma man jailed here on an intoxication charge.

The man, Floyd Eugene McDaniel of Erick, Okla., was arrested in a Pampa bar last Nov. 16 after he had fallen from a bar stool. He was jailed at night and at 5 a.m. the following morning was found writhing on a cell floor.

He was ordered to Highland General Hospital and later transferred to Worley Hospital with a broken collarbone. McDaniel was a patient there for six days.

Police said they weren't sure whether the man was injured by the fall in the bar or whether he fell out of his bunk in the jail cell.

Commissioners okayed payment of the bill to Worley Hospital.

Local Water Rate Due Further Study

There will be no action for at least 60 days on what if anything, is to be done about Pampa's water rates.

The city commission decided yesterday there should be further study by City Manager Jim White and his staff before any decision is reached on the water rate question.

The commission in a study session yesterday also advised City Manager White and City Atty. Bob Gordon to start the ball rolling on granting a TV cable franchise in Pampa.

The two city officials were instructed to contact a half dozen applicants for the franchise and advise them of the requirements set forth in a franchise ordinance prepared by the city attorney.

No formal action is expected on the matter until after the April 6 municipal election, just a little more than three weeks away.

The suit accuses Enterline of three counts of negligence and asks for $18,000 total damages and medical expenses.

Gray Councilmen Approve Lefors Beverage Petition

A petition asking for a referendum on the sale of alcoholic beverages in Lefors was approved yesterday by the Gray County Commissioners Court.

The petition contained a total of 107 names and asked for a local option election on April 6.

Precinct I of Gray County includes the City of Lefors and Laketon.

The precinct voted last November to go dry.

Proponents of the petition said the November election carried a strong Laketon vote and did not represent a majority of the citizens of Lefors.

Another Sit-in, Hunger Strike Due White House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—White House guards kept a wary eye on the tourists today when the gates opened for the usual public tours of the executive mansion.

A group of young civil rights demonstrators, posing as tourists, invaded the White House Thursday to stage a seven-hour sit-in and "hunger strike" in a corridor of the east wing. They sought without success to see President Johnson. It was believed that a similar band would try again today.

The Chief Executive, who was reported to have been "concerned and perturbed" by Thursday's demonstration, was scheduled to meet with a group of religious leaders on the rights crisis today in his office in the White House west wing.

By nightfall Thursday 10 of the original 12 demonstrators were left in the executive mansion. They rejected a plea by presidential aide Bill D. Moyers that they leave peaceably and were dragged out of the building by police.

"We wanted to see President Johnson and bring the racial crisis in Alabama a little closer to his attention," said 22-year-old Pamela Haynes of Washington, one of the demonstrators.

"Mr. Moyers couldn't understand why we were staging the demonstrations," she said. "He said we weren't considering the President's efforts in behalf of civil rights. We told him he wasn't understanding us or our demonstrations."

The demonstrators, seven girls and three boys, were released by police on personal recognizance after being charged with unlawful entry. Three of the girls charged were juveniles.

The white and Negro protestors—originally numbering eight girls and four boys—joined one of the public tours to gain admittance to the White House shortly before noon Thursday. Once inside, they sprawled on a red carpeted corridor in the east wing and vowed to remain there until the President saw them. At intervals they sang civil rights freedom songs and demanded federal intervention in Selma, Ala.

ference with Johnson, and today's mass meeting was "to convey the intense feeling in the religious community that the executive branch of the federal government is not yet taking all the action it could take in the Alabama situation."

He said the gathering also was called to demonstrate that Protestants, Catholics and Jews are joined in seeking "immediate passage of a voting bill that will give the franchise to every one in this nation without equivocation."

It represented the biggest interfaith lobbying effort in the nation since the successful drive for enactment of the 1964 civil rights law.

The clergymen are pushing for a twin objective—a demand that Johnson send troops or federal marshals to Selma, Ala., to protect demonstrators, and quick enactment of new voting rights legislation.

Perryton Man Held in Death Of Young Son

PERRYTON (Spl) — Perryton authorities were holding a 23-year-old local resident today in connection with the death of his four and one-half-month-old son.

Mike Leon Beckham was being held by sheriff's officers for investigation of the murder after his son, Mike Beckham Jr., was dead on arrival at Perryton Hospital early this morning.

Officers said Beckham gave them an oral statement admitting beating the boy Thursday night.

Officers said Beckham told them the baby had a fever and was crying and was given half an aspirin. The boy did not quit crying, Beckham said, and he gave the baby a whole aspirin.

Officers said when the baby still did not quit crying, he beat him.

The baby's mother told officers she awakened her husband early this morning and told him to take the baby to the hospital.

A doctor said the baby had been dead about three hours when brought to the hospital. The doctor said the left side of the baby's face was badly bruised.

Officers said as soon as an autopsy could be performed charges would be filed.

New Book Has Answers For Christians on Jews

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

What do Jews really think about Jesus?

An honest and straightforward answer to that question — so often asked by Christians — can be found in a book published today by Oxford University Press. The title is "We Jews and Jesus," and the author is a distinguished Jewish scholar, Dr. Samuel Sandmel, provost of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dr. Sandmel did not write this book to satisfy Christian curiosity. He wanted to arm Jewish parents with a book to "put into the hands of college-age youngsters." Its purpose is to inoculate Jewish young people against any attraction to Jesus which might result from Christian friendships or other college experiences.

With that purpose in mind, Dr. Sandmel does not pull his punches — any more than a Christian scholar would if he were writing a book for young people preparing to live in a predominantly Jewish environment.

Facts Stated Clearly

These facts need to be stated clearly, so that no Christian reader will take unnecessary offense at Dr. Sandmel's candor. For it is precisely the candor which makes the book tremendously interesting to any Christian who wonders why he can't persuade his Jewish neighbors to accompany him to church.

Dr. Sandmel says that Jews almost universally look upon conversion to Christianity as an act of "disloyalty to the Jewish people comparable to treason." This attitude stems from centuries of persecution and reflects the belief that "the Jewish apostate not only abandoned his ancestral faith but allied himself to the faith of the foe, the persecutor."

Jews do not credit converts with sincerity, he says. "I do not hesitate to advise Christians that they can make no worse choice than to appoint a Jewish apostate to the chore of converting us Jews."

Although numerous Jewish scholars have called Jesus a rabbi, and some, like Montefiore, have hailed Him as a prophet, Dr. Sandmel is not prepared to go so far. From his reading of the New Testament documents — which he regards as a mixture of authentic history and pious invention — he has come "to think of Jesus as someone who had gifts of leadership and who was something of a teacher."

Jewish Loyalty

"I believe too that I discern in Him a Jewish loyalty at variance with the views both of Christian and Jewish partisans who, through opposing motives . . . detach Him from Judaism."

Although he is convinced that Jesus "believed himself to be the Messiah," Dr. Sandmel notes that "He was neither the first nor the last to make this claim." The Jews of Jesus' day quite rightly rejected the claim, he says, "because the expectations (of what would happen when the Messiah came) did not materialize."

"The power of Rome was not broken, the David line was not restored, the scattered (jews) were not miraculously restored to Palestine; day-to-day life went on as before."

Particularly repugnant to Jewish feelings, Dr. Sandmel says, are Christian beliefs about Jesus which "in any way equate him with God." To Jews, Jesus can never be "more than a man," and to call Him "Lord" or to give him honors reserved for God is blasphemy.

'Seek A City Saint'

Why Go to Church

By DAVID HEAD
(From the book published by The Macmillan Co.)

Why does the city saint go to church? To acknowledge the holy God on behalf of himself and others who do no such thing; and to offer himself with his fellow-Christians for those others. To put it another way: In worship the Church speaks as the priestly representative of the world before God, and at the same time accepts God's call to priestly activity in the world.

The Church is called into existence for the sake of an estranged world. It is to be articulate on behalf of a stuttering race; to shout aloud in the name of a silent planet; to worship the true God representing an idolatrous generation.

On his way to church, the city saint passes cars with learning-plates front and back, driven by men not learners of Christ. On the pavement waiting for buses are fishermen who have not heard the call to be fishers of men "come wind, come weather." What goes on in church while they change gears or bait, is for them Karl Barth writes: "While we are in communion with the saints, the ecclesia of those who are gathered together by Jesus Christ, we are also in communion with those who, perhaps, do not pray as yet but for whom Christ prays, since He prays for all mankind. When Christians pray they are, so to speak, substitutes for all those who do not pray; and, in this sense, they are in communion with them, in the same way as Jesus Christ has made Himself one with sinful man and lost humanity."

