One Killed Instantly As Pal Suffers Only Minor Wound

ARDMORE, Okla., Nov. 15 (AP)—Defeated in their attempt to rob the First National bank at Marietta, Okla., today by a hastily recruited posse of 50 men, two robbers shot it out with the armed citizens, one of the robbers falling mortally wounded and the other apparently saved from death by a steel jacket.

The loot, $10,000, which they carried in a cement sack was recovered.

Colbert Keel, 55, was killed, Haynie Liddell, 35, the other robber, has buckshot wounds reported not to be dangerous. Liddell was sought in connection with the robbery of the Love county National bank at Marietta about a year ago, in which one of the robbers was killed and Sheriff. Sam Long, of Love county suffered wounds that proved fatal a few days later. Liddell also has been indicted by a federal grand jury at Oklahoma City for alleged fraud.

R. C. Morris, tailor and A. W. Stafford, both of whom joined forces which surrounded and shot the robbers, suffered minor wounds. Stafford is sheriff-elect of Love county.

In the robbers' motor car were found adhesive tape for emergency bandages, a bottle of whisky and a bag of carpet tacks, evidently intended to be strewn in the path of pursuing motor cars.

BAPTIST FUNDS REPORTED LOW

Growth of Colleges Held Back in State

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—Beaumont was chosen unanimously as the site for the 1929 Texas Baptist general convention and Nov. 20 as the date at tonight's assembly.

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Nov. 15 (AP)—Generally unfavorable financial situations in Texas Baptist colleges that have hampered their expansion were described today in reports of the past year's activity by presidents of two denominational universities, two senior colleges and four junior institutions at the Texas Baptist general convention here.

While asserting that their present goal was the successful conclusion of Baylor university's $4,000,000 endowment campaign beginning Nov. 23, heads of the other colleges depicted a serious need of funds to meet their own indebtedness.

Howard Payne in Need

The boldest gesture of smaller Baptist institutions for succor was made by President Edgar Godbold of Howard Payne college at Brownwood, whose report stated $500,000 was needed by the school and that "this convention must make some steps for relief."

Dr. Godbold said that Baptist convention control of Howard Payne was "bleeding rather than relieving us," and hinted at possible separation of the institution from the Baptist state educational system unless its problems could be solved.

"The people of the community surrounding Brownwood will help us to carry on, however," the speaker told the conference.

Dr. Godbold's report specifically asked for an increased salary for teachers, more instructors at Howard Payne to broaden the curriculum, and a new administrative building for the boy's dormitory.

The net operating loss last year was $3,605.25, he said.

Denver and South Plains Builders Set Record Despite Difficulties

Task of Constructing Three Tunnels Fails to Slow Up Rail Outlet for Western Empire

By L. M. HOGSETT

(General Freight Agent Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Co., the Wichita Valley Railway Co., Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railway Co.)

The Fort Worth & Denver South Plains railway has completed not only the largest railroad construction in Texas the past 10 years, but also set a new record for fast construction.

Stretching out over 204 miles of practically all virgin territory insofar as contact by railroad is concerned, the new line affords this section of West Texas an opportunity to grow and develop into one of the richest of all the southwest.

Through its parent companies, the Burlington system, the Colorado and Southern, and its closely associated relative, the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, the new line has a contact with the outside transportation world which affords Texas and this new territory unlimited expansion opportunities.

The Burlington system, to which the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, the Colorado and Southern, the Wichita Valley railway and the new line belong covers the richest traffic fields of the United States, with over 11,000 miles of steel rails.

Difficulties Encountered

While completing the work in record time, the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railroad has had to deal with difficulties heretofore not encountered in railroad construction in Texas.

Two of the three tunnels in Texas have been built by the new line. From an elevation of slightly more than 1,800 feet at the Estelline end, the road climbs to an elevation of more than 3,000 to 3,600 feet at points South Plains, Texas and west located on top of the "Cap Rock." The construction was completed in less than two years from the time it was started, Dec. 20, 1926.

History of Growth

Looking backward for a moment we find that the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, from which the new line has grown, was chartered by a special act of the legislature in May, 1873, but it was nine years later before the first link—35 miles—from Fort Worth to Decatur was completed.

Slowly but steadily the road push-

TEXAS BALLOT QUIZ ORDERED

House Committee to Come Here on Nov. 23

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (AP)—Investigation of charges of irregularities in both the Democratic primary and national election in Southern Texas was decided on today by the house campaign funds committee, which voted unanimously to depart for that state Nov. 23 to begin a series of hearings.

Chairman Lehlbach said the committee's action was taken largely because of the number of complaints over the national campaign rather than those made concerning the primary contest in which the house seat of John N. Garner, veteran of the Texas congressional delegation, is involved.

New Request Made

The chairman explained that only today another request for inquiry into the national campaign in Southern Texas counties was filed by Mayor F. S. Freeland of McAllen, Texas, and that similar requests were made by mayors and prominent citizens of other communities.

Representative Lehlbach did not disclose the specific nature of the charges regarding the presidential election in which Texas forsook its customary adherence to the Democratic standard and cast its electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis.

Garner Asks Inquiry

Representaive John Garner personally has requested the committee to inquire itno the primary in the 15th Texas congressional district which he has represented in the house for 25 years.

The Texan, regarded as the likely successor to Representative Finis Garrett of Tennessee, Democratic house floor leader in the 71st congress, now is ranking Democratic member of the important ways and means committee.

Officers Knew Valve Was Damaged Before Voyage, Stokers Say

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 15. (US)—A cracked sea-valve, known to have been in a damaged condition, sent the ill-fated steamship Vestris to its doom, it was revealed tonight as the battleship Wyoming arrived here from rescue operations.

This astounding revelation was given by Commander W. Simpson, executive officer of the battleship, who declared it was the version of the disaster as related by three stokers of the Vestris.

"It was a cracked sea-valve in the fire room, that's what the Vestris stokers said," declared Commander Simpson. "They declared that the valve was in such damaged condition there was a question whether the ship would sail or not from New York."

WITNESSES CHARGE CREW WITH INCOMPETENCY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—Six survivors of the foundered steamer Vestris today charged under oath before a United States commissioner that the disaster was marked by entire lack of discipline, that neither officers nor men were equipped to meet the emergency, and that lives were wasted needlessly by rotting lifeboats that no one knew how to handle.

When the distress signal was at last sent out, hours late, they said, the crew was left to its own devices and the pasengers neither were told to don life belts nor given any assistance in getting to the lifeboats.

Husbands were ordered out of boats in which their wives were stationed and members of the crew allowed to take the vacant places, they asserted.

Defective Lifeboats

Two witnesses told of gaping holes in the boats, one saying that women and children were put into a boat that had a hole six inches wide in its side.

None of the witnesses saw any officers except the captain on deck while the crew was making vain attempts to launch the boats. There was one hearsay report of an individual instance of mutiny in which an officer was said to have drawn a pistol which a negro crew member wrenched from his grasp and threw overboard.

The survivors testified at the opening session of the federal in-

Building Spurt Hits Pace Set Here In Record Days

$1,500,000 in New Construction to Get Under Way By Jan. 1; $350,000 Goes Into Dozen New Homes

Resumption of building activity in Wichita Falls on a scale recalling the record days of 1926 was seen Thursday in a survey which showed more than $1,500,000 in construction work just getting under way or contpemlated before Jan. 1.

Construction and real estate activity Thursday was featured by the confirmation of plans for new buildings by E. F. Riley, the Freear Furniture company, the S. H. Kress company, and the addition of several new pretentious residences and a number of real estate sales.

Dozen Fine Homes

In residence construction, plans are now being drawn for a dozen new homes in Country club estates alone which will cost approximately $350,000, it was learned at the offices of the Hamilton-Martin Investment company. This new construction, expected to be started before Jan. 1, does not include homes now being built or nearing completion, it was said.

While plans for the Freear building are not complete, Voelcker and Dixon, architects, are pushing work on the project, which will be underway by Jan. 1 at Eleventh street and Lamar avenue, it is understood. The building is scheduled to be at least five stories high, with a distinctive floor plan and interior design suitable for the needs of the furniture company.

Officials of the S. H. Kress company at 908 Indiana avenue admitted that negotiations have been going on for some time for its new building which will be at least four stories. The building would follow the general Kress plan of devoting two floors to sales space and the remainder to stock and store rooms.

Concrete is being poured for a 50x150 foot one story brick building at 512-514 Indiana avenue for the E. F. Riley Furniture company. Cost of the building is placed at $35,000 and laying of brick will start Monday. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy by the furniture company by Jan. 1. Plans call for a spacious balcony in the store, and modern fireproof construction.

Bonded Warehouse

Plans were announced two weeks ago for the new $800,000 bonded fireproof warehouse to be located at Eleventh and Ohio and occupied by the Tarry Warehouse and Storage company. The building also will serve as a terminal for the Wichita Falls, Fort Worth and Dallas motor freight line, and for other lines which may develop in the future.

At Third street and Ohio avenue work is progressing rapidly on the one story building, 100x150, being erected by John Hampton. The building will be occupied by an automobile retail firm. At 714 Seventh street the building which formerly housed the Bolton Furniture company is being completely rebuilt, and when finished will be the new home of Leo Shusterman's Popular

CHILD, 6, TAKEN FROM GROCERY BY STRANGER

Police Arrest Suspect On Description Given By Young Victim

TWO ATTEMPTS MADE

Girl Taken to River By Captor and Mistreated, She Declares

A man about 40 years old was held in the city jail Thursday night after he had allegedly kidnaped a six-year-old girl in North Wichita and carried her to the Wichita river bottoms not far from her home. According to information gleaned by investigating officers, it was the man's second kidnaping attempt Thursday evening.

The kidnaped girl and several witnesses identified the man in the city jail where he was booked for drunkeness and investigation. Another girl, 12 years old, told police she had been accosted and chased by a man who answered the description of the man held. This occurred, according to police, shortly before the younger girl had gone with the man from a grocery store at 1210 North Third street.

Offers Girl Soda

The younger girl told police she was sent to a grocery store by her parents. There the man, whom she said she had never seen before, asked her to have some soda water. Then they left the grocery, the girl said, and the man threw his coat over her head and carried her to the river bottoms a few blocks away.

In an attempted attack on his captive, whom the kidnapper had gagged, the girl's clothing was torn and she was slightly bruised, according to the child's story. Fighting free of the gag the girl screamed for help and the man offered her a quarter not to report the affair, the girl said.

She took the coin, she said, thinking he would release her. Instead, she declared, he continued to torment her, but her cries soon frightened him away.

"He bit my lips and his whiskers scratched my face," the child calmly told officers Elmer Thornton, Fred Fountain, O. A. Robertson and J. B. Flenniken, who arrested the man and conducted the investigation.

Child Unharmed

A physician who examined the girl Thursday night said she was unharmed with the exception of minor bruises and scratches.

Officers Roberson and Flanniken arrested the suspect at Seventh street and Scott avenue after searching for him about an hour from the time they had been called to the girl's home where she had returned following her release by her alleged kidnaper.

The man denied the accusals made by the child. The officers took a bottle containing whisky from him. He said he had been here three or four days and had been working near Charlie.

The first girl accosted told officers that a man called to her while she was walking home and when she did not stop he chased her.

The man will be transferred to state authorities Friday. Assistant District Attorney George Anderson said that a charge of attempted assault probably will be filed against him Friday.

Fist Fight Marks Debut of Poincare Cabinet in Chamber of Deputies

PARIS, Nov. 15. (US)—War broke out in the French chamber of deputies this afternoon when the Socialist Deputy Marsais landed a sharp uppercut on the jaw of the Communist Deputy Clamamus in a fistic exchange on the occasion of the new Poincaire ministry's first appearance before the chamber.

But peace was established shortly afterward when the chamber, by the long-sided ballot of 335 to 147, voted its confidence in the new cabinet.

The fist-fight between the two deputies occurred shortly after Premier Poincaire had delivered his ministerial declaration before the chamber. Hardly had the parliamentary discussion of the premier's declaration begun when Deputy Marsais started his pugilistic opposition to it by attacking M. Clamamus. The latter struck back, and guards were obliged to separate the two.

The chamber's vote of confidence came after M. Poincare had openly placed on record the settlement of German reparations as the foremost problem facing the French nation today, and had declared that the problem offered no insuperable obstacle.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Nov. 15. (By Radio from the Whaler Hektoria via Port Stanley, Falkland Islands).—Yesterday 10 husky coal heavers, under the direction of my able assistants, Styrm and Thorbjorsen, hauled our two lockheed planes, the Los Angeles and the San Francisco from the beach to a tiny lagoon, one kilometer distant, which will serve as the starting place for the first flight in Antarctic history.

On this lagoon, there is a snow-covered slope 500 yards long, which makes an ideal place for a take-off.

Our mechanics changed the wheels on the airplanes for skis and made a few minor adjustments in the motors. They pronounced everything about the planes in readiness for the flight.

The steam from the smouldering fires beneath the beach of this volcanic island blows constantly across our camp and the surrounding terrain, yet the high hills are deep with snow and the valleys filled with tumbling glaciers.

For two days strong northerly winds have blown across our runway. As soon as the wind changes or lulls, our first test flight will be made.

Cracked Sea-Salve Caused Tragedy

quiry before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neil conducted by United States Attorney Tuttle and four assistants.

Today's witnesses all were passengers, beginning with Frederick W. Puppe, whose wife and seven-months-old baby were lost when the ship sank, and ending with Carlos Quiros, chancellor of the Argentine consulate general at Washington.

Crew to Testify

Tomorrow officers and members of the crew of the Vestris will be called.

Tuttle told reporters at the close of today's session that he was not sure about the jurisdiction of United States courts in the matter, the Vestris being a British ship, but added that he was giving little thought to jurisdiction.

The first and most dramatic witness was Puppe. In a broken voice—choking up at times and once breaking off his testimony to remove his spectacles and polish them—Puppe told how he stood with his wife and baby on the sharply sloping deck of the Vestris Monday forenoon and scanned the horizon for 'the steamers we were absolutely sure must have been called to our help."

Charges Inefficiency

Puppe charged the ship's crew with an inefficiency which he said, was indicated first when they sailed Saturday and he was told that the steward in charge of his stateroom was drunk and continued drunk right through to the long hours in the lifeboat, when, he testified, the occupants found salt water in the drinking casks. Monday morning, when he went to the kitchen to find some food and water for his wife and baby, he said he was told to "go find it yourself."

Puppe testified that, separated from his wife and child, he saw one of the lifeboats break and plunge its occupants into the sea, and that he finally got into a boat and rowed away, not knowing the fate of his loved ones.

"I saw two lifeboats," Puppe testified, "still clinging to the ship when she went over."

Describes Confusion

Quiros, a dapper figure in spats, with a new pearl grey hat resting on his knees, furnished some of the most dramatic moments of the afternoon. In broken English he described the confusion on the slanting deck of the Vestris Monday morning.

"Man I knew, a pugilist," he said, "came up to me and said: 'Things are getting bad. I just saw an officer pull a gun on a negro seaman, and the negro grabbed the gun and threw it into the sea.'

"Anyone with common sense," Quiros said, "would have sent an SOS from the Vestris more than 12 hours earlier than Captain Carey did."

Wallace Sinclair, one of the calmest witnesses, said the flares in his lifeboat were in a canister so rusted nobody could get it opened until a negro seaman finally chopped it open with a hatchet. No members of the crew in that lifeboat, he charged, knew where the flares were.

Herman Rueckert of Leipzig, Germany, a first-class passenger, gave a graphic picture of the way the ship lurched before the storm that struck it almost as soon as it got to sea.

Passengers Not Warned

The next morning he opened his cabin door to see a steward running by with a life belt on. "Should I also have a life belt?" he asked, and said the steward told him he might as well. That, he said, was all that was done by way of preparing the passengers to go overboard.

He got into a lifeboat, but it leaked so much that he jumped out and swam to another, which was rowed away from him. Then the boat he had been in sank. He said it was the roughest sea he had ever experienced and he had traveled widely.

The witness, Walter Soltz, a business man of Berne, Switzerland, testified in German through an interpreter. It was he who told of seeing a great hole in one of the boats into which women and children were placed.

The hole was knocked in the boat, he said, while the crew was getting it loose preparatory to lowering it. But the women and children were put in any way, and then left swinging in the davits, no one, he said, paying any attention to them until the Vestris sank and carried them all down with it.

Spitz himself got into a boat crowded to the guards, and as it was being lowered it turned over and all were hurled into the water.

War Is Art, Says Foch In His Book

PARIS, Nov. 15. (INS)—War is an art, according to Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies.

Pertinent utterances and writings of the great chieftain have been put in book form and entitled: "Words of a Soldier."

"A war is well conducted according to whether there is continuity in the ideas, methods and adaption of the rules of the art," he explains.

"Ancient warfare was sparing of the use of armed force, preferring ruses, menaces, negotiations, manoeuvres, skirmishes, occupation of territory and the capturing of isolated positions.

"Modern warfare, since Napoleon employs every means available for it knows but one argument—a strong blow.

"It is only after crushing the enemy in battle and routing him that there is time for discussion.

"Before strategy can be put into execution preparations must be made to launch an offensive under the best possible conditions; then, the battle won, a new strategical stroke can be planned but always with the same end in view—another battle."

SANTA ANA, Calif., Nov. 15. (AP)—Two alleged poachers on the California Gun club preserve near Seal Beach, were shot and killed late today in a gun battle with J. W. Montgomery, deputy sheriff and game keeper at the club. Reports to the sheriff's office here quoted Montgomery as stating that the men fired upon him when he ordered them from marshlands, in the club's duck hunting preserves.

Denver and Plains Road Sets Record

ed forward—62 miles to Bowie was completed in July, 1882, Wichita Falls, 114 miles was reached in September, 1883, to Harrold, 144 miles, in 1885, to Vernon, 163 miles, in 1886, to Clarendon, 276 miles, in October 1887, and to the state line at Texline, 453 miles, on January 26, 1888.

Through service from Fort Worth to Denver was inaugurated March 1, 1888. Thus it is seen that modern methods making for speed can accomplish far better construction in far better time.

The Wichita Valley railroad, from Wichita Falls to Seymour, was built in the early 90's. Later followed construction of the line from Seymour to Stamford and from Abilene to Stamford. Still later the line was extended from Stamford to Spur, Dickens county. It was not until 1923 that the Wichita Valley was extended northward from Wichita Falls to Waurika, Okla., which is just across Red river from Texas. In 1925 the Fort Worth and Denver City line was extended eastward from Fort Worth to Dallas.

Consolidation In 1890

The group of roads in Colorado and Texas composing the Colorado and Southern system has an aggregate mileage of about 2,000, of which about one-half is in Texas alone. Consolidation of lines composing the Colorado and Southern system was effected in 1890.

Originally the lines were known as known as the Union Pacific, Denver and Gulf, which was but an arm of the Union Pacific, one of the first transcontinental trunk lines.

The Union Pacific was reorganized and the Colorado and Southern was formed as the parent company, with the Fort Worth and Denver its arm in Texas. Later the Wichita Valley was added to the group.

Through purchase still later the Colorado and Southern obtained an outlet to the Gulf of Mexico. This was effected by joint purchase with the Rock Island of the Trinity and Brazos Valley railroad.

Burlington Parent Road

Watching over all these various roads and branches is the Burlington system. And through an alliance the Texas and Colorado lines are afforded uninterrupted service to and from the northwest over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, two great roads within themselves.

It was through the efforts of the Burlington system that construction of the Fort Worth and Denver and South Plains railroad was made possible. The Burlington system saw the possibilities of this territory heretofore untouched to a large extent by a railroad.

Connecting with the main line of the Fort Worth and Denver City at Estelline in Hall county the new line extends southwest 69 miles through Parnell, Tampico and Turkey in Hall county; through Quitaque in Briscoe county; through South Plains and Sterley in Floyd county ;thence southwest 54 miles to Lockney and Petersburg to Lubbock.

From Sterley another main line of the new road runs west through Plainview, in Hale county and thence northwesterly to Dimmitt in Castro county. A branch line extends 20 miles northward from Sterley to Silverton in Briscoe county.

First business over any part of the new road was handled Nov. 1, 1927, when a full line of carload freight rates to and from all points Quitaque and Turkey east was installed.

