OKLAHOMA 'REDS' FLING INSULTS AT HURLEY

100 Wichitans To Take Part In Formal Opening Of Haskell County Fair Today

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Solomon said: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

"Be ye not conformed to the world but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds," abjured Saint Paul.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Talker believes it was, said that when a man sits at the table there are three who sit there: The man as he really is, the man the public thinks he is, and the man he believes himself to be.

And now comes J. H. Denison, noted psychologist, and tells us the sayings of Solomon and Saint Paul are good psychology and that two of the men mentioned by Holmes—man as he really is and the man he believes himself to be—are very nearly alike and will merge more and more into the same man.

A book by Mr. Denison has just been published—The Enlargement of Personality—the title may give the impression that the book is just another of those cheap volumes which tell us how to succeed by some formula. It is nothing of that kind but a thoughtful, studied work that we can use in the attempt to understand ourselves and our relation to the world and from which we are led to hope we can change ourselves by changing the way we think of ourselves. And he tells us how we may do it.

"It is certain," writes Mr. Denison, "that every act I perform, every word I speak, every attitude I assume, and every feeling of happiness or discontent I experience, is vitally affected and controlled by the concept of myself, which I have adopted—that portrait which hangs in our mental gallery and of which we may say, 'This is I.'"

Unlike some who have written about behavior and conduct Mr. Denison does not go back through the evolutionary ages to try to show us what we are and why, but he does take us primitive men to show us how and where we get some of our ideas and emotions and he attempts to show us how profoundly our emotions affect our lives.

Talker likes the book because it does argue that we can do something about ourselves and does give Talker hope that he can yet attain something of the man he would like to be.

They didn't know much about the processes of the mind in Solomon's time but the man who wrote the proverbs knew that the emotions, "thinketh in his heart," had a great deal to do with conduct.

All of us are not equal in mental capacity; all are not equal in emotions. Often those with the deepest and richest emotions have the hardest time in making their adjustments in life but in spite of their failures they are the most lovable.

Talker drove the other night down into a flooded section of the city in which most of the inhabitants were negroes. The negroes driven from their homes were not waiting for some public agency to find them shelter but were simply moving up on higher ground with other negroes. Perhaps it is because of their lowly station, for poor folks are more sympathetic of misfortune than well-to-do, but it seems to Talker that there is more of mutual helpfulness among negroes than among whites. Maybe it is because a negro is so improvident and irresponsible that he is unselfish and willing to share his little with the less fortunate of his race.

Something of the light-heartedness of the negro is indicated in an analysis of suicide statistics made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company's statistical bureau. This analysis shows that the suicide rate among whites is almost three and one-half times as great as among negroes. That is for the country as a whole. The difference is much more marked between the two races in the southern states where the suicide rate among negroes is practically negligible. It is only in the industrial regions of the North that there are any considerable number of suicides among negroes.

The Stone Printing company, "21 years in Wichita Falls and proud of it," recently distributed a blotter that had some good philosophy for these times. "No one would ever have crossed the ocean if he could have got off when it stormed," the blotter reminds us. "Stick with the boat, mates, growling and fussing will never bring fair weather. The foundations of all seasons of prosperity were laid in periods of depression."

And the Empire Paper company sends out this talk by Herbert N. Cason:

"The San Francisco earthquake, if I may use that forbidden word, cured hundreds of cripples. They jumped up and ran for their lives.

"They weren't as badly crippled as they thought they were. They didn't know that they could run until their houses began to shake.

"The Good Book, too, tells the story of a cripple whose weakness was more in his mind than in his legs. The Master said to him: 'Rise, take up thy bed and walk.' He rose and walked and carried his bed.

"So, here is the thought that I would like to send out to the business men of America:

"You are depressed.. You think

ROBSION ASKS SECOND TRIAL

Defense attorneys announced Wednesday afternoon that a formal motion for a new trial will be filed immediately. Should the motion be denied, Robsion will be sentenced by District Judge Frank Mathews Saturday.

Carter was fatally wounded and Joe Whitt, Altus city policeman, was blinded, in a battle with rum runners. George and Vernon Robsion, brothers, and Ernest Jackson, all self-admitted bootleggers, were indicted, but George Robsion was granted a severance in trial.

The trials of the other Robsion and of Jackson, who turned state's evidence, were Thursday continued until the next term of court.

Escapes

Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24-year-old heiress, slept peacefully at her home in Greenfield, Mo., Wednesday night while a posse hunted a man who kidnaped and held her prisoner in the Ozark hills. She was released by her abductor.

SEARCH SHIFTS FOR KIDNAPER

Abductor Identified as Kansas City Gangster

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15. (UP)—Search for the man who abducted Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, oil heiress, and then released her after she had promised to pay him $10,000, tonight shifted from the wooded hills of the Ozark mountains to criminal haunts in Kansas City.

Mrs. Benton Wilson, mother of Mrs. McKinley, positively identified pictures of a Kansas City gangster as those of the man who entered the Wilson home here last Monday night and forced the 24-year-old woman to accompany him.

Mrs. McKinley identified the pictures only partially.

Homer Burns, Kansas City detective, brought pictures of several police characters here after posses notified him a suitcase they found in the mountains contained a package of coffee purchased in Kansas City. Mrs. McKinley identified the bag as the one her abductor carried on the long walk he forced her to take through the mountains.

The suitcase also contained clothing bearing the tags of a Kansas City cleaner, Burns said. The clothes will be taken there and an attempt made to identify their owner.

Search for the man continued throughout the wooded hills near here tonight, however, when authorities announced Fred Benskin, Cedar county assessor, had been missing from his home since yesterday.

It was feared Benskin, whose home is at Stockton, near here, had been kidnaped by the same man. His car was found late today abandoned not far from the spot were Mrs. McKinley, daughter of a Missouri oil millionaire, had been released after an all night stay in the woods of the Ozark mountains.

Benton Wilson, Mrs. McKinley's father, who made his millions in Oklahoma oil land, led the posse. He offered $500 reward to the man who kills the kidnaper and $1,000 "to the man who brings him to me so I can kill him."

As darkness fell, the posse formed a complete circle about the area where the fugitive was believed in hiding. Bloodhounds, used to track the man throughout the day, were sent back to Springfield and the

CITY WORKERS BALLAST DAM AT WICHITA

Crew of 30 Fights to Halt Crumbling of Banks At Reservoir

DANGER 'NOT SERIOUS'

Flood Pressure and High Winds Blamed For Cracks, Cave-Ins

A crew of 30 men, working with sand bags and rocks, labored until after midnight Wednesday to repair a series of cave-ins along the Lake Wichita dam as the dirt crumbled away under the pressure of high water and a stiff breeze.

With the biggest cuts, toward the west end of the dam, filled, most of the crew was relieved shortly after midnight, but ten men stayed with the job all through the night. The breaks occurred at intervals of several yards, extending from a point just west of the pavilion along the length of the dam.

The brisk wind continued through the night, but skies were clear after an ominous cloudiness during the day, and fears of more rain were abated with the promise of colder weather Thursday.

Dr. A. H. Douglass, superintendent of the water system, who personally directed the work, declared that the dam was in no serious danger, explaining that the seepage was being halted as fast as the ground caved, and that it was practically an impossibility for the water to eat a way through the thick foundation of the dam.

Dam Crumbles

The difficulty Wednesday was caused primarily by the wind, the superintendent said, adding a fresh burden to the dam by the constant pressure of the current. Such a wind two days ago when the water was at its peak would have had serious consequences, he declared.

At intervals along the dam, eight or nine sections had crumbled late Wednesday, and cracks on the surface indicated that other cave-ins were imminent. These were being carefully watched.

The water bit into the dirt under the planks that wall the lake side of the dam, it was explained, and the slow seepage that followed caused the whole section to drop. The ground fell away to a width of approximately three feet.

Lake Level Dropping

Additional workmen were rushed to the scene shortly before noon when the fresh weaknesses were first discovered. A street car was called into service to bring dirt to fill in the wash-outs after a foundation of sand bags and rocks had been laid. Fifty lanterns were ordered to light the night work and 360 sand bags were supplied.

Meanwhile Wednesday the flood waters of the lake, Holliday creek, and Wichita river continued to recede.

Water continued to flow over the lake spillway at a depth of approximately two feet, representing only a two-inch drop during the day Wednesday. The rate of the fall was much slower than that of Tuesday, Dr. Douglass reported.

Two Pals Of Jake Fleagle Snared By Law As Bullet Wound Ends 'Wolf's' Life

LARNED, Kan., Oct. 15. (AP)—Fred Fleagle, brother of the notorious Jake Fleagle, tonight was acquitted on a charge of robbing the First National bank of Larned.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15. (AP)—The wolf of the West, Jake Fleagle, is dead.

This modern bad man, the leader of a pack of ruthless robbers and killers who shot their way through bank and postoffice holdups in the West and Middle West, died at 9:55 a. m. today in a hospital here. The abdominal wound inflicted Tuesday when Fleagle was shot as he was surprised by federal and other authorities as he boarded a train at Branson, Mo., little Ozark mountain town, caused his death.

With his passing, federal officers continued the hunt for other members of the gang and two alleged Fleagle associates were arrested—Joe Miller at Las Vegas, Nev., and Dr. George O. De Moss at Streater, Ills. The latter was an alleged participant with Fleagle in the Tracey, Calif. postoffice robbery.

It also was revealed today that Fleagle had been hiding in the Ozarks about a year. He leased a cabin near Branson, and fitted it as an arsenal and hideaway. Residents in the section were convinced

U. S. Engineer Hears Two States' Claims

DALLAS, Oct. 15. (AP)—Another chapter in the long Red River toll bridge controversy was started here today when Maj. Milo P. Fox, United States army engineer for this district, heard an application for a temporary increase in tolls.

Sharp difference between the Oklahoma and Texas highway commissions were brought out at the hearing The Texas commission, represented by Rice M. Tilley, assistant attorney general, joined with the bridge companies in requesting the increase while the Oklahoma body, represented by W. C. Lewis, an assistant attorney general for that state, opposed it.

Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., attorney for the bridge companies, submitted an agreement whereby Texas agreed to join in the application for tolls approximately twice as great if the companies would dismiss all litigation and turn their bridges over to the state as soon as the free bridges and approaches had been finished.

The toll bridges between Denison and Durant, Okla., between Gainesville and Marietta, Okla., and between Ringgold and Terral, Okla., would be affected by the proposed increase. In each instance a free bridge is being built paralleling the toll structures.

Lew Wentz, chairman of the Oklahoma highway commission, was the principal witness for the state. He charged there had been delay in constructing the Texas approaches to the bridges. He said he would

Racketeer Refuses to Tell Who Shot Him

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—Jack (Legs) Diamond, the gangster, rallied sufficiently today from wounds that were expected to kill him, to fling the traditional underworld defiance at authorities in search of his assailants.

District Attorney Crain visited him in the Polyclinic hospital, where physicians said Diamond was on his deathbed and asked the racketeer if he knew the men who shot him in a west side hotel room Sunday morning.

In a voice of healthy timbre which seemed to belie the physicians' death sentence, Diamond replied:

"Judge, I don't know, and if I did I wouldn't tell you. They were all strangers to me. They came to my room in the Hotel Monticello and shot me."

A hospital bulletin this afternoon said the gangster was "sinking" and a lung had collapsed.

SECRETARY SMILES

Sympathetic Crowd Lingers After Disputants Are Arrested

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15. (AP)—Two Communists who climbed on the running board of an automobile carrying Secretary of War Hurley and attempted to harangue him here today were in jail tonight.

A state charge of rioting, alleging that the two, N. I. Whidden and R. T. Pierce, cursed and threatened Colonel Hurley "personally and as the secretary of War of the United States," was filed by Harlan T. Deupree, assistant county attorney in the court of Leo B. White, justice of the peace.

The men were held by the city, however, on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Police who had been warned that a demonstration against the war secretary might be attempted, were on hand when he emerged from a luncheon given in his honor at the chamber of commerce and entered a car to be taken to the airport, from which he took off for Fort Worth, for an afternoon engagement.

They seized Whidden and Pierce and hurried them to the police station followed by a crowd that contained a number of the Communists' followers. The crowd loitered about the station for about an hour, but finally dispersed without any action being taken.

Witnesses said the two cursed Secretary Hurley and attempted to argue with him about responsibility for the starting of the world war.

Secretary Hurley was to return here tonight to attend a dinner in his honor.

Whidden, who was booked as "Whitten," came here from Colorado, where it was said he was a labor agitator. He and Pierce were arrested here last Labor day for obstructing traffic when merchants complained against their holding a Communistic meeting in front of stores. They had been arrested previously for distributing literature advertising the meeting.

Death Sentence in Shook Slaying Affirmed; Strickland Verdict Upheld

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—The state court of criminal appeals today affirmed one death sentence, dismissed another appeal from a death sentence verdict because the defendant was a fugitive and affirmed a life imprisonment sentence, all in murder cases.

The death sentence affirmed was that assessed against Clyde Thompson, youthful slayer of Leon and Lucian Shook, Eastland county. It was his second appeal, having been given a reversal on his first appeal from a death sentence verdict.

The affirmation was issued by the court after it had expressed "much concern" over the "grave penalty given a youth whom the testimony shows to be of a low order of mentality." The case dismissed was that of Pedro Aguilar, convicted in Reeves county of the murder of C. R. Dakan.

The life sentence assessed R. P. Strickland for the murder of R. L. Williams in Clay county in March, 1929, was affirmed. Strickland was charged with shooting Williams and then dragging the body behind his automobile.

On the defendant's application, the appeal from a five-year sentence assessed Carl Goodspeed, convicted in Clay county of the murder of A. R. Gooch, was dismissed.

not object to the increase in rates if he were assured the free bridges would be opened as soon as they and the Oklahoma approaches were finished, this winter or next spring. "But if Texas is going to delay building its approaches we had rather the rates of the toll bridges remain the same," he said.

Wentz read from a contract which he said had been made by Texas with the owners of the Denison bridge whereby Texas would guarantee the equivalent of 14 months' tolls at the increased rate and an additional $60,000 cash. Lewis said it had been rumored there were contracts between the Texas commission and the owners of the bridges at Gainesville and Ringgold which were not presented at today's hearing.

Wentz said he did not criticize the Texas highway commission for these contracts but that Oklahoma was unwilling to join its sister state in them.

Tilley said the Texas highway commission had entered into the contracts with a view of recompensing the bridge owners for the destruction of their property. He pointed out further that a long court battle, if decided contrary to the states, could cost Oklahoma and Texas much more money than Texas agreed to pay for the Denison bridge. The fact that most of the bridge owners were Texans was also brought out.

Each faction contended it was endeavoring to open the free bridges as quickly as possible.

Gibb Gilchrist, Texas state highway engineer, said his department was building the roads and approaches to the bridges with the usual dispatch. He cited the engineering work involved.

He said several routes had been proposed from Gainesville to the bridge near that city. He mentioned the necessity of determining the question of whether the roads leading to the bridges should be paved, and if so, how.

Gilchrist would not make an estimate of when the free bridges would be ready for opening on the Texas side, but he promised to endeavor to supply that information to Major Fox after the presiding officer had said that was vital in determining whether tolls should be raised. Gilchrist indicated the Texas side would be ready for opening as quickly as the Oklahoma side.

Major Fox will submit his recommendation to the Secretary of War. It probably will be several weeks before the matter is decided.

Bullet Wound Kills Fleagle

that many visitors he had probably were members of his gang.

Any doubt the man was Fleagle was dispelled late today when instructions were received from the Fleagle family at Garden City, Kan., to send the body there and finger prints taken by federal officers checked unquestionably.

Another disclosure today was that Detective Harry N. Wilde and Chester A. Lloyd of the Los Angeles police department were the officers who actually caught Fleagle and that Wilde was the man who shot him. Five other officers from Colorado, Kansas City and federal postal inspectors were in the coach ahead of the one Fleagle boarded and in which were Wilde, Lloyd and Postal Inspector E. H. Kline of Los Angeles.

Wilde pounced on the bandit, forcing him down into a seat, and said: "Put up your hands, Fleagle." The outlaw snarled defiance instead, and said: "I won't do it." He pulled a pistol from a holster on his hip, pressing the muzzle against Wilde's body. Inspector Kline intervened and struck the gun aside as Wilde fired, the bullet going through Fleagle's body.

The two detectives took up the hunt for Fleagle, along with other authorities after his band of outlaws held up and looted the bank of Lamar, Colo., in May, 1928, of $219,000 cash and securities, shooting to death four men, one of them the president of the band, and another, his son.

Still another feature today was that the various authorities trailed Fleagle to Missouri through letters to women friends. He used great care in writing most letters, but mailed many to sweethearts without his customary caution.

"Frick started his career by buying coke ovens in the slump of 1873. Carnegie made $300,000,000 by buying steel plants in slumps.

"Hundreds of fortunes have been made by buying from pessimists. Ye gods! What a chance there is at the moment!