There may sometimes be little in worship to remind the Christian of this; that may be one reason why it may seem a burden to be endured rather than the chance to bear another's burden. A recent statement on worship describes it as "an affair between the world and God, via us." When we realize how easily worship can be a beautifully paved cul-de-sac, or even a road closed at both ends, the privilege of that "via" is immense.

The second motive for worship is the corporate offering of the life of the "saints." What we offer primarily is our life in the secular world. As the sabbath for the Jew, so every Sunday is meant to be not just a holy day different from the others, when the Christian "takes a holiday," but a day representative of "seven whole days."

I once heard a farmer speak of life in the country, and of the sense he had of contributing to the world's inter-dependent life. He said that the finest experience this side of life (as he put it) was standing on the back of a tractor, supervising the seed-drill, and revelling in a dry autumn day. Good luck to him. Industrial society provides the tractor but the thousand trades of the city can obscure the fact of "contributing."

That seed-drill, it appears, was invented by a city lawyer driven to country exile by ill health. He took up agriculture and organ playing. In church one Sunday his eyes lingered on the organ pipes. He suddenly saw them doing another job — sowing seeds — and the soundbox of the organ became the seed-box. The seed-drill had arrived.

Should he have been concentrating more on the business in hand? There is a sense in which it is impossible to have wandering thoughts in prayer, for every thought has significance and can be interpreted "on the God-ward side." Perhaps certain church meetings suffer because in the sharing of experience "religious" thoughts seem appropriate, and one seldom hears, "I have just had a good idea about what to buy my husband for Christmas," or "Now I know what to say to my employe whose home is breaking up."

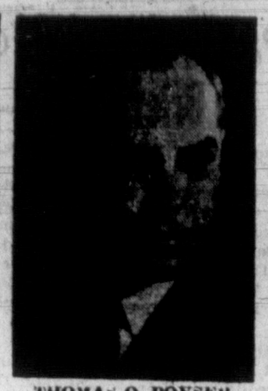

I am not suggesting that worship is a means to making business more efficient or home life more liveable; but rather that when we meet the living God He talks to us about field and factory, home and school, His holy Word being grounded in our daily circumstances and needs. Our response is about those things too.

The parable of the prodigal son is featured in this week's Bible Lesson on "Substance" to be read in Christian Science churches Sunday. Rejoicing to see his son's return, the father said: "For this my son was dead, and is alive again: he was lost, and is found" (Luke 15).

Plans Underway For Revival at Highland Baptist

Plans are underway at Highland Baptist Church for a Revival Meeting, April 4-11. The church has invited Rev. C. L. Stanley of Duncanville to do the preaching.

The evangelism committee, made up of Mrs. Ann Winegeart, Mrs. Edith Beighle, Roy Harper, Dick Bayless and Everett Cole is in charge of the planning. Their plans include the following of a pre-revival calendar which schedules Prayer Meetings, Soul-Winning Clinics, a Prayer Breakfast, the use of all church organizations and an intensive visitation.

The Sunday School under the leadership of Bobby Ferrell is promoting 1,500 contacts in the month of March. The number of contacts (visits, phone calls, and letters) is symbolized by the orbital flight of a rocket, 380 such contacts were reported Sunday.

The Training Union under the leadership of Jack Boyd is sponsoring a Soul Winning Clinic at 5:30 each Sunday evening. Rev. Bill Penland, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Skellytown, will be on hand March 21st to speak on the particulars of Soul Winning.

Rev. Bridges, pastor, says that the present enthusiasm and spirit of the people is condusive to what is needed for a good Revival. The Prayer Meetings are well attended and the sincerity of concern is felt by all in attendance. The men's prayer meetings will continue to meet on Monday mornings at 6 a.m. There will be other special prayer services announced at a later time.

Dr. Everett King To Preach Here

Dr. Everett King of Fort Worth, Director Emeritus of the Synod of Texas Presbyterian Foundation, will preach at both services Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church. These men will also speak at an informational dinner on Saturday evening at the Coronado Inn.

The 43rd Chapter of Genesis is the textual basis for Dr. Kings sermon, "Take a Little Honey." The Sanctuary Choir, under the direction of Mrs. George Budd and accompanied by Mrs. Fidelia Yoder will sing "O Sacred Head Now Wounded," by Bach, as the morning anthem.

The Inquirers Class for persons seeking to know more about the Faith and Presbyterian Doctrine meets during the Church School hour at 9:45 a.m. All are welcome in this class as well as Church School and Morning Worship Services, first service 8:30 a.m. and second at 11 a.m.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

Every Christian knows what prayer is. But it is sometimes helpful to force oneself to define it. This brings out its true, Scriptural meaning, and may show aspects or realms of prayer that one has been neglecting. Perhaps one of the most thoughtful and comprehensive definitions of prayer in a single sentence is that which is found at the beginning of John Bunyans "Discourse on Prayer." This is found in his "Complete works" (out of print) and at the head of it are these two parts of texts: "Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities" (Rom. 8:26); "I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also" (I Cor. 14:15). Here is Bunyan's definition: "Prayer is a sincere, sensible, affectionate pouring out of the heart or soul to God, through Christ, in the strength and assistance of the Holy Spirit, for such things as God has promised or according to the word, for the good of the Church, with submission, in faith to the will of God." Before he proceeds with his exposition of prayer, in which he quotes much Scripture, he breaks up his summary into these seven points: "In this description are these seven things:

1. It is sincere;
2. A Sensible;
3. An affectionate pouring out of the soul to God through Christ;
4. By the strength or assistance of the Spirit;
5. For such things as God has promised, or according to His word;
7. With submission in faith to the will of God."
6. For the good of the Church;

These points will repay considerable thought, and are clearly based on the teachings of Scripture. If we compare our own praying with them, we may find that we have failed at one or more points. For example, it may have been prefectly sincere and sensible, but has there been in it real love to God, and have we counted on the assistance of the Holy Spirit! Have we had foremost in our minds the glory of God and the good of the Church, and have we been really submitted to the will of God? No one definition can cover all that prayer means, but it is helpful to learn what it has meant to men of God whom He has greatly blessed.

What are the "college boards" which seem to concern so many high school seniors throughout the nation? The term generally refers to the testing program of the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB).

On Saturday, March 6 about 285,000 high school students took college board examinations at over 2,000 testing centers. The results will be used by many colleges to help them determine which students will be admitted this year.

The tests are only a part of the information used to make a decision on whether or not a student is to be admitted to a particular college, however. A combination of high school grades, personal information, interviews, and faculty recommendations are some of the other factors considered. Not all colleges use these examinations. Many have prepared their own tests or use some other means.

Different colleges require various combinations of the available examinations which are offered five times during the school year. There is a three hour Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) which measures verbal and mathematical abilities. Fourteen one hour Achievement Tests (ACH) measure knowledge in different subject fields. In addition, there is a writing sample which is an essay on an assigned topic.

Why are these eliminations necessary? It is often difficult for a college to decide whether a student from one high school is as qualified as a student from another high school. Programs in the schools may differ. Standards for grades also maybe quite different.

Obviously, these tests provide a method for comparing students. Although the tests are not the only method, they do give the colleges one additional means for making their decisions.

The college board is an association in which many colleges, high schools, and educational organizations are members. It was founded in 1900 to provide direction, co-ordination, and research in helping students make the move from high school to college.

SAIGON (UPI)—A hotel for senior U.S. officers will be named for David W. Agnew of Winter Park, Fla., a civilian killed in the Christmas Eve terror bombing of an officers' billet there.

Agnew, a 60-year-old Navy employe, had been stationed in South Viet Nam for 18 months at the time of his death. He was one of two Americans killed in the bombing.

Underworld Infiltrating U.S. Banking Business

EDITOR'S NOTE: Three congressional committees either are planning or are actively engaged in investigations of the nation's banking structure. In the following dispatch the chairman of a House investigating unit discusses alleged underworld infiltration of some banks and the probable consequences unless the trend is halted.

By FRANK ELEAZER
And Joseph D. Hutnyan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee warned today that violence will follow unless the movement of gangsters into legitimate banking is halted.