A full line or carload rates from and to all points on the new line were installed June 1, 1928, upon completion of the track laying. This was done to assist shippers in moving early crops, particularly wheat.

10 Agency Stations

Effective Nov. 1, 1928, agency stations handling carload and less-than-carload traffic were established at:

Turkey, Plainview, Silverton, Dimmitt, Petersburg and Lubbock. Quitaque, Hart, Lockney, Sterley.

Tracks for interchange of business between the F. W. & D. C. and the P. & S. F. railway have been completed at Lockney, and interchange tracks at Plainview and Lubbock will be completed within the near future.

The new line, with the exception of a small branch mileage, is a first class ballasted railroad and is expected from the very beginning to afford opportunity for growth of every character to this section of the biggest state in the union.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. They become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.—Adv.

Work, the report disclosed, will start soon on a $350,000 fireproof chapel building from $420,000 realized through subscriptions of Waco citizens. The proposed women's memorial dormitory may be started this year, he said, pledges for the project totaling $225,000.

Charity Discontinued

The latter reported that no charity cases were being accepted on account of support having been withdrawn by the Home Mission board due to misappropriation of funds by Clinton S. Carnes, former treasurer of the board at Atlanta, Ga.

Need of an endowment of not less than $1,000,000 was stressed by Dr. J. C. Hardy, president of Baylor college for Women, Belton, in a report filed earlier in the day.

Three thousand delegates to the convention rose to their feet to pledge their influnce in the greater Baylor campaign after a final appeal had been made by Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas.

The night program included a relief and annuity board report by Dr. T. J. Watts, Dallas, secretary; a digest of work at the Buckner Orphans home, Dallas, by Dr. Al Buckner, superintendent; and a report on the "Standard," Baptist publication, by F. M. McConnell, Dallas, editor.

TEXAS REPORTS LESS IDLENESS

Unemployment Declines in Month

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—Unemployment decreased in Texas during October, but a surplus of unskilled labor was still apparent at the close of the month, the federal labor department employment service reports.

Several lumber mills reported part time schedules, but the volume of employment in this industry increased. The majority of the textile mills operated full time and employed additional workers. A shortage of skilled textile mill labor was apparent in several sections.

Stone, glass and clay product plants, furniture factories, food and kindred products plants, leather tanneries, department stores, cottonseed oil mills and paper and printing houses employed additional workers. Woodworking plants, iron and steel mills, beverage plants and plants manufacturing oil well supplies curtailed their forces.

Sufficient building is under way in most localities to employ the resident craftsmen. There has been a large demand for cotton pickers with a shortage reported in many districts.

Summary in Cities

Following is a summary of the employment conditions in some of the cities:

Dallas—Although practically all plants operated on full time schedules, forces in the lumber and iron and steel mills and several smaller industries were curtailed. Textile mills and paper and printing establishments also released a number of workers. A fair volume of building is under way and resident craftsmen were steadily employed throughout October. Municipal improvements continued to employ a number of unskilled workers. A surplus of labor consisted principally of unskilled help, was apparent.

Houston—An upward trend in industrial activity was apparent during the month. All plants operated full time and additional workers were employed in the textile mills and furniture factories. The iron and steel mills and plants manufacturing oil well supplies released a few men. A surplus of unskilled factory labor was reported with a shortage of skilled workers apparent in some lines, including skilled cabinet workers. Sufficient building tradesmen were available for all demands. Cotton picking afforded employment to a large number of workers.

Fort Worth Report

Fort Worth—The lumber and textile mills, department stores, cottonseed oil mills and stone, glass and clay products increased their forces. Full time operations prevailed in most plants, but food and kindred products plants and the iron and steel industry reported some part time. New building permits are being issued and resident building tradesmen are assured of steady employment for some time to come. Road construction and the construction of a bridge totalling $4,700,000 cost, furnished employment to a large number of skilled and unskilled laborers. A shortage of cotton pickers was reported during the month. A surplus of unskilled labor exists.

San Antonio—The labor supply and demand were well balanced during the month except for a slight surplus of unskilled workers. All plants operated full time and additional workers were employed in food and kindred products plants, leather tanneries and railroad shops. The textile mills released some workers. Cottonseed oil mills, steel fabrigating shops and plants assembling machinery worked overtime. Sufficient building tradesmen for all demands.

Galveston—Full time schedules prevailed in the majority of the local industries; cotton compresses and warehouses engaged additional workers. Some laborers were released from the shipping terminals. Skilled workers were well employed; the surplus of labor apparent at the close of the month consisted principally of unskilled workers.

Cottonseed Oil Active

Texarkana — Plants manufacturing food and kindred products, beverages and the lumber mills reported part time schedules. The beverage plants and several miscellaneous industries curtailed their forces somewhat while cottonseed oil mills employed additional workers. A number of large building projects are under way with a supply of skilled labor and unskilled labor to equal the demands.

Waco—Lumber and textile mills, department stores, paper and printing establishments increased their forces. All plants reported full time schedules except one flour mill, which operated on part time basis. A shortage of skilled textile mill labor was reported. New building permits have recently been issued which, with the work already under way, insures employment for a large number of men for some time to come. A surplus of unskilled labor was apparent at the close of the month.

El Paso—The labor supply and demand were well balanced during the past 30 days. Additional workers were employed in several industries and practically all plants reported full time schedules. Woodworking establishments curtailed their forces somewhat. Sufficient building under way to employ the local tradesmen. A shortage of farm help was reported at the close of the month.

Beaumont—Except for a small surplus of chiefly transient workers, the local labor supply and demand were well balanced throughout October. Full time operations prevailed in practically all industries and the iron and steel mills increased their forces. Building includes the erection of several apartment houses, residences and a considerable amount of alteration and repair work. The harvesting of the rice, fig and cotton crops afforded employment to many workers.

"Married Life" Not Worth While

Blames Wives' "Nerves"

"Weak nerves," said a New York doctor recently, "in my estimation wreck more happily married lives than any other cause."

Besides making the sweetest disposition sour and irritable, nervousness is a terrible drain on your vital forces—it saps your youth and your strength and dulls your beauty. What a difference from the bright-eyed, vibrant girl he married. No wonder married life seems unbearable!

But you can get rid of your nervousness—speedily too—and become the steady-nerved, radiant woman you once were. Take a teaspoonful of Tanlac after meals and before going to bed and if it doesn't soon make a new woman of you—doesn't rid you of that tired, strained feeling—go back and get your money.

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to youth, health and happiness with this world famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

Texas People Favor Anti-Evolution Bill, Says Baptist Leader

DALLAS, Nov. 15. (INS)—A growing sentiment in Texas against the teaching of evolution in tax supported schools will result in an effort to obtain anti-evolution legislation during the next legislature, Rev. R. B. Key, of Corsicana, field representative of the American Anti-Evolution association, told the Texas Missionary Baptist association here today.

"The sentiment in Texas for such legislation is overwhelming," Key declared.

Key was unable to explain why only southern states have adopted anti-evolution legislation.

While it is not thought likely that endorsement of the anti-evolution legislation will be given by the association, leaders among the delegates expressed the opinion that the great majority of their church membership favored such action.

Vestris Captain Flayed in Gotham

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (UP)—New York newspapers, without exception, "played up" the criticism of the ship's crew and the bitterness of passengers in their accounts today of the Vestris disaster.

Headlines in huge black type, bore the words "Sea Murder," "Criminal Negligence," and "Cowardice."

The more sensational papers, carried the luridness to the greatest extent. The conservative New York Times, with the exception of one Washington dispatch about President-elect Hoover, devoted its first 15 pages entirely to the shipwreck story.

Almost every passenger aboard the S. S. American Shipper and the S. S. Berlin was cornered by reporters and persuaded to write a signed, eye-witness account. Front pages were covered with them. Some were vivid, accurate reports of the sinking—but many were only bitter, invective editorials in condemnation of Capt. William J. Carey, his officers and his men.

Accused in Slaying Says 'Yes, I'm the Man'

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 15. (UP)—Two witnesses at the murder trial of Jack Fortune pointed to the defendant and declared he was the murderer. Fortune interrupted the testimony to agree, "Yes, I'm the man." The state asks for death penalty.

SOUTH'S SPLIT IS CHERISHED

Hoover Bids to Keep Permanent Division

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President-Elect Herbert Hoover has taken his first step toward bringing about a permanent break up of the once solidly Democratic south.

In a letter to the Manufacturer's Record, Baltimore, made public tonight, Hoover pledged himself to assist in the economic developments of the South and also appealed to southerners to abandon their traditional Democratic attitude by declaring the time had come for the South to vote in national elections on the basis of current issues rather than past conditions.

His First Bid

This letter is regarded as the first overtures of Hoover toward building up the Republican party in the South as a follow-up of his victory in the four southern states of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Texas. Word came from Palo Alto today that Hoover is now considering establishing headquarters at some southern point after returning from South America. His plan would be to remain in the South while selecting his cabinet and preparing for his inauguration March 4.

Hoover's letter, dated Nov. 7, the day after election, and addressed to Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers Record, Baltimore, Md., said:

"I am profoundly appreciative of the extremely heavy vote throughout the South for Mr. Curtis and myself. I accept this vote, not as a personal tribute, but as an expression of a developing sentiment throughout the South in behalf of the things for which the Republican party has stood in this campaign; and while desiring to express to those who voted for Mr. Curtis and myself my profound appreciation of the honor thus done us, I want to make very emphatic that I give full credit to those who voted for my opponent for the sincerity and honesty of their convictions.

"I am not at all unmindful of the conditions which for years brought about the political solidarity of the South. I firmly believe, however, that the time has come when in all sections men and women should vote from their convictions as to conditions at the present time, and not based on things of former generations.

Diversity of Thought

"The safety of this country and its continued progress toward that exalted position for which providence seems to have destined it, can in my opinion be best served by a diversity of thought and action which will cause all of the voters of this country to recognize their individual responsibility to take part in every political campaign.

In every community and every state, as well as in national elections, all the people should recognize their duty to express their views on local, state and national affairs through the ballot box; and in such contests all bitterness of spirit should be wiped out. However strong may be convictions or issues before the public, these political contests should be waged in a spirit of friendly, active rivalry, but not in a spirit of bitter denunciation of any one party against the other."

Echo Gives Height

PARIS.—A new instrument, capable of recording the altitude of airplanes to within one foot of the ground, has been installed on French aircraft. The instrument is for use in foggy weather. An arrangement under the plane makes a series of explosions. Electric sound detectors pick up the echo from the ground and the height of the plane is gauged therefrom.

Last year nearly 2,000 airplanes were built in the United States.

Rheumatic Pains Yield to Capudine

Those who suffer from rheumatism will find that Capudine will greatly assist in the treatment by relieving the pain and reducing the fever and inflammation. Rheumatism is a serious disease and should have the attention of a good physician, but the patient should be made comfortable as suffering retards recovery. For this purpose nothing is safer or surer than Capudine. Being liquid, it acts almost instantly—much quicker than tablets and powders.

Capudine does not upset the stomach and contains no habit-forming drugs, yet it is more effective in relieving pain and high nerve strain. At all drug stores—30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (US)—The old-fashioned idea that all beautiful women are dumb and that women of the stage don't know anything except how to twinkle their toes, was circulated by women who were neither beautiful nor talented. It has been thoroughly dissipated, because the men, who liked the looks of the stage girls, have investigated and found that it was slander.

Then the women slipped the men the information that girls of the theater were all right to play with, but not to marry.

Well there are some pretty convincing records on hand of women of the stage who have made superior wives and mothers, business women and politicians, so that don't work either.

Don't let anybody tell you that beauty is a curse. Its nothing of the sort. It gets you a hearing, and the rest is up to you.

If women really believed what they have told their men, that beauty doesn't matter, they wouldn't be giving the beauty parlors millions every year in an effort to look like the stage beauties.

A plain woman says: "Dear, dear! Look at that little huzzy, with the thin stockings and those ridiculous high heels! Isn't it dreadful?"

Her husband looks at the girl with something like wistfulness. It cheers one to be with people who think that life is worth dressing for.

"The way she paints her lips! Isn't she dreadful?" says the snapdragon, who gives her hubby 50 cents a day for lunch money.

I know one actress who is as lovely as a flower, has a disposition that I'd give years of my life to possess, and, as difficult as it will be for some women to believe it, she is a home-body in every sense of the word. She has a home which is very happy, and she stays in it much of her time. The theater is a business for her, and she makes a fabulous income from her work. I never yet have heard anybody who knew her say an unkind thing about here. There just isn't anything to say. She is forever helping someone, and her sisters who are less successful receive allowances from her. She is better to her mother than any girl I ever knew, and she took her father on a pleasure trip with her, showing him the best time he ever had in his life.

And these pretty girls are so much kinder to the plain women than the plain women are to them.

It's true that many of the most successful women of their time have been decidedly homely, but altogether fascinating. But beauty is a joy forever and don't you men let any sour somebody tell you that it isn't. If you don't know, get some firsthand information. (But don't tell the women of the family where the suggestion came from).

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

So many scarfs! The one Cherie has twisted around her throat is of black and white silk joined in an angular fashion. The little sketch in the corner shows another new scarf of the same general variety, but this one is of imported knit wool with bars of orange and black and lemon yellow striped across it.

Fur scarfs, too. Cherie's is the big scarf originated by Schiaparelli. It's made of soft kid fur and is to be worn with the tailored frock or suit or coat that has no fur trimming. Dina is wearing a two-skin scarf of the baum marten and we only remark that two skins seem necessary this winter, whether fox or what have you?

Also, beside the scarfs there are the coat collars. All kinds of them. Hundreds of them and all different. Some years there won't be more than one smart way of putting the fur collar on a coat, but not this season. Cherie's black coat has a wide band of badger on a cape collar. This can droop over the shoulders or be drawn up under her chin. Dina's collar is another sort—of very dark racoon. Sue's coat has a gilet and high turned-over collar of Persian lace. This is decidedly new and is seen only on the straight slim coats that decline to have anything to do with this fashion for drapes and flounces. There are dozens more.

Men and Women About Alike But Males Have Advantage

The Mighty Male Has Achieved All the big Things in History Because He Had All the Advantages, Says Dorothy Dix, but the Time Has Come When He Must Look to His Laurels

I have a letter from a man who consumes many pages of good white paper in trying to prove now superior man is to woman. Oh, all right. All right. If it gives a man any pleasure to look down on a woman and swell out his chest and reflect upon how much bigger and stronger and wiser he is than she can ever possibly hope to be! It's an innocent diversion for an idle hour.

However, nothing seems to me more foolish than to argue the relative superiority of the sexes. Men excel in one way, women in another. Men have one admirable characteristic, women another. Men were created for one purpose in life, women another.

Which serves the better purpose in the world no human being knows. No hand is steady enough to hold the scales and weigh the sexes.

Taking them by and large, it seems to me that they were cut off the same bolt of cloth and are very much alike, with pretty much the same amount of brains, the same amount of virtue and original sin, and the same degree of weakness and strength.

However, my correspondent doesn't take this point of view, and in proof of the general superiority of the masculine sex to the feminine, he alleges, among their other shortcomings, that women have no creative power, that there has been no great woman inventor, and that even the household conveniences used by women were invented by men.

To this I reply, how about woman creating man? In every little, squirming, red-faced, squalling baby that she produces woman turns out the most marvelous piece of mechanism in the world.

Men have invented the telegraph and the telephone, the wireless and the radio, but outside of the legendary Frankenstein no man has ever been able to construct a creature that lived and moved and breathed and talked and walked and thought. Yet any kind of a little simple woman can do that.

Probably women never will invent things that will be the counterpart of submarines and battleships. They will always give their great creative energy to the manufacture of the human race, but does that prove them the inferior of men? Is the machine greater than its maker?

Once I heard another man hotly debating this same subject, and, as a clinching argument of the superiority of his own sex, he cried out:

"Woman has never produced a Shakespeare, a Milton or a Napoleon." "Who did then?" quietly asked a meek, feminine voice.

The contention that women show their lack of ability and intelligence because they have not been world leaders, as men have been, is ridiculous, because this present generation of women is the very first that has ever had the ghost of a show at doing things. It is as foolish as the contention that used to be made that women had not the ability to take a good education when every college door was shut to them.

Now that women have been given a chance at the higher education the complaint is not that they can't study like men, but that they are such persistent digs that they carry off most of the honors in the co-educational institutions.

My correspondent also thinks that there are no women Rockefellers, or Morgans, or Mellons shows the superiority of man over woman, and that women can't grasp the mighty principles of high finance.

How should they be able to do so when, until less than 50 years ago woman had no property rights, when the day she was married the law gave every cent she had to her husband to do with as he chose? To know how to make money you must handle money, and the woman of the past never had a dollar she could call her own, much less any money with which to do business.

The average woman probably couldn't run a trust, but if you give her $25 to spend she can get more out of it than her husband can out of $50. Why, the poor woman who pays the rent, and feeds and clothes a house full of children on $15 or $20 a week does stunts in juggling money that entitle her to be secretary of the treasury.

Moreover, the business woman of today—and don't forget women haven't been in business for more than 30 years yet—are giving a pretty good account of themselves. A lot of them have been sufficiently successful to convince their male competitors that home is the proper place for women.

In actual achievement we have had many women who made notable successes in every line, and what they have done is merely the prophecy of what women will do in the larger liberty of the future. Men had not accomplished much either in the days before they were granted an education, freedom to work and the right to self-government.

Of course, men are superior in some things and always will be. Prize fighting, for instance. When it comes to hammering a fellow creature to a pulp for amusement, man will always be the white hope. Likewise in the patient ability to stand for hours watching a blackboard where the baseball returns are chalked up man will always excel woman.

But it's men who neglect their teeth because they cower at the thought of the dentist chair, and its women who climb up with a smile on the operating table at a hospital, knowing they are going to be cut to pieces. And one Sunday afternoon of taking care of the children reduces a husky father to a nervous wreck, while a frail little mother does it seven days a week without turning a hair.

But it's silly to argue with man about his superiority. It's a harmless little vanity and it makes him very, very easy for a woman to work. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young woman 34 years old and have been married four years to my present husband. I was a widow with two small children and he was a widower with eight children. I am trying to raise our children together, but find myself in torment. My husband's children cause trouble between us and try to get the best of me in every way. My husband never wants me to go anywhere or have anything—everything is for his children. I have some relatives in California who say I could do well out there, so I am thinking of getting a divorce and going to them. What should I do?—DISCOURAGED WIFE.

Answer: I should think an insane asylum was the proper place for any woman who was rash enough to undertake a family of ten small children, and I expect one would seem a nice, calm retreat to you after what you go through every day.

But if your husband is kind to your children and provides for them and gives them a home you should try to reciprocate by making a comfortable home for his children. I do not advise you to stay if your step-children make life miserable for you, but if you have the courage to endure it for a few years you will find yourself in possession of the field, for it doesn't take long for children to grow up and marry and leave the home nest.—DOROTHY DIX.

School Legislation Needs Aid Of Public, Connally Tells Women

DENTON, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—Legislation to benefit Texas schools is of little avail without popular sentiment back of it., U. S. Senator-Elect Tom Connally of Marlin told the Texas Federation of Women's clubs in session here today.

He urged the women to work as diligently toward gaining this sentiment for or against legislation as they did toward having the laws passed or rejected by the legislature.

Mrs. Bob Barker of Fort Worth, in a report read to the convention, said that legislation will be submitted to the Texas legislature bettering school administration, providing for a law changing the method of choosing county school superintendents by popular vote to that of electing the superintendent by the board of trustees, seeking to amend the present laws referring to property rights of married persons, and for repeal of the evidence clause in the search and seizure law.

Mrs. Lee Joseph of Austin also announced that the federation will be asked to appoint a committee to serve with one from the state legislature for the consideration of measures for financial relief of the higher educational institutions of the state.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 15. (UP)—Short skirted school teachers were approved by Uel W. Lamkin of Marysville, president of the National Education association.