"In five years from now, most American business men will belong to the 'I-wish-I-had club.'

"Then it will be too late to buy a dollar for 30 cents. The opportunities will be gone.

"When a horse balks, the balk is in his head, not in his legs. He moves on when he thinks he will.

"And when an American business man is depressed, the slump is in his head. There is nothing serious to prevent him from making money if he thinks he will.

"When fear rules the will, nothing can be done, but when a man casts fear out of his mind, the world becomes his oyster.

"To lose a bit of money is nothing, but to lose hope—to lose nerve and ambition—that is what makes men cripples.

"This silly depression has gone on long enough. Get rid of it. It is inside of you.

Oklahoma Cotton Ginnings Increase

Oklahoma cotton gins handled 276,559 bales of cotton prior to Oct. 1, an increase of 21,467 over the 1929 figure, according to statistics announced Wednesday by the department of commerce at Washington. Quantities are in running bales, counting round as half bales, it was explained. Linters are not included.

Although the state's total showed an increase, most of the counties in Southern Oklahoma reported decreases in the total ginnings.

Among the counties reported were:

Cotton	4,338	6,167
Greer	5,464	10,192

Harvesting Delayed In Montague Fields

Special to The Record News

SUNSET, Texas, Oct. 15.—Rainy weather has delayed cotton picking, peanut harvest and other farm work here most of the time for almost two weeks. Cotton on the grounds is sprouted and ruined, but the grass and feed crops being made by the rain are worth a great deal more than the cotton being wasted by it. Rains here during the month have been lighter than those reported in many other sections and up to the present time the damage done appears very small when compared with the benefit. The sky has been mostly clear since Monday morning.

KIDNAPER OF BRIDE TRAPPED

Posse Closes in on Abductor Of Heiress

armed force of more than 100 men started closing in.

Mrs. McKinley, fully recovered from her harrowing experience of spending more than 16 hours driving and walking through the woodlands, was asleep at the Wilson's country home tonight.

"She couldn't sleep all last night because of the excitement," her husband, Harold McKinley, former Missouri university football star, said, "but she's all right and that's all that counts."

Under promise to have her father leave $10,000 at a secluded spot, Mrs. McKinley was released by the lone kidnaper late yesterday. She made her way through the thick underbrush to a farmer's home at Stockton, Mo.

Because of the abductor's actions in holding Mrs. McKinley all night long and then releasing her on promise of $10,000, officers today discarded the theory the man was a member of an organized kidnaping ring.

The man, after forcing Mrs. McKinley to accompany him when he entered the Wilson home Monday night, drove her to a secluded spot in the woods where he forced her to remain all night. She was unharmed but suffered from the lack of warm clothing and food.

Court Acts On Civil Cases

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—Acting on applications for writs of error in approximately 175 appeals from decisions of the courts of civil appeals, the supreme court today made the first decisions of its 1930-1931 term.

The court took action on several road cases. Writ of error was refused in an appeal by Morgan Camp and others from lower court decisions adverse to their attempt to restrain the commissioners of Jones county from expending any portion of $750,000 road money appropriated for paving Highway 30 on a new route, six miles east of the original route.

The writ was granted in the case of C. S. Fletcher and others against W. B. Howard, in which Fletcher sought to restrain the county judges and commissioners of Childress county from changing the location of Highway 4.

The important question of whether a county has the right to obligate itself to expend money for improvement of a state highway within a city limits was presented in the case of the city of Breckenridge against the county of Stephens. The lower courts held that the contract the county made to reimburse the city for improvements on the Bankhead highway running through Breckenridge, was invalid since the commissioners court was without authority to make the contract. According to the brief, the appellate court held that county commissioners' jurisdiction ended at a city's limits, this in spite of rulings of the attorney general that a county might reimburse a city. A writ was granted by the court.

The Lone Star Gas company was granted its application for a writ of error in a suit from Clay county involving royalties on oil and casinghead gasoline under a contract with J. H. Stine. Stine lost in the trial court but the court of civil appeals reversed the decision and rendered in his favor. Stine leased his property for gas development purposes and sought to hold the company for one-eighth royalty on all oil and gasoline produced.

WORKERS DISCOVER QUICK METHOD TO OVERCOME FATIGUE

They Take a Moment to Eat or Drink Something Sweet

Salesmen who cover miles each day, and business folks who go at top speed at their desks and counters, know that mid-afternoon is the zero hour as far as energy is concerned.

Since rest and relaxation are out of the question at this busy time of the day, countless workers have found to their delight that a piece of candy, a cookie, ice cream, or a sweetened drink—even sugar dissolved in water—restores vigor almost immediately.

The reason for this is that the sugar content of these "snacks" supplies the system with quick nourishment without taxing the digestive system. When the body is thus nourished, fatigue is materially lessened.

Recent tests among workers have proved the value of this practice of eating something sweet in mid-afternoon. A well-known physician in Philadelphia often advises business men to drop in at a soda fountain at 4 o'clock and drink a flavored milk shake. Nervous exhaustion is overcome and the evening meal is eaten later with calm enjoyment.

The demand of the system for refined sugar should not be denied. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

NEMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15 (AP)—Three men today robbed the bank of Nemaha. Officials declined to estimate the loot, but H. R. Dressler, cashier, said the robbers "cleaned us out."

Their faces daubed with mud, the two men entered the bank and commanded Dressler, S. K. Kerel, assistant cashier, and R. S. Brown, a customer, to put up their hands.

The third robber waited in an automobile in front of the bank. After the two men rifled the tills and the vault, the three escaped in the automobile, headed toward Missouli.

Frederick Legion Head Explains Use Of Name in Partisan Political Paper

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 15. (UP)—Rev. Moody Nicholson, department commander of the Oklahoma American Legion, issued a statement today defining the non-political policies of the American Legion.

The statement assailed a pamphlet being distributed by the Ex-Service Men's League of Oklahoma, supporting the candidacy of Senator W. B. Pine for re-election, containing a 10-year-old affidavit made by Nicholson as a private citizen.

Reverend Nicholson's statement said:

"In a pamphlet distributed during October entitled 'Thomas P. Gore's Official Record' there appeared an affidavit made July 3, 1920, at Tecumseh, Okla., which was signed by me as pastor of the Presbyterian church. This article was used in this pamphlet without my knowledge or consent and was distributed while I was out of the state attending the national American Legion convention in Boston as department commander of the Oklahoma legion.

"I would betray the trust of that great body of men if I assumed to lead a non-political organization into partisan politics and it was with deep regret that I learned through the newspaper my name had been used in a matter so political in nature.

"It is not my purpose to foster the candidacy of anyone nor try to defeat any candidate while occupying the high office of department commander. I have asked that my name should not be used again in this campaign."

Estranged Couple to Prove Which One Is Better Kitchen Cook

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. (UP)—The kitchen of the Joseph Kosina home was turned over today to Mrs. Kosina, with the understanding that she will abdicate tomorrow in favor of her husband.

In this way, Judge John L. Sullivan told the couple in divorce court, they can decide who is the better cook. A social service worker will watch over the cooking, taste the dishes prepared by each and give testimony when the divorce suit is resumed Oct. 31.

Kosina charged in his suit for divorce that his wife knew absolutely nothing about cooking and Mrs. Kosina countered with a statement that her cooking would be the best if her husband stayed away from the kitchen. Judge Sullivan arranged the culinary competition to decide the argument.

WARRANT FOR BOB PLANNED

Missing Capitalist Given Two Days to Return

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—If Charles V. Bob, missing capitalist, does not return to this jurisdiction within the next two days, Assistant Attorney General Washburn said today, a warrant for his arrest will be issued in connection with a state investigation of two industrial concerns with which he was associated.

Bob vanished last Wednesday in Chicago, whence he had telephoned business associates here that he would return in his own plane before the end of last week.

Washburn said questioning of Louis P. Jubien, treasurer of Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., of which Bob was chairman of the board, and George L. Johnson, president of the firm, disclosed a list of stocks filed by the corporation to show the securities on hand as of Dec. 31, 1929, had been falsified.

Jubien and Johnson, Washburn said, asserted they had signed the report to the bureau of securities of the state attorney general's office without knowing its contents.

Negro Girl Waits School Completion For Serving Term

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—If a state training school for delinquent negro girls shoud be biult within the next year, Gladys Butler of Fayette county will be confined in it, if only for a short time.

The negro girl was sentenced to three years, five months and three days in the state training school for delinquent girls. But that was a school for white girls, and so she was kept in jail, officers having nothing else to do with her.

The girl was freed from jail after a habeas corpus petition had been brought to the court of criminal appeals. Today the court extended this period of freedom under bond, with the reservation that she should be taken to the negro girls' training school if it should be completed before that time.

This training school was authorized under a law passed in 1927, but no appropriation ever was made for its construction.

DRYS TO SEEK REPEAL OF LAW

Search and Seizure Statute Called Hindrance

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—Repeal of the search and seizure law will be sought by the Texas W. C. T. U. at the next session of the legislature, it was revealed today by Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, state president. She said the repeal would be sought on the ground the search and seizure law retards rather than speeds the enforcement of the prohibition law. It now provides that evidence gathered in a search of premises without a search warrant cannot be introduced at a trial.

The act was passed during the administration of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson. It was drawn by Senator A. J. Wirtz of Seguin, who will retire from the senate with the 41st legislature.

The W. C. T. U. head declared the act was merely a "cloak to retard prohibition enforcement" and that countless prohibition law violators had escaped the law through its provisions. Repeal of the search and seizure act would permit the introduction of evidence at trial of liquor cases where the search was made without a search warrant.

Lockhart is trying to secure the missionary's release. The legation is making representations to the Nanking government.

Joint Hearing on Rail Rates Set for Nov. 17

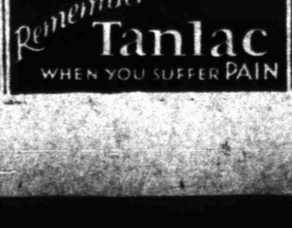

AUSTIN, Oct. 15. (AP)—Notice was given by the State Railroad commission today of a joint hearing with the Interstate Commerce commission in Dallas Nov. 17 for possible adjustment of the first class freight rate set in 1928 by the Interstate commission in the Southwest rate case.

Following the order of I. C. C. setting rates, similar rates for intrastate transportation were made by the commission in 1928. There has been an adjustment of the rates in the West trunk line territory and the hearing was called to determine the reasonableness of Southwest rates in relation to these new rates.

WACO PAINTER TORTURED WITH PAINS IN BACK

—That Was 6 Years Ago—

Tanlac Made Him Well Then and Has Kept Him Well Ever Since

What he said in 1924

A. E. Steele of 2719 Flint St., Waco, Texas, wrote us in 1924:

Six months before taking Tanlac, I was so weak and trembly I could hardly keep going. My appetite was off, my kidneys bothered me and after a bad sleep I'd get up dead tired with my back burning terribly. Tanlac fixed me up great. I sleep like a boy. My kidneys never bother me, pains in my back have gone and my appetite is as keen as a wolf's.

What he said in 1930

6 years later, this same man said: I am in the best of health and have been for several years. I have never had any more pains in my back. I have gained weight and all in all feel great. My wife also used Tanlac as a tonic when she was rundown with fine results. We are both strong for Tanlac. It is the best medicine that ever came into our house.

Millions have found relief from all sorts of pains and aches with Tanlac. It has a wonderful record of success in cases of stomach troubles, gas and indigestion. Try a bottle. It must help you or money back.

Application Seeks Rogers' Discharge

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 15. (AP)—Application to discharge John Rogers, Tulsa, as receiver for the Superior Oil corporation was filed in state district court today by J. L. Essley, recently named receiver for the company in federal court here. Rogers' appointment was made in the state court before the federal action was taken.

Essley's appointment was on application of stockholders which alleged mismanagement of the company's affairs, while Rogers was named in an application of the Exchange National Bank and Trust company, Tulsa, a creditor of the company.

Essley alleges in his application that action of the company's directors in consenting to the receivership under Rogers was a fraud on the stockholders in that two of the company's directors were also directors of the bank, and he further asserted such a receivership tended to give the bank an advantage over other creditors.

The Superior company, with headquarters in Tulsa, is a Delaware corporation.

Lovely Courtesies Shown Attractive Bride-Elect

Honoring Miss Adele Jarrell, whose marriage to Col. Ralph Emmett Spake will be an event of Oct. 17, Miss Marjorie Bright entertained charmingly Wednesday with a luncheon and kitchen shower in which all appointments were attractively novel.

A red checked table cloth was used on the luncheon table and on a small shining linoleum rug in the center, stood a white cast iron cook stove, a kitchen cabinet and a tiny breakfast table set with dishes that would delight a small girl's heart. At the breakfast table sat the miniature bride while the groom managed the breakfast at the stove. Noting Colonel Spake's connection with the air service, a miniature airplane hung from the chandelier.

Favors were blue handled kitchen forks, spatulas, carving knives, etc., and the place cards which bore the names of the guests on one side, carried on the other with favorite recipes written by Mrs. J. D. Bright who is noted for her genius as a caterer. With the gifts of the guests, brought in by the maid in a shining new dishpan, the favors and recipes were presented to the bride-elect.

A delightful luncheon was served to the honoree, Miss Adele Jarrell and to Mesdames A. D. Dillard, G. D. Fox, H. N. Seevers, J. D. Bright; Misses Margaret Smith, Willette Jarrell and Marjorie Bright.

Lovely Spanish Luncheon Tuesday

All the beauty of orange, yellow and red zinnias made Mrs. A. R. Dillard's home gorgeous in color when she entertained for Miss Jarrell at a bridge-luncheon Tuesday. The luncheon table was covered with Mexican silk handkerchiefs in orange and yellow and a handsome basket filled with Mexican pralines and other Mexican candies all tied with red, orange and green ribbons, made a perfect center. Favors were tiny Mexican eyebrow brushes and little baskets of red and green candies. The luncheon was a Mexican menu with the most delicious dishes featured.

At the bridge tables, the tallies and score pads carried out the same motif, being decorated with the attractively colored Mexican feather birds. Miss Willette Jarrell won the handsome bridge prize, a hand carved Spanish bowl filled with Mexican candies.

The bride elect, whose striking brunet beauty was enhanced by her gown of orange flat crepe, was presented by Mrs. Dillard with a cream and sugar tray in gold leaf.

Those who were bidden with the honoree, Miss Jarrell, were Mesdames Walter Priddy, G. D. Fox, R. O. Harvey, Art Clark, Pierce Langford, S. M. Gose Jr., A. K. Jarrell and H. W. Krenning of St. Louis, Misses Willette Jarrell, Marjorie Bright, Margaret Smith and the hostess.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Early Wednesday morning, no fairer October day could have promised. Everyone was remarking on the weather and sunshine "pepped" people up. We began a column on flowers which we must still mention, then digress.

On Elizabeth and Huff, in which neighborhood Grace Noll Crowell once lived, the golden cosmos which she has made immortal are in full blow. And they stand like a troop of royally clad soldiers before the trellis between the home of Mrs. Walter Priddy and her next door neighbor.

Queen's wreath is beginning to blossom—no matter how much it has rained, her roseate beauty will not be denied. October is loath to lay aside the color of her clothes although the trees are beginning to drop their leaves. (Why do trees undress in cold weather)?

But after all, unless it is a question of getting somewhere, the weather's mainly a state of mind—excepting of course long drouths and floods.

In the face of the clouds, Mrs. Newton Maer came in to remark that the committee which had been conferring with the merchants had never found such hearty cooperative spirit as the merchants of Wichita Falls are showing with the forum in the flower carnival.

The word cooperation is an enormous one. It might have a whole alphabet of letters and mean no more. It was brought home to us when in the rush of events, we forgot all about decorations for the tables when the writers department has its first monthly luncheon Thursday.

Decoration is a minor thing— usually, but it happens that at this particular luncheon, many out of town visitors will be present who have been attending the organization of a county federation and who will lunch with the writers and hear their program.

Then Mrs. J. Truman Stevens called up and offered to attend to the decorations for us. Well, what's the world without cooperation—and friends?

We heard of cooperation that sounds somewhat different the other day. When the water was highest and everyone was trying to help, a woman drove up in a big car, got out and pitched in to do all she could; she was dressed in black velvet, boots and a broad straw hat. She must have left a party and not waited to change her gown.

We've just heard of this matrimonial insurance and it sounds like a wonderful thing. Some company soured on matrimony seems to have organized it. Anyway, if you take out insurance on a couple and they get married, you draw down the money.

It doesn't seem exactly fair; the wedded pair usually need it; but if some agent approaches us, we will be tempted to buy insurance.

Grant Street Methodist Is Host To W. M. S. Zone Two

Representatives from Women's Missionary societies in Archer City, Floral Heights, Grant Street, Holliday, Megargel, Scotland and Wilson Memorial Methodist churches gathered for the Wichita Falls district zone two meeting at Grant Street Methodist church Wednesday morning with Mrs. M. T. Clements, zone leader, presiding.