The Texas Democrat, who first charged several weeks ago that underworld figures already have taken over some banks, plans a committee inquiry soon to gauge the extent of the alleged underworld invasion.

He already has taken a preliminary step by issuing a list of major stockholders in banks. This disclosed that many stock holdings are in names of "nominees" with the real owners unidentified.

Patman said in an interview with United Press International that he knew of no instances as yet where the infiltration of banks by criminal elements had caused an outburst of violence.

Taught Physical Force

But he said this is sure to happen because many of the underworld figures who are moving into the banking business are schooled in physical force as a way of doing business.

"Criminals who go into banks usually have 'loan shark' connections," he said. "And these people collect their debts by breaking a man's arm or blowing up his car."

SLEEPING SICKNESS

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston may be in store for another encephalitis outbreak this summer, two experts warned Thursday. Sleeping sickness killed 20 persons last year during an epidemic. The potential danger was seen by Drs. Joseph Melnick and Alan Phillips of Baylor University College of Medicine.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The argument going on among Americans as to whether the United States should involve itself ever more deeply in South Viet Nam or seek early negotiations with the Communist North is, in effect, one that has been going on for 15 years.

In that time, through succeeding administrations, the United States never has quite made up its mind about where its vital interests begin and end in Asia or the role it should play.

On Dec. 23, 1949, the State Department circularized its embassies with a note predicting the fall of Formosa to the Communists and saying that Formosa meant little to U.S. security.

In a now-famous speech before the National Press Club in Washington, Dean Acheson, the then-secretary of state, outlined what appeared to be the U. S. defense perimeter in the Pacific. He said the United States would fight to defend Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

"On Their Own"

He mentioned neither Korea nor Southeast Asia. Other new nations, he declared, were "on their own" because the United States could neither impose on them a loyalty to their present governments nor a "will to fight communism."

On June 25, 1950, that policy was reversed abruptly with the Communist invasion of South Korea.

On Oct. 23, 1954, President Eisenhower extended aid to South Viet Nam to help it maintain and develop "a strong viable state capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means."

He did not define South Viet Nam as an area vital to U.S. interests, but it was the beginning of a U.S. involvement which has escalated steadily ever since and become the subject of increasing debate.

And as the U.S. effort has increased, the outlines of the debate have been drawn more sharply until it reaches the highest councils of government.

In May, 1961, President Kennedy told a press conference that the United States was giving consideration to the use of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam.

Doubts Surface

But by February, 1963, doubts were coming to the surface. American advisory forces totalled about 12,000 men and a Senate study group headed by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield warned that the fight against Communist guerrillas was becoming an "American war" not justified by U.S. security interests.

And in May of that year, the President delcared that the U.S. "would withdraw troops, any number of troops, any time the government of South Viet Nam would suggest it."

In September, 1963, Kennedy observed:

"In the final analysis, it's their war. They (the Vietnamese) are the ones who have to win it or lose it."

The implication is that the U.S. interest is solely that of South Viet Nam.

It is furthered by President Johnson's declaration of Feb. 4, 1965, that the United States is determined to continue to "help the people of South Viet Nam to preserve their freedom."

But on Feb. 18 another administration thought was voiced by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

"The stakes in South Viet Nam," he said, "are far greater than the loss of one small country to communism. The choice is not simply whether to continue our efforts to keep South Viet Nam free and independent; but rather whether to continue or struggle to halt Communist expansion in Asia."

National Window

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International

Several frightened members of Congress seek now to soften the income tax blow that will smack large numbers of voters next April.

Some of these congressmen should know better because they are conservative politicians who oppose the lefty spenders of this and previous administrations who would serve all problems by shoveling out more government dough. This is a real crisis, folks.

If the scared congressmen are unable to soften the April 15 tax blow, the voters might get smart and throw the honorable members out of office and off the public payroll on charges of squandering public funds. And friends, that would be a calamity for most of the congressmen involved. But it might be altogether for the good of the republic.

This crisis arises because some citizens did not heed published warnings last year to increase the sum of their weekly withholding tax to meet the situation created by enactment of the $11.6 billion tax reduction. The administration and the Congress were in such a fret to impress the citizens with great society blessings of reduced taxes that minimum withholding rates were reduced below the level necessary to pay the annual tab.

So it is that a great many citizens will be surprised next month by Internal Revenue Service demands for more tax money. The anguished howls will match nuclear fallout, in extend and exceed it in density. That is what worries the congressmen. They want to sweeten the tax pill with some kind of installment payment sugar whereby father would not have to come up in one big surprise package with what he will owe as of April 15, next.

The congressmen should let it ride and let father take his lumps. Only by taking lumps will father ever get it through his thick skull that he is paying the bill for the government merry-go-round. The withholding tax system has proved to be a habit forming pain killer protecting millions of voters from the tax facts of life. These millions thought wholly in terms of take-home pay, being only dimly aware that the government took its fat cut each week. Some of these millions even had a vague idea that their employes were paythem. Stupid maybe, but there it is.

This has been great stuff for the politicians. They have been able to convince millions of their fellow Americans that somebody else pays the government bills. The pols have sold the voters on the phony idea that there is such a thing as free lunch; that whatever the voter or his town gets from government is free-for-nothing. These feeble minded ideas enable the politicians to bribe the voters with the voters' own money. And thus the pols stay in office. More, some of them are promoted from one high office to another still higher. Happens all the time!

It has come to be that the taxpayer doesn't give a hoot how much tax money the politicians spend for public works, pork barrels and other bribes to be re-elected because the taxpayer is not aware that it is his money. For the pols this is a pretty soft life.

Pampa Splits To Graham, Lefors

Fourteen thin-clads will head for the Possum Kingdom Relays at Graham tomorrow while 23 more youthful Pampa runners will enter the Pirate Relays at Lefors.

Heading for Graham are miler Mark Westbrook; hurdler Bones Bullard and Randy Johnston; weightmen Doc Cornutt, Ringo Speers, Swede Johnson and Big Matt Matney; Little Butch Crossland in the broad jump; Jimmy Jamieson and David Martindale in the 880; Gary McCarrell and Lonnie Richards in the 100 and 220-yard dashes; Bull Heiskell in the 440 and San Williams in the high jump.

The sprint relay team will be Crossland, Heiskell, McCarrell and Richards; the mile relay Heiskell, Jamieson, Martindale and Johnston.

Making the Lefors trip are David Bailey-pole vault; Teddy Bird-high and low hurdles and jump; Dynamite Dixon in the 880 and mile relays; John Bowers in the sprint medley and mile relays; Jan Farley in the discus; Smisson Goodlett in the sprint medley, mile and 880 relays; Jimmy Goodwin in the mile; David Hulsey in the mile relay; Nathan Killough in the two-mile relay; Danny Laramore in the discus; Darrell Luster in the mile relay; Gene McCampbell-100, sprint medley and 880 relays; Tommy Newmile, Stevie Oler-100; Don Rader-two - mile relay; Bill Schumacher-pole vault; Terry Scoggin-two - mile relay and mile run; Davis Smith-shot; Randall Smith-high hurdles and low hurdles; Terry Troxel-pole vault; Charlie Walker-100 sprint medley relay, 880 relay; Jack Williamson - discus; Kenneth Srader-alternate.

Tascosa heads the list of entries at Graham. The Rebels captured the El Paso Coronado Invitational last week. Other teams in the large school division are Graham, Abilene, Azle, Borger, Brownwood, Burkburnett, Canyon, Odessa Ector, Garland, Wichita Falls Hirschi, Kermit, San Angelo Lake View, Mineral Wells, Midland Lee, Pampa, Fort Worth Nolan Heights, Wichita Falls, Dallas Bishop Dunne and Lake Highland.

Coaches Norm Phillips and Don Myers were unanimous in choosing Tascosa as the favorite at Possum Kingdom, with Abilene High as the top contender.

Phillips said that they had gotten a break from the weather until yesterday, and the Harvesters would be in better shape. Phillips was well-pleased with the team's surprisingly good showing at Snyder in their second meet, where they finished eighth in a field of 23. He opined that if Westbrook continues improving, he should have no trouble breaking the meet mile record, which is slower than the 4:29.4 he ran last week.

Pampa holds three meet records, the shot and disc marks having been set by Olympian Randy Matson and the broad-jump of 21'6" set by Ed Strickland in 1954, one of the oldest records in the meet.