In an address before the convention of the Missouri Teachers association today he declared that there was no reason why teachers just because they were teachers, should be unlike anybody else, and there should be no objection to teachers wearing short skirts. SAN ANTONIO MAN AND 'RED HEAD' BRIDE REUNITED AFTER WRECK

TEXAS COUPLE LOST AT SEA

Girl Exhausted But Both Are Happy at Meeting

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (INS)—Two of the happiest young people in New York today were Mr. and Mrs. Cline Slaughter of San Antonio, Texas, who were rescued in separate ships from the lost liner Vestris and were reunited early today when Mrs. Slaughter arrived with the survivors on the Myriam.

Neither knew that the other had been saved until Slaughter sent a radiogram to the Myriam yesterday telling his worry-ridden wife he had been picked up by the American Shipper and was safe.

This joyous news added to the happiness of the pair when they embraced upon the pier early today.

Girl None the Worse

Mrs. Slaughter, a beautiful titian-haired girl of 21, passed through a harrowing experience and a narrow escape from death, but was none the worse today except for a cold. She and her husband are at the Commodore hotel.

"We expect to return home to San Antonio in a few days," Mr. Slaughter told International News Service. "We are not going to continue the trip South."

Mr. Slaughter, overjoyed to know that his wife had been snatched from a horrible death at sea, rushed to pier 8, Brooklyn, to be among the first to greet the refugee tug which had taken the survivors from the Myriam.

As this tug puffed up the harbor and slowly edged into the slip he was so excited he could scarcely stand still. Though the early morning fog and darkness he strained his eyes in an effort to pick out his wife from among the blurred figures upon the deck. He was close to the gangplank when the stragglers from the Vestris began to leave.

Suddenly he saw a slender figure in a brown coat with the two legs of a sailor's trousers showing beneath. But a head of flaming red hair gave him his cue.

"Hello, darling," cried the overjoyed husband.

Carries Her Bodily

He rushed up the gangplank, fighting his way through the crowd and grabbed his wife in his arms, carrying her into the pier shed.

Mrs. Slaughter's arms were around her husband's neck. Her answer to his greeting was whispered into his ear.

Mrs. Slaughter's frock which she wore when she was plunged into the water, was ruined. But a little thing like the loss of a gown was nothing in such a joyous moment.

"I am safe and my husband is safe and that is all that matters to us just now," exclaimed the wife.

Mrs. Slaughter was calm and collected, despite the horror through which she had passed.

"What do you think of these clothes, darling?" she asked her husband.

She had been supplied with a pair of white flannel trousers and a white flannel undershirt by the gallant captain of the Myriam. She wore silver slippers and no hat. One of the first things she did was to borrow a powder puff and powder her nose.

Separated on Sea

The Slaughters had been separated on the Vestris as the liner was sinking and the lifeboats were being lowered away. She was the last woman placed in a lifeboat, and this boat was swamped when the Vestris capsized and went down.

"I was thrown into the water in the midst of a lot of wreckage and there was so much confusion and excitement that I do not know what happened for a moment or two," said Mrs. Slaughter.

After floating in the water for five or ten minutes she was rescued by Second Officer Leslie Watson and taken aboard another life boat.

"While I suffered considerably from nervous and physical exhaustion when the ship sunk," she said, "I think I have suffered more from the fact that our rescue ship was unable to pick up a woman and baby we passed early last evening and whom we were unable to locate when the ship turned about to search for them. There was also the pleading eyes of a man wearing tortoise shell spectacles, whom we passed yesterday afternoon, but were unable to locate after we had put about to search for him.

Woolens Not So Bad

"I forgot to tell you that the French commander of the Myriam treated me like a father, and he not only turned over his cabin and clothing to me, but insisted that I sleep in his bed. He was a gentleman and hero. Of course, I was a little uncomfortable in his pajamas, as he is a little stout and wears woolens, which scratch a little.

"Well, to return to the story, I remember getting into a lifeboat with women, children and members of the crew, I think it was about 1:45 or 10 minutes of 2. It may have been half an hour later, but the crew could not budge the lifeboat, as it was stuck. They ran for a hatchet, then anything.

"Finally, women, children and crew left the boat I was in, but I stayed and my husband came running with lifeboats for both of us. I felt that we could get the boat away and that some one would come and help us do it, so I stuck to the boat while other boats were being lowered.

"The next thing I knew I was attempting to paddle feebly in the water and felt as though I had come back to life, or was being born again or something. My husband was some yards away, attempting to swim powerfully against a strong swell. But the sea was too much for him and he could not get near me.

"I was almost gone from exhaustion and the submersion of more than five minutes, and I am convinced it was at least that period before I came to the surface, for I must have gone down 20 feet, or perhaps more.

Floated 20 Minutes

"Finally after I was floating about for about 20 minutes, trying to get my breath and get the water out of my system, the second officer reached me and swam with me some yards toward No. 11 life boat, which was filled principally with the 27 negro members of the crew. I must say the negroes were good oarsmen, although I cannot explain the fact that there were no women or children in this boat, and I know nothing of how the crew got the boat. I do know they picked me up together with the second officer.

"I lay in the bottom of the boat, scarcely able to move and semi-conscious most of the time, and it was only the occasional shrill whistle of men blowing on their fingers to attract attention as they floated in the water, and the frenzied screams of women that aroused me from my state of exhaustion.

"We were in the lifeboat from about 3:30 Monday afternoon until 4:30 Tuesday morning, when we were picked up by the Myriam. I was carried aboard, I guess. There was a heavy sea run. The Myriam's crew assisted the Vestris' crew up the Jacob's ladder and treated them very hospitably.

"After we were picked up I can't say what happened for a considerable time because I was so exhausted. I woke in the captain's bed and was treated wonderfully by all of the officers and crew. No American officer or crew could have been more wonderful."

Mrs. Slaughter, after being met at the pier by her husband, who had been rescued by the American shipper, left in a taxicab with him, holding hands. They went to the Hotel Commodore.

States Carried By Hoover Expected To Be Insistent In Protection Demands

CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Just as the political landslide of 1920 brought about a revision of the tariff, resulting in the Fordney-McCumber law, the recent election will be followed by a demand on congress for general increase on many existing schedules. In the face of claims made for the tariff by President-elect Hoover and Vice President-elect Curtis as well as other leading Republican speakers during the campaign it is doubtful if these demands can be ignored.

With the exception of Massachusetts and Rhode Island every industrial state in the union was carried by the Republicans in this last election and a united demand can be made by all classes of manufacturers on the party for the fruits of victory. Industrial development in Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee and Texas is offered by the Republicans as one of the potent reasons why these normally Democratic states broke from their moorings and if so their producers and manufacturers may, with justice, demand a full measure of protection for their products.

Farmers Insistent

The farmers of the Middle West also were told that a higher tariff would go a long way towards solving their problems and their leaders may be expected to insist that for the loyalty of these states to the party they should be given everything in the way of protection that a revision of the tariff will afford.

Party leaders now in Washington do not anticipate that this drive for a general revision of the tariff will be undertaken at the short session now impending. In the first place this is the "lame duck" session and the Republicans will not be in the impregnable position they will occupy after March 4. Then, too, the preparation of a general tariff bill is not to be undertaken when there is but a limited time available and it is deemed far better to wait and so maneuver legislation as to compel President-elect Hoover to call the promised extra session immediately after his inauguration. Once summoned in extra session the leaders in congress will be in a position to take their own time over the bill, recessing if necessary to permit the committee to complete its work, and when the bill is submitted resolutely refusing to adjourn until it is passed.

Hard to Evade

It has been suggested by some high in the confidence of the incoming administration that Mr. Hoover would prefer not to have this tariff issue forced upon him during the "honeymoon" of his first term. However, it is going to be difficult for him to evade it, particularly so if he calls congress into extra session and this he is pledged to do unless farm relief is provided at the short session. With the divergent views as to what actually constitutes adequate farm relief it does not seem likely that congress can enact a measure acceptable to President Coolidge and pass necessary supply bills before March 4.

It has been intimated here that the president-elect would prefer to make use of the flexible tariff provision in the existing law during the first few months of his administration. Under this present tariff schedules may be raised or lowered a maximum of 50 per cent by executive proclamation. His friends feel this would take care of all emergency cases wherein tariff inequities are charged. However, the high tariff advocates do not relish this idea. They insist the United States tariff commission works too slowly and is without power to increase the rates as much as many of them contend is necessary. Moreover, recourse to the tariff commission doesn't afford opportunity for what Governor Smith called "log-rolling and back scratching," a process which in times past has made tariff revision very profitable to certain highly protected industries.

Bishop Reminds Applicants For Ministry That They Shouldn't Smoke

RANGER, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—Bishop John M. Moore today asked if applicants for admission to the ministry were being queried by examining committees as to whether they used tobacco, and, in an address at the Central Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, urged that there be no laxity in this respect.

"We have heard much of late about law enforcement," he said, and will hear more of it in the future. There is no use of a preacher bootlegging tobacco while contending for law enforcement, for if you use it you are violating your own law."

Bishop Moore referred to the action of the convention in 1914 when a pledge was adopted not to use tobacco.

RANGER, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Central Texas Methodist conference heard of plans for the opening of the Fort Worth Methodist hospital and its operation from the Rev. C. Q. Smith, hospital commissioner, today at the second session of the conference here.

Bishop John M. Moore and his cabinet stayed in session yesterday afternoon and part of the evening preparing pastorate assignments.

Except a man be born from above he cannot see the Kingdom of God. —John iii:13.

It is useful to have spiritual teachers; and if they be wise, it is wise to listen reverently to them; but their lessons have not been successful until the learner has gained an eye for seeing the truth; and believes no longer because of his teacher's word, but because he has an anointing from the Holy One, and knoweth all things.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A sword swallower, who was "laying off", got into a thirst emporium in the hefty Fifties and was entertaining the patrons by swallowing knives, and being entertained by swallowing their drinks. He was performing with a 9-inch knife when it accidentally dropped down his throat and continued until it reached his stomach. He was rushed to a hospital where an operation was performed and the cutlery removed. He claims it was the liquor and not the knife that caused him the pain, as he has been doing this particular trick for years and has never suffered the slightest distress.

An advertising copy writer, one of the highest paid in the profession, is most exacting in producing ads. While his work is labored and studied, it does not read that way. He has been known to write and rewrite an ad as many as 20 times before being satisfied with his efforts. As he serves a number of clients, his writings are voluminous and his waste basket often overflows before the day is done. Recently, he was approached by a contemporary, who has accounts that are not so particular, with the propostion to sell him the waste basket privilege.

The 14th Street Market, which is at 14th Street and Hudson river, is unusual in that it is only open from 3 to 7 a. m. It is here that hotel and trades people buy green groceries. It is a busy place during these hours and is always crowded. In the immediate vicinity can be found restaurants, speakeasies and whatnot. You will frequently find those who labor, recreating after 7, and at 9, many are doing midnight stuff. Some of the alleged society crowd have invaded this section for a lark and found it quite jolly. Perhaps, this will develop into the latest fad. Gotham has had many.

Thousands of dollars have been spent by collectors for single specimens of postage stamps, millions have changed hands for a piece of painted canvas and some persons collect snuff boxes. Whatever it is that grips the collector the result is complete and the victim for that time on ceases to be a normal human being and becomes a collector.

Everything is sacrificed in the pursuit of the hobby but rarely does the enthusiasm of the addicts carry them as it carried one man who was seen on Nassau street during a recent lunch hour.

In Nassau street is a store that sells postage stamps, not the useful ones that will carry a letter through the mails, but used stamps that are useless, except to the collector and the man who sells to the collector. In front of the store is a glass case that reaches nearly to the sidewalk and is filled with specimens of stamps.

The collector who was observed was past his first youth and so were his clothes. But his enthusiasm was as young as ever. He saw the glass case and in the corner at the very bottom was a specimen that attracted his attention. In spite of the crowd that surged around him he dropped on his knees to get a closeup of the stamp. But that didn't satisfy him. He drew from his pocket a large and carefully kept magnifying glass and with his face almost on the ground and a curious and not very complimentary crowd around him, he studied the stamp intently for nearly 15 minutes.

Injured Dancer Leaves Hospital

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 15. (UP)—Nearly three and one-half months after his airplane nosedived into a beet patch at Groton, Fred Stone left the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals here today.

His dancing legs were wrapped in bandages. He left the hospital in a wheelchair.

"I said I wouldn't leave the hospital until I could walk out," the comedian declared. "Well, I had to change my mind a little. But I'll be on my feet again in a few weeks."

The 100,000,000 Facing Starvation in China

CHINA is a long way from the United States. Therefore, the news that 100,000,000 people are facing possible starvation in four provinces of central and southern China doesn't affect us as it ought.

Not all of these people will die, of course. But enough to populate three or four cities the size of Chicago probably will. When famine descends on the overpopulated Chinese interior there ensues a period of appalling misery, in which those who are neither lucky nor strong go under.

But China, after all, is a long way off. Its people are not like our people. Their skins and features are different. It is hard to make their sufferings seem real. In addition, we share Cain's doubt that we really are our brothers' keepers.

However, this one thing is worth noting. In the year 1928, when we read of such a thing as this Chinese famine, we at least have a slight pricking of the conscience. We feel vaguely that we ought to do something about it; and if somebody starts to collect a relief fund, a good many of us probably will subscribe to it. And that slight, casual measure of sympathy is of vast importance.

For the ability to sympathize with someone you have never seen before is relatively a new thing in the world. The race has not always had it. It is only a few centuries since people could go unmoved even by a tragedy in a town 10 miles away. "Every man for himself" is the oldest slogan on earth; it is only recently that men have begun to rise above it.

Little by little, a change is in progress. Many years ago the word "brotherhood" was dropped into a quarreling world. It was ignored, at first. It could not be heard above the battle cries of sweating legions and the roars of ignorant city mobs. But it was a word that would not be rubbed out. It persisted; and, in the course of centuries, a few men began to give heed to it.

Little by little it seeped downward. It was scoffed at, ignored and denounced; but the word had a sheen and a glitter that always drew men back to it. Slowly it became, instead of just a word, a great ideal; an ideal that few people even tried to live up to, but an ideal, nevertheless, that became a part of the heritage of the race.

It's still a long way from realization. None of us will lose any sleep over the prospective starvation of 100,000,000 Chinese. But the mere fact that the news got into our papers at all is significant. Our futile, uneasy feeling that we ought to do something about it means a good deal.

It means that we are progressing along the road to our ideal.

The Kiss Slayer

A NEW YORK high school boy goes to call on a 15-year-old girl. She tries to kiss him. He seizes her, snatches up a length of electric light cord, and chokes her to death. Now he awaits trial on a charge of first degree murder.

The district attorney calmly announces that he will ask for the death penalty.

"The state," declares this official, "is not interested in reference to the boy's supposed abnormality. He was absolutely sane when he committed the crime to which he has confessed."

On the face of things, one might almost be forgiven for supposing that any lad who strangled a girl to death merely because she tried to kiss him is, without question, somewhat off mentally. To say that a perfectly normal, balanced mind would have reacted in that way is to talk utter nonsense.

Yet, at the same time, the attitude of the district attorney can be understood. A murderer's first act on being arrested nowadays is to yell for an alienist. Many a scoundrel who richly deserved hanging has gone scot free because some psychiatrist interpreted his dream life for a credulous jury.

The tragedy of the situation is that our boasted advancement, with all its fine knowledge of medicine, its scientific research, its painstaking efficiency, seems utterly powerless in the face of mental disturbances. We can cure many of the ills of the body, but when it comes to the ills of the mind we are little better off than the witch hunters of Salem.

A high school boy who would kill a girl who tried to kiss him is, obviously, suffering from some profound mental trouble. Yet we know of no cure. We know of no way of finding it out in advance so that we can protect ourselves. We do not even seem to have any certain way of getting scientific agreement on whether or not he actually is legally responsible.

It is the old story over again—the story of the Leopold-Loeb case, of the Hickman case. Half a dozen respectable alienists arise and say that a murderer is perfectly sane and accountable; half a dozen others, equally respectable, arise and say that he is not. Meanwhile we are left defenseless. There are, according to psychiatrists, thousands of men at large today who are apt, at any moment, to break out just as inexplicably as this New York boy did; but we cannot protect ourselves.

The field of abnormal psychology is a large one, and thus far it has been, apparently, poorly explored. It would seem that the country's crying need is for accurate, scientific knowledge of it. Our doctors know a good deal about such physical ailments as typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox. Cahnot they do as well in the matter of mental disturbances?

PAINTED POLES

Telephone engineers are broaching the idea of painting telegraph and telephone poles to match the color scheme of their surroundings. COUNTY NEEDS NEW JAIL

The need of a new jail structure for housing and taking care of Grayson county prisoners was pointed out in a recent report of the grand jury. Details were given in the report to show that the improvements needed could not be met by repairing the present structure. Because of the lack of facilities to care for juveniles and the insane awaiting admission into state hospitals, the matter was declared as warranting immediate attention.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

CHARACTERS

GERANE, only daughter of
JONIFER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

She catches up with the rear guard and proceeds with it.

Julius Broadaxe, one of her father's trusted lieutenants, takes her to him. He is so delighted to know that she is safe that he forgets to punish her.

The COUNTESS KATRANE JABASSY, her husband and a small band of confederates, all of whom live quietly in Edelweiss. Least of all does any one suspect the relationship between the countess and the bandit chief, who were separated as children, after a political upheaval involving their family. The Countess Katrane, learning that a rich merchant, Leopold Mathias, is to pass through the forest with a fortune in gems that are destined for sale in the capitals of Europe, sends the information to her brother.

She is so touched by his plight that she emerges from the thicket in which her father has hidden her and commands the bandits to release him. Since she is dressed as a boy, Captain Starcourt believes her to be a member of the band and he is greatly surprised to learn that she is the chieftain's daughter.

The raid, having been set for Gerane's birthday, to provide suitable gifts for her, adds many priceless articles to her already large store of beautiful things. But she thinks more often of the young captain that she does of her new possessions.

She grows pale and listless, and an old servant, knowing that she has fallen in love with the soldier, prevails upon Jonifer to give her some diversion. He arranges to take her to see some festivities at Digman's Inn.

CHAPTER XI

And so it came to pass that the next afternoon Gerane, peering from a window overlooking the courtyard, witnessed the arrival of four or five sleighs drawn by spirited four-horse teams. Bells jingled, drivers shouted stable boys scurried, and there was such a clamor that the wide-eyed observer was bewildered.

Edelweiss, whence came these pleasure-seeking men and women, lay more than 50 miles to the southeast. French horses had been taken on at the military post some six or seven leagues from Digman's Inn, and the course over the road that skirted the foothills had been covered in less than five hours.

Gerane watched one after another of the sleighs draw up before the portals of the inn.

Her keenest interest was for the rosy-faced, laughing women who were assisted in alighting by gallant gentlemen who—but she could not stir up much enthusiasm over the men. Not one of them could compare with the captain of dragoons. There were two or three tall fellows, to be sure, but, even so they were by no means as handsome or as—but, then who could be?

The women were gay, vivacious, sprightly; most of them were pretty and, with two noticeable exceptions, quite petite. She herself was taller than any of the women in the valley, save Matilde, but—and there was something wistful in her calculations—was she as tall as either of these stately dames? Would any one be likely to mistake them for slim, boyish "young sirs," if he came upon them in the uncertain light of early morn, dressed as she had been?

She was still sitting at the window, long afterward, when her fathered entered.

"Come, Gerane," said Jonifer. She started violently. "It is time to go to supper."

"How you frightened me," she exclaimed, springing to her feet.

He drew back, astonished. "Now, by all—come, come, my dear; this will never do. Frightened? By me?"

"But I have never been in such a tight place as this before," she broke in, with a little laugh. "Oh, how big and strong you are, father," she went on, cuddling close to him. "Who could be afraid with you about?"

Jonifer was pleased. He held her close.

"Be not afraid, my lamb." Then, as if on second thought: "But light the candles. You must make yourself pretty—"

"I am ready, father. No one will notice the little peasant girl over in the corner." She drew his head down and kissed him. "Oh, how good you are to let me come."

A gong pealed dully in some remote corner of the old inn.

"Heaven save us! Is—is it a danger signal?" Gerane whispered.

Jonifer chuckled. "Aye, so it is. It means peril to all those gentlemen of Edelweiss. It means dismay to all their ladies." He spoke with pardonable boastfulness. "Because, my dear, they are about to behold you, for the first time—and heaven help them all."