Mrs. C. W. Thompson conducted the singsong opening the meeting with Mrs. O. F. Coleman at the piano. Mrs. J. T. Richie gave the deviotional, touching on the responsibility of Christian neighbors. At the close of the lesson, Mrs. W. D. Cook offered the prayer.

In the absence of Mrs. A. O. Basham, Mrs. Clements talked on "Goals Achieved," telling of past endeavors of small and large societies and outlining the unfinished tasks for this year.

Special emphasis was given the "Week of Prayer," when Mrs. Milton Johnson told of the principal objectives of this subject. The purpose of the offering from the week of prayer program is to be used for Methodist work in Cuba and Cuban work in Tampa, Florida. Mrs. J. A. Curtis reviewed the status of children's work in the Floral Heights church, outlining the work of the three departments from their organization until the present date.

An outstanding number on the program was a splendid address by Mrs. C. M. Simpson speaking on "A New Challenge for Women." She prefaced her topic with a review of early missionary activities or pioneer women and stated that in 32 years, the missionary society has grown from five to 328,000 members; contributions have increased from $46 to over a million dollars annually. Active centers are created in eight different fields. The unfinished work is not a task and a challenge for trained missionaries alone, but to every member of the society. Every woman is asked to live daily in character, deeds and gifts, so that missionary endeavor will enlighten all nations. Mrs. Simpson cited the work of Cora Stuart in the mountains of Kentucky as an example of progressive missionary work. A personal challenge for local auxiliaries to renew consecration was an inspiring close to her talk.

Mrs. George Thorburn sang a missionary solo, accompanied by Mrs. O. F. Coleman.

Members of Grant street auxiliary served a delicious lunch at noon at tables that were beautiful with Halloween colors and autumn flowers. The invocation was given by Mrs. Thompson.

Afternoon Session

The song opening the afternoon session was "In Christ There Is No East or West," and with Mrs. Clemenst presiding, several tonics were discussed. Rev. C. W. Thompson, pastor host, read a devotional and offered prayer. The North Texas conference superintendent of mission study, Mrs. C. M. Simpson, gave the purpose of the course and illustrated the work with an attractive poster.

Mesdames C. W. Thompson and O. F. Coleman sang a duet with Mrs. P. A. Newell at the piano and Mrs. P. B. Cox conducted a class relative to contents of the Missionary Voice and told a Chinese story which was of real interest. The outstanding achievements of auxiliaries were named in short talks by Mesdames C. A. Montgomery, Austin Leach, H. A. Baker, J. T. Richey and C. E. Collins. After a rising vote of thanks extended the Grant Street church for its hospitality, Mrs. M. T. Clements closed the session with prayer.

BOOKCASES

Mr. Dewees of Oklahoma City asked me to see if I could do something with his library. It was a rustic man's room with long rows of heavy, dark, cheerless bookcases. There were only two narrow windows in it.

We decided that the room could be brightened up by the careful application of color. The bookcases were a dark, dingy brown. Our problem was to introduce nothing frivolous in the color scheme, yet to make it more cheerful. We solved this by painting the bookcases with Dove Gray Flex trimmed with Ojai Gray Flex and a slight dash of brilliant Oriental Red Flex.

Mr. Dewees himself was the painter. He was afraid that the expense of having his bookcases painted would be too much. I told him that with Flex, he could paint them himself on Saturday afternoon and they would be dry that evening. He found out that I was right and that Flex requires no technical experience.

This new color finish is made especially for amateurs. It flows on as smoothly as water, yet dries in a few hours into a hard, tough, elastic finish, as smooth as porcelain. Flex is nonchipping. Water proof. It is ideal for woodwork, furniture and automobiles. I have been able to get it at most all good paint and hardware stores.

Fakers Must Fail
In Their Absurd Appeals
To the Fat

Fakers have flourished in their appeals to the over-fat. Not many remain. Some of their methods were harmful, some absurd. All have perished quickly in the test.

One reason is that medical science has found a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a lacking gland secretion which must be supplied. Doctors the world over now supply it, and excess fat in late years has been going fast.

A world-famous medical laboratory embodies this factor in Marmola prescription tablets. Not to oppose doctors, but to supply their best help in a very economical way. Thus Marmola opens this right way to millions who might otherwise go wrong.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. The use has grown and grown, while the frauds disappeared by the scores. Now in every circle you can see the results. Your own friends can recite them. Slender figures are the vogue.

Marmola, in every box, gives the formula complete. It also tells you why the fat goes, why new vim appears.

If you have been enticed by fakes, by silly claims, go now and use what doctors use. Combat your fat in the right and scientific way. Gain normal figure, normal vim in Nature's way. Then tell your friends about it—they should know. Go now and order a $1 box from your druggist. Read the book, watch the many good results.

The Right Way to Reduce

Texas Boy is Strongest

"MY son, Billie, suffered from constipation until he was quite feverish and weak," says Mrs. Albert Reinle, 6043 Lindsley Ave., Dallas.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I gave him California Fig Syrup because mother always used it with me. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Billie loves the taste of California Fig Syrup, and it never fails to help his stomach and bowels."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Greater Richness, Finer Flavor

In Coffees from Central America

For A Real Change Try These Rare Coffees That Experts Concede Are Not Duplicated Anywhere Else In The World.

WHEN coffee seems to turn out "thin" or "flat" no matter how you make it—try a real change. Not just another "brand" of coffee. A different kind of coffee. Coffees from the West Coast of Central America.

You'll find these famous coffees different in quality and richness from any you ever tasted. They have a rare tang and mellow body that, experts concede, are not duplicated by any other region in the world. Nature eliminates in these coffees the "rough" offensive oils—preserves the true rich flavor, pure and invigorating.

Years ago Central American coffee was first served in the Bohemian restaurants of Old San Francisco, where it was brought by Folger. Travellers who discovered it there wrote back for shipments from all parts of the world. Thus its fame spread.

Today practically every grocer has this coffee, packed for you by Folger in flavor-tight vacuum tins, always fresh, full strength.

Try it today, just for a change! See for yourself what an amazing difference in coffee flavor and richness there can be!

Accept A Pound To Try

Just go to your grocer and buy a pound of Folger's. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning serve the coffee you have been using. The third morning serve Folger's again. Then choose between them.

If for any reason you decide against Folger's, your grocer will refund your money. We'll pay him. And you will have a pound of coffee without cost. But if you do as 8 out of 10 do, you'll never be satisfied to return to less flavorful coffees. And you'll become a regular customer of ours. That's why we can afford to make this offer. Try it. You'll be glad you did. 70

NEW AIR ROUTE INAUGURATED

Mail Planes Cover Line On Schedule

inaugurating the new transcontinental air mail and passenger line between Atlanta and Los Angeles, landed at the municipal airport at 5:53 p. m. today.

A large crowd was at the airport to welcome the passengers, who included government officials and representatives of aviation companies controlling the new line.

An airplane bearing Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley landed earlier in the afternoon at the airport, where he was greeted by representatives of the city. He left after a visit of 30 minutes for Oklahoma.

The three airplanes and their passengers remained here tonight and will continue their westward flight in the morning.

TRI-MOTORED SHIPS USED ON NEW LINE

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 15. (AP)—Giant tri-motored transport ships took the air at Los Angeles, Dallas and Atlanta today in an inauguration of the first regularly scheduled coast-to-coast airmail and passenger service over the southern route.

Four ships flew westward from Atlanta, eastern terminus of the Southern Air Fast Express company, carrying, among others, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. From Los Angeles, west coast terminus of the route, another plane took off with Atlanta as its destination.

At Dallas, Texas, two other planes took off, one for Los Angeles and the other for Atlanta. Each carried mail and passengers.

Dallas, lying approximately midway between Atlanta and Los Angeles, will serve as an overnight stop for both east and west bound planes until a portion of the route between Dallas and Los Angeles can be lighted for night flying.

The schedule from coast to coast is 19 hours actual flying time. The Atlanta-Dallas-Fort Worth hop, with intermediate stops at Tuscaloosa, Jackson, Miss., and Shreveport, La., requires seven hours, while the leg from Dallas to Los Angeles will be flown on a schedule of 12 hours. Stops between Dallas and the west coast terminus are Fort Worth and El Paso, Texas, and Phoenix, Ariz., Tucson and Douglas, Ariz.

PITY THE POOR SILKWORM

THINK of the lifetime of toil a silkworm spends to give you silken lingerie and stockings. You ought to know—you have to pay plenty for it. It's only fair, to both yourself and the worm, to make your silk things last as long as possible.

White King Granulated Soap is made only from fine vegetable and nut oils—oils good enough to eat. It's the safest soap you can use in washing expensive underwear. And at the same time its purity makes it the most effective soap for greasy dishes, dust-heavy woolens.

White King Granulated Soap washes everything. And it's economical—a teaspoonful is plenty for the wash basin, a cupful ample for the washing machine, even in hard water. Put it on your list for today. Your grocer has it.

School Board May Join Fight Against State Levy for County Superintendent

The policy of the Wichita Falls Independent school district toward the new county administrative assessment, calling for the support of the county school superintendent's office out of the per capita apportionment, will probably be determined at the next meeting of the board, C. H. Clark, chairman, announced Wednesday night. The meeting will be held on Monday night of next week.

The sentiment of the board is opposed to the new law as unfair to city children, it was pointed out, but the members have not yet decided whether to join other independent districts in the state in putting the legislation to a legal test.

Dr. W. H. Cantwell, city school superintendent, explained Wednesday night that the law takes from the city children a part of the $17.50 per capita apportionment to pay the salary and office expenses of an official who serves only the rural schools. In previous discussions, board members have expressed disapproval of the law, but no definite action against it has been outlined.

Dr. Cantwell added that the state has recently and in former years appropriated large sums for the use of the rural schools alone and declared that city tax payers have willingly met the assessments for this purpose. The most recent legislation, however, has aroused a storm of protest from independent districts and the Austin district is leading a fight upon the law.

The county superintendent was formerly supported out of county school funds without cutting the city apportionments, it was explained.

Prospects for Air Service Good, C.-C. Leaders Say After Meeting

J. S. Bridwell, president of the chamber of commerce, and John Boswell, manager, returned early Wednesday evening from Fort Worth where they conferred with postal officials, officials of practically all air lines serving the Southwest and officials of various chambers of commerce in an effort to secure air mail and passenger service through Wichita Falls from Tulsa to Dallas.

City's Record Praised

"Although it will take considerable time for any definite decision to be made regarding air lines through Wichita Falls," Mr. Bridwell said, "we have presented our case and feel that the purpose of our trip has been accomplished and that we will receive favorable consideration. Indications are good for securing passenger service. Great surprise was expressed by air officials at figures presented showing the large number of air passengers originating from Wichita Falls in the past 15 months, Mr. Bridwell said. The figures showed that the greatest number of passages from Wichita Falls were to Oklahoma City, with Dallas, Tulsa and Fort Worth next in order.

A. P. Barrett of Fort Worth, a pioneer in the air transport business in Texas, president of the Southern Air Transport company and a vice president of the Aviation Corporation of America, stated that Wichita Falls had made a truly remarkable record in the number of air passengers originating here, and adding that the past 30 days had seen an entire change in the air transport map of the United States, predicting that the coming spring would see still greater changes, with no foretelling of the ultimate result except that the air industry would emerge to a sound, practical business stage.

Mr. Bridwell and Mr. Boswell left Wichita Falls Wednesday afternoon in the private plane of James E. McKanna, chairman of the chamber of commerce aviation committee, which was piloted by Fred Ridenour. Mr. McKanna had intended to make the trip, but was unable to do so, due to other business.

Others Attend

O. P. Maricle, postmaster and several other Wichitans left early Wednesday morning to attend the meeting, which was a celebration of the inauguration of a transcontinental air line from Atlanta to Los Angeles, with Fort Worth being designated as a night stop until lighting has been installed along the route.

A large number of national figures interested in aviation attended the celebration, including Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war; Walter F. Brown, postmaster general; W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general, and numerous heads of commercial aviation concerns.

Textile Institute to Abolish Night Work

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (UP)—The cotton textile institute today inaugurated a move to abolish night work by women and children from the cotton mills throughout the United States.

It was announced at the institute meeting that mills operating 20,749,000 spindles had endorsed the movement for abolition of night work. This comprises 64 per cent of the mills, including both members and non-members of the institute.

A form of agreement is being drawn up for the mills to sign and a definite plan for working out of the agreements is being made. Walter D. Hines, chairman of the board of the institute, said the proposal was "a triumph for the institute ideal."

The man was arrested by A. L. Stubblefield and Ellis Summers and was held for investigation until Mrs. Yeager claimed the chickens, stating that she had not noticed the loss of the fowls until questioned on the matter.

Morrow Predicts Early Return of Prosperity

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 15 (INS)—Prosperity will return to the United States and there is no good reason to think otherwise.

That was the opinion expressed here last night by Dwight W. Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico, in his second address in his campaign to win the United States senatorship from New Jersey.

"In my opinion the economic situation does not depend on politics," he said. "It depends on men. The cure is, I think, greater education."

BEAUTIFUL and CHARMING! It's an added special quality that makes the beauty of a pretty girl. But she's a natural favorite to begin with. And for the same reason Camels are favorites with the modern crowd. Scientific principles govern their manufacture; but the mildness, the fragrance, the delicate flavor are natural qualities of the tobacco.

There's enjoyment in the smoking of a Camel. Camels go with happy faces . . . a lift of spirits with the opening of every fresh, fragrant pack. For Camel's delightful mildness holds all the natural goodness of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse it with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" cigarettes.

War Torn Brazil
The World in Ferment
Wall Street's Anguish
Hawks, Record Maker

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Brazil is in the throes of a great civil war. The rebel army takes Pernambuco and a provisional government is established. There is mutiny in the navy. The fall of Sao Paulo is reported imminent.

Revolution brews in Cuba, in Germany, in Russia, in India, in China. The whole world, in fact, is in a state of ferment. The handwriting of war is already on the wall. America has been to school and should be able to read what Belshazzar neglected to heed.

Wall street goes through another day of anguish. Big steel breaks through 150 and closes three or four points below that. An old brokerage house, for years favorably known and proud of its reputation, collapses. Our great prophets in Washington, who have been calling the depression "largely psychological," are strangely silent.

To some people the accomplishment of an ordinary task offers all kinds of difficulties. Work, to them, is a hardship. Others, on the other hand, go to self-appointed task with a zest. They make every new day the occasion for a new adventure and a new achievement.

Capt. Frank Hawks, famous for breaking records, continues to break them. He flies from Philadelphia to New York in 20 minutes—not much more time than it takes to smoke a cigaret.

It has become natural for Captain Hawks to do a thing better and better every time he attempts it. Doing things better all the time can become as much of a habit as doing them worse. Most of us would do well to emulate Captain Hawks rather than the myriads of ne'er-do-wells who drag through life as though it were a burden, rather than a splendid hazard and golden quest.

Rabindranath Tagore, who, like Count Keyserling, scorned America for its crass materialism on his last visit here, is in New York again.

It will be curious to hear from the Indian poet and seer what changes, if any, he finds in our country. AE, Ireland's bard, saw a number of redeeming features.

For one thing, though we make a lot of money, we send much of it to Europe in exchange for art and artists.

We have more endowed universities and hospitals than any other country in the world. Laboratories for pure scientific research are run at the cost of millions of dollars. There is the Rockefeller Foundation, the Guggenheim Foundation, the Falk Foundation, the Heckscher Foundation—all devoted to ameliorating the suffering of man and helping him on his path of progress.

There is no higher spirituality than sympathy for one's fellowman. A call for help from Armenia, Poland, Afghanistan, finds America ready with her money and medicines. Let Tagore think this over when he is tempted to berate us.

Non-Union Baker Held In St. Louis Murder

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15. (INS)—Julius O. Thompson, 35, proprietor of a non-union bakery shop was under arrest here today following the voting of an indictment by the grand jury, charging first-degree murder for the slaying of Alexander Zander, bakers' union picket. Zander was fatally shot, allegedly by Thompson on Sept. 17, when Zander and John Graf picketed Thompson's bakery. Graf, it is also alleged, was beaten by Thompson.

To be "Johnny on the spot" is a virtue, but in Chicago it is suicide.

An Aftermath of War

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS, an experienced writer on foreign affairs, recently undertook to tabulate the revolts, insurrections and armed struggles that are engaging the attention of the world this fall.

He found, when he got through, that nearly three-fourths of the population of the globe is involved in actual or potential uprisings.

Unrest stirs practically all of South America. Peru and Argentina are putting their houses in order after sudden revolutions. Brazil is in the midst of a desperate civil war. Communists are ready to march on the capital of Bolivia. Venezuela is ready for a revolt. Chile barely nipped a revolutionary plot in the bud.