Phillips said that good showings by the Shockers at Lefors might earn the standouts varsity berths in future meets. Bird is expected to do well in the high jump and the sprint medley relay team to run up front.

ROYALS TO HOST

Pampa Golfers Open District at Lubbock

The Pampa golf team heads for the opening round of district play Saturday at Lubbock rated a strong threat for the district honors.

The veteran Harvester crew is ranked behind Tascosa and Monterey as the tough team in the loop, after their first two outings.

The trio are the only teams in the loop to have seen regular competition, putting them two steps ahead of the rest of the loop and all three have finished strongly in meet.

Tascosa, defending champion, won the Andrews Invitational Golf Meet with Monterey third and Pampa fifth. Monterey took the honors at last weekend's Sweetwater Meet, with Pampa sixth.

The Harvesters are led by Richard Ellis and Skip Warren. Ellis was third in the fight for medalist honors at Andrews, and he and Warren were in a tie for third at Sweetwater.

Also on the varsity team are Grover Heiskell, George Snell and Tom Warren.

The B team will make their first outing tomorrow. Six players will go, with one of them playing in B singles, said coach Birddog Trice. Fred Tinsley, Frank Kelley, Mike Osborne, Charles McKinney, David Kihneman and Ricky Roach are the Shockers.

Cousy Gets Lesson From Joe In NIT

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

There's an awful lot of basketball that can be learned from a coach like Boston College's Bob Cousy, but there are times when even a Cousy learns something about the game.

Thursday night was one of those rare times and the instructor was St. John's Coach Joe Lapchick. The scene was New York's Madison Square Garden, the subject was the National Invitation Tournament and the lesson learned was "never get sucked into playing the opposing coach's game."

This lesson came swiftly and painfully as St. John's ripped Boston College 114-92 in the nightcap of an NIT doubleheader after Manhattan had defeated Texas Western 71-52 in the opener.

Boston College, which entered the contest with a 14-game winning streak, was expected to give the Redmen a rough time but the Eagles fell behind from the start and were never in contention. Boston College trailed by 14 at halftime and when the Eagles switched to a full court press in the second half, St. John's really tore them apart. What Cousy didn't know was that Lapchick invented the perfect offense against a press some 30 years ago.

McIntyre Paces Redmen

Senior guard Ken McIntyre and sophomore center Sonny Dove did most of the damage against the Eagles. McIntyre hit for 42 points, connecting for 13 field goals and 16 of 16 from the free throw line, while Dove added 23 tallies and controlled both backboards.

Boston College star John Austin had 40 points in a losing effort.

Mnahatran's victory against the defensive-minded Texas Western squad was achieved by use of a potent offensive weapon, the fast break. Trailing 27-23 at halftime, the jaspers broke open the game shortly after the intermission when they went on a 17-4 scoring spree to take over the lead 40-31. Bob Chlupsa and Matt Link each tallied 16 points to pace the winners.

Manhattan now moves into the March 15 quarter-finals against top-seeded Villanova while St. John's will meet second-seeded New Mexico on the same program.

The NCAA tournament, which has been quiet the past few days, gets into full swing today with eight games scheduled.

The biggest game will be in the Eastern regionals at College Park, Md., where nationally third-ranked St. Joseph's (Pa.) meets fourth-ranked Providence. The Hawks 26-1 and the Friors 23-1 met once during the regular season with Providence winning 65-61 and another close battle is anticipated.

While the St. Joseph's - Providence clash will attract the most attention, the player who will be the focal point of the fans is Bill Bradley of Princeton. Bradley leads the Tigers against Atlantic Coast Conference titlist North Carolina State in the first game of the doubleheader.

Elsewhere on Friday's NCAA agenda, the Mideast regionals continue at Lexington, Ky., the Midwest regionals move into second round play at Manhattan, Kan., and the Western regionals get underway at Provo, Utah.

DePaul meets fifth - ranked Vanderbilt and Dayton tackles top-ranked Michigan at Lexington; Southern Methodist plays Wichita and Houston engages Oklahoma State at Manhattan and Brigham Young hosts second - ranked UCLA and San Francisco entertains Oklahoma City at Provo.

In the NCAA small college tournament semifinals played at Evansville, Ind., Thursday night, top - seeded Evansville breezed past St. Michaels (Vt.) 93-70 and second - seeded Southern Illinois routed North Dakota 97-64. The two survivors meet for the NCAA small college championship Friday night.

In the quarter - finals of the NAIA tournament at Kansas City, Fairmont (W. Va.) ripped St. Benedict's 103-87, Central (Ohio) State dumped Augsburg, Minn., 66-57, Oklahoma Baptist downed Winston-Salem 71-62 and Ouachita Baptist edged Southern U., La., 65-64.

Major League Roundup

By JOHN EVANS
UPI Sports Writer

Johnny Keane, striving to keep the Columbia Broadcasting System happy with his work, is stepping in the right direction.

Keane, manager of the CBS-owned New York Yankees, recorded his first victory in the spring training exhibition season Thursday — a 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators.

Keane, who led the St. Louis Cardinals to the 1964 World Series championship over these same Yankees, thus picked up where he left off—winning.

Howard started the slugging barrage by blasting a 370-footer in the opening frame and Mantle, hitting in the leadoff slot, belted a 400-footer with Tony Kubek on board in the third inning to give the Yanks an early 3-0 lead.

Stottlemyre Sharp

Mel Stottlemyre, a real bright spot in the future of the Yankees' pitching plans, was the pitching hero of the day. Stottlemyre, who cleaned up the final three innings after Jim Bouton and Al Downing hurled, retired eight Nats in a row—four on strikes.

The Warren Spahns topped the Yogi Berras 6-1 in an intrasquad game and Berra was behind the plate for the Spahns as the New York Mets prepare to open their exhibition season Friday. That isn't too confusing once realizing that Casey Stengel is the Mets' field boss. Berra explained he wanted to work on the curve ball of Jerry Hinsley, who was tossing for the Spahns.

Manager Red Schoendienst included all the Cardinal regulars of last year when he posted his lineup to oppose the Mets Friday.

Lefty Sandy Koufax, ace of the Los Angeles Dodgers' hurling staff, faced only 10 men in a three-inning pitching stint as the Ozarks topped the Gomez Braceros 3-2.

Comes To Terms

Speedy Luis Aparicio came to terms with the Baltimore Orioles by signing a contract for an estimated $40,000. Aparicio, the American League's leading base-stealer for the past nine seasons, received a slight raise.

Manager Dick Sisler of the Cincinnati Reds listed pitchers Jim O'Toole, Sammy Ellis and Roger Craig to open the Grapefruit League campaign against the Chicago White Sox. They will face the trio of Joel Horlen and rookies Bruce Howard and Tommy John, according to Chicago Manager Al Lopez.

Slugger Dick Stuart, recently obtained from the Boston Red Sox, was slightly injured in the final intrasquad game of the Philadelphia Phillies. Stuart had his right thumb nail ripped off and will be sidelined for a few days. The Phillies and the Pittsburgh Pirates prepared to open their exhibition schedule Friday.

Kaat Signs Contract

Pitcher Jim Kaat signed his 1965 contract and rookie Caesar Tovar showed up in camp to give the Minnesota Twins a complete squad . . . Glenn Hobbie, hoping to make a come back with the Detroit Tigers after a year in the minors, gave up all four runs as the Syracuse farm hands topped the Tigers 4-3.

Lee Thomas, first baseman-outfielder for the Red Sox, came down with a case of the mumps. The Sox are preparing to open their Cactus League season against the Chicago Cubs who, like the San Francisco Giants, were rained out of practice Thursday.

Bob Turley, also attempting a comeback, Danny Coombs and Jim Ray were named by Houston Manager Luman Harris to oppose the Twins on Friday.

The Milwaukee Braves warmed up for the Dodgers in their final intrasquad game and Manager Bobby Bragan nominated Dennis Menke to the shortstop slot after previously saying Sandy Alomar would fill that position.

GRIFFITH WORKS OUT

KIAMESHA, N.Y. (UPI)—Welterweight champion Emile Griffith, scheduled to defend his crown against Jose Stable in a title doubleheader at Madison Square Garden on March 30, Thursday sparred three rounds with Sugar Cliff and two with Felix Santiago.

OSU Favored Over Houston

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI)—Wichita and Oklahoma State carry the favorite roles into tonight's opening round games of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Midwest regional basketball tournament.