Whereupon Gerane, with the perversity of her sex, decided, after all, to light the candles. Her father watched her with admiration as she took stock of herself in the glass. Her gaze caught his and she smiled back—a wistful, little smile that caused his heart suddenly to contract. From the bottom of his soul he wished it were possible to take her in before all these strangers, arrayed like the queen of Sheba—he could think of no one else in all history so splendid as that wellsung lady—but, alas, that satisfaction was denied him. He sighed deeply. But, thought he, the time would come when she could strut among these peacocks.

"Am I all right, father?" she asked, when she was ready?

"Never in all my life," vouchsafed he, "have I seen a maiden so fair as this farmer's daughter who—who is about to blow out the candles. Come, my dear—blow them out. And remember, you are a country lass and I am an honest yokel in his 'best market-day clothes'."

"With a pair of pistols tucked inside his coat," said she gaily, and blew out the candles.

Except for a couple of strangers, peddlers, no doubt, they were the first to enter the salle a manger, taking their seats at a table just inside the door. Jonifer wanted to be near the exit. The room was not a large one, accommodating three or four small tables at either end and a long, narrow board in the center, arranged to seat a number of people. The small tables were set with simple china dishes, pewter-ware and copper tankards. There was a lighted candle on each of these tables; huge brass lanterns hung from the walls of the room. The center table contained the best that the inn afforded in the way of plate, china, pottern and napery.

Jonifer and his daughter sat down at the old table in the corner and waited. They could hear men's voices in the tap-room, just beyond the big fireplace that faced the long center table. Now and then, the guffaws of one of the Digmans could be heard above the comparatively feeble laughter of the gentlemen.

Presently the party from Edelweiss appeared. There was much laughter and bustle as they found their places at the long table; and jovial shouts brought three or four tardy ones from the tap-room.

First of all, Gerane's eyes sought out the two tall men she had observed in the courtyard. She did not know whether to feel disappointed or relieved by the discovery that neither of them was the unforgettable captain of dragoons. The women were a real disappointment to her. She had expected to find them gorgeously gowned; instead, they were attired in what seemed to her to be most unattractive, rough-looking costumes. It was some time before she was able to reconcile herself to the fact that they had come to Droon Forest for no other purpose than to hunt.

True, there were many bright, gaudy colors distributed among the collection of belted blouses, but, even so, Gerane was not dazzled. The men were decidedly more worth while, in her eyes. They were, on the whole, a dashing, clean-looking lot, and they wore clothes that left the robber's daughter in no doubt as to their standing in Edelweiss. With half an eye, she could see that they were "nabobs," (Jonifer's term) and was duly, but not profoundly, impressed.

She took to eyeing the women covertly. There was an air about them, a certain ease and assurance, that stamped them as "ladies of high degree." There could be no doubt about that.

There was a great deal of merriment at the long table. The servitors practically ignored the other four guests of the inn in their endeavors to please the "nabobs" and their companions.

Suddenly it dawned upon Gerane that many a masculine eye was regarding her with interest. She felt her cheeks grow warm; an ominous frown darkened her eyes as she lowered them—and finally she kept them lowered all the time, for it was not long before men were turning their heads to stare at her and women were following their example. Under her breath she spoke to her father:

"They are all looking at me. Do you think they recognize me? Shall we get out?"

Jonifer grinned. "Rest assured, my girl. They do not know who you are, but they will never forget you. When you take your place among them, they will remember cases have been tried to determine you as the girl they saw here with her uncle, a respectable farmer who is escorting her to the railway, after the visit she has paid him and his family."

It was not long before men were turning their heads to stare at her and women were following their example.

"What is that you say? My uncle? I do not understand you."

"Take a sip of wine, my dear," he urged, in a low tone. "Act as unconcerned as possible. That's better. Aye, your uncle—that is who I am, for the time being. And you are the daughter of my dead wife's brother. At least, that is what the Digmans are instructed to say when questions are asked. You may be sure that questions are being—see? That fellow at the head of the table is asking old Tammas who you are."

"But, father, I do not—"

"It would not be meet for you to say to these people, when you go among them in all your silks and satins and jewels, that the man they saw with you is your father. You will say to them that he is your uncle. You will say to them, and so will your Aunt Katrane, that your father was a rich gentleman of Silesia and that he died and left you all his—"

"I refuse! I refuse to—" she began. She had caught the wistful, beaten look in her father's eyes.

He checked her with a low, "Sshh! Time enough to discuss all this, and in a less public place. It is my plan. I am not a tyrant, however. The decision will rest with you, my dear."

"My mind is made up now," she muttered.

"Certainly," said he calmly. "And you can change it as easily as any other woman."

Gerane shook her head and smiled. She dismissed the subject and gave her thoughts to the banqueters.

But before long she began to lose interest in the scene. It was rather tiresome, merely looking on like this. Besides, it was past her bedtime. She yawned.

"I am awfully tired and sleepy father," she murmured.

"Have you had enough of this?"

"Alas, I fear so. That is to say, I've had enough for tonight."

"Then, off to bed you go."

He called for his account and conducted her from the room.

"Get what sleep you can," he whispered. "We must be away from this place before dawn."

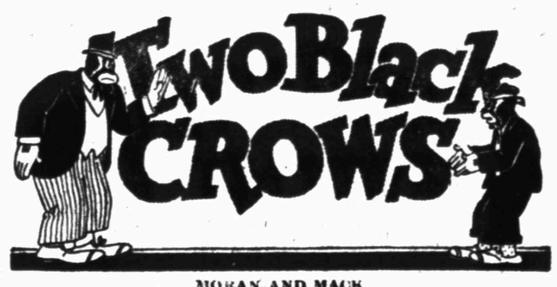

Shortly before 5 o'clock the next morning, two figures stole out of the inn and moved swiftly across the courtyard to the direction of the stable. One was tall and carried a bundle, while the other, much shorter, walked with mincing steps. They entered the stable and moved quickly to a certain spot in the rear wall. Their movements were swift, cautious, for they knew that in the mow overhead several strange hostlers were sleeping. The tall one moved a heavy plank to one side, revealing a narrow aperture in the wall, through which the short one passed, to be immediately followed by the other. Then the plank slip quickly back into place.

In a far corner of the long carriage-room there was a stir. A man who had been lying on a pile of sacks near the foot of the ladder leading to the mow scrambled to his feet. Then, with a muttered ejaculation of incredulity, he advanced to the place where the figures had magically vanished into what looked to be the most solid of walls. He lighted a match and held it close to the timbers and—

A noise behind caused him to turn. The next instant the huge hand of Seege Digman smote him full upon the back of the neck. He went down as if struck by a sledgehammer. His neck was broken. Seege carried him over to the foot of the ladder and dropped him. All that day his fellows talked in subdued tones about the fate of poor Jakob, who fell and broke his neck while walking in his sleep.

Gerane, unaware of the grewsome tragedy that had taken place while she waited not 10 feet away until her father lighted a lantern, went home in a vastly more contented frame of mind. Her father was delighted. She was more like herself—the old self—than she had been in weeks. But, if he could have seen her looking at herself in the mirror, not once, but many times that day, his delight would have been tempered somewhat by the uneasy conviction that she had become vain, all of a sudden. However, he could not have sensed the cause of her secret exultation. Behind it lay the discovery that she was, after all, rather good-looking—quite surprisingly so, in fact, if any one of those women at the inn was to be accepted as a standard.

MORAN AND MACK

Moran—College football ain't what it USED to be.
Mack—No sir, it ain't what it USED to be. And it never WAS.
Moran—I don't understand THAT kind of talk.
Mack—That makes us even.
Moran—Even WHAT?
Mack—Even WORSE.
Moran—I say college football ain't what it USED to be and you say it never WAS. That sounds foolish.
Mack—So is college football.
Moran—I think if ONE of us stopped talking we would understand each other better.
Mack—YOU could stop talking right now and you wouldn't hurt the conversation NONE.
Moran—Thanksgiving Day falls on a Thursday this year, don't it?
Mack—Yes, but what day does a TURKEY fall on?
Moran—Looks like WE is going to eat our turkey in jail.
Mack—That's the ONLY way to be SURE of it.
(Moran remembers that the Two Black Crows had their last turkey in jail. Well, when there's bars on the window your bird can't fly away. However, the Two Black Crows are looking for a nice cornfield. If they can't get turkey they will take chicken. And if they can't get chicken, they will take both).

Kansas City Bank May Be Reopened

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 15. (INS)—Negotiations for reorganization of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land bank under way between committees representing stock and bond holders may result in reopening of the bank, it was learned here today.

The bank is now being slowly liquidated by a receiver. During the receivership $5,536,718.20 of the banks assets have been liquidated. Farms in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Illinois with a total acreage of 124,248 are now owned by the bank as a result of foreclosures. Their book value is $4,859,723.33.

Assets of the bank also include loans of $32,895,781 not due, and nearly a million dollars in process of foreclosure.

Negro Slayers of Druggist Apprehended

CHICAGO, Nov. 15. (UP)—Within 15 minutes after three negroes held up and killed a druggist here last night, they were captured, had confessed to that killing and another, and were booked for both murders.

Peter Lucas, 45, was killed last night in his South State street drug store by the three negroes, Morgan Swan, 22, Napoleon Glover, 19, and Van Dontareax, 22, when he offered resistance.

A squad of police was on the trail in a few minutes and ran down the trio in an apartment house.

Ship With No Wireless Was Near Vestris

BOSTON, Nov. 15. (UP)—One of the bits of iroky attached to the Vestris disaster came to light with the arrival here from Porto Rico of the sugar steamer, Montoso.

Officers of the Montoso estimated their ship was only about two hours sailing distance from the Vestris when the SOS went out.

Having no wireless equipment, the Montoso remained ignorant of the Vestris' plight.

Rival Factions in Seminole Break Even

WEWOKA, Okla., Nov. 15. (UP)—The Homer Bishop-Judge George C. Crump factions broke even in the election in Seminole county. Bishop was re-elected county attorney, and Joe Poteet, bailiff for Crump, was elected sheriff.

Bishop defeated John W. Robertson by six votes, and Poteet defeated Allen Crain by 15 votes.

A PASSING FACE

I saw him in a crowded street,
The man that I would like to know;
That face belongs among my friends—
The friends I love and cherish so.

And yet, perhaps 'tis just as well
That he and I chanced not to meet;
Perhaps it saved us hurts and pains;
Perchance it saved a sad heartbeat.

Our lives are cast; their way is made;
Some fast and gay, some sad and slow;
And still I cannot help regret
That passing face I'd like to know.

Little Green Capsules Stop Rheumatic Agony

Results in Five Days or Money Back

The fame of the little green capsule, because of its canny power to speedily stop the terrible rheumatic pains that make life almost unbearable, is rapidly spreading all over America.

You go about conquering your merciless rheumatic enemy in a different way—a knock-out way. You take one tiny capsule each hour for the first 10 hours—then relief comes.

The second day, take one every two hours for 14 hours—Then take four little green capsules every day until every little twinge and every bit of tenderness is gone and your rheumatic troubles have ceased.

The little green capsule now so much in demand from coast to coast must have a name so it is known in every worthwhile drug store in America as Allenrhu Number 2.

Allison's Drug store says these little wonder-working capsules must banish all pain and torture in five days or money cheerfully refunded. —Adv.

DEMOS ARE FAR FROM HOPELESS

Leaders at Capital Don't Talk of Bolting

By PAUL R. MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (UP)—Democratic leaders from all parts, and of all factions, assembling here for the opening of congress, are manifesting no chagrin at the political outlook of the party.

Generally they are not talking about reorganizing or overthrowing, but on the other hand they speak both publicly and privately of building up from the 14,500,00 vote basis, provided by their presidential candidate, Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Let Matters Stand

For the present, the leaders indicate they will leave matters as they are. No active campaign work will have to be undertaken until the congressional campaign of 1930 and this will involve no activity on a national scale. The national sentiment of the party will not be tested until 1932 when the presidential primaries are to be held.

There is no concerted demand among the congressional representatives here on the scalp of John Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. His activities were criticized by anti-Smith groups and others in some states of the south. Some demands have been made for his resignation, but the Smith people say he does not contemplate resigning."

Must Hold Gains

Most of the Democratic senators who have returned thus far have expressed belief that the party is in better shape now than it was after the John W. Davis defeat of 1924. It gained large numbers of votes in cities, usually Republican and its leaders do not profess to be worried by the bolting of Florida, Virginia, North Carolina and Texas. These states will be found voting the Democratic ticket in 1932, they contend. What is needed now is to hold and increase the gains made in the popular vote of Republican strongholds, they say.

"We have framed the background of a real party," Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, told the United Press. "Now if they will only stand by it. Prohibition? Do you think we would have received the vote in the large cities that we did get if it was not for our liberal stand on prohibition?"

"It's too early to talk about reorganizing the Democratic party," said Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas. "I believe we are in excellent shape to wage another good fight four years from now."

The southern Democrats generally say they do not expect Smith to be renominated in 1932, but that they believe a westerner probably will be chosen.

He's Carrying Right On

Jim Duncan at Suresnes cemetery.

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Jim Duncan still is "carrying on" over here this tenth year after the signing of the armistice.

Lots of Americans will remember Jim. He began to win fame a score of years ago as a discus thrower and some of his performances still stand in the record books, notably that of world's champion with two hands. He was at the top of his form in 1912, both in the American championships, and later in the Olympic games at Stockholm. His smiling face and Irish wit made him a great favorite among track and field athletes in those old days.

When America declared war Jim enlisted and served with distinction, reaching the grade of sergeant. After the armistice he remained in France in the interest of athletics and later entered the government service. In 1922 he was appointed superintendent of Suresnes cemetery, where 1,508 American soldiers lie buried on a beautiful hillside overlooking Paris.

His hair is just as tousled, but it is growing grey, and the discus-throwing champion can be seen only in the square shoulders, strong hands, and supple movements of the body as this veteran devotes his energies to the care of his buddies' graves.

At heart Jim Duncan hasn't changed. He has the same smile and ready wit, and he never worked harder trying to break records than he has done during the past six years trying to make Suresnes cemetery perfect. When he escorts visitors through the cross-lined lanes he won't talk athletics.

In his private life Jim's greatest joy is his family. He lives in a government cottage beside the cemetery with his French wife and their three children.

HOOVER PLANS TOUR SPEECHES

President-Elect to Talk To Southern Peoples

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 15. (AP)—Going to Latin-America as a plenipotentiary of peace and good will, Herbert Hoover will interpret the character of his mission in addresses which he will deliver in each of the republics he will visit on his two months' tour.

The president-elect already is outlining some of these speeches, the first of which may be made at Corinto, Nicaragua, now tentatively fixed as the first port of call after the battleship Maryland leaves San Pedro next Monday. He would be welcomed to Corinto by President Diaz.

A speech in this Central American republic would afford an opportunity for the president-elect of the United States to indicate the policy his administration would pursue in dealing with situations such as arose in Nicaragua and resulted in the landing of marines to police the country.

With Corinto as the first port on the tentative schedule for the west coast voyage, the others are Balboa, Canal Zone; Callao, Peru, and Valparaiso, Chile. Others may be added, however, as Colombia, Equador and Bolivia are urging upon the state department that they be included in the call.

With the possible exception of Santiago, Chile, Mr. Hoover plans to spend only 24 hours in each of the capitals where he will call. The schedules probably will be so arranged that he will arrive in each early in the day and leave late at night.

That Must Be It

America Will Have to Get Along With George Bernard Shaw, He Says

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

BERLIN, Nov. 15. (US)—"America will have to be satisfied with a talking movie of me. I shall never go there."

Thus declares George Bernard Shaw in an interview in the Vossische Zeitung.

"During the last 40 years it has always been publicly stated that I wanted to go to America," said Shaw. "I never even thought of it, but people continue to believe it. Hundreds of hospitable Americans try to arrange my trip. They offer me their beds to sleep in and their automobiles to travel in. They prepare enormous public meetings for me and will continue to do so until my death.

"Then they will probably hold special spiritual seances for me, probably with the same success."

Asked what he thought about the United States of Europe, Shaw said:

"I believe the United States of Europe will have a greater future than the United States of the entire world which Geneva is striving to achieve. The United States of North America, already in existence, represents a real league of nations. Nations can form successful alliances but they cannot fuse if they are not of the same kind, psychologically speaking.

"The British Empire already threatens to abandon the idea of Geneva in the East, while the western part of the empire remains firmly tied to Geneva's aspirations.

"Even in Europe the psychological differences between the North and South of the Danube, could bring about two European leagues of nations.

According to my opinion an alliance of the world is far easier to bring about than the fusion of the world."

British India has 600 movie theaters.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

WETS WIN IN NEW ZEALAND

Prohibition Defeated By 100,000 Votes

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Nov. 15. (AP)—Prohibition has been defeated by a majority of about 100,000 in a referendum held in connection with the triennial parliamentary election.

The question put to the voters was whether they favored continuance of prohibition or whether a licensing system should be adopted. The majority favored the adoption of a licensing system.

(In the last triennial election in November, 1925, prohibition received 319,450 votes, national continuance of a limited licensing system, 299,484, and state purchase and control 56,043. In 1914 prohibition was defeated by a large majority, and was defeated again in a referendum held in 1919 after a recount of the soldiers' votes overcame an earlier lead held by the prohibitionists).

GORDON'S Stops Digestive Troubles

The greatest obstacle to permanent relief from indigestion and its attendant ills—dyspepsia, gas, excess acid, bloating, heartburn, sour stomach, that "tired feeling", constipation, bad breath, sick headache, irritability, etc., is fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels) which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic.

Gordon's (named for its discoverer) being an internal antiseptic combined with the most effective digestants, goes right to the seat of digestive troubles. It stops fermentation, soothes and heals any irritated or inflamed condition, drives out the poisons and quickly stimulates the stomach and bowels to their normal functions. A few doses will convince you. A large 8-ounce bottle, $1.50—less than 3 cents a dose. At druggists.

Furniture store now located on Tenth street.

The 50x150 foot building being erected at 922 Indiana avenue by Perkins and Timberlake will be ready before Jan. 1 for the use of Silver's variety store.

Transfer of the one story brick building at 508-510 Indiana avenue occupied by the Wichita Wholesale Grocery company to Jess E. Hunt was also announced Thursday. The sale was made by W. S. Gullahorn and others at a consideration of $21,000.

Homes Purchased

Purchase of the home of W. E. Maxson Jr., in the Country Club estates by C. E. McCutchen, vice president of the First National bank, was announced Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. McCutchen expect to occupy their new home shortly after Dec. 1. Sale of the J. J. Perkins home at 1801 Tenth street to J. W. Pond was also confirmed Thursday.

Building activity in Country Club estates has been particularly marked during the last few weeks, the estimated cost of various new homes being more than $350,000. Plans call for a dozen or more new residences in the Country Club estates to be under way by Jan. 1, it was learned.

In addition to these plans, construction on the home of Walter K. Campbell in the district is nearly completed. The new home of R. B. Magee, a two story brick structure at the corner of Martin boulevard and Berkeley drive, is expected to be ready for occupancy within a few weeks.

Mrs. I. H. Roberts moved into her new bungalow residence on Berkeley drive a few days ago, and Dr. L. F. Stripling's home at the intersection of Speedway avenue and Berkeley drive has been occupied only a few weeks. Other homes in the Country Club estates are also nearing completion, a number to be opened before the first of the year, it was said.

The small one story house at 1007 Eleventh street which for many years has been the home of Misses Kate, Emma and Jodie Haynes has given away to a large two story frame structure which will contain three apartments, in addition to living quarters for the owners, it was stated.

Wife Severs Relations With Husband After Freak Child Is Born

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15. (UP)—The 21-year-old father of a baby born with a seven-inch tail today tried to calm his girl-wife's fears that he would exhibit the child as a human freak.

He volunteered to pay for the operation of removing the tail.

The 17-year-old mother and the child's grandmother, who is 35, refuse, however, to resume relations with the husband.

Money is needed to pay for the operation, however, and the grandmother is considering offering the appearance for study to some scientist or school in return for performing the operation.

Hall and Haskell Counties Lead Cotton Parade in Wichita Area

Ginnings of the 1928 cotton crop in the 29 counties of the Wichita Falls area, prior to Nov. 1 totaled 299,309 bales, according to figures released Thursday by the bureau of census of the United States department of commerce. The quantities are in running bales, and round bales are counted as half bales. Linters are not included.