In Europe the situation is little better. Spain and Portugal are smouldering with insurrectionary fires. In Poland, Pilsudski is striving to stamp out new flames of discontent. Hungary prepares to proclaim youthful Prince Otto as its king, and Jugoslavia, Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia are ready to invade her if she does. The Balkans are full of dire rumors and portents. Russia is making ready for war. Germany, swept by a Fascist wave, debates the repudiation of the Versailles treaty, while France makes ready to fight if such a thing does indeed happen.

In India the revolt gets more widespread instead of less. Civil war continues to ravage China. Egypt is still unsettled. Palestine is full of disorder. Persia and Turkey are snarling at one another across the border, while the Kurds raid both lands impartially.

Thus Mr. Simms sums it up. It is nearly a dozen years since the end of the war that was to end war, but the peace of the world was never more insecure.

Trying to figure out what it all means is a task for experts only. Yet one would not be far wrong, probably, if one traced the whole business, in one way or another, back to the world war. That conflict ended in the fall of 1918, but the forces and the ideas which it set in motion are still working. India, China, Europe—do not all of their difficulties stem back to the things that were done between 1914 and 1918? Is it possible to understand any of them without studying their relationship with the war?

When we talk about the world war we usually consider it simply as the most destructive explosion in human history. What we often fail to realize is that it marked the end of an epoch. It is still too early to appraise its effects. It is still working.

It may be that the turmoil, the change, the unrest that were born of the war will still be operating 30 years from now. And as we watch them we shall get a new idea of the expensive consequences of the world's folly in 1914.

A Very Good Airplane

THE workmen who put together the monoplane Columbia evidently did a good job that they can be extremely proud of. Seldom has a piece of machinery given a better account of itself than this famous airplane.

Clarence Chamberlin took the monoplane across the Atlantic without a hitch. It survived the tobogganing that Charles Levine gave it, made a flight from New York to Havana and flew from the American mainland to Bermuda and back; and now it crosses the Atlantic again, as efficiently as if that perilous and difficult fight were the simplest thing on earth.

If all of these flights had been made with the same pilot at the controls we would be gaping, awe-struck, at the pilot; but half a dozen different aviators have guided the Columbia through the skies, and the ship has performed well for all of them. Apparently this graceful little monoplane is about as good an airplane as was ever built anywhere.

Broadcasting and Sports

NOW that the world series broadcasts are over for another year, the American radio fan is settling down to get his football out of the loudspeaker; and it occurs to us to wonder how long it will be before the big broadcasting companies get around to hiring real sports experts to describe great athletic events.

It is no criticism of the regular broadcasts to say that they are not fitted for this job. Describing a baseball game, a football game or a prize fight is a job for a man who has had especial training. The ins and outs of these games—the fine points that the average fan wants to hear about—tend to escape the eyes of an observer who isn't thoroughly acquainted with them. The result is that the radio fan often gets let down badly.

A newspaper would not send its police reporter to cover the opening of a new play, no matter how good he might be at covering his own field. Why cannot the broadcasting companies be equally sensible?

A Seagoing Race

THE fishermen's schooner races off Gloucester, Mass., did not draw the nation-wide publicity that attended the recent America cup races off Newport; but from almost any angle you would care to take, they were better races and better sport.

The America cup was sought by two extremely costly yachts, built and owned by multimillionaires, and fit for nothing on earth but racing. The fishermen's races, on the other hand, brought together two commercial fishing schooners, owned and manned by men who get their living from the sea, capable of combating anything in the way of bad weather that the Atlantic can offer. The race was a side-issue, a form of recreation indulged in by two groups of artists in a very old and honorable profession.

The yachtsmen got the long stories and the photographs in the newspapers, but the fishermen, to our notion, made a more appealing contest.

WALTER WINCHELL

On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Broadway seems so strange when the sun is blazing . . . I do not like it as much as I do when the bulbs are flaming . . . Maybe it's because I feel like a stranger in the daytime . . . The people seem different . . . The Stem doesn't pack the same wallop. . . The women aren't as contagious . . . That gal on the Pepsodent sign where Longacre stops doesn't swing in her swing . . . The "Hell's Angels" portrait on the Criterion seems lifeless—no burning Zeppelins or nothing . . . The music shops are quiet, and the running sign on the Times edifice flashing last-minute news dispatches is dark . . . That's not Broadway . . . It's Main Street! . . . The peasants are so serious . . . Probably going to work or coming from some place where they heard "No," again . . . Broadway by Night is Broadway . . . The people at night are either going to or coming from the theater . . . Or to the asylums where the lights are dim and everyone is interesting because their pasts are . . . Good people make dull paragraphs . . . Mustn't get up early any more.

Wonder if Ethel will choke on that pretty bouquet of scallions Variety presents to her this issue . . . Hope the others mentioned in it see it . . . I mean those counterfeiters who try to make newspaper men believe that they are "good guys in a tough spot" . . . And then try to stifle them by complaining to their editors . . . The phonies! . . . What a contrast Cohan is to that crew of mice . . . When George learned that Broun was running a show at the Broadhurst Sunday night he volunteered to appear and will . . . After all the scoldings Heywood penned about George's "poor sportsmanship," too. . . That the sort of stuff that makes Broadway go, I guess . . . And Bill Robinson, Adelaide Hall and Ada Brown of the "Brown Buddies" show will make it all a joy . . . Instead of resting on the Sabbath and doctoring his wounded wing Robinson insists upon helping . . . Hope his show clicks . . . The applause at the premiere was the sort they gave Lindbergh when he came back from Paris . . . Before the show was one song old it was stopped colder than a night club hot roast beef sandwich.

The Dinner to Escoffier, the grand chef at the new Pierre, will probably disappoint the stiff-shirted who are going . . . The fancy menu winds up with "Liqueur des sages," which will be nothing a nice, long, cold drink of water! . . . Wonder if it is true that Tullio Carminati, the heavy lover in "Strictly Dishonorable," uses "Christmas Night" perfume . . . Can't quit thinking of the last minute rush the other day when they yelled for an obituary notice on Jack Donahue . . . Nobody in the office "knew" Jack . . . All they had on him in the reference room was a clip recording his activities in a new show . . . Then when they needed his "career" for his obit they went nuts . . . Why do they always wait until a guy shoves off before they decide to warble his praises? . . . That's the newspaper racket, I suppose . . . They didn't "know" Donahue because he had never crashed the Page Ones, or the second, third or fourth page in the sensational or scandal manner . . . Good people make dull paragraphs is right! . . . The reference room is lousy with material for an obit on Harry Thaw, Peaches Browning, Earl Carroll, Mae West and Walter Winchell!

Those two yarns about the men who broke jail only to be found out so many years after, gave me the shudders . . . That one, frinstance, about the lad who hid his past for 20 years . . . And became president of a hotel chain only to be told one day by his associates that they knew . . . "You wouldn't want to hurt the rest of us, would you?" they asked him . . . So they gave him twenty-five million for his end and his resignation . . . And today he is a raving maniac somewhere in Paris . . . The other yarn is pathetic and makes me lose my respect for those "Mutual Welfare Leagues" which are supposed to help a guy go straight . . . The chap went to Atlanta for something or other shortly after his daughter was born . . . Fifteen years later he broke jail . . . He shelved his tag for another and when his kid was 19 she selected her groom . . . The old man thought it would be unfair not to tell the suitor of his past so that she could be wedded under her real name . . . Which was done, but the rotter looked up the records, learned that there was a reward and turned his prospective dad-in-law in to the coopers . . . When reporters asked the recaptured man if he regretted telling the boy of his past, he answered: "No. I'd rather spend the rest of my life in jail than have her married to such a rat!"

I like the one about the hypocritical clergyman who wanted to go to the theater to hear Edwin Booth, but who was afraid that some of his parishioners might object if they saw him . . . So he wrote to Booth and asked him whether there was a back door to the playhouse where he could slip in unseen . . . Booth's pungent response was: "There is no door in my theater through which God cannot see" . . . Maybe Hammond shouldn't try to be fair with some of those mugs . . . Percy Hammond is getting too mellow . . . He gets sick about curtain time, doctors himself hurriedly and makes the premiere after the first act is over . . . Then when the play is finished he decides he no like, so his plan is not to review it "because it wouldn't be fair to all concerned" . . . Instead he instructed his assistant to turn in the verdict because the ass't saw all of it . . . And what happened? . . . The management puts up a squawk because Pere didn't write the notice, which would have been just as sour . . . Serves Hammond right for showing his Cadiz, O., manners . . . When will he ever learn that "It's a dirty trick—but it's good Broadway!" is the Big Idea?

It would be my luck to miss the burning down of Guinan's asylum . . . I knew if I went to bed at such an early hour as two a. m. I'd miss something . . . Wonder if Tex's Joe Miller Joke Book perished, too? . . . Gabfobid! . . . She says she'll reopen in ten days, at least . . . Ten days! . . . That's ten days and ten nights for me . . . The joint was insured, and Tex is a good skate, so she deserves a good fire . . . But what am I gonna do now between 6 and 9 in the morning until she reopens? . . . Who will I gab with over the chow-mein and who's gonna listen and howl at the paragraphs they won't let me print?

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

Nick Walther, wealthy young Hollywood real estate man, is impressed with the beauty and earnestness of Gail Stuart whom he picks up on the road, hiking toward the film capital, and hires Tod Janson, press agent, to arrange a film test for her. Meanwhile, she meets Ross Hardy, handsome young movie extra. They pledge themselves to give each other a lift if they get a "break."

Gail gets her test, but it turns out badly. She has no screen personality. Broken hearted, she checks out of the Hotel Roosevelt, where she has been staying, with only $10 to her name, going to Hardy's rooming house.

CHAPTER VIII

Because Gail knew of no place else to go, and because Ross had told her of his rooming house where he paid $5 a week for a room, she went there. Really she felt she could not even afford that, but she had to live some place—and that seemed the most reasonable.

Besides she wanted to see Ross. He wasn't there when she found the place, a shabby old-fashioned house on upper Highland avenue. Her room was on the third floor, no more than a hall bedroom, small, pitifully small after the luxury of the Rooseveit. Five rooms on the floor, and one bath. According to the landlady they were all occupied, Ross she found out, lived on the second floor at the back.

A week's rent, too, had been demanded in advance. Without a word, Gail paid it, knowing just what she had left after she did. How could she live, eat, exist on the five dollars she had left? Until she found a job . . .

When the landlady left with her bills, the girl looked around her room. Plain, a brass bed, a stained shabby dresser, one chair, which wobbled when she sat down on it. The curtains at the one window were soiled, and frayed. The rug on the flood had seen much wear, and was threadbare in places.

This was to be her home now. Her home. Aunt Margaret's house suddenly seemed better, even in its evident poverty. It was spotlessly clean, curtains always fresh and starched, the floors shiny.

Mrs. Green, the landlady, had said her roomers must make their own beds, tend to their own rooms.

Gail felt very lonely. Disheartened. The dreams she had built up had blown away like dust. She had not made good. What would Mr. Walther say when he found out her test was no good? Bitterly, she wondered whether she should call him and tell him. Probably he had forgotten her by this time. She was glad now she had told no one in Fairview her plans. How much worse would she feel if she had to write back and tell what had happened.

Ross would understand, because he had dreams, too, and he had been trying for months to crash the movies.

Mr. Janson had been so discouraging, so hopeless. She should take up stenography, he had said. She had no screen personality.

She studied her face carefully in the mirror. Yes, she was pretty, she had to admit it. But beauty didn't count. Screen personality was the main thing, and she lacked that.

If she only hadn't been so nervous when she had taken the test.

Hope Dies Hard

The hope she had had for so long were hard to kill. The trip for nothing. Those miles and miles she had walked.

No screen personality . . . Carla Cross had screen personality.

A sudden thought struck the girl, Carla Cross. What if she went to Carla Cross and told her she was from her home town. Told her she had known her as a child. Known her to speak to anyway, for Gail had. She had vivid memories of meeting Carla on the streets of Fairview speaking to her. Everyone in Fairview knew Carla.

That was years ago, though. Carla probably wouldn't remember her. But did that matter? Would Carla help her?

It was a chance anyway. A shot on the dark. Her last chance.

Hope revived a little, Gail got into her new clothes, for she felt she must go to Carla dressed in her best. The print dress clung to her slender figure. Too warm for the coat, but she would wear it anyway. She must look her nicest. The pumps, so small, so high. She was trembling as she thrust her feet into them.

Uncertain Moments

In the hall downstairs, she looked in the phone book for Carla's address. It was not there. She was desperate for a minute, then remembered the street in Beverly Hills which she had seen in a moving picture magazine—Maringo Way. She would know the house, too, from the photograph. A big Spanish house, engraved on her memory.

She was nervous going out in the bus, and got off at the wrong station. Four blocks back to the right street, then miles up, it seemed, because Gail did not know the number. She was used to walking, though, so that was nothing to her. The house she recognized loomed up at last, many winged.

It appeared larger than the photograph with a great expanse of lawn in front. A grove of pepper trees shielded it from the street. Stripes' awnings on the windows made it seem cool and shady in the afternoon sun.

Gail reluctantly started up the tile flagged path to the door. She was not so confident now. Perhaps Carla wouldn't see her. And even if she did, refuse her help . . . Not that she wanted much help. She didn't. She wanted to know more than anything else how she should go about realizing her dreams. If Carla told her there was no hope, she would believe it. And stop dreaming. Carla would be the judge . . .

A stately butler answered her ring.

"Miss Cross, please," Gail murmured.

"Miss Cross is not at home, miss."

The girl was hot, tired and disappointed. The walk from the bus had been longer than she had thought. Carla not at home. The afternoon wasted. That interminable trip back to her rooming house . . .

"When will she be in?"

"I couldn't tell, miss. You'll have to make an appointment."

Gail had turned away, when she heard a voice in the hall, a woman's voice, silvery, imperative.

"Martin!" it commanded. And Martin left the door. Gail saw Carla before her, her blonde hair shining in the streak of sunlight

Carla liked adoration. She looked at her visitor with a little more interest.

Answers to Questions

Expert researchers, who can get you any information on any subject, are at your command, without charge to you. A two-cent stamp will bring you a personal answer to any inquiry of fact you may make. Thousands of newspaper readers use this great service. Try it today. Make your inquiry easily read and easily understood, and address The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Have fish any sense of smell?—A. C.

A.—They have a very definite sense of smell.

Q.—How close to Paris did the German army get?—C. R. D.

A.—The German advance guards reached a point 15 miles from the outskirts of Paris.

Q.—How can the freshness of pipe smoking tobacco be retained?—A. A.

A.—Humidors have been designed for this special purpose.

Q.—Please name some mining towns which have been deserted.—J. M. B.

A.—Throughout the West there are a great many mining towns or camps which were deserted after the ore ceased to be profitable. Among them may be mentioned Rough and Heady and Hart, Calif.; Grand Forks, Yukon, Granite, Leavick, and Oro, in Colorado.

Q.—Has North America any walled towns?—D. H.

A.—Tucson, Ariz., is the only one. Old Tucson until 1841 was a walled town. A charter for Pueblo del Tucson was granted by the king of Spain in 1552. It is one of the oldest European settlements established in this country. It was included in the territory known as the Gadsden purchase acquired from Mexico in 1854.

Q.—If fish will not bite is it a sign that no fish are present in that particular place at that particular time?—A. C.

A.—It may often mean that the water is ideal for fish in that it contains a variety of desirable foods and that the bait is lost among so many other objects at which the fish may bite. At such times the angler's skill will be taxed to find some unusually attractive lure.

Q.—Should a person toe out when walking?—B. A. R.

A.—The public health service says that the correct method of walking is to walk with the toes pointing nearly straight ahead and only slightly out. Correct posture is more like the military attitude at rest, namely, with heels apart, toes almost straight forward, the sides of the feet approximately opposite sides of a square. This attitude gives stability and poise and insures a proper distribution of the weight of the body upon the structures of the feet.

Q.—Where is the Westinghouse Memorial? Please describe it.—A. C.

A.—The memorial to George Westinghouse, inventor, will be dedicated in Pittsburgh next month and placed in Schenley park. The main unit of the memorial, a bronze statute, was created by Daniel Chester French. It rises 20 feet from a Norwegian granite base and depicts a figure of the subject. At his sides are two figures, representing a skilled workman and an engineer. Facing this group, is the figure of an American youth studying the achievements. The setting for the memorial was designed by Henry Hornbostel of Pittsburgh. The Picarelli brothers of New York constructed the models of the units for casting. The six panels, portraying the achievements of Mr. Westinghouse, were designed by Paul Fjeld. Subscriptions of employes of the Westinghouse industries in the United States and Canade made the memorial possible.

Q.—When a soft wood forest is cut, why is it replaced by hard wood trees and vice versa?—G. W.