Wichita faces Southern Methodist University in the tipoff game and Oklahoma State tangles with the University of Houston in the nightcap.

The regional is figured to be a defensive battle—the bread and butter in both Wichita and Oklahoma State attacks. The winners of tonight's games clash Saturday night for the title and the trip to the finals next weekend at Portland, Ore.

Wichita and Oklahoma State were both automatic qualifiers for the Midwest battle because of respective championships in the Missouri Valley and Big Eight.

SMU Whips Texas

Southern Methodist defeated Texas 80-78 in a Southwest Conference playoff while Houston, an at-large entry, popped Notre Dame 99-98 in a first-round game Monday night at Lubbock, Tex.

Oklahoma State, coached by veteran Hank Iba, maintains the best overall mark among the four clubs with a 19-5 slate. Wichita is 19-7, Houston 19-8 and SMU 16-9.

The Shockers presented rookie coach Gary Thompson with a Valley championship on the strength of an 11-3 mark, but Wichita was only average during the second semester following the departure of all-America Dave Stallworth.

Stallworth, however, was around long enough to guide the Shocks to a 14-2 season mark and an 8-0 Valley record with his 25.0 average. Stallworth's collegiate eligibility terminated with the end of the first semester and the Shocks also lost 6-foot-10 center Nate Bowman because of grades.

Kelly Pete, Dave Leach and sophomore Jamie Thompson have picked up much of the slack from Stallworth's loss. The Shocks lost the midwest finals a year ago to Kansas State.

Hooser Leads Ponies

Southern Methodist is led by 6-foot-6 Carroll Hooser. The Mustangs, who finished with Texas at 10-4 in the Southwest, are rated above average in both size and speed. Texas Tech was the conference champion but withdrew from the playoffs because it used an ineligible player in many of its season games.

IBA, who coached the U.S. Olympic basketball team to a world championship at Tokyo last fall, has a veteran Cowboy team. The Pokes are led by 6-foot-5 Jim King, a do-everything forward who hits 57 per cent from the field.

Gene Johnson, a 6-foot-7 center, and guards Gary Hassmann and Larry Hawk add experence to the Cowboys strength. The Pokes won the Big Eight with a 12-2 mark—three full games better than runnerup and pre-season pick Kansas.

Houston lacks size but plays an aggressive game and often utilizes a full-court press. Leary Lentz, a 6-foot-6 sophomore center, has performed well for the Cougars this year and Wayne Ballard is the club's top outside shooter.

YCC Basketball

Two low-scoring games last night saw Celanese stand off a Jaycee rally for a 33-29 victory and Cock O' Walk rally for a 46-38 win over Stinnett.

Donald Kuntz had 11 for Celanese, John Perry 10 for the Jaycees.

Trailing 32-24 going into the last period, the Roosters crowed when two Stinnett starters fouled out as Gene Brown got nine of his 18 points in the fourth frame. Fred Thompson had 11 for the losers.

UPI Sports Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—Outfielder Danny Cater, no longer a member of the Phillies, staunchly defended them nevertheless Friday by claiming they "never choked up" last September, although some spent their World Series money too early.

Cater is a pleasant, easy-to-talk-with 25-year-old from Austin, Tex., who created quite a splash in his first season with the Phillies last year, then was traded to the White Sox for pitcher Ray Herbert during the winter meetings in Houston.

Forthright and to the point, young Cater does not exclude himself among those who already were thinking in World Series terms before the Phils dropped 10 straight during the final two weeks of last season.

Looked Good

"Most everyone on the club, myself included, was planning what we were going to do with our World Series money," said Cater, staring at the floor of the White Sox clubhouse. "We knew we hadn't clinched yet, but with a 6-1-2 game lead and 11 to go it sure looked good for our side.

"I guess we spent the money a little too early. Some fellows go through their whole career without ever getting into a World Series and here I was so close in my rookie year.

"Anyone who says the Phillies choked up, though, is dead wrong." Cater continued biting into an apple after finishing his workout.

Complete Reversal

"It's hard to explain what happened, but whatever it was, the players never choked up. Suddenly all the things were doing right all year we didn't do right the last two weeks. If we got decent pitching, we didn't hit. And when we'd get some runs, we didn't get the pitching, it seemed as if the whole thing just collapsed at once."

Cater, who says he never again will ever take anything for granted in his life, feels last year's disaster will not scar the Phillies permanently.

"That shouldn't hurt them this year," he said. "I'm over here, not over there now, but I'm sure they'll all start fresh. They have a good club. A good manager, too. No reason why they shouldn't do well this year."

Sanders Leads Field In Doral

MIAMI (UPI) — Doug Sanders, who stands like a duck and swings like a lumberjack, had two strokes on the field today starting the second round of the $70,000 Doral Open golf tournament over the "blue monster" course he tamed Thursday with a record 65.

Sanders' seven - under - par tour broke the old record on the 7,028 - yard layout by one stroke. The 31-year-old winner of last week's Pensacola Open also broke a record on the back nine holes of the Doral course with a 30.

"I didn't really feel confident until I came off the course," said Sanders, whose Pensacola victory Sunday in a sudden-death playoff with Jack Nicklaus earned him $10,000 and made him this year's leading money-winner. It was also his 12th tournament victory.

Knudson, a 26-year-old native of Winnipeg, Manitoba, carded a 35-32 in the opening round. McGowan shot a 33-34.

Sanders had a good day all around. He made one of the most spectacular shots in his nine years as a pro by holing a 90-foot chip shot on the 13th.

Billy Casper, who won the Doral last year with a 277, had caddy troubles in the first round and finished with a 35-37—72. Casper, who claimed recently to have gained control of his emotions on the course, fired his caddy for refusing to wipe off his clubs and smooth over sand traps the 33-year-old Californian hit.

Forty - nine golfers shot subpar rounds Thursday.

Six golfers began today's round with four-under-par 68s.

They were Floridian Pete Cooper; Chick Harbert, Miami; Dave Marr, New Rochelle, N.Y.; Australian Bruce Devlin; Bob Shave Jr. of Willoughby, Ohio, and Charles Sifford of Los Angeles.

Nicklaus, who finished second in the Doral last year with a 278, carded a 33-37—70 Thursday to tie with 15 others.

Randy Busy This Week

COLELGE STATION — It will be a busy week end for Randy Matson, the big Texas Aggie from Pampa, in the shot put ring.

Randy left at 6:20 a.m. Friday on a flight to Detroit where he competes in the NCAA Indoor meet at 8 p.m. He jets out of Detroit at 8 a.m. Saturday for Dallas to make connection with an Aggie charter for Laredo.

Big Randy throws the shot in the Border Olympics at 7 p.m. Saturday. He will pass up the discus in the Border carnival.

Pacemakers Set Pace For Mistakes

The Pampa High School Pacemakers toyed with the Pampa Daily News' Mistakes Thursday night and ran to a 40-13 victory.

The Mistakes were able to play it close for two quarters before Velton Cummings broke open the contest in the final two periods.

The Pacemakers led 8-7 after one period and stretched that to 13-9 at the end of the half.

But Cummings went on a 20-point second half spree to make it 30-9 after three quarters.

Cumimngs paced the Pacemakers with 20, Robert Dalton and Earl Scott scored six each and Robert DeWeese and Bill Cummings tallied four points each.

Astros Will Settle For .500 Baseball

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Luman Harris is not expecting any miracles in his first season as manager of the Houston Astros.

All he wants them to do is play .500 ball. If they do, most baseball experts would classify it as a miracle. Not Harris, although it means the Houston club would have to win 15 more games as the Astros than they did as the Colts in 1964, and a change in nicknames is no help.

"We can do it on our pitching and improved defense," Harris predicted. "I don't have to be told we lack power. We are trying to correct that by making some deals, but the other clubs know they have us over the barrel.

"They're willing to trade with us, all right, but not on our terms. We're willing to give up a starting pitcher for an established power hitter but when we start talking trade they ask for two starting pitchers. And that we cannot afford to give up."

The Astros tried to get Jim Gentile, the slugging first baseman of the Kansas City Athletics, among others.

Harris was quick to point out that he wasn't depressed with the idea of going with big Walt Bond at first base.

"Bond can hit and we sorely need his bat," Harris explained." If we had gotten Gentile it would mean that Bond would go back to the outfield."