The 1928 total compares with 368,663 bales for 1927 which gives 1927 a total of 69,354 bales more than 1928.

Hall county with 34,908 bales leads the 1928 parade. This is more than double the figure for the same county in 1927 when the total of Nov. 1 was only 16,391. Haskell county is second in the list with 22,394, and Collingsworth is third with 21,349.

STUDY BANKING

Reagan Students Visit Wichita State In Class Work

Mechanics and theories of banking are being explained and demonstrated to pupils of the seventh grade of Reagan Junior high school this week by employes and officials of the Wichita State Bank and Trust company. Students of the school, in groups of 20, are visiting the bank daily, and studying its methods of operation. Each group of students is accompanied by a teacher of the school. Approximately 150 pupils of the school are to make the visit to the Wichita Falls institution.

CREDIT GROUP PLANS FROLIC

Annual Party to Be Held On Dec. 11

Debtors whose names begin with S, insufficient checks of the past week and the annual good time banquets of the year were discussed at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Retail Grantors' association in the Wichita club rooms Thursday night. Arrangements were to care for three debtors who owe various merchants so that the debtors may repay their debts and retail their good credit standing.

Mrs. Atchie Huffhines, E. L. Buelow and D. C. Littlepage were announced as members of the annual fun frolic committee. The affair was announced for the night of Dec. 11, and the place at which it will be held will be announced next week.

The annual banquet honoring state officers of the Retail Merchants and the Retail Credit associations will be held in The Texas hotel at Fort Worth, Nov. 22 George Sosebee and W. B. Malley, both directors from Wichita Falls will attend. Others who were appointed on the committee Thursday night to attend the meeting include Mrs. Huffhines, Mr. Littlepage, J. L. Pollard, R. J. Fletchner, Miss Frances Brooks, Miss Reba L. Dunlap, Miss Jule Eklune, Eli Morgan and A. H. Conner.

W. H. Bailey presided at the Thursday night meeting due to the absence of President A. H. Conner, and 65 were present.

Youth Freed On Car Theft Charge

Raymond Scott, alias Raymond Sellers, was—to all practical purposes—a free man Thursday night after having told a jury in the 89th district court earlier in the day that he had stolen an automobile so as to go to the bedside of a sick mother.

He told the jury also that he had been docketed on the jail records as Raymond Scott, when, in reality, his name is Raymond Sellers. He gave the incorrect name to conceal his plight from his mother, but she found out anyway, it was developed by E. F. Fruechte, attorney for the accused man.

Scott gave his age as 21 years and said that he has completed three years of a course in the University of Wisconsin.

Electra Pastor Talks At Rotary Meet Here

"Community Cooperation" was the subject of a talk given by Rev. C. C. Klingman, of the First Christian church of Electra at the Thursday noon luncheon of the Wichita Falls Rotary club.

The program was presented by Electra Rotarians under the direction of Turner Weatherill. Mr. Weatherill was introduced by John Kilgore, president of the Wichita Falls Rotary club.

Will Slayton sang several solos, and Miss Letrice Wofford played the piano accompaniments.

Lee Whitley and Claud Harper were introduced as new members of the club by Dr. S. S. McKenney.

Diagnosis of Cattle Disease Is Requested

GREENVILLE, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—A request has been sent to the state livestock sanitary commission's headquarters in Fort Worth for an inspector to come here to diagnose a disease prevailing among Hereford cattle on a farm 13 miles southeast of here. Nine head of the herd were said to have died during the past week with the disease. The request was sent to Fort Worth by J. E. Wilkins, local veterinarian.

ANNUAL SENIOR PLAY GIVEN

800 Attend Vaudeville Bill At School

Approximately 800 spectators witnessed the annual entertainment by the senior class of the Wichita Falls High school Thursday night when the class presented the senior vaudeville. The presentation was directed by Miss Juanita Kinsey of the dramatic department of the high school and college, and the proceeds will go to the Coyote, the high school year book.

The following took part in the vaudeville:

Gertrude Klass, Elmer Parish, Genevieve Fritz, Elizabeth Langford, Paul Scheuer, Kenton Wharton, Bob Crocker, T. H. Blanton, Juanita Mazingo, Marion Proctor, Joline Woods, Katherine Douglass, Curtis Watson, Genevieve Baugh, Charlotte Sutton, Wilson Gray, Durwood Park, Mildred Anderson and the high school orchestra, directed by Leo M. Underwood. Walter Pinney, slated to appear in a dance act, was unable to appear on account of illness.

Zip Aplenty In Vaudeville Bill

By the Record News Critic

Falling a little in excellence from the bill of last week the Thursday-Friday program of the Keith-Orpheum-Interstate vaudeville at the Majestic theater brought down a great deal of applause and favorable comment by its zip and variety. There was not a slow act on the bill.

"The Wedding Gown" featured and was enlivened by the unexpected appearance of "the two funny intruders" who proved to be Frank Hurst and Eddie Vogt, laugh-getting comedians from the preceding bill "Before the Bar." Frank and Eddie brought their fun to rescue this number from being a rather slow moving if beautiful act. Pretty girls dressed in pretty dresses and some garments that aren't much dresses made exceptionaly good entertainment.

In their own act "Before the Bar" Frank and Eddie gave an act full of modern and up-to-date jokes and a few songs, the jokes were better and more modern than the songs.

"The Aerial DeGroffs" showed sonsiderable speed and gave an act that is unusual on the vaudeville stage. O'Conner and Vaughn "the Personality Girls" and a clever animal act "LaBelle Pola" with trained monkeys and a clever dancer cast against primitive background conclude the bill.

"The Cops," in which William Boyd is starred, is the screen attraction for the Thursday-Friday program.

New Eastern Star To Be Installed

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—Twelve subordinate chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star, for which charters were granted at the grand chapter's state convention at El Paso in October, will be constituted and installed within the next 10 days, Sttae Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher, worthy grand patron, said here today.

Hatcher was elected worthy grand patron at the El Paso meeting, having been elevated from the office of associate grand patron to which he was elected in 1927 at the Mineral Wells convention from a field of five candidate.

Mr. Hatcher has appointed deputies to constitute the other 10 chapters. Among those are Mrs. Velma B. Hallie, past grand matron of Ballinger, to officiate at Lawn; Mrs. Maggie B. Moody, past grand matron of Corpus Christi, for Hebbronville; Mrs. Hattie Bradford, grand warden of Sweetwater, for Soudan. Other appointments will be announced later.

Maud Allan Will Appear In London

LONDON, Nov. 15. (INS)—Miss Maud Allan, the famous classical dancer, is to appear in public again in London, next January.

Her re-appearance wil take place at a Sunday afternoon concert at the Albert Hall. A symphony orchestra will play Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony and Miss Allan will give expression to the poetry of the music by dancing throughout the recital.

After the symphony Miss Allan will dance one or two of her famous dances, including Dubinstein's "Value Caprice," and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

It was just over 20 years ago that Miss Allan created a sensation by her dance "The Vision of Salome." A heated controversy arose on account of the flimsiness of her costume, which today would be regarded as more than proper. Although her performances were banned in Manchester and other cities, she appeared twice before King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

Wing Collapse Cause Of Six Fliers' Deaths

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 15 (UP)—Collapse of a wing fitting on the big army transport in which six Brooks field soldiers were dashed to death Wednesday was given today by investigating officers as the probable cause of the tragedy.

The conclusion was strengthened by the fact that one wing of the plane broke completely off after the ship had plunged a third of its way to earth.

Negress' Refusal to Open Mouth Helps to Convict Her of Robbery

The reluctance of Mary Pearson, a young negro woman, to open her mouth was urged as a circumstance against her when she was prosecuted in the 89th district court Thursday on a charge of robbery by assault.

She was convicted and her punishment was fixed at five years imprisonment after she had been accused of taking $18 from a man who said he was robbed while the point of a knife was held at his throat. The man said he was crossing the railroad yards toward the business district when the woman stepped from the shadow of a box car.

Mary insisted that the man and not she was the aggressor. She charged that he attempted to rob her. But the prosecution insisted that she failed to explain why it was necessary for four husky policemen working with a bar of wood to force open her mouth after she had been arrested. The woman's accuser said she had stuck some of his money in her mouth, and officers said they found two $1 bills when they pried open her mouth.

The accused woman said she refused to open her mouth because she feared the money would be taken away from her.

MERCY ERRAND FATAL TO 17

Women See Rescue Boat Sunk By Wave

FOLKESTONE, Eng., Nov. 15. (UP)—A lifeboat loaded with 17 men set out from the tiny fishing village of Rye Harbor early today, at the height of a fierce gale, to aid the storm-battered steamer Alice, and was lost with all hands.

To the village, the disaster far overshadowed that of the Vestris. The lifeboat contained at least one man from every family in the village, and the entire crews of the last four fishing boats, survivors of a fleet that once made Rye Harbor famous.

Making even more bitter the grief of the village was the fact that the life boat's errand of mercy was futile. The crew of the crippled Alice, a Riga steamer, had been removed to safety aboard the Hamburg steamer Smyrna five minutes before the lifeboat pushed out into the stormy channel.

The life boat capsized when it struck the sands at Camber as it returned from the wrecked hull of the Alice.

A group of women and children huddled together on the beach saw a huge wave strike the boat. The fishermen pulled their craft through but again and again the breakers swept over them. A few minutes later the watchers could see the boat no longer.

All life saving appartus was spread out along the coast to Jury's Gut and Dense Marsh and Galloway. Life lines were carried near the breaking waves but the boat failed to show again.

Hours later it was washed ashore. The bodies of two men were found beneath it. Waves washed ten more bodies to the sands at Jury's Gut. Five others of the 17 were still missing tonight.

Albert Head and his two sons were in the boat. Four other pairs of brothers were at the oars. None of them came back alive to the tiny village, where a few old men and a score of women waited.

Fourth of Londoners Wear Spectacles

LONDON, Nov. 15. (INS)—One in every four Londoners sees life through spectacles.

This is the conclusion formed by oculists who recently made a census in the streets of the capital. They declare that within 50 years townsmen throughout Great Britain will be wearing eyeglesses almost without exception.

"The increase in the number of persons wearing spectacles has been stupendous since the world war," an authority said. "Men predominate, it is believed, because they do not mind personal appearance as much as women."

The faster movement of modern life is blamed for the increase.

Canvass of Vote Still Incomplete

Totals still were to be ascertained Thursday when the county commissioners court adjourned after having tabulated returns from the general election of Nov. 6.

The court recessed as nightfall neared after giving instructions to the court clerk to total the lengthy strings of figures which had been tabulated during a prolonged session. The "canvassing" of the returns consisted of the calling by E. W. Nicholson, the county judge, of votes cast for each candidate in each of the 39 precincts of the county to Miss Lucile Campbell, deputy county clerk, who listed the figures upon a prepared table.

The ascertaining of total figures was not hastened because of the decisiveness of the outcomes of various of the contests up for decision in the election.

Another Dairy Builds On City's Suggestions

The ninth dairy to take advantage of the recent plans and suggestions made by the sanitary department of the city of Wichita Falls has started to build its dairy barns near the city, it was announced Thursday by Dr. J. M. Farrell, city sanitary inspector.

"We are giving free blueprints and will cooperate in every way with any dairyman who wishes to improve his place or who wishes to obtain a grade A rating," Dr. Farrell said. "The latest to start his barns is Felix Walker."

VALUE OF NUT LANDS ARGUED

Homer Wade 'Highpowered Promoter,' Says Banker

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—Two divergent views on the loan value of pecan lands were presented to 200 pecan growers attending the pecan institute here today when Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Judge M. H. Gossett president of the Federal Reserve Land bank at Houston, debated the subject.

Mr. Gossett characterized the chamber executive as "a highpowered promoter and propagandist, working for the good of West Texas in overcoming the inertia of the people."

His remark followed a talk by Wade in which he stressed the high value of pecan lands, increasing, he said, $100 per acre in value each year for 15 or 20 years. Wade said he would like to speak to the bankers of the state on "The Humanization of the Banking Business."

Mr. Gossett replied that his bank recognizes a substantial loan on value of pecan orchards in bearing, this amounting to about 50 per cent in addition to the basic agricultural value of the land. The orchard must be in a community where there has been a record of successful and prosperous orchard production, he added.

A West Texas pecan growers' association probably will result from the present institute. Leaders of the industry expressed the opinion today that pecans will rival cotton in income for this section within a few years.

Orgatone Is Taking This Town By Storm

Greatest Sensation in History of Drug Trade Created by Triumph of Medicine at Allison's Drug Store

Nothing Like It Has Ever Been Seen in Wichita Falls Before

Predicted That Distribution in Wichita Falls of Master Health Builder Will Smash All Previous Records

Biggest Thing in Wichita Falls Is Orgatone; Nothing Like It Has Ever Been Here Before; Hundreds Throng Allison's Drug Store

THE FACT IS EVIDENT THAT THE PEOPLE OF WICHITA FALLS ARE FULLY INFORMED CONCERNING ORGATONE AND EVERY DAY INCREASING NUMBERS COME PREPARED TO PURCHASE A SUPPLY. MEN AND WOMEN OF ALL AGES RICH AND POOR ALIKE RUB ELBOWS IN THEIR COMMON DESIRE FOR THE MEDICINE THAT IS OVERCOMING SO MUCH HUMAN SUFFERING AND DISTRESS.

In a personal interview last night at the Allison Drug store, Ray T. Wilson, field representative of the manufacturers of Orgatone said: "This is the greatest demonstration I have ever seen, and I have been in the business a long time."

BIG DEMAND TAXES LABORATORIES

"I feel safe in predicting that the demand for Orgatone in Wichita Falls will completely smash all former sales records and my only hope is that we will be able to keep production up to the tremendous requirements.

"You see Orgatone is not a patent medicine that can be compounded in a minute. The necessary process of combining all the vegetable ingredients so that each will do its part in bringing about the proper action of the various deranged or inflamed digestive organs of the body is one that requires time.

"So you see it is quite a job to meet such an enormous demand as we are now experiencing." When asked what he ascribes the tremendous popularity of Orgatone, Mr. Ray T. Wilson says:

"Merit alone is responsible for the tremendous success of Orgatone. Orgatone is well advertised, it is true, but it takes more than advertising to bring about such large and rapidly growing demand.

RESULTS ARE THE PROOF

"It's what the people themselves, who have actually tried it, have to say about Orgatone that counts. One bottle is sold in a neighborhood through advertising, but 20 more are sold in that community after the first bottle produces results, and that's where Orgatone scores.

"People are always willing to talk about their ailments, but they are more willing to tell others of the medicine that helps them. It is something they couldn't keep to themselves if they tried, for the impulse to sympathize with suffering friends and neighbors and want to help them is one of the biggest things in human nature.

"Orgatone brings about real and substantial benefits in the way of health, strength and vigor. It is truly an unusual body builder, and the prompt action of its ingredients is remarkable. You can tell after the first few doses that you are being benefited in a natural, substantial way. One dose of Orgatone before meals corrects disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys, aids digestion, cleanses the system of the impurities, builds up a natural appetite for wholesome food and stimulates and revitalizes the whole system. As a result you begin to feel like yourself again, brimful of new life and energy."

ANSWERS NATURE'S CALL FOR HELP

When you are run-down, feel low or below par, it's a sign that nature wants help. If you are suffering from indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation or sluggish liver, Orgatone will bring quick relief. If gas forms on your stomach and you have a sensation of fullness and choking after meals—if food sours on your stomach and causes spells of sickness and faintness, Orgatone will prove to be the thing for you.

If you feel heavy and drowsy after eating—if your tongue is coated and your breath offensive—if your appetite is poor and nothing tastes right—if your complexion is bad and your eyes dull, you should try Orgatone immediately.

If you have frequent headaches, backaches and pains in your stomach, if you are nervous and irritable and do not sleep well at night—if you wake up in the mornings feeling heavy, draggy and all out of sorts—if you have tired, listless, worn-out feelings and are losing weight then is the time to start on the Orgatone treatment, as it will put you on your feet again and bring back your old time strength and energy with that glorious feeling of splendid vigorous health.

HOW ORGATONE WORKS

The principles of Orgatone are known to scientists everywhere. Long ago, it was discovered that most diseases are due to something lacking, something needed by the organs—the body machine—to keep themselves in trim.

Orgatone is a scientific formula combining those elements which the body needs to rebuild its own wasted tissues. Not a theory but a proven fact, attested by thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands, who gladly tell of renewed health.

TO THOSE WHO WISH TO TRY

If you want further proof that the principles of Orgatone treatment brings health, if you want to return to those days when work was a pleasure, when youth made it possible to work 12 hours a day without fatigue, call on the Orgatone Health Teacher who is personally meeting the public daily at Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, where he is explaining this new scientific treatment daily to hundreds and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv

A committee was appointed at the Thursday meeting to cooperate with the municipal airport in obtaining boundary lights for the airport and to work toward securing an air mail contract. The committee will include J. C. Mytinger, J. A. Gardner and Wilbur Cahoon.

Construction of a three-way bridge leading from Scott, Lamar and Indiana streets over the Wichita river toward the south is in sight, according to a report made by J. T. Harrell, chairman of the committee of landowners of these streets who are completing a $35,000 subscription fund. The committee will ask the commissioners court at their next meeting Monday to appropriate the remainder of the $75,000 necessary to build the bridge, Mr. Harrell said.

Austin City Ordinance On Trial in Crash Case

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—Whether a city ordinance providing that proof of a collision is prima facie evidence of negligence, is in violation of the legislative decree that a "defendant in a criminal case is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is established by legal evidence beyond a reasonable doubt," may be referred to the court of criminal appeals for decision.

An appeal from a verdict in corporation court assessing a fine of $150 against an Austin negro under the "negligent collision" ordinance, was taken to the county court and if the city court is sustained the case will be taken to the appellate court, attorneys said.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Gene Tunney's little home in Mayfair is awaiting the retired world's champion fighter and his bride, who are now honeymooning in Italy.

It is a tastefully furnished apartment in Down street, somewhat larger than one would expect for one couple, but in keeping, according to caretakers, with Mr. and Mrs. Tunney's plans to do a lot of entertaining. One of their first visitors is expected to be George Bernard Shaw.

They have taken the apartment for one year.

Although Gene has chosen one of the most exclusive sections in London in which to live, he will have at least one neighbor to remind him of the old boxing days before he quit the ring.

This neighbor is Bombardier Wells, the "gentleman boxer" and darling of the English prize fight ring. For Bombardier, who is also in retirement, now operates a hotel and "pub" within half a block of Tunney's apartment.

Bombardier was as surprised to hear that Tunney was to be his neighbor as Gene probably will be to learn that Bombardier lives nearby.

"So he is really coming, is he? Well, he was one of the best. He was as good as Corbett, good as any other champion we ever had," Bombardier said.

"No, I haven't met him yet. I'd like to meet Gene and welcome him. He did a good thing quitting when he did. He's made his."

Down street, where Tunney's apartment is situated, is only two blocks long, but it is in the very heart of Mayfair and all that Mayfair implies in the way of society. Hyde Park is at one end of the street; Bombardier's "pub" is at the other. But then nearly every corner in London has a "pub"; there's even one in Buckingham palace.

Down street is an austere thoroughfare in which the blinds are nearly always drawn and the chauffeurs sit at the wheels of their cars with uncompromising mien. People move along the street slowly, and an air of exclusiveness hangs perpetually over the place.

Although Tunney has quit the professional ring, he is booked to fight five bouts for charity in one night soon after he arrives.

When Tunney was in London, Preston, English sportsman, remarked that Dempsey still had one record that Tunney had not beaten.

"What's that?" asked Gene.

"Dempsey fought four heavyweights consecutively at my charity boxing tournament three years ago," answered Preston.

"Is that so?" said Tunney. "Then I'll fight five."

"Now! I am right—"

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

"FORTUNATELY, I found myself in time. I was going down! down! down! I didn't want to eat; there was no desire for it. My muscles were getting flabby—I tired easily. Many a morning I would get up after a sleepless night feeling that I could hardly pull through the day. I was also troubled with those annoying so-called skin troubles. Then, one day a friend urged me to give S.S.S. a trial. Before finishing the first bottle, I could see I was improving. That was only a few weeks ago. Today I feel more like myself than I have in years."