A.—The United States forest service says that most soft wood forests contain more or less hard wood trees as a mixture or as an undergrowth. Cutting usually removes the soft wood seed trees, but leaves the hard wood. Moreover, hard wood can be reproduced by sprouting even if the larger trees are cut. Hard wood trees grow faster than coniferous and occupy the ground before the soft wood has a chance to seed in. In some regions, especially in the North, burned over coniferous forests are followed by broad leafed species, such as birch and aspen because these species have very light seed which is carried long distances by the wind while the seed of the spruce or pine is seldom carried more than a few hundred yards. A hard wood forest is not so often replaced by soft wood second growth. This may happen in cases where there are already small soft wood trees under hard wood stands and where the cut-over area is not burned over so as to destroy the soft woods. Similar results may follow on heavily grazed areas because stock tends to eat hard wood sprouts but not the soft wood.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on Modern Manners

Do you know that when calling you should not apologize for staying longer that you had intended? Remarks such as, "I must be going," or "I really did not intend to stay so long," and the like are frequently possible of misinterpretation. Do not talk about leaving and then remain because your hostess says, "Oh, don't go!" Above all, do not linger after you have risen to leave. Go promptly, and if you have some last minute thoughts, save them for another time. It is bad form to keep your hostess standing while you delay your leave taking.

This may seem a little thing, but it is the little things that make for good manners in all social relations.

HASKELL COUNTY FAIR OPENS THREE DAY FESTIVAL TODAY

FORTY TOWNS JOIN PARADE

Rodeo, Pageant and Bull Fight Scheduled

Special to The Record News

HASKELL, Texas, Oct. 15.—The gates of the Haskell county fair, heralded as the greatest in its history, will swing open Thursday morning to admit delegations from at least 40 West Texas towns assembled to view brilliant agricultural, poultry, livestock and textile exhibits and to participate in a colorful program of entertainment arranged to revive the sports and the beloved traditions of the Old West.

Fair officials announced Wednesday night when the gates were closed to allow the final distribution of exhibits, that the fair this year will exceed all others in the range and quality of the products displayed, and expressed confidence that the greatest crowd ever welcomed to Haskell county will throng the fair grounds.

The day will open Thursday morning with the official grand parade, in which the West Texas delegations will participate. The parade will reach its climax in elaborate ceremonies in front of the grandstand. The ceremonies close at the noon hour, leaving visitors time to view the exhibits before the opening of the rodeo.

In addition to the colorful pageantry to be offered, the royal pomp of the queen's coronation, the rodeo itself, a rousing Mexican bull fight and extensive carnival attractions are included on the entertainment program.

The fair festival will continue through Saturday night, and is expected to draw record-breaking attendance on each of the three days.

"Where the West Busts Loose"

The Haskell County fair is going to show the folks of West Texas the real, genuine, old-time western cowboy sports. There will be 50 or more cowboys and cowgirls in attendance. These lads and lassies come from off the open-range country and are the best there is. No drug store artists in the aggregation, none that have become cowboys in Madison square or the Chicago arena. They are the kind of cowboys and cowgirls that you have read about and seen in the real westerns.

The stunts these boys and girls will do appear easy but if undertaken by a tenderfoot—that means another story. There will be wild cow milking contests, bronc riding, calf roping, bareback bronc riding, wild horse races, relay races, trick riding, wild steer bulldogging, wild steer riding, wild steer roping, trick and fancy riding.

The rodeo will practically be a performance equal to that which is held annually at Pendleton and Cheyenne. The most famous bucking horses and wild Brahma steers will be used by the contestants, and each man and girl will draw his mount by taking a slip of paper from a 10-gallon hat. There will be no fakes or set-ups in this rodeo. In addition to the paleface performers there will be a band of 30 full-blooded Comanche Indians, direct from the reservation near Lawton, Okla. These Indians will be seen in gaudy and impressive costume—more or less—staging their weird tribal rites and war dances. Then the Indians are going to show the palefaces the manner in which they have entered the white man's sports by playing baseball.

Another feature is a real, genuine Mexican bull fight, held in this section of Texas for the first time.

Carnival Adds Color

One of the best carnival attractions that comes to Texas has been contracted for and these white tops will be aglow with color and noise when the fair opens Thursday morning. The carnival moved into Haskell early in the week and consists of a solid trainload of equipment. It has many sideshows and riding devices galore.

In addition to the carnival there are many other attractions, such as farm implement exhibits, merchants exhibits and a thousand and one other things that will prove of educational value.

The history of Haskell county from its early settlement down to the present day will be graphically presented in pageantry on Thursday night of the fair, with over 100 persons taking part, among whom will be pioneer citizens of this section who have taken part in the development of the county and of West Texas.

With an elaborate scenery setting, Indians, cowboys and cowgirls, the old-time conveyances will be seen, side by side with modern day's adaptations of progress. Old and new customs will also be enacted in the pageant, interspersed with an appropriate musical program.

Following the coronation of the queen under the direction of Mrs. Clayborn Payne, and the train of Indians, cowboys, early conveyances and farm vehicles, directly supervised by Manager Turner E. Camp, will be a pageant, depicting the social customs and costumes from the time of the earliest settlers of Haskell on down to the present day, this division is under the direction of Mrs. C. M. Kaigler and Miss Ruby Fitzgerald. R. E. Shepherd of Wichita Falls will sing, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," while the following Haskell pioneers are on the stage: Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Alexander, Judge and Mrs. S. A. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sherrill, Mr. and Mrs. B. Cox, Mrs. W. F. Draper, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Clifton, Messrs. M. E. Park and T. J. Lemmon.

The next group that were social leaders in their day, before the advent of the railroad, victrola, radio, very few pianos, used the French harp while they chased "The Buffalo," this they will do on the evening of the pageant, with R. V. Robertson playing the instrument and leading the game at the same time. Mrs. W. W. Koonce will sing a song popular at that time, "After the Ball." Members of this group who have been in nightly rehearsal are Judge Joe A. Jones, Mrs. R. C. Montgomery; R. V. Robertson and Miss May Fields; Charlie Jones and Mrs. Ethel Irby; Virgil Hudson and Mrs. J. M. Diggs; Messrs. and Mesdames John Crouch, R. J. Reynolds, F. T. Sanders, and John Robertson.

The next division will include members of the local Elks lodge, with their wives. They will stage a grand march and a typical period dance and a song that came into high favor and has remained so throughout the years will be sung by Mrs. W. W. Koonce, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Elk members and their wives: Messrs and Mesdames Henry Alexander, J. E. Bernard, Hardy Grissom of Abilene, Courtney Hunt, Curren Hunt and Tom Pinkerton.

Two drastic changes in the world politic, and in women's dress will follow. The first will be a war scene, Red Cross workers, headed by Mrs. C. L. Lewis, the first, Haskell chairman of Red Cross, and Mrs. Joe A. Jones, and Mesdames W. W. Koonce, J. M. Martin, V. Bailey, Hill Oates and Wiley Reid. The soldiers are Charles Conner, Tom Davis, Clyde Grissom, Raleigh Lemmons, Gilly, Mulkey, F. M. Squyres, Oscar Oates, Rev. M. L. Baker, Bert Welsh, Bill Collier, Larry Smith, Bud Harris, Thomas Ballard, E. E. Sloan, Elam Parish, Virgil Meadors, Tom Holland, Bob Fitzgerald, Jim Shriver, Andrew Shriver and Albert Woods. The gold star mother, Mrs. S. R. Rike.

At this juncture, Mr. Shepherd will sing a popular number of his choosing. The group showing vital change in women's clothes following the war, and who will be gowned in high topped boots, flowing veils, hats weighted down with plumes, on down to the present day costumes are Mrs. E. Gaston Foote, Mrs. Virgil Reynolds, Misses Lois Earnest, Bertha Carmin, Nettie Mullino, Mary Sherrill, Ermine Daugherty and Alyne Mitchell.

High school girls in chorus and dance sketches, Lena Bell Kemp, Elizabeth Gilbert, Vannie Lee Marrs, Lillian Kaigler, Frances Walling, Mattie Murriel Walling, Janie Lylse Martin, Virginia Sills, Aletha Fay Davis, Edith Foote, Contine Guest and Kate Darnell.

A group of little girls and boys will do the Charleston. The tap dancers will interpret "The Old Man" in "Turkey in the Straw." these are Misses Ella D. Koonce, Elizabeth Gilbert, Annabel Burt, Louise and Lillian Kaigler. Future belles, featuring little Miss Beverly Gilbert are Lorene Thompson, Billy Murphy, Dorothy Josselet, Noka Bailey, Florence Cook, Patsy Ruth Pate, Joyce Neil Hambleton, Mildred Mayes and Kinzie Tucker.

Mr. Shepherd will conduct the entire evening's program with a snappy song, asking the assembly to join in on the chorus. Music for the evening's program will be furnished by the Haskell band and the pianist, for solos and choruses, Miss Edythe DeWitt.

Wichita Sheriff Jails Man Convicted At Childress and Wanted Here

Cecil Davis, under indictment here since early last spring on a charge of possessing and transporting liquor and sought by officers at Childress on a conviction returned there several months ago, was arrested at Vernon Wednesday afternoon by Sheriff W. G. Bralley and lodged in the jail here, according to information given The Record News.

Following his conviction at Childress on a burglary charge early this year and a resultant sentence of three years in the penitentiary, Davis appealed the case, and had been at liberty on bond since that time, Sheriff Bralley said. The decision of the Childress court was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals some time ago, it was stated, but the whereabouts of Davis remained unknown.

The prisoner will be brought to trial here on the old indictment at the earliest possible date, it was said.

To Crown Queen

E. Gaston Foote, pictured above, has been named prime minister of the Haskell county fair which opens today, and will have the honor of placing the crown on the fair head of Miss Elizabeth Steele, queen of the fair, at the climax of the coronation pageant.

Tickets for the trip, costing $1.50 to cover the meals at Haskell and Seymour, will be on sale at the Lightsey garage until the time of departure, it was announced. A request has been made by those arranging the trip that all who are attending make an effort to bring their own car. Those having no means of transportation for the trip are assured of a way, it was said.

Once inside the city of Haskell, the delegation will first join the official grand parade, in which 40 West Texas towns will participate, moving with the marchers to the grandstand, where elaborate opening ceremonies will be staged. The group will pay homage to the queen at the coronation and watch the colorful pageantry, which is to portray the history of the section.

A rousing rodeo of the Old West, a genuine Mexican bull fight, and an extensive carnival are parts of the entertainment program, in addition to the interests and activities of the fair proper.

REVENGE DEATH CHARGE FILED

60-Year-Old Farmer Held at Pauls Valley

PAULS VALLEY, Kan., Oct. 15. (UP)—Ben Downey, 60-year-old farmer who shot to death his son's alleged slayer at the Garvin county courthouse late yesterday, was charged with first degree murder today.

County Attorney Homer Hurt filed the charge several hours after Leslie Christian, who was on trial yesterday on a murder charge in the death of Ben Downey Jr., died in a hospital from five bullet wounds.

The jury had just returned a verdict of acquittal and court was recessed when Downey met Christian at the foot of the steps. A score of witnesses said the elder man fired five shots. Downey was arrested.

Enmity developed between Christian, Downey's son-in-law, when he testified in a larceny case against the younger Downey. Christian worked in the Robertson oil fields at that time and Downey was charged with stealing oil field equipment.

Downey was convicted and sent to the penitentiary. His sister obtained a divorce from Christian.

Downey returned from the penitentiary last May 7. He met Christian and was slain in a fight. Christain pleaded self-defense.

Health and Diet Advice

FRUIT FAST THE BEST TONIC

"What tonic do you recommend for purifying the blood?" This is the first sentence in hundreds of the letters which I receive daily.

Millions of people have the firm convictions that every once in a while a bottle of this or that tonic should be dumped into the body to purify and cleanse the blood stream. No matter what they feel ails them, they are certain that all they need to make them over is a bottle of tonic. In a vain endeavor to purify their blood they takle bottle after bottle, seeking in this way to overcome the effects of wrong habits of eating and eliminating.

This is one of the biggest mistakes that can be made. I do not know of any tonic which will magically purify the blood and which can be bought at any drug store. It is folly for anyone to think that by taking a large bottle of a vile-tasting conglomeration of drugs he can clean his blood.

The blood will purify itself if given a chance. The best way to keep your blood pure all the time is to use the right diet so that the blood cells can get the blood-building materials to build rich, red blood. You should also keep the bowels cleahsed and drink enough water so that the kidneys flush out their wastes.

You have a very important organ in your body whose duty is to purify your blood for you. This is the liver, and while people have had their stomachs removed and still kept alive, if the liver is removed the patient dies. No one can live without a liver to keep his blood stream filtered of its impurities. Your skin is working to keep wastes from the blood, and also your kidneys and your lungs. Provided you have good habits of living, I am sure your blood is amply able to keep itself pure without the benefit of bottled tonics.

We are all familiar wit the symptoms of an impure blood stream, such as cold sores around the mouth, autotoxemia, a feeling of sluggishness or "Spring Fever" headache, and the various skin pimples or rashes which show that the skin has taken over the work of eliminating some of the body poisons. One of the surest signs of an impure blood stream is a patient whose cuts do not heal readily, but fester, keep on throwing out pus and take longer to heal themselves than they should.

In fact, there are few of the diseases from which man suffers which are not directly based on a condition of morbid material in the blood. It is no exaggeration to say that this is the principal cause of all disease. And if you are suffering from any disease you may feel sure that your blood stream is not pure.

You will find that the best way to clean the blood stream is to remove the impurities from it; this can be done by following the diet and fasting regimen outlined in my article, the Cleansing Diet Course. This is one of the quickest and most direct ways to purify your blood. The blood is always in a much cleaner state after a fast of from four to five days, using nothing but fruit juice or the fresh fruit This is the best way I know of to purify and clean the blood. I have used it with entire success on thousands of patients. You will find that if you follow directions, you will be much benefited by this blood cleansing regimen.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kidney Trouble

Question—C. W. asks: "Will you please print the correct diet for kidney patients, giving some examples of balanced meals for a day?"

Answer—In kidney trouble it is always best to fast until the abnormal condition of the urine disappears, then follow up with a diet that will continue to flush the kidneys, such as milk. If, after a certain period of time, the urine remains free of impurities, you may adopt a non-starchy diet, such as: One or two coddled eggs, three or four slices of Melba toast, and stewed fruit, such as prunes, raisins, figs or apples (cooked without sugar) for breakfast. Use only one kind of fresh acid fruit for lunch and for dinner use a small amount of protein such as roast beef, chicken or mutton, cooked spinach, summer squash or green beans with a raw salad vegetable, such as celery, lettuce, etc.; if a dessert is desired, use stewed fruit as at breakfast, or Jell-o.

Good Combination

Question—H. W. O. asks: "Are carrots, string beans and beets a good combination with meat and stewed fruit? If so, is it all right for me to have this combination regularly every day?"

Answer—The combination you ask about is an excellent one, and may be used with benefit at least once a day.

Sodium Iodid

Question—A. R. asks: "Is sodium iodid poison? Can it be taken internally, and in what amount? What will it take care of?"

Answer—Sodium iodid is a colorless crystal used in the treatment of syphilis, rheumatism, hepatic diseases, etc. It is taken in dosages of from 5 to 15 grains, but may act as a poison if too much is used. I do not recommend remedies in this column, but if I did I would never advise the use of sodium iodid, as it has no virtue in curing disease compared to the good which comes from the proper application of scientific dietetics and hygiene.

Methodist Ministers Welcomed in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15. (UP)—City officials welcomed more than 350 Oklahoma Methodist Episcopal church pastors and their wives today as the 39th annual conference opened.

Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf, Kansas City, Mo., delivered the response.

Many of the conference officers were re-elected today. Officials are: Bishop Waldorf, chairman; V. A. Hargis, Tulsa, secretary; H. I. Byrd, Cleveland; S. W. Ross, Edmond; C. L. Crippen, Muskogee; and Bruce B. Cordbin, Norman, assistant secretaries.

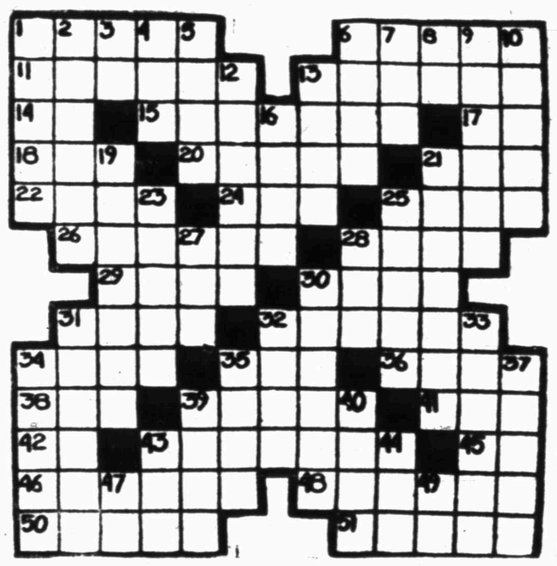

V. A. Johnson, Newkirk, treasurer; M. W. Sampson Bartlesville, postmaster, and H. F. Patton, Kingfisher, registrar.

Church Membership Shows Big Decrease

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (UP)—An "alarming decrease" in church membership and attendance has been reported to the international convention of Disciples of Christ, with the recommendation that steps be taken to change the situation.