Bond was shifted to first base late last season and did, according to Harris, an acceptable job. He hit only .254 but rapped out 20 home runs and batted in 85.

Houston Leads Border Olympics

LAREDO (UPI)—The University of Houston golf team, powerful as usual, owned a 22 stroke lead today going into the third round of the 14th annual Border Olympics golf tourney.

The Cougars compiled a 36-hole total of 557 Thursday, led by Marty Fleckman's record-setting 65 over the Casa Blanca Golf Club course. The old course record was 66.

Fleckman birdied the 10th through the 14th holes and missed a 30-foot birdie attempt on the 15th by inches.

North Texas State was in second place at the end of two rounds with 579. Texas Tech and Texas A&M are tied for third with 582.

Despite Fleckman's amazing round, his teammate Randy Petri had a 135 total after two rounds and held the individual lead. Fleckman had a 136.

Brock Belts Briscoe

AUSTIN (UPI)— Brock meets Round Top Carmine and Gold-Berg plays defending state champion Trent tonight in the semifinals of the Class B Texas High School Girls Basketball Tourney.

Gold-Berg advanced to the semifinals Thursday night with a 56-45 win over Wells and Brock made it to the semis by smashing Briscoe 64-49.

Gold-Berg had a hot hand in the first half, hitting 12 of 18 field goal attempts. The Bears tried only five shots in the last half, but hit four and finished with a 69 per cent shooting average.

Susan Clark led Gold-Berg with 28 points and Sandra Medley contributed 24.

Brock pulled away from Briscoe in the second half, after trailing during most of the first half. Kathy Horn tallied 33 points for Brock and led the second half surge.

Newsboys Lose Russell For Skellytown Tilt

SKELLYTOWN — The Pampa Newsboys suffered a tough blow to their chances against White Deer-Skellytown yesterday whe Carroll Russell was injured in an accident at work.

Russell, 6-2 former White Deer all-state cager, and hometown Skellytown boy, was one of the top scorers for the Newsboys, as well as a rugged postman and rebounder, and his loss will seriously hurt the Newsboys, who have split two tilts with the powerful coaching crew.

Ronnie Chase, 5-9 former Harvester guard, will take over in one of the starting units to replace Russell, but it will hurt the Newsboys' height seriously, as Chase will move 6-0 Terry Bromlow, former Lefors all-state nominee, up front.

WD has the height advantage with 6-5 Gene Williams and the reported "recruiting" of the famous Bichsel brothers, but the Newsboys depended on overall height as six men in the front court had gone 6'2" or better.

The game will start at 8 p.m. sponsored by the Skellytown-WD Lions Club, with all proceeds going to the youth baseball program.

Tiger Win Sets Return For Crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former world champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria and Juan (Rocky) Rivero of Argentina fight tonight for a possible shot at the middleweight crown.

Tiger must win impressively in their 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden in order to get a return championship match with Joey Giardello of Cherry Hill, N. J. That's what champ Giardello announced.

Rivero, risking his fifth straight defeat, must win by a knockout over Tiger in order to clinch a shot at the 160-pound crown, Giardello emphasized. Titleholder Joey will be at the ringside.

Tiger, 35, is favored at 4-1 over roly - ply Rivero because of his combined boxer-puncher skill.

Rivero, 25, is a bore-in slugger who lacks defensive adroitness. Moreover, the South American is not ranked among the top 10 contenders. Tiger is rated second.

BASIC TRAINING

Today's newspaperboys—tomorrow's leaders. Statistically, that's how it stacks up.

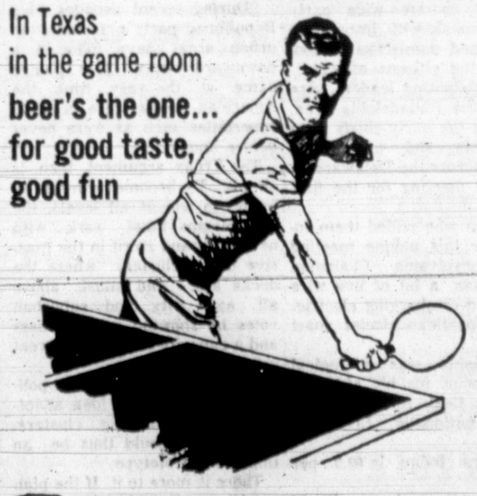

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

Newspaper route experience helps mold those special character ingredients so necessary for success in any field: self discipline, punctuality, getting along with people, responsibility. And all the hundred and one other character-makers that are built into the management of a newspaper route.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by men trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

Although only one boy in ten ever gets a crack at a newspaper route, our Circulation Department people are always glad to talk it over with youngsters and parents. If you have a son or know a boy who might profit from newspaperboy experience, we'll be happy to hear from you.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Importance of Freedom

The importance of individual freedom can perhaps be glimpsed in the wording of the following editorial:

"A man about 46 years of age has been arrested in New York for attempting to extort funds from ignorant and superstitious people, by exhibiting a device which he says will convey the human voice any distance over metallic wires. He calls the instrument a telephone, which is obviously intended to imitate the word 'telegraph' and win the confidence of those who know of the success of the latter instrument. Well-informed people know that it is impossible to do so, the thing would be of no practical value."

The foregoing appeared in a New York newspaper along about 1888. It was a congratulatory message complimenting the New York police department for arresting the man who was obviously trying to practice a confidence racket. Fortunately for us, freedom prevailed in spite of police action and the ignorance of certain newspaper people. Without freedom, the telephone would have been classed as illegal.

We are reminded of this same type of thinking today whenever government moves out into the market to 'protect' us, just as the New York police "protected" its residents about three quarters of a century ago. The government is protecting us from "quack" remedies, from cancer cures, from all kinds of things wherein the government "knows best."

And, of course, men in government will be quick to point out that there are such people as confidence men and racketeers, which we would have to admit. And then they would probably tell us that for every Alexander Graham Bell, Marconi or Edison, there will be a thousand racketeers and pitch men. And finally, we would probably be informed that it would be better to run the risk of putting one genuine innovator in jail than to permit the thousand phonies to prey upon an unsuspecting and gullible public.

But the fact is that man is never so gullible as when he listens to the pitch men in government. Government, in itself, is a great confidence racket. And it would be far better to have a thousand phonies roaming the streets than to restrain an innocent and constructive citizen. In actual fact, were we not so conditioned to be "protected" by the state, the market place itself would deal far more harshly with the phonies than the government ever can or will.

Also, you might keep in mind that the good done by an Alexander Graham Bell, in the development of that marvelous instrument, the telephone, has done more to benefit mankind than the harm committed by a thousand phonies.

And this is why freedom is important. We must have a climate of freedom, not to encourage the racketeer, but to make progressive change possible. Our lives are geared to change. And freedom is the key that opens the door to better days than our past has contained.

Nor is it always the government men who are narrow and negative in this area. Many so-called educators in our schools are equally obtuse. As an example of professorial ignorance here is a statement attributed to Professor Simon Newcomb, on October 22, 1903, just 56 days before the Wright brothers made a successful flight at Kitty Hawk:

"The example of the bird does not prove that man can fly. Imagine the proud possessor of an airplane darting through the air at several hundred feet per second. It is speed alone that sustains him. How is he ever going to stop? Once he slackens his speed, down he begins to fall. How shall he reach the ground without destroying the machinery?

"I do not think the most imaginative inventor has yet put on paper a demonstratively successful way of meeting this difficulty!"

And this was from one of America's foremost men of science.

Again we see the importance of freedom.

We cannot make progress unless we are free. Admittedly, freedom always contains the element of risk. There is always the large chance that a new idea cannot be demonstrated or that a new concept will prove disappointing. What of it? Emphasis upon security leads to a controlled and regimented society, quietly stagnant.

We must learn to give more than lip service to freedom. The future and freedom go together, or there is no future.

What the Unions Want

Nobody knows precisely what Uncle Cawnpone in the White House really plans to do about repealing some of the features of the Taft-Hartley Act so despised by the professional labor unionists.

Uncle C. is a very tricky individual. Knows how to play the shell game. Sold a cure-all to 41 million Americans last fall.

He — Uncle C. — says he is for repeal of the right-to-work provision. Some people think, however, that he won't press for it; not this time, anyway.