Loss of appetite is only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

(Copyright, 1928, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Doctor McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, Nov. 18:

Sunday—Breakfast: French omlet, waffle, applesauce. Lunch: Cream of tomato soup, baked eggplant, raw celery and ripe olives. Dinner: Broiled Belgian hare, baked parsnips, cooked lettuce, salad of sliced cucumbers, (no dressing), prune whip.

Monday—Breakfast: Wholewheat muffins, peanut butter, stewed figs. Lunch: Glass of buttermilk, with 10 or 12 dates. Dinner: Vegetable soup, roast beef, cooked string beans, stewed tomatoes, salad of chopped raw cabbage and celery, jello or jellwell with cream.

Tuesday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, melba toast, pear sauce. Lunch: Steamed rice, cooked beet tops, head lettuce with olive oil. Dinner: Broiled lamb chops, cooked spinach, cooked beets, salad of molded vegetables (green peas, string beans and celery), no dessert.

Wednesday—Breakfast: Oatmeal with butter or cream, no sugar, stewed raisins. Lunch: Glass of grapejuice. Dinner: Roast pork, cooked okra, baked eggplant, McCoy salad, baked apple.

Thursday—Breakfast: Baked eggs, melba toast, stewed apricots. Lunch: Celery soup, cucumber and olive sandwiches. Dinner: Veal loaf (chopped cooked veal molded in gelatin with generous amount of chopped parsley), cooked squash, string beans, ice cream.

Friday—Breakfast: Poached egg on toasted shredded wheat biscuit, stewed figs. Lunch: Raw apples or oranges as desired. Dinner: Baked halibut, spinach, cooked cauliflower, salad of sliced tomatoes, (no dressing), no dessert.

Saturday—Breakfast: Genuine wholewheat bread slightly toasted, peanut butter, stewed prunes. Lunch: Spaghetti (wholewheat product), boiled and buttered, salad of cold cooked asparagus (canned) on lettuce. Dinner: Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, steamed carrots, cooked lettuce, salad of crisp raw spinach leaves, raw celery, pineapple sponge.

Waffles: One-half cup of flour, sifted with baking powder and salt, ¼ cup of cream, 2 eggs, 1 level teaspoonful of baking powder, pinch of salt.

Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs. Beat the yolks and add the cream, mixing thoroughly. Next, add the flour, into which has been mixed the baking powder and salt, and beat until smooth. Fold in the whites of the eggs which have been beaten into a moderately stiff froth, but not too dry, or they will be inclined to separate and rise to the top of the batter.

The quantity is sufficient for five or six waffles, which should be baked in aluminum waffle irons to which no grease has been added. Bake very thin, allowing waffle to become a light golden brown all the way through. This will dextrinize the starch in the white flour, as in melba toast. Serve with butter, and a small amount of maple syrup if desired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blood Tests

Question—R. H. H. asks: "Is it possible to determine the parentage of a child by blood tests?"

Answer: There is a great difference of opinion on this subject. In some courts of law where such the parentage of children the judge has admitted evidence tending to show that either the blood of the mother or father looks the same under the microscope as their child's, but the admission of such evidence is the exception at the present time, as the medical profession has never settled this point and many specialists in blood disorders have claimed that there is no way of accurately determining the parentage of blood tests.

Enlarged Joints

Question—Mrs. G. E. K. writes: "The joints of my fingers are becoming enlarged and ache at times. Am I getting rheumatism? Are there any special foods I could eat to prevent it? My mother is troubled with the same thing and says it is hereditary."

Answer: You are developing a form of rheumatism known either as arthritis or arthritis deformans. In my opinion the cause is due primarily to the absorption of poisons from the colon. See that your bowels are kept open with two or three bowel movements a day even if you must take laxatives or enemas. There is no special food which causes rheumatism, but the cause is only from bad mixtures of food and sluggish colon.

This is Francis X. Bushman Jr.—son of the famous Francis X. Bushman, movie matinee heart-twister of yesteryear—who has followed his illustrious father's footsteps to fame on the celluloid path.

F. X. Bushman Jr.

"The other night I met a friend of mine," recounted Francis, "in company with three fellows whom I did not know. They were pretty tough-looking characters — not the sort with whom my friend should associate—and I resented that.

"'Who are these fellows,' I asked.

"'Don't worry,' he replied, 'they are friends of mine. They are gonna furnish me with a lot of fun tonight.'

"'What's he gonna furnish?' I asked, pointing to the first.

"'Gin!'

"'And him?'

"'Ginger ale!'

"'And that fellow?'

"'He's furnishing the girl friends.'

"Only one remained. I pointed to him. 'And that one?'

"'Oh, him? Well, now, he's really important—he's going to furnish the bail.'"

PARIS CROESUS ADVISED WORK

Employe Testifies McDonald Was Sane

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—His relationship with the late W. J. McDonald, Paris millionaire whose will bequeathing $1,250,000 to the University of Texas for an astronomical observatory is being attacked by relatives, was described in detail by Delbert Payne, a former office assistant of the millionaire, here today.

Payne said he worked for McDonald from September of 1924 to June of 1925 and that during this time he assisted in general office work. McDonald never was out of humor and treated him as well as anyone could be treated, Payne testified.

McDonald advised him to "live a clean upright life, keep out of bad company, go to school, get in business for yourself and let wild women and whisky alone," Payne said. He added that his employer said that "everyone should work, regardless of wealth, for if they do they are depending on someone else," Payne asserted.

McDonald's conversations always were rational, Payne said, and he was of the opinion that McDonald was of sound mind when he made his will.

On cross-examination, Payne said the books he kept for McDonald showed bonds, cash and notes owned by the financier, but no real estate. McDonald was affectionate toward his relatives, he said.

DOCTOR BOUND OVER FOR TRIAL

Kansas Physician Charged In Girl's Death

LARNED, Kan., Nov. 15. (INS)—Dr. D. C. Mumford of Belpre, charged with responsibility for the death of Miss Imogene Ratliff, waived preliminary hearing in county court here today. He was bound over for trial in the district court.

Miss Ratliff died on the operating table in Doctor Mumford's office and he took the body to an isolated spot in the girl's car and abandoned it, according to an alleged confession signed by the physician. The girl's body was found Oct. 23 in a shallow pool of water by M. E. Piume, who had noticed the car standing beside the road for some time.

An autopsy established the girl died from effects of an illegal operation.

With Doctor Mumford is held Mark Rushing, said to have been the girl's fiance. Rushing said he is married and the father of two children. He explained he was suing for a divorce and intended to marry Miss Ratliff when freed from his first wife.

Authorities are puzzled as to how the body of the woman got into the pool after being left in the car by Doctor Mumford.

Camp Fire Organization Aids In Training and Development of Girls

Development of the individual, rather than mass activity, through the limiting of each group to 20 members, is sought in campfire organization by the personal act of guardians with each girl in her charge. It is the aim of the guardian, says Miss Mary McIlheran, local campfire executive, to know each girl's individual interests, help her solve her problems, and make the misfit, fit.

"One girl, in particular," relates a guardian, "used to come to headquarters for supplies looking worried, embarrassed and ill-at-ease. It was difficult for her to express herself, but in campfire she found a new world. She can hold members of her group spellbound around the fire with Indian legends, has passed her firemaker's rank and is making steady progress toward her highest rank."

"Another instance," the guardian continued, "concerns a girl whose parents have moved into the country. Her married sister has undertaken to bring her to and from school every day and to campfire meetings, because she considers this work the fine thing for her young sister. She, herself, is planning to take the guardian's training course, so she will be prepared to start a group when her daughter is old enough for campfire.

On the other hand, the selfish, spoiled girl who wants to monopolize everything, is also benefited by campfire, stated Miss McIlheran. She soon learns that if she is to be popular she must fit in and carry her part.

"I want to have for my symbol a word that means 'friend,'" said a campfire girl recently to the executive. "I chose that word because I wanted to learn to be friendly, as I was 'catty' and knew I could never have friends until I learned to control my tongue."

This girl was recently elected president of her group and is working earnestly on her firemaker's rank, and is a popular girl in her group.

The three ranks of campfire, wood-gatherer, firemaker and torch-bearer, are symbolic of the progress in a girl's life, each requiring more time, training and service than the other.

The campfire girls organization is a member of the community chest, which will open its annual drive for funds Nov. 26.

Forfeited Dumas Bonds Returned

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—Orders forfeiting two $2,500 bonds of J. H. Dumas, Lubbock, charged with murder and conspiracy to murder in connection with the killing of two alleged bank robbers at Rankin, were set aside in district court today and the bonds allowed to stand until Dec. 3, when the cases will be called.

Defense counsel explained to the court that Dumas, who was to have been here Monday, misunderstood the time, thinking himself due here Nov. 24. Dumas was in court. He arrived last night from Houston and was at state ranger headquarters today.

CONFERENCE AND INTERSTATE GAMES HOLD PREP GRID SPOT

LEAGUE TILTS HERE, ELECTRA

Socners at Vernon; Bowie Goes to Burkburnett

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Three class A conference games, an interestate contest and several clashes of class B teams comprise an interesting program of schoolboy football this week-end in this section. The district class A battles are of Lubbock at Wichita Falls, Amarillo at Electra and Quanah at Plainview, all scheduled for Saturday. The interstate meeting is today in Vernon, with the Frederick, Okla., Bearcats invading the lair of the Lions.

Bowie, which held the Olney champions of the southern half of district 3, class B, to an 18-12 score, meets Burkburnett today on the latter's field. Burkburnett also has lost only one game this season and this promises to be an interesting and hard-fought affair.

Reagan Junior high of Wichita Falls and Henrietta, which played a scoreless tie earlier in the year, renew hostilities again today. They play at Henrietta.

Interesting Game Here

Other games involving teams in this section include Paducah at Slaton, Wellington at Childress, O'Donnell at Lamesa, Tahoka at Post and Hale Center at Crosbyton. Over in Oklahoma, Grandfield goes to Walters and Altus journeys to Chickasha.

The most interesting contest of the week-end will probably be played here, Wichita Falls and Lubbock, in a three-cornered tie with Vernon for second place in their district, have played about the same style of football this season. This game also will offer a comparison of the Wichita Falls team with Amarillo, which the Coyotes engage here Thanksgiving day. Amarillo defeated Lubbock, 32 to 6, a few weeks ago.

Amarillo, sole unbeaten leader of the district, is figured to win decisively at Electra, as it has in all games this season. Electra, however, has played some good football despite adverse luck and may surprise the Golden Sandstorm.

Quanah and Plainview have not won a conference game this season so their contest probably will decide the cellar title.

Frederick at Vernon

Vernon and Frederick both have fast elevens and theirs should be a well-played contest.

The complete schedule of games this week-end in this state as announced by Roy Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas League bureau, follows:

Amarillo at Electra, Lubbock at Wichita Falls, Quanah at Plainview, San Angelo at Breckenridge, Eastland at Cisco, Bryan (Dallas) at Fort Worth Central, Forest Avenue (Dallas) vs. North Dallas, Oak Cliff vs. Woodrow Wilson (Dallas), Sunset (Dallas) vs. Highland Park (Dallas), Temple at Corsicana, Waco at Cleburne, Denton at Sherman, Athens at Palestine, Jacksonville at Lufkin, South Park (Beaumont) vs. Beaumont, Milby (Houston) vs. Jeff Davis (Houston), Alamo Heights (San Antonio) at Austin, Wellington at Childress, Miami at Panhandle, Hereford at Borger, Littlefield at Lockney, O'Donnell at Lamesa, Paducah at Slaton, Olton at Kress, Tahoka at Post, Hale Center at Crosbyton, Commerce at Cooper, Wolfe City at Ladonia, Garland at Bonham.

Rovse City at Gunter, Gilmer at Mt. Pleasant, Pittsburg at Jefferson, Mineola at Troup, Odessa at Midland, Stanton at Wink, Carlsbad at Pecos, Marfa at Fort Stockton, Big Spring at Roby, Dublin at De Leon, Albany at Gorman, Rising Star at Cross Plains, Eldorado at Ballinger, Melvin at Santa Anna, Brady at Kerrville, Llano at Bertram, Lometa at Richland Springs, San Saba at Brownwood, State School (Corsicana) at Mexia, Marlin at Itasca, Malakoff at Terrell, Wortham at Teague, Holland at Bartlett, Georgetown at Gonzales, Round Rock at Thorndale, Carthage at Center, Jasper at Sour Lake, Sonora at Fredericksburg, Junction at Mason, Sugarland at Eagle Lake, Weimar at Hallettsville, Normangee at Huntsville, Iola at Crockett, Madisonville at Trinity, Elgin at Brenham, Caldwell at Hearne, Cameron at Bryan, Franklin at Thornton, Yoakum at Cuero, Port Lavaca at Goliad, Victoria at Yorktown, San Marcos academy seconds at Lockhart, San Marcos at New Braunfels, Seguin at Poteet, Pasadena at Alvin, Goose Creek at Humble, Dayton at Woodville, Liberty at Daisetta, Eagle Pass at Crystal City, Del Rio at Uvalde, Dilley at Hondo, Reevilee at Alice, Robstown at Harlingen, Mercedes at McAllen and Edinburg at Mission.

Holt, Now Accountant, Still Plays Basketball

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 15. (AP)—Victor Holt, the six-foot, six-inch all-American center of the national A. A. U. basketball tournament last spring, still belongs to the basket ball world, though he is out of college.

The star of the University of Oklahoma all-victorious quintet will play with the Sterling Milk team of Oklahoma City in the Missouri Valley Amateur Athletic association's basketball league.

The elongated Holt led the Missouri Valley collegiate conference in scoring last year and served the Cook Paint team in the A. A. U. tournament. He helped the Painters win the national basket ball title.

Holt is an accountant in the Oklahoma City office of General Motors.

St. Edward's Lineup Changed For Trinity

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—Aroused by the ineffective work of several veterans in the game with Howard-Payne last Saturday, Coach Meagher will send a somewhat revamped St. Edwards team against Trinity university in Temple Friday. When he returned Wednesday from Abilene, he shoved several veterans to the third string and replaced them with youngsters.

Stopping Voigt's Rally

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Thomas Philip Perkins, the British amateur champion, found his way to the American championship successfully barred by the stalwart figure of Bobby Jones, but in getting nearer to this goal than any Briton had done in 17 years Phil pulled off a number of startling shots at Brae Burn.

There was his 45-foot putt on the eleventh green against George Voigt of New York, a curling poke three-quarters of the way across the green that sounded a heart-breaking clink to the American. This was as great a stroke on the green as any in the whole amateur championship, but it wasn't as important as a recovery from the rough that Perkins made on the 17th hole of this same match.

Perkins won the match finally by the decisive margin of 6 and 4. He might have done as well anyway, but his work at 17th, saving a half and checking a determined rally by Voigt, seemed to contribute vitally to the final outcome.

The New Yorker, after a bad start, was coming like a house afire on the inward journey of the morning round in this semi-final struggle. He had cut a deficit of four holes down to one. From the 17th tee he had driven a beautiful shot well to the green 255 yards away, while Perkins hooked wierdly to the rough. It appeared a certainty that George would square the match and have a chance to gain the lead on the 18th. But the aspect changed quickly when Phil dug a remarkable shot out of the tall grass and laid his ball within three feet of the cup, for a par 3 that he clinched when Voigt missed his first putt. It enabled Perkins to go to lunch with a lead that he added substantially to in the afternoon and discouraged Voigt, perhaps, at a moment when his best chance of victory seemed ahead.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES played thus far this season illustrate the far-flung popularity and excellence of football as played in all areas. There isn't a region that can show any decisive superiority in the matter of intersectional combats. The East and Middle West have scored the greatest number of victories, but several triumphs scored by teams of those sections were over elevens which were not representative of the best football as played in other parts of these United States.

◇ ◇ ◇

Southwestern teams have engaged in only six intersectional games and won two and lost four. Texas Aggies beat Sewanee and Baylor defeated Centenary. The losses were those of S. M. U. to Army, Texas to Vanderbilt, Texas Aggies to Centenary and Arkansas to Mississippi. S. M. U., however, gained a deal of glory for this section by playing that standoff game with Army.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE SOUTH has a fine intersectional record. The most notable victory scored by a team from below the Mason and Dixon line was that of Georgie Tech over Notre Dame, which in the light of the recent Irish win over Army makes the Tornadoes rate about as good a team as there is in the land. Vandy beat Colgate in addition to Texas. A southern club, Virginia, held Princeton to a scoreless tie.

◇ ◇ ◇

MISSOURI VALLEY teams have not played many intersectional games. Nebraska beat Syracuse in the most noteworthy clash involving a team of that sector.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE MIDDLE WEST has a flock of victories and likewise some defeats. Notre Dame, as usual, has played the most intersectional games, not only of a middle western club but of any of them. The Irish defeated Penn State, Army and Navy of the East, Loyola of the South and Drake of the Missouri valley region. Other victories of teams of the cornbelt in important games were Indiana over Oklahoma and Wisconsin over Alabama.

◇ ◇ ◇

Eastern teams won some important intersectional affairs as well as some that were of no great interest. Army beat S. M. U., Yale beat Georgia and Penn beat Chicago. Princeton played two intersectional ties, holding Ohio State 7-7 in addition to the 0-0 tilt with Virginia.

◇ ◇ ◇

ONLY ONE far-western team of any standing has ventured from its confines into another region. That one, Utah, went to Omaha to tie Creighton.

◇ ◇ ◇

Scores of important intersectional games played this season, named by district winners, are:

SOUTHWEST—Texas Aggies 69, Sewanee 0; Baylor 28, Centenary 7.

SOUTH—South Carolina 12, Chicago 0; Mississippi 25, Arkansas 0; Vanderbilt 12, Colgate 7; Vanderbilt 13, Texas 12; Centenary 6, Texas Aggies 0; Georgia Tech 13, Notre Dame 0.

MISSOURI VALLEY—Nebraska 7, Syracuse 6.

MIDDLE WEST—Notre Dame 12, Loyola 6; Indiana 10, Oklahoma 7; Notre Dame 7, Navy 0; Marquette 26, Oklahoma Aggies 0; Northwestern 7, Kentucky 0; Notre Dame 9, Penn State 0; Wisconsin 15, Alabama 0; Notre Dame 12, Army 6.

EAST—Army 14, S. M. U. 13; Yale 21, Georgia 6; Colgate 16, Michigan State 0; Penn 20, Chicago 13.

Ties—Princeton 0, Virginia 0; Princeton 6, Ohio State 6; Navy 6, Michigan 6; Creighton 7, Utah 7.

NAIVE INFORMATION as furnished by correspondents of the Associated Press:

Coach Littlefield had little further to say about the chances of Dexter Shelley and Red Wray being able to play against the Frogs. . . . Coach Littlefield never has much to say any way about things of the future." That was from Austin.

"Coach Rothgeb (of Rice) urged newspapermen to say nothing about the injured players." "We want no semblance of an alibi this next game, the head mentor said." This one was from Houston.

◇ ◇ ◇

The eminent Mr. Littlefield differs not at all from most ALL grid coaches, whose idea of master-minding is to act wise like the sphinx and say nothing. And the illustrious Mr. Rothgeb MAY have urged newspapermen to say nothing about his injured players. But if he did, it was like the man who was interviewed by a reporter and said, "Now don't use my name—but if you do—spell it correctly and send me 20 copies of your paper.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT SEEMS to be part of the football-coaching profession, that is, as practiced by mentors of large colleges, to screen their teams in a veil of mystery, or to seek to convey the impression before games that their athletes are so badly crippled that they hardly have 11 men to muster. Possibly that is smart coaching. But so prevalent are the bear stories emanating from grid camps that one pays no attention to them.

Joel Hunt May Be Barred Forever As Coach in Texas Junior College

Former Aggie Grid Star Is Charged With Using Ineligible Players On His Football Team at Marshall

JACKSONVILLE, Texas, Nov. 15. (AP)—If the Texas Junior College conference upholds a ruling by Dean D. E. Hawk Jr. of Lon Morris college, Joel Hunt, former Texas A. & M. football star, and a quarterback on some all-American football elevens last year, may be barred permanently from coaching in the Texas Junior College conference.