"Christ and the church are no longer associated," said Robert A. Long, Kansas City layman and president of the convention, in an address opening the convention. "Membership in many churches means less than membership in a lodge or club."

ZUNDY-VERNON GAME OPENS JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL WARFARE

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

B. C. Shulkey of Olney, head of the interscholastic league's class B, district No. 3, has asked me to urge football coaches in the district to forward him their revised schedules, in order that a new complete schedule of the district may be issued. The original schedule is not being followed, and it is for the convenience of fans throughout the district that a revised schedule is asked immediately.

Mr. Schulkey said the revised schedule for Olney for the remainder of the season is complete, as follows:

Oct. 17—Olney at Burkburnett.
Oct. 24—Olney at Archer City.
Oct. 31—Olney at Chillicothe.
Nov. 11—Megargel at Olney.
Nov. 21—Henrietta at Olney.
Nov. 27—Olney at Seymour.

The typing of that schedule brings afresh to the mind the thought of Olney's scrapping little football team, and causes us to wonder just what the Chillicothe Eagles are going to do about it. Chillicothe already has credit for four conference victories, the fourth being added Wednesday when Fairview informed Chillicothe it would forfeit its game scheduled for next Friday. Olney has met only one conference foe, this same Fairview bunch, and of course it won, by a top-heavy score.

But starting Friday the Olney Cubs will head straight into conference football, and the Chillicothe Eagles had better prime their feathers. They might need them to take a long flight. Olney will have no trouble downing Burkburnett this week, or Archer City next week, we guess. Then, on Oct. 31, comes its hardest engagement of the schedule, the battle with Chillicothe. And you can count on it, that this will be some gory battle. The remaining conference games find Olney against Megargel, Henrietta and Seymour, and nothing but a terrific lurch of the dope would produce a defeat for Olney in any of these games.

It would be a great novelty, of course, to see the Eagles tame the scrappy Cubs. The Cubs have been whipping everything in sight for quite a while now, and it is time they were severely challenged. The way Chillicothe is going, it appears that the flock of Eagles is offering that challenge.

How Many Did You Get?

The duck season blares open today amid the din of smoke and shot. It would make an interesting item to print a list of hunters with the number of ducks they bag opening day. Suppose you give me a ring sometime today and give me that information, and we'll see whose the best opening-day hunter hereabouts.

The Fate of Winners

The reflection that baseball managers in the major leagues, failing to win a pennant, are ousted, whereas some Texas league managers, once they have won a pennant, either quit or receive Pullman orders, causes me to toss sleeplessly abed these chilly October nights. The above practices are by no means universal, but they have happened often. Joe McCarthy won a pennant for the Cubs last year, was kept on the roster in 1930 in hopes he would win a world's championship, and was fired when he failed.

On the other hand, Snipe Conley won the Texas league pennant for Dallas in 1926 and failed to return, for various reasons, in 1927. In 1927 Carl Williams won the pennant and the Dixie championship for the Spudders, and didn't come back in 1928, though in this instance it is well to remember that Carl didn't return on account of illness. Last year, however, Milton Stock won the pennant for Dallas and thereupon his allegiance to the Steers was severed. And getting down to this year, Frank Snyder, whose club won the Texas league and Dixie pennants, is regarded as through with the Fort Worth club.

In the midst of baseball experts this peculiarity was discussed and various explanations were offered for it. Some said that the manager whose club is about to win a pennant gets many "suggestions" from the office management when he loses a critical game, and that when the manager finally wins the pennant, he resents the "suggestions" made while he was on the big drive, and does not care to return to the club. On the other hand, it was pointed out that Texas league managers, having won a pennant, are in much better shape to step into a job with another club at an increase in salary. Both reasons more than likely have a bearing on the instability of managers' posts in the Texas league.

Letters From Afar

Milton Steengrafe is taking life easy on the balmy California coast, according to a letter Guy Airey received from the tall right-hander Wednesday. He's not even working, yet. Wish I could live like a ball player.

Hospital Report

Guy Airey is suffering with sinus trouble. Went to see the doc Wednesday and came out groggy and feeling like the very devil. No reflections on the doc, of course, because sinus trouble is like that.

Crippled Spur Bulldogs Meet Floydada Friday

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 15.—The Spur Bulldogs returned Sunday from Cisco battered and bruised with Capt. Brode Puckett and Carr suffering knee injuries that will keep them out of the line-up for the next two or three games. Practice was begun Monday for the game with Floydada at Floydada next Friday afternoon.

The Bulldogs won their first conference game against Ralls here last Friday with their second string, but are expecting harder opposition at Floydada and will use what regulars that are in shape. This will be the last game away from home for the Spur team and a large number of Spur people are expected to make this trip.

Today and Friday will see the opening games in the new Northwest Texas Junior High school conference, with Roy Golden's Zundelowitz eleven having the honor of blasting the lid off in today's conference opener with the Vernon Junior High school at Vernon.

Right on the heels of the initiatory battle, Coach A. D. Beck's Reagan Junior High gridders will tangle with the Denton Junior High school team at Denton Friday afternoon. Both games have aroused much interest in the two schools, as they will mark the first attempt of either of the teams at organized conference football.

The Zundelowitz team, accompanied by a flock of boosters and the coach, will leave here at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon for Vernon. The game is scheduled to get under way at 3:30 o'clock.

Zundy Is Favorite

Coach Golden has been pushing his charges through heavy drills between rain storms this week in hopes of winning his conference start by an imposing score. He should have little difficulty in doing this, as his team has had more experience than the Vernon team, football having been introduced at that school for the first time this year. The Zundies, in addition to past experience, will enter the battle equipped with five letter men, Rice, Parkington, Merchants, Johnson and Robertson.

The team took its final workout Wednesday afternoon in the form of a practice game with a mixed team composed of members of the Coyotes' B and C squads. The Zundies' tenacity is seen in the outcome of that game, which ended in a scoreless tie.

Reagans Get Ready

Meanwhile Coach Beck was warming up his Reagan Junior high warriors for the second conference game Friday. His team encountered the C squad team of the Coyotes and defeated them, 27 to 0, on Wilson field. Another workout is scheduled today, and the team will depart for Denton Friday at 7 a. m. in cars provided by the school Parent-Teacher association. Incidentally, Mrs. W. F. Parish, head of the P.-T. A., said several more cars were needed for the trip, and urgently requested fans to volunteer to take some of the crowd to Denton. In addition to members of the team, a pep squad of several score and a band will journey to Denton to boost the home cause. The game will be played on the Teachers' college field at Denton beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

Coach Beck has high hopes of seeing his team come through with a victory, and will enter the fray well equipped with reserves. A number of the reserves, including Howard Clark and Ray West, guards, and D. McMahan, center, were given a workout in the practice game Wednesday afternoon and will be in good shape to lend assistance to the first stringers Friday.

Pep Rally Tonight

A 45-minute pep rally is planned tonight at 7 o'clock on Wilson field, as the final message from the Reagan students to their team. The rally will be held around a great bonfire, it is planned, and several speakers will be on hand. In case of rain or bad weather the rally will be held in the school aduitorium.

Helen Hicks Stars In Women's Tourney

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY Club, Los Angeles, Oct. 15. (AP)—Matching the rolling fairways and fast greens of this course with one of the most brilliant rounds stroked in the women's national amateur championship, Miss Helen Hicks of Inwood, N. Y., claimed the spotlight in the second round play of this golf classic today that also included the elimination of two former titleholders.

The 19-year-old star whose advance has been nothing short of sensational, defeated Miss Barbara Lee of Oakland, 8 and 7, and in doing so, toured the 11 holes necessary to win, six under par. She posted a 36, three under women's par and one under standard figures for men, on the first nine.

The defending champion, Glenna Collett, was off her game but not enough to affect her status as a contender. She defeated Miss Helen Lawson of Los Angeles, 5 and 3, after having held even on the first nine.

Two former champions, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Philadelphia, and Miss Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, bowed to youthful opponents. Mrs. Hurd was defeated by Miss Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., 2 and 1. Miss Orcutt was four up at the turn, shooting a 40 to Mrs. Hurd's 45. She went five up by winning the 10th but Mrs. Hurd came back strong to capture three holes. Miss Hollins, champion in 1921, lost to Miss Virginia van Wie, Chicago, 3 and 2.

Medalist of the tournament, Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, disposed of Mrs. Brent Potter of San Jose, Calif., 4 and 3.

Lamesa Eleven Plays O'Donnell Next Friday

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, Oct. 15.—The Lamesa High school Golden Tornadoes will play O'Donnell High school on the local gridiron Friday. The Whirlwinds, composed of second and third string men, will go to Hobbs, N. M., to play the high school there. Hobbs was recently defeated here by the Golden Tornadoes. The Tornadoes are resting on their laurels after defeating Tahoka here last Friday in the first conference game. Coach McCollum states his men came out of this game in good shape, and will be in prime condition to tackle O'Donnell Friday.

Kelly And Howell Invited To Return To Coyote Fold

PLAYERS GIVEN NEW CHANCE

Expelled Members Will Add To Teams' Strength

Coyote hopes were given a boost of no mean proportions Wednesday when Coach Barry Holton let down the barriers to two expelled members of the team, Ogden Kelly and Joe Howell, and invited them to again don uniforms, engage in practice drills and stand ready for duty in games the remainder of the season.

Both were expelled a few weeks ago for breaking training rules, the misdemeanor, specifically, being smoking, and the loss of the two members greatly impaired the strength of the team in the opening conference games with Lubbock and Electra.

Kelly, a boy who made the first string job as tackle this year, and who really puts his heart in the game, accepted Coach Holton's invitation immediately, and was back among his comrades on the training field Wednesday. Howell did not report Wednesday, but Coach Holton said he expected him to be in uniform shortly.

'Fast, Smart Player.'

Howell, contender for the left end berth with Bob Brandon and Ed Greenwood, was described by his coach as "a fast and very smart player, whom we will need badly the remainder of the season."

In inviting the boys back to the team, Coach Holton emphasized that his action was not to be taken as a let-down in his policy of dismissing any player violating training rules in any fashion.

"I became satisfied," he said, "that both Kelly and Howell realized their mistake, and would come back into the game and train in earnest and play in earnest. I am glad to give them another chance."

The addition of these two players should prove a beneficial move in view of the scheduled game with Quanah next Saturday. Certainly there will be no dearth of material for the tackle post, with Kelly, Parish and Gough available for the post.

Changes In Lineup.

The team went through a scrimmage drill Wednesday in preparation for the clash with the Indians. A few changes in the lineup were necessitated. In the absence of Harlan Ray at the practice session, Malcolm Mauldin was used at the position of left half during the drill, although he will be unable to play Saturday on account of scholastic ineligibility. Bennett Withrow, regular left half, was changed over to right half, while J. R. Holton played at right end, a post he will play Saturday in view of Mauldin's ineligibility.

Another heavy workout will be held this afternoon, Coach Holton announced.

COYOTE B TEAM WHIPS BURKBURNETT

Coach Bill Morris took the Coyote B squad to Burkburnett Wednesday afternoon and pitted them against the Burkburnett High school B team. The future Coyotes ran wild and defeated their hosts, 21 to 0.

New Bleachers Planned For Negro Game Friday

Work will begin today on the new section of bleachers at the Washington school athletic park in order to provide better accommodations for the increasing number of white patrons of the game. The bleachers will be ready for the game with the Fort Worth Hi Y. team Friday at 3 o'clock, school officials said.

The Fort Worth team is made up of both present and former stars of the Terrell High school, and will give a good account of themselves when they meet the Leopards on the gridiron here Friday.

Although not a conference game, it has become an annual function between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth and the fans are looking forward to it with the keenest interest and enthusiasm.

Coach Daniels declares that the Leopards will start against Fort Worth stronger than at any other time this season. The tussle with Dallas last week having left no casualties, he has been able to devote his time this week to perfecting his variety of plays, as well as to a brand of scrimmage that will harden his men for the game.

A large following from Fort Worth is expected to witness the game Friday.

Frank Speer, Georgia Tech tackle and All-American in 1928, has a new rooter in the family. It's a boy.

Blast of Shotguns Today Will Mark Official Opening of Duck Season

Droves of Hunters Expected to Line Lake Waters in Quest of Mallards and Geese

Dignified business men with logical minds today can throw off all qualms and with reason answer the call of the wild and even go so far as to unloose themselves in a deliberate wild goose chase.

For today affords the "sufficient reason" for those actions—for today the long-desired duck season—and the wild goose season—opens, and hunters may squat in shrouded blinds in the dawn and blow their mechanical duck call seductively, listening with attentive ears for an answer from above; and the answer being forthcoming, and the prey looming into sight, he may blaze away with his trusty .12 guage, remembering only the bag limit.

And should a wild goose hove into sight, he may pursue same, with loads and loads of bullets, to his heart's content.

Hunters Get Set

Parties of hunters started deserting their business houses late Wednesday afternoon, in order to be first come, and the best served in the hunting regions around Lake Wichita, the big lakes and the various minor streams. Their actions, indeed, could not have been prompted by fear of water shortage, in view of rainfall records, or the ruins of records, in this territory the last few days; but hunters like to "get set" in their chosen niches. Droves of other hunters were expected to join the early birds this morning, and open the season's slaughter with a bang.

In addition to being forewarned about the dangerous effects of wet feet, the hunters need only one admonition, and that concerning the changes in the bag limit. For the information of those not already wised up, the bag limit on ducks has been reduced from 25 to 15 per day, and from 50 to 30 for seven consecutive days. The bag limit on wild geese is four per day and eight per week. In addition, migratory birds may not be shot between sunset and one-half hour before sunrise, shooting from motorboats is forbidden, whether the motor is chugging or not, and wild ducks or geese may not be sold, bought, traded or bartered.

Oklahoma Laws Different.

The above bag limits apply in Texas. In Oklahoma there are some differences in the bag limits on ducks and geese. The bag limit on ducks is 10 per day or 50 per season, and on wild geese it is four per day and 12 per season.

So much for the rules and regulations. There is no rule on at least one phase of the sport. You can have as much fun as you can.

Indians Confident Of Win Over Bridgeport

Special to The Record News

NOCONA, Texas, Oct. 15.—The Nocona Indians will be hosts to Bridgeport Friday for a game here. They realize they have a job on their hands, but will go prepared to tackle it with a mighty force. Coach Jenkins has an alert eye and keeps it open most of the time. With the great encouragement so far, the Indians are going into the game with the assurance of bringing home the bacon.

The Indian lineup is composed to a large extent of this year's crop of players. Many old regulars are missing. However, this raw team is seasoned up with a few of the regulars, who are putting it over right along. Both coach and superintendent are very confident of winning the north half and reach that trying game for the other end of the district. If the Indians are successful in getting as far as last year in their grind, that final game, with whomever they play, will be hard fought and no quarters will be given.

First conference game, with Bellevue, played here gave the Indians quite a send off toward their goal. The unusual score of 99 to 0 is enough to encourage any team.

A 100 per cent record is what the Indians are out for and it will take head work and brawn to balk them.

George Lott Married To Philadelphia Net Star

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15. (INS)—A romance starting during the spring campaign to return the prized Davis cup to American shores had ended today in the wedding of George M. Lott of Chicago, famous tennis star, and Miss Abigail Stapleford Allen, Philadelphia.

The young couple eloped to Elkton, Maryland's Gretna Green, late yesterday and were pronounced man and wife by the city's "marrying parson," the Rev. Edward Minor, retired Baptist minister.

STARS AT DALHART

Albuquerque Indians To Play in Exhibition Game Sunday

Special to the Record News.

DALHART, Texas, Oct. 15.—Former college and university stars of Dalhart and Dumas will engage in a football game here Sunday as the first attraction of its kind here. The Dalhart team will be coached and managed by Cary Mayor, former Illinois basket ball star.

The football game will be a prelude to the opening of the basket ball season by the Dalhart professional team. Tentative arrangements have been made for the team to play the Albuquerque Indians here. Included in the Indian line-up will be several Haskell university stars. The players are all full blooded Indians and before the exhibition game they will give a war dance. They will come through Dalhart on a tour that will take them to New York.

TIPTON, GOULD AHEAD IN RACE

Two Teams Only Undefeated Ones in Cotton Belt

Special to The Record News

TIPTON, Okla., Oct. 15.—Out of the week-end clashes in the Cotton Belt conference only Tipton and Gould remained undefeated. The former defeated Eldorado 18-0 while the Coyotes stopped the Duke Tigers by an 18-6 score.

The standing of the teams in the conference now is as follows:

Teams	G	W	L	Pct
Gould	1	1	0	1000
Tipton	1	1	0	1000
Duke	1	0	1	000
Olustee	1	0	1	000
Eldorado	1	0	1	000

Each team has played only one game in the conference race.