If that's the correct reading of what's on Uncle's mind, it may be that he knows that right-to-work is popular with the people. In 1964, 67 per cent of the American public believed that no citizen should be forced to belong to a union to hold his job.

It was a record year for support of the right-to-work principle, higher than it had been in any year since 1944 when samplings of opinion first were taken.

The "union shop" requires that a person be compelled to belong to a union to hold his job. The right-to-work laws, now existing in 19 states, prohibit this compulsion.

The Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N. J., conducted a study of public opinion for the National Right-to-Work Committee. Sixty-seven per cent said a man should be able to hold a job without joining a union.

Opinion Research says that "the survey results are almost certainly within plus or minus 4 per cent of the figures which would have been obtained if every adult in the survey area (the U.S.) had been interviewed."

"Today," says the ORC, "voluntary union membership (as opposed to compulsory union membership) enjoys majority support among all population groups, except the unionized worker."

The figures were a delight, naturally, to the National Right to Work Committee, headed by S. D. Cadwallader.

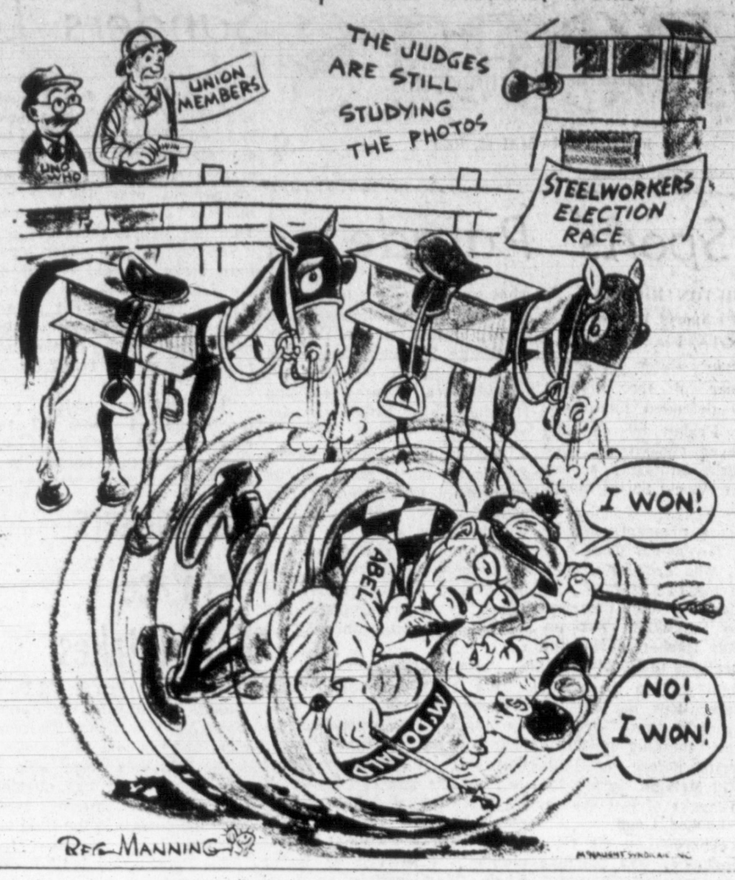

Said Cadwallader: "The tens of millions of dollars being spent politically by the Meanys, the Reuthers, the Bridges and the other politically-minded union officials come largely from dues and fees raised with the instrument of compulsion—the so-called 'union shop.' It is an infringement on the personal liberty of American citizens; and inherent in the use of this club of compulsion is the danger of totalitarianism."

The union hierarchy is determined that every American who works — approximately 78 million of them — will be forced to pay dues and belong to unions.

The Taft-Hartley Act's Section 14 (b) (right-to-work) is the principle obstacle in the union's goal of conquest of the American worker.

"A thought for the day: Albert Einstein once said: "As long as there are sovereign nations possessing great power, was is inevitable."

South Viet Nam to Get More U. S. Troops, Jets, Patrol Boats; Weapons Use Tightly Controlled

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—More troops, planes and combat naval craft are going to Communist-battered South Viet Nam.

On urgent recommendation of Ambassador Taylor, President Johnson has approved:

— 2,000 additional military advisers and technicians to be sent over a period of several months. Under present plans, by June 1, U.S. military forces in South Viet Nam — Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines—will total more than 30,000.

— An unpublishable number of F-105 jet attack fighters and bombers.

— A number of small patrol boats. Fast and powerfully armed, they will be used to combat Communist smuggling of men and weapons into South Viet Nam from North Viet Nam. The boats will be manned by South Vietnamese and U. S. technicians.

Still undecided is reinforcing the Seventh Fleet with additional nuclear-powered Polaris-armed submarines.

With Red China increasingly vituperative and threatening, Navy authorities favor "beefing up" the Seventh Fleet with several of the cataclysmic underwater craft.

Each armed with 16 latest-model Polaris nuclear missiles, with a range of more than 2,500 miles, these subs have the capability of wiping out Communist China's major industrial and communications centers — all located along the coast.

While eager to get the additional F-105 attack fighters and jet bombers, the Air Force is ired over the tight controls on their use.

On direct instructions from President Johnson, napalm and fragmentation bombs are barred in air strikes against North Viet Nam targets. Only so-called "iron" (explosive) bombs are permitted in these attacks.

Also, all North Viet Nam targets are explicitly specified by Washington before air strikes are approved.

Anti-personnel and napalm bombs continue to be used against the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam. But lately the amount of napalm has been cut down, again on orders from Washington.

In all these important decisions, McGeorge Bundy, special foreign affairs adviser to the President, is playing a key role. His backstage influence now exceeds that of Secretary Rusk. Bundy spent several days in South Viet Nam last month conferring with Ambassador Taylor and other high officials.

Bundy's younger brother William is assistant secretary of state for the Far East.

FAR EAST FLASHES — Intelligence reports that in recent months there have been a number of clashes, some of considerable size, between Mongolian and Red Chinese forces. Mongolia is pro-Soviet, and its army is Russian trained and equipped. All three countries maintain large forces on their borders.

Red China's airforce has some 2,600 combat planes, of which around 2,000 are jets; 1,600 MIG-15s and MIG-17s. The remainder are light and medium Russian-made bombers, about 400 subsonic jets. The Chinese also have an estimated 75 to 100 MIG-19s, but no MIG-21s, latest model of these attack fighters. A crucial weakness of the Chinese airforce is shortage of jet fuel. Recently the Reds claimed to have attained "basic self-sufficiency" in oil requirements, but detailed analysis revealed that applied only to crude petroleum. They still have to import most of their jet fuel — as a consequence of which their combat pilots average less than 10 hours a month flying as compared to a minimum of 20 in the U.S. Air Force.

UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENT — Speaker McCormack doesn't think much of President Johnson's persistent strong pressure on Congress to "hurry up and adjourn."

While the veteran House leader wholeheartedly favors the President's domestic and foreign legislative program, he sees no reason for Congress' rushing consideration in order to quit by August 1.

McCormack contends Congress is well paid on a yearly basis, and should work the year around. He frankly told that to the President when he again urged speeding up.

"Congress is now getting $30,000 a year in salary," said McCormack, "plus free office, clerical help, telephone, telegraph, postage, several trips home a year and visits abroad. All this is comparable to an income of at least $100,000 a year. A lawyer, doctor, or businessman would have to make at least $100,000 a year to enjoy the salary and fringe benefits we members of Congress get.

"People expect members of Congress to earn that salary, and not being in session four, five or six months in the year looks very peculiar. I don't think it's sound for Congress to be put in that position. And I don't think it does the administration any good, either. This is an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress, and there is a direct relationship between that and the administration."

McCormack politely said nothing about the salient fact that not having Congress around makes it much easier in many ways for the President. For one thing, he has the center of the stage all by himself.

The President made no reply to McCormack's pertinent remarks.

ANOTHER GOP ACCESSION — Pentagon insiders are circulating a "hot" tip that former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is slated to become Secretary of the Army. Secretary Stephen Ailes, a Kennedy hold-over, wants to quit. Lodge, Massachusetts Republican, is a World War II veteran and former ambassador to South Viet Nam. . . Vice President Humphrey has been given another job by the President. The latter has asked him to keep a close eye on all congressional committee meetings dealing with administration legislation. For this purpose, Humphrey now gets a daily schedule of all House and Senate committee meetings, and personally checks on what they are doing and the progress of administration bills.