Dean Hawk, president of the conference, in a statement, said that Burleson college had charged Marshall college, which Hunt coaches was using two players who attended nearby schools under assumed names. The youths were expelled from the schools and Marshall college was notified of the expulsion, Hawk said, but the two youths continued to appear in the Marshall lineup.

Hawk said he had ordered forfeited all of the Marshall college football games this year, and had suspended Hunt and Frank Creasy, another Marshall coach.

Hawk's ruling can be appealed to the executive committee of the conference, which meets after Thanksgiving. If this committee upholds the ruling, the coaches will be barred forever from coaching in the conference.

IT'S NEWS TO JOEL

MARSHALL, Texas, Nov. 13. (AP)—Joel Hunt, former Aggie football star, suspended as coach at the College of Marshall by D. E. Hawk Jr., president of the Texas Junior college conference, for alleged use of ineligible players on his team, refused tonight to comment on the case.

"I have nothing to say at this time," he said. "I prefer to take it up directly with Mr. Hawk."

Hunt said he had not known President Hawk had made a statement until told by The Associated Press.

COYOTES SET FOR LUBBOCK

Pack Finishes Hard Work In Good Condition

Taking their last strenuous practice before engaging the Lubbock high schol Westerners Saturday afternoon at Athletic park, the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes closed a week of hard grind yesterday afternoon.

With the exception of three losses from ineligibilities the Coyotes are in better condition for the fray Saturday than they have been since the season opened. No injuries were sustained in the encounter with Quanah high schol last week and all of those who have been on the sick list during the last two weeks are in shape for the game Saturday.

Starting positions in the line are yet much in doubt by Coaches Bud McCallum and Bill Morris. The forward wall lost one of its regulars through the scholastic route this week in Ed Bell, tackle. Hodgkiss the versatile Coyote lineman who has filled every assignment on the wall from end to center and has even tried some punting in games this season, will probably be used in Bell's place at tackle. Bob Carstarphen is the leading condidate to take Hodgkiss' position in the Lubbock game.

Reserve tackle strength returned to the team this week when Bill McKinley joined the squad after two week's absence. McKinley may see quite a bit of service in the clash with the Westerners since Bell and Jack West, both capable forwards, are ineligible.

McCallum is almost certain to start Lee at quarterback, Mills at full and Elliott and Davis at halves in the backfield.

TIGERS' OWNER TO AID HARRIS

Navin Pays $75,000 For Outfielder Johnson

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (UP)—It now becomes apparent that when Frank Navin acquired the services of Bucky Harris and made him manager of the Tigers, the Detroit magnate had no intention of saying to his new leader:

"Well, there's what you have to work with. Go to it."

The first thing Navin did was to take the rubber band off his roll and buy for Bucky the best outfielder on the Pacific Coast, a hard hitter who came high.

Roy Johnson of the San Francisco Seals cost every penny of $75,000 and while he might have been worth it to some ball clubs, the crying need for another outfielder in Detroit was not apparent at the time the purchase was made.

With Harry Heilmann, "Fat" Fothergill, Harry Rice and "Red" Wingo, the Tigers were fairly well supplied with hard hitting outfielders, just as they have been since baseball was invented by Harry Stevens as a medium for marketing hot dogs.

Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and a host of other hard hitting outfielders have graced Detroit uniforms. It may be that Navin merely aspires to keep up the tradition. Probably it is something more than that, however.

To Have Free Reign

Harris is to have free reign, or something approximating that state of affairs, in the matter of building up his new club this winter. When the club owners and managers gather for the annual meetings in Chicago, the former Washington pilot probably will be one of the busiest boys around the Loop lobbies.

Roy Johnson may be all he is touted to be. The same, however, is true of the climate and of so many other things on which Californians pride themselves. Johnson, despite a tendency to go after bad balls, managed to hit .359 for the Seals last season, in addition to being a ball hawk and a fast man on the bases. He is only 24, stands five feet nine and weighs 175. He hits left handed and throws right.

Several other major league clubs were hot on Johnson's trail and bargaining with the Seals, which would seem to indicate that Harris had not acquired a pig in a poke.

The outfield situation at Detroit, however, is, as has been pointed out, not exactly desperate. Harry Heilman still hits with the best of them and Fothergill always is nearer to .400 than to .250.

Harry Rice, who went to the Detroit club last winter as part of a deal for Heinie Manush and Lou Blue, failed to justify predictions as to his greatness. But Rice had a lot of things on his mind besides baseball during the 1928 season and may do a lot better next year.

Incidentally, Heinie Manush, who went to St. Louis, nearly led the league in batting and just missed being voted the most valuable player to his club in the American league.

Which is the way baseball trades work out now and then.

Can Talk Trades

Phil Ball, the winged magnate, thought so much of Manush that when the baseball writers who selected the league's most valuable player gave the award to Mickey Cochrane instead of to Heinie, the owner of the St. Louis Browns handed Manush a check for $2,000, just twice the amount of the prize that goes with the award.

"Red" Wingo, another Detroit outfielder, is no slouch, so that the Tigers seem to be well fixed when it comes to talking trades. It is to be hoped for their sake that they guess better than they did a year ago.

While Johnson has been referred to as the best outfielder on the Pacific Coast last season, there are some who consider that his teammate and fellow gardener on the San Francisco team was better, a youngster named Averill, who also made quite a name for himself as a hitter.

Pitt and Nebraska Meet

Here are the rival coaches and captains in the Pittsburgh-Nebraska game at Lincoln, Nov. 17. It is the "rubber" contest of a series of three games, each team having been victorious once.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 15. (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh Panthers face the difficult task on November 17 of attempting to defeat the Nebraska Cornhuskers on their own field.

Intersectional opponents who have been turned back on the Lincoln greensward are many—Syracuse three times, New York university last year, the Oregon Aggies and Notre Dame several times. The Huskers at home played the University of Washington to a tie, while Washington State eked out a one-point victory in Lincoln.

Nebraska has been the only team to hold its own in a series of games with Notre Dame. Each has won five games. One was a tie.

Pittsburgh has never before appeared here. Last year the Panthers downed the Huskers at Pittsburgh, 21-13, and in 1921 Nebraska won, 10-0.

This year's Nebraska aggregation is typical of Cornhusker football teams. It is physically powerful and can call upon a versatile assault. "Blue" Howell is the latest of star offensive and defensive backs developed by Ernest Bearg since he became football coach four years ago.

This year's Nebraska record includes a victory over Syracuse, 7-6, and another over the Huskers' traditional rival, Missouri, which was beaten, 24-0.

A week after the engagement with Pittsburgh, Bearg takes his outfit to West Point for a tilt with the devastating Army team.

Pony Stars May Not Face Baylor

DALLAS, Nov. 15. (AP)—Driven at top speed in their last full workout before Saturday's clash with Baylor university at Waco, the Southern Methodist university Mustangs were anything but cheered by the failure of two Pony stars to participate in practice today.

Redman Hume, whose foot was hurt in the game against the University of Texas, sat on a bench with Charlton Fincher, victim of a cold, and watched the other gridsters attempt to break up passes, the one department in which Coach Morrison will admit his charges are woefully weak.

Morrison said it was doubtful whether either Hume, the Southwest conference's leading scorer, or Fincher, half, could play Saturday.

2 LONGHORNS MAY BE OUT

Littlefield Mum on Wray And Shelley Playing

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Texas university Longhorn squad went through a stiff workout of no unusual description today in preparation for their Saturday game at Fort Worth with Texas Chritsian university.

Coach Littlefield had little to say further about the chances of Dexter Shelley and Red Wray being able to play against the Frogs. Both are injured. Coach Littlefield never has much to say anyway about things of the future.

Strong Teams Meet Today On Latter's Gridiron

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 15.—The Burk Bulldogs came out in good condition last week when they defeated Henrietta by a score of 7 to 0. They have been going through hard scrimmage games this week with Grandfield and Fairview.

Coach Taylor reports all the players eligible and in top shape for their clash with the Bowie Gridders Friday.

The game is called at 3:30 o'clock and will be played on the Burkurnett athletic field.

Abe Espinosa's 70 Leads Oregon Golf

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 15. (AP)—Abe Espinosa, Chicago, walked in with 70 scrawled on his score card after finishing the first round of the $5,000 Oregon open golf tournament today.

He beat a four-way tie of Mel Smith, Columbia Country club, Portland; Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J.; Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Ed Dudley, Los Angeles, with 72 scores.

Johnny Farrell, New York, one of the late finishers today scored 74. Bert Wilde, Bellingham, made 75.

Rice Outlook Dim To Defeat Aggies

HOUSTON, Nov. 15. (AP)—With both Danny Allnoch and Phil Ables crippled, the chances of the Rice Owls to take the Texas Aggies into camp Saturday at College Station were dim today. Allnoch and Ables have severe leg injuries.

Coach Rothgeb urged newspapermen to say nothing about the injured players. "We want no semblance of an alibi on this next game," the head mentor said. "Anyway, we hope both Allnoch and Ables will be able to play Saturday."

MEGARGEL AT OLNEY THANKSGIVING IN CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

VICTOR TO GET DISTRICT TITLE

OLNEY, Texas, Nov. 15.—Megargel and Olney high schools will meet here Thanksgiving day for the class B football championship of district No. 3 of the Texas prep league. This was announced today following a conference of officials of the two schools involved and heads of district No. 3 class B athletics.

Olney is champion of the southern half of the district and Megargel was winner of the northern title. Both teams are undefeated and neither has been tied this season and one of the hardest games in the history of district 3 class B football is forecast when they meet here.

The game will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

AROUND THE RING

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—When it comes to second-guessing and kicking resin dust in the faces of those who pin their faith and dollars on failures, there is no breed quite so vicious as the gentry of the phiz flicking industry.

There is no mark, either, quite so easy to hit as Tex Rickard, cauliflower connoisseur, whose hands just now rock the cradle wherein lie many of the fistic infants who sometime must take the place of the dear departed among the heavyweights—Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

Most of the shafts are directed at Rickard's foreign follies. The only man who ever stirred the fight fans' pulses to a Dempsey degree and even stole from the old man mauler for part of two rounds was Luis Angel Firpo of the Argentine.

Tex, it seems, never has forgotten the business possibilities in the right hand that wafted Dempsey into a huddle of ineffective newspeper men outside the ring at the Polo grounds and came within one controversy of stripping Jack of his title in his prime. Tex is willing to invest more money in the possibility that the Wild Bull still has a few more of those frantic but devastating right hand punches in his aging system.

Since Firpo, Rickard's investments in foreign cauliflower have met with little success. The master of Madison Square Garden can wrest hundreds of thousands of dollars from the wheat and stock markets in side ventures, but as yet the money orders cabled overseas have brought him nothing but headaches.

The most prominent of the present foreign crop came to him unsolicited. Tom Heeney, not even a favorite with himself, dropped in one day from New Zealand by way of London to see America last. He had a few dollars in his pockets and no overcoat. A year and a half later he fought Tunney for the heavyweight title and saw the last of the very best America had to offer in the way of flying leather.

Paulino Uzcudun came in amid the roar of the ballyhoo, fortified with managers from several nations, all capable of speaking everything but English. The Spaniard said it with fists, rather wild and uncouth at first, but more impressively as time went on. Today he stands out as an elimination tournament cornerstone.

Rickard's direct investments abroad have been failures, however, and the last one may have had something to do with the rest he is now taking in Florida. Franz Diener used up considerable of the Rickard ready money before he arrived from Germany and fizzled badly. Rudi Wagner, another Teuton, came over in state and left after one clash with Big Boy Peterson, more to be pitied than censured. Phil Scott was up and down several times during the British invasion, and he doesn't plan to come back.

The quaintest of the foreign flock however, is Tex's most recent venture. It cost him over $1,500 to import Francisco Cruz, the heavyweight champion of Portugal, and the date and record for knocking out the invader is just 18 seconds.

For a time, in Francisco's second start, it looked as though the record would be broken, but the Portuguese was made of sterner stuff. He fought Jack Shaw, a New Jersey heavyweight, and lasted almost two rounds. Five times the roundeyed, willing champion of Portugal's battlers hit the canvas, but every time he got up.

It seems that between his first and second matches the necessity of rising before the count of nine was planted deep within him. He must have memorized the word eight, for every time the referee reached that figure Francisco, no matter what his state of confusion, bounced to his feet and took some more.

Shaw finally put the nudge on Francisco with a right hand that must have made even Rickard wince, far away in Florida though he was. A kindly referee was ready tiha time and passed lightly over the "eight." Thus was the Portuguese champion extinguished for the night and justice tempered with mercy.

Zundelowitz and Reagan junior high schools will play their annual football game for the "city championship" on Monday, Nov. 26, instead of next Monday, it was announced yesterday. Both teams are preparing for the contest which will decide the junior prep title of Wichita Falls.

The game was moved up from Thanksgiving to prevent conflict with the Wichita Falls-Amarillo game here.

Only One Change In Frog's Lineup

Barr to Replace Moore In Saturday's Game

FORT WORTH, Nov. 15. (AP)—Coach Bell plans to send Texas Christian university against the Texas university Longhorns Saturday with but one change in the lineup that started against Rice Owls last week.

Buck Barr will go to right tackle instead of Red Moore. Barr, substituting against Rice, showed a lot of fight to win the berth of Moore this week.

The Frogs drilled on new plays today.

Upsets Upset Dailey's Weekly Forecast

'Experting' Average of Season Falls to .807

The upsets recorded last week in major collegiate football games were reflected in the prognosticating of Larry Dailey. For the first time since the start of the season, Dailey's average for a week's forecasts fell below .800. He picked 28 winners, had nine losers and four ties in last Saturday's games, a mark of .757. However, Dailey's average for the season still is over .800, though he fell from .815 to .807.

Games which Larry picked the wrong winner last week were defeats of Vanderbilt by Georgia Tech Virginia by Virginia Poly, Kansas by Marquette, Ohio State by Iowa, Dartmouth by Brown, Harvard by Pennsylvania, Syracuse by Ohio Wesleyan, Army by Notre Dame and Yale by Maryland. In his Daily Dope column Saturday he picked Iowa to beat Ohio State but made a mistake in his forecast of the scores and named the Buckeyes as the victor, so he loses that one.

Dailey picked one exact score last week, and a most peculiar count it was, the 7 to 6 victory of Northwestern over Purdue. He missed the score on Holy Cross' win over Boston university by only one point. He made the correct forecast on the meeting of the unbeaten and untied Carnegie Tech and Georgetown teams, picking the former to win. He also forecast a low score in the Michigan-Army game, naming the Wolverines as probable victors, 3-0. It was a 6-6 tie.

Following is a resume of last week's forecast, with the predicted score named first and the actual count last:

Texas-Baylor 13-6 6-0.

DEMPSEY GIVES TERMS TO TEX

Conditions Under Which He Will Fight Outlined

By ED FRAYNE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (US)—The conference of the half century continued apace at the Madison Square garden offices of George "Tex" Rickard today. It also continued afield to the Lafayette restaurant, where Rickard and his conferee, Jack Dempsey, last night attended a dinner given to the press by Paulino Uscudun, the Spanish heavyweight contender.

The net result of these negotiations, which have now been under way for 48 hours, is that Dempsey has tentatively agreed to return to the ring. He will be matched with the outstanding white heavyweight contender at a New York ball park some time between July and September of next year.

Before consenting to Rickard's proposal, Dempsey made the following conditions:

1.—His opponent must be one of the four men now recognized as the leading contenders—Paulino Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, Knut Hansen or young Stribling. George Godfrey, the black menace, is barred.

2.—He must get a percentage of the receipts that will assure him $500,000 for his end.

3.—He will nto sign a contract until January, at which time he will visit Rickard at Miami, Fla., as Gene Tunney did last year.

The date, opponent and terms will be definitely settled at the Florida conference, and there is only one development that will cause the former champion to withdraw his promise. That will be the appearance of a new figure in the heavyweight division, someone for instance, like young "Tuffy" Griffiths, of Sioux City, Iowa, who has been making a startling record in the middle west. Dempsey is confident he can defeat any of the present-day contenders, but he is not willing to chance a defeat by a new ring prodigy.

These assertions are made on the authority of Rickard himself, who was greatly elated over the apparent success of his negotiations. Dempsey laughed and "clowned" with newspapermen, but would not commit himself.

"I may and I may not," he said. "It all depends on how I feel next year. That's a long time off, and I admit I'm a changeable guy."

Rickard was more communicative.

"It looks like it's all set," he exclaimed. "If this were March instead of November, he would start in training tomorrow. He's just as interested as he used to be."

Rickard will remain here until after Jan. 7, when he will leave to meet Dempsey in the South.

Spanish Tennis Star Takes Up Aviation

LONDON, Nov. 15. (AP)—Senorita Lili d'Alvares, the tennis star who was runnerup against Helen Wills in the Wimbledon championships last summer, is learning to fly. Already the Spanish sportswoman plays golf well, is a crack ice skater, a good horsewoman and excels in other athletic activities.

She took her first flight in a "Gypsy Moth," one of the tiny planes which are becoming popular with amateur flyers in Britain.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (AP)—An early decline under Southern selling and liquidation promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, was followed by rallies on some trade buying and covering in a very quiet cotton market here today. January contracts after selling off to 19.34, advanced to 19.53 and closed at 19.45 compared with 19.54 at the close of Wednesday. The general market closed steady at net declines of 3 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 to 11 points, and the active months showed net losses of 9 to 13 points during the early trading. Business was moderately active at the start, with Southern selling and further liquidation absorbed by covering and trade buying. This was in sufficient volume to check the decline around 19.30 for December and 19.42 for March, and after the early selling had run its course, there appeared to be very little cotton for sale. As a result prices steadied up on a light demand, but business remained very quiet on the recovery which carried December up to 19.58, and March to 19.53 in the late trading. Last prices were 2 to 3 points off from the best under a little Southern selling and realizing.

The small volume of business was attributed by some of the local brokers to a disposition to await further developments in the Southern spot markets, or for the publication of the next ginning report which is expected Wednesday and will show ginnings prior to Nov. 14.

Liverpool cabled that trade buying had absorbed local and London liquidation there, and said there was a good cloth inquiry for India although many offers were unworkable. Exports for the day were 102,406 making 2,954,238 so far this season. Port receipts 49,298. U. S. port stocks 2,194,604.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15. (AP)—The absorbing of all speculative interest by the stock market was reflected in a dull cotton market today. Price fluctuations were limited to a spread of 9 points and at times there were long intervals between trades. An early decline of 12 points was followed by a rally on trade buying and covering. January contracts which had sold down to 18.87, rallied to 18.95 and closed at 18.92, or 6 points net lower. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 5 to 7 points.

Liverpool cables were 2 to 5 points lower than due and as there was a lack of buying orders at the start, first trades showed losses of 7 to 9 points. No sustaining support developed in early trading and the initial decline extended to 18.80 for December, 18.87 for January and 18.90 for March or 12 points under the previous close.

Prices fluctuated listlessly during the morning within the range of a few points, near noon, however, shorts started to cover and there was more or less trade buying and before the demand was supplied, December recovered to 18.88, January 18.95 and March 18.97, or 7 to 9 points above the lows but 4 to 5 points under the previous close. For the remainder of the afternoon the market was quiet but March contracts made a new high at 18.98 and May 18.91, but there was a slight recession at the end and final prices were 1 to 2 points under the best.

Westinghouse Feature Stock On Easier Market; Money Tighter

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (US)—Stocks eased off today, under the influence of tightening money and fear of another substantial gain in brokers' loans. Money tightened as a result of the mid-month disbursements but the loan increase for the week of $1,859,000 reported after the close was a surprise in view of the three successive 5,000,000 share days experienced. Westinghouse Electric was the outstanding feature as it soared over 10 points further. Kennecott gained over 4, Andes Copper more than 3, Mexican Seaboard more than 2 points and a few others influenced by individual developments gained a point or so but the list closed lower on the average. Good support was evidenced for the standard industrials and Steel closed fractionally higher while General Motors recovered a point. Rails were quieter and somewhat softer. Call money advanced to 6½ from renewal of 6 per cent as the banks called loans.