Probably the most sensational upset of football dope in the conference was the Duke-Gould game last Friday in which the Coyotes defeated the highly touted Tigers 18-6. Olustee, in a non-conference game, defeated Victory 19-0. In the Tipton-Eldorado fray Coach Grossman's eleven swamped a fighting but much lighter Eldorado squad 18-0.

The coming week brings forth the smallest list of games of the season for the Cotton Belt conference, finding two of the five, Duke and Gould, idle.

The Olustee Eagles are given a slight edge to defeat the Eldorado Panthers inasmuch as Tipton beat the Olustee eleven 14-0 while the Panthers were bowled over 18-0 by the same team. Tipton is expected to easily overcome the No. 11 invaders for their fourth win of the season.

The coaches of Duke and Gould are desirous of filling the open date of their squads, that of Oct. 17, and will consider anything within a radius of 75 miles of the respective towns, either at home or away.

CHAMP IN COMEBACK

CHICAGO. (AP)—After five years of retirement, Benny Allen, former world's pocket billiard champion, returns to active competition after the title. The Kansas City cueist held the world's crown in 1913, 1914 and 1915.

STEERS MAY SPRING UPSET

Team Will Reach Zenith In Game With Sooners

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 15.—There is a growing suspicion in Southwest Conference football circles that the University of Texas Longhorns are preparing to toss a surprise party at Fair Park stadium here Saturday, with the University of Oklahoma Sooners as honorees.

There could never be a better opportunity. The Sooners, flushed with a last weeks' triumph over Nebraska, are said to be absolutely saturated with confidence that they will lay the Longhorns.

Steers Due for Victory

Brought along slowly by Coach Littlefield, the big Texas eleven is about due to reach the zenith of its power this week, just as it did a year ago against the same Sooners. Up to the time they met and squashed Oklahoma last season the Longhorns had shown nothing to speak of, beating St. Edward's only 13 to 0 and taking Centenary, 20 to 0, with the aid of some very fortunate breaks. But what a football club they were on Oct. 12, 1929!

Last week the Steers beat Howard Payne, 26 to 0, in the rain and mud. The Yellowjackets, who had scored touchdown on S. M. U. a fortnight before, made only one first down through the Longhorn's staunch defense.

Texas will send the Southwest's heaviest team against the invaders. Averaging 183 pounds to the man, the Steers will have an advantage of eight pounds over the Sooners. The Orange backfield averages 177 pounds. Koy, 190, and Shelly, 185, should deal the light Oklahoma forwards a world of misery.

Jennings Drills Bears

Satisfied that his line, from tackle to tackle, can spike any team's running attack, Coach Morley Jennings is drilling his Baylor Bears against Southern Methodist's great passing game. He figures he will have an excellent chance to defeat the Mustangs Saturday at Waco if his secondary can check the aerial circus.

Almost exactly the same teams that meet Saturday represented the Bears and Mustangs in last year's battle here, which the Methodist won, 25 to 6.

With Gilbert still in there to peg passes and Koontz, Long and Kattman to receive, it is little wonder Coach Jennings has something on his mind besides the weather this week.

Owls Favored

The Rice Owls are favored to win a conference football game this week when they tackle the Arkansas Razorbacks high up in the Ozark hills. In view of this extraordinary circumstance, the writer has gone to some pains to find out if the Owls ever did win a conference tilt, and, if so, when.

The record discloses that in the last five years the Houston flock has been on the long end of the score twice, once in '25 and again in '27. In the same period the Owls have lost 20 conference bouts and tied one. For the last two seasons they have drawn a complete blank, losing each of 10 championship starts.

Southern Methodist, the archives show, has compiled the greatest record over a five-year period, winning 15 conference games, losing five and tying four. The Mustangs are the only team to go through an undefeated, untied conference schedule in the half decade. They did it in 1926, winning all their five starts.

Other Teams' Records

Records of the other conference schools for the last five years follow:

University of Texas, won 13, lost 8, tied 5; University of Arkansas, won 12, lost 7, tied 2; Texas Christian, won 12, lost 7, tied 6; Texas Aggies, won 12, lost 9, tied 4; Baylor, won 8, lost 12, tied 4.

A discrepancy between games won and lost is explained by the fact that many of Arkansas' "conference" games were played against Louisiana State and Oklahoma Aggies and counted in their standing by special arrangement. There will be none of that this year, as the Razorbacks have games scheduled with four bona fide conference members.

Angry Coaches Seek to Oust Scribes Who Criticize Their Football Teams

Which Leads Runyon to Observe That Some Mentors Are 'Pretty Well Puffed Up'

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—It comes to my shell-like ears that certain of our so-called big time football coaches, irked by newspaper criticism of their teams and methods, have requested newspaper editors to keep the writers responsible for the criticism away from the games in which the criticised coaches' teams participate.

Yes, I know it sounds incredible, and I might doubt the tale myself if I didn't have it from unimpeachable authority. Of course, I do not believe that any editor would pay the slightest attention to such requests, but the fact that they have been made shows that some of these football coaches are becoming pretty well puffed up by a sense of their own importance.

I am not one of the writers honored by the requests. Possibly that is because I never criticise football teams, or football methods. And the reason I do not criticise 'em is because I seldom see anything specific to criticise. Oh, of course I may occasionally say a team is made up of a lot of dunderheads, but that is only in a spirit of pleasantry.

Team Depends on Material

As near as I can make out, after years of glaring at football games, the strength of any team depends mainly upon the possession of three or four players of real merit, and the rest of the business is all stewed tomatoes. I have never taken the occupation of football coaching as anything more than a mild form of racket, highly professionalized, and well commercialized, but I have found most football coaches genial, companionable fellows, with a good gift of gab, and far be it from me to criticise that type.

I have never looked into their various methods, because fundamentally these methods are all alike, and if a coach hasn't got good material he winds up looking quite a mugg regardless of method. On the other hand, if he chances upon a few nifty leather heavers, he becomes for the moment a master mind, so what is occult about that?

The fact that football coaches have been known to keep individual players of great merit in a game until the individuals were knocked cock-eyed, proves that football is all a matter of material, because if a football coach had anything on the game in the way of genius, he would have four or five equally efficient spares to chuck in before the individual aforesaid was maimed for life.

No Time Limit

No other game ever conceived gives a director so many different tools to monkey with during the course of play as football. No other game gives him as much time. He has all afternoon, in fact. Even a game of English billiards can be played in that length of time. And the upshot of it all is that the guy with the best football players wins the game in nine cases out of ten, and the method isn't worth a dime.

The greatest coaches are not infrequently the coaches who are attached to colleges that will go to the most bother and expense in gathering in football material. A college with 10,000 run-of-mine students, and a coach with the brain of Napoleon may not have as good a football team as a jerkwater educational asylum with only 1,300 students, and a coach with noggin like a gourd, if the smaller institution specializes in football.

In the days when I had a more altruistic view of life it was my contention that football coaches should be required to go to work, and I pursued this theory until I was suddenly confronted by the appalling counter-attack of a coach who said he thought my crusade quite sound, if I would elaborate it to include sports writers.

Now I can see that the removal of coaches from football would be a great mistake, because they are essentially part of the background of the pastime, and by far the most interesting figures connected with the game. I have come to love them—not individually, you understand, but collectively.

Now and then one will pop up assuming airs of importance, and an aura of majesty that gives me a severe crick in the neck, but in the main they are all right. However, when any coach puts a team on the field that gets licked by four or five touchdowns, I must close my ears to any talk of coaching method, because there's a guy who hasn't any more method than a John J. Rabbit. I do not say he ought to go away and die, but I do say he ought to take a nice long walk.

While some of the coaches of today go in for great secrecy, and much mumble-gumble of one kind and another, I doubt if any of them are as lordly and arrogant as the late Percy Haughton in the days of his coaching glory at fair Harvard. Perce was known to have newspaper photographers heaved over the practice field fence, and he used to shrivel writers to a crisp with just a few off-hand burning glares.

Subsequently he made the mistake of going into professional baseball as a magnate, and the boys who had been laying for him because of his football arrogance let fly all at once.

Nowadays few newspaper writers take their football seriously enough to exhaust any effort trying to get a line on secret practice. Some go poking around the colleges before the season starts, asking questions of the coaches, and making note of their observations, but the old game has been reduced to a matter of so much sheer luck that these advance collections are worth little.

Courses in Coaching

Anyway, there are so many teams now that it would take the census bureau to keep track of all of them. Naturally, every team has a coach. In fact, the demand for coaches has become so great that some of the larger colleges seem to have gone in for the production of coaches as a new course. I note that not less than five former Notre Dame players are coaching this year, proving that a college education is a very good thing, indeed.

But put all those college football coaches together, and allowing that they are fine, upstanding chaps, and good company, I doubt if they could turn out one football team strong enough to beat Yale this year, if they didn't happen to get stout material.

And beating Yale ought to be a reasonably easy assignment judging from the way the boys got kicked around by Georgia last week. Or am I too double-breasted in speaking of the incident?

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—Only volume of business was reported in cotton here today, but prices were generally higher on relatively steady Liverpool cables, rather larger domestic consumption figures than anticipated and reports of a better tone in the stock market.

After selling at $10.55 early new December contracts reacted to 10.47 and advanced to 10.58 in the later trading or 13 points net higher. They closed at 10.48 or about 10 points off from the best under realizing and southern selling with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 3 to 8 points.

The opening was steady, 3 to 7 points higher in response to the steadiness of Liverpool while there also may have been some buying on the report of the census bureau placing domestic consumption for September at 394,321 bales compared with 352,335 in August and 545,834 in September last year.

The weekly report of the weather bureau was considered about a standoff and came in for comparatively little comment, but there may have been some buying on apprehensions that the forecast for cooler weather in northwestern sections of the belt might prove the forerunner of a frost threat. Port receipts today 55,306, U. S. port stocks 3,166,417. Exports 40,108, making 1,664,894 so far this season.

Futures closed steady, 3 to 8 points higher; spot quiet; middling 10.40.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15. (AP)—The cotton market developed only moderate activity and price fluctuations were narrow and without definite trend. After an early advance of 4 to 7 points on good cables, rather bullish consumption totals for September and a rather unfavorable weekly weather and crop summary, prices reacted losing all the early gain. This setback was due to realizing. Later prices rallied again owing to firmness in stocks and good trade and mill buying, gaining 10 to 11 points from the lows. Right at the end the market dropped 10 points on hedge selling and the close was steady, net unchanged to 1 point up. The census bureau reported September consumption by domestic mills at 394,321 bales.

Liverpool came in 2 to 5 points better than due and cables reported shorts covering and continent buying. First trades here were 2 to 4 points up which was not a full response to the cables. Prices improved in early trading on larger September domestic consumption than looked for and a fairly bullish weekly weather and crop summary. December traded up to 10.55 and January to 10.64 or 4 to 7 points above yesterday's close.

While the market soon lost all of this early gain on realizing, it later rallied on improvement in stocks and good trade and mill buying. December advancing to 10.57 and January to 10.68, or 8 to 9 points up from the earlier lows.

The market made new highs in late afternoon at 10.59 for December and 10.70 for January, up 10 to 11 points from the lows. Just before the end prices eased off 10 points on hedge selling, December closing at 10.49 and January at 10.60, or net unchanged to 1 point up on those active months.

Port receipts 55,256, for week 279,199, for season 3,414,024, last season 2,978,561. Exports 30,058, for week 150,974, for season 1,631,594, last season 1,374,003. Port stocks 3,175,277, last year 1,874,537. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 138,983, last year 189,401. Spot sales at Southern markets 47,337, last year 55,437.

Stock Market Ignores Unfavorable News to Continue Slow Recovery

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (US)—Again reflecting a lessening of pressure rather than any sudden development of large-scale buying, the stock market today achieved further recovery. It continued chiefly under the domination of the situation created by seemingly huge borrowing demand for stocks. This influenced considerable short covering, as evidenced by the fact the largest net gains were recorded in issues harboring extensive short accounts. The market ignored unfavorable Steel Trade News and there was also noticeable less anxiety over "situations" affecting individual stocks and the market as a whole. The advance was spread throughout the list, embracing virtually all active issues. Considerable cheer was obtained from the assumption of leadership by U. S. Steel common, which advanced in the face of cheerless trade news telling of continued slow demand. Volume again shrunk, only 2,378,000 shares being traded. Commodities generally were only slightly changed in price.

A sudden calm has developed in formerly aggressive bear quarters. The campaign against "destructive bear raiding" has influenced various bears to cease their activities for the time being, with certain large-scale bears actually retiring completely from the market. The premium on Steel common was increased to 1-32 at one time but dropped to 1-64th and the demand in the "loan crowd" was reported even larger than the previous day. Thirteen prominent stocks commanded a premium with DuPont, International Harvester, Allied Chemical, Southern Railway and Westinghouse lending at 1-64th premium; Coca Cola, Illinois Central, and Wheeling and Lake Erie common at 1-16th; North American, American Water Works and Wheeling preferred at 1-32nd. There is an obvious reluctance on the part of many brokerage firms to lend stocks and the resultant premiums give the impression of an enormous "short interest." If the short account in the market is large it probably represents "small fry" speculators in the main. And whatever the size of the short interest it has been substantially reduced.

It was noticeable that in a day of general strength, General Motors closed with a net loss, as continued selling was induced by reports the $3 dividend may be just barely earned this year, including the profit made earlier in the year on securities transactions. Steel common was the outstanding feature of the day, closing up 3⅞ points at the top price. This stock undoubtedly harbors an extensive short interest because, as frequently pointed out here, it has been a favorite short sale for speculators and even for traders "long" of stocks who desired to hedge. The tight borrowing situation in this issue is particularly illuminating—with respect to the actual cause of the premium—when it is recalled that the amount of Steel common held by brokers increased 22,000 shares during the third quarter and at the end of September totalled 1,612,000 shares. It is not at all improbable that the short interest in the market is much smaller than generally believed to be the case. But the hesitancy on the part of aggressive bears to offend by large-scale selling at this time explains the market's more pleasant performance.

Actually, there has been marked betterment in that phase of the general financial situation which gave rise to the many alarming rumors of the last few weeks. There undoubtedly still exist "situations" calling for continued close observation, but even in the most difficult of these substantial progress has been made toward its complete elimination as a market factor. Certainly, in one of the most widely-rumored instances, there is absolutely no reason for concern. Powerful banking support has been extended to this situation and to one other where drastic declines of last week had led to reports of difficulties. Well-informed interests in Wall street were much impressed by the rallying tendencies displayed in Republic Steel, which had been a particularly weak spot for weeks. It was stated that Republic Steel is receiving powerful support. The strong support evidence in Fox Film, General Theaters and others affiliated with its sponsors also created greater confidence.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Oct. 15. (AP)—Fair domestic demand continued today for wheat on the cash grain market here. Mills were bidding 88@89c for No. 1 hard delivered Texas common points.

Other grains were fairly easy to sell with the exception of the sorghums which were very slow.

Estimated receipts—Wheat, 5 cars; corn, 2; oats, 5, and barley, 3 cars.

Bids and offers on coarse grains ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Corn—No. 2 mixed 92@93c; No. 2 white 95@96c; No. 2 yellow 96@97c.

Oats—No. 2 red 50½@52½c, according to desirability for seed. No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 46@46½c; to which add 1 cent for delivery group three.

Barley—No. 2 nominally 66@67c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.65@1.70; No. 2 kaffir $1.40@1.45.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. (AP)—Anxiety over reports of blizzards damaging unthreshed grain in Canada led to higher prices here for wheat and oats today. A big falling off in domestic receipts of wheat northwest also was a notable feature. Wheat, however, failed to hold gains well in the face of profit taking sales which developed quickly on bulges in quotations.

The close for wheat was irregular, ranging from ½c a bushel decline to ¼c advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅞@1⅛c down, oats unchanged to ⅜c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32c.

Estimates persisted that fully 100,000,000 bushels of unthreshed Canadian wheat in the prairie provinces had been caught without protection from the onset of wintry weather. Other estimates put the total at 40,000,000 bushels, in either case. The effect was to lift prices here decidedly at some stages, and to do so in a more lasting manner at Winnipeg.

Corn sold off sharply after a transient upturn when the wheat market developed strength. Arrivals of corn in Chicago today were of liberal volume, 159 cars, and included about 25 cars of new crop corn. Husking was reported as making more progress than many traders had looked for. Oats average higher, influenced by word of damage to unthreshed oats and barley in Canada.

Provisions reflected upturns in hog values and responded also to official reports showing diminished stocks of lard.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. (US)—Wheat traders showed some concern over the fact that while North American markets were independently firm, this was responsible for placing prices here and at Liverpool on an almost even level which did not look well for the export trade.

However, possible heavy losses of wheat in the Canadian Northwest, to add to the United States feeding consumption of wheat, appeal as a strong bullish argument. Strength in the domestic cash situation reveals that the feeding demand for wheat is making itself felt sooner than expected.