CAPITOL EYE:

GOP Maps Plan for Recovery

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

PHILADELPHIA (NEA) — In a small hotel dining room with a faded pink ceiling, some 35 republican leaders gathered here, took a deep, fresh breath, and looked ahead.

If the Republican party should hereafter get back on an upward track and move toward majority status, or at least a more powerful minority position, this meeting more than any other event may mark the true beginning.

For the assembled Republicans talked about attacking problems—huge problems flowing unchecked across the three states and 10 counties involved in the Philadelphia metropolitan area.

In nearly two hours of discussion, the words "conservative" and "liberal" were never uttered. There were no sneering jokes about President Johnson. None of the battered party cliches was heard.

The leaders on hand were all business—constructive business. Before they left the room in midafternoon on that cold February day, they agreed to set up something called a "metro-political council" with members to be chosen soon.

Its purpose: to break across the lines of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, and of the counties and cities falling within the Philadelphia radius, to permit broad assault on the area's common problems—housing, mass transit, community facilities, education, race relations, economic development, and others.

At the strictly local level, much of the area is in Democratic hands. So the Republicans were talking mostly about recommending programs, of establishing an area-wide party voice to speak with impressive strength and unmistakable concern for the citizens affected.

The participating leaders were all from the Philadelphia area. Some, like the party chiefs from Philadelphia and neighboring Camden across the Delaware river, were meeting for the first time.

The man who pulled them together for this unique meeting was Pennsylvania Chairman Craig Truax, a bit of live wire who's been discharging electricity in Republican circles coast to coast.

Philadelphia was a logical starting point for his effort in the urban field. But Truax is thinking nationally. Listen to him:

"America today is 69.9 per cent urbanized, and the trend is accelerating. A glance at where the people live brings the problem into sharp focus.

"Forty per cent of all Americans live in three small strips of land. These 'strip cities' are found between Washington and Boston, along the California coastal line, and along the Great Lakes waterfront.

"During recent decades the Republican party's fortunes in urban areas have followed a downward curve. This plunge came at the very time the American people were creating supercities such as were never before known."

The Truax argument, then, is simple. To become a majority party, to win at all levels, the Republicans must work with new heart and spirit in the massive urban clusters "where the ducks are." And must, above all, earn city and suburban votes by showing an eagerness and a capacity to solve the great urban problems.

Truax thinks the "metro-political council" is an idea adaptable to all the big clusters. Philadelphia could thus be an important prototype.

There is more to it. If the plan catches on, it could be a way of restructuring the Republican party, of altering its focus away from the time-honored state and local units and toward the sprawling problem zones where the nation is in ferment. New area-wide structures would eventually become centers of party power.

Those gathered in that little hotel dining room knew what they were doing was only a shaky beginning. But they liked what they did. It had about it the air of real promise.

PLANE CROSSES PACIFIC

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—A Qantas Airlines jet today completed the first non-stop crossing of the Pacific Ocean in the history of commercial aviation, a spokesman for the airline said.

The spokesman said the Boeing 707 jetliner made the San Francisco-to-Sydney flight in 14 hours 33 minutes. He said the time was a record for any plane, including military aircraft.

The Life of Ombudsmen

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The word "ombudsman" probably doesn't mean very much to the average citizen in this country.

For that matter, it probably doesn't mean much to citizens who are above or below average either.

Until a couple of years ago, it meant nothing to me. If forced to make a guess, I would have surmised that an ombudsman was a man who looked after the ombuds.

Then I learned from Rep Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., that ombudsmen are Scandinavian officials who deal with the complaints citizens make against their governments.

If a citizen of Norway, Sweden or Denmark feels aggrieved, he can take it up with the ombudsman, who will investigate the matter and order corrective action if warranted.

Reuss proposed that "people both in and out of the government" give some thought to the possibility of adopting some form of the ombudsman system in the United States to protect individuals against bureaucratic abuses.

But as far as I can tell, nobody has been thinking about it. Which seems a pity.

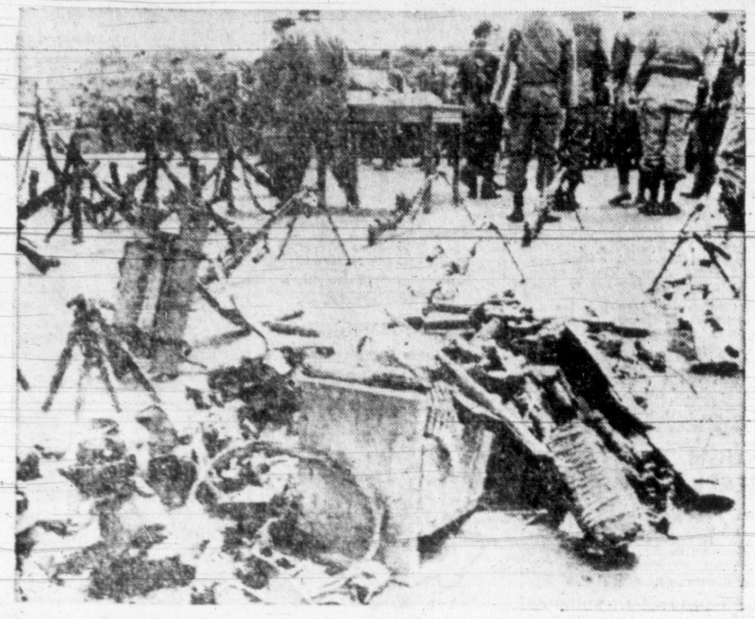

Now we have before us another proposal that would involve borrowing a governmental device from another country.

A group of Republican congressmen want to amend the rules of the House so that the secretary of state could visit the floor and answer questions about U.S. foreign policy in times of crisis.

This, as you can see, would be somewhat similar to the British system under which cabinet members, who are also members, appear in the House of Commons and submit to questioning.

The GOP group didn't invite me to give some thought to their plan, as Reuss did his, but I have been thinking about it anyway. And I detect what seems to be a major flaw that might render it ineffective.

There is a very strong chance that the secretary of state may not care to appear on the floor of the House to answer questions about U.S. foreign policy in times of crisis.

CAPTURED COMMUNIST WEAPONS — Captured Communist Viet Cong weapons are stacked at the U. S. Special Forces camp in Kannack, South Viet Nam, after a Communist attack was beaten off. More than 100 Communist guerrillas were killed in the battle around the camp located in Binh Dinh Province about 260 miles northeast of Saigon.

Wheeler Hospital Receives Memorial

WHEELER (Spl) — The board of Parkview hospital announced this week that further contributions have been received by the hospital donations fund. A memorial of $175.00 in memory of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Crowder was given by the Crowder children to be used as the board needed it.

The Stitch and Chatter Club members are placing Bibles in all the hospital rooms and in the waiting room.

All but two of the rooms have been subscribed for with interest presently being shown in these by several people. It is hoped that those remaining two rooms will be taken before the hospital has its formal opening.

Anyone desiring to make inquiries or donations to the hospital may do so by contacting Mrs. David Britt, Mrs. Lewis Lancaster, Mrs. L. H. Davidson and Mrs. Cora Hyatt.

BUILDING BRIDGES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — W. Averell Harriman, state Department roving ambassador, says the United States is building bridges of understanding with the oppressed peoples of Eastern Europe.

Speaking on a special television program Thursday night ("Great Decisions: Eastern Europe"), Harriman said that President Johnson understands that "the people of Eastern Europe and to a considerable extent of Russia itself crave more than anything else access to other countries and resent the controls" imposed on them.

matter of fact

From 30 to 50 gallons of sap are required to yield one gallon of maple syrup. Maple syrup is one of the few crops produced solely in North America and is one of the oldest, having been produced by Indians of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River regions prior to the arrival of white settlers. It is produced in commercial quantities in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and West Virginia.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bache & Co. writes it is unnecessary to speculate in low quality issues but believes this trend will be quickly checked as it was several months ago.

However, the firm says, if the trend continues it would represent a caution signal and "could well alter our thinking on the over-all soundness of the market."

Stanley Heller & Co. says while there are some hints that the market may be entering a more mature phase of development, it has not yet seen much technical or fundamental deterioration.

Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes says the market's recent indecisive behavior could be accounted for by a cautious attitude among institutional investors perhaps induced by the revival of public participation in medium quality shares.

Over 260,000,000 gallons of water are used daily in the U.S. for home and industrial purposes.