Directors Disagree

Westinghouse Electric's outstanding strength was the result of the desire of certain interests who have been in the company for some time to add to their holdings. The directors have not been in agreement on one or two important matters and if those who recently purchased large blocks of their stock have their way there will be a change in the directorate at the next meeting. Merger with Baldwin has been desired for some time.

Sinclair was taken in big blocks again. The street hears whispers of what was discussed at recent meeting which strengthens belief that full knowledge of Sinclair's earning power and prospects is not generally realized. In the past ten years Sinclair has written off the equivalent of $30 a share on the stock. October income, it is learned, established a record, so there is added reason to expect dividend early in 1929. Mexican Seaboard held outstanding place in the oil group with dividend expectations voiced. Kennecott buying reflected belief that special cash distribution, and possibly a stock dividend would result from Monday's meeting.

Gotham's Prominence

Gotham prominence is due to pool work by some of the strongest interests in the market. The group work apparently is managed from two of the most active stock exchange firms; one at 50 Broadway and the other at 52 Wall street. Buying is based on the larger income expected from Gotham Knitbac, the subsidiary controlling repair machinery, in which Gotham holds 500,000 shares carried on its books at one dollar. Maytag was helped by expectations of a 50-cent extra dividend at next directors' meeting. Bush Terminal was well taken again as special development is scheduled for the not distant future. Johns Manville new high resulted from knowledge of the management's plans for adding to property. Bethlehem stood out among the independent steels again as dividend declaration is expected in January if improvement in earnings continue as indicated. General American Tank new high was in response to preferred retirement which was forecast here exclusively.

Increase in loans put the total as of Wednesday's close to $4,980,817,000. Practically everyone in the street expected the reserve to show the total at over $5,000,000,000 so the less than $2,000,000 gain should prove an influence this morning. The most powerful operators expected larger increase but showed no worry. They adhere to belief that so long as the number of securities continue to increase and their value gets larger there is no reason to fear corresponding gain in borrowing. The calling of loans was to put the banks in shape to meet the Nov. 15 interest and dividend checks sent out yesterday.

Sterling held close to the low of the year in a generally quiet foreign exchange market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Moderate receipts of hogs around the midwestern and southwestern market loop resulted in a light reaction; trade was active at steady to 10c higher prices; the extreme top of $9.10 was paid at Chicago for one load of choice 259-pound butchers; total offerings were around 91,600, a slight decrease from last Thursday and 15,000 short of the same day a year ago.

Considerable uneveness prevailed on fat lambs. Omaha reported a moderate advance; Chicago had steady to 25c lower prices and values at other centers were little changed. Choice native lambs at Chicago on the opening reached $13.60, but on the close the bulk of the natives and westerns cashed from $12.50@13.25. The supply approximated 45,200 as compared with 57,488 a week ago and 46,506 a year ago.

Killing classes of cattle found a slow outlet at most points with beef steers holding steady and weak to lower prices in order on light yearlings and fat she stock. Short fed offerings predominated in the supply at most markets. No material changes were registered on stocker and feeder classes. Choice heavy steers in Chicago scored $18.00 while choice lightweight steers realized $17.75 aggregate receipts were estimated at 33,800, an increase of 3,000 over a week ago, but 12,500 short of the same day last year.

CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 15. (AP)—Lively upturns in wheat values today followed word of heavy rains hampering the Argentine harvest. Statements of Secretary Jardine that millable wheat supplies in Canada may be less than last year, and that European wheat buyers will have to turn more to the United States during stoppage of navigation on the Great Lakes were also a bullish factor and so too were reports that President Coolidge may specify farm relief plans tomorrow night. In the face of increased selling, however, top prices failed to hold.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¼c to ⅝c net higher, with corn 1c to 1⅜c down; oats at a shade to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 15c.

At first, the wheat market here had a downward trend that was associated with reports of liberal offerings of Argentine wheat to Europe and with bearish crop estimates both from Argentina and Australia. The Argentine crop was unofficially estimated as totaling 245,000,000 bushels. Nearly 6,000,000 bushels larger than in 1927, and the Australian crop was officially put at 154,000,000 bushels, about 2,000,000 bushels over recent private forecasts. An abrupt change in trade sentiment developed, however, after receipt of Buenos Aires cables telling of renewed rainfalls in northern Argentina.

Corn showed weakness today from the outset, despite strength displayed by wheat and oats. Improved corn belt weather had a bearish influence on corn, and so likewise did the fact that the corn market had been on the upgrade for the last seven days.

ROTHSTEIN WAS DOPE SUSPECT

Slain Gambler Was Wanted By Narcotic Bureau

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. (INS)—Arnold Rothstein, millionaire plunger and shadowy power in the underworld, was wanted for questioning by Col. L. G. Nutt, in charge of the narcotic bureau of the United States, at the time Rothstein was slain by an assassin's bullet.

This was revealed today by Sara Graham Mulhall, famous world leader on the war against drugs, while attending the annual conference here of the Narcotic Rehabilitation association.

Miss Mulhall told International News Service that she was informed six associates of Rothstein had been arrested in connection with a gigantic "dope ring" conspiracy shortly before the gambler was killed.

With startling suddenness, Mayor Walker today reopened his personal digging into the Rothstein mystery. He summoned Police Commissioner Warren, Inspector Coughlin of the detective bureau, and every detective assigned to the case and "invited" District Attorney Banton to a conference at city hall.

Both the summonses and the "invitation" were heeded and it appeared, after the arrival of the "guests" that the mayor had set up police headquarters in city hall.

Banton today threatened that if George McManus, wanted for questioning in the case, does not give himself up, he will be charged with murder. McManus is the man whose topcoat was found in room 349 of the Park Central hotel where Rothstein was mortally wounded.

SHOOTING FLAREUP SEEN IN DENVER

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15. (UP)—Gunmen believed to have been associated with the Arnold Rothstein gambling clique in New York made two attempts against the lives of Rothstein's former enemies here today.

Eddie Diamond, who told police he had been opposed to the Rothstein group, was fired upon by a group of men in the apartment house district. Diamond was uninjured and returned the fire.

Later in the day police, hunting for Diamond's assailants, raided a place which had been equipped with machine guns as an ambush for one of Diamond's friends, a man named Roth. An exchange of gunfire followed and four ganster suspects, one of them wounded, were arrested.

Radium Poison Inventor Dies

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 15. (UP)—The hope of life of the five New Jersey women, slowly dying from the effects of radium paint, was shaken when Dr. Sabin A. von Sochocky's emphatic statement of only a few weeks ago that he had cured himself of the radium poison induced by his own invention.

The women were employed painting luminous watch dials with the radium paint. They gradually became poisoned.

The condition of the five women was found unchanged yesterday.

They are: Mrs. Albina Larice, Mrs. Quinta McDonald, Mrs. Edna Hussman, Katherine Schauson and Grace Fryer. Each has been awarded $10,000 in cash and a $600 annuity in return for approaching death.

Bricklayers Founder Over Pen Brick Problem

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 15. (UP)—Delegates to the state convention of bricklayers here were deadlocked today on the move to have the law forcing labeling of prison-made bricks reenacted.

Union bricklayers at present do not lay bricks made by prisoners except in state work.

The convention, which will last through Friday and perhaps Saturday, is scheduled to take up a move to have the legislature pass a minimum wage bill for women.

Peach Industry Is Revived By Irrigation

CARLSBAD, N. M., Nov. 15. (UP)—A promising new industry on the Carlsbad irrigation project in the revival of peach orchards along the lower elevations of irrigable land adjacent to Pecos river was indicated by the purchase of 1,000 peach trees for the E. R. Poteet farm near Otis.

On it now are 550 peach trees which yielded during the past season. Peaches would be a profitable crop generally in the lower Pecos valley except for frosts which occur during the blooming season.

BOOM TOWNS IN MAUD AREA

Four 'Cities' Started But One Isn't Named

MAUD, Okla., Nov. 15. (UP)—Boom towns sprang up near here today, would-be-transients decided they had reached their stopping place and persons, both of fair and doubtful repute, were here—all because a race for rich oil sand was on with 92 wells—more than ever before—competing.

Since one minute after midnight today, a race for oil has been on. Wells were spudded in and many were down more than 40 feet at nightfall. Tomorrow the big rotary drills will be put in operation and in just a few thousand feet toward the bowels of the earth the contention of whether a gigantic oil pool awaits tapping wil be proved or disproved.

The operators are searching for the Wilcox sand, in the Mission pool part of the Greater Seminole area, the largest high gravity oil producing district in the world. Several gushers were found in the Mission pool before restrictions were put into effect.

Drilling restrictions, in force for many months, placed on the greater Seminole area when 528,000 barrels of oil were produced in one day, were lifted at midnight and the race began. The effort to get oil was orderly and totally unlike frenzied efforts to get into the Sooner Strip in 1889.

For months the operators had been preparing for the race. Machinery was on the ground and set up, riggs ready, bits in place, everything prepared. And today the chug-chug of oil field engines and the grinding of bits into earth and rock was heard, going after oil maybe.

Because of this increased activity—the race lifting or restrictions and whatnot—at least four towns bloomed. Three of them were named at once—Mission City, Ba City, Car City, and the other didn't yet have a name, but no one seemed to care.

And all of this—a race, boom towns, 528,000 barrels of oil in a day—had happened and is happening in 288 square miles of territory that nearly three years ago was condemned by geologists as land that was no good for oil or that if oil was there it was at a prohibitive depth.

NEW BUILDING NEEDS STUDIED

Government Tour to Visit Texas Towns

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (INS)—Swinging through the southwest from St. Louis to Texas and Oklahoma, and back into Florida, Georgia and other states, a special post office-treasury committee today began an investigation to determine the public building needs of that territory.

As a result of this study, that of another committee to visit New Jersey and investigations in progress by federal inspectors in the Mid-west and West, a program of building projects will be prepared for submission to congress. Request for authorization of from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be made. This will take care of the federal building program financing for the 1929-1930 fiscal year.

When congress opens next month it will receive in the treasury-post office appropriation bill request for specific authorization of 139 building projects, representing from $20,000,000 to $35,000,000 initial expenditure.

Projects in Texas

In January a deficiency bill will go to congress to provide for 50 other building projects with initial expenditure of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. As the original appropriations are exhausted further funds will be sought of congress to complete the two sets of projects.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Carl T. Schuneman and Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett will arrive in St. Louis at 5 p. m. today to begin their investigation. They will then visit Jefferson City, Mo., Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Ponca City and Bartlesville, Okla., to study building requirements.

Several important projects will be studied in Texas, at Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and Galveston.

Frenzied Killer Still at Large

SAN JOSE, Calif., Nov. 15. (UP)—Stephen Sparacino, who yesterday in a mad frenzy killed his daughter and bombed a neighbor's house, still was at large today despite a state-wide search.

Using four bombs, containing about 80 sticks of dynamite, and a shotgun for his weapons, Sparacino invaded the section of the city where his estranged wife and daughter lived.

He entered the home of his wife, killed his 20-year-old daughter, Angie, with the shotgun and a few moments later tossed a bomb into the home of James Di Fiore. The blast shook the whole neighborhood and tore out the front of Di Fore's house.

Model of Memorial Erected in Capital

AUSTIN, Nov. 15. (INS)—A working model of the memorial tablet which will bear the names of approximately 5,200 Texans who died during the world war, and which will be placed in the University of Texas memorial stadium, was being erected today in the house of representatives hall for study and approval of the committee directed to manage its creation and erection.

An appropriation of $10,000 was made for the erection of the tablet by the last legislature. Gov. Dan Moody is chairman of the committee charged with the responsibility for its creation, and Hugo Villa, of San Antonio, is the sculptor. S. C. R. Vosper, also of San Antonio, is the consulting architect.

Good Demand Greets Opening Of Francis MacMillen Ticket Sale

American Violinist Acclaimed in Europe Before Returning to Home Country to Win New Laurels as Artist

Sale of tickets for the concert of Francis MacMillen, American violinist to be presented at the Memorial auditorium Friday evening, Nov. 23, opened at the McConnell Furniture company Thursday morning and is reported to be fairly heavy, according to Mrs. G. B. Smedley, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Woman's Forum, under the auspices of which the concert will be presented. This will be third benefit attraction for the forum season.

Sale of tickets for the children's matinee will open Monday with the supervisors of music in the schools in charge of ticket sales. Mail orders are coming in steadily, Mrs. Smedley said.

Favorite in Europe

Francis MacMillen, considered one of the few leading violinists, was born in Marietta, Ohio. At the age of 21 he had arrived musically. When a child he evinced such marked talent as to warrant serious instruction at the early age of five. He studied the violin arduously and even played in public at that age. A year or two later he was regularly matriculated as a student in a Chicago musical institution, where he studied both violin and piano. When 10 years old he was taken to Europe first to Berlin, and four years later to Brussels.

In his second year at the Brussels Royal Conservatory of Music, he won the "Premier Prix avec la Plus Grande Distinction" (first prize with the greatest distinction) together with the Van Hal prize of $5,000.

In their enthusiasm over his victory, fellow American students and Belgian friends bore him on their shoulders through the streets. The Van Hal prize is regarded as one of the most coveted distinctions in the violin world and this was the first time an American had received that honor.

Receives Royal Salutes

Then came MacMillen's triumphant public debut in Brussels, and the phenomenal young virtuoso found himself launched on his remarkable career. When "Gamba," the critic of "The Srtad," an English publication, heard the young American play in his London debut, a few days before he was 17, the critic was so deeply impressed as to cry out in his criticism, "Hats off, gentlemen!—A genius!"

Since then many have been the royal salutes this "King of Music" has commanded. When, after many European successes, he returned to his own country, American aristocrats of taste and culture continued to do him homage. In that historic town of Marietta, out in Ohio, a great throb of genuine emotion was beating in the hearts of the people. A child of art belongs to the people, and so this assembled crowd claimed him. This is the highest meed of praise accorded those who succeed. It is said, "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country." If this is a hard and fast rule, then in MacMillen it is that exception which wise men have ever deemed necessary to prove the rule.

It was one great family which received the violinist, not a mob. He united the whole town in one common bond of relation. He was theirs, all theirs—born in their midst, reared under their supervision. And he had succeeded! It was theirs to pay tribute, and right royally they did it.

Is Son of Editor

History is better chronicled by a witness to the event, such as a local editor, who said: "The ovation to Francis MacMillen was so great that he could not resist the temptation to recognize the throngs in some way and show his appreciation of the welcome which had been accorded him. Leaving the union depot he was escorted to the steps of the court house, where thousands were gathered to see him. He took from its case the violin which he loves second only to his mother and played 'Home Sweet Home.' Afterward the horses were taken from his carriage, and it was dragged through the streets by the college students of the town. Seated beside him was his grandfather, the first and principal patron of the boy's art. At the age of 83 this loving old man threw all his material goods into the scale to balance the weight of expense MacMillen's instruction incurred."

MacMillen is the third son of the late S. M. MacMillen, newspaper editor and politician of prominence in Ohio. For years the elder MacMillen was identified with the politics of that state as a leader in the Democratic party. He was collector of internal revenue for the eleventh district of Ohio during Grover Cleveland's second administration as president. He also was a member of the Democratic state executive committee for a decade, and was intimately associated with the late United States Senator Calvin S. Brice of Ohio. S. M. MacMillen died March 1903. The last years of his life were gladdened by the growing success of his talented young son.

MALE QUARTET HERE MONDAY

Teachers Association To Present Singers

The Schubert Male Quartet which filled a successful engagement here last year while on its annual tour, will be presented to the Wichita Falls public Monday night, Feb. 19, at 8 o'clock by the Junior college and High School Teachers' association in the Junior college auditorium, it was announced Thursday.

Because of confusion in bookings, it was stated, the quartet faced an open date Nov. 19, and was in position to accept an invitation to sing here. A. K. Presson, representing the teachers' association, contracted at once for their appearance.

Those responsible for bringing the singers back to the city expressed confidence that the entertainment would be welcomed by local music lovers. Those who heard the quartet last year declared that both solo and ensemble work reflected a fine degree of artistry and praised a well balanced program of wide appeal. Advance notices state that next Monday's program will be high-class in every particular, and will include a number of Schubert's compositions, in costume, among which will be heard "The Song of Love," and other favorite melodies.

The personnel of the quartet has not changed. George O. Miner, basso and director, spent three years as a recital artist in Canada and United States before assuming his present connection with the Schubert singers. Jerry Brayford, first tenor, is given much of the solo work in the programs. He was first tenor in the "Dumb-Bell" quartet of Broadway fame with the "Three Little Maids" musical comedy. Rance Quarington, second tenor, is credited with several seasons of concert work, besides extensive experience in musical comedy leading roles. Ernest Morgan, baritone, spent several seasons in Canadian engagements, where he became principal baritone with the Canadian Operatic company.

Accompaniments for the quartet artists will be played by Miss Florence Reed, who is also announced as a talented violinist, appearing in solo and obbligato numbers.

City Builds New Water Line to Sediment Basin

A new water line is being placed by the city to the sediment basin at the water plant, according to an announcement made Thursday by Dr. A. H. Douglass, department manager.

The new line will be used to carry water for washing out the basin which will be drained once each month for that purpose.

The repair crew of the water department has "tied in" more than 18 "dead ends" in the city in the past two months. This means that water mains which were simply plugged at the end of the main have been connected up with other mains to make a complete circuit so that the water will be flowing at all times.

Rites Held For Boyd, Victim of Heart Attack

Funeral services for J. T. Boyd, 40, nightwatchman at the Charlie gin who was found dead Wednesday morning at the gin, were conducted in Charlie Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

A verdict of "death from heart trouble" was given at the coroner's inquest.

Body of Ike Markowitz Sent To Galveston for Burial; Rites Here

The body of Ike Markowitz, 76, who died in a local hospital Wednesday, was forwarded to Galveston for burial Thursday morning by the Burris-Shepherd Undertaking company. Funeral services were held from the Temple Israel at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with Rabbi S. J. Schawb officiating.

Mr. Markowitz was a native of Poland and came to America in 1873. He traveled in South America for several Texas firms during his early years in America. He moved to Wichita Falls in 1908 and was one of the pioneer oil operators in this section of the country.

Mr. Markowitz contributed largely to the building of the Temple Isarel and was elected as its first president.

Congress Ship Probe Mentioned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (UP)—Possibility of a congressional investigation of the Vestris disaster was suggested today by Senator Fletcher, Florida, Democrat, of the senate commerce committee.

"I feel the disaster should be thoroughly investigated in the interest of safety at sea," he said. "I don't know how the other members of the committee will feel about it but I think there is a possibility and in fact a great probability that such an investigation will be authorized."

Committee action must wait until congress convenes Dec. 3, since authorization for an investigation is secured through a senate resolution.

Fletcher is the ranking minority member of the commerce committee which probably would investigate the disaster should the senate act. He also was a member of the committee in 1912 when it investigated the sinking of the Titanic.

Senator Jones, Washington, Republican, chairman of the commerce committee, has not returned to Washington.

The steamship inspection service of the commerce department is conducting a separate investigation of the disaster under John L. Crone, chief inspector. Service officials will question survivors both in New York and Norfolk, it was said.

A report on the investigation will be forwarded to headquarters here early next week.

Chief Inspector Crone, it was said, has a detailed report of the inspection made three days before the boat sailed.

Supervising Inspector General Dickerson N. Hoover who has been in Memphis, Tenn., on official business, is returning to Washington to assume charge of the commerce department inquiry, it was said.

Search for bodies of the Vestris dead will be discontinued tonight, coast guard headquarters announced.

French Refuse Blackmer Release

PARIS, Nov. 15. (UP)—The United States' request for extradition of Henry M. Blackmer, former Denver oil man, will be rejected, the United Press learned today from authoritative sources. Blackmer, who was a missing witness in the senate Teapot Dome oil investigation faced federal income tax charges in America.

The procurer general transferred documents in the case to the accusations court today and it is expected that a decision will be returned before Dec. 1.

The request will be rejected on double grounds, it was stated. First, French law limits the time in which extradition may be asked to three years after the offense was committed. Blackmer's case is five years old. Second, the charge of false oath on which extradition is sought is not a punishable offense in France.

While it is almost certain that the extradition request will be refused, the court will hear arguments of U. S. treasury department lawyers. Under French law the decision is final if the accusations court refuses the request but the minister of justice would have the right to change the decision if the court granted the request.