Rumsey & Company say: "With the increased feeding of wheat and the assured loss of from 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels of feeding grains, the question remains, 'Are we not on a purely domestic basis for all of our grains?' We believe that we are. Europe may be looking us up later, and find that we have nothing to sell."

Daniel F. Rice & Company say: "We were quite disappointed in the action at Liverpool today. If bulges at Winnipeg are to be sustained, Liverpool must do better. While we might ignore weakness at Liverpool, it will be hard for our market to act altogether independently of Winnipeg, if it turns weak again."

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 15. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit was rather spotted with packers bearish at most all centers on medium weight and heavy fed steers but displaying moderate interest in yearlings. Killing classes were unevenly steady to 25c lower with fed steers showing the most decline. Western grass slaughter steers held around steady.

Yearlings at Chicago and Omaha cleared up to $12.50 and the same price was realized at Chicago for heavy steers of outstanding quality. Heavy steers in Chicago cashed downward from $11.25. Receipts were estimated at 43,800.

The hog market was again fairly active at 10@25c higher prices. St. Louis had the extreme top of $10.15. Offerings were around 66,400.

The sheep supply numbered around 71,700. Comparatively light receipts stimulated demand for light lambs with trade on a steady to 25c higher price basis. Matured classes of sheep and feeding lambs held fully steady. Chicago had a top of $8.00 on both fat natives and range lambs.

Damages amounting to almost $6,000 were awarded the Dr. Pepper Bottling company, Inc., by a jury before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court Wednesday in a suit against Lakeside park arising from an alleged breach of contract.

According to the plaintiff's petition, a five-year contract allowing the bottling company to maintain a concession at Lakeside park during five months of each year was terminated without their consent by eviction at the hands of the defendant before the end of the 1929 season. The petition asked damages of about $13,000 for actual losses allegedly sustained, and $15,000 exemplary damages.

WARD COUNTY TEST HAS OIL

T.-P. No. 1 Barker May Close Eight-Mile Gap

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 15.—Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil company's No. 1 M. Barker, which slopped over with oil late in the week, may close partially an eight-mile gap between two pools in Ward county. In drilling to 2,318 feet, the wildcat had 1,500 feet of oil in the hole.

No. 1 Barker is four miles southeast of Penn-Atlantic's No. 1 Bennett, which in September, last year, opened Ward county's third field, and is about the same distance northwest of Ward county's discovery Hayzlett pool. It is in the west corner of section 27, block B-29, public school land. Early last week a small showing of iol was encountered at 2,255-60 feet with gas that blew the tools 10 feet up the hole. The tools again were blown up the hole by an increase at 2,293 feet but were recovered quickly. The first oil is higher than in the Hayzlett area but at about the same level as the pay in No. 1 Bennett.

Crane County Well

Having overflowed storage in gauging 1,315 barrels of oil by heads in 38 hours when shut in Saturday morning at 4,304 feet in lime, Cranfill Bros., of Dallas and Gulf's No. 1 J. B. Tubbs, discovery producer in west central Crane county, was building more tanks. It struck oil at 4,295 feet beneath two sulphur water levels and at a record depth in the Permian lime. The well is 330 feet from the east line and 2,310 feet from the north line of section 8, block B-27, public schol land, 15 miles east of the Hayzlett field in Ward county, the nearest production, and 18 miles west of the Church-Fields pool on the line of Crane and Upton counties.

Leases are closely held and royalty is being held at high prices. Sun Oil company bought from T. C. Earnsley of Odessa one-sixteenth of the royalty under sections 26, 27 and 30, block B-27, four miles south of No. 1 Tubbs and 1¼ miles south of Cranfill Bros. No. 1 Muir. The later topped the brown lime higher than No. 1 Tubbs and late in the week had drilled past 2,616 feet, with a rainbow showing at 2,610-15 feet.

Water Enters Well

Carl Cromwell, M. M. Rowan and others' No. 1 University, apparently a new producer six miles east and 1½ miles north of the Taylor-Link pool in Pecos county, suffered a reverse in pumping 31 barrels of water with 45 barrels of oil in 24 hours. It had not been determined whether the water was coming from the pay or through a plug reported driven at 1,830 feet. After the well was shot from 1,785 to 1,830 feet it swabbed 75 barrels of pipe line oil in 10 hours without swabbing down. Location is in the center of the northeast quarter of section 25, block 16.

McMan-Amerada No. 2 L. P. Powell in the south end of the Powell field in Crocket county was completed at 2,572 feet, pumping 80 barrels of oil in 24 hours after yielding 150 barrels of oil in the first 20 hours in pumping off a head. Plugging back to 2,572 feet shut off a small amount of water encountered at 2,596 feet, the total depth. The well is in the southwest corner of section 2, block BB, E. L. & R. R. Co. survey.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

that crept through the open door. She seemed more like the girl in the school photographs than the elaborate movie magazine portraits. Gail was a little shocked at her hair. It was not what she vaguely remembered, honey-colored. It was almost white blond.

Frigid Tones

Martin was about to close the door, when Gail thrust her slim figure through it.

"I was just asking for you, Miss Cross," she gasped. She was too excited to realize what she was doing.

"I see no one without appointments," Carla's dark eyebrows lifted.

"I'm from Fairview, Miss Cross—I knew you as a child—I thought—" Gail was stuttering, she was talking so fast.

A flicker of annoyance showed on the smooth pretty face before her.

"Haven't time to see you now. Please make an appointment," the tones were frigid.

"I just wanted to ask you something—it won't take a minute."

"You want me to sign an autograph book?"

"No."

Carla hesitated a moment, then nodded. "Come in here. I haven't more than a moment. If you were from any place but Fairview I wouldn't see you."

Deliriously happy, Gail followed her into the living room. Her feet made no sound on the luxurious rugs. Carla sank into a velvet couch, and rested her golden hair on the dull black cover. It shone like spun gold in the dim room, for the curtains were drawn. The blue eyes closed, then opened again.

"What is it?" the actress drawled glancing at the diamond wrist watch on her arm.

"I'm Gail Stuart from Fairview. You probably don't remember me, but I remember you. You've always been—sort of an idol of mine—"

Carla nodded appreciatively. She liked adoration. She looked at her visitor with a little more interest.

"Yes?"

"I came out here, thinking I could get into the movies—like you had. I had a test at Werber's yesterday, but it wasn't any good.

"I—thought you could tell me whether or not I'm hopeless—" she stopped abruptly. There she had said it.

"My dear girl, if Werber's took a test of you, and found it no good, I'm afraid I can't do a thing for you. I've thousands of girls wanting help."

"I don't want help, Miss Cross. I just wanted you to tell me if you think I'm hopeless!"

"If Werber's said the test was bad, then I'd forget the movies, Miss Stuart. They know."

"Did you have a lot of disappointments when you started?"

"Millions of them."

"So there might be hope for me?"

"I didn't say that at all. I advised you to forget the movies. It's a hard game. I should know. And although you don't realize it, I'm giving you the best advice in the world. You should take it, and be satisfied."

"It's hard to give up something you want—"

"I suppose so," Carla yawned, and tapped her red mouth with a white finger. She looked again at Gail, and saw the admiration in her eyes.

"What did you do in Fairview?"

"I was working in Mr. Troy's store when I left."

"I remember the place. Sordid, wasn't it? I don't blame you for leaving. Have you seen any of my pictures?"

"All of them—many times. I never missed any of them. That's why I first began thinking of going into the movies—on account of you."

Faint Hope

Carla's eyes narrowed, and she ran her hand over the black velvet of the couch.

"I'm sorry I took up so much of your time, Miss Cross, but I had to see you—and find out what you thought about me—" Gail rose to go, although she longed to stay and feast her eyes on Carla.

"No, wait. Have you ever done any kind of secretarial work?"

"No." Gail couldn't imagine why she had asked that question.

"You don't need to know much about it—you see my secretary is leaving today, and I'm looking for someone else. I thought you might do." Carla smiled engagingly, and Gail stared back with unbelieving, incredible eyes.

"You mean—"

"I mean if you'd like the job you may have it. It's not hard."

Carla's secretary!

"You don't need to really have much training. All you'll have to do is to answer my fan mail, and see visitors I can't see. The salary will be $25 a week, and you'll live here with me."

"If you think I could do it—"

"I know you can." Carla was quite satisfied with herself. The thought had come suddenly as her decisions usually did. She liked to have people around who adored her. This girl would be admirable. "There might possibly be a chance for you in one of my pictures some time—"

"I'll take it, Miss Cross. And I'm ever so grateful—" A sob caught in Gail's throat. Carla would never know how grateful she would be.

Tomorrow—New duties begin.

Can Stand Heat

WASHINGTON.—Female bodies can withstand much more heat than can male bodies, according to findings of Dr. Oscar Riddle, of the Carnegie museum. He says that high temperatures slow down male production of energy more than female, thus causing men to lose much of their energy during hot spells.

Tipica Orchestra Gives New Thrill To Music Lovers

There is a new thrill awaiting the American music lover. Just when he had decided that the last word in musical novelties had been offered by the exotic Russians and the Hawaiian troubadors, Juan N. Torreblanca came to this country several years ago with his Tipica orchestra of Mexico. Its tour created an unprecedented sensation in musical circles, a sensation which had its effect even down to the average American who got "no kick" out of the ordinary concert offering. Senor Torreblanca and his orchestra are making a second American tour this year and will appear in Wichita Falls on Saturday, Oct. 25, matinee and night.

The artistic genius of Mexico has but lately been fully recognized by the world at large. Torreblanca's Tipica orchestra of Mexico brings to the concert stage the same originality, strength and native vigor that the early Russian music brought. This Mexican orchestra plays the fascinating, haunting, beautifully rhythmic music of its country as no other organization in the world can play it—not evan the Spanish musicians. It is a typically Mexican interpretation (hence the word "tipica") and the effect is chamingly novel for even sophisticated American audiences.

Senor Torreblanca's orchestra will present as its soloists Maria Romero, soprano, and one of the most beloved artists of Mexico; Jose de Arratia, famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company; the Charros Mexicanos, celebrated marimbasts; Los Trovadores del Bajio, male quartet, and Juan, Lucay and Anita, Mexico City's favorite dancers in the colorful ranchero dances of the country.

WEYMOUTH RESIGNS

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 15. (AP)—Resignation of Thomas R. Weymouth as chairman of the board of directors of the Oklahoma National Gas corporation was announced today. Weymouth, who became president of the organization in 1928 and chairman of the board this year, is leaving to become vice president of the Columbia Engineering and Managment corporation, New York. His resignation is to be effective Nov. 1.

While Wichita Falls contents itself with the movie as its chief diversion, a Wichita Falls girls gets her name in the electric lights on Broadway in George S. Kaufman's new satire on Hollywood—"Once in a Lifetime"—on which the critics seem to be unanimous as to its excellence.

Leona Maricle, who graduated from Wichita Falls High school and later from C. I. A. at Denton, has been climbing rather rapidly in her stage work in New York, and seems to keep on in spite of the fact that hundreds of the best actors are out of work. Home town girl makes good.

"Once in a Lifetime" is said to be a clever, ironic thing which takes quite a few hefty whacks at the movie business. The New York Times, which is a nice little home town paper up there, featured an eight-column cartoon of George S. Kaufman, Miss Maricle and a few others in the cast on the first page of its Sunday theater section last week.

"Three Live Ghosts," opening at the State Thursday, is a succesful play which has been grabbed by the movies for the new type of talkie, and should be interesting. Little Theaters will find their pet productions on the screen everywhere these days. "Three Live Ghosts" was presented by the local Little Theater two years ago, as was also "Outward Bound," another which has been made into a most commendable talkie. The local amateurs are also planning to present "Green Stockings," the talkie of which was here only a few months ago under the disguising name of "The Flirting Widow."

Business World Needs Optimism, Kerr Tells Club

Reformation of the business world of today and in the future through a better brand of optimism was advocated by J. E. Homer Kerr, representative of the United Commercial Travelers, in a short talk before members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon.

Business has not been afflicted recently in this country with half the ills which the average citizen has imagined, Mr. Kerr said. He attributed much of the pessimism which has existed to business men having been "blinded by the white glare of a big boom."

Mr. Kerr was introduced by Max T. Junker, president. Entertainers from radio station KGKO provided musical numbers for the program, those appearing being Miss Lorene Tucker, pianist; Cleo Grantham, violinist, and Leonard Holland, tenor.

With Miss Tucker at the piano, B. D. Sartin led a club singsong. Lee Erwin and Clyde George were welcomed as new member, and L. E. Junell returned to membership by reinstatement.

Dry Goods Executives Here On Business Tour

Fred B. Eiseman and Paul Treumann, vice presidents of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods company of St. Louis, and J. T. Caradine, president of the Dalton company of Baton Rouge, La., were visitors in Wichita Falls as part of a tour of the state of Texas.

The St. Louis house maintains connections with retail merchants in more than 60 Texas cities, it was said, and visited a number of business houses in towns near Wichita Falls Wednesday as well as those located in this city. The Dalton company is one of the largest department stores in Louisiana, it was said.

Referring to general business conditions throughout the country, Mr. Eiseman said that "a very general improvement is now noticeable. One of the best signs is that so many business men in all localities now admit that conditions are improving. This is a distinct change from the pessimism which was widespread for so many months."

A real surplus of goods which existed during the last year has been absorbed, Mr. Eiseman declared, and attributed the improving business activities to that fact. Large orders placed now with factories and distributing houses, he said, are commonly met with a request for a short time in which to prepare shipments. There is no surplus of goods now, he declared, except a theoretical one.

Making his first visit to Wichita Falls and West Texas, Mr. Treumann expressed his surprise and pleasure at finding a section so far advanced industrially and in a civic sense.

"If I were choosing a city in which to live and establish a business," he said, "I should take Wichita Falls today in preference to many cities of twice its size further north and east."

Chest Directors And Finance Board to Meet

Members of the board of directors and the finance committee of the Community Chest will meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the directors rooms at the City National bank when the final total of the recent financial campaign will be announced.

Plans for the apportionment of the budgets to each of the participating agencies will also be made, it was announced. Each member was urged to be in attendance as several important business matters will be discussed.

Man Fined for Attempt To Sell Wichita Fish

Game wardens and sons of game wardens make poor customers for those who would sell fish taken from Lake Wichita.

A man who allegedly endeavored to sell two carp to the son of a county game warden was found guilty by a jury before Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs Wednesday morning, and was fined $5 and costs. Louis V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, prosecuted the case.

Lions Directors Map Campaign To Provide Jobs for Unemployed

Plans for a "confidence" movement for workmen in this city, designed to provide employment for them through the encouragement of small home-improvement jobs, will be formulated by directors of the Lions club at a meeting to be held within the next few days, according to information given by Frank Cripliver, president, before members of that club Wednesday.

The program to be outlined by the Lions club directorate at the coming meeting will further the proposals made by Mr. Cripliver at the preceding meeting of the club.

C. C. Hudson of Iowa Park delivered an address Wednesday on "America and Progress," and R. E. Shepherd sang two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd.

Paul Woodward was named chairman of a committee to make plans for a ladies' night program to be held soon. P. B. Curd was appointed chairman of the inter-city meetings for the year. Milton Gaines announced plans for the American Legion day celebration here on Oct. 24, and invited members of the club to enter floats or delegations in the parade.

Trial of $20,000 Damage Suit Opens

Trial of the suit of Miss Donna McDuffey et al. against W. F. Parish et el. for $20,000 damages for injuries said to have been received in an automobile collision last May, got under way before Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the thirtieth district court Wednesday afternoon.

According to the pleadings upon which the suit is based, the plaintiff was riding in an automobile belonging to the defendant on May 15 when it collided with another car at the corner of Tenth and Polk streets. Evidence introduced Wednesday indicated that Miss McDuffey was removed to a local hospital following the crash in order to be treated for severe cuts and other injuries.

Examination of witnesses will be resumed Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, it was announced when the court recessed at 5:15 p. m. Wednesday.

Huge World Map

WELLESLEY.—What will be the largest map of the world ever made is in the course of construction here. It measures 63 feet from east to west and 40 feet from north to south. Instead of being flat like regulation maps, it will be spherical in the exact ratio of the earth's curve. The cost of constructing the map is estimated at $2,000,000, and it will be so complete in detail that it will take about 50 years to finish.

Making Homes Modern is Often Simple and Inexpensive

● Everyone likes a good-looking home. Remodeling a home that has grown shabby is often very simple and inexpensive. A change made here and there frequently is the only difference between an old house and a modern home.

● A new stucco exterior — repairs to the roof — a sanitary, watertight basement — a new sun parlor or sleeping porch — a concrete sidewalk — just two or three improvements like these will often make a home up-to-date.

● NOW is a good time to make improvements. Ask your building material dealer, architect or contractor to help you with suggestions for remodeling.

Atlas Cement is made at Waco — by Texas workers — of Texas materials . . . Along with other economical quality products, your building material dealer can quickly furnish you either Atlas portland cement (gray) or non-staining Atlas White portland cement. Ask for Atlas cements.
